CHAPTER LV.—Continued.

Lady Maud, although she strove to appear calm, was perceptibly agitated. She raised her eyes to those of Lady Kingswood, and found them fastened upon her with a searching look of inquiry. Maud dropped her eyes again, and remained silent and motionless. Lady Kingswood remembered that Maud in her sleep-wanderings had returned to her chamber from the direction of the library. She remembered that she had met her but with a radiant smile upon her face, and a rosy tint upon her cheek. What did it mean? Could her visit have any connection with the strange story Philip had been relating to them? Lady Kingswood had a strange misgiving that it might. She turned an ashen white as the thought flashed through her mind. She resolved to question Maud closely upon this point and to search narrowly into it. When Maud was alone with her she believed would be the time to probe her heart. Judging her by her own nature, she felt that she would not answer one question which might be put to her upon this most strange and—to her—alarming subject; and therefore, in the quietude of her own chamber, she believed she might unravel all.

Lady Maud bent a sidelong glance on Lady Kingswood's face, and read what was passing in her mind. Her bosom heaved and fell, the breath came heavily through her inflated nostrils, and her eyelids fell trembling over her humid eyes.

Philip, finding that Lady Maud returned him no reply, continued—

"I am not superstitious, I have no weak fancies or foolish terrors; I place my own interpretation upon what has occurred, and I will put myself in the position of giving a true reading of the whole mystery. I have already made some arrangements, and I shall at once perfect them, so that I may obtain a meeting with the phantom, whether it be in the Chace or in the old library. I will know his motive for re-appearing, Lady Maud, and he shall know how I will accept and treat it."

Lady Kingswood uttered a shriek, for Lady Maud fell upon the ground with a crash as if she had been made of stone, rigid and lifeless.

Philip rushed forward and raised her, but Lady Kingswood absolutely snatched her from his arms.

"No, no, no! No! you! Go, go, go, Mr. Avon; I will recover her. I will restore her; but it must be alone. Go, sir, I entreat—I command you!"

Lady Kingswood spoke with such a stern imperativeness that he was impelled to obey, but he muttered, as he quitted the room—

"It is as I suspected. I will meet the ghost in the wood this time. My hand and eye shall not fail me. I will lay the ghost, and then, Lady Maud, I will bring you to my feet."

He passed hastily out of Kingswood Hall, and strode across the park in the direction of the Chace.

CHAPTER LVI.

Pharisee, firmly grasped in the arms of the skeleton, fell into convulsions of horror. It has been before stated that he was superstitious; he had a morbidly nervous fear of aught that pertained to death, whether it was the human clay in calm repose shortly after life had departed, or whether it was in the form of a grisly skeleton or the indistinct shape of a spectre.

The cold, bony grip, and the scent of the skeleton were in too positive contact with him to admit of calm reasoning, and he therefore continued his shrieks and his struggles, until by accident his elbow touched the hitherto unfound knob, a pressure upon which would open the door of the cell, and open it accordingly.

One fierce wrench, and he was out of the grasp of the skeleton, upon the floor, while the skeleton itself leaned half out of the cupboard,

"Grinning horribly a ghastly smile," as though the recent passage and present result afforded the hideous object the most intense gratification.

He covered his eyes with his hands; he panted and groaned, until he began to feel a little recovered, and then it occurred to him that he had got to make his escape out of this room.

He rushed to the windows—they were barred; he made for the door—but he remembered old Pengreep's words as he closed it behind him when he departed, and he recollected also the unpleasant click of the lock as the bolt shot into its receptacle.

He hammered with both hands on the door, but no sound but the reverberations of his own fists met his ear, and he threw up his hands and stamped about the apartment in wild despair.

Where was Albertina?—she knew of his incarceration. She had a master-key—why did she not liberate him?

He did not doubt her truth to him; in fact, with a kind of faintness, he recalled her anxiety to become his bride. Why, then, did she not come to his rescue?

He called to her in dulcet strains, but she answered not, and then he yelled to her at the very pitch of his voice with stentorian strength, but with no better effect.

At the very moment he was trying to devise some desperate remedy for his desperate position, his eye caught sight of rope dangling down the chimney and resting on the stove.

He rushed to it and seized it; it was held from above. He turned his eyes up the chimney, and saw a glimmering of light above. Almost at the same moment a gruff, hoarse voice, which he recognised at once to be Albertina's, called down the sooty shaft—

"Below there!"

"My angel," he responded, sending his voice upwards, "I am here—what am I to do to get out?"

"Climb up the chimney; the rope is tied fast up here," was the answer.

At such a moment as this, and in such a condition as that in which he was placed, what need was there of parley? He introduced himself into the chimney, seized the rope, set to work to raise himself by hands and knees, and persevered continuously until he emerged at the top begrimed with soot so completely that not a feature of his face was visible.

It must be acknowledged that Albertina, as soon as his head and shoulders appeared, with a spasmodic cry of joy, seized him and dragged him out.

He shook himself and a cloud of soot arose. He gazed around him; he could see half over London. He was upon a flat roof, and the fresh air blew over his face strongly and not unpleasantly, except that it forced the particles of soot up his nose and compelled him to sneeze violently and continuously.

As soon as he could speak, he said, hastily—

"Let us fly."

"Don't be afraid, ducky," replied Albertina. "We are pretty safe from the hyena here. These are our leads, where I hangs my little wash to dry, though what with the smoke and what with the blacks, they looks as yaller and smeary when they are dry as if they had not been washed at all."

"But I want to get away from this cursed place," cried Pharisee with a running fire of sneezes.

"So do I, chucky," she answered; "but business is business, that is what Pengreep says, and those are my sentiments. Where's the packet of the Kingswood papers?"

Aye, to be sure, where was that packet? It had gone from Pharisee's gaze, and he had not the remotest notion of what had become of it.

He ran his hands over his pockets and his body.

"I haven't got it," he said, with a mystified expression on his face—that is, upon as much of it as was sufficiently clear of soot to betray any expression.

"That's a lie, my dearest darling!" she responded, with great rapidity and more ferocity. "You snatched it out of my hands just as we heard Pengreep and Mr. Vernon at the door. Where is it? Come, you beauty, no tricks, or I'll chuck you into the street and say you fell off the roof."

"But I haven't got it, my princess—dropped somewhere in the room below when I hid myself," he replied, with a shudder.

"Then you must go back for it, you precious, sweet idiot, you," she responded. "I will help you up again, and take it from you when you get to the top, love."

"No, I'll be dashed it I do!" he cried, with vehemence. "I was locked up with that awful skeleton; that's where the packet is. I recollect now, that when the frightful object caught me round the waist and cuddled me, I dropped it."

"Why, you fool, the object is only bones, it won't hurt you," she retorted, and added—"There, there, little pet cherub, run back with you—it won't take you a minute."

"Haven't you got a key to the door?" he asked.

"I have, but the tiger has got a secret lock which he uses occasionally," she answered. "He has used it to-day, and I have no key to touch it. Come, tumble down the chimney. There's a dovey!"

"And I don't do it for two hundred packages of Kingswood papers," cried Pharisee deliriously. "I would rather fling myself, as you suggest, into the street, and there would then be an end of my woes, myself, and your affianced husband, all together."

"Then you won't go, pet lamb?" she said, exhibiting her fangs to him.

"I will decidedly be dashed first, and then I won't, my sweetest angel!" he replied.

"You are afraid, you cowardly dove, you are," she suggested, viciously.

"I admit the weakness, my bride elect no longer; and I positively do not go down that tunnel into the room, not even to win your fascinating self. Let me go away from this place," he said, making for the outlet to the stairs.

She stopped him.

"I will go myself, you cowardly enchanter," she exclaimed, with emphasis.

"You, my seraph!" he cried, with amazement.

"Yes," she returned; but you must help me, you spoiled lamb, to get up again."

"I will, my noble Albertina," he cried, eagerly.

Albertina might before have entered old Pengreep's room by this route, or she might not; but it was very certain that she went about the preliminary steps in a very business like way.

She sat on the chimney-stack, swung her feet into the orifice, caught hold of the rope, and said to him—

"You must haul me up when I halloo—I can't climb well, cherub."

"Call out when you are ready, and I'll pull you up like a sailor does a bucket of water on board a steamboat," he replied, rubbing his begrimed hands with felicity.

Albertina drew a long breath, and down she heroically dived. Pharisee looked down after her, and heard a crumbling, a fall of mortar and pieces of brick, which he knew to be Albertina coring the chimney as she descended.

Presently all was still, and he presumed that she was safely in the room. He felt so stifled, and sneezed so violently, that he found it impossible to continue to hold his head over the chimney; he, therefore, coughing, hemming, and trying other modes to clear his throat, awaited Albertina's summons with his mouth perked up heavenwards.

In a few minutes he heard hollow tones ascend the chimney, and he called down—

"Are you ready, love?"

To which a hollow voice responded—

"All right, hubby, darling. I've got it haul away."

As soon as she was fairly out of the chimney, she released her legs nimbly, and shook herself. Pharisee was electrified by her appearance, and but for what had happened, could have laughed convulsively at her. He was surprised she did not scold him, and he said, in a depreciating voice—

"I am very sorry——"

"There, never mind, my chick," she interrupted, hastily. "Now, listen to me, we haven't an instant to lose. I will put you into Pengreep's room, and I will go in my own; you must wash and change your clothes; there are plenty of Pengreep's to wear. We can't go abroad the objects we are now, for if even not taken up by the police, we shall be easily tracked. Quick, quick, lovey; our happiness and our fortunes depend upon our getting away from this house in a few minutes."

"But the packet," he said, anxiously, for he could not see it.

"Aha!" she chuckled, gutturally as her throat was lined with soot. "I have that in a place safe enough. Come along."

With that she seized hold of him, and dragged him on to the staircase, and descending a flight, bundled him into a bed-chamber.

"Look sharp; I don't know one minute from another now that Pengreep may be back."

[THE REVELATION INTERRUPTED.]

As that was a hint which made Pharisee's back open and shut, he dived into the chamber, divested himself of such part of his clothing as was necessary, performed a rapid ablution, attired himself, found a pair of spectacles with blinkers, put them on, and descended the stairs just as his Albertina was arising from her grotto.

Albertina had completely metamorphosed herself. She wore upon her head a very large bonnet of the fashion of a remote date, and over it was a thick veil. From her shoulders depended a large black cloak of extensive dimensions; what beneath she wore he could not see, but she appeared at least three times her usual circumference.

"I am ready," she said, with a cackle.

"Your luggage?" he softly suggested.

"I have none but what you see," she replied. "Money, money, money!" she gibbered; "that is in the bank in stocks, in the funds. I have got the books with me."

"You are such a business-like seraph," he said.

"You naughty child," she responded, "if you don't go, old Pengreep will pop in and stop us."

In a moment Pharisee was on the doorstep, closely followed by Albertina, who slammed the door behind her.

"Follow me," she said, in a low tone. "I know the way to take."

