World News In Brief

Hong Kong, Jan. 7.—(Reuters)—A Canadian mission doctor said yesterday he was sentenced to 10 months' imprisonment in communist China for evading an 85-cent tax on supplies he sent to missionaries.

The doctor, 52 year old Stewart Allen of Montreal, was supervisor and surgeon at the United Church of Canada's hospital at Chungking.

Allen, who has been in China since 1928, said that in October a court sentenced him to be expelled from China.

Halifax, Jan. 7.—(CP)—Five frost-bitten men were rescued from a small war surplus raft yesterday after spending 18 hours in a wild snowstorm on the waters off nearby Tuff's Cove.

They had been hunting geese and rigged up a canvas blind. The blind acted as a sail, catching a stiff breeze and taking them into the storm.

Soon the raft was encased in ice, through which an R.C.M.P. rescue craft smashed its way. The men had bundled themselves in the blind against the cold.

Halifax, Jan. 7.—(CP)—An R.C.M.P. search party was driving into deep woods near downtown N.B. halfway between Fredericton and Chatham, early today in the hope that the pilot of one of two missing planes might be there.

Two constables sighted several flares high above the forest last night. They fired several pistol shots and they were answered with more flares.

A Vampire jet went missing Friday and a Mustang fighter did not return to base from a test flight yesterday.

London, Jan. 7.—(Reuters)—Finance officials and economists of the Commonwealth assembled here during the weekend to prepare for a ministerial parley starting Jan. 15, aimed at putting Britain financially right with the rest of the world.

About 40 experts will work through next week getting things straight for the finance ministers, who are expected to confer for about seven days.

The countries attending are Britain, Canada, Australia, New Zealand, South Africa, India, Pakistan, Ceylon and southern Rhodesia, representing the highest multilateral trading area in the world.

Tehran, Iran, Jan. 7.—(AP)—The United States and Iran reached an understanding Saturday for continued economic aid to Iran under President Truman's point four program.

Whether American military aid to Iran will continue was left in doubt.

Details were not disclosed. However, it was learned that the U.S. point-four program of technical assistance for under-developed countries will continue in Iran.

U.N. Spokesman Says Reds Do Not Want Stable Truce

Munsan, Korea, Jan. 7.—(AP)—The United Nations' chief truce negotiator said today there are growing indications that the communists do not want a stable armistice in Korea.

Today's report from Panmunjom was the familiar "no progress."

If the communists "are acting in good faith and sincerely want peace, there can be no reason for their so constraining military airfields during the period of an armistice," said Vice-Admiral C. Turner Jev. He flew to Tokyo for conferences with Gen. Matthew B. Ridgway, supreme allied commander.

"If, on the other hand, the communists are acting in bad faith and are, in fact, preparing for war, the construction of military airfields becomes, and is, a matter of great urgency to them," Joy added.

The Reds reiterated their insistence on the right to construct and repair airfields during a brief Monday meeting of the sub-committee on truce supervision.

The session ended abruptly after Chinese Maj.-Gen. Hsieh Fang accused the allies of "intentionally delaying the negotiations" and trying to wreck the truce talks by insisting on prohibiting construction of military air bases.

Communist delegates again rejected a six-point allied plan for exchanging prisoners of war and civilians.

Rear Admiral R. E. Libby promptly submitted the plan again, and again explained it in detail.

North Korean Maj. Gen. Lee Sang Cho listened to Libby's explanation then commented: "No matter how eloquently you describe it, we cannot accept your proposal."

Both sub-committees will meet again at 11 A.M. Tuesday (9 P.M. EST Monday).

Joy told reporters in Tokyo his conference with Ridgway would cover only routine matters.

"There is no change in truce negotiations," he said.

Churchill Seeks Assurance U.N. Will Not Use A-Bomb Without Consulting U.K.

Garson Lauds Example Set By Litvinoff

Paris, Jan. 7.—(AP)—Justice Minister Stuart Garson of Canada today urged Russia to return to her former support of world collective security as proposed by the late Maxim Litvinoff when he was Soviet representative of the League of Nations.

Making his maiden speech at the United Nations Assembly, Garson told the political committee that "the symbol of the tragedy of these times is that the Soviet government no longer speaks to the world organization with the intelligent voice of Mr. Litvinoff, but that of Mr. Vishinsky his successor today."

Garson made a plea for wider backing of U.N. measures in the important debate on western proposals for stronger U.N. collective measures against aggression.

Emphasizing that neither the U.N. collective measures nor the North Atlantic Treaty Organization are aimed at ganging up on Russia, Garson said he hopes that Russia has not given up forever its former ideas of collective security.

He said Canada's purposes in N.A.T.O. and the U.N. are separate and distinct. Canada was not trying to identify the aims of N.A.T.O. with those of the U.N.

"While one is capable of expression in terms of military planning, the other is capable of expression only in terms of principles and possible courses of action."

He said Canada learned the hard way that collective strength is necessary to survive in the modern world.

He assured Vishinsky, Russia's foreign minister, moreover, that Canada is no satellite in Korea, N.A.T.O., or the U.N.

Garson termed the western collective measures resolution a "modest and unprovocative step towards the goal of achieving collective security through the U.N."

"The example of U.N. action in Korea will stand as a milestone of the first importance on the road to our goal."

Garson said the best guarantee that collective measures will not be misused is the nature of democracy.

"In times of peace a democracy is notoriously reluctant to face the uncomfortable and unpleasant facts of a growing military threat to its security."

Garson said of Litvinoff, whose death was announced last Wednesday, that his "impassioned plea in favor of collective security might well be taken to heart by his government today."

"Seldom, if ever, has the case been better stated," he said.

negotiations at Panmunjom to prompt this visit," he said.

"With each passing day there is less and less reason to think the communists really want a stable armistice. Certainly, no one can accuse them of being in a hurry to demonstrate good faith."

An official U.N. spokesman, Brig.-Gen. William P. Nukels, said communist negotiators at Panmunjom appeared disinterested and lackadaisical, as though they were waiting for new instructions.

Hsieh, Col. Chang Chun-Tsai and their interpreters giggled, snickered or read magazines while Maj. Gen. Howard M. Turner was restating the allied position on airfield construction, Nukels said.

Seoul, Korea, Jan. 7.—(AP)—United States jet planes destroyed seven Russian-built MIG-15 jets and damaged 12 in two days of renewed air fighting high over northwest Korea.

U.S. Sabres shot down two MIGs and damaged two Monday. The day before, U.S. planes downed five communist jets and scored hits on another 10.

U.S. losses, if any, were not reported. Under a new policy the U.S. Air Force will announce any losses only once a week.

Allied ground forces on the western front fought fiercely in sub-freezing weather toward a prize outpost lost to the Reds Dec. 28.

United Nations' infantrymen made slight gains against stubborn Chinese resistance early Monday after hurling back two Red thrusts Sunday. The outpost is west of Korangpo and only about six miles from Panmunjom—site of the deadlocked armistice talks.

In South Korea, republic soldiers and police began the third phase of their anti-guerrilla campaign Sunday. Government sources said the second part of the campaign—from Dec. 19 to Jan. 4—resulted in 620 guerrilla casualties.

The votes today were on proposals to put the nationalized railways and social security system on a paying basis by reorganization.

Atomic Weapons Issue Is One Of Major Items On Agenda For Talks With Truman.

By C. R. BLACKBURN
Canadian Press Staff Writer

Washington, Jan. 7.—(CP)—United States authorities are reported ready to give Prime Minister Churchill assurance that atomic weapons will never be used by the United States without consultation with Britain.

This point is understood to be one of the chief items on the agenda of the Churchill-Truman talks, which began unofficially Saturday and continued on a formal basis today.

Churchill came back to Washington Saturday for the first time as Prime Minister since his historic conferences with President Roosevelt beginning Christmas 1941, and ending when he was defeated while attending the Potsdam conference in July, 1945, with President Truman and Premier Stalin.

There have been no official statements on the specific points to be discussed at this conference, to which Churchill brought about 35 of his top advisers.

But it has been made plain that his reason for coming here was to use his own eloquence and capacity for frank and friendly talks to bring reality and practical common sense into the expensive efforts the U.S. and other western powers—including Canada—have been directing toward maintenance of peace and economic sanity in a troubled world.

It is significant that Churchill included in his group Lord Cherwell, who holds the rather-nominal office of paymaster-general but is in fact one of Britain's leading scientists and the Prime Minister's trusted adviser on atomic development.

As a part of his over-all hope to achieve an accord with the most powerful country next to Russia, Churchill is expected to ask that the U.S. will make no warlike use of atomic weapons without consultation with Britain.

From an informed source it was learned that such an assurance would be willingly given.

Beyond that is the desire of the British government that knowledge learned from atomic experiment in the United States will be shared completely with the United Kingdom—and presumably with Canada, which was a party with the other two in development of the atomic bomb—but this may present difficulties.

It may be necessary, if the President feels that such secrets should be shared, that Congress will have to pass special legislation.

Churchill has given himself little time for discussions here, and there is a wide field over which he and Truman have travel.

They will have to talk about their varying views on the sovereignty of the Sudan, the British patrol of the Suez Canal, the Iranian oil issue, the war in Korea, the Indonesian struggle against the communists and Britain's recognition of communist China.

The purpose of the talks remains an official secret—except for the general statement that it is designed to strengthen the western powers' joint efforts to achieve peace and security against war.

Something more definite may be revealed when Churchill makes a public speech in Ottawa next Monday night.

He may make more significant revelations when he addresses a joint session of Congress Jan. 17.

Meanwhile he has quietly—with out his wartime signalling of the famous "V" sign and without the formerly ever-present cigar—captured the imagination of Washington.

