Ratepayers' Claim to Have Roads Open is Upheld By Godmanchester

Motion Rescinded Which Stipulated That Roads in Godmanchester Township Would Not Be Kept Open in Winter—Question Widely and Freely Discussed—Interested Parties to Receive $20 per Mile

At a meeting of the Godmanchester Council a few months ago the members of this Council had passed a resolution asking that all roads be kept closed during the winter months. However, this motion was rescinded at the regular monthly meeting held on Oct. 10th in the County Building when several delegations came before the board asking that the Council continue to keep the winter roads.

After a lengthy discussion on the subject by the members of the Council and ratepayers who were present at this meeting, the board decided that they would keep open some of these roads but not as they had done in past years. They will give the interested parties the sum of $20.00 per mile on the condition that these parties take full responsibility of what might occur due to opening of these roads during the winter months.

The board had earlier decided to give the ratepayers who wished to have the roads open in winter the sum of $18.00 per mile. After a lengthy discussion on the subject, in which the ratepayers explained to the members of the Godmanchester Council that it was practically impossible to do such work at that price and assume all responsibilities, the Council added $2 per mile to the sum already allotted.

The roads which will be kept open in the Godmanchester Township this winter will include: New Erin, No. 9, Connaught Road, Smellie Sideroad, White Sideroad and part of the Carr Sideroad.

Mr. B. J. O'Connor, who presented a petition from the ratepayers along his neighborhood asking that the Smellie Sideroad be kept open this winter, asked the Council that he be allowed more than $20.00 per mile for this work as the road there drifts with snow no matter how slight the snow storm might be. The Councilors explained to Mr. O'Connor that the weather has been much more than they allowed the other parties in Godmanchester.

W. L. Carr, present at the meeting, upholding Mr. O'Connor's claim, stated that if sideroads were not as important as other roads in Godmanchester, the taxation on all property on these sideroads are not any lower than elsewhere and yet the roads are not kept open in winter. After explaining to the Council the necessity of keeping sideroads open, Mr. Carr informed them that $20.00 per mile to upkeep winter roads along sideroads was not sufficient, but that they would have to take this amount since the Council did not feel disposed of allowing more money for this purpose.

The Road Officer will be authorized to cut the brush along the Swamp road near the property of H. T. Cunningham. Charles Reid, who came before the board, was granted permission to dig a ditch near Lake street, in Godmanchester Township.

Coun. Watterson was granted permission to do some ditching along Arnold's sideroad.

No action was taken in the case of Henry Jones, whose hospitalization card was sent to the Godmanchester Council.

RAINFALL - LAST NIGHT FAILS TO BRING SNOW TODAY

A rainfall last night with a comparatively high wind seemed to give promise that it would herald the approach of winter today. It was thought by many that the cold rain would turn into a sleet or even snow. Wednesday, however, again broke a comparatively mild day for this time of the year, cooler than we have been having but still not wintry like. Winter is not far away, however, and weather prophets predict snow flurries in the none too distant future.

County Teachers' Annual Meeting at H'don Academy

Twenty-five Teachers and Principals Attend Meeting—J. E. McQuat Elected President—Interesting Address Delivered by P. Hoover

On Saturday, October 29th, a meeting of teachers from the counties of Beauharnois, Chateauguay and Huntingdon, was held in the Huntingdon Academy.

Twenty-five teachers and principals attended the meeting and helped in the election of officers for the ensuing year. Miss M. A. McMillan, last year's president, occupied the chair, and extended a welcome to all who had shown their interest by their attendance.

The election of officers was then held. An effort was made to elect an executive that would cover different sections of the counties from which members would likely come.

The following officers were elected: President, J. E. McQuat, Huntingdon Academy; vice-president, Mr. S. J. McHays, principal of Howick High School; treasurer, Miss E. England, principal, Dundee Consolidated school; secretary, Miss M. A. McMillan, Huntingdon Academy; members of executive, Mr. D. Munroe, principal, Ormstown High School; Mr. J. B. Macmillan, principal, Huntingdon Academy; Mr. K. L.

The collection roll on the Muir and Bruce discharge as well as on the McArthur discharge was taken up and read.

The following accounts were ordered paid:—

H'don Gleaner, $1.40; Braithwaite Bros., $148.30; John Savage, $13.20; County rate, $1,389.26; County Bridge, $150.; Ovila Myre, $21.75; A. Myre, $23.00; A. Lefebvre, $2.97; O. Deschambault, $9.33; S. W. & P. Co., $2.50; F. Forgette, $17.94; B. J. O'Connor, $9.76; J. Deschamps, $6.23; W. A. McClatchie, $20.70; G. Finnigan, 7.44; J. Duheme, 30c; J. Walsh, $12.90; P. Forget, $2.20; A. Hart, $9.97; W. Legault, $8.60; O. Deschambault, $31.72; W. O'Connor, $4.35; F. Harrigan, $9.25; E. Forget, $12.50; D. Leblanc, $5.93; B. J. O'Connor, $25.00; A. B. Ferns, $19.00; E. Tessier, $6.00; J. Legier, $10.00; W. O'Connor, $10.26; P. Harrigan, $4.75; W. O'Connor, $1.70; Z. Leblanc, $14.00; E. Watterson, $5.00.

But you have to hand it to the Weather Man for he is certainly putting on a great act these days. With temperatures soaring to heights that would do credit to a spring day, the weather has been most unusual at this time. Last year wintry blasts were blowing hard and temperatures were such that it wasn't at all difficult to realize winter was at hand.

The weather has been so spring-like of late that everything seems to be going forward in a spring-like fashion. One farmer states that while walking about he noticed quite a few raspberries. Another observer stated that the buds on the maple trees are in some instances forgetting themselves and instead of going to sleep for the winter they are blossoming forth a la spring.

Temperatures Soar—Flowers Bloom—Raspberries Are Picked

"Nice weather we're having!" So goes the comment and the unusual weather we have been enjoying is one of the main topics of the day.

New Store Opens in Huntingdon

Modern Equipment and Wide Range of Goods In the Five Cents to A Dollar Store

A smart, new modern store opens in the Munro Block, Huntingdon, on Friday, November 11th.

A five cents to a dollar store, it will carry on stock a wide range of goods of use in the household.

The store opens with two big sale days, Friday and Saturday, Nov. 11 and 12. The store will be closed on Friday from 10 a.m. to 2 a.m., however, in observance of Armistice. Goods will all be displayed in the modern manner and plainly ticketed in order to make purchasing easy. There will be a staff of three girls in addition to the manager, Mr. H. Bingley of Toronto. Mrs. Bingley and the four children, the oldest of which is eight years, will take up residence here in about a month's time.

Bright lighting effects and a cushioned floor of the same material used on the ocean liner, the Queen Mary, add to the highlights of the store's equipment.

This group of officers was given power to draw up a modified constitution to the right to add other members to the executive if they wished.

Mr. P. Hoover, convener of the Group Insurance committee, organized under the auspices of the P.A. addressed the meeting. He pointed out the benefits to be obtained from this scheme of protection, and also dealt with some of the criticism which had been made against certain features of same. The speaker's efforts in coming to Huntingdon and giving this address were much appreciated by the teachers.

The teachers then had the pleasure of seeing two sound films which were shown on the machine owned by Huntingdon Academy. Mr. J. E. McQuat also demonstrated the use of the film slide projection.

The teachers wish to thank the Huntingdon School Board for the use of the Academy for their meeting.

Smart New Modern Bridge over English River at Riverfield

A real credit to the district is the new bridge built over the English River at Riverfield. Work was started on its construction on August 11, 1938, and it was completed on November 4. The beautiful structure is the work of Walter G. Hunt and Co., Ltd., of 1405 Bishop Street, Montreal, Superintendent in charge of construction of the bridge was Mr. Matt Smith. The bridge was built jointly by the Provincial Government and the Tres St. Sacrement council, the contract price for same being $12,361.00. The Tres St. Sacrement council paid the sum of $1,500 towards the cost of the bridge and supplied the land for approaches to the bridge. The Provincial government paid the balance of the contract price. The road on each approach to the bridge has been widened and the fill and grading of the same will be completed this fall. These approaches will next spring be given a top coat of asphalt. Of the photos above, Number 1 shows work proceeding on the new bridge whilst the old bridge is seen at the side. Number 2 is a photo of the bottom of the new bridge, reflecting its strength. No. 3 shows an approach to the bridge. In 4 is seen a side view of the bridge, showing the entire job to be finished off quite neatly.

The Week at Ottawa

The Lull Before the Storm at Ottawa—Next Session to be an Important One—Defence Estimates Will be Substantially Increased

By Spectator

While the hectic days of the latter part of September, when the world faced the most acute crisis in twenty years, have passed into history, international affairs continue to be the background of much of the discussions one hears about parliament hill. It seems evident that foreign affairs will hold an important place in debates in the coming session. The price paid for peace through the dismemberment of Czechoslovakia, Hungary having recently been accorded its slice, policies of further increasing of armaments, the anxiety felt among democracies of Germany's increasing domination in Eastern Europe through the influence of fear, have all continued to present a disturbing picture. The immediate fears were allayed by the Munich power accord, and hope for the establishment of peace on a more permanent basis has been strengthened by the Anglo-Italian agreement. The parliament of Canada will meet, however, in a still restful world, and parliamentarians will come to Ottawa sobered by the lessons of the September nightmare.

British Clydesdale Breeders Visit Here

Three prominent British Clydesdale breeders, en route from the Old Country to Toronto where they will judge at the Royal Winter Fair, together with Mr. Douglas R. Ness of Howick, were visitors to the Gleaner last night at which time the above photo was taken by the Gleaner photographer and is reproduced herewith today, thus giving Gleaner readers a service comparable to a daily newspaper. The British Clydesdale breeders spoke quite favourably of the Chateauguay Valley and of the high standard of excellence set by the pure bred livestock dealers of this district. In the above photo on the left is shown Mr. George Marshall of Mansfield, Kirkcubright, Scotland, with whom the firm of Ness of Howick has done business in Clydesdales for more than 40 years. In the true Scottish manner, Mr. Marshall has for years made a canny selection of the finest Clydesdales which have found their way to the Ness farm and eventually to other leading breeders throughout Canada. Next is shown Mr. Joseph Armstrong of The Beaches, Tarraby, Carlyle, England. He is one of the biggest Clydesdale breeders in England and is owner of the famous breeder stallion, Ardye Refiner. He does the largest business in gelding and breeding of females in England. Standing is shown Douglas R. Ness, a member of the well-known firm of R. R. Ness and Sons, Howick, who took the visiting Britishers on a tour of inspection of this particular district and to see the farm of Mr. Ness. On the extreme right is Mr. Douglas D. Murray of The Rene, Seaham Harbour, county of Durham, England, who will be a judge of Clydesdales at the Royal Fair to be held on the King's grounds at Windsor next year. At a sale last year held by Mr. Murray he sold 22 Clydesdales at an average price of $450. The top price was $1,500.

Chateauguay St. Sewer To Provide Much Work For Unemployed in Huntingdon

Construction of New Sewer Raises Town Expenses To More Than $6,000 For Month of October—Unemployed to be Given Chance When New Sewer Opens

The Huntingdon Town Council passed a resolution on Monday evening at its regular monthly meeting, that they would write the Quebec Municipal Commission asking authorization for the Council to borrow the sum of $5,000.00 to permit them to defray the administration expenses of the Town. This condition was brought about due to the fact that an extensive construction program is being carried out in the Town.

At the October meeting, the Council paid more than $3,000 to individuals and commercial accounts; these expenses were brought about by the extension of Lake and Hunter streets and installation of a new sewer on Chateauguay street. The construction of this sewer along with other minor accounts will necessitate the sum of $6,171.50 for operation during the month of October. The reading of accounts took most of the time at the meeting on Monday.

