After provinces' rejection

Feds may act alone on pay plan

OTTAWA (CP) — The federal government probably will be forced to act without provincial consent to provide the country's half a million working poor with guaranteed incomes. Welfare Minister Marc Lalonde indicated Wednesday.

He told reporters after a two-day welfare ministers' meeting—the last in a series of eight during the last three years—that the federal government "is determined to go ahead with a program to help the working poor." If the provinces were unable to agree to proceed with the plan, the federal government would "seriously consider" acting alone, possibly by providing income tax credits to those who earn less than they need to cover basic living costs. James Taylor, Ontario social service minister, who sat mute throughout much of the conference, said afterwards his province is "not happy" with the proposed plan, and could not accept it. Although he said Ontario will never be satisfied with the lot of its poor, he offered no alternative to the federal suggestions. Several ministers said any final decision to proceed with the guaranteed income plan for working poor and so-called unemployable people must be made by their premiers when they meet Prime Minister Trudeau here June 14-15. TOO EXPENSIVE But some, such as Bill MacEachern, Nova Scotia's social services minister, said their provinces could not afford to enter the plan in any case. "Agreement in principle doesn't mean we'll participate," he said. Mr. Lalonde said he will wait until all provinces let him know their position, probably by the end of the summer, before making any further moves. A final federal decision on the plan would be made before the end of the year. Mr. Lalonde estimates the plan—scaled down from an originally-suggested $1-billion program to provide help to all unemployable people and those who earn less than they need to live—would have cost the federal government $300 million had it been in effect last year.

PCs halt non-confidence

OTTAWA (CP) — In a rare show of co-operation, Progressive Conservatives joined Liberals Wednesday to defeat a New Democratic non-confidence motion in the Commons 193 to 20.

The vote was on the NDP proposition that changes proposed for the unemployment insurance program in the federal budget last week would force thousands of persons on to welfare lists. The budget said the qualifying period for unemployment insurance would be extended to 12 from eight weeks.

Conspicuous by his absence when the vote came was David Rooney (L—Bonaville-Trinity-Conception), who Tuesday charged that if the proposed changes took place, about 17 per cent of Newfoundlanders now receiving unemployment benefits would be disqualified.

Also absent for the vote was Postmaster-General Bryce Mackasey, manpower minister when the qualifying period was reduced to eight weeks, who has been critical of the suggested extension in recent speeches.

Social Credit members present and Leonard Jones (Ind.—Moncton) were the only members to vote with the New Democrats.

Standing in the 264-seat Commons is Liberals 139, Conservatives 95, NDP 16, Social Credit 11, Independent 1 and two vacancies.

REJECTS CRITICISM

In defending the government proposal, Manpower Minister Robert Andras Wednesday categorically rejected the NDP suggestion.

He termed the criticism "nonsense and dangerously irresponsible," even though Ed Broadbent, NDP leader, termed the extension cruel, callous and despicable.

DON'T UNDERSTAND

Mr. Andras said critics of the proposed amendment based their comments on a "complete misunderstanding of the facts."

At any moment of time, about 50,000 persons in Canada would not be able to receive benefits under the proposed changes, not 330,000 as some have stated, Mr. Andras said.

"Particular concern has been expressed about the Atlantic provinces where employment conditions are less favorable," he added.

"In these provinces, we estimate that at any point in time only 10,000 individuals would not be able immediately to find 12 weeks of insured earnings."

Atlantic area MPs have said the extension of the qualifying period would have severe impact on low-income, seasonal workers, particularly in the fishing, fish-processing and woods industries.

But Mr. Andras said a survey showed that about 80 per cent of unemployed who receive benefits after working the eight to 11 weeks had no dependents.

Almost half were under 25 years of age and many were secondary earners such as working wives and young persons living at home, he added.

Quebec in focus

Mediators' raise

QUEBEC (CP) — Quebec's labor minister told the national assembly Wednesday that the province's labor mediators have been granted a $75-a-day pay increase, bringing their daily salary to $200.

Responding to Parti Quebecois member Marc-Andre Bedard, Gerald Harvey said the increase was approved by an order-in-council Feb. 25, adding the move was justified because the mediators had not received a raise since 1970.

Mr. Harvey said Quebec's anti-inflation board has been notified of the increase. Under anti-inflation guidelines set up by the board, wage hikes in the province are not supposed to exceed 10 per cent.

The minister said suitable salaries must be paid to the province's mediators to insure the quality of their work. He added that identical salaries will be paid to government deputy commissioners who enforce Quebec's essential service legislation.

Face charges

MONTREAL (CP) — Two more men will appear in court today to face charges in connection with last March's $2.8 million Brink's robbery, a member of the police Criminal Investigation Bureau said Wednesday. Inspector Jean-Claude Rondou said the two will be arraigned in sessions court on charges of armed robbery and conspiracy to commit armed robbery.

Earlier Wednesday, a 20-year-old man was charged with having taken part in the robbery. Rejean Duff pleaded not guilty to charges of armed robbery, kidnapping of Brink's driver Gilles Lachapelle and conspiracy to commit armed robbery.

Duff was charged after a series of 24 raids Tuesday night and early Wednesday by Montreal police, but at least five persons arrested in the raids were later released.

Police had arrested a 60-year-old mother, her two sons and her two daughters, but they were soon released because of insufficient evidence.

Player improving

QUEBEC (CP) — Professional hockey player Andre Deschamps was reported resting comfortably Wednesday after undergoing surgery to remove a bullet from his leg following a bizarre shooting incident in a tavern here Tuesday night.

Police said they were still puzzled by the incident, in which two masked men walked into the tavern and fired a submachinegun at 20 patrons and employees.

Mr. Deschamps, a forward with Hershey Bears of the American Hockey League, was among five patrons wounded by the gunfire. He was sitting with Jacques Richard, a forward with the National Hockey League Buffalo Sabres.

Richard narrowly escaped injury when a bullet passed through his trouser leg as he dived to escape the hail of bullets.

Police said two of the other victims are in serious condition but are out of danger.

A spokesman for Saint Francois d'Assise Hospital said the 22-year-old Deschamps was operated on early Wednesday and that his condition was satisfactory. The bullet also broke a bone in the hockey player's leg.

Doctors said it would be some time before they could ascertain how long the hockey player would be incapacitated.

FLED BY CAR

Witnesses said the gunmen fled in a waiting car after the shooting.

After the incident, police took those who were not injured to headquarters for questioning. They were released a few hours later.

Games housing program running into problems

TORONTO (CP) — The Globe and Mail says a Quebec government plan to regulate accommodation at the Olympics Games is running into difficulty because apartment owners are bypassing Quebec Lodging Bureau regulations and asking for rents as high as $100 a night for a bedroom.

Some homeowners are renting their homes for between $4,000 and $6,000 for the month of July, the newspaper says in a Montreal dispatch.

It quotes a representative of the lodging bureau as saying persons not registering their apartments or homes with the government are acting illegally and may be taken to court if complaints are lodged.

The bureau was set up in August, 1974, to oversee the rental of all accommodation during the Olympics to prevent abuses such as those which occurred during Expo 67 in Montreal, the newspaper says.

Then, tourists were asked to pay in advance for what they believed were luxury quarters, but which turned out to be shacks, it says.

The newspaper says some Montreal region residents have rented their homes or apartments on their own because the bureau has turned them down.

It quotes bureau spokesman Robert Singher as saying one reason for this is that some residents have applied to the bureau, but have indicated they will not accept tenants of certain races—an attitude the bureau will not have any part of.

It quotes Mr. Singher as saying all homes or apartments rented between May 1 and Aug. 31 must bear a bureau certification on their doors with the maximum rate listed, and that landlords of uncertified quarters are taking a risk.

Time out

NEW YORK (Reuter) — Employees of Time, Inc., which publishes the weekly news magazine and many other periodicals, books and films—went on strike Wednesday.

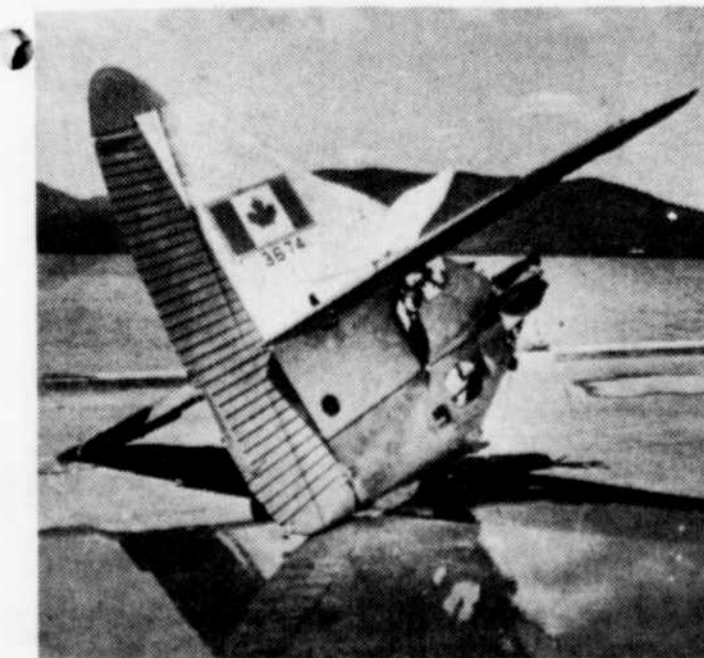

More than 600 editorial and editorial-production workers—who are members of the Newspaper Guild of New York—went on strike at the magazine's headquarters, a guild spokesman said, primarily over a wages dispute.

The union said it plans to set up picket lines in Boston, Los Angeles, Washington, Chicago and Detroit, as well as New York.

A spokesman for the company said Time intends to keep putting its publications out on schedule.

After eight years, a phoenix arises from Memphremagog

GEORGEVILLE (GA) — A Montreal salvage crew refused to comment on motives for their efforts to salvage the wreckage of a Canadian Air Force Otter rescue plane that sunk into the deepest part of Lake Memphremagog eight years ago after an unsuccessful take off on the ice on a January 7th afternoon in 1968.

