

Caution Canada over oil

By HAROLD MORRISON
Canadian Press Staff Writer
WASHINGTON (CP) — The United States has cautioned Canada against attempting to capture too large a share of the American oil market too quickly.

As the Canadian government unfolded its new oil policy Wednesday, U.S. Interior Secretary Stewart Udall said a gradual rise in imports from Canada should not materially affect the American industry, providing shipments are orderly and well-timed.

But if imports from Canada have a marked and abrupt adverse effect on the American industry, a review of the Canadian exemption from American oil import controls will result.

The Canadian policy, discussed with American cabinet members at a meeting here Jan. 25, aims at boosting markets for Canadian oil through a voluntary reduction in some imports and by increasing exports to the United States.

ENDS PIPELINE IDEA
This would eliminate for some time at least any prospect of Canadian government endorsement of an oil pipeline from the Alberta-producing fields to Montreal refineries now served mostly by imports from Venezuela.

American authorities generally dislike the pipeline idea, figuring it would eliminate the Montreal market for Venezuela's crude and force the United States either to accept more oil from Venezuela or provide that Latin country with economic aid.

The United States is faced with a heavy surplus of its own, particularly in middle western states where domestic supplies are complaining of heavy Canadian competition. American authorities are much less concerned with Canadian shipments to the Puget Sound area around Seattle where Canadians compete mostly against other imports.

Udall indicated he would like to see Canadians direct their export drive into the Pacific area rather than the Middle West.

Benedict Arnold evades U.S. draft

CHEYENNE, Wyo. (AP) — Benedict Arnold pleaded guilty to a charge of violating the Universal Military Training Act Wednesday in U.S. district court.

For his court appearance, Arnold wore a red, white and blue sweater.

His case was taken under pre-sentence investigation by court probation officers.

Ranks of unemployed growing C.L.C. warns

OTTAWA (CP) — The Canadian Labor Congress warned the federal government today that one in every eight workers probably will be jobless when unemployment hits its winter peak soon.

The congress—voice of Canada's organized labor movement of some 1,100,000 workers—urged Prime Minister Diefenbaker and his cabinet to launch an immediate massive spending drive on public projects to offset unemployment.

"We have to get the rate of growth up again and keep it up," said the CLC in its annual legislative submission to the cabinet.

It was presented to the prime minister by Claude Jodoin, CLC president, backed by a large delegation of trade unionists. There was little new in the CLC's program to beat unemployment—a program it unveiled last October, emphasized later at the prime minister's conference on unemployment and then repeated—with more detail—in a submission last week to the Senate committee on manpower and employment.

WANT SPENDING DRIVE
In essence, it calls for a super-spending drive on such public projects as roads, schools, hospitals, slum-clearance—even if it means the federal treasury must go in the red to do it.

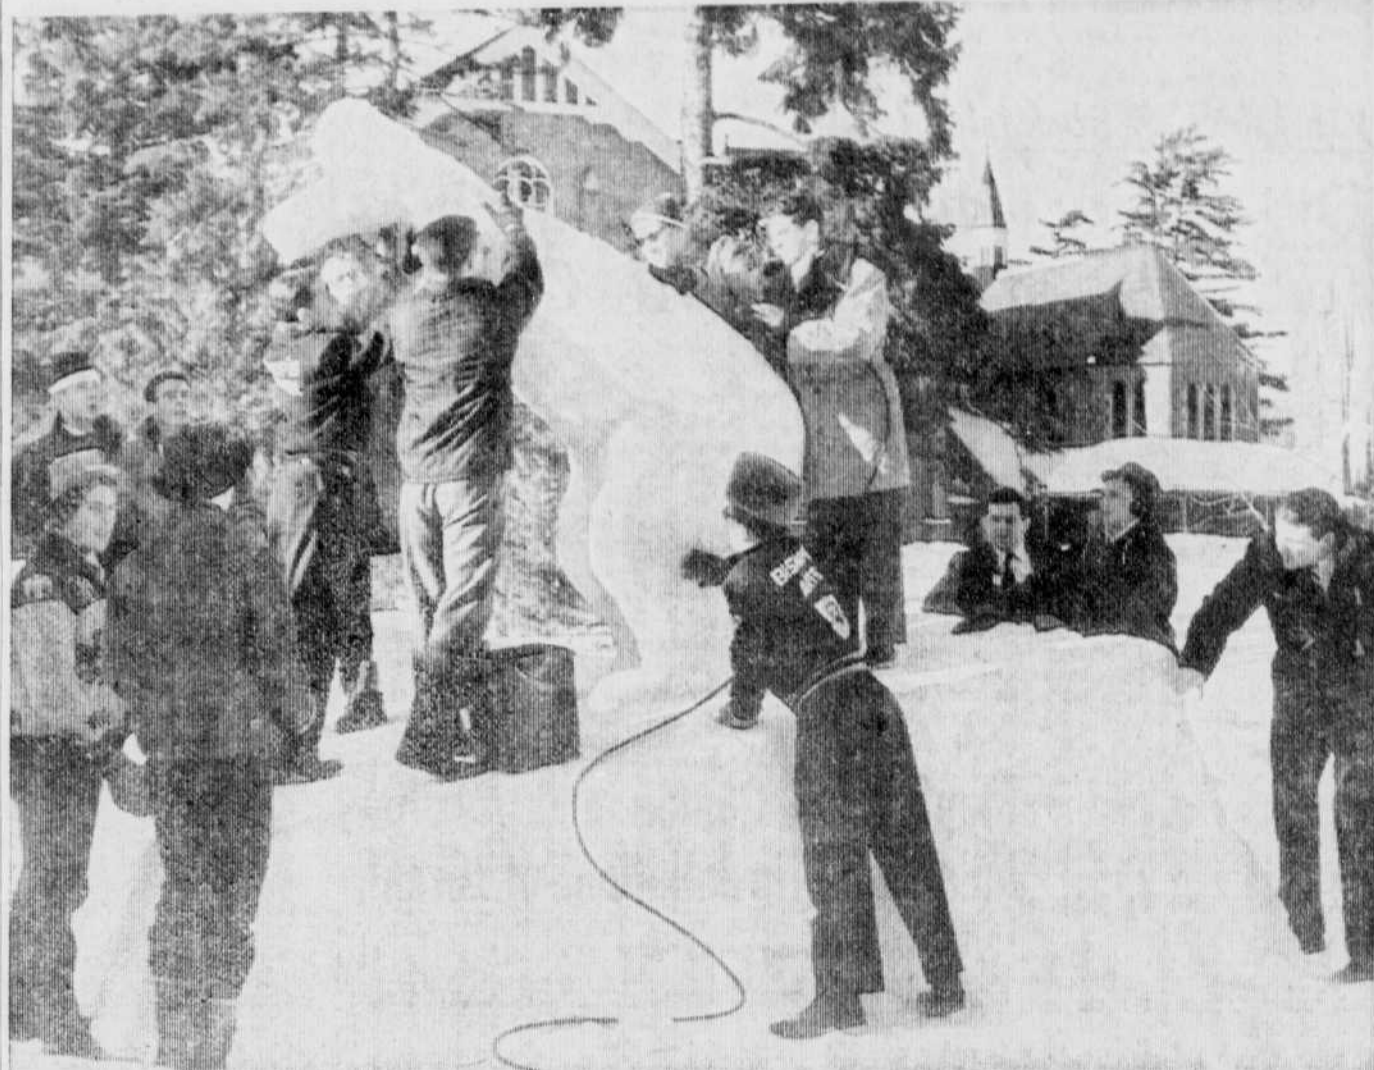

This would offset what the CLC says is the main reason for Canada's unemployment problem—"the slowing down in our rate of growth."

Welcoming government action so far to combat unemployment, the congress added: "We urge you to go farther and faster in the same direction."

"We urge you particularly to take prompt action to get people back to work now, by cutting taxes on small incomes and raising old age pensions and family allowances."

The congress also expressed worry about the dwindling reserve of the unemployment insurance fund, which experts

Blame cold in Bury death

For the fifteenth straight day temperatures in the Eastern Townships like the rest of Canada stayed at the zero mark or below with no immediate sign of a let-up.

The death of a 70-year-old Bury woman Wednesday afternoon was attributed to the extreme cold.

Mrs. Leta Martin suffered a heart attack and died after walking more than a quarter of a mile through sub zero weather to attend a church meeting.

Boy hurt leaving school bus

A seven year old boy who was hit by a truck as he stepped off a school bus at St. Elie d'Orford late Wednesday afternoon is on the critical list at the Hotel Dieu Hospital.

Denis Dion, son of Mr. and Mrs. Oliva Dion of sixth grade, St. Elie d'Orford suffered a skull fracture and a broken right arm when he was hit by a truck driven by Roland Archambault, 36, of Bonsecours, police said.

Tie old record

NEW YORK (AP)—A 15-day "deep freeze" for the city ties an 80-year-old record. With below-freezing temperatures virtually a certainty all day today, the current consecutive-day run matches the previous record made in 1881. At 7:05 a.m. the mercury dropped to two degrees below zero—the coldest since the eight below zero Feb. 15, 1943.

Six more weeks of it groundhog forecasts

QUARRYVILLE, Pa. (AP) — Three observers today reported groundhogs came out of frozen holes and saw their shadows, indicating six more weeks of winter according to folklore.

