HOME RULE AGAIN.

ENGLAND, IRELAND, SCOTLAND AND WALES ALL TO HAVE IT.

MR. DALZIEL'S MOTION CARRIED IN THE BRITISH COMMONS.

Mr. John Redmond Declared it Meant the Shelving of Irish Home Rule Until the Lords Were Abolished.

London, March 29.—In the House of Commons to-day Mr. James Henry Dalziel, advanced Liberal member for the Kirkcaldy district, moved the adoption of a resolution to give Home Rule to England, Ireland, Scotland and Wales.

Mr. John Redmond, the well-known Parson, who sits for Waterford City, opposed the resolution, declaring that it meant the shelving of Irish Home Rule until the House of Lords shall have been abolished.

The Right Hon. A. J. Balfour, the Conservative leader, appealed to the House not to make itself ridiculous by voting in favor of a policy that was exactly the opposite of that which has built up the great empire of the world.

A vote was then taken and the resolution was adopted by a majority of 24, the vote standing 133 in favor to 109 against.

The resolution of Mr. Dalziel, adopted by the House of Commons, is probably nothing more or less active agitation in favor of separate legislative bodies for the three parts of the United Kingdom, and for Ireland, with a representative Parliament to deal with Imperial affairs.

Some of the advanced Liberals, of whom Mr. Dalziel is one, have supported such a change in the British legislative system, and the establishment of county councils is deemed by many persons to be a short step in this direction.

The scheme, broadly speaking, is to allow each country to deal with its own affairs, subject to at present hazily defined veto power vested in the Imperial Parliament.

In short, it is the application to England, Scotland and Wales of the Irish Home Rule scheme, modified or expanded to suit the circumstances of each country.

JAPAN AND CHINA WILL STOP FIGHTING FOR A TIME.

THE ATTEMPT ON LI HUNG CHANG'S LIFE TURNED OUT A GOOD THING.

It brought the Matter to a Head—The Military Power of Japan.

Washington, D.C., March 29.—The news that a unconditional armistice had been declared by the Emperor of Japan was confirmed by the Japanese Legation, where it was stated that a cablegram to this effect had been received from the home Government.

After a meeting of the peace Ambassadors had been decided on, China requested the declaration of an armistice, but this request had not been acted upon favorably by Japan.

The power of the Japanese Government to execute the armistice will now be put to a critical test.

Reviews for the Past Week by Commercial Agencies.

New York, March 29.—R. G. Dun and Co.'s weekly review of trade says: Signs of improvement are all the more satisfactory because neither accompanied nor apparently produced by a speculative craze.

Higher wages for coke-workers have been followed by a formal advance of 4 cents in the price of coke, and now Bessemer pig has risen 35 cents at Pittsburgh and 25 at Philadelphia.

General trade for the third week in succession continues to show evidences of improvement. In no other direction is this so plainly indicated as in the tendency of prices.

Exports of wheat, including flour as wheat, from both coasts this week are smaller than for four preceding weeks, 2,562,000 bushels.

At Toronto business is unchanged, being characterized by only a fair demand for sorting up goods.

Bank clearings at Winnipeg, Hamilton, Toronto, Montreal and Halifax aggregate $15,261,000 this week, a falling off of about 16 per cent. from last week.

RECORD OF THE RED AND BLACK.

ANNUAL MEETING OF THE MONTREAL FOOTBALL CLUB.

THE BIG OXFORD AND CAMBRIDGE BOATRACE TO-DAY.

The Cantabs Second Choice at the Short End of 9 to 2—Interesting Details of the Great Boat-race—Dick Kelly of the Shamrocks to Play for Ottawa.

The annual meeting of the Montreal Football Club was held last evening at the M.A.A.A. building, Mansfield Street. There was a large attendance, and if enthusiasm be any harbinger of success the laurels of victory should certainly find a place above the red and black standard next season.

The secretary's report was as follows: "It is with pleasure that I present to you the annual report of the Montreal Football Club for the season of 1894, for although we cannot yet claim the proud title of Champions of Canada still we have no reason to be ashamed of the record we made. This season was a most important one in the annals of football, especially of this Province, as it witnessed the advent into the ranks of our union of the two Ottawa clubs, Ottawa and St. Joseph College. As predicted the greater competition created by the admission of these clubs increased the interest taken in our noble game both by the players and the general public in whose affection the game had gained a strong foothold during the previous year. So that granted fine weather our players can have the encouragement of several thousand spectators. The vital question is now, is the game improving? I have referred to it above as a noble game and so it is if played in a true manly spirit. There is no better game to cultivate endurance, muscle, quickness of thought and action and self control. I put the latter quality last as it has fallen in to that place lately. There is no doubt that the game will fall into disfavor and deservedly so if such exhibitions of pugilism as were witnessed in some of the matches last season are permitted. What are the reasons for this? May be asked? First, I think, the prize which is at stake, the championship of the Dominion. There is no doubt that the thought we must win at all costs is too often harbored. The consequence is that the ball is handed out instead of heeled out of the scrimmage, a wingman holds his opponent, and other trifling (?) evasions of the letter and spirit of the game are committed. Let us not resort to these tactics in our own club; we hold such a prominent position in the football world and much will be done for the game. Then we must have referees with a well developed backbone who will at once rule off such players, not for five minutes only but for the whole game. The fear of this will prevent any such demonstration, as it will mean the loss of the match to his club. Should a team offend continually in this respect let it be suspended, as has been done in other branches of sport. Let us endeavor as a club to keep this grand old game purely a sport and free from abuse. I hope you will pardon this digression, which I felt was called for by the present condition of the game."

Passing to a review of the season the report said: "The energetic captain of the 1st XV, Mr. V. C. Buchanan, gathered the players together early and practice commenced August 29th, 1894, two weeks earlier than usual. The club had not had such a wealth of material to choose its teams from for some time, consequently the practices were largely attended as every man had to play in order to retain his place on a team and knew that he had many a hard match before him as a result of admission of the two Ottawa clubs. Mr. Buchanan as usual, was nutting in his efforts and introduced several new bits of play to advantage. It is along this line that our men need development, for I think our matches were generally lost through lack of hard work and change of tactics when necessary. I would strongly urge the appointment of a committee of coaches composed of retired veterans. The players must, however, be willing to accept the pointers given them to render this a pleasing task."

"The club is indebted to Mr. Frank Barbour of Yale who kindly acted in this capacity at the later end of the season. A good move was the engagement of Mr. Bennett as trainer, who did much by his sound advice to keep the men in trim. It would be better if more attention were paid to this feature."

The remainder of the report consisted of the records of the Club's three fifteens for the past season, full details of which have from time to time appeared in these columns. The election of officers resulted as follows: President, Arthur D. Fry; 1st Vice-President, Victor C. Buchanan; 2nd Vice-President, Ed. W. James; Hon. Secretary, C. S. Y. Branch; Treasurer, E. Herbert Brown; Captain, 1st fifteen, W. C. Hagar; Captain, 2nd fifteen, Clifford Jack; 3rd fifteen, W. Reid; Committee, John Poff H. Routh, Jack Silver, E. J. Fry, A. G. B. Claxton, H. Redpath, Harland Macdonald.

A Committee meeting held after the general meeting it was decided to have the annual spring match between the President's and Captain's fifteens. The Junior and Juvenile Leagues. Clubs desirous of joining the Junior and Juvenile football leagues are requested to communicate at once with A. R. Wilson, secretary, 21 Victoria Square, for all information. Clubs which belonged to the leagues last year and who are still together are asked to send in full particulars as soon as possible to the Secretary. A meeting will be called to consider the by-laws, etc., as soon as a fair number of entries are received.

ROWING and SAILING. Betting is 9 to 2 in Favor of Oxford. Star and Garter, Putney, March 29.—The 5th boat race between crews representing the Universiades of Oxford and Cambridge will be decided to-morrow. The crew will row the course in their new shells—Cambridge in one built by Glasgow, Oxford in one built by Rough, with oars in both by Ayling. To the unpracticed eye no difference can be noted between the two shells. Both are built upon the same model, of Honduras cedar and soft pine, copper nailed with sliding seats, upon the American plan, running on small vulcanite wheels, brass heel holders below and leather straps above in the stretchers hollow outriggers, painted light or dark blue, and a tiny 'Varsity flag just in front of the bow seat. Underneath, like some of the fish in a thin brass plate called a "countervail." The invention, like the outriggers of Harry Clasper, the great Tyne oarsman. There are lots who tiller the fish. The fish are of thoroughly seasoned spruce sport blades of blue, dark or light. There are slight differences of dimensions, the Cambridge boat being 52 feet 4 inches long, that of Oxford 51 feet 7 inches. The breadths are: Cambridge, 23 3/4 inches; Oxford, 23 inches. Depths: Cambridge, 9 1/4 inches, with 8 1/2 in forward and 5 3/4 inches aft; Oxford, 9 inches, with 8 1/2 forward and 51-4 inches aft. The bottoms and sides of both boats are as smooth as plate glass. The umpire of an Oxford and Cambridge race is always named from Oxford, the judge from Cambridge. Before starting the two captains, in the presence of the umpire, agree that if any accident happens in the first mile the race shall be rowed over again. It would be a pity to spoil a real test of strength by an untoward accident, and, too, perhaps, the boats be tampered with, as was done some years ago, and the night before the race. This agreement of the captains renders such attempts abortive. Styles of rowing vary little from year to year. It is here where the personal equation comes in. Oxford style varies a little this year from '94. Up to last year it was always a point with Oxford to get the hands away from the body on the reach forward with a rush. This year it is done rather slowly. The style of Cambridge has also altered a little. Last year they did not swing the body as Oxford does, but used the leg power as a piston. This year they are swinging the body somewhat. In training the Ox-fords use the river Isis, really the Thames. The headquarters of the Oxford University Boat Club is on the 'Varsity' barge, and there are about 25 other Oxford College boat club barges on the same waters. The famous 'Varsity barge is a sort of splendidly glorified scow, flat bottomed over 15 feet long and 18 feet wide, open end, bow and stern, and containing a long saloon with many gothic windows. The barge over 50 years old. Its companions on the banks of the Isis were once owned by the London City Companies. Though the 'Varsity barge may be taken as the headquarters of the Oxford University Boat Club, there is a handsome club house not far down on the opposite side of the river.

On the 11th of March the race on Oxford, for which crew all the watermen claim that race as a positive certainty for themselves. This is based partly on the performances of the crews over the full course on the ebb tide, under almost precisely identical conditions, when Oxford covered the distance in 19 mins. 35 secs. while Cambridge did it in 20 mins. 13 secs.

CURLING. The Heathers Elect Officers. The Heather Curling Club held their annual meeting last night. The reports presented were very encouraging. While the club only won the Smith Cup competition for the season of 1894, they reached the finals in the Branch trophy, the Governor-General's prize, the M.A.A.A. trophy and the Smith Cup, 1895. The election of officers resulted as follows: James Rodger, President; R. Harrower, Vice-President; A. C. Hutchinson, Treasurer, and G. H. Cornell, Secretary, all re-elected. Committee, G. W. Wood, R. Thomson, G. A. Robertson, and W. Sharp. It was decided to hold the annual dinner in the club rooms on the 9th April, at which the club prizes will be presented.

BOWLING. Inceogs Defeat Victorias. The bowling match at the Y.M.C.A. last night resulted as follows: Inceogs. VICTORIAS. McManus..... 323 Thompson..... 273 McLean..... 283 Burton..... 291 Holland..... 233 Bouchette..... 271 Williams..... 240 Watson..... 271 1197 1123 Majority for Inceogs, 74. Triangles and Heathers play tonight.

LACROSSE. The Crescents and St. Gabriels. A joint meeting of the Crescent and St. Gabriel Lacrosse Clubs will be held Monday evening at St. Gabriel Hall, corner Centre and Laprairie Streets, Point St. Charles, at 8 o'clock to consider the question of amalgamation. Dick Kelly Will Play for the Capitals (Special to the Herald). Ottawa, March 29.—As an offset to the resignation of Barney Quinn and Devine the Capitals will likely have the services of Dick Kelly of the Shamrocks. Kelly would be of material assistance to the ex-champions as their only weakness is at centre field and without him they will be unable to strengthen up as they desire to. It is understood that negotiations with this end in view have been going on for some time and it may only be a few days before they will have been completed. Kelly is here now.

Castle was appointed secretary. Mr. Mann explained to the meeting the many benefits resulting from such an association for instance protection from unconscientious labor and improvement of painters generally. Another benefit was protection from foreign labor, and to avoid being in the hands of architects. A committee was appointed to draft a constitution and by-laws and to report at next meeting. De Lery Macdonald was appointed legal adviser of the association. Among those present were A. Meloche, L. N. Dennis, Seath.

VERSATILE LE MOYNE.

Something of the Career of a Famous "Leading Old Man" of the Stage. William J. Le Moyne, the leading old man of the New York Lyceum stock company, is one of the best known actors in America, for he has been on the stage with practically no interruption since 1852, and for several years before that time had been a prominent member of the various amateur dramatic societies of Boston, the city of his nativity.

Mr. Le Moyne's professional debut was made unexpectedly in Portland, Me., May 10, 1852, as the first officer in "The Lady of Lyons" in support of Catherine Sinclair, who was Edwin Forrest's wife. Two nights afterward he was called upon to do Friar Laurence in "Romeo and Juliet."

Since that time the history of Mr. Le Moyne is the history of the top stratum of the American stage. He has played all sorts of parts with our best stags and our worst, but since before the "late unpleasantness" he has been recognized as one of the best mummies on this side the Atlantic. In 1870 he became a member of the famous old Union Square theater stock company in New York city. There he remained three seasons, when he joined Augustin Daly, but left that manager after one year's service to enlist under the banner of the Mallory brothers, the managers who then had the Madison Square theater, of which Daniel Frohman was the acting manager. When about five years later Mr. Frohman left to establish the Lyceum theater stock company, Mr. Le Moyne went, too, and has been with him ever since.

He is a thoroughly natural actor, who never insults an audience by a slovenly performance, and personally is a delightful man of great culture and refinement. The cyclist and the Judge. A Copenhagen cyclist was recently arrested for riding on the footpath leading to Lyngby church. The judge thundered out the words, "You have been cycling on the Lyngby church footpath?" The cyclist nodded assent. "You will have to pay a fine of 4 kroner."

The accused took four coins out of his pocket and laid them on the bar. "But tell me, your worship, have Prince Waldemar and Princess Marie permission to cycle on the path in question?" The judge rubbed his nose. "Um! No. Certainly not. Is this your first offense?" "Yes, your worship, and my last," answered the culprit. "Well, then, I will let you off with a caution this time."

The cyclist gathered up his money, made his bow and walked off. But when he got to the door the judge called out to him: "Hello, you there! Did you actually see Prince Waldemar and Princess Marie riding on that path?" "I? No, your worship!" replied the cyclist, with a twinkle in his eye, and was gone.

CONDENSED SPORTING CHAT. Britannia won $3,799, about $14,000, last year. Salvator covered about 55.3 feet a second when he ran his mile in 1:35 3/4. It is unlawful in South Dakota to hold sports of any kind on Memorial day. Pierpont Morgan recently paid $5,000 for a Chicago dog named Gold Dust. Cornell's crew will sail for England May 29 and begin training for the Henley regatta. Lane of Amherst has positively refused to meet Kink, Harvard's strong man, in a contest of strength.

Women are GOOD Economists

and I deal principally with women. Wise women know that a few dollars saved here and there on Furniture soon count up. Men don't notice such things. They say: "Get the best." Women say: "Get the best, and get it at the cheapest place." I know that success in business means close figuring and close attention to details. That's the reason I have so many women customers. My new Spring Stock is in and ready for inspection. Styles never were so pretty before, and prices were never lower.