Letters were read from Imperial Oil Co., in which they implored against the taxes they had to pay for their sub-station on Chateauguay street in Huntingdon.

Mrs. McCartney thanked the Council for their prompt attention in the settlement of her case.

Ald. Lalonde asked the Council if the unemployed who are at present working on the Chateauguay street sewer would be changed or kept on as long as the work lasted. Ald. McNair informed Ald. Lalonde that the persons working on this sewer construction had been selected by Mr. Hand but that shifts would be formed as soon as the new sewer is opened up.

Mayor Faubert asked that the Council pass a resolution offering sympathy to the families which were so greatly afflicted in the recent tragedy which occurred at Montreal when four women of Huntingdon, Mrs. J. M. Hunter, Mrs. Greta M. Hunter, Mrs. Louise Kelly and Mrs. H. G. Gessner lost their lives. Ald. L. G. Gessner endorsed.

Mayor Faubert's feelings and moved that a copy of this resolution be sent to the bereaved families, as this tragedy had greatly touched the whole community as well.

Ald. Lunn asked that the sidewalk on Bouchette street, between the post-office and King street, be repaired as it was a menace to pedestrians, especially when the pavement is icy.

The Huntingdon Veterans Association were voted the sum of $50.00 to help defray the expenses of November 11th celebration.

Mrs. W. McDowell complained of the poor water pressure at her residence on Chateauguay street. Ald. McNair expressed to the Council that many living in that section of Huntingdon had also complained about the poor water pressure and suggested that the water committee look into the matter.

The Mayor was authorized to sign the deed for the Brunet and Quinn properties.

Public Charities cards were issued for A. Lepage and P. Galpeau. A letter from Remi Baker asked that the Council send him to the hospital as he necessitates an operation and is unable to work in this predicament. The Council will make an immediate investigation and take action accordingly.

Letters were read from Dr. Pate-naide, County Health Officer, and Dr. Lafreniere, of the Provincial Board of Health re: sanitation of a sewer on York street.

Mr. Bingley of the 5-10-$1 store and Arthur Allard were granted permission to erect signs in front of their business places on Chateauguay street. The road committee will supervise the installation of these signs.

Construction permits were granted Lawrence Brown and Huntingdon Academy for repairs to buildings.

A proclamation will be issued by the Town Council asking that business places observe Armistice Day on Friday, November 11th, by closing their doors. (Continued on page 10)

Valleyfield Veterans' And Scouts Memorial Service

Valleyfield Veterans and Scouts paraded to the Presbyterian Church, Valleyfield, on Sunday when a Remembrance Day service was held. The sermon in connection with the recent tragedy which occurred at Montreal when four women of Huntingdon, Mrs. J. M. Hunter, Mrs. Greta M. Hunter, Mrs. Louise Kelly and Mrs. H. G. Gessner lost their lives. Ald. L. G. Gessner endorsed.

"God of Our Fathers Known of Old" and W. Baker's "O God of Love, O King of Peace." Mrs. W. G. E. Aird, District Commissioner of the Girl Guides, Dr. C. L. Romberg, Secretary of Canadian Legion, and Mr. Charles F. Fitter, Scoutmaster, assisted in the service. Bugler J. Marshall sounded the Last Post.

The Young People's Society of Ormstown Presbyterian Church, under the leadership of Miss Viola Greer, conducted the evening service. This exchange of Young People's groups is proving an invaluable source of inspiration to our churches and very favourable comments on their work is readily expressed by the congregations. Mrs. Frank Waste was hostess.

Next Sunday evening the Young People's Society of Valleyfield, under the leadership of Mr. John Dow, will conduct the evening worship in Howick Presbyterian Church.

To Eliminate Death Curve

Negotiations Commenced Re Remedying This Dangerous Spot

Negotiations have commenced between the Federal government and the City of Montreal to eliminate the fatal curve on St. Patrick street, Montreal, where the four from Huntingdon met death recently and where several other accidents have happened in past years.

The death spot is near what is commonly called Dearie Bridge, an old wooden structure badly in need of repair, which is approached by a double angle turn. Missing the second turn, several cars have dropped into the canal after passing through private canal dock properties.

POLICE HEAD APPOINTED BY V'L'D COUNCIL

At the finance meeting of the Valleyfield Police Board, under the aegis of that City appointed Captain A. S. Hebert, of the Valleyfield Police Force, Chief of Police of the City of Valleyfield, replacing Ovila Claude, who was dismissed a few months ago. Captain Jules Vinet, who has been acting as police head in Valleyfield since Claude's dismissal, will be in charge of Station No. 2 in Valleyfield.

109th Anniversary Service of Knox Church, Hemmingford

Early Days of Church Related by Rev. Victor C. Rose—Rev. R. P. Stafford of Montreal is Special Speaker

Fine weather, local co-operation of everyone who took part, the magnet of old memories, and pulp messages that gripped and challenged the worshippers were mainly responsible for the success of the special services in Knox United Church, Hemmingford, on October 30th.

The occasion was the celebration of the founding of this historic church in 1829.

One hundred and nine years ago an unknown Christian began holding services in a small log school-house, not far from the site of the present church on Robson Street. The little school building has long since vanished, but the good work both there grew strongly under the blessing of God, and its influence has endured throughout the years. The log-cabin school was used in rotation by Anglicans, Methodists and Presbyterians for their services.

As the interest developed, larger accommodation was needed, especially when settlers arrived from Scotland under much the same circumstances that the New England pilgrims landed at Plymouth in 1620. For the nucleus of the Knox congregation was made up of shepherds, weavers and farmers whose convictions compelled them to find religious freedom that was denied to them in their native land. Shortly after the services for Presbyterian worshippers were commenced in the old school the first church, a wooden building, was erected on the site where the present Knox Church now stands. While this earlier church was being built, Communion services were dispensed in a log barn. This building is still standing and may be seen as one of a group of farm buildings at the foot of the hill East of the Church.

Some interesting items of Knox history were referred to by the minister at both morning and evening services. These included the method by which the pulpit was supplied in the early years. In those days the congregation was under the ecclesiastical administration of The American Presbyterian Church, whose Presbytery meetings were held either in Ogdensburg or Lisbon, N.Y. Huntingdon, Wed., Nov. 9th, 1938

Remembrance Day

ANOTHER year has rolled around, and on Friday, November 11th, we commemorate the memory of the deeds and sacrifices of those who fought in the Great War, many of whom made that great sacrifice of their lives. Remembrance Day is not intended as an occasion for the celebration of a great military victory. As a matter of fact, there wasn't any such victory to be celebrated. It isn't intended as an occasion for a rejoicing over wonderful military feats or achievements. In fact, any great military spectacle would seem to be the last thing that would fit in with a consistent celebration of Remembrance Day.

It is fitting, however, that we should recall the courage, the valor, the heroism, the self-sacrifice of those who gave their lives for the principles of truth and right. They loved life as we love it; they loved home and kindred and friends as we love them, but they gave up all of these for their country. The underlying thought behind all deeds of heroism and courage is not self-preservation, but sacrifice for others.

As we turn back to those awful days from 1914 to 1918, when it seemed the whole world was in a veritable melting pot, men were saying, "It will be a different world when this war is over; men will learn to give first place to things of importance." In the years since the war we have differentiated between the things by which we live and the things for which we live. Have we not in a large measure forgotten the principles and ideals for which these boys died?

What the world needs today is a return to the principles and ideals for which our brave boys died.

The Human Equation

GRADUALLY the menace of the grade crossing to motor traffic is being lessened on our main highways. Each year sees the building of a few new bridges and subways, while grade crossings that remain are more adequately protected by signal lights. Nevertheless, few days pass without a report of some unfortunate motorist who has failed to win a race with a train.

Peculiarly enough, railway statisticians say that 80 per cent of grade-crossing accidents occur within ten miles of the victim's home. Frequently the victim is a farmer, so well acquainted with the scheduled times of the trains that pass his property every day that he has given up looking both ways at the crossing. Then one day a special train appears at a time that the crossing would normally be safe, and another gory headline is produced for the local paper.

Human liability to error at times appears to increase with experience. It is the trained book-keeper who has to spend hours at the end of a month hunting for a missing cent in his accounts. The practised orator is the man who, soon or late, makes a verbal indiscretion that is remembered long after his most impressive speeches are forgotten. Highway safety campaigns and highway safety laws must take into account the tendency of the experienced driver to make mistakes.

In some of the United States the law requires that every driver must stop when he comes to a grade crossing. Where the law is enforced, the results have been excellent. Ninety-nine times out of a hundred the precaution is unnecessary, but the hundredth stop saves a life. It is possible, too, that the law promotes highway safety in another way. Each time the motorist obeys the law, he is reminded that he is in charge of a potentially dangerous vehicle. The pause destroys for a time the hypnotic spell exerted by hours of automatic driving and allows the conscious mind to recover control.

Setting Democracy to Work

ABSOLUTE monarchies went out of fashion mainly because democracies began to produce better results. Now democracies are in danger of going out of fashion because the dictator-type states seem to produce still better results. It should be remembered, however, that dictatorships are not new. The Greeks turned to dictatorships after they had tired of democracy, and the decline stage in Greek history was a stage of decline, not of progress. Democracy was the flowering, dictatorship, the withering of the state. After the dictatorships came oblivion.

There are some who contend that, because only a certain part of the populations of the city states had votes, therefore the Greeks never really had democracies. It would be as sensible to argue that we have no democracies today because the machines in the factories do not have votes. In the times of the Greeks there were few machines, and so there had to be many slaves. In the modern democracy, as in that of Ancient Greece, the masters of the machines, like the masters of the slaves, are the enfranchised people, constituting the sovereign power of the state.

Today there are many among these sovereigns of the state who look with longing eyes towards the dictatorships, seeing in them a solution of many great problems. Dictators get things done where elected representatives of the people shilly-shally in fear of their constituencies. Dictators seem to have solved the relief problem by putting all stray man-and-woman power into public works camps. Unbiased travellers report that people of the dictator countries appear interested in life, purposeful, happy. But in France the people are puzzled. In the United States and Canada the young people in particular are gloomy, without much hope of getting anywhere.

Part of the reason why the nationals of these dictator countries feel purposeful is that they are in an imperialistic mood and hope to better themselves at the expense of their neighbors. The typical democracy owns too much already and spends its time bickering over what to do with it. Few thoughtful persons in a democracy would wish to pattern their country after a dictatorship's role of world conqueror. When or if a general war comes, the democracies have the better chance of surviving the exterior and interior pressures of chaos. But it is on the count of appearing to resolve the difficulties of such problems as unemployment that the dictatorships seem to find favor in the eyes of many Canadians today. More and more in private conversation are heard complaints against the ineffectiveness of democracies to cure economic and social ills. These detractors ask what value is political liberty to a starving man?

The attack upon democracy is therefore inclined to be also an attack upon capitalism. The sins and weaknesses of one are considered to be the sins and weaknesses of the other. The two are bracketed together: political freedom and business freedom. And both are held in low esteem by those who would create a Canadian copy of either a Stalin or Hitler type of dictatorship, suitably adjusted to local temperament.

In these difficult times it is less efficacious than formerly to drum up support for democracy by appeals to sentimental pride in British institutions. These institutions can be continued only if they can be made to function satisfactorily. Democracy, including the right of man to govern himself in his public affairs as a nation and in his private affairs as a breadwinner, must prove that it can and does produce the greatest good for the greatest number.

Business, big and little, must necessarily find itself in the forefront of the battle to make democracy function satisfactorily to all. In the end it may be the small capitalist, the farmer, who will determine how the fight shall go, for the farmer-capitalist has the most political power and therefore he has the most to lose in the fall of democracy. In any event, the fight for democratic institutions is capitalism's fight, for private business enterprise is more efficient than the politicians, who are proving themselves more and more helpless as defenders of democracy. And therefore it is strictly up to the business men of Canada to make sure that the affairs of this country are so capably and liberally conducted that no gun-guarded dictator may ever hold sway under the shadow of Ottawa's Peace Tower.