After an eight-year search the tail section of the ill-fated craft was located and hauled up onto the town dock as salvage crews searched for the rest of the plane.

According to Mrs. Henry McGowan, proprietor of the McGowan House, located just at the warf salvage crews have been attempting to find the wreckage, which was reported to be in 280 feet of water for the past eight years. According to her observations the latest crew seemed to be better equipped for the job having the use of sophisticated closed-circuit television cameras equipped for deep water searching.

According to account of the incident published in the Record January 8, 1968 the plane piloted by Flight Lieutenant J. D. Evans with a J.F. Morrow as navigator, was on a routine navigational training flight from St. Hubert Air Force Base on a flight chart that would take the plane to Missisquoi Bay, Brome, Lake Memphremagog and then back to the base.

The account of the incident previously published revealed that the plane broke through thin ice on the lake as it was preparing for take-off. When the plane sunk through the ice the two airmen escaped from the plane onto the ice. They were rescued by Real Bernais, a Georgeville youth, who was cruising around the lake on his snowmobile. The two men, both wet and freezing were taken to the McGowan House.

According to Mrs. McGowan while Flight Lieut. Evans was reporting the incident to the St. Hubert Air Force base the plane which was lodged in the ice supported only by its wings exploded and sank.

According to unconfirmed reports the log book of the plane is still aboard in the plane's safe. A report also reveals that the skis on the plane are worth in the area of $3,000 each.

It has not been learned whether the crew working to recover the plane had purchased the salvage rights from the Air Force or if they in fact are employed by the Air Force to salvage the wrecked plane.

The airmen, both then residents of Montreal, were members of the 401 Auxiliary Squad of the 11th Wing of the Canadian Air Force.

Arbitration set in police dispute

SHERBROOKE (RM) — The differences between the city and its 125 officers, who have been without a collective agreement for six months, should remain static until an arbitration board makes a ruling later this summer.

Martin Thibodeau, director of industrial relations, for the city, said yesterday a date for the hearing has yet to be set.

The board, the members of which also have yet to be named, will consist of a union and a city representative, plus an independent chairman.

The Sherbrooke force has been without a collective agreement since their previous one expired Dec. 31, 1975. Last month, they expressed their dismay with an 11-day work slowdown campaign.

The tactic ended when officers at a general meeting of their union, the Sherbrooke Policemen's Association, voted 100 per cent in favor of rejecting the O'Bready administration's latest offer, while ending the slowdown on the eve of the Festival des Cantons.

Presently, policework continues as normal, while the force continues to be paid by terms of the old contract.

The average salary of a Sherbrooke constable is $13,780 a year. In their last offers — both applying to a two-year contract — the union sought 15.47 and 10 per cent hikes, and the city 14 and 10 per cent.

The final agreement is subject to the approval of the federal government's anti-inflation board, whose guidelines are for increases of 12 and eight per cent.

Breaks silence

LONDON (Reuter) — Former prime minister Harold Wilson broke a week-long silence Wednesday on a controversy surrounding the peerages—knighthoods and other titles—he bestowed on leaving office, stating that he and he alone drew up his retirement honors list.

Wilson's unprecedented statement followed news insinuations that his personal secretary, Lady Falkender, had influenced the list—which was said to include members of her social circle.

Wilson said he took full responsibility for each and every name and that he hopes the statement would bring an end to "this orchestrated vendetta."

The list was widely attacked by the news media and other politicians who regarded it as breaking a tradition that the honors handed out by a retiring prime minister go primarily to his political aides. Wilson's list included peerages for two show business tycoons.

New York

NEW YORK (AP) — The stock market edged upward Wednesday in a mild technical rally that erased the losses of the previous session.

The Dow Jones average of 30 industrial stocks, off 2.10 on Tuesday, rebounded 2.80 to 975.93.

WHAT STOCKS DID

	Wed. Tues.
Advances	758 658
Declines	635 740

Volume on the New York Stock Exchange picked up slightly to 16.12 million shares from Tuesday's five-month low of 13.88 million.

Countrywide turnover in NYSE-listed issues, including trades in those stocks on regional exchanges and in the over-the-counter market, came to 19.16 million shares as of the close in New York.

The Dow sagged about two points at the outset amid signs of continuing uneasiness over rising interest rates. But the selling developed little force, and traders evidently took that as a cue to do some bargain hunting.

The first two days of this trading week have produced nothing to shake the market out of the narrow band in which it has fluctuated since the middle of February.

Standard and Poor's 500-stock index posted a .37 gain for the day to 100.22, and the NYSE's composite index of all its listed common stocks added .17 to 53.33. Baxter-Travenol Laboratories was the day's most active issue, down a point in activity marked by a 349,600-share trade and some smaller blocks.

WELL PAYS OFF Natomas, also active, climbed more than a point. The company reported the start of oil production at a new well in Indonesia.

Marley Co., which posted sharply higher quarterly earnings, jumped more than four points to chalk up one of the day's sharpest percentage gains.

On the downside, National Chemsearch lost a point. The company listed a modest rise in quarterly earnings that evidently fell short of some investors' expectations.

Among American Stock Exchange issues, Presley Cos. climbed more than three points on heavy turnover. An article in a California publication discussed a device licensed to Presley by which its inventor claims water can be converted into cheap, abundant energy.

The stock took a steep drop last month when Presley said an analysis didn't support those claims.

Among Canadian issues on the NYSE, Dome Mines was up 1 to $45¼. Massey-Ferguson ¾ to $28½ and Alcan ¼ to $27½.

Seagrams was unchanged at $25¼ while Hiram Walker fell ¾ to $30¾ and Inco ¼ to $33¼.

Claims Parti-Quebecois government not a threat

MONTREAL (CP) — A Parti Quebecois government in Quebec would not pose any danger for the business community, political scientist Leon Dion said.

"If the Parti Quebecois came to power we would have a social-democratic regime," Prof. Dion of Laval University told a one-day seminar entitled The Hue and Cry Against Business.

"No such regimes have ever abolished free enterprise," he told the seminar, sponsored by the Conseil du Patronat du Quebec, the province's most influential employer group.

Nor does the present Liberal administration in Quebec City threaten business, he said.

Another panelist at the seminar, Kenneth White, president of Royal Trust Co., disagreed with Prof. Dion. HE WORRIES

"The Parti Quebecois says one of the first things it would do is to nationalize my business," Mr. White said. "I spend 50 per cent of my time worrying about government and what they will do next."

However, he said that he believed it was possible for business and government to get together on some issues.

"There are intelligent people there who want to help big business."

Although the civil service was "inept" and did not have enough to do, such a situation could be changed by electing a different government.

"The civil servants have a place, but let's keep them in their place," Mr. White also criticized the Quebec government's Official Language Act, saying that if Quebec wants to sell its products beyond provincial borders, it cannot ignore the English language.

Dominion Store sales are up

TORONTO — In the fiscal year which ended March 20, 1976, Dominion Stores had total sales of $1,913,986,000, up 16.03 per cent over those for the preceding fiscal year, the company has reported.

After-tax earnings were $20,437,000 or $2.40 per share, compared with $17,010,000 or $2.02 per share in the preceding year.

The company noted that earnings continue to run at just over one cent per dollar of sales. 1.06 cents per dollar in the year just concluded, compared with 1.03 cents in the preceding year.

"Sales continued to rise at a rate faster than overall inflation as consumer acceptance and patronage continued to expand," President Thomas G. Bolton said in the preliminary report to shareholders.

Shareholders were advised that under an Anti-Inflation Board ruling dividends payable in the year ending October 13, 1976 are not permitted to exceed 84 cents per share. This means that shareholders will actually receive less in the period than they received between October 14, 1974 and October 13, 1975 when a total of 95 cents per share was paid in dividends.

"The company will continue to press the Anti-Inflation Board for a ruling

Housing loans highlight Quebec's banking growth

Housing loans continue to be a highlight of banking growth in Quebec, according to J. Allan Boyle, president of the Canadian Bankers' Association. "The chartered banks' mortgage loans in the province show an increase of almost 30 per cent to $1.43 billion outstanding," Mr. Boyle said.

The review of 1975 banking trends in Quebec, based on the latest available Bank of Canada figures, was issued in conjunction with the association's annual meeting in Ottawa June 3-4.

Mr. Boyle, also executive vice-president and chief general manager, Toronto Dominion Bank, said the provincial increase was greater than the rise of 28 per cent in the banks' total home lending across the country.

Of the provincial total, loans under the National Housing Act were $835 million, up 23 per cent from $681 million a year earlier, and conventional mortgage loans $599 million, an increase of 41 per cent.

The banks' outstanding mortgage loans in Quebec have more than tripled from $421 million at the end of 1971 when provincial banking figures were first compiled.

"The banks are faced with demands from all sectors of the economy across the country," Mr. Boyle said, "but available resources are allocated in such a way that critical areas such as housing receive the full support of the Canadian banking industry."

From 1954, when the banks were first empowered to engage in residential mortgage lending, to December, 1975, they have approved loans of more than $12 billion to finance about 630,000 individual housing units, more than 500,000 of them since 1966.

In other major loan categories, loans outstanding to Quebec municipalities rose 20 per cent to $1.6 billion in 1975, personal loans 17.5 per cent to $2.76 billion and business loans seven per cent to $5.69 billion.

Business loans under authorized limits of less than $200,000 were $1.11 billion at the end of 1975. The increase of 15 per cent in this small business category was double the rise in total business lending in the province.

On the deposit side, personal savings deposits at the bank branches in the province rose 8.5 per cent to $6.16 billion at the end of 1975.

The growth was not spread evenly among the three components of personal savings. Non-chequable deposits in Quebec rose 35 per cent to 1.99 billion while chequable deposits were up 14 per cent to 1.47 billion. Fixed-term deposits declined seven per cent to $2.70 billion.

Interest rate spreads narrow

Toronto Dominion Bank has announced balance of revenue after tax for the first six months of fiscal 1976 was $46.1 million, an increase of 12 per cent over the corresponding period in 1975.

