Bismarck opposes the pardoning of Krazeweski, recently convicted at Leipsic of treason, on the ground that when the Polish party desired to show their sympathies for Germany, Krazeweski acted as a spy in favor of France. He was, Bismarck declared, playing a double game of a Polish patriot and a Russo-French emissary.

President Riddle, of the Penn. Bank, Pittsburg, Pa., made a statement on the 2nd to the effect that he organized the blind pool to put up the price of oil, that an overdrawn account at the bank might be made good. He had no personal interest in the pool. The fictitious accounts were made during his absence.

The Governor of Dongola telegraphs that the rebels northward of Berber have completely submitted to his authority. The prospect of Kassala is much brighter. The rebels continue night attacks upon Suakim, but the Egyptian troops are behaving well. The rebel attacks, Sunday evening, were repulsed and the rebels compelled to retire, leaving five killed and five wounded behind them.

The Italian newspapers are making a great outcry over the "Foreign Production bill" which has been introduced by Premier Ferry in the French Chamber of Deputies. The bill proposes to double the impost on cattle and to increase the tariff on all cereals to 3 francs 75 centimes per hundred kilograms. The Italian papers declare that if Minister Ferry's "threatened act of hostility" be committed by France it will manifestly be the duty of the Italian Government to make reprisals by increasing the impost on goods coming from France.

THE ENO CASE.

The Prisoner Released on Judge Tessier's Order, but Re-arrested on Another Warrant.

QUEBEC, June 2.—This afternoon Judge Tessier reviewed the facts and arguments in the Eno case, and declared the warrant utterly insufficient, the prisoner not being described as John C. Eno, of the Second National Bank, but as a defaulter from the West Side Bank. The result was received with applause. High Constable Bissonnette, amid much excitement, at once produced a new warrant from the police magistrate at Montreal, endorsed by the police magistrate here, authorizing the arrest of John C. Eno on a charge of stealing $155,000 from the Second National Bank, New York, and bringing a portion of it into Canada. Mr. Davidson said this was a new and incontestable warrant, and therefore Eno should at once be handed over. The judge said he had nothing to do with it; the prisoner was discharged. After argument by Mr. Davidson and Mr. Irvine, the warrant was handed over to the clerk of the court, the judge saying he would not allow the arrest to be made while the court was sitting, otherwise he should order the constable's arrest. Presently Judge Tessier retired, saying if counsel wished to see him he should be in chambers. Mr. Irvine asked to see the warrant which Mr. Bissonnette at first demurred giving him, Mr. Davidson also objecting. While he was perusing it Mr. Davidson objected, amid some excitement, to the delay. Mr. Irvine said he had not got through reading, and that the High Constable was an insolent fellow. Finally the warrant was returned and the High Constable said he would go with his prisoner to Police Magistrate Chauveau, as he had been instructed. No sooner had Eno left the Court House than Bissonnette made the arrest. Eno was taken before the Police Magistrate, who ruled that he should be retained in the custody of the Quebec High Constable till to-morrow, and that in the meantime the Police Magistrate of Montreal should be advised. Eno's counsel will resist his return to Montreal, as he feels he will obtain justice in Quebec better than in Montreal. Deputy Marshal Holmes asked Eno if, in order to save any farther proceedings here, he would voluntarily return, when he replied, "No, I don't think I shall return." The case comes up again to-morrow. Meantime much interest is manifested in the proceedings.

The Chronicle publishes the following report of an interview with Eno in the St. Louis Hotel.

"The reporter inquired if he desired to make any statement. "None whatever," was the answer, "but I will try to reply to any question you may have to put." "My detention," he said in answer to an enquiry, "was the result of an accident. When I was first arrested it was in error, and I was at once released." "Have you anything to say upon the charges against you?" queried the reporter. "I cannot be extradited," he said, "and shall be set free as soon as I reach Montreal. I may have been guilty of indiscretion and have certainly been led into doing what I should not have done, but I am guilty of nothing that is extraditable." As to his departure from New York, he acknowledged that he had been advised by his attorney to leave the city for a while until after the storm blew over.

FINANCIAL MATTERS.

Run on a Washington Bank—The Situation in New York Improved—Receiver Appointed for Booth's Theatre.

WASHINGTON, June 2.—There was a run on the National Savings Bank this morning. The officers say they are able to meet all demands. Although some deposits have been withdrawn to-day from all the other banks, nothing approaching the importance of a run is shown at any except at the one indicated.

The Comptroller of Currency returned from New York to-day. He regards the financial situation as much improved.

A receiver has been appointed for the Hot Springs National Bank.

NEW YORK, June 2.—A receiver has been appointed for Booth's theatre property in the suit of John H. Morris against Grant & Ward and others.

THE PRESIDENCY.

Notes From the Republican Convention—Temporary Chairman Elected—The Strength of the Candidates.

CHICAGO, June 2.—At the convention this afternoon Powell Clayton, of Arkansas, was selected to be temporary chairman. He is for Blaine. At a caucus of Edmunds' adherents held this morning between 300 and 400 people were present, of whom 150 were delegates. The latter were not willing to pledge themselves to the cause of Edmunds at the outset, but the absolute pledges of 90 were obtained to vote for him, and it was estimated his strength in the early balloting would exceed 100. The Arkansas delegation was addressed this morning by Collector Robertson, who said Blaine would certainly carry New York, while he was in doubt about Arthur being able to secure it. The Maryland delegation took a vote to-night to determine how it would stand in the early balloting. The result was: Blaine, 12; Arthur, 4. Rhode Island will vote for Edmunds and at the meeting on Thursday morning decide where they will go in case the Edmunds campaign proves a failure.

The crowning incident of the day was the action taken by the Indiana delegates in respect to the candidacy of Senator Harrison. Early in the morning he was requested to quit the headquarters and retired to his room. The delegation then battled through a three hours' session as to the stand they would take in the convention. The proposition to present the name of Harrison was carried by a fair majority, but a unanimous vote could not be obtained, owing to the intervention of friends of Gresham. The Gresham adherents refused to come into line, but agreed that if the delegation was allowed to go into the convention with hands free and it was demonstrated that neither Blaine nor Arthur could be nominated and any considerable number of votes were cast for either Gresham or Harrison, then Indiana would give her entire vote to the one showing the greatest strength.

A circular bearing the title "New York for Blaine—The voice of the Empire State calling James G. Blaine to lead to victory," will be given out to-morrow. It is endorsed by twenty New York State delegates, including ex-Senator Platt, for whose re-election with Conkling, Arthur, then Vice-President, worked so hard at Albany, and for which he has been bitterly assailed by the independent or better element of the Republicans ever since.

The New York delegation had a protracted meeting with closed doors for the purpose of organizing to-night, voting for delegation officers and committeemen. Sixty-seven of the seventy-two delegates were present. Blaine and Edmunds men voted together, and, having a majority, elected their men. Under this combination G. W. Curtis was chosen chairman of the delegation. The Edmunds men voted with the Blaine delegates, and helped to choose six of the eight officials, suddenly changed around and voted with the Arthur men, that combination choosing the remaining four, defeating in one instance ex-Senator Platt, a pronounced Arthur man being chosen, and Attorney-General Leslie Russell supplanted by an Arthurian. Speaker Sheard, of the New York state legislature, says the Edmunds men agreed to vote with the Blaine men throughout the list, but broke faith.

Horace White, of the New York Evening Post, in an interview to-day said:—"It seems to me that Blaine and Arthur are about evenly matched at 300 to 320 votes each; that Edmunds will have about 100, Logan about 50, Sherman 40, Hawley 12; other candidates uncertain." Thomas Wheeler, of Syracuse, who claims to know whereof he speaks, says Conkling is in favor of anyone to beat Arthur and to that extent is for Blaine. Senator Harrison says he is not a candidate in any sense and will try to prevent the presentation of his name before the convention. Fred. Douglas arrived to-day, and was probably the most eagerly listened to of any among the crowds in the Sherman House rotunda. He said the colored delegates, being mostly officeholders, felt bound to vote for Arthur, but when the break came their votes would undoubtedly go to Logan. It is stated the South Carolinians, at a meeting to-day, resolved to vote as a unit for Arthur as long as he is in the field. Should he withdraw, it is thought the delegation will divide between Logan and Sherman.

QUEBEC LEGISLATURE.

Third Session—Fifth Parliament.

LEGISLATIVE ASSEMBLY.

QUEBEC, June 2.—At the afternoon session, yesterday, His Excellency the Governor-General and suite entered and took their seats to the right of the Speaker, Mr. Flynn having the floor on a motion to remit the fee on a bill relating to the county of Gaspe.

Several motions were carried, including correspondence respecting Jesuit Barracks, and respecting the penalty imposed upon the municipality of St. Christophe, St. Norbert d'Arthabaska, and Warwick.

Mr. Picard moved the second reading of his bill to compel those counties which did not use double Winter roads to use them, which was adjourned, a point of order being raised, which the Speaker said he would decide to-morrow.

Mr. Archambault's bill to amend the law respecting the closing of taverns on Sunday and at certain hours on other days was postponed.

Mr. Mercier moved the second reading of the bill to repeal the act creating the office of railway commissioner.

At the evening session Mr. Mercier moved, seconded by Mr. Marchand, that the Speaker issue his warrant for an election in the County of Vaudreuil. Carried.

Mr. Mercier then resumed his remarks on his bill for the abolition of the portfolio of the commissioner of railways, being followed by Messrs. Flynn, Marchand and Taillon, the bill was carried by 35 to 13. Mr. Flynn having voted, Mr. Gagnon raised a point that he had no right to vote, being personally an interested party. After discussion Mr. Gagnon's objection was submitted to the House and voted down—nays 29; ayes 4.

Mr. Blanchet's bills, to amend the act relating to jurors and juries and respecting lunatic asylums, were passed.

Several ministerial bills were advanced, among them Mr. Lynch's bill respecting the management of public lands adjoining unnavigable streams.

Dr. S. B. Brittan says: "As a rule physicians do not by their professional methods build up the female constitution, and they seldom cure the diseases to which it is always liable in our variable climate and under our imperfect civilization. Special remedies are often required to restore organic harmony and to strengthen the enfeebled powers of womanhood, and for most of these we are indebted to persons outside of the medical profession. Among the very best of these remedies I assign a prominent place to Mrs. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

During a dispute at Walkerton between two youths named Franz Niemer, not long out from Germany, and Fleming, the former attempted to stab the latter, but the knife glanced off and the blade was buried to the hilt in the side of another youth named McNabb, who was trying to make peace. Niemer escaped.

QUEBEC.

A number of pilgrimages to the shrine of La Bonne St. Anne are being arranged in the different adjoining parishes.

Mayor Langelier and his friends addressed political meetings in Megantic Sunday. The Conservative candidate also posed before the electors.

Mr. Jos. Louis, leather merchant, one of the oldest and most respected citizens of Quebec, died Monday morning, after a lingering illness.

The body of young Bélanger, drowned at St. Jerome, four weeks ago was found on Saturday by Evangeliste Dupras, amongst the logs in front of the town.

The annual general meeting of the shareholder of the Quebec Bank was held Monday afternoon, there being a large attendance. The report showed that the affairs of the bank were in a satisfactory condition. The old board of directors were re-elected.

Eighty-five children from Mr. Yates, of the R. C. Protection Society of Liverpool, in charge of Mrs. Lacy, going to Kingston and Hamilton, being 50 boys and 35 girls, aged from 3 to 14 years, came out by the "Polynesian." The Rev. Mr. Gripe has also a party of between 30 and 40 for Winnipeg.

On Saturday morning at the Basilica, Quebec, four acolytes will be ordained sub-deacons and fifteen to twenty deacons made priests. Monsigneur Racine, of Chicoutimi, will preside at the ordination. He leaves next week to commence the annual pastoral visit for Archbishop Taschereau, now at Rome.

Edouard Martin, of Baie St. Paul, has arrived in Quebec as a delegate, so he says, of a large number of farmers in that locality to visit and report on the lands between St. Raymond and Lake Edward on the line of the Lake St. John Railway. He states that there are about 300 families wanting to migrate in that direction.

A party of three delegates from Roumania have arrived at Quebec by the steamship "Polynesian." They have come out to take up land for twelve hundred families of their countrymen who are about migrating. They go first to the County of Renfrew, in Ontario, where they will locate if the lands are found suitable; if not they go to Manitoba. Their names are B. Waisbr, Lise Lindel and Jacob Schwartz.

Danby.

A few Montrealers are here on a few holidays.

On Thursday afternoon last, Mr. T. J Blake, of the firm of Blake Bros., saw mill owners, met with a painful accident in the mill. As he was going down to the lower part of the mill he missed his footing and fell some fifteen feet, receiving several bruises on the face and leg, which laid him up for a few days.

James Beattie, farmer, living two miles from Danby, caught a bear a few days ago. They are very plentiful in the vicinity this Spring. Several sheep from the farmers are stolen every week. Last Sunday Mr. R. Pickens lost one, and seeing the bear carrying it off, made after it, but before he reached the spot the brute had torn the sheep into pieces.

Adamsville and East Farnham.

