Clinic stresses coordinated care

By LEWIS HARRIS
SHERBROOKE — The interdependence of a person's emotional and physical health is one of the key considerations in the treatment of illnesses, says Dr. Paul Chevalier of the St. Vincent Family Clinic.

Dr. Chevalier, the cigar-smoking director of the privately-owned clinic, says that mental and physical factors in a patient's health are "like two sides of a coin, like body and soul."

The doctor also cited the need to integrate health services in order to minimize health costs, add to patient comfort and convenience, and give the patient the personal medical attention sometimes missing in today's large hospitals.

"We want everyone on a pedestal," said the doctor, "but we'll start with the patient."

The St. Vincent Family Clinic was founded in 1967 and received its letters patent in 1969. The financing of the clinic, located at 250 King Street East, was derived entirely from doctors' capital investments and a mortgage on the building.

The 29 physicians involved in the preplanning of the clinic in 1967 first held about 10 meetings to determine their goals.

They resolved in these sessions that the doctors' services should not be treated as compartments. Family physicians would form the basis of the clinic to provide continual medical services to families. Within the clinic, a flow of patients between general practitioners and specialists was created.

The result was a five-storey structure consisting of three storeys above ground and two at the subterranean level. Family physicians were placed on the ground level, while specialists were centred on the second and third floors. Where possible, specialists were grouped so that general practitioners could readily refer patients.

The clinic's facilities include a general laboratory, a radiology laboratory, a pharmacy that sells drugs at cost price plus the pharmacist's professional fee, an optician, an acoustician and an orthopedic area for fitting prostheses.

The doctors agreed at their initial meeting that the clinic would be as close as possible to St. Vincent de Paul Hospital on King Street East, with which most of them are associated. The site decided upon was only a few hundred yards away from the hospital, and the clinic's main entrance faces the hospital.

Since the building is situated on a hill, the entire rear of it faces a side street, and a private entrance allows admittance to these facilities.

Completing a clinic within the financial boundaries established at the outset is a difficult task. The St-Vincent clinic, however, is expected for less than the budgeted estimate.

STRESS PREVENTION

The clinic stresses preventative medicine, and one of the concepts under which it operates, Dr. Chevalier said, is "that when one member of a family is sick, the whole family is sick."

The family, said Dr. Chevalier, is "a cell in society," and when one cell is ill, all of society suffers. Physical problems are quite often rooted in emotional stresses, and questionnaires given to all patients before treatment are designed to demonstrate to the examining doctor any possible family problems.

"Physical problems can often be traced to emotional problems," the doctor explained. Marital problems involving sexual incompatibility, financial problems or "keeping up with the Joneses," explained the doctor, and industrial problems such as an unemployed husband, can all cause physical illness.

"Sometimes your wife wants to make you better than you are. They always do, because they love you," Dr. Chevalier said as an illustration.

DR. PAUL CHEVALIER

Construction costs of the clinic were kept to a minimum. The doctors were told that expensive exterior finishes selling for $8 per 100 square feet were not necessary. Often the only advantage this material offers is decorative appearance, and a plain brick wall will do the job just as well.

PLANNED CAREFULLY

Another suggestion followed was to construct an office building and fit the clinic into it, rather than to build a clinic with office facilities, in order to maximize resale value. Should the group decide to sell the building later, it can then be easily converted for commercial purposes.

Service in the clinic is efficient, and a medical examination undertaken by the reporter, including x-ray and heart examinations, was completed in less than 20 minutes.

Appointments, however, must in some instances be made months in advance.

"We haven't invented the wheel," explained Dr. Chevalier. "What we're trying to do is integrate health services and get doctors to work towards a specific goal."

Dr. Chevalier credited the doctors, however, for much of the success of the clinic — which is as it should be.

OTTAWA (CP) — The Commons decided Tuesday to hold its own investigation into allegations that MPs' telephones have been tapped and their mail screened.

Prime Minister Trudeau promised to protect from retribution any public servant presenting evidence. Erik Nielsen (PC-Yukon), who alleged in the House last week that mail to MPs has been screened in some departments, asked for assurance from Mr. Trudeau that any public servant who appears before the Commons committee will not be fired or have his career prejudiced in any way.

Mr. Trudeau gave it, adding that he trusted Mr. Nielsen would put his Commons seat at stake if the allegations turned out to be "pure fabrication."

Saying he wanted to set the prime minister's mind at ease, the Yukon

Conservative said Liberals "a been after my seat since 1963" without success.

Mr. Nielsen was first elected to the Commons in 1957 and has held the seat continuously since then.

In 1963, he alleged that attempts had been made to keep narcotics smuggler Lucien Rivard from being extradited to the U.S. to face charges. Raymond Denis, an executive assistant to a Liberal cabinet minister, later was sentenced to two years in jail for offering a bribe.

The Nielsen-Trudeau exchange developed after the Commons gave unanimous agreement to a motion by Jerry Pringle (L-Fraser Valley East) to have its committee on privileges and elections look into the allegations.

Mr. Trudeau told the House Monday he was unaware of any instances of mail being improperly opened or of telephones being tapped. He asked Mr. Nielsen to present any evidence he had.

The Conservative MP said his source was so "highly placed" that the information could not be wrong. But he declined to identify the source — a high ranking public servant — on grounds that this person would be fired by the government.

Egg men in jeopardy

MONTREAL (CP) — If the provincial government does not act soon, Quebec egg producers could go bankrupt, say the Catholic Farmers Union and Fedco, the government-created egg marketing agency.

The two organizations called on the Quebec government in a joint statement to provide subsidies for the province's sagging egg-producing industry. They said production costs have risen to twice the amount of revenue over the last two months.

The statement said production costs in Quebec vary from 32.5 cents to 35 cents a dozen, while producers earned only 28.5 cents a dozen in January and 14.5 cents in February.

Fedco cut prices by an average eight cents a dozen in January to combat "dumping" of eggs from outside the province on the Quebec market.

Nixon visit set

WASHINGTON (CP) — President and Mrs. Nixon will make a two-day visit to Ottawa next month in what is likely to be a public effort by both countries to smooth their currently-troubled relations.

A simultaneous announcement

Tuesday from the White House and Prime Minister Trudeau's office said the visit will take place April 13-15.

Mrs. Nixon will accompany the president and the visitors will be guests of the governor-general and Mrs. Michener at Government House.

Muskie fading Wallace wins big

MIAMI (AP) — Gov. George Wallace of Alabama stormed past his Democratic rivals Tuesday to claim a larger-than-expected victory in the Florida presidential primary election.

He immediately hailed the outcome as a sure sign that he is a national rather than a regional candidate.

Senator Hubert Humphrey of Minnesota was a distant second while Senator Edmund Muskie of Maine, the party's front-runner when the primary season began a week ago, was far behind in fourth place.

Senator Henry Jackson of Washington finished third, after a campaign in which he, like Wallace, hammered at opposition to the compulsory busing of school children for the sake of racial balance.

Presidential primaries are held in 24 states and serve to indicate the strengths of the various candidates for the White House. Also at stake in Florida was the state's delegate votes at the Democratic national convention.

Among 10 trailing Democrats in the second primary battle of 1972, Muskie appeared to be the big loser.

His standing as the national front-runner, dented in the New Hampshire primary a week earlier, appeared battered by the Florida outcome.

The Alabama governor had been favored in Florida from the start, but he ran well ahead of the public opinion polls. With 97 per cent of the 2,481 precincts counted, he had 41 per cent of the ballots.

Humphrey was next with 19 per cent, followed by Jackson with 13 and Muskie with nine.

President Nixon easily swept the Republican primary over two rivals, winning all 40 national convention votes for renomination.

UFOs reported in area

KNOWLTON (LH) — Knowlton police and department of transport officials are continuing to check reports of sightings of an unidentified flying object in the skies over the Eastern Townships Monday night.

Two independent sightings of the celestial craft were reported to the Record yesterday by Gordon Swift and Bryan Smith, both of Knowlton.

Mr. Swift's sighting took place near the Foster exit of the Eastern Townships Autoroute.

"At first it looked like a bright star," said Mr. Swift. "Then it started getting bigger. It eventually got as big as a street lamp, but it couldn't have been a street lamp as high as it was."

"It looked like there were bright red lights along the side of it," he continued. "I pulled the car over to the side of the road. The object passed over and it looked like it was cone-shaped."

"As it went by, two red lights at the back were flashing. It moved very, very slowly and made no sound. I estimate it at being 2,000 feet up."

SIGHTED OVER KNOWLTON

An equally incredulous Mr. Smith, who saw the object over Knowlton, said yesterday, "I was in the house when I saw it through a window."

"I called my girlfriend and her mother over and they said it was probably an airplane. I thought it was too bright to be one," he said.

"Since it was two to one, I went back to reading."

Mr. Smith said the object moved very quickly. "There were red lights underneath and a blue light up behind. I watched it for about five to 10 minutes."

A spokesman for the Eastern Townships Autoroute Authority said yesterday, "This is the first time I've heard about it. We haven't had any reports."

Knowlton police also said they knew nothing of what appeared to two rational witnesses to be a visitor from outer space.

A spokesman for the Canadian Forces Base at St. Hubert denied any knowledge of the incident and of aircraft in the area.

Library Week inaugurated

SHERBROOKE (LH) — Library Week was officially inaugurated at the Sherbrooke Municipal Library yesterday, and city councillor Romeo Bergeron took the opportunity to outline progress on the city's local initiative library project.

The local initiative project, said Mr. Bergeron, involves cataloguing and reclassifying many of the library's books. The project is about half complete.

"It's a good project because it's costing the city only $1,860. The federal government is contributing $13,200," he explained. The project has created six new jobs, and when the project concludes in April, about half the city's library books will have been catalogued, said Mr. Bergeron.

"We hope to get an Opportunities for Youth grant to continue the work over the summer," he said. "It will be a good project because it will create jobs for students on leave from university."

Mr. Bergeron also said he hoped the planned amalgamation of the Sherbrooke municipal library and the adjacent private English-language Sherbrooke Library would take place soon. He noted that an agreement in principle between the two groups representing the libraries has already been reached, "and all that remains is to work out the models under which the agreement will work."

The theme of Library Week this year is Books and Answers.

A full slate of activities has been planned for the week. Claude Lafleur of the University of Sherbrooke spoke briefly last night on the history of poster art, and tomorrow a panel discussion will be held on the topic The Municipal Library — What Good is It?

"We hope Sherbrooke residents will use the library to better advantage and become more aware of its many uses," said Mr. Bergeron.