However, the rate of growth moderated significantly from the 27 per cent growth reported for the first quarter of 1976, reflecting lower balance of revenue after tax of $20.6 million in the three months ended April 30, compared with $25.5 million in the first three months of the fiscal year.

Chairman Allen Lambert said most of the decline in balance of revenue in the second quarter was due to the narrowing of interest rate spreads. "Contributing to this trend was the fact that the increase in the interest rate paid on non-chequing Premium Savings deposits during the quarter was greater than the increase in the prime rate," he said. "In addition there was a significant rise in the cost of short-term domestic deposits."

Mr. Lambert added that he expected both domestic and international loan demand would continue strong for the remainder of the year, with no further narrowing of interest rate spreads.

On a per share basis, balance of revenue after tax for the six month period was $1.21, up six per cent from a year ago. This figure reflected the higher average number of shares outstanding.

Total bank assets at April 30, 1975 were $15.6 billion, up 18 per cent over a year ago.

Indicted on charges of oil price fixing

WASHINGTON (AP) — Seven independent U.S. oil companies were indicted Tuesday on federal charges of illegally fixing the price of gasoline they sell in middle Atlantic states.

The indictment—returned by a grand jury in U.S. district court in Baltimore—also named as defendants the Society of Independent Gasoline Marketers of America and its executive director, Robert Cavin, and officials of three of the oil companies.

The indictment charged that the trade association, the companies and the individuals conspired from 1967 to November 1974 to fix the price of gasoline sold at independent stations under a variety of names.

The effect was to raise gas prices to "artificial and non-competitive levels" in New York, Pennsylvania, New Jersey, Delaware, Maryland, Virginia and the District of Columbia, the indictment said.

Pop Shoppes sales increase

Pop Shoppes International Inc. Toronto, announced recently that sales for the three months ended March 31, 1976 were $3,286,803.00, up 32.5 per cent over the corresponding period of 1975. The unaudited after-tax earnings for the quarter were $200,063.00, an increase of 39.1 per cent the $143,811.00 earned in the first three months of last year. Earnings per share were $0.05 versus $0.05 in 1975.

In his Quarterly Report to the shareholders, Pop Shoppes International President, Bruce M. Westwood confirmed that six new Pop Shoppes in Canada and seven in the U.S. will be opened by December 31, 1976. This will bring the total number of plants operating to 47. Westwood expressed optimism for a continuation of the trends established in the first quarter and encouraging results for the balance of 1976.

Sweetsburg Court

SWEETSBURG WARD (JM) — Michel Couture, 20, of Montreal, pleaded guilty to a charge of having evaded legal custody from the Waterloo Rehabilitation Centre, May 25. Crown prosecutor Claude Noiseux suggested the accused be sentenced to one month, consecutive to any terms he is presently serving.

Jean Riou, Legal Aid Office, told the court his client had been promised a job when he was transferred to Waterloo from Bordeaux and became frustrated when he couldn't work. "He got indirect word through his parents that a 'shylock' had told them if he hadn't paid the $4,000 to $5,000 owing by the time he left Waterloo there would be dire consequences when he got out," Mr. Riou said. "He left the minimum security prison and went to see his parents. He was free for three days and offered no resistance when he was arrested. This is his first offence, and since he has lost his statutory remission I feel two weeks would amply serve the interests of justice."

Judge Guy Genest told the defence he had handed down one year terms for evasion in the past. "I feel the request of the crown is justified," Judge Genest said. "One month consecutive to any terms you are currently serving."

Richard Frechette, Granby, the former object of three bench warrants, was returned from Sherbrooke following a psychiatric examination where he was deemed fit to stand trial, and pleaded guilty to two counts of breaking and entering dwellings in Granby, to one of simple theft, and one of simple possession of one gram of hashish. He was remanded in custody on the first three counts for sentencing June 2.

Judge Genest imposed the $25 fine requested by special prosecutor Louis Jolin on the drug charge.

Frechette's lawyer, Yvon Robichaud, told the court his client would take the eight day default in lieu of payment of the fine.

A bench warrant was issued for Normand Tardif who failed to appear for arraignment on a charge of impaired driving.

Donald Proulx, Magog, formerly of Austin, was given the benefit of reasonable doubt and acquitted of a charge of incest.

William H. Aldridge, Bolton Glen, pleaded not guilty to a count of impaired driving in the Town of Brome Lake, May 16. His trial will be heard August 16.

Glenn Nichols, Cowansville, pleaded not guilty to a charge of simple possession of five grams of cannabis resin in Cowansville, April 27. His trial will be heard June 21.

A bench warrant was issued for Gilles Paquette who failed to appear for arraignment on a drug charge.

Rene Morin, Granby, pleaded guilty to five counts of having made false declarations in order to obtain unemployment insurance. He was fined $50 and costs on each count, in default 30 days, and was allowed three months to pay the fines and costs.

Raoul Comtois, Martville, and Jean Louis Deslandes, Granby, both pleaded guilty to counts of impaired driving. They were each fined $100 and costs, in default 30 days.

TANKS IN — The storage tanks for the proposed self service gas station to be built on the recently cleared corner of King and Papineau Streets were installed. The city intends to reorganise the King-Papineau-Murray intersection to ease traffic flow, which includes major changes in the geometry of the intersection as well as a new traffic light system. Planning the intersection and the gas station were done as a joint effort.

WOLFE BRIDGE — After being declared unsafe even for pedestrian traffic, Wolfe Bridge is finally being demolished by private contractors. Workers are seen here Tuesday as they cut the second section away from the bridge structure. The contractors must exercise extreme care so as not to drop debris into the Hydro dam below. The new four lane bridge scheduled to replace the present one is estimated to cost the city $1.5 million.

Prison guard beaten

SWEETSBURG WARD (JM) — Officials at the maximum security provincial jail are refusing all comment on the recent beating of prison guard Pierre Benoit.

Reliable sources told The Record he was savagely beaten by two juveniles recently. The sources said he suffered a severe gash in his forehead and skull and may possibly lose the use of one eye. Mr. Benoit was a constable on the Cowansville municipal police force before joining the staff at the provincial jail.

Sweetsburg has been housing juveniles ever since troubles arose at the Berthel Juvenile Detention Centre in Montreal about two years ago. Only the most hardened juveniles are held in provincial jails throughout the province.

FESTIVAL DES CANTONS is for all age groups although it seems a little more tiring for adults as seen above at the left.

Quebec history topic at meeting

LENNOXVILLE — A meeting of the Lennoxville and Ascot Museum and Historical Society was held at the library, Bishop's University. A short business meeting included an appeal by Geraldine Lane for assistance with the publicity and sales of the first volume of the History of Lennoxville which will be available to the public soon.

John Cruickshank reported on the plans for a trip "down home" which will include Black Lake, St. James Church, Leeds Village, Lemesurier, Wilson's Mills, Rectory Hill, Inverness, St. Ferdinand d'Halifax, Maple Grove and Lysander Falls.

The president, Gerald Frost, reported that plans for the Antique Show August 5, 6, 7 were well underway.

Mr. Delisle, librarian at Bishop's, welcomed the Historical Society to the University and Eckhart Rothe introduced the speaker of the evening, Professor Marc Boucher of Champlain College. His talk dealt with the two interpretations of history in Canada.

Professor Boucher explained that historians of French Canada fell into two schools - the Montreal school and the Quebec school which were linked with the University of Montreal and the University of Laval respectively.

He referred to the first French-Canadian historian, Garneau, whose work was a rebuttal to Lord Durham's report. His purpose was to prove the French-Canadian tradition was unique, totally different from English Canada and to promote its survival.

The Montreal School of historians is marked by such famous names as Lionel Groulx, the first professor of the University of Montreal as the more recent Brunet and Rioux. These men portray the conquest as a decapitation of French Canada - a French body with an English head with the Church serving as a buffer and protective agency to keep the French-Canadians from the Anglairs. Lionel Groulx was intensely nationalistic. His history indicates his sense of duty to preserve the tradition of the French-Canadian and the Church and glorify the heroes of the Church and the French culture.

He looked to a Utopian French-Canadian state where industry was not dominated by les Anglairs with the shift of the French-Canadians from the land to the industry of the city, the Montreal School saw the need for all labour unions to be Catholic. The thesis of this Montreal School of historians provided the justification for the Separatist Movement and Bill 22 to preserve the system.

The Quebec School of historians, marked by such persons as Trudel and Ouellet set about to disprove the thesis of the Montreal School. They show New France at the time of the Conquest to be overextended and economically stagnant. They point out that French-Canadians were always colonialists and only the leadership passed from French to British when their leaders returned to France. They pointed out the more positive aspects of the British influence such as improved agricultural methods, a French press, representation in the government and the right to retain French culture!

They point out the strong voice of French Canada in the federal government in 1867 and state that involvement by French-Canadians is mandatory and that they must act as liberals and individuals.

From Professor Boucher's talk the animosity between the two schools of thought was apparent. An interesting question period followed.

Wayne Hall thanked Professor Boucher for a most interesting and thoughtprovoking talk. A social period followed and refreshments were served.

Danville council

DANVILLE (TT) — Municipal councillors adopted a monthly budget of $18,059.56 for April. At two of their regular and weekly sessions held May 11 and 18, they gave the secretary permission to pay off all debts and administrative expenses for April.

Councillors elected Pierre Grimard and Paul Emile Couture to represent the municipality at the intermunicipal commission for territorial development. The commission will comprise Asbestos, Shipton, Trois-Lacs and Danville municipalities.

They also accepted a $5,370 charge by Jean Milot and Fils Inc. to enlarge First and Third Avenues of Danville.

Other resolutions the councillors adopted included a request to the ministry of municipal affairs to grant a loan for personnel to study the possibility of annexing part of Shipton Township with Danville.

The councillors agreed that a decision for the acquisition of Danville monastery will be given the Notre-Dame congregation before July 1 after holding consultations with the population.