Robert Herr, chairman of the Slumbering Groundhog Lodge of Quarryville, reported a groundhog emerged and saw his shadow.

The groundhog was spotted by scout Jack Lefever, one of more than 50 members of the lodge out looking in nearby Colerain township. With tongue in cheek, Lefever reported that when the groundhog came out of its hole it was carrying a Harvard diploma. Lefever said the groundhog explained that was the only way you can get anywhere.

Fred Ulmer, curator of mammals at the Philadelphia zoo, said a groundhog named Hammy, official forecaster for the last four years, saw his shadow about the same time.

Neither cold nor sub-freezing temperatures deterred the Quarryville slumbering lodge from coming out today. They shed their dignity and decorum for hinks in the open. They put on tall silk hats, white robes over their coats, heavy, ornate chains and keys of office and began their work well before dawn.

RECIFE, Brazil (AP) — The Santa Maria steamed into Recife at noon today to unload her nerve-frayed passengers.

For the time being at least the Odyssey of the Portuguese liner was ended—12 days after she was commandeered 2,800 miles away in the Caribbean, by Portuguese rebels headed by Capt. Henrique Galvao.

The Brazilian government had not announced what was to be done about the ship after the landing of nearly 600 passengers.

The liner moved into shore after several tense sessions of bargaining between Galvao and Brazilian authorities.

The 610-foot ship sailed slowly to within 500 yards of a dock. Passengers jammed the rails, waving and shouting. Some cried with emotion.

One of the passengers, Lawrence Williams of Victoria, B.C., told reporters earlier the passengers had been "in peril of our lives every moment."

PASSENGERS NERVOUS
For more than 24 hours the passengers had been within tempting sight of land—about three miles offshore—as negotiations for the landing went on. Some of the passengers had been verging on panic as rations ran short while the hot equatorial sun beat down upon the ship.

Brazil's new President Janio Quadros has guaranteed his "old friend" Galvao and his 70 odd insurgents political asylum. But Quadros indicated international law might prevent his letting the rebels keep their $16, 600,000 prize.

Negotiations with the rebels were being directed by Quadros, an unpredictable independent and not friend of Salazar, from Brazil's new jungle capital Brasilia 1,000 miles away.

Humberto Delgado, the Portuguese rebels' titular leader who stayed in Brazil while Galvao and his band of 70 commandeered the ship, went out to the Santa Maria in a private boat Wednesday night.

With land in sight, some of the passengers were reported at the pointed of unarmed rebellion against their captors. Cmdr. Heio Leite, captain of the port of Recife, after a visit to the ship said several women were becoming hysterical and screamed at the armed rebels patrolling the cruise ship.

The captive Portuguese crew of 354 also was reported restless. The port commander said Brazilian authorities were agreeable to the U.S. Navy taking the passengers aboard destroyers inside or outside territorial waters.

U.S. Admiral Allen Smith, the navy representative on the scene, said he is against attempting a transfer at sea as too hazardous.

Boy scalps mother

BERLIN (AP)—A five-year-old boy hacked his mother's scalp with a sword when she wouldn't get out of bed and fix bread and honey for him and his stepbrother, West Berlin police reported Wednesday night.

The mother's scalp was sewed up at hospital. The sword was a First World War souvenir.

Plan gaining support

May grant senators sole divorce powers

By DON HANRIGHT
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)
OTTAWA (CP) — A plan is afoot to give the Senate sole and permanent parliamentary authority to grant divorces.

The idea, developed among senators and reported to be gaining support among MPs, is that the Senate be given power to dissolve marriages by resolution or decree. It would replace the present system under which each divorce requires an individual act of Parliament which must pass both Houses and receive royal assent.

Applications for parliamentary divorces come from Quebec and Newfoundland, the two provinces without divorce courts. That would also be the pattern under the new proposal.

The plan is being hatched among senators who have strong objections—chiefly on constitutional grounds—to a Dec. 16 Commons bill that would waive on an annual basis the Commons' task of endorsing each divorce bill originating in the upper House.

MOVING RAPIDLY

The Commons measure, a private member's bill which M. Douglas Morton (PC-Toronto Davenport) piloted to a rapid and surprising passage, needs approval by the Senate where debate on it is expected next week.

"We won't do it," Senator Arthur Roebuck, chairman of the Senate divorce committee, said in an interview. "I for one am not prepared to endorse any such fundamental change."

Senator Roebuck said Mr. Morton's bill would violate the constitutional provision that all acts must be passed by both Houses of Parliament before Crown assent is sought. It would be "an inadvisable precedent."

He favors instead the parliamentary delegation of authority for the Senate to pass resolutions dissolving marriages. And he said he could see no reason why this delegation of power should have to be made by both Houses at each session. It could be permanent.

Robert McCleave (PC-Itasca), chairman of the Commons committee which has handled the bills coming down from the Senate, commented that Senator Roebuck's plan appears to be acceptable to all Commons members he has sounded out.

"I think it's the perfect solution," Mr. McCleave said.

Government views on the question have not been stated. No cabinet ministers participated in the brief Dec. 16 debate on Mr. Morton's bill or in an earlier debate on a CCF private member's bill to broaden the grounds for divorce.

Although Parliament can dissolve marriages for any reason—or without even giving a reason—the practice has been to recognize adultery as the only ground for divorce.

Minuteman

Success poses problem

By BEN PRICE
CAPE CANAVERAL, Fla. (AP)—The success of the air force three-stage missile, the Minuteman, has brought the United States face to face with a question it is going to have difficulty ducking.

Does the country want these things scattered all over the front lawn, thereby setting the United States up as a prime target for surprise attack?

By the same token this successful leap toward the age of true push-button warfare bespeaks the beginning of a rapid shift in U.S. defenses which may well have world-wide political and economic repercussions.

In his state-of-the-union message to Congress President Kennedy said Monday:

"I have instructed the secretary of defence to reappraise our entire defence strategy . . . to step up the Polaris submarine program . . . to accelerate our entire missile program."

In its initial test at the missile range here Wednesday, the Minuteman, travelled more than 4,000 miles. For a research vehicle the launching was undoubtedly a success.

Under present air force plans 450 of these easily manufactured Minutemen will be buried across the northern tier of states and another 150 will be on special railway cars by 1964. Ultimately there will be 2,000 on trains and in underground silos.

In warfare the primary objective of any armed force is the destruction of the enemy's armed force. The so-called civilian targets are secondary.

The entire weight of any attack would thus be concentrated against the U.S. proper.

St. Ludger

Farmer hacked to death

MONTREAL (CP) — Quebec provincial police Wednesday night reported the axe-slaying of Lucien Dupuis, 40-year-old farmer of St. Ludger, about 140 miles east of Montreal.

They said a passer-by found Dupuis' body in his farm home, apparently hacked to death. His brother, Napoleon, was found unconscious nearby and taken to hospital at Megantic.

Police said the passer-by was attracted by a fire that destroyed Dupuis' barn and garage about 11 a.m. Wednesday.

No further details were available here.

C.B.C. may rebroadcast Russ radio shows

By JACK BEST

Canadian Press Staff Writer
OTTAWA (CP) — Radio programs from Russia and the Communist countries of Eastern Europe may soon be carried on the C.B.C. Revenue Minister Nowlan indicated Wednesday in the Commons.

Mr. Nowlan, who reports to Parliament on broadcasting matters, also disclosed that jamming of CBC shortwave broadcasts to Eastern Europe has declined substantially in the last few months.

Mr. Nowlan, noting that programs have been exchanged between Russian and Canadian stations, largely on athletic events, said there is a move afoot now "to broadcast programs which might be emanating from Russia."

Mr. Nowlan spoke just before the House gave unanimous approval to a government resolution to establish a special commons committee on broadcasting.

SET PRODUCTION TARGETS
In other business Wednesday the Commons heard an announcement by Trade Minister Hees that the government has decided to adopt a national oil policy under which periodic production targets will be set, reaching 800,000 barrels a day in 1963.

Mr. Nowlan's disclosures concerning radio programs from behind the iron curtain came in the course of a reply to Paul Martin (L—Essex East), who had expressed misgivings about the decision to curtail CBC shortwave broadcasts to Western Europe.

Mr. Nowlan said there were "economic reasons" for the curtailment—largely resulting from expanded service to Canada's northland.

The service to Africa, "where there is not such an extensive knowledge of Canada" as in Western Europe, was being extended substantially.

EXERT NO PRESSURE
The revenue minister rejected all suggestions that the cabinet has exerted any pressure on CBC programming or financing, and said the government has no intention of abandoning the present system of annual parliamentary grants for the publicly-owned corporation.

J. W. Pickersgill (L—Bonaville—Twillingate) had suggested that longer-term grants be made.

The revenue minister, answering questions and suggestions from the opposition, also:

1. Said he is prepared to recommend that the CBC board of directors be enlarged to provide greater French-language representation.

2. Said the policy of allowing newspaper interests to hold TV and radio licences could hardly be changed.

3. Expressed doubt there is any merit in the charge that the CBC is being used as a vehicle for Communist propaganda.

OFF TAHITI (AP) — Marion Brando, aboard HMS Bounty, fastened a rubber band around his slightly greying locks to keep them from flying in the wind.