Local teacher honored

QUEBEC (CP) — The Prix Scientifique, the Quebec government's highest award for scientific accomplishment, was awarded Tuesday to Prof. Pierre Deslongchamps of the chemistry department at the University of Sherbrooke.

In presenting the award, Claire Kirkland-Casgrain, Quebec cultural affairs minister, described Prof. Deslongchamps as one of the most promising scientists in Canada. The prize carries a grant of $5,000.

Prof. Deslongchamps, 33, born in St. Lin, Que., has studied at the Universities of Montreal and New Brunswick and in 1964 undertook post-doctoral studies at the Harvard University.

In 1965, he was named assistant professor of chemistry at University of Montreal and a year later joined the staff of the University of Sherbrooke.

He has directed research in the area of organic synthesis.

EAGER YOUNGSTERS — Some 24 students from the Sherbrooke area and North Conway, N.H., who participated recently in a Sherbrooke Rotary Club sponsored student exchange program were guests of the club last night. Students Danielle Cote, left, of Sherbrooke and Lee Cravede of North Conway talk to Rotary vice-president Paul McKenna, Rotarians Neils Hansen and Guy Cloutier did much of the work organizing the exchange, and the Rotary Club was thanked by the enthusiastic youngsters.

Pets are no problem

By Ann Landers

Dear Ann Landers: I live and work in a motel. I'd like to straighten out that jerk from Kentucky who said we shouldn't admit people with pets. We've had a lot less trouble with animals than people. Since I've been here I know of only two instances where a pet damaged hotel property. In both cases a little shampoo on the rug remedied the problem. People are another story. They've left us with broken chairs, mirrors, burnt mattresses and food on the wallpaper. One drunk actually put his fist through a TV screen.

With the exception of a beach slipper at the pool, nothing has ever been stolen from us by a pet. Our two-legged guests, on the other hand, have helped themselves to lamps, linen, pillows, pictures off the wall, shower curtains, anything that was riveted to the floor.

No one has ever been injured in our place by a pet, but we've had eight guests hurt in family fights since July — including one woman who shot her husband.

I read recently about a motel in Manhattan for pets only. No people allowed. I envy them their clientele.

—Midwest Reader
Dear Midwest: What a nice testimonial for man's best friend. Too bad they can't read.

Dear Ann Landers: I felt sorry for the happily married woman who wrote to say she had done some nude modeling in her younger (and more foolish) days and was haunted by the fear that she might be recognized. I am in a similar predicament so I can understand her anxiety. Only I was innocent.

A certain girl who specializes in pornographic modeling and stag films is a dead ringer for me. Several months ago, when I first saw a picture of her, I had superimposed my head on another woman's body. (The dimensions were definitely not mine.) A few days later a man who works with my husband told him he had seen some stag movies at the home of a friend and I was the star. My husband asked if he could arrange to see the film and his wish was granted. He came home in a state of shock and said the girl was my absolute double, except for the body.

He asked me to please cut my blonde hair and dye it dark brown, which I did at once. I still get uncomfortable if someone stares at me or says, "Haven't we met before?" but I'm no longer panicked. Please print my letter in case some of your readers think they recognize a porno queen in the supermarket or at a P.T.A. meeting. Tell them not to jump to conclusions.

—Not Guilty in Buffalo
Dear Bull: Now how in the world would the fine people who read my column KNOW what a porno queen looks like? But here's your letter and my thanks for writing.

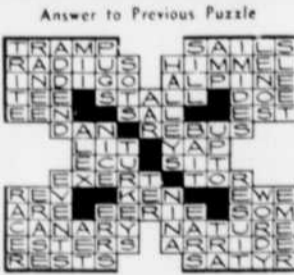

Dear Ann Landers: We bought an old house three years ago. All the bedrooms are upstairs. I have not had one good night's sleep since we moved in. It's like sleeping on top of a toadstool. I feel as if I'm on a shelf and if I turn over I'll fall out into the yard. I want to sell this house and get one with at least one bedroom on the ground floor. My husband says I'm a chronic complainer. He doesn't understand. What can I do?

—Bleary-Eyed
Dear Bleary: Your fears are totally irrational, but this doesn't mean they aren't very real to you. I suggest a cot or a roll-away bed on the ground floor. It's easier than selling your home.

Another four-letter word

The argument that the elderly should get higher pensions to cope with the rise in the cost of living provoked Prime Minister Trudeau to retort that the Opposition was talking "guff". So goes the latest press release of four-letter words used in Parliament by our esteemed Prime Minister.

"I don't think Mr. Trudeau is provoked into saying anything in the House or anywhere else. Everything he says is coldly calculated, and let the pieces fall where they may."

He brushes off the prodding of the Opposition by saying, "If there are needy pensioners let them apply for the supplementary pensions." This is, of course, in obvious reference to those pensioners who are receiving the basic $80 per month and who do not get the benefit of the cost of living escalation clause, and in most cases still have to sacrifice to pay income tax on their modest pensions.

The Prime Minister does not even try to use the excuse of lack of funds as a reason for not offering to the pensioner that which is his due. There is no place in his thinking for excuses. In his vocabulary, "Take it or leave it" is the watchword.

But in the case of the Trudeau government, "Take it" are the key words.

But what are the pensioners going to do about it? There must be hundreds of pensioners' associations throughout the country, and it amazes us that there never has been a very strong reaction to the many references in the press of recent days to the instances of the government's wasteful spending of public funds.

A forerunner of that can be seen in the harassment of the auditor general, Maxwell Henderson, who says he can't bring his report out on time because of delays brought on by careless bookkeeping in various government departments. Mr. Henderson says his staff has been badly depleted by lack of sufficient funds, and he can't hire properly qualified people, the stumbling block being the treasury department under C.M. Drury, one-time defence minister.

Thereby hangs a tale.

Mr. Drury has no cause to love the auditor general, who embarrassed him greatly over the famous truck deal of 1951-1965 when half of a fleet of 6,000 trucks were left to rot in outside storage.

The whole story of this government is sad and disgusting, and the cavalier way in which Trudeau and his ilk treat the citizens must stick in the craw of most Canadians. Money is being thrown around haphazardly, no doubt to ward off demonstrations and the like from the many discontented sections of our society.

A one time Liberal MNA is sent to West Germany to study their manpower system! At $600 per week plus travelling and living expenses up to $400 labor minister O'Connell says, if the pensioner is in need he can apply for the supplementary $135 per month!

The pensioner and the senior citizen have got to wake up. They must know by now that our present so-called leaders in Parliament don't want to be bothered. They also must know that the Opposition is altogether too mild in its approach to the subject of pensioners. We get the feeling that the Opposition is only putting forth a token resistance in this direction.

Robert Stanfield has at last made some commitments regarding his platform for the forthcoming election. He has made reference to pensioners and the cost of living escalation, but he has been too vague about what exactly he has in mind.

The pensioners would like to know a whole lot more, and soon.

Ratepayers 'hot'

TOWN OF BROME LAKE (JD) — A spokesman for the town said there was a "hot and heavy" meeting here Monday night when ratepayers protested the new valuation scheme.

The meeting was adjourned to next Monday.

Stanley Quilliams, town treasurer, explained that Bill 48, promulgated Dec. 31, 1971, does not come into effect until Jan. 1, 1973, thus allowing the town to reevaluate on a factor system.

The 1972 valuation roll, according to Mr. Quilliams, met the full approval of the provincial government for both municipal and school purposes.

Mr. Quilliams maintained the same system was used a year ago.

"Any discrepancy should have come to light by now. These factors are uniform for all residents."

A spokesman for the citizens' group, an alleged legal advisor, told them, "The town was not in accordance with the Cities and Towns Act and the citizens' group had a valid case before any tribunal."

Registry Building hot topic

STANSTEAD (IH) — Of 20 municipal mayors who make up the Stanstead County Council, 18 assembled Wednesday, March 8, in the council chamber of the Stanstead Registry Building for important sessions in the morning and again in the afternoon.

At the afternoon session, Jean Boucher, of the Sherbrooke registry office, representing Claude Biuchesi, director-general of registry offices in Quebec, addressed the Council requesting enlargement of the Stanstead registry office. This request is being made by Miss Claire Cournoyer, registrar, and the Border Chamber of Commerce because of the growth and expansion of County property transactions and other business, such as sheriff's sales and the like.

When the Registry Building was built in 1916 following the Great Fire of October, 1915, there was entered a clause in the deed that should the registry office be removed from Stanstead there must be a sum paid by the County Council of $2,500 to the Stanstead municipality, plus the value of the land it stands on.

After Mr. Boucher and Miss Cournoyer had pointed out the reasons for their demands, the matter was discussed for some time. Such questions as who pays for the changes necessary, how much government grants towards the costs will be, and many others pertinent to all involved were raised.

Lawyer George MacLaren, mayor of Ogden, said he feels it is vastly important to the County to have this office enlarged.

Hugo LaPenna, mayor of Beebe, was supported in his resolution that the County Council recommend to the Stanstead Council that it release the entire ground floor of the Registry Building for enlargement of the registry office. The County Council secretary will so inform by letter the Stanstead municipal council, who in turn will hold a special meeting to make its decision.

E. J. Struthers, mayor of Stanstead, said he feels his Council will consider the matter in a favorable manner.

Rock Island will rightfully have a word to say in the matter, as they contribute to the upkeep of the Registry Building but are not represented on the County Council.

Mayor Struthers said he would like to see Mr. Biuchesi here from Quebec to explain in detail just what the registry department wants.

Phone calls to Mr. Biuchesi assured the Council mayors of financial support to meet costs of the changes in the Stanstead building.

If the ground floor of the Registry Building is taken for the enlargement, in all probability the council chambers will be established on the second storey of the building which is presently used as a museum by the Stanstead Historical Society.

At the general quarterly meeting of the County Council in the morning, Ernest Cloutier was re-elected warden for the fourth consecutive year. Because of the serious illness of Robert Breault, secretary-treasurer for several years, his resignation became effective. Jean Paul Asselin of the Township of Magog was appointed a to replace Mr. Breault.

Liaison delegates named were Mayor LaPenna, Mayor Bonneval, Gilles Landry of Coaticook was re-appointed as 1972 auditor.

The audited financial statement of 1971 was reviewed and adopted.

Get grants

MAGOG (CC) — Magog will receive $26,091 in federal government grants that will be divided between two projects. The information about the grant was learned last week via a telephone call from Yves Forest, Brome County member of parliament.

A total of $18,369 is to be spent on the Rousseau Rouge, or Red Brook, road in Magog, and another $7,722 on opening streets for housing in the same vicinity of Magog.

Juggle revaluation group

COOKSHIRE (EH) — Donat Chapdelaine, mayor of Cookshire, presided over the town council meeting which was held in the Town Hall and conducted a good deal of business during the evening.

