Search resumes for lost aircraft

EDMONTON (CP) — A political decision in Ottawa sent five Canadian Forces aircraft winging into the arctic barrens today to resume the search for a mercy aircraft missing since Nov. 8.

Defence Minister James Richardson said Thursday he had decided to reactivate the search by forces aircraft because of the intense concern about rescue efforts voiced by people flying in the north.

Four persons—two Eskimo patients, a pilot and a nurse—have been missing since they left Cambridge Bay, N.W.T., in a Gateway Aviation Beechcraft 18 on a flight to Yellowknife, N.W.T. The search was suspended Monday by air-sea rescue officials after about 200,000 square miles of territory were covered in about 1,000 hours of flying.

A spokesman for the armed forces here said the decision to suspend was made by the searchmaster on the basis of all pertinent factors. The recommendation was forwarded to National Defence Headquarters in Ottawa.

"There have been times in the past the Ottawa people have rejected a searchmaster's recommendation, but this time they agreed," the spokesman said.

"The search was as thorough as we could make it and now that it's been reopened we'll go in and give the maximum effort," he said. "We've been told to do this and we'll do it."

TWO PLANES LEAVE

Two aircraft left the Namao base near here Thursday night and two more were to leave early today for Yellowknife where they would be joined by a fifth aircraft from the base at Comox, B.C.

Mr. Richardson's announcement on the resumption came less than four hours after he told reporters the decision to renew the search depended on new evidence.

A defence department spokesman in Ottawa confirmed no new evidence had been found. He added the search operation never completely stopped because the department continued to monitor private planes in the area in case they sighted the missing beechcraft or its passengers.

So far the search has cost more than $1 million, Mr. Richardson said, quickly adding that the money had no bearing on the decision to renew the search.

Earlier in the week, Susan Haley, 23, a University of Alberta graduate student and fiancée of the missing plane's pilot, Martin Hartwell, 45, said the search did not cover enough ground before being abandoned.

Dr. K. David Haley, her father and chairman of Acadia University's mathematics department in Wolfville, N.S., said in a letter to the Toronto Globe and Mail that the search was conducted in a half-hearted manner.

"Even now, three weeks later, it is not unreasonable to believe that the pilot, the nurse, and possibly the patients may be still alive," Dr. Haley said.

Erik Nielson, Conservative MP for the Yukon and a former commercial pilot, said Thursday several individuals have survived for more than 50 days after plane crashes in the Arctic and were in good condition when found.

Four native organizations also joined in the call for the search's resumption.

A telegram to Mr. Richardson from Inuit Tapirisat of Canada, the Indian Brotherhood and Metis Association of the Northwest Territories, and the Committee for Original People Entitlement offered the use of experienced natives to conduct a ground search in conjunction with a renewed aerial search.

Snow: 51 accidents, one plane crash

SHERBROOKE (WM) — A sudden snowstorm hit the Eastern Townships yesterday evening causing a light airplane carrying four persons to crash at Stoke in Richmond County and 51 automobile accidents in the City of Sherbrooke.

Provincial police were still attempting to locate the plane and its four passengers midnight last night and could give no further details at that time.

Of the 51 car accidents reported in the city of Sherbrooke 36 were major, causing damage in excess of $100 to the cars involved. However, no one was seriously injured in the crashes.

City police reported this morning that a large number of the car accidents occurred on King street west.

Sherbrooke city police could not ascertain the main reason for the extremely high accident rate. "We always have a large number of accidents at the beginning of the season," a police spokesman said.

"Some people do not have winter tires on yet and are not yet used to winter driving."

He added that the roads were in bad condition but that the department of roads would have them salted during the night.

Provincial police also reported roads in the Eastern Townships in extremely dangerous condition. Surprisingly, however, there were no accidents reported outside Sherbrooke due to the snow except a hit-and-run case in Bromptonville.

City finds revenues

SHERBROOKE (AR) — Mayor Marc Bureau and other city administrators last night explained municipal tax changes to representatives from churches, religious orders and educational institutions.

Under the new city tax structure all non-taxable property owners will be assessed for several services which they have enjoyed at no cost in the past.

Under a bylaw which will be before the council Monday these privileged land-owners will pay their share of fire protection, snow removal, sewers, road works and street lighting.

The previously untaxed groups represent about $60 million in non-taxable evaluation. When the new regulation is put in force they will be required to contribute proportionally to regular property holders, retroactive to January 1, 1972.

Some of the organizations will not be charged a monetary assessment but will pay through the provision of certain services. In the case of churches, they will be asked to provide their auditoriums and parking lots for public use more frequently than they do at present.

City officials have estimated that about $3.5 million of free services are involved. Once the $60 million of previously untaxed evaluation is added to the $355 million which supports the burden of city services, a formula for payment is derived.

It is expected that the affected property owners will receive their assessments about the middle of December — just in time for Christmas.

Ontario plans large jobs program

TORONTO (CP) — Ontario unveiled plans Thursday to ease unemployment this winter with a $50-million program to create a hoped-for 29,000 jobs.

The plan, revealed in the legislature by Treasurer Charles MacNaughton, is similar to one last winter that cost nearly $60 million and produced 32,000 temporary jobs during peak winter-unemployment periods.

An immediate reaction came from Stephen Lewis, New Democratic Party leader, who told Mr. MacNaughton in the house the incentives were not enough.

Mr. Lewis said if the province achieves its forecast of a 5.6 per cent unemployment rate this winter, there will be 200,000 persons without jobs even with Mr. MacNaughton's new measures.

The treasurer admitted the province is faced with "high levels of winter unemployment" despite a policy of deficit financing to stimulate the economy. Last year's budgetary deficit, on a spending program of $7.071 billion, was $519 million and this deficit is expected to increase in next spring's budget.

ESIMATES FOR FUNDS

He said supplementary estimates will be brought to the house during the current session to provide funds to finance the winter works program.

He lamented that Ottawa had not yet produced any winter works programs that could be tied in with Ontario's projects.

Last winter, Ottawa provided more than $60 million for temporary employment projects in Ontario, the chief ones being Canada Manpower on-the-job training programs and Local Initiatives Programs (L.I.P.).

"This year, despite the prospect of continuing high unemployment, no comprehensive federal program has been announced," the minister said.

"It now appears that only about $20 million will be available in Ontario under the L.I.P. and manpower training programs."

Bourassa said satisfied

LONDON (CP) — Premier Robert Bourassa of Quebec, in Britain to arouse extra goodwill among investors towards his province, also has been discussing specific new industrial projects with the businessmen.

But the premier, expressing satisfaction with his visit so far, is leaving any announcement about the projects to a later date.

Bourassa, citing the results of recent byelections in the province, is seeking to convince businessmen here that separatism is on the wane.

"There is no reason for us to break with Canada to have security," the premier told a news conference.

The premier paid a 20-minute call on Prime Minister Heath and Foreign Secretary Sir Alec Douglas-Home.

The most explicit talking of the day for Quebec was done by Edmond Lemieux, director-general in charge of Hydro-Quebec's arrangements for financing the much-publicized James Bay development.

SPECTACULAR COLLISION — This late-model car was one of three vehicles involved in an accident at the corner of King street west and London. Luckily no one was injured, although the above car is a near total loss. The accident occurred approximately 5:45 p.m.

STONED CHRISTMAS — The camera's lens seems to capture the surreal atmosphere of last night's freak storm, so much so that a photograph begins to look like a modern-art representation. Ever wonder how photographs of flying saucers are faked?

Egg board established

OTTAWA (CP) — A national agency to control the Canadian egg industry will be established early next year following an agreement signed Thursday by provincial and regional egg producing and marketing men.

Although producer representatives from Saskatchewan and British Columbia have yet to sign the agreement—they were unable to make it to Ottawa Thursday—the chairman of the National Farm Products Marketing Council, Paul Babey, said he is "confident the plan will be in operation before the end of this year."

The national agency, first to be set up under the federal Farm Product Marketing Agencies Act passed earlier this year after two years of stormy debate, will likely curb an expected egg surplus later this winter and make eggs cost more than they would have.

The agreement to set up the agency was signed Nov. 20 by the federal and all provincial governments but Newfoundland, waiting for results of an inquiry into its egg industry.

Mr. Babey said he expected Newfoundland would join the others in the plan.

GNP up slightly

OTTAWA (CP) — The gross national product for the third quarter of this year rose slightly to an annual rate of $102.7 billion from $102 billion in the second quarter, Statistics Canada reported Thursday.

The agency said the figures "indicate a slackening in the pace of economic activity in the third quarter, following the very strong second-quarter expansion."

GNP—value of goods and services—in the first quarter reached an annual rate of $99.2 billion.

In terms of constant 1961 dollars, which removed the effect of inflation, the annual rate actually fell during the third quarter, to $70.5 billion from $70.98 billion.

The increase in GNP, measured in constant dollars, from the third quarter of 1971 to the third quarter of this year, was 3.06 per cent, the lowest figure since the last quarter of 1970.

The Economic Council of Canada said in early November that GNP should increase by six per cent annually, measured in constant dollars, if the economy is advancing acceptably.

SEASONALLY ADJUSTED

The GNP estimates, in both current and constant dollars, are seasonally-adjusted to erase the effect of normal seasonal variations and to show the underlying trends in the economy.

Statistics Canada singled out foreign trade as a key factor behind the slackening in GNP. "By far the major source of weakness in the third quarter was the $1.2 million increase in the deficit in transactions on goods and services with nonresidents, which was mainly due to declining merchandise exports."

The agency also said that most other categories of demand displayed relative weakness.

"Consumer outlays on goods and services, which account for nearly 60 per cent of total GNP, rose at a much reduced pace than in the exceptionally-strong second quarter and business outlays on plant and equipment and on inventory investment declined."

"By contrast, government outlays on goods and services and housing investment rose strongly in the third quarter."

AUTO PURCHASES DOWN

Among notable specific points, the agency mentioned a five-per-cent decline in automobile purchases following a 17-per-cent jump in the second quarter.

On the other hand, over-all housing activity was up 6.3 per cent in the third quarter after only minimal increase in the second quarter, when labor disputes hampered construction.

The labor disputes also produced a higher rate of increase in labor incomes—2.2 per cent—in the third quarter than in the second quarter, when the rate was two per cent.

Corporation profits, however, showed a slight decline.

Nine dead in Atlanta fire

ATLANTA, Ga. (AP) — Nine persons died and 32 were injured in a fire early Thursday at a newly-built home for the elderly. Panic, sleepiness and a smoke-filled hallway were among the factors that resulted in the deaths and injuries.

"Many of the victims died of smoke inhalation," said Atlanta Fire Marshal Jim Seagraves.

The victims were residents of the 11-storey, $4.5-million Baptist Towers, completed in April.

Seagraves said cause of the fire was not known—"the best we will probably be able to come up with is a probable cause."

UCW meeting

A short program of humorous telephone conversations was followed by a social hour when lunch was served by the hostess, Mrs. Carl Gustafson.

The business session included a detailed report of the turkey supper which was a very good success and plans were made for the annual Christmas meeting to be held in the church hall on Dec. 7, when a new slate of officers will be elected; exchange of inexpensive homemade goods or handmade articles will be given and a money donation by the members which will be given for some needy cause at Christmas time.

DECISION

Ottawa, November 21, 1972

PUBLIC ANNOUNCEMENT

The Canadian Radio-Television Commission announces the following decisions effective November 21, 1972.

Decision CRT 72-311
ROCK FOREST AND DEAUVILLE, QUE. — 6884215
Application by Transvision Rock Forest Eng. for a cable television licence to serve Rock Forest and Deauville, Que.
Decision DENIED

ROCK FOREST, ASCOT TOWNSHIP AND SHERBROOKE, QUE. — 7289785
Application by National Cablevision Limited to amend its cable television licence for Sherbrooke to extend its service area to include Rock Forest and part of Ascot Township to add local origination on Channel 9; to add reception and distribution of CKTM-TV Trois-Rivieres, Que. on Channel 13; to distribute CJFM-FM Montreal, Que. on Channel 11 rather than on Channel 13; to add reception and distribution of CFGL-FM Laval, Que. on the FM band; to discontinue reception and distribution of WJOY-FM Burlington, Vt. and WEAV-FM Plattsburg, N.Y. on the FM band.
Decision APPROVED

The applicant has stated at the Public Hearing held to hear his application that he will be willing to serve the Deauville area. It is a condition of the approval of this application that the applicant extend its service to include Deauville as soon as reasonably possible after amending its Technical brief and obtaining approval from the Department of Communications concerning the issuance of a Technical Construction and Operating Certificate.

The Commission expects the licensee to provide without delay a good service to those additional areas contiguous to his presently licensed territory. The Commission is of the opinion that the extended territory could not provide enough revenue to allow another applicant to operate successfully.

The Commission has noted the licensee's intention to work in cooperation with community groups to produce community programming on its local origins channel.

Monique Coupal,
Secretary.