National Cheese Week

DAIRYING is one of Canada's largest and most important industries. Since cheese is an important production of the dairy industry it is well for Canadians to give all support to "National Cheese Week" which this year is from November 7 to 12.

From statistics it would seem that Canadians are not "full of cheese." As a matter of fact the per capita consumption of cheese among the people of the world shows Canada in sixth position. The standing is as follows:

Table with 2 columns: Country, lbs. per capita per annum. Switzerland 23, Germany 11 1/2, Great Britain 9 1/2, New Zealand 4 1/2, United States 4 1/2, Canada 3 1/2.

The first cows were brought to Canada in 1608 by Samuel de Champlain in his early efforts at colonization, and the French inhabitants of Acadia brought with them the knowledge and ability to make butter and cheese for their own requirements. The United Empire Loyalists from the United States started cheese making in Ontario in 1782. This cheese was also originally used domestically and not as an article of commerce—and yet, looking at present day figures for commodities exported, we find that this same cheese has now earned a foremost place among important Canadian exports.

Tradition tells us that several thousand years before Christ, an Arab herdsman went forth one day as usual to the tendance of his flocks, carrying with him by way of lunch a bag of dates and a skin bottle made from the stomach of a calf, filled with milk. When the time came for his noon-tide meal and rest, he opened his primitive milk container in order to drink, but to his amazement, instead of the milk with which he had filled it at dawn, there trickled forth only a clear, watery fluid. Startled, he slashed open the skin bottle to explore what had happened inside, and saw immediately that a cream-white, semi-solid, lumpy mass had formed. Curiosity prompted him to taste this, and tasting he found it good. Relating his experience on his return to the camp at the end of the day, his tribe from that time forward often experimented with part of their milk-supply, and this, if credence may be placed in an age-old tradition, was the beginning of CHEESE as a popular and constant element of the ever-changing and at all times variable diet of mankind.

The making of this first "milk-product" undoubtedly spread to other lands during those sparsely chronicled early ages which followed, and yet all down through the later history and changes of the world it has continued as a staple article of food, although prepared in widely differing ways, until today, when there is probably no corner of the world which does not include some form of cheese among its best known and most popular national foods.

Glorifying The Cow

AT the National Dairy Show in Columbus, Ohio, an Ontario cow, acclaimed as the world's champion butterfat producer, was decorated with the Union Jack and entered the arena to the strains of the British National Anthem.

When it comes to showmanship in the glorifying manner the Americans are always up with the leaders.

Possibly an idea might be gained from the above by the officials of the Ormstown Exhibition. The only thing that's lacking is a flag for every province in Canada and one for each state in the United States. Then, there would have to be a representative tune for each of the above mentioned. After that, of course, there would have to be the cow to complete the necessary adjuncts in the glorifying act.

A representative tune for the Province of Quebec could be, say "Alouette, gentille Alouette," although that might not be as dignified a tune as others to reflect the spirit of the good old Province of Quebec. There even might be sectional tunes for the Province of Quebec such as say "Annie Laurie"—and this with a Scotch heather flag over the cow. Another section might have their representative flag a green one with an Irish harp on it and their tune, "Come Back to Erin" or "The Wearin' of the Green." In fact one could go on and on with ridiculous suggestions with the result that the officials of the Ormstown Exhibition would become so disgusted with the suggestions that they would think up some real attractive ones in glorifying what might be regarded as the emblem of this district—the pure bred cow.

MUST "TAKE IT" Motion picture luminaries, in the opinion of Superior Judge Robert W. Kenny, of Los Angeles, are public characters and fall in the same class as public officials under California libel law.

ST. LOUIS AND STANDEED (The Montreal Daily Star) The electors of St. Louis division are to be congratulated on having done the decent thing—the sporting thing—and got a good representative in the Legislature, Louis Fitch, K.C. This division has only a minority of Jewish voters, and yet it elected a Jew to the Legislative Assembly over a member of the majority race. Thus Premier Duplessis gallantly redeems his promise to give the 100,000 Jews in Quebec a spokesman in its "Parliament."

BELL-RINGER 60 YEARS Is Mr. James Riley, of Sand street, Haworth, the oldest church bell-ringer in England, and the ringer with the longest service? Mr. Riley, who celebrated his 80th birthday recently, has been a bell-ringer at Haworth Parish church for more than 60 years. On Coronation day he helped to ring a long peal of 730 changes. He became a member of the Yorkshire Association of Change Ringers more than 40 years ago.

"MARRY" TO OBLIGE When William Gribbet and his boyhood sweetheart, Irene Wilkinson, learned at Greta Green that they would have to remain in Scotland two weeks before they could be married there, the runaway lovers were married 20 times a day over the blacksmith's anvil in certain tighters. Twice each hour the smithy doors were opened to admit the tourists, and William and Irene repeated the simple ceremony. Spectators then clamored for the seal on the proceedings, the bridal kiss, and the actors complied.

"BLIND" DRIVE CARS In Oklahoma City, J. M. Gentry, state safety commissioner, made a check of names on the roll of the blind who are receiving pensions. To his amazement he discovered that thirty-two of them had received licenses to drive cars. The commissioner's first move was to revoke the licenses and next to order an eye examination for all these "blind" drivers.

Notoriously one of the darkest parts of this ill-lighted city, the canal region is during many hours of the day one of the busiest. Hundreds and hundreds of motor vehicles are used in its narrow streets every hour of the business day. Every car leaving Montreal to the south, with the exception of one route, must pass through it at some point or another. For five months out of the twelve driving conditions in Montreal vary between bad and almost impassable. And yet there is one gap after another along the Lachine Canal, running through one of the most densely populated parts of this big city, each as innocent of any protection as a country lane.

Rockburn A very pleasant gathering of friends and neighbors assembled by invitation on Friday evening last at the home of Mrs. T. J. Graham to do honour to Mrs. Harold Frier, following the occasion of her marriage. Upon the arrival of the guests of honour she was ushered into the living room to the strains of "Here comes the bride," and shortly little Miss Dorothy Goldie and Kenneth Maither presented her with a little wagon-full of lovely gifts. Mrs. Frier was taken completely by surprise, but thanked her friends in fitting manner for their kindness. After a happy visit lunch was served by the hostess, assisted by Mrs. G. A. Goldie and the guests departed wishing the bride every happiness in the future.

Mr. George Lindsay has purchased from Mr. Robert Arthur of Sparks, Nev., the property known as the MacLaren farm, comprising about 60 acres, and adjoining Mr. Lindsay's farm. Mr. and Mrs. Jas. Farquhar left on Thursday for Florida, where they expect to spend the winter.

First Sugar Refinery In early days maple sugar was the staple sweet in Canadian homes. By 1854 imports of cane sugar had largely displaced the home grown article and in that year John Redpath established the first Canadian sugar refinery in Montreal. Six years before that enterprising venture, the Canada Life issued its first policy to a resident of the province of Quebec. It was then the only Canadian life insurance company, a position it held for almost twenty years. Over a period of ninety-one years, the Canada Life has established a reputation for absolute dependability. It has paid to or accumulated for its policyholders, annuitants and beneficiaries more than $650,000,000—over $50,000,000 more than it has received in premiums.

OAT BREAD

2 cups Robin Hood Oats, 2 cups boiling water, 1/2 tsp. salt, 1/4 cup molasses, 2 tsp. shortening, 1 cake compressed yeast, 1/2 cup lukewarm water, 5/8 cups sifted Robin Hood flour.

Pour the boiling water over the Robin Hood Oats and leave standing until lukewarm. Add salt, molasses and melted shortening to the mixture. Dissolve yeast cake in 1/2 cup lukewarm water. Add to the oat mixture. Add 1 cup flour. Beat well, cover and set the sponge aside in a warm place to rise until light. Gradually add the remaining flour to make a soft dough. Knead on a lightly floured board until smooth and elastic. Place in a greased bowl; brush the surface with melted shortening, cover and leave in a warm place to rise until doubled in bulk. When dough has risen to required size, cut it down, knead it lightly and shape it into loaves large enough to half fill well greased bread pans. Brush the surface of the dough with melted shortening, cover and leave in a warm place until the dough doubles in bulk. Bake in a moderately hot oven (380° F) fifty minutes to one hour. Remove from pans and cool before storing.

OAT MACAROONS

1/2 cup butter, 1 cup sugar, 2 eggs, 2 tsp. vanilla, 1 cup sifted Robin Hood flour.

Dahlia's Whatnots

Why Not "Place-Conscious"?

Rather less than a month ago, the press announced that Italy's self-sufficiency drive, which had its inception in the economic realm was spreading to social and spiritual fields. All foreign influences were to be stamped out. According to the Fascists themselves it was part of a plan to make the Italians "race-conscious" and more independent.

The ordinary handshake of civilized society was pronounced too democratic, while the Communist clenched fist was, of course, unthinkable, therefore the open hand Roman salute, already adopted by Mussolini, was prescribed for all.

In French there is the informal "tu" and more polite "vous" for our word "you." So also the Italian language has the informal "tu" and more polite "lei." The latter is now banned, the people are instructed not to answer letters in which it is used, and public service employees warned not to say it. A violation by a waiter, bartender, or hotel employee is punished with a fine, and plainclothes men mix with the public to detect offenders. Stage and screen dialogues must avoid the words and actors must not shake hands. Foreign names must not be employed to designate public buildings, e.g., Metropole, Bellevue, The Pollies, etc., while Italian actors may not assume foreign names.

One Italian university professor proposed to do away with collars, and a Frenchman pointed out that open-neck shirts, trousers, socks, and garters were all of French origin. Fortunately for propriety, Benito frowned upon the brilliant professor's idea.

Now, Mr. Mussolini is unquestionably bigoted and bossy, but cannot some of us in Huntingdon County learn something from him? For instance, we are already sufficiently "race-conscious" how would it do for places as conspicuous for scenic and other attractions as Covey Hill and Dewittville to cultivate "place-consciousness"?

By some peculiar mental process, difficult to fathom, some residents of the Hill labour under the delusion that they live in Hemmingford or Franklin Centre, both ten miles distant, merely because their mail is distributed from one of those places. Other members of the community, possessed perhaps of a trifle more than their own share of "proper pride" in their beautiful native district, resent this habit of doing mentally what is obviously a physical impossibility, that is, overlooking the Hill and thrusting it into the back-ground—a feat I admit of a piece with the class of joke known as the Irish pull, or can it be related to Mahomet's command to the mountain?

Whether the inhabitants of Dewittville hamlet of rustic charm, feel that pride in which its beautiful situation entitles it, certain outsiders refer to them as living, not in Dewittville, but in Oremtown or Huntingdon as the case may be.

It requires no great depth of intellect to associate greatness with largeness, to belittle quiet places, small beginnings, initial efforts. Let us of the more retired districts cultivate the spirit of Roger DeVine's poet who said: "Though I left my native land, dearest to me next to my father, its odour remains still in my soul, and I want, Old Countryside to fill my books so full of you that all men will want to visit you." Let us publish to all the world the name of our immediate neighbourhood. True, it may be advisable on occasion to use our P.O. address, as in the case of the Show Director, for instance, when it is possible that some correspondence may be entailed. But when it comes to being born or married, or to dying, do, for mercy's sake, let us aim to do it at home, and not in the post-office. Otherwise, at least if it is pure snobbishness which prompts us to try to act as if we resided in a more populous area than we do, complications may set in and we may even develop little-finger-crooking.