They expressed concern that they have not yet received the results of a Quebec police commission on establishing police service here.

In the meantime, "Location ADW Leasing Inc." will loan municipal council a vehicle for police services for 12-month period with a monthly charge of $367.32.

Cabinet fluidity

The substitution of cabinet fluidity for cabinet solidarity may occasion some public confusion but it certainly contributes to the freedom of ministers. Prime Minister Trudeau counters criticism by explaining that ministers perform a representative function, supporting conflicting interests which may, it is hoped, be reconciled in cabinet. If not, we still presumably benefit from a flow of sympathetic words while Bryce is Bryce and Gene is Gene and never the twain shall meet.

It was presumably in this spirit that Labor Minister John Munro delivered his latest message to labor through a conference on industrial relations in Montreal. At least one of the minister's thoughts is bound to encourage the Canadian Labor Congress, which has waged an angry campaign against the anti-inflation program. According to Mr. Munro, organized labor's opposition to the federal wage guidelines has done more to unify the trade union movement than any public policy since the Second World War.

CLC president Joe Morris has been saying the same thing and his version now has been given official endorsement. If mere vehemence has produced all this unity, why should the CLC shrink from its further threat of a general strike? In that event, Mr. Munro should be entitled to at least part of the credit for it. There is little likelihood that another blow at the economy will appeal much to his colleagues in their various representative capacities. And since the message is out, there is nothing much that can be done about it in cabinet. But the minister, enjoying the new freedom, has had his fling, demonstrating to his constituents that his heart is in the right place, regardless of any possible consequences for society which may flow from his singularly irresponsible words.

Against
censorship

It has been said that all powers given to government will soon or later be abused by government, despite assurances from politicians that this will not happen. That formula may not be axiomatic — although it probably is — but it is certainly a good principle to work with when a government suggests something that would give it even more control over our lives.

Something along these lines may have been in Harry Boyle's mind when he told the Commons broadcasting committee that he does not want, in his capacity as chairman of the Canadian Radio-Television and Telecommunications Commission, the power to censor violence on television. Mr. Boyle was replying to criticism from MPs who said that the CRTC does not do enough to remove violence and permissiveness from television programs. Mr. Boyle was accused of making these "very serious social phenomena" worse by allowing violent U.S. crime shows to be shown on Canadian television that should be barred and blacked out from the cable TV system.

Mr. Boyle's reply showed that he understands that censorship by government in one area can lead all too easily to censorship in other areas. He told the committee that he would not accept the responsibility of censoring violence because the next step would be control over programs that are politically dangerous, and "I want no part of it."

It is reassuring to know that this is Mr. Boyle's attitude. The CRTC already had substantial powers and it should not be allowed to censor the media; censorship is too great a temptation. In Sweden, where films and television are censored for violence (even Walt Disney movies have been cut) the government has used that power to ban television programs considered too critical of the government or its policies. That is one feature of the Swedish paradise that we do not need here.

Group raps Canada for not taking nuclear energy stand

VANCOUVER (CP) — Canada's silence on nuclear energy at the United Nations Habitat conference was criticized Tuesday by an official Canadian observer group.

The observer group, established by the government two years ago to stimulate interest in Habitat, told the Canadian delegation in a public meeting that Canada should support a moratorium on further nuclear power plants. The delegation should stress development of solar and wind energy systems.

George Kerr, Ontario environment minister, and Senator Ray Perrault said that although Canada did not talk about energy issues at the opening sessions of Habitat committees Tuesday, the delegation is likely to comment in later sessions. Neither expressed support for a moratorium, although Mr. Kerr said he is undecided in his own mind about the environmental impact of nuclear power stations.

The delegation has agreed to meet nightly with the Canadian non-governmental organization participation group. The group, which includes citizens and voluntary organizations, is attending all Habitat sessions and keeping a critical eye on the delegation's performance. CALL FOR MORATORIUM

A symposium, organized by British economist Barbara Ward, and a Habitat Forum committee have said there must be a moratorium on the spread of nuclear stations because of environmental and health dangers. Habitat Forum is an unofficial parallel meeting here that is trying to prod the official conference into making bold statements about problems ranging from water quality to housing.

Victor Goldbloom, Quebec environment minister and head of the Canadian delegation in one committee, said politics had already cropped up with an Iraqi resolution calling for recognition of the rights of people who had been dispersed because of political or military activities.

The Palestine Liberation Organization (PLO) has said it will press for the rights of Palestinian refugees. This is expected to lead to a clash with Israel.

Mr. Goldbloom said his committee is expected to establish a working group to draft a final version of the general principles document which will be discussed by the final conference plenary sessions next week.

Bernard Daly, spokesman for the observer group, said the non-governmental organizations wanted to know the delegation's thinking on land issue, but Senator Perrault said the delegation is still working on its final stand. SAYS TOO EXTREME

In position papers prepared for the delegation, Canada suggests that recovering speculative profits on land sales for the community is too extreme. The speculative profits proposal was made in a draft UN document on general principles.

Human settlements

Ed. Note: The following is an article by Hans Blumenfeld, professor, Urban and Regional Planning, University of Toronto. Dr. Blumenfeld has an international reputation as an educator, consultant and critic. The article is written in conjunction with current Habitat conference in Vancouver.

Our century is witnessing the second great settlement revolution in the history of mankind. The first occurred with the Neolithicum which for the first time created permanent man-made villages, to be followed, in some parts of the world by towns and cities. During the 50 to 100 centuries since that first revolution the overwhelming majority of mankind has lived in villages the earth from which they drew their subsistence. Only a small elite of leaders and rulers with those immediately serving them — generally not more than 10 per cent of the population — lived in cities sustained by the surplus extracted from the rural producers.

This was and is being changed by the process too narrowly defined as the industrial revolution, actually the increasing application of scientific method to all spheres of human activity, not least to agriculture. Not only did the interacting processes of division of labour and of increasing productivity greatly increase the surplus produced by primary industry, thereby enabling the majority of the population to work in secondary and tertiary, but an increasing portion of the work required to produce a bushel of wheat or a barrel of oil is now performed by "off-site" labour.

The more this labour becomes specialized, the more it becomes dependent on other specialized workers and enterprises.

Oil barons' legislation

WASHINGTON — With the arrogance of men accustomed to getting their way in Washington, the oil barons have written legislation to award themselves billions in offshore oil.

Their friends in Congress have introduced the giveaway bills as their own, often without changing a single word. We have compared legislation prepared by the oil industry with the actual bills in the legislative works. In some cases, not a comma has been disturbed.

The great offshore oil grab got as far as the House Outer Continental Shelf Committee. There, Chairman John Murphy, D-N.Y., tried to head off the oil companies. He drafted a bill which would give the taxpayers a greater share of the offshore oil revenue and would protect the sea and shore life.

But he was deluged with amendments, which tied up his bill inside the committee for months. The amendments were introduced by Representatives Hamilton Fish Jr., R-N.Y., Edwin Forsythe, R-N.J., Charles Wiggins, R-Calif., and to a lesser extent Don Young, R-Alaska.

We have now learned that many of the amendments were prepared by the American Petroleum Institute and the oil companies it represents. A sheaf of amendments was quietly delivered to the committee's GOP staff by an Institute courier. Thereafter, Republican committee members dumped the amendments upon the committee, without a word to Chairman Murphy about their oily origins.

We have obtained copies of the amendments as they came out of the typewriters of the petroleum companies. It can be seen that some of the Republican congressmen, in their haste to oblige the oil crowd, submitted the legislation without even rephrasing it. In other cases, a word or two was changed, but the pro-oil slant was left intact.

During the wrangling behind closed doors, the committee accepted some of the crippling amendments and defeated others. But the effect was to weaken the bill, which finally was forwarded to the House Rules Committee.

The oil moguls, not satisfied with the sabotage job they had already achieved, sought to torpedo the Murphy measure entirely and thus eliminate the remaining pro-consumer features. This time they lined up the Ford Administration itself to work against the bill in the backrooms.

But a conscientious Administration official, who believed he should serve the public and not the oil industry, tipped off Murphy's staff as to what was happening. The secret plot was spelled out in a memo, written for Murphy's eyes only. The official, whose name we have withheld to save him from reprisals, stated "that the Administration had made a definite policy commitment to try to keep the Rules Committee from granting a rule."

Without a rule, the bill couldn't be taken up on the House floor. But there might be enough pressure from consumers to force the bill out of the Rules Committee in an election year. In this case, the official warned that the Administration planned to slap backs and twist arms in the House cloakrooms.

The object is to get enough votes against the measure on the House floor that "President Ford... could veto the bill without fear of it being overridden."

One of the oil industry's most powerful backstage allies, said the memo, was Interior Secretary Thomas Kleppe. Warned the memo: The Administration has been merely "stringing us along, trying to appear cooperative. But when passage of the bill appeared imminent, they decided to make the all-out effort to kill it."

LETTER TO THE EDITOR

Small
abattoirs
not to blame

To The Editor:

On the news a week or two ago was the statement that some group was trying to put pressure on the government to force the immediate closing of the small abattoirs. There has been talk for two years or more of closing these places. Last spring's scandal concerned the sale of meat from dead animals really brought the matter to a head.

The small slaughter house is being made the scape goat. I followed the 'bad meat' scandal quite closely and as far as I know there wasn't one small abattoir involved. The fact is that these small abattoirs would never dare get involved, even remotely in such a business since most of them operate in small towns or country areas where the customers know pretty well where their meat comes from. These places stay in business by the high quality of the meat they handle.

How many of us have had the experience of getting chickens with meat that is not dark, but black, around the bone of the drumstick? A few years ago those of us who grew up in the country at least, would have thrown such birds out, but now we have learned to accept them as part of the 'luxuries' of modern life. The fact is such birds are NOT diseased, BUT either killed and dressed too quickly so that they do not bleed properly, OR they are severely bruised in handling before they are killed.

Another important point to be considered in closing the small abattoirs, is that of cruelty to animals. If these places are closed down the animals which they normally dress will have to be put on trucks and hauled often long distances to the nearest large slaughter house.