"What a bore," said the actor, his hair grown long for his role as Fletcher Christian in Mutiny on the Bounty.

Brando leaned against the rigging of the majestic three-masted, anchored off Papeete under a leaden sky. A hundred film makers were waiting—at $23,000 the day—for sunshine that never came.

Except for his flapping hair, Brando seemed little concerned about the delay, nor did he appear happy that the film company would be returning to Hollywood early because of the rainy season.

On the first day of shooting 10 weeks ago, he remarked to director Carol Reed: "I'm sorry to see this day come. It just means one day sooner that we'll be going back to the States."

FEELS COMFORTABLE
He gazed at the Tahitian shore with its groves of curved-trunked cocoa palms and the green hills and purple peaks beyond. "I'll hate to leave," he said. "This is the first time in 10 years that I've been able to feel comfortable among people."

In Tahiti, Brando can walk the streets unnoticed. It's not because the people don't know who he is; many do. But Tahitians never bother their fellow man, and Brando has achieved an anonymity he hasn't known since he became a star.

Some may think it unusual for a man to be a movie star and want to remain anonymous. But then, as the world well knows, Brando is not the usual kind of star. Director Reed has said "there is no more exciting, no greater actor in the world today."

Dr. Hutchison said a modern education aims to teach people to perform justly, skillfully, magnanimously all the offices, both private and public, of peace and war. He emphasized the meaning of each and added a bit of humor.

The speaker quoted noted people in connection with education, concluding with the words: "May God give us teachers like these and children to appreciate them."

United Church hears reports of successful year's work

THETFORD MINES — The annual congregational meeting of the United Church was held on Jan. 25. Mrs. E. Hay was at the piano and Rev. E. Hay led the devotions.

Reports from the various boards and organizations were heard. In the absence of Leonard Montgomery, the Board of Sessions' report was read by Mr. Hay.

Kuyt for another example of his handiwork the attendance board, now in use in the Sunday School rooms, to W. Haddow and N. Young for the Nativity Scene, which they had been instrumental in having made at Christmas time, and to Mr. Haddow for the portable partitions, a much-needed addition to the Sunday School.

The organization had been responsible for paying insurance on the manse, decorating the church for special services, contributing a sizeable amount to the general fund, selling church calendars, and sponsoring the children's Christmas party. Events included bazaar, World Day of Prayer held in conjunction with St. John's in the United Church, the May Day supper, helping with the Kinneer's Mills father and son banquet, catering to a supper for the Oddfellows, and the annual bazaar in October. Early in 1960 the choir had lost two of its members, when Mr. and Mrs. Pat Kennedy left town and also lost its leader when Rev. Mr. Simpson left.

It has now gained a new leader and organist, Mrs. E. R. Hay, and practices continue every Thursday, with new members always welcome.

At Sutton

Brome teachers meet

SUTTON — The Brome County Teachers Association met at Sutton High School on Jan. 26 under the chairmanship of the president, S. N. Pergau.

During the business session A. G. Henry was elected public relations officer for Brome County. S. Hardacker and R. Sionfield were named representatives to attend a curriculum seminar of the P.A.P.T. to be held in April.

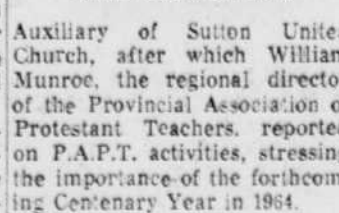

Discussion groups were formed to consider two items on the agenda for the Canadian Conference on Education: (a) Do Canadian teachers lack full professional status and (b) the selection training and certification of teachers.

The feeling of group (a) was that teachers do not lack professional status, that their status in the community has greatly improved, but that all teachers should attempt to increase their knowledge and skill through summer schools, workshops and county discussion groups.

The other group felt that applicants for the teaching profession should be screened more carefully by means of evaluative criteria, such as standardized tests and subjective evaluation by their high school teachers and/or other qualified persons.

A hot plate dinner was served to the teachers by the Women's

WILLIAM MUNROE

Auxiliary of Sutton United Church, after which William Munroe, the regional director of the Provincial Association of Protestant Teachers, reported on P.A.P.T. activities, stressing the importance of the forthcoming Centenary Year in 1964.

Brome County teachers are to be congratulated on their enthusiasm and support as a majority of their members attended and took part in these discussions, making this a most interesting meeting.

Three-alarm fire

5 firemen injured in blaze

One fireman was hospitalized and four others suffered minor injuries in a $125,000 fire which burned out the Goyette and Son general construction warehouse at 24 Bryant Street late Wednesday night.

Fire department officials said Thursday a fireman Georges Boileau, was taken to Hotel Dieu hospital suffering from injuries to an eye when he was struck by falling ice. The other firemen who were hurt received first aid only.

Bitter cold badly hampered firemen fighting the stubborn flames but within three hours of the first alarm, some of them were able to return to the stations.

Damages were estimated by Bernard Goyette, proprietor of the firm, at about $125,000. Lost in the fire were two new cars, two five-ton trucks, and several other pieces of heavy equipment.

Neither Mr. Goyette nor his son, Paul, were able to say when the company will be back in operation.

Due to the extreme cold, all the heavy equipment, trucks and the two new cars, had been taken into the building for protection just before the fire broke out.

Cause of the fire is unknown, but it is believed to have started at the rear of the warehouse, spreading rapidly along the walls to the ceiling and roof.

A total of 55 firemen and nine officers, including director Percy Donahue and assistant director Charles Audet answered the three-alarm call for the blaze. The station at 10:51 p.m.; the firemen and eight pieces of equipment came from all three fire stations, No. 1, 4 and 5.

Firemen began returning to their stations at 1:35 a.m. The first call was received at the Marquette Street station at 11:08 p.m., and the third at 11:30 p.m.

Carnival opens

Bishop's students vote today for Queen; winner to be crowned Saturday afternoon

Whatever fields Bishop's has to take a back seat in, feminine beauty is not one of them — if this year's trio of Carnival princesses is any indication. Ann Meredith, Alison Bews and Sue McCubbin combine enough grace and charm to make the voter's lot this year a difficult one in casting his ballot for Carnival Queen.

The three girls were chosen from a dozen hopefuls by members of the faculty. Student's Council and Winter Carnival committee at a tea last Thursday; final voting was Thursday morning by the entire student body. Results will be kept secret until the actual crowning of the Queen Saturday afternoon, on the ice at the Sherbrooke Arena between periods of the Bishop's — Middlebury hockey game.

The lucky girl chosen will reign over her admiring subjects at Saturday night's gala Carnival Ball, climax of the festivities. She will succeed last year's Queen, Sydney Price, who will be on hand this year to assist in the crowning.

Voting is on the basis of beauty, personality, and extra-curricular activities — in that order. This year's princesses have an abundance of each.

Eighteen-year-old Ann Meredith is a blonde in second year Arts who has made her mark as one of the leading dramatic talents on campus. Memorable portraits of a lost woman in Hello from Bertha and the bewitched heroine of Dark of the Moon are already behind her; at present she is rehearsing the feminine lead in Noah.

A graduate of Washington's Georgetown High School, Ann presently calls Tunis, Tunisia, her home. Her father is director of the United Nations information office there.

At Bishop's last year she was Senior Freshette and a member of the basketball team. This year, besides being on the Women's Society, she has written for The Campus and Mitre.

Alison Bews, 19, a native of Senneville and graduate of Macdonald High School, is also in second year Arts. An attractive brunette, Alison has become very popular with all sections of the student body.

She has been a member of the Vee Vees soccer team and this fall was a cheerleader for the football team.

She has also been active in inter-faculty debating and the Deep Purples choral group, and this year was a member of the hard-working freshman introduction committee.

Vivacious, dark-haired Sue McCubbin is a 19-year-old who isn't just kidding when she calls Bishop's her home — her father is Dr. McCubbin of the University faculty.

A Lennoxville High alumna, Sue is another second year Arts co-ed who has been very active on campus. She is representative of second year women, a member of the Deep Purples and the Vee Vees, and has been a cheerleader.

She has taken parts in the minor plays, Teahouse of the August Moon and Dark of the Moon, and is presently rehearsing for Noah.

St. George's Players

Lennoxville play entertaining comedy

By ALISON SCHOENFELD
(Record Staff Reporter)

The Middle Watch which is opening a three night run at St. George's church hall Lennoxville tonight is an entertaining comedy quite well handled by the cast.

This was revealed at the dress rehearsal Wednesday night. Lyman Tomkins as Admiral Hewitt, Ronald Owen as Captain Maitland, and Anne Bedard as Mary Carleton played their major roles with competence and even the occasional flair.

John Ferris as Commander Baddeley was very thoroughly British and naval.

Of the minor characters, Wendell Beattie as Ah Fong, Rev. John Ando as Marine Ogg, and Nick Powell as Corporal Duckett seem to enjoy their character parts and enter into the spirit of the play with alacrity.

Marine Ogg's expressions of anguish were excellent as were Ah Fong's bouncings around the stage although his ill-fitting wig was rather startling. Gertrude Blake as Lady Hewitt made the most of a small part. Her part was helped by the delightful hat which she wore in the first act.

The actors took some time to warm up during the dress rehearsal and as a result the second and third acts went more smoothly than the first. The nonsensical plot imposed some limitations on the actors as did the size of the stage.