There are few here that do not know Churchill is back again as Prime Minister, that there are seriously important problems of peace and war to be settled, and that Truman is sitting down with Britain's wartime Prime Minister to see what can be done to achieve their common aim of peace in the world.

Carlsen's heroic stand with his near-sinking vessel—which he refused to leave—had started some 300 miles west of the English coast, where the Flying Enterprise, almost capsized in the worst Atlantic storm in 50 years.

The American destroyer William Keith, escorting the tug and her charge, reported the little convoy's 8 a.m. position and said "condition of Enterprise unchanged."

The message said the weather was cloudy, with a light fog, the sea moderate with westerly swells, and visibility was three to six miles.

Heavier weather earlier had forced the tug to take a zig-zag course to ease the strain on the tow.

The battered Flying Enterprise today was almost flat on her port side, but still "being towed well," the Turmoil's radio operator said in a radio telephone call to the Associated Press. He reported Carlsen "more confident than ever" that his ship would reach a safe harbor.

Communists Stir Up War In Malaya

Kuala Lumpur, Malaya, Jan. 7.—(AP)—Communism's fight for Malaya has been stepped up since the ambush killing of High Commissioner Sir Henry Gurney 50 miles north of here October 6th.

It took a dangerous turn when communists terrorized 8,000 workers into staying away from 16 big rubber plantations in the state of Negri Sembilan.

But men who have been fighting the Red terror in Malaya for three years say things look a little worse now than they really are.

Communism is trying to win Malaya by a terrorist war which the Reds themselves divide into three phases.

The first is guerrilla warfare, the second is setting up of "liberated areas," the third is the final capture of the nation and government.

The war still is in the first stage.

There is nothing new in the blueprint. It's the same one the Chinese communists used. But there are differences here which may make the blueprint harder to follow.

The biggest difference is the lack of any nationalism in this war. In the other wars of Asia the communists manage to make it look as though the nationalist and patriotic people are on their side. Even though Malaya still is a colonial country where the white man still rules the local populace are against the Reds.

At least 90 per cent of the Chinese are as much against this rebellion as Britain because law-abiding Chinese are the main victims of the war.

Though they lack a central base the Red terrorists are tied together. A nucleus of some 3,500 men are rated as members of the "Malayan Races Liberation Army," an obvious effort to ring in the other races.

Part members are estimated at 4,000 or so, which probably includes most of the army. All told, the "activists"—guerrillas, working politicians, soldiers and all—runs upward of 5,000.

Against this slippery enemy the British and federation forces have fought for more than three years, at present with some 150,000 men of all services.

Flying Enterprise Is Half Way To Port Of Falmouth

London, Jan. 7.—(AP)—Unsinkable Capt. Kurt Carlsen and the Flying Enterprise were halfway to Falmouth today.

At 8 a.m. (3 a.m. EST) the tug Turmoil and the gale-crippled American freighter she is towing were reported 152 miles from the Cornish port of Falmouth. The tug hoped to make port sometime Wednesday.

Carlsen's heroic stand with his near-sinking vessel—which he refused to leave—had started some 300 miles west of the English coast, where the Flying Enterprise, almost capsized in the worst Atlantic storm in 50 years.

The American destroyer William Keith, escorting the tug and her charge, reported the little convoy's 8 a.m. position and said "condition of Enterprise unchanged."

The message said the weather was cloudy, with a light fog, the sea moderate with westerly swells, and visibility was three to six miles.

Toronto's Transportation Arrangements Get Big Test

Toronto, Jan. 7.—(CP)—Citizens thumbed their way to work again today, fourth day of Greater Toronto's street-car and bus strike. Or they rode a company truck, a taxi, a commuter train—or walked.

Today is expected to see the first big test of emergency transportation arrangements hastily put into effect after 4,700 tram and bus operators walked off the job Friday morning to enforce demands upon the Toronto Transportation Commission for a pay increase of 15 cents an hour.

To make way for an unusually heavy surge of automobiles, city officials designated three north-south and four east-west roadways as arterial highways along which almost all left turns are prohibited. They limited downtown on-street parking to one hour and enlarged waterfront parking lots for all-day parkers.

Some of the traffic-handling methods were patterned after those used successfully in Detroit last spring during that city's 55-day transit strike. During that tie-up, as in Toronto's, residents shared automobiles and made other arrangements for getting to work.

After the strike, the Detroit Street Railway reported the number of passengers it carried had declined between 20 and 25 per cent.

A similar permanent loss of passengers is expected by H. C. Patton, T.T.C. general manager, if the Toronto strike lasts a month or more, as some persons predict.

"That is definitely what happened in the Detroit strike," he said. "As a further result, many street railway employees lost their jobs."

He estimated that a further loss of 25,000,000 passengers a year would take place if the T.T.C. raised the fare to 10 cents from the present three tickets for 25 cents. When the fare went up from four to five cents last Aug. 1, passenger travel fell off at the rate of 23,000,000 a year.

The T.T.C. has said a 10-cent fare would be necessary if it granted the demand of the street railway employees union for a basic rate of $1.55 an hour. It had offered $1.45, including a five-cent increase recommended by a conciliation board.

With both sides in the dispute standing firm, Toronto weathered the weekend without its publicly-owned trolleys.

Church attendance was better than usual, with some churches setting up their own transportation arrangements for members who lacked cars. One used its own buses.

Some 13,000 sports fans made their way to Maple Leaf Gardens for Saturday night's hockey game and dispersed afterwards in record time.

The radio operator said if the weather gets worse, the Turmoil's Capt. Dan Parker will abandon Falmouth as his goal and make for any port possible, probably the Scilly Isles.

The Turmoil was towing the 6,711-ton Flying Enterprise at an angle of 30 degrees on her starboard bow, using a single steel wire—50 yards long with a breaking strain of only 65 tons.

That was like a fisherman trying to land a heavy salmon on a line meant for small trout. But the Turmoil has heavy manila hawsers 20 inches thick in reserve if the wire breaks.

Fog last night, which reduced visibility to almost zero at times, lifted at dawn. It had not cut the Turmoil's steady speed of three knots, an ordinary walking pace.

Aboard the Flying Enterprise, Carlsen shared watches with his only companion, Mate Kenneth Dancy of the Turmoil who jumped from the tug to the freighter early Saturday. While one slept for two hours, the other watched.

As the ships neared land, the Turmoil was going to have to cut across the crowded Atlantic shipping lanes. Because the flying Enterprise, almost one-half mile back of the Turmoil, was without lights, that increased the danger.

Costa said he and his family, feuding with Tassoula's family for

Ship's Crew Starved By Chinese

Hong Kong, Jan. 7.—(Reuters)—A British cargo ship limped into port today, freed after six months' detention by Chinese nationalists in Formosa described by the Canadian skipper as worse than a Japanese war-prisoner camp.

The vessel, the Taikishan, was halted by a Chaing-Kai-Shek warship off the communist port of Swatow last June 25 on charges of trading with the communists.

The skipper, Capt. W. Wherry of Saint John, N.B., said life aboard the vessel under the nationalist guards was a "malignant floating hell" of starvation.

"I am personally well grounded in hardship and would not complain about a mild form of punishment, but in this instance I hesitate to compare the same with the conditions experienced in a Japanese prisoner-of-war camp during the war," he said. He was a war prisoner of the Japanese in Hong Kong for 44 months.

The ship's owners in Hong Kong said the vessel was on its way here from communist Tsingtao, carrying about 2,000 tons of general cargo for delivery to Hong Kong when arrested.

The nationalist news agency announced Aug. 22 that the "blockade-runner" Taikishan would be released as soon as her cargo had been unloaded. She had then been detained for nearly three months.

The skipper said the treatment of his crew was not so bad at first but they lived on semi-starvation allowances, made worse by irregular delivery. Each man was allowed about 60 pounds of rice a month.

The acting British consul visited the freighter last Sept. 1 after he read reports in the Hong Kong press about the crew of another vessel, which had been released, being starved during detention.

Wherry was unable to discuss the situation freely with the consul because a nationalist staff officer was present, he said. But

At Least Fourteen Perish In Apartment House Fire

Westfield, Mass., Jan. 7.—(AP)—Fourteen persons, and possibly 15, were believed today to have perished in an apartment-business block fire amid screams for help heard for more than three blocks.

Police and Red Cross officials said as far as they have been able to determine 14 were at home at the time of the fire last night and did not get out in time.

Two others were said to be in a fifth-floor bowling alley, but police weren't able to verify that up to an early hour today.

All five floors collapsed into the cellar in a tangled mass of burning wreckage that firemen found impossible to probe immediately.

Fourteen other persons were injured—12 of them hospital cases. Fire chief Jeremiah A. Moriarty estimated property damage at "more than $1,000,000."

One of the walls collapsed at the height of the blaze and crashed through the roof of an adjoining one-story block of stores.

Moriarty said there would have been many more casualties had it not been for the heroism of several firemen, policemen and onlookers who disregarded personal safety to carry tenants down "fire escapes and ladders."

Dr. Harold Beattie said he heard the anguished screams for help from his home three blocks away.

An elderly couple dressed only in nightclothes, nearly collapsed on the street while waiting for help. Onlookers took off their own shoes and overcoats to protect the couple from the freezing cold.

William Baltrum, proprietor of an inn at the rear of the building, said he saw firemen try to rescue a woman trapped at a fourth-floor window but the ladder was too short. She was rescued, he said, even as flames licked at her back.

JACOBY ON CANASTA

WHEN NOT TO MAKE A CANASTA
When you have made your first canasta, don't be in a hurry to use up a wild card in the attempt to make the second canasta.