Jean Paul Dionne was appointed pro-mayor to replace Lucien Brault whose term had expired.

Jean Hervet was named a member of the revaluation division group, replacing Mr. Dionne, who became a councillor. The revaluation division group will now be composed of A. E. Rousseau, Lionel Pope and Mr. Hervet. The last-named will be chairman.

The town authorized Alexandre Latulippe to operate a taxi business. He will pay the licence for this privilege and deposit a guarantee of confidence at the Town Hall.

The town authorities will contact a representative from Hydro-Quebec in order to learn of the possibilities of improving the town's lighting system.

In order to give more service to the public, the secretary-treasurer, Rosaire Doyan, consented to keep the town office open Friday afternoons until 6 p.m. This will be tried for a month. If the service is not used, the practice will be discontinued.

A request will be sent to Bell Canada regarding the possibility of installing a telephone on the town's fire truck to keep in constant contact with the fire station.

Fifteen men are now working on the local Cookshire winter-works program.

A warning was issued to all owners or keepers of dogs that a licence should be paid to the town, that all dogs should be kept on the owner's property, and that any dog wandering will be considered a nuisance. Penalties according to Rule 152 will be applied to the owner or guardian of a wandering dog.

Play opens Friday

COWANSVILLE (FA) — The Diary of Anne Frank opens Friday at Massey-Vanier Regional High School here for a two-night run.

Daans being discovered serves to heighten the tension of the play.

But the play deals only inferentially with the Nazis. It is the story of two families who are forced by circumstances to live, more or less imprisoned together, in an attic for two years.

Thus the Diary of Anne Frank is above all a story of people, people who have lived and loved, who have laughed and played and worked, and who have fought together. It is the story of what it means to be human.

From the audience's point of view, the play will appeal to all ages, to both adult and child. It is filled with humor, with joy and with sadness.

The Diary of Anne Frank is an exacting production and holds the promise of a rewarding experience.

The cast of characters, in order of their appearances, includes, Hal Chapin as Mr. Frank, Christina Connors as Miep, Joann Tannahill as Mrs. Van Daan, Tony Whittall as Mr. Van Daan, Scott Lawrence as Peter Van Daan, Trudy Moar as Mrs. Frank, Eva Newman as Margot Frank, Nina Mahannah as Anne Frank, Steve Trex as Mr. Kraker and Bob Miller as Mr. Dussel.

Production and direction are by Eugene Jousse. Publicity and tickets are the responsibility of Phyllis Jousse, and stage manager is Frank Eberdt. Danny Chatham is technical and lighting director.

Discuss amalgamation

SAWYERVILLE (VW) — The amalgamation of towns was discussed at the Sawyerville Council meeting held March 6 with the mayor and all councillors present.

The project is still in the discussion stage, and meetings are being held in different places. Those on the committee for Sawyerville are Mayor L.R. French and councillors Bellam and Villeneuve.

A resolution was sent to the County Council asking it to use its good offices to see if the road between Birchton and Sawyerville, Highway 27A, could be renewed, as it is in bad shape.

Watchdog

The Trudeau government has never taken any pains to conceal its dislike of the auditor-general.

Its treatment of that servant of Parliament amounts to nothing less than a public scandal.

Having failed in the past to curb the auditor-general's investigative powers, the government was accused of putting limitations on the size of his staff and down-grading certain positions in his office.

Now it appears the government is still intent on discrediting the auditor-general.

Prime Minister Trudeau has said that Auditor-General Maxwell Henderson was breaking the law by not submitting his annual report to Parliament as scheduled by the end of December or within 15 sitting days of Parliament in the following year.

Actually, late reports from the auditor-general are nothing new. That is the way it's been for the last couple of years. The Prime Minister knows this and he also knows the reasons given by the auditor-general for being late. So his comment must be accepted as calculated to undermine the institution of auditor-general.

The statement, predictably, brought an uproar from the Opposition and elicited a move on that side to have Mr. Henderson brought to the bar of the House to explain himself, an effort bound to fail because it could mightily embarrass the government.

Mr. Henderson has already given some indication of what he would have to say were he ordered to give an accounting. He has said his report is late because of a staff shortage which the government refuses to correct, because the down-grading of the auditing staff has lowered morale in his office, and because of an increased number of errors in government accounts which is causing more work.

The government did agree to a study by the public accounts committee of the auditor-general's reasons for the lateness of his report, a development that could prove most interesting.

Canadian taxpayers stand to lose through any weakening of the auditor-general's functions. He is the watchdog of government spending. He is the only official directly responsible to Parliament for maintaining a check on governmental financial transgressions.

The value of the office has been proved repeatedly in recent years as the auditor-general has turned up numerous examples of wastage of public money. Without the auditor-general on the scene, these instances would never be brought to light and there would be much less incentive for the government and its various departments to exert care in the spending of public money.

The Trudeau government isn't the only one to be criticized by the auditor-general for wastage. Previous administrations have also come in for their share. But the Trudeau government has shown by its attitude toward the auditor-general that it is far thinner-skinned than most of its predecessors about having its mistakes exposed.

In an election year, when the government can be expected to be acutely anxious to avoid embarrassment, it is especially important that the investigative powers of the auditor-general be guarded zealously.

If the baby gets sick— run around

By William Coulthard

QUEBEC (CP) — When the baby gets sick, where do you turn?

You start running, says Claude Castonguay, Quebec's social affairs minister, and you go where you can—the family doctor if you have one and he is available, an out-patient clinic if one is nearby.

But you often get referred from place to place, and feel in the end that no one—no individual and no institution—is responsible for helping you.

To provide someone responsible, the Quebec social affairs department plans to set up a new system of local community service centres as part of a wide-ranging reform of health and social services in the province.

The centres will provide a broad range of services—health, medical, psychological, psychiatric, dental and social—and will be responsible for liaison between the individual and any other institutions in the health and social field which he may use.

IS POINT OF ENTRY

"We want these local community service centres to be the point of entry into the system for the person who has an episode of sickness or requires social services," Mr. Castonguay said.

"And we want the centres to keep as much as possible in touch with the population they cover, in order that the services be continuous."

Thus, the local centre would follow the progress of a patient who is admitted to hospital, and would organize other services—such as home-maker care for a mother—at the often-critical point of the patient's return home.

The medical services provided will generally be those associated with the general practitioner, and even the most elaborate service centres will be limited to a few beds for a maximum of 24 hours' observation in admitting patients.

MAY REDUCE COSTS

By setting up special centres to dispense the services, costs may be reduced, both by reducing the immediate pressures on the expensive hospital network, and by keeping general health standards higher.

"If you spot a disease at the proper time, or through a screening process you identify certain problems early, you may eliminate those problems quite easily, while if you wait, the situation may deteriorate and require specialized services later on," the minister said.

Like all other institutions involved in the Quebec government's reform of health and social services, the administration of local community service centres will be marked by the participation of the population they serve.

The administering board will include five persons who received services from the centre in the previous year.

SIZE TO VARY

The size, makeup and orientation of the centres will vary according to the populations they serve—age structure, income, home situations being factors—and according to the services, such as out-patient clinics, already established in the area.

In large urban centres as many as 100,000 population will be covered by a single centre.

Studies are already under way to determine the needs in various areas.

In Quebec City, the Laval

University Hospital is conducting an inquiry to determine the kinds of services needed in suburban Portneuf and in the city's Lower Town. In addition, a sociologist is carrying out a separate study of the Lower Town needs.

Mr. Castonguay said the first centres will be set up in areas where "people need services badly, because there's a limit to the number we can develop all at once."

DOCTORS WILL JOIN

He saw little difficulty in persuading doctors, who essentially will practise privately within the framework of the centre, to join the system.

While many will continue to practise from their own offices, Mr. Castonguay said the administrative support and team practice of the local community service centres should attract many physicians.

Doctors have hesitated to set up practice in many of the areas where they are needed most, the minister said, because they did not want to work alone. Establishment of the centres should help overcome this hurdle.

Costs of the centres—as with most public health and social services in Quebec—will be paid by the province. However, doctors and some of the other professionals will be paid along present lines, with medical care insurance paying the bills for insured services.

Quality of doctors

By C.G. McDaniel

Just because he has a diploma on the wall doesn't mean your doctor is competent. But, conversely, just because your doctor is 75 or over doesn't mean he is out of date. How good is a doctor then? That question is explored in this article on the quality of medical care in the United States.

CHICAGO (AP) — A doctor who graduated from medical school in 1930 may still practise with the blessing of the lifetime licence he obtained then, and this fact is troubling more and more doctors and patients who are concerned about whether he keeps developing his skills.

The doctor's conscience is his guide as to whether he is competent to treat cancer or to undertake hazardous surgery.

And the patient looking at the diploma and certificates on a physician's office wall cannot tell whether the physician has kept abreast of medical progress.

Many people interested in medicine, from medical societies to consumer-oriented critics, agree this is a serious problem.

The American Medical Association, in a recent editorial in its journal, warned that unless the profession's self-regulation programs were made more effective, the government would step in and impose standards for medical care.

Dr. Alex Gerber, a surgeon from South Pasadena, Calif., estimated in a recent book on health care that general practitioners perform 15 million operations a year in the United States. Furthermore, he wrote, only half of the 15 million yearly operations are done by, or under the supervision of, board-certified surgeons or members of the American College of Surgeons.

MINIMIZE DANGERS

Spokesmen for medical societies say, however, that there are regulatory mechanisms within the profession to minimize the dangers.

These include the system of peer review—doctors checking on other doctors—and related self-policing mechanisms, continuing programs of doctor education, discipline by medical societies and the removal of incompetents by state medical boards.

In addition, they say, while it is theoretically possible for unqualified doctors to perform operations, they could not do it in any reputable hospital, which would ban them from operating.

Dr. H. Jack Geiger, chairman of the department of community medicine at the State University of New York, is one of the physicians who feel the way to solve the problem is through public audits.

Dr. Geiger proposes a federal board of public medical auditors, all of them doctors, to sample and supervise the quality of medicine.

"This is not to say most doctors are lousy or don't care," he said in an interview. "But we're dealing with the responsibility for human life, and that requires public accountability."

A number of major studies have been carried out in the United States and Canada to attempt to measure the quality of performance.

SUMMARIZE STUDIES

Many of these studies are summarized in the Medical Care Chart Book, compiled by the University of Michigan school of public health and revised in 1967. Here are some of the findings of surveys done during previous years.

In a study of deaths of newborn infants in New York City, it was estimated that 42 per cent of the deaths of mature babies, and 29 per cent of the premature, could have been prevented with better medical judgment and medical technique.