The St. George's Players production of The Middle Watch directed by Eileen Dolin provides good entertainment and a pleasant way to spend an evening. Curtain time is 8:30 p.m.

Y's Men's track meet discussed

The weekly supper meeting of the Sherbrooke Y's Men's Club was held Wednesday at the Magog Hotel.

Vice-president Jim MacKinnon presided.

The final results on most of last year's projects were given, showing the Camp fund was given a real boost.

The track meet which is being held in May was the big topic of discussion. Plan for this event will be discussed at a directors meeting which is being held prior to next week's meeting and members will then get an outline of the work that is to be done for the meet.

Program Chairman Ken Strew announced that there would be a guest speaker at next week's meeting and the following week another bowling night would be held.

Seated at the head table with vice-president Mac Kinnon were Ken Strew, Emsey Elkas, and Alex Rogerson.

Sentence Friday

Verdict of guilty returned by jury in Ruel criminal negligence trial

Normand Ruel, 29, of Sherbrooke, was found guilty Wednesday of a charge of criminal negligence at the wheel of his car in connection with the death of August 23 of Fernand "Mike" Seminaro.

A Court of Queen's Bench jury deliberated 35 minutes at the Sherbrooke Court House before reaching a verdict.

Presiding judge, Mr. Justice William Mitchell postponed passing of sentence until Friday.

Defence lawyers said they would likely appeal the verdict. The verdict provoked some consternation in the packed courtroom. A young woman shrieked loudly when the jury foreman announced the verdict.

In his summing up of the case, Crown Attorney Benoit Turmel insisted on the fact that careless drivers had to be punished, "more so since they don't heed the law and cause numerous highway accidents."

Crown Attorney Turmel added that Ruel had consumed a considerable amount of liquor and was driving at an excessive rate of speed.

Defence counsel Roland Dugre undermined the difference between civil and criminal responsibility, said that the accused consumed very little liquor, wasn't speeding "and most definitely didn't want to be the cause of his friend's death."

Twenty-five witnesses testified during the two-day trial. During Tuesday's hearings, twelve witnesses testified as to the circumstances preceding and following the accident which occurred on the Bourque Boulevard, just at the city limits.

During Wednesday's hearings, several young girls testified that they had danced with Ruel a few moments before his departure from a Magog hotel heading back to Sherbrooke. They said that the accused was quite normal and definitely in condition to drive his car.

Ruel corroborated Montfette's testimony given during Tuesday's hearings as to the speed he was travelling at. Both said the car was going at not more than 60 miles per hour, and had seen Ralph Roy's car only a few moments before the accident, "as his indicators were not functioning." Mr. Roy had testified that they were in perfect condition.

In his address to the jury, Judge Mitchell explained the difference between inconsiderate driving, dangerous driving and criminal negligence at the wheel of the car.

He also mentioned the fact that the possibility of an error in judgment or slow reflexes had to be considered.

Judge Mitchell concluded that any reasonable doubt had to be in favour of the accused.

Pleads guilty to help stop road deaths

SWEETSBURG — (CP) — A driver's desire for publicity saved him a fine in court.

Armand Landry pleaded guilty Tuesday to driving past a school bus parked on the opposite side of the street — an offense since the Quebec Highway Code was amended last March.

Landry's lawyer, Louis Jolin, said he and his client feel the change has not been publicized enough.

"My client is pleased to plead guilty and will be pleased if he gets his name in the papers for the sake of all our children," Mr. Jolin said.

"He and I are both aware you had to stop behind a school bus that stopped, but I think few are aware that you can't pass such a stopped bus in either direction... until I checked the Code I believed my client was in the clear."

Expropriation hearings

Was ready to accept $75,000 for Lowney site, witness says

Conrad Poulin, an expert witness from Montreal for the City of Sherbrooke in the Graham farm litigation, testified Wednesday that in 1959 Clifford Kenneth Graham was ready to accept $75,000 for the farm.

He was testifying at hearings of the Quebec Public Service Board being held here.

Wednesday, the estate dropped its claim for $1,400,000 for the farm to $479,260 because of an alleged error. The error was not described.

The hearings of the expropriation settlement between the Graham estate and the City of Sherbrooke began Tuesday morning and Richard Crepeau, counsel for the estate, concluded his case Wednesday afternoon.

Testifying for the estate were four witnesses, experts in agriculture, evaluation and public services. Their testimony was aimed at proving the high value of the farm and that it could have been sold at greater advantage by the owner, instead of by the city following expropriation. It was also aimed at proving the land was only valuable for industrial and commercial concerns rather than for housing.

The witnesses for the city, however, are attempting to prove the difficulties which would have been involved in developing the area for any purposes whatever without the intervention of the city.

Changing street names

City Council Monday night approved changing the name of a street in the North Ward for rather peculiar reasons.

The street in question — a relatively new one near the shopping centre, was called Bourlamarque Street.

But residents of the street requested that this title be changed to Gadbois Street. It seems all four of the residents bear the last name of Gadbois.

With the help of a double-vote from the pro-mayor, council approved the request.

This was done over strenuous objections from Director of Services Charles Langlois who said the change would entail the laborious task of changing the name of the street on "a thousand maps and charts" and would set a precedent which might result in an endless amount of paper work for the city engineers.

All this is undoubtedly true, but even more to the point is basis on which the name change was authorized.

It is entirely possible that five years from now, those who live on the street in question will have moved away. Or perhaps only one family will be left, and the other three will be Joneses or Browns or Roys. Will council then decide to change the name of the street again to match the names of the majority of its residents.

On the basis of Monday night's performance, they will have a hard time turning down such a request.

There has been entirely too much carefree throwing and bandying-about of street names in Sherbrooke.

Too many have been tossed aside on what one can only assume are thoughtless whims.

Monday night's decision was one of the more blatant examples of this.

The consumers speak

The Canadian Association of Consumers, English Quebec branch, in a brief presented to the provincial government study commission inquiring into the marketing of milk and other dairy products has called attention to the tendency on the part of price control commissions to forget an important person in the problem — the consumer.

Too often such commissions hear the case for the producer of the raw materials, the processor, the distributor and even the salesman but in determining policy fail to take into account the position of the consumer — the person who finally pays the bills.

One of the prime problems in the dairy industry today is the spread between the price paid by the consumer and that received by the producer. In other words, much of the consumer's dollar is being taken up by the middleman. Whether or not these charges are excessive in the light of services rendered or whether they are needed to cover distribution costs can be argued at infinitum without a decision satisfactory to both parties being reached.

But in this province, any effort to reduce distribution costs through more efficient marketing and packaging methods is banned by edicts of the Quebec Dairy Commission. Practices adopted elsewhere which have proved effective in reducing the retail price and increasing the return to the consumer but banned in this province are: Three-quart jugs, cardboard containers at the same price as returnable glass bottles, price concessions for milk sold on a cash-and-carry basis, pooling of distribution systems, etc.

A combination of these practices has resulted in the saving of five cents a quart in distribution costs in other provinces, which result in a substantial increase in consumption, especially by large families.

Bet is hedged

There's always a bright side if you look hard enough for it.

Only a few months ago there was a battle raging in the Communist world over the inevitability of war.

The Chinese, you will remember, held that war with the West was a necessary phase in the evolution of world communism. The Russians, on the other hand, insisted the peaceful coexistence with the West was possible and consistent with communist ideology.

It was all very depressing, particularly when neither side yielded.

But now comes evidence that maybe the Chinese aren't so pessimistic after all. Or, if they are, at least they're hedging their bets.

In London last week, Chinese Communist diplomats signed a lease for a diplomatic residence on Portland Place in London.

It runs for 953 years.

May 'banish death' by organ transplants

By GEOFFREY IMESON

LAHORE, Pakistan (Reuters) — Professor V. Kovanov, director of the First Chemical Institute of Moscow and member of the Academy of Medical Sciences of the Soviet Union, says it may be possible to "banish death altogether" by means of the transplantation of animal organs.

Addressing civil and military medical officials and practitioners at a medical conference, he said it now is possible to disconnect the heart for more than an hour to remove defects and to continue blood circulation by artificial methods in the meantime. This can be done thanks to the development of various types of apparatus in the Soviet Union and abroad.

Artificial blood circulation devices were important because they had made it possible to treat by surgical methods nearly all types of heart disease.

Professor Kovanov said the use of plastics in the reconstruction of blood vessels and heart tissues is a most complicated branch of surgery but of great importance for the future of the human race.

In Professor Kovanov's opinion, the culmination of surgical progress in the field of transplantation of organs and tissues will be the grafting of a second heart. This is being done with animals though at present their life span after being subjected to such an operation is only 30 to 32 days.

Professor Kovanov, one of the main figures in the successful grafting of a second heart on dogs, said that the second heart could exist autonomously and function on the body of the animal which received it provided it had sufficient nourishment. For several days, the second heart behaved normally and reacted to sound, pain and food.

Three on a Honeymoon

Welcome new hand at U.S. helm

By ALAN HARVEY
Canadian Press Staff Writer

Britain has stopped "waiting for Kennedy." Now the question may be whether she can keep up with that flying young man.

