Three Promotions Announced By Police Dept. Here

Three promotions have been announced for the Westmount Police Department. The Examiner learned this week. The promotions are effective September 1.

Constable A. E. Jones has been promoted to detective. He lives at 118 Cote St. Antoine Rd., Westmount and has been a member of the force since 1939 having recently been appointed to motorcycle duty.

Constable A. E. Jameson, has been appointed to Sgt. of police after 13 years of service with the force. Residing in St. Laurent Jameson was on regular patrol duty in Westmount.

Constable L. Lauzon who has been promoted to Sgt. of Police after 20 years of service with the force. Constable Lauzon resides in N.D.G.

All three Constables were former members of the R.C.A.F. in World War II.

Lumbermen And Voyageurs Battle

The Westmount Y.M.C.A.'s annual Lumberman-Voyageur games started this week; competitions and games with the mighty Lumbermen battling for supremacy against the powerful Voyageurs.

On Monday morning last, the boys were chosen for the teams, and from that moment the feud began. In the afternoon the two teams gathered in the swim pool for a meet. After a bitter struggle the Lumbermen came out on top with a score of 89 points while the Voyageurs trailed with a score of 81.

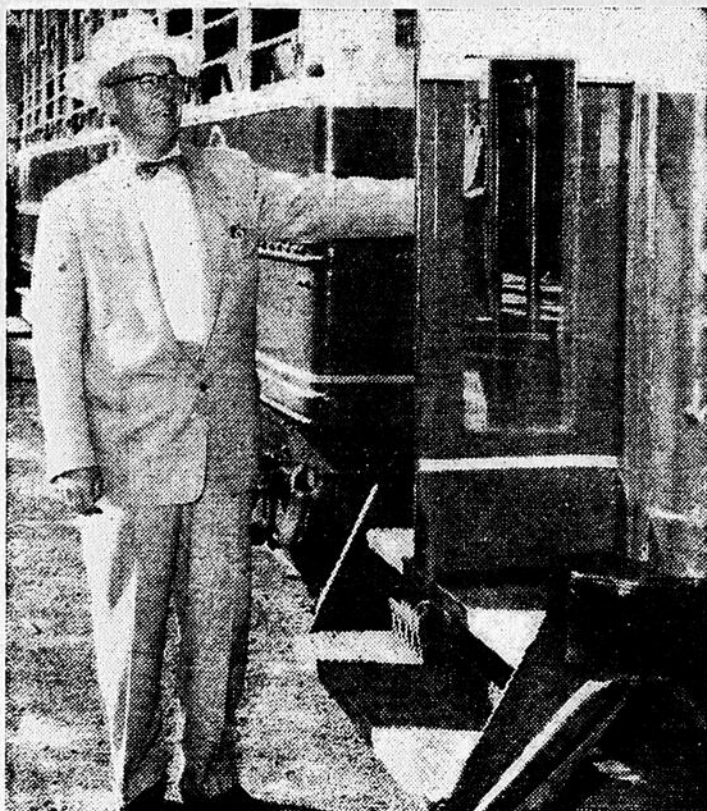

Tuesday morning the teams met on the Volleyball court. The Lumbermen, led by Chief Donnie Seller had his boys in tip-top shape as they took Chief Aricks' Voyageurs into camp in two straight games by the scores of 15-0 and 15-7. In the afternoon the competitors met for the track meet, and once again the mighty Lumbermen came through scoring 179 points to the Voyageurs 142.

Wednesday morning the boys exchanged brawn for brains in Chess Competition. At the time of writing the Voyageurs were making a great come back.

The rest of the week will include a game of Capture the Flag on Wednesday afternoon atop Mount Royal, Softball and a Commando Run on Thursday, Floor Hockey and a one act play on Friday. On Friday evening the boys will play hosts to their fathers at a Father and Son Swim which precedes the giving out of awards.

Westmount's Frank Fox Recalls "Good Old Days"

With 50 years of service behind him, Frank Fox, Superintendent of the Metropolitan Transportation Commission was feted by associates and friends last week at Cafe Martin.

Mr. Fox who lives at 221 Clarke avenue was presented with luggage from fellow superintendents and a watch from the office staff.

Mr. Fox noted the changes that have taken place through the years, as Montreal's main transportation medium has had to sacrifice "the human touch" in favor of greater efficiency.

A conductor at 15, Fox has outlasted the Montreal Street Railways Co. and the Montreal Tramways Co., and plans to stick with the transportation Commission as long as he can "hop a streetcar."

The ex-conductor, who manages to stave off ulcers and keep cheerful in his, often nerve-racking job, speaks nostalgically of the "good old days" when a conductor was king in his noisy, lumbering "rattler", and could be a little more human with his passengers.

Fox was friendly with many popular hockey players of his day and many's the time he carted them home in his street car after they had been out "doing the town."

Fox is hale and hearty and to prove it two weeks ago took 14 boys who were holidaying at the Montreal Boys' Association Camp Lewis, on a six mile hike.

St. George's Club Was Once Site Of Ancient Indian Burial Ground

By JOHN O'MEARA

An ancient Indian burial ground adjacent to the St. George's Curling Club, near Aberdeen avenue and the Boulevard is apparently rich in historic evidence of aboriginal tribes which roamed the Island of Montreal long before the discovery of America.

Dr. W. D. Lighthall, former Mayor of Westmount from 1900 to 1902 reported years ago that Westmount has the oldest history of any locality in America.

The Westmount Indian graves had the distinctive markings of burial grounds related to the stone-lined graves of the Illinois and other ancient Algonquin tribes of the Mississippi Valley and was different from that of the Hoche-lagans who occupied the Island from about the year 1400.

When the burial ground was discovered it was noted that each body was covered in its grave by a large flat stone placed in the shape of an A. Historic evidence traced this type of burial to the Mississippi tribes.