TO PLACE FOR POOR PEOPLE ATTACKED WITH MEASLES. BOARD OF HEALTH WILL REMEDY THIS DISGRACEFUL STATE OF AFFAIRS.

The offers of two hospitals regarding the Civic Hospital Accepted.

A deputation representing the Notre Dame and General Hospitals waited upon the Finance Committee at its meeting yesterday afternoon...

Dr. Laberge and Dr. Lachapelle replied in the affirmative. In the affirmative, it was decided that steps be taken to make some provision...

Dr. Lachapelle pointed out the great expense which the isolation hospital entails. The same of mass patients would entail...

Dr. Laberge explained that the danger of contagion from measles was greater in the cases of scarlet fever and diphtheria.

F. Welferstein Thomas said that he was sure that those in charge of the civic hospital would endeavor to devise some means of making provision for patients afflicted with measles.

Ald. Wilson Smith and McBride expressed a hope that the Health Committee would also take the matter into consideration and Ald. Beauséjour promised that it would.

In the motion of Ald. Wilson Smith the report of the Health Committee recommending the acceptance of both offers was unanimously concurred in.

Ald. Wilson Smith said that it was evident that it would be no use in taking the cost of the repairs to the civic hospital to be made by the city...

City Treasurer Robb thought this a good plan. But he also suggested that the appropriations for this year and next year be asked for last year would in every case be required this year.

COUNTERFEITERS AT WORK.

Health and Life Endangered by Unscrupulous Dealers who Persuade Unsuspecting People to Take Imitations—Some Pointers Worth Remembering.

No medicine that is not of more than ordinary merit suffers from imitations or substitutes. The fact that an imitation is offered is one of the strongest proofs of the excellent qualities of the genuine article.

The Dr. Williams' Pink Pills is continually trying to impress upon the public the fact that Dr. Williams' Pink Pills are only sold in securely sealed boxes, the wrapper around which is printed in red ink and bears the registered trade mark "Dr. Williams' Pink Pills for Pale People."

Notwithstanding this constant warning there are unscrupulous dealers here and there who defame the public by selling an imitation pill (also colored pink) either by the dozen, hundred or by the ounce, alleging that they are "just as good."

The formula of Dr. Williams' Pink Pills is a secret and is known only to the company. Therefore if some dealer tells you a substitute is "just the same" or "just as good" he is simply trying to deceive you because there is a larger profit for him in selling the imitation.

homets to be seen at the Glass Block. The proprietors, Messrs. Alexander and Co., have brought out an immense stock of pattern hats from Paris, and the prevailing styles seem to prophesy that this year will see larger hats with more decided mixtures and blendings of color than heretofore.

Mr. Alexander, on being questioned as to the extent of the undertaking and probability of its not paying, smiled as he pointed to the crowds, and said, "Not a bit of it!"

"Among the large crowds present today there are milliners from the city buying their stock, and many orders from country storekeepers have come in."

Any lady in the city will be well repaid by visiting the new department and seeing the new styles at the store of this enterprising firm.

INGERSOLL ON ALCOHOL.

Terrific Arrangement of the Demon the Truth of Which Cannot be Gainsaid. I am aware that there is a prejudice against any man who manufactures alcohol.

I believe that from the time it issues from the cooled and poisonous worm in the distillery, until it empties into the jaws of death, dishonor and crime, that it demoralizes everybody that touches it, from its source to where it ends.

When such strong tributes as these can be had to the wonderful merits of Pink Pills, it is little wonder that they are the favorite remedy with all classes.

These Pills are manufactured by the Dr. Williams' Medicine Company, of Brockville, Ont., and Schenectady, N.Y., and sold in boxes (never in loose form) by the dozen or hundred, and the public are cautioned against numerous imitations.

CHAMBRE DE COMMERCE.

The Exportation of Timber and Subsidizing of Steamships to France.

The Chambre de Commerce met at their rooms yesterday afternoon. Those present were J. D. Rolland, J. Montreuil, Bourdeau, J. Contant, J. Haynes, G. Elvira, A. Racine, P. D. Shallow, A. Aumand, L. E. Morin, G. Perrault, C. Catell, Hon. J. Tourville, J. G. Desmarcay, Capt. Goulet, C. Desmarcay, and G. Halsey.

A long report on furs was presented. It stated that it would be well for Canada to announce to the world her possibilities in the fur trade. The report was referred to the committee on these matters.

Capt. Goulet called the attention of the board to the fact that the Tait Co. had being now the property of the Government, local navigation was left with only one dry dock, namely, Contant's.

MUCH LIKE A MIRACLE.

ASTATEMENT FROM A WELL-KNOWN BERLIN MERCHANT.

How His Daughter Was Restored From the Terrors of St. Vitus Dance—Her Case One of the Worst Ever Known—Has Fully Recovered Her Health.

(From the Berlin News.)

The readers of the News have been made familiar with the virtue of Dr. Williams' Pink Pills for Pale People through the articles appearing from time to time in these columns, and while the druggists say that many in this vicinity have received undoubted benefit from their use, it is only recently that we have heard of a cure in Berlin of such importance as to take rank among the most remarkable yet published. There is hardly a man or woman in the town of Berlin, or the County of Waterloo, who does not know Mr. Martin Simpson, issuer of marriage licenses and general merchant, King Street.

Anything said by Mr. Simpson will be implicitly relied upon. A day or two ago we had a talk with him in reference to his fourteen year old daughter Helen, who had for two years been a great sufferer from St. Vitus dance. He tells us that it was the worst case he ever saw. She did not sleep for whole nights and was an intense sufferer. She was totally helpless and could neither eat nor drink unless administered to her by her parents. The best medical attendance was had, but all to no avail. She kept getting worse and worse, and finally, when in the paroxysms, commenced to froth at the mouth, and her parents believed she was going out for her life. Though unable to walk for about three months she would in her spells have fits, making her jump high above her couch. While in this condition, the worse case ever seen in this place, Mr. Simpson, as a last resort, purchased some Pink Pills and gave them to his suffering and afflicted daughter. He assures us that in thirty hours she found some relief. In a week the "dances" was entirely stopped and she was able to sleep, and was rapidly regaining her former strength.

Some months after the use of the Pink Pills was discontinued she again had touches of disease, but a few doses of the pills stopped it, and for the last eight months has been entirely free from the terrible malady from which no one who knew the circumstances, expected she would recover, and her parents, as may be expected, are warm in their praises of the wonderful remedy which worked such great results. These facts are known to all who are acquainted with the family and further comments are wholly unnecessary.

When such strong tributes as these can be had to the wonderful merits of Pink Pills, it is little wonder that they are the favorite remedy with all classes. They are an unfailing specific for locomotor ataxia, partial paralysis St. Vitus dance, sciatica, neuralgia, rheumatism, nervous headache, after effects of a grippé, palpitation of the heart, nervous prostration, all diseases depending upon vitiated humors in the blood, such as scrofula, chronic erysipelas, etc. They are also a specific for troubles peculiar to females, suppressions, irregularities, and all forms of weakness. In men they effect a radical cure in all cases arising from mental worry, overwork, or excesses of any nature.

These Pills are manufactured by the Dr. Williams' Medicine Company, of Brockville, Ont., and Schenectady, N.Y., and sold in boxes (never in loose form) by the dozen or hundred, and the public are cautioned against numerous imitations.

In the illustrated portion of the House-Hunters' edition, an error occurred in reference to the residence on 1048 Dorchester street, which reads—"free of taxes."—should be with taxes.

SEEDING COMMENCED.

Great Need of Rain in the American Northwest—Short Crop Predicted.

Minneapolis, Minn., March 29.—Minneapolis grain and elevator men are becoming somewhat nervous over the crop situation in the Northwest. Seeding is in full blast in Minnesota and the Dakotas, but the grain is being literally sown in the dust. Such a dry condition of the soil has never before been known at this time of the year in this region. It is the general opinion that unless copious rains fall soon, there will be a great shortage of grain crop in these States.

WELL KNOWN HERE.

The Many Friends of Mr. C. H. Kent in Montreal Make Enquiries.

Montreal, March 30.—Much interest is being taken in this city over the published reports of the recovery from a supposed fatal attack of Bright's disease of Mr. G. H. Kent of Ottawa. Mr. Kent is well known here having been employed for many years at the works of the British North American Bank Note Printing Company previous to their removal to Ottawa. The fact of his having been restored to health through the medium of Dodd's Kidney Pills has stimulated enquiry into the merits of the remedy and their enquiries are resulting in the daily bringing to light of similar cases of people who have made almost equally startling recoveries through the same means.

THE CABINET STRIKE OFF FOR THE PRESENT.

Sir Charles Hibbert Tupper is reported to have signified his willingness to remain with the water-logged Government ship a little longer, provided that it steers its course by his chart. On this chart Sir Hibbert has a shoal indicated "Manitoba School Question, highly dangerous," and Captain Bowell has promised to obey the orders of his lieutenant and give it a wide berth.

His attempt now to recover the lost vantage ground by extracting pledges from the Premier that Parliament shall not be asked to deal with this question will fail. Parliament is superior to understandings of this sort, and it will proceed to force the Government to the unequivocal declaration of its intentions.

SHOE OPERATIVES WAGES IN ENGLAND AND CANADA.

The Gazette cannot help but admire the good feeling existing between the English shoe manufacturers and their employees, who are out on strike because the bosses refused to restrict the output of their machines.

"Alderman Leonard also informed his women workers that although a considerable proportion had averaged 22s 6d per week in wages for a whole year, the firm would advance them half their average earnings every week during the strike, because they had been thrown out of work through no fault of their own, the firm trusting to their honesty to repay it when work was resumed."

That is indeed remarkable. As the Gazette rightly remarks, thirty years of protection, of unjust discrimination in favor of greedy monopolists, has developed a very different feeling between the employer and employee in the United States. In the neighboring Republic the poor smart under a sense of injustice, and has fits of violence, of a thirst for vengeance against those whom the favor of the government has made powerful to oppress them.

The crisis passed and the Hon. J. J. Curran has failed again to score. While there waited just outside the Department of Justice, on the very doormat, so to speak, a gentleman so learned in the law and sitting for so safe a constituency, there surely need have been, on the part of what may have remained of the Government after Sir Hibbert Tupper's retirement, no anxiety lest Sir Hibbert should not be induced to reconsider his resignation.

that the average rate for men and women employed in the shoe business in Canada in 1891 was only 19c, from which it is safe to conclude that the wages paid to the women alone did not exceed two-thirds of the earnings of their fellow workers in London. Yet the Canadian shoe industry enjoys a protection of 25 per cent.

THE FINANCIAL SITUATION.

The chief local interest centres on the forthcoming annual statements and meetings of the Canadian Pacific Railway and Montreal Gas Companies. The annual meeting of the first named company will be held next Wednesday and copies of the annual report will then be published. It is quite generally conceded now that the statement will give full and satisfactory reasons to the shareholders for the temporary withholding of the dividend on the ordinary stock, and in anticipation of this the stock of the company has been much firmer all week.

The Montreal Gas dividend of five per cent. for the past half year, making ten per cent. for the year, is about what was expected. The figures for the year's working shows a net profit as stated by the Herald on Thursday, of a little over $360,000; the actual figures are about $300,500. This in the face of the fact that prices of gas were "cut" for a large portion of the year and that some very large amounts, bad debts, depreciation, &c., have been written off, is considered a remarkably good showing, and as a consequence, prices advanced to a higher level than they have touched for about two years.

The British Board of Trade returns relating to the trade between the United Kingdom and Canada for January and February, are published in the Canadian Gazette, and are worthy of more than passing notice. The showing is a decidedly poor one, even making full allowance for the effects of the severe weather last month. The imports from Great Britain to Canada during February were $279,631 compared with $216,484 in February, 1894, a decrease of $63,147, equal to 29.2 per cent. For January and February, the total imports were $596,287, as against $597,545 for the corresponding two months a year ago, a reduction of $1,258, or 0.21 per cent. The exports from Canada to the United Kingdom in February amounted to $25,266 as against $49,457 in February last year, a decrease of no less than $24,191, or 49.10 per cent., nearly one-half. For the first two months of this year the total exports were $103,393, as compared with $222,508 for the first two months of last year, a decrease of $119,115, equal to 53.53 per cent. These figures are full of significance. Coming as they do after a series of decidedly unfavorable bank statements, they reflect with added force the real condition of Canada's trade. A decline of over fifty per cent. in exports from Canada for the two months and nearly eleven per cent. in imports does not say much for the benefits of a protective tariff.

The condition of affairs in the United States now shows decided signs of improvement. The stock markets are firm at a higher range of values, the coal companies are settling their difficulties, the reorganization of broken down railroads is progressing, silver has advanced several cents an ounce, the tariff question has been settled for some time to come, there is no danger now of "wildcat" currency legislation this year at any rate, cotton is steadily advancing, and in fact nearly everything points to a more prosperous period than has been experienced for several years. It would indeed be gratifying if the same could be said of Canada. But although a session of Parliament has been called and the uncertainty that has helped to stagnate trade has been temporarily removed, no lasting or extensive revival can be looked for until a radical change in the fiscal policy of the country has been brought about. The local money markets are still easy, and bankers find it difficult to secure safe investment for a large part of their surplus funds. Call loans may be obtained at 3-1/2 to 4 per cent., and good commercial paper has been discounted at about 6 to 6-1/2 per cent. The Montreal Clearing House returns for the past week show the heaviest falling off in clearings as compared with a year ago noted for some time, no less than $921,155. This is a decrease of no less than $1,955,137 as compared with the corresponding week of 1893. This reflects in a marked manner the dullness and lack of demand for money that at present prevails in local financial circles.

The Younger Tupper is in the enjoyment of an experience somewhat similar to that of a man who has been reported dead and who has been accordingly enabled to read obituary estimates of his own merits. He now knows what his friends think of him. The parallel ceases here, because it is the custom to say nothing but good of a dead friend, while Sir Hibbert Tupper's sulking has given him a better chance than he could have had in any other way to learn just how nicely his political yoke-fellows appreciated his weaknesses. This appreciation has been expressed in such nervous Saxon as would not have been employed if this gifted young gentleman had been gathered to his fathers.

The crisis passed and the Hon. J. J. Curran has failed again to score. While there waited just outside the Department of Justice, on the very doormat, so to speak, a gentleman so learned in the law and sitting for so safe a constituency, there surely need have been, on the part of what may have remained of the Government after Sir Hibbert Tupper's retirement, no anxiety lest Sir Hibbert should not be induced to reconsider his resignation. Upon the showing of Mr. Curran's organ, he is well qualified for the leadership of the department which he has for some time adorned in another and most clearly defined capacity. Upon the same showing, his reelection by his constituents would be a certainty. It might have been held, moreover, that his elevation would afford the commercial interests of the Metropolis and therefore of the country at large, an authoritative representation in the Cabinet of business men. It seems inexplicable, therefore, that his peculiar claims should have been overlooked and if it should happen that the announcement of Sir Hibbert Tupper's return to the fold be not substantiated, the Government should look to its opportunity.

Now that Sir Charles Hibbert Tupper has made the Government right-about-face on the school question, the country will await with interest the announcements that Mr. Ouimet has resigned and that Mr. Angers has chopped off his right hand.

It will be interesting to note what comments the Miner and the Courier du Canada will make on the downfall of the Ouimet policy of the Ottawa Government.

The Art Gallery. The spring exhibition is drawing to its close; a good attendance continued to manifest interest, and the sales have been fairly good. Among the artists who have sold pictures are: Knowles, O'Brien, Raphael, Lyonnet, Brynner, Miss Livingstone, Bell-Smith, and others. A third or fourth visit to the gallery discovers a number of small pictures which are easily overlooked on a first visit, but are worthy of attention; one of these, is No. 71, "Return of the Fisher Girls," by Knowles.