That wild card may be more useful to you in melding out or in freezing the pack. As long as you keep a deuce or joker in your hand, you can choose your tactics; once you have melded it, your play is forced.

Suppose, for example, that both sides have melded canastas and have melded fairly freely. The opponents have a canasta of aces, and you have a canasta of kings. Your side also has a meld of five queens and a joker.

At this time there are about a dozen cards left in the stock pile, and each player has seven or eight cards in his hand. You draw from the stock and then hold:

A-A J-J 9-3-2

You haven't seen any nines or jacks, so it would be dangerous to discard one of those cards. You can't discard an ace, because that would give the pack away at once. (You are following the official rules, of course, so the opponent at your left can pick up a card that matches his closed canasta.)

New Plants Meet Growing Demands For Hydro Power

Ottawa. — Canada developed another 831,250 horse power of new hydro-electric capacity during 1951 but her total of more than 13,000,000 is only about 24 per cent of known resources.

Resources Minister Winters, reporting on the state of the country's power developments, said another 1,700,000 horse power is planned to become effective in 1952-53 and a similar amount is planned for 1954-55.

Power development is keeping pace with general industrial expansion, the Minister said. On the whole there are adequate power production facilities to meet current demands "but little reserve capacity was available."

Construction of electrical plants was active in all provinces with Quebec leading in new hydro-electric capacity coming into operation during the year with a total of 461,700 horse power.

There also was active construction in the field of power distribution. New main transmission lines were completed or were under construction in many sections of the country. New transformer and substations were built, secondary lines extended and good progress was made in rural electrification, particularly in Ontario, Quebec and Manitoba.

Growing demands for power in British Columbia brought an advance in plant extensions and new facilities. The British Columbia Electric Company, Limited, and the British Columbia power commission, both brought new capacity into operation during the year and are undertaking work to further power available in 1952.

The Minister terms "a project of outstanding importance." The Aluminum Company of Canada, Nechako-Kitimat development. Present plans called for an installation of 420,000 horse power by early 1952 but tunnel and transmission-line capacity is designed for a total installation of about 1,000,000 horse power.

In the Yukon the Northwest Territories power commission is constructing for operation in 1952, a 3,000 horse power development on the Mayo River, with an ultimate capacity of 8,000 horse power.

In Alberta the installed capacity of water-power plants was practically doubled during 1951 with the completion by Calgary Power Limited of the Spray Lakes scheme involving three new plants with a total capacity of 3,500 horse power.

The Saskatchewan Power Corporation completed installation of a new steam turbo-generator of 15,000 kilowatts capacity at its Estevan plant. At its Prince Albert plant a unit of 10,000 kilowatts, purchased from the city of Edmonton, is under installation for 1952 operation and at Saskatoon a new unit of 25,000 kilowatts is on order for early delivery and operation late in 1952.

The Manitoba Hydro-Electric Board's Pine Falls project on the lower Winnipeg River went ahead on schedule, with the expectation of bringing two units totalling 38,000 horse power into operation shortly. The plant, with a total capacity of 114,000 horse power, is to be completed in 1952.

The Winnipeg Electric Company has under installation the sixth and final unit of 37,500 horse power and operation is scheduled for 1952. This will bring the turbine capacity of the plant to 225,000 horse power.

The Manitoba Power Commission continued its rural electrification program and service was provided for an additional 5,000 farms and 19 towns and villages.

Because of a heavy increase in power demand in southern Ontario, the large construction program of hydro-electric power commission of Ontario has been expedited. A development of 496,000 horse power at the Des Joachims generating station has been virtually completed. All eight units of the Otto Holden generating station will be completed before the end of the year with a total capacity of 272,000 horse power.

Plans now are well advanced for second generating station at Queenston, containing seven units totalling 735,000 horse power. Four units will be in operation by the end of 1954, and the others the following year.

Steam-electric projects also are being pushed, notably the J. Clark Keith generating station at Windsor where four units will be installed with a total capacity of 284,000 kilowatts. Construction of the first stage is nearing completion and the first unit already has gone into operation.

Extension of the commission's rural lines continued during the year and it is estimated that by the end of 1952, the commission will be serving about 324,000 rural customers, including 122,400 farms.

In Quebec a total of 461,700 horse power was brought into operation during the year and development to yield about 1,500,000 horse power is under construction for completion sometime between now and 1955.

The largest single addition to plant capacity in Canada during the year was that of 223,000 horse power in four units in the Beauharnois No. 2 power house of the Quebec Hydro-Electric Commission in the St. Lawrence River.

The commission also began construction in September of a second plant on the upper Ottawa River south of Cadillac. The initial installation for 1953 operation will be 16,000 horse power in two units with the ultimate capacity of 64,000 horse power.

The Shawinigan Water and Power Company made a big addition to its generating capacity with the addition of three units of 65,000 horse power each at the LaTrenche plant on the St. Maurice River. The plant now has a capacity of 325,000 horse power.

The Aluminum Company of Canada has under construction two hydro-electric developments on the Peribonka River in Quebec. One at Chute-du-Diable will consist of five units with a total turbine capacity of 275,000 horse power. The second, located 13 miles downstream at Chute-a-la-Savanne, is also designed for five units of a total of 275,000 horse power. Both will begin initial operation this year.

No new hydraulic plants were brought into operation in Nova Scotia during the year, but two were under construction for operation in 1952. The Nova Scotia Power Commission made good progress on its gulch development on the Bear River, consisting of one unit of 8,600 horse power. The Nova Scotia Light and Power Company has under construction at White Rock on the Gaspereau River, a development of 4,000 horse power with completion scheduled for this year.

Important additions were made to fuel-power generating stations in Nova Scotia during the year and others are under construction.

In New Brunswick, the New Brunswick Electric Power Commission proceeded with construction of its 27,000 horse power development on the Tobique River. It is to be in operation by the spring of 1953.

The Maritime Electric Company completed the installation of a unit of 7,500 kilowatts at Charlottetown. The company built 40 miles of line and made moderate additions to its Prince Edward Island distribution system.

The Newfoundland Light and Power Company completed its new 13,000 horse power plant on the Mobile River and also brought into operation a new unit of 3,350 horse power in its Tors Cove plant. Also under construction are two other plants, one of 7,500 horse power at Cape Broyle for 1952 and the other of 7,500 horse power on the Horse Chops River for 1953 operation.

The Anglo-Newfoundland Development Company Limited is undertaking modernization of its water-power plants on the Exploits River.

In Labrador, the Iron Ore Company began preliminary construction on a development at Manihik Rapids at Ashuanipi River designed for the installation of 12,000 horse power and ultimate 24,000 horse power.

Nurse Who Disappeared On Way To Sherbrooke Cashed Cheque In Montreal

Montreal, Jan. 7.—A cheque "for about $80" believed cashed by a young Montreal criminal lawyer and the distraught husband of Elizabeth Sanson, a nurse who disappeared on the way to Sherbrooke, was cashed at a mid-town Montreal bank Dec. 27.

He said also the girl's movements had been traced up to Dec. 29.

Beyond that he would not elaborate.

"I believe the girl is an amnesia victim," Maj. Rochon said. "That is the only explanation as far as we can see. She's the kind of girl who, if she knew how much we were looking for her, would notify us where she is."

The girl left Kingston intending to spend Christmas in Quebec's Eastern Townships but Maj. Rochon said it seemed possible she had changed her mind on this.

"After all," he added, "she was on leave until Dec. 28 and wasn't reported missing until the 29th."

In an army statement Saturday the girl was reported to have been located in Montreal.

Yesterday, however, the army issued the following statement: "Army headquarters announced yesterday with reference to the missing Nursing Sister Elizabeth Sanson that Lieut. Sanson had been located in Montreal and was in good health."

"This statement was based on information from Montreal believed at the time to be thoroughly reliable but which has since proved unsubstantiated."

The 26-year-old nurse, stationed at Kingston military hospital, is believed to have intended spending Christmas with Mrs. A. A. Savage, an aunt in Sherbrooke, Que. She was last seen at the Kingston railway station Christmas eve.

152,000 U. S. Cigarets Seized At Paquetteville

Royal Canadian Mounted Police who seized more than 7,000,000 cigarettes in the local area during 1951 are continuing their good work in 1952.

Antonio Marcotte, 181 Wellington street, was ordered to pay a fine of $500 and costs or in default of payment one year in jail Saturday when he pleaded guilty before Judge Dorais Panneton to smuggling 152,000 American cigarettes.

The Mounties seized Marcotte's 1947 Mercury which was used in the transportation.

Cpl. E. Lecavalier and Const. R. Cardinal of the Coaticook detachment made the seizure at Paquetteville on Friday night. They were assisted by two constables from the Sherbrooke detachment.

Barker and state attorney J. Lancelot Lester were considering these possibilities:

Hughette might have fallen or been pushed into the water while returning to her husband. Her shorts were found in the car and a pair of dungarees, a green jacket and a white T-shirt were missing, indicating she had changed her clothes.

She might have been picked up or kidnapped by a passing motorist. Her brother and relatives in Montreal said they are convinced she had been kidnapped and possibly taken to Cuba.

Carmen Lemay, 24, a sister-in-law of the missing girl, said in Montreal that Hughette "was very much in love with her husband and would never have left him voluntarily."

Meanwhile, a helicopter, boats and automobiles continued searching the chain of islands and water between Key West and the mainland.

ET Conservatory Classes Resume On Schedule

Stanstead, Jan. 7.—Despite fire which extensively damaged its headquarters, Pierce Hall, last week, the Eastern Townships Conservatory of Music at Stanstead College resumed classes this morning when the college re-opened after the Christmas holiday.