SHERBROOKE — Two of Sherbrooke's top administrative officials last night revealed the city has allotted a sum of money in the 1973 budget for the development of Sherbrooke's downtown area.

The money will be used to set up two task forces, one to study short-term actions on Wellington street north and another to ponder a strategy for the renewal of the entire downtown sector in the medium and long run.

In addition to financing the proposed consultative bodies, it is expected that a portion of the earmarked funds can be used to finance an investment on Wellington street north should agreement be reached with the affected property owners and merchants.

During separate interviews with The Record yesterday, Mayor Marc Bureau and director-general Serge Racine discussed Wednesday's information meeting about the future of Sherbrooke's commercial core.

Mr. Racine, who proposed a hypothetical $1 million investment to convert Wellington street north into a semi-mall, allowed that there was confusion at the gathering on the subject of priorities.

"I think it should be made clear to everyone concerned that our short-term objective is to do something on Wellington street north," he declared. "At this stage we aren't ready to discuss the Marquette plateau or other longer range possibilities."

FOUR POLES

According to the director-general there are four commercial poles in the downtown area: the Belvedere shopping centre, Wellington street, the Marquette plateau and the new LaSalle-Bonimart complex.

"Our strategy should be to form natural axes," he offered, "and a development of Wellington street would tie in well with the new shopping centre on Des Grandes Fourches street."

Mr. Racine sees as a probable next step the linking of the other two major poles. "If, for example, we were to build a new city hall at King and Couture," the administrator speculated, "this would give prominence to the Marquette plateau and link it more with Place Belvedere."

Elaborating on his $1 million investment idea, he disclosed that it was intended as a negation of a covered mall for Wellington street north. "I definitely think such a project is not financially feasible," Mr. Racine stated, "and I strongly doubt it is physically possible."

Mayor Bureau said that council was ready to form a task force to study short-term solutions for Wellington street north so that measures will go into effect by mid-summer.

"There are a number of things which can be done in the very near future," he asserted. "Parking may be improved, public transportation could be restructured to aid access and improvements can be made on the buildings."

Mayor Bureau reiterated the absolute need for a promoter to downtown merchants and owners. The reason shopping centres can influence investment like they do," he explained, "is that there is one guy running the promotion. That's why these individuals must get together."

Both city officials cautioned that once the new shopping centres open, the whole downtown area will be in deep trouble if nothing is done. They feel that Wellington street north could be the most severely affected downtown area.

As for the financial implications of a major investment of the type the downtown committee foresees, there is no obstacle if collaboration exists. "The city will be prepared to service any debt for a five year period," the two administrators assured, "after which those who benefit will shoulder the entire burden."

In fact the investment could be $2 million or a higher sum as long as the city's taxpayers are not implicated beyond an interim period, Mr. Racine suggested.

The Mayor and the director-general emphasized that the property owners are more responsible than the merchants. As they see the situation, a storekeeper can move his business while the building remains.

It appears, therefore, that the key to any project is the willingness of those who benefit most to pay a greater portion of the cost. Following a similar argument, it could be said that when the thunder strikes, as many feel it will, the building owners could be caught empty-handed.

Whatever the complications of the situation, most observers correctly speculate that the ensuing months will determine the fate of Sherbrooke's commercial core.

Reveal new reading plan

SHERBROOKE (WM) — The Society of Educational Research, an affiliate of the IBM company, launched the promotion in Quebec of a series of laboratory reading lessons yesterday in the general library of Sherbrooke University.

The educational laboratory consists of a series of short texts designed to cater to the individual reading levels of children from 10-12 years old. After a reading test, the child is placed at a certain reading level and can choose from 72 texts within his level of understanding.

The illustrated texts are followed by a series of questions to determine the child's comprehension of that text. Once the child has mastered the reading matter at one level he can move through to the next level. There are seven levels in all. The child keeps a graph indicating her progress herself.

The author of the reading material, Rene Serge Larouche, said yesterday that he had tried to make the texts as relevant to modern life as possible and thereby provide for the child a living experience.

The program has recently accepted by the New Brunswick department of education and will be placed on the approved list of learning materials in Quebec.

The promoters of the reading laboratory system claim that the method has been used successfully in many different countries abroad.

NEW READING METHODS — A new method of teaching reading was promoted at the University of Sherbrooke yesterday. Above, Serge Larouche, the author of the French reading texts, discusses his system with

No offers for Beebe school

STANSTEAD (WM) — Rediker R.H. Transport Limited of Beebe has not yet received offers from parties interested in renting the Beebe School which was recently purchased by the company, as spokesman for Rediker Transport revealed yesterday.

"We have not yet had any offers," Mr. L. Goodsell, Rediker Transport's manager said yesterday.

"We have informed the Quebec department of industrial development that the building is available for industrial use and have contacted a number of people regarding the possible renting of the building but we have not yet heard anything definite."

The school was put up for tender by the Lennoxville Elementary School Board after rejection of an offer of $17,000 from an American businessman who intended to convert the school into a plastic furniture moulding plant which would employ 41 unskilled workers.

The Rediker Transport tender was $8,400 above the offer made by the American businessman, Mrs. Della Goodsell, owner of the transport company, said recently that she felt keenly the need to provide work for the unemployed in the area but that buildings supported by Canadian taxes should remain Canadian.

She added company officials had received some criticism from persons in the area who felt the company should not have tendered for the building since the American businessman's offer would have brought badly needed new industry to the area.

Mrs. Goodsell suggested, however, that if the American businessman had really been interested he would have contacted the Rediker Transport Co. as to the possibility of renting the school from them.

School committee active

Monday, November 20, the Lennoxville School Committee held an informative evening at the school for the parents' benefit.

Mrs. Jennifer Roman, chairman, introduced all the committee members and then William Bagder was elected a new member.

Mrs. Marguerite Knapp, chairman of the Lennoxville School Board, and Bill Lyon, one of the Lennoxville Commissioners, explained the functions of the School Board, various committees and the financial system.

A resume of the School Committee's activities thus far was followed by questions from the floor.

The following evening, the committee held its regular meeting. Mrs. Roman welcomed Mr. Bagder to the group and then proceeded with the agenda, which included some of the following topics:

Inadequate nursing care, supervision for the children during lunch break, a referendum regarding uniforms to be sent to the parents and future studies to be made into the methods of teaching French.

Several subcommittees were formed to deal with finances, public relations and special projects. The next meeting will be held on December 11.

Bell still inventing

SHERBROOKE (WM) — The Sherbrooke telephone pioneers have come up with a new idea to help retarded children speak and understand. They have installed a telephone system complete with switchboard and five telephones in a school for retarded children on King West street in Sherbrooke.

"The telephone system helps us to measure the extent of the child's comprehension," Sister Jeanne Gignac, director of the school said yesterday.

Retarded children often understand not just by the words spoken but by the gestures and appearance of the speaker," she added.

"We can prove the exact level of comprehension of the child by the amount he can understand over the telephone without seeing the speaker."

"It also encourage the children to speak rather than to demonstrate what they want by actions," Sister Gignac summarized. "At the moment, the children are just speaking to the adult on the switchboard but later on the more advanced children will be able to speak through the switchboard too."

The school, which accepts about 12 pre-school age children five days a week, is attached to the Villa Dufresne, an institution for retarded children financed by the government. The purpose of the day school is to prepare retarded children for participation in schools later.

The telephone system is only one of many aid projects which the Alouette Council of the Telephone Pioneers offer. Members of the council are making "Lulu" dolls fitted with a two-way radio which permits conversations with a disturbed child from a distance.

They also collect and catalogue eyeglasses and hearing aids which are then redistributed to the underprivileged or to underdeveloped countries. In addition they give aid to the blind and work on first-aid and safety-driving courses.

The membership of the Telephone Pioneers Association is made up of employees and pensioners who have served at least 21 years in the telephone industry.

The Alouette council is the Eastern Townships' branch of the telephone pioneers. The council numbers 400 members.

What a way to start a week

SHERBROOKE (AR) — On the occasion of Automobile Safety Week, December 1-7, Mayor Marc Bureau yesterday issued an enthusiastic letter of support and called on all motorists to exercise caution, vigilance and sobriety when driving.

Each year, during the first week of December, the Canada Safety Council brings to attention the alarming rate of deaths, injuries and financial losses incurred on the roads and highways. Last year's statistics provide ample reason for the Council's efforts.

In 1971 some 5,400 Canadians perished as a result of the more than 500,000 reported motor vehicle accidents. Approximately 200,000 persons were injured in these collisions.

While Sherbrooke figures for the same period showed slight decreases in the number of passengers and pedestrians killed, a 108 per cent increase was recorded in convictions for impaired driving. Infractions of the highway code and municipal regulations also rose last year.

In his annual message for Automobile Safety Week, the Mayor stressed that all drivers have a responsibility toward the prevention of accidents to protect their lives as well as those of pedestrians and passengers.

He also recalled that the purpose of the annual campaign was to bring attention to driving hazards and urge citizens to take preventative measures.

In view of the chaos which reigned in Sherbrooke and the Eastern Townships last night this message could not be more timely.

Last year during Automobile Safety Week 68 Canadians lost their lives in traffic accidents. The average death toll for the other weeks in December was 104.

On the average 100 traffic deaths per week occurred across Canada in 1971. Meanwhile 3,000 injuries and about 10,000 accidents were recorded weekly.

Band feels like a winner

By SCARLETT McGOWIE
Record Reporter

SHERBROOKE — Although not one member of Machaca, the group currently playing at 'La Place', can claim English as a mother-tongue, the musicians find they can only sing in English.

"Expressing myself in French when I sing has no meaning," Claude Hetu, the lead-singer and organist for the band explained. "I know it sounds funny, and out of the seven of us, five are French-Canadian and two Spanish speaking. But we can only mean what we are singing if it is in English."

Machaca is only three months old, but all the musicians have a lot of experience behind them. Most of them have been playing for at least 10 years.

Gerry Legault who plays bass guitar is 30 and like Claude, who is 27, started making a living through his music as soon as he left school.

"There was no waiting period," Gerry said. "One day I was at school the next day I was a musician."

Robert Goulet, 30, plays lead guitar.

Jean Morin, the sax player, is 27.

Jimi Tanacas plays the congas. He is from Columbia, South America and has a degree in classical music. The youngest member of the band at 22, he is also the only one who has any formal training in music.

Joey Tomez, 28, also from Columbia, plays the timbalas.

Machaca already has a contract with Capitol Records to record an album. "We have done a 'demo' for them and they really liked it," Gerry said.

"That surprised us because the tape was just a recording of us live, without fiddling around in a studio. If they liked that, they are going to love our album."

The album will not be out for about three months. "We have got to find a studio first," Claude explained.

"Most of the studios in Canada are really bad. We want a studio in California — anywhere on the West coast of the states. When we have found a studio we will start recording."

"At the moment the band are still getting it together and learning to play with each other. We have written a lot of the material needed for the album, now we just need gigs so that we can play the material."

Despite the fact that they have worked with so many other groups — when asked they said — both Gerry and Claude believe this is "the" group for them. "Everybody in the band thinks this," Claude said.

"When we talked about forming the group nobody talked about money, all we thought about was the kind of music we were going to play and how great it would be to play together. Everybody gave up everything for the band."

"This is the first time we have been able to play the music we want. Now that we all agree what we want to play, we are happy if the audience doesn't like our music that's bad luck, we like it."

Claude and Gerry are both against formal music training. "When you play," Gerry explained, "you should feel, your music just should be an expression of your feelings."

"Formal training destroys this. You are taught what to play and how to play it. You can no longer express yourself."

Jimi's performance on the congas, with his degree in classical music, does not seem to lend much truth to Gerry's assertion.

"We start where Santana is, and then improve on it."

E.T. pioneer passes away

SHERBROOKE (WM) — Harry Cohen, well-known lawyer, member of the Queens Council and real estate broker, died Wednesday evening in Montreal after what is believed to have been a heart attack.

Mr. Cohen made many contributions to Sherbrooke and the Eastern Townships where he was born and raised. His donations have gone to the Sherbrooke Hospital, the Jewish Congregation Agadath Achim in Sherbrooke, Bishop's University, the YMCA and the Canadian Legion.

After graduation from Bishop's University in Lennoxville, Mr. Cohen obtained a bachelors' degree in civil law from McGill and joined the well-known law firm of Bercovitz and Calder in Montreal.

He practiced law for 20 years then turned to real estate where he had interests in many large corporations in Montreal and the Eastern Townships including the Lennoxville Realty Corporation.

Daniel Heilig, nephew of Mr. Cohen, said yesterday that although his uncle had spent most of his working life in Montreal he always expressed a deep fondness for Sherbrooke and the Eastern Townships. "He felt that his roots were in Sherbrooke," Mr. Heilig commented.

Mr. Cohen is survived by a sister Helen (Mrs. Helen Goldstein), son Douglas and daughter, Edith. He had five grandchildren.