These animals are used to being handled by the farmer and his family, often family pets. They are terrified by the rough handling they receive when being loaded on trucks, they are tied down by the neck in a truck, which must travel fast and stop suddenly, or turn sharply. They are thrown about and often severely bruised. Poor ventilation also adds to the animal's discomfort on long hauls, either too hot or too draughty.

Animals which are dressed by the small abattoir are not usually exposed to such suffering since the distance is not great and the farmer usually takes them to the slaughterhouse himself or hires a neighbour with a truck to take them for him.

It is feared that the bad meat racket will spring up again unless proper measures are taken immediately, but closing the small abattoir is not the means which will prevent it. The bad meat racket took place among rather large packing plants and those who picked up dead and diseased animals. These are the people who need to be watched.

I expect city people will continue to buy most of their meat from the large Canada inspected companies, and I think this is good. These big packing plants buy a good part of their meat from large farmers. The small farmers and the small towns need the small butcher shops. Farmers have come to the defence of the small abattoir but it seems they don't yet have enough support. How about city people coming out for allowing the small abattoir to operate, without having to invest in the expensive equipment called for, for the larger places. This will save a lot of helpless animals, much suffering.

It's moving day this week on Parliament Hill

OTTAWA (CP) — The 165 offices of Prime Minister Trudeau and the Privy Council are to be moved from the East Block building on Parliament Hill this week, making room in the historic building for some cabinet ministers and just plain MPs.

News of the move came Tuesday after Speaker James Jerome told the Commons about a government decision to bring the East Block building under the control of Parliament.

The East Block, one of three Italian Gothic buildings on Parliament Hill, has been reserved in the past for prime ministers, the external affairs department and high public servants. Traditionally too, the cabinet used to meet there.

It also stands apart as the only federal building almost untouched since it was built about a century ago.

In a letter to Mr. Trudeau, the Commons Speaker noted the continuous struggle to fit MPs, cabinet ministers, support staff and press into the West Block and Centre Block buildings.

To ease the housing shortage, the government refitted the old Justice department building near the parliamentary grounds and enticed some MPs to go there with spacious offices and their own cafeteria and restaurant.

In addition, special bus service was set up to drive the MPs the two blocks between the buildings.

URGENT MOVE

With renovations completed in the Langevin building, the Speaker urged the prime minister to move there and allow work to be done in the East Block to accommodate others on the Hill.

In its last financial estimates, the government set aside $8 million for redoing the East Block. About $1 million will be spent this year.

Work on the Langevin Block cost $4 million.

Renovations to the Langevin building began in the winter of 1974, a year after the department of external affairs abandoned the building.

The external affairs staff complained of a leaking roof, bad lighting and an outdated heating system. But the new occupants will have air conditioning, broadloomed floors and chandeliers.

Mr. Jerome said the Prime Minister agreed that future occupancy of the East Block should be mainly by parliamentarians and their staff.

Mr. Trudeau also said he wanted the historic quality of the East Block preserved and some historically-significant rooms restored and open to the public.

Zoo a casualty in Arab-Israeli strife

JERUSALEM (CP) — Not all the casualties of Israel's quarrel with its Arab neighbors are human. The Biblical Zoo, located in the Jerusalem suburb of Romena, has had its share.

Founded in 1939 by zoologist Aharon Shulov, its current chairman and director, the zoo had a population of 122 animals by 1947, when it became a target of sniper attacks.

It was relocated on Mount Scopus on the eve of Israel's war of independence in 1948 and was besieged for three years, during which all but 18 animals were either freed by Shulov or lost in the hostilities.

Relocated at its present site, the zoo came under fire again in the Six-Day War of 1967 and the restored and expanded collection of 700 specimens was reduced by more than 100.

Survivors of these skirmishes are the pair of monkeys which began the project 37 years ago and are still on display.

Almost a decade after the last shelling, the only reminder of strife is a scarred sign near the entrance. The only disturbance is a screaming contest between the children playing in two nearby school yards and the birds and fowl housed in open air cages among the trees.

The animals, paired in most cases since it is a breeding rather than a display zoo, have returned to the gentler pursuit of raising their young.

The core of the collection consists of at least one representative of every animal mentioned in the Bible. And the director says it has not always been easy to identify or find them.

While there are 130 different biblical references, the same animal may have three or more names. And in some cases it is thought that the same label applies to a variety of animals. Shulov said zoologists had to guess the identity of several of them.

MANY RE-INTRODUCED
Once identified, it became apparent that some were virtually extinct and others were no longer to be found in Israel. The lion, leopard, Syrian bear, red and fallow deer, Barbary sheep and ostrich were among those re-introduced to the country through the zoo.

Posted outside each pen is a sign in Hebrew, English and Arabic quoting the passage referring to the animal or bird within.

From Jeremiah XIII, 23: "Can the leopard (change) his spots?"

From Proverbs XXVIII, 15: "As a roaring lion and a greedy bear, so is a wicked ruler over an indigent people."

From Leviticus I, 16: "And the sea-mew and the hawk after its kind."

The zoo is open seven days a week but visitors must purchase tickets in advance from an agency in Jerusalem if they want to attend on a Saturday. Israeli law discourages any exchange of money on the Jewish sabbath.

BRAMPTON, Ont. (CP) — Five hikers from across Canada have left Prince Rupert, B.C., for a 20-month walk across the country. The trip—organized by Murray Muir, 19, of Brampton—is due to wind up in Gamble, Nfld. at the end of 1977.

The hikers will be joined by two others en route and they plan to average seven or eight miles a day through the fields and woods.

As 19-year-old Andrew Forber of Brampton said: "I'm a hiking addict, and I just need a massive fix."

Andrew, along with Maggie MacMillan, 18, of Wolfville, N.S. will join the walk in Jasper, Alta.

The rest of the group left Brampton April 26 on a three-day train trip to B.C. to begin the long hike.

Murray said he had been planning the trip since 1973. "I want to see the country, and it's a challenge," he said. "Most of the people have been on hikes and they like it a lot. Now they want to go on a long hike."

ADVERTISED ON CBC

Murray was on a 20-day hike through the Rocky Mountains last year and he is a veteran of walks through the Bruce Trail. He and three friends from Brampton—Andrew, Neil Livingston, 18, and John Best, 19—advertised on the CBC Radio program As It Happens for others who wished to join them.

They recruited Ed

Dowbyhuz, 24, of Montreal; Tom Parsons, 23, of St. John's Nfld., and Maggie

Murray said 90 per cent of the walk will be through woods and fields. He said the group will make about five miles a day through the mountains, 15 through the prairies and seven or eight the rest of the way. They plan to go to populated areas only to get supplies, then light out again for the country.

The name of the walk is the Green Gamble Hikers.

DOGS CARRY PACKS

"Hacking is what we do through the swamps," said Andrew. "It really improves the patience."

Joining them on the hike are three dogs, which carry supplies in specially-made backpacks.

Murray said the hikers will need about $2,000 each for the trip, not counting money spent on tents, parkas, sleeping bags, backpacks and hiking boots.

"Our parents have backed us pretty well," said Murray. "Most of them tried to discourage us; they said it was a crazy idea. But now they back us."

He said some of the walkers have less experience than others, but all have enthusiasm. They will take trains only if they get behind schedule, and they have no plans to work on the way.

Maggie was asked how she feels being the only girl in the group. She replied: "I don't see why I'd feel any different than Tom feels or Ed feels. We're all a bunch of crazy people, so we'll get along."

Geneva cafe often the scene of history-making decisions

GENEVA, Switzerland (CP) — In a city well supplied with star-rated restaurants, one cafe stands out. For nearly 60 years, diplomats have come to the Bavaria to reconstruct the world—in theory, at least—over good food and wine.

Memories of their days in this international city remain on the walls in caricatures by the Hungarian cartoonists Derso and Kelen.

The caricatures date from 1920, after Woodrow Wilson of the United States, David Lloyd George of Britain, Georges Clemenceau of France and Vittorio Orlando of Italy, meeting in Paris for the post-First World War Treaty of Versailles, designated Geneva as the seat of the future League of Nations.

All their images look down on the tables, plus those of the generation that followed.

There are Britain's Lord Avon, best known as the foreign secretary, Sir Anthony Eden; Sir Harold Macmillan, Eden's successor as prime minister, and Dwight Eisenhower of the United States. A grim Vyacheslav Molotov glares from his frame—but the longtime Soviet Foreign Minister unbent enough to autograph the cartoon. A wine-filled Nikita Khrushchev looks across the room.

PACE WAS SLOWER
Most of the between-the-wars political figures look pleasant and well-fed.

But Mme. Andre Neiger, who helps her husband run the restaurant, observed that the current crop of diplomats are more tense than their forebears.

She noted the absence of the peripatetic U.S. secretary of state, Henry Kissinger.

"He didn't pause long enough for his picture," she said.

Mme. Neiger, who sat down one night with a couple of Canadian guests to talk in French and share the house wine, was more inclined to discuss food, particularly that from the kitchen of the restaurant her husband's father Adolphe started in 1912. Andre Neiger served an apprenticeship in the celebrated French restaurant, the Cafe de Paris.

She recommended first vi-ande sechee des Grisons—beef sliced paper-thin and air-dried in caves of eastern Switzerland near the headwaters of the Rhine—and jambon cru de l'Engadine—thinly-sliced ham from the eastern Engadine region, home of the one per cent of Swiss who speak the ancient Romansch language.

DELICACIES ABOUND
Then there was perch, fresh from Lake Geneva, filleted and breaded. It was far different from the perch of the Cornwall area of eastern Ontario which often appears in Lancaster perch rolls.

Mme. Neiger emphasized that cosmopolitan Geneva is not entirely typical of Swiss cuisine. Other kitchen delights abound in the country.

While cheese fondue is well known in Canada, the Gruyeres region offers raclette—a first cousin. Here a thick slice of Gruyere cheese is melted under a table-top broiler, the runny cheese is scraped off and eaten with tiny potatoes boiled in their jackets, pickled cucumbers and pearl onions.