The Westmount Indian graves also did not contain any pottery or other objects used by the Hoche-lagans.

Such evidence indicates that the people of the stone-lined graves were the second known possessors of the site of Westmount.

The graves were not discovered until 1898 and it was Dr. Lighthall who revealed these startling facts concerning the burial ground here.

Although this discovery in one respect proves that Westmount has the longest history in the United States and Canada it is generally conceded that South American tribes are best known for their early background.

Westmount Sr. and Jr. High Plan Some Staff Changes

By ALLAN M. SANDZELIUS

With an estimated 1,200 youngsters returning to Junior and Senior High School classes in Westmount in five days, there will be a few new faces in evidence this year among the ever changing staff scene.

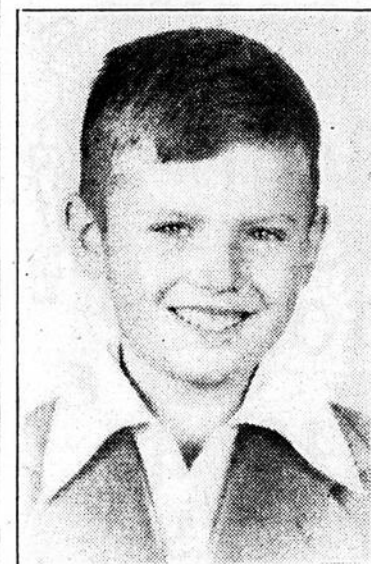

With the predominance of replacements slated for Westmount Junior, we hereby give a summary as released this week by Westmount School Board Chairman, C. H. Savage.

In the arts courses Miss Davis succeeds to the post held by Miss Edgerton in both the Junior and Senior High, upon the latter's retirement last spring. In the Junior School arts department, Miss

Westmount Boy In First Television Appearance Here

When the giant lens of a television camera focused on 10-year-old Freddy Kloos, of 435 Mount Pleasant avenue, he took it all with the calm determination of a veteran actor.

Freddy was guest on Sam Farber's "Magic" program and the first Westmount boy ever to appear on video.

Freddy was presented with a book on magic by Farber last Thursday as a reward for guessing the number of pages contained in a book which was displayed on the program the previous week. The correct answer was 192 pages and Freddy's guess of 196 was the closest to the correct number.

Freddy is entering sixth grade at St. Leo's Academy and is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Raymond Kloos.

Douglas-Murray takes the place of Mrs. Beraha while Miss Matthews joins the Misses Cochrane and Dryden on the same school's physical education staff.

Miss Eaton replaces Miss Wilson in the post of French instructor also at the Junior High, while mathematics teacher Miss Helen Wright retires giving the position to Miss McKay.

The combined WHS/WJHS domestic science course instructor, Miss Turman is also on this season's retirement list and will be replaced by Mrs. Stuart.

The only male staff shift this term will see Mr. Johansson take over as manual training instructor, the position being vacated by Mr. Fraser.

In addition to these aforementioned changes are the yearly dozen or so replacements on the teaching staffs of the Westmount elementary schools — Roslyn, King's and Queen's.

Attendance figures of all schools combined last term showed, according to Mr. Savage, a record total of 2,578 pupils under the jurisdiction of the Westmount Board.

Of this total, approximately 700 attended Westmount Jr. High with about 400 at the Senior School. Mr. Savage also pointed out that, "Depending on the number of students outside the city of Westmount who plan to come to our schools, there is an indication that these figures could increase."

The only policy change (if it can thus be called) would be the merger of Westmount Junior and Senior High Schools' athletics to the extent that boys from WJHS be eligible to join their Senior counterparts in forming a Junior Football and possibly a Hockey team.

Readers are invited to watch these pages for a regular 'school column' which will contain all news, social and educational starting in a few weeks, of the doings of students at WHS. This will be in addition to the regular weekly high school sports review by your school correspondent.

For further information, see Educational Page.

Chess Popular Pastime With Boys at Y.M.C.A.

The age old game of Chess has really come into its own at Westmount Y.M.C.A. The youngest to the eldest in the Y Summer Fun Club are Chess enthusiasts.

The Checkers remain unused and dusty, but the Chess men are getting that well-worn look. Not any set of chess men will suit these "Y" players — no sir — they have their favourite set, favourite color, favourite table and even the preferred side of a table. Here is real enthusiasm.

At this moment, in the Boy's Games Room, 40 boys are playing in a Chess tournament, a tournament which is part of the Lumbermen-Voyageur Week Program, it takes a real interest to get boys to play Chess, inside the building on a hot summer day, and these boys are playing Chess and enjoying it.

Scottish Concert Opens Sept. 2

"Scotland's Gentleman", Alec Finlay, with his All Star Scottish party direct from the Alhambra Theatre, Glasgow will pay a return visit to Victoria Hall, Westmount for a three day stand September 2, 3, and 4.

Alec Finlay, Scotland's leading comedian who is regarded as the successor to Sir Harry Lauder and is a pupil of the late Sir Harry needs no introduction to Montreal audiences. Alec Finlay has brought smiles and tears to packed houses here on his three previous appearances just as he has done to the tens of thousands who patronized the annual pantomimes at Glasgow's leading theatre the Alhambra for the past two years. He is booked to again head the cast of the year's panto. In his inimitable character presentations of the "Oldest Inhabitant" and "The Elder O' The Kirk" his pawky humor is outstanding. Alec's playing of the bagpipes while dancing is something to see. He is the only artist who can dance and play the bagpipes at the same time.

The supporting cast includes two artists who have already established themselves as favourites with local audiences. Francis Derry who appeared with Robert Wilson two years ago will team up with George Cormick hailed as Scotland's leading tenor in favorite Scottish duets. Both artists will also be heard in solo numbers.