Now there is an inbred refinement which shows itself in a dainty handling of table appointments and food; but I once read an article called "little-finger-crooking" which analyzed unmercifully that affection of daintiness which expresses itself in an exaggerated form of this mannerism. The writer said that the woman who used it felt in her inmost heart that she was lacking in genuine refinement and was making an effort to conceal it by a show of superlative delicacy.

Now, lady, if you condemn the author of this libel—a woman it was who wrote it—as too unimaginationed and unsympathetic to diagnose the muscular condition of little-finger-crooking from the correct angle, you are at perfect liberty to practise it on the hotel menu card as well as the handle of your teacup. Come to think of it, would not that hotel meal prove a simpler process and just as satisfying if Mussolini's standard were applied to all those French names for the different dishes and sauces, and they were printed in plain English?

But remember, in any case, to boost and perpetuate the names of Covey Hill, Dewittville, or whatever rural scene claims the credit of your career, lest the shade of Sam Covey, Captain DeWitt, or other ancient worthy should mistake you for a snob and darken your pathway to the R.F.D. mail-box.

I forgot to say when referring to French culinary terms that the word "dîné" was one we could not dispense with. This is a word of idiomatic meaning which makes us appreciate the richness of an alien language, and reminds us how the French, as a nation has excelled in the line of foods as well as of fashions.

Women to the Front!

Dr. A. C. Gabelein, fundamentalist theologian, editor, writer, and lecturer, as an exponent of the early second coming of Christ, is, if my memory serves me right, the man who, not long ago, expressed the view that women should not usurp the places of clergymen in American pulpits. He would allow them to continue evangelistic services in foreign mission fields. Generous man! He evidently realizes the difficulties of converting the heathen at home, and the ease with which, weak women could be won with almost impassable roads in, say, China, as well as control and interest crowds of antagonistic and barely semi-civilized, (if civilized at all) pagans who to begin with, look on women as cattle. In India, I presume, they revere the cow more than the woman.

Dr. Gabelein, gifted and devoted Christian worker, remains at home. In nature, scope, and peril to that of a St. Paul or St. Peter or any of the other missionaries of the Cross. So, unwittingly, he has paid them the highest possible compliment.

About a year ago the United Church of Canada admitted women to her ministry. In the Old Country for some years past churches, not including the Anglican, have permitted women as regular ministers over congregations, although the number, so far, has not been large.

Mrs. Jos. Smythe returned home on Sunday after visiting with her daughter in Utica, N.Y.

Misses Mary Anna and Geraldine McDonnagh were Sunday guests at the home of Mr. and Mrs. E. Bannon.

Mrs. H. Wagner of Brushton, N.Y., was a caller at the home of her sister, Miss A. Reardon on Sunday.

ROBERT DONAT

Robert Donat, who makes his debut as a Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer star in the role of Dr. Andrew Manson in the picture of Dr. A. J. Cronin's best-selling novel, "The Citadel," first came to the attention of American audiences as Thomas Culpeper, Charles Laughlin's love rival in that outstanding British production, "The Private Life of Henry VIII." English hosts ever, had known him for years as a rising young thespian who should go far if given the opportunity.

Born in Withington, Manchester on March 18, Donat can trace his ancestry through many parts of the British Isles and Europe. On his mother's side were English, Scots and Irish for generations. His paternal ancestry spreads through several countries. There were Donatellos in Italy hundreds of years ago. In France they became Donats, and in Germany, Von Donats. A century ago, a great-grandfather fled to Poland after killing the son of a powerful prince in a duel. Robert's father settled in England about a half century ago.

The Donat family was engaged in the shipping business, at the time the future actor made his worldly debut. Given a good schooling Robert gave evidence of histrionic talent at an early age, and when he was sixteen, he was appearing before clubs and church groups. Studying for the stage under James Bernard at Manchester, he made his professional debut in Birmingham in the summer of 1921, as Lucius in "Julius Caesar." He recalls that his first salary was "three quid a week"—about $15—and he sent most of it home.

When Donat finally received his London chance, as Cartwright in "Knave and Queen," the British title for Edwin Justus Mayer's play, "Children of Darkness," it was with the confidence, ability and training that assured him instant success. It was a few weeks after completing a seven months' engagement in the principal role of the London hit, "The Sleeping Clergyman," that Donat was summoned to Hollywood for "Monte Cristo."

In his newest picture for Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer, he will appear in the title role of James Hilton's "Goodbye, Mr. Chips."

There's Revolution in the Schools Throughout Canada

Article Following is "A Revolution is Under Way in the Schools of Canada"

New Freedom for Teacher and Pupil Will Have Future Bearing on Business

By R. A. Farquharson, Staff Writer, The Financial Post, Toronto

A revolution is under way in the schools of Canada. The first wholesale revision Canadian educators have ever made is moving swiftly and will affect all classes from the first grade to the university.

It will affect business, too. If expectations are realized the graduates of Canadian schools will soon be much better equipped for work in office or factory, profession or trade.

At last the schools have broken away from the idea that the university was the goal of successful graduates. The student who enters high school this week can graduate successfully without a word of Latin. More attention is given to future occupation than to future academic needs.

Businessmen will soon find that matriculation is no longer a standard. British Columbia has already established a new high school graduation certificate and other provinces are pointed that way. From a mass of subjects the student can select the course considered most suitable.

Saskatchewan Pioneered The change is not confined to one province. Saskatchewan was the pioneer and was followed successively by Nova Scotia, Alberta, British Columbia, Manitoba and Ontario.

Further, with a new status there will naturally and inevitably follow a new salary scale for teachers.

More money for teachers is only one phase of the added costs. The increasing emphasis on "shop" work, on a variety of new subjects will undoubtedly make the schools more expensive to maintain. And education is already the heaviest single load on Canadian municipalities.

This had its repercussions in the presentations to the Rowell Commission. In the west and the Maritimes particularly tremendous stress was placed on the need for equal opportunities in education and the need for national grants to make it possible for the poorer provinces to meet the standards of the others.

Greater Assistance As the changes continue the demand for greater provincial and federal assistance is bound to grow. Standards now visualized by the educational crusaders will not be reached in many communities.

Teachers' training schools are playing their part in raising the standard by becoming hard boiled in the matter of professional qualifications. It used to be said that any person could pass the normal school examinations. Now the rate of plucking has been jumped to 25% in Ontario.

Furthermore, the crammers who could always pass examinations are being weeded out. The crammer type, it is felt, are particularly unsuited to teaching in a system designed to avoid cramming.

Broadly speaking the new idea is not so much to teach the children as to encourage them to learn for themselves. The change is the answer of educationists to the charge that in the past the child was not taught to study independently, not taught to work out things for himself. The pupil who could memorize the answers was the bright pupil at examinations.

Rigid Time Tables Out Rigid time tables have been discarded. As a general guide to teachers Ontario lists the subjects to be taught up to Grade VI and the time to be spent on each as follows:

- English 30%
Social Studies 20%
Health 10%
Natural Sciences 10%
Arithmetic 10%
Music 10%
Art 10%

The Ontario Department says 10% is roughly half an hour a day. To swing the main emphasis in the junior classes to a study of English and to place as much attention on health, music and art as on arithmetic, is a radical departure from the days when readers of The Financial Post went to school.

Spelling does not appear on the curriculum but it is not forgotten. Teachers are expected to teach spelling as part of the general work on the other subjects, particularly English.

History and geography and citizenship are part of the new curriculum but it is not forgotten that the nature of that society is largely influenced by its physical environment. The course is partly geographical, and since it is fully understood.

Red School House Doomed But changes in the curriculum are only part of the new day that is dawning in education.

If the revolution succeeds the old red school house is doomed. One-roomed schools will give way to larger consolidated schools operated under township or division boards of education.

Along with changes in teaching methods are changes in school organization. Here Alberta and British Columbia are far in the lead.

Within another year Alberta will have its whole system reorganized in school divisions. Already 21 divisions have been established and these 21 divisions look after 1,491 schools. While economy in operation was considered a secondary objective, every single Alberta division has operated its schools at lower cost than did the old rural school boards.

In British Columbia rural school boards have been wiped out in the Peace River block and director of education substituted for the whole area with a cash saving of $12,000. Despite widespread improvements to buildings, increases in teachers' salaries and an increase in high school accommodation the Peace River block boasts an average tax reduction of 1.4 mills.

Savings in Peace River, and in Alberta came from saving of the $25 honorarium to school board secretaries; the $10 a year audit fee; and average 10% reduction in the cost of fuel and supplies through mass buying; a reduction in insurance costs through group policies.

English in First Place

Under the new programme English occupies first place among the intellectual exercises in the elementary school. The provinces all stress the importance of children learning to speak and write clearly, accurately and gracefully.

To do this strong emphasis is placed on developing good reading habits and increasing emphasis on supplementary reading. Even Grade 1 pupils are expected to read 20 books a year. No longer is it necessary to smuggle a novel into school.

Reading in spare time in school hours is the slogan. Supplementary reading is encouraged for every subject.

There are supplementary books listed for music; there are books for arithmetic.

Grammar is not forgotten even though it is not given separate time under the new order. "Corrective exercises in speech should be largely individual and specific. There is a place of course for language games in which all the children join with pleasure; but to drill an entire class on speech errors of which only a few are guilty is an obvious waste of time. Not all children are prone to make the same mistakes; not all should receive the same remedial training."

Arithmetic The approach to arithmetic is decidedly different. The teaching in each grade is designed to provide training appropriate to the child's needs at this particular stage of his growth.

Mental arithmetic is stressed, but speed tests are discouraged. It is suggested that the problems should arise out of real situations in the lives of the children. "A child is certain to be interested in solving his own problems. Such problems independently solved are the means of establishing a genuine interest in the use of numbers. The wise teacher so fits the 'sums' and problems to the child's capacity that failure is unlikely and unexpected. Confidence grows out of repeated success."

To a great extent the teaching of "art" is now suggested as a part of other lessons. "Drawing, modelling or constructive work should be a phase of much of the work in English, Social Studies, Health and Natural Science as well as being inspired by the life of the child in the home, the school and the community."

Music As part of the desirable equipment of every school there is now the phonograph. In Ontario there are long lists of approved records for every grade, for every exercise.

In rural schools where the teacher is not competent to teach music, the Ontario department suggests that arrangements be made whereby the children can at least learn to sing. Organization of rhythm bands is encouraged.

Natural Science is a new programme for agriculture but the programme of study is more inclusive. It covers the more salient features of plant and animal life. The weather, the sun, moon and stars, the seasons, also come under the heading of natural science.

The aim is not so much to explain natural phenomena as to awaken the children's interest and to develop their powers of accurate observation and description.

High School Changes The changes sketched above deal largely with primary classes. In the high schools just as sweeping moves along the same broad lines are planned, but they will be longer in coming into effect. One definite principle has been laid down. The changes must be made rapidly enough that no pupil who started under the new system will be promoted into the old.

Red School House Doomed But changes in the curriculum are only part of the new day that is dawning in education.

If the revolution succeeds the old red school house is doomed. One-roomed schools will give way to larger consolidated schools operated under township or division boards of education.

Along with changes in teaching methods are changes in school organization. Here Alberta and British Columbia are far in the lead.

Within another year Alberta will have its whole system reorganized in school divisions. Already 21 divisions have been established and these 21 divisions look after 1,491 schools. While economy in operation was considered a secondary objective, every single Alberta division has operated its schools at lower cost than did the old rural school boards.

In British Columbia rural school boards have been wiped out in the Peace River block and director of education substituted for the whole area with a cash saving of $12,000. Despite widespread improvements to buildings, increases in teachers' salaries and an increase in high school accommodation the Peace River block boasts an average tax reduction of 1.4 mills.

Savings in Peace River, and in Alberta came from saving of the $25 honorarium to school board secretaries; the $10 a year audit fee; and average 10% reduction in the cost of fuel and supplies through mass buying; a reduction in insurance costs through group policies.