For months, Whitehall has been looking for a lead from Washington. Admittedly, ministers could be found who regretted the breaking up of what they called the "old boy network" linking London with the White House.

Privately, however, responsible Britons welcomed a new hand on the helm in Washington. They liked the look of President Kennedy and they nodded approvingly at the rehabilitation of the eggheads implicit in his cabinet appointments.

And British newspapers generally welcome the tone of the State of the Union message to Congress. It is hailed variously as a stirring call to action, a message imparting new zest to the Western alliance, a replacement of bromides by candor.

And yet — could it be that Kennedy is traveling a little too swiftly for Britain's liking?

Official comment is naturally polite, but there is just a possibility that some of the more experienced hands in Whitehall may feel that the president is being a little precipitate.

It would be wrong to over-emphasize any suggestions of British reserve. It is far too early to make an assessment. For the time being, any British worries about Kennedy are concentrated on his probable approach to Africa.

British officials currently are sensitive about their record on "colonialism."

Fears that Kennedy may force the pace in Africa are probably premature. The new president is obviously going to have his hands full in dealing with domestic problems and the broader picture of East-West relations.

Nevertheless, the rejoicing about Kennedy seems greater on the left than the right. Probably nobody in the government would go so far as Labor party intellectual R. H. S. Crossman. Just back from a visit to Washington, where he found the atmosphere "wonderfully exhilarating." Crossman writes: "At one fell swoop the new president has replaced the dreariest of the ablest administration of the century."

Old town dump now tidy farm

By GRAHAM COX
Canadian Press Staff Writer

OUTLOOK, Sask. (CP) — A tidy little farm on the site of what was once Outlook's town dump will point the way to best use of irrigation from the South Saskatchewan River Dam.

Even before the final agreement was signed and work started on the $182,000,000 dam project in central Saskatchewan, the federal government and Prairie Farm Rehabilitation Administration were getting ready.

They wanted a pre-development farm to determine what effects irrigation would have on raising the potential yield in the 500,000 acres of drought-ridden land the project is to serve when it is completed in 1966.

Just east of Outlook they found the location — the town's nuisance grounds. Today the site is a neat, clean, well-managed and productive farm of 155 acres, possibly the best in the area.

"We started out to prove that irrigation, properly used, could make the intended area of irrigation one of the most productive of diverse crops in Canada," said manager Ian Petrie, "and I think we have."

The farm is operated on a 10-year crop rotation program using wheat, potatoes, oats, barley and hay.

The 155 acres are roughly broken into 12 areas. There are 10 fields of 10 to 12 acres each plus 24 acres of pasture and 10 acres of farmstead with buildings and corrals.

Most of the farms in the area are "dry land farms" with one principal crop — wheat.

Even with wheat, Mr. Petrie said, the farm was able to produce double the provincial average of 15 to 20 bushels to the acre in 1959.

During the same year the farm produced oats at a rate of 100 bushels to the acre, barley at 70 bushels and potatoes at about 10 tons to the acre.

Under direction of Mr. Petrie, a graduate of the University of Saskatchewan school of agriculture, the farm employs two systems of irrigation — sprinklers and flooding.

In the flooding process, the fields designated were scored with shallow ditches at about 30-foot intervals after the fields had been levelled and graded so the water would flow down the ditches by force of gravity.

As well as growing sown crops, the farm also managed to take care of 40 head of feeder cattle during the 1959 trial period. They were grazed on irrigated pasture with their diet supplemented by grain.

During a regulated 123-day period, the cattle gained about 231 pounds a head. This worked out to 1.87 pounds a head per day with a yield of 513 pounds for each acre grazed.

The experimental period yielded a profit of $1,207 against a cost of $964. The 18 acres on which the cattle grazed produced an average profit of $67 each.

A similar project was undertaken by PFRA manager Bill Herring at Hays, Alta., where each of 17 acres grazing 40 head of cattle showed a profit of $69 under mechanical grazing with no grain fed. Another similar area showed a profit of $110 to the acre with grain being fed to cattle.

The mechanical grazing process is planned for the Outlook farm this year and means that feed for the animals is given to them in a long trough from a side-loading wagon.

Irrigation of farms is going to be expensive initially, says Mr. Petrie. It might go as high as $50 an acre and is one of the reasons the more successful farmers are not enthusiastic about it.

Another factor is that the government has suggested farms of about 200 acres will be the maximum allowed in the irrigated area.

Mr. Petrie says he expects that many farmers will go into the feeder cattle trade, buying in the spring, fattening all summer and selling in the fall. He adds that there is also a rich potential for market garden farming that did not exist before irrigation.

JACOBY On Bridge 'NOTRUMP' IS DEADLY PARTNER

Continuing with his theme that the way to win with any partner is not to lose, Sam Fry points out that the no-trump hand is a most deadly partner.

Sam's no-trump hand is very similar to the type of man I characterized years ago as the "Notrumpist." He believes firmly that some higher power has appointed him to play all hands at three no-trump.

South spent considerable time explaining how unlucky he was to go down three tricks at three no-trump. He pointed out that without the diamond opening he could have afforded to duck two spades and wind up with four spade tricks, but with OTTAWA — There is a growing aversion among Ottawa politicians to appearing in those searching TV shows like Closeup and the new Inquiry. It adds up to a feeling that even a chance to expound one's political views in a million living rooms isn't worth the risk of an embarrassing pratfall, in that many living rooms.

Liberal leader Pearson is a case in point. He's got every right to be skittish about the electronic camera after a final question in an interview last spring, which he didn't have time to answer fully, left some viewers wondering if he was soft on Communism.

Prime Minister Diefenbaker recently cancelled out of an Inquiry series on the political parties, and Pearson lost no time in dropping out too. Trade Minister Hees was to have been interviewed on Cuban trade but changed his mind, reportedly after a fatherly talk from Foreign Minister Green. Inasmuch as George already had one foot in his mouth over his praise for Cuban business men, there was a risk that on TV he would jam the other foot in as well.

There used to be some trepidation about appearing on the show Press Conference that the CBC dropped last fall. But in it an adroit politician usually could escape being pinned down because his interrogators, three newspaper reporters, often pursued different and competing lines of questioning. The relentless pursuit of a single interrogator is much more terrifying and politically dangerous.

But despite the danger, the politicians feel the terrible fascination of knowledge that TV could elect them. Newsmen who covered the US election tend to believe that the TV image of Senator Kennedy tipped enough votes to elect Kennedy. And TV commentator Rene Levesque breezed into Quebec City as a Liberal cabinet minister despite a Union Nationale straw man of the same name who ran against him.

The politicians likely will continue to avoid those shows in which they feel rather like beetles glued to a slide and shoved under a microscope. But now the trend will be towards more stage-managed political TV — everything under control, scripts teleprompted, participants emotionally composed, facially made up and thoroughly coached in the "My fellow Canadians" manner.

This is dull but safe. The parties' public relations men will try to live it up with multiple participation, dialogue, interviews, and even dramatization if they can get the air wave regulations loosened that much.

With the CBC extending its political coverage — viz. the Liberal rally — and with private TV stations eager for partisan dollars for air time, a substantial number of voters are likely to make their choices on the basis of what and whom they see and hear on TV.

This will put a premium on the development of TV personality. Handsome specimens exuding easy confidence have an edge over those who stake their jowls or lips or read the teleprompter with a glassy stare. Without the acquirable ability to look intelligent, sincere, personable and appealing on TV, a candidate had better stick to ringing doorbells.

As for the entertainment quality — you'll enjoy your local candidates trying to make like Perry Como, and Prime Minister Diefenbaker ostentatiously ignoring a script in front of him while he talks straight at you — reading every word from a teleprompter over the camera lens!

Bygone Days

THIRTY YEARS AGO

Federal authorities have declared that the existing ban on immigration into Canada will be maintained until general business conditions improve.

Officers named for the Foster-Bondville W.A. were: Mrs. C. P. Hunter Mrs. A. M. Hunter, Mrs. N. N. Crowhurst, Mrs. J. N. Code and Mrs. G. Durrell.

TEN YEARS AGO

The government believes that the big need in Europe now is for arms rather than troops. It does not plan to introduce conscription of manpower in Canada at this stage of the critical world situation. Allied forces today pressed closer to the Han river by chewing up, bit by bit, two Chinese communist armies and diseased elements of the North Korean Red enemy.

Kay Sherwood on better homemaking

Scrub them with sudsy brush

By KAY SHERWOOD

The number of truly scrubable wall coverings in patterns and textures ranging from casual to luxurious is increasing. This news holds meaning for homemakers like myself who have tried and failed to clean ordinary nonwashable wallpaper of fingerprints and streaks.

It is glad tidings, too, for those who want the charm of patterned or textured walls combined with true practicality.

Cleaning most ordinary wallpaper is easy to think about but difficult to do. In the house we recently bought, mysterious streaks around the ceiling mold-with turkish toweling before washing.

"Scrubable" means that you should be able to scrub the covering with suds and a soft-bristled brush. Correctly, you scrub from the bottom up to avoid streaking; first with suds, then with rinse water. Change water when soiled.

Among the newcomers to the scrubable wall covering field is a dramatic one of all-nylon which looks like velvet and feels like suede. It's too rich for my home but is 15 luxurious.

This is backed with foam to provide insulation and acoustical advantages. Solid, prints and textures are available which can be co-ordinated with similar upholstery material.