While it is easy to criticize, from a technical point of view, Macmillan's large canvas, "The Death of Abel," it is not commonplace in theme or in treatment; it has been suggested by someone that as Abel's was the first death in the world Cain's face in the picture should show surprise or curiosity at the mystery. Be this as it may, deep concern would follow and this feeling is depicted. The treatment of the background is good; a wide cold sky, a primitive landscape, with no other sign of life than a far off deserted flock of sheep. The picture shows an artistic spirit, but the artist needs to study long at the tremendously difficult letter of art. The exhibition closes at six o'clock on Saturday.

A RAILWAY QUESTION.

GENERAL MANAGER MITCHELL OF THE D. C. RY. ON THE A. AND L. S. RY.

The South Shore Well Provided for in the Matter of Railways.

(Special to the Herald.)

Drummondville, Que., March 29.—Mr. W. Mitchell, general manager of the Drummond County railway, was interviewed by your correspondent in regard to certain statements made by Senator Thibault, president of the Atlantic and Lake Superior railway in an interview published in the Herald of March 26th, under the heading of "The railway will go on."

"I have seen the article in The Herald you refer to," said Mr. Mitchell. "I do not know of one mile of road that the proposed Atlantic and Lake Superior railway owns as yet from Chaudiere to Parry Sound."

"The Atlantic and Lake Superior promoters are well aware that the Drummond County railway traverses that section of country between the St. Lawrence and the Grand Trunk railways, on the south shore, where the article in question infers there is no railroad. I might add that only 45 miles remain to be built by the Drummond County railway from the Deschene river, and it is the intention of this company to commence construction early this spring, and when completed connect with the Grand Trunk and Intercolonial railway systems at Chaudiere, thereby forming a through line on the south shore of the St. Lawrence, connecting at St. Hyacinthe with the G. T. R., C. P. R. and United Counties railways for Montreal, St. Johns and New England points."

"Will this Atlantic and Lake Superior railway parallel any portion of your road, Mr. Mitchell?"

"Yes, several miles."

"Does the location of the proposed Atlantic and Lake Superior railway run through and open up any new country for settlement?"

"No, comparatively little, as you will see the proposed line of the A. and L. S. railway follows the south shore of the St. Lawrence, as stated by Mr. Thibault. How many miles of new track does your company own and operate?"

"Ninety-seven miles."

"Are you satisfied with the traffic of the new extension of your line?"

"Yes, our directors at our last annual meeting were perfectly satisfied with the year's business, and since that time traffic has continually increased. The first six months of the present fiscal year shows an increase in net earnings of over 25 per cent, and I am confident our net report will show an increase over our last year's net earnings of over one hundred per cent."

"Does your road open up any new territory for settlement?"

"Yes, some 75 miles of forest land, which is good for colonization purposes." "Have there been many settlers located on that part of your new line already built?"

"Yes, many settlements have been opened up, and land owners are selling lands every day to intending settlers."

A HUMAN MONSTROSITY.

Chatelle, the Murderer, Lost to All Sense of Moral Responsibility.

Stratford, Ont., March 29.—Dr. J. M. Danmore, jail surgeon, is of the decided opinion from observations made since Chatelle was lodged here that his actions in court yesterday were only feigned insanity. Yesterday was the first occasion on which he had given any indication of his being mentally unbalanced and to-day he behaved quite rationally, as he has since confinement. Dr. Danmore is also of the opinion that Chatelle is devoid of all natural affection and feels no remorse for his crime and that his moral sensibilities have grown so blunted that it may be said he has no morals but is a human monstrosity.

WANTED JUSTICE.

ALD. LECLERC MAKES SPEECHES ON THE EARLY CLOSING BY-LAW.

Dispute Over Committee Appropriations—Expense of the Civic Hospital.

Last night there was a long and lively meeting of the City Council.

The first subject which was brought up for discussion was the joint report of the Finance and Health Committees recommending the acceptance of the offers made by the Notre Dame and General Hospital to take charge of the Civic Hospital.

Ald. Prefontaine objected to the adoption of the report. It was not on the orders of the day, and he did not want to vote blindly for a motion involving the annual expenditures of about $14,000. Let it be brought up at next meeting.

Ald. Wilson Smith thought it was a pity not to pass the motion at once. There was nothing on the orders of the day half so important as the motion.

Ald. Savignac, seconded by Ald. McBride, proposed that the report be read and made the first order of the day at the next meeting of the Council. This was carried.

The report of the Finance Committee sending back the appropriations to the committees to be cut down, as indicated in the report of the meeting of the Finance Committee, was proposed for adoption by Ald. Savignac, seconded by Ald. McBride.

Ald. Prefontaine advocated that the report be sent back to the Finance Committee.

Ald. Wilson Smith said that the city was really coming face to face with an increase of taxation. The interest paid at present by the city was enormous; and yet the Mayor and several aldermen had been abused for having opposed a further increase of the borrowing power. The only course which the Finance Committee had before it was that which it had adopted.

Ald. Kennedy advised the Finance Committee to take the bull by the horns and give to each committee what it thought would be enough to pull it through the year. There seemed to be a spirit of extravagance amongst certain aldermen, who wanted to spend as much money as possible without caring where the money was to come from.

Ald. Marsolais, seconded by Ald. Beausoleil, moved that the report be sent back to the Finance Committee.

Ald. Wilson Smith declared that he would endeavor to stop all supplies to committees until the appropriations had been legally voted by the Council. He could not understand why it was that certain members of the Council had opposed the voting of the interim appropriations.

The motion was adopted by 14 to 6. The $4,000 required by the Water Department for coals at the lower level pumping station was voted as being urgent, after Ald. Kennedy had stated that there was some strange system of "you scratch my back and I'll scratch yours" between the Health and the Water Committees.

Ald. Savignac rose to speak on a question of privilege.

Ald. Beausoleil objected to his being heard; and Ald. Leclerc chided Ald. Beausoleil for objecting. As it requires the unanimous consent of the Council to hear a member on a question of privilege, Ald. Savignac sat down.

The second reading of the proposed early-closing by-law was moved by Ald. Savignac and seconded by Ald. Marsolais.

Ald. Leclerc, seconded by Ald. Prefontaine, moved in amendment that the by-law be not read a second time until the municipalities of St. Louis de Mile End, Maisonneuve and Delorimier had been heard from as to their willingness to pass a similar by-law.

Ald. Kennedy—"Why not add St. Cenegeonde and St. Henri?"

Ald. Leclerc made a long characteristic speech in which he demanded that "justice should be done," and which kept the aldermen in roars of laughter during its delivery.

Ald. Reneault, who is Ald. Leclerc's colleague in the representation of St. Jean Baptiste Ward, alluded to the latter's rambling speech as calculated to turn the proceedings of the Council into a farcical comedy. Ald. Leclerc had, he said, been talking in order to try to show several of his voters whom he had brought along with him into the Council Chamber what a fine orator he was. It was simply posing, (loud applause in the galleries.)

The Mayor called the occupants of the gallery to order. If they continued to cheer they would have to be ejected at 10 o'clock.

The vote was taken, and it was as follows:

For Ald. Leclerc's motion—Lefebvre,

Turner, Jacques, Reneault, Hurtubise, Savignac, Brunet, Dupre, Frenoveau, Beausoleil, Marsolais, Costigan—12.

Against—Groshe, Nolan, Prefontaine, Leclerc, Smith, McBride, Farrell, Kennedy, Penny—9.

Ald. Nolan moved that St. Henri and Ste. Cenegeonde should be asked what their intentions were in this respect. He objected that any discrimination should be made in favor of the liquor trade as to early closing.

Ald. Jacques said that both St. Henri and Ste. Cenegeonde were in favor of passing an early closing by-law, and would pass one as soon as Montreal did.

The motion was defeated on the same vote as before.

Ald. Leclerc, seconded by Ald. McBride, moved that the second reading be postponed for six months. The former made another long and loud speech in which he several times pleaded for "justice."

Ald. Smith objected to the by-law because it was ridiculously drafted and was ultra vires; and Ald. Penny denounced it because it would be against the interests of St. Lawrence Ward.

Ald. Leclerc rose again and, among other things, demanded, "Que justice soit faite."

"That's right, Peter, ask for justice," shouted an encore.

The motion was rejected by 13 to 8. Several of the aldermen seemed to be getting weary, and one, Ald. Beausoleil, drew the Mayor's attention to the fact that according to the rules no member should be allowed to speak more than once on an amendment.

Mayor Villeneuve—"That rule has been pretty well observed. It has only been broken by Ald. Leclerc." (Hisses in the gallery.)

The motion was rejected by 12 to 9.

An adjournment was moved and lost by 12 to 9.

The motion to read the by-law a second time was adopted by 13 to 8.

Ald. Nolan, seconded by Ald. Penny, moved that the Council should resolve itself into a Committee of the Whole, and consider the second reading of the by-law clause by clause.

Ald. Beausoleil pointed out that the by-law had been read a second time, but Ald. Leclerc maintained that it had not been. The Mayor decided that it was.

Ald. Leclerc got on his legs again, but was called to order.

Ald. Beausoleil said that Ald. Nolan's motion was clearly part of a pre-arranged plan to obstruct the passage of the by-law. It would not be necessary for the Council to go into a Committee of the Whole and discuss the by-law clause by clause until it had passed its second reading.

A motion to adjourn was adopted, and this put an end to further discussion.

BREVITIES.

The visiting Governors to the Montreal General Hospital for the week commencing Monday, the 1st April, are: Messrs. Chas. Cassils, Robert Hampson, Robert Cowan, Alex. Macpherson.

An enterprising firm is that which represents the New York Belting and Packing Co. in this city. Messrs. Wand and Ganthier, who are the sole agents for the Province of Quebec, are well-known to the business men of Montreal as wide-awake progressive people, who push the interests of the manufacturers they represent after a nineteenth century fashion. Fire Department supplies and machinists' fittings are among the specialties for which they have made a reputation. The commerce of the Province would be none the worse for a few more of such firms as this.

Winnipeg Bonds Sold.

Winnipeg, March 29.—Winnipeg's four per cent. bonds, to run thirty years, have been purchased by a Montreal firm for $90,76, an amount largely in excess of what the city had anticipated.

The libel suit brought by City Engineer Rattan against the Tribune newspaper, which was alleged to have made statements detrimental to his reputation resulted in a verdict of $400 damages.

Probably the best known piece on the French operatic stage is "La Fille de Mme. Argot," by Chas. Lecocq. At one time and for many successive years, it was the most popular opera on the stage and a standard attraction put forth by all companies with any pretensions to something higher than the light operatic productions. The opera is to be presented for the first time this season at the Opera Francaise this evening. Melles St. Laurent and Auger and MM. Boon and Fetis will appear in the leading roles, which are all first class ones. The scene is laid in Paris, under the Government of the Directorate, and the story is interesting, while the costumes are rich and picturesque. The company is rehearsing for next week Rossini's "Barbier de Seville" and Bazin's "Voyage en Chine." This afternoon at the matinee, Mme. Bout will make her farewell appearance in "Mignon."

Cunard Steamship Company.

Liverpool, March 29.—At the annual meeting of the Cunard Steamship Co. today, Chairman Burns presided. He said that the reason no dividend of the company was passed this year was the acute depression in the shipping business, which especially affected the Atlantic lines. The outward traffic alone of all the trans-Atlantic lines during the past year, he added, showed a reduction of $1,250,000 as compared with 1893. Nevertheless, the Cunard Company held its own and the policy of building the Campania and the Lucania had been a singular success. The revenue from the saloon cabins had increased $34,000.

VETERINARY SCIENCE.

The proceedings yesterday afternoon at the convocation of the Faculty of Comparative Medicine and Veterinary Science in the William Molson Hall were very tame. The students were conspicuous by their absence, there was no singing, no questioning as to the condition of the ship, but all was quiet and decorous. There was little speaking, and the entire convocation lasted little over an hour and a quarter, beginning at 3.15.

The procession of the Faculty was led by J. W. Brakenridge, Secretary of the University, and following him were: Sir Donald A. Smith, Chancellor; Sir J. W. Dawson, Vice-Chancellor; Professor Johnson, Acting Principal; J. H. B. Molson, J. C. McDonald, Samuel Finley, C. W. Fleet, Governors; Dr. Duncan McEachran, Dean of the Faculty; Dr. Charles McEachran, Dr. Girdwood, Professor J. Clark Murray, Professor Penhallow, Professor Adami, Professor Bovey, Dean of the Faculty of Applied Science, Dr. Miller, Dr. Parker, Havenhill, Mass.; Dr. Gadston, Philadelphia; Dr. Morrow. The graduating class brought up the rear. The Hon. Louis Beaubien was expected, but did not turn up.

The proceedings opened with prayer, conducted by Professor Murray. Dean McEachran read the report of the Faculty for the session. There were 49 students registered, of whom 27 were from Canada, 16 from the United States, and one from England. The prizes were presented to the successful students as already published in the Herald, and the ceremony of "capping" was performed by Acting-Principal Johnson. Morrison. Dr. C. H. Zink read the valedictory address, which was a clever affair.

Dean McEachran delivered an address of leave-taking to the graduates on behalf of the Faculty. He referred to the progress of veterinary science, the necessity for a longer course of study, and the glory of their profession. The students had been taught by Professor Wesley Mills to think of animals as intelligent, sensitive, and reasoning creatures, and to deal with them as such. In concluding his remarks Dr. McEachran said: "Owing to important changes that have been made in the curriculum of the Medical College, more especially the extension of the session, this Faculty is under the necessity of endeavoring to provide for special lectures and special demonstrations for its own students, and much inconvenience has been experienced in our efforts to take advantage of the medical classes for veterinary students, especially for work of practical nature in the Pharmacy and Clinics. It is to be hoped that by some means or other the Faculty will be enabled to carry out these improvements which have long been felt to be desirable, but circumstances now force them upon us as a necessity. I very much regret that through severe illness we are deprived of the valuable assistance of Professor Baker and of one of our oldest graduates and examiners, Drs. Bryden. I have pleasure in referring to the addition of two of our former graduates, Drs. Parker and Miller, to the examining board. I take this opportunity in the name of the Faculty of thanking Dr. Gadsden and the other members of the Board of Examiners for their kindness in coming long distances to assist us. I cannot close these remarks without referring with regret to a circumstance which, viewed in another light, must be a compliment to the University to have other great teaching bodies come to us for teachers of high standing, and if the New York Medical College succeeds in inducing Professor Mills to sever his connection with us, in the sense referred to we must feel proud. I think, however, that in losing Prof. Mills we lose a scholarly man—a man of high moral standard. A man who has through his writings done much to spread the fame of McGill. His text books on Physiology and Comparative Physiology are in use in all the best English speaking medical and veterinary colleges. Certainly this faculty will suffer the loss of a most competent, energetic and gifted colleague and you, undergraduates, a sincere friend and painstaking teacher. Let us hope that some steps will be taken to prevent McGill losing her Osiers and Mills. However, gentlemen, I am sure that whether he is taken from us or not, the graduates and undergraduates of this Faculty will ever hold his memory dear." (Applause.)

Sir Donald Smith said that however young or small the Faculty was, it was not unimportant, and he hoped to see it on a more substantial footing in future. He spoke of the need for veterinary knowledge in a country which depended so much on agriculture as Canada, and had no doubt the graduates would do credit to the University and to the country.

Sir William Dawson believed that veterinary science would grow with the growth of the agriculture, interests of the country. He took the opportunity to impress on the new 'twigs' that an important function they could and should perform was the improving of live stock, in which direction they could do a great deal.