Will Starr needs no introduction. He is the Premier Button Accordionist who had last year's audience tapping away with both feet with his renditions of Scottish Reels and Strathspeys.

Margaret Smart who is making her first appearance in Montreal is considered the finest violinist in Scotland.

Will Dick, the Master of Ceremonies, will be remembered as the M.C. who kept the show moving at a fast pace with his droll stories and introductions.

Sun Dresses

Are you tired of finding your favourite sun dress in a heap on the clothes closet floor because shoulder straps wont stay put on the hanger? Here is a simple and sure way to keep it from slithering off the hanger. Bend each end of a wire hanger up until the ends form little hooks. Your dress will be safe and secure — and fresh as a daisy when you are ready for it. The bolero jackets from discarded sun dresses make wonderful dust protectors for your best suits and dresses as they hang in the closet.

Water will boil at the top of Mt. Blanc at 84 degrees Fahrenheit.

Final Respects Paid T. E. Heron Sales Executive

Numerous friends and relatives gathered last Saturday to pay final respect to the memory of T. E. Heron, who died suddenly August 21 at his home, 1 Parkman Place, Westmount from an unexpected heart ailment. He was in his 44th year.

Funeral service was held in the Chapel of Jos. C. Wray, 1234 Mountain street, at 2 p.m. Saturday. Interment was in Mount Royal Cemetery.

Mr. Heron was assistant manager and assistant secretary of Riordon Sales Corporation Limited of Montreal having been a member of that organization for 23 years. He was active and highly respected in the sale of wood-pulp with extensive personal relationships throughout Canada, United States, and in overseas markets.

He was born in Toronto, but was a resident of Montreal for the past 42 years. Early in his business career he took an active part in the organization of what was then known as the Junior Board of Trade, which has developed into the Young Men's Section of the Montreal Board of Trade. He was a longstanding member of the Gyro Club, Montreal Amateur Athletic Association, Canadian Club, Montreal Anglers and Hunters Inc., and one of the charter members of the Longcastor Fish and Game Club. For many years he has been an active captain of teams for the annual Red Feather campaign of the Welfare Federation of Montreal.

He is survived by his widow Stella (Ross), and by their two sons, Ross and Barry; also by his mother, two sisters, Mrs. Ross Cuthbert and Miss Evelyn M. Heron, all of Montreal.

He was for many years a member of Fairmount-St. Giles United Church and latterly of Dominion-Douglas Church, Westmount.

How Sea Queens Compare

Longer, lighter and faster is the way the United States, largest liner ever built in this country, stacks up against the British sea queens Elizabeth and Mary, as shown by newschart above. The new liner captured the trans-Atlantic speed record held by the Queen Mary, which in 1933 made the crossing in three days and 21 hours. The five-block-long United States was designed as a potential transport and could be converted to carry 15,000 troops.

Westmount Recreation Dept. News

PLAYGROUND CLOSING

Today is a sad one for the youngsters of Westmount. Why? Well, the Summer Program finished, and the boys and girls are looking forward (not too eagerly) to school opening next week.

However, they have had a very active summer and we're sure they have learned something while at the same time enjoying themselves.

At time of writing, we cannot say anything about the Square Dance held last night but plans looked good for a swell time for all. City of Westmount Crests will be presented to various boys and girls who have earned them throughout the summer.

Good luck to all in this school year, and we hope to see you together on the playgrounds come next summer.

Putting Tournament

The putting tournaments have been very popular this year and to date many people have won spoons partment dance which was held on Thursday last. Howard Fairburn and Bill Hopper co-operated with Recreation Director Lionel Fournier.

The "Y" swim pool is a very popular spot these days. Many dads have been teaching their sons how it was done when Dad was a boy.

who have never won before.

By the way, the new spoons have been delayed due to vacation time, but it is hoped that we shall have them within a few days.

The last tournament was held on Tuesday, August 26, and Mr. Regan and Mrs. Lydon were the winners of this 2-ball foursome. Spoons already won but not received will be given out just as soon as possible.

England Interested In More Trade Here, Rotarians Told

To keep British industry going and to build England's defenses we are interested in ores, metals, timber and pulp from Canada, Roger Gresham Cooke, Director of the Society of Motor Manufacturers and Traders of Great Britain told the Westmount Rotary Club this week.

"Since the war," the speaker claimed "England has been short of purchasing power and kind as Canada has been with gifts and loans, we wish to pay for our purchases."

"We can do that by sending you manufactured goods and performing other services for you," he added.

Mr. Cooke pointed out that England wishes to bear their part with Canada in the great development going on in this country. He stated that England is interested in buying from Canada as much as possible of their surplus agricultural produce.

"The exports of the British motor industry before the war were 85 million dollars a year. In 1947 they had risen to 260 million dollars. Out of the 500,000 made in a year at home nearly 400,000 are exported. Out of 250,000 commercial vehicles, 140,000 are sold overseas. Thus we in Britain are the world's largest exporter of motor vehicles today, in exporting over 70% of our production."

Elaborating further on the British car market he claimed that England has sent 160,000 cars here since the war and that British Industry produces 3,000 cars a month as well as commercial vehicles, tractors, engines and accessories.

Mr. Cooke delivered his interesting talk through a haze of cigar smoke. Rotarians deftly chewed the cigars which were passed out by Frank Kenwood whose wife gave birth this week to her third daughter.

The speaker was introduced by Ewart Everson and thanked by Felix Alexander.

Final Respects Paid W. Maxwell

A contingent from the Westmount Police Force joined with relatives and friends Monday to pay final respects to the memory of Constable William Maxwell, former Westmount Police officer, who died Monday following a lengthy illness. He was 58.

The funeral was held Monday afternoon from the Jos. Wray Chapel, Mountain street and the interment was in Mount Royal Cemetery.

Constable Maxwell was for a number of years assigned to Westmount Park where he made many friends.