The Anglican Bishop of Montreal visited Adamsville on the 26th ult., where, in St. George's Church, a good congregation met him. A hearty service was held, and His Lordship preached words of counsel and incouragement to those present, and administered the rite of baptism. The altar and chancel were decorated with flowers, which were much admired, and gave a happy and beautiful aspect to the neat and well ordered sanctuary. In the evening the Bishop visited East Farnham and in St. Augustine's church administered the Apostolic rite of confirmation to ten adults, gave a faithful address to the candidates, and preach with power to the large congregation present, closing with the administration of the Lord's Supper to all the newly confirmed and to a large number of those present. The singing was excellent, under Mr. L. Hall's kind leader ship. The altar was delightfully spread over with rare flowers which adorned the sacred edifice. The band of candidates at confirmation included heads of families together, parents and children, and young persons; some having come from the United States for baptism and confirmation, and presented a sight and earnestness not soon to be forgotten. Improvements were visible, the spacious shed for horses and vehicles and a neat wire fence inclosing the ground with trees, etc., planted. The Rev. Mr. Given, of West Shefford, kindly assisted and took part in the services held.

Delegates from the Women's C. T. Union here, attended the county convention of that association held at Sarastburg last Wednesday and Thursday.

John G. Foster, B. C. L., has been appointed tutor to the minor heir of the late Charles Allen, and has gone to Virginia on business connected with the Allen estate.

Doctor M. L. Baxter, second son of the late Hon. Portius Baxter, has purchased from the other heirs, the old "Baxter homestead" in this village, and has moved here to reside permanently.

Many citizens of Derby Line, "showed a fellow feeling in their bosoms" as Mrs. Partington said, by assisting their Canada neighbors in celebrating the Queen's birthday on the 24th of May.

Wednesday, Thursday and Friday last were cold days here. The mercury stood close to freezing point on Thursday morning. On Friday morning at daybreak the sidewalks and roofs were white with snow, as were the hills east of the village. The amount of damage done by frost is not known. Plum trees have probably suffered most. At noon on Friday the mercury stood at only 10 above freezing point.

Clothes-line thieves operated quite extensively in this vicinity last week, paying their respects to no less than seven clothes yards. A part of the stolen property was found in the rear of the Union Church, and some more in the sugar house of G. W. Pierce, about a half a mile east of the village. The foregoing parties seemed to have a preference for men's underwear, as in their assorting it, they left that belonging to women and children.

Children with weak eyes, sore ears or any form of scrofula, should be treated with Ayer's Sarsaparilla.

Popularity at home is not always the best test of merit, but we point proudly to the fact that no other medicine has won for itself such universal approbation in its own city, state, and country, and among all people, as

Ayer's Sarsaparilla.

The following letter from one of our best-known Massachusetts Druggists should be of interest to every sufferer:—

RHEUMATISM. "Eight years ago I had an attack of Rheumatism, so severe that I could not move from the bed, or dress, without help. I tried several remedies without much if any relief, until I took AYER'S SARSAPARILLA, by the use of two bottles of which I was completely cured. Have sold large quantities of your SARSAPARILLA, and it still retains its wonderful popularity. The many notable cures it has effected in this vicinity convince me that it is the best blood medicine ever offered to the public. E. F. HARRIS." River St., Buckland, Mass., May 13, 1882.

SALT RHEUM. GEORGE ANDREWS, overseer in the Lowell Carpet Corporation, was for over twenty years before his removal to Lowell afflicted with Salt Rheum in its worst form. Its ulcerations actually covered more than half the surface of his body and limbs. He was entirely cured by AYER'S SARSAPARILLA. See certificate in Ayer's Almanac for 1883.

Address the Peabody Medical Institute, or Dr. W. H. Parker, No. 4 Bulfinch street, Boston, Mass., who may be consulted on all diseases requiring skill and experience. Chronic and obstinate diseases that have baffled the skill of all other physicians a specialty. Such treated successfully without an instance of failure. Mention this paper. HEAL THYSELF

SEELEY'S HARD RUBBER TRUSSES

Received the only "Award granted for Trusses," at the late International Medical Exhibition, London, 1881, (over 68 competitors.)

Light, cool, cleanly, durable; unequalled in quality, finish, and practical construction. Unaffected by time, use or climate; used in bathing. Always Reliable.

Made in every desirable pattern. Prices Reduced to meet the popular demands. Sold by all leading Druggists and Dealers at the usual price of common Trusses.

CAUTION.—Avoid the various imitations made to look like "SEELEY'S," and to sell on the enviable reputation acquired by our goods during the past 25 years, by purchasing only Hard Rubber Trusses stamped, spring and strap, "I. B. SEELEY, WARRANTED."

CENTRAL HOUSE!

OLD ORCHARD BEACH, Maine, U.S.A.

THE undersigned desires to thank the many friends and patrons of the CENTRAL for the liberal patronage of previous seasons, and would earnestly solicit the continuance of the same with a recommendation to their friends, trusting that our continued experience in managing the CENTRAL for the past twelve years, together with the many added conveniences, would conduce to make your season's vacation equally, and possibly more pleasant than in the past. The CENTRAL stands unrivalled in location for all points of attraction and facilities for pleasure. Accommodates 150 guests. Pleasant and attractive surroundings. Appointments, tables and service unexcelled. Bathing, boating, fishing and driving specially attractive. Pre-eminently the selection and resort of Canadians, over 1,800 names of whom are to be seen upon our register, very many from Montreal and vicinity. One of the most comfortable and social houses that can be found for families or others in which to spend the summer vacation.

Terms less for equal accommodations than can be obtained elsewhere. Pure ocean air, free from malaria or any objectionable features, and conducive to refreshing sleep. Send for terms and descriptive circulars to 129z12 WESLEY G. SMITH.

TUESDAY, JUNE 3, 1884.

A SHAREHOLDER of the Bank of Montreal at the meeting yesterday wanted to know whether the "loans to Government" were to "the Provincial Government or to the Canadian Pacific Government." The little slip was quite pardonable.

THE Dominion Government has deliberately thrown away about $35,000 by its stupid tinkering with the canal tolls. Claiming that the total abolition of the tolls would not appreciably increase the traffic on the route, it has reduced the tolls on wheat, Indian corn, oats, barley and rye passing through the Welland Canal for Montreal and ports east of Montreal from twenty cents to ten cents per ton. The tolls on the St. Lawrence canals paid by grain which has not come through the Welland Canal will pay fifteen cents as before. The effect of this brilliant policy is to discriminate in favor of American grain against Canadian grain. The patriotic Canadian Government will bring American grain through the Welland and St. Lawrence canals for ten cents; Canadian grain only going through the St. Lawrence canals will have to pay fifteen cents.

THE Boston Star says apropos of President Arthur's candidature, "No man with a coat-of-arms and a Latin motto will be elected President of the United States during this century." We have little sympathy with this kind of argument. We do not admire snobbery in any shape or form, and snobbery is often indicated by the assumption of heraldic devices of conspicuous inappropriateness, and to which the wearer has no earthly claim. But there is too great a tendency in America to frown down family pride, which in itself is not a bad thing, and too much of a disposition to look upon good breeding as a positive disqualification for the Presidency. To make a good candidate, which is a more important thing than to make a good President, a man wants to be able to show that he arrived somewhere or another with a capital of not more than fifteen cents with which to commence life and the race for the White House, or that in early life he drove mules or split shingles. In fact some good American citizens seem to think that no man who has not driven mules is fit to preside over them (the citizens we mean). Mr. Arthur has offended many of his countrymen simply because he happens to be a polished gentleman, no slight qualification we imagine for the Presidency.

THE great objection raised to Tilden by the Democrats is that he is too feeble to undertake the work of the canvass. Were they sure of his election they would not consider him too feeble to preside over the American people for four years. Curiously a somewhat similar objection is made to Arthur by his Republican opponents. The Philadelphia Record says: "The Republican opponents of Chester A. Arthur cheerfully admit that he has proved a good President, but they assert that he would make a bad candidate." The objection to Arthur is not physical incapacity for the canvass or unfitness for the office, but he would make a bad candidate. Theoretically all the citizens of the United States are trying to find the man who will make the best President, but in fact each of the two great parties is at its wits end to find the man who will make the best candidate. There are lots of enfranchised citizens in every constituency who would rather vote for the successful candidate than for the best man, and party leaders implore their followers to poll early because they know there are people who wait until late in the day so that they may vote for the winning candidate. On the same principle we presume that some people take light blue and dark blue favors to the Oxford and Cambridge Boat Race. The struggle for the Presidency is the great national race, and people want to back not the best horse but the best horse for that particular course.

Le Nord says that Chief Justice Meredith will be asked to accept the commission to investigate the circumstances surrounding the construction and sale of the Quebec Government railways. The Gazette, which for a Government organ seems lamentably ill-informed, expresses the hope that Le Nord's statement is well founded and says the appointment would give the greatest confidence in the impartial character of the investigation, with which we entirely agree. Then the Gazette goes on to say "the suggestion of it indicates the sincerity of the Government in the policy they have promised." Trust the Gazette to recognize symptoms of virtue in the Quebec Government which would be invisible to most people. Mr. Joly has asked that an investigation be made into the circumstances connected with the legislation ratifying the sale of the railway. He has charged that Mr. Sénécal, one of the purchasers of the railway, spent a great deal of money to secure the election of the members of the Legislative Assembly who voted the ratification of the sale, and the Government positively refuses to institute such an investigation, but it proposes to investigate something else, the circumstances connected with the construction and sale of the road only, not the legislation. The Government will have no investigation which will show how Mr. Sénécal's corruption fund was spent. And the Gazette sees in this an indication of the Government's sincerity! Perhaps however the Government may yet venture to investigate the circumstances connected with that election. Why not ask the Hon. J. A. Mousseau to accept the commission? With what ecstatic admiration the Gazette would exclaim "What an evidence of the Government's sincerity!"

Meetings of the Decoration Sub-Committee and Printing Committee were held yesterday, at the former meeting the names of Messrs. J. B. Abbott, R. S. C. Bagg, J. H. Burland and L. Galarneau were added to the sub-committee. The Printing Committee transacted some routine business and added the name of Mr. A. Pagis to their number.

BANK OF MONTREAL.

Annual General Meeting of Shareholders.

The annual general meeting of the shareholders of the Bank of Montreal was held at one o'clock yesterday afternoon in the Board Room. There was a large attendance of shareholders, prominent amongst whom were the following:—Hon. Donald A. Smith, (Vice-President), Hon. John Hamilton, Alex. Murray, George A. Drummond, A. T. Paterson, Hugh McLennan, Gilbert Scott, Alfred Brown, Robert Anderson, E. H. King (of London, Eng., and an ex-president of the bank), J. Burnett, Hector Mackenzie, D. L. McDougall, Thos. Cramp, Jesse Joseph, J. H. Joseph, Andrew Robertson, R. W. Shepherd, M. Branchaud, Q.C., W. W. Robertson, Q.C., Thos. Workman, Henry. E. Murray, D. Kinsella, Robt. Moat, J. J. Arnton, Thomas Davidson, Hon. Mr. Justice Cross, W. B. Cumming, John Crawford, D. R. Stoddart, John Morrison, Louis Mason, John McDonald, W. Mackenzie, W. S. Evans, Charles Glackmeyer, John McDougall, L. J. Forget, G. Strathy, R. Elliot, A. Walmsley (St. Johns), Campbell Lane, etc., etc.

On motion of Mr. D. L. McDougall, the Hon. Donald A. Smith, Vice-President, was requested to take the chair.

The Chairman announced that the first business of the meeting was the appointment of scrutineers and a secretary.

Mr. A. Paterson moved, seconded by Mr. H. Mackenzie, that the following gentlemen be appointed to act as scrutineers—Messrs. W. B. Cumming and Thos. Davidson, and that Mr. A. B. Buchanan be the secretary of this meeting.—Carried.

The Chairman then called upon the General Manager, Mr. W. J. Buchanan, to read to the shareholders at their 66th annual general meeting, held 2nd June, 1884:—

THE REPORT OF THE DIRECTORS

The Directors beg to present the 66th annual report, showing the result of the business of the year ending 30th April, 1884:—

The balance of profit and loss account on 30th April, 1883, was		$ 322,192.24
The profits of the year ended 30th April last, after deducting charges of management, and making all necessary provision for bad and doubtful debts, were		1,434,260.12
		$1,756,452.36
From which have to be deducted:—
Dividend five per cent. paid 1st December, 1883	$600,000
Dividend 5 per cent. payable 1st June, 1884	600,000
Addition to the "Rest"	250,000
		1,450,000 00
Leaving a balance of.... to be carried forward at credit of profit and loss account for the year.		$ 306,452.39

The figures in the general statement, which is appended, differ so little, comparatively, from those presented to the shareholders at the same period last year, that no special remarks are called for, unless it be simply to draw attention to the fact that the sum of $250,000 has been added to the rest, bringing that fund up to $6,000,000—or 50 per cent. of the capital.

As has been the ordinary custom, all the branches of the Bank have been inspected during the year.

The business of the Bank at Newcastle, N.B., and Portage la Prairie, Man., having proved unprofitable, and there being no probability of improvement, the offices at those points have been closed, and the premises at the former place, which were the property of the Bank, have been disposed of by sale to the Dominion Government.

