Duplessis On Policy

Quebec To Cooperate, But Won't Yield Any Taxing Rights

ALMA, Que. — Premier Duplessis has made his first major policy statement since the Ottawa federal-provincial conference, announcing his government's desire to reach an agreement with the federal government but warning that Quebec cannot yield a single constitutional right.

In a 25-minute speech Monday night before some 1,000 persons crammed into the city hall auditorium, the 65-year-old premier said Quebec needs all the taxation revenues to which it is entitled.

He said the federal government recognizes Quebec's right to direct taxation and Quebec recognizes a similar right for the federal government. But the road that would enable the province to exercise its rights fully now is blocked by the federal government, he said, without elaborating on the statement.

"I do not say this in criticism, I only mention the facts," he added.

Quebec now levies taxes in all three main direct taxation fields—personal income, corporation profits and successions. His statement may be an indication that the Quebec government will seek a larger share of the income tax field which it now occupies jointly in this province with the federal government.

The federal government has reduced Federal income tax to Quebec tax payers by 10 per cent, but the Quebec income tax based on higher exemptions, in some cases is equal to about 15 per cent of the federal income levy. However, some Quebec taxpayers pay less than 10 per cent of the federal tax and get the benefit of the reduction.

Mr. Duplessis' policy statement was made on the third day of his four-day tour of the north-eastern Quebec industrial region.

The outline of his Union Nationale party stand was slightly modified in its approach to the issue of provincial rights, but basically identical to the party platform on which he has been re-elected regularly since 1944.

"We are currently negotiating with the Ottawa government," he said. "We want to reach an agreement, to understand each other but we cannot abdicate a single one of our rights. To abandon them would be like giving the key to our house to a stranger."

Mr. Duplessis said federal-provincial taxation is the main issue in Quebec province today.

World News In Brief

Montreal — A heavy downpour and a burst water main sent water cascading along downtown streets late Monday, halting streetcar traffic on parts of Craig street near the financial district. The 36-main burst and water rushed curbstone-high along at least seven streets, playing havoc with rush-hour traffic. The waters subsided more than an hour later after the city waterworks department shut off the broken main.

Hawkins, Tex. — A wild oil-gas well, shooting flames 200 feet high like a gigantic torch, menaced the heart of this east Texas town today as residents hoped no oil would erupt.

Alma, Que. — Dr. Antonio Leclerc, Quebec minister without portfolio, believes the reigning Union Nationale party would take 80 per cent of the popular vote if a provincial election was called immediately. Dr. Leclerc expressed the view Monday at a party rally in this northeastern Quebec centre, adding in a possible hint of an expected provincial election next year.

Norfolk, Va. — A well-dressed middle-aged woman today was the object of a wide search by police seeking the kidnapper of a three-day-old baby snatched from its crib in a hospital here.

The woman, described to authorities by nurses at the hospital, was seen smiling through a plate-glass window at Little Roslyn Baptiste Hockaday about noon Monday, shortly before the Negro child was abducted.

Washington — Thieves broke into a small safe at the offices of the World Bank here during the weekend and took more than $30,000 in American and British currency and travellers cheques. The robbery was from a suite of offices the 57-nation, multi-billion-dollar bank maintains in an office building near bank headquarters.

Combines Investigators Study Household Goods

OTTAWA — Canada's combines investigators have turned their attention to many commodities familiar to every Canadian household.

Milk, cigars, gasoline, auto insurance, telephones and fertilizer were among items studied during the 1954-55 fiscal year. In most cases inquiries were dropped because of changed circumstances or insufficient evidence. In several, study continues.

In his annual report, made public Monday, combines investigations director T. D. MacDonald said 14 investigations were still under way at the end of the fiscal year last March 31. During the year, four investigations resulted in reports to Justice Minister Garson.

Probes can be started by Mr. MacDonald, Justice Minister Garson or by a minimum of six citizens signing allegations. The five investigations started during 1954-55 were all initiated by Mr. MacDonald.

The milk probe was undertaken in an undisclosed community, believed to be in Ontario, where milk distributors were charged by hospitals and charitable institutions with combining to withhold price discounts even though the institutions purchased large amounts of milk.