The funeral is being held today at Paperman's Funeral Chapel in Montreal.

Change down under

It seems to be time for a change in the antipodes. The sweeping Labor victory in New Zealand on Saturday cannot but encourage Australia's Labor party, which has great expectations from the Dec. 2 general elections. In both countries the Liberal parties (in New Zealand it is called the National party) had ruled for a long time — in New Zealand for 20 out of the last 23 years. Moreover, New Zealand was the only country, apart from Canada, where Social Credit had made a substantial impact upon the electorate, and in the previous New Zealand election Secord polled nine per cent of all votes. However, since then the party had disintegrated all its defectors obviously streamed to Labor.

There was little difference between the programs of the two main parties, especially where welfare and social measures are concerned. Labor, however, was more militant in foreign affairs. Its leader and prime minister-elect, Norman Kirk, has pledged to pull New Zealand troops out of Singapore and Malaysia, something that will not please either of these Asian governments that consider the Anzac presence on their soil as a pledge of the two countries' commitment to protect them against Communist subversion. Whether Chinese foreign policies have changed so drastically that all precautions can now be thrown to the wind is an arguable proposition, but Mr. Kirk undoubtedly has his own left wing to appease and he can do so cheaply at the expense of his colored neighbors.

Mr. Kirk will also leave SEATO, a moribund body fashioned by the late John Foster Dulles and long past its prime. France placed herself on its inactive list as soon as the late President de Gaulle inaugurated his France-first policy. Pakistan has left the organization, and today the countries that comprise it, United States, Britain, the Philippines and Thailand, are all linked by bilateral treaties that have superseded the SEATO pact.

The New Zealand election was enlivened by several splinter parties, including the Mad Hatter's party led by a young man who legally changed his name to Mickey Mouse, and who claimed he was providing the clown for the political circus. The one and only plank in his platform was free cheese.

In contrast, the Australian scene appears to be more sombre. For years it was largely the substantial vote of the basically Catholic Democratic Labor party — strongly anti-Communist and anti-Marxist — that had kept the Labor party proper from obtaining power. However, times have changed also in Australia. It is believed that the mass of new voters, between the ages of 18 and 21, to whom the name Petrov and the concept of Soviet machinations in Australia are not even a memory will vote largely for Labor, which is campaigning on the same slogan as that which has swept its New Zealand sister party into power: "Time for a change."

If the Labor party wins in Australia, the mutual defence treaty with the United States, the ANZUS pact, will obviously come up for revision. In the present unreal atmosphere of detente euphoria, the Labor parties in both Australia and New Zealand will reap more kudos by standing up to France than by seriously considering the defence position of their vulnerable populations.

The pollsters in New Zealand badly miscalculated in predicting a very close result with only a percentage point separating the two main parties. The pollsters' present forecasts of a Labor victory in Australia have, therefore, to be taken with some caution, especially after similar errors in their predictions of the German election results. However, if Labor wins in Australia, the changes in that part of the world may yet be more profound than is now envisaged.

Opinion from the French press

This is a selection of editorials on current topics translated from the French-language press of Canada.

Sherbrooke La Tribune: The Francophones are trying to establish their rights and privileges in Quebec on a more solid base; they are really trying to take hold of a future which belongs to them.

And this time it is probably serious, because the Anglophones have undertaken to reflect on what future they will have in a Francophone Quebec and even in a Quebec which aspires to break away from Canada in order to become independent.

This uncertainty on the part of Anglophones is not morbid and is often part of a desire to remain within Quebec society, even if some see the situation as more tragic than it really is and if some still have colonial reflexes. Evidently, it behooves Anglophones to adapt themselves to the new face of Quebec rather than for the Francophones to try to insert Anglophones progressively and slowly into the new life of Quebec, but one must not deny that Quebec cannot allow itself totally to abandon Anglophones and let them exile themselves to Ontario or other regions where they will receive a warmer welcome than here.

These Anglophone businessmen love Quebec and are not prepared to leave it on the pretext that the social climate inconveniences and upsets their traditions. However, without going down on their knees to the minority, it is the duty of the Francophone majority clearly to show Anglophones that a French Quebec, and even an independent Quebec, will always count on their presence, not only to equalize our economy, but also because, socially, they have a role to play in this province. —Jean Vigneault (Nov. 24)

Ottawa Le Droit: Mr. Robert Stanfield has admitted that his party's election campaign in Quebec was a series of blunders.

We ask ourselves how far he has got in his thinking and we hope that he will get to work quickly to gain the confidence of some of the Quebec voters. To gain a little serious support in Quebec is necessary, first of all for his party, as well as for Quebec and Quebecers. Without a renewal of conservatism in Quebec, Mr. Stanfield's party will never be a national party.

Quebec risks seeing itself excluded from all participation in a Conservative government, which still is a possibility, and equally excluded from the ranks of the official opposition.

In the next general election, Quebecers must elect a good number of Conservatives. A member in the Opposition is generally freer to assert the name of his province than a member of the ruling party who is condemned to an excess of discretion by a tacit law of silence.

If the Conservatives want to win seats in Quebec, they must get to work now. They must immediately find excellent candidates and launch them at once on the campaign trail. A Faribault or a Wagner picked at the last minute always has the air of a life preserver.

The big Conservative error is not attributable only to Mr. Stanfield. It goes back to the Diefenbaker regime. When in power, Mr. Diefenbaker never had enough confidence in his Quebec lieutenants. Keeping them in the shadows and humiliation, he was the architect of his party's disaster in Quebec. At his succession, Mr. Stanfield didn't have enough time to review his Quebec wing before the elections.

He must get to work immediately. This is the only way he will make a good showing next time. —Marcel Gingras (Nov. 25)

Quebec L'Action: A school in Boucherville was the scene of a drama... when a student killed himself after shooting a teacher and another student.

Every day we read news which shows an inexplicable and disorganized behavior on the part of some young people. And parents, a great majority of them, have literally resigned when faced by all the problems of their children; they have understood nothing of what is going on and by renouncing their duty to make at least a small effort to help their children, they have simply abandoned them to the mercy of unscrupulous revolutionaries who preach the abolition of all social, moral and human values which are the basis of our civilization.

The youths are inserted, like numbers in a file, into a school system that becomes more and more dehumanizing, in order to prepare them to take their place in an amorphous society that offers them no joy or security.

What ideal can one develop when all efforts are, from the start, destined to be short-lived... when one looks at an adult society where the illiterate earn their living more easily than university graduates or skilled workmen?

Why be surprised by a particular drama such as the one in Boucherville? It was only the logical conclusion to the series of barbarities that our society has tolerated... We will see many other similar dramas while waiting until we have enough courage to bring together the debris of civilization to build a new and more human world. —Roger Brunneau (Nov. 23)

Montreal La Presse: In these last few months, several events have shown that a current of conscience is crossing Quebec and that it threatens to hit hard the most unfortunate groups of society: the unemployed, the welfare recipients and the poor.

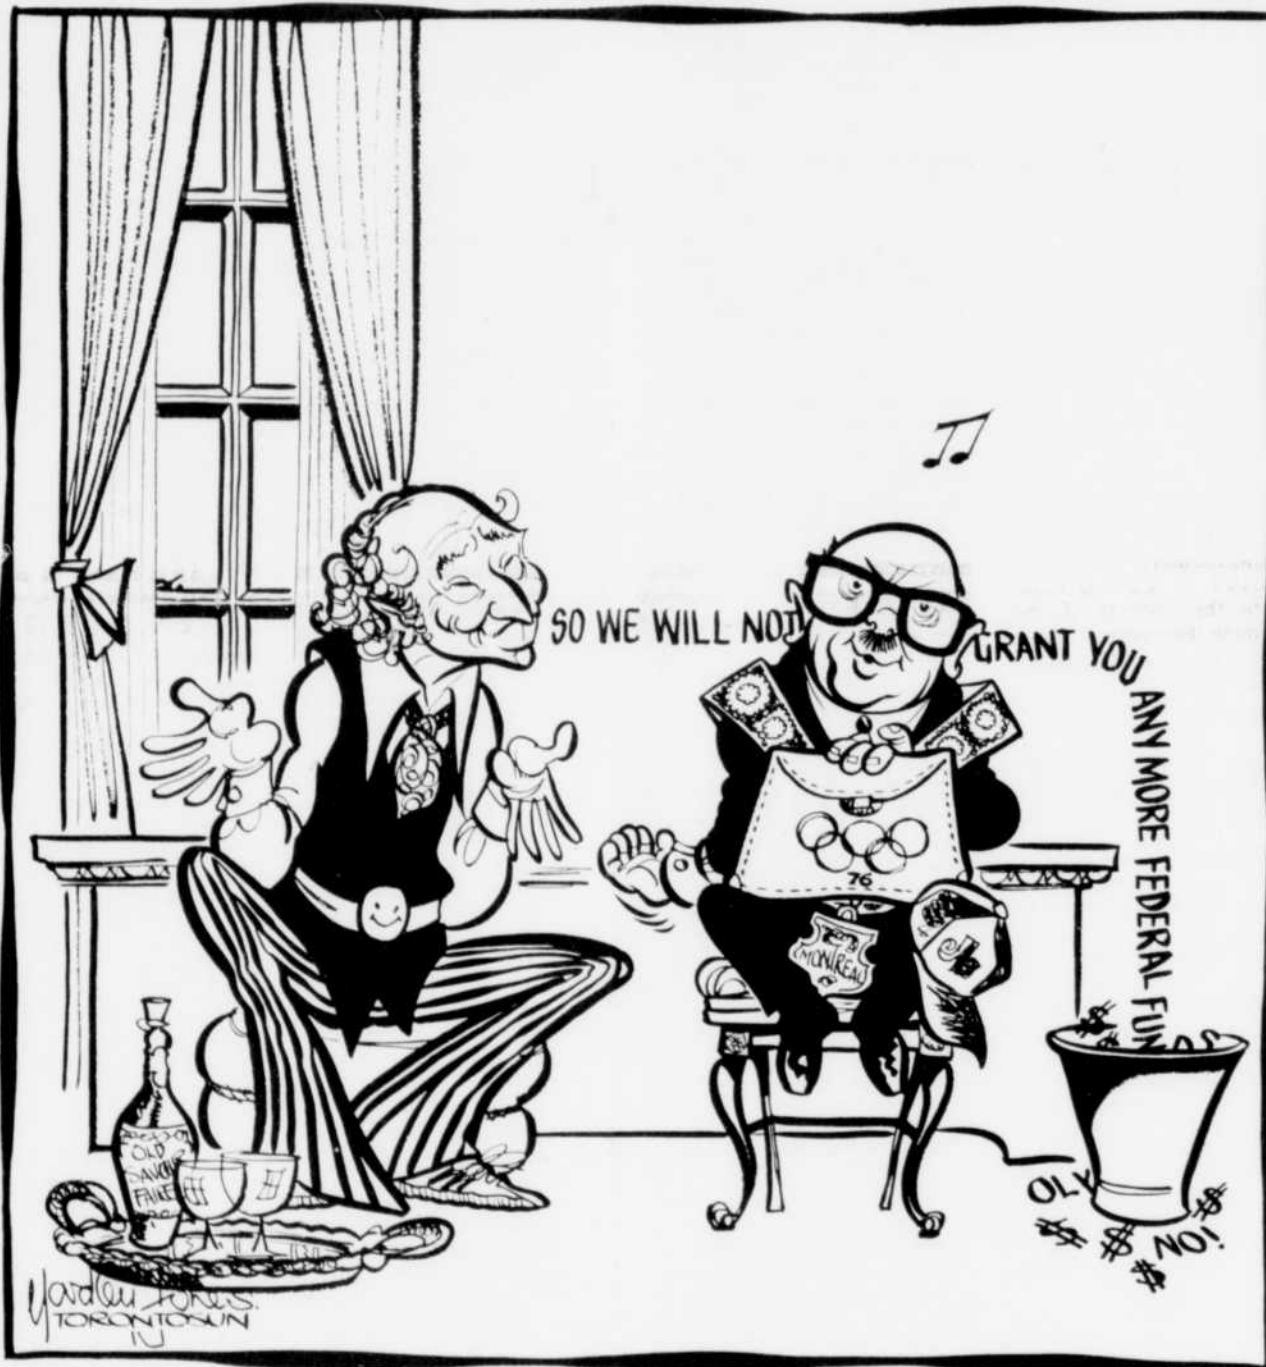

With the union protest movement coinciding with a phenomenal increase in consumer prices and taxes of all sorts that affected particularly the middle classes, it was logical that a reaction would occur soon, that it would take the most unexpected routes and would have questionable results regarding social justice.

One would be wrong to think that the current reaction comes only from the middle bourgeoisie or that it is favored by a lack of the aggressiveness which marks the unions and leftist groups. For many non-unionized workers who must work hard to earn their living, it is time the government stopped "encouraging laziness" by practically supporting unemployment or by continuing payments to welfare recipients when many, so it is said, could be working.