An estimated 28 per cent of hysterectomies performed in 35 Los Angeles and vicinity hospitals were deemed "probably not justified," and 12 per cent definitely not justified, in a study of 6,248 such operations.

Appendectomies performed in 19 southwestern Michigan hospitals were studied for evidence of disease as determined by pathological examination of removed tissue. The absence of disease ranged from 64 per cent in one hospital to 52.1 per cent in another.

Absence of disease was found in 73.3 per cent of the cases of one physician in the study.

Hospitals affiliated with medical schools generally rate better in studies of quality of medical care. Physicians in these institutions, with their responsibility for training new doctors, must keep abreast of the latest developments in medicine.

TOO MUCH SURGERY

Dr. John H. Knowles, former general director of Massachusetts General Hospital, recently wrote: "There are unnecessary amounts of unnecessary surgery going on, and that can't be tolerated."

Dr. Knowles, president-designate of the Rockefeller Foundation, asked:

"How come you have 11 times as many uteri and tonsils taken out in one part of the country as another?"

Assessing a doctor's work in hospitals is comparatively easy because all procedures and prescriptions are recorded—or should be.

Determining the quality of a doctor's practice in his office is a different matter. The solo practitioners usually do not come under scrutiny unless they violate the law.

And the law, in many states, is not very restrictive against doctors unless they become involved in criminal activities not related to their medical practices.

Nothing under the law stops doctors from practising outside their areas of competency, Dr. Gerber points out.

No national statistical compilations of state disciplinary actions against doctors are made regularly.

State medical boards, to which doctors are appointed, are the arm of the state in policing the quality of medicine.

Medical societies sometimes receive complaints from the public. But these are voluntary organizations with little legal power.

Such societies, to which many physicians belong, are in many states more strict in policing the quality of medical practice than the state boards.

But a physician can be expelled from a medical society and still practise. Because there are no federal standards for licensing new doctors, standards appear to vary widely from state to state. In one recent year, seven states failed no candidate who took the medical licensing examinations, while eight states failed more than 40 per cent of the applicants.

Call from a pew

There is a Reverend in our town.
 For wiggling and jiggling he is renowned.
 The pulpit is something he knows nothing about.
 He walks the aisles and laughs and shouts.
 He plays with the children and pats them all.
 While the organist waits for him to call "Play another lute of that last hymn."
 And she doesn't know where he wants to begin.
 She has started this hymn five times now.
 So he can explain why and how.
 He walks the aisles and titters and grins
 While the layman sits and burns within.
 Will he never stop this crazy stuff
 And start the service as he must?
 The people are waiting. Please one prayer!
 And a hymn for us who came to share
 This morning service with our maker.
 Please, Reverend, give us this day a little breaker
 From the usual stunts you try to do.
 Get up in that pulpit and sing and pray.
 After the service with the children you may play.
 But please, dear Reverend, give us this day.
 As it says in the Bible, we hope and pray.
 That the people will come and pray again
 As they would like to do more often.
 We love you, Reverend, and try to be
 As nice to you as we can be.
 We would like to hear one chapter
 Out of the Bible before the hereafter.
 Hurry! Some of us are getting old.
 We need faith to help our souls.
 We also like to use our church
 And sit in our seats as we are used
 To being at home with our Lord there
 The same as others when they're in prayer.
 Now listen, Reverend, we want a service.
 Not some dope on what the younger set are doing.
 We love them all, but still we yearn.
 For our old service they make us burn.
 But we will thank God in our prayer
 That they're good children and we love them all.
 Please, Reverend! Hear our call.

"Oh, what the..."

Dear Sir,
 What's all the hoopla?
 What's all the fuss?
 So Trudeau said a swear—
 What's it to us?
 It only proves he's human—
 Boy this is news to me—
 The way his party's acting—
 I'd thought he'd ceased to be.
 We're overtaxed and underpaid
 And even worse than that.
 We English-speaking citizens
 Will soon be off the map.
 So let's tell Stanfield to relax,
 Tell Bennett not to yell,
 And if he lets one slip again
 I say, "Oh, what the hell!"

Yours truly,
 Dawn Conroy

History today

Czar abdicates

Czar Nicholas II of Russia abdicated for himself and his son 55 years ago today — in 1917 — in favor of his brother Prince Michael. Michael abdicated the following day in favor of a provisional government set up by the Duma parliament and the Russian empire became a republic. Lenin and other Bolshevik leaders arrived home from exile in April and in November seized control, abolishing the parliamentary system. The royal family of Romanovs was shot in 1918 by order of the local soviet of Ekaterinburg.

1948 — Prime Minister Clement Attlee ordered the expulsion of all alien Communists from Britain.

1947 — Pat Sullivan, head of the Canadian Seaman's Union, cut his ties with the Communist party.

1922 — Fuad I of Egypt adopted the European title of king.
 1871 — The first session of the Manitoba legislature opened.
 44 B.C. — Julius Caesar was assassinated.

Mr. and Mrs. Jerry Leach

Leach marries Morrier

White gladiolus and pink carnations decorated St. Andrew's Episcopal Church, St. Johnsbury, Vt., Feb. 5, 1972 for the wedding of May Beatrice Morrier, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Charles W. Morrier of Lennoxville, P.Q., to Jerry Williams Leach, son of Mrs. Barbara Leach and the late Benjamin Leach of St. Johnsbury, Vt.

The 7 p.m. candlelight double ring ceremony with Holy Eucharist was performed by the Rev. Peter W. Floyd. The Epistle, 1 Corinthians 13, was read by Lewis Shattuck of Hardwick, Vt., uncle of the bride. Donna Kelso, organist, played the Wedding March and Hymn of Love.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride wore a white brocaded floor-length gown with empire waist, a-line skirt and shoulder length veil. She wore a gold bracelet, a gift of the groom and carried a long stemmed red rose.

Valli Murphy, friend of the bride, was maid of honor. She wore a floor-length print skirt with a lacy white long sleeved blouse and carried a long stemmed yellow rose. David W. Calderwood was best man. George Carpenter, brother-in-law of the bride, was usher.

Mrs. Morrier wore a burnt orange and green dress with a white orchid corsage. Mrs. Leach, mother of the groom, wore a brown dress with a matching vest and a white and beige orchid corsage.

A reception was held at the Edencroft Manor in Littleton, N.H. where George Carpenter circulated the guest book. After their trip to Burlington, Vt., and Montreal, P.Q., they will live in Gulfport, Miss., after March 2.

Mrs. Leach is a graduate of Andrew Stuart Johnson Memorial High School in Thetford Mines, P.Q., and graduated from Northern New England School of C.L.A. in Lancaster, N.H. and has been employed as a laboratory technician at Brightlook and NVRH hospitals. Mr. Leach is a graduate of St. Johnsbury Academy and is presently in the U.S. Navy, stationed at Gulfport, Miss.

Hemming, Watts exchange vows

Of local interest was the marriage in Chatsworth, Ont., on Feb. 26, 1972, of Karen Susanne Watts, daughter of Mrs. Wanda Watts and the late Mr. James Watts, to Neil Weston Hemming, son of Mr. and Mrs. Eric Hemming (nee Marion Peak), all of Chatsworth, and grandson of Mr. and Mrs. William Peak, of Hamilton, Ont., formerly of Sherbrooke. The marriage took place in the Chatsworth United Church, the Rev. Westhaver officiating, using the double ring service. The bride was given in marriage by her brother, Mr. Warren Watts. The wedding marches were played by Mrs. Farrow and during the service the congregation sang 'O Perfect Love'.

The bride's gown was of white slipper satin in Empire style with a poncho and hood edged with heavy lace, and she carried a single pale yellow pom-pom mum with fern and ribbon streamers. Her maid of honor, Miss Ruth McKinnon, was in a coral gown styled similarly to that of the bride, and she also carried a pom-pom mum. The best man was Mr. Grant Hemming, brother of the groom, and the ushers were Messrs. Jeffrey and Ian Hemming, brothers of the bride.

A reception and dinner was held for the immediate families and a few close friends at the Old Stone Inn at Williamstown, Ont., toastmaster being Mr. John Ruxton, brother-in-law of the groom.

Maple Copse IODE annual report

LENOXVILLE — The annual meeting of Maple Copse Chapter IODE was held on the 4th Monday in February, following the funeral of Miss Grace Stevens, a member of the chapter for 44 years and, for the past two, an honorary member after ill-health prevented her attendance at meetings.

Miss Grace H.W. Stevens joined the Chapter in 1926 and was before long appointed "ECHOES" Secretary, an office which she held for 12 years. During those years, for the first of which there was no regulation regarding compulsory subscription to the Order's magazine, she did much to promote interest in its contents.

Subsequently, Miss Stevens became convener of "World Affairs", keeping the members informed on current topics and arranging for speakers on subjects of special interest.

Members of the Chapter attended the funeral in a body and later voted a sum of money in her memory to the Memorial Fund of St. George's church.

The business of the annual meeting, presided over by the Regent, Mrs. John French, began with the reading of reports.

The financial statement, presented by Mrs. D'Arcy Bennett, Treasurer, showed an increase in revenue over the previous year which unfortunately was insufficient to cover additional expenditure, resulting in a reduction in the balance carried forward from 1971 National and Provincial funds had been supported, as well as local objectives, including donations to the Lennoxville Elementary School, Maplemount Inc., the Dixville Home, Sherbrooke Sheltered Workshop, Lennoxville Parks and Girl Guides. A number of IODE calendars were presented to local schools.

Under the Services Secretary, Mrs. George Sutherland, new and used clothing had been sent to Provincial headquarters and distributed locally, wool provided for knitted articles, and many gifts for the Douglas Hospital and children of the Arctic were collected from the members at Christmas-time.

Mrs. Phyllis Rowell, Provincial Services Secretary, visited the Chapter in May and a luncheon in her honour was arranged. Her enthusiasm for the many-sided work of her department, shown in her address to the meeting which followed, was most inspiring.

Another guest speaker was Mrs. Timothy J. Matthews who brought samples of the beautiful Pakistani embroideries which have long been sold in Canada under church auspices. Mrs. Matthews gave an illustrated account of this project, organized to help the women of Pakistan.

The Secretary's report noted some of the Chapter's concerns. The attention of the Mayor of Lennoxville was drawn to one unnecessary source of pollution, the practice of heavy trucks to park on Queen Street for long periods with engines running.

A letter outlining the contents of the Brief presented by the National Chapter of the Order to the Joint Parliamentary Committee on the Constitution of Canada on the question of the retention of the Monarchy was read. Members of all chapters were urged to write to both their Federal and Provincial representative in support of this Brief. The Secretary was directed to send letters to both Mr. Paul Gervais, M.P., and Mr. Jean-Paul Pepin, M.N.A., affirming their full support of the Order's Brief.