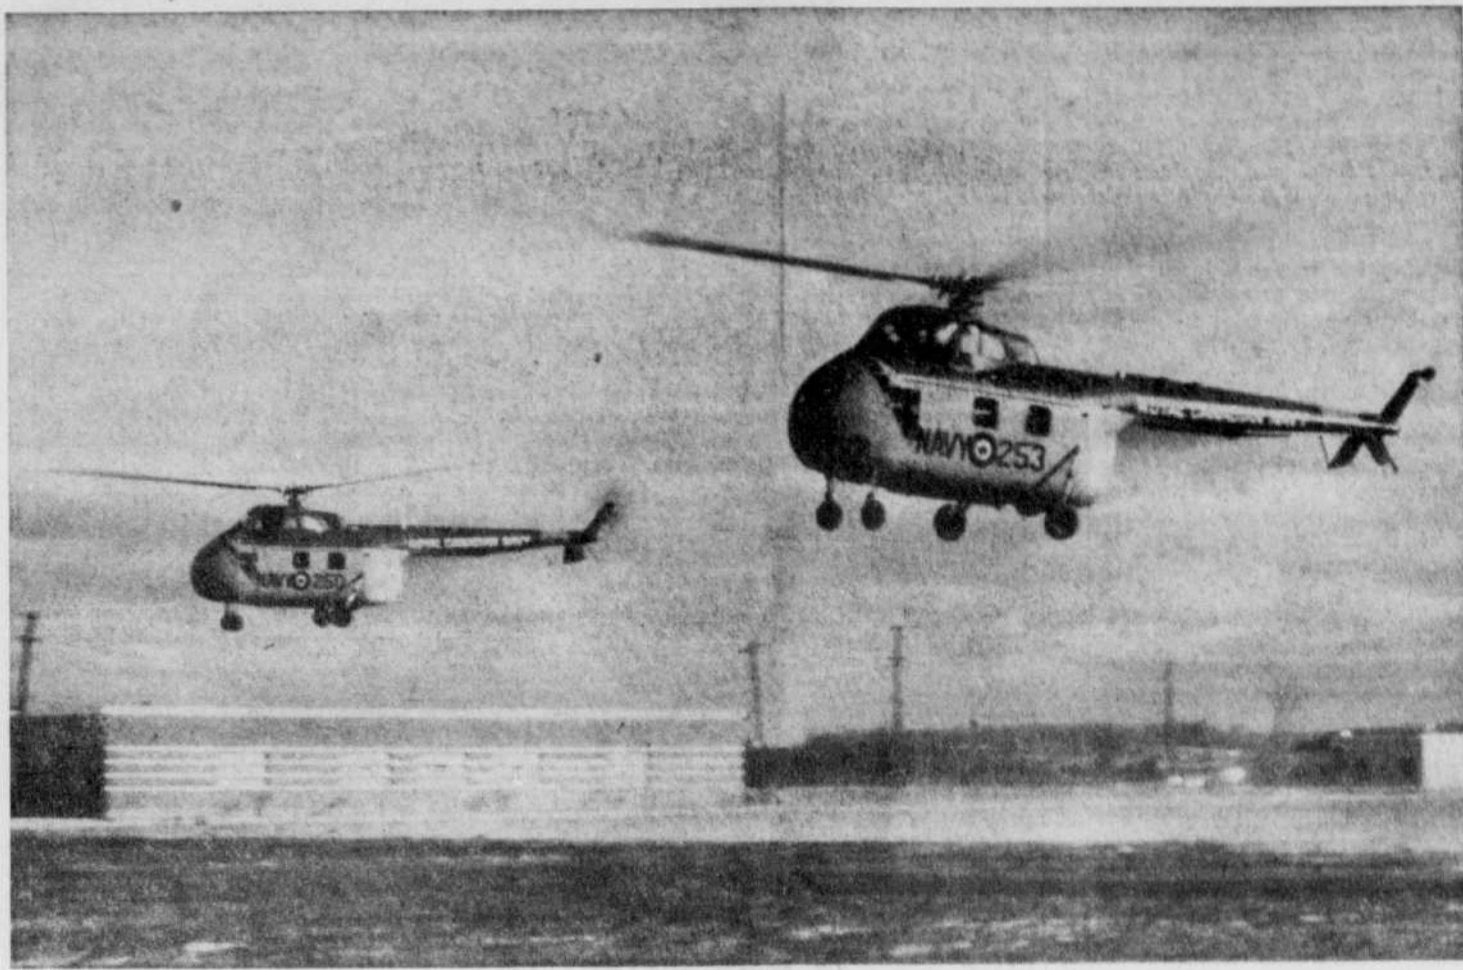

Elsewhere in Eastern Canada, retail tobacconists protested what they said were steps by wholesalers to fix wholesale prices and eliminate discounts.

The inquiry was dropped because the evidence was "inconclusive."

Study of the automobile insurance business continues. The combines investigators are looking into differences in buying prices of large and small wholesalers.

They are also examining "tied sales" whereby a gasoline company requires service stations to carry only accessories supplied by a distributor or manufacturer willing to pay the gas company a commission for exclusive outlets.

The combines branch also studied the eastern Canadian fertilizer industry. Mr. MacDonald reports the investigators found no evidence of a combine in the industry.

Eden On Romance Griddle Princess' Marriage Sparks House Controversy

London. — (AP) — Parliament came back from vacation today with a barrage of questions for Prime Minister Eden ranging from Red spying to royal romance.

Even heavier cannonading is likely Wednesday when R. A. Butler, chancellor of the exchequer, presents a supplementary budget designed to cut inflationary trends with a heavy dose of austerity.

As the House of Commons returned from a recess which began Sept. 29, Eden faced his greatest testing time since he succeeded Sir Winston Churchill last April as the leader of the Conservative government.

Interest centred on these two areas of inquiry:

1. What action, if any, has the government in mind to dispel the mystery of Princess Margaret's romance with Peter Townsend?

2. The case of Guy Burgess and Donald Maclean, the turncoat British diplomats who fled to the Soviet Union in 1951 just a jump ahead of their exposure as Red spies.

Labor member Marcus Lipton has asked whether the government intends to seek repeal of the Royal Marriage Act of 1772. The act interposes a number of time-consuming obstacles to the marriage of the princess, third in line to the throne, to Townsend, handsome divorced commoner.

Any statement by Eden that repeal of the act is under consideration would be taken by most people as proof that Margaret has made up her mind to become Townsend's bride despite the objections of the Church of England.

Pressure has been increasing for the government to issue some statement that would end the gossip and rumors.

The pro-Conservative Daily Sketch declares that the "welter of tittle-tattle and speculation all over the world about Princess Margaret has grown to such extent it threatens the dignity of the crown."

The Daily Express says Margaret's royal relatives have been putting a deep chill on Townsend, adding that he has not been received even informally by either the Queen or the Duke of Edinburgh since his return from his air attaché's post in Belgium 12 days ago.

It adds that Queen Mother Elizabeth, who shares the Clarence House residence with Margaret, has talked with him only briefly.

Margaret and Townsend, however, have continued having dates with no outward heed of the clamor. They were guests at a dinner until nearly 1 a.m. today given by Mrs. John Lowther, former lady-in-waiting to the princess.

Eden faces a sheaf of questions about why government security men were duped for years before Burgess and Maclean skipped behind the Iron Curtain.

A number of Commons members plan to demand the appointment of a parliamentary committee to investigate ramifications of the affair.

1. Cattle stampeded and dozens of Indian families fled their reservation homes Monday in the face of a raging prairie fire described by old timers as one of the worst since the days of the early west.

The blaze, caused indirectly by a tent fire on Eden valley reservation, swept 12 square miles of rolling ranch country in the Rocky mountain foothills area.

The tent fire started when the structure blew over, upsetting a tin stove. It touched off a grass fire and 75 men were

Syria Warns That Clashes May Spark War In Middle East

JERUSALEM — (AP) — Israel is demanding that the big powers supply her with arms to defend herself against rising threats of a Middle East War.

At the same time Syrian newspapers have called for decisive action by Britain and the United States against Israel because of "continued Israeli aggression."

The latest Israeli demand for arms aid came Monday from the Jewish state's Knesset (parliament). All political parties except the Communists supported a resolution voicing "grave concern" over Egypt's cotton-for-weapons agreement with Czechoslovakia and the continued arming of Iraq by Britain.

The Knesset did not spell out the powers from whom it wants arms, but Premier Moshe Sharett has gone to Paris to see the foreign ministers of Britain, France and the United States, and plans to see Russia's Foreign Minister Molotov in Geneva.

Syrian newspapers in Damascus meanwhile warned that recent border clashes may start a Middle East war which could draw the West into a "general conflagration."

Syrian sources reported earlier that Israelis in a raid Saturday night killed three Syrian soldiers and wounded six. Israel announced the capture of five Syrians.

Maj. Gen. E. L. M. Burns of Canada, truce supervisor who has gone to report to United Nations headquarters in New York, said 40 to 60 Israelis had carried out a "well planned" retaliatory attack.

Brig. Mahmoud Riyad, Egyptian ambassador to Syria, said he and Munir Ajlani, acting premier of Syria, have discussed joint measures under their newly concluded mutual defence pact.

Syrian newspapers called the latest border incident part of an Israeli campaign to force Syria to abandon the pact, and a high Syrian source reported that the Damascus government plans to bring the incident before the UN Security Council.

1. German reunification. Real security in Europe is impossible unless the German people are permitted to come together under a single government, of their own choice, which can negotiate and sign a peace treaty for all Germany. Hence, Germany must be reunited by free elections throughout the divided country.

2. European security: To reassure the Kremlin against another aggression, the West is proposing a 14-power mutual defence pact joining the United States, Canada, Britain, France, Italy, Belgium, The Netherlands and Luxembourg from NATO with the Soviet Union, Czechoslovakia, Poland, Hungary, Bulgaria and Romania. The West is willing to tie German unification and a European security pact together so both are achieved in parallel steps.