To the desire to end the government's financial generosity must be added a need for social peace. In some circles, the idea is so widespread that the social crises, the demonstrations and the strikes of recent years have had a negative effect on the economy.

This aspiration for security and peace, innate in man, has a tendency to alter judgment somewhat when the economic situation deteriorates at the same rate as the social situation. From this... come the repeated calls for social order and better police protection, resolutions demanding more moderation in aid to the unemployed, welfare recipients and the poor; a need to restrain government initiatives in areas where it is believed private enterprise can do the job more effectively. —Claude Gravel (Nov. 27)

Frisking: The social dividend

The American Civil Liberties Union has expressed concern over the procedures by which airline travellers are being searched and, especially, the consequences of many of such searches. It is the ACLU's point that the hijacking problem is proving to be an invitation to lawlessness by Federal agents.

The raw data are these: During the past 22 months, 6,000 airline travellers were arrested after being searched. But only 20 percent of these were arrested for carrying contraband related directly to hijacking. The Federal regulations involving airplanes tell you that you cannot take aboard weapons which are related to the hijacking enterprise. For instance, you can't carry aboard a machine gun, or a mortar, or a pistol, or a Bowie knife.

But what if you carry aboard, say, a pound of heroin? It is unreasonable for the people who search you to contend that it was your intention to stick the pilot with a hypodermic needle, transfuse him with rapid joy, and in his transfixed condition coo him into taking you to Havana. In this sense the ACLU people are as a matter of fact quite plausible. The passengers who have been arrested, while in the process of boarding aircraft carrying drugs, can't legitimately be thought of as passengers interdicted from the act of hijacking.

The generic point is therefore raised: should an arresting officer be permitted to opportunize on chance discoveries of contraband? The principal judicial finding, thus far, is that of Judge Jack Weinstein, federal judge of the eastern district of New York, who ruled 18 months ago that a frisker is entitled to move against targets of opportunity. "If a frisk for weapons is conducted in good faith to locate a weapon believed to be present on the basis of information generated by a well-administered Federal anti-hijacking system and does not go beyond the limits of what is required to uncover such an object, seizure of evidence in crimes other than those involved in boarding aircraft with a weapon is justified. The officer need not close his eyes to evidence of other crimes which he may uncover."

The Fourth Amendment of the Constitution protects us against "unreasonable searches and seizures." It would be unreasonable — to reach for an example — for Federal (or State) agents to search on boarding, say, the bus from Winnetka to Chicago, for the simple reason that there isn't a sufficient historical incidence, on the bus from Winnetka to Chicago, of bus-jackers. The need for airborne security, by contrast, is historically demonstrated.

But, admitting the constitutionality of search, what about the constitutionality of seizure: of unrelated contraband? The ACLU veers toward saying that you can't seize it. Technically the questions are various: a) Can you seize it? (Yes, in most peoples answer); b) Can you offer it in evidence in order to prosecute the passengers from whom you seized it? (Yes, is Judge Weinstein's answer; No, the ACLU-types seem to be saying).

As regards the latter point, one runs into the generic precedent of Weeks versus the United States, which found in 1914 against the use as evidence of illegally seized material. It is not clear that the Weeks ban would apply in the disputed cases: because if John Jones is legally searched and found to have in his possession illegal goods, it hasn't been established that these are inadmissible. They are, one would think, a social dividend.

If, on investigating Lizzie Borden's quarters in search of an axe, one finds instead a hand grenade, the operative judicial assumption is that you can not only seize it but also introduce it into whatever court is concerned with pressing anti-hand grenade laws.

The philosophical point gradually crystallizes, and it bears of course on the great socio-judicial question: how do you even up the disequilibrium now working in favor of the criminal? The ACLU-types are fanatically concerned with the defendant's rights.

They are never around to suggest judicial or legislative reforms designed to strengthen the hand of the innocent. They are not even there to give him artificial respiration. The ACLU was eloquent in its indifference to the militants who interfered with the rights of professors and students who in recent years sought to express their own rights to free speech. They are now preparing to take a hijacking dilemma and run with it in the same old direction.

How the kids voted

By DOUG SMALL

OTTAWA (CP) — Party people concerned with how the roughly 2.8 million young people voting for the first time cast their ballots in the Oct. 30 federal election have conflicting views on the outcome.

Len Domino of Winnipeg, president of the Young Progressive Conservatives, says letters and reports from party workers indicate those aged 18 to 24 voted much like the rest of the population.

Roughly 39 of every 100 voters supported Liberals, about 35 Conservatives, 18 voted NDP and eight for Social Credit or other groups and individuals.

But Robert Dundas, president of the Student Liberals, on the basis of results from campus polls, says university voters generally voted 2-to-1 for Liberals, "often in the face of an over whelming trend to the contrary."

New Democrats, for their part, were trying to devise ways to separate precisely the youth vote from the over-all one. They made no particular effort to attract first-time voters, arguing that most young people were affected by the same problems as their elders. Most would vote the way their parents did.

Mr. Domino said the Conservative party did "much better" than it was expected to do among young people on the basis of first findings.

He said polls last summer and fall showed the Conservatives far behind the Liberals in wooing the 18-to-24 vote. That age group includes those who became eligible to vote because the voting age was lowered to 18 from 21 plus those too young to have voted in the 1968 election.

But results indicate a virtual saw-off between Liberals and Conservatives, Mr. Domino said. His party took a higher percentage of the youth vote in the Maritimes, the Prairies and British Columbia and in smaller cities of 100,000 or less. It slipped in bigger centres like Toronto and Montreal.

Mr. Dundas, using figures from university polls, argues the opposite.

Calgary voted 2-to-1 for the Liberals, he said.

TREND WAS SIMILAR

That trend shows up in Saskatchewan, British Columbia, New Brunswick and Prince Edward Island university polls, he said.

Mr. Dundas also pointed out that universities, particularly in less populated parts of the country, generally have the highest concentration of young people.

While admitting that it was practically impossible to say how all 2.8 million young voters cast their ballots — "The reality is: Nobody knows" — university statistics can be pinned down.

Preliminary evidence from universities seems to indicate that there was a heavy vote, "often against dominant and provincial and constituency trends."

Of the 2.8 million young voters, roughly 450,000 were in high school, 400,000 in university. The remaining two million were young working people or unemployed.

The New Democrats reasoned that those two million were hit as hard as others by high living costs, unemployment and other pocketbook plagues.

YOUNG NO DIFFERENT
Evidence from other elections, in Ontario for instance where 18-year-olds voted provincially in 1971, indicated that youth were neither a radical bloc nor particularly heavy voters.

One statistic that may or may not be useful in determining the youth vote is the one showing that the same percentage of the electorate voted in both the 1968 and 1972 elections.

Of the 10.86 million eligible voters in 1968, about 75 per cent or 8.22 million cast ballots. This year, there were 12.91 million potential voters and 9.69 million voted — 75 per cent.

But it's not known for certain whether young people simply befooled up a lighter-than-usual turnout at the polls, or whether they voted in similar proportions to older people.

Gala Christmas Bazaar outstanding success

LENNOXVILLE — Gertrude Scott Hall was the centre of a largely attended Christmas Bazaar and Salad and baked bean cafeteria style supper.

The rooms were tastefully decorated with pine, poinsettias, shining wreaths, bells and baubles lending a festive air.

Mrs. Douglas Hadlock, president of the Lennoxville United Church Women welcomed the guests and members from all five units participated in various ways.

Mrs. Arnold Bown, Mrs. Roy Sutor and Mrs. Dorothy Geddes from the Philathea Unit were over all conveners of the event and Mrs. Grant Taylor and Mrs. Harold Robertson of the same unit were co-conveners of the supper.

Members from Unit five were in charge of decorations and Unit three was in charge of the dining room assisted in serving by members from other units and friends.

The upstairs hall was bustling with shoppers both large and small.

The Children's Corner held all sorts of stuffed toys and small gift suggestions for mothers, all priced to suit the small purses all under the supervision of Mrs. Allan Davidson and Miss Esther Bassett.

Next for those who liked a mystery parcel, there was a good assortment, with Mrs. Albert Parsons and Miss Florence McCurdy in charge, also on the same table a choice of plants.

Jams, jellies and pickles galore, also daintily wrapped containers of dried herbs. This assortment found ready sale by Mrs. R.B. DeBlois, Mrs. Donald McElrea and Mrs. Walter McMann.

Dolls, daintily decorated beds, all types of outfits, stuffed animals etc. etc. were a ready sale for that lay away gift; here Mrs. Earl Wells and Mrs. Moynan Robinson could be proud of their work and success.

Fancy work including needle point, embroideries, crochet and knitted and felt items, as well as some most attractive red Santa sleighs and other wood items where, Mrs. Ray, Frizzell, Mrs. Karla Dietz, Mrs. Richard Tolhurst and Mrs. Hugh L. Wallace found ready sale for their wares.

C.G.I.T. and Explorers had church calendars and many small items which added interest; here Mrs. Rheta McComb was assisted in sales by several helpers.

Christmas decorations consisted of dainty hand made tree ornaments, table decorations and novel ideas, here Mrs. Fred Fox, Mrs. Alex Rowat and Mrs. Robert Smith were in charge. Another collection of novelties and notions, decorated table bouquets, cushions etc., etc. found ready sale also with Mrs. Helen Ross, Mrs. Geraldine Smith and Mrs. H. McLeod in charge.

The mitten tree, with Mrs. Carl Groenewold in charge had all types, colors and sizes for the coming cold and fun in the snout.

Mrs. Howard Neeley and Mrs. William Lane had some most attractive jewellery.

Aprons, both fancy and workwear were numerous and soon made a disappearance, many for gifts. Mrs. Albert Raycraft, Mrs. Norman Flint and Mrs. George Sutherland had charge of ready sales.

Mrs. Tom Beattie and Mrs. James Green were in charge of Christmas cards, wraps, etc.

Mrs. Rufus Dunn, Mrs. A. Varney and Mrs. Lewis Eager had a miscellaneous table laden with all types of hand made gift items and novelties which proved a decided success, as did the second-hand books where Mrs. Charles Hoyer and Mrs. Everette Moore assisted with choices.

The well laden food table, most prominent of all, was well patronized as were all sections, here Mrs. Austin Scott, Mrs. Wentworth Richardson, Mrs. Snow, Mrs. Jessie Colby, Mrs. Stewart Aird and Mrs. Allan Sutor were busily engaged in sales with Mrs. Lawrence Parker and Mrs. Armand Gregoire as cashiers.

Altogether the U.C.S. appreciate the success of the event through the co-operation of the public in attendance and in so many other ways.

The family

Christening

LENNOXVILLE — At St. George's Anglican Church on Sunday, November 12, the baby daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John Hadley was baptized. She received the names, Julie Leigh Archdeacon S. Meade officiated. The godparents were Mr. and Mrs. Ashton Herring of Lennoxville and Mrs. Royce Rand of Milby. After the ceremony Julie's parents served a buffet lunch at their home. The main attraction was a christening cake beautifully decorated by Mrs. Royce Rand. Among the guests were the godparents and grandparents and great-grandmothers of the baby.

Mr. and Mrs. Tom Wilkin at their Golden Wedding on November 4.

Golden Wedding

On November 4, at 25 Prospect street, Lennoxville, the home of Mr. and Mrs. Tom Wilkin, folks called to express best wishes to this respected couple on the occasion of their 50th wedding anniversary.

Mr. Wilkin and his wife, formerly Elsie Harron, were married in Inverness in 1922. For several years they enjoyed farm life in that vicinity, and later retired to reside in Lennoxville, the town of Lennoxville. He proved a most dependable and faithful employee for some 20 years.

The Raymond grand-daughters presented their grandparents with flowers. Sharron pinned a corsage of bronze and yellow mums on her grandmother, and Beverley presented her grandfather with a white carnation boutonniere.

As the guests arrived they were greeted by the daughters, who in turn invited them in, to express their congratulations, to a happy and greatly respected "Mom and Dad."

Although Mrs. Wilkin has not been able to move about as she would wish for some time it did not mar her sweet smile and charm of a bride of fifty years ago.

The room was most attractive with flowers, and over-flowing with talk and laughter, reminiscing tales of the wedding day of long ago. Among those who called to express good wishes was their family doctor and his wife Mrs. Murray, also Venerable Archdeacon and Mrs. Meade. During the afternoon and evening, dainty refreshments were served by the daughters and grandchildren. A wedding cake, made, decorated, cut and artistically wrapped by their daughters, was served to the guests before departing. Mr. and Mrs. Wilkin, were the recipients of a purse of money, as well as many beautiful gifts. Numerous cards and messages of congratulations, continued to arrive from far and near, expressing their best wishes. Having expressed their thanks to one and all for the gifts and good wishes bestowed upon them, Mr. and Mrs. Wilkin felt very happy to know they had so many kind friends, and such a pleasant day to remember.