Constable Maxwell retired from the force recently and began his pension July 19, 1952. He is survived by his wife.

STUDENTS GOOD LOSERS

Some people are natural-born losers. But apparently the younger generation has a real talent for it. According to the calculations of the Sheaffer Pen Company, the average high school senior has owned 6.4 pens during his school life, and lost 4.8 of them.

Canadian defence expenditure currently represents 45 per cent of the Federal budget.

Your School, Your Child, and You

By E. GEORGE COCHRANE

(Assistant Principal, Van Horne School)

BACK TO SCHOOL

The schoolbells toll again next week and thousands of school children from every nook and cranny of the Island of Montreal will be hanging up their swimming suits, putting their summer toys in the attic and returning to classrooms. There'll also be a good number of timid little folk who will be making the trek to school for the first time.

What a variety of questions must be running through the minds of the youngsters as the time designated as "back to school day" approaches! Who's going to be my teacher? Will French be hard to learn? Gee, I hope fractions aren't too hard. I wonder if my friend Sue will be in my class again. I sure hope I do well this year.

Whether or not your child is going to get along well in school, Mr. and Mrs. Parent, depends to a considerable extent on you. For the guidance of the parents of school children, in particular to those parents whose children are entering school for the first time, here is a set of do's and don'ts which might be of some guidance.

Do's

1. Get to know the teacher of your child and the principal of the school. Often this can best be done on the "parents' day" or "parents' night" held at almost every school at some time during the school year. You'll probably find that a few minutes' discussion with these people about whom your child brings home such fascinating stories will be both interesting and profitable.

2. Join the Home and School Association but don't be one of those who merely pays his dues and considers that sufficient participation. Join the groups which Home and School Associations organize. In particular, join the child study groups which have done such excellent work in Montreal for the past several years. Discussing the problems of rearing children with other parents, and with a trained child psychologist leading the discussion, is one pleasant way of discovering why your child acts as he does.

3. Try to learn the educational philosophy of the school which your child is attending. Often this will be explained by the principal at the first Home and School meeting in the fall. Find out exactly what the school is trying to accomplish with your child and what methods it uses in securing its aims.

4. With regard to the vexatious question of homework — the problem causes a few heated discussions in even the most serene of households — it is best to let your child do his own. Don't, ever, do it for him and be very chary with the suggestions you give. See that he does the assigned work, or makes a mighty good effort to do so. If you think that too much homework is assigned, don't tell Johnny. Make an appointment to see his teacher and discuss the matter with him.

5. Do your best to have your child attend school regularly. Naturally, if he's ill he should be kept at home but there is little excuse for having a pupil miss half a day of school in order to go shopping with his mother, or for taking a morning off because he was up late at a hockey game the night before. Withdrawing your child from school for such trivial reasons as these builds up in him only a feeling that school, after all, can't be very important. Such a belief isn't going to help him very much.

1. Don't picture the school to your child as a type of medieval prison in which a collection of sadistic beings do their best to make children unhappy. School should be a happy experience for the normal youngsters and he should be led to look forward to starting school — not dread it.

2. Don't ridicule the school's policy on any matter to your child even though you believe that a committee of patients in a mental hospital could do a better job of drawing up a series of sensible regulations. Such actions on your part will only lead to your child's developing into a discipline problem in school.

3. Don't keep telling your child how intelligent he is — or how stupid he is. The first will make him such an insufferable egotist that it will be a virtual impossibility to teach him anything. The second will give him such a feeling of inferiority that he will be too prone to give up when confronted with a problem or a job to do.

4. Don't come to the school when it is in session and expect the teacher to leave a class of 40 pupils to talk to you about one. It can't be done. Proper procedure in most schools calls for the parent and the teachers to agree upon a convenient meeting time.

5. Don't hesitate to come to the school to state what you consider to be a legitimate grievance or to inquire about some phase of the school's policy which you don't understand. Principals and teachers will be glad to talk things over with you. Remember, it's your school. But don't forget — you don't own all of it.

Cottage cheese is a versatile food. It can be eaten alone, or it can be temptingly combined with many other foods to make a great variety of delectable dishes that will add welcome changes to your daily menus.

For Sunday's Main Meal, Plan On Turkey and Blueberry Pie

Small, plump turkeys, from two-and-a-half to 10 pounds each, are ideal for the small family Sunday dinner. Here's how to cook the very small ones from two-and-a-half to 5 pounds. Small young turkeys, about 3 months old, may be split or dis-jointed for broiling or trying. The smaller varieties with inconspicuous pin feathers are most suitable. Ready to cook, they weigh 2½ to 5 pounds. Broil or fry. The smaller varieties adjust the cooking time to the size of the pieces. Roasting, of course, is another good turkey idea.

Chinese Stirred Beans

Prepare 3 cups (1 pound) of fresh green beans by snipping off the ends and slicing them diagonally or lengthwise. Heat 2 tablespoons of vegetable oil or bacon fat in a heavy skillet. Add the sliced beans and keep stirring them about a minute. Add ½ of a cup of water and 1 teaspoon of salt, and cover the skillet.

Cook 3 to 5 minutes (when beans will turn a brighter green). Then take off the cover and continue cooking 5 or 6 more minutes, until the beans are tender. Stir occasionally to avoid scorching.

The water will evaporate, leaving flavorful green beans ready to eat. Serve promptly. If you are delayed, put the beans in the oven to keep warm.

Blueberry Pie

It is generally a two-crust pie. Make a regular pastry crust. Allow ½ cup of sugar and 1 tablespoon flour to each cup of berries. Mix the flour with the sugar. Tapioca may be used in place of the flour as a thickening agent. A little cinnamon, a little lemon juice, or vinegar, and a few dots of butter are sometimes added.