NATURAL HISTORY.

"BUSY BEES."—The king of bees is stingless, "armed only with his majestic port." Modern science regards this so-called king as a mother and monarch of the hive. It is found that she lives four years, and is hatched from the egg in fourteen days; while the workers require twenty-one days, and the drones twenty-four. These strange figures are part of the mystery attaching to bees. but a still more curious fact connected with this point is, that the bees have the power at will of developing common eggs into queen bees. This is done by removing an egg into a royal cell, and feeding the little grub with a substance of a milky gelatinous appearance, known as "royal jelly." These facts have been ascertained by Mr. Pettigrew, one of the most successful bee-keepers of the day; though what the exact analysis of this "royal jelly" may be is utterly unknown.

THE AFFECTION FOR A MOTHER.—A singular and affecting trait is recorded of the bison when young. Whenever a cow bison falls by the hand of the hunter, and happens to have a calf, the helpless creature, instead of attempting to escape, stays by its fallen dam, with many expressions of strong affection. The mother being secured, the hunter makes no attempt on the calf, because this is unnecessary, but proceeds to cut up the carcase; and then, laying it on his horse, he returns home, followed by the young one, which thus instinctively accompanies the remains of its parent. A hunter once rode into the town of Cincinnati, between the Miames, followed in this manner by three calves, all of which had just lost their dams.

MUSK-RATS.—Musk-rats have a curious method of travelling long distances under ice. In their winter excursions to their feeding-grounds, which are frequently at great distances from their abodes, they take in breath at starting, and remain under water as long as they can. They then rise to the ice, and exhale the air in their lungs; this remains in bubbles against the surface of the ice. They wait till this air recovers oxygen from the water and ice, and then, re-inhaling it, go on till the operation has to be repeated. In this way they can travel almost any distance, and live any length of time under the ice. The trapper occasionally takes advantage of this habit of the musk-rat. When the marshes and ponds where these animals abound are frozen over, and the ice is comparatively thin and clear, they can be seen swimming away under it. Following one some distance, the trapper sees it come up to renew its breath in the manner described. After the animal has exhaled, and before it has time to take in the reoxygenized air in the bubbles again, he strikes with his hatchet directly over it, and drives away its breath. In this case the rat drowns in swimming a few rods, and the trapper, cutting a hole in the ice, takes it out. Minks, otters and beavers travel under ice in the same way, and hunters, it is stated, frequently take otters in the same manner.

TRAITS OF ANIMALS.—Dogs certainly feel shame when detected in doing wrong. The faculty of imitation is present in monkeys. Parrots also reproduce with wonderful fidelity the tones of voice of different speakers, and puppies reared by cats have been known to lick their feet and wash their faces after the same manner as their foster-mothers. Attention and memory, also, are present in the lower animals, and it is impossible to deny that the dreams of dogs and horses show the presence of imagination. Animals also profit by experience, as any man realizes who sets traps. The young are much more easily caught than the old, and the adults gain caution by seeing the fate of those which are caught. Tools also are used by some of the higher apes. The chimpanzee uses a stone to crack a nut resembling a walnut, and the Abyssinian baboons fight troops of other species, and roll down stones in the attack before they finally close in a hand-to-hand encounter. The idea of property is common also to every dog with a bone, to all birds with their nests, and notably in the case of rooks. Nor can certain kind of language be denied to the brutes. The dog communicates his feelings by barks of different tones, which undoubtedly raise in his fellow-dogs ideas similar to those passing in his own mind.

AGRICULTURAL.

BEETS.—At a recent meeting of the Little Falls Farmers' Club, in the course of a paper on roots, Mr. Harris Lewis stated the cost of raising beets on his farm last season—for labor in ploughing, manuring, cultivating, and harvesting, cost of seed and sowing—at $46.80 per acre; which, as the yield was 900 bushels, is equal to about 5¼ cents a bushel, or, allowing also for value of manure used and interest on land, about 7½ cts. a bushel. He adds: "A crop of yellow globes and imperial beets were grown on a part of the same land the year previous, at a cost of about seventy dollars per acre; yet the yield was so much greater that the cost of the roots was about two cents per bushel less than the cost of the crop last year." Mr. Lewis advocates feeding cattle a regular portion of roots each day the whole time they are confined from pasture in cold weather, and believes that beets are actually worth 24 cents a bushel for feeding cows, as compared with hay at $20 a ton.

REQUISITES OF GOOD MORTAR.—It does not necessarily follow that because the lime is good the quality of the mortar will be good also. The best lime ever burnt would be spoilt by the custom, common among some builders, of mixing with it alluvial soil and rubbish taken from the foundation pits of intended buildings. The sand should be hard, sharp, gritty, and for engineering purposes, not too fine; it should be perfectly free from all organic matter, and with no particular smell. Good sand for mortar may be rubbed between the hands without soiling them. The water should also be free from all organic matter, and on this account should never be taken from stagnant ponds. The presence of salt in sand and water is not found to impair the ultimate strength of most mortars. Nevertheless, it causes the work to "nitrate," or, as it is commonly termed, "saltpetre," which consists of white frothy blotches appearing on the face of the structure. It also renders the mortar liable to moisture, and for these reasons should never be present in mortar intended for architectural purposes, although for dock-walls and sea-works it may be generally be used with advantage and economy. Sand is used to increase the resistance of mortar to crushing, to lessen the amount of shrinking, and to reduce the bulk of the more costly material, lime. Water is the agent by which a combination is effected, and, as sand does not increase in volume by moisture, it necessarily follows that no more of the aqueous element should be employed than is absolutely necessary to fill the interstices between the sand, and render the whole into a paste convenient for use; and the greater strictness which this is adhered to the more compact and durable will be the mortar.

To Can Fruit.

A correspondent of the Rural New Yorker furnishes some excellent ideas about canning fruit. She says:

Use only fresh fruit and that which is perfectly ripe, not too soft, but just right to eat well. Fill your cans full of fruit, put the can in a kettle of cold water, put a few iron rings in the bottom of the pot to prevent the cans from breaking; then put over a slow fire at first, making it hotter after the can has become hot. Too great a heat at first will crack the cans at the bottom. Meanwhile, make a nice syrup of white sugar, and when your fruit is half-done cooking pour your syrup over the fruit in the cans and continue boiling until done; remove from the fire and seal. Some people cook their fruit before putting it in cans, but it does not preserve its natural flavor as well, neither will the syrup be as clear.

Cooking the fruit in the can is the proper way of canning fruit, in my estimation. I use half a pound of sugar to a quart jar of fruit; cherries, peaches, pears and raspberries will do with six ounces. Cook quart jars twenty to thirty minutes, according to hardness of fruit. Keep watch of your cans while boiling, and as fast as the fruit in the can lowers, fill it up with well ripened fruit; next morning test your jars; if they do not hold, boil them over again. In ten days from time of canning, test your fruit again, and if the cover holds them it will stand for years, as I have some now nearly four years, or longer. By testing ten days after canning, you will never be awakened in the night by a loud report as of a gun going off, as I have heard people tell about, and breaking some half dozen cans nearest to it. Keep your cans in a cool but not a damp place.

Lawn Trees.

The rule that forbids fruit trees on the pleasure lawn is good, only with some generous exceptions. Many varieties of pears make fine lawn trees; so also the English cherries. For avenues the stately Buffum pear are as good as Lombardy poplars—allowing neither of them to be of great value for shade. There are even varieties of apples that take a form compact and symmetrical or graceful enough to work in with the groups of purely ornamental trees. Among these are the Spy, the Kirkland, and Belle Boone.

Among dwarf trees for a small lawn nothing can surpass dwarf cherries, either for form, blossom, or fruit. Look out for borers and plant mostly the Earl Richmond.

Among the American trees there are few to surpass the basswood or linden. It has more good qualities than any other, but it lacks, of course, any value for timber. It is graceful as well as symmetrical in outline; its foliage is rich and generous; it is capital for shade; it colors finely in Autumn; and, above all, it is a fine honey tree. When in blossom it sends out a spicy breeze that is simply exquisite. I have my bee-house in a grove of linden, planted for that purpose. Although not weeping, like the elm, it is not stiff either in outlines or growth—at least, no more so than the maple. Its shafts are as straight as an arrow can fly, and you can hardly induce it to take on a growth unsuited to the lawn.

In planting elms—which, of course, every one does who owns a large lawn or park—care should be taken in selecting not only varieties, but specimens of the true white weeping elm. Some specimens show very early indications of a weeping habit, a rich foliage, and rapid growth. Others thrust out their arms like boxers and always stand on the defensive. No attention or care will make royal trees of them. If such have been planted, get others, fresh and shapely, and plant near them. Let the old ones stand until the new ones can give shade and are crowding, then remove.

Among lawn trees one of the finest is the anomalous thornless three-thorned acacia. Its triple-branched thorns are all in the name. Seedlings of the thornless variety will occasionally come free of every vestige of even a briar—smooth enough to climb and slide down, boy fashion. In these we get that delicacy of foliage which distinguishes the acacia and is so peculiarly fine by moonlight.

One of the best protections against the borers, that attack apples, quinces, and at times the beech, ash, and other lawn trees, is coal ashes, pressed down, in quantity according to the size of the tree. The part that needs special protection is the collar of the tree, where the bark is soft. Coal ashes are porous and allow the air to reach the roots, so that a mulch of several inches will do no harm.

The American oaks are almost universally neglected in planting lawns, but no foreign trees can possibly surpass a grove of the different varieties that honor our forests. Add a grove of walnut and another of hickory, if possible. If there is not room for a grove, at least have specimen trees. Then give the Norway maple room with your native maples, without fail. For rich foliage and fine growth it leads the whole maple family.

Improving Meadows.

Just after haying is finished every farmer knows exactly where he cut the heaviest grass, and just where the unproductive acres are, and then is the proper time to improve them. It is too generally believed that when a meadow has become sod bound and unproductive, a course of ploughing and cropping by rotation and seeding down is necessary, in order to obtain a heavy growth of grass.

This method is good, providing two difficulties are overcome; first, when only a portion of a field requires renewing, it is difficult to remove a crop of corn (which is almost invariably raised first) from the ground in time to secure the fall feed on the balance of the field before the frost has injured it, as the meadow becomes too wet and soft to allow cattle and horses to tramp upon it. Second, when soil is once turned, farmers are apt to keep it under the plough too long; hence so many acres of poor land upon the farms of Ohio husbandmen. Land should always be stocked down before the old sod has entirely rotted away. The two above named difficulties have kept hundreds of acres of meadow land lying in an almost useless condition for years.

Experience has taught many, however, that to renovate meadow land ploughing is not required. The partly barren places should be marked out, and in the month of September receive a good top dressing of manure and be thoroughly harrowed up, dragged until the old sod is entirely broken up and torn in pieces, then stocked with one peck of pure timothy seed per acre, and dragged lightly.