In the Valleyfield-Ormstown game an extra end had to be played before a winner could be determined.

The players were: Valleyfield K. Campbell, F. Connor, W. Roy, A. Ross, Dr. Mills, T. Crook, L. Ross, W. F. Colquhoun.

Ormstown S. Cullen, R. Goodfellow, G. Elliott, F. K. Bruce, Wm. Roy, D. M. Houghton, F. S. Prigar, Dave Ross.

There is an often expressed fear that modern education tends to urbanize rural boys, but perhaps no one will grumble at a scheme which is intended to make urban boys love and understand the pursuits of agriculture and the countryside.

Boys from Dulwich Central School have this opportunity as part of their geography course; the boys have adopted a farm in Car. rideshire, just as some other schools adopt merchant ships. The farmer sends them a weekly report of the work done on the farm, samples of soil, crops grown, details of stock raising, marketing schemes, etc. By these means and various maps, plans, pictures and models of implements and machinery, the boys are able to see how a modern farm is run.

Now the boys are planning a school journey to Cambridge and the farm which is near Cambridge. —"The Schoolmaster"—England.

Huntingdon Team Defeated in League Opener at Valleyfield

Locals Held Scoreless in First Hockey Game of Season by Valleyfield Tigers—Moco Heads League With Second Consecutive Victory

Apparently unaccustomed to donning skates at this time of the year, when the weather is even favorable for softball, Huntingdon journeyed to Valleyfield over the week-end and lost their first league game in the Intermediate Hockey League against Valleyfield Tigers.

Playing the second game of a double header programme, presented weekly at this Arena, Huntingdon started the game with the same players who reached the finals in the Chateaugay Valley Hockey League last season. Merrill Smith and Boyd Campbell having joined the Huntingdon squad on this occasion, and their presence on the ice added much prestige to the local supporters.

With only a few minutes to go in the first period, R. Leduc, of the Tigers, beat Houle in the Huntingdon nets for the first tally of the game. The visiting team was short-handed at the time, Smith being off tripping. In spite of this one goal lead, Rapin in the Valleyfield nets had to make remarkable saves when the opposing sharp-shooters came within close range of the Tigers' nets.

Huntingdon had the advantage in play in the second period but they were over-anxious when they had a decided opportunity to equalize. Rapin took advantage of this fact and cleared fast. Breaks were evened up towards the end of the middle frame when Wilson tallied but the referees had already called an off-side.

Few penalties were meted out by the referees in this contest as the players took no unnecessary chances with the score so close. Valleyfield rallied again after ten minutes of play in the final period and Sumstrom assured the game for the Tigers when he picked Legault's rebound and slapped the puck behind Houle in the Huntingdon nets.

Huntingdon, managed by Charles Falle, had four and five men inside Valleyfield's blue line towards the end of the game but were unable to get any satisfactory results. White, Wilson, Fortune and Smith had only the Valleyfield goal to beat at different intervals but Rapin made some exceptional saves to gain his first shut-out of the season.

The first game of the afternoon was played between Moco and Belleville, members of the same loop, and the Montreal Cotton players won their second match in as many starts winning by a 3-2 score. Bessnet scored the winning goal for Moco late in the third period when he beat George Laplante in the Belleville nets.

The Huntingdon players included: Houle, goal; Fortune and C. Grant, defence; Kirby, centre; Smith and H. Grant, wings; Subs: B. Campbell, M. Levine, M. Duke, Lefebvre, Boyd, Wilson, White.

Ormstown Wins I.O.O.F. Trophy

Defeat Huntingdon and Valleyfield to Capture Trophy—Extra End Played in Ormstown-Valleyfield Fixture

Ormstown won the championship of the I.O.O.F. Carpet Bowling League on Tuesday evening when they defeated Valleyfield and Huntingdon in the last league fixture.

Ormstown were trailing in this loop until last evening's game in Ormstown and their double victory over these teams won them the championship.

In the Valleyfield-Ormstown game an extra end had to be played before a winner could be determined.

The players were: Valleyfield K. Campbell, F. Connor, W. Roy, A. Ross, Dr. Mills, T. Crook, L. Ross, W. F. Colquhoun.

Ormstown S. Cullen, R. Goodfellow, G. Elliott, F. K. Bruce, Wm. Roy, D. M. Houghton, F. S. Prigar, Dave Ross.

VALLEYFIELD WINS LEAGUE OPENER, 5-0

Valleyfield Braves, members of the Provincial Senior Hockey League, won their opening league match at home on Saturday evening when they defeated Boston Olympics, 5-0. A capacity crowd witnessed the match in which the Braves featured smart combination plays by the winning aggregation.

The Valleyfield team has been showing up well of late, and should be a threat to all teams in this league. Boston, who were finalists last year, have yet to win a game in this league as they were downed over the week-end by a Lachine, pilot-ed by Albert Leduc, a former Valleyfield resident.

Saturday's contest opened somewhat slowly but midway through the initial stanza, Deneault, on a pass from Burt Peer, tallied the first goal of the year for Valleyfield. The winners scored again in the second period when Peer and Deneault were credited with assists on Despeteau's timely tally. The other Valleyfield goals were netted by Hamel, Godin and Deneault.

Referees Moore and Labelle had a trying job during this match as both teams were playing with sticks high and boarding at every opportunity. More than 18 penalties were meted out with Spain getting a 10 minute misconduct for arguing too long over a decision.

CHAPTER 19

Confession is Good for the Soul

As though Gilmore's decision of Saturday night had reached one of the people it concerned, upon his arrival at headquarters on Monday morning he was greeted with the information that Donald Gardner and a young lady were waiting to see him. From behind the morning paper, Captain Thomas informed him that they had sought to communicate with him while he was out on Saturday, and failing that, had arranged to come in this morning, to speak to him.

"It looks like something important," he said. "You'd better go in to see them now. When you're finished, I've something to show you that you will find interesting."

As the detective entered the office into which they had been shown, he sensed a quality of tension and anxiety in the atmosphere. The secretary appearing somewhat nervous, nevertheless looked relieved as Gilmore appeared. Eleanor Nixon, in austere black, waited with her hands folded in her lap, pale but composed. The tragedy with which she had recently been visited still haunted the expressive eyes, but in the vigorous, severe pose which mourning save her, he recognized more than ever the positive, magisterial qualities of her father.

"You wanted to see me?" They were his only words of greeting. It would be wiser, he decided, to go warily and give no indication of his knowledge regarding the secretary until he had learned the intentions of his visitors.

"Yes, we did, Gilmore—at least I did, and Miss Nixon came to learn how your investigations were progressing." The young man pleaded without hesitation into the purpose of his call. "You suspect me of having a hand in the death of Mr. Nixon?"

Gardner's story. The words were an accusation rather than a question, but the detective successfully feigned surprise. "What makes you think that, Gardner? What reason have I for suspecting you?"

"Good Advice About Constipation!"

A doctor would tell you that the best thing to do with any ailment is to get at its cause. If you're constipated, don't just take a makeshift remedy. Find out what's giving you the trouble! Chances are you won't have to look very far if you eat just the things most people do. Most likely, you don't get enough "bulk." And "bulk" doesn't mean just a lot of food. It means a kind of food that isn't consumed in the body, but leaves a soft "bulky" mass in the intestines and helps a bowel movement.

If this is what you lack, your ticket is crisp crunchy Kellogg's All-Bran for breakfast. It contains the "bulk" you need plus the intestinal tonic, Vitamin B. Eat it every day, drink plenty of water, and join the "regulars"! All-Bran is made by Kellogg in London, Ontario.

"That's what I would like to know, but there's surely something behind your behaviour. For the last few days, you've had some one on my trail wherever I go. You've been to the office to ask questions about me. And Mrs. Phipps told me all about my 'dear friend from out of town' who searched my room while leaving a note of greeting."

The detective permitted himself a slight smile that Mrs. Phipps had finally succumbed to her desire to talk.

"That is rather dangerous proceeding, Mr. Gilmore," the girl broke in sharply. "You had no right to break into any one's private quarters without a search warrant."

Gilmore, unperturbed, shrugged his shoulders sorrowfully. "It was all in your interests, Miss Nixon. After all, what else am I to do when people conceal the truth from me as you have with regard to the quarrel Mr. Gardner had with your father?"

The statement did not surprise Eleanor Nixon, but it brought her abruptly to a realization of the detective's advantage.

"Yes," she said hastily. "Bennett admitted to me on Saturday that he had told you that. Knowing that you had that information and were investigating, Donald brought us here today. We have decided that it would have been far wiser to have informed you of everything in the beginning."

"It's too late now to do so, Miss Nixon," Gilmore reprimanded, "but your silence and Mr. Gardner's has greatly hampered my investigations. May I remind you that that is always even a more dangerous proceeding?"

"Eleanor was merely trying to protect me," the secretary said fervently. "Knowing that you had overheard her quarrel with Mr. Nixon, of which I was the subject, she was afraid that if you learned that I had gone immediately afterward to retrace with Mr. Nixon, you would suspect me. You see," he added with a touch of sadness, "my past was the cause of our quarrel—and it can hardly bear investigation."

A swift, haggard shadow crossed his eyes, and Eleanor swiftly put her hand out toward him.

"Donald presents it in a much worse light than it really deserves. You were bound to learn of it, Mr. Gilmore," and it would be better that you should learn of it from his own lips. If you will not pass judgment until you have the entire story..."

As she broke off with an appealing gesture, the detective indicated his willingness to hear Donald Gardner's narrative. The developments that had brought them both to him, prepared to be frank, assured him that what he now would learn could be believed. Eleanor had intended nothing criminal by her concealment of vital facts; she had merely desired to protect the secretary. But only because of Bennett's breach of faith had they both decided to volunteer any information.

Once more the detective listened to the already familiar story of the secretary's pampered life, and unobservable temper, of his regard for

Ella Denby and the unfortunate quarrel resulting in the death of his rival, of the prison term he had served and the opportunity he had taken to begin his wasted life anew. In telling it, the secretary was not sparing it criticism of his own folly; for the tragedy that had all but blighted his life he blamed no one but himself. It was the fault of his own uncurbed desires, he said, that led up to the tragedy. The unfortunate encounter in the Astor Hotel had been accidental; but the blow that sent his rival against the andirons in the fireplace, though aroused by an insulting remark, had been the result of blind anger.

"Straightforward"

"I killed him, Gilmore," said the secretary in a heavy voice. "I admit that; and I know there's no justification for it. Farrell had been drinking and was in an unpleasant frame of mind. When he insulted the girl I foolishly thought so much of my control snapped for the moment, and I struck him a terrific blow across the jaw. When I realized what I had done, he was lying against the irons, his head broken in."

"That's the truth of it, I'll take an oath on it. The prosecution claimed at the trial that I struck Farrell across the head with one of the irons. The fingerprints found on the bar he had struck in falling were placed there when I leaned upon it, as I tried to revive him. I suppose that for my folly, I deserved everything, even those awful days of the trial with people listening hungrily to the scandal about me, the fast life I led, the questionable people with whom I traveled, the women I knew. It was all coming to me for killing that man; but I never intended to do it and murder was furthest from my mind."

Earnestly Gardner continued his story, telling the detective of the trial and the sentence he served, and reverting to his present determination to make up for his previous failure. At no time did his straightforward account falter, nor vary from the facts Gilmore had learned from Captain Fremont; if anything, the secretary too strongly condemned himself, even more so than the woman responsible for his difficulties had done. Unaware that Gilmore already knew the story, it would have been an easy matter to fabricate one; and the fact that he did not do so seemed to the detective a perfect test of its truth.

It was also indicative of Gardner's present sincerity and good faith.

Nor was the story unknown to Eleanor; throughout its narration her attention was centered only on Gilmore's reaction to it. When Gardner had finished, the detective turned to her.