3. Disarmament: The West is repeating President Eisenhower's "open sky" proposal made at the summit conference last summer, offering to exchange military blueprints and aerial inspection rights with Russia as a guarantee against surprise attack.

4. Better East-West relations: The West is suggesting that greater facilities be given for travel and information to cross the Iron Curtain.

While the NATO ministers met in London, the West is suggesting that greater facilities be given for travel and information to cross the Iron Curtain.

Request Granted

Vancouver Police Chief Fired

Vancouver — Police Chief Walter Mulligan, 51, target of testimony charging laxity and corruption within the 750-man police force he headed for 8½ years, has been dismissed at his own request.

The three-man board of police commissioners met for 40 minutes Monday and then, echoing the chief's own words, announced the "usefulness of Chief Mulligan to the city . . . is now at an end."

Chief Mulligan, claiming his career as chief had been ruined by the lengthy royal commission hearing into charges against the force, asked that he be dismissed so he could start "a new phase of life for my wife and myself."

The dismissal is effective Oct. 31. For the burly son of a Liverpool policeman, it was the end of a career that began in 1927 as a third-grade constable. It also ended a term as chief unequalled in length in Vancouver's history.

His dismissal climaxed four months of developments unfolded by a royal commission investigating charges against the force.

Chief Mulligan requested his dismissal in a letter to the police commissioners last week.

The chief, on leave of absence at full salary of $10,236 a year since June 24, asked to be fired so he could collect an estimated $75-a-month pension.

If he had resigned, only the amount he paid into the superannuation plan would have been returned to him.

Magistrate Oscar Orr said the commission members were "all in accord that there was no question of accepting a resignation. The question of accepting a resignation could not be entertained until completion of the commission hearings."

He said acceptance of the resignation might be construed as a "clear bill" but the request for dismissal had to be considered in a different light.

Magistrate Orr also said R. H. Tupper heading the royal commission felt the police commission's action would not "obstruct" the police inquiry.

The royal commission, now adjourned awaiting a report from RCMP investigators, expects Mr. Mulligan to be available when sittings resume.

The Doofer Family

By Alma Sioux Scarberry

GAY COSTUMES

It was Halloween in Dooferville. The little mountain town was buzzing with excitement. Immediately after school the children had dressed in their gay costumes and hurried off to play "Trick or Treat." They knocked on doors, yelled "Trick or Treat" and everyone gave them cookies, gum, candy or pennies. It was a lot of fun.

Then they had dashed back to their homes, their dresses spoiled by all the treats. Afterward they hurried back to the little one-room schoolhouse for the big party. Mommie Doofer had made the costumes for the Doofer family and Gussie Doofer, Dollie and Gussie were hopping around like little jumping beans they were so excited.

Mommie was a very pretty Gypsy, with gay blouse and skirt, big hoop earrings and all her costume jewelry on her arms and neck. She had worn a bright scarf around her dark hair. Jollie was dressed like an adorable little Gypsy baby. Daddie was a fierce pirate. He and Gussie were twin witches, riding brooms.

Mommy had made big straw wigs to stick out of their tall witch hats. Oofoe Goofoe wore a big paper pumpkin over his head. Tall, skinny Hammie Doofer was a very amusing scarecrow. His chubby stepbrother Sammie Spooner was a fat ghost.

When everybody arrived at the school house they had fun trying to decide who was hiding behind the masks. Only Sheriff and Mrs. Gittum Spooner were in their regular clothes. The Sheriff wanted to leave no doubt he was the LAW, and would stand for no Halloween shenanigans. He wore his 20-gallon Western hat and held his Fire Chief hat in his hand. Just in case!

Pretty teacher Zoozoo Doofer welcomed the parents. She was very lovely as a princess. Her steady beau, young Doctor Doofer, the dentist, was dressed as Prince Charming. He had knee breeches and buckled shoes.

Soon it would be time for the entertainment to begin. Everyone was anxious to see the play. And it would soon be time for Sammie Spooner to stir up the big excitement he had been planning all week. His stepbrother Ham looked pretty worried. But Sam looked innocently at the little angel.

Cameras Don't Lie! Or Do They?

Appearances are certainly deceiving.

Take the picture of this young man, for example. Try a guess now. Is he a scholarship winner at one of our universities? Could he be a star athlete — a tennis expert or Olympics calibre track man? Perhaps a young doctor or lawyer?

All finished guessing?

This good-looking young man is Clifford Ayles, the object of one of the most widespread man-hunts the Maritimes has ever experienced. He is wanted for an $11,150 payroll holdup and slaying near Saint John, N.B. The slaying for which he is sought was brutal and deliberate.

This recalls a survey made a number of years ago by a leading

American magazine, which shot holes in the theory that there was what could be labelled a "criminal look."

The magazine printed pictures of a dozen or so men. Half were criminals, the others ranged from office clerk to bank manager to clergyman. The object was to find the criminals.

It was, of course, impossible. To the eyes of most, the clergyman was the killer, the bank robber the businessman. The twinkly-eyed old gentleman was an expert safecracker; the tight-lipped, steely-eyed "movie-type gangster" was an insurance salesman.

The explosion of this theory has many practical uses. How often have you read of an unfortunate victim of a hitch-hiker who recounted through bloody lips that his passenger looked like a "nice college kid?"

And don't let the "mug" pictures that the police produce fool you! They, like the photographers in the armed forces, can give anybody that "criminal look."

A Dangerous Disinterest

This newspaper opposed the Bromtonville power project which was defeated by a narrow margin in a referendum last week.

The Record had what it considered to be good reasons for opposing the project, reasons which were expressed in an editorial of Saturday, October 15th.

These views haven't changed. But, far from losing the outcome, the result of last week's voting should be viewed with alarm. For such a small percentage of voters turned out to voice their opinion — on a $2,800,000 expenditure — that the significance wasn't that the proposal was beaten, but rather that a large majority of the city's shareholders didn't care.

An expenditure of about $3,000,000 and the people who would have to pay say only, "No Comment!" One could almost reach the opinion that the project should have been approved — because so few voters opposed it.

One of these days, the people of Sherbrooke will pay dearly for their disinterest. Democracy works when the people take the time and trouble to be interested. When they don't, democracy can be more dangerous than dictatorship.

Lost Cause

It is perhaps too much to expect a machine-mad world to heed our appeals in favor of the button against the zipper. The Arkansas musselshell industry probably is doomed except insofar as designers sew a big button on milady's gown strictly for decoration. The argument that the zipper creates a svelte line has induced tailors to sew it in wherever the button is functional.

We bow to this vanity — but not without warning. It is of the pride that goeth before a fall. Buttons were not perfect. Laundries could crack them, but generally one broken button was not fatal. But zippers, too, are subject to vicissitudes — more than we like to think of. And when a zipper is stuck, or off the track, or otherwise out of service, there is no companion to take over its duty.

Nevertheless even men seem to have accepted this gadget. They are brave. But let them not confuse bravery with security. Even with a set of tools in his back pocket, a man cannot be sure of being immune to zipper-induced embarrassment. It may be a lost cause, but how we yearn for buttons.