Social & Personal

The ladies of Christ Church Guild-Eustis, held their annual Christmas Tea and Sale at the Church Hall on Saturday, November 18. It was a great success. An article of Tupperware was raffled during the course of the afternoon. It was won by Mrs. Hattie Harvey.

At Home

Mr. and Mrs. Bernald Buzzell, Saturday December 2. The occasion is their Golden Wedding Anniversary. The R.R. No. 2 Magog, will be at home to friends and relatives from 3 p.m. to 6 p.m. on Sleeping beauties awake looking beautiful, thanks to pretty pajamas of smooth nylon tricot, banded and belted in sharp contrasting color. This waking beauty packed Kayser's sleep fashions off to Curacao where she explores exotic tropical gardens.

Island Brook

Mrs. Garfield Spaulding and Mrs. A.H. Banks entertained a few neighbors for a Tupperware party. While the ladies were being entertained by Mrs. Donna Caron with pieces of Tupperware, the gentlemen played cards. Refreshments were served which brought the evening to a close. Sales were successful.

YOUTH ASSOCIATION MEETS

The Island Brook and Lawrence Youth Association met at the Youth Centre on the usual night.

The routine business was carried out. The biggest event which was reported was the Halloween party held at the Youth Centre. A large gathering of children, French and English dressed in different costumes, played games, overseer by several adults, to add amusement to the children some adults were in costume. There were many treats of peanuts, assorted candies, doughnuts etc. and some donations.

It was decided to hold the same usual Christmas supper for the children on Dec. 16. Also some of the ladies went shopping for dishes for the Center, and put an order in for one hundred settings.

Being no further business the meeting closed.

SOCIAL NOTES

Mrs. Thomas Burns has returned home after spending two weeks in Sherbrooke Hospital with pneumonia. Her many friends wish her a quick recovery.

Miss Ettra Christie, of Groveton, N.H. spent a couple of days with Miss Mary Seale and Mr. Howard Seale.

Mr. and Mrs. Earl Dawson and Master John Ilika were guests of Mr. Dawson's aunts Misses Wilson and Mrs. Grace Drew in Hudson, while Master John was visiting his father in Montreal.

Mrs. C. Perkins, Mrs. Lothrop and Mrs. Bert Arbery of Sherbrooke were afternoon guests of Mrs. Alton Lister and children.

Mrs. Evelyn Lister spent a few days in Sherbrooke with her sister Mrs. Dorcas French, also visited other friends and relatives.

Mr. W.J. Dawson spent a weekend in Beaufort with his daughter Mrs. Lucien Perras and Mr. Perras and family.

St. Paul's Ladies Guild

M. Bray 292-5731
MANSIONVILLE — The St. Paul's Ladies Guild meeting was held on Nov. 15 at the home of Mrs. Mary Miller, where devotional exercises was taken with a reading and reciting the Litany with responses.

Twelve ladies were present and plans made for the Christmas cheer packages and for the Saturday bible school party for children and their parents to be held after Sunday service on Dec. 17 in the Canadian Legion Hall where lunch will be served. It was reported that Santa is expected to arrive but it is not known whether he will come by reindeer or helicopter. The hostess, Mrs. Miller, served refreshments at the close of the meeting and was assisted by Mrs. Pearl Greenham and Mrs. Oscar Sargent.

The next meeting will be held on Dec. 13 in the home of Mrs. Greenham, when Christmas cheer boxes and candy bags will be packed.

Nymphomania— Substituting sex for love

Dear Ann Landers: A few months ago my 19-year-old daughter told me we would have to accept her for what she is. A nymphomaniac. I looked up the word in the dictionary and I am not sure she is one. I believe the girl has been swept away with the New Morality or whatever the young people today call it.

My question is this: Is nymphomania a physical illness caused by too many hormones? Or is it a mental illness? Is it curable? I am too hurt and embarrassed to ask anyone. The library in Bismark, North Dakota, doesn't have much on this subject.

If you can answer just these questions I'd be grateful. —A Mother

Dear Mother: Nymphomania is a female's insatiable desire for sex. It is not a physical problem, it is an emotional problem created by feelings of inadequacy and insecurity. The girl who considers herself worthless and unloved is forever seeking proof that somebody cares. She tries to substitute sex for love. Such a girl can sometimes be helped by therapy, but she must want help—not her mother. For detailed information on the facilities available in your area, write to the National Institute of Mental Health, 26 Federal Plaza, New York, N.Y. 10007.

Dear Ann Landers: When my father died two months ago a close friend sent the following essay. This same essay was given to him several years before when his own father passed away. Since receiving it, I have sent it to other friends who have suffered a personal loss. They all said it helped.

"In this sad world of ours, sorrow comes to all, and it often comes with bitter agony. Perfect relief is not possible, except with time. You cannot now believe that you will ever feel better. But this is not true. You are sure to be happy again. Knowing this, truly believing it, will make you less miserable now. I have had enough experience to make this statement—Abraham Lincoln."

Please print it, Ann.—Making It Back

Dear Friend: Thank you for sharing those words of wisdom. They can be extremely supportive during dark hours of grief. I hope many readers will clip this column and quote the philosophy attributed to Lincoln when they don't know what to say to a person who has lost a loved one.

Dear Ann Landers: I'm 18 years old and have grown up reading your column. I started at age nine. When our paper was on strike I bought the Philadelphia Inquirer every day because I didn't want to miss out on anything you said.

I can't discuss my problem with anyone but a close friend—and that's you. For the past three years I've been aware that one of my breasts was larger than the other. At first there was just a little difference but now it is very noticeable. I've been stuffing kleenex in my bra to even things up, but I know this is not a permanent solution.

All through high school I dreaded gym and kept myself carefully covered. I can't hide my body forever. Please, Ann, check with your medical consultants and tell me if there is some cream I can buy or some exercise I can do—or maybe have an operation to make one breast smaller.—Pittsburgh Problem

Dear P.P.: Those creams and exercises are phony. Don't waste your time or money. My advice is to see a physician. He will tell you whether to consider surgery to have one breast made smaller—or another type of operation, a silicone implant to make the smaller breast larger. Both operations are safe and permanent.

Even if drinking is the "in" thing in your crowd, it needn't crowd you out. Learn the facts from Ann Landers' booklet, "Booze And You—For Teen-Agers Only." Send 35 cents in coin and a long, self-addressed, stamped envelope to this newspaper with your request.

DR. LAWRENCE E. LAMB Culprit Is Probably Diet

Does Water Cause Stones?

Dear Dr. Lamb—My mother used to have springwater delivered to her home. We heard about a spring nearby and she asked us to bring her water from there which we did. This started about a year ago. My mother is 84 years old and the doctor thinks she has a kidney stone. My sister said that the doctor told her that the springwater was no good. I know it is not filtered but a lot of our friends, as well as my husband and myself, have been drinking it and have had no problem.

My mother has terrible pains on her right side. Could the water have caused it? My sister just as much as accused me of it. My mother has had arthritis for years and now they claim the water made it worse. Is this possible? I also have arthritis and I am not blaming it on the water. Please answer, Dr. Lamb, as I am anxious to know one way or another. They don't seem to realize my mother is getting up in years and another thing, she is a heavy woman which is not to her advantage.

Dear Reader—No doubt the doctor meant that the water might not be purified, meaning that it might contain some harmful bacteria. This is a problem with springwater that is not under careful supervision. For water to be safe to drink, it must be tested for bacterial content as well as chemical content. In city water supplies, there are enough various chemicals included in the water to keep it purified and to protect our health.

Although springwater might contain a small amount of minerals, depending upon where it is obtained, it is most unlikely that it would cause a kidney stone, if indeed your mother has one. I think you can be quite certain that the water you have given her has not caused this problem, nor has it caused her arthritis. There is no evidence that springwater or water of any sort that is potable to drink at all causes arthritis of any type or kidney stones. This is not an endorsement for springwater because I don't think anyone should be drinking water unless they are sure that it is controlled by public health regulations.

Incidentally, many doctors urge individuals with kidney stones to drink plenty of water to maintain adequate flow from the kidneys. The idea is that dehydration leads to stagnation and possible kidney stone formation. This, of course, is an oversimplification because there are many causes for kidney stones, including vitamin D intoxication, urinary tract infections and softening of the bones with increased amounts of calcium in the blood stream filtered by the kidneys.

The diet, not water, is the main source of minerals and it is particularly important in patients with certain types of stones. By analyzing the type of minerals in a stone the doctor can determine if a special diet would be helpful or not.

There are other things besides kidney stones that cause pain in the side, including pressure on spinal nerves from arthritis and degeneration of the spine, and colon trouble.

ASTRO-GUIDE By Ceean

Saturday, December 2
The Day Under Your Sign

ARIES (Born March 21 to April 19): Better to stick to trusted friends than to rely on slight acquaintances in present situation.

TAURUS (April 20 to May 20): Weigh your words. A petty squabble could break up a potentially profitable connection.

GEMINI (May 21 to June 21): Action is the keyword. This is no time to talk about what you're going to do—do it!

CANCER (June 22 to July 21): Try to avoid situations which cause strife within the family circle. Just refuse to argue.

LEO (July 22 to Aug. 21): Productivity is under excellent rays and rewards are commensurate with effort. Stress safety.

VIRGO (Aug. 22 to Sept. 22): Seek novel ways for doing routine that has become boring and tedious of late. Relieve monotony.

LIBRA (Sept. 23 to Oct. 22): Don't waste effort and/or time in fretting. Put everything in proper place of importance.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23 to Nov. 21): Don't try to buy affection with gifts or favors. Gain respect by sticking to your principles.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22 to Dec. 21): A fine day. Progress can be made with less effort than usual. Good fellowship accented in p.m.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 to Jan. 20): Even though the slow pace annoys you, try not to let your impatience show. It won't help matters.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 21 to Feb. 19): If things seem to be at a standstill and you don't know how to perk them up, ask a friend for advice.

PISCES (Feb. 20 to March 20): You may have to work when a friend has the day off and you feel envious (and resentful).

The Day Under Your Sign

ARIES (Born March 21 to April 19): Wind up old project before delving into new territory. Avoid over-fatiguing situations.

TAURUS (April 20 to May 20): Shop wisely for what you really need, but avoid extravagant whims for the moment.

GEMINI (May 21 to June 21): A respite from work relieves tension, but don't put burden on others. Do your share.

CANCER (June 22 to July 21): Although in a mood to be alone, situation makes it difficult. Nerves suffer, but try to keep calm.

LEO (July 22 to Aug. 21): No one expects too much of you today, so relax and catch up on odds and ends you've neglected.

VIRGO (Aug. 22 to Sept. 22): Don't take sides in disagreement between co-workers. You lose no matter who wins argument.

LIBRA (Sept. 23 to Oct. 22): A busy atmosphere with stimulating conversation and fresh ideas. All in all, a great day.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23 to Nov. 21): Argument between friends could mar the day. Avoid controversial subject if at all possible.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22 to Dec. 21): A lonely sort of day but you can find diversion if you seek it. Visit other lonely persons.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 to Jan. 20): Tackle the job assigned, but don't be upset if you can't finish it. Interruptions impede progress.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 21 to Feb. 19): Don't be self-centered. Be happy for a friend who has won an award, an advancement or recognition.

PISCES (Feb. 20 to March 20): Young person with know-it-all attitude irks you, but if you're patient, he or she will know the score.

Richard Harris Stars In New Western Film

Hollywood—"Riata," a dramatic western starring Richard Harris, is a new Warner Bros. production currently filming in Almeria, Spain.

The motion picture is being produced by Barry Kulick and directed by Samuel Fuller from his own screenplay.

Bo Hopkins, Alfonso Arau and French film star Juliette Mills also appear in "Riata."

CANADA FOR THE FUN OF IT—Lorne Greene is the host-guide on CBC-TV's Canada for the Fun of It. Sunday December 3 at 9:00 p.m. in color on the network. Trip through Canada to find out how Canadians enjoy the winter in each of the provinces and the North with: Juliette, Myrna Lorrie, Pierre Lalonde, Ray St. Germain. Lorne Green also sings on the show and reads from the works of Robert W. Service.

Famed Director Joins Own Film Cast

Hollywood—Francois Truffaut, the famed French director, has cast eight major stars, including himself in the role of a film director, in his new film for Warner Bros., "La Nuit Americaine."

International stars Jacqueline Bisset, Valentina Cortese and Jean Pierre Aumont have been joined by Dani, the French chanteuse, Canadian actress Alexandra Stewart, Jean Pierre Leund and David Markham in the cast of his film comedy, Truffaut announced at Studios La Victorine in Nice, France.

Truffaut is directing the picture, which takes a satirical look at the film industry.

The principal background is the colorful Studios La Victorine itself, one of France's major lots, in a picturesque setting overlooking the Mediterranean.