The Directors have had under consideration and approve of a scheme, for the superannuation of the officers of the bank, and embodying a provision for widows and orphans of the officers, on a scale based upon the amount of salary and length of service of each officer, which the Directors recommend their successors in office to carry out. And in consideration of the Bank agreeing to undertake this scheme, the officers will, on their part, be willing to submit to a monthly deduction from their salaries of such a percentage as may be fixed upon, and will also, in addition, transfer to the Bank their interest in the present Annuity and Guarantee Funds Society, which has been in existence for the past 23 years, and whose capital, or accumulated fund, now amounts to about $206,000. And the Directors further recommend that the incoming board be authorized to organize the said society for the purposes indicated, and to take all proceedings they consider necessary to carry the proposed scheme into effect.

(Signed),
C. F. SMITHERS,
President.

BANK OF MONTREAL,
MONTREAL, 30th April, 1884.

THE VICE-PRESIDENT'S ADDRESS.

The Vice-President, Hon. D. A. Smith, then moved

That the report of the Directors, now read, be adopted and printed for distribution among the shareholders.

He said:—Gentlemen, before putting this motion to the meeting, I wish to express, on the part of my colleagues and myself, our very great regret that your President is not able to be at this meeting. I may add that I am requested by Mr. Smithers to say with what concern and with what regret he finds that he is not able to meet you to-day. You will however be pleased to know that while he is not able to be with us to-day, he has improved a good deal within the last fortnight and is now on the mend, that, in short, he is getting strong, and expects to be able to give his attention to the affairs of the Bank as formerly within a very few days. I need not say how much I regret myself that it is necessary, under these circumstances, that I should preside at this meeting, as I know how very inadequately it is possible for me to discharge the duties devolving upon the chairman. Looking to the report now read we find that the profits for the last year are as nearly as possible 12 per cent., or one per cent. less than for the year immediately preceding. This amount permitted the putting to the Rest $250,000, bringing it up to the maximum as desired by the shareholders, that of $6,000,000, or 50 per cent. of the capital of the Bank, after paying a dividend for the year of 10 per cent. It must be very gratifying to all of us to find that after these many long years of labor this point has been attained. This will give us, or ought to give, an assurance of steadiness to the stock, and will, I am sure, give confidence to the shareholders. Looking to the circumstances with which the Bank had to contend, and to those of the country generally, and more especially looking to our neighbors across the line, I think that there is no cause for apologizing that the statement before you to-day is no better, but on the contrary, I think it must be gratifying to all of us that it is so good as it is, and that we have attained to that point with the Rest that we can look forward to continue ten per cent. dividends at least. You are all aware that some months back there was a very great depression, as there is to a certain extent now; you know that a very large commission house was obliged to ask for time to meet its obligations. This, I may say, was hardly a surprise to your President, to the Directors, or to the principal officers of the Bank. The President sounded a note of warning at the last annual meeting, although in this you will recollect he was not borne out by some very astute men on the other side of the line, at least men of very great financial influence — the Chamber of Commerce amongst others—who said that everything was bright and that there was no fear of anything, but an unclouded future at least for a considerable time. However, looking to it that it was necessary to be very cautious, the President and officers of the Bank have so guided themselves throughout that you will be happy to know that at this moment the Bank has not lost a sixpence by the transactions with that house. It will be seen that the volume of discounts is very much as it was last year, but there is this difference in the position, that while the commercial discounts and loans on securities have, as it was considered prudent to do under the circumstances, been reduced very materially, to the extent, in fact, of several millions, yet the difference has been made up by loans to the Government, leaving the amount pretty nearly as it was. The next point I should like to refer to in a few words is that of the proposition before you of a pension fund for the officers of the Bank. You are all business men, acquainted with matters of business, not only as well, but most of you very much better than I, and you are aware that in most large institutions some such scheme as the one now proposed has been adopted, and where it has not yet been introduced, we know that some of the principal banks in Great Britain have it in contemplation. Up to this time the Directors had to accept the responsibility of allowances to those retiring from the bank. The arrangements were arbitrary and gave rise to questions as to amount or scale, and the funds were all provided by the Bank. This being the case, the Bank officers were unable to make any calculation as to what they would have in the event of having to retire in consequence of ill health or old age. Now what is proposed is that in the future the Directors shall be relieved of unnecessary responsibility and question as to the rate of allowances. The scheme now proposed establishes the scale, and a large fund will be provided through the transfer to the Bank of the officers' interest in the existing annuity associations, capital, upwards of $200,000, on which only a small annual allowance is now chargeable, and the officers of the bank will contribute at the start annually about sufficient to cover the allowance to the present pensioners and annuitants. I should say that this fund is at present administered by certain officers of the Bank, but is simply a widows' and orphans' fund, and does not provide in any way for a retiring allowance for officers when unfit either through ill-health or old age for further service. It is believed that this scheme will only involve an additional charge on the bank of $15,000 a year, and there is every prospect of their being a considerable reduction of the amount required after the first five years, as the fund set aside will have then in all human probability grown to be a large one. It will, as you will all see, be a very great satisfaction to the officers to find that they will be able to calculate exactly what they will be entitled to when eligible for the pension, and they will have something to depend upon as a certainty, and it will be a greater incentive to them, if that were possible, to do their utmost in the interests of the bank—not that such further inducement is necessary, for I believe that you have a staff of officers not only most faithful but most efficient and most capable to conduct the affairs of the Bank. The Directors in considering this, have felt that it would be in every way in the interests of the Bank that such a scheme should be carried out, and they now leave it to you to pronounce on it, and I have no doubt that you will feel in doing so, that it will be a mutual benefit both to the shareholders and to the officers that such a scheme should be approved of. Just a few words more before sitting down. We see that after sixty-six years of work (the first meeting of the Bank was held in 1818) and by careful management the Bank now finds itself with a "rest" of $6,000,000 just referred to, and, as I have said already, seeing that it has not been gathered up in a very short time, but that it has been by careful management throughout these long years this has been accomplished, you will feel that in the future there will be an assurance of at least a steady dividend, and we trust also from time to time a bonus, as there will not be the same necessity as in the past of taking from the earnings to strengthen the Bank. We have so far as can be judged now a prospect of a good harvest; and looking to the great resources of the country from one end to the other, seeing that in this portion of it, it has been developed to a very large extent, and that so much is being done away in the great North-West, that within a couple of years more we may expect to have a railway opened from the Atlantic to the Pacific for the purposes of our trade and commerce, and that there is every expectation of a large influx of the very best class of immigrants into the country, I think we may look forward with very great hope to the future; certainly we may confidently expect that in Montreal, which has, during the sixty-six years to which I have referred, risen from what was little more than a village to what it is at the present day there will be at least proportionate progress in the future, and that the Bank of Montreal will have its full share in this increased prosperity.

Mr. Alex. Murray—I have great pleasure, Mr. Chairman, in seconding the motion, and in doing so I may say that after the full explanations you have made it is needless for me to say anything further. It is quite true that the profits of the past year have not been equal to those of some preceding years, yet on the whole I think the shareholders have good reason to be fairly satisfied. We have paid the usual dividends and got the rest up to the desired $6,000,000; and we have done this after the most liberal allowances, not only for bad debts, but also for doubtful ones. Of course the Bank profits for the last year have not been as large as for the two previous years, chiefly because the opportunity for the large and safe employment of money has not been so good; but we are looking forward to better times in the future, and the good harvest to which the chairman alluded will have the effect of giving opportunities for safe and more active employment of Bank funds, which this Bank is well able to take advantage of, and it is to be hoped that at the future meetings of the Bank the shareholders will have greater reason to congratulate themselves that they are shareholders of the Bank of Montreal. I have much pleasure in seconding the adoption of the report.

Mr. John Morrison then asked several questions, which were satisfactorily answered by the General Manager.

The Chairman—If no other gentleman desires to address the meeting, I will call upon the General Manager to make a few observations with regard to the affairs of the Bank, a matter with which he is more immediately cognizant.

The General Manager, Mr. W. J. Buchanan, then said:—The Vice-President, in the much to be regretted absence of the President, has, I fancy, said pretty much all that you will care to here concerning the affairs of the Bank, both retrospective and prospective, but, as it is usual for the general manager also to make some remarks, I may say that I also consider we have no reason to be ashamed of the outcome of the past year's business. We set out with a condition of things which was not altogether satisfactory; over-production in our manufactures and rather an excess in our importations; our harvest did not turn out favorably. Well, manufacturers very shortly after ascertained that no matter to what degree they could diversify, the country could not absorb the output of their mills, and it looked at one time as if several would have to shut down altogether. But notwithstanding all these untoward circumstances the Bank has been able to save about 12 per cent. on its huge capital, after making what has been considered ample provision for bad and doubtful debts. We have now every reason to believe that manufacturers are working on sound principles. Those of them who are borrowers from this Bank assure us that they are simply filling orders, and confidently anticipate that in a very few months all surplus stock will have gone into consumers' hands. Importations, as the Customs returns demonstrate, have been largely reduced. If this policy is adhered to, and no other will knowingly be facilitated by the Bank, a healthier condition of trade must ensue. This curtailment means a smaller area in this country for the employment of your capital, but we are happily not limited to Canada for the employment of our surplus means. Although New York has until lately not been a very profitable field, at the same time we have always done very fairly both there and in Chicago. With a good crop, of which there is at least a fair prospect, fresh heart will be put into our people. The lumber trade is also moderately good. There is, therefore, no occasion to feel despondent as to the future. The bank has undeniably had a successful career in the past, taking one year with another, and there is no special reason now to think that it will not continue to prosper. We have at last attained to the position for which we have for some years been striving—that is, to get the rest up to $5,000,000, or 50 per cent. of our paid up capital, and while doing this we have been forced to withhold each year some portion of our profits from you. That necessity exists no longer; we shall only hope as well as labor to have more to divide amongst you in the future. I shall be happy to answer to the best of my ability any questions which any shareholder may desire to put to me, but before I sit down I may state that the number of shares on what is termed "the street," that is, which are not held by investors, is gradually diminishing; as nearly as we can estimate they are about 4,600 as against 7,000 twelve months ago.

Mr. Morrison—Would it not be better to leave the superannuation fund to the insurance companies?

Mr. Buchanan—I think that means purchasing an annuity, which involves a considerable amount of money. Bank officers, as a rule, are not capitalists, and it requires a good deal of capital to purchase an annuity. You must bear in mind that there is about $200,000 to be handed over by the annuity fund. The Directors have heretofore granted pensions, and it has been a recognized principle that when a man has spent his life in the service and cannot work any longer he cannot be turned out without any provision. As stated in the report the officers will contribute and the charge to the Bank will only be $15,000 in addition to what we now pay out in pensions. The contributions by the officers will about cover the existing pensions, and with the interest on the $200,000 capital in the course of five years such a large fund will be accumulated that we hope the necessity for contributions by the Bank will diminish if not cease altogether, and the interest on the fund will be sufficient for the future.

Mr. Morrison—If the fund suffers loss who will be responsible?

Mr. Buchanan—The fund will be under the Bank's control.

Mr. Morrison—The Bank will suffer the loss then?

Mr. Buchanan—The Bank will take charge of the fund itself. It is a matter of arrangement whether they will put the amount into government securities or make use of it in its ordinary business and allow a certain interest on it.

Mr. John Crawford—I would like to say a word or two, Mr. Chairman, before the report is adopted. I am sure I am expressing the opinion of all present when I say that we are delighted to see you here again, and at the same time we exceedingly regret that our President should be absent under the circumstances which detain him from being present at the meeting. With reference to the superannuation scheme, I leave it to those who have been more accustomed to it; I have not sufficient information myself to give an intelligent vote upon that question and hence I would throw the entire responsibility upon the Board of Directors. I would like, however, to refer to a question which has been brought before the meetings of the Bank on several occasions, that of the gross expenses as well as the net revenue of the Bank. The shareholders, I think, are not in a position to form any adequate or approximate estimate as to whether this Bank is economically administered as compared with other banks, and I see no reason, Mr. Chairman, why the shareholders should not be taken more into your confidence. It has been said in the past, and especially as our esteemed President has more than once said, that he would be frank and open with us and give us his confidence. I have no reason to believe that this Bank is administered in any other than an economical manner, but at the same time I do not see why the shareholders should not be more taken into the confidence of the Directors and the management of the Bank, otherwise there would be no incentive for them to confine themselves to any limited expense. At the same time, Mr. Chairman, I would not be understood as advocating a parsimonious policy on the part of the Bank. With reference to the Rest of 50 per cent., you have not given us the opinion of the Board as to what is to be the policy as to the distribution of the future profits, and I for one would like to know what they intend to do in this direction. My own impression is—and I think I am safe in offering you the hearty congratulations of every shareholder for having attained that goal—that while there is reason to be gratified at having reached a Rest of 50 per cent. of our capital, that that Rest is ample, and that its further increase would neither add to the prestige nor credit of the Bank, and would only be calculated to encourage large and speculative transactions. I believe that the gratifying position we occupy to-day is owing, in a great measure, to the stand and to the position taken by our able executive officer, and to the integrity of the Directors and the executive officers of the Bank in the past. The Capital and Rest altogether is now $18,000,000. I hope, sir, and if I be any judge of human nature, having taken stock with the executive, and particularly our worthy chairman, I may add that I believe that that Capital and Rest of $18,000,000 is equivalent not only to legal tender but to gold in the vault. I believe that that capital, if my memory serves me rightly, is the largest of any bank in the world, with the exception of the Bank of England. I think the citizens of Montreal have reason to feel just pride in having an institution of such magnitude located with its head office in their midst, and I think further that the Bank of Montreal has fairly earned the distinction which it enjoys of being a national as well as a provincial Bank. I expected that our chairman would have said a word or two about the Government deposits; the report, I believe has not alluded to that subject. There has been a good deal of talk about their depositing in other banks. Now, I believe that the policy which has heretofore obtained is capable of a very advantageous revision, not only in the interests of the Bank itself but in the interests of the public. The reasons for such revision are not only obvious, but urgent, and I need not refer to them further than to direct attention to the imminent dangers inseparably connected with the present policy; wisdom not politics should be the maxim governing that administration. Now, sir, you have said a word or two with reference to there being no losses. Considering that we only meet here once a year, and for two or three hours, it may be, and discuss questions of momentous interest concerning the Bank's affairs, might I ask, if it is not impertinent or irregular, what security have the banks here against a recurrence of the financial disasters that have startled New York and other American cities. These disasters have not only affected the banking interests, but have almost sapped the foundation of the commercial and financial system of the country, and therefore I would like to hear an expression of opinion from you, Mr. Chairman, or the General Manager, as to what security can we really have against these disasters; if the lesson of experience be of any value to us, we have had frequent warnings that we must not rely too much upon professional integrity. My own impression is, having given this subject some attention, that the chief antidote is external vigilance on the part of those who undertake important trusts.