"You were ignorant of these facts, Miss Nixon," he said, "a week ago when we both met in your father's office. When did you learn them?"

"Immediately after I quarreled with my dad," the girl replied. "You remember, I promised him that I would not go out with Donald until he came back and told me of them. But I did not say that I would not talk to him. It was then I learned from his own lips the story of Donald's unfortunate affair..."

As she spoke, Gilmore saw the motive he had attributed to Gardner for having killed Philip Nixon disappear. For if Eleanor Nixon knew Gardner's secret—before Nixon went to the shore, the secretary had nothing further to lose, regardless of how the girl accepted the information. For, if she took her parent's viewpoint, the harm was already done; and if she viewed the story in an opposite light, it was immaterial what Nixon told her afterward.

"It was the quarrel that Eleanor had with Mr. Nixon, that sent me to his home to see him," Donald broke in. "I wanted to talk the matter over with him. As he had left the office at half past 2, before I had the opportunity, I had to go to Bryn Mawr. Unfortunately, Mr. Nixon considered me presumptuous and it only made him more furious. You see," a twisted smile played about his lips—"that I should love his daughter, after my past, was unpardonable to him. In the end, I lost my temper, and we had the quarrel that Bennett told you about."

"Father judged Donald most unfairly, Mr. Gilmore," said the girl as Gardner had paused. "But surely you believe this... that Donald would never have been guilty of a crime—like murder...? What happened was merely a misfortune that might have happened to any one, an accident that is now gone and over with."

The Cape May Trip

The detective did not need the sudden appeal in her voice, nor Gardner's grateful glance, to tell him that she at least had confidence in the secretary and had forgiven him, if there was anything that needed forgiveness. He smiled into her anxious eyes.

"Do you believe that, Miss Nixon?" he asked.

Obituary

The late Frank A. Gordon. On Sunday, October 18th, death removed one of the most prominent residents of Methuen, Mass., in the person of Frank A. Gordon, at the age of 66. His health had shown signs of failing over three years ago, and since last January had grown gradually worse.

The funeral was held from the C. Walter Douglas funeral home, the service being conducted by Rev. Reginald B. Nichols of the Methodist Episcopal Church of which Mr. Gordon was a member, and interment took place in Walnut Grove cemetery.

He is survived by his wife, formerly Miss Julia A. Blanchard; a sister, Mrs. Alvin C. Saunders of Wakefield, Mass.; two brothers, B. M. Gordon of Methuen and Thurlow M. Gordon of New York; and by two nephews and a niece.

The deceased was born in Methuen, Mass., in a few years he had been in the banking business for nearly forty years, and was a director of the Methuen Co-operative bank. He was also a director of the Nevins Home for Aged and Colonization. That alien races coming to Canada had made good and were a decided asset to our country was interestingly proved by a very excellent paper entitled "Stimulating Community Progress" read by Mrs. J. L. Gruer, where she cited instances of foreigners coming to this land with little or nothing but perseverance and an ability to work hard, who in a few years had attained prosperity. Sympathy and understanding is the common thread ground upon which we can join forces with these newcomers in the march towards the goal of a nationhood that shall be worthy of the name Canadian. Mrs. Gruer closed with the poem, "A New Canadian."

A discussion, "How I should welcome newcomers to the Community" followed, one suggestion being that we invite the feminine members to our Institute meetings. A few words on Institute work by the County President followed by Community Singing with Mrs. C. W. Orr at the piano brought the meeting to a close. An exhibition of beautiful samples of patchwork quilts was featured at this meeting. Dainty refreshments were served by the hostesses, Mrs. E. Ness, Mrs. J. Ansell and Mrs. Jas. Anderson and a social hour spent. The next meeting is our Social Service meeting and will commence at 10 a.m. at Mrs. S. Reddick's.

The Misses May and Irene Stacey and Ann Richards of Montreal, and Mrs. Gordon Small of St. Remi and Reginald Sweeney of Vermont were Tuesday guests of Mr. and Mrs. Stacey, the occasion being the celebration of the birthday of Mrs. R. Stacey.

Mr. and Mrs. R. J. Steele, Elizabeth and John were Sunday afternoon guests of Mrs. John Orr.

Miss Luella McKell, R.N., who has been caring for Mrs. John Kerr for the past two months, returned to her home here on Wednesday evening. Mr. and Mrs. Ernest Mason, Donald, Gerald and Royce Heron of the Gore, were Sunday guests of Nurse McKell at the home of her parents, Mr. and Mrs. McKell, Mr. and Mrs. Melville Brown and Ross were also guests at this home.

Mr. and Mrs. Geo. Robb entertained Monday evening in honor of Mrs. Wm. Reddick's 88th birthday. When her children and grandchildren and great-grandchildren, about 30 in all, were present to wish her many happy returns of the day and enjoy an evening of social intercourse.

Miss Dorothy Campbell of Bedford was a recent week-end guest of Mr. and Mrs. Ray Reddick.

Mrs. Frank Adams' seventy-fourth birthday was celebrated on the same day as the christening of her great-grandchild, Baby Shirley Maude Jackson, and was made the occasion of warm congratulatory speeches from members of the family. Mrs. Adams responded appropriately, and all enjoyed a sumptuous tea, of which a prettily decorated birthday cake was the prominent feature.

A communion service was conducted last Sunday by Rev. Mr. E. J. H. Stewart's neighbours are glad to see that she is now well enough to go about.

Mr. and Mrs. L. A. Waddell moved from the farm to their new home and store last week.

Friday afternoon the Woman's Missionary Society met at the home of Mrs. Gardner. A special programme prepared for Autumn Thankoffering meetings was followed. This programme was in honor of the celebration of the Honar. Jubilee, and the items were found most interesting. A general offering was received. Refreshments were served to members and visitors present.

Mrs. Young of Mansonville has been a recent guest at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Peter Munro.

Mr. and Mrs. W. Gardner of Montreal were week-end guests at the home of Mrs. Gardner.

Miss Mary Brisbane has returned to "Keithburn" after a week's vacation with friends in the city.

Mrs. E. E. Perry came home on Saturday after a stay of a few months with her sister, Mrs. F. A. Gordon, Methuen, Mass. She was accompanied here by friends from Winthrop, Mass., Mr. and Mrs. A. Folkes.

CONFINED ABEY BY LUMBAGO

In Pain For Weeks. Acting on his principle of "when you know a good thing tell your friends about it," a man who has had very bad lumbago pains writes as follows:—

"I suffered from lumbago, and for weeks could scarcely move in bed. I had treatment, but it did not ease the pain very much. A friend said, 'Why not take Kruschen Salts?' Take them every morning, and you'll likely get relief from that pain in your back." So I have taken them every morning for some time and I am in fit condition for my work again—thanks to Kruschen.—C.B.

Why is it that lumbago, backache, rheumatism and indigestion in many cases yield to Kruschen Salts? Because it is a combination of several mineral salts that are vital for your body well-being. Each of these salts has an action of its own. Stomach, liver, kidneys and digestive tract are all benefited and toned up to a high state of efficiency.

WHERE DOES ALL THE MONEY COME FROM?

MORE than four and one-half million depositors in Canada have "money in the bank."

They are satisfied to leave their money on deposit because Canada's chartered banks are ready and able to pay back promptly every cent when the depositor calls for it.

These deposits in the chartered banks total roughly $2,262,000,000—approximately 10 per cent. of which they carry in cash—in other words Bank of Canada money or "legal tender."

Some people do not fully understand banking operations and might ask:

1. What have the banks got to represent our deposits if they do not have it all in cash?
2. How can the banks repay our deposits, over $2,262,000,000, with the amount of cash they hold?

The answer to No. 1 is: Look at any bank balance sheet and you will see for yourself that a bank owns more than it owes. That is to say—if all of its depositors were paid off and all of its other debts paid, a balance would be left belonging to the shareholders.

That should answer your first question satisfactorily. And now for No. 2: Look again at a bank balance sheet and you will see that in addition to the cash it holds, the bank owns assets quickly convertible into cash, or which can be used to borrow from the Bank of Canada.

Experience has taught banks the amount of cash it is necessary to carry to meet ordinary day to day demands, and also the proportion it is necessary to carry in gilt-edged quick assets which can be liquidated to meet even an extraordinary demand. Banks know that it is absurd to expect all depositors to call for their money at the same time.

That would be like saying that if everybody got sick at the same time there would not be room in the hospitals to take care of them.

Or that if every body who travels by street car decided to travel at exactly the same hour, there would not be enough cars to carry them.

Or that if every sea were drained dry there would be no ocean liners.

Such statements are meaningless when you expose them to the cold light of commonsense. What, then, does all the money come from? That question can best be answered by asking this one: Who owns it—and how do they get it?

Addressing ourselves to 4,740,000 depositors we answer: "This money is yours. You own it. When you call for it, you get it. When you ask any existing Canadian bank for it, do you ever fail to get it promptly?"

We ask you, too: "Do you regard your deposit as figures in a book?"

Your local branch bank manager will be glad to talk banking with you. He will be glad to answer your questions, from the standpoint of his own experience.

FORMER H'FORD BOY MEETS WITH AN ACCIDENT

An account of an accident to George E. Clayland, son of Mr. and Mrs. A. A. Clayland of Hemmingford, appears in a recent issue of the St. Croix Courier of St. Stephen, New Brunswick. Mr. George E. Clayland is well-known in both Chateaugay and Huntingdon counties. The account is as follows:

"Smashed against the trunk of a tree when he was knocked off balance while trimming limbs on the Rose estate about 11 o'clock Tuesday morning in the course of his work in the battle against the gypsy rope, he swung over to the tree next to which he was working to free a limb which caught after having been cut through, and the freed limb lashed back striking him in the face. Dazed by the blow, he lost his balance and swung pendulum fashion back against the trunk of the tree to which his rope was attached, striking with his full weight. He was brought down by Mr. Erdesky and taken to hospital at Wakefield, where he was apparently not nearly as serious as had been feared. Since resuming their work here this fall, the Dominion entomologists have found some 15 new egg clusters of the devastating gypsy moth, which have been formed since the middle of August.

DUNDEE

The last meeting of the United Church Ladies' Aid was entertained by Mrs. Lyle Currie at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Gordon Davidson. There was a good attendance of members. It was decided to hold the annual business meeting in November this year instead of December as has been the custom in the past. The ladies spent a social afternoon after which delicious refreshments were served by the hostesses, Mrs. Lyle Currie.

Mr. H. A. Cameron, who resides at Dundee, had the misfortune to have his left leg broken as a result of a kick from a horse last Wednesday afternoon. Mr. Cameron was doing some chores about the horse stable at the time. In answer to a telephone call, Messrs. Chas. Fraser and Cecil McNicol came over and assisted the injured man to the house. Dr. Gorman of Fort Covington was called in and less than half an hour arrived in a count-down with Dr. Smith. The latter found double fracture in the injured limb. First aid was rendered by the doctors and the broken bones set. Although suffering considerable pain, Mr. Cameron at time of writing is getting on nicely. Miss Anna Farley, R.N., of Malone assisted at the time of the accident.

Dewittville

The November meeting of the W. M. S. of the Huntingdon United Church met at the home of Mrs. M. Carr on Wednesday, Nov. 2. The day was ideal and there was an attendance of eleven members and two visitors. Collection $2.35. As this was an all day meeting, hot dinner was served at noon by the hostesses, assisted by Mrs. J. Smellie.

A little before noon on Saturday fire was discovered in the bushes of Messrs. W. D. Ruddleck and W. A. McClatchie. On Friday some stumps were set afire on a piece of ground near the Ruddleck place. The fire was extinguished but it was thought to be completely out at night. The strong wind which sprang up on Saturday fanned the smouldering embers into flames which quickly spread. Telephone operators called for help and a goodly number of men assembled and succeeded in getting the fire under control before much damage was done.