Put on the top crust with breathing holes already punched in the crust. Cook as for regular pie: 450 degrees F. for 10 minutes and at 350 degree F. until pie is done (about 30 minutes).

Canada's national income and the value of goods and services during 1951 totalled $21,200,000,000, a record.

The Conciliator's Function

Conciliation and Arbitration Are Different Labor Processes

The function of a conciliator is to mediate in a dispute. It is not his duty to determine the rights and wrongs of it and to enforce a settlement. Thus the conciliation process is very different from arbitration when a decision is made unilaterally by one or more arbitrators and forced upon the disputants. Free society considers it desirable that industrial arguments in general be worked out by the parties involved, free of external pressure.

Compulsory arbitration of disputes would deny the democratic aims of collective bargaining.

A Threat To Housing

Free-Market Economy Now Only
Solution for Adequate Building

From 1946 to 1951, inclusive, 485,500 new houses were completed in Canada. During the same period 510,000 new families were formed. It is estimated that, by 1955, housing production can be increased to 130,000 units a year, thus aligning the number of new homes both with family formation and economic development. This would entail steady employment for 350,000 workers.

Continuance of controlled sales prices for houses is the only serious threat to this development. The controlled prices are too low to permit builders to operate economically. Construction costs are uncontrolled and are rising. As a result many builders are curtailing their commitments. The way to get all Canadians adequately housed as soon as possible is to leave the job to the free market-economy.

B. of M. Review Forecasts More Economic Activity

While difficulties will not be absent during the second half of 1952, the "main economic indicators are all pointing in the same direction of heightened activity." This is the keynote to the Bank of Montreal's latest business review which this month analyses trends indicated by the economic record for the first half of 1952.

The review notes signs that the "wheels of the economic mechanism are coming into closer alignment." The rearmament program, capital goods industries and export markets continue to make "strong demands" on the nation's resources. "Added to this, the consumer, after sitting back and buying sparingly for over a year, has since April been coming forward into the market and spending more freely."

But this is not to suggest that "all will be smooth rolling for business" the B of M report emphasizes. The review points to an apparent lessening of the volume of work ahead for the construction industry, the vulnerable element in Canada's large export trade surplus with overseas countries, the "uncomfortably" high inventories which continue in a few lines, and deterrent and disruptive effects which are bound to result from the recent prolonged steel strike in the United States.

Defence Outlays Rise

Government of Canada expenditures during the three months to the end of June showed a significant increase over the comparable fiscal quarter of 1951, due mainly to a rise of 62 per cent in Department of Defence and Defence Production outlays. The bank adds that, since defence disbursements in this quarter were "far short" of the level implied by the budgetary estimate, defence spending should "continue to gain momentum in the months ahead." In addition, the United States is buying more armaments here, "establishing a better balance in reciprocal defence purchases between the two countries."

More important in "magnitude and economic impact" than direct defence disbursements, however, are the trend and pattern of expenditures of a capital nature now being undertaken, mainly to develop strategic resources, the B of M stresses. Capital outlays for 1952 in chemicals, non-ferrous metals, iron, steel, petroleum, coal, rubber, railways, water transport and transportation equipment are expected to show large percentage increases over 1951. By contrast, declines are estimated in sectors of the economy less closely related to the defence effort: finance, insurance, real estate, commercial services, forestry, wholesale and retail trade, and housing.

Canada's foreign trade to the end of June this year has been featured by a consistently heavy flow of merchandise exports amounting to an increase in value of 20 per cent over the comparable period for 1951. The bank review notes especially that virtually the whole of this increase has been in the "movement of goods to markets other than the United States." By contrast, Canadian merchandise imports for the half-year declined seven per cent in value from the levels of a year earlier.

Foreign, Domestic Trade

The combined effect of the opposing trends in exports and imports, according to the review, has been to re-establish an over-all trade surplus and at the same time lead to the reappearance of a traditional regional imbalance.

The fact that this large surplus is concentrated in trade with dollar-short countries inevitably raises the question of how long

LABOUR DAY

By Rev. Canon R. Kenneth Naylor,
Trinity Memorial Church

Next Monday we observe Labour Day, the day which we pay special honour to the fact that we are all proud to be labourers.

It is in the Jewish-Christian tradition that labour and its honour are emphasized. God is represented as labouring at the task of creation and then as resting from His work. He commands His people to labour and to rest from their labour. God is a Maker, a Creator, a Labourer, and He has made man in His own likeness. So man to satisfy that likeness must also be maker, creator and labourer. No idler is a complete man.

Labour Day then is essentially a religious festival, a very different affair from the May Day observance celebrated in the radical tradition of continental Europe. Those observances were intended to emphasize the radical purposes of political labour, generally with a Communist trend. Our Labour Day was not intended politically but with the sheer purpose of emphasizing the dignity of labour. From that point of view we all take part in it from the parson to the Prime Minister — we are all labourers and all proud of it.

However, there is another side to the matter which we must recognize. There is a group in the community which we call "Labour". Perhaps it can be described as consisting of those who work for an hourly or weekly wage, as compared with those whose wages are reckoned by the week or the month (the distinction is, of course, a very rough one.)

This century has been marked by a very steady rise in the status and importance of "labour" in this sense. There have been several reasons. In the first place the community as a whole has gradually become aware that labour in the past had not had a square deal. In the second place labour itself became aware of its potential power and proceeded to organize in order to use that power. In the third place this century has been the period of two World Wars, and it is a well known fact that in time of war the value of labour is greatly enhanced. So this century has been marked by the rise of labour politically and economically. That development unfortunately has not been accompanied by an equal sense of responsibility. Until that takes place, the power of labour may be a detriment to the community as a whole.

We see that lack of responsibility in the number of strikes that have been called in order to raise the status — not of labour as a whole, but of one particular group.

When labour learns that it has

Christian Science

"Christ Jesus" is the subject of the Lesson-Sermon to be read in Churches of Christ, Scientist, on Sunday, August 31st.