Professor Johnson added a few remarks and the convocation closed by Professor Murray pronouncing the Benediction. Banquet to the Hon. J. C. Patterson. A brilliant affair was the banquet at the Windsor Hotel Thursday night, given to the Hon. J. C. Patterson, all branches of the militia services being present.

The health of the Honorable Minister of Militia was drunk in the famous vintage of 1889 of G. H. Munn & Co.'s "Extra Dry" Champagne, which was specially chosen for the occasion.

Death of John Howard. John Howard, one of the best known and wealthiest citizens of Grenville, died at his home on Thursday evening, after a brief illness. Mr. Howard was a general merchant, and had lived in Grenville for many years. Mr. Howard was widely known and much esteemed in Montreal. He was the father of J. H. Howard, grocer, of Roy Street, and the brother of Mrs. Joseph Carroll, of this city.

EARTH'S BEST SPRING MEDICINE.

Nervousness and nervous debility are almost invariably the results of some drain upon the vital forces. The results that follow, when nervous troubles are allowed to run unchecked and unsoothed, are as terrible and appalling. Sleeplessness, mental depression, loss of spirits and energy, dullness of brain and eye, shrinking from society, defective memory and insanity, make life a continued agony.

Medical science has bestowed upon nervous sufferers a great blessing and a perfect cure. It is known to the world as Paine's Celery Compound, Professor Phelps' great discovery for nervous diseases.

JESUITISM.

Address by the Rev. W. P. Graham in the Orange Hall.

Jesuitism was denounced in strong and emphatic language last night by the Rev. W. P. Graham, of Grace Baptist Church, at a meeting in the Orange Hall, St. James Street. There was a very large attendance, and David Baddley, W. M. of Boyne L.O.L., presided.

Mr. Graham, in opening his lecture, regretted there were not more meetings of that sort to consolidate their forces, as the forces of the Roman Catholic Church were. The main body of the lecture was that given before the Ministerial Association on Monday. The attitude of Jesuitism towards education, he said, was subversive of our institutions, and it was their constant work to bring all education under the direct control of the Pope. Their interference with educational matters here had more than once proved the fact. Schools under Rome never gave instruction enough to fit the population for the responsibilities and duties of free government. It was not the people of Manitoba who wanted separate schools, but the hierarchy in Quebec who influenced the Government so much that it was afraid of losing the next election. A conflict was inevitable and must continue until these disloyal ecclesiastics were expelled from the country. (Cheers.)

"The people must agitate for three things; liberty of conscience or equal rights for all, the abolition of exemption on church property and a national system of education. Our streets are crowded with Jesuits and nuns and students advertising the Roman Catholic Church with all their paraphernalia, and priests with their petticoats (laughter), and on St. Patrick's Day they can walk with green ribbon and listen to an Obletate father—take away the O and say Obletate like a calf—denouncing Protestantism. But we cannot walk on the fourth of July without being stoned. If one is not to be allowed to do as one pleases, why are we allowed to do as we please? Then our beautiful City Council gives the nuns leave to peddle fancy work from door to door without a license. There should be no exemption of taxation on church property. The public schools should not teach religion. Many good teachers do not believe things they are asked to teach, and I say that it should be left to religious people to teach religion in the home or the Sunday School. It is not the business of the State to teach religion, but that of the church. Let us have good national and secular schools." (Applause.)

Pastor County Master Mackay moved a vote of thanks to the speaker, and was glad to see there was one minister who was not of the jelly-fish order, who had the courage of his convictions, said what he meant, and meant what he said. A. G. Ellis, in seconding the vote, spoke of a scheme to make Orangemen of all the women by opening a lady's lodge.

In acknowledging the vote, which was passed with much heartiness, Mr. Graham urged on all present to oppose the enemy by every means till they had established the militia services being present.

ORGANIZATION OF FARMERS. A FEATURE OF THE DAY.

James Rogers Speaks Earnestly.

The development of Farmers' Institutes and other means of education on successful practical farming has proven beyond a doubt that the present day farmer requires to be a student of his work. The most successful ones are not as a rule, those who do the greatest amount of manual labor but they are found ranking first as prize-winners on all agricultural products. James Rogers, a resident of Thosburg, Oxford County, Ont., for 45 years, has taken numerous first prizes during the year. A successful, reliable man, his statement will be of interest to many.

"I have suffered for seven or eight years with itching piles; the torture and agony I cannot here find words to describe. Night after night was kept awake with painful itching. I tried all the physicians and every known remedy all to no account, not even relief. In talking over my curious trouble with Mr. Charles Thomson, our well-known druggist, he recommended Chase's Ointment. To my wonder and surprise I got relief from the second application. I firmly believe one box is sufficient to cure any case of itching piles, no matter of how long duration. I would not be without it ten times its cost. I volunteered this testimony and my consent for the manufacturers of Chase's Ointment to use it as they wish, it is that like sufferers may know they can be cured."

LIBERAL PLATFORM ADOPTED BY THE NATIONAL LIBERAL CONVENTION, OTTAWA, JUNE, 1893.

We, the Liberal party of Canada, in convention assembled, declare:

1.—FREE TRADE—REDUCED TAXATION

That the customs tariffs of the Dominion should be based, not as it is now, upon the protective principle, but upon the requirements of the public service; That the existing tariff, founded upon an unsound principle, and as such has been by the Government, as a corrupting agency whereunto it to keep themselves in office, has developed monopolies, trusts and combinations; That it has decreased the value of farm and other landed property; That it has oppressed the masses to the enrichment of a few; That it has checked immigration; That it has caused great loss of population; That it has impeded commerce; That it has discriminated against Great Britain.

In these and many other ways it has occasioned great public and private injury, all of which evils must continue to grow in intensity as long as the present tariff system remains in force. That the highest interests of Canada demand a removal of this obstacle to our country's progress, by the adoption of a sound fiscal policy, which while not doing injustice to any class, will promote domestic and foreign trade, and hasten the return of prosperity to our people; That to that end the tariff should be reduced to the needs of freest, economical and efficient government;

That it should be so adjusted as to make free, or to bear as lightly as possible upon, the necessities of life, and should be so arranged as to promote free trade with the whole world, more particularly with Great Britain and the United States.

We believe that the results of the protective system have grievously disappointed thousands of persons who honestly supported it, and that, the country, in the light of experience, is now prepared to declare for a sound fiscal policy. The issue between the two political parties on this question is now clearly defined.

The Government themselves admit the failure of their fiscal policy, and now profess their willingness to make some changes; but they say that such changes must be based only on the principle of protection.

We denounce the principle of protection as radically unsound, and unjust to the masses of the people, and we declare our conviction that any tariff changes based on that principle must fail to afford any substantial relief from the burdens under which the country labors.

This issue we unhesitatingly accept, and upon it we await with the fullest confidence the verdict of the electors of Canada.

2.—ENLARGED MARKETS—RECIPROCIETY

That, having regard to the prosperity of Canada and the United States as adjoining countries, with many mutual interests, it is desirable that there should be the most friendly relations and broad liberal intercourse between them;

That the period of the old reciprocity treaty was one of marked prosperity to the British North American colonies;

That the pretext under which the Government appealed to the country in 1891 respecting negotiation for a treaty with the United States was misleading and dishonest and intended to deceive the electorate; That no sincere effort has been made by them to obtain a treaty, but that, on the contrary, it is manifest that the present Government, controlled as they are by monopolies and combines, are not desirous of securing such a treaty;

That the first step towards obtaining the end in view is to place a party in power who are sincerely desirous of promoting a treaty on terms consonant to both countries;

That a fair and liberal reciprocity treaty would develop the great natural resources of Canada, would enormously increase the trade and commerce between the two countries, would tend to encourage friendly relations between the two peoples, would remove many causes which have in the past provoked irritation and trouble to the Governments of both countries, and would promote friendly relations between the Empire and the Republic which afford the best guarantee for peace and prosperity;

That the Liberal party is prepared to enter into negotiations with a view to obtaining such a treaty, including a well-considered list of manufactured articles, and we are satisfied that any treaty so arranged will receive the assent of Her Majesty's Government, without whose approval no treaty can be made.

3.—PURGE OF ADMINISTRATION—CONDENSED CORRUPTION.

That the Convention deprecates the gross corruption in the management and expenditure of public moneys which for years past has existed under the rule of the Conservative party, and the revelations of which by the different parliamentary committees of inquiry, have brought disgrace upon the fair name of Canada.

The Government, which profited politically by these expenditures of public moneys of which the people have been defrauded, and which nevertheless have never punished the guilty parties, must be held responsible for the wrongdoing. We arraign the Government for retaining in office a Minister for election purposes from the funds of a railway company, which, while paying the political contribution to him, a member of the Government, with one hand, was receiving Government subsidies with the other.

The conduct of the Minister and the approval of his colleagues after the proof became known to them are calculated to degrade Canada in the estimation of the world and deserve the severe condemnation of the people.

4.—DEMAND STRICTEST ECONOMY—DECREASED EXPENDITURE.

We cannot but view with alarm the large increase of the public debt and of the controllable annual expenditure of the Dominion and the consequent undue taxation of the people under the Governments that have been continuously in power since 1878, and we demand the strictest economy in the administration of the government of the country.

5.—FOR RESPONSIBLE GOVERNMENT—INDEPENDENCE OF PARLIAMENT.

That the Convention regrets that by the action of Ministers and their supporters in Parliament in one case in which serious charges were made against a Minister of the Crown, investigation was altogether refused, while in another case the charges preferred were altered and then referred to a commission appointed upon the advice of the Ministry, contrary to the well settled practice of Parliament; and this Convention affirms:

That it is the ancient and undoubted right of the House of Commons to inquire into all matters of public expenditure, and into all charges of misconduct in office against Ministers of the Crown, and the reference of such matters to royal commissions created upon the advice of the accused is at variance with the due responsibility of Ministers to the House of Commons, and tends to weaken the authority of the House over the Executive Government, and this Convention affirms that the powers of the people's representatives in this regard should on all fitting occasions be upheld.

6.—LAND FOR THE SETTLER—NOT FOR THE SPECULATOR.

That in the opinion of this Convention the sales of public lands of the Dominion should be to actual settlers only, and not to speculators, upon reasonable terms of settlement, and in such areas as can be reasonably occupied and cultivated by the settler.

7.—OPPOSE THE DOMINION FRANCHISE ACT—FOR THE PROVINCIAL FRANCHISE.

That the Franchise Act since its introduction has cost the Dominion Treasury over a million of dollars, besides entailing a heavy expenditure to both political parties;

That each revision involves an additional expenditure of a further quarter of a million;

That this expenditure has prevented an annual revision, as originally intended, in the absence of which young voters entitled to the franchise have, in numerous instances, been prevented from exercising their natural rights;

That it has failed to secure uniformity, which was the principal reason assigned for its introduction;

That it has produced gross abuses by partisan revising barristers appointed by the Government of the day;

That its provisions are less liberal than those already existing in many Provinces of the Dominion, and that in the opinion of this Convention the Act should be repealed, and we should revert to the Provincial franchise;

8.—AGAINST THE GERRYMANDER—COUNT BOUNDARIES SHOULD BE PRESERVED.

That by the Gerry-mander Acts, the electoral divisions for the return of members to the House of Commons have been so made as to prevent a fair expression of the opinion of the country at the general elections, and to secure to the party now in power a strength out of all proportion greater to the number of electors supporting them would warrant. To put an end to this abuse, to make the House of Commons a fair exponent of public opinion, and to preserve the historic continuity of counties, it is desirable that, in the formation of electoral divisions, county boundaries should be preserved, and that in no case parts of different counties should be put in one electoral division.

9.—THE SENATE DEFECTIVE—AMEND THE CONSTITUTION.

The present constitution of the Senate is inconsistent with the Federal principles in our system of government, and is in other respects defective, as it makes the Senate independent of the people and uncontrolled by the public opinion of

COMPOUND

No physician, no School of Medicine, no Scientific Research or Remedy, ever has or can know a more pressing or cry than this: "Health for the Mother Sex." Posterity, the Women of to-day—all creation, in fact—join in a demand that the health of the "Mother Sex" shall be both benefited and preserved. Being charged with the duties of immediate or ultimate motherhood, "the Mother Sex," one and all, are vitally interested in escaping the ills incident to that lot. Many a Miss has yielded her life to (so-called) consumption when she might have been spared had her knowledge of the requirements of her sex been more complete. Young women on every hand are in actual decline, all on account of a lack of proper information right at the critical period of girlhood. Wives and mothers by the thousand are daily treading the tortuous paths of pain, caused by womb trouble, when they might be healthy and strong. MILES (CANADIAN) VEGETABLE COMPOUND is a remedy calculated and proven to be a sure cure for prolapsus uteri, or "falling of the womb," and leucorrhoea, or the "whites," prepared by the "A.M.C. Medicine Co., 126 St. Lawrence Main Street, Montreal. Price 75c. Ask your druggist for it, or apply direct to the Laboratory. Inquiries from suffering women, addressed as above, marked "personal" will be opened answered by a confidential lady clerk, and will not go beyond the hands and eyes of one of "the mother sex."

TO SMUGGLE CHINESE.

A BOLD GANG OF CONSPIRATORS ARRESTED IN SAN FRANCISCO.

Forgery of Certificates was Part of Their Widespread Scheme of Fraud.

San Francisco, March 29.—After many delays the Internal Revenue Department has finally succeeded in capturing one of the biggest gangs of counterfeiters that have operated in California since the days of the Boyd-Ciprico gang. The combination sold the red certificates issued to Chinese by the Custom House in China and reaped a fortune. There were five conspirators in the Boyd-Ciprico gang and there were five in the one just discovered. Like its predecessor, it also dealt in fraudulent Chinese certificates. The names of the men arrested are: H. L. Foss, freight clerk on the Oceanic Steamship Co's dock; James H. Sullivan, formerly a deputy county clerk; Max Katzura, a new arrival from Victoria, and said to be a leading smuggler of Puget Sound; Ferdinando Ciprico, the man who was tried and acquitted for complicity in the Boyd-Ciprico ring; and M. Greenwald, brother of Louis Greenwald, the man now serving time in San Quentin for being mixed up in the operations of the Emerald smuggling ring. They are all charged with conspiracy in attempting to land Chinese in the United States by means of forged certificates. The counterfeiters were caught in a room down town which had been a rendezvous, and in which many of their operations took place. The officers had to break in the door, and when they secured admittance they found one man tearing up documents, while another was throwing a package of certificates out of the window, where they were caught by a waiting detective below. Marked photographs for the certificates were also seized, and also seals and rubber stamps and other paraphernalia used in the counterfeiting. All the leaders of the gang were landed in the county jail. The band had already established agencies at Vancouver, Boise City, Helena, Lincoln, Denver, Chicago, Philadelphia, New York and Victoria, and had plans to do business not only with Chinese they intended to import, but with as many as possible of the eighty thousand registered Chinese supposed to be in the United States.

BEARING SEA DECISION

Will be Impartially and Strictly Carried Out by Britain.

London, March 29.—In regard to the published statement that Canada has urged Great Britain not to further paralyze the British industry by assenting to the enforcement of the Bearing Sea regulations of 1895, it is officially intimated that the decision of the Paris arbitration will be strictly adhered to during the ensuing season and any side issue will not be allowed to affect that decision.

AILSA WINS AGAIN.