The Chairman—I would just say a word or two about the distribution of profits in future. It will be, I have no doubt, all that can safely be given without encroaching in any way on the capital of the Bank, always keeping that in tact, and then dividing every sixpence that can reasonably be expected. Your Directors, whoever they may be in the future, will see first that the future of the bank is well provided for, and that its capital is held intact, and then, as in the past, will give all they can to the shareholders.

Mr. Crawford—It appears to me that if you concur in that opinion that when the profits of the Bank admit of a clear unit being added to the ten per cent. dividend, all fractions below that unit might be placed to a contingent dividend fund, to be drawn upon when that unit again is reached.

The Chairman—I am not a prophet, and can give no information further than this, that judging by the past, I believe it will be, if the Bank prospers in the future as it has in the past, and I speak for my colleagues as well as myself when I say that it has been their desire throughout to give all they safely can to the shareholders on every succeeding dividend-day, and I have no doubt that those whom they may appoint for the future will see it to be their duty to do equally well. As the President told you in a former year, he was always anxious to take the shareholders as far into his confidence as possible. I may say it is the wish of all the Directors to give every statement which in the interest of the Bank should be given. Of course there are certain things which it is to the interest of the Bank for them to withhold. As for the last question, I think Mr. Crawford has answered that himself when he says that it is by constant vigilance and caution in the management of the affairs of the Bank that the Bank and the shareholders may be secured against any such calamity as unfortunately we have seen quite recently on the other side of the line.

A Shareholder—I would like to ask whether there is in the by-laws of this Bank any provision against a Director of this Bank being a Director or office-holder of any railway corporation.

The Chairman—I am not aware of any.

The motion to adopt the report was then carried unanimously.

THANKS TO THE PRESIDENT AND DIRECTORS.

Mr. E. H. King, of London, Eng.—Mr. Chairman, I have the pleasure of moving.

That the thanks of the meeting be presented to the President, the Vice-President and Directors for their attention to the interests of the Bank.

Before doing this, I think I am right in offering a word of congratulation to the Directors of this Bank for having taken this occasion, when they have reached what may be called the promised land, to do a graceful act in proposing to the shareholders the advisability of making the provision which they now contemplate for the superannuation of their officers. I think the occasion was well chosen, and I am sure that the shareholders of this Bank as a body will willingly give their assent to this, and from my own experience of the officers of the Bank, I know they are deserving of this consideration. With regard to the vote of thanks, you are of course familiar with the composition of your Board. All of them are gentlemen who have been connected with the banking and the mercantile interests of the Dominion in one way or another during their whole life, and I ~~think I~~ may safely say as in the past I have every reason to rely on their strict attention to the interests of this great institution. I think I myself may venture to say a word in their favor. I have had a long experience of them, and I must say that during all that long experience I feel warranted in believing that every one of these gentlemen gave the most undivided attention to the interests of the bank, when they were called upon to decide questions which were sometimes very difficult, and I have no doubt that the gentlemen comprising the Board now are just as attentive as those of long ago when I was actively connected with the management of the Bank. There is, however, one thing that is a matter of regret to me, and that is, that there is but one member left since I retired from this Bank, the only member of the Board left being your chairman of to-day. It is, perhaps, the only regret I feel, but if it says anything it says that they are seldom chosen to such a high office, and only when they have well established their reputation as business men.

Mr. Thomas Workman—I have great satisfaction in seconding this resolution, because I think that the present Board of Directors of the Bank of Montreal—the President and the General Manager, the Vice-President and the Directors—is equal to any that was ever in charge of this Bank. I do not wish to speak disrespectfully of their predecessors, but I look upon the present Board as quite equal to them, and, therefore, I think they are entitled to the thanks of this meeting and of all the stockholders of this Bank, and of the commercial community in the Dominion of Canada. The Bank of Montreal is the largest monetary institution in the Dominion, and we have to thank them for the safety with which they have carried the Bank through all the troubled scenes. For the last year and a half our country has been suffering from a commercial depression; that depression still prevails, but, I think, it is quite evident that the elements of a bright prospect are rising and getting clearer every day. I anticipate myself, and I think every one else does, that the prosperity which in former years has characterized the commercial interests of Canada will again prevail. Such being the case, I have no doubt that the Bank of Montreal will be able to earn increased dividends, and as already foreshadowed to-day, we may expect larger dividends. By all means let full provision be made for bad or doubtful debts, and after that divide amongst the shareholders. There can be no use for building up a large Rest for posterity. What have posterity done for us? We have done something for them, however, and therefore after the provisions referred to an increased dividend will be highly acceptable to the shareholders. I regret very much to see the absence of our worthy President, and we all hope that in a short time his health will be restored, and that he will be able to give that full administration, coupled with that of his confrère, Mr. Buchanan, that has hitherto characterized their management. I have then much pleasure in seconding this resolution.

The motion was carried unanimously.

The Vice-President, in returning thanks, said:—I have on behalf of the Directors and myself to tender our most sincere thanks for this resolution, and I am sure that it is a very great pleasure to all of us to see here our old friend Mr. King, an ex-president of the Bank, and a gentleman of the very highest standing and character financially, and one that we are always glad to see back amongst us in Montreal.

THANKS TO THE GENERAL MANAGER AND OFFICERS OF THE BANK.

Mr. George A. Drummond moved,

That the thanks of the meeting be given to the General Manager, the Inspector, the Managers and other officers of the Bank for their services during the past year.

He said: In proposing this resolution, I desire only to say that it has become more or less a matter of form. I desire to lift it out of that category, and I will say that never did officers deserve a resolution more heartily or more unreservedly than on the present occasion. After all, and knowing the operations of the Board of Directors from an inside point of view, I can say that the success of these operations depends much more upon the character and integrity and business ability of the executive officers than upon any Board of Directors, however well constituted. The Board of Directors are more or less of an Advisory Committee, and rather act as an efficient check, which is the most that can be hoped for. The actual administration depends more upon the executive officers than upon the Directors, and I have therefore the greatest possible pleasure in proposing this resolution.

Hon. John Hamilton—I have much pleasure in seconding the resolution, and in doing so I can only say that no Bank has a better or abler body of men.

The motion having been carried unanimously,

Mr. Buchanan, the General Manager, in replying, said—I have to thank you on my own behalf and for the other officials of the Bank for the vote of thanks which has been so cordially received and passed, and to-day our thanks are more especially due because we have had a substantial proof of your appreciation of our services by the authority you have given to the incoming Board to carry out a scheme having for its object a provision for the maintenance of your servants when old age or ill health shall have incapacitated them from active service, and for their families also after their death. With but few exceptions the Bank officers have incomes not much more than sufficient to enable them to live respectably, and by the scheme now proposed they will be relieved from what has been a matter of serious anxiety to many, viz., the question of support for themselves and their families when their working days are over. The characteristic of the staff of the Bank has always been a love for and pride in the service and an attachment to it, and this crowning act of liberality on your part will be an additional incentive to zeal for its welfare. Gentlemen, you have our profound and grateful thanks.

Mr. Crawford—Do I understand that there will be a demand for $15,000 or $18,000 from the Bank's profits every year for this purpose?

Mr. Buchanan—At present the intention is to charge it with $15,000 additional, but we think that in the course of a very few years it will be diminished or abolished altogether. It is a scheme based upon something like the scheme at one time proposed by the Quebec government.

Mr. Crawford—What will be the entire yearly appropriation, including the present payments as well as what you propose to give in the future?

Mr. Buchanan—There are $10,000 paid at present between pensions and annuitants. It will be altogether $25,000, but at the quinquennial investigations it is quite possible that it may disappear altogether, and that the fund will accumulate so largely that no further contributions will be required from the Bank.

Mr. Robert Anderson moved, seconded by Mr. Geo. Macrae, Q.C.,

That the ballot now open for the election of Directors be kept open until 3 o'clock, unless fifteen minutes elapse without a vote being cast, when it shall be closed, and until that time, and for that purpose only, this meeting be continued.

Carried.

A formal adjournment then took place, and at 3 o'clock the scrutineers reported the following gentlemen duly elected Directors:—Alfred Brown, George A. Drummond, Hon. John Hamilton, Hugh McLennan, Alex. Murray, Alex. T. Paterson, Gilbert Scott, Hon. D. A. Smith and C. F. Smithers.

THE PRESIDENCY.

Blaine and his Chances—Indignation at the Selection of Clayton—Notes and Gossip.

NEW YORK, June 3.—Blaine passed through this city last evening en route for Maine. He said he knew nothing about the National Convention except what he saw in the newspapers. He would say nothing as to his chances.

The Sun's Chicago special says the Arthur and Edmunds men are indignant at the selection of Mr. Clayton to be temporary chairman of the convention. They are as yet undecided what action to take, but are almost certain that some effort will be made to defeat him. Two Edmunds delegates from Massachusetts have been called home in consequence of the death of relatives. Tickets of admission to the convention are selling at $40 each.

The Herald's Chicago special says those who are on the inside believe that after the first two or three ballots the recruits will begin rallying around the present to such an extent that a stampede in his direction may result.

The Times Chicago special says while the Blaine movement is still regarded as formidable by those who oppose it, its progress yesterday was not alarmingly great. While Arthur and Edmunds men are angry at the selection of Clayton, they have come to the conclusion that it would be unwise to oppose him in the convention. They hope the moral effect of the transaction will injure Blaine.

The Tribune's Chicago special says Mr. Blaine will undoubtedly lead on the first ballot, and his nomination can only be prevented by a combination on some dark horse which now seems improbable.

PHILADELPHIA, June 3.—The Times' Chicago special says the scare produced by Mr. Clayton's desertion of Arthur was not so much because Clayton had gone, but because of the astounding claims he made of fellow deserters from the South. The problem now is whether Arthur can beat Blaine.

BLAINE THE COMING MAN.

BUFFALO, June 2.—A Chicago special to the Express (Independent Republican) dated midnight, says: Prepare your minds for Blaine's nomination on first ballot, which will possibly be reached to-morrow. Blaine's leaders are so sure that they are consulting among themselves as to whether it shall be done with a whoop or by allowing the States to be called. The conviction deepens every moment that the agreement on Powell Clayton for temporary chairman was merely the signal or evidence of a deal by which Arthur's southern forces are not merely shattered but transferred in large part to Blaine, and if that other mercenary element, the New York boys, does not follow the current, it will be surprising. The excitement at headquarters and at the leader's private rooms is over. The managers have gone to bed. Their work is done. The presidential bargain has been consummated. Only a lot of idle fellows throng the hotel corridors. No political leader is visible.

A man supposed to be a merchant was found in the street at New York last evening with his head crushed and his scalp partially torn off. He revived sufficiently to say a policeman had clubbed him because he had refused to move on when ordered. He will probably die.

Sudden Death.

Mr. Petrus Picard, brother of the Rev. Abbé Picard, of the Seminary, while walking along Place d'Armes about two o'clock yesterday, fell suddenly to the ground, in front of the Ontario Bank, in an apoplectic fit. Dr. Alexander, who happened to pass by, immediately attended to the unfortunate gentleman, who soon recovered consciousness sufficiently to be conveyed to his home, No. 118 St. James street, but on reaching the door and before he could be taken up stairs, he dropped dead. Three days ago deceased had a rather severe attack of apoplexy, from the effects of which he seemed, however, to have totally recovered. Mr. Picard, who was in his 70th year, was well known as the collecting agent of "L'Union de Prières."

Kind Consideration for a Slim.

"I want to present Augustus with a cane," said a young New York lady, "but I don't know what size he wears."

"What do you mean by size?" was the question. "Are canes of different sizes?"

"Oh, yes, and one has to be very careful in selecting them. I shouldn't like to send dear Augustus a cane with a head big enough to choke him."—Philadelphia Call.

And they will tell you unhesitatingly "Some form of Hops!"