GOD MADE THE SUMMER FOR YOU

As through an open window, on many a summer's day I hear the happy laughter of children at their play. And carried back in memory to a wee hoose on a hill. Again I see in fancy, a farm and shady rill. Gone, the old log house and barn, where, as a boy I played. Dame Nature came and claimed her own, and all the fields are over-grown. With Balsam, Spruce and Pine.

God's Acre still upon the hill, holds now I loved so dear. Struck down by a truck in New York Town, and died in her seventeenth year. She asked that she be laid to rest, in the fields and wood-lands of Quebec. There she had played as a little child, where cars and trucks did not run wild; Just Birds, and Beasts and Flowers.

As by my open window, I dream of that lovely Maid, Playing in the fields of Heaven, where no cars or trucks are made, My thoughts turn again to the children, playing on the city street, And I pray to God to guard them, that no accident they meet. What I have tried to tell in verse, yes, every word is true. But play on ye happy children, play, God made the summer for you.

TO THOSE WHO MOURN

(Written upon the death of Mrs. John A. Wadleigh, of Danville, Que., October 16th.)

The Angel of Death has taken its toll From our number of aged, today: A dear Mother has passed to her goal, Where we trust her suffering is done.

Her passing brings deep pangs of regret To old Neighbors and Friends: It carries them back over years once known And draws on their finest and best.

Her family will miss her dear Presence, Their hearts are no doubt near broken — For go where we will, there is none to replace In our lifetime, the memories of Mother.

Grieve not in excess for thy dear one at rest; For the bridge built on Faith spans — All now between that better Land, Where the faithful unite — and understand.

Bygone Days

TWENTY YEARS AGO

From the Record of Friday, October 25, 1935.

The new Liberal Cabinet under Prime Minister W. L. Mackenzie King was sworn into office. It has been cut down to 16 members and most of the Ministers served with the administration prior to 1930. The Prime Minister has gone on record as favoring the principle of paid Undersecretaries to season prospective Cabinet members and ease the burdens on the ministers.

International circles regard it as a foregone conclusion that both Great Britain and France will reject Mussolini's terms for peace in his war with Ethiopia, although many regard Duce's rush towards effecting a solution as an indication that he realizes the economic weakness of his country. An Old Problem

Wheat Surpluses A Plague For 50 Years

By ARCH MacKENZIE
 Canadian Press Staff Writer
 London—Ghosts of past wheat talks will lurk in the background when the United Nations wheat conference opens at Geneva Oct. 26 to discuss the latest ills of this major world trading commodity.

Those of the 80 invited countries electing to attend will be concerned with a 50-year-old problem. Still sought is machinery effectively stabilizing a cereal crop whose abundance exceeds effective demand.

The variety of systems evolved at previous conferences have either failed to draw support from certain important wheat countries, or been frustrated by other events before implementation.

Wheat's feast-and-famine record during the 20th century had been influenced by the opening of virgin farm lands in Canada, Argentina and Australia before 1914. Two world wars, drought and high-cost wheat production in European importing countries have all left their marks.

This UN conference is expected first to review and discuss the present three-year International Wheat Agreement which expires July 31, 1956. There are 48 member countries, including the Vatican.

After the broad principles have been covered pro and con, a second conference is anticipated, perhaps early next year. This would be charged with the contentious problem of nailing down prices and quantities in any new agreement.

Today's surplus-laden situation—the four biggest exporting countries are estimated to have a total carryover of nearly 2,400,000,000 bushels—rings a bell from the past.

Outbreak of the First World War relieved imminent surpluses and boosted North American output. The ensuing peace saw European nations step up their own production despite abundant supplies of better quality and more economical wheat overseas.

Exports fell and carryovers rose to about 1,000,000,000 bushels in Canada, Australia, Argentina and the United States by 1933. The next year, these countries agreed in principle with the provisions of the first International Wheat Agreement to an average reduction of 15 per cent.

The North American drought and a bad Australian crop intervened.

Again in 1938, plans were afoot for a second agreement incorporating acreage cuts, export quotas and an "ever-normal granary" governed by minimum and maximum stocks.

The second World War ended that. The next step was the Washington Inter-Allied conference convened at the request of the United Kingdom in 1941. Envisaged were tighter forms of the regulations previously favored, but the U.K., the world's largest importer, stuck at the prices clause.

In 1942, an International Wheat Council was established. Agreement in principle was reached on acreage restrictions, export quotas, minimum and maximum carryovers and a minimum export price—all to come into force at the end of the war.

This was frustrated by the world cereals shortage and a fresh start was made in 1947 at London.

Nations gathered in an atmosphere of broad rationing. Rice was in short supply. With Argentina abstaining, a multilateral bulk contract was worked out. Exporters agreed to make available fixed amounts of wheat and flour at or below a maximum price. Importers agreed to purchase their quotas at or above a minimum price.

Another international wheat council was established to keep the records and act as arbiter.

An agreement on these lines was signed in 1949, to last for four years.

During that time, IWA prices remained below free market levels, but exporters' carryovers grew. When a successor was being negotiated in 1953, Britain decided to stay out, refusing to agree to a maximum price of $2.05 a bushel asked by the exporters under United States pressure.

Italy and Sweden subsequently refused to ratify the agreement, although Italy has since returned. IWA trade has lagged.

Against this background, most observers here expect the Geneva talks to raise some plain speaking before the way is cleared for getting on with provisions of a new agreement—and acreage restrictions may play an important part.

Spadina Falls To Tories As Liberals Lose Another

TORONTO — The federal constituency of Toronto Spadina, a Liberal stronghold since 1930, fell to the Progressive Conservatives Monday in the second by-election defeat for the Liberals in a month. Charles E. Rea, insurance man and former member of the Ontario Legislature, captured the seat on a late surge of strength in vote-counting in an election called to fill the vacancy left by closed, and said he would lose by about 500 votes. At that time official figures had him 200 votes in front and it was another two hours before they confirmed his forecast.

Mr. Rea polled 6,708 votes to 6,108 for Mr. Godfrey, Joseph Salsberg, Communist Labor-Progressive who sat in the Ontario legislature for 13 years, received 3,837 and Harry Waisglass, CCF, 2,938. Standing in the 265-seat House of Commons after the Spadina vote: Liberal 169; Progressive Conservative 53; CCF 23; Social Credit 15; independent 4; vacant 1. The vacancy is in St. John's-Berkeley-Napierville through death last Aug. 7 of Postmaster-General Cote. The loss was the third for the Liberals in 15 by-elections since the 1953 general election. On Sept. 26 they lost Restigouche-Madawaska to the Progressive Conservatives and a year ago they were beaten by the CCF in Selkirk, Manitoba.

Shipbuilders In Britain Study Atomic Outlook

London — (Reuters) — British shipbuilders, still keeping well ahead in quantity production of such earnest challengers as the West Germans and the Japanese, are taking an active part in exploring nuclear propulsion for ships. The British Shipbuilding Research Association, a central organization for the industry, recently revealed that it has organized its own team of experts to work on nuclear propulsion problems at the Harwell atomic research station, the heart of Britain's atomic development.