This Lesson-Sermon brings out that Jesus was a human being whose career gives his fellow mortals the pattern they all must sooner or later follow; while the Christ is the true idea of God which has come, and will always come, to the receptive thought in every age.

The Golden Text is from II Corinthians (4:6): "God, who commanded the light to shine out of darkness, hath shined in our hearts, to give the light of the knowledge of the glory of God in the face of Jesus Christ."

Citations from the Bible include the following: "And thine ears shall hear a word behind thee, saying, This is the way, walk ye in it, when ye turn to the right hand, and when ye turn to the left." (Isaiah 30: 21.)

The Lesson-Sermon also includes the following passage from the Christian Science textbook "Science & Health with Key to the Scriptures" by Mary Baker Eddy: "The advent of Jesus of Nazareth marked the first century of the Christian era, but the Christ is without beginning of years or end of days. Throughout all generations both before and after the Christian era, the Christ, as the spiritual idea, — the reflection of God, — has come with some measure of power and grace to all prepared to receive Christ, Truth, Abraham, Jacob, Moses, and the prophets caught glorious glimpses a responsibility to the community as a whole and plans for the good of the State, then it will become not only a great force in the community but a force for great good.

WEDDING

KIRKWOOD - HOLMES

White flowers were arranged in the sacristy of the Church of the Ascension of Our Lord, Westmount for the wedding at three o'clock on Saturday, August 23, of Miss Diane Imogene Holmes and Mr. Thomas Mulvey Kirkwood. The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. A. Bernard Holmes, of Montreal, and the bridegroom, the son of Mr. James A. Kirkwood and of the late Mrs. Kirkwood, of Toronto, Rev. Father Feron performed the ceremony.

Mrs. John J. Kavanagh was matron of honor for her sister and Miss Cynthia Watt, bridesmaid. Little Miss Jane Kavanagh, niece of the bride, was the flower girl. Mr. James D. Kirkwood was best man for his brother and Messrs Regan and Fred Kirkwood, also brothers, ushered.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride wore a long sleeved floor-length gown of white embroidered Swiss organdy over taffeta, the fitted bodice with Peter Pan collar and tiny buttons to the waistline, the full skirt being worn over a crinoline, and falling into a short train. A coronet of orange blossoms held in place her finger-tip veil of tulle illusion and she carried a small bouquet of white feathered carnations and ivy leaves.

The matron of honor and the bridesmaid were in identical short sleeved ballerina-length dresses of white organdy embroidered with Wedgwood blue, the frocks fashioned with portrait necklines and worn over Wedgwood blue taffeta, to match their sashes and shoes. Their bouquets were of white feathered carnations and they wore coronet headdresses of the same kind of flowers.

The flower girl was in a short dress fashioned on the same lines, with Peter Pan collar, and carried flowers to match her headdress.

Mrs. Holmes, mother of the bride, wore a cocktail gown of pleated midnight blue net over navy taffeta, with taffeta bolero

Aides Receive Pins, Monograms At Graduation Held Wednesday

Eighth graduation exercises of the Montreal School for Nursing Aides were held Wednesday afternoon at 3001 Kent Avenue, when Aides received their pins, certificates and arm-monograms. The Lieutenant Governor's Medal, presented to the Aide who attained the highest general standing, was awarded to Miss Cora Bachelder, of Rougemont, Que.

Mr. Samuel S. Cohen, President of the Board of Trustees, presided and also presented the pins and certificates to the September 1951 Class, and the arm monograms to the March 1952 Class. Dr. John Dixon, B.Sc., C.M., Resident Physician of the Montreal Convalescent Hospital and Medical Officer of the Montreal School for Nursing Aides, presented the Lieutenant Governor's Medal.

Address by Editor

Miss Margaret E. Kerr, M.A., R.N., Editor and Business Manager of "The Canadian Nurse" magazine, who was introduced and thanked by Mr. Cohen, was the speaker of the afternoon. Others who spoke briefly were Mr. Cohen, and Miss Sara Tansey, Superintendent of the Montreal Convalescent Hospital. The Rev. R. C. Belbin gave the invocation and pronounced the benediction. Mrs. George B. Johnstone acted as pianist for the graduating exercises.

A reception and tea followed.

True Story of Fabulous Spies Furnishes Plot of "5 Fingers"

The real-life story of one of the most fabulous and highest paid spies in history furnishes the exciting plot for "5 Fingers," the Twentieth Century-Fox picture starring James Mason, Danielle Darrieux and Michael Rennie, which comes to the Westmount Theatre on Sunday.

Mason will be seen as the spy, "Cicero," whose incredible exploits were first revealed in the book "Operation Cicero" by L. C. Moyzisch, which was a best-seller and formed the basis for the screenplay by Michael Wilson. Miss Darrieux came from Paris to play the femme fatale role and Rennie will be seen as a British intelligence agent.

Interest in the exploits of the master spy Cicero started when the late Ernest Bevin stated in the House of Commons that "only providence saved the world when Moyzisch sent Von Ribbentrop the most amazing set of photostats in history." They revealed the complete plans the Allies had made for the last years of World War II, including full details of the Normandy beachhead. The Germans considered the papers a crude hoax, although their agent, Moyzisch, paid $300,000 for them. Von Ribbentrop, also considering them false, threw the documents into the waste basket.

Moyzisch was the secret agent of the German High Command in Ankara during the war and the information was sold to him by Cicero, valet of the British Ambassador in Ankara, who stole the documents from the embassy safe. This amazing operation is dramatically told in "5 Fingers."

To give the picture complete authenticity Director Joseph Mankiewicz and Producer Otto Lang took a company to Ankara and Istanbul, Turkey for the exterior scenes. By actual count there were 30 separate location sites in Turkey including the Grand Bazaar in Istanbul, the Golden Horn harbor of the Bosphorus and the three most famous Mosques in the world, the St. Sophia, the Suleiman and the Blue Mosque.