An extension to Pierce Hall, built after fire destroyed the College itself in 1938 was left sufficiently undamaged by last week's fire to be usable and has been sealed off from the burned section. Nine practice rooms are available in this extension.

Additional space has been found elsewhere in the college buildings to serve as offices for the conservatory staff and practice rooms for the students.

Several meetings to discuss future plans for Pierce Hall, built in 1901, have been held since the fire but no decision has yet been taken.

$40,000 Damage Caused By Fire In Windsor Mills On Saturday

Windsor Mills, Jan. 7.—Damages estimated at $40,000 were caused to a three-storey wooden-structure building containing a theatre, Cassar's clothing store and an apartment house in Windsor Mills on Saturday evening.

Eugene Poirier is the proprietor of the building.

It is believed that the fire broke out in Cassar's Clothing Store, located on the second floor, as the result of an oil stove explosion. The fire then soared upwards and the apartment was gutted.

The theatre, situated on the first floor, was damaged but not completely destroyed as were the clothing store and apartment.

The Windsor Mills fire department, under the direction of Chief Edwin Paquet, fought the blaze for more than eight hours. They prevented the fire from spreading and saved apartment blocks on both sides of the flaming building.

The theatre had been closed for the past two weeks but all the equipment was left in the building. Mr. Cassar lost some $5,000 worth of men's and women's clothing while the entire contents of the apartment went up in smoke.

LITVINOV'S CAREER SIGNIFICANT

It was significant that little was heard in recent years of Maxim Litvinov, Soviet Foreign Minister from 1929 to 1939 and ambassador to Washington in 1941-43. His departure from prominent position in the Communist hierarchy was concurrent with a sharp turn in Russia's foreign policy.

One of the old Bolsheviks, Litvinov was an internationalist. He had lived abroad many years prior to the 1917 revolution. He was married to an English woman. He understood the Western world and, one can assume, had some admiration for it.

While Lenin lived, his position of influence was secure. When Russia was trying to make itself "respectable" and acceptable to the Western world, Litvinov was its instrument. He got it into the League of Nations, and its diplomats accepted among the chancelleries of the world. But, he was left out in the cold in 1939 when Molotov pulled the infamous deal with the Nazis. The presumption was Litvinov didn't favor that deal, preferring an association with the democracies. Two short years proved him correct.

He was pulled out of the discard in 1941 when Russia was attacked by the Nazis with whom it previously had dealt and was sent to Washington. Russia badly needed the friendship and help of the democracies, and Litvinov could serve its purpose. He later was relegated to the post of deputy foreign commissar, without influence, until his retirement in 1946.

It was about that time, it will be recalled, Soviet foreign policy abandoned all traces of "internationalism" and was embarked upon its nationalistic, imperialistic policies of aggression. Litvinov had no place in such a program and, judging from his past precepts, wouldn't have approved. He was purged from public office and probably only his worldwide reputation saved him from execution or Siberia.

If Maxim Litvinov's influence had prevailed in the Kremlin, Soviet foreign policy since 1938 would have been different, and the world possibly a much less troubled place.

LESS BUTTER — MORE GUNS

Addressing the Jewish War Veterans at their annual award dinner in New York, at which he received the organization's 1951 gold medal for his fight against Communist expansion, Secretary of State Dean Acheson reviewed America's foreign policy and gave his estimate of 1952.

The new year, he said, would be a most critical one, but he optimistically predicted that the free world would gain the power to take or withhold action "which will have a decisive effect upon the cause of peace."

In his year-end review, he conceded losses and gains for the U.S. and her western Allies, but felt that the gains outweighed the losses to the extent that at year's end "We are better off than we were a year ago." The assumption is that his optimistic prediction for 1952 is based on the gains he has totted up for 1951.

The word "gains" is relative. It may mean advances over the dark days of 1950. There is no disputing that the outlook now is considerably brighter than it was then. But the real question seems to be, not whether we made gains in 1951, but whether those gains were as great as they might have been if the leaders of the so-called free world and the masses of people behind them had taken a more realistic view of the crisis facing humanity.

There seems to be two factors slowing the march along the road to peace and the restraint of the Communist tyrants. One is the attitude of our European allies. They have lagged in contributing to their own defensive forces. With few exceptions, the member countries of the UN have contributed only token assistance to the U.S. in the shooting war against communism in Korea.

Correspondents and other observers view with alarm a debilitating growth of "neutrality." Europe is not lacking in perspicacious leaders who can read the handwriting on the wall. But for the sake of their own political skins, many seem afraid to tell their people the unpleasant facts of life. They seem content to let the U.S. carry the load.

And here, at home, there seems to be a corresponding refusal to face reality. It is becoming increasingly apparent that the U.S., with its vast natural resources, its industrial plant and potential, its native energy and great wealth is the only nation that can, with any adequate speed, gain the strength necessary for defence against Communist aggression in a final showdown.

Since the Korean war started the U.S. has been building up defensive armaments side by side with uninterrupted production of consumer goods. To many observers it became clear in 1951 that this "guns and butter" philosophy is not doing the trick. Americans face the painful fact that there will simply have to be less butter and more guns.

YOU CAN'T BEAT THE DUTCH

You can't beat the Dutch whether they are Rotterdam or Amsterdam. Here is a record of achievement as commented on by The Hamilton Spectator:

A Dutch family of New Canadians now owns two bakeries in Ontario after landing in Canada with only $100 thirty months ago. Their formula for success is simply "hard work"—old-fashioned in some quarters, but still effective.

PRIVATE-PUBLIC SOURCES RACE TO MEET ELECTRIC POWER NEEDS

By PETER EDSON

NEA Washington Correspondent

Washington — (NEA) — U.S. electric power consumption for the pre-Christmas week was expected to reach a new all-time peak of 7,750,000 kilowatt hours. Total for the year is expected to be over 432 billion kw.

This is another record, and there is every indication that consumption will continue to rise during 1952, 1953 and 1954.

But with the national defense effort making unprecedented demands for more and more electric power for manufacturing aluminum, magnesium, atomic energy and other defense materials production, the big question is: Will there be enough, on time?

About three-fourths of today's power is generated by private utilities, or railways and industrial producers for their own use. The other fourth is public power. They are in a sense competitive.

But a new and better relationship of public power policy towards private power seems to be in the making.

Oscar Chapman, Secretary of the Interior, concedes that "the private power industry is doing a good job of expansion to meet defense needs. But if private power companies did even more expanding, it would cut down on the need for more public power."

Secretary Chapman has placed James T. Fairman in the Defense Electric Power Administration. Fairman is a vice president of New York Edison, an experienced utilities executive acceptable to the power industry.

"The Defense Electric Power Administration will not be used to penalize private power expansion in any way," says Secretary Chapman. "Private power companies will get top priority on materials for their expansion programs."

Material Shortage Blocks Expansion

Biggest obstacle to continuing both private and public power expansion to meet defense needs is the shortage of construction materials—steel, copper, aluminum, nickel and other alloys.

So great are these shortages that George M. Gadsby, president of Utah Power and of the Edison Electric Institute, concedes that in 1952 there may be a 25 per cent reduction in scheduled generating capacity expansion, with a 50 per cent cut in scheduled steam plant expansion.

The Federal Power Commission after surveying requirements for the next three years, makes the flat statement:

"There is no place in the country today where a load of 200,000 kilowatts for an additional four-foot-line aluminum reduction plant could be placed before 1953, without displacing other industrial loads."

The way the situation shapes up to FPC, total power capacity required a year from now will be 85.8 million kilowatts, with actual production capacity of only 84.5 million kw. This would mean a shortage of 1.3 million kw. in spite of over 10 million kw. new capacity scheduled to be brought into production next year.

For 1953, however, the picture will be better with requirements of 95 million kw. and capacity of 93.7 million kw. For 1954 the situation will be still better, with 101 million kw. required and 105 million kw. capacity.

This is considered a minimum safe reserve. These figures include public power expansion. Secretary Chapman's efforts to aid the private power industry are not to be taken as meaning that he will cut down on public power development, if materials are available and Congress approves.

Anyone thinking otherwise does not know Chapman's record.

Power Appropriations Continue Climb

From 1940 to 1946, the war years when Harold Ickes was Secretary of the Interior, public power appropriations averaged about $35 million a year. Under Secretary of Interior Julius A. Krug in the next three years, power appropriations averaged $63 million.

Under Secretary Chapman, power appropriations have been $140 million in 1950, then $148 million in 1951 and $161 million in the current fiscal year.

During these three years, Secretary Chapman has also secured approval for twice as many miles of government transmission lines as in previous years.

But he has also made more "wheeling" contracts under which private power companies buy, exchange or transmit power generated at government dams for preferred government clients like the Rural Electrification Administration co-ops.