Knowledgeable Swiss have their own way of enjoying fondue. The cube of bread is first dipped in kirschwasser, the fiery, cherry-flavored Swiss brandy, before being rolled in the bubbling mixture of Gruyere and Emmentaler cheese.

Sidewalk cafes on the southern Italian-speaking canton of Ticino offer pizza with a difference. It comes from the oven moist, piled high with mushrooms and has a flaky crust.

But one Swiss dish is almost universal. It is bratwurst and rosti—white farmer's sausage made from veal and served with a pie-shaped helping of potatoes, fried on both sides until golden brown.

Mr. and Mrs. James Francis Kominek

Kominek-Picken

A very pretty spring marriage was solemnized on May 1st at St. George's Anglican Church in Lennoxville at 3 p.m. when Mary Lou Calvina Picken of Bulwer, Que. became the bride of James Francis Kominek, son of Mr. and Mrs. Frank Kominek, of Blenheim, Ont. The double ring ceremony was performed by Rev. Archdeacon Sidney Meade.

Mrs. S. E. Pennington presided at the organ playing the traditional wedding music accompanying the soloist, Miss Sandy Stuart, who sang, "We've Only Just Begun" during the signing of the register.

Arrangements of red and white carnations adorned the church and the guest pews were marked with large white bows.

The bride given in marriage by her father was beautiful in a gown of whispery white organza over silk having an Alencon lace accented bodice that, buttoned up the back with tiny covered buttons, with long sleeves ending in points over the hands. The full skirt was trimmed with U-shaped rows of lace daisies, having a lace floral design in the center of each, on the front and sides of the skirt while a large U of lace daisies trimmed the full chapel length train. The same trim edged the hem of the dress. She wore a true Juliet cap that held her chapel length veil of one sheer layer of mantilla veiling trimmed with daisy lace similar to the gown.

Her only ornament was a pearl drop necklace with matching earrings. She carried a bouquet of red roses and baby's breath.

Miss Heather Adams as maid of honor was in a full length gown of polyester silk peach floral print fashioned on princess lines and an open mandarin collar with a large peach tulle picture hat completing her costume. She carried a bouquet of peach and white rosebuds interspersed with lilies of the valley.

Her three bridesmaids were Miss Brenda Lee Picken, Mrs. Barbara Lowry, both sisters of the bride, and Miss Janet Kominek, sister of the groom. Their gowns were identical to the maid of honor with Brenda Lee wearing pale peach with a bouquet of blue tinted rosebuds, Barbara Lowry in a pale green floral print and bouquet of peach rosebuds while Janet Kominek wore pale green and carried a soft yellow rosebud bouquet. Each wore a matching picture tulle hat.

Miss Judy Ross, niece of the bride, as flower girl was in a long dress of yellow polyester with a matching brimmed hat. She carried a basket of assorted colored rosebuds and lilies of the valley. Master Dean Nobes acted as ringbearer.

Mr. Lloyd Coleman was best man and the ushers were Mr. John Kominek brother of the groom and Mr. Tom Marks all of Chatham Ont. and Mr. Keith Lowry, brother-in-law of the bride. The groom and his attendants plus the ringbearer all wore dark forest green tuxedos with white ruffled shirts and green bow ties with a white carnation boutonniere.

Mrs. Picken, mother of the bride, chose a gown of rich deep royal pink with yoke and long sleeves of matching lace. Her corsage was of red sweetheart roses.

Mrs. Kominek was in a long dress of pale shrimp with yellow sweetheart rose corsage.

Mrs. Kenneth Harmer, grandmother of the bride, was in a mediterranean blue gown with a corsage of red roses.

The wedding reception was held at Jardin Prevart in Birtchton where the bride's table was centered with a three tier wedding cake, made by the bride's mother and decorated by Mrs. Kay Taylor, flanked on either side by white tapers in silver holders.

Miss Susan Picken, youngest sister of the bride, caught the bridal bouquet and Mr. Paul Desjardins caught the garter. Music was played by The Flamingo Flamingoes' orchestra during the dinner and later in the evening, Susan Picken took charge of the guest book.

The happy couple left on a trip to the Poconos in Penn. State and other points of interest in the U.S. For travelling, the bride wore a brown floral polyester print jersey dress and brown accessories with a corsage of white gardenias.

Prior to her marriage showers were given by the groom's aunt, Mrs. Milan Sojak, at Ridgeway, Ont. Mrs. Sherran Mitchell in Chatham Ont. and Miss Heather Adams; Mrs. Eric Nobes and Mrs. Arnold MacKeage at Lennoxville and by Mrs. Stuart Merrill, Mrs. Sidney Prescott and Mrs. Douglas Grapes at Bulwer.

Mrs. S. Picken, mother of the bride, held a trousseau tea where the many lovely wedding gifts were displayed.

The couple are residing in Blenheim, Ont. Out of town guests were from: Toronto, Blenheim, Dresden, London, Kitchener, Waterloo, Barrie, Mississauga, Chatham, Ridgeway, Ontario, Montreal, Pierrefonds, Cowansville, Sweetsburg and points in the Eastern Townships, Que.

Gelato soothes diet pangs

By Aileen Claire
NEA Food Editor

It is difficult to cling to a diet until it is effective, especially if you have a sweet tooth. If you are dieting by cutting daily caloric intake, include a low caloric dessert on your menu. You can make one from nonfat dry milk, skim milk, egg whites and unflavored gelatin, pineapple juice and apricot nectar that is attractive, refreshing and only about 70 calories per half cup.

PINEAPPLE-APRICOT GELATO
1 envelope unflavored gelatin
1/2 cup sugar
1/2 cup nonfat dry milk powder
1 1/4 cups skim milk
1/3 cup unsweetened pineapple juice
1/3 cup apricot nectar
2 egg whites

In medium saucepan, mix unflavored gelatin, sugar and nonfat dry milk powder. Stir in milk. Place over low heat. Stir constantly until gelatin dissolves, about 5 minutes. Remove from heat, cool slightly and stir in juices. Pour into freezer tray and freeze until firm.

In large chilled bowl, beat gelatin mixture and egg whites at high speed until smooth and fluffy. Turn into 9 x 5 x 3-inch loaf pan. Return to freezer and freeze. Makes about five and one-half cups. Approximately 70 calories per half cup serving.

Simplicity Japanese style

By Aileen Claire
NEA Food Editor

Japanese cooking, as we are coming to know it in Americanized restaurants, is considered much simpler than the many styles of Chinese cuisine. For this reason, Japanese dishes have their staunch supporters, just as the Chinese food devotees rarely waver in their choice. Here are two Japanese favorites, a sesame shrimp and a beef teriyaki, both of which take the briefest of cooking time.

SESAME SHRIMP
1/4 cup peanut oil
3 tablespoons lemon juice
3 tablespoons soy sauce
1 tablespoon honey

1/4 teaspoon ground ginger
1 large clove garlic, crushed
1 pound uncooked jumbo shrimp, shelled and deveined
1/3 cup toasted sesame seed

Combine 2 tablespoons peanut oil, lemon juice, soy sauce, honey, ginger and garlic. Mix well. Stir in shrimp. Cover and refrigerate two hours, stirring once or twice. Heat remaining 2 tablespoons peanut oil in a skillet over moderate heat. Fry shrimp one and one-half to two minutes on each side, or until done. Dip each shrimp in sesame seed, lightly coating each side. Place on heated serving platter. Serve hot. Makes 6 servings.

BEEF TERIYAKE
cup finely chopped onion tablespoons sugar
teaspoon ground ginger
large clove garlic, minced cup soy sauce cup sherry tablespoons peanut oil pounds boneless beef sirloin, cut into 4x1x1/4-inch strips

Combine onion, sugar, ginger, garlic, soy sauce, sherry and peanut oil in large bowl. Stir in meat; mix well. Cover. Refrigerate several hours or overnight. Thread strips of beef onto metal skewers. Broil 3-inches from source of heat, 2 to 3 minutes on each side. Makes 6 servings.

Ann Landers says:

Rank hath its privileges

Dear Ann Landers: I've been married 25 years and not once during a meal has Wilbur or one of our four sons had the courtesy to pass me a basket of bread, a bowl of vegetables, or the salad dressing.

I prepare dinner, set the table and call the family. Wilbur carves the meat and we pass our plates to him to be served. Then we help ourselves to whatever is closest — potatoes, vegetables, and so on.

I like to have my complete dinner on my plate before I start to eat, but the boys are so busy talking, they forget I am waiting for the food. Whatever it is, it stops with them and I sit. When my husband starts to eat he gets a faraway look in his eye and goes completely deaf. The only way I can get his attention is by tapping his arm.

I realize this isn't the worst problem you've read all week but it's been bugging me for years. Is there a solution? — F.P.

Dear F.P.: Yes. Instruct the boys to pass everything to you FIRST — immediately after Wilbur has put the meat on your plate. You are their mother — also chief cook and bottle-washer. Rank hath its privileges.

Dear Ann Landers: I am in a state of shock. A man I've been seeing for nearly a year (he's 38 and I'm 33) told me last night the romance is over. Why? Because I used a toothpick in a restaurant.

We talked about marriage and I'm sure he was sincere. When he told me the reason we are through I couldn't believe it. What do you think, Ann? — Crushed In Jersey

Dear Jersey: A romance that could be felled by a toothpick wasn't much to begin with. I suspect Romeo got cold feet and used this as an excuse. A bargain he couldn't have been, so cheer up, doll.

Dear Ann Landers: Some time ago a woman wrote in and said she and her husband were divorced and now he is dying. She asked whether or not she should go to the funeral. He remarried but always kept close to their children.

You said yes, she should go, but suggested she sit in the back pew and not with the family.

My situation is a little different. When my husband and I were divorced he proved I was an unfit mother and took custody of our children. In those days, I was young and foolish and didn't want the kids, so it didn't bother me. A few years later I got some sense and regretted my past actions but by then it was too late.