The Municipal Service of Remembrance was attended and the Chapter's wreath laid on the soldiers' monument.

Delegates to Provincial and National annual meetings brought interesting reports, and the Chapter nominated a Montreal member, Mrs. A.E. Roodhouse as a National Councillor, and for Provincial Councillors the Regent, Mrs. John French and Mrs. Roodhouse.

From money collected at the monthly teas, Mrs. D'Arcy Bennett had sent flowers and cards to ill and bereaved members.

Thanks were expressed for the support of the Chapter's money making efforts, also to the Sherbrooke Record for publishing monthly notes, and to Mr. Clement Mallalieu, Canadian Imperial Bank of Commerce, for kindly auditing the Treasurer's book.

Following the reading of the reports, the slate of officers, as follows, was accepted: Regent, Mrs. John French; first Vice-Regent, Mrs. Austin Scott; second Vice-Regent, Mrs. Willard Johnston; Secretary, Miss E. Frances Molony; Treasurer, Mrs. D'Arcy Bennett; Education, Mrs. Dorothy Barnett; "Echoes", Miss E. Frances Molony; Services, Mrs. George Sutherland; Standard Bearer, Mrs. Rupert Atto.

At a short business meeting which followed, members were reminded that 1972 is the 50th anniversary of the Chapter. After some discussion it was agreed that those not present be asked for suggestions as to some celebration of the event, the matter to be taken up at the March meeting when the hostesses will be Mrs. Willard H. Johnston and Mrs. G. Wilfred Knight.

Following adjournment, tea was served, hostesses being Mrs. Dorothy Barnett and Mrs. John French assisted by Mrs. Pearl E. Staples.

Stanstead IODE

STANSTEAD — The March 6 meeting of Stanstead Chapter IODE was held that afternoon in LeBaron hall reception room of Stanstead College. Guests welcomed by the regent Mrs. J.S. McCannell were Mrs. Robert Callen, Derby Line, guest speaker; Mrs. Florence Griffith, England, and Mrs. Christine McDade, Stanstead. Mrs. Arnold Nugent and Mrs. George MacLaren of Beebe also dropped in a short time to speak to the members about the Border Summer Youth Program they are organizing. This will be a program of Arts, Crafts, music, sports, nature and hikes with a more modified afternoon program. This will be open to youngsters ages six to twelve, French and English. Young adults will be hired as directors and counsellors. The organizers are seeking a youth government grant as well as asking for support locally by endorsement and financially. The members agreed to support the project by a letter to the government.

The February 29 card party held at the Border Curling Club was a success under the chairmanship of Mrs. Desmond Hunter. There were 18 tables and another two outside tables in homes. After the expenses had been paid there was a balance of $62 for the treasury.

The treasurer was authorized to pay the following sums of money: $100 to Haskell Free Library; $50 to Stanstead College prize fund; the usual contributions to the Peace Garden and the Butters Home.

The Chapter will make some changes in the scholarship and nursing bursaries. However, since secretary of Education was on holiday it was decided to await her return when she will select her committee to propose changes in keeping with the changes in education.

Mrs. Howard Aikman gave a report of Services. She said she plans a work meeting at her home in April to make men's shirts into hospital gowns and make baby garments. She read from the headquarters bulletin several items of interest in this branch of work. In compliance with a request from Headquarters it was agreed to write a letter to our Provincial member requesting better legislation be enacted to help the children of the Province.

Mrs. Callen spoke about the North Country Hospital Auxiliary Christmas Walk in 1971, and gave constructive advice should the Chapter decide upon a summer house and garden walk as has been suggested. Mrs. Callen said it is a lot of work but fun. Mrs. McCannell asked the members to give thought about the Summer Walk and vote on it at another meeting of the Chapter.

Members regretted to learn of the major surgery of Mrs. Allan Pocock, a Chapter member. Anyone wishing to send a card may reach her at Ocean Chateau, Apt. 404, 4049 Ocean Drive, Vero Beach, Florida, 32960.

The meeting was adjourned and afternoon tea served by the hostesses, Mrs. I. Lennox and Mrs. George Hatch. Mrs. Raymond Lester poured.

scrap books. Gifts were given to 4 former WI members. Used stamps were sent to the Junior Red Cross.

A white elephant sale was held, also a sale of plants. Seeds and bulbs, mystery parcels were sold for pennies for friendship, parcels were sold for health and welfare and baskets of fruit were sent to shut-ins with the proceeds. A basket of fruit was sent to an ill member. Gifts were exchanged at Christmas. Members brought in gifts for the Waterloo Hospital.

Members travelled to Derby Line for dinner. Members attended both the Semi-Annual and Annual meetings in Granby. 10 members went to Granby to hear Mrs. Westover speak on her trip to Oslo.

Mrs. E. McElroy read the slate of officers which was as follows: president Mrs. L. Maynes, first vice president, Mrs. C. Bowker, second vice president, Mrs. W. Ramsay, secretary, Mrs. C. Thompson and treasurer, Mrs. M. Sicard.

Meat balls and meat loaves

recipes...

Today more and more Canadians are joining those adventurous souls who seek to vary their menu from traditional Canadian food. To add interest to any meal, favorite dishes of various European countries are often highlighted.

Scandinavian cuisine, internationally renowned for its famous smorgasbord, offers a great variety of tempting dishes. One of the favorites is presented here.

Tiny succulent Swedish Meatballs called Kottbullar typifies the Scandinavian homemaker's genius in ground meat cookery. They are versatile in that they may be served in either of two ways.

Choose it as a main course — serve with noodles and top the meatballs with a sauce of chicken soup, cream and a touch of dill.

Another serving idea — try these meatballs as an hors d'oeuvre or as part of a smorgasbord. Cook them in the same manner but form them into tinier balls and serve without the sauce. Whether you prefer to serve Kottbullar as a main course or as an hors d'oeuvre, you are sure to enjoy their tantalizing flavor.

SWEDISH MEATBALLS

- 1 1/2 cup corn oil
- 3/4 cup finely chopped onion
- 2 pounds ground beef (or combination of ground beef, veal and pork)
- 1 3-ounce package (3/4 cup) coating mix
- 2 tablespoons chopped parsley
- 3/4 teaspoon black pepper
- 2 eggs, beaten
- 2 cans (10-ounces each) condensed cream of chicken soup
- 1/2 cup water
- 1/2 teaspoon dill weed
- 1/2 cup sour cream

Saute onion in 2 tablespoons corn oil. Mix onion and next 4 ingredients together with eggs and 1/4 can of soup. Form into 1-inch balls and brown in 2 tablespoons corn oil adding more oil as necessary. Heat remaining 1 3/4 cans soup with water, add dill and browned meatballs. Cover and cook for 7 to 10 minutes. Stir in sour cream, heat through and serve. Serves 4 to 6.

Every cook likes to be able to stretch the food dollar and when the dish is not only a penny-saver but also a flavor hit then everyone is happy. One main dish that is easy on the purse strings, is simple to make yet has great variety, is meat loaf.

Herbs play an important part in most meatloaf recipes. One often used is dried leaf basil — a more delicately flavored herb. In its native India, it is considered a holy herb and is grown in pots near every temple and dwelling of devout Hindus. On the other hand, in Italy, basil has always been a token of love. Sometimes it is called the tomato herb because it is used so often in tomato recipes. It's popular as an herb for meats such as beef stew, roast pork, veal cutlets and hamburger. The average amount used is about 3/4 teaspoon for each 1 1/2 lbs. of chops or roast.

Thyme is another herb favorite used extensively to season meat, poultry and fish. Native to the Mediterranean area, it is also grown extensively in this country if for no other reason than the enjoyment of its fragrant, pale lavender blossoms — even the bees cannot resist them. Ladies of the Middle Ages used sprigs of thyme in their "tussie-mussies." A tussie-mussie was a demure bouquet of lovely flowers and leaves whose sweet scent was released when the bouquet was clutched tightly in milady's hand. In contrast, thyme nowadays is used mostly in dried leaf or ground form. Since it is one of the moderately potent herbs, 1/4 to 1/2 teaspoon is sufficient in a 6 serving dish. In this kitchen tested basic meat loaf recipe both basil and thyme add distinctive seasoning while in one of the variations dried dill makes an interesting substitute.

HERBED MEAT LOAF (8 servings)

- 1 egg, beaten
- 2-3 cup milk

- 2 cups soft bread crumbs
- 1 tablespoon prepared mustard
- 1 teaspoon monosodium glutamate (accent)
- 1 teaspoon seasoned salt
- Freshly ground pepper
- 1/2 teaspoon dried basil leaf
- 1/4 teaspoon dried thyme leaf
- 1 small onion, chopped
- 1/2 cup diced celery with leaves
- 1 tablespoon dried parsley OR 1/4 cup chopped fresh parsley
- 2 lbs. lean ground beef

In a bowl, combine beaten egg, milk and crumbs. Let stand until bread absorbs milk, then stir mixture to break bread into smaller particles. Add next 6 seasonings. Stir in onions, celery, parsley and beef. Line a shallow baking pan with foil. Shape meat mixture into a loaf on top of foil. Bake in a moderate oven of 350 degrees until set and lightly browned — about 55 minutes.

Note if a soft loaf with a moist exterior is desired, bake the meat loaf in a 9 x 5 x 3 inch loaf pan. Or lightly pack meatloaf in a 6-cup metal ring mould. Bake in a hot oven of 400 degrees for 1/2 hour. Fill centre with cheese sauced celery.

Lightly pack meatloaf mixture in large custard cups or small individual casseroles. Place in a shallow baking pan and bake in a hot oven of 400 degrees for 40 minutes. Serve with barbecue sauce.

VARIATIONS

Cheese Topped — Add 1-3 cup grated Cheddar or Swiss cheese and 1-3 cup chopped pimiento-stuffed olives to Herbed Meat Loaf mixture. Bake as directed on a shallow baking pan or in a meatloaf pan 5 minutes before end of baking time top with an additional 1/2 cup grated cheese.

Dill-Mushroom — Substitute 1 teaspoon dried dill weed for the basil and thyme. Chop 4 oz. canned mushrooms and add to meatloaf mixture along with 1/2 teaspoon grated lemon rind. Substitute the liquid from the mushrooms for part of the milk.

THE ADDED TOUCH

Soak a small amount of instant minced onion in lemon juice. Combine with mayonnaise and relish pickle and you have a quick, delicious, tartar sauce.