The Defeat of Britannia in a Good Sailing Wind—Two Minutes Ahead. Nice, March 29.—Ailsa and Britannia, with a strong westerly wind blowing and a slight sea running, started at 11 o'clock this morning with reefed mainsails and hauled topsails, in the race for the James Gordon Bennett Cup, valued at $2,500 and $2,500 in specie. The first round was concluded as follows: Ailsa..... 12:01.00 Britannia..... 12:03.34 Britannia, however, regained the lead in beating off shore to the first mark and was 20 seconds ahead at that point. In beating home to the finish of the second round, Ailsa re-passed Britannia. The times of the two yachts at the end of the second round were: Ailsa..... 1:23.00 Britannia..... 1:25.32 After a grandly sailed and most exciting race, Ailsa crossed the line ahead of Britannia. The times at the finish were: Ailsa..... 2:38.48 Britannia..... 2:38.48 The result of today's race proves conclusively that Ailsa will be a good boat in a fresh wind and a sea, when thoroughly fit for racing.

THE STEEPLECHASE.

Wildman Wins the Grand National at Aintree—Cathal Second.

Liverpool, March 29.—In spite of the scratching of Mr. C. G. Duff's Cloister, which has caused a sensation in racing circles, as already noted, and the bad weather prevailing, great crowds of people assembled today at Aintree, about six miles from this city, to witness the Grand National steeplechase. The Grand National steeplechase was for 2,500 sovereigns, inclusive of a trophy valued at 100 sovereigns; second horse to receive 200 sovereigns and third horse to receive 200 sovereigns for four years old; a handicap for four year olds and upwards; Grand National course, about four miles and 856 yards long. Mr. John Widgers' aged chestnut gelding, Wildman from Borneo, by Decider, out of Wild Duck, was first; Mr. F. B. Adkinson's Cathal, six years old, a bay gelding by Casook or Hominy, out of Daffodil, was second, and Major A. Crawley's Van Der Berg, aged, a bay gelding by Dutch Skater, out of Yurata, was third. Nineteen horses ran.

DICKS FORMALLY COMMITTED.

Toronto, March 29.—Arthur A. Dicks appeared in the Police Court this morning to stand his preliminary trial on a charge of murdering his wife on the morning of March 2, when their house on St. Helen's Avenue was destroyed by fire, and Mrs. Dicks was burned to death. When the case was called Mr. E. F. Johnston, who appeared for the prisoner, consented to a formal commitment, waiving the right to call witnesses. Dicks was, therefore, at once committed to the next Assizes.

Mr. Morris Sees His Trouser.

Joseph Armstrong, an old penitentiary bird with many aliases was up before Judge Desnoyers yesterday charged with breaking into summer residences at Sherbrooke and other places. When brought into Court a pair of blue trousers he had on were recognized by the Hon. A. W. Morris as his property. The accused however, pleaded "not guilty."

Fire on the premises of E. L. Ethier, manufacturers of billiards, 88 St. Denis Street, caused considerable damage to noon today.

DUNRAVEN WINS.

Awarded £5,000 Damages for the Sinking of Valkyrie II.

London, March 29.—The Court of Appeals has reversed the decision of the Admiralty Court in the case of Valkyrie II. and Santanta for damages resulting from the sinking of the former by the latter, on July 5th, 1894, on the first day of the Mud Hook Yacht Club's regatta. Lord Dunraven is only the nominal plaintiff in the suit, which was really brought by the underwriters. The Court of Appeals has now awarded Lord Dunraven £5,000 damages. The Admiralty Court, it will be remembered, limited the damages to £3 per ton, or a total of £352. The owner of the Santanta, Mr. A. D. Clarke, will now appeal to the House of Lords.

CORNWALL CANAL.

Rushing the Work Ahead as Rapidly as Possible—Mill Flumes.

Cornwall, Ont., March 29.—Messrs. Davis & Sons are concentrating their forces upon the sections of the retaining wall which have to be finished before navigation opens on May 1. They have about 300 men at work and have pushed forward the excavating so rapidly that the laying of stone was commenced yesterday. About four thousand yards of masonry are to be laid at locks No. 19 and No. 20. The Pitt Street wharf and the new flume for the Stromont mill, four iron pipes, each eight feet in diameter, are being laid in this flume to carry the water to the bulkhead. No work will be done on the Sheik's Island dams until late in April.

Rev. Dr. Carman, Superintendent-General of the Methodist Church in Canada, will preach an educational sermon in the Methodist Church here next Sunday.

BURNED TO DEATH.

Sad Fate of a Mother While Trying to Save Her Child.

North Port, L.I., March 29.—Mrs. Wm. Reeves and Hattie, her 14-year-old daughter, were burned to death here to-day. Mrs. Reeves was awakened by the smell of smoke, saw the house was on fire, and ran across the street for help. Then realizing that her mother and father and her child were in the burning building, she ran back to render them assistance. She first went to the bedroom, where her mother and father were asleep, and succeeded in getting them safely out. Then she dashed madly back into the burning building to save her daughter. That was the last seen of her or Hattie until their charred remains were found after the fire had been extinguished clasped together in death.

The boys will be landed at Portland, where they will be placed upon a special Grand Trunk train under the charge of Mr. E. H. Struthers, of the Bernardo farm, and taken to their destination. The special committee, composed of A. D. Penny, chairman; A. D. Savignac and Pre-noveau, appointed to investigate the Davis-Laforest affair, finished their labors yesterday. The report will be presented at the next meeting of the Council. Its tenor is yet private; but it is believed to be favorable to the Superintendent. FRANCE WARNED.

SENSATION CAUSED IN EUROPE BY NILE VALLEY STATEMENT.

CRITICAL CONDITION OF THE BRITISH-FRENCH RELATIONS.

Sir Edward Grey's Remarks Looked Upon as Defining Great Britain's Position.

London, March 29.—The statement which Sir Edward Grey, Parliamentary Secretary of the Foreign Office, made in the House of Commons last night, saying that an advance of the French into the territory of the Upper Nile Valley, belonging to the Royal Niger Company, and therefore, under British protection, would be an unfriendly act, and that it was well-known to France that Great Britain would so regard it, is causing a profound sensation here and in the Continent. Sir Edward's announcement, which was read from notes, believed to have been written by the Secretary of State for Foreign Affairs, the Earl of Kimberley, is looked upon as revealing the extremely critical relations now existing between France and Great Britain. The fact that the statement was prepared in writing, before-hand, emphasizes the seriousness of the situation, and shows that every word embodies the views of the Cabinet. In brief, the statement is to the effect that it is becoming daily more difficult to live on good terms with France; that Great Britain has made concession after concession in the past two years in the interest of peace, but that the end has now come and that it is found necessary to warn France from the Ministerial benches. The most important and scientific portion of Sir Edward Grey's statement was the following: "But something besides our own efforts is necessary, and that is the co-operation of the French Government and the French people."

TO STOP CANADIANS

From Crossing the Frontier to Go to Their Daily Work.

Niagara Falls, N.Y., March 29.—Collector Richmond has been appealed to prevent Canadians from coming over here in the morning, doing a day's work and then returning to their homes at night. It was stated that these people in many instances worked for less than resident workmen, and that their coming here was an injustice to people who live here and have property interests here. Under the present law as interpreted by Judge Wallace in the case of Blount, the Michigan Central freight clerk, the Collector can do nothing to stop these daily pilgrimages of Canadian laborers. A NEW SCHEME. Moving Has Lost Its Horror—All Done By Trained Men. The horror of moving is gone. A prophet has come to relieve the people of the curses that have periodically fallen upon the house-hunter. A man now needs simply to call up Telephone No. 565, King's City Express—one of the expert movers' calls; gives estimate of cost for moving; order is given; the man goes to his business during the day and at night goes to his new home and finds everything delivered in the best manner, nothing broken or scratched. What is simpler? They guarantee no breakage and do their work so cheaply and so expertly that they always get the future business of those who try them once. You need not touch a thing. Mr. King's men are experts—no "green" hands—and they will take the contract to move everything just as it stands. They also have a special freight and parcel delivery and deliver small parcels to any part of the city for 5 cents. If you are moving or sending parcels, here is a plan to save you trouble. King's City Express, Telephone No. 565, 749 Craig Street, is the prophet for the house-hunter's relief we referred to.

A RUN FOR LIBERTY.

An Escaped Prisoner Run Down by a Constable.

James Gavigan, a young man charged with robbery, created a flutter of excitement among the two hundred loafers congregated in front of the Court House yesterday by trying to escape. And he was nearly successful. A prison van arrived at the Police Court entrance with its usual gang of prisoners young Gavigan defiantly slipped the handcuff from his wrist and on the opening of the door he started on a run around the end of the Court House. Several constables chased him across the Champ de Mars but Special Constable Cordierier was ahead and just as the prisoner reached Craig Street he jumped for him and caught him. Cordierier brought him back amid cheers from the bystanders and Gavigan will now get his sentence with the rest.

Late Mrs. C. T. Williams.

The death is announced of Mrs. C. T. Williams, president of the Dominion Christian Temperance Union, and one of the best known lady temperance workers of this Province. Mrs. Williams was the daughter of the Rev. N. S. Dickinson, a Congregational Minister of New England. She came here nearly twenty years ago with her husband, and Montreal was ever since her home. When the Montreal W.C.T.U. was organized in 1832, she became its secretary, and shortly after took charge of the social work of the Provincial Union. At the convention of the Provincial Union in 1850, Mrs. Williams was elected recording secretary, and at the convention of the Dominion W.C.T.U. in 1892, she was elected to the office of president of that organization, in which capacity she did good work. Indeed, her influence extended far beyond the Dominion, and her name was held in reverence wherever women were engaged in earnest Christian temperance work. Her last illness was long and painful, resulting from an accident sustained last autumn. Mrs. Williams and her husband were closely associated with the general work of Emmanuel Church.

Premier Fielding's Trip.

Halifax, N.S., March 29.—The West India Line, steamer Duart Castle, sailed yesterday afternoon. Among the passengers were Premier Fielding, who goes on the round trip through the islands. The steamer was fitted for the transport of nearly 300 troops.

ARMENIAN ATROCITIES.

The Villainous Turks can no Longer Conceal the Truth—London Times Speaks Out.

London, March 29.—This Times publishes a long report on the Armenian atrocities written by a competent and trustworthy man, who made a personal investigation on the spot. This report was written in January, but only arrived in London yesterday. The writer says he is convinced that both in 1893 and 1894 the Turkish Government gave both oral and written orders to the Kurds to attack the Armenians, promising them the booty and relieving them of the responsibility for the consequences. In the first attacks made upon them the Armenians defeated the Kurds. Unhappily but for the Turkish help the Kurds would have been unable to have gained a permanent victory. The Kurds in the earlier premises did not harm women and children. Even when initiated by the Turks they did little in comparison with the latter. The account proceeds to confirm the pit incident, and the report of the Governor of Bitlis' reading at Jelyezoozan, the Sultan's firm ordering the Kurds to destroy the disaffected villages, sparing nothing, for their Sultans and Prophet. This occurred about the middle of August and the massacre which followed bears all description. The Occidentals of the nineteenth century cannot comprehend it. Many were bound, covered with brushwood and burned alive. Others were hacked to pieces. At Shenig a house filled with fifty men, women and children was set on fire and all were cremated. The officers forced their men to acts of cruelty from which the latter shrank. A young priest, a Dalvorig, persuaded seventy of his followers to yield. They were ordered to dig a trench and when enough earth had been thrown up all were hacked to pieces and cast into the trench.

Priests suffered horrible deaths. One was thrown into the air and allowed to fall on a number of bayonets that had been stuck upright in the ground.

Commenting editorially upon this report the Times admits "that owing to the obstacles Turkey has thrown into the way, the report, from which the most revolting details have been excluded, lacks the qualities demanded by the scientific historian but when Turkey has had the benefit of every consideration that research, crippled by her own action, allows us to conceive, the indictment goes unanswered, and asserts the entire system of Turkish rule."

TRADE IN CANADA.

R. G. Dun and Co.'s Weekly Review of the Situation.

Toronto, March 29.—R. G. Dun & Co.'s weekly statement of trade in Canada says: While there is no great change in the business situation at Montreal, indications are not lacking in some lines of a probable improvement, though such improvement may not be very marked. Groceries show a slightly increased distribution and further gain in activity will likely follow, as the opening of navigation approaches. Sunny spring-like weather has helped dry goods retailers, and sorting orders from city and country are coming in rather better. Heavy hardware and metals show no improvement whatever. The demand does not pick up at all, and there does not seem to be any stop to the downward tendency in values. Hides rule very firm under light supplies, and the tenor is still upwards in sympathy with an advancing American market. In leather higher prices are being asked for splits and glove grain, and there is notable firmness in sole. Money does not come in from the country much more freely, but lumbering operations on the Ottawa and Laurentides sections have been carried on during the winter on a more liberal scale, and the increased expenditure for logs and labor in these sections should be beneficial. It is claimed there are indications of a better demand for money from the banks, and it is said there has been some considering of an advance in the present call on a rate of 4 per cent. There is no decided change in the commercial situation at Toronto. The improvement lately noted has been maintained, but business cannot be called active. Travellers are out on sorting up in dry goods, and in some instances odds for fall goods are being taken. Merchants still adhere to the cautious policy, with few notes and are not stocking up with goods. The number of failures show a decrease, and the outlook generally for business is encouraging. Prices of leading staples are firm. There is some improvement in the leather trade, and the tone of the market is better, owing to higher prices for hides. There is a very firm wheat market, the receipts being light and prices higher than for a good many months. Stocks of hard wheat are especially small, and a further advance in this grade is probable. The failures for the week are 42, as against 30 for the corresponding week of a year ago.

DR. BOURINOT'S OPINION

On the Constitutionality of Dissolution of Parliament.

Ottawa, March 29.—Dr. Bourinot was interviewed to-day on a constitutional point as follows: "Does the recent decision of the Government on the Manitoba school case involve the necessity of a prompt appeal to the country?" "No," was the reply, "because this is only the initial state of the matter. Only in case Parliament refuses to pass remedial legislation, following a determination on the part of Manitoba to do nothing, then the Ministry might think it proper to ask for a dissolution. The Government, of course, must await the decision of the Manitoba Legislature before coming to Parliament, which is the court of last resort in this matter. In case Parliament refuses to pass a remedial order, to which the Government is seemingly now pledged, then they might think it proper to appeal to the country. "From your constitutional studies, when would you consider an appeal to the country imperative?" "When the boundaries of the constituencies are so changed or the franchise is so extended that it becomes necessary to get a verdict from the new or enlarged constituency. "But what about the Representation Act of 1891? No appeal to the country followed the passage of that measure."

CORNWALL SCHOOL TAXES

Unsuccessful Effort of Separate Schools to Increase Their Percentage.

Toronto, March 29.—A bill was introduced in the Private Bills Committee this morning by Mr. Bennett (Storment) respecting the division of taxes on the Canada Cotton Company's new building in Cornwall. The separate schools there have 751 pupils and a revenue of $4,456. The public schools have 712 pupils and a revenue of $8,415. The separate schools could get only 7 per cent. of the taxes by law and want the Legislature to endorse the Town Council's by-law to give them 39 per cent., according to the assessment of the town for the past ten years, which gives the Catholics 39 per cent. of the property. R. A. Pringle and A. R. Creelman put forward the claims of the bill, and Hon. S. H. Blake strongly opposed it as contrary to public policy. The bill was defeated by a vote of 27 to 8.

THAT FORGERY.

INTERESTING EVIDENCE AN THE ENQUETE YESTERDAY.

All the Parties to it Have Been in St. Vincent de Paul.