I just learned my former husband has about three months to live. I don't think I should go to the funeral even if I sat in the back. Some people have the nerve to do anything, but not me. What do you think? — Mrs. Regrets

Dear Mrs.: If you would like to pay your last respects to the man who was once your husband — go. I see no reason for anyone to feel offended.

Dear Ann Landers: I'm a sophomore, age 17, with girl trouble. Or I should say father trouble — hers, not mine.

Sally is 15 and very mature for her age but her old man refuses to let her grow up. She can date only two nights a week and has a 12:30 a.m.

curfew. Help, Aunt Annie! — Rex

Dear Rex: You rattled the wrong cage, Bub. I'm with her dad. Two nights out a week for a 15-year-old girl is just right. So is 12:30. And I'm not your aunt.

Remove dog hairs with wire brush

By Polly Cramer

Polly's Problem

DEAR POLLY — No one seems to be able to help me with my problem. I have a big dog with long hair. He got on a brand new blanket on my bed and left it covered with long hairs. I have tried running the sweeper over them, adding lots of fabric softener to the rinse water but nothing seems to help. Do you have any suggestions for removing these hairs from my blanket and the sheets, too. Do not tell me to keep my dog outside as that is what Dr. Abby told me. If I did not want the dog I would not have gotten him in the first place and I love animals too much to pen them outside in the cold, rain or extreme heat. My dog is also a protection since my husband works odd hours and is sometimes gone for a week or two at a time. I hope you understand and can help me — DELORIS.

DELORIS — I do understand but am afraid I do not have much to offer in the way of help, except I would try a thorough brushing by hand, perhaps using a little wire suede brush. It will doubtless raise the nap on your blanket and make it a bit rough, but try a corner. A stiff scrub brush might also be tried. How about this, readers? — POLLY.

DEAR POLLY — My Pet Peeve is directed to those door to door people who distribute advertising and put it in between the screen door and the screen guard. Ours is heavy, with very small openings covering half the door. When something goes down between them, the guard has to be dismantled to remove the item. It seems that most of them do go down, too. — MARY.

DEAR POLLY — Recently I was in California. While there, I was quite impressed with an idea in a friend's bathroom. She had cut a plywood board to fit over the top of her bath tub like a cover or lid. She covered this with the plush material that was used on the floor and then had put throw pillows to lean against the wall to hide the faucets. This gave the appearance of a sofa and made the room look so rich. — MRS. M.C.

DEAR MRS. M.C. — This must have been an idea indigenous to California. Once, one of my children bought a house there that had this same idea in a first floor bathroom that also served as a powder room. I had never seen or heard of one before and have not since. We could never figure out how one could take a bath in the tub since dismantling would be a problem, and few bathrooms would have the space to stand it against the wall when the tub was used. We concluded that it was used to camouflage the tub, as the bath was mainly used as a powder room. My children discarded the cover as not being too practical. Some things may be nice to look at but do not prove to be very feasible for every day living. — POLLY.

ARIES (March 21-April 19) You are a little slow starting today, till someone waves a dollar sign in front of you. Then stand back, for the sparks will fly.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20) Today, expensive diversions won't equal something you put together on the spur of the moment with a few friends for some laughs.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20) In making any decorative changes around home today, be sure they're not merely decorative. If choice is necessary, favor utility.

CANCER (June 21-July 21) Go out of your way to pay compliments if they're deserved. However, don't be lavish with your praise if it isn't really earned.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) Take advantage of your ability today to develop situations that can spell personal gain or advancement. You are extra clever in this area.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) Your motivation today should be the right thing to do. Don't move on the possibility of praise or blame by your peers.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 23) Looking out for the other guy will be far more profitable today than promoting narrow self-interests. Unselfishness pays.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 22) Even though you have friends who can help you businesswise today, resist imposing on them. If you want to call them for a friendly chat, OK.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23-Dec. 21) You can attain important goals today if you involve only those who have a specific role in the situation. Don't bring along outsiders just for the ride.

He ruffed the third diamond and promptly led his singleton heart toward dummy's jack.

If East took his queen South would have been able to score his 10th trick by taking a ruffing finesse against East's ace. But East had been doing some heavy thinking as soon as dummy hit the table and

Controllers: Bilingual ATC only "Marketing operation"

QUEBEC (CP) — Spokesmen for a group of French-language air industry employees say federal transport department officials have told them that a planned inquiry into bilingual air traffic control is no more than a "marketing operation" to sell bilingualism.

Roger Demers and Pierre Beaudry, president and secretary respectively of the Association des Gens de l'Air du Québec, made the statement at a news conference Wednesday following a meeting with Sylvain Cloutier, deputy federal transport minister, and Walter McLeish, associate administrator of the transport department.

Mr. Demers and Mr. Beaudry said the federal officials conceded to them there is no technical justification for the inquiry.

set up as part of a recent contract settlement with the Canadian Association of Air Traffic Controllers (CATCA).

L'Association des Gens de l'Air has sent a letter to Transport Minister Otto Lang drawing his attention to the officials' comments.

In the letter, Mr. Demers also challenges the appointment of Montreal lawyer John Keenan as a one-man inquiry commission to look into safety aspects of air traffic control.

CHALLENGE CREDENTIALS

Mr. Keenan's credentials also have been challenged by Jean-Luc Patenaude, Quebec regional director of CATCA, who pointed out recently that Mr. Keenan was once a lawyer for the Canadian Air Line Pilots Association, which opposes bilingual traffic control.

Mr. Demers suggested in his letter that a second commissioner be appointed, naming as a possibility Benoit Ste. Marie, former general manager of Quebecair and currently general manager of Quebec government air services.

L'Association des Gens de l'Air is a private group formed earlier this year to protect the interests of French-language air industry employees in Quebec.

Among its members are most of the French-speaking air traffic controllers in the province, as well as French-speaking pilots and ground crew.

The Quebec air personnel are angry at the federal government's recent decision to suspend the program of progressive introduction of bilingualism in air traffic communications in the face of a strike threat by CATCA.

Reach entente with EEC

OTTAWA (CP) — External Affairs Minister Allan MacEachen announced Wednesday that officials of Canada and the Commission of the European Communities have reached agreement on texts of the framework agreement for commercial and economic co-operation between Canada and the European communities.

The agreements were marked in Brussels by an exchange of notes between the commission and the Canadian mission to the communities.

Texts of the agreements now will be submitted to the governments concerned for consideration and approval, said Mr. MacEachen.

The minister added that both sides hope formal signing of the agreements will take place soon. Formal negotiations on the agreement began last February. However other discussions have been going for about two years.

Mr. MacEachen said the framework agreements "would be non-preferential and of evolutionary and pragmatic character."

"At the heart of the agreement would be provisions covering commercial and economic co-operation as well as consultation procedures," said Mr. MacEachen.

"Particular aspects of commercial and economic co-operation would be for discussion in the Joint Co-operation Committee to be set up under the terms of the agreement."

King visits

WASHINGTON (AP) — Spain's King Juan Carlos began a bicentennial visit to the United States Wednesday with a pledge to end authoritarian rule in Spain by creating a system of "authentic liberty."

In an address to a joint session of Congress, the tall, 38-year-old monarch said a chief goal of his reign is to ensure that every Spaniard "has full scope for political participation without discrimination of any kind."

Juan Carlos, the first Spanish head of state ever to visit the U.S., earlier was welcomed at the White House, and President Ford endorsed the king's efforts to move Spain into the West European political mainstream.

Ford praised the "wise and able leadership" Juan Carlos has demonstrated in the six months since he ascended to the Spanish throne.

Juan Carlos' speech to Congress came at a time when the U.S. Senate is considering a $1.2-billion base treaty with Spain. The treaty was approved by the Senate foreign relations committee last month with only two dissenting votes.

At a White House state dinner Wednesday night, Ford said in a toast that closer ties between the United States and Spain can do much to safeguard peace and that Washington has "high expectations" for Spain under the leadership of its new monarch.

Ministers split over Orion deal

OTTAWA (CP) — A rift between Defence Minister James Richardson and Supply Minister Jean-Pierre Goyer was apparent in the Commons Wednesday over the financing negotiations which preceded collapse of the $1-billion Lockheed aircraft deal.

The daily question period was dominated by questions from the Opposition to both ministers over what Opposition Leader Joe Clark termed the $16-million misunderstanding. There also were demands that both ministers resign.

The government must pay up to $16 million for preliminary work undertaken by the financially-troubled U.S. aircraft firm despite collapse of the deal to purchase 18 long-range patrol aircraft.

Former prime Minister John Diefenbaker said Mr. Richardson is becoming the "scapegoat" in the affair, which he said was caused by the stupidity of the supply minister.

DENIES PLAN KNOWN

Mr. Goyer said he had no idea on Dec. 2 that there would be a need for the government to borrow $100 million to finance the first three years of the deal.

It was on that date that Mr.

Goyer, then minister responsible for government contracts, sent a telegram to Lockheed authorizing preliminary work which led to the government's $16-million commitment.

Mr. Richardson said "it was clearly known in November" that interest money would be required for financing the interim stages of the deal.

"If you are going to borrow, there must be a shortfall—that is self-evident. So that any number of cabinet ministers who attended those meetings knew there was a shortfall—that is clear."

Hits anti-inflation moves

OTTAWA (CP) — The real intent of federal anti-inflation law is to interfere with labor relations and pricing contracts, the Canadian Labor Congress argued before the Supreme Court of Canada Wednesday.

CLC lawyer Maurice Wright of Ottawa called the Anti-Inflation Act an "attempt to assume control over matters that are entirely provincial."

He presented his arguments during the third day of a high court hearing that will decide whether the act is constitutional.

Outside the court, Mr. Wright said Parliament did not consciously set out to take control of areas of provincial jurisdiction, but that has been the effect.

He told the nine-man court that it has not been shown why the provinces could not have their own programs of wage and price controls to fight inflation. He presented economic statistics designed to show that inflation was not a problem of national dimensions.