"La Nuit Americaine" is Truffaut's first film for Warner Bros. Truffaut has acted before, having played a major role in "The Wild Child."

best play for your contract. There are two important cards held by the enemy, ace of spades and king of clubs. Are they likely to be in the same hand? Not likely at all.

West has opened the bidding. He has shown up with the ace and king of diamonds. He needs one of the other cards for his opening bid. Could he have both of them?

Yes, of course, but in that case East, who has followed to two hearts, will have raised his partner without any card higher than a jack. Therefore it is almost certain that those cards are in different hands. If East holds the king of clubs you can take a club finesse and make an overtrick.

But give West that card and where does a club finesse leave you? In the soup! You lose the club finesse and later on have to lose two spade tricks.

Leftovers Get "Lift" With Bananas

When you're counting your holiday assets and liabilities, be sure to put leftovers on the credit side.

A great big turkey can loom large in your refrigerator after it's been served to guests. Besides the obvious dividends that you get from cold, cooked turkey such as sandwich and salad makings, there just might be enough leftovers to give you the makings of a small dinner party.

It's dinner party fare indeed when leftover turkey is served as Curried Turkey Over Broiled Bananas. In this delicious dish, cooked turkey pieces in a smooth sauce with the snap of curry are served over tender broiled bananas. The dish looks delightful served on a platter.

The broiled bananas not only add a most exciting flavor note to the dish but also help reduce the calories compared to starchier accompaniments such as rice. A 3 1/2 ounce (100 grams) 6 inch banana has only 85 calories, according to The Banana Bunch, industry sponsored center for consumer information about bananas. If any of your eaters are on a low sodium diet, they're in luck with bananas, too, because their sodium content is negligible.

FAMILY FAVORITES WITH LEFTOVERS

For less festive cooking—families have to eat everyday meals during the holidays as well as the fancier ones when company comes—bananas again come to the rescue. Suppose it's a nice big ham that has made its guest appearance and now you are "eating it up" in family meals. Banana Ham Patties are a delightful way to enjoy ham leftovers. The ham is finely chopped or ground and combined with mashed bananas, egg, soft fresh bread crumbs, and a little salt and prepared mustard. The mixture is formed into patties, and broiled for a few minutes on each side. Banana Ham Patties are a quick and easy treat your family will enjoy.

Bananas add their good nutrition to main dishes. They have a well-rounded supply of vitamins and minerals as well as energy value. Here is a welcome change from the holiday season's rich food.

NEW WAY...to serve Curried Turkey from leftover bird! Broiled Bananas make a delectable accompaniment, and such a change from the usual underpinnings for curried and creamed dishes.

CURRIED TURKEY OVER BROILED BANANAS

- 2 tablespoons butter or margarine
- 1/2 cup chopped onion
- 1 cup chopped celery
- 3 tablespoons flour
- 3/4 teaspoon salt
- 1/2 teaspoon curry powder
- 1 chicken bouillon cube
- 1 1/2 cups milk
- 2 cups cut-up cooked turkey
- 1/2 cup sliced pitted ripe olives

In a medium saucepan, melt butter. Add onion and celery and cook over medium heat until tender. Blend in flour, salt, curry powder and crushed bouillon cube. Cook 1 or 2 minutes, stirring constantly. Gradually stir in milk and cook, stirring constantly, until mixture thickens and comes to a boil. Simmer 2 or 3 minutes. Add turkey and olives, and heat through. Serve over Broiled Bananas.

YIELD: 4 servings.

BROILED BANANAS

Cut 4 bananas in half lengthwise. Place on a buttered baking sheet. Brush with melted butter and broil for 3 to 5 minutes.

BANANA HAM PATTIES

- 1 egg, slightly beaten
- 1 cup mashed ripe bananas (3 medium)
- 1 cup soft fresh bread crumbs
- 1/2 teaspoon salt
- 1/2 teaspoon prepared mustard
- 2 cups finely chopped or ground cooked ham

In a medium bowl, combine all ingredients and mix well. Form into six patties. Place on a foil-lined baking sheet, and broil for 5 minutes on each side, 3 to 5 inches from heat. Serve with additional mustard.

YIELD: 6 servings.

Teen clinics

SAN FRANCISCO (AP)—A 17-year-old with pink ribbons on her ponytails waited for a pelvic exam and a new supply of birth control pills at the clinic. "My parents don't know I'm on the pill," said Lucy. "I don't want them to be disappointed. I think they'd kill my boyfriend."

The reception room at the San Francisco Planned Parenthood-World Population Teen Clinic filled up with girls in jeans and sandals, long Indian print dresses and fake fur coats.

The clinic, open to girls 18 and under, provides contraceptive prescriptions, counselling, gynecological exams, pregnancy and venereal disease tests and "rap sessions"—with or without parental consent.

Some return patients, like Lucy—who counts one abortion behind her—have a current boyfriend and a regular supply of pills. For others, it's a first visit. They sit wide-eyed and silent, looking a little scared but determined.

When Lucy entered the examining room, the doctor asked her what kind of pills she took.

"The package with the butterflies on it," she answered, digging $1.50 allowance money out of her purse for a month's supply.

HEALTH CARE IMPROVES

After Lucy's abortion, she had gone home and curled up on her bed with cramps.

"The pains were so bad," said Lucy in a matter-of-fact voice, adding that she wanted to go to college before she had a family.

With illegitimate births and venereal disease on the rise among teen-agers, the trend to giving increased health care services to them, on their own consent, is slowly increasing.

Some states have passed laws assuring the rights of minors in this area.

In Planned Parenthood alone, about two-thirds of the medical affiliates across the U.S. provide contraceptives to teen-agers on their own consent. An estimated 38 per cent of the 556,000 patients in 1971 were 19 and under.

The girls who come to the San Francisco clinic vary in background, self-confidence and maturity. Most are 16 to 17. A few are younger. The atmosphere is casual and informal. They are seen without appointments, on a first-come, first-served basis.

"By the clinic visit most girls are communicating a rather strong decision to have sex relations," says Dr. Sadya Goldsmith, medical director and a founder of the clinic, which carries a patient load of some 2,400 girls a year. "While mixed-up reasons call for counselling, protection against pregnancy is still needed."

RISKS ARE MANY

When the clinic started service quietly five years ago, it was a trailblazer. In the last few years, medical groups have recommended that doctors prescribe contraception for sexually-active minors. Among them are the American Association of Planned Parenthood Physicians and the American Medical Association.

Today, physicians, private hospitals and publicly financed clinics are beginning to follow suit where they can or will. But many still have reservations because of lack of clarity in state laws.

The facts illustrate that many teen-agers are having sex whether they have access to contraceptives or not. Between July, 1970, and July, 1971, one-quarter of the estimated 215,000 abortions in New York state were performed on girls ages 19 and less.

The rate of illegitimate births in the U.S. per 1,000 unmarried teens, aged 15 to 19, jumped to 19.8 in 1968 from 15.3 in 1960.

The results of teen-age pregnancy can mean trouble. Dr. James F. Jekel of the Yale Medical School says there is evidence to suggest that young mothers have increased biological risks of anemia, toxemia, premature births and pre-natal death of the baby.

Other problems of teen-age pregnancy can include forced early marriage, with a high rate of divorce; school dropouts, and financial difficulties.

Non-American pay T.V.

OTTAWA (CP)—Chairman Pierre Juneau of the Canadian Radio-Television Commission wants to see that broadcasting's newest infant, pay-TV, does not get in the grip of American influence.

As the regulatory agency prepares to tackle pay-TV, Mr. Juneau said in an interview it does not intend to let pay-TV become another channel for mass importation of American culture and mass export of Canadian money.

One American-owned company has begun the system in Toronto hotels. "We feel it is our responsibility," Mr. Juneau said, "to see to it that this new advance is going to contribute to the development of broadcasting and is not going to be only a repetition of what we have seen in the field of motion pictures."

"For over 60 years, motion picture distribution in Canada has been tremendously successful from a commercial point of view but we have exported all the money—except, you know, for the ushers and managers."

"But we have hardly invested anything in production and millions and millions of dollars—actually, hundreds of millions of dollars—over 60 years have been completely exported with no investment in production."

LEGAL DIFFICULTIES
Mr. Juneau conceded that the CRTC may not have jurisdiction over pay-TV systems that are not linked with master antenna television systems (MATV).

"If it's strictly a closed-circuit operation, with no relationship with an MATV system, then a question definitely arises as to whether the CRTC has any authority whatsoever. Then we would not be involved."

"But usually it's difficult to operate the two separately, because if you operate a large building, a hotel, you need an MATV system because your customers want the regular television channels."

And that brings the operation into the CRTC's ballpark. Mr. Juneau says the CRTC is willing to receive applications for experimental pay-TV operations but wants the applicants to think of ways that pay-TV can help Canadian broadcasting and culture generally.

"How is it going to help the development of more Canadian production? What is it going to do to the existing broadcasting system in the area?"

the suggestions. We would like them to do part of the work." He adds that the CRTC wants to encourage Canadian production, not restrict the right of Canadians to see foreign films on pay-TV.

"There has to be a balance. I personally would be the first one to react against any tendency to deprive me as a citizen of the sort of films I want to see and the sort of plays I want to see and the sort of books I want to read."

And if I want to read an American book, I want to read an American book. I don't want anybody stopping me from reading it or making it too difficult for me to read the sort of books I want."

In making any Canadian-content regulations for pay-TV, the CRTC would take into account the production capability in Canada so as not to set an unrealistic minimum level for Canadian production.

While the CRTC is beginning to grapple with pay-TV, it is also beginning to think about even more advanced developments.

Britain is preparing to introduce a new service, called Cee-Fax, which will enable a viewer to receive news on his television set—stock prices, sport results and other material—all of which would be continually updated.

MONOPOLY BARRED
If the day comes when such service partially takes the place of newspapers, Mr. Juneau said, it would be "unthinkable" that any one organization would be allowed a monopoly over the new distribution technique.

In a city with two newspapers, for example, the distribution system would have to be available to both.

But while the CRTC looks to the future, it also has to fight a rearguard action concerning past activities.

For several years, it has worked to control cable distribution systems that pick up distant television and radio signals and relay them by cable to individual homes.

Among other things, the CRTC has insisted that the cable systems provide a reasonable number of Canadian stations and it has restricted the damage done by cable systems to the advertising revenue of local stations.

But Teleprompter Cable Communications Corp. of New York has asked the Federal Court of Canada to declare that its Sault Ste. Marie, Ont., cable firm is not a broadcasting undertaking and thus not liable to CRTC control.

The court action raises the possibility that CRTC efforts to guide cable and pay-TV development might be halted. Even if new legislation were then passed extending CRTC powers, there would still be an interval during which no CRTC direction would exist.

OBITUARIES

of Stanbridge East
The death occurred in a Montreal Hospital on Oct. 20, 1972, of Kenneth Johnson of Stanbridge East in his 70th year. Mr. Johnson had been in poor health for some time, and died shortly after entering hospital. He was the eldest son of the late Samuel Johnson and his wife Agnes Wightman, and was a life-long resident of Stanbridge East, a carpenter by trade. He is survived by three sisters, Mrs. Jason Hunter (Florence) of Stanbury, Mrs. Wilfred Fortier (Evelyn) of Hartford, Conn., Mrs. Francis Timmons (Anna) of Farnham, and one brother Edson Johnson of Stanbridge East, several nephews and nieces. Prayers held at Dion's Funeral Parlor with interment in Stanbridge Fidge Cemetery.

ANNIE MILES
of East Angus
The death of Annie Miles occurred on Nov. 21, 1972, at Hotel Dieu Hospital, Sherbrooke. Ann Jane Hastings was born June 2nd, 1888, in Belfast, Northern Ireland. She arrived in Canada, Nov. 21, 1919. She was employed in Westmont prior to her marriage to the late Albert Miles. During the first few years of her married life she lived in Brockville, Ont., later in Pontriand, Que., coming to East Angus in 1928, where she resided until the time of her death. She was predeceased by two sons, James Albert, Dec. 18, 1922 and Henry Wilbert, March 20, 1928, also by her husband Albert, Sept. 9, 1961, also by five brothers, James and David in Belfast, Ireland, Thomas in England, Joseph in Australia and Isaac in Montreal. She is survived by three daughters, Sadie (Mrs. F. Gaulin, East Angus), Bernice (Mrs. L. Harvey, Red Rock, Ont.) and Muriel (Mrs. M. Dutchison, Toronto) and by a son, Sherwood of Montreal and by five grandsons: Henry Gaulin, Toronto, Steven, Gordon and Dean Harvey, Red Rock, and David Dutchison of Toronto. The funeral service was held Nov. 23 in Emmanuel United Church following prayers at the Paquin and Paquin Funeral Home. Rev. G. Lokhorst officiating.