Engineers and other experts of the Association at first explored the possibilities of nuclear propulsion for merchant ships, which are much more closely governed by economic considerations than are warships. The fact that the United States Navy has an atomic submarine at sea, and others being built, does not necessarily mean that this is a practical means of propulsion for merchantmen in the foreseeable future.

But the preliminary assessment made by the Shipbuilding Research Association suggested that it was worthwhile undertaking more detailed studies in this field. So the team of shipbuilding experts was selected to go to Harwell.

This team does not consist of physicists or other nuclear scientists, but of practical engineers. They will rely for the purely scientific side of the highly-qualified men with whom they will work at Harwell. Their job is to determine how best to apply the scientists' efforts to driving tankers and liners. Not that they expect to produce the nuclear-propelled merchant ship within the next few years. Their job is to see that when the atomic merchantman is built, it is built in Britain as early as anywhere else.

At Harwell, they will find another group of marine engineering experts whose planning may come to fruition earlier. They are the Royal Navy's team, consisting of both civilian specialists of the Royal Naval Scientific Service and naval officers, who are working to produce Britain's first atomic submarine.

It was some five years ago that the British admiralty revealed that it was planning such an underwater fighting ship. Since then, secrecy has been observed about this project, but there is no reason to believe that it has been delayed by anything except Britain's necessary practice of economy.

Several herds of cattle on nearby ranches bolted through fences as the flames leaped through trees and wild hay. Ranchers said it would take several days to round the cattle up.

made of some of the common substances around the home. Many people, for example, do not recognize the fact that aspirin is dangerous, particularly when an overdose is swallowed by a child. In the first 500 poisoning cases reported to the Chicago Poison Control Program, for example, 84 were the result of aspirin poisoning and 73 of these from swallowing flavored aspirin. Since the war a number of useful chemical substances against most of the common insects such as mosquitoes, ants and flies have been developed and placed on the market. Not all of these are harmless to human beings. One of these, chlordane, has considerable poisonous possibilities not only when swallowed but when inhaled or even when it comes in contact with the skin. I have referred, on other occasions, to the hazards from some of the cleaning fluids almost all of which are poisonous when swallowed, some of which are inflammable, and some of which are dangerous from inhalation of fumes if they are used in a close space. In the latter classification belongs carbon tetrachloride or fluids containing it, and there have been deaths and cases of chronic poisoning from this source. The list is too long to discuss each one but I wish that each reader would go to the medicine cabinet and throw away, where no harm can be done, those poisonous preparations which are not going to be used, label the rest "poison" and place them out of the reach of small children. Also, it would be desirable to go to the garage and basement and do the same thing there. One can be terribly sorry if something happens—but then it is too late.

MACARONI WITH CHEESE IS ALWAYS POPULAR

Think of macaroni and you think of cheese. These two foods are perfect partners, for together they provide fine flavor, texture and well-balanced nutrition. For popularity and taste appeal, it's hard to beat a hearty macaroni and cheese casserole, and this time-tested favorite can be adapted to suit any taste by using a variety of different cheeses.

Here elbow macaroni is combined with hickory-smoked cheese and green pepper in appetizing individual baked casseroles, served with tangy coleslaw. Make it a starred dish on your menu during National Macaroni Week, October 20 to 29.

Macaroni and Hickory Cheese Casseroles (Makes 4 servings)

- 1 tablespoon salt
- 3 quarts boiling water
- 2 cups elbow macaroni (8 ounces)
- 1/4 cup butter or margarine
- 1/3 cup chopped onions
- 1/4 cup chopped green pepper
- 1/4 cup all-purpose flour
- 2 cups milk
- 1 6-ounce package hickory-smoked cheese
- Salt and pepper to taste

Add one tablespoon salt to rapidly boiling water. Gradually add macaroni so that water continues to boil. Cook uncovered, stirring occasionally, until tender. Drain in colander.

Melt butter or margarine over low heat. Add onions and green pepper and saute until tender. Add flour and blend. Gradually add milk and cook until thickened, stirring constantly. Add cheese and stir until melted. Add macaroni and salt and pepper; mix well. Turn into greased individual casseroles. Cover and bake in moderate oven (350°) 25 minutes.

A Hostess With Charm

The wife of a man who works overseas for the State Department recently gave a handsome demonstration of charm gained through experience in diplomatic work. It would work well for anyone who entertains.

This woman gave a large party. Naturally, as each guest arrived, she introduced him around. But while she caught up on the news from home from each guest, her sentences and questions always incorporated the guest's name.

This party was going smoothly in half the time it usually takes to get a party rolling. This hostess knew that people very seldom catch names on introduction so she gave her guests a chance to associate the name, the face and pertinent information, one at a time.

This shouldn't be interpreted to mean that introductions should be abandoned. They are as integral a part of our social habits as shaking hands. It does mean, though, that a hostess can give her visitors aid along the way to being sociable.

One of the essences of attractive entertaining is that the dress should make the hostess feel pretty, but it should not at the same time make her guests feel ill at ease.

Dressing and behaving for one's own party involves many of the same things as being a good guest, but in addition it should include a relaxed-looking effort to make the guests feel welcome.

The tie shoe is back in favor. But this time it's light, flexible, youthful and flattering.

Hamilton Boasts Canada's Largest Shopping Centre

Hamilton, Ont.—Following several months of planning and six months of building, Canada's largest shopping centre will officially open its doors to the shopping public of Hamilton and district on Wednesday morning, October 26.

The 65-store, 200,000-square-foot shopping goods section which opens Wednesday is regarded as the "heart" of the Greater Hamilton Shopping Centre, although the first two stages of the huge 71-acre project—a 233,000-square-foot Simpsons-Sears department store and 32,000-square-foot Dominion supermarket—have been completed and open for quite a few months.

To celebrate the opening, merchants in the centre are staging big four-day sales and giveaways, and the shopping company management is preparing for crowds unprecedented in local retailing history.

Concentrated advertising in Hamilton newspapers, TV and radio stations calls attention to the mammoth free parking area—all lighted and paved—which even now, before the centre as a whole is completely finished, is sufficient to handle 15,000 cars a day. Although the shopping goods section represents the core of this project which compares in size with some of the larger U.S. endeavors, it will be two years or more before the centre as a whole is completed. Still to be built are another supermarket, a second department store, medical and professional office building, theatre, kiddieland, car-wash, service station, and additional parking area to bring total free parking space to between 5,000 and 6,000 enough to handle well above 20,000 cars a day.

Harvest Hop Opens Season's Social Activities

The Mayfair Room of the Hotel Sherbrooke was the scene of the first big dance of the season Friday night when over 200 people attended the Harvest Hop sponsored by the Admiral Sir Dudley Pound Chapter, of the I.O.D.E.

Gilles Garand and his five-piece orchestra played for dancing from nine to one, while the guests took to the large floor, decorated in the Halloween theme.