Earlier, he said the act—which places the country under three years of wage and price controls—cannot be considered true emergency legislation because it does not cover "enormous portions of the country."

A national emergency usually involved universal coverage, but the anti-inflation controls covered only certain companies. Even the preamble to the act did not contain statements to show that inflation had become a national emergency.

up on the agenda.

Earlier in the day at the main plenary session of Habitat, delegations from Egypt and Saudi Arabia called for a return of the Palestinians to their lands.

Prince Majid Al Saud, minister of municipal and rural affairs for Saudi Arabia, said the Palestinians had been deprived of their legitimate right to occupy their land.

The Egyptian delegation termed the Israeli occupation of Palestinian lands by armed force "an open aggression on man" and called it "a violation of human rights and a violation of international conventions."

make its presentation. But the PLO delegate interrupted.

"We are really stunned by the representative of the Zionist state because there are one-million Palestinian refugees who aren't able to return to their homes and villages in occupied Palestine," he said.

The PLO delegate said if Israel was interested in housing problems, then it should allow the Palestinians to return to their homes. At present, many Palestinian refugees live in camps in Gaza and Lebanon.

LEN'S CORNER

BY LEN O'DONNELL

BOBBY ORR IS THE TOP MAN on the NHL Free-agent list which came into effect Tuesday. The ex-Bruin has a very impressive group with him according to the list released by the NHL.

SEVERAL OF THE PLAYERS are discussing new contracts with their respective clubs and will no doubt sign in the near future. As for Orr it seems that several clubs are interested in securing his services.

IT SEEMS THAT ALAN EAGLESON, Orr's agent, is seeking a three-year contract of $3 million for his player, which is quite a huge sum of money for any athlete. He claims he has received bids from five NHL clubs, Kings, Canadiens, Flyers, Hawks and the Blues while four of the WHA are in the market, Cowboys, Oilers, Stingers and Whalers.

EAGLESON, WHO IS A SMART OPERATOR, now that he has several bids for his star will try to get a little more from the interested clubs and no doubt some of the teams will go higher. I think that they figure, with Orr in their lineup, they will draw more fans to their rink.

A BIG RISK IS INVOLVED in this deal and I mean just a good is "ORR'S FAMOUS KNEE" and how long will it last under pressure? That to me is the big question and is it worth the risk of putting up a few millions and then find out after a few weeks their star is back on the sidelines.

THERE IS NO QUESTION AS A hockey player he is worth it, if he is in top shape, and no doubt the clubs interested must have some inside information or they wouldn't be ready to toss a few millions down the drain.

IT LOOKS LIKE A BATTLE OF THE MILLIONS will commence to secure his services and the team who is willing to untie the purse strings will emerge the winner. On the other hand, is "any player" worth that kind of money? These high prices will eventually put some clubs out of business and only the rich ones will remain. The price of tickets will go up and then who pays the bill for the Super Star, just plain "Joe The Fan."

IT WILL TAKE A MIRACLE to save the Kansas City Scouts, says Mayor Charles Wheeler. William Clarkson, a business man from Kansas City, has been trying to promote local interest to save the franchise but so far no one has shown any interest.

THE OWNERS OF THE SCOUTS have lost $5 million in two years of operation, hence their main reason for wanting to get help or they will quit. If this should happen it will be the first time in NHL history it ever happened. So it looks as though one more will go by the wayside. The Scouts were an expansion club and it seems that they are the ones that are getting hurt in the shuffle.

THE CANADIAN GOLF OPEN has, at last, found a home. The championships in the future will be played at a new layout in Oakville, Ont. The course is the Glen Abbey Golf Club and was laid-out by Jack Nicklaus and will be the permanent home for the Open.

CONGRATULATIONS ARE IN ORDER to Pierre Brosseau of the Sherbrooke Country Club for his fine showing in the qualifying round of the Spring Open championship held at Valleyfield. He shared the low score with Max Lemenu of Richelieu Valley with 73's. The event will be played Friday at Beaconsfield. Good luck, Pierre, in the final.

MONTREAL ALOUETTES OF THE Canadian Football League will be moving into Bishop's University June 12 to set up their training quarters for the coming season.

THE ROOKIES REPORT IN ON Saturday, June 12 while the vets will check in on Monday June 14. Coach Levy and his staff will arrive a few days ahead of time to analyze everything for their arrival. Bruce Coulter and Al Razys have been hard at work straightening matters out and they are ready for the aspiring football players. The public can watch the players in workouts but the times haven't been set as yet.

CROSS-COUNTRY SKIING in Eastern Canada has caused a sharp rise in tourist trade according to a report from the National Parks Service. There was a 36-per-cent rise in National Parks in Quebec by visitors from across the border.

NEW CROSS-COUNTRY SKI TRAILS were provided and this attracted new visitors to our parts which was a boost in tourist trade. Around Three Rivers, La Tuque and Shawinigan there was a jump of 254-per-cent in the skiing world. Not a bad business for the ski resorts.

ARGOS' JIM STILLWAGON has been traded to the British Columbia Lions for future consideration. Dick Shatto, managing director of the Argos, said he was unable to find out why Jim was unhappy with the Argos. If a player isn't happy with us, he goes, as if he stays around, it will hurt the team. An unhappy player on any club is no good, said Dick Shatto.

THE HOCKEY SEASON IS STILL MONTHS AWAY but the battle on the signing question has already commenced. It seems young Randy Carlyle's agent claims his player never signed to play with the Stingers of the WHA although Norm Caplan says the rookie defenseman did, and that the money is in a bank in Montreal for him.

HE HAS SIGNED WITH THE Toronto Maple Leafs of the NHL and now the battle is on. Did he or didn't he sign? Caplan claims he did sign a letter of agreement with the Stingers way back and that he must stick with it. There should be no jumping around, especially if one signs. If it is true he signed, then he shouldn't be allowed to jump to another club. Just as simple as that. Time the kids realize that a signature is something one must stick by the respect.

Bruins' Sinden claims NHL clubs tampered with Orr

TORONTO (CP) — The Globe and Mail says Boston Bruins are investigating whether other National Hockey League teams tampered with defenceman Bobby Orr before he became a free agent Tuesday.

The newspaper says Boston managing director Harry Sinden will not say specifically which team or teams has approached Orr improperly.

"Put it this way, (Al) Eagleson (Orr's agent) can't be nailed for tampering," said Sinden. "He's doing a job for his client and these owners are going to him."

"Court cases aren't won on assumption. But the Boston Bruins are out to prove what has transpired before June 1."

Sinden said it was deplorable that certain owners have disregarded NHL bylaws regarding free-agent status in attempts to get the inside track on the bidding war for Orr's services.

"It's especially discouraging when some well-respected partners in these bylaws circumvent precisely what they have themselves established," he said. "And even worse, some of these partners are highly-respected within the league."

The NHL bylaws provide for heavy fines for teams tampering with free agents before June 1.

Eagleson indicated well before June 1 that Los Angeles Kings and Detroit Red Wings headed the list of teams which may sign Orr.

Glen Booth, who is rated

9th in Canada, was picked as the favorite for the tournament with Pierre Lamarche second and Roger Raymond as third. Sherbrooke's Denis Lamoureux, last year's winner will have his hands full defending his title.

A little over 40 players will be battling for a berth in the final 12 spots on the draw. Fifteen of the top players in the Province have made their entries and will be on hand.

THREE'S THE USUAL CROWD at home plate, but in this case it's six — representing two baseball eras. With modern-day counterparts also getting into the act, players and umpire in period uniforms re-enact at Pittsfield, Mass., the first intercollegiate baseball game — 1859, in which Amherst defeated Williams College 72-32. Authentic uniforms, bats and balls were reproduced by Spalding.

Records fall by wayside in Olympic swimming trials, Smith breaks his own mark

TORONTO (CP) — Records continued to fall at the Canadian Olympic swimming trials Wednesday but the recordbreakers still weren't satisfied.

"I was looking for a 1:04," said Graham Smith, 17, of Edmonton, after he broke his own Canadian record in the men's 100-metre backstroke with a time of one minute, 52.5 seconds. "I wasn't very pleased with my time."

And Stephen Badger of Winnipeg, the Australian who recently received approval to swim for Canada at Montreal, expressed similar disappointment after setting a Canadian record of 1:54.61 in winning the 200-metre freestyle final.

Paul Midgley of Pointe Claire, Que., scored the day's other record with a 16:08.86 clocking in the 1,500-metre freestyle beats but he has another chance to further lower the mark when that final is run tonight.

Wednesday's other two events did not produce records. Wendy Quirk of Pointe Claire won the women's 400-metre freestyle and Wendy Hogg of Vancouver, formerly Wendy Cook, captured the women's 100-metre backstroke.

Second place behind Smith in the 100-metre backstroke was Mel Zajac of Vancouver in 1:07.94. The Olympic standard for three entries is 1:06.9 and for two entries, 1:08.2. Thus Smith and Zajac qualified but the third-place finisher, Dave Meinbach of Vancouver, missed with a time of 1:08.00.

In the men's 200 freestyle, Vancouver's Stephen Pickell started the assault on the Canadian record by winning a heat in 1:55.90, beating the former mark of 1:55.92 held by Bruce Robertson of Vancouver.

Badger then lowered the mark to 1:55.66 in his heat and wound up with a 1:54.61 in the final.

Bill Sawchuk of Thunder Bay took second in the final with a 1:55.49 and Pickell took third in 1:56.14. Jim Hett of Kitchener took fourth in 1:56.93. The Olympic standard for three entries is 1:57.2.

145 rookies report to Argos' camp

TORONTO (CP) — Toronto Argonauts opened what may be the biggest training camp in the history of the Canadian Football League Wednesday and immediately began cutting down.

A total of 145 candidates participated in the first session. Eleven players were suspended, released, placed on waivers or announced retirement before the day was out.

Ten of the 11 were imports, including Nick Roman, a six-three defensive end from Ohio State who announced he was quitting football.

The only non-import in the group of players released was linebacker John Montelpare, a graduate of Montreal's Concordia University.