Don't peel young, tender carrots, just scrub them with a stiff brush. Cut off stem and root ends. Slice thinly and pan-cook covered, in 2 to 3 tablespoons water till tender — about 10 minutes. For added zest sprinkle with one of these — allspice, ginger, nutmeg, mint, thyme or caraway seed.

Enjoy the tantalizing flavour of these Swedish Meatballs.

Boneless vs. bone-in meats
 A 6-lb. bone-in rib roast yields only about 3-lbs. of boneless cooked meat. Often, less wasteful boneless roasts costing more per lb. are more economical.

What Quality Beef Does A&P Sell?

That's a fair question. And an easy one to answer. A&P sells only the finest, Red Brand Beef.

But that's not the whole story. This is important! A&P buys only Red Brand Beef that meets our high "Super-Right" Quality specifications. Some beef labeled Red Brand just isn't good enough to be called "Super-Right".

You see we're very fussy about the meat we label "Super-Right".

suit. Anyway Z is an over-bidder so he cue bid four hearts.

This gave Y a chance to use another gadget. He bid five no-trump. This is the grand-slam force invented by Ely Culbertson almost 40 years ago and revived by the modernists. It asks partner to bid a grand slam with two of the three top trump honors. Z obliged.

West opened the three of trumps. Z won with dummy's eight and tried to count to 13 tricks. There were 11 in top cards. Two more could be obtained by ruffing twice in either hand and Z decided to attempt to ruff two of dummy's diamonds.

He cashed dummy's ace and king and ruffed with the ace of trumps. West discarded a heart. This worried Z a trifle but he still led a heart toward dummy. When no one ruffed that he was home. He simply ruffed the last diamond with his king of trumps; led his last trump to dummy; drew West's trumps and claimed the grand slam.

DR. LAWRENCE E. LAMB

Abortion doesn't kill

Dear Dr. Lamb—I would appreciate it greatly if you would print this since I need advice. I am 15 and my boy friend is 19 and I think I am pregnant. Is it true that the majority of women who have abortions usually die? Would you recommend a legal abortion and how would one go about getting one? Or should a girl my age carry a baby the full nine months? Also are there such places as homes for unwed mothers and if so where? If you cannot answer my questions, please tell me where I could go for advice and counseling. I definitely don't want to talk to my mother first or any other member of my family about this. I have other family problems each year.

Dear Reader—Yes, I can see you have a bit of a problem. Unfortunately, there are large numbers of young girls who have a similar problem each year. You are not exactly a trailblazer. No, it is not true that the majority of women who have abortions usually die. The biggest medical danger in having an abortion is going to some quack or illegal location for such a procedure. The best place to go for help with the kind of problem you have is your family doctor. The first thing you need to find out is whether you really are pregnant or not.

Yes, there are homes where unwed women can go and have their babies. Here again your family doctor can help you.

Even under the most ideal circumstances an abortion is an unpleasant event. In a number of states they are still illegal and in those states your doctor may not choose to give you any information. Opinions on this subject vary so markedly and very few people are unemotional about the topic, including doctors. In an effort to protect young girls like yourself from falling into the hands of charlatans where your life indeed would be endangered, I am going to recommend that anyone in your situation should obtain a little book called "Everything You Need to Know About Abortion," by David Hendin. This book includes a state by state listing of the places where you can get information about abortions.

Published by Pinnacle Books, the paperback can be obtained at your local bookstore or from the publisher.

C.A.C. screens color televisions for careful shoppers

The January and February issue of Canadian Consumer, published by Consumers' Association of Canada, reports color TV ratings.

The tests were performed by an independent laboratory and covered 12 of some of the more popular makes in the 19" table models which are now the fastest selling line in the industry. The ratings are based on several factors but the most important criterion was picture quality. Other important characteristics were as follows:

1. Adjacent channel rejection, i.e., the ability of the set, when tuned to one channel to reject strong signals from either of the adjacent channels.
2. Fringe area reception, i.e., how well the set picks up weak signals.

3. Automatic Gain Control — keeps contrast consistent when switching between strong and weak signal channels.

In judging the picture quality of the sets, several factors were taken into account. Accurate color reproduction is one of the prime components of a good color picture. Brightness, crispness, resolution, focus, interlace and correct geometry were also considered.

In selecting a color television, the purchaser will depend to a great extent on what he is told by the salesman. But the article suggests a few hints which everyone should follow when shopping for a color TV set.

Always visit more than one store. Prices and service vary enough to make it worthwhile.

In viewing a set in the store, always compare two or more sets at the same time.

In judging color, try to look at the scenes with which you have some reference point. Outdoor scenes are best. The blue of the sky and the green of the grass can be used as a reference point to see how other colors and flesh tones appear. Cartoons or close-ups are not the best pictures as they are usually good.

The viewer must also look for crispness or sharp outlines of objects as well as fine detail. A street scene with road signs is ideal for this.

A purchaser should not accept the excuse for a poor picture that the set is not properly adjusted and that once it is delivered it will be all right. If a set is on display, it should be adjusted properly. Stores should be using good antennas in order to get the best reception. A store which skips on demonstrations of its merchandise could also skip on service.

Your new television set should be adjusted in your own home. Some stores will adjust the set before it is shipped to its destination but the act of moving may throw some of the delicate controls in the set out of alignment. Some retailers automatically send a serviceman to adjust a set once it has been installed but this is not necessarily standard practice. Some dealers include initial adjustment of the set in the home as part of the price while others do not offer this service. It may be necessary to pay extra for adjustments.

Warranties on different parts of the set differ. It is important to understand what parts are covered by the warranties and for how long. In some cases, pro rated allowance varies between manufacturers and depends on the age of the set. The purchaser should be aware that the cost of labor is not usually covered by this replacement allowance. The article concludes, "it is recommended that all agreements be made in writing and no verbal guarantees accepted."

Make-up ages Whiteoaks stars

SCENE: Six a.m. on a cold Monday in February, a subterranean make-up room in the labyrinth under the studio set for The Whiteoaks of Jalna, the CBC-TV color drama series based on the novels of Mazo de la Roche. CAST: The series' chief make-up artist Patricia Harshaw, and Maureen O'Brien, the fragile-looking blonde actress who plays Alayne. ACTION: The artist is tracing lines on the actress's face, using a color liner.

An Ottawa-based actress in her twenties, Maureen O'Brien has been seen so far in the series as 'old Alayne', seventyish wife of the elderly Renny (Paul Harding) in the contemporary scenes. In Episode 9, for telecast on Sunday, April 2, at 9 p.m., she will make a second debut in the young aspect of the role — as Alayne, young bride of Eden Whiteoak (played by James Hurdle), who brings her home to Jalna from New York.

The aging process, telescoped into a matter of hours, is explained by Patricia Harshaw as she draws a kind of road map on Maureen's face: "We line first, drawing in the age lines around the mouth, eyes and so on. Then we apply the latex (liquid rubber solution). It's difficult to line over latex, but later, when it dries, we emphasize the lines by touching up with a fine lead pencil."

The latex referred to is a milky substance in a bottle. Now begins the most painstaking process of the entire make-up.

One small area at a time, the artist applies the latex to the face, using a sponge to pat it on, and stretching each patch of skin as she makes the application. Then, picking up a hair blower with her free hand, she trains it on the latexed patch, keeping the skin stretched until it dries, having first been dusted with a thin film of powder. Once it is powdered and dried, the area of skin is released, and it snaps back into place, creating a patch of fine wrinkles. Each part of the face to be thus "wrinkled" is processed separately (forehead, around the eyes, the mouth etc.) and the artist applies as many layers of latex as is required to achieve the desired effect. It is a technique that requires patience, on the part of the subject as well as the make-up artist.

Once the process is completed, the artist applies a thin layer of masking grease, blotted well, to give the skin the desired color tone. Highlights and shading emerge, much the way they do on the canvas of a portrait artist.

Finally, a film of powder is dusted over the face, a hint of rouge and lipstick have been added, and the 'aged' face is complete. "Old ladies often dab their rouge on in patches — it has a tendency to make them look even older. In Maureen's case, we place the rouge low on the cheek, giving the cheek a slightly sunken look. Maureen's face is difficult to age, because it has no spare flesh anywhere. Therefore, even the wrinkles created are very fine."

Jack Cousins, hairdresser assigned to Jalna, appears with Maureen's primly coiffed wig to cover her long blonde hair, which is tucked up underneath. "We keep to Maureen's own hair color, a faded version of it. On the eyebrows, we don't use make-up — it looks phony. We just brush them backwards to break the eyebrow line. On the hands, we use different lining colors — brown, blue, white to make the veins more pronounced, and to shade the hands, emphasize the knuckles, add highlights and so on."

"The latex doesn't work on hands and neck, because the constant movement causes it to rub and peel, and it's impossible to repair effectively."

"Maureen's 'old age' make-up used to take about two hours at first, but now we've got it down to a science, and it only takes an hour and a half."

The pretty young actress has at last been transformed into an elderly lady, and the transition still bothers her to some extent. "It's weird, jumping from an ingenue to a tottering grandma in one leap," says Maureen O'Brien. "The make-up makes me look older than my own grandmother, and it feels like your face is covered by a rubber glove."

When Maureen saw herself in the elderly role for the first time on screen, at a press preview, she "thought nobody would take me seriously. But a man sitting next to me wouldn't believe it was me up there, so I guess it works."

An actor acts with his entire being, and the aging process is not dependent on make-up alone. Says Maureen, "You produce tension in your body, to move stiffly. After a while, you forget you can stand up straight, and everyone begins to treat you with respect because you're an 'old lady'. The 'old' make-up has a real psychological effect — and it makes you appreciate being young. The first day I appeared on the Jalna set as my real age I was radiant."

As chief make-up artist on the series, Patricia Harshaw has a regular staff of two artists, Shonagh Jabour and Linda Brown, and hair stylist Jack Cousins. Between them, they make up all the principals including Kate Reid, Paul Harding and Amelia Hall, in their double "incarnations", young and old. "For the big family scenes, we each have to cope with about 10 people," says Pat. "At the beginning, we had to set a certain standard, achieve a certain 'look', so we did make-up tests. We wanted a natural look, for after all the Whiteoaks are country people. And there's a family likeness. The Whiteoak red hair, which is apparent in Renny, Adeline II and Piers, means tinting and touch ups for the actors who play those characters. The wigs used are all of human hair, and have to be constantly cleaned and set."

Where possible, each of the three make-up artists followed through with the same actors, to ensure continuity.

"There's been a wonderful kind of team thing on the production," Patricia Harshaw says. "Cast, crew, everyone — Jalna has been so much a part of our lives."