Another recent arrival is a canvas on which designs in multiple colors are mixed with vinyl resins. About 150 patterns and colors are available, and guarantee states it can be scrubbed 25,000 times (oh, my aching arm).

It is pretrimmed, ready to hang with regular wallpaper paste. This tough covering, like some of the others, is water and steam-proof, suitable for bathrooms and kitchens.

Prepared backing is a selling point for a revised version of an old-time favorite. It is made of closely woven canvas overlaid with several coatings of oil colors, baked and bonded on.

Truly scrubable, wall covering handles "problem" walls, such as those in a steamy bath, without peeling or streaking.

Matching fabrics for slip covers, cotton wall covering coated with vinyl. In poring over the wall covering books, you'll see many possible choices. Before settling on one, I would consult with the dealer, telling him where the covering will be hung, what shape the wall is, and what hazards (smoke, grease, steam, children) it will meet.

Later Mr. and Mrs. Bailey left for a short wedding trip, the bride wearing a red wool dress under a brown fur coat.

Marriage

BAILEY—LYONS

SWEETSBURG — The marriage of Sharon Mary, elder daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Lyons of West Brome, to Allan Bailey, younger son of Mr. and Mrs. James Bailey of Montreal, took place in Ste. Rose de Lima Roman Catholic Church at eleven o'clock on Saturday, January 14. Rev. Father Wilfred Chasson officiated.

The wedding music was played by the organist, Mrs. Arthur Tanner and the soloist, J. D. Kane sang Ave Maria and The Lord's Prayer.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride was in a floor-length gown of white French lace with lily point sleeves and bouffant skirt. Her shoulder length veil of tulle illusion was held by a head-dress of seed pearls and she carried a bouquet of red roses.

The bride's only attendant was her sister, Miss Carol Lyons, who wore a cocktail length gown of green Chantilly lace and carried a bouquet of pink carnations.

Mr. Desmond King acted as best man for the groom and the ushers were D. King of Montreal and Thomas Wheeler of the Knowlton Highway.

The bride's mother wore an afternoon gown of violet lace with white accessories and a corsage of pink and white carnations, while the groom's mother was in deep purple satin and wore a corsage of pink and white carnations.

Following the ceremony a reception was held at the Hotel Maurice in Cowansville which was attended by over sixty guests. The bride's table was centered with a three tier wedding cake made by the bride and decorated by Mrs. Irene Williams of Sweetburg.

Guests were present at the wedding from Knowlton, Westwick.

Here are the 'secrets' of the young-in-heart

How you do a favor for someone else is often more important than what you do.

When you offer to take a friend who has no car to a party to which you are both invited, do you wait until the last minute and call up to ask: "Do you have a ride?" Or do you call the day before and say, "How about our going to the party together?" One sounds as though you are doing your good turn for the day. The other sounds as though you really want the friend's company.

When you help out a friend, do you keep still about it? Or do you tell everyone you know how you pitched in to help—so that you will get full credit for whatever you have done?

When you go to a great deal of trouble to do a favor for a friend, do you let the friend know exactly how much trouble you went to on his behalf? Or do you make light of what you have done, so that he won't feel so deeply obligated?

When, out of kindness, you voluntarily spend time with a bore because you feel sorry for him, do you do so graciously—that is, quietly? Or do you groan to others about what a trial it is to spend time with anyone so dull?

When you help someone out of a bad spot, do you let the matter drop once it is over? Or do you keep bringing it up to the person who would probably like to forget the matter?

When you have volunteered to do a favor that proves more troublesome than you thought it would be, do you keep your good nature and see it through cheerfully? Or do you begin to complain because you have bitten off more than you want?

In whatever you do for others, the gracious way you do it counts for as much as the good deed itself.

Wild mink brings top price at fur auction

MONTREAL (CP) — Prices paid at a fur auction here give some idea why mink coats are so expensive.

A particularly fine wild male mink skin brought the highest price, $34.50, and the average for males was $24 while the smaller female skins were about $12.

It takes about 70 to 75 closely matched skins to make a full-length coat.

European buyers snapped up most of the wild minks at the Hudson's Bay Company auction while Canadian and American buyers got most of the ranch minks, preferring pastels and particularly sapphire.

Tuna Corn Curry

(Makes 8 Servings)

1/4 cup butter; 1/4 cup chopped onion; 1/4 cup chopped green pepper; 1 (10-ounce) tin sliced mushrooms, drained; 3 tablespoons flour; 2 teaspoons curry powder; 3 cup milk; 2 (approx. 7-ounce) tins tuna fish, drained and broken up; 1 (14-ounce) tin whole kernel corn, drained; 1 teaspoon Worcestershire sauce; 1/2 teaspoon salt; 1 cup coarse soft bread crumbs; 2 tablespoons butter, melted.

Preheat oven to 375°F (moderately hot). Melt butter in saucepan. Add onion, green pepper and mushrooms; fry gently until just tender. Blend in flour and curry powder. Gradually stir in milk. Cook over low heat, stirring constantly, until smoothly thickened. Add and mix in tuna fish, corn, Worcestershire sauce and salt. Turn mixture into a 2-quart casserole. Top with bread crumbs; drizzle with melted butter. Bake in preheated oven 1 1/2 hour.

ings puzzled me until an old-time paper hanger explained them. The previous owner had washed the moldings before dusting down the paper. The moisture combined with the dust on the paper to make unremovable streaks.

Another case concerns a room expensively papered with grass cloth. To clean the walls, the homemaker used the vacuum's strong suction attachment. The dust was removed and so was the grass from the cloth.

Even scrubable wall coverings, if textured, should be dusted down with a mop covered

An error, shortage of men, start of journalistic career

SAINT JOHN N.B. (CP)—Katie Broad one of Canada's pioneer women journalists who still keeps busy at her Telegraph Journal desk recalls how her career started because a bundle of weekly newspapers was opened by mistake.

She was working for the St. Andrews Beacon owned by her father when she bundled up a batch of papers containing samples of her work and sent them off in reply to an ad by another weekly seeking an employee. They were addressed to a box number at the Daily Telegraph a predecessor of the Telegraph Journal which carried the ad.

A reporter opened the papers by mistake and they came to the attention of an editor. Male reporters were getting scarce as the First World War dragged toward its end and the editor offered Miss Broad a night job at $12 a week.

She accepted with hesitation. "I came to Saint John very, very green and most miserably homesick," she recalled. "I remember that as an outfit for my job I brought along several plain shirt waists and navy blue ties—proper business clothes I thought."

Miss Broad's first assignment was an item about Mothers' Day. "This was a bad topic for a homesick novice who had never known her own mother and my fingers wouldn't type. I must have begun and torn up about 10 attempts before I handed in a five-line item."

Her homesickness was evident to the staff who often hummed I'll Take You Home Again Kathleen when she appeared.

"Then one night the city editor heard the strain as he was passing through the reporters' office. After his comment, I never heard that tune again."

Sherbrooke Diocesan Council CWL meets at St. Patrick's

A meeting of the Sherbrooke Diocesan Council of the Catholic Women's League, was held on Sunday afternoon in the Canon Fiset Memorial Library with the president, Miss Marion McCormick, of East Angus, in the chair.

Following the League Prayers, prayers for the repose of the souls of Sister St. Michael of the Saints and Mrs. F. A. Bussiere, former National president, were said.

Miss Patricia Baird, who is replacing Mrs. G. Potts, both of Magog, was then introduced to the members.

Plans were discussed for a Diocesan Scholarship Fund whereby students may obtain a loan, interest free, to further their education.

Miss Yvette Campbell proposed that the council adopt an Asian child of Catholic faith, in support of the World Refugee Year project. By contributing $180 annually the council would assure a child's education and board.

Mrs. B. Murray, spiritual adviser, reviewed the retreat held in November and a tentative date of November 10th was set for next retreat.

It was decided to form a committee of past presidents of the Diocesan Council to act in an advisory capacity to the current executive.

Miss McCormick read letters of assurance from local members of the parliament complying with the request to oppose the legislation to widen divorce laws and remove parliamentary control.

Mrs. E. Wolfe, resolutions and report forms convener, urged that the annual parish council reports be condensed, yet give as much information as possible, briefly and concisely. All convener reports should be returned to the council with those that do not apply to the individual council marked 'Nil', so that each file may be complete.

Mrs. D. Halechak, president of the Waterville Parish Council, extended an invitation to hold the 35th annual Diocesan Convention in Waterville. This invitation was accepted. Plans were outlined and May 6 was the date set for the convention.

Following the meeting Mrs. G. Winters and Mrs. H. Rever of Rock Island, served refreshments.

Other out of town guests present were Mrs. P. Labrosse, and Mrs. Ross Alexander, of Richmond. Mrs. G. Lambert and Mrs. P. Shea, of Asbestos, Miss M. Palmer, of East Angus and Mrs. A. Buzzell, of Magog.

When she settled in Paris, she found a room with a charming old lady in a fifth-floor flat. "My landlady's house is filled with lace, curios and antiques," said Michelle. "She gave me the best room in the house to make me feel at home and she herself sleeps in a windowless little room."

Overlooking the hardships, Michelle said there is much she likes here.