Pumpkins and candle-lit tables dotted the room, while a large jack-o-lantern, carved with the words, I.O.D.E. Harvest Hop adorned the entranceway. Gordon Breen acted as emcee for the special spot and elimination dances.

Receiving at the door were, Mrs. E. B. Sims, municipal regent of the I.O.D.E., dressed in a black crepe gown with a low back, and wearing rhinestone and silver accessories and a white carnation corsage; Mrs. A. Morrison, honorary regent of the Admiral Sir Dudley Pound Chapter, in black crepe with a halter neckline and wearing a white carnation corsage and silver accessories; and Miss Susan Batrie, Regent of the Admiral Sir Dudley Pound Chapter, who wore a strapless dusty pink crystallite frock, with pearl and black accessories and a corsage of white carnations.

Winners of the door prize drawing were, Mr. and Mrs. J. D. Goodson.

Conveners in charge of the dance were: Tickets, Mrs. Norm Stafford; entertainment, Miss Eleanor Doherty; publicity, Mrs. Bruce Allanson, door, Mrs. Robert Beaudry; decorations, Miss Jackie Roberts; reservations, Mrs. B. Higgs; and arrangements, Miss Maureen Kenalty.

All proceeds from this dance go to charitable causes. The I.O.D.E. finances the sending of two pupils from Quebec North Shore to high school in Quebec City each year; they supply two families with milk every day of the year, and they contribute to various worthy organizations.

If you develop the habit of wearing and washing, you never have to scramble for fresh gloves, scarves, stockings and other accessories.

Ironing freshly washed shirts and blouses is easy if the button band is laid face down over a terry towel. The buttons will sink in and the iron slide over.

CADILLAC for 1956

Top to bottom—Eldorado Seville, Sedan de Ville, Sixty Special

Presenting the Most Inspiring Motor Cars the World Has Ever Seen!

You are looking at three of the most magnificent and inspiring creations ever to issue from the drawing boards of Cadillac's designers and engineers. They are the Eldorado Seville and the Sedan de Ville—two entirely new and exciting additions to Cadillac's royal family of motor cars—and the inspiring new Series Sixty Special.

These spectacular new Cadillacs—in company with the other brilliant Cadillac models for 1956—introduce a standard of automotive excellence that will find no counterpart on the highways of the world.

Where, for instance, could you find anything to match them for beauty and elegance? Their long, low, sweeping lines... their jewel-like grille and rear-fender designs... their brilliant and exciting new color combinations... their sparkling highlights of chrome and gold... all combine to create a beauty that is truly unique.

Where could you find anything to equal them in luxury? Inside are fabrics of rare richness and pattern... appointments that are beautiful and regal almost beyond description... and features of comfort and convenience that will delight even the most experienced Cadillac owner.

And where could you find anything to rival them in performance? There's a completely redesigned Cadillac engine developing 285 and 305 horsepower... an entirely new, controlled-coupling Hydra-Matic Drive... advanced Cadillac Power Steering... and improved Cadillac Power Braking.

This extraordinary new Cadillac beauty... and this brilliant new Cadillac luxury... and this dynamic new Cadillac performance... have been interpreted in four separate series and in nine individual body styles.

We sincerely urge you to stop in for a personal inspection and demonstration at your earliest convenience.

We know you will agree that, from every standpoint, these are the most inspiring Cadillacs of all time. And that, of course, means that they are the most inspiring motor cars the world has ever seen!

Annual Commencement Exercises Are Held At Knowlton High School

Knowlton — The annual commencement exercises of Knowlton High School were held in the school gymnasium with Robert Flood, chairman of the Waterloo School Board and past president of the Quebec Association of Protestant School Boards, the guest speaker.

Mr. Flood stressed the importance of obtaining a High School education, stating that this, more than anything else, would develop a realization that our education is just beginning when we leave our High School days behind.

In referring to the future, Mr. Flood told the graduates they would have many problems to face. One of the greatest of these would be caused by the shorter working week. The use made of their spare time, will determine in large measure, the type of citizens they would become. Dr. Arthur Douglass introduced the speaker, who was thanked by J. Jolley.

J. Edward Perry, principal-supervisor, acted as chairman of the meeting. Morgan Knowlton, chairman of the Knowlton School Board, noted the crowded condition of the School and intimated that steps would soon have to be taken to remedy the situation.

Rev. T. E. R. Nurse gave the Invocation. The Class Prophecy was given by Clarence McKinley. Mary Ann Staples read the last Will and Testament and Susan Pilson was valedictorian. Dr. Gray pronounced the benediction.

Interspersed in the program of well rendered musical numbers, prizes were presented as follows:

First General Proficiency, School Board: Grade VIIA, Doreen Wilcox; Grade VIIIB, Peter Hamilton; Grade VIIC, Fred Whitehead; Grade IX, Jean Evans; Grade X, Ann Northrup; Grade XI, Susan Pilson.

Dave Creighton And Jean Beliveau Tied For Scoring Honors In NHL Race

Only Three Points Separate Top Eleven; Richard And Murphy Are Leading Marksmen With Six Goals

MONTREAL (CP)—Dave Creighton, wearing the uniform of his fourth National Hockey League club, rates a special bow today as the man at the top of the point-getters in the early 1955-56 campaign.

Currently doing his centre-ice chores for the surprising New York Rangers, Creighton helped himself to two goals and two assists in last week's action and bounded from sixth place to first.

He is tied on points, at 10, with Big Jean Beliveau of Montreal Canadiens but gets prior billing in the NHL official statistics because of a higher goal production. Only a point away are Ron Murphy, another hustling Ranger, and Gordie Howe of Detroit, who failed to get a point last week. Maurice Richard of Montreal and Ted Lindsay of Detroit follow with eight points each.

Just a year ago Creighton, in as many games as this current seven, had one goal and one assist.

Although only 25 years old, the tall blonde centre is in his eighth NHL campaign. During three seasons he did part-time farm-club duty. He has played with Boston Bruins, Toronto Maple Leafs and Chicago Black Hawks.

So far Creighton has scored only three goals with the Rangers but he has contributed seven assists.

Murphy matched Creighton's display with two goals and two assists to overtake Howe with a total of nine points. He is tied with Montreal's Rocket Richard as leading goal-scorer. Each has six.

BCS Blanks SHS 22-0 In Final Tilt Of Season

Sherbrooke High School, playing their final game of the football season, were shutout 22-0 by Bishop's College School Saturday afternoon at the Parade Grounds under ideal weather conditions.

Bishop's, paced by smooth running half McLagan, opened with a ground attack during the first half to post two touchdowns and held a 16-0 lead. McLagan registered two while Prescott accounted for the other.

In the second half Sherbrooke tightened up and battled the heavy Purple and white squad on even terms but finally they broke away to register their final touchdown. S.H.S. came close several times during this half but lost the ball on downs when they failed to get their yards.

Sherbrooke played a much better game than in the first meeting of the teams when Bishop's rolled to a 77-0 verdict. The local squad just couldn't match their heavier opponents once they got rolling.