Mr. William Graham motored to Montreal on Thursday and brought Mrs. Graham home.

Mr. James Ritchie returned home from Montreal on Sunday after spending the past two weeks with Dr. and Mrs. J. E. Brown.

Mr. Guyler McDowell of Brockville and Mrs. C. S. Dunbrille of Maitland, Ont., were Thursday guests of their cousins, Mr. and Mrs. R. A. McIntosh, also Mr. I. Sheridan, undertaker, of Brockville, Ont.

Mr. and Mrs. R. A. McIntosh, who were Thursday and Friday guests of Mr. and Mrs. R. A. McIntosh, were called here by the death of Miss Ella McDowell, of Covey Hill on Thursday.

Mr. Lionel Tremblay spent the week-end in Montreal, the guest of his mother, Mrs. F. Tremblay and sisters, also visited his two nephews, also visited on Sunday.

Mr. and Mrs. John Lowden accompanied Mr. Lionel Tremblay to Covey Hill Friday evening, where they attended a reception held in honor of Mr. and Mrs. Kenneth Sutton.

Mrs. Herbert Ferns spent Sunday in Malone, N.Y., with friends.

Miss Roberta Dunn of Montreal, spent the week-end with Mr. and Mrs. Mac Ruddle.

Mrs. Kenneth McIntosh accompanied Mrs. Archie McIntosh to her home in Shawinigan Falls last Thursday and intends spending some time there.

Miss Beatrice Gamble, of Herdman, spent the week-end with the McClatchie family.

Mr. and Mrs. Clarence Phillips and Mrs. Margaret Kavanagh, of Outremont, and Miss Mary Williams of Ormstown, were Sunday guests of Mrs. D. Boyd at the home of Mr. and Mrs. James Ferns, Jr.

Mrs. Lorenzo Farquhar and Miss Marjorie Farquhar of Constable, were Monday afternoon callers at the McClatchie home. Miss Pearl McClatchie returned home with them for a week.

Mr. and Mrs. William Slack and Mrs. Arnold of Malone, N.Y., were Sunday guests at the home of Mr. and Mrs. William Graham.

Obituary

The late Mrs. Harry Upton On Wednesday evening, Nov. 2nd, 1938, Mamie Maryetta Upton, beloved wife of Harry Upton, Hemmingford, Que., and daughter of the late John and Mary Ann Kingsbury died in her 64th year.

Mrs. Upton had been in failing health for some time, and was confined to her bed for three months previous to her death.

Those who knew Mrs. Upton will always remember that her life was a happy one by nature; she never allowed her own troubles or cares to sadden either her family or her friends. Friday afternoon at two o'clock a prayer service was held at her home. Funeral service was held at St. Andrew's United Church with Rev. Victor C. Rose officiating. The choir sang "Where He Leads Me" and "The Sands of Time are Sinking". Mr. Arthur Merling sang a solo, "The Old Rugged Cross". Interment was in the local cemetery.

Those of the immediate family left to mourn her loss are her husband, Mr. Harry Upton, three daughters, Mrs. Leland Gibson, Mrs. Russell Williams, Miss Doris Upton, also two sons, James and George.

The bearers were: Messrs. J. E. McNaughton, Herbert McNaughton, D. F. Orr, Kenneth Cairns, Robert A. G. Fawcett.

The beautiful floral tributes showed the esteem and affection by which the deceased was held, and were as follows: Pillow from the family; spray, Mr. and Mrs. J. Williams and family; spray, Mr. and Mrs. George Dally; spray, Mr. and Mrs. Lawrence DeLano; spray, Mr. and Mrs. Fred Fortier and Mr. John Callon; spray, Mrs. Blanche Wiley Smith and Mr. and Mrs. C. Collangeon; spray, Mr. and Mrs. H. Reid and Miss Daisy Upton; basket of cut flowers, Mrs. John Fisher and Mr. Emmet Kingsbury; bouquet, Mr. and Mrs. Barrett, bouquet, Mrs. Smith and Mr. and Mrs. Mervyn Upton.

Those from a distance who attended the funeral included Mr. and Mrs. John Fisher and family, also Mr. and Mrs. W. Duprey of Chazy, N.Y., Mr. and Mrs. F. Fortier and Mr. John Callon, of St. Albans, Vt., Mr. and Mrs. Lapoint, Mr. and Mrs. Harvey Upton of Burlington, Vt., Mr. and Mrs. George Dally, Mr. and Mrs. H. Obituary

The late Eleanor A. McDowell After a short illness, there passed away on Nov. 1, 1938, at a Brockville, Ont. Hospital, Miss Eleanor A. McDowell, of Prescott road.

Born at Covey Hill, Que., on February 17, 1867, she was a daughter of the late James McDowell and his wife, who before her marriage was Miss Eleanor Blair. She spent her entire life until 16 years ago at Covey Hill, going to Brockville, Ont., with a sister, Miss Lizzie McDowell now deceased, to reside near relatives.

The late Miss McDowell was the youngest and last survivor of a family of eight children and was of a deeply religious nature. She was of a charitable disposition, highly industrious, and a great lover of floriculture. Her garden, situated a short distance east of Brockville, was always one of the most charming spots along the highway to Prescott.

Five nephews and three nieces mourn her demise. They are L. C. M. McDowell and Lt.-Col. N. L. McDowell, Brockville; Col. T. W. McDowell, V.C., Montreal; Lt.-Col. M. W. McDowell, Brockville; Mrs. C. F. Dumbrille, Maitland, Ont.; Mrs. L. A. George, Mansonsville, Que.; Mrs. R. A. McIntosh, Dewittville, Que.; and Howard H. Hall, a disabled war veteran in hospital at London, Ont.

The funeral service was held at Zion United Church, Covey Hill, Que. Interment in the Bethel Cemetery.

CANADA TO BE HEAVILY FORTIFIED

More contracts on the pattern of the one now so widely publicized, for the production of Bren machine guns in Canada, are reported to be in the offing as a consequence of consideration which the Department of National Defense is now giving to a program of heavy armaments for the Dominion.

The details of the government's intentions are authoritatively declared to be in an advanced state of preparation, and the expectation is that an appropriation to cover its cost will be sought from the approaching session of Parliament.

The plans are said to contemplate the production in Canada of heavy cannon, of anti-aircraft guns, and of torpedo motor launches.

The purpose of the new armaments will be largely for coastal defense, particularly in British Columbia, but also along the Atlantic seaboard and on the Island of Anticosti controlling the approach up the St. Lawrence.

What's in the Wind by PAULA DICKS

ARMISTICE - 20 YEARS AFTER Lloyd George—British Prime Minister of 1918—who is still plain David Lloyd George—now states "Liberty is in full retreat everywhere. The Dictators are on top. Without firing a shot Hitler has in less than a year, annexed to Germany more than 10,000,000 people. In Spain he has seized the northern shores of Bay of Biscay and the Pyrenees. In Southern Spain he has planted great guns on both sides of Gibraltar."

1938 . . . The year when capitulation without fighting is not termed surrender, but "appeasement."

"LEAGUE OF NOTIONS" Miss Constance Hayward, Field Organizer for the Maritime League of Nations Society was in Geneva during the recent crisis. Her impression of the session was disturbing. League delegates of some countries obviously voiced the instructions of their governments "in sailing away from the principle of collective action."

Muriel Jacobson of Hamilton, who was sent to Prague as observer of the Czechoslovakian crisis, says that there are 750,000 refugees in Prague from the Sudetan area. When President Beneš resigned the Czechs were two-fold financial assistance and some indication that outside nations still believed in the principle of democracy.

Miss Phyllis Bottomo, English writer whose novel, "The Mortal Storm" deals with a persecuted Jewish family, stated recently in Montreal, that "artists, scientists, and religious people are enemies of dictatorships." She has spent a good deal of time in Europe and quoted the German Minister of Propaganda as stating: "We cannot do anything with these tough intellectuals."

On November 2nd, Premier Chamberlain denied in the House of Commons that the Spanish Civil War is a threat to the peace of Europe. Mde. Genevieve Tabouis, press correspondent for a Paris Socialist Journal says that foreign diplomats who attended this debate felt that Mr. Chamberlain was "obsessed" by the strength of Germany and "intimidated by its power."

Hymns Valued By All Of Us

Unto the hills around do I lift up My longing eyes: O whence for me shall my salvation come.

From whence arise? From God the Lord doth come my certain aid.

From God the Lord, Who heaven and earth hath made.

He will not suffer that thy foot be moved: Safe shalt thou be.

No careless slumber shall His eyelids close. Who keepeth thee. Behold, He sleepeth not, He slumbereth ne'er.

Who keepeth Israel in His holy care. Jehovah is Himself thy keeper true. Thy changeless shade: Jehovah thy defence on thy right.

Himself hath made. And thee no sun by day shall ever smite: No moon shall harm thee in the silent night.

From every evil shall He keep thy soul. From every sin: Jehovah shall preserve thy going out.

Thy coming in. Above thee watching, He whom we adore Shall keep thee henceforth, yea, for evermore.

This hymn is of especial interest to Canadians, inasmuch as it was composed by one who had been Governor-General of the Dominion from 1878 to 1883.

The Marquess of Lorne, as he then was, the eldest son of the Duke of Argyll, one of the most famous orators and scientific writers of his day, was received in Canada upon his arrival to succeed the talented Lord Dufferin, with unusual enthusiasm. His wife was Princess Louise, daughter of Queen Victoria, who possessed a good deal of artistic ability as a sculptor, and loyalty to the Throne added to the warmth of the welcome everywhere accorded to their Excellencies.

There were theory questions awaiting the consideration of the new Governor-General. The dismissal of his Ministry by the Lieutenant-Governor of Quebec, followed by the removal from office of that official raised serious constitutional problems. The projected building of the Canadian Pacific Railway directed popular attention to Western Canada, then an unknown wild land of unrecognition possibilities, and also gave rise to political discussions of intense bitterness.

His position was a serious one, and it was well for him and for the country that he had trained, able counsellors, some of them Fathers of Confederation, to advise him.

After filling his term with credit to himself and his advisers, he returned to Britain, and threw himself into the work of government as member of the House of Commons. Upon the death of his father he succeeded to the Dukedom and went to the House of Lords.

He inherited a strong taste for literature and always wrote a good deal, several books issuing from his pen. He also wrote poetry as a relaxation, and especially turned his hand to the task of re-writing the Psalms of the Scottish Psalter in less rough, more modern English. Of these the one which has become most popular is his version of Psalm CXXI, the lovely old Jewish hymn, a favorite of Scottish Covenanters, beginning "I will lift up mine eyes unto the hills, from whence cometh my help."

Lord Lorne's idea was, he said to remove some archaisms and elemental roughness from the best known version of the Psalms as used in Scotland, and to modernize them somewhat.

A comparison of the third verse as printed above with that of the Scottish Psalter will serve to show how the Duke worked out his ideals. The Psalter's version was as follows: "The Lord thee keeps, the Lord thy shade"

On thy right hand doth stay: The moon by night thee shall not smite. Nor yet the sun by day."

No doubt the fact that whether designedly or not the Duke had cast his lines into the metre of Newman's "Lead Kindly Light," so that the "fine tune" "Sandon" sung to that hymn in the north of England, was soon wedded to them, assisted in the promotion of their popularity.

The Duke of Argyll died without issue in 1914; his widow, the Princess Louise, still lives.

Probably the original writer of this Psalm intended it for an evening hymn. It may have been written for a child's use. Possibly it was one of those Mary the Blessed taught her little "Boy," as Jewish mothers did, pass on their sacred hymns by word of mouth to their children, in those days when books were very scarce.

It is worth noticing in the verse quoted above how the writer assures himself of divine protection against dangers imaginary as well as real. The smiting or burning of the sun by day was a very real danger in the semi-tropical East. That the moon could injure by night was imagined by primitive people in many countries.