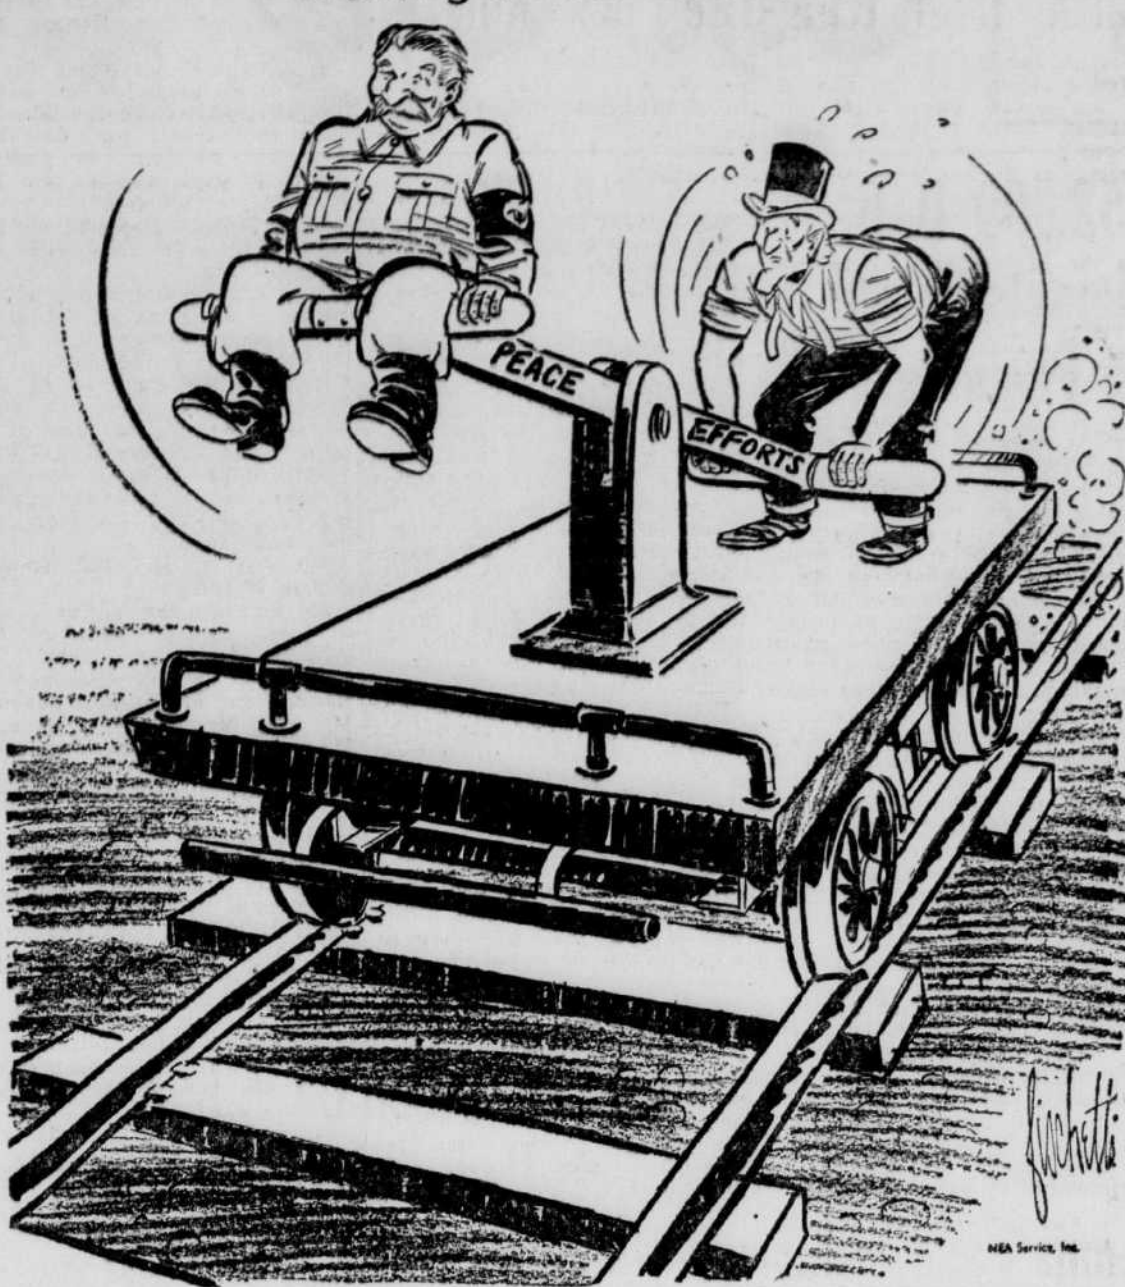

His policy sums up as an effort to do everything possible to accelerate both public and private power development. Believing in private competition, Chapman nevertheless supports the idea that competition from government power is a healthy thing where private power companies have a monopoly.

If national defense needs for electric power had been left entirely to private expansion, it could not have met the country's needs, he says.

Chapman contends that the private power companies made many mistakes—as in not expanding to meet rural electrification needs.

Today he concedes that private power is more forward-looking. And it is on this basis that he makes his statement that the industry is now doing an excellent job.

PROTECTION URGED

To The Editor,

Dear Sir: After having read your article re some "things" cowardly deed in Dorval street, I feel it is my duty to ask you to publish some account in your column.

What is wrong with our police force that they cannot make some attempt to answer an urgent request for protection. I have had a few years in police work myself and have seen how such matters are dealt with. Even though no regulation vehicle was readily available was desk sergeant or lieutenant or corporal being a little lax? They shouldn't be. After all we're paying them.

PLEA FOR CORRECT PRONUNCIATION

To The Editor,

Dear Sir: This morning, while listening to a commentator from our big sister province across the Ottawa, I was amused to hear him criticize another commentator for the incorrect use of a certain word, while he himself showed a surprising lack of knowledge both of the correct spelling and the correct pronunciation of such words as "essential," "efficient," "occasional," etc., where a single vowel is followed by a double consonant. These he glibly pronounced as "E-sen-shul," "EE-fishunt" and "OH-kay-shun-al," despite the rule of all good spellers that the single vowel, when followed by a double consonant, is given the short sound of that vowel, e.g., efficient—EFF-ish-unt, essential—ESS-ent-shul, occasional—OCK-ay-shun-al. So general has been this flagrant display of the grossest ignorance on the part of reporters and commentators over the air, that many public speakers have caught the infection, and are unconsciously, no doubt, repeating the same offense (OH-fense, OH-fensive, sic), though clergymen, professors, lawyers, doctors and scientists should all know better, and be immune to the vile infection.

There can be little doubt that these lamentable lapses are the result of faulty teaching of spelling in our schools, both elementary and high, where pupils write long lists from dictation.

BULL WHIP.

It is true I have always had continual concern as to my wife's safety on the streets, but it seems that we men must now go to business or the club armed with brass knuckles or a black jack.

This is not the first of such happenings in this vicinity and it probably won't be the last if these rogues are not apprehended and made an example of. Maybe the last wouldn't be too severe for these poor excuses for men, with the intellectual development less than that of a small gorilla.

Let's do something before the same happens to your wife or mine. Yours for better protection.

WATCH YOUR HAND: IT'LL PAY DIVIDENDS

When you're defending a hand, it's usually a fine idea to play in such a way that your partner knows what you have and therefore knows how to put up the best defense. It's possible, however, to overdo this defensive signalling as today's hand shows.

North's cue-bid of three spades was forcing to game and promised support for three unbid suits. North didn't really have full values for this bid, but he wasn't far out of line. When South got to five diamonds, West came to life with a quick disciplinary double.

West opened the three of spades, and dummy ruffed with the nine of diamonds. East dropped the ace of spades on this trick, partly to show complete control of the suit and partly to encourage a spade continuation.

This play was highly informative to West, but it was a complete giveaway to South as well. South happened to be Harry Fishbein, a nationally known expert who seldom needs more than one hint to help him play a doubtful hand.

Fishbein realized that East's play definitely located the ace-king-queen of spades. What could West have for his double of five diamonds? The only other high cards were the ace of clubs, the ace of hearts, and the queen of hearts.

West might have raised to two spades on an ace and a queen, but he certainly wouldn't have doubled with that meager holding. It was obvious that West held both of the missing aces for his double.

Acting on this information, Fishbein led a club from dummy and played the jack to force West's ace. West returned a low heart, hoping that declarer would finesse the jack, but Fishbein confidently put up dummy's king to win the trick.

He threw down two rounds of trumps and drew the clubs to discard a low heart from his hand. He gave up only one heart and

If East had played the eight instead of the ace of spades at the first trick, South would have credited West with some high card in spades. There would be no reason to credit West with the ace of hearts, and the chances are that South would have lost his contract by misguessing that suit.

CARD SENSE

Q—The bidding has been:

West North East South
1 Heart Double Pass ?
You, South, hold: Spades 7-6-3, Hearts K-J-5, Diamonds Q-8-3, Clubs Q-J-6-2. What do you do?

A—Bid one no-trump. This shows a pretty sure stopper in the opponent's suit and a little scattered strength. The hand as a whole should be fairly close to average strength (one ace, one king, one queen, and one jack).

TODAY'S QUESTION

The bidding is the same as in the question just answered. You, South, hold: Spades 6-3, Hearts J-10-9-7, Diamonds 9-8-3, Clubs Q-J-6. What do you do?

Answer Tomorrow

when the pronunciation of these words is not always faultless, and the well-known rules of spelling are entirely missing from the program.

The teachers of a former generation, who had their students pronounce distinctly and spell, syllable by syllable, the list of words assigned as the lesson, could not have been altogether wrong. Can we not go back to these oral drills, so that our students, when they are given the responsible and very important task of broadcasting news or views, wares or shares of any kind, may select the right word, and pronounce it correctly?

Perhaps this degradation of our fine Anglo-Saxon tongue may be traced to the influence of Spanish-American speakers and commentators upon their opposite numbers in such states as Texas, New Mexico, Arizona and California. In Spanish the counterparts of such words as occur, office, offend, offensive, officious, effective, efficient, effusion, essential, effulgence are o-currir, o-fensa, o-fend-er, o-feasivo, o-ficicio, e-ctivo, e-ficiencio, e-ctivo, e-ficaz, e-fusion, e-sencial, e-splendor, in which initial O is long, as in owe, and initial E is long like A in hate. In English, synonyms for these words, the initial O should be short, like O in off, when followed by two consonants or a double consonant, while the initial E, under the same conditions, should be short, like E in get.

If all radio announcers, news, political, or commercial, could be set right in these particulars, there would be an achievement worthy of all acceptance and devoutly to be wished.