PEOPLE MATURE — "The people are so mature. They are expansive; they are not afraid to manifest their feelings; they are not ashamed as are some people in Saxon countries."

"In France, at church, the people are pious and fervent; in the street they are free."

Michelle finds that the journalistic course is broadening her horizon. "But I must confess that it is not the only reason why I came to Paris. I need some experience in life. One must have difficulties and personal joys before one can say she is truly living."

Michelle has a passion for writing and hopes to become a novelist. "When I was little I used to write novels and plays which were staged by the family at home. I also wrote poems and I spent all my spare time reading. At the table my mother had to tie me to my chair with apron strings to make me eat."

LIBRARY COMMITTEE

Members of the Sherbrooke Library Ladies Committee met in the library for a short business meeting when reports of the anniversary supper were given.

The meeting was chaired by the president, Mrs. N. Tracy and plans were made to hold a Twilight Supper in Plymouth Church Hall on March 23rd from 5 to 7 p.m.

Miss Evelyn Bradley served refreshments at the close of the meeting.

Woman curator would protect historic heritage

WINNIPEG — A woman museum curator says the Manitoba government should establish a "department of heritage" headed by a full-time cabinet minister to protect the history and culture of the province.

Barbara Johnstone, curator of the Hudson's Bay Company museum, told a service club luncheon that "the whole picture of cultural responsibility for the province is still just a spit in the eye."

She said government taxes "provide for the sick the criminal, the weak, even the lazy—but we have not one department to feed the minds of the young, the vital, the thinking people."

She recommended establishment of cultural centres in six or eight towns throughout the province, to which travelling museums and art exhibits could be taken and where ballet and theatre groups could visit on tour.

Miss Johnstone is an eighth-generation member of a family that has served the Hudson's Bay Company and its predecessor, the Northwest Company, for 247 consecutive years.

Elaborating on her suggestion of local cultural centres, she said:

"Manitoba means 'place where the spirit speaks. I'd like to see the spirit of small town dwellers freed from isolation, from the grain elevators, the Chinese cafe and the pool room."

To avoid "becoming clogged with small museums in every other town — really storage attics," she proposed a thorough survey of the province, in consultation with local historians, to find the suitable locations for the centres.

She said that only one man now works as a historian for the provincial government—the "desperately overworked archivist."

Quebec International Approaches Showdown Stage Today After Night Of Banqueting, 16 In Main Event

By JOHN YORSTON

QUEBEC (CP)—After a night of banqueting, competitors approached the showdown stage today at the Quebec International bonspiel.

Sixteen rinks—four of them undefeated—were to play the second round of the Lieutenant-Governor's Trophy starting at 11:45 a.m. Tonight, the semi-finals in the Chateau, Omega and Francois Jobin trophies were to be played.

Wednesday night some 800 curlers and officials took the night off to attend the annual grand curlers' banquet, a fixture of the week-long bonspiel.

Three rinks from Weston, Ont., moved into the Lieutenant-Governor's second round Wednesday. Two of them were among the four undefeated teams of the 128 rinks that started Monday.

Jack Burgess, Weston's winner of the governor's and grand aggregate bowl for the best won-lost record last year, edged Bob Morris of Sept-les, Que., 11-10. The other undefeated Weston rink was Ted Slater's, which downed Rene Matteau of Trois-Rivieres, Que., 11-8.

Bell Telephone Visits Bury In Lone Tilt In ETABA, One Game Is Left On Schedule Before Playoffs

One game is slated for this evening in the Eastern Townships Amateur Basketball Association with the Bell visiting Bury in Pope Memorial High School; gametime 8:00.

The hosting Bury squad is currently in third place in the circuit with 12 points, closely followed by Lennoxville Grads with 10. A win by Bury tonight will clinch them a third-place finish in the Association.

The Bell, on the other hand, are tied for sixth place in the loop with Drummondville Clippers; each with four points. The visitors are definitely out of the playoff running and a victory on their part this evening will not help in that respect.

Only one more tilt remains to be played in the league with Lennoxville scheduled to meet

Luton Town Down Mighty Manchester

LONDON. — (AP) — Luton, Town, saved by the weather from a crushing defeat last Saturday, downed mighty Manchester City 3-1 at Luton Wednesday in a fourth round English Cup game.

It was a staggering upset result. First division Manchester, inspired by a fabulous six-goals performance by Scottish international Denis Law, was leading 6-2 when Saturday's match was abandoned in the 69th minute.

Home Run Was Greatest Thrill, Bill Mazeroski

PITTSBURGH (AP) — Bill Mazeroski of Pittsburgh Pirates calls his home run that won the seventh game of the 1960 World Series "the greatest thrill of my life."

Sports writers and broadcasters Wednesday selected the climatic clout, which defeated New York Yankees and brought the world's championship to Pittsburgh, as sports thrill of the year in the annual Associated Press poll.

They gave 77 votes to the home run. The final World Series game, including a series of exciting events which preceded the home run, received 26 votes or second place. Third spot went to Floyd Patterson's fifth-round knockout of Ingemar Johansson to regain the world's heavyweight title. It got 13 votes.

Soviet's Top High Jumpers To Come To U.S.

NEW YORK (AP)—The Soviet Union's Valery Brumel, who is credited with a seven foot, 4 1/2 inch high jump, is definitely coming to the United States to match leaps with America's John Thomas.

Dan Ferris, Amateur Athletic Union executive, said Wednesday he had received confirmation that a Soviet team, including Brumel, will arrive here Feb. 14 for a series of indoor meets.

Besides Brumel the Russian delegation will have Igor Tero-venjan, a broad jumper, and sprinter, and Yegueni Momotkov, Russia's champion 1,500 meter man who will compete in the 1,000 yard runs, the mile and two-mile events.

Brumel is one of the two Russians who beat Thomas in the Olympic Games at Rome. The gold medal was won by Rober Tshavladze, with Brumel second and Thomas third.

Efforts To End Segregation Hits Snag In Florida

MIAMI, Fla. (AP) — Efforts of major league baseball clubs to end racial segregation in spring training sites, just as they have on the ball field, today met with barriers of silence or politely negative replies.

At issue is the question of whether Negro players on the big league teams which train in Florida will be allowed the use of the same hotel and dining room facilities as their white teammates.

President Dan Topping of New York Yankees took the lead in the movement after Dr. Ralph Wimbush of St. Petersburg, a Negro leader who has helped find adequate housing for Negro players there for several years, suggested it was time for the Yankees and St. Louis Cardinals to take steps to end segregation.

In reply to Topping's proposal that the entire Yankee team should be housed under one roof, the manager and assistant manager of their headquarters hotel issued identical statements that "we hope to have them with us for many years to come."

In West Palm Beach and Sarasota, training bases for Kansas City Athletics and Chicago White Sox, spokesmen indicated there would be little change in the practices of past years. The executive secretary of the Sarasota Chamber of Commerce, Todd Swaim, said arrangements had been made for Negro players on the White Sox to take over a first class

Ski courses for members of the Hillcrest club were completed last Thursday. The last session was delayed on account of the very cold weather. As in past years these courses proved a tremendous success. All Feb. 7th, also at 7:30.

Ten points will be allotted for the best performance. These will be accumulated and added to the points obtained at another exam which will be held on Saturday, February 11, in the afternoon. A slalom with five gates will be laid out and the best time will count.

Prizes will be distributed in the evening; all will receive certificates according to the tests taken. Those obtaining the gold medals will qualify for the special courses for instructors next year.

Many members of the Hillcrest club travelled to Sutton to attend the "Invitation" tournament Sunday, Jan. 22nd. All were grateful and thankful to Messrs. Deslauriers and Boulanger, together with our good friend instructor Jean Lessard, for their generous hospitality. Our junior representatives gave a good account of themselves.

Jean Perreault and Pierre Lepron came in first and second, respectively, in the boys' competition, while Andree Crepeau and Diane Codere took the same positions among the girls.

St. Pats Junior Cagers Post 46-18 Win Over Lennoxville High With Dave Nutbrown Setting Top Pace

In a wonderful fast moving game, held at St. Pat's Wednesday the St. Pat's junior cagers trounced L.H.S. 46-18. Many plays were employed by St. Pat's and most of them paid off.

The green and white used a man-to-man defense which L.H.S. began the game with a zone, but reverted to man-to-man for the second half. The Irishmen seemed to believe that the best defense is a good offense, and they employed this maxim throughout the game.

N. Lynch's 6 foot 1 inch stature certainly helped under the boards, but he could not get many shots away. More often than not he passed back to center court to begin another play. D. Nutbrown was the high scorer of the game with 21 points.

REMEMBER WHEN

Max Schmeling, then leading contender for the world heavyweight boxing title, defeated South Africa's Ben Foord in a 12-round bout at Hamburg 23 years ago tonight, before a crowd of 30,000. Schmeling had been recognized as world beaten by Jack Sharkey in 1932. A few months after the Hamburg fight Joe Louis knocked out Schmeling on one round in a title bout.

Enjoy Skiing with Anne Heggtevit

NO. 23

Another difficulty which I encounter after first putting on my skis, is sitting back on my heels. In this position the smallest obstacle can send you for a tumble.