CHAPTER I

Ask any or all of the most eminent physicians:

"What is the best and only remedy that can be relied on to cure all diseases of the kidneys and urinary organs; such as Bright's disease diabetes, retention or inability to retain urine and all the diseases and ailments peculiar to women"—

"And they will tell you explicitly and emphatically "Buchu."

Ask the same physicians

"What is the most reliable and surest cure for all liver diseases or dyspepsia; constipation, indigestion, biliousness, malarial fever, ague, &c.," and they will tell you:

Mandrake! or Dandelion!"

Hence, when these remedies are combined with others equally valuable

JOTTINGS FROM QUEBEC.

Address to the Governor-General—His Excellency's Reply—Business Transacted Yesterday.

(From our own Reporter.)

QUEBEC, June 3.—The visit of the Governor-General to the Houses of the Legislature and the presentation to him of a joint address by the two branches of the Legislature was the chief event of yesterday. At half-past two the Battery Band put in an appearance at the entrance to the Parliament buildings, and at three o'clock sharp, the Governor-General, accompanied by Lady Lansdowne, Lord and Lady Melgund, Lady Florence Anson and Captain Streatfield, and escorted by a detachment of cavalry, put in an appearance. The vice-regal party proceeded immediately to the offices of the Lieut.-Governor, and upon the House being called to order they descended the stairs and took up their position in the Legislative Council Chamber. The Governor-General was in civilian attire, his only ornament being a star which he wore upon his breast, while the ladies were pretty effectually screened from the public gaze by immense bouquets of beautiful flowers which they carried. The Governor-General took his seat on the throne with the Speakers of the two Houses, and Lieut.-Governor Robitaille, around him, while the members of the Legislative Council and the Legislative Assembly, with others who had managed to enter, stood huddled together on the floor of the little room. His Excellency's reply to the address was delivered in both French and English, and his exceedingly accurate pronunciation of the former language was remarked by almost every one. It was as follows:—

Mr. Speaker and gentlemen of the Legislative Council; Mr. Speaker and gentlemen of the Legislative Assembly of the Province of Quebec,—

I thank you in the name of the sovereign to whom we owe a common allegiance for the loyal and respectful words in which you have been pleased to address me. That sovereign is in your eyes, as she is in mine, the representative of a political system which, while tempered by everything which tradition has consecrated, has, from time to time, been adapted in a liberal spirit to the requirements of the present. That system has in no respect been more successful than in its operation in those great colonies without which England might have become a great entrepot but never a great empire. In no portion perhaps of the colonial empire has this respect for tradition been more scrupulously observed that in the Province of Quebec, the people of which have, with the ready acquiescence of the Mother Country, preserved, without impairing their allegiance to the English Crown or disturbing the friendly relations of the two races whose interests are committed to your charge, the language and the laws of your forefathers. My predecessors, to whom you have referred in terms of high appreciation, bore away with them a feeling of sincere attachment to your city, which I will venture to say will last as long as their lives. I can understand that they should have done so, for it is a city unsurpassed in its beauty and in the brilliant memories which belong to it. For myself and for Lady Lansdowne I can say that Quebec, in addition to these attractions, presents that which belongs to it in our eyes as the spot in which our feet first touched Canadian soil. We shall not easily forget the cordial reception given to us by your people at a moment when their thoughts must have been occupied with regrets for those who were about to leave these shores rather than with their unknown successors. Gentlemen, I thank you for your courteous references to myself. Their indulgence forbids me to appropriate them. Gentlemen, the Dominion, as a whole, and its constituent provinces enjoy so wide a measure of self-government that the representative of the Imperial Throne may reasonably expect that his opportunities for actively interfering in your affairs will be few in number. He may, nevertheless, hope that as the official head of the community he may be allowed to live in sympathy with your people and with those to whom is committed the regulation of their public interests. I rejoice that I have been able to meet your parliament at a moment when it is actively engaged in the furtherance of its important and honorable duties, and I cordially wish that your labors may be rewarded by results which shall add to the material prosperity and general progress of the province. Gentlemen, the welcome which you have so graciously given to Lady Lansdowne has touched her deeply. She is glad to have been able to accompany me to-day, and she bids me thank you cordially for the wishes which you have expressed for her happiness and that of her family.

After the reply, the legislators were, one by one, introduced to Lord Lansdowne, after which the members of the Assembly returned to their places, and business was resumed. The vice-regal party subsequently paid a visit to the hall of the Legislative Assembly, where they were enthusiastically applauded by the members both on their arrival and departure. The House, during their presence, was wrestling with the weighty question as to whether or not the fee of $100 paid on a bill, which had been rejected by the House, should be returned, so that our orators had no opportunity of "showing off" before His Excellency. Mr. Flynn and Mr. Mercier were the only speakers. It need hardly be stated that during the presence of the vice-regal party the members were on their good behavior and none of those scenes which unfortunately have occurred too frequently of late, were enacted. The speakers used the choicest language, the "stovepipes" disappeared suddenly from off the heads of their owners, letter-writing was suspended for the time being, and those members who had their knees up against their desks, with their body thrown back in a contemplative posture, suddenly resumed their natural position.

Nothing else of importance occurred during the afternoon. It was private members day, and there was nothing on the order paper capable of stirring up the excitable feelings of the members. Mr. Garneau brought up the subject of the Quebec Barracks property, which is in a disgraceful condition, and said that something ought to be done. This property lies in the very centre of the city, and is a place into which filth and garbage of all kinds is dumped. It has become a public nuisance, and some remedy is called for by those who have the misfortune to live in its vicinity. Then Mr. Picard brought up his act respecting Winter roads. At the opening of the session, Mr. Picard introduced an act repealing the law concerning Winter roads, so far as the county of Shefford was concerned, but this measure was killed mainly by the efforts of Messrs. Irvine and Watts. Mr. Picard then for the purpose of retaliating on his opponents introduced a measure extending the provisions of this law to the counties of Drummond and Wolfe, Megantic and Arthabasca in order to let the constituents of Messrs. Irvine and Watts feel the rigor of the law he wished repealed. Mr. Watts raised the point of order that the bill should be a private instead of a public one and quoted opinions from both Todd and Bourinot in support of his contention. The Speaker took the question en delibere until to-day.

Mr. Mercier's bill to abolish the office of Commissioner of Railways came up for a second reading in the evening. The leader of the Opposition contended that the railway act, passed in the Federal Parliament in 1883, took away from the Province the right of controlling their railways. In this act it was provided that each and every branch line railway now or hereafter connecting with or crossing any of the provincial lines of railway in the Province should be considered under the control of the Federal authority as being works for the general advantage of Canada. Sir Charles Tupper, in reply to Mr. Gillmor, said that one of the clauses placed in his bill would bring all the principal lines of railway under the control of parliament, and in reply to Mr. Blake, he said that the only railway in the Province of Quebec which would remain uner the control of the provincial authorities was the Waterloo & Magog. Since that time, however, this railway has made running connections with the Shefford, Stanstead and Chambly, and has thus come under the provisions of the Dominion law, so that at present there are no railways for the Commissioner of Railways to look after. The expenses of the office amount to $8,000 for clerks and other expenses; $4,000 for the Commissioner; $500 for a messenger; $120 for newspapers, a total of $1,345.26. In view of the urgent necessity of economy being practised, Mr. Mercier considered that the office should be abolished and this amount saved. Mr. Flynn, in reply, admitted that the action of the Dominion House had been such as to take away all necessity for the Local Cabinet, but he asserted that there was still work enough on its hands to warrant the department being kept in existence for some months longer. It would be thrown out of existence as soon as all the work which was on its hands was completed. The Bill was thrown out by a party vote. Mr. Gagnon objected to the vote of Mr. Flynn, on the ground that he was financially interested in the defeat of the measure. The Speaker left to the House to decide whether or not the vote should be allowed, and the House by a large majority decided that it should.

LA GRANDE KERMESSE.

First Day's Proceedings—A Grand Success—Special Incidents.

The lady patronesses of the Grande Kermesse must certainly feel gratified at the success which attended the opening of the great charity fair. From the opening of the doors at two o'clock in the afternoon till the time when they were closed at eleven o'clock in the evening, there was an incessant influx of visitors, the ever increasing numbers being composed of the crême de la crême of Montreal society. About nine p.m., the gaiety of the scene was at its height, the toilets of the ladies, rendered more brilliant by the electric lights, and the strains of sweet music combining to present an enchanting coup d'œil.

The numerous visitors were loud in their praise of the arrangements, every one expressing the greatest satisfaction at the manner in which the ladies attending the several wards followed the instructions given, and abstained from anything approaching solicitation. This entire liberty of action will go far towards increasing the already well deserved popularity of the Kermesse.

It would be difficult to say what departments reaped the richest harvest, as the lady presidents of each table acknowledged that they had been patronized beyond their most sanguine expectation. All the returns have not yet been made, but it is estimated that the receipts for the first day will be in the vicinity of $2,000. Several works of art were disposed of at the sale tables, some of them realizing very good prices, while the lottery table and the French tourniquet or wheel of Fortune were immensely patronized by the little ones. Over one hundred guests partook of the excellent dinner prepared by Madame Grenier, and Mrs. Devins could hardly meet the demand for her excellent Swiss creams. The refreshment and cigar stands were also fairly besieged, and Madame Geoffrion realized over $115 with her choice bouquets. The gypsies were kept busy with visitors, and many of our leading politicians anxiously consulted the occult science of Madame McShane and her assistants, in the hope, no doubt, of obtaining precious information on the ever uncertain future of political life. Hon. Mr. Chapleau was seen entering the mysterious tent. What transpired between him and the inspired Bohemians is not known, but his smiling countenance, as he came out, clearly indicated that entire satisfaction was the result of the occult consultation. Mr. John F. Henry, an old time Montrealer and now a prominent N. Y. citizen who presided at the recent anti-monopoly convention at Chicago, also consulted the oracle last evening, and informed the writer that he was surprised at the correct manner in which he had been told the object of his present visit to Montreal. The Queen of the Gypsies, wand in hand, also presided at the wheel of fortune, and this source of revenue, together with the fortune telling, realized the handsome sum of $200.

Increased accommodation has been prepared for guests, and gentlemen are informed that they need not wait for special invitations for the six o'clock dinners, it being impossible to forward them to all the friends of the hospital, and that tickets for meals will be sold at the door. The dinner this evening will be a military one, at which most of our militia officers are expected to be present.

Notre Dame Hospital, for the benefit of which this Kermesse was devised, is a model charity well deserving of the support of our Protestant as well as Roman Catholic citizens. Its nurses are of the order of Grey Nuns, consequently the service of the Institution is perfect, all the wards being delightfully clean and well ventilated. The physicians are men of experience and reputation, and the inmates are assured of scientific treatment and maternal care. Its doors are open to all religious denominations, and it is to be hoped all classes will give it a fair share of their support. On the tables we observe articles of luxury and usefulness in great variety; some of our most talented artists, professional and amateur, have contributed to the English table some perfect little gems, and in fancy work great skill and beauty of design is displayed, deft fingers have wrought beautiful specimens of embroidery, and the tables are served by Dames and Misses of our representative families, all clad in the picturesque costume of the hospitalière. Such a novel and picturesque scene, as is presented, may never again be witnessed in this city.

COURT OF QUEEN'S BENCH.

Grand Jury's Presentment.

The grand jury returned into court about four o'clock yesterday afternoon with the following presentment:—

TRUE BILLS.

Napoleon Lefebvre, three indictments for larceny, two for forgery, and three for obtaining money under false pretences. He pleaded guilty to all the charges.

Eugene Hebert, five indictments for forgery and offering for payment forged cheques. Guilty.

James McGauvran, shooting with intent, three counts. Not guilty; trial to-day.

Tancrède Miron, murder. Not guilty; trial to-day.

Margaret Campbell, stealing goods at Lachine and receiving them knowing them to be stolen. Not guilty; trial to-day.

Hugh McGarrill, feloniously wounding with intent to disfigure. Mr. Euclide Roy, who appeared for prisoner, explained that his client had been present in the morning, but had been obliged to go to the funeral of a friend; trial was fixed for Thursday.

Hypolite Guttman, feloniously wounding with intent, two counts. Not guilty; trial to-day.

Maria Harnett and Caroline Taylor, larceny and receiving stolen goods. Not guilty; trial to-morrow. On motion of their counsel, Mr. St. Pierre, they were admitted to bail, and will get separate trials, with mixed juries.

Romeo Leroux, aggravated assault. Not guilty; trial to-day.

Mr. Ouimet moved for permission to alter a word in the indictment of Hypolite Guttmann, viz., to change the name Arthur Tassé to Arthur Massé.

Mr. St. Pierre, who appeared for the defence, opposed the application.

His Honor took the affair en délibéré.

The Court then adjourned.

ST. JEAN BAPTISTE.

General News.

An excellent programme has been prepared for the entertainment to be given, this evening, in the basement of the St. Vincent de Paul Church, for the benefit of the St. Jean Baptiste Society. Arrangements are in progress with the Indian chiefs of Caughnawaga to secure the presence of their warriors in the grand procession. A St. Jean Baptiste Association has been in existence among the Caughnawaga Indians for many years.

The Malone St. Jean Baptiste Society will come in a body accompanied by a brass band.

A Bouquet on an Altar Catches Fire.