The trouble is the grass roots becoming so compacted and interwoven that they cannot ramify, and foreign matter works in. A coat of manure, thorough harrowing and seeding will cause sufficient increase of grass the first year to more than pay for labor bestowed. If in the fall it is discovered that by reason of drouth or any other cause the seed has not grown, it should be restocked without dragging in the latter part of March. We have had the best luck when stocking in spring by sowing upon a light snow.

There is another thing that too many farmers neglect, and that is the putting of meadows in proper shape for the mowing machine. The time spent mowing around stumps, hillocks, logs and trees, with a hand scythe, amounts to more in a season or two than would be required to remove them all, and make the meadow forever afterwards clear and smooth.

We have noticed that farmers who apply all of their barn manure to their meadows in the fall produce the heaviest crops of all kinds upon their farms. The reason is this: manure lying in the pile until fall becomes decomposed and more valuable, and it being all applied to meadows, there is none for ploughed ground. So but two or three crops will be taken off, then sown to clover and the second crop ploughed under, then stocked down, and a new piece ploughed. It makes easy tillage and large profits.—Ohio Farmer.

WIT AND HUMOR.

Farmers gather what they sow, while seamstresses sew what they gather.

"Are there any fools in this town?" asked a stranger of a newsboy yesterday. "I don't know," replied the boy. "Are you lonesome?"

Said Mrs. A. to Mrs. B., "Don't you think that Mr. C. has a remarkable stock of common sense?" "He ought to have," replied Mrs. B., "for no one ever saw him use any."

"Pat," said a joker, "why don't you get your ears cropped? They are much too long for a man." "And yours," replied Pat, "ought to be lengthened; they are too short for an ass."

Devout mother to young lady, who is burning up letters: "What are you doing there, my dear? Are you burning incense?" Young lady: "Oh! no, ma. I am only burning nonsense."

A countryman took his seat at an hotel table opposite to a gentleman who was indulging in a bottle of wine. Supposing the wine to be common property, our unsophisticated country friend helped himself to it with the gentleman's glass. "That's cool!" exclaimed the owner of the glass indignantly. "Yes," replied the other; "I should think there was ice in it."

A lady asked an old uncle who had been an attorney, but left off business, what were the requisites for going to law; to which he replied: "Why, niece, it depends upon a number of circumstances. In the first place, you must have a good cause. Secondly, a good attorney. Thirdly, a good counsel. Fourthly, good evidence. Fifthly, a good jury. Sixthly, a good judge. And lastly, good luck."

Have We a Government?

The rumors as to the position of the Local Ministry and its members are beginning to be as mystifying as the reports about Riel's whereabouts a short time back. The Herald says:—"The friends of Mr. Robertson will learn with pleasure that his consideration of the Tanneries Land Swap has led to his resignation of the office recently held by him in the Provincial Ministry."

The Gazette thinks Mr. Robertson "intends to resign," and adds, "it is certain that the Treasurer cannot delay his action much longer without seriously compromising himself."

The Quebec Mercury, on the other hand, declares that Mr. Robertson will swallow the Land Swap, and remain with Ouimet & Co., who will hold on to office and try to brave out the storm in the Legislature.

The position can scarcely be called creditable to either the Ministers, the Lieut.-Governor or the Province. If there are any explanations or extenuating circumstances to be made known, the public should be at once made acquainted with the same. As matters stand the Government appears either too stupid to be longer entrusted with the reins of power, or too venal to be trusted with anything. If they can clear away this impression, we shall be glad to aid in circulating the evidence.

Coming Christian Conferences.

Almost contemporaneous with the old Catholic Congress at Bonn, invitations to attend which have been issued by Dr. Dollinger to the Protestant Churches, will be the great Evangelical alliance which meets in the commercial metropolis of Canada. One of the most hopeful signs of the times is that there does seem to be spread abroad among Christians a desire for closer union and fellowship beyond what has been known at any period since the reformation. We firmly believe that this is a real, genuine, deep-seated desire, not a mere superficial cant. The divisions of Protestants have so notoriously weakened them in past ages, both as contrasted with the close unity of the Roman Catholic communion and the sedulous attacks of unbelief, that all earnest believers in Bible Christianity feel the absolute need in the interests of truth of a deeper sympathy and co-operation between the members of the various Churches. It is not difficult to account for this phenomenon of modern Christianity. The triumphs of locomotion have had much to do with it. A better acquaintance with God's world, and an enlarged experience of the human family in the different climes of the globe opens the mind more effectually than anything else. By mixing largely with men of different views, the discovery is made that differences of opinion have often been grossly exaggerated through ignorance and prejudice. A fundamental basis of agreement is seen to under-lie the apparent diversities and discrepancies. By conversation and courtesy men in the words of Tennyson "rub each others angles down." Mutual toleration and forbearance is found to be a real virtue and pleasure, sweetening the temper, and seldom or never demanding an invasion of the realms of conscience and truth. For in a world of uncertainties like ours, truth can only win its way by discussions; the falsehoods which are the counterfeits of truth disappear when a truth is examined from various standpoints, and in its relation to other truths. Great good is generally believed to have resulted to the mind and spirit of hundreds at the interesting gathering in New York twelve months ago, and we earnestly hope that a like and still more abundant good may issue from the congress in the old world at Bonn and in the new world at Montreal.

Dastardly Tactics.

A short time ago one of the large sheets of plate glass in Brahadi's well-known hat and fur store, Notre Dame street, was mysteriously broken from the street by some person or persons unknown. To replace the glass cost $100, to say nothing of the inconvenience occasioned. That the breaking was intentional there could be no doubt, but until yesterday the motive for the act was hidden in mystery. Yesterday, however, Mr. Brahadi received an explanatory letter, which runs as follows:

"MONTREAL, Sept. 3, 1874.

"A. BRAHADI.—You d—— raskel if you don't shut the same as others do after breaking your glass the next thing we will do we break your d—— head let this be the last notice.

"I am your obd't. serviter
"So & So."

The bad spelling and punctuation seem to be intentional.

We learn from Mr. Brahadi that as he lives on the premises, he closes his establishment as the demands of his customers permit, but generally at eight or shortly after. His shopmen have never complained of the hours. He supposes that the outrages he has been subjected to are the work of either rivals, jealous of the reputation his establishment enjoys, or else shopmen who resort to such deeds with the view of intimidating him into adopting their cast-iron early closing ideas. As a body, the hatters and furriers of Montreal are a very respectable class and occupy a foremost position in the mercantile community, and we feel sure that the exposure of this disgraceful attack upon one of their number will arouse a deep feeling of indignation that will show itself in a determination to search out the guilty party or parties, and bring them to justice. We are also sure that all respectable workingmen will repudiate such cowardly tactics, and all who practise them. Let us have honorable rivalry by all means—it is the life of trade—and we have nothing to say against the orderly endeavors of any body of employees to curtail the hours of labor where such hours are exceptionally and unreasonably long, but such deeds as we have above chronicled evidence a spirit of lawlessness, malignity and deep rooted hatred such as would lead its unhappy possessor to commit any foul crime, and it is not good for the community that it should be allowed to vaunt itself defiantly. The trade owe it to themselves to leave no stone unturned to unmask the man or men in their midst who are guilty of these things, and we confidently expect that a determined effort to that end will be made.

As regards Mr. Brahadis employees, he informs us that he has some who have worked for him as long as eighteen years—sufficiently good proof, we take it, that his terms are not unreasonable.

It behoves the police authorities to do their best to unearth the partners in this wicked conspiracy.

ROUND TOWN.

—The ss. "Corinthian has arrived at Glasgow.

—Depth of water on Lake St. Peter flats, 12 feet 6 inches.

—The cheap tickets for the Saguenay trip have been extended to cover a fortnight.

—Mrs. Timmis, aged 40, residing in St. Dominique street, died suddenly this morning from congestion of the brain.

—Francois Barbeau, while working at No. 3 Elevator, met with a severe contusion of the right leg. He is at the General Hospital.

—Pierre Charet, an old man employed in a factory on Duke street, fell while crossing the yard yesterday and had his hip-bone fractured.

—Richard Scholes, the driver of the Babcock, injured by a fall yesterday, is progressing favorably. The engine will cost about $200 to repair. Send the bill to the C. P. R. Co.

—Mary Connolly, formerly of Kempt street, died this morning at the General Hospital from the effects of a broken leg received about a month ago, and an injured constitution, brought on by intemperance.

—Late yesterday afternoon Charles Marseillaise, a mason employed at the new Post Office, was badly crushed by a mishap to one of the derricks. He was conveyed to his home. Mr. Dufort, son of the contractor, was also slightly injured.

—The following gentlemen are at the St. Lawrence Hall:—Captain Jamieson, H. M. S. "Argus;" V. D. Rickerd and M. Laborde, and R. Gubbins, of the "Bellerophon;" Mr. Graham Snaith, R.N., Quebec, and Mr. O'Grady Haly, of Halifax, son of the Commander of the Forces in B. N A.

—The action instituted yesterday against Messrs. Cramp, Molson, Thomas and Shanley was instituted by the McGill College authorities, not the Council of Arts. The plaintiffs sue for the interest on a mortgage on the Crystal Palace property—the defendents having purchased said property and refused to meet the claim.

Ocean arrivals:—Barque "Winifred," Pernambuco, Redpath & Son, sugar; schooner "Emma," Cow Bay, C.B., W. A. Charlebois, coal; schooner "Ferdoras Arca," Baddeck, C.B., W. A. Charlebois, plaster; ship "Medora," Glasgow, H. & A. Allan, general. Departures:—Barque "C. Costa," Liverpool, Gianelli, lumber; brig "Fido," Montevideo, Gianelli, lumber.

—Cabin passengers per ss. "Scandinavian," for Liverpool: Hugh A. Allan, A. A. Allan, Jason Smith, Mrs. Hampton, Miss Foote, J. W. Taylor, F. M. Joseph, Mr. Drummond, R. Paterson, A. Hope, Mr. Draymer McTavish, Mr. and Mrs. H. McDonald, Mr. Everitt, J. Coates, Mr. Hamilton, J. H. Hardman, Mr. Reynolds, G. J. Jones, Mr. Hobson, Mr. Fuller, Miss Campbell.

—A fire was discovered about 6.30 this a.m. in Young & McNaughton's shirt and collar factory, St. James street. The men of No. 2 station were called and succeeded in mastering the flames after a tough fight. The fire was caused by a patent iron, and had extended to the rafters; a quantity of linen was destroyed. A woman living opposite says she saw the fire smouldering and flickering last night, but, strange to say, did not think it worth while to give an alarm. The loss amounts to about $800; insured in the Royal Canadian and two other offices.

—With reference to an item relative to the quality of bricks supplied the Corporation by Mr. Chester, we are informed that the statement was greatly exaggerated. Mr. Chester says that, despite most explicit instructions the loader of the barges are apt to mix the bricks; he, however, gave instructions to the carters at the wharves not to carry any "soft" bricks to the Corporation yard, that if they did so they would have to re-cart them at their own expense. Out of 10,000 it seems there were about a cart load of soft. These were rejected by the Corporation, and sold at once to a Montreal builder at $8 per thousand.