M. JOHN CODDINGTON
of Richmond

Melbourne (Mel) Coddington was accidentally killed by a slide of sand while working with his truck at Paquette's Pit in Bromptonville on Oct. 20, 1972. He was born February 12, 1954, at Kingsbury, Que., the eldest son of George and Joyce Coddington. He attended St. Francis High School and Richmond Regional High, and became a trucker upon leaving school. He enjoyed his trucking job and was good at it. He hoped at some time to take over his father's business. Mel was deeply interested in rock music, and had his own group. They played at school concerts, a friend's wedding, and their own parties. They also composed some of their own songs which will always be remembered by friends. Something else that will always be remembered is Mel's deep generosity. He would help anybody who needed it, loan his last dollar, provide shelter and food for anyone who wanted it. He was a true friend to all, and, not surprisingly, he had many friends. The funeral service was held on Oct. 23, with closing prayers at the house prior to the service at St. Anne's Anglican Church, Richmond, Rev. W.E. Walker officiating. Interment was at St. John's Cemetery, Gallup Hill. The bearers were Jimmy Patrick, Bobby Patrick, Philip Taylor, Donald Johnston, John Coddington, and Thomas Coddington. Those attending were from Brockville, Hamilton, Ottawa, Addison, and Toronto: Ont., Poite, Claire, Montreal, Sherbrooke, Waterloo, Danville, Windsor, Richmond and vicinity.

HOMER E. Bates
of Sutton
An old Sutton resident in the person of Homer E. Bates passed away on Oct. 25, 1972, at the age of 87 years, after an illness of one week due to a severe stroke. He was the son of the late Eugene and Amelia Sweet Bates. He also had one sister, the late Mrs. Edward Buckle. Mr. Bates married Miss Gertrude Jennings in 1908 who predeceased him in 1962. The funeral was held in the Olivet Baptist Church on Oct. 27, attended by relatives and friends. The service was conducted by the pastor Mr. Robert Labounty and the Rev. R.B. Purden of Calvary United Church. The bearers were old friends, Mr. Merlin Lewis, Roland Gibson, Cecil Purden, Lynwood Hawley, Normand Beauregard and Harold Miller. Interment was in Fairmount Cemetery.

ARTHUR JOBEL
of Rock Island
formerly of Sherbrooke
Arthur Jobel of Rock Island, formerly of Sherbrooke passed away at the Sherbrooke Hospital on Thursday, Nov. 16, 1972, in his 83rd year. He was born in Brussels, Belgium and came to Canada at a very early age, residing in Montreal. He entered the printing trade and after serving his apprenticeship, the first World War started and he enlisted at the outbreak. He went overseas with the 14th Battalion serving in the trenches in France. Upon returning to England, due to injuries, he met and married his first wife Helen Povey who predeceased him in 1947. Two sons were born of this union, Ronald and George. Upon returning to Canada he eventually came to Sherbrooke in 1921 where he was employed by the Page Printing Company, later Page-Sangster, for whom he worked for over 35 years. In 1948 he married his second wife, Jane Duncan Alexander, and of this union there were no children. He is survived by his second wife his two sons and a number of grandchildren. He was quite active in his Church, St. Andrew's, Sherbrooke, where he served for many years on the Board of Managers. He was considered one of the better small pin bowlers in this district and he travelled in many parts of the Province competing in tournaments. The funeral service was held from the R.L. Bishop Funeral Home, Sherbrooke, and was

Liv Ullmann Signs For Second WB Film

Hollywood—Liv Ullmann has been signed by Warner Bros. to co-star with Gene Hackman in "Taylor's Bride," a western love story.

This is the second Warner Bros. film for which the internationally known actress has been signed in the past two months. The other being "The Abdication," a play by Ruth Wolff about Queen Christina of Sweden and her conversion to Catholicism. "Taylor's Bride," set in the California Big Sur country in the late 1800s, will be produced by Harvey Matofsky. The screenplay, based on "The Stranger" by Lillian Bos Ross, was written by Andy Lewis.

Miss Ullmann is currently appearing on the screen in Warner Bros. "The Emigrants," in which she co-stars with Max von Sydow.

Shelley Wants Divorce

Hollywood—Shelley Winters, who just completed a starring role in "The Poseidon Adventure," shifts to Warner Bros. to play a character role for Paul Mazursky in "Blume in Love."

Shelley plays a Beverly Hills matron seeking a divorce. Her last work at Warner Bros. was with Anthony Quinn in "Flap."

"Blume in Love," written, produced and directed by Mazursky, stars George Segal, Susan Anspach and Kris Kristofferson.

TITLE CHANGE

Hollywood—"Taylor's Bride" is the new title for Warner Bros. "Zande," recently announced western love story to star Gene Hackman and Liv Ullmann. Harvey Matofsky will produce from a screenplay by Andy Lewis based on "The Stranger" by Lillian Bos Ross.

VANCOUVER (CP) — An 82-year-old widow living in a crumbling apartment block in Vancouver's Kitsilano district should be rejoicing at the provincial government's recent legislation guaranteeing old-age pensioners a $200 monthly income beginning next year.

Instead she, like many of the province's pensioners, is facing a move to other, costlier, accommodation because a rise in rents has taken away her pension increase.

Of the 205,000 pensioners in British Columbia, about 110,000 will receive increases that bring their income to $200 a month beginning in January. Only about 3,000 now qualify for the current maximum pension of $191.90 a month.

In the widow's case, the increase will amount to $8.90, not much to a working person but the difference between a tea-and-toast diet and more substantial fare for many pensioners.

But on Sept. 1, she received notice that her rent was being increased by $10 a month, effective Dec. 1. Thus, instead of an extra $8.90 to spend next January, she will be poorer by $1.10 a month. If successful in her search for an apartment with rent only $5 more than her present one, she'll still clear only $3.90 of the $8.90 increase in pension.

Party government to institute a temporary freeze on rents while the Landlord and Tenant Act is rewritten. The NDP promised reform of rental legislation during the campaign leading up to its surprise victory in the Aug. 30 provincial election.

Everyone agrees that rents are rising, but no one gives the same reason for the increases. Landlords blame the federal government's new tax legislation, possible rent controls and increased operating costs.

But the elderly, more strongly organized in British Columbia than in any other province, tie the increase to the coming rise in pensions and they are growing more and more militant about the situation.

Mary Anderson, a volunteer with the tenants council, said loopholes must be closed in the Landlord and Tenant Act before there can be any improvement in the situation.

Also a problem, she said, is the tight housing situation in B.C.'s lower mainland, which leaves landlords with a long list of prospective tenants, and no problems filling vacant suites.

NOTICE TIMES DIFFER

The main problem, she said, is that landlords can give tenants one month's notice to vacate without giving any reason. Rent increases, on the other hand, must have three months' notice.

Many landlords, Mrs. Anderson said, are taking the easy route by evicting tenants rather than giving the required three months' rent-increase notice. The apartments are then let at higher rents to new tenants.

Ed Hall, manager of a local realty firm, said federal tax legislation is one reason for rent increases.

Mr. Hall said that under the old tax laws, a person could depreciate 10 per cent of a building's value against his personal income. But under the new law, which comes into effect Jan. 1, this shelter is being taken away.

Possible rent controls are another reason for rent increases, he said.

ACT WHILE THEY CAN

Many owners are unhappy at the prospect of having their rental rates tied to a fixed structure set by the provincial government and have decided to raise their rents now, while they still have the chance.

The provincial government recently announced it has hired two investigators to look into the rent-increase question.

Rehabilitation Minister Norman Levi said he saw the problem of rent increases as being largely due to another problem—the conversion of apartment buildings into condominiums, in which persons purchase, rather than rent, their apartments. Tenants have been told "buy your apartment or get out," with monthly purchase payments often higher than rent.

"We're noticing substantial increases because of this condominium thing," Mr. Levi said.

Municipal Affairs Minister James Lorimer said the government may move to halt the conversion of apartment buildings into tenant-owned structures.

"We've told these people that if they don't regulate themselves, then we'll do it," he said.

But all sides in the dispute are agreed that the government must move quickly to stem the rising rental tide, before it sweeps away the increases to pensioners.

TENANTS FIGHT

Her case is one of many documented by the Vancouver Tenants Council in its fight to persuade the New Democratic Party government to institute a temporary freeze on rents while the Landlord and Tenant Act is rewritten. The NDP promised reform of rental legislation during the campaign leading up to its surprise victory in the Aug. 30 provincial election.

Local men awarded

RICHMOND (JW) — A presentation party was held at the Marquis Hotel, Craig Road, Richmond, on Monday evening November 6 when these two local men were presented with special awards of engraved watches. Mr. Albert Lalonde of R.R. No. 3, Richmond, and Joseph Viger, Windsor Road, Richmond.

In presenting the award to Mr. Lalonde it was noted that at approximately noon on July 19, 1972, Mr. Lalonde while driving a truck of gravel on highway No. 22 located approximately 1,000 feet from the main line at mile 65.7 on the Sherbrooke Subdivision, observed that stones at the base of an arch-type culvert located at that point were disturbed.

He stopped and made further observations and then went to his home located nearby and telephoned Roadmaster, Mr. A. Geoffroy at Richmond advising him of this condition. Mr. Lalonde then told Mr. Geoffroy that he would remain at the site until such time as he would arrive in order to identify where the stones were disturbed.

After inspection, Mr. Geoffroy then made necessary arrangements to have the track declared impassable. The timely action taken by Mr. Lalonde prevented a possibly serious derailment. The location and nature of the defect, in the opinion of many, would not have been noticed by operating crews. As for Mr. Viger, at approximately 7 p.m. on August 7th, 1972, Mr. Viger observed from his house that water was overflowing on tracks located approximately 200 feet from his house.

He immediately called Roadmaster Geoffroy in Richmond bringing this condition to his attention. Mr. Geoffroy notified the dispatcher advising him to hold all trains until such time as he had completed his inspection.

Mr. Geoffroy then left the station and proceeded along Main street in Richmond to where Mr. Viger had advised Mr. Geoffroy to meet him. Mr. Geoffroy proceeded with his inspection and subsequently declared the track impassable, as a washout had occurred at mile 70.5, Sherbrooke Subdivision.

It is to be noted that passenger train No. 620 was due to leave Richmond at 19:48 hours for Sherbrooke. The timely action taken by Mr. Viger in reporting the condition to the Roadmaster possibly prevented a derailment of one of the passenger trains.

Much credit and thanks should be extended to the Canadian National Railway and its officials and to the two men who made such a contribution to the public by reporting these damaged places and possibly saving lives.

Pulp institute develops new system

VANCOUVER (CP) — Eight years of research by the Canadian Pulp and Paper Research Institute has sparked a United States-developed system for recovering ore via a single-wire tramway system.

The system is the result of problems faced by a 21-year-old University of Idaho student, Martin Clements, when he took an option on a steep hillside of timber with the intention of selling the wood for mining props.

Since an access road could not be built, Mr. Clements began investigating the possibility of a tramway. In his investigation, he came across the research done by the pulp and paper institute.

The institute had not developed a workable scheme but provided a solid base for further research by Mr. Clements who continued to explore the idea even after his timber option lapsed.

He brought in two friends, Don Hoss, 52, chief electrician in a plywood plant, and Jim Lindl, 20, a student.

Together, the trio developed the ore-timber-industrial-slide-OTIS for short. They claim the single-wire tramway system is capable of moving up to 780 tons of ore down precipitous cliffs and across glaciers and chasms.

They have developed a high-tensile wire one-fifth of an inch thick matched with an alloy carrying hook that resists heat build-up.

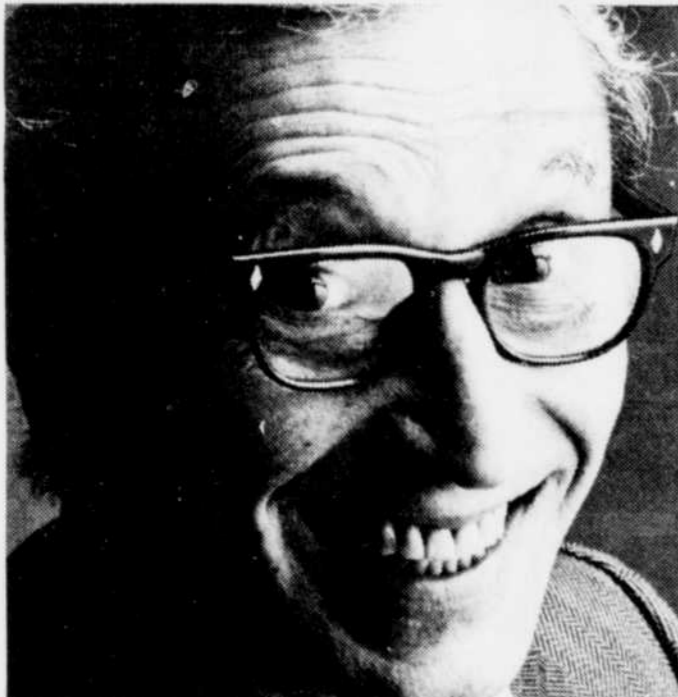

SUPPORTS DESIGNED

They also developed a special support for the wire comprising a suspended double-flanged wheel with slots cut in it. The ends of the flanges support a shoe bolted to the wire. As a support hook moves through the carrier, it catches in one of the slots and is passed through, with the wheel automatically indexing to receive the next hook. The shoe remains stationary within the wheel.