The Whiteoaks of Jalna is seen on CBC-TV Sundays at 9 p.m. (in color).

ETROG WINNER — Production design for The Whiteoaks of Jalna, CBC-TV's film series based on the novels of Mazo de la Roche, is by Richard Lambert — seen with the Etrog (Canadian Film Award) he won last year for art direction on another CBC program, The Magnificent Gift. Behind him is a scene from Episode 2 of The Whiteoaks of Jalna, for which Lambert and his design staff transformed an abandoned brick works near Cheltenham, Ontario, into a behind-the-scenes French village in the First World War.

Speaking of stamps with M. M. Woodman

No doubt you have read in the press that the Canada Post Office has awarded a contract to ITT Canada Limited for $70,000,000.00, for the manufacture of postal mechanization equipment in fourteen Canadian cities. The only two cities in Quebec to get this equipment will be Montreal and Quebec City. This is supposed to be ready for these cities in January 1973. They also claim that Western Quebec will be ready in April 1973. The codes which will have shortly will begin to be put in use first in Alberta, by this April, the release says.

Once again may we bring to your attention that you should use commemorative stamps on all your mail to stamp collector friends and dealers. Also whenever possible, use "Coil" stamps on your mail to at least those who collect stamps. How else will we as collectors and dealers be able to get these stamps used if you do not set the example? For those of you who do not know what a "Coil" stamp is, it is the ones that are sold in vending machines or you can buy them in rolls of 100 at the Post Office, in a handy dispenser. For collectors of these, only the well centered ones should be retained. Many times you will find the picture one side or the other and again you will find the perforation too close to the picture of the stamp.

The stamp that is in most demand this past month is the issue by Bangladesh. This was two words till the last issue and now it is all one word. Trust the country by now knows how to spell its name. Many want to start with this country as it gives them a chance to get in on the ground floor with a new country. If you have not done this, waste no time in starting, as supplies will run out and you will have to pay far more for same.

New Zealand has just issued a beautiful set of six stamps showing pictures of old cars. There have been several stamps from different countries showing old cars. They make a nice addition to anyone's collection of stamps.

All of you who collect stamps would do well to have a standing order for the stamps you intend to collect, with your favorite dealer and he will protect you by seeing that you get the set at the lowest possible price and not miss an issue. It happens that you may forget, and then have to pay a higher price later for the same set. If you try to buy just the one set from the country itself, you will find it very expensive for postage

IOOF social successful

ROCK ISLAND (IH) - Chief Patriotic Stewart Bullock, officers and members of Harmony Encampment No. 16, IOOF, were hosts at a delightful social evening on Thursday, March 9, in the IOOF Hall in Rock Island.

Cards were played at several tables while Alvin Smith prepared maple syrup to be served on snow, a spring-time treat. The aroma filled the hall as the cooking was done to the desired stage to set on snow. Then came the announcement by Edward Hyatt that it was ready.

This was served with raised doughnuts and pickles. All ate and did justice to the delicacy.

Card playing continued for a while longer. The prize winner for canasta was Mrs. Pearl Williamson in 500. Mrs. W.B. Dustin and John Beamish were high. Mrs. Ellie Hartley and Ernest Channell low. The floating prize was claimed by Melvin Dustin.

Maple sugar was sold by auction with Mr. Hyatt asking the highest price possible from the bidders for the Encampment treasury.

Mrs. Goff Probyn claimed a prize of a special project with Mr. Hyatt a second prize. Mr. Hyatt sold his by auction and it went to Mrs. Donald Dewey.

Members and friends attended including Grand Patriotic Henry Brock and Mrs. Brock, and others from Ayer's Cliff, Newport, Tomfobia, Beebe, and Boundary Villages.

Canada handbook ready

OTTAWA - Canada 1972, a 336-page reference handbook compiled and edited by Statistics Canada, goes on sale this week at Information Canada and in private bookstores across the country.

Designed primarily for the general public and for students, especially those of high school age, it presents a summary of recent economic, social and cultural developments in Canada. The book is widely used in Canada and abroad, especially by diplomats and other representatives.

This is the 41st edition of the handbook Canada, and it features brief descriptions of the main aspects of Canadian life written by specialists in various fields. Many of them work in Statistics Canada and other government departments. Others are from the private sector.

Special contributors this year include professors Don Armstrong on the economy, Eugene Forsey on government, L.E. Hamelin on the Arctic, John Warkentin on geography, Fred Bruemmer on the Eskimos and Rev. Dr. E. J. Howse on religion.

Poultry men in farm exhibition

MONTREAL - This year's International Poultry Salon will be held at Place Bonaventure April 6-9 in conjunction with the big International Salon of Farm Machinery.

The organizing committee, headed by the internationally recognized poultry authority Louis Maltais, has prepared an exhibition covering all facets of poultry production and marketing in Canada. Special emphasis is being placed on the industry in Quebec, third in importance nationally with a sales record in excess of 125,000,000.

All types of poultry will be displayed. Laying and broiler chickens, turkeys, geese, ducks and large aviaries containing various types of pheasants, partridges and other game birds will be on view.

The "poultry equipment industry" will be well represented. There will be large exhibits representing a number of large enterprises directly involved in the production, processing and marketing of poultry products. Other booths and displays will be presented by manufacturers of veterinary products, the poultry trade press, poultry producers and especially the main breeds and most distinguished lines produced in Quebec.

The federal and provincial governments, main poultry associations and the Pigeon and Rabbit Breeders' Association will have booths at which expert information will be available to visitors.

Youth viewed in service

DERBY LINE (IH) - Girl Scout Week is being observed across the United States March 12-18. Sunday morning, a large number of Brownies, Girl Scouts and Leaders assembled at the Universalist Church in Derby Line to join with the large congregation to observe the first day with a church service.

Hymns appropriate to the youth service were sung by all. So began a week of observance of Girl Scouting in observance of its 60th anniversary.

Card of Thanks

HURLEY - The family join with their mother Mrs. Winnie Hurley in expressing their sincere thanks and appreciation to all who called, sent gifts and the many lovely cards to help make the 100th birthday such a memorable one. A special thanks to Mr. and Mrs. Ted Aldrich for the lovely cake, to all who sent the beautiful flowers and to Jerry and Joanne for the L.P. Record.

KENNETHS - The Kenneths would like to offer their heartfelt thanks to Members of the Sherbrooke Hospital Staff and all our very good friends and neighbours for their cards, flowers and other kindness shown in the bereavement for our father and grandfather the late Thomas B. Mitchell.

MITCHELL - I would like to take this opportunity to thank all our friends, relatives and neighbours for the kindness shown to me and my dear husband at the time of his illness and death, Feb. 23, 1972. For visits, letters, cards and food or kindness in any way to Rev. D.T. Howse, Dr. S.G. Cole, to the organist and pall bearers, to Mrs. Douglas Newtham who helped to care for him, for flowers and donations sent to organizations. Your kindness was greatly appreciated and will long be remembered by me. ELLEN MITCHELL.

Mrs. Lillian Patton played the organ prelude as the group marched in headed by the flag of the United States and three Scout flags.

Rev. Malcolm Keir, the pastor for March and April, spoke the Call to Worship. After the singing of a hymn, he gave the invocation prayer.

The theme of the service was Begin with God. The scripture lesson was selected verses from Genesis 1, the first seven days when the world and all the wonderful things therein were created by God.

In his sermon, Rev. M. Keir said, "We have faith spring will come, the sap will run in the maples, and flowers will bloom." This is a faith we try to teach our youth for in the beginning all good came. So in Girl Scouts another decade begins.

He challenged the older people as being often excessively critical of youth. "They live in a world we older people created," he reminded them. He suggested that older people listen to the songs of youth. "You will find good," he said. "You will find values we have forgotten."

MORALS PARALLEL - "Let us not judge all youth by the front pages of newspapers and accounts of wrong doings." Youth morals and ethical standards parallel those "of my youth." We have a great responsibility to give morals and ethics to youth and much is given through Scouting, he said.

"We have made a God of materialism, but through material things we lose affection. In the material things of life we cheat our youth."

We promise our children so much, so many things, they have to take a substitute no one wants. We must teach them to understand all things that are good are in God - faith, hope. He ended his address with words of wisdom from St. Paul.

The Girl Scout and Leaders troops sang "Let There be Peace on Earth" after the lesson reading, and at the conclusion of the service, Peace.

Mauch seeking parity for '72 Expos

WEST PALM BEACH, Fla. (AP) — The target manager Gene Mauch has set for Montreal Expos is all you need to know about the team—it's the same as last year's.

At a glance

Two years ago, Mauch called for '70 in '70, meaning 70 victories in 1970. The Expos won 73.

Last year, Mauch called for '81 in '71, but his batting average dropped to .500. The Expos won 71.

Now, in their fourth year of existence, the Expos and Mauch are right back where they were in the third year, shooting for the 500 mark of 81 victories.

"What we want to do is gain parity," Mauch explained. "I thought we could have if we played a normal schedule. But there were rainouts, snowouts and the schedule bunched up on us and we didn't have the pitching to cope with it."

Despite the setback to his timetable, Mauch isn't upset. "If we can get to 500—when you can do that in four years then I think that has to be considered progress."

Lamarche among men behind college move

MONTREAL (CP) — Inter-collegiate basketball in Quebec has been on the wane in recent years, but this season has seen a revival in the sport.

For the last five years the Loyola College Warriors have easily been the dominant factor in the province, knocking off their opposition with relative ease. Loyola ran up a string of 66 straight games without a loss in conference play, before losing in December to arch-rival Sir George Williams University.

The reason for Loyola's success was simple. They went out and recruited some top ball players in the northern United States while most of the other clubs seemed content to play with whoever turned up on campus.

So when it came to the national final, Loyola would lose mainly because of lack of good opponents during the 1971 finish—Fifth in National League East.

Strengths—Super star outfielder Rusty Staub, a 311 hitter with 19 home runs and 97 batted in, promising young pitching in Bill Stoneman, Steve Renko and Ernie McAnally.

Weakness—Unfilled left field berth, lighthitting from the catcher's spot, a questionmark surrounding a fourth starter and lack of depth.

New faces—Pitchers Denny Lemaster, from Houston, Mike Torrez from St. Louis, and Ron Taylor, from New York Mets; outfield candidates Tony Gonzalez and Keith Lampard, a 337 hitter at Oklahoma City.

Probable 1972 finish—Fifth in National League East.

Carl Morton, who nosedived to 10-18, signed his contract last Tuesday but is two weeks behind the rest of the pitching staff.