A number of things can cause you to sit backwards. But probably the most common in December is the fact that your ankles are not toughened up and your boots are inclined to often aggravate ankle irritation at it makes one more layer to push against. Experience has taught me not to do too much too soon. You can injure your feet easily, which may mean a layoff for several weeks.

Long ski poles will also throw you back on your heels (Fig. 1). To correct this fault, I have tried using a pair of very short poles for several hours. When doing this you must be careful not to bend over too much at the waist, but use your ankles and knees. The idea of exaggeration can be used to clear up a mistake in a hurry.

You have two things to say to yourself when skiing down a hill: weight on the downhill ski and lean forward!

be stiff. To make my feet as comfortable as possible, I don't lace the inside boot too tightly. Then I lace the outside snugly but leave the top two hooks undone as my long thigh bindings gives extra support. Those of you using cables, may prefer to lace your outer boot to the top. But don't do it too tightly! Stuffing an extra sponge rubber doesn't help in many cases. It Ferrell Wednesday.

Charlie Maxwell Puts Detroit's Brass On Spot With "Play Me Or Trade Me" Edict, Up To Tigers

DETROIT (AP)—Burned before an outfielder's "play me or trade me" edict, Detroit Tigers are parrying Charlie Maxwell's verbal Sunday punch with a counter-attack of sweet talk.

Beavers End Season Tonight With Granby Vics Visiting Club

Coach Dube To Have Full Lineup On Hand For Final Game Of Schedule, Meeting To Be Held For Playoffs

Granby Vics will be making their final appearance of the season this evening when they clash with the Beavers at the Arena. It is the last game of the schedule prior to the playoffs which are slated to commence this weekend.

A special league meeting will be held prior to the game and the dates will be approved by all the teams. The length of the two series will be discussed as well. The first and third club will clash while the second and fourth will meet in the other with the winners meeting in the finals.

Sherbrooke will be meeting Drummondville Rockets and the Vics will take on the up-and-coming Lions of Three Rivers. Both these series should be close as lately the Lions and Beavers have been turning in better performances.

Coach Dube may have a new player to present to the local fans since their last home appearance. He played in Granby and registered a goal and should be in uniform this evening. Aurelien Bilodeau comes from Quebec City and is a right-winger.

The outcome of tonight's game won't change anything in the standing as everything is set. The main thing will be for the Beavers to try to prove to their supporters that they can stop the fast-stepping Vics.

During the season the Beavers posted two victories, one loss and a tie on their home ice while in Granby the Beavers shutout the Vics in their first trip 4-0 but then dropped all remaining games, two of them via the shutout system.

Coach Dube stated last night that his team will present a complete lineup for the tilt. St. Hilaire, who coaches a club in Thetford, and Albert Moore, who suffered an attack of the gripple, will both be back in uniform.

Route From Junior Hockey To NHL Was Straight And Sure For Maple Leaf Dave Keon Of Noranda, Que.

TORONTO (CP)—Just about 10 years ago, a raw youngster juggling a puck around an open rink in Noranda, Que., got the idea he wanted to play in the National Hockey League.

Doubtful as the whole prospect might have seemed to any 3-year-old, the youngster went on to vow his NHL career would be with Toronto Maple Leafs—which is just the way it turned out.

And 10 years later, bringing him to the ripe age of 20, the same youngster, sparkling forward Dave Keon of the Maple Leafs is one of the hottest young commodities in the circuit.

Young Dave, a spirited Irishman who can collect goals without penalties, last year made the sprint from Ontario Junior A to NHL—and stuck.

A stand-out year with St. Michael's Majors behind him, the youngster was still just dreaming of a Leafs' berth when he got the call Dave battled through training camp and soared into the 1960-61 season.

So far he's pushed his slight-looking 163 pounds around the rinks for a record of 12 goals and 18 assists in 50 games with a paltry six minutes in penalties.

Coach Punch Imlach says: "Here's one of the best players at this stage of the game that I've seen in a long time. He could be as outstanding in a couple of years as Henri Richard is with Montreal."

Today, experts figure that barring injuries, Dave has more than a better chance to take the NHL rookie of the year award and the $1,000 prize money it brings.

Dick Gamble Pots Three As Bisons Win

BUFFALO, N.Y.—(AP)—Dick Gamble's three goals paced Buffalo Bisons to a 9-4 American Hockey League victory over Providence Reds Wednesday night.

Gamble also had two assists. His linemate, Larry Wilson, scored twice and had two assists and Wayne Hicks third member of the line, had a goal and three assists.

Billy Dea tallied twice for Buffalo and Chico Maki got the other Bison goal. Ed Panagabko, George Ranieri and Zello Toppazzini were the Providence scorers.

Del Webb Gives Explanation On Stengel Deal

HONOLULU (AP)—Del Webb, co-owner of New York Yankees, indirectly explained Casey Stengel's "retirement" today. Webb said the Yankees had to promote Ralph Houk or lose him.

Webb, vacationing here, said other teams wanted the new Yankee manager and "we couldn't hold off on Houk any longer."

The Honolulu Star Bulletin said Webb implied the Yankees wanted to retire Stengel in 1958 and elevate Houk, then a successful manager at Denver in the American Association.

But Stengel wanted to continue with the Yankees, Webb said, and the club finally hired him after the Pirates beat the Yankees in the 1960 world series.

Casey, 70, declared he was "fired, not retired."

Webb said Stengel received good offers from Detroit Tigers and Los Angeles Angels. But Webb said he believed Stengel would remain in retirement.

Webb added that Frank Lane, the new general manager of Kansas City, has changed his ideas about deals with New York.

"Lane says he'll trade with us," Webb said, "but we're not going to trade with him just to make a trade. It has to be something good."

No Shortage Of Stars In Youth Organization

TORONTO (CP)—There's no shortage of stars on Sacred Heart Richelieu in the Catholic Youth Organization's pee-wee hockey league here.

They've got Maurice Richard and Gordie Howe on the same line.

Gordie, 11 years old and 75 pounds, was born in Toronto and as far as the National Hockey League goes, believes the Maple Leafs' Frank Mahovlich is a better player than his namesake of Detroit Red Wings.

Maurice, 12 and a little 55-pounder, is a native of Saint John, N.B. He hasn't scored yet in the two games he's played but Gordie has six goals in as many outings.

OLD WIVES' TALES PERSIST CONCERNING MENOPAUSE

By Harold T. Hyman, M.D.

My mail is filled with requests to "please write something about the menopause."

"It's a difficult time for me and for millions of other women," writes a correspondent.

To begin with, let me explain what the menopause is and how it comes about. Then, we'll discuss your approach to its problems.

The menopause is nature's way of limiting the child-bearing capacities of the woman. It is a completely normal phenomenon so please be relaxed about it.

You enter the menopause when the pituitary regulator issues a "cease and desist" order to the ovaries. The ovaries then discontinue their production of ripe eggs and this, in turn, puts a stop to periodic bleedings from the uterine nest.

A few minor discomforts frequently accompany these changes. Usually they consist of brief flushing, chilling, sweating and various manifestations of nervousness. Rarely do menopausal accompaniments fail to be relieved by simple sedation, provided that the medication is given by an understanding physician to an understanding patient.

Once in a very great while, the menopausal symptoms are sufficiently severe or annoying to require more drastic treatment. Under these circumstances, the physician may find it advisable to prescribe or inject a glandular extract.

Whether or not glandular treatments are given, the patient is entitled to know that there is no such thing as menopausal insanity or arthritis or any other such condition. Disturbances that occur with or after the menopause are probably coincidental. Rarely if ever are they caused by the "change."

Since the menopause marks the end of the woman's span of fertility and nothing else, it does not produce any significant change in her appearance, her reactions or her ability to perform whatever duties she performed previously.

Finally, while it is possible to produce malignancies in fe-

Military whist party is held at Danville

DANVILLE — The Afternoon Guild of St. Augustine's Church sponsored a military whist party in the church hall on Jan. 27. Cards were played at seven tables.

The winning table was Fort Ric-Rac, Mr. and Mrs. Wm. Brosecomb, Mrs. Henry Lockwood and Mrs. Diane Chaddock with a score of 51.

One table of bridge was played. Ladies' prize went to Mrs. Fred Molson and gentlemen's to Ted Fraser.

Lunch was served by the Guild.

The next game of the marathon will be played on Feb. 3 at 8 p.m. in the Church Hall.

LIBBYTOWN —

Some of the young people of this community and Hatley enjoyed a sliding party on Jan. 28, under the leadership of Mr. Donald Switzer of Ayer's Cliff. After a jolly time sliding on the Pope Hill the young people met at the home of Mr. and Mrs. G. Cass where a social time was spent, and refreshments were served.

Mrs. W. B. Holmes is in Montreal, where she spent two days attending the semi-annual meeting of the Quebec Women's Institutes, and is visiting relatives there for the remainder of the week.

Miss Marilyn Cass and Mr. Rene Lawand of Montreal, spent Sunday with the former's parents, Mr. and Mrs. G. Cass.

Mr. Leslie Irwin of St. Johnsbury, Vt., spent the weekend at his home here.

WEST BROME — Mrs. Charles Arnett accompanied Mr. Alexander from the B.M.P. Hospital, Sweetburg, to a Montreal hospital by ambulance. Mr. Alexander is a resident of the Edith Kathon Home.

Mr. George Monteith is confined to the house, having had pneumonia.