Ailan Anderson, Eddie Anderson, B. Stevenson, E. Wray, P. Hafenden, D. Griffin, D. Kouri and S. Weinstein played a good game for Sherbrooke.

Solomons To Sail To Arrange Fight Term In New York

LONDON — (AP)—Promoter Jack Solomons will sail for New York Thursday to discuss terms for a world light heavyweight title fight between champion Archie Moore and Yolande Pompey, fourth-ranked challenger from Trinidad, in London Jan. 10.

Solomons said he has received a cable from Charlie Johnston, Moore's manager, which said: "On your arrival will sign contracts after few minor details are discussed."

Originally Solomons planned to match Randy Turpin against Moore. Then came Turpin's knock-out by Gordon Wallace of Brantford, Ont., here last Tuesday and Turpin's decision to quit the ring.

Robinson Training For Olsson Fight

GREENWOOD LAKE, N.Y. — (AP)—Sugar Ray Robinson said Monday that for the first time since he started his comeback he's beginning to feel like his old self. "In training for my six previous fights, it seemed like hard work," said the former middleweight champion. "Getting in shape for Bobo Olsson has been a cinch. I've enjoyed every minute of it. I'm certain I'll be in excellent condition."

Roger Caron Named President Of Sherbrooke Intermediate Hockey Club; Training To Commence Soon

Roger Caron, one of Sherbrooke's well known businessmen, was named as president of the Sherbrooke Intermediate Hockey Club to replace the late Downing Bourassa.

Caron is better known in baseball circles as he held the post of director with the Sherbrooke Athletics and took a keen interest in the team. He is co-owner of the Asselin & Caron service station situated on King Street West.

His nomination reminds local fans that the Massawippi Valley Hockey League, class "B", opens the season November 27. The Mac Wilson circuit comprises six clubs so far with Sherbrooke, Asbestos, Windsor Mills and East Angus from last year while Magog and Waterloo are the two new entries in the circuit.

Brompton and Rock Island

both suspended operations in the loop and will turn their backing towards junior hockey. Mr. Caron's nomination, as president of the Intermediates, will no doubt start the wheels in motion for the team and the naming of a new coach will be released very shortly.

Roger Roberge, who handled the team last year, has given up the reins and Manager Lucien Lachance is trying to complete arrangements with his replacement. The Arena will have ice ready this week and the local squad is expected to commence very shortly.

With the withdrawal of Brompton and Rock Island there leaves plenty of players who will try out for the club and it is expected that a strong club can be gathered to represent the local entry in the loop.

Branch Rickey's Successor To Be Named Today By Pittsburgh Stock Holders; New Manager To Be Picked

Pittsburgh — (AP)—Stock holders of the Pittsburgh Pirates today pick a successor to Branch Rickey, Sr., general manager and executive vice-president for the last five years.

The speculation is that Joe L. Brown, 37, handsome son of movie comedian Joe E. Brown, will succeed Rickey. The aging Rickey is expected to remain in an advisory capacity.

Under Rickey, the Pirates finished in the cellar the past four years and tied with the Chicago Cubs for seventh in 1951—Rickey's first season with the club.

The Pirates' may also announce the selection of a new team manager to replace Fred Haney who was dropped one day before the 1955 season ended.

Most frequently mentioned for the post are Bobby Bragan, pilot of Hollywood in the Pacific Coast League; Dixie Walker, who managed Rochester in the International League last year, and Andy Cohen who managed New Orleans in the Southern Association last year.

Branch Rickey, Jr., who also has been mentioned for the general management post, most likely will stay on to head the Pirates farm system.

Betting Price On Manati Lengthened By British Bookies; Heavy Rain To Make Track Very Slow For Classic

LONDON — (AP)—Britain's top bookies lengthened the betting price of favorite Manati Monday following reports that heavy rain may slow down the pace for Wednesday's 13th running of the Cambridge Handicap Stakes, on which the Irish Hospitals sweepstakes are decided.

The bookies made Manati, three-year-old chestnut gelding, a 29-to-2 choice for the mile-and-one-furlong race over Newmarket's famed track. He was 9 to 1 at last Friday's callover.

Rain has fallen steadily at Newmarket for three days and weather experts say more is on the way that could make the track very soft for Wednesday's big race and open the way for an outsider to spring a surprise.

Turk's Blood, 10 to 7 at the last callover, became 10 to 1 Monday, and Prince Aly Khan's Novento moved into third favorite spot at 100 to 6. He was 22 to 1 at the last callover.

About 40 thoroughbreds are expected to go to the starting post. There were 47 final acceptors but Criticism and Playroom have scratched. Radio Officer, Pappagena, Marengo, Elopement, Jai Pet and Midelfin also doubtful starters.

Michigan Tumbles To 3rd In Ratings

Globetrotters, Ace Cagers, To Appear At Forum

ABE Saperstein's Harlem Globetrotters of basketball who come to the Forum Friday, November 4, have played before more people in more places and have won more games than any other athletic team in the history of sports.

Congressman Frances P. Bolton, of Ohio, recently said in the U. S. House of Representatives that: "The Globetrotters qualify as probably the best ambassadors of goodwill we have ever sent abroad and it is wonderful how laughter and artistry are common denominators among people of all races and tongues."

His Holiness, Pope Pius XII, after watching the Globetrotters put on their feats of basketball magic at a special exhibition at his summer residence outside Rome, remarked: "These young men are certainly very clever."

On all continents promoters clamor for their services, secure in the knowledge that a Globetrotter game will mean a packed house.

From this it can be seen that the Globetrotters and their owner ABE Saperstein are truly fabulous. They've come a long way since their start in 1927. In the past 28 years they have played 47 countries on every continent of the world and have used every means of conveyance, from a dog sled in Alaska to a jet plane in India.

Originally, the forte of the Globetrotters was their ball-handling. They developed this to a perfection and as their fantastic victory skin stretched over the years they began to introduce bits of comedy and court cleverness into their play.

Saperstein, the master showman ever alert for ways and means to please crowds, blended together a combination of comedy and skills that has brought their organization a world-wide reputation. But, basically, this is a great basketball team that has won more victories than any athletic team in history, more than 5,000 in all while losing less than 300 games.

Big Don Newcombe Of Dodgers Tops Major League Pitchers In Batting; Finished Season With .359 Average

NEW YORK — (AP)—Big Don Newcombe of the Brooklyn Dodgers, who led the major leagues in winning pitching percentage in 1955, also topped the hurlers in batting. He had a sizzling .359 average.

Newcombe, a lefthanded batter, collected 42 hits in 117 times at bat. Seven of his safeties were home runs, breaking the National League record held by Hal Schumacher of the New York Giants and Jim Tobin of Boston.

A 20-game winner on the mound, Newcombe drove in 23 runs, also smacking nine doubles and one triple. He batted 21 times as a pinch-hitter, netting eight hits for a .381 mark.

Figures compiled by The Associated Press also showed today that Ruben Gomez of the Giants was the only other regular pitcher to bat .300. He hit it on the nose with 18 safeties in 60 trips.