GOUVERNEMENT DU QUÉBEC

Dear Y's Men

The Record continues its regular Friday feature aimed at pensioners and the programs and activities available to them. The inquiries are being handled by the Y's Men, a men's service club affiliated with the Sherbrooke YMCA. All inquiries are welcome and should be addressed to the Y's Men, P.O. Box 702, Sherbrooke, Que.

Can he work?

Dear Y's Men:

I am 65 years of age and have just retired. I have applied to the Quebec Pension Plan for benefits, but I wish to continue working. While I am searching for another position am I entitled to unemployment ins. benefits?

Jack S. Dear Jack,

If you are already receiving benefits from the Quebec Pension Plan or from a company pension, you are generally excluded from receiving any unemployment insurance benefits. If these payments have not started and you feel that you would benefit more from unemployment insurance while looking for another position, you should request your former company to defer your pension for the time being, and when confirmation of your Quebec Pension Plan benefits is received there is a place on the back of this confirmation form where you can request that your application be rescinded. When at a later date you wish to collect these Quebec benefits, a new application must be submitted.

What are friends for?

This Sunday as you snuggle into an easy chair with a brimming glass of your favorite beverage just think what an advantage you have over the poor stiff in the stands. You don't believe us? Lend an ear to the Grey Cup memories of a disgruntled party-pooper.

Dear Football Fans:
 Well I notice that a select portion of this nation's football maniacs are packing their bags for the trip to Hamilton and the annual "who can swill the most beer in an hour" contest that goes with it.

It's not that I want to alarm any of you but every time Grey Cup day rolls around I start to tremble at the mere memory of personal experience in Canada's Be Nice to Tavern and Pub-Keepers Week. At least now I've got a better idea of what Chicken Little meant when he breathed the immortal words "the sky is falling in."

For me the travesty all began a few years when an Ontario buddy of mine, who since has been scratched from my Christmas list, phoned to reveal that he had one ticket to the classic just begging for an owner. The poor guy was left out of the running when his wife threatened divorce if he went within 100 yards of the stadium. She still remembered the year before when he faced starvation because hubby was out of work for six weeks recovering from a Grey Cup hangover.

"Just drop by the house after your plane arrives and it's yours," he whispered. "But you'd better bring a jacket with deep pockets," he cautioned, "because it's the only way to conceal two mickies."

"Will do," I breathed gratefully, and swept up by the sheer excitement of it all, I was already in the process of stuffing an overnight bag. I just couldn't resist rubbing my palms in glee, unaware they were occupied at the time by half a dozen razor blades. Now I know why Angie Mosca never gets a case of the nubs.

Right then I should have taken it as an omen of things to come. But when I managed to get a plane reservation for the next morning it boosted my spirits higher than Mick Jagger at his last performance.

"My name is Mr. . . ." I beamed at the sweet young thing behind the counter of the airport ticket office the next day. Then when she lifted her head from a sheaf of papers and gave me the once over with a pair of eyes that would have made a basset hound's cheerful by comparison, I braced myself for the worst.

"I'm afraid I've made a dreadful mistake, sir," she sniffed. "After you called yesterday I realized too late there wasn't a single seat left on the plane. I meant to call you but it just slipped my mind," the maiden shrugged apologetically.

"So what am I supposed to do now?" I wailed. "Take a bus and sit for six hours with my knees tucked beneath my chin or wait for the next Pony Express to make the rounds?"

I resisted the urge to throw a few invectives into the conversation when I saw the tears begin to well in her eyes and realized the possible consequences of a slobbering female. Forty days of sobbing and I could probably get to the game on an Ark. But the Grey Cup was Saturday!

"Well," she began, regaining her composure, "we have some extra space in the baggage section. Of course it won't be very comfortable sitting on an orange crate but at least you'll get there in about an hour."

My main concern at that moment was leaving town as soon as possible so I forgot about the fear of coming down with limbo for the rest of my life and took the awkward accommodation.

That was before I realized some of the passengers in the Class Z section included 200 of Quebec's prize mink, five crates of hogs on their way to a slaughterhouse and three dozen bags of fertilizer. No wonder the stewardess asked if I had remembered my deodorant.

But the reception was even rougher when I wearily pulled in to my dear pal's mansion. "He's down at the bar drowning his sorrows," informed his mate in a tone that would have made Gord Atkinson's tongue seem syrupy by comparison.

Fortunately, I knew just the place where the old boy hung out, and I didn't arrive a moment too soon. There he was standing on a table, raffling off one Grey Cup ticket and the bidding had become quite steep.

"Ten dollars," I bellowed, without a moment's hesitation and after locating the voice, my loyal friend grinned sheepishly and explained, "thought you weren't going to make it and I was down to my last Bloody Mary. I couldn't resist the temptation any longer."

With the precious ducat tucked tightly in my wallet, my kind-hearted pal invited me to join him in the customary pre-game cheer. I was half-way through my first glass of suds when this hand that resembled a tennis racquet in size clapped me on the back and sent my dentures flying across the table.

Like most of you, I'm going to watch the Grey Cup from an easy chair, and take five for fifty. Have fun at the Grey Cup, all you suckers!

With heartfelt regards,
 A Grey Cup Party-Pooper

A few more games...

Orr getting better all the time

By THE CANADIAN PRESS
 Bobby Orr took more than five months to get back to regular National Hockey League action after his mid-summer knee operation, but lately his recovery has accelerated drastically. The Boston Bruins defenceman was conspicuous by his unusual lack of offensive rushing Wednesday night when Bruins tied Montreal Canadiens 3-3.

Orr underwent surgery in early June for repairs on his left knee. He played a few games early in the season before he was benched by team doctors who insisted the knee needed more rest. The 24-year-old defenceman returned to regular duty Nov. 18. Thursday night, Orr opened the scoring at Boston with his seventh goal of the season on a power-play slap shot in the first period. Another of his slap shots from the point was deflected into the Buffalo net by Don Marcotte for the winning goal at 17:50 of the third period.

Orr's other goal early in the third period also came on a long shot past Sabres goalie Roger Crozier and it was his eighth score of the season, and fifth since his Nov. 18 comeback. His other assist was on a goal by Ken Hodge while Johnny Bucyk banged in a rebound for the Bruins' other goal which tied the score at 4-4, setting the stage for Marcotte's winner. At Philadelphia, Bill Flett and Bobby Clarke each scored twice to give the Flyers a 5-3 lead with fewer than 16 minutes remaining in the game.

Henley wins but Herron remembers Chicago

HAMILTON (CP) — The backstreets of Chicago were drawn into Canada's top football awards Thursday night, shortly after it was announced Garney Henley was the best player in the country this year. While Henley, known as Mr. Everything in this football-mad city, was graciously accepting the plaudits of well-wishers, Mack Herron of Winnipeg Blue Bombers, the runner-up to Henley, said he should have won the award.

Snowmobile club in action

MASSAWIPI — The meeting of the Massawippi Valley Snowmobile Club Inc. was held last Tuesday, Nov. 21, at Club La Chaumiere with approximately 150 snowmobilers present. Many items on the agenda were discussed.

John Helton of Calgary Stampede, best lineman; Jim Young of British Columbia Lions, best Canadian, and Chuck Ealey of Hamilton Tiger-Cats, best rookie.

Herron said he agreed that Ealey was the best rookie and that he (Herron) should have been competing against Ealey rather than Henley for the top-player award.

Herron, playing full-time as a wide receiver for the first time in his 13-year career with the Ticats, Eastern Football Conference champions, said 1972 wasn't his best year.

"We were just being presented to the public as two different people—a good guy and a bad guy, more or less," Herron said at a news conference following the announcement of the Schenley awards.

"He added later, "... you know, Garney Henley being a school teacher, Herron being from Chicago, the ghetto."

"When you consider all around, I probably did a few more things in 1962 when I played both ways and very seldom left the field. I think I had a good year in 1963 and 1965, but it's very difficult to compare offence and defence. From the standpoint of satisfaction it's been a very good year for me." "If you want to consider an over-all year, probably 1962 was my best year playing both offence and defence."

"HAD IT TOUGH TOO"
 Henley said he wasn't being drawn into any controversy, although "I had it tough in the early years, too."

The other top awards went to

The law concerning driving permits, licences, and children operating machines were read from the Quebec Official Gazette.

Insurance was one of the main topics discussed and it was agreed to increase the Club's Liability Insurance to maximum coverage. Also discussed and stressed was the importance of individuals having their personal snowmobile machine insured.

Donald Little reported on behalf of the trail committee informing us that much work had been done to date—bridges have been built, trails have been cleared, clearing has been done and several right-of-ways have been obtained. He noted that over 1800 markers had been cut and painted.

NOMINATED BEFORE
 Henley, 36, was nominated as the best player in Canada in 1963, 1965, 1966 and 1971, but finished out of the money.

Our new crests have been received which show an aerial view depicting the Massawippi Valley with its lakes, valleys and trees.

It should be noted that in June, 1972, negotiations were completed between two Clubs, the former Massawippi Valley Snowmobile Club Inc. and the Rolling Hills Snowmobile Club Inc., to amalgamate the two Clubs and retain the name of Massawippi Valley Snowmobile Club Inc. as this name compliments our area.

Asked whether he would have been more satisfied had he won the award as a defensive player, he said:

"Yes I think I would have because I don't think a defensive player will ever win it. People look at football as scoring, and the people who can run the ball, catch the ball and throw the ball are the people who are going to get most of the press and most of the attention. It's just human nature."

Deer kills

The latest deer kill results for the province show that 3,769 deer were taken by deer hunters during this past season. Of these 1,569 (41.6 per cent) males, 1,354 (35.9 per cent) females, 846 (22.5 per cent) young.

In the six districts where hunting was permitted this year the totals were: Gaspé - 443; Hull - 1,169; Montreal - 979; Quebec 279; Rimouski - 541 and Sherbrooke 358.

Two facets of this year's deer kill are the slight difference between the number of bucks and does taken. If this continues it would seem deer herds are surely lost. The second item is that, as yet, comparison figures from previous years have not yet been released. I'm extremely anxious to see how the kill went in the Brome county area where the buck law still stands.

I might be, as Glen Brown remarks, watching out for the end run. Someone is working an excuse to cover the decline in the deer kill and herds!

A BETTER SEASON
 Vermont deer hunters have been experiencing a better deer season than last year. Before the closing of the deer season last weekend the kill was up by 6 1/2 per cent. The biggest increase for Vermont was in the central and southern portions while the areas closer to us showed a slight decline.

AGAINST POISON
 The Canadian Nature Federation in a news release has come out against the use of poison in the campaign against the wolf population by the Dept. of Tourism, F&G in Quebec. The group had asked that proper studies be made of the deer-wolf problem without the use of poison.

This systematic use of poison has devastating effect on other meat-eating species such as wolverines, foxes, mink, jays, ravens, eagles, etc.

Tourism, F&G Minister, Claude Simard, at one time was offering hunters the jawbones mounted in transparent plastic as a reward for killing a predator.

It might be noted that the poisoning program has been abandoned in lieu of trapping and shooting the predators in the deer yards of the province. During the six week contest one wolf and 15 coves were reported taken.

1973 Dodge Colt. Little but loaded.

Here's the new little car you've been looking for. Little in size, but loaded with features you might expect to pay extra for.

COLT GT 2-Door Hardtop

The new Dodge Colt has as standard, comfort features like high-backed bucket seats. Adjustable steering column. Flow-thru ventilation. Ample head and leg room. Beauty features like wood-grained console and instrument panel. Color-keyed interiors.

New Dodge Colt comes in five different models—coupe, 2-door hardtop, 4-door sedan, station wagon and the sporty new GT (illustrated). Every New Dodge Colt is the result of extra care in engineering. Dodge builds in the solid difference, starting with unitized construction that combines body and frame in one solid unit. Then we load 'em up with the kind of features you want most—as standard equipment.

Performance features like a 4-cylinder mini-hemi engine for plenty of pep and economical operation. Fully synchronized four-on-the-floor transmission. Variable ratio steering for less effort and positive 'feel' of the road.

The New Dodge Colt incorporates, as standard equipment, safety features like big disc brakes up front. Extra protection front and rear bumpers. Energy absorbing steering column. New emission control systems. Naturally, you can equip your New Dodge Colt with optional features, too, like automatic transmission and radio. Feature for feature, inch by inch, Dodge builds in the solid difference. Innovative engineering, plus extra care in the way we put it all together, make us believe that your New Dodge Colt is the best little car ever built for Chrysler. It's little—but it's loaded.

Come on over!