—Messrs. Pierre Lacroix, carpenters and contractors, have instituted an action of damages against the Corporation for $11,131.10. They were the contractors who took the job of performing the carpentering work in connection with the new City Hall, but as the Corporation was dissatisfied with the quality of timber that they were using, and at the rate of speed at which it progressed, took the job from them. They now sue for $10,000, being the sum which, "by the executing of their contract," they would have made as clear profit, and $1,131.10, being the cost of the work they actually did.

JOURNALISTIC.

The St. Johns, P.Q., News is printed this week from a new fount of type, and presents quite a creditable appearance. The News is a newsy sheet, and the St. Johns folks seem to appreciate it.

THEATRE ROYAL.

As a theatre-going people Montrealers are peculiar. At times they will crowd into the Thespian Temple if a flashy, sensational piece is announced, then they will utterly forsake it if a standard drama is produced, while a Shakesperian play will generally "fetch them right away." So it was last night. During the week Lillie Eldridge has been playing the modern drama to scanty houses, but Romeo and Juliet served to draw an audience that did one's eyes good. Taken altogether the cast was very fair. As Juliet, Miss Eldridge quickly won the good opinions of her audience and fully sustained the high character which the American critics have set upon her impersonation. At the close of each act there was an enthusiastic call, to which the fair beneficiaire gracefully responded. Mr. Mitchell made a fair Romeo and Miss Andrews did full justice (as she always does) to the character assigned her—the Nurse. Mr. Ward was at home as Friar Lawrence, and the support generally was good. To-night Miss Eldridge will make her last appearance.

PROBABILITIES.

WASHINGTON, 1 a.m., Sept. 5.

Over the Lake region, falling barometer, southeasterly winds, stationary and higher temperature, cloudy weather and light rains. Over New England, stationary barometer, east and south winds, partly cloudy weather, and possibly light rain.

NOON TELEGRAMS.

News of New York.

[Special to THE STAR.]

NEW YORK, Sept. 5.

Wall street exhibited a firmer and healthier tone yesterday, especially at the close, when the highest point of the day was reached.

It is generally agreed that should Moulton fail in rendering his forthcoming statement unanswerable the victory on Beecher's part will be complete, so far as the case can be so settled outside of the courts. Tilton says he knows nothing of Moulton's present movements nor of his intentions regarding the time for publishing the statements. It is believed, however, that Tilton intends to be guided greatly by the nature of Moulton's statement in preparing his own, and that the success of both documents will depend much on the strength of it. If Moulton brings up any new important facts the Investigating Committee will meet and consider them, and present the subsidiary report to the Church.

Michael Mooney, a wealthy contractor, was mortally wounded in the abdomen by a gang of thieves on First Avenue early this morning.

A letter from Nashville, Tenn., published in the Herald, gives particulars of an interview with Governor Brown concerning the Southern disturbances, particularly those in his State. He attributes the troubles wholly to the agitation of the Civil Rights' Bill, before which masked marauders there were unheard of. One great provocation of the present troubles was the insulting inflammatory demand uttered by leading negroes, in a public convention, declaring their right to marry white women and to send their children to school with the whites, even if they had to wade through blood. This incensed the whites, and the Civil Rights' Bill soon became a test for office. The whites would not nominate or elect any one who favored it; then threats were made, culminating in the present outrages.

Gov. Brown then gave details of a negro plot to burn the adjacent village and kill the residents, which was frustrated. The ring leaders were arrested; several of them were lynched, but the lynchers will be punished. He anticipates no more trouble unless the negroes are incited to evil by bad whites. He related several cases of terrible negro outrages on white women, which helped to incite the white population.

A Times Baltimore special says nearly every vessel arriving there from the West Indies has had yellow fever on board; one crew had been all sick, and the ship was at the mercy of the waves until two men recovered sufficiently to navigate her.

Another vessel is in Hampton Roads; all the crew is sick; several are dead. This is the second crew in that vessel carried off by fever this season. Strict quarantine is enforced here.

SHREVEPORT, La., Sept. 4.

The Times publishes a statement of a merchant of Conshatta named Abney, to the effect that the citizens had discovered a plot on the part of the negroes and the murdered whites to murder wholesale a gathering of young people on the night the disturbance began, and that these facts were brought out by an examination conducted by a committee of citizens since the occurances reported. Since Abney's statement was received, a report reaches this city that two negroes charged with the shooting of Dickson have been murdered by the mob at Conshatta.

LONDON, Sept. 5.

The Standard's Dublin correspondent says the forthcoming Irish-American rifle match excites the greatest interest. The Irish team will embark on the Cunard steamer at Queenstown on Sunday morning. The Lord Mayor of Dublin and lady will escort them to Queenstown, and they will be accompanied to America by Viscount Massereene and Mr. Bagnall as extra members of the team, also by several ladies and representatives of the Irish press.

At a meeting of the cotton spinners of Manchester, it was decided that a circular should be sent to the Lancashire mills advising that work be limited to four days a week.

LONDON, Sept. 5.

A special to the Times says General Zaballa remains at Madrid.

Don Carlos has gone to Alsasna to meet the ex-Duke of Parma. The Carlists have picked up a sailor who probably deserted from the German man-of-war "Albatross." They sent him across the frontier to the authorities, by whom he was delivered to the German Consul at Bayonne.

Later accounts of the Austrian Polar Expedition state that the explorers penetrated to the 83rd degree latitude.

THE VICEREGAL PROGRESS.

COBOURG, Sept. 4.

The Viceregal party, accompanied by about fifty ladies and gentlemen of this town, left here this morning at eight o'clock, on a trip to the Marmora iron mines. From Cobourg to the settlement of Harwood, on Rice Lake, they went by a train on the Cobourg and Peterboro' Railway. At Harwood the whole party embarked on the steamer "Isaac Butt," and were conveyed by her down the lake, the pretty scenery of which the Viceregal party much admired. At Hastings village a large crowd of persons assembled, together with a company of volunteers, who received the Governor General with a feu de joie. The Viceregal party went ashore, and His Excellency was presented with an address on behalf of the town. After he had replied the steamer resumed her voyage amid renewed cheers and the firing of another salute.

When she had proceeded down the river a few miles the excursionists landed and got on board another train, which took them to the Marmora iron mines. They remained there about an hour, and then returned to the steamer. From her they stepped on to a flat-bottomed boat attached to her, and on which luncheon was laid out under a shelter made of boughs of trees. Luncheon was partaken of as the steamer was moving up the river, and when it was over the scow was detached.

The party arrived back in Cobourg at half-past seven, and were met at the station by a torchlight procession and by a band, which escorted their Excellencies to their hotel, a number of the men drawing their carriage.

THE INVENTOR'S EMPORIUM

A. D. CABLE, ESQ., PATENT BROKER, has opened a depot at No. 569 CRAIG STREET, where are at present exhibited a large number of articles of invention to the mutual advantage of both parties to the contract. He carries on a large and steadily increasing business, as Patent Broker, and his establishment—created to supply a long-felt need—has become a necessity. Manufacturers will be shown, on the premises, hundreds of valuable inventions which can be made very profitable, by manufacture; while, in consequence of these facilities, inventors are furnished with an admirable and easy method of drawing influential attention to the products of their inventive genius.

Patent Rights for the various articles enumerated below are for sale either for the Dominion entire, for several of its Provinces, or for portions of the United States. Capitalists are recommended to give these matters their attention. Companies, for the purpose of manufacturing some one or other article, are formed weekly. A partial list of inventors and their inventions follows:—