The other candidates are John Strohmayr, 7-5, with the Expos last season, and two acquisitions, Denny Lemaster from Houston Astros and Mike Torrez from St. Louis Cardinals. Also being considered is Dan McGinn, a touted prospect who has never lived up to expectations

GENE MAUCH

STEVE RENKO

RUSTY STAUB

BOB BAILEY

RON FAIRLY

and was 1-4 last year. McGinn, however, has shown signs this spring that he may finally be ready to step into a starting job.

The power in the lineup is represented by star outfielder Rusty Staub, who hit 311 last season with 19 homers and 97 runs batted in. His chief cohorts are third baseman Bob Bailey, 251 with 14 homers and 83 RBI, and first baseman Ron Fairly, 257 with 13 homers and 71 RBI.

HUNT HELPS
Second baseman Ron Hunt is a consistent hitter who had a 279 average last season. Mauch will platoon Boots Day, 283, and Ron Woods, 297, in center field. John Bateman is listed as the No. 1 catcher with a .242 average and Bobby Wine is the light-hitting shortstop.

Beside the light hitting at several spots, the Expos also have a gaping hole in left field. The candidates are Keith Lampard, who used to belong to Houston and hit .337 with Oklahoma City last season, and veteran Tony Gonzalez, a non-roster free agent trying to nail a job after being separated from California Angels.

When everything is added up, the Expos look very much like an expansion team, which is exactly what they are. They may be just a bit better, however, because of the young, strong arms on the pitching staff and a player of Staub's obvious talent.

But they are not yet ready to challenge Pittsburgh, Chicago, St. Louis or New York Mets, and might even be pressed to hit the 500 mark that Mauch covets so much.

Research continues into hockey's heady mystery

KITCHENER, Ont. (CP) — Protective helmets have become mandatory in minor hockey, all the way up to the Junior A leagues, but serious head injuries still occur.

That is what some professors at University of Waterloo would like to investigate as part of a research project to produce a better helmet.

One big problem, says Prof. Pat Bishop of the university's kinesiology department in the school of physical education and recreation, is that there is not enough information about what type of punishment a player's head takes in a game.

"It is impossible to design an efficient helmet unless you know what type of protection is necessary."

This is the starting point in a two-pronged research study which he and three other professors have planned. Over a three-year period, the study would:

—Determine the type, frequency and force of blows to the head in actual games at different levels: minor, junior and professional.

—Using medical information on what the head can withstand in the way of blows, design and produce a set of standards — and a prototype helmet — that would meet the needs determined by the first stage of the study.

NEEDS MONEY
However, the research team may need a third prong to its approach — determining where it can find the $62,000 it estimates the entire program will cost.

Most prospective donors are waiting for the report of a Canadian Standards Association subcommittee looking into the problem of setting minimum standards for hockey helmets.

The C.S.A. certification division is doing some preliminary testing of hockey helmets currently on the market, but this is aimed only at "finding out what impacts the helmets will withstand, not what type of protection is required by the player."

Financial support for the project is "outside our terms of regular season.

But this season, the Warriors were hard-pressed to hold first place in the Quebec University Athletic Association basketball conference. The reason again is simple. Other schools are following the example of the Warriors by going out and getting some top-calibre ball players.

McGill University Redmen then took the playoff title.

PROGRAM RETAINED

Take Sir George for example. There was talk last year that the basketball program might be shelved for this season. The Georgians had finished dead last in the six-team Ottawa-St. Lawrence conference with a dismal 2-13 record.

But, following a change in athletic directors, it was decided that the cage program would continue. A new coach was appointed and some re-cruiting was done.

As a result, basketball interest at the downtown Montreal school was higher than it has been in many years. Instead of getting as few as 50 people to their games, the Georgians were attracting crowds up to 750.

Up in Quebec City, coach Yvon Lamarche has breathed life into what was a weak program at Laval University.

There was a time when Laval failed to finish their basketball season in the Ontario-Quebec and Coupe du Quebec competitions and they were drawing almost no spectators to their games.

But with a new athletic centre and a fair basketball team, the Rouge et Or have been attracting an average of 1,200 to their home contests.

The school even scheduled a game with the Montreal Expos basketball club and drew close to 2,000 fans.

reference, says R.D. Watson, technical co-ordinator in the CSA standards division.

Bishop, head athletic trainer at the university, already has done some preliminary work on the type of blows to which the head is subject in hockey. He had students record the number and type of blows during nine home games of the university's team.

STUDY GIVES CLUES
The preliminary findings, though scanty, give some revealing information.

Of the 466 head blows recorded, 28 per cent, 130, involved the side of the head, 20 per cent the back of the head, eight per cent the top of the head, and eight per cent the forehead — all areas for which helmets provide some measure of protection. The other blows involved the face 12 per cent, the neck, 11 per cent and ears, eyes, nose and mouth.

Elbows were the largest single cause of blows, accounting for 41 per cent, 192, of the total. Sticks were involved in 24 per cent of the cases. The screens at the ends of the rink were involved in 19 per cent, the ice in seven per cent, the boards in six per cent, and a combination of pucks, knees, skates and goal posts in three per cent.

From this study, Bishop notes that almost two-thirds of the blows, 65 per cent from elbows and sticks involve "implements of relatively low mass, with the potential of high moving at relatively high speeds, and involve a large force concentrated over a small surface area of the helmet or unprotected head."

Most of the other blows involve objects of relatively high mass, such as the screens, boards or ice. Although these objects do not move, the player may be moving at a high speed when his head strikes them.

To assemble more complete data, Bishop's team plans to use game films and actual experiments with monitoring devices in game conditions to measure accurately the force of the blows.

The next step would be simulating these blows in a laboratory to develop a helmet design which would provide maximum protection. Different types of material also would be tested at this stage in an effort to find one which would absorb the impact of the blows, rather than transmitting the impact to the head and merely spreading it over a large area.

Thanks for the memory

Kevin Forster will remember the Quebec Winter Games for a long time — some of it, at least.

As one of the four wrestlers which Massey-Vanier Regional High School contributed to the Richelieu-Yamaska contingent at the recently concluded competition, Forster's memory of his brief mat activities is a bit clouded.

Unlike the frequently rehearsed routines staged by big time showmen as they travel from city to city, the high school version of wrestling is of a far more serious and genuine nature. And, as is the case with any sport in which body contact is involved, the risk of injury must be accepted in the same vein as the chances for success.

While a pair of his grappling teammates — Brian Patch and Charlie Robitaille — were successfully outpointing their opponents en route to a silver and bronze medal respectively, Forster had to cope with the injury bug in a quest for similar laurels.

Early in his match against Steve Akropoulos of Outremont High School in the 123-pound category the Massey-Vanier youngster was tossed from the mat. His head struck the floor with a resounding thud, leaving the novice wrestler in a dazed condition. An immediate examination by presiding physicians revealed the injury to be of a minor degree, but Forster was advised that the remainder of his bouts at the Games should be curtailed.

"The thing which really made me mad wasn't the fact that I lost the match, but that I couldn't wrestle anymore," Forster admits. "This is my senior year in high school, and it will likely be my last shot at wrestling in this event, so the injury really comes as a disappointment. It's the first problem I've had, other than a nosebleed and a couple of scratches."

In recounting the details of his skirmish a few days later, Forster still recalls the incident somewhat hazily.

"It's not really that much," he begins. "My opponent caught my arms when I came in, and in a split second my feet were in the air, and he fell on top of me on the mat with all his weight. There was a big impact when my head hit the surface, and I was so stunned he pinned me immediately."

A crafty newcomer

"The fellow I was wrestling against was supposed to be a novice wrestler like myself, but he was really experienced. He knew all kinds of moves," the MVRHS competitor continues.

In the aftermath of the crash, Forster spent several moments resembling an amnesia victim. He walked to the doctor under his own power, but when wrestling coach Gary Allen questioned whether he knew his telephone number or the place he had slept the evening before, the youngster replied he did not. The fog gradually lifted a few moments later, but the young wrestler was confined to a spectator's role for the remainder of the activities.

In spite of his short-lived involvement from a wrestling standpoint, Forster was still in an excellent position to offer a participant's view on the overall organization of the Winter Games.

"It was well run from the wrestling end of things, because there were only 60 wrestlers," he explains. "This gives you more time to rest and think about your next match, whereas a recent tournament at Riverdale High School contained too many participants and prevented us from receiving the proper rest period."

One of the items which did not really impress the MVRHS student was the meals which were offered to the athletes.

"I guess they set a budget which called for so many meals and there was no way they were going to go over that limit," he reasons. "At any rate, we had hamburgers and french fries with a coke for lunch, but this hardly seems a nourishing enough for an athlete who is so active throughout the day. But, on the whole, the Games were very well organized."

"Having been a sideline observer of last year's wrestling squad, Forster cannot offer an exact evaluation on the improvement displayed by the present edition, other than to note the addition of more strength in the lineup."

"You also have to remember that the guys have much more experience, so that wrestling comes naturally now. Take Charlie Robitaille, for instance. He deserves much of the credit for the team's success, because he has learned well and was likely our best wrestler at the Games."

Closeness counts

Allen, the dedicated wrestling tutor at MVRHS, has observed the progress of his charges since the program's inception slightly more than one year ago and offers a personal explanation for the surprisingly rapid rise to respectability.

"I believe one of the qualities which should be mentioned about this year's club is the closeness which exists between all the boys," he reveals. "The older boys are so willing to help the younger ones, and they really work together as a team despite being individuals. The togetherness policy has definitely helped form a better squad."

The sparkling performance produced by his Winter Games representatives naturally amounted to a source of satisfaction to Allen, but not nearly as much as it brightened the director of the Richelieu-Yamaska athletic section.

"He was really pleased," Allen informs. "Out of all the teams involved in the Games, our zone had the best overall showing. The wrestling team had to face the best representatives from Montreal, so we had to have a good club. You also must remember that one of our wrestlers, John Powers, was ineligible from participating because he turns 19 in June."

Like any form of athletic competition, wrestling does contain a few intricate phases which offer a stiffer challenge from a teaching aspect, and Allen does not hesitate in registering his opinion on the matter.

"The hardest thing to teach wrestlers is to maintain balance," he asserts. "Some of the youngsters are just naturally good, but others must be taught. It's not the same as professional wrestling because there's quite a bit of skill involved, and the ability to remain balanced ranks as a necessity."

For the present moment, however, the mats must be folded and the arm-lock technique must be carefully noted for further reference, since the bell has sounded on the present wrestling campaign. There are five faces which will likely not return to bolster the ranks of next year's grapplers, but graduation should not impede the progress of MVRHS to any considerable extent.

The program has not yet produced a Whipper Billy Watson, but it has succeeded in teaching the basic rudiments of self-defence.