At the seven o'clock mass at the Church of Notre Dame de Lourdes on Sunday morning a bouquet on the altar caught fire from one of the small lamps. A disastrous fire might have resulted but for the presence of mind of a member of the choir who snatched the burning flowers from their position and extinguished the flame under his feet. The incident created considerable commotion among the congregation, especially as it occurred at the time of communion.

LOST--A PEARLE!

He gave shrill, sharp signals for down-breaks, instantly reversing the engine and opening the escape valves, using his utmost endeavor to slacken the speed of the train.

Still that figure stood without motion—apparently without life. He could not distinguish the white, set face, the upraised clasped hands. Oh! if it would but move. Why did it not spring aside from the horrible danger menacing?

The engine labored, jumped, creaked and groaned, like some wild beast hungry for its prey, and resolutely determined to overleap every barrier.

The engineer shut his eyes to the sight he knew must greet them, while a sickening, horrible thrill ran through every vein and nerve.

A moment of awful suspense, a wild, unearthly shriek, a hardly perceptible jar, and then the engine, panting like some mighty leviathan in its death throes, its strength exhausted, its dreadful work of destruction accomplished, subsided into silence and repose.

The engineer thrust his white, horror-stricken face forth and looked back along the track. A shudder shook him from head to foot as he saw, not far distant, a heap of something lying between the tracks.

"Great Heavens, it is a woman!" he cried to the fireman; and jumping to the ground, he sped back toward the silent object.

By this time every passenger was on the qui vive. They had heard those startling whistles, proclaiming danger ahead; they had marked the efforts to slacken the speed of the train, and many a heart had grown faint with fear lest some dreadful calamity was about to overtake and destroy them just as their journey way done. Great was their consternation upon learning that a woman had been killed, and hundreds left the carriages to look upon the poor, unfortunate victim.

The engineer had been the first to reach her. He had lifted her tenderly in his arms borne her to a grassy spot not far distant, laid her gently down, straightening out her limbs and smoothing her clothing decently over them.

"Are you sure she is dead?" some one asked.

"Yes, she is dead," he answered, with a face of anguish; "and the first one I have killed in twenty-seven years of service. Poor thing! and she so fair and sweet to look upon, too."

The tears streamed down his face as he bent over her, smoothing the heavy hair from her fair brow, where a great bruise suggested how the cruel work had been done.

She was a young woman of apparently twenty-one or two years, and her face was very beautiful, save that unsightly mark. Her eyes were closed, and their dark fringes lying against the white cheek made it seem still fairer. Her nose was small and straight, the mouth full and sweet in expression, and the chin beautifully rounded. Her rich, abundant hair had become disarranged, in her fall, and fell around her neck and shoulders in a profusion of rippling waves. Her form was slender and graceful, and looked very trim in the neatly fitting dress she wore. The small white hands which the tender-hearted engineer had reverently folded over her breast, were as fair and delicate as any high-born lady's in the land, and on the third finger of her left hand there gleamed a wedding-ring.

"Who can she be?" She is married."

"How came she to be walking on the track?" were the queries and comments which were heard on every side, as one after another of the anxious passengers came to look, and then turned heart-sick away from the sad sight.

"How did it happen?" the conductor asked of the almost heart-broken engineer.

"I do not know, sir; it seems as if she might have saved herself if she had had her wits about her. We came upon her just as we rounded yonder curve. I saw her turn and look back when I whistled and then stand still as if panic-stricken. Just before we reached her I saw her fall—I think she must have fainted from fright. I did my best to stop the train, and the force was nearly spent when the engine hit her. If she had been a rod further on, she would have been saved."

"Are there any bones broken?" the conductor asked.

"None that I can discover," said a physician, who had been examining the woman. "Neither of her arms or legs are broken, but there may be some internal injury, which caused her death.'

"Ah, yes; and that cruel bruise on her forehead. Poor child, poor child! and the first one I ever killed in all my twenty-seven years of service," moaned the remorseful engineer, with quivering lips.

"The bruise could not have been the cause of her death; I think it is not in the right place. There must be some internal injury," replied the physician.

'Are you sure, sir, that she is clean gone—can nothing be done?" the engineer asked, eagerly, seeming to gather something of hope from the medical man's work.

"No; nothing can be done. There is no pulse no heart-beat, no breath. She is past all help," was the sad reply.

Still the passengers kept coming and going There was quite a crowd gathered about the unfortunate woman, when all at once there came from the midst of it a startled, horrified cry:

"My God! how came she here?"

That was all, but every one standing there heard it, and turned involuntarily to see whence the words came.

There were white, scared faces all about, but among them all there was not one that appeared to be more so than any other, and a solemn silence dropped over the spot as they waited, expecting to see some heart-broken father, brother, or husband rush forward and claim the lifeless body. But no one moved—no other word was spoken.

"Who said that? Does any one know who the unfortunate creature is?" demanded the conductor, glancing sharply around.

There was no reply, and he repeated his question in a louder tone, but with the same result; and a wondering expression came into every face, while whispers and surmises flowed from lip to lip.

Whoever had uttered that cry—whoever had spoken those words, seemed to have some powerful motive for keeping silent, upon second thought.

Only two men among the crowd knew who had been so startled upon beholding that white, still face upon the grass, or who had given utterance to that frightened cry and those terrified words.

The woman's pockets were examined to see if they could discover any clew to her identity; but nothing was found save a small purse, which contained a pound note and a few pieces of silver.

The conductor, after consulting a while with some of the passengers, ordered that she be lifted into the baggage carriage and laid upon a pile of shawls and cloaks that had been volunteered for that purpose, every one seeming to feel a sort of tender pity for the beautiful stranger who had come to such a sad and untimely end. The train then moved slowly on, reaching its destination nearly an hour behind time.

The body was given into the care of the proper officials upon reaching the city, to be carried away to the morgue, there to await identification; and the busy throng went its way.

As Adison Cheetham stepped upon the platform from the carriage in which he had been riding, he met his valet, who was awaiting him, and who, on beholding him, started back with an exclamation of dismay.

"Are you ill, sir?" he asked; and well he might ask, for the man's face was perfectly colourless, and wore an expression of horror beyond description. He was shivering as if chilled with the cold, and his teeth chattered audibly.

"No," he replied, gruffly; "but after such a cursed fright a man may be expected to look ill.—It is enough to give any one the horrors to be startled from a sound sleep by such unearthly noises, and then told that we are all going straight to——"

The place of which he spoke is universally conceded to be a very warm one.

Did you get out to look at—the—her?" inquired his servant, with an expressive shrug and emphasis.

His master swore angrily.

'What should I want to go out and look at a mangled corpse for? I had enough to do to quiet my own nerves after such a shock. I would give a hundred pounds if we had come on some other train. Ugh! what have they done with—it?' he asked with a shudder, and glancing fearfully around, as if he feared that the ghost of that unfortunate woman was about to rise up and confront him.

"They are just taking her to the morgue, sir—there they go now," his valet answered, pointing to two men who were carrying a rude litter, upon which something strangely and fearfully suggestive lay, covered with a black cloth.

Adison Cheetham started violently as his eyes fell upon it, and muttering another oath he turned quickly from the sight.

RAVAGED BY THE STORM.

Part of the Kermesse Pavilion Prostrated—$2,000 Damages—Terror of the Ladies—A Discouraging But by no Means Disheartening Experience.

The heavy thunderstorm which passed over the city about 1.45 this afternoon had the most disastrous effect on the tents of the Grande Kermesse which opened out yesterday under such favorable auspices. A few minutes before 2 o'clock, while over one hundred guests were taking dinner and everything was proceeding in the most lively and satisfactory manner under the tent, the storm burst with a sudden and terrible force upon the pavilion. The rain was driven by a most violent wind and accompanied by sharp and heavy thunder. Before any attempt could be made to protect the valuable goods on the tables was heard in the French section and the whole of the canvas covering the precious articles contained in that annex came down with a fearful noise. The centre pole had been broken in two. At the same time the canvas being torn to pieces, the water began to pour into the interior as if coming down from a water fall. The collapse of the tent was so sudden that the ladies in charge of the tables in the section including the Tombola, as well as the ice cream vendors and the Gypsy tent had hardly time to escape unhurt. However, their terror may well be imagined and the cries and lamentations heard for a moment were such as to lead the gentlemen present to believe that some serious calamity had happened. Ladies screamed and shrieked, some ran hither and thither while and were cared for by their friends and others were prostrated with nervous attacks from which they did not thoroughly recover for half an hour.

A TERRIFIC CRASH

The first excitement being over it was happily ascertained that nothing more serious than fear had been the consequence of the accident.

SAVING THE GOODS.

The first act of those who had kept their presence of mind was to save and protect those articles which had not yet been destroyed, and a number of valuable articles were very soon placed in such portions of the tent as were most likely to remain secure. The French section having thus been attended to, the other tables were cared for and tarpaulins were rapidly spread in all directions, but not before the rain had commenced to pour through in heavy streams in different places and almost every department suffered more or less.

The dining room being in an opposite direction to the wind was the least injured, and the damage there will be trifling.

A NARROW ESCAPE.

At the time of the accident, the large electric light fell with a loud crash to the floor of the tent. It fell between three ladies who were standing under it but who fortunately escaped any injury.

During the progress of the storm, Craig St. opposite St. Francois Xavier was a muddy lake, about a foot of water standing upon the horse car track.

AFTER THE STORM.

So much energy was displayed in repairing damages that half an hour after the accident, the rain having ceased, all was again ready for active operation, and the band striking up a lively tune, the ladies resumed their duties as if nothing had happened. At the moment of writing the Kermesse is in full blast.

ANOTHER SCARE.

A few minutes after two o'clock the rain came down rather less violently and those assembled were standing in groups bewailing the ruinous scene around them, when a wonderfully vivid flash of lightning lighted up the whole tent brilliantly and was instantaneously followed by a tremendous and long continued peal of thunder which sounded as if the towers of Notre Dame had fallen. Every one instinctively jumped and most of the ladies put their hands over their ears with a scream of fear. Then the rain commenced again with even greater violence and beat upon the canvas roof as if it would crush it down on the heads of those beneath it. Prompt measures were taken to empty the accumulated water by pushing up the hollow canvas with supports of all kinds; and some ladies climbed on chairs from the flooded floors. Fortunately, however, the violence of the rain soon abated and all felt reassured Conversation again began about the damage, and further measures were taken for preserving the valuable goods. Attempts were made to clear the floor by driving the knots through the planks, and so making holes for the water to escape. In some places it looked as if the lady hospitallers had been exercising the duties of their Red Cross badge, for the rain had taken the crimson dye out of the decorations, and the result looked as if some bad accidents had occurred.

THE LUDICROUS SIDE OF THE MISFORTUNE.

One gentleman who had been assisting was thoroughly drenched, for while he was busy moving the goods another came behind and cut the canvas above him, letting out a deluge of water on his back. In a very short time the ladies began to recover their spirits, and one or two of the cooler ones were seen driving bargains with some of the gentlemen visitors.

In spite of all the upset and confusion, dinner will be ready as usual this evening at half-past six, and the fair managers deserve extra patronage for the unfortunate circumstances they have had to encounter.

COUNTING UP THE DAMAGE.

The damage from the rain will be very considerable, many valuable articles having suffered serious loss before any precautionary measures could be taken, in fact the whole thing came so suddenly there was no time to do anything before the water broke in, and then, in spite of the energy displayed, it was impossible to move all the articles to a place of safety or cover them up from the rain. The total damage, so far as could be ascertained, will not be less than $2,000, but it is to be hoped that the generosity of the public will be displayed in a greater degree on this account, so that the deserving object for which the Kermesse is held will be no sufferer for the accident which has happened to it to-day.

Madame Thibaudeau throughout the entire trying circumstances displayed the excellent qualities she possesses for the position of president. She was everywhere cool and collected, counselling and comforting, a help and encouragement to all.

To Be Liquidated.

Messrs. H. Haswell & Co., wholesale grocers, St. Paul street, have issued a circular to their creditors notifying them that on account of the death of the junior partner, Mr. Charles R. Haswell, which took place on Friday last at Mentone, France, the partnership is dissolved and its affairs will be liquidated. This is rendered necessary as by the articles of co-partnership no provision is made for continuing the firm after the death of either of the partners. The liabilities are estimated at over $100,000, and it is the opinion of the members of the firm here that 100 cents in the dollar will be paid.

An Open Letter.

Mr. L. A. Sénécal publishes in La Minerve an open letter in which he defies the Hon. Mr. Joly to reiterate outside the accusations which he has made in the House with regard to the fraudulent use of Government funds made use of by him for political purposes while manager of the Government Railway. He also takes occasion to accuse Mr. Joly of being guilty of the same charges made against Mr. Sénécal when he was Prime Minister of the Province. He further adds that in the event of Mr. Joly accepting this challenge he will have him arrested for libel.

Very Early, Early Rose.

On Saturday Mr. William O'Hara, gardener of St. Antoine street, handed in to THE STAR office a basket of Early Rose potatoes which he had that day dug from his garden. They were fully ripe, and, notwithstanding the early date in the potato season, were as fine specimens of their excellent variety as could be wished. They were started in a cold frame and must have required careful watching during the recent backward season. Mr. O'Hara is to be congratulated on his enterprise in gardening.

Body Recovered.