MATTHEW GREEN—A Cultivator.
JACOB DAVIES—A Washing Boiler.
R. S. BRADLEY—Washing Machine.
CHARLES WRIGHT—Spinning-Wheel.
MICHEL PARENT—Two Fire escapes.
A. D. CABLE—Automatic Curtain-Lifter.
J. L. STRONG—A Horse-power. Improved.
JONATHAN NEWHALL—A Washing Boiler.
L. BRIRDZEER—Gate-Latch—self-fastening.
J. B. DE BOUCHERVILLE—A Hook Projector.
LYMAN TOWER—Washing-machine. An improvement.
ELIAS BURNHAM—Patent Roof; durable and cheap.
STEPHEN F. GATES—Railroad Car Axlebox. A self-oiler.
J. W. ADAMS—A Portable Horse-stall. Can be moved at pleasure.
JOHN B. SICOTTE—Adjustable Spring Bed. An article of great utility.
JOHN J. FITZPATRICK—An Improvement in the Cutting of Men's Drawers.
O. SHERWOOD—Self Car Coupler—just the thing; can save many lives yearly.
WM. S. HUNTER—Tenison Clamp and Clothe Fastener. For clothes-lines.
JACOB SCOTT, SR.—A Force-Pump, for wells—non-freezing in the coldest weather.
GEORGE RIDDLE—A Churning Apparatus. Recommended to farmers and dairymen.
SWITZERLAND MCEWAN—Rail-Car Axle Oiler; kept constantly oiled while the car is in motion.
W. O. HOLWELL—An Improved Door-Pulley, an excellent invention, which merits extensive adoption.
HENRY BOLTON—Dog-power for Churns. Works in a manner similar to the tread-mill; useful and simple.
JOHN WADE JR.—A Cultivator. Two rows are cleaned at once; very useful to farmers and agriculturists.
HENRY BOLTON—Dashboard for Buggies, &c. A great improvement, adjustable and changeable at pleasure.
GEORGE BIGGAR—An improved Washing Boiler. Has many desirable points—self evident recommendations.
J. B. STOCK—Noiseless and Safety Shaft attachment. The title sufficiently explains its character; very desirable.
A. D. CABLE—Harness Dressing; glosses, oils and blacks with single application; also, preserves and softens the leather.
FRANCIS PATTERSON—Ship-loading apparatus, designed for moving barrels and boxes; does the work of five or six men.
JAMES ENGLAND—A Cradle—for babies, not for grain cutting—a self-rocker. Mothers will readily appreciate this advantage.
M. O. BOTSFORD—Clothes' Washer so arranged as to provide for the constant circulation of water among the clothes; very useful.
ALEX. WALKER—Broadcast Hand Seed-Sower. Excellent. Seed passes through a sieve. Sowing can be close or sparse, as desired.
G. M. STEVENS—Mitre Board, for cutting boards at any angle without even the slightest variation the one with another—admirable.
WM. W. WEAVER—Water-wheel, in the shape of a small shell, of great strength, and run with less water than any other similar wheel.
MCCALLUM & MOFFATT—Portable Parlor Grate. With this grate, two rooms can be easily and thoroughly warmed simultaneously.
A. C. BRAUGHLER—Hot-Air Back Wall. Great improvement as regards giving increased facilities for easily and cheaply heating rooms.
H. M. WELCH—Steam Cooker, with which five or six kinds of vegetables can be boiled in the same pot, in separate vessels; very useful.
EUGENE F. SHERWOOD—A machine for cutting sheet metal blanks—any sort of tinware, for tinsmiths; very convenient and economical.
JOHN DENNIS—Railroad Bridge. Cheap, firm and substantial—all three points of importance, meriting consideration from railroad men generally.
MACKAY & JONES—Preventative and Neutralizer for Beer. Keeps beer from souring, and makes sour beer sweet; self-evident recommendations.
WILLIAM ROACH—New Process for Bathing and Cleaning Leather, which by this mode is rendered very soft, while the quality of the leather is improved.
JAS. P. WOOD—False Bottom for Water-coolers; The ice is dropped upon a bottom beneath which is placed a spring, obviating any jar or injury to the utensil.
E. P. THOMAS—Adjustable Braider for Sewing-machines; neat and perfectly suited for the purpose; adapted for any size of braid, and for any machine.
A. D. CABLE—Lifting Jack, for carriages, waggons, &c. Can raise a weight of five tons without the slightest trouble; cheap and simple; a necessity for farmers.
JOHN HEWITT—Smoothing Band, Glossing and Fluting Iron; very ingenious and a great favorite with house-wives; should be provided for every family and laundry.
JAMES SPENCER—A Lamp Screw. For lighting semaphore and street lamps; the apparatus prevents all danger of the extinction of the light, through a draft or gust of wind.
AMOS ANSTED—Holder for Grinding Mowing-machine Knives. One man can turn the grindstone, and, at the same time, sharpen the knife, and give them the right bevel.
J. B. DE BOUCHERVILLE—A Fire-escape, so arranged that any inmate of a building can slowly descend a rope, which can be tied to a window sash, or other convenient object.
W. A. P. RHODES—Horse Collar Pad; prevents the possibility of chaffing or galling. Recommended to Directors of the C. P. Railway, C. Omnibus Company, Livery Stable Proprietors &c.
WILLIAM WARNE—Safety Hook and Clevis. To be employed at mines, vessels, &c., for unloading coal; the basket is swung from the vessel, emptied and righted without manual assistance. Very desirable.
H. GREGORY, JR.—Anti-friction Band for Vessels' Booms. The apparatus is of excellent device, and is provided with rubber, which giving in response to pressure, prevents abrupt jerking, and removes danger of breakage.
F. L. FILLINGHOST—Trouser-bottom Block and Iron, well suited for the purpose for which it is intended, and strongly recommended to Tailors and Seamstresses, as well as mothers of families accustomed to do the family sewing.
LEVI SCHOFIELD—Ironing-Table. Capital—ingenious! Of extremely simple design. Can be folded up in a moment. Combines numerous advantages which will be readily appreciated by the fair sex. Promises to be a universal favorite.
F. P. MCKELCAN—Improved Stove; very superior; uses as little fuel as common Oriental Stoves, and presents a very large surface for heating; is further provided with a self-dumping grate apparatus, which will be found exceedingly convenient.
HAYARD PERES—Fire-escape; consists of a strong iron basket, suspended from a chain, which can be moved at will from one end of a balcony to the other, or to any portion of the house on that front; a permanent Escape, calculated to be of exceeding great utility.
WALLACE & FROST—Fire Escape. Leather bands with iron rungs; occupies little space, and is attached by a hook to the roof of a building, or to some other object; on the descent being made, by a happy contrivance, the ladder can be instantly taken down.
JOHN TAYLOR—A Pot Strainer for vegetables, which are placed in the pot for boiling, in a tin receptacle punctured as a strainer; they are consequently removed with ease, and the additional trouble—as in ordinary cases—of removing the water is spared.
E. L. BUSCHNALL—Improved Spring Mattress. Its merits are unusual durability, lightness, and strength; especially commended to the attention of the proprietors of large hotels, who will effect a large saving annually by its use, but valuable to all classes of the community.
J. A. CLARK—Life-preserving Dresses, Rubber Suits. Rubber bags are attached to the clothing of the upper portion of the body, before and behind; also, a bag at the back of the head. These can be inflated at will with a tube, portion of the invention, by means of the mouth.
J. M. PARKER—An Improved Safety Lamp. A glass tube extends to the bottom of the Lamp, the neck of which is not cemented; all danger from explosion of the coal-oil is thus obviated, and the mode of communicating the oil to the wick through the tube, is of no small advantage.
JOHN LITTLE—Horse-shoe Sharpener. Very ingenious; the sharpening is very quickly done, almost in the twinkling of an eye. Farmers, and all persons having anything to do with horses, should inspect this admirable arrangement for saving time, labor and money—three most important objects.
JAMES MCCALLUM—A Potato Digger. Farmers should without delay make themselves acquainted with the working of this ingenious invention; the Digger is drawn by a horse, and the potatoes, on being passed up iron bars, through which any earth attached conveniently falls, are dropped into an iron box, which is occasionally, and with great facility, emptied, forming a heap of convenient size.
A. D. CABLE—Improved Water Faucet—upon which royalty has been taken by a city manufacturer, the first manufacturer of the Dominion. Provided with self-acting interior valve, owing to which repairs can be made without stopping the entire water supply for dwellings, as is now the case, to the great inconvenience of residents; especially commended to housekeepers and plumbers.
T. R. BIRON—Cloth Measuring and Rolling Machine. Devised to facilitate—what is otherwise a most tedious operation—the taking of stock; at least, an annual necessity among merchants. The Machine does the work of three or four clerks, and in addition to this very considerable saving of labor, and consequently of expense, after unfolding and measuring, neatly re-folds the goods in question; it will be found of great utility, and merchants should lose no time in taking prudent advantage of this meritorious invention.
N. B. SHAW—Patent Treadle. No Sewing-Machine should lack this improvement, which deserves to be generally known, being calculated to save numerous lives, and to spare irksome exertion. It is notorious that women employed on sewing-machines, annually die by hundreds, owing to ailments produced by the peculiar and painful motions of the limbs and body, necessitated by the present style of construction of these household treasures—Sewing-Machines. The Treadle removes all necessity for the motion of the limbs, &c., to which reference is made, and as the natural result, can be seen to be adequately appreciated; proprietors of factories, where sewing-machines are employed, and all others interested, should make themselves acquainted with the wholesome merits of this patent without delay.
Applications for County rights for any of the above will be promptly attended to by addressing

NEW YORK PIANOFORTES. —HALE & SONS' GRAND FRENCH ACTION, GRAND SQUARE 7⅓ OCTAVE, ROSEWOOD PIANOFORTE.
This Piano, made by one of the largest and wealthiest manufacturers in the world, was first introduced into Montreal in September last, since which time ONE HUNDRED AND EIGHTY of these powerful and really valuable instruments have been sold by MR. SHAW. They are the largest Piano made, all in richly-carved rosewood cases, having the Grand French action, Agraffe treble and all modern improvements. Each instrument is 7⅓ octave, and is also guaranteed to the purchaser for ten years. These Pianos, being of the largest compass, have all the deep-toned power and strength of the "Steinway," with the brilliancy of the "Chickering," and the sweetness and durability of the "Vose" Pianos; and until fully introduced into Canada, they will be sold at the Agency in the Piano Department of "Shaw's Buildings," 724 CRAIG STREET, at manufacturers' prices—and as this is far below the retail price, no further discount can be made to music teachers, convents, or schools, but satisfaction will be guaranteed, and whatever reasonable credit may be required will be given. A practical tuner and regulator, sent on by the maker, will see to the delivery of each instrument, and also the regulating and keeping it in tune. Retail price, $450, $500, $550, and $600. Sold until May next at $250, $400, $375, and $325; or, in instalments per quarter or month. Call and see the Piano Warerooms, "Shaw's Buildings," CRAIG STREET, NEAR VICTORIA SQUARE. 156-3m

IMPORTANT TO PARTIES WISHING TO PURCHASE REALLY VALUABLE AND FULLY WARRANTED 7 and 7⅓ OCTAVES ROSEWOOD PIANOFORTES.
VOSE & SONS, Boston, whose Pianos are a general favorite in Montreal, and for sweetness, brilliancy, purity of tone, durability and every sterling quality are unsurpassed by any other instrument imported into Canada,—will in future be sold at the Agency, "SHAW'S BUILDINGS," 724 Craig street, near Victoria square, at a small advance on the cost of manufacture, which is from One Hundred Dollars to Two Hundred Dollars less than the usual retail price of such instruments in regular Piano Stores. Each instrument will be guaranteed TEN YEARS. No instrument will be allowed to remain with the purchaser unless it gives perfect satisfaction. The Pianos will be delivered in the city, and kept in tune for 12 months, free of charge. A credit of three six, nine and twelve months will be given to those unable to pay all cash, and parties who wish to hire with a view of purchasing will be accommodated. Before purchasing elsewhere, call and examine the stock and see the instruments, and thoroughly test their power, purity and sweetness of tone. Convents, Schools, Clergymen and Teachers will be liberally dealt with. Reference is made to over three hundred leading residents of Montreal, who are now using the Vose Pianos. Retail price of same class instruments in regular Piano Stores, $675, $625, $600, $550, $500, $485, $465, $425.
Sold by Mr. Shaw, and guaranteed for Ten Years, at $450, $375, $360, $340, $335, $320, $300, $290.
Apply at SHAW'S BUILDINGS (2nd flat), 724 Craig street. 24 3m

CENTS FOR SALE at the STAR

2nd. EDITION.

FOUR O'CLOCK.

AFTER much hesitation the New York Herald musters courage to say that it doesn't believe a word of the Plymouth Church Committee's verdict, and it scolds the Committee-men pretty severely. It declares that they should not have pretended to investigate if they did not care for justice. It points to the extravagant step of taking nobody's word but that of the accused person, and adds:—"Tilton, Moulton, Mrs. Tilton, even Beecher's own letters, are thrown out of the case, and Beecher's denial only is worthy credence. If Tilton and Moulton are of so wretchedly small account, how could their accusations have been sufficiently important to make investigation necessary?"

RELATIVE to journalistic enterprise, the Chicago Tribune points out that the daily press is slowly but very surely taking the place of the weekly paper devoted to special departments of morals and culture, by treating everything as news. For some time the religious weeklies have been beaten in their own field. On Sunday and Monday mornings, for instance, the Tribune prints more and fresher religious intelligence than all the religious papers in Chicago combined. The printing of fac simile copies of all the correspondence in the Beecher-Tilton case by the New York Graphic was another instance of enterprise in a new direction. The same paper last winter, upon the morning after the first performance of Verdi's new opera of "Aida," printed all the principal numbers of it in musical notation, and has now done the same for Vasseur's new opera bouffe, "La Timbale d' Argent," which was brought out for the first time in this country last Thursday by the Aimee Troupe. It thus furnishes the reader not only a description of the scenes and critical review of the performance, but the music itself. At this rate of progress, it will not be long before the musical weeklies will be superfluous.

The English Agricultural Laborer.