The enquete in the Bank of Montreal forgery case was continued in the Police Court yesterday before Judge Desnoyers. The proceedings commenced by the cross-examination of Victor Anderson, the man who turned Queen's evidence, by Mr. R. A. E. Greenshields, counsel for Sibley. Anderson said he had known Sibley for "four years at St. Vincent de Paul Penitentiary." When he came out of the penitentiary two weeks ago he went to a cigar store on St. James Street which Sibley visited and left a number of bank notes for Sibley to take to the man asking him to call at his house and kindly offered him lodgings for a few days to enable him to get a job. Witness then gave evidence relating to his arrest and to his being taken to Carpenter's secret service rooms, where he stayed two hours. He had served a term in the penitentiary for robbing the safe in the Palace Hotel, Quebec. He admitted after sharp cross-examination that the cheque for $1,968.80 was all his own handwriting, except the initials of the discount clerk, but he had not seen Sibley put them there. He had the $397 cheque in his pocket several days, but he had not been able to find a man to suit his purpose. Finally a man named John Hoare got a party for him. Hoare was known to Sibley, having been in St. Vincent de Paul Penitentiary with him. The man who presented the cheque was unknown to witness; he was Hoare's friend. He had promised him $4 or $5 for his trouble.

On further cross-examination, witness said that he had had Sibley's bank book and a cancelled cheque and kept it for three days until Sibley asked for it. He had not attempted to copy the discount clerk's initials as they appear on the cheque. He had written the $1,968.80 cheque merely for his own amusement. He might have tried to imitate the discount clerk's initials with a black pencil, but not with a blue one. He did not expect to get anything for cashing the cheque. He did it out of friendship to Sibley, who also claimed that he was in a hole.

Detective Carpenter deposed that he went to Sibley's house and found a Bank of Montreal pass book, in which was a cancelled cheque for $295.33. It had initials of the discount clerk similar to that on the false cheque. The initials on the cancelled cheque had evidently been traced over with a pencil; in fact it could be seen on the back, the pencil evidently passed through. Also found some eight other cancelled cheques in a drawer without any initials upon them.

C. Parker, discount clerk, was recalled and also thought the handwriting on the false cheques were similar, but could not say for certain whether it was by the same hand by a cursory examination.

Fred Jones, messenger, was also called, but all he could say was that he knew W. H. Sibley by name, as having an account in the bank, but could not recognize the accused as the one in question. The enquete was then adjourned until Monday morning at 10 o'clock, when a little more technical evidence will be tendered and the case for the bank closed.

FATAL BOILER EXPLOSION.

Three People Terribly Mangled and Others Injured.

Harmony Grove, Pa., March 29.—One of the most horrible catastrophes that ever occurred in this county happened yesterday evening near Apple Valley. The large boiler at the Langston saw mill exploded with a fearful result. Willie Goode had just left the engine and was standing near the saw when the boiler exploded and his body was cut entirely in two and thrown several feet. John Langston had finished eating dinner in a shanty fifty yards from the engine and was sitting on his bunk reading when the boiler struck the shanty, tore one side away, and hurled Langston's body thirty yards through the air. Nearly every bone in his body was broken and he was mangled almost beyond recognition. The negro woman cook was in a shanty washing dishes when it was struck by the boiler, and she was instantly killed and thrown a considerable distance through the woods. Several people were badly injured. The boiler was hurled 150 yards up hill, striking the ground and bouncing up and down several times, tearing down trees, like a cyclone.

CHAPTER I.

"Oh! my necklace!" cried a fair woman as she leaned over the side of her gondola.

A string of opals, linked and set in gold, had been loosened from her throat, and had slid down into the water of the lagoon, midway between the Lido and the city of Venice.

But the gondola was moving swiftly under the impulsion of a rover fore and aft, and though they stopped a few moments after at her cry, the spot where it had fallen was already passed and left behind.

She had many jewels, but the opal necklace was an heirloom, and of fine and curious workmanship.

The gondoliers did their best to find it, but in vain. They were in the deeper water of the sailing roads, which were marked out by the lines of poles, and the necklace, a slight thing, had been borne away by the current setting in from the open sea.

Neither of the men could swim, many Venetian canoes, but they got over the side, and waded up to their waists in the water, and with their ears struck and sounded the sandy bottom; but the lagoon, which has been the grave of so many, kept the drowned opals.

"We will go back and send divers," she said to her men, who, wet to their waists, were well content to turn the head of the gondola back to the city.

"They were white clothes with red sashes and red ribbons round their straw hats; they wore in her private service; they steered quickly home again over the calm waterway, and in and out the crowded craft by the schiavone past the customs house, and S. Giorgio and the Salvatore, until they reached a palace on the Grand canal, which was their mistress' residence, with poles painted red and white, with coronets on their tops, marking the landing stairs in the old Venetian fashion.

"I have lost my opals in the water!" she cried to a friend who was on one of the balconies of the first floor.

"I am glad you have lost them," replied her friend. "They are pierres de mailheur."

"Nonsense! They were beautiful, and they were Ninetta Laranigra's, poor Carlo's great-grandmother; they were one of her nuptial presents a hundred years ago. Her portrait hangs in the Belle Arte. She was beautiful, and had a tragic fate. I must have the men dive and dredge till they are found. The water is so shallow. I cannot think how they have vanished so completely in such a moment of time."

On the morning, when it was known through Venice that the rich and generous Countess Laminigra had lost her jewels all the best divers hurried to the place where it had dropped and worked assiduously from daybreak to find it, sailors and fishermen and boatmen all joining in the search, in hope to merit the reward she promised. But no one of them succeeded. Their efforts were useless. The treacherous water would not yield up its prey. The opals were gone, like spirits.

In the hollow of an old oak pile the opals remained all winter long, lying like bird's eggs in a nest, while the restless waters washed and swirled above its sanctuary. The worn stump of the wood had kept its place for centuries, and many a corpse had drifted past it outward to the sea in days when the white marbles of St. Mark's city had run red with blood. It had once been the base of a sea shrine, of a mado, of the waters to whom the boatmen passing had invoked the Stella Maria Virgins so dear to fishermen and sailors.

But the painted shrine had long disappeared, and only the old piece of timber, down underneath the waters, rooted in the sand amongst the ribbon weed and mussels, had had power to resist the forces of the tide and tempest.

All the winter long the old pile kept the opals safe and sound.

But one day when the peach and plum trees had in turn burst into blossoms on the isles, and the flocks of gulls who had returned to their feeding places on the outer lagoons, a large iron ship coming from the Black sea gave a rude shock in passing to the old oak pile; the top of it under the blow parted and fell asunder; the necklace was washed out of its hiding place, and, carried in the heavy trough of the steamer's path, was floated ashore by the creeks into the long grasses and reeds beneath the Devil's bridge at Torcello. The yellow water iris was then flowering, and two little red warblers were nesting amongst the flags, as the opals were drifted up under some hemlock leaves and there rested.

"I think they are eggs, but they are all strung together," said the warbler to his mate.

"I'VE LOST MY OPALS IN THE WATER,"

"They look more like the spawn of a fish," said the little winged lady, with scorn.

A water rat came up and smelt at them, then went away disdainfully—they were not good to eat. For birds and beasts do not care for jewels; it is only humanity, which thinks itself superior to them, which sees any value in stones, and calls such toys precious.

There is nowhere in the world any grass richer than that of Torcello, and forget-me-nots, honeysuckles, and wild roses grow down to the water's edge and around the hoary stones of the deserted isle.

"What a God-forgotten place!" said a young man as he sprang from a boat on to the bank by the bridge.

"Torcello was the mother of Venice; the daughter has slain her," replied an older man as he laid down his oars in the boat, and prepared to follow his companion.

His foot trod amongst the hemlock and leaves and was entangled by them; he stooped, and his eyes, which were very keen, caught sight of the string of opals.

"A woman's necklace!" he said, as he drew it from under the salt seaweed and the dewy dock leaves. It was discolored, and had sand and mud on it, and bore little traces of its former beauty, but he recognized that it was a jewel of worth; he perceived, even dulled as they were, that the stones were opals.

"What have you there?" cried the younger man from above on the bank. "The skull of an archimandrite!"

"The other threw the necklace upon the grass."

"You would have been a fitter finder of a woman's collar than I."

"Opals! The stones of sorrow!" said the younger man, gravely, as he raised it and brushed off the sand. "It has been beautiful," he added. "It will be so again. It is not really hurt, only a little bruised and tarnished.

"Lend me your glass," said the younger man. The glass was of strong magnifying power. When it was handed to him he looked through it at some little mark on the back of the clasp of the opal collar.

"Laranigra, 1775," he read aloud. "Laranigra, is a Venetian name."

"There is a Ca' Laranigra on the Grand canal. It is next to the Laredan. You admired its Moorish windows on the second story this morning. Carlo Laranigra died young. He has a widow who is only twenty now. She was a daughter of the duke of Monfalcone, a family of the —ntino, but pure Italians in blood. Their place is in the mountains above Garzisa. It must be she who owns this necklace, an heirloom, probably."

"Take it to her," said the finder of it, with indifference. "I cede you my rights."

The younger laughed.

"All who knows what they may become!"

"Whatever they may become they are yours. I do not appreciate that kind of reward."

"Really?" said the younger man. "If so I pity you!"

"Nay; I pity you," said the elder.

The young man still stood with the opals in his hands; with a wisp of grass he had cleared the sand in a measure of clean; the pebbly softness and the roseate flames of the stones began to show here and there; two alone of their number were missing.

"Come," said his companion, with impatience. "Put that broken rubbish in your pocket and let us go and see the cathedral and S. Fosca, for it will soon grow dark."

"They went, without visiting the basilica, back to Venice in the twilight which deepened into night as they drew near the city; the moon was high and the air still. They dined in the spacious rooms set aside in the hotel for Andreis. When the dinner was over he rose.

"What you came?" he asked.

"To the Ca' Laranigra," said Andreis, with a boyish laugh.

"Not I," replied Damer.

"A riverderl, then," said Andreis.

But he lingered a moment.

"It will not be fair to you," he said, "for me to take the credit of having found this necklace."

"Whatever honor there may be in the salvage I cede it, I tell you, willingly."

"Of course I shall tell her that it was you."

"There is no need to do so; I am not a squire of dames. She will prefer a Sicilian prince to a plain man of science. However, you must find the lady first. The true owner lies under some moss-grown slab in some chapel crypt, no doubt."

"Why will you speak of death?" I hate it."

"Hate it as you may, it will overtake you."

He looked at his companion as he spoke, and thought what he did not speak:

"Yes; strong as you are, and young as you are, and fortunate as you are, you too will die like the pauper and the cripple and the beggar."

The reflection gratified him; for of the youth of the beauty of the fortune, he was envious and with all his scorn of higher intellect he despised the childlike happy amorous temperament and the uncultured mind which went with them.

"If I had only his wealth," he thought often. "Or if he only had my knowledge!"

The sun was setting behind the Istrien hills and they depended on their own oars to take them back to Venice in the rose-hued dusk and a few seconds later the splash of the canal water beneath the balcony.

Veronica Laranigra was charmed to find her necklace; she was still more charmed to find an adventure through it.

The marriage had been arranged by their respective families and the hearts of neither had been consulted. Laranigra however had become much in love with her and had left her all which it was in his power to leave and that had been much.

The marriage had been arranged by their respective families and the hearts of neither had been consulted. Laranigra however had become much in love with her and had left her all which it was in his power to leave and that had been much.

"How clever it was of you to see my opals under the grass and the sand!" she said a few minutes later as Andreis presented Damer in the long dim room hung with tapestries and rich in bronzes, marbles pictures and mosaics.

"The dead are little use to us; their nervous system is still like a stopped clock."

"A creature must suffer to interest you?"

"Certainly."

Andreis shuddered slightly.

"Why did you save me?"

Damer smiled.

"My dear prince it is my duty to save you when I can. I should have preferred to see you alone and study your natural powers of resistance in conflict with the destruction which was menacing them. But I could not follow my preferences. I was called in to assist your natural powers by affording them artificial assistance; and I was bound to do so."

Andreis made a grimace which signified disappointment and distaste.

"If my mother knew you looked at it in that way she would not adore you my friend as she does."

Do you like animals? "I do not like or dislike them. The zoologist does not like or dislike the animal he breaks up, the metallurgist does not like or dislike the ore he fuses."

"You are what they call a physiologist?" she said once, suddenly. "I am," replied Damer.

She looked at him under her long silky lashes as a child looks at what she fears in the dusk of a fading day.

CHAPTER III. She turned to Andreis who at that moment came along the sands of the beach, his hands filled with spoils from the blossoming hedges—turned to him as a little child on the staircase in the dusk she had run to reach the shelter of a warm and lighted room.

She knew that her foot was ready to tread the narcissus-filled grass, but by an unaccountable indecision and caprice she would not let him invite her thither.

"What do you do there?" Veronica wished to ask him; but she never did so; she felt vaguely afraid as a woman of the middle age would have feared to ask a magician what he did with his alchemies and his spheres.

CHAPTER IV. After the death of the servingman Blanton the name of the English scientist and surgeon became known and revered amongst the persons of his profession in Venice.

CHAPTER V. Damer read the young man's heart like an open book and he knew that it was wholly filled with the image of Veronica. He had never liked Andreis; he had no liking for youth or for physical beauty, or for kindness and sweetness and simplicity of character.

CHAPTER VI. He had saved the life of Andreis because it had interested him and recompensed him to do so; he had traveled with him for a year because it suited him financially to do so; but he had never liked him, he had never been touched by any one of the many generous and delicate acts of the young man, nor by the trust which the mother of Andreis continually expressed in her letters to himself.

when he returned and told her on what they had decided. "In his present state he cannot live a week," replied Damer, evasively.

"He will be under anaesthetics," "But will he recover?" "Madame, I am not the master of fate."

"Why did you torture him with it, then?" said Veronica, indignantly. "It was a rare and almost unique opportunity. I have solved by it a doubt which has never been solved before and never could have been without a human subject."

"You are a wicked man!" she said, fairly. "Oh, how I wish, I had never asked you to see my poor Blanton! He might have lived!"

"He would most certainly have died," said Damer, unmoved. "The life of a man at sixty is not an especially valuable thing, and I believe he did nothing all his life except polish your palace floors with beeswax or oil; I forget which it is they use in Venice."

"Go away, go away, you have no heart and no conscience." "Damer smiled slightly. "I have a scientific conscience; it is as good as a moral one, and does better work."

CHAPTER X. Andreis began to desire the exile of his companion, though his loyalty withheld him from trying to obtain it by any unfair means or unjust attack.

CHAPTER XI. "What is the matter with you?" said Damer, bidding the woman go before him, walked over the balcony until he reached the one in which she had a sort of rude deck-house or cabin, in which she and five children lived. There he examined the little boy.

CHAPTER XII. "We will go together," he replied, in the same soft whisper, while his hand touched hers in seeming only to take the lute. Damer saw the gesture where he sat in the embrasure of a window speaking of a frontier question of the hour with a German minister who was passing through Venice.

CHAPTER XIII. "You should not plunge into sewage water and embrace little beggars," he said coldly, as he accompanied one of the Venetian gentlemen whose palace was near the Fondamenta, and who had offered him a seat in his gondola.

CHAPTER XIV. "I am going to the hospital, and shall not be at home till dark," replied Damer indignantly. "I was coming to tell you that I am about to leave Venice."

CHAPTER XV. "And you are going to Gorizia, no doubt," said Damer, with a dark, brief smile. "I am and I may not," replied Andreis.

"YOU WILL BE MINE—MINE—MINE!" She came to him at once in one of the smaller saloons.

"I am ready," she said, gayly. "Look! I have got these fruits and toys for your little waif."

Then something in his expression checked her gladness. "What is it?" she asked.

"The child is dead," said Andreis. "Oh, how sad!" She put down the little gifts she had prepared on a table near her; she was tender-hearted and quickly moved; the tears came into her eyes for the little boy whom she had never seen.

Andreis drew nearer to her. "Mia cara," he murmured. "Do not play with me any longer. Death is so near us always. I have told you a hundred times that I love you. I will make you so happy if you will trust to me. Tell me—tell me—"

She was softened by emotion, conquered by the answering passion which was in her; she did not speak; but her breast heaved, her lips trembled; she let him take her hands.