During the thunderstorm this afternoon the body of the second engineer of the SS. "Tantallon," who was drowned in the harbor on the 23rd of May, rose to the surface and was picked up by one of the Harbor Commissioners tugs while floating down the current.

THE ENO CASE.

What His Counsel Say—Mr. C. P. Davidson, Q.C., the First Man to Spot the Absconder—A Compromise Expected.

Three of the gentlemen intimately connected with the arrest of John C. Eno arrived in the city this morning from Quebec, Mr. J. J. Curran, Q.C., Detective Fahey and High Constable Bissonnette. Mr. Curran appears to be confident that his client cannot be held on the present charge of bringing stolen money into Canada and much less be taken back to the United States under the extradition treaty. "The proceedings so far," said Mr. Curran, "are illegal on the face of them, and we can prove that our client did not bring as much as $1,000 into Canada with him, which money he borrowed from a friend and which never belonged to the Second National Bank. I am here," continued Mr. Curran, "to protect the interests of my client, because we have suspicions that other proceedings are contemplated against him."

It appears that Mr. C. P. Davidson, Q.C., Crown Prosecutor, was the first to discover the presence of Eno in Canada. On the afternoon of Monday, the 29th instant, he was riding round the mountain and called in at Lumkin's in passing. There he noticed the strangers and having previously received instructions from Pinkerton to take what steps he considered proper in obtaining Eno's arrest and conviction, he informed Fahey that he believed the party he had seen at Lumkin's was none other than John C. Eno. The subsequent movements which were shadowed confirmed this suspicion, as has already been explained. Mr. Eno's brother, accompanied by Mr. Hamilton, the New York lawyer, passed through the city yesterday afternoon for New York, where they have gone, it is believed, for the purpose of arranging a compromise.

AT THE COURT OF QUEEN'S BENCH.

In the Queen's Bench to-day, Mr. J. J. Curran, Q. C., made an important application in the matter of the arrest and indictment of J. C. Eno. He said that he appeared for Mr. Eno, who was at present under arrest in Quebec; and he came before His Honor to ask that he might be permitted to see copies of the depositions and indictments which had been made against him. He has applied to-day to the Police Magistrate, but he had declined unless His Honor gave his sanction. The matter stood thus: A warrant was issued from Montreal and placed in the hands of the High Constable for execution. He went to Quebec, made the arrest, and wanted to bring the prisoner on to Montreal. But it was held by the authorities there that the preliminary examination should take place where the prisoner was arrested. So the first warrant fell through. In anticipation of this, the Montreal authorities provided a second warrant, but still the prisoner was detained in Quebec. Now he was acting for Mr. Eno, and he confidently stated that as far as he knew the facts, no case could be sustained against him. He was charged, he understood, with a misdemeanor, having money in his possession, which he had unlawfully appropriated. But he asked for Mr. Eno what would be granted to any other prisoner, namely, the right to see what charge they had to meet. There seemed to be a contradiction between the authorities of Montreal and those of Quebec, but that was no reason why the interests of his client should suffer.

Mr. Curran quoted several law authorities to show the right of his client to copies of the indictment, and said he would now leave the matter with His Honor. With the depositions (for which he was prepared to pay), he and his colleagues would be in a position to concert measures for his defence. Should His Honor, however, decline to accede to his application, it would certainly be a new departure in the treatment of suspected persons.

His Honor said he could understand the application if the prisoner had been fully committed for trial; but, as he understood the matter, his preliminary examination was not concluded. It the indictment were all right, he could scarcely understand Mr. Curran's application, but, in any case, he would consider the matter.

The Court then adjourned.

Upon resuming, His Honor said that he had given the matter his attention, and he could find no precedent for Mr. Curran's application. He could understand it if the preliminary investigation before the Magistrate had been completed, but at the present stage, the application, he thought, was premature. However, he would give Mr. Curran till to-morrow to fortify himself with authorities; but he doubted that he could do so.

In a conversation with Mr. Curran, the latter informed a STAR reporter that he did not believe the Montreal authorities had any deposition against his client, save that of Detective Fahey.

THE CASE IN QUEBEC.

[Special to The Star.]

QUEBEC, June 3.—Eno was brought again before Judge Chauveau, in the Police Court, to-day on a charge of bringing stolen money into Canada, for which he was arrested yesterday. All the lawyers mentioned yesterday in the case were present with the exception of Mr. J. J. Curran, who returned to Montreal last night. Judge Chauveau asked if counsel for the Crown was prepared to proceed. Mr. Pelletier said while the Crown must lead in the enquête, the case being taken in the name of the Queen, yet it would not summon any witnesses except those asked to be produced by parties leading in the private prosecution. He asked the prosecuting counsel, therefore, if they had any witnesses ready. The Crown would endeavor to see justice done, both to the prisoner and the private prosecution. C. P. Davidson said he was ready to proceed to Montreal, where the Court of Queen's Bench was sitting, or before the Justice who had issued the warrant. He did not see why the rights of that magistrate should be invaded. Judge Chauveau cited statutes giving the right to the magistrate who backs a warrant to have a prisoner brought before him for subsequent proceedings when any of the prosecuting parties or their witnesses are present. At the time he gave his order yesterday Detective Fahey, who swore out the warrant was present in the Court. Mr. Davidson asked delay till to-morow. Hon. Mr. Irvine, for the prisoner, demanded if the prosecution would have witnesses ready for to-morrow, and, if so, to name them. There was no certainty of proceeding with the case tomorrow there was no necessity for delay, and he asked the dismissal of the prisoner. The Judge said the application for delay till to-morrow was reasonable, and he could not refuse it. The case is therefore postponed, and Eno was taken back to his hotel. In view of the apparent vagueness of the charges against the prisoner here it is evident other desperate means will be resorted to. The supposition that Fahey return to Montreal is for the purpose of having the prisoner indicted before the grand jury in Montreal in order that if a true bill is found his removal to Montreal may be accomplished.

JOSEFFY.

A programme composed solely of piano solos is apt to be considered trying, and probably deterred some people from attending the recital at Nordheimer's Hall last evening, when the great Rafael Joseffy made his first appearance before a Montreal public, which included all our leading musicians and dilettanti. His very first number, Handel's Allegro and variations on a Passacaille, stamped him as an artist, and the only curiosity in the minds of his audience was as to in what genre he would prove the most perfect. Every style of composition was in turn interpreted by the gifted musician, wholly from memory, and the short interval between each of the five groups, joined to the intense heat, was an enormous strain upon the performer, and most virtuosos would have failed under the ordeal. But Joseffy is not of those who fail, whatever the difficulties, and whether in the well articulated staccatos of the "Gavotte," the martellato effects of the "Toccata," the intricate abstruseness of the Bach "Fugue," the gliding "Aria," or the sylph-like ballet-air of Gluck, the artist stood acknowledged. The second group opened with a selection from Schubert, and then Beethoven's grand "Sonata Appasionata" pealed forth, and seldom have we heard to such perfection the impetuous allegros, the massive andante, with occasional plaintive touches, merging into the headlong rush of the presto. The third group was of a light style, in which the player revealed his airy touch, the "Elves at Play," by Carl Heyman, being a marvel of technique. Then Chopin was taken up and his "Nocturne in D flat" especially was full of tone and that peculiar shading which this composer's works demand. The fourth group closed with two compositions of the pianist's own, which he rendered con amore and which were loudly applauded. The "Spinner's Song" from Wagner's opera of the "Flying Dutchman," arranged by Liszt, was the first number of the fifth group, and its alternate sweet and strange phrasings were delicately handled by the artist, a good contrast being afforded by another of Liszt's compositions, a mournful bit called "Consolation," and for the bouquet came the "Rhapsodie Hongroise" No. 12, the difficulties of which can only be appreciated by a connoisseur, and which was struck out of the instrument as if cut in the diamond, and which brought a most unique and herculean performance to an end. Herr Joseffy's second recital will take place on Wednesday evening, and it is to be hoped that the management will see that the windows are opened so that the stifling heat shall not mar the evening's enjoyment.

VIOLENT EARTHQUAKE.

Twelve Villages Destroyed—Two Hundred Persons Killed and Many Injured.

LONDON, June 4.—News has just been received here that there was a violent earthquake on May 19 on the Island of Kishn, near the mouth of the Persian Gulf. Twelve villages were destroyed, 200 persons killed and many others injured.

REBEL ATTACK ON SUAKIM.

[Special to The Star.]

CAIRO, June 3.—The rebels again attacked Suakim last night. They succeeded in driving in the pickets, when they were repulsed by cavalry, who pursued them some distance.

FROM OTTAWA.

Personal Notes—Killed by Lightning—Dominion Day.

(Special to The Star.)

OTTAWA, June 3.—A. M. Burgess, Deputy Minister of the Interior, leaves to-morrow on a trip to the Rocky Mountains. Rufus Stephenson starts on his annual tour of inspection of colonization companies this evening.

Philip Mahar was found insensible in his wagon near Carp Village this morning. His horses had been killed by lightning and himself badly hurt. He may possibly recover.

The City Council last evening voted the sum of $600 to be given in prizes for the celebration of Dominion Day at this city.

THE DYNAMITE EXPLOSIONS.

Detectives at Sea—Clues Declared to be Worthless—Action of the London Democrats.

[Special to The Star.]

LONDON, June 3.—The detectives are all at sea about the dynamite explosions, and seem to be as far as ever from capturing or even ascertaining the identity of the perpetrators. Directors Howard, Vincent and Jenkinson, of the Criminal Investigation Department, have decided that all so called clues that have been gathered by Colonel Majendie and the police are absolutely worthless. It was expected that much light would be thrown upon the mystery by a constable who was injured in Scotland Yard, but since his return to consciousness has been found that his recollections of the occurrence are so scattered and confused as to be valueless. Various wild proposals have been made for an expression of popular indignation by means of some sort of public demonstration. Plans have been mooted for a monster mass meeting in Hyde Park and also for a congress of various workmen's clubs, but it is not probable that anything will come of these proposals. The fact is the public has recovered from the rude shock of Friday night, and such agitation as is still maintained is largely artificial. At a conference of London democrats yesterday resolutions were adopted appealing to the democracy of America to solicits its Government to prohibit the preaching of the dynamite propaganda, and the collection of funds for destructive operations by such men as Rossa and Ford.

Press Despatch.

PARIS, June 3.—The Matin publishes a letter signed by Irishmen residing in Paris justifying the London outrages. They say they have no other means to combat England, and insist that Ireland is fighting for independence.

THE METHODISTS.

Continuation of the Conference at Brockville—Stirring Address by Dr. Douglas on Foreign Missions.

[Special to The Star.]

BROCKVILLE, June 2.—After the opening services at the afternoon session, a partial report of the financial condition of Stanstead College was presented, and after considerable discussion it was laid upon the table till it can be completed.

A motion was then presented by the Rev. J. Garrett affecting the continuance of the Japan mission work.

The addresses of Revs. Messrs. Scanlan, Porter and Houghton were in the line of surrendering the Japan mission to the Methodist church of the United States. Against the surrender Rev. Messrs. S. G. Phillips and T. W. Constable spoke.

Rev. A. B. Chambers moved a resolution recommending greater caution on the part of the Central Board of Missions in consequence of the paucity of funds and inadequacy of the support of the men on Domestic Missions. This was supported by Dr. Douglas in an eloquent address, during which the venerable doctor was frequently applauded. He reminded the conference of the fact that in our own British North America we have one ninth of the habitable globe, a sphere sufficient for its Missionary enterprise. He said he well knew that at the present time we cannot give up Japan, but the time is fast coming when we can surrender that interesting and hitherto encouragingly successful mission into other hands, and do it honorably. He said he knew that from the Island of Newfoundland westward there is suffering in our domestic missions. Of the $32,000 raised in the Montreal Conference only $6,000 is expended on our home missions for the evangelization of two millions of people. Honored ministers are at work for less than laboring men receive in Montreal for the digging of ditches and drains. We ask for cultured men and then they are victimized. Our missionaries in Japan are in luxury compared to many of our men on domestic missions. He said the Presbyterian Church has organized a fund of mercy. Let us release our suffering brethren in our domestic missions.

Mr. Garrett's motion was withdrawn. A motion, moved by Rev. Alex. Campbell, couched in stronger terms of disapproval of the further extension of foreign work, prevailed.

The discussion of several reports was postponed until Wednesday morning.

The stationing committee held its first session to-night.

A conference temperance meeting was being held to-night in Victoria Hall, the speakers being Revs. Messrs. Pearson, Beaudry and Lucas.

THE TEMPERANCE MEETING.

BROCKVILLE, June 3.—The Methodist conference temperance meeting held in Victoria Hall last night, was one of the most successful gatherings of the kind ever held in this town. The Rev. M. L. Pearson presided. A letter was read from Judge McDonald containing portions of a letter written to him by the Rev. Dean Carmichael of Montreal in full denial of statements which had been made in a public meeting held in Morrisburg by E. King Dodd's placing the Rev. Dean in opposition to the Scott Act. In this letter the Rev. Dean says: "1st, I never presided at a meeting held in opposition to the Scott Act. 2nd, I never advised a band of temperance workers not to support the Act. I told the members of the Parish Temperance Society that under our constitution they could not vote as members of the Church of the Ascension Total Abstinence Society, but that as individuals they could do just what their consciences told them to do." The hall was densely crowded. The speakers, Rev. Messrs. Pearson, Lucas and Beaudry were evidently well prepared and did their duty well.