Respecting the conclusion of the farm laborers' movement in England it is pleasing to read that the farmers are disposed to use their victory in a spirit of moderation. Commenting upon the result of the strike the London Christian World says:—"Though the latest incident in the agrarian strife is called a victory for the farmers, it must not be forgotten that the laborers have made a mighty step in advance; and it is impossible that they can ever be in the future as they were in the past. For one thing, wages have been raised over the whole district. In the second place, surplus labor has been drafted away to other places where it could command better remuneration; and those who have crossed the sea, or gone into the manufacturing districts, will be sure to draw others in their train. The slow-moving mind of the laboring population has been quickened to an amazing extent, as any one may learn who goes into East Anglia after an absence of a dozen years: he will find evidence on every hand that thoughts are stirring to which the bucolic intellect was formerly a total stranger, and the laborer has before him possibilities of bettering his condition which were before unknown. In view of these and other facts, we submit that the farmers will consult their own interests if they act with kindliness and moderation. In doing the best that can be done for the laborer, so that he may be kept in England, they will assuredly do the best for themselves. Mr. Arch, as President of the National Union, has issued an address to the laborers, in which he states that but for the reluctance of some of the men to emigrate, or even to migrate, the farmers would long ago have eagerly engaged every unemployed man. 'Henceforth,' he says, 'Let emigration be your watchword, your weapon, and defence.'"

News of the West.

[Special to the STAR.]

TORONTO, Sept. 5.

It is expected that a match will be concluded to-day between the sloop "Annie Cuthbert" and the schooner "Oriole," to be sailed on Wednesday or Thursday next, to decide the dispute as to the merits of the two yachts, the result of the last race being considered unsatisfactory, owing to the accident to the "Cuthbert."

The Methodist Episcopal General Conference at Napanee adjourned yesterday.

Christopher Cusick, an hotel-keeper of Ailsa Craig, while walking on the railroad track from Parkhill, laid down and is supposed to have fallen asleep. He had both legs run over by a passing freight train and was fearfully mutilated. Dr. Henderson, who amputated both legs, has hopes of his recovery.

Last night about ten o'clock the saw mill of Mr. Wm. Nisbitt, of Leyden, was entirely destroyed by fire; the flames had progressed so far when first seen that it could not be ascertained how the fire originated; through the exertions of the workmen there was no lumber destroyed. Loss, $5,000; insured for $1,000. The mill will be immediately rebuilt.

Daniel Shaver, of Iroquois, who was hurt by the running away of his team, died yesterday.

Mrs. Bristow, of the Township of Matilda, was seriously beaten, nearly to death, in her own house. A man named Mitchell, a near neighbor, while drunk, made a furious attack on both Mrs. Bristow and her husband.

The new oil combination at London and Petrolia is now completed, and refined oil will be made in Petrolia for the new Association, and a number of stills, together with the home treating works, will soon be busily at work.

Four members of the Austrian Polar Expedition, for whose fate fears were felt, have been heard from. They were shipwrecked, and took to sleighs, in which they have succeeded, after a long journey, in reaching the Norwegian island of Wardo. The highest point reached was [illegible] lat. 80. A large track of land was discovered to the northward of Nova Zembla.

ROUND TOWN.

—Some parties are in the habit of mutilating the books and papers at the reading rooms of the Mechanics' Institute and the Merchants' Exchange. One party, supposed by the Secretary to be a gentleman by birth and education, has been in the habit of stealing the noon editions of the daily papers. A night in the cells might be beneficial to young men so void of self-respect.

—Mr. James Young, Mining Engineer, of Charlottetown, P.E.I., who has been in town for several weeks past endeavoring to obtain funds to further prospect and develope iron and coal mining properties at Miminigast and Gallows' Point, has been successful, he having associated with him several capitalists. He returns to the island this evening, and operations will be commenced at once.

OTTAWA, Sept. 5.

Last night a man named Egan attempted to rob a farmer in the English Hotel; on being detected he drew a revolver and fired two shots at a bar-tender named Proctor, who had interfered; none of the bullets fortunately took effect. P. C. Lepine followed him, and on attempting to arrest Egan the latter fired two shots at him. Egan was finally captured, and was tried and committed on these charges this morning.

ROUND TOWN.

—It is rumored Constable Laporte, was, this afternoon, dismissed the police force for violence to a prisoner.

—Revenue collected from fines, &c. in the Recorder's Court for the month ending August 31, 1874, $2,149.83.

—Last evening the Dominion L.O.L. No. 1263, held a social in their Lodge Room. There was a large attendance of members and their friends.

—Commercial travellers report dullness in trade generally, owing to a kind of stagnation which is prevalent in the produce business throughout country towns and villages.

—Judgment was given this morning by Judge Beaudry in Chambers on the application to quash the capias in the case of Bank of Commerce vs. J. T. McMinn. The capias was maintained.

—Her Majesty's ship "Bellerophon," which arrived in Quebec on Thursday, has on board a lodge of the Independent Order of Good Templars called the "Naval Excelsior Lodge," which numbers forty-five members.

—An action has been taken by Mr. J. Horne against William Silverstone, pawnbroker, for $1,000 damages for illegal arrest. A capias has been granted, and a writ issued. Bail is fixed at $1,000. Messrs. Carter and Keller for plaintiff.

—The officers and engineers of the Allan SS. "Canadian" have provided a very handsome marble tombstone, to be erected over the grave of Capt. McKenzie, their late commander, who was interred in Mount Hermon Cemetery, Quebec. Mr. R. Reid, of this city, prepared the stone.

—The investigation before Mr. Austin, Fire Commissioner, establishes that the fire which occurred this morning at Messrs. Young, McNaughton & Co.'s, 69 St. James street, was caused by the fire in a stove burning the block of wood underneath and setting fire to the floor. The damage to the building may be about $300. Messrs. Young, McNaughton & Co. have donated $50 to the Firemen's Benevolent fund.

—The Building Inspector has condemned several houses during the last few days. Men are now tearing down a brick two story tenement house in Versailles street. It was in such a dangerous condition a month ago that the tenants were glad to remove. An old soap factory on Papineau Square, and a stable connected with it, have also been condemned. The remaining portion of the roof of the Drill Shed on Craig street, showing signs of weakness, was inspected, lately, and orders given to tear it down. Operations have just commenced.

THE LACROSSE MATCH.

The attendance at the Shamrock-St. Regis lacrosse match this afternoon was very good, about 1,500 people being present.

The first game occupied 25 minutes and was claimed by the Indians, but their umpire decided that it was "no game," the ball passing some inches outside the flags.

Play was about to be resumed at 4.

ROAD COMMITTEE.

A correspondent says:—"A small snow-plough was used last winter in keeping the footpath in upper Guy street in order. The confirmed drunkards who are daily brought before the Recorder might be well employed in keeping the footpaths in St. James street in passable condition during the ensuing winter by drawing a small snow-plough from end to end each morning, and then each morning let the Road Committee have snow-sleighs in readiness to remove the snow at once. Leaving hills of snow on each side of so narrow a street, occupying space some three feet on each side, impedes driving; in fact, renders it dangerous. The latter remark applies also to the City Passenger track through St. James street, the removal of which would be a boon to the citizens."

THE Dominion Building Society, No. 55 St. James street, allows eight per cent. on deposits made for six months, seven per cent. for three months, and six per cent. on open accounts.

WE call special attention to the elaborate drawing-room set and furniture now on view at Booker & Ritchie's sale rooms, which is, indeed, well worthy of inspection. The drawing-room set is covered in silk brocatelle, one half of the set being crimson and gold, and the other green and gold, consisting of two sofas, two tete-a-tete chairs, and six easy chairs, 10 pieces in all; one two-winged wardrobe, solid mahogany, plate glass front; one marble top bureau, beautifully and chastely carved, solid mahogany; one washstand and commode to match, with marble tops; one marble top, plate glass back etagere, one B.P. gilt frame mirror with consol tables, one marble top sideboard, plate glass back, one mahogany lounge, green and gold, silk brocatelle; bedroom set, centre table, plated ware, glassware, &c. The sale of the above takes place on Tuesday next, 8th September, at ten o'clock a. m.

EXTENSIVE BUSINESS FOR SALE BY AUCTION.—Messrs. Devaney & Co. inform us that they are authorized by Mr. Venance Lemay, who is desirous of retiring from business, to sell by auction en bloc, the whole of his immense establishment at Bord a Plouffe, comprising large hotel, spacious stabling for 150 horses, extensive ganaries, rolling stock depots, barns, sheds, large brick general store, waggon maker's, blacksmith's, painter's, carpenter's and sadler's shops, 12 houses, for work people, 50 acres of land, 10 acres river frontage—splendid site for mills and manufactories; about 200 vehicles, stages, express, lumber and grain waggons, trucks, carts, &c. In a word, the good will and all the appliances for carrying on the largest and best paying stage, portaging and express business in Canada, in full working order, situated 9 miles from Montreal and 1½ miles from the N. C. R. R. The property will be offered per inventory on the spot, immediately after his great annual sale of upwards of 100 horses, which will take place about the first of October. Full particulars will appear in a future advertisement.

BOWLING.

The bowling match between Thomas Robinson, champion of Montreal, and Patrick McCarthy, champion of Quebec, took place last evening at the Empire Bowling Hall, No. 518 Craig street. The result of the game was as follows:

1st game—McCarthy, 223; Robinson, 194.
2nd game—Robinson, 268; McCarthy, 183.
3rd game—McCarthy, 95; Robinson, 85.
4th game—McCarthy, 205; Robinson, 193.
5th game—Robinson, 290; McCarthy, 260.

Robinson thus winning the game by 64 points.

Another match is contemplated between the above named champions for $100 aside, to come off upon the deposit of the money.

"BULLETIN SANITAIRE."

The rapid mortality of children in this city has awakened the alarm of some excellent people, who, under the auspices of the sanitary authorities, have started a French journal for the preservation of life. There were 767 deaths in this city during the month of July. Of these 463 were deaths of infants under the age of one year, and 180 were deaths of children between the ages of one and five. Nine persons died between the ages of 5 and 20, and 115 people above this age. Improper nourishment is the chief cause of this mortality among infants under the age of one year. Philosophers and moralists have for hundreds of years insisted on the all-importance of feeding the newly-born with right nourishment; and this nourishment, doctors with one mouth tell us, is the mother's milk. Ignorance or forgetfulness of this causes the sacrifice of so many young lives, the like of which is seen in no other country. We are glad that attention has been drawn to the subject. The rest of the Bulletin is principally occupied with recent discussions on the vaccination question. The object of the little sheet is to enlighten families on important subjects relating to family hygiene, on which great ignorance and indifference prevails.

James Robinson, 42; George Lamb, 52, drunk and disorderly, $2 or 10 days.

Thomas Crawford, seaman, drunk, $1 or 5 days.

RECORDER'S COURT.

September 5.

There were twenty-six cases before the Court this morning, fourteen of which were for drunkenness.