To this present writer it has always seemed that in that verse (Psalm CXXI, 6) the author would say "Have no fear for ghosts or bogies or any other moonshine worries, for your God shall guard you against all evil. He will watch over soul (verse 7) as well as body, while you sleep."

BUY A POPPY

The symbolism of the poppy, the sorrowful appropriateness of its blood-red bloom, takes on a deeper significance with each succeeding year. The Great War is passing almost into legend; a generation is bequeathed the duty of carrying into the years yet to come, the work and the ideals of those whom the poppy commemorates.

Canada has adopted the poppy as a symbol because of the 60,000 graves in France and Belgium in which lie the dead of the preceding generation, because the 17,000 Canadians to whom the conflict brought disablement of one kind or another. The crosses in the cemeteries of France and Flanders are garlanded with poppies, the dolorous emblems of a proud youth consumed in the "wrathful forge of war."

"The Poppies" that will be offered for sale this week by the Boy Scouts were made by disabled soldiers, therefore when you buy your poppy you not only acquire the "Emblem" but give some financial assistance to soldiers who served and suffered injuries that we might live.

Women's Institute Hold Meet

Donate Prize to Grandmother Present With Largest Number of Great-grandchildren

Grandmother's Day was celebrated by Huntingdon Women's Institute with Mrs. Joseph Laframboise as hostess a week ago Tuesday. The President, Mrs. Wallace Merson, presided.

Mrs. Wm. Ferns won a pretty hand crocheted centre piece donated by Mrs. Houghton with the greatest number of great-grandchildren, five.

Mrs. Crawford was awarded a prize in the buttonhole contest with Mrs. W. J. McCartney, honorable mention.

Mrs. L. Cappello was named convener of a Drama Committee, with Mrs. Wm. Graham and Mrs. Houghton.

Considerable discussion took place on the question of books to be purchased under agreement with the other County Branches. The Secretary read a letter from a friend of the Institute offering to donate a book each month, first selection suggested, "Conquest of Peru" by Basil King.

"Postscript to Adventure" by C. W. Gordon (Ralph Connor) and "With the West in Her Eyes" by Kathleen Strangle were selected for immediate purchase by the Branch. Twelve members present indicated their intention of joining the Reading Circle. Mrs. L. Brown is acting as Librarian and others who wish to join should communicate with her as soon as possible.

An appeal for reading material for use of the Institutes at Farnborough was made at the Semi-Annual meeting of the County. It was decided to pack a box, donations to be left with Mrs. J. Antoine. Country magazines and farm papers are especially desirable.

Preparations were made for a sale of home cooking and a quantity of fancy work, quilts, knitting and children's clothing to be held by the Institute.

"Postscript to Adventure" was the subject of a book review given by Mrs. W. L. Carr. Appropriate selections covered the early life of Rev. Charles W. Gordon and the character and work of his mother were read from recent issues of the Family Herald and Weekly Star. "Ralph Connor is one Canadian author who appreciates the contribution made by pioneer women," said Mrs. Carr. "It is one of the tragedies of literature, wrote he, 'that historians fill their pages with the doings of men and leave unrecorded the lives of the heroines of the race.'"

A communication from the County President, Mrs. James Bruce, was read with reference to the disposition of $1,256.80 in the Provincial treasury. After discussion it was unanimously approved that this Branch suggest that the funds be used as travelling expenses for the President, officers or conveners of the Quebec Women's Institutes when their attendance is necessary or desirable at provincial, national or international meetings.

The meeting concluded with tea and a pleasant social hour.

Foundation Cows For Dairy Herd

The Better Way to Start A Profitable Herd

For many years the use of better sires in our dairy herds has been urged and their use has brought about considerable improvement. However, the results are by no means all that could be desired. Large increase in the productive capacity of a herd of cows is apt to be a slow and uncertain process. The laws of inheritance can not be induced to work according to our wills and, when selections are not in accord with these laws, the percentage of low producing animals is large.

Many of the failures in breeding have been due to careless methods of selecting sires and to placing too much confidence in the ability of the sires to overcome the influence of the dams. Unless he is outstanding in transmitting powers, the dam exerts as much influence on the characters of the offspring as does the sire. Therefore more careful attention should be given to the selection of foundation females for a profitable herd of either grades or pure breeds.

The one who expects even the outstanding sire to correct all the defects in his herd is doomed to disappointment, because of the influence of the dams. There are many cows which have good or bad characters so firmly fixed in their germinal make-up that these characters are transmitted from generation to generation in spite of the influence of the sires. There are prepotent cows as well as sires and prepotency may exist for low production as well as for high production.

To start a profitable herd it is with cows which have the desirable characteristics and are themselves out of families which carry these characteristics in a high percentage of the animals, thus indicating that the desired qualities are fairly well fixed. This is as important as the careful selection of a sire.

WHISTLE FREES HER Miss Helen Robbins literally whistled her way to freedom when she was arraigned in the court of Magistrate Charles Medway, in Philadelphia, on charges of disorderly conduct. She whistled to show how she earned a living. "That's fine," said Medway, as he dismissed the charge.

Ald. Mallette Objects to Resolution

Ald. Hebert Appointed Mayor Pro-tem of Valleyfield—Large Crowd Gathers at Weekly Meeting of Council

The last meeting of the council of Valleyfield brought together His Honour, the Mayor, and the Aldermen with the exception of the two who recently resigned. Mr. Louis VI Major, president of the Proprietors' League of Valleyfield, assisted His Honour, the Mayor, in the Mayor's duties.

A crowd of citizens invaded the council room, filling it to its capacity, awaiting for new developments which did not happen. After reading the minutes of the last meeting, councillor Mallette refused the signing of the minutes, objecting to the resolution of Alderman Hebert.

Nevertheless, this objection was put aside by article 29 of the by-laws of the city, stating that the objections to the resolutions in the minutes should be made after the regular meetings of the council. This regulation annoyed a number of the crowd present and they were loudly airing their views on the subject.

The last part of the discussions brought the objection of Alderman Hebert to the point and Alderman Hebert's vote was asked. Alderman Hebert, Brisebois, Meloche and Bourdeau voted against this proposition in favour of Mr. Mallette's objection. His Honour the Mayor, thinking of Christian charity and his oath of office, decided in favour of the request of Alderman Mallette.

This resolution adopted, Alderman Hebert expressed himself in these terms: "I do not understand for what reason the presence of the treasurer at the meeting is so strongly objected to. It is not by closed meetings that the citizens may be informed."

On the resolution of Alderman Meloche, mayor pro-tem, and seconded by Alderman Laniel, the name of Alderman Gontran Hebert was put forth as mayor for the next term of the treasurer of the city was read stating that no employees of the municipal council had any arrears of taxes. Many changes have been made on the valuation roll.

A report of the valuation of the Superior of the Hotel-Dieu, of Valleyfield, regarding the purchase of stones to finish the work on the parking grounds, Alderman Desjean, seconded by Alderman Daignault, proposed that 250 tons of crushed stones be sold at one dollar.

This resolution was adopted. Mr. Wilfrid Lusselle and Mr. Li-guori Poirier stated that the valuation roll was finished. Alderman Brisebois, seconded by Alderman Laniel, proposed that the Engineer of the City should give a report to the council when the work is completely finished.

It was proposed by Alderman Mallette and seconded by Alderman Desjean that the clerk be granted permission to sell debentures for the city in accordance with the regular procedure of the city. This resolution was adopted.

It was proposed by Alderman Brisebois, seconded by Alderman Meloche, that the salary of the municipal employees be paid on Friday rather than on Saturday, the latter being the market day.

FLOOD TRAPS 700 SQUIRRELS Floods which trapped all wild animal life in the vicinity of Woodville, Cal., onto the top of a single knoll, enabled three men to kill 700 squirrels. Other animals which had sought refuge there in large numbers consisted of snakes, rabbits, skunks and even a badger.

HOG ROOTS UP $600 WORTH OF BURIED TREASURE

Elmer Morgan, Houston, Texas, filling station operator refuses to confirm the stories going around town about his $5 Poland-China hog rooting up a pot of buried treasure, but he does admit that the sow will be taken care of for the rest of her life. "I'll admit I've got $600 I didn't have before," Elmer says to interviewers as he palms a coin bearing the image of King George V of England, which he says is worth $17.50. Neighbors say the sow was rooting in a pen and that Elmer found the animal uncovering a buried war-time flare pot containing a great many coins.

Mons Remembers Canadian Corps in Section of War Museum

The memory of Canada and the Canadian Corps which relieved Mons on the German invader 20 years ago is kept ever green by the Belgian city and one of the most important sections of its war museum is devoted to a collection representative of the Canadian forces.

Display Uniforms

Two uniforms, worn by wax models, form part of the collection. One bears the insignia of the Royal Canadian Regiment, an officer of which unit, Lieut. W. M. King, Halifax, was the first Canadian to enter the Town Hall; the other was once the property of Private J. Crawford, 42nd (Black Watch) Battalion, which entered Mons on the night of Nov. 10, 1918.

Other exhibits in the Canadian section are a side-drum of the 43rd (Cameron Highlands) Battalion; a large maple leaf presented by the 19th Battalion; a Memorial List of the 85 officers and other ranks of the 2nd and 3rd Canadian Divisions killed in action near Mons, from Nov. 8 to Nov. 11; a picture of the cemetery at the village of Havre, three miles east of Mons, where Pte. George L. Price, who was buried in Port Williams, N.S., is buried. He was the last Canadian soldier killed in the War, being shot by a German sniper a few minutes before 11 o'clock, Nov. 11, 1918. The museum has a complete collection of cap badges and unit shoulder badges worn in the four Canadian Divisions presented by W. Turner, of Goderich, Ont.

There are eight sections in the Mons War Museum, of which the third is the Canadian. It is continually being added to as Mr. Licope receives new contributions from Canada.

VALLEYFIELD LEADING IN PROVINCIAL LOOP

Sherbrooke Red Raiders and Valleyfield's Braves drew 4-4 Tuesday night in an overtime clash of the Provincial Senior Hockey League at Sherbrooke.

The first and overtime sessions were scoreless, Majella Laforte, Raider centreman, opened the night's goal-getting when he fooled Lascelles early in the middle period. He put the homesters even before the frame ended after Deneault and Mentzel tallied for Valleyfield.

The centreman got his third goal in the last stanza following counters by Sherbrooke's Bell and Theo Hamel of Braves. Peer knotted the count for Valleyfield five minutes before the bell.

Dairy Herd Sire Has to be Proved

Means Whereby That End Can be Accomplished

Selection of a bull by pedigree is the best plan most men can follow. But that is not safe enough. The best of breeding fails sometimes. We must prove our bulls and when a bull is found that is capable of siring outstanding cows, he must be proved to the limit of his ability.

This practice is already in use in some of our leading herds. A promising young bull is mated to a few cows and then is either leased or held in reserve till his daughters come in milk. If they prove to be much better cows than their dams, the bull will then be brought back into use. Otherwise he will be sent to the block. Bull associations would form a means whereby the small dairyman's former cow could become the best in the end. They offer by far the most constructive community breeding plan yet devised.

The important point, however, is never afford to let a promising young bull get away. A very small part of the dairy bulls of the country are over three years old and no bull of that age can be a proven bull. Many of these young bulls which are continually finding their way to the market will be found later to have been literally "worth their weight in gold," and should have been true in so many cases in the past, and in many cases another untried bull will undo all the good accomplished by the first one.

No man whose herd is large enough to warrant it can afford not to prove his bulls. And in case of small herds several men should team together. The bull association is the best solution in such cases. But whatever the means used the proven bull is so important that the means should be provided. It is a safe prediction that within the next few years dairymen of the country will universally adopt the practice of proving all bulls.