At the close a resolution committing the whole audience to the support of the Scott act in the coming campaign was unanimously carried.

To-day the members of conference are largely occupied at committee work. They reassemble for open session to-morrow. The stationing committee commenced work last night and they will have two sessions to-day.

MANITOBA MATTERS.

The Dominion's Proposition Before the Legislature—Another Murder.

WINNIPEG, Man., June 3.—In the Legislature yesterday the House went into Committee of the Whole on the reply to the proposition from Ottawa. The reply was adopted with unimportant alterations and an addition by Mr. Norquay to the last clause that the Ottawa Delegates be empowered and instructed to receive and answer any further communication on the subject, and should no modification to the terms be offered by the Federal Government in supplement of the claims as proposed, then the Committee will be instructed to prepare for submission for the House at its next session a full statement of the Province's case before its submission to England as adopted by the House on March 17th. The reply was read a first and second time. The Opposition agreed to it. The House will probably prorogue to-day or to-morrow.

On Sunday evening word was received from Calgary Police Barracks that a man named McManus had murdered Bill Reed, better known as "Buckskin Shorty," at Geddes' farm. Eight policemen went and discovered the body and arrested McManus. A man named Henry saw McManus cutting "Shorty" with a knife. On attempting to interfere McManus threatened to shoot him. McManus claims that the killing was done in self defence and made no attempt to escape. Both parties were whiskey drinkers.

THE PRESIDENCY.

Scenes at the Opening of the Chicago Convention To-day.

CHICAGO, June 3, noon.—The spectacle presented at the Republican Convention was notable in many ways. The working body of the Convention, the greatest in point of numbers of any national political assemblage, occupied only a small portion of the auditorium. The remaining body of the hall was filled by the audience, which occupied every point of vantage and made up a picture, as viewed from the press stand, of an almost unending sea of faces of solid black and uncovered heads, relieved by the rich colors and fluttering toilets of the ladies. The Speaker's desk rests on a platform twelve feet above the seats of the delegates and the press occupies the intermediate space midway in the height, or about on a level with the heads of the delegates. Back of the chair, ranged in a semi-circle, and on a level space, are seated the remaining officers of the convention, members of the national committee and their immediate friends. Back of this circle, on a sharply rising incline, are 1,000 seats occupied by a great many persons of national repute. Swinging over the desk of the chairman, and fairly touching the arches, is a wide spreading sounding board, and embracing side extremes of building. The delegates and alternates occupy a dead level space, bounded by square lines. They are hemmed in on two sides by tiers of boxes, occupied mainly by the guests of delegates. The section of the hall occupied by the working body of the convention is broken by four wide aisles, from the edges of which rise Roman standards pendant, with blue silk banners imprinted in gold with mottoes of the States and territories. Back of the delegates is a similar space occupied by the alternates, and separated from the main body by a hardly perceptible partition. In the rear of the alternates is a commodious seating space, and beginning at a point. 100 feet in rear of the alternates is another dividing wall, and at that point tier upon tier of seats to a point almost midway between the level of the hall and apex of the roof. Narrow galleries run along the east and west sides of the hall its entire length and seemingly suspended in mid air. The front of the gallery is faced with the coats of arms of the several States. On the back ground of the flags fluttering from the arches are the national colors and flags of all nations. The first to arrive on the scene were the staff of correspondents and assistants, representing the great journals of the country. The first of the delegates began to arrive at 11.30, and full delegations were in their allotted places before noon.

The vote for temporary chairman by delegates has just started. It will probably take an hour and a half to complete the vote.

WASHINGTON, June 3.—No credence is given at the White House to the rumors of a break in the Arthur ranks.

FRANCE'S TERMS ACCEPTED.

PARIS, June 3.—The Emperor of Annam has expressed acceptance of the principle of the proposed treaty with France.

PRECAUTIONS IN AUSTRALIA.

SYDNEY, N.S.W., June 3.—In consequence of trustworthy advices from San Francisco, the authorities are taking great precautions to protect public buildings here.

THE EMPEROR'S WORK.

BERLIN, June 3.—The Emperor says the last great work of his reign is to establish Germany's social policy. Her colonial policy will be the duty and glory of his son.

A NEW CABLE.

LISBON, June .—The concession granting the right to lay a cable between Portugal and America has been transferred to the American and British Continental Cable Company. The first section of the cable to St. Michaels will be laid in September.

AMERICAN.

THE SITUATION IN CUBA.

NEW YORK, June 3.—An Havana letter says the mercantile and political situation there continues to be desperate. The sale of the island to the United States or Mexico is the general topic of conversation.

THREE MEN DROWNED.

WASHINGTON, June 3.—Telegrams from Daytonia, Fla., announce that General O. E. Babcock, Engineer of the 5th lighthouse district; Levi P. Luckey, his chief clerk (formerly assistant private secretary of President Grant) and Benjamin P. Suter, of Washington were drowned on Saturday in Mosquito inlet off the coast of Florida, while superintending work on a lighthouse being erected there. The body of Babcock was recovered. The search for the others has been unavailing. The lighthouse board has received no official information on the subject.

CANADIAN.

DISTINGUISHED VISITORS.

CLIFTON HOUSE, NIAGARA FALLS, June 3.—Lord Augustus Phipps, the Earl of Mulgrave, the Marquis of Normandy, Governor-General of Victoria, Australia, with the Marchioness of Normandy, also Lord Henry Phipps are at the Clifton house, Niagara Falls.

The Abattoir Question Again.

The Butchers' Association hold their regular monthly meeting to-night, when the principal business will be the adoption of the constitution of the society and the election of officers. An effort will also be made to reconsider the motion made at the last meeting ignoring the action of the deputation to the special Abattoir committee. Should the effort prove fruitless the probability of the butchers purchasing the Abattoirs at all will be, according to a prominent member of the trade, most doubtful, even though a renewed offer should be made to sell to them at even a lower figure.

Brussels Carpeting at Tapestry prices for ends during this week.

HENRY MORGAN & CO.

Jos. Beaudin, M.D., Hull, P.Q., writes: Dr. Thomas' Eclectric Oil commands a large and increasing sale, which it richly merits. I have always found it exceedingly helpful; I use it in all cases of rheumatism, as well as fractures and dislocations. I made use of it myself to calm the pains of a broken leg with dislocation of the foot, and in two days I was entirely relieved of the pain."

Wool, Union and Hemp Carpeting at exceedingly low prices.

HENRY MORGAN & CO.

Henry Morgan & Co. are selling Axminster, Wilton, Brussels, Tapestry, Wool, Union, and Hemp carpetings at 15 to 25 per cent. below current price for ends, this is an excellent opportunity for those who have not yet furnished to procure a good carpet at a moderate price.

FINANCIAL.

The local money market was without feature, and a change in loaning values from recent quotations was not deemed probable. Sterling Exchange ruled stronger. 60-day bills between banks were quoted at 9 to 9⅛, demand 9¼ to 9⅜. Counter rates to customers for 60 day bills were 9⅜ to 9½; demand 9⅝ to 9¾. Cable transfers effected at 10⅛. Currency drafts on New York firm at ⅛ to 5-16.

The morning session of the Stock Exchange was stronger than witnessed for some little while, and securities improved under the leadership of Montreal Bank stock, which advanced one per cent. The following were the sales:

125 Bank Montreal 190, 15 do 190⅛, 75 Merchants' 107⅛, 25 do 108, 2 do 107¾, 2 Toronto 173½, 25 Commerce 121¼, 50 Telegraph 111, 25 Richelieu 57¼, 4 do 58, 25 do 57¾, 52 do 58, 200 Gas 177¾, 25 North-West Land 41s.

The afternoon session of the Stock Exchange was steady, and prices did not vary materially from the morning's figures. The following were the sales:

12 Bank Montreal 190¾, 10 do 190, 15 do 189¾, 50 Molsons 108, 50 do 108¾, 50 Commerce 121¼, 50 Federal 120¾, 100 Richelieu 58, 50 Gas 178¾, 50 do 178¼.

Lombard street advices were apparently on the quiet side, Consols ruled, at 101 7-16 for cash and 101⅝ for account; fours and a half 113⅝; fives 104; Erie 15⅝; Illinois Central, 122¼; Canadian Pacific Railway 47.

COMMERCIAL.

LOCAL.

The receipts of both cereals and provisions were on the limited scale to day, Peas being the best represented in local deliveries. The undermentioned were the prices current for to-day.

Superior extra flour, $5 50 to $5 65; extra superfine $5 10 to 5 20; fancy $4 90 to $5; Spring extra, $4 50 to $4 75; superfine $4 to $4 10; Canada strong bakers' $5 20 to 5 50; American strong bakers' $5 45 to $5 65; fine $3 60 to $3 65; middlings, 3 40 to $3 45; Pollards $3 10 to 3 25; Ontario bags, medium, $2 40 to $2 50; Spring extra $2 25 to $2 30; superfine $2 10 to $2 15; city bags 2 85 to $2 90; Oats, 40c to 41½c. Rye, 68c to 71c. Corn 70c to 75c. Pease 92c to 95c. Red Winter wheat, $1.12½ to $1.16; white, wheat $1.10 to $1.15.

The receipts of cereals and provisions by railroad and canal were announced as follows: By rail, 3,004 barrels flour, 9 barrels ashes, 3 kegs butter, 212 boxes cheese, 584 barrels pork, 26 cases tobacco, 102 casks spirits. Via canal, 5,861 bushels peas, 520 bushels oats, 13 kegs butter, 994 boxes cheese.

FOREIGN

Liverpool grain market has ruled more firmly of late, and to-day Beerbohm thus reviewed the trade:—Cargoes off coast wheat quiet but steady; ditto corn nothing offering. Cargoes on passage and for shipment wheat quiet but steady; ditto corn firm. Farmers' deliveries of wheat during the week 50 to 55,000 quarters. Liverpool wheat spot quiet but steady; ditto corn strong. Liverpool mixed maize 5s 3½d. Canadian peas 6s 3d. Weather in England fair.

AMERICAN.

Chicago grain market opened easier, and continued to sag off in spite of firmer Wall st., advices, market opened weak. Wheat 91⅝ July, 92⅝ August, 92⅛ Sept. And at 11.45 a.m. was 91⅝ July' 92⅛ August, 92¼ Sept. Corn began 56⅞ July, 59¼ August, 59 Sept, and at time report was taken registered 56⅞ July, 58¾ August, 59⅜ Sept, Oats 32⅛ July, 29 August, 29 Sept. Pork was without much activity and was steady at 19.30 July. Lard firm at 8.30 July, 8.45 August, 8.50 Sept.

Chicago grain market closed lower. Wheat, 90c July, 91c August, 91c September. Corn, 56⅜c July, 57⅝c August, 58⅜c September. Pork, $19.20 July, $19.05 August, $19.05 September. Lard, $8.27 July, $8.40 August, $8.52 September.

Private telegraph reports announced the visible supply wheat as decreased 650,000, and corn 360,000.

Chicago receipts of grain were telegraphed as follows:—Wheat 19,000 bushels, corn 234,000 bushels, oats 259,000 bushels, and shipments advised of 18,000 bushels wheat, 101,000 bushels corn, 192,000 bushels oats. The receipts of hogs to-day 14,000, yesterday 23,070, shipments 4,435, left over 10,000. Light grades $4 85 to 5 45, mixed packing $4 95 to 5 20, heavy shipping, $5 25 to 5 55. Cattle receipts 4,800.

New York grain market was easier and appeared to sympathize with the weaker sentiment prevalent in Western markets. Red Winter wheat No. 2, 103¾ July, 105 Aug., 106 Sept. Corn 62¾ June, 63½ July, 65 Aug.

Wholesale Provisions.

The general tenor of the local provision trade was firm, hog products maintained values. Pork ruled at 21 50 to $22 50 per barrel; hams, 16 pounders 14 to 15½c; heavies 13½ to 14½c; bacon, 13 to 13½c; lard firmly held at 12½ with 12c generally buyers figures; cheese, the market was irregular prime old being controlled by a few, was firmly held at 13 to 15c; new, weak and 10c would be best offer.—Butter, while there was any quantity of inferior old make which could be had at 12c, a good article was held for from 14 to 16c, and with sales at this range. Eggs were steady at 15c, New York advices were again on the weak side for eggs, and little better could be reported for butter while cheese was somewhat firmer.

REMARKS.—The grain markets to-day opened weak both in New York and Chicago, and prices went down, until a decline of a cent and a half had been reached, then prices became steady but without much strength.

The small decrease in the visible supply of wheat had a depressing effect.

Pork and lard were steady, with very light trading.

EPPS'S COCOA

BREAKFAST.

"By a thorough knowledge of the natural laws which govern the operations of digestion and nutrition, and by a careful application of the fine properties of well-selected Cocoa, Mr. Epps has provided our breakfast tables with a delicately flavored beverage which may save us many heavy doctors' bills. It is by the judicious use of such articles of diet that a constitution may be gradually built up until strong enough to resist every tendency to disease. Hundreds of subtle maladies are floating around us ready to attack wherever there is a weak point. We may escape many a fatal shaft by keeping ourselves well fortified with pure blood and a properly nourished frame."—Civil Service Gazette.