When good dictionaries and gazetteers are ready at hand for quick reference, there can be no valid excuse for lapses such as Article for Arctic, where both C's should be pronounced, not elided like the second "c" in Connecticut.

It is not a question of diction, or choice of words employed, as one editor sneeringly suggests, but purely and simply a matter of correct pronunciation of the words so selected. Let us have no more of lar-nyx for lar-ynx, or America for the United States but properly authenticated English Editors and all teachers of English have a real responsibility here.

The Record Short Story

A VACATION DELAYED

By LLEWELLYN HUGHES

Vivian realized she was absolutely alone in the day coach, the next stop being the last on the spur line. Tears begged for release in her brown eyes. She fought them back, calling on her courage, having had to call on it often before.

What depressed her had been her first glimpse of the bay. Slate-gray, bereft of sail or motor boat, the sky above it seemed to be lowering down with the weight of lead.

"Dear Vacation Adviser: I live with my mother and father, am 24, unmarried and my summer vacation had to be postponed due to my mother's illness. Usually I have gone to Swampscot each summer, but had decided to try somewhere else this year. Could you tell me where I might find some inexpensive place (the seashore preferably) not too far away from Boston where—"

"—the hotel at Cohuit keeps open through October. Very reasonable after Labor Day. Here are the directions how to reach there—"

"Woods Hole," the gray-haired conductor called to her, and added to himself, "The Last Rose of Summer, and the prettiest passenger I've had on this train all year."

She collected her blue suitcase, smiled at him, went down the steps and, as directed, crossed over to the garage to hire a car that was soon taking her along a circuitous country road six miles up the bay coast.

Cohuit. If you happen to know it (for it is hard to find), you'll agree that it is a most picturesque Cape Hamlet. A rocky jetty, a few scattered houses, a family hotel and not much more. Animated in summer with laughing children, hushed now in its surrounding trees in their autumn dresses of purple and bronze.

In her room Vivian unpacked her things and suddenly flung herself on the bed. What had persuaded her to come here? Why hadn't she told "Vacation Adviser" that it was romance she sought? A place where she could dance and could display her pretty figure in the white bathing suit she had bought. Why not go back to Swampscot where at least she had friends?

Vivian gulped down her unhappiness. To help defray hospital and doctor's expenses for her mother the saved vacation funds had dwindled almost to nothing. It was too late to change her mind. Indeed, she would never again go to Swampscot. There, two summers ago, she had met Greg LeMay, the lifeguard, who had taught her to do the swim dive. Vivian didn't know if she had loved Greg or not. At any rate, Paula, her closest friend, had taken him from her, was now married to him.

From somewhere below came the soft knell-like chiming of a dinner gong. Seven to 8 p.m. Vivian went to her bureau, opened the fitted case that Jimmy Freemantle had once given her with its green-enameled brush and comb, manicure set, empty perfume bottles. Jimmy was the head salesman for the wholesale jewelry firm where she and Paula worked. He had practically pounced on her when he found she was the new receptionist. She had gone out with him once or twice, only to regret it, but she clung to the fitted case. It was the one nice toilet accessory she possessed.

There were just six people in the dining room, elderly men and their wives at separate tables. All of them stared at her in consternation, as though she had come there to rob them. In the cruelty of their continued scrutiny her friendly smile slowly faded on her lips.

Vivian saw at once that she was a misfit in the place, disturbing the tranquility of the dining room. There would be nothing for her to do here other than rest, eat and sleep. There was no one except the two waitresses of her own age.

As the days went by she resigned herself to a daily ritual of sunbathing and reading. Everything was circumspect. Guests, management and servants were exceedingly kind to her, a charming white-haired couple insisting on taking her for drives and having her at their table for meals. On her own Vivian came to love walking through the gorgeously-colored woods (she once saw a pheasant there) picking the autumn flowers.

Setting out on one of these late afternoon excursions a few days before the end of her two weeks, a blue and chromium car passed her, a chauffeur at the wheel. Seated in the back, a beautiful dog erect beside him, was a bronzed young man in sports jacket, wearing dark sun glasses, a silk scarf knotted about his throat, a Panama hat slanting his dark head. In that instant Vivian got the thrill of her life. He was a heart-throb—

—a Cary Grant.

She couldn't resist looking back over her shoulder. The car stopped outside the hotel, the chauffeur carrying a kitbag inside.

He quickly reappeared and the car drove on.

At about six-thirty she returned to her room, her arms full of flowers, feeling gloriously rested, golden brown from head to toe, so physically fit that she had danced like a sprite in the woods. To her surprise her door was slightly open. As she entered a dog growled at her, the same police dog she had seen in the blue and chromium car.

"Quiet, Duke," a pleasant voice admonished. "What the devil are you growling for?"

Standing by her bureau, his hands groping amongst her prized possessions, was a tall young man in sports jacket and dark glasses. Vivian drew in her breath, rigid with fear as she stood in the doorway.

"Just what," she managed to say evenly, "are you doing in my room?"

"Ah!" he smiled. "I thought there was some mistake. I'm terribly sorry. You see I only checked in here this afternoon and—"

Again he gave his lovely smile. "My name is Franklin Abbey. I thought this was my room, particularly when my key let me in here without any trouble. My deepest apologies. Please forgive me."

There was no need for further explanation. Calling to his dog, his hand felt for a strap attached to the animal's shoulder. "Confound you, Duke," he laughed. "What's the idea of leading me into a lady's room?"

In November the head salesman Jimmy Freemantle came back to the main office from a trip to the West Coast.

He appeared to be chagrined, the beaming smile leaving his face, at seeing Paula behind the receptionist's desk.

"What goes?" he asked. "Where's Vivian?"

"She's no longer with us."

"What? How come?"

"She's Mrs. Franklin Abbey now," Paula said, trying not to sound envious. "I might say the rich Mrs. Abbey, with an apartment in New York and a house in the country. She's devoting all her attention to him until his next operation. He was a captain in the Air Force, and in his first combat in Korea received a terrible wound in the face and eyes..."

Quebec Aces Retained Top Spot In Senior Group; Senators Dump Braves Twice To Gain Ground

Quebec Aces today remain atop the Quebec Senior Hockey League despite the fact they failed to see action during the weekend.

Biggest ground-gainers were the Ottawa Senators who dumped the second place Valleyfield Braves twice by scores of 3-2 and 3-1. The twin victories gave the Senators a tie for second place.

Montreal Royals and Chicoutimi Saguenays are tied for fourth place and Sherbrooke Saints and Shawinigan Falls Cataracts, with 27 points apiece, share the league cellar.

In the only game played Saturday, Ottawa shaded the Braves 3-2. Sunday, it was Sherbrooke 5 Montreal 2; Ottawa 3 Valleyfield 1 and Chicoutimi 2 Shawinigan Falls 1.

At Ottawa Saturday sniping for the winners were Bill Robinson, Leo Gravelle and Jackie Giesebrecht. Centre Larry Kwong accounted for both Valleyfield markers.

Kwong put Valleyfield ahead at 17:36 of the initial period on the first of his two-goal effort.

Robinson got that one back at 6:40 of the second period from a scramble in front of the net and Gravelle gave Ottawa a 2-1 lead midway in the period.

Kwong scored his other counter at 15:20 to tie the count at 2-2 on a penalty shot. It was awarded to the Braves after Ottawa's Vic Grigg pulled Valleyfield's Kiteoutte Joannette down as he attempted a shot on the Ottawa net.

Canadiens Drop 3-2 Verdict To Bruins; Lach Out With Twisted Knee; Wings Down Boston 4-2

As the week-end's two busiest National Hockey League clubs, Chicago Black Hawks and Boston Bruins didn't have too much luck in the victory department.

In a total of four appearances on foreign ice, the two cellar-dwelling teams managed to gain but one win, a 3-2 Boston Bruins Saturday night decision over the second-place Montreal Canadiens.

Sunday the fifth-place Bruins bowed to the Red Wings in Detroit while the Hawks blew leads to both Toronto and New York in their two games. The Maple Leafs edged them 2-1 Saturday while the Rangers came through with a 3-2 decision on Sunday.

Toronto's Saturday night victory moved them back into a second-place deadlock with the Canadiens while the Bruins climbed to within one point of fourth with their win over the Hawks. However, the Rangers' Sunday night decision against Chicago widened the gap once again.

Jack Stoddard, the Rangers' recently-acquired right winger, made his first N.H.L. goal an important one last night. It gave the Blue-shirts their 3-2 win over the Hawks.

Chicago took a 2-0 first period lead on goals by Jim Peters and Gus Bodnar. Reggie Sinclair put the Rangers back in the game in the middle session and the third was all New York as Eddie Stojanowski opened for the Blues and then Stoddard came through with the winner at 9:36.

The Wings scored three times in the third period for their 4-2 Sunday win over Boston Bruins.

Gordie Howe opened the scoring for Detroit in the second and Dave Creighton evened it at 1-1 a few minutes later.

Ted Lindsay sent Detroit into a 2-1 third period lead and Vic Stasiuk increased it to 3-1. Jack McIntyre made it 3-2 when he tallied Boston's second goal and with one minute left to play, Coach Lynn Patrick pulled goalie Jim Henry, only to have the move backfire and Lindsay pop a loose puck in the empty net.

Saturday night in Montreal, lanky Lorne Ferguson scored twice in Boston's 3-2 decision over the Canadiens.

He opened the scoring in the second period, only to have Maurice Richard even it up five minutes later.

Johnny Peirson put the Bruins out in front once again in the third period and again the Hawks tied it up 2-2 on Floyd Curry's goal. Ferguson's second goal broke up the game at 18:15 of the final period.