Added Feature

As an added attraction we bring you Mickey Rooney, that imitable, indefatigable entertainer, star of a thoroughly delightful new musical maneuver, Columbia Pictures' "Sound Off," filmed in Supercinecolor. The film's crooney and swooney—and looney!—ingredients add up to plenty of pleasure, if the reaction of yesterday's audiences is to be considered.

Mickey is cast as a night club entertainer who receives "greetings" from a committee of his "friends and neighbors." In the army, he falls woefully in love with an army nurse, a lieutenant. But the lady of his affections is being courted by a sedate Major, and she won't give him a tumble—at first. Rooney's song and dance shenanigans to win the fair lady are fun to watch and his troubles with the army are completely entertaining.

Probably the most exciting routine in the picture is one in which Rooney does a night club act surrounded by a bevy of gorgeous six-footer chorines. The film's most amusing musical number is a Rooney-and-G.I.s routine set in a rustic barn yard. In this, Mickey presents some fast and fine army bugling. Rooney himself penned the featured song in this sequence, a clever ditty entitled "Blow Your Own Horn."

Highlighting "Sound Off" are six swell tunes, including "Sound Off," the hit parade title song; "Bugle Blues," "Lady Love," Rooney's own "Blow Your Own Horn," "It's the Beast in Me," and "Home Sweet Home in the Army."

At Westmount

James Mason and Danielle Darrieux are two Europeans caught in Turkish diplomatic intrigue in Twentieth Century-Fox's "5 Fingers," the story of the highest paid spy in history which opens Sunday at the Westmount Theatre.

Direct From Hollywood By JACK HIRSHBERG Actress Spends Vacation As Paramount Foots Bill and attempts to sign Humphrey Bogart for the role were unsuccessful.

Rather than shove Suzanne into a part for which she was unsuited in some other movie, Paramount let her sun herself six months on the California beaches and paid her every Friday. Suzanne admits it has been a pleasant holiday but not particularly healthy for her career. So now she's off to France to co-star with Serge Reggiani, whom I have never heard of, in a French language film. Then she hopes to do a play in London.

Suzanne probably saved some of her $500 weekly stipend. In Hollywood she was paid for NOT making movies, while in Europe she was NOT paid for actually kept her at work over a year making movies. Orson Welles as his Desdemona in "Othello" but so far has paid only her hotel bills and not a penny of salary. Suzanne, however, says she does not intend to sue. She figures he's a great genius and thinks working with him was worthwhile for what she learned about acting.

"He's a brilliant man of great charm and we have much mutual respect," she told me.

Suzanne was in Hollywood once before. After a brief modelling career in New York she came west to play a bit with Merle Oberon in a Universal film which received something less than critical raves. Film Director George Stevens, who recently won an Oscar for making "A Place in the Sun," felt she had talent and took her under his protective wing. She was to become his protegee. But all Stevens did was turn down a succession of roles, claiming they weren't big or good enough for Miss Cloutier. This might have been protective, but it certainly was not nourishing. Suzanne went to work selling drapery goods by the yard in a Beverly Hills shop to pay her grocery bills and help feed her young husband who was studying medicine at Loyola University in Los Angeles. His government grant didn't quite cover the high costs of living.

After over a year of this Suzanne went to Paris where she found success on the stage and in HOLLYWOOD, August 28 — Another chapter closed this week in the strange career of a lovely young Ottawan named Suzanne Cloutier.

Suzanne slipped quietly out of Hollywood aboard the Santa Fe Super Chief after six months during which she collected $500 every week but didn't act in a single movie.

Paramount brought her here from France to star with Alan Ladd in "Persian Gulf", a high-budget adventure yarn which would have made Suzanne a star. But Ladd broke his contract with the studio such films as "The Sinner." She even made a picture in England, "Derby Day," and then Welles picked her to be his leading lady. He produced "Othello" on a shoe-string. Whenever he ran out of money, which was almost weekly, he simply shut down production until he could float a loan or act in another movie, the salary for which went to pay his "Othello" production expenses. So Suzanne was tied up well over a year with Welles and "Othello" has not even yet been released although it won the recent Brussels Film Festival Prize.

Now Welles is mad at Suzanne because she came to Hollywood to sell her soul for some filthy American greenbacks instead of staying in Paris to make more movies with him for nothing. Although she's returning to France now there is little likelihood she'll collaborate again with Welles. After all, a girl's gotta eat, and you can't subsist on promises.

King Cotton Returns To Cuba; Modern Plantation

Havana. — One of the world's most modern cotton plantations is being laid out in Cuba, where cotton hasn't been grown for years.

Dayton Hedges, who came to Cuba from New York in 1919 "when the contracting business got to be a headache," is establishing the plantation on 30,000 acres he bought in Pinar del Rio Province, on the southern coast of Cuba, about 80 miles from Havana. Mr. Hedges now a veteran textile manufacturer, says the plantation "probably will be one of the most modern in the world. It may be one of the largest, too, since I don't know of any that run to 30,000 acres."

He said United States cotton experts who are laying out the project studied most modern methods in the southern section of the United States, and also in California, where cotton growing has become a big business in recent years.

"It will be mechanized throughout. There won't be a hoe on the place. We are going to plow, plant, cultivate, dust, and pick the cotton mechanically."

When Mr. Hedges came to Cuba, he first bought up a number of electric power plants in little towns near Havana and ran them for years. Later he got into the textile business. He built the 76,000-spindle Ariguanabo mill at Bauta, near Havana; later he put in a rayon cord plant at Matanzas, and more recently, with British capital, put up a cotton textile mill in Kingston, Jamaica.