"You will be mine—mine—mine!" he cried, in delirious joy. "I love you," she answered, in a voice so low that it was like the summer breeze passing softly over the lilies. "Hush! Leave me! Go now. Come back at three. I shall be alone."

The doors were open and the windows; in a further chamber two liveried servants stood; approaching through the ante-room was the figure of the major-domo of the palace.

Andreis pressed his hands to his lips and left her. He was dizzy from ecstasy, or so he thought, as the basis and status of the entrance hall reeled and swam before his sight, and his limbs felt so powerless and nerveless that, if one of the gondoliers had not caught and held him, he would have fallen headlong down the water steps.

(TO BE CONTINUED.) STAIRS DID NOT KNOW. He is not looking for a position in the Cabinet.

St. John, N. B., March 29.—Mr. J. F. Stairs, M. P. for Halifax, passed through the city this afternoon on his way home from Montreal. To enquirers Mr. Stairs said there was no truth in the rumor that he was to receive a cabinet position in the place of Sir Herbert Tupper.

He professed to know nothing beyond the published statements regarding the troubles at Ottawa and said he only knew of his name being used by seeing it in the papers. Mr. Stairs added that he had quite enough work at present looking after cordage combine matters.

liking for youth or for physical beauty, or for kindness and sweetness and simplicity of character. Such qualities were not in tune with him; they were no more to him than the soft, thick fur of the cat in his laboratory, which he stripped off her body that he might lay bare her spinal cord; the pretty, warm skin was nothing to science.

He had saved the life of Andreis because it had interested him and recompensed him to do so; he had traveled with him for a year because it suited him financially to do so; but he had never liked him, he had never been touched by any one of the many generous and delicate acts of the young man, nor by the trust which the mother of Andreis continually expressed in her letters to himself.

None of the hospital physicians dared perform such an operation. "I will operate if you consent," said Damer.

The surgeons acquiesced. "I am going to the hospital, and shall not be at home till dark," replied Damer indignantly. "I was coming to tell you that I am about to leave Venice."

With some difficulty I persuaded him to come with me to the club. There I gave him tea and consoling cigarettes. When he was a little calmer I pressed him to tell me his experiences. He did so, with some reluctance.

"I began," he said, "by going to Bond street. I found a window there with just the right kind of clothes in it. They were so ugly as to be almost indecent. That is why I knew they were all right; they couldn't have been exhibited at all if they hadn't had style. They must have been simply saturated with style. Besides, Bond street is always all right, anyhow. So I pulled out my note-book, and it was just then I saw her with her green eyes fixed on me."

"What her?"

"Miss Catling. Didn't I mention it? I believe she must have been lying in ambush there. She saw, of course, what I was doing, saw it at a glance. I was doing her work. She just bowed, and came up to me like an angry cow. She pulled at my neck, and I got on to an omnibus immediately behind it. I was a few seconds, and then stepped off my 'bus. So I got clear away."

"But how? When she saw you get off the one 'bus, why didn't she get off the other, if she wanted to catch you?"

"Because she had paid her penny and couldn't bring herself to take less than the full pennyworth. Women mostly like value for their money. I had counted on that. As I say, I had got clear off, but I believe the incident spoiled my nerve. After that I had no intention of going anywhere in particular, but I found myself in front of another big shop window in Oxford street. I pulled myself together. I decided to go in, say that I wanted the latest news about the fashions and offer in return for the information a gratuitous advertisement of the firm. Well, I went in. Inside there was a tall stately man. He smiled at me just as if he wanted to be a friend to me, and yet all the time his attention seemed to be a kind of bar between us."

Here Salemaker paused and buried his head in his hands.

CHAPTER III.

I said: "What next?"

"I lost my pick suddenly. I tried to speak about Home Happiness, but I couldn't. He asked me what he could have the pleasure of doing for me, and I stammered out something about elastic. It was the only thing I could think of. He took me up to a counter with a proud, beautiful girl behind it, and I said: 'Elastic, please.' The girl said: 'How many yards would you require?' I didn't know anything about that, and so I said two pennyworth. Then I thought that seemed rather a poor thing to say to a girl in that position, and so I altered it to six pennyworth. She said: 'Certainly, and what kind of elastic?' How was I to know that there were two kinds of elastic? However, I said: 'The kind they use for catapults.' She went behind a sort of desk and stopped there patiently for some time. She may have gone there to laugh or she may not. After a few minutes she came back and remarked: 'Elastic you said, I think?' Then she began to measure it out. I took it away in a whitey-brown paper parcel, and everybody stared at me. When I got outside the shop I threw the parcel down on the pavement, in a fit of irritation, I

CHAPTER III.

"THE KIND THEY USE FOR CATAPULTS." suppose. A boy picked it up and handed it back to me again. Then I went on to the park. I thought I might make some note of the dresses there and also get rid of my penny and not out my note-book. I made notes of three dresses that I saw. These are the notes:

"No. 1. Black.

"No. 2. A kind of brown. Buttons on it.

"No. 3. A sort of bluish. Looked as if it hurt.

"It struck me then that I was not getting enough detail. I had only jotted down the general effect. A woman was sitting opposite me with a good many things on; so I began to sketch them. I was absorbed in my sketching, but I remember that I had a shadowy idea that the woman was beginning to look uneasy. Presently she got up. It was out of sheer absentmindedness (I was only thinking of the sketch) that I said to her: 'Sit down again. I've not done with you yet.' A policeman was passing near, and she went to speak to him."

"Oh, I didn't stop. There didn't seem to be anything to stop for. I was out of the park and into a hansom before the woman had finished with the policeman. I told the man to drive fast to Charing Cross. In my hurry and confusion I had forgotten to leave the elastic behind me, and when I had paid the cabman I found that I was still grasping the parcel in my hand. That didn't matter. I left the elastic in a flower-pot at a restaurant where I lunched."

"But this thirteenth column. What have you done towards it?"

"I've read the fashion papers, but that's about all. Since luncheon I've been doing nothing but stare into shop windows. They muddled my head more than you can possibly understand, and they caused in addition a distinct amount of nervous friction. Perhaps you noticed it when you met me just now."

"Look here," I said, "you'd better give up the whole thing. You can't possibly do this column, and you'd better write to your editor and say so."

"He would not take my advice.

"A good all-round journalist can write an article on anything," he said obstinately. "I'm going off to write my article now—this minute."

"But do be reasonable," I said. "Why 'is it not impossible,' he answered, as he picked up his hat. 'Observation is no good. I've found that out. Study is also no good. The male man can find out nothing about the female fashions in those ways. But I have just thought of a third course—thought of it while I was talking to you—and I am now going to try it." He put on his hat. "On the whole," he added, "it is perhaps as well that you refused to smash that window for me. You may have been right; and I daresay I spoke too harshly when I said that you were respectable. I was much worried at the time, and you must make allowances. I shall bring you the article to look at to-night. An revoir."

A POLICEMAN WAS PASSING NEAR AND SHE WENT TO SPEAK TO HIM.

He did bring me the article, and it was the last time that I ever saw Charles Backerton Salemaker. Possibly, as he said in a subsequent letter, I shall never see him again. That night he looked radiant, triumphant, happy in the pride of achievement. He brought with him several typewritten sheets. They were the article in question, which he had just completed.

"First of all," he said, "let me explain the theory on which the article is written. The novelist works both from observation and imagination. He overhears some chance remark in the street, and from that with the help of imagination he constructs a character—even an entire novel. I've worked on the same lines. I've taken as my starting-point the little that I remember of the fashion papers and the shop windows, and I've allowed my imagination to play all around it."

He began to read the first sheet. It was to the effect that the season would soon be at an end, and that the autumn would follow with its beautiful foliage, and subsequently he and other high-bred English girls would give themselves up to a round of country-house visiting.

"That's all very very well," I observed, "but it's not fashions."

"No; that's the introduction."

"Well, cut the introduction."

He turned over a few sheets and read as follows:

"In the meantime the park every Sunday looks very gay and smart. One of the best dressed women that I have seen lately is unquestionably Lady B. She wore a coat and skirt of Irish guilpore of a dull bronze color, with tabs of ead-dell silk bordered with passementerie. The same color was repeated in the ascot-ribbon-plaiting on the pom-pom, and the whole was surmounted by a hat of vieux rose sarah, trimmed with skunk. What do you think of that?"

"I must confess that it sounds just like the real thing."

"Quite so. And it's all imagination. Here's another bit: 'An equally tasteful confection was worn by a lady of a rather more matronly type. The skirt, cut after the present approved fashion, was of petunia face cloth, shot with bombazine; this was suitably allied with a cape of Roman satin of somewhat deeper tinge, edged with brown Siberian daichslaur, and having a deep empire collar of amber velvet cut V-shape.'

I did not care to hear any more. I thought then, and still think, that it sounded all right. Apparently it was not all right, as the following extract from a letter I received from Salemaker two days later will show:

"You will never see me again. It is all over. The editor apparently showed my copy to his wife, and has written to ask me what I mean by sending a cowardly and offensive parody in place of the work that he ordered. He has told me to call and, if possible, explain. I shall not do so. I do not think that I can look him, or anybody else, in the face again. I feel that I am rightly punished for my presumption. It was wrong of me, in my pride in my own versatility, to have undertaken that thirteenth column. Everything is against me now. I went into a restaurant the other day, and there was Miss Catling lurching behind some tea and a large bun. I dashed out, jumped on to a 'bus, and found that the woman whose clothes I had so mistakenly attempted to sketch in the park was sitting opposite to me. I cannot escape from my unspeakable shame. Fate reaches out a long arm of coincidence and collars me at every turn. That attempt to write the thirteenth column seems to have swelled up and filled my entire life. Before the sun has set I shall probably find myself in the same railway carriage with the proud girl who sold me so much elastic. But I must risk that. England has become too small for me, and I must go."

The remainder of the letter was purely personal. That week Home Happiness announced that its fashion article was unavoidably crowded out, but would appear in the next number. There never was a next number. In the following week the whole of Home Happiness was crowded out, and it never appeared again.

Meanwhile the friends and relations of Charles Backerton Salemaker are getting very anxious, and any information as to his whereabouts would be thankfully received.

THE END.

Some Moon Myths.

The moon has been worshipped among nearly all the nations of the world from time immemorial; indeed, her cult has been asserted to be much older established than sun-worship. The Peruvian peasant hurries home out of the cold moonshine, afraid of the stern eyes of Mama Quilla, and the Egyptian fellow lounges across the sands where the sphinx's shadow lies black at his feet, with a prayer on his lips or in his heart to Thoth—Thoth, the Master of Wisdom, the Lord of the Ibis, in whose absence the fair land of Khem has been brought down very low. Sawbrian girls still refuse to spin by moonlight, "lest they should anger her," they say vaguely; and in Germany children firmly believe in Horsa or Holda, whose boat is the moon, whose flower is the flax, and whose delight is to reward industrious little maidens. Danes mark the man in the moon Cain; in Egypt he is Horus, held to the breast of Isis, his mother and the moon. In Rantum the man in the moon is a giant who at flowing tide steps to pour water on the earth, and at ebb tide stands upright in order that the waters may subside.

A curious Eastern fancy is that the figure in the moon is that of the pattern wife, Ina, who weaves the clouds into white cloth, and who, after the lapse of many years, sent her mortal husband back to earth by the rainbow bridge in order that death might not debar her heavenly home. The cat and the panther are both connected with the moon in some vague, occult fashion; indeed, in Australia the moon is represented as a native cat, and also in Egypt. In China the Celestials say that there is a frog in the moon, a metamorphosed rabbit called Chang.

World-wide News

ENGLAND.

It is said that on the first night of Mr. Oscar Wilde's new play an eccentric gentleman was refused admittance to the theatre as he was carrying a bouquet of carrots, presumably intending to throw them on the stage. At Manchester a Mrs. Moran was fined for throwing a quantity of tripe and "a shower of carrots" at a music hall singer.

In furtherance of the movement for bringing the various sections of Methodists in Great Britain into closer union and fellowship, a meeting has been held in Centenary Hall, Bishopsgate Street under the direction of the Wesleyan President, the Rev. Wallford Green. After careful consideration it was unanimously decided to invite each of the Methodist bodies to send delegates proportioned as closely as possible to the size of the Wesleyan Committee. The Primitive Methodists are to elect eight, the United Methodist Free Churches six, the Methodist New Connexion and the Bible Christians four each, the Independent Methodists and the Wesleyan Reform Union one representative each. The proposed scheme of concerted action will be in the direction—first, of mutual defence; second, Christian moral and social work, independent of all party associations and political creeds; third, the avoidance of the unnecessary multiplication of chapels, especially in thinly populated places; and fourthly, the development of Methodism in the thousands of the Methodists in the where at present it has no footing. This action will greatly strengthen Methodism in Great Britain.

A respectably dressed woman put a particularly insoluble question to Mr. Lane at the North London Police Court on the 1st inst. How could she get rid of a thoroughly lazy husband—a great strong man of 16st., who lay in bed all day and refused to do a stroke of work? Mr. Lane regretted that he was powerless; the matrimonial knot could not be slackened unless, of course, the idle and selfish husband took to assaulting the wife. Even if she left him and started a house on her own account, she could not exclude him if he chose to turn up. English law is never so delightfully ironical as when the marriage contract is in question.

The recruiting business, as might be expected, has been looking up in Great Britain during the recent hard times. Major General Grenfell, the Inspector general, reports that the number of enlistments last year was 33,698 in the regular army, which is up to the full establishment. He says that the social position of recruits is steadily improving.

A Cambridge, England, lady has determined to start a lodge of freemasons on her own account, and she states that the number of admissions she had received from sisters anxious to become acquainted with the ancient secrets of the mystic order testify to an earnest desire on the part of many women to assist men in the working of the craft. From what quarter she is to receive her warrant does not appear.

The death of the Rev. Robert William Dale, M. A., D. D., LL. D., minister of Carr's-lane Chapel, Birmingham, occurred on March 13h. For five years the number of admissions she had received from sisters anxious to become acquainted with the ancient secrets of the mystic order testify to an earnest desire on the part of many women to assist men in the working of the craft. From what quarter she is to receive her warrant does not appear.

Mr. Bryce had some hopeful remarks to make upon trade prospects at the home of the Associated Chambers of Commerce last night. He pointed out that the "eyes" of had trade since 1886 were none of them exceeded six years, a period which will soon be reached by the present season of depression. Then again, financial movements are getting better and the tariff law amendments in the United States are meeting with a response over here. True, the trade returns for February were bad, but it had been a month of exceptional frost and gloom. Mr. Bryce's forecast is incidentally confirmed by the proceedings at the last meeting of the Co-operative Society, an organization which embraces upwards of 1,300 co-operative stores, and affords a useful means of the purchasing power of the working classes. The balance-sheet for the quarter's working was pronounced on all sides to be the most satisfactory every presented. It showed increased trade in every department, and the sales at the rate of upwards of £10,000,000 a year.

Mr. W. H. Willis, who fought South Bristol unsuccessfully at the last election, will be the liberal candidate for this seat at the coming bye-election. The executive of the South Glamorganshire Conservative Association have chosen Major W. H. Willis as their own representative to the Earl of Durham, to contest the division, subject to the approval of the association and of the Liberal Unionists.

Colonel Malcolm (Unionist) has withdrawn his candidature in opposition to the Gladstone member, Mr. Price, in Norfolk East, and Mr. H. Rider Haggard, the novelist, has accepted the Conservative invitation to contest the seat. Mr. Haggard will make the absolute necessity of remedial measures for the condition of agriculture the chief point in his programme.

Dr. William Cox Bennett, well known as a popular ballad poet, died on the 4th inst. He was a brother of Sir John Bennett, and was born at Greenwich, in 1820.