At Toronto, the Black Hawks took a 1-0 first period lead on Pete Babando's tally, but Harry Watson evened it up midway through the middle session. Danny Lewicki tipped Fernie Flaman's long drive at 12:08 of the final for the winning counter.

Only serious loss was suffered by Canadiens. Elmer Lach twisted his knee in the first period of the Montreal-Boston tussle and may be sidelined for a few games.

Biggest fight occurred in Detroit when Ted Lindsay and Bill Ezinicki began a brawl in the midst of the final frame. Two Boston players climbed over the boards to join in.

Lindsay and Ezinicki got majors for fighting and one of the board hoppers—Ed Kryzanski—was tumbled for a 10-minute misconduct.

There are no games scheduled tonight, but Boston plays in Chicago tomorrow evening and Toronto is at New York Wednesday.

U.S. College Heads To Decide Athletes

Washington, Jan. 7.—(AP)—The United States college presidents today buckled down to the tough chore of writing a strict code of inter-collegiate athletics.

They hope to complete their job by tonight. But exactly what they have written down won't be made public immediately.

The report first will go to the executive committee of the American Council of Education. No date has been set for an executive committee meeting, but Dr. John A. Hannah, chairman of the Special Sports Committee, said he hopes a meeting will be called immediately.

In addition to writing the report today, the committee was to hear from Ben Carnevale of the Naval Academy, representing basketball coaches, and Everett Barnes of Colgate, representing the baseball coaches.

At an earlier meeting the college presidents listened to the football coaches, and then decided that football games should be confined to the fall.

Their tentative conclusion: No

Western Delegates Defeat East In Battle Over Icing-The-Puck Rule

Regina, Jan. 7.—(AP)—The West scored a victory over the East at the semi-annual meeting of the Canadian Amateur Hockey Association.

Delegates decided yesterday to retain the icing-the-puck rule in effect at the annual meeting in Halifax last May. The vote was 12-11 with the 12 "for" all Westerners and the 11 "against" all Easterners.

This vote wiped out a decision made in an executive vote—13-10 in December to revert to the old rule.

The Halifax rule, the one now in effect, is that the puck must be carried over the defending team's blue line or passed over without reaching the goal-line.

The old rule allowed the puck to be fired into the end zone from just over the centre red line. This rule was in effect in the 1949-50 season and briefly in the East this season after the December executive vote.

To safeguard against recurrence of such reversals as that resulting from the December executive vote, delegates adopted a resolution that changes in rules made at semi-annual meetings must be retained unless two-thirds of the executive vote in favor of a change.

However, delegates granted the two major leagues the right to use the old rule. There was no opposition to the request that the old rule be used in the Quebec League and the Maritime League.

The Quebec League initiated opposition to the new rule and it was this action that culminated in the December executive vote.

Delegates also awarded Loutit to Flin Flon (Man.) Bombers of the Saskatchewan Junior League.

Originally Windsor Spitfires, a farm club of Detroit Red Wings of the National League, sought a transfer for Loutit. The C.A.H.A. approved Flin Flon's refusal to accept a transfer. But later Loutit turned up as a player for Detroit Hitche in an International Senior League.

The United States Amateur Hockey Association asked for a transfer and this too, was turned down. Loutit refused to return to Flin Flon. The latter club then appealed to the C.A.H.A.

Yesterday's vote awarding Loutit to Flin Flon was unanimous. The meeting also decided:

That no branch be allowed to make changes in the C.A.H.A. rules for branch purposes without the consent of the C.A.H.A. executive.

That any changes in rules made at the semi-annual or annual meetings be adhered to unless changed by a two-thirds vote of the executive. (This is designed to prevent an occurrence such as the recent change in the icing-the-puck rule.)

That all players going to play for clubs overseas be "released" by their Canadian clubs before leaving Canada (British clubs have been taking the players overseas and then getting releases.)

And that the final date for replacements of players lost by teams to the Canadian Olympic Hockey team be Jan. 12 and that their replacements be approved by the presidents of the branches concerned.

Among the proposals to be voted on at the C.A.H.A. annual meeting is one by the Maritimes branch that any amateur hockey player who is turned professional and reinstated as an amateur in the same season shall remain the property of the amateur club with which he was last registered.

SKIN IRRITANTS CAUSE ECZEMA, NOT INFECTION WITHIN THE BODY
By Edwin P. Jordan, M.D.

M. W. and several others have asked for a discussion of eczema. This disease, which is now more commonly known as dermatitis venenata, is the result of contact with irritants, and is not from infection within the body.

In a way, eczema is a kind of allergy. At first eczema is likely to appear as a simple redness of the skin but if the irritation has been severe, blisters may form or even small pus pockets.

After a while the redness and other signs of inflammation may give way to chronic symptoms difficult to recognize.

Eczema shows up on those parts of the body which have come in contact with the irritating substance. For this reason the hands, face, and legs are common locations for the appearance of this skin condition.

The skin has a burning or itching sensation which often appears before it even shows any redness. The itching may be so severe as to cause a great deal of scratching and this injures the skin still further.

The list of substances which can cause eczema is almost unlimited. "Eczema" from poison ivy is a typical example. Hair dyes, face powders, shampoos, tincture of iodine, weeds, the dye in clothing are other common causes.

More rarely some printing inks, match boxes, and almost every substance known to be used in industry have been at one time or another uncovered as the cause of eczema.

to, to avoid putting things on the skin which might make the condition worse, and finally to use certain ointments and lotions which are mild and soothing to help relieve the inflammation and restore the skin to normal.

Finding the cause is often quite a job. Sometimes it has required real detective ability on the part of the doctor.

Another difficulty in many cases of eczema is that the patient may have tried to treat himself with tincture of iodine or some other irritating substance which has caused a new type of irritation and conceals the nature of the original one.

Many skin specialists feel that self-treatment makes their job much harder than it should be.

Luggage Can Lighten Travel If You Choose It Carefully

Luggage suited to the particular need is the byword for travelers these busy days. Compact, sturdy and roomy, these bags offer you luxury and complete convenience.

By ANNETTE GREEN, NEA Staff Writer

New York. — (NEA) — A vagabond's life may be an easy one, but if you're planning to travel, rest assured that luggage has a great deal more to offer than the knapsack.

Since the primary purpose of luggage is to get your things where you want to go and back again in good condition, with the least possible weight, you should give some serious thought to the pieces you select.

Actually, you have a great variety in material, color, size and shape to choose from. Fabrics, leather and plastics abound.

Both hard and soft luggage is available in a wide range of color and patterns, at practically any price tag you want to pay.

In case you aren't familiar with the difference between hard and soft luggage, the first is built on a steel frame, and the other on a molded wooden box.

Either one is fine for travel by air, ship, train or car. Your choice depends only on personal preference.

Luggage can be as elegant or economical as you desire. Before choosing your first piece, consider that it will be your traveling companion for a long time.

You will probably want to add to it later on to make a matched set. Besides the eye appeal of matching luggage, it's easy-to-spot in the bustle of a station or the crowd of a hotel lobby.

In fact, the increasing demand taken up residence at 392 McClarens Street, Ottawa, Ont.

Guests at the wedding included: Father Leon Drapeau, of Lennoxville; Father Ludger Drapeau, of Montreal; Father J. R. Moisan, of Sherbrooke; Mr. and Mrs. Arnold Buzzell and their daughter, Miss Lise Drapeau, of Magog; Mr. and Mrs. Richard Boisvert and son, Michael, Messrs. Camille, George and Conrad Boisvert, of Rock Island; Mr. Gerard Boisvert, of Beebe; Mrs. Alice Shanahan, of Littleton, N.H.; Mr. and Mrs. Roland Boisvert, Miss Paula Roy, Mr. R. Doucet, of Sherbrooke; Miss Rita Roy, of Lennoxville.

To buy, sell, exchange use Want Ads. Dial 3-3636 Want-Ad Department.

for matched pieces has brought about luggage being sold "from open stock" very much the same as china and silver. So pick your luggage with an eye to filling-in later on.

To start your basic luggage wardrobe, you can buy either a train or overnight case, and a flat pullman and a wardrobe case. These will allow you three to four weeks of travel, and will even pull through the 66 pounds overseas air allowance without an additional charge.

Your train or overnight case will average about 15 pounds when full. A wardrobe filled with chalk up another 25 pounds. A pullman case packed to capacity averages about 35 pounds.

Naturally, the amount and type of luggage you buy depends on the type of trip you are planning, how long you will be gone, and your means of transportation.

You can always add a hat and shoe case to your initial pieces when you need them.

For the college or career girl who must travel, a wardrobe trunk is most handy. A wardrobe trunk furnishes a chest of drawers for accessories, and hangers for dresses.

The co-ed will find a flat packing trunk extremely convenient to bring and store spreads, rugs, curtains, and drapes for the dorm or sorority house room.

Luggage should suit your needs, taste and pocketbook. It will, if you make your choice with all three requirements in mind.

Suit Yourself To Fashion

By GAILE DUGAS
NEA Woman's Editor

New York. — (NEA) — The fashion-right blouse that's light, soft to the touch, wrinkle-resistant, that launders well and needs no ironing, absorbs moisture easily and holds its pleats under all conditions is that blouse that fills the bill for the paycheck girl.

In all orlon or part-orklon acrylic fiber fabric, this is the blouse for the full-time, working wardrobe.

It can be laundered at night, planned to provide an accent for along with lingerie, and turn up next morning ready for another day without benefit of ironing.

The new orlon and part-orklon blouses are done in basket weaves, in shantung, in crepes, in taffetas. The fabric is light weight but shape retention is inherent in the fibers.