Mickey McDermott of the Washington Senators was the American League's leading batter among pitchers with a .203 average. He had 25 hits, including four doubles and one homer. The lean lefty batter, also frequently used as a pinch-hitter, had 10 hits in his last 17 at bats.

Willard Nixon of the Boston Red Sox was runnerup to McDermott with .261 on 18-for-69.

In addition to Newcombe, several other pitchers did well in the home run department.

British Envoy At Peiping Has Determination

By ARTHUR GAVSHON
London—(AP)—Con O'Neil looks like a bank clerk with a pack of personal problems in suburbia. He is 42 and his hairline is rapidly receding. He wears spectacles and cigaret ash often stains his clothes. He acts shy.

But O'Neil has one of the top assignments in the British diplomatic service. He is charged d'affaires—sort of acting ambassador—in Peiping. The assessments he makes of the unfolding Chinese revolution help to shape Western policies toward Red China, for he is the only representative of a big Western power in Peiping.

The Irishman took up his post as the West's senior diplomat in Peiping in early July. He was hand-picked for the job by Prime Minister Eden, who had been impressed by the way O'Neil explained and interpreted British foreign policies to the world press and radio. For two years before his China assignment, O'Neil served as the chief Foreign Office spokesman. The job took him at Eden's side to all the major international conferences since 1953.

The Chinese Reds already have doubtless discovered that O'Neil is a tough-minded gentleman. The record shows that, like Eden, he quit the Foreign Office in 1938 rather than see Britain appease the continental dictators. His act of defiance at Munich made no headlines for he was a little-noticed third secretary in the Berlin embassy, with but two years of service behind him.

In 1943 the Foreign Office took him out of army intelligence but, again, three years later he gave up a coveted post because it had only temporary status. For the third time, in 1947, the Foreign Office gave him a post—this one permanent.

Yet it did not take long for the independent-minded Irishman once again to forget the conformity he had been taught at Eton and Oxford and to fly in the face of basic foreign service traditions.

First he divorced his wife. Some British diplomats have done so at the cost of their professional careers. O'Neil survived it and proceeded to marry an alien. No government likes its diplomats to marry foreigners. O'Neil not only married an alien but his bride was a German. His marriage to the Baroness Mady Marshall von Bieberstein caused gossipers to suggest O'Neil had committed professional suicide.

Eden thought otherwise. He clearly respects O'Neil's capacity for firmness allied with patience and tact.

The high-domed O'Neil can trace his ancestry to the Irish kings. He is the second son of the first Baron Rathcaven.

UNICEF Campaign Replacing Old Trick-Or-Treat

Toronto—(AP)—"Shell out for UNICEF" will replace the "trick or treat" clamor of youngsters across Canada on Oct. 31. It is hoped by the newly-formed Canadian committee for the United Nations International Children's Emergency Fund.

With the Halloween proceeds, UNICEF will provide food and medical treatment for children in depressed countries, says Mrs. J. S. D. Tory of Toronto, committee chairman. One of the main purposes of the committee is to get children interested in UNICEF. In the United States last year children collected $250,000 for the International Children's Fund.

For the Halloween project, its first major undertaking, the Canadian committee is seeking co-operation of any organization in the country which will promote the idea within its community.

"We want Canadian children to realize they are well looked after, and to help youngsters less fortunate," Mrs. Tory said. "Ten cents will buy a candy bar or comic book for a youngster in Canada—but in Egypt it will protect a child from tuberculosis and in India it will provide a child with 10 bowls of rice."

One of the committee's aims is to increase Canada's official contributions to UNICEF. The Canadian government now donates $500,000 a year.

Since its inception in 1946, UNICEF has helped millions of children in 107 countries. Mrs. Tory gave some figures: It has tested 130,000,000 children for tuberculosis, and has given vaccinations to 50,000,000. Campaigns have been conducted against malaria, trachoma, yaws, diphtheria, whooping cough and leprosy.

The UNICEF now is looking for ways to produce cheap food with high protein content. A fish-flour plant has been set up in Chile, a soybean plant in Indonesia, and other countries are being helped with milk-drying plants.

St. Boniface Resurrects Ancient Bell

St. Boniface, Man.—(AP)—The cathedral city of St. Boniface has regained possession of Lord Selkirk's bell—the first on the Prairies to call worshippers to prayer.

The 100-pound bell, which lay broken, unused and unheralded in a church basement from 1888 to 1937, now rests in the museum section of the St. Boniface city hall.

It was cast and blessed in London in 1819 and came to the Prairies in 1840 when Lord Selkirk gave it to Fathers Provencher and Dumoulin, who had earlier established the first Roman Catholic church in the Red River region. It was sent from Montreal with a set of three bells to the St. Francis-Xavier church. It rang in St. Francis-Xavier from 1840 to 1868, but no one knew it was Selkirk's bell. Then a tremendous storm swept the Red River settlement and the bell was lost for 69 years.

It had crashed from the steeple of the tiny oak Roman Catholic church and cracked as it fell. It lay outside for years, neglected and unknown. New churches were built, new bells installed, but the derelict was forgotten. Then someone had it stored in the basement of the church.

No one heard of it again until Manitoba historian Margaret Arnett discovered it in the dust-covered basement in 1937. Later it was added to the collection of bells in the Hudson's Bay House.

Recently St. Boniface civic officers saw it and requested it for their city museum.

Lord Selkirk gave the bells to the Roman Catholic priests in Montreal after he returned from his Red River settlement. He never once heard it ring. He died a sick man in southern France in 1820. A stone memorial now is being erected to him in the city.

Ability Schools Prove Popular In Great Britain

Edmonton—(AP)—British educationists are experimenting with the segregation of brighter pupils in schools specially designed to challenge their ability, Dame Olive Wheeler said here.

Former dean of education at the University of South Wales in Cardiff, she said the brighter pupils can work harder and carry a heavier curriculum than is expected of them in Canada. She believes the more able pupils in Canada often become bored or lazy when they find courses too easy.

"It is necessary to differentiate education according to the abilities of pupils," she said.

"This principle is not necessarily undemocratic."

Dame Olive said Britain is experimenting with the division of pupils into grammar schools, technical schools and a third set of schools for the remaining students who are educated as "ordinary citizens."

The development of the three types of schools since 1944 is "the first major attempt to make education more democratic," she said. Each community is allowed to decide whether it will have a single "comprehensive" school with varying curricula as in Canada, or a two- or three-school system.

She said there is a strong trend in Britain against the three-school system and towards the two-school system, with one set of grammar-technical schools and the other modern-technical for the less able.

Britain has also paid more attention than Canada to education of the handicapped, said Dame Olive. Education is planned so their needs are met and on a scale "to bring their gifts and powers to maturity."

A comprehensive youth employment service has been established with a report on each student leaving school given to employment offices, Dame Olive said. She described this as "a big step in the right direction" because "some people of great ability are working in jobs below their capacity while others are doing jobs above their capacity, suffering mental breakdowns as a result. Greater efficiency in industry and better mental health should result from the employment service."

Teacher training institutions in Britain are affiliated with universities and the minimum period of teacher training is two years.