SCOTLAND.

The admirers of Robert Burns will be deeply stirred by the announcement of the death at Mauchline, on Thursday last, in his eightieth year, of Mr. Hugh Gibb, a venerable inhabitant and "souter" of that town, whose memory was charged with the traditions of the great Ayrshire poet. Mauchline itself is celebrated as being in the Burns anthology a sort of local headquarters of female beauty, the abode of "six proper young belles," of whom the "jewel of them a' " was the Miss Armour, who became Mrs. Burns. Mr. Gibb was much sought after for the fulness and faithfulness with which he reproduced, at the remove of a single generation, the local memorabilia of Burns—recollections of what he had heard from the lips of those who had lived in Mauchline and associated with the bard, such as "Bonnie Jean," "Highland Mary," and others with whom the poet shares his own immortality. Mr. Gibb was an originator of ideas in sociology, being one of the pioneers of co-operation, and an advocate, considerably in advance of his time and of Mr. Chamberlain, of a system of old-age pensions.

Professor Blackie has, it is understood, left only somewhat over £4,000, having conveyed the bulk of his property to Mrs. Blackie some time before his death. His modern Greek library, said to be one of the finest in existence, he leaves to the Edinburgh University, and after Mrs. Blackie's death a John Stuart Blackie Travelling Scholarship in Greek will be founded.

Mr. Waller Hugh Paton, R. S. A., the eminent landscape painter, died in Edinburgh on March 28th. He was the younger brother of Sir Stuart Paton. His pictures showed from the first a peculiar scheme of color, as well as other characteristics which made them conspicuous. They were highly finished, and entered into great minuteness of detail. He painted exquisite scenes with purple hills and ozone skies flecked with rosy clouds. Mr. Paton early came under the influence of the pre-Raphaelite brotherhood and adhered faithfully to their creed till the end of his career. "Holyrood Palace and Edinburgh from the Queen's Drive," was painted by Royal command.

IRELAND.

Archbishop Walsh has addressed a letter to the chairman of the North Dublin Poor Law Guardians which has given great satisfaction to the Parnellite party. His Grace deprecates contests between Roman Catholic candidates for the office of guardian. He thinks it is surely open to Roman Catholics, as regards their religious duty, to range themselves on whichever side may commend itself to their judgment. If the present disastrous political division be kept up, he feels bound to see that no opportunity is given to keep up here under cover of any appeal to religious duty. The Parnellite organs regard this as a valuable and important declaration from the Archbishop, for which all those who have adhered to the Independent cause, amidst all the discouragements and misrepresentations of the past three or four years, will feel grateful. If Parnellism were a sin, nowhere would it be more rank than in Dublin; and the testimony unflinchingly given by the Archbishop is valued for the effect it must have in the country.

Viscount Templetown, the originator of the Unionist clubs movement which has spread throughout the whole of Ireland, presided in Belfast, at the third annual meeting of the council which controls the numerous affiliated clubs. The annual report of the executive committee expressed the opinion that the present peaceful state of Ireland was more or less a sign that the people were beginning to see that industry was better than agitation, and that Mr. Balfour's solid benefits were better than Mr. Morley's promises and honors.

FOREIGN.

Austin Corbin has been going to the size of his park in New Hampshire to such an extent that a bill has been introduced into the legislature of that state to restrict his right of purchase to 1,000 acres. It is said Mr. Corbin is satisfied with the provisions of the proposed measure.

Residing near Spencer, Ind., is "Uncle" Jimmy Culver. He was born near Baltimore on March 4th, 1789, and is therefore 105 years old. He has been married four times and is the father of fourteen children. Eleven of them are dead. Every one died of consumption, as have eight of his grandchildren.

Noah Oliver has gone home to Prince-Ky. He went away thirty-three years ago. At that time he joined the army was wounded, was ill many weeks, and at last his memory grew weak, and for years he wandered he does not know where. The other day he went back, his memory having suddenly returned.

The czar has ordered 500,000 rubles to be devoted to a fund for the relief of newspaper men and authors. The 300th anniversary of the death of Tasso is to be commemorated by a ten days' celebration at Sorrento, beginning on April 25th. The attempt of Great Britain to secure the extradition of James Balfour, ex-member of parliament, from Argentina, has thus far cost £40,000.

An order has been issued by the Grand Duke Vladimir, in command of St. Petersburg's military district, forbidding all officers attending theatres during Lent. An active propaganda is at work in France carrying on a movement for decentralizing power and giving more influence in public affairs to the communes, departments and other administrative districts. The Emperor of Austria, the kings of Saxony and Wurtemberg and numerous smaller royalties have been invited by the Kaiser to witness the military maneuvers in Pomerania, which are to be on a grand scale this year.

Extreme longevity is common in Posen, the Polish province of Russia. One woman died last year aged 112 years, another aged 108, died recently, and over a dozen people in the province are known to range from 100 to 105 years. M. Anatole Leroy, Beaulieu, the French political economist, who is not a radical, proposes that a tax be put on French "rentes," the "rentes" are the equivalent in France of registered government bonds.

Drought and locusts have caused widespread famine in eastern equatorial Africa. Villages have been depopulated, and mission schools and churches have been closed. Many natives are "in themselves and their children into slavery to obtain food. When a young man Bismarck saved a soldier from drowning. He was rewarded with a medal, as are all Germans who perform similar deeds of bravery. It has been arranged that all holders of such medals will give the ex-chancellor an ovation on his coming 80th birthday.

A play running at the Comedie Francaise deals with cheating at cards. The French term for a card cheater is "un grec." M. Charlot, the director of the theatre, has now to deal with a remonstrance from the Greek students in Paris against the use of the word, as being offensive to their nationality. Just before he died the late czar directed that 60,000 rubles be set aside for the benefit of artists who would lose their income from the closing of theatres during the period of mourning. The number of claimants subsequently proved so great that it had been considered, they would have received only 5 rubles apiece.

To Purchase Carlyle's Home. A fund has been started in England with the object of purchasing, repairing and maintaining as a museum Thomas Carlyle's London house, 24 Cheyne Row, Chelsea. The members of the Committee of the Fund include the Earl of Roselyne, Prof. Huxley, Lord Houghton, Lord Tennyson, Archdeacon Farrar and many others of rank and distinction. It is proposed to raise a total sum of £20,000.

The Carlyle house is a handsome specimen of real Queen Anne architecture. In one room may be seen the fireplace and mantel before which Carlyle spent a famous silent evening with Tennyson. The stone-paved kitchen has the same open grate on which Mrs. Carlyle made her marmalade "pure as liquid amber" in taste and in look almost poetically delicate. Here, too, Leigh Hunt's Scotch porridge was stirred. The house is now for sale, unoccupied, and in a dilapidated condition.

Notes of all Sorts. Burmese children of both sexes begin to smoke almost as soon as they can speak. It is calculated that if the children under the care of the London School Board were to join hands, they would reach from London to Carlisle, a distance of 300 miles. The total amount of gold in circulation at the present time is estimated at about 1,070 millions of pounds sterling, weighing altogether 895 tons.

The earliest snow ever known in Great Britain was on October 7, 1820. A decapitated snail, kept in a moist place, will in a few weeks grow a new head, quite as serviceable and good-looking as that which was taken away. Recent insurance statistics show that if the wife dies first, the husband on an average survives nine years; while if the husband dies first, the wife survives eleven years.

The giraffe has a tongue almost eighteen inches long. The velocity of the wind is continually changing. It varies every second, and while the average velocity may be twenty-three miles an hour, the course of one minute it will be altered several times.

FOR LITTLE FOLKS.

JACK, THE MILK DRINKER.

A Naughty Dog, Who Kept the Neighbors Guessing, Was Finally Caught.

The milkman who supplies Bloomsfield families living in the neighborhood of Lawrence and Harlow streets is happier than he was a week ago. His customers suspected that he was giving them short measure. Although he put in an extra gill as an evidence of good faith, there was still a deficiency in many of the tin pails that were set out at night to await his coming.

The police were asked to find out who was ransacking the lactated growler. They tried to do so, but they failed. A few mornings ago the culprit was discovered.

JACK.

The reader might surmise by the appearance of his mouth and tongue, conspicuous in the picture of him, that he has a capacity for milk in large quantities.

He is a big Newfoundland dog, and he belongs to Mrs. Moffatt, who lives in Harlow street. Mrs. Moffatt was looking out of the window early in the morning when she saw Jack hiding behind a clump of bushes and with a most interested expression watching the milkman filling the tin pail on the stoop of the Rev. Mr. Wiman's house.

When the milkman left, Jack trotted over to the stoop, picked up the pail with his teeth, carried it a short distance, set it down, took off the lid and drank nearly all the milk. Then he put on the lid and carried the pail back to the stoop.

Mrs. Moffatt told the clergyman's family about it, and soon the neighbors and the milkman all knew about the milk drinker.—New York Sun.

Boys and their Playmates.

Don't snub a boy because he wears shabby clothes. When Edison, the inventor, first entered Boston, he wore a pair of yellow linen breeches in the depth of winter.

Don't snub a boy because of the ignorance of his parents. Shakespeare, the world's poet, was the son of a man who was unable to write his own name.

Don't snub a boy because his home is plain and unpretending. Abraham Lincoln's early home was a plain and unpretending log cabin.

Don't snub a boy because he chooses a humble trade. The author of "Pilgrim's Progress" was a tinker.

Don't snub a boy because of his physical disability. Milton was blind.

Don't snub a boy because of dullness in his lesson. Hogarth, the celebrated painter and engraver, was a stupid boy at his books. Demosthenes, the great orator of Greece, overcame a harsh and stammering voice.

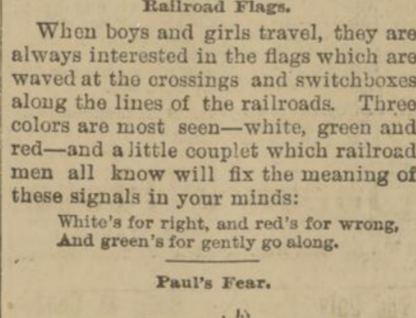

Don't snub him for any reason, not only because he may some day outstrip you in the race of life, but because it is neither kind nor right.—New York Record.

An Italian Game.

A traveler describes a game which is popular with the children of Italy. It is very like one played by American children. In Italy the game is called counting the eggs, and is thus played: The children sit in a row on the grass, with every pair of brown feet well in sight. The mother counts her eggs—that is, the children's feet—and then says: "Now, there are 16 eggs. Be sure you don't eat any while I go to church." In her absence the children tucked up a certain number of feet under their frocks and say, "What a long time mother is at church!" She comes home, counts the eggs and says: "Why, how is this? I left 16 and now there are only ten." The children answer that a woman came while she was gone and offered four chickens for the six eggs, and they took her offer. "Where are the eggs?" asked the mother. "Down in the field," they reply. The mother goes to seek them, and no sooner is her back turned than all her children jump and dance about, shouting, "We've eaten them ourselves," whereupon the mother has to catch them all and whip them. The last one caught has to be the mother the next time.

Railroad Flags. When boys and girls travel, they are always interested in the flags which are waved at the crossings and switchboxes along the lines of the railroads. Three colors are most seen—white, green and red—and a little couplet which railroad men all know will fix the meaning of these signals in your minds: White's for right, and red's for wrong, And green's for gently go along.

Paul's Fear.

"Why will you not walk in the woods?" said John to Paul one day. "Because I think it dangerous," the prudent father did say. "My father said the buds had all begun to shoot today, so I think 'twill be far safer for me to keep away."

Deafness.

An essay describing a really genuine cure for deafness, singing in ears, etc., no matter how severe or long-standing, will be sent post free. Artificial ear-drums and similar appliances entirely superseded. Address, Thomas Kempe, Victoria Chambers, 19 Southampton Buildings, Holborn, London.

"THE TOUGH GIRL."

Miss Ada Lewis, Who Created That Homely but Popular Stage Type.

Nearly every theater goer in the United States and Canada has at one time or another marvelled at the fidelity to life of the make-up of Ada Lewis, the actress who has created for herself a branch of theatrical art in which she stands pre-eminent. As a tough girl she is far from beautiful to look upon. In fact, she is about as unattractive, sullenly looking a female as can well be imagined.

Knowing the proneness of the members of the gentler sex to heighten their physical charms to the greatest possible extent, many persons have assumed from Miss Lewis' willingness to disfigure herself that she must have been very grudgingly treated by Dame Nature in the distribution of beauty. Nothing, however, could be further from the truth. Miss Lewis is really a particularly handsome girl, and the opportunity to demonstrate that fact is afforded her in "A Country Sport" in the last act, in which she is seen as a richly dressed woman of society.

The greatest tribute to Miss Lewis' ability in her peculiar line is the fact that at the present time there is scarcely a single well regulated farce comedy on the road without its tough girl, who in every case a very poor imitation of the original, who was discovered a few years ago by Edward Harrigan while he was in San Francisco, where Miss Lewis was playing small parts at the Alcazar theater. When "Reilly and the Four Hundred" was produced in New York, the tough girl made the hit of the piece. Since that time Miss Lewis' services have been in constant demand at a large salary. She has received numerous offers to star, but so far has not decided to tempt fortune to that extent.

BULLARD AND WATSON.

They Are Working Hard to Give Harvard a Winning Boat Crew.

Will the Watson stroke become as famous as a winner for Harvard as the Cook stroke has been for Yale? is a question all Harvard men are hoping to see answered in the affirmative. R. E. Watson, who was graduated from the Cambridge seat of learning in 1893, has been given full charge of the crew for three years, and Harvard will do her level best to train a winning crew. All sorts of rowing methods have been practiced at Harvard for years past, and now one method is to be given a trial long enough to demonstrate its efficiency or failure. It would seem about time for the adoption of some such policy when it is remembered that in 15 years the Harvard varsity crew has beaten Yale but four times.

This year's crew is captained by J. R. Bullard, an oarsman of experience, who rowed at No. 2 in last year's vanquished eight. The veteran Fennessy, who is now rowing in the varsity crew for the third time and who has twice quaffed the bitter cup of defeat, was first chosen captain, but he did not harmonize with Coach Watson and resigned the office. Bullard never rowed until last year, and since his career as an oarsman began he has occupied every seat in the Harvard boat.

IN THE WHEELING WORLD.

"Le Grand Zim" is the way they speak of the world's champion in France. Dr. Parkhurst is one of the most recent converts to cycling in New York city. A cycle manufacturer in Austria who made only 700 machines in 1888 made 10,000 in 1894.

The Associated Cycling Clubs of New Jersey will co-operate with the Metropolitan Association of Cycling Clubs in having the Irvington-Millburn road race on May 30.

Windle, Bliss, Manger, W. F. Murphy, Taylor, Lumsden, Githens, Rhodes, Gatt, French and Hoyland Smith are among the men who have retired from the cycle racing track. Now that John S. Johnson proposes to race as a professional in France there will be an interesting battle for first place honors between George Barr, Harry Wheeler and Johnson.

During the L. A. W. championships Asbury Park will have a special warehouse for storing bicycles. The bicycles can be cleaned, checked, repaired and insured at this place. League members will not have to pay for these privileges.

Willard Spencer and the Chorus Girl. The following story is told of a chorus girl who was a member of the Princess Bonnie Comic Opera company and of Willard Spencer, author of the piece. The girl wished to resign from "Princess Bonnie" in order to join "Off the Earth."

She asked Mr. Spencer's permission to leave his company. Spencer refused, whereupon she packed her trunk, stole away and sent the following telegram to Mr. Spencer: "You coward! Watch my pen in future." Mr. Spencer telegraphed back, "Express your today 25 bottles of ink and 100 nans."