Blouse colors (white, magnolia, mauve, charcoal, mint green) are planned to provide an accent for basic suits.

Long-sleeved blouse (left) is in basket-weave and is all orlon. A yoke front is tucked to create a pleated look. Tailored, notched collar and front closing with pearl buttons are classic.

Tailored shantung blouse (right) with short sleeves is in orlon-and-nylon. Zig-zag front closing, edge of sleeves and collar are corded.

Locals Take Advantage Of Breaks To Dump Royals 5-2 In Wide-Open Tilt; Team Turns In Fine Exhibition

Rene Pepin, Sherbrooke Saints diminutive right-winger, was the pace-setter yesterday afternoon at the Montreal Forum when he registered two goals to help his mates down the Royals 5-2 in a wide open fixture of the Quebec Senior Hockey League.

Tomorrow evening the Saints will play hosts to the Royals in a return engagement between the two teams. Bill Kyle, Guy Labrie and Kenny Biggs registered the other goals for the locals. For the Royals, Cliff Malone and Gerry Plamondon were the marksmen.

The door of the 325 to be drawn tomorrow evening in keeping with the Special Committee's activities will be Cecil Dunn.

The defeat was the third in succession for the Royals and dropped them all the way from second place into a tie for fourth position with Chicoutimi Saguenay, who edged Shawinigan 2-1. Sherbrooke pulled into a deadlock for sixth place with the Cataracts as the result of their Forum conquest.

Rene Pepin Paces Saints

Rene Pepin paced the Saints to their third win over the Royals in six games by scoring twice, both in the waning minutes of the third period. He also earned an assist on a first-period marker by Bill Kyle. Defenceman Guy Labrie and Ken Biggs, Sherbrooke's best attacker of the day, counted the other goals for the winners.

Cliff Malone and Gerry Plamondon netted the Montreal goals with the Royals giving one of their dullest performances of the season on home ice. Their passing and defensive play left much to be desired.

After Malone opened the scoring on a pass from Glen Harmon for the Royals first goal, Rousseau was flagged off with a boarding penalty. Kyle promptly evened the score at 1-1 when he shot a rebound into the wide open Montreal net with goalie Jacques Plante obviously caught out of position.

Rousseau was still boxed when the second period got underway and the Saints wasted little time taking the lead. Labrie fired a 40-foot screened shot from inside the blue line that Plante missed completely 32 seconds after the period started. The Saints were never headed after that.

Biggs shot the Saints further ahead in the final period when he drilled a shot by Plante after the Montreal goalie stopped a drive from bespectacled Bunny Smith. Plamondon got that one back with the help of Dugger McNeil at the 15:55 mark. Then came Rousseau's fourth and most disastrous penalty, a major for fighting with the Saints' Tom McDougall, who was assessed a minor penalty.

Rene Pepin took charge of the game at this point with two quick goals that clinched the game for Sherbrooke. The hard-skating winger intercepted a pass across the front of the Royals' net from Harmon to Billy Gould to beat Plante for the first at 17:34. Rousseau was still off when Pepin closed out the scoring at 19:27.

St. Francis Edges Optimists 4-3 In Hard-Fought Juvenile Fixture Sunday; Deblois Tallies Two For Winning Squad

Taking advantage of a penalty in the third period, Pat Murphy's St. Francis Juveniles yesterday afternoon managed to eke out a 4-3 decision over the Optimists in a regular fixture of the Sherbrooke Juvenile Hockey League.

The tilt was played at the Arena prior to the intermediate affair and the youngsters gave a very good exhibition. Deblois tallied twice for the winners while Forges and Pinard accounted for the others. Pepin, Ricard and Blais were the marksmen for the Optimists.

Ray Cyr's squad turned in a good performance and held the upper hand for the better part of the game. Pepin registered the first tally in the opening frame unassisted. Leger drew the only penalty of the period. In the middle session Forges tied the count after accepting a pass from Langlois. Ricard put the Optimists in front again when he batted home the disc on a lone effort.

When Deblois was sitting out an interference penalty, his mate, Pinard, got away and after a passing play with Hamel he beat Young Topping to knot the count once again. In the final frame both teams opened up with Topping and Cassar rose to the occasion and turned them aside. Both goalies were at their best and Topping was forced to extend himself to keep his net clear but he met the challenge.

Deblois and Pinard teamed up for the first marker but Blais came right back and knotted the count once again for the Optimists. Both squads missed good opportunities to break the stalemate as they buzzed around each other's nets. St. Francis finally got a break when Ricard got the thumb for interference and his extra arguing brought him a misconduct. During his absence, Deblois and Hamel teamed up to register the winning tally and give Murphy's team a 4-3 decision.

Edmonton Mercurys Swamp Ayr Raiders

Ayr, Scotland, Jan. 7.—Edmonton Mercurys, unphased by a rough and restless trans-Atlantic plane flight, bounced into their pre-world championship hockey tour Saturday by handing Ayr Raiders a 6-3 trouncing.

Canada's choice for next month's World Hockey Championship, the Mercurys hit the ice barely an hour after their trans-Canada air lines planes touched down at Prestwick, Scotland.

The Scottish team wilted before the spectacular brand of hockey, and trailed 5-2 at the end of the second period.

Louise Suggs Wins Jacksonville Open

Jacksonville, Fla., Jan. 7.—(P)—Louise Suggs battled a strong, chill wind in championship style to win the 54-hole Jacksonville Women's Open Golf tournament yesterday.

The 118-pound swinger from Carrollton, Ga., shot 79, three over par, on her final round for 227.

Her one under par score for the 54 holes was seven strokes better than second-place Betty Jameson, San Antonio, Tex., veteran, who wound up with 62 for 234.

Phil McAtee May Join Sydney Hockey Club

Sydney, N.S., Jan. 7.—(P)—Phil McAtee, professional hockey veteran now with Vancouver Canucks of the P.C.H.L., will join Sydney Millionaires of the Maritime Major Hockey League, coach Will Field of Halifax St. Mary's said last night.

Field said there is a possibility that either Nick Pidsodny, former Sydney goalie or Lou Crowdis, rumoured replacement for under Phil Hughes who left Saint John Beavers for Buffalo Bisons, would go to Vancouver. That would leave the extra man available for Beavers.

New Building Rises From Fire Ruins

Sherbrooke's West Ward residents have a new modern hardware store where they can do their buying at reasonable prices.

Alcide Trudeau has re-opened. On March 22 last year a fire gutted Mr. Trudeau's store which was known for its high quality merchandise throughout the city and district.

Mr. Trudeau's new store, situated at 130 Alexander Street, offers its customers more than hardware. An up-to-date restaurant to be known as "Chez Pierre" has been set up in the mezzanine.

The block will include six offices and one floor will be occupied by the Century Stainless Steel Co. Ltd.

The new block is the only large commercial building in the West Ward to have two large businesses together.

The proprietor of the hardware store, Alcide Trudeau, has been in business for 22 years, always in the West Ward. He is a member of the Chamber of Commerce, the Knights of Columbus, the St. Jean-Baptiste Society, a member of the Retail Merchants Association and a member of St. Joseph's Church.

For courteous service, reasonable prices and high quality merchandise, drop in at Trudeau's.

While doing your shopping you can stop and have a light lunch or a full course meal at "Chez Pierre".

Before deciding to buy that new lamp or electric toaster for your wife, or an electric train for your child—visit Trudeau's.

Long Free Of Rats Albertans Battle A Border Invasion

By LORNE BRUCE
Canadian Press Staff Writer

Edmonton. — "Go west, young rat, go west," the old rats tell the young rats.

That's the facetious suggestion of A. M. Wilson, Alberta field crops commissioner who has the job of keeping rats out of the province.

For a long time Alberta boasted of being the only rat-free area in North America. Now the rodents have invaded the province on a 60-mile front along the Saskatchewan boundary.

"They have been found as far as 11 miles inside the province," said Mr. Wilson.

The infiltrated area starts about 200 miles southeast of Edmonton at Bodo and runs south to Acadia valley, about 150 miles east of Calgary.

The rats have gained a foothold, but Alberta has launched a vigorous counter-attack.

By keeping special crews on the job all winter it is hoped to wipe out all the colonies in the province before spring. Rats are easier to fight in winter because they live under barns and other buildings. In the summer they are in the fields.

But even provided the existing colonies are wiped out, rat control in Alberta probably will be a permanent job unless the large numbers in Saskatchewan adjacent to the Alberta boundary are curbed.

In Alberta, a bill was passed by the legislature a year ago making rat control the responsibility of the municipalities.

"The responsibility passes right down to the man on the land," said Mr. Wilson.

But the provincial government is keeping a close check. And it is providing supplies, without cost, of a new control agent called "warfarin," developed by the Wisconsin Research Foundation.

The poison brings death so slowly there is no warning to other rats. They die in three or four days of internal bleeding without convulsions or seizures. Often they die in their nests.

The poison has been highly effective in some test areas. In Alberta there have been on conclusive results. Because of the small number of rats in the province, it has been difficult to make a thorough test.

"The bait was removed regularly during the first week of our tests," said Mr. Wilson of the Alberta experiments. "But nothing happens after that. We don't know whether we killed off all the rats or whether they became wary and are staying away."

Mr. Wilson said the most serious danger arises from the steady westward movement of rats rather than from the arrival of individual rats in box-cars. No established colonies have been found well inside the province although individual dead rats have been located in box-cars.

Why do rats move westward? One theory is that the gradual westward movement is caused by colonies to the east becoming overcrowded, with the result young ones are pushed out.

Alberta is protected from rat infiltration from the west by the Rockies, by sparsely-populated rangeland on the south and by subarctic wastelands on the north.