Isidore Pigeon, Joseph Vezina, Euclide Laporte and Napoleon Bertrand were fined in small sums for carting coal without the names of the proprietors being placed on the carts.

David Meunier, from Boucherville, drunk in a carriage, $2.50 or 15 days.

Adeline Arpin, for being drunk and loitering in St. James street, $5 or 1 month.

Zotique Crepeau, drunk and resisting the police, $5 or 1 month.

The case of Noah Holland against George Copper, for assault, postponed from Thursday last, was taken up this morning. The defendant was fined $5 and costs.

James B. Kinsella, grocer, corner of Lagauchetiere and Hermine streets, for selling liquor without a license, $50 and costs.

HARBOR EXTENSION.

Inspection by the Commissioners.

This afternoon the Harbor Commissioners made an inspection of the works in progress between the Longueuil Ferry wharf and the Cotton Factory, being conveyed in a tug-boat. At the Cotton Factory a wing wharf 150 feet long is about half completed. The contractor is M. Bonneville, of Longueuil, and the work seems to be very good. The wharf will be used for the purposes of the Cotton Factory, landing coal, &c. It is built of white pine, the timbers ranging from eleven to thirteen inches square.

From this to the lumber wharves, built some six years ago, no work has been done, but eventually the space, about a quarter of a mile, will be filled up with wharves. The timber wharf is in rather a dilapidated state in places. Next to this comes the work contracted for by McNamee, Frechette & Garity. For a stretch the wharves completed last year appear to be in a fair condition, though far from being even. The new cribs, filled and being filled by the Commissioners, look very slip-shod arrangements and appear to have been sunk carelessly, as at places they are two and three feet out of the line, the joints making abutments instead of being flush with the rest of the wharf. The timbers are very roughly put together, but the main fault seems to have been carelessness in sinking. What the Commissioners intend to do about it has not transpired, but it is very certain the work cannot be accepted as it is at present. The wharf in question is intended to connect with the Longueuil ferry pier.

HOME RULE DEMONSTRATION.

(London Paper, 16th ult.)

A Home Rule demonstration was held on Monday at Ballibay, county Monaghan. About 10,000 persons attended, convened by a placard calling on the people of Monaghan to assemble in their thousands to demand Home Rule, an amended land law, and denominational education. The processionists wore green scarfs and hatbands. About fifty drumming parties accompanied them. A deputation addressed the assemblage, and read resolutions adopted by several Orange lodges at the close of the last century protesting against the Act of Union. Resolutions were also read which had been adopted by Orange lodges in 1869, to the effect that if the Irish Church was disestablished the Act of Union would be thereby rendered null and void. Resolutions were carried hailing with pleasure the growth of national principles, and pledging those present to secure the return of two Home Rule members for the county at the next election.

"AS FREE AS A PRISONER."

The escape of Rochefort and Bazaine has enriched the French language with a new form of expression. When one is in want of a comparison to the word free, one says now "As free as a prisoner."—L'Evenement.

A LIVELY TIME AT A CIRCUS.

A London paper says:—

"During the week Messrs. Sangers' circus has been exhibiting in Manchester. On Friday, a mob of some thousands broke into the show, and after severe struggling with some 30 or 40 men employed by Messrs. Sangers and a dozen police, in which sticks, stones, and other weapons were used, the equestrian members of the troupe charged the mob and expelled them. One jockey was so injured that he was removed to the hospital, and altogether 20 or 30 persons were injured. After expulsion the roughs had a free fight among themselves for about an hour."

LONDON CORRESPONDENCE.

LONDON, Aug. 20.

THE LABORERS' LOOK-OUT.

The Union laborers claim that they have not been beaten in their contest with the farmers, but that on the contrary the Union has been strengthened. At Leamington yesterday Mr. Arch presided at the meeting of the Executive Committee of the National Agricultural Laborers' Union. A resolution was adopted thanking the trades councils and Relief Committee for their assistance during the Eastern counties lock-out, and congratulating each contributor to the funds on the fact that though some few laborers had defeated themselves by not availing themselves of the advantages the Union had offered them, the result was a decided gain to the Union, inasmuch as the bulk of the laborers had resumed work without seceding from the Union.

Wages throughout the district had been improved, the Union was as firmly rooted as ever, the intelligence and courage of the men had been quickened, channels for removing surplus labor had been opened more widely, and the desire to avail themselves of these opportunities was steadily growing stronger amongst the laborers. A resolution was also adopted emphatically protesting against an address to its readers in the Laborers' Chronicle, severing its official connection with the Union, as being, so far as concerned the Union, false in its statements, groundless in its insinuations, and most prejudicial in its influence. A special committee was formed to relieve necessitous sufferers by the Eastern counties lock-out.

ROMAN CATHOLIC PAUPER EMIGRATION.

A circular letter has been forwarded to the various metropolitan guardian boards by the Rev. T. Seddon, secretary to Dr. Manning, inquiring if the boards are willing to allow some of their Roman Catholic pauper boys to emigrate to Canada, under the auspices of a Roman Catholic Society established for the purpose, and, if so, inquiring what amount of assistance the guardians would be inclined to afford for outfit, &c. At the City of London Union and other boards much hospitality was manifested, and the subject was deferred for further information from Mr. Seddon.—Globe.

POETRY.

WATCHING FOR YOU.

BY JENNIE JOY.

The purple has gone from the far-off skies,
The flowers are waiting the dew;
And a mistiness comes to my longing eyes,
As I wearily watch for you.

Sweet Summer, bright Autumn, Winter and Spring,
With their skies of grey and blue,
To hearts that are aching forgetfulness bring,
Yet I wearily watch for you.

The lips you have kissed, with waiting grow white,
Some say they curl haughtily, too;
None see how they quiver here in the night,
As I wearily watch for you.

They call me imperious, heartless and cold,
And lovers no longer woo,
Some hint that my heart to Mammon is sold,
But I'm only watching for you.

In a beautiful dell moans a sweet-voiced pine,
Beneath are the daisies and dew,
They will open one grave there—yours and mine,
When I've done with watching for you.

GEMS OF THOUGHT.

To say little, and perform much, is truly noble.

Of all struggles, the endeavor to be just is the greatest.

He submits himself to be seen through a microscope who suffers himself to be caught in a passion.

Weakness is the parent of fear, and these two, engendered together, produce cruelty and revenge.

Nothing can be great which is not right; nothing which reason condemns can be suitable to the dignity of the human mind.

Eloquence is of two kinds; that of the heart, which is called divine; the other external, and merely the organ of conceits and sophistry.

An hour's industry will do more to produce cheerfulness, suppress evil humours, and retrieve your affairs, than a month's moaning.

Discrimination is as necessary in charity as in everything else; and indiscrimination in charity is in many respects more dangerous than in anything else.

While wealth renders accessible many little things calculated to give bodily ease and comfort, all the gold contained in the universe cannot purchase peace of mind and rest of soul.

Argue not with a man whom you know to be of an obstinate temper, for when he is once contradicted his mind is barred against all light and information; argument, though ever so well grounded, provokes him, and makes him even afraid to be convinced of the truth.

The man who is only honest when honesty is the best policy is not in reality an honest man. Honesty in not swerving policy, but stable principle. An honest man is honest from his inmost soul, nor deigns to stoop to aught that is mean, though great results hang on the petty fraud.

Riches are oftener an impediment than a stimulus to action, and in many cases they are quite as much a misfortune as a blessing. The youth who inherits fortune is apt to have life made too easy for him, and he soon grows sated with it, because he has nothing left to desire. Having no special object to struggle for, he finds time heavy on his hands; remains morally and mentally asleep; and his position in society is degraded to that of a sloth.

RELIGIOUS NEWS.

Last year the Presbyterian Church in the United States added 36,971 converts to its fold. The number has not been equalled in any former year.

Not long since an English gentleman gave the London Church Missionary Society $100,000 as a thank-offering for the recovery of a sick child.

The demand for union among men of different sects is heard throughout Christendom. In London an influential movement has lately been made to promote a union between the Greek and Anglican churches.

It is not generally known that Protestant Episcopal services are read in New York every Sunday in the German, Spanish, and French languages. Recently a mission has been opened among the Italian community, the services being of course in the Italian tongue.

There are now eighty-seven Protestant missionaries in the Japanese Empire; of these the American Board has sent twenty, the American Presbyterian Board thirteen, the Reformed Church (American) eleven, the Protestant Episcopal eleven, the Methodist Episcopal ten, and the Baptist Union six.

This is a bad year for missionary societies. The American Board must get $100,000, we believe, this month, to finish the year free from debt, and is not likely to do it. The Dutch Board is $20,000 in arrears, and the Baptist Missionary Society is as badly off, while the Episcopal Board complains of a falling off of $18,000.

The Rev. C. H. Spurgeon, preaching at Dulwich, dwelt at some length upon the assertion that if men were not believers at 40 they never would become so. This statement, he said, had been supported by figures, but statistics were only another way of lying, and nothing could be more fallacious or untrustworthy in argument.

The singing by 200 little girls of the hymn "I am so glad that Jesus loves me," as they passed before President Grant on the preachers' stand at the Round Lake camp-meeting, recently, is said to have deeply moved the usually imperturbable chieftain. Who can resist the children singing? Who except the critics and croakers?

The oldest preacher in the Methodist Church, and probably the oldest preacher in the world, is the Rev. Henry Boehm, of Jersey City, who reached the age of one hundred years on the 8th of June, and who has been in the ministry seventy-five years. He preached at Broomfield, New Jersey, on June 14th, and has an appointment to preach a centennial sermon before the Conference at Jersey City, in April next, if spared until that time.

The Israelites of Philadelphia have organized the only existing branch of the Alliance Israelite Univer-elle in America. The Alliance establishes missions and schools among poor and degraded Jews, teaching them the elements of a common education, and restoring them to the pure faith of Judaism. Nearly all European and Asiatic countries are represented in the Alliance; its field of operations lies principally in Turkey and the East. The Philadelphia society numbers 170 members.

The first case in Germany under the new law giving Catholic congregations the power to elect a pastor in the place of the one turned out by the Government occurred at Grasdorf in the Province of Hanover. On the day appointed by the Government for the elections, the parishioners appeared in great numbers and unanimously declared that they would neither elect nor acknowledge any other pastor but the one appointed by their bishop. The people, of course, remain without a pastor.

The Baptist preachers of Chicago and vicinity at a recent meeting took the following action, which will commend itself to ministerial bodies of all denominations: "1. As ministers, we owe it to our profession to guard each other's reputation, and help to extend each other's influence, and in general to aid each other in our work to extend our power. 2. As ministers, we owe it to our profession not to introduce unworthy or incompetent men into it. As our profession is to a great extent in our own keeping, we must guard it against those who will dishonor or degrade it. 3. As ministers, we owe it to our profession to withhold the hand of ministerial fellowship from those who have been pronounced unworthy upon trial by peers, and no longer recognize them as ministers."