Fulfills Old Desire

"I've always thought about growing cotton, but never really had time before. Now that my boys are running the mills, I'm going to give it a whirl. I've been experimenting with cotton for 20 years. A long time ago I built a cotton gin near the Ariguanabo mill. But the operation there was chiefly experimental, and not mechanized. Cubans don't like to pick cotton."

"We will start planting in September, with the main planting to be done in November."

"We are busy clearing land now, with 10 bulldozers and 25 graders. We're putting in irrigation canals with a power ditch digger. The land clearing has been quite a job, as the land formerly was used as a ranch, has lots of trees and brush. We expect to get about 3,000 acres in cultivation this year, step up to the full 30,000 as fast as possible."

"The fields and rows are being laid, of course, to fit the machinery. Fields will be irrigated, with a pump on each unit of about 300 acres. Once we plant, we will spread a chemical on the rows to kill weeds and grass. By the time it loses its strength, the cotton should be up enough to throw shade and keep out weeds."

"So far as I can see, there is no real obstacle to growing cotton in Cuba. We do have boll weevils here, but they were not too serious, even without spraying. He plans to get them by airplane dusting."

Once Supplied Spain

"The statistics are scarce, but history tells us Cuba once grew considerable amounts of cotton."

At one time, it supplied the cotton needs of Spain. A number of plantations in eastern Cuba are still known as algodones, or cotton farms."

The plantation has been owned by generations of the same family since a grant about 200 years ago from the King of Spain. It is known as Hacienda Dayanigua.

Mr. Hedges plans to use the cotton at his Bauta mill. It consumes nearly 30,000 bales a year, now imported from the United States. Cuba imports in all about 40,000 bales a year.

Farm experts say cotton was abandoned as a crop in Cuba when Spain began buying Egyptian cotton, and the United States became a big exporter of cotton. Anyhow, Cuba found sugar brought better returns per acre.

Cotton seed (Coker's 100-W) was imported from the United States to get the new plantation started. Three United States cotton experts, Dr. H. W. Barre, retired member of the faculty of Clemson, S.C., College, and John Evans and Stewart Heath, Clemson graduates, are getting the plantation into operation.

they can continue to finance their deficits with Canada.

While the value of retail sales in May was the "highest monthly total ever recorded," the B of M analysis states that this revival of consumer demand within Canada is quite recent and that it may be some time yet before "available statistics will make it possible to discern the extent to which the improvement in sales at the retail level leads to expanded operations and enlarged employment among manufacturers of consumer goods."

It's Hockey Time

O'Connor, Marshall Head For Pro Training Camps

By GEORGE E. JONES

H. W. 'Buddy' O'Connor and Donald 'Don' Marshall were two of the several hockey names that are the topic of conversation. When football opens its schedule, and hockey teams are talking trades and what not, then it is time for a story on the future of two Verdun hockey names.

It was reported in a French daily newspaper that Buddy O'Connor was going to play for Royals of the Senior Group along with Roger Leger.

BUDDY O'CONNOR

... To Ranger's Camp

And for Marshall, since the Canadian pro camp opens September 15, it was just about time to see what's cooking at the Forum. So off we went.

Marshall will get a tryout with the Canadiens and will attend the pro camp September 15. That much is certain. But where he will play in the $64 question. In fact, the same goes for O'Connor, who will report to New York Rangers camp in September, at Guelph, Ontario. How would you like to see Marshall playing for you? was the question we asked Pete Morin, the new coach of Senior Royals. "Okay, but how do we know, he might be playing for Canadiens this year," was his answer.

If he don't make Canadiens what then? Kenny Reardon, of the Forum front office had the answer. "If he can produce at the camp, he may make the team, otherwise, at the present I can't say where he will play this year."

There is the Pacific Coast Hockey League and there is the Senior Group right here in his own backyard. If he goes to the American Hockey League, and Canadiens want to get him back late in the season, it can't be done, for the American loop have drawn a line with the NHL clubs. But, no matter where Don Marshall goes, he will still be Canadiens' property to do what they want.

"I'm to report to Rangers' camp in September", said O'Connor, "but from there I don't know what the future will hold. I'm not so keen to play unless it's near home. I had an offer from Prince Edward Island as player-coach, but I turned it down. The offer was a good one, a very good one, but it's too far from home. Frank Boucher (Rangers' general manager) told me if I made any kind of a hockey deal, he would certainly work with me so I could get my release."

Cincinnati, where O'Connor played last year have withdrawn from the American Hockey League and with younger players have entered an amateur setup. They are out for this season only, according to the reports.

The Royal offer we mentioned, O'Connor said he heard nothing about it but from this time to September 15 when Rangers open their fall training camp anything can happen and as a rule it does. With one offer in and it turned down, others will follow.

"But its got to be a good one, and near home", added Buddy, "for last spring when I returned

Norgate Ladies Play Westmount

The Westmount Cardinals, top performers under both "Westmount" and "Chicken Coop" sponsorship, and coached by Percy McCracken of Snowdon fastball fame, will meet the Norgate Ladies Softball Club at the Roy and Decelles Ball Park in Ville St. Laurent on Friday night. Game time is 8 p.m. sharp.

Norgate, with five consecutive victories to their credit, are now playing an excellent class of softball, and this game, first of a series under the lights, against the well-known Westmount aggregation, should prove a real thriller. Everyone will be welcome at the Roy and Decelles Park Friday evening at 8:00 p.m. Excellent seating accommodation, and a refreshment booth is available at the Park.

Soap will keep its shape and last a lot longer, if you remove the wrapper before you store it. Take advantage of the wonderful fragrance of your soap by placing cakes of it in your bureau drawers and in your linen closet.

There are now some 250 Zonta clubs in the United States and Hawaii, Canada, England, Denmark, Norway, Iceland, Finland, Sweden, Switzerland, Chile, France, Germany and Philippines.