It seems difficult to discover just what are the statistics of the Scotch Presbyterian Churches, a matter of some interest while Parliament was discussing the question of patronage in the Established Kirk. Dr. Cumming, of the Kirk, prepared some statements on the subject, in which he made out that there were only 300,000 people who are connected with the United Presbyterians and 1,400,000 with the Established Church. The Rev. James Johnston replies to him correcting his figures and says: "Dr. Cumming is fond of a money test. If there are only 300,000 persons of all ages in the U. P. Church, they are the most liberal body of Christians I know of; they contributed £280,000 for charitable and religious objects last year. That is at the rate of 18s. 8½d. for every man and woman, and even the 10,000 infants, of whom the Doctor is so fond, contributed at the rate of nearly a pound per head even before they were baptised. If the adult and infant adherents of the Established Church whom Dr. Cumming sets down at 1,400,000, were to contribute at the same rate, they would raise the grand sum of £1,257,580 a year, without counting the noble gift of Mr. Baird. But, alas, Dr. Cumming's 1,400,000 adults and infants only raise the paltry sum of £231,000, or 3s. 4½d. per head.

A High Church cricketer! Really this beats all the ins and outs of the English Establishment! The town of Sheffield contains him. In that humming place, it appears, there is a cricket club proudly dubbed "St. Michael's," which is very choice in the selection of its antagonists. It won't play with everybody, as this note from its secretary to a neighboring club fully assures us: "I am sorry to have to inform you that we cannot play you on Saturday next, in consequence of a rule of our club which prevents us from playing any Dissenting club connected with any chapel." This is too ludicrous even for the native Sheffielder, and he breaks out, that if the spirit of true church zeal inspires the St. Michael's eleven, what would be more calculated to give them a hearty though grim satisfaction than running out a Methodist, stumping a Baptist, or disturbing the symmetry of an Independent's wicket? Nay, what could more assuredly test the stamina and whole-heartedness of a son of a church than his ability to score fifty runs against a whole field of Dissenters? Giant "Intolerance" is clearly not dead yet, despite Bunyan statues and evangelical congresses.

FAMILY MATTERS.

Piano Keys.—The ivory keys of a piano may be whitened by washing them with a sponge dipped in sulphurous acid; afterward expose, if possible, to the sun.

Lemon Butter.—One pound sugar, five eggs, juice and grated rinds of three large or four small lemons (none of the seeds), one quarter pound fresh butter. Put into a saucepan and boil about ten minutes, stirring all the time, till it is thick as honey. Good for jelly cakes, tarts, and cheese cakes. Keeps well if dry and cool.

Restoring Linen.—To restore linen that has long been stained, rub the stains on each side with wet brown soap. Mix some starch to a thick paste with cold water, and spread it over the soaped places; then expose the linen to the sun and air, and if the stains have not disappeared in three or four days, rub off the mixture, and repeat the process with fresh soap and starch. Afterward dry it; wet it with cold water and put it into the wash.

Cough Sirup.—Take a handful each of hoarhound tops, slippery elm bark, cedar tops, burdock root, elecampane root, horseradish root, and spikenard root. Boil all together in three or four gallons of water, until the strength is well out; then strain it, and add one pint of honey or molasses, or one pound sugar; boil all together until the water is well out; then bottle when it is cold enough, and it is ready for use. Take three or four tablespoonfuls each day.

Scorched Linen.—For whitening scorched linen, it is often sufficient to wet it with soapsuds and lay it in the sun. Another method is, where milk is plentiful, to put one pound of white soap into a gallon of milk, and boil the scorched article in it. Another plan is to squeeze out the juice of two middle-sized onions, which is boiled in half a pint of vinegar, with one oz. of white soap and two oz. of fuller's earth. The mixture is applied cool to the scorched part, and when dry, washed off with clean water.

Apple Bread.—Weigh one pound of fresh, juicy apples; peel, core and stew them to a pulp, being careful to use a porcelain kettle or a stone jar placed inside a kettle of boiling water; mix the pulp with two pounds of the best flour; put in the same quantity of yeast you would use for common bread, and as much water as will make it a fine, smooth dough; put it into a pan and place it in a warm place to rise, and let it remain for twelve hours at least. Form it into rather long shaped loaves, and bake in a quick oven.

Boiled Wheat.—Excellent dishes for breakfast, dinner or supper can be made from unground wheat boiled. The freshest and cleanest wheat, with the plumpest kernels, should be selected. The white and the amber colored wheats cook the most readily, and they are also preferable on account of having a thinner skin. Time is saved, in picking it over, to have it first run through a smut machine and then washed, though the cooking over is indispensable. Put it to boil with five or six parts water to one of wheat by measure. Cover close and after it begins to boil set it where it will barely simmer. Cook it four or five hours, or until the kernels mash readily between the thumb and finger. Hard wheat of any kind will require still more time, and some kinds may be cooked all day without softening. When done it should be even full of water or juice, which thickens and becomes gelatinous on cooking. Salt and send to the table warm, to eat with meats and vegetables at dinner. It can also be eaten by itself, trimmed with sugar or butter, or both, or syrup, or milk. It molds nicely, and may be served cold at breakfast or supper, or it may be steamed up and served hot at breakfast. The long cooking it requires of course precludes its being served fresh at that meal. After it has once cooled, however, it cannot be made so soft and liquid as at first by any subsequent cooking. Like other starch, when it once sets it loses its liquidity.

How to Treat House Plants.—As almost everybody loves to cultivate flowers in pots, we give for their benefit the following hints:—1. Give them a good compost or soil in which to luxuriate and find food sufficient to enable them to send forth vigorous branches, leaves and flowers. 2. Get good, healthy plants to start with; plants that have been blooming a long time will not do well; new ones are best; plants that were used the previous winter, and have rested during the summer may answer. 3. Don't attempt to keep too many plants—they don't do well crowded; pots should never be piled in as thick as they can sit, and two or three deep. 4. Give the plants plenty of light during the day, and darkness, with a cooler temperature, at night. 5. Give them a good supply of fresh air when the sun shines brightest and warmest; on mild days the upper sashes of the windows may be lowered a little, letting the cool air blow over the plants, instead of directly upon them. 6. Give them a proper amount of moisture—an atmosphere entirely dry is fatal. 7. Try to keep the temperature as uniform as possible—at 60 or 70 through the day, and 40 or 50 through the night. 8. Perfect cleanliness is of the first importance, for if the plants are covered with dust they cannot grow, and will generally die; their leaves are their lungs; frequent syringing will keep the leaves moist and clean. 9. Different localities should be provided for different plants. Roses, geraniums, etc., like a sunny window; begonias, coleus, and cissus, want but little sunlight, though they enjoy a higher temperature than the others; heliotropes and bonvardis want all the sunlight you can give them, and the highest temperature of the room.

THE BELLEVILLE MURDER.

A Cold-Blooded Crime.

The Belleville Intelligencer gives the following account of the murder alluded to in our first edition of yesterday:—

Two young men named John Josey, about 24 years of age, and Johnson Blythman, aged 19 years, both of Belleville, hired a rig of one of the livery stables here, and drove down to the tavern at the Race Course, reaching there about five o'clock. They remained there two or three hours, taking tea at the tavern, and drinking more or less liquor. After tea, Josey was in conversation with the servant girl named Boulton, who was rather a prepossessing looking girl, about nineteen years of age, and with whom it is said he had been previously intimate.

At the inquest, Mrs. C. M. Vandusen, being sworn, said: My husband keeps the Bayside Hotel. Deceased came to my house Saturday last to work in the capacity of kitchen girl. Did not know her before she came to the house. Two men came along about four o'clock. They were not sober when they came. Between 8½ and 9 o'clock last night there were three men in the sitting room who ordered wine for the deceased, who was with them. The prisoners were not with them in the sitting room. The men in the sitting room had some liquor also, which I brought them. I then went to the bar when deceased came out of the sitting room. She then came into the dining room and told me at the door leading from the dining room to the bar, that she wanted to speak to me. She then asked me if she could go for a short drive. I told her she could not go, as it was too late, and I would not allow it. I then asked her "with whom she wished to go." She said "with a clerk at Foster & Barber's." She said, "all right, I won't go." She then came towards the sitting room, as I supposed, to tell him I would not let her go. I went into the bar and heard a tussel on the verandah. I then left the bar and went to the door to see what caused it. When I got to the door one of the men had hold of her left arm, jerking her around. He said "You go over there," pointing towards the race course. She said, "I'll not do it." Then he fired, but I think it was only a cap that snapped, as the report was not loud. She said then, "Let me go and stop your firing a pistol on me." He said, "I've fired no pistol on you." With that she tore away from him and proceeded along the verandah towards the door when he said, "D—— you, I'll shoot you." With that he drew the revolver and aimed it at her head and fired, when she fell; I was then standing in the door. She spoke and said, "Oh, take him away." Think she said something to Hudson, but could not understand what it was. I said, "Jennie, who done it." She made an effort to speak, but could not.

Josey has not borne a very bad character, but has been two or three times before the Police Court on a charge of drunkenness. He did not deny having shot her, nor did her confess to the deed, but said if it had not been for whiskey he would not have been there.

PERSONAL.

In California all educational offices are open to women.

A ladies' temperance organization proposes to bring Milwaukee's fine beer to a finale.

MEDICINES, &c.

TO THE AFFLICTED.—Homœpathic Hemospastic, Electro-Medical, and an appropriate and systematized Hygenic Combination, all properly adapted to the treatment and cure of those mental and physical derangements that so continuously and persistently flit their shadowy reflections from the dark back-ground of past indiscretions, filling the mind with evil forebodings, dispelling all hopes of future happiness. The names of the troubles caused by this self-begotten weakness is legion; such as nervous debility, nervous irritability, depression of spirits, loss of memory, loss of confidence, palpitation of the heart, neuralgia, rheumatism, epilepsy, hysteria, spinal disease, disease of the liver, disease of the urinary organs, imbecility, insanity, in a word, a general moral and physical disturbance of all the functions.

Dr. Utley has spent much time and money to perfect his system for the cure of the above mentioned troubles, and an extensive practice of over fourteen years has given him a great deal of practical experience; during that time he has treated thousands from all parts of the world and in all the walks in life, and none can say that he ever injured them and nearly all can say that he has cured them. Patients may be treated by letter, no matter how great the distance, but when it is possible Dr. Utly prefers to see his patients at his office, 194 St. James street, Mechanics' Bank Chambers. Office hours from 9 to 11 a.m., 2 to 4 and 7 to 9 p.m. Address M. H. Utley, M.D., Montreal, P.Q., Canada. 163

1874 STOVE 1874

By arrangement with Messrs. PERRY & CO., Albany, N.Y., I am manufacturing the celebrated

ARGAND COAL BURNER.

This Stove claims to be superior to any Coal Stove made yet. I most cheerfully recommend it as the most perfect COAL STOVE I have seen.

Retail or wholesale purchasers can leave orders either at the Montreal Foundry and City Works, or at any of my City Salerooms.
