Five Weeks to Huntingdon Fair

TIME slips by very easily and with rapidity. In five weeks' time Huntingdon Fair will be on. The Fair for 1941 is to be held on September 11 and 12, and if all pull together, a record show can be held. Never before has Huntingdon had as large a population to draw attendances, and in addition to this we will have the men who are training at the Military Camp. True, the soldiers will be drilling during the day, but let us also remember that many of the boys in training come from farms located in almost every part of Canada. Soldiers who have worked on farms are greatly impressed with this district and naturally will want to see what kind of an Agricultural Fair we can present. We can rest assured that many soldiers will be present, even if they have to ask for a few hours off duty to do so.

Although the prize list is not yet issued, it is a known fact that never before has there been such a large number of special prizes offered. This, we feel, is an indication that the general public want to see a good fair exhibit and that they don't want to see the old Huntingdon Fair give up. This year the Lachute Fair was a great success, perhaps as great or greater than was usually the case when it received substantial grants from the Government. At any rate they voted $500. towards the Lachute "Spitfire Fund" and hope to further increase their donation before very long. Huntingdon Fair has given the use of its grounds to the army for the duration of the war apart from the time required for the annual fall fair. Although the army has not yet been officially asked if they would present a military review during the Fair, it is possible that they would do so if asked. Recruiting campaigns will be carried out, one after another until Hitler is licked and it is reasonable to believe the Military authorities will wish to capitalize on the fact that the Fair will be on and a large number of people would be present to witness a military review. If a military show is staged for recruiting purposes it will be one that would serve as a great drawing card for the Fair. Our Fair Board might well get busy and see if a Military Review can be presented on both afternoons of the Fair and if so see that such a show is well advertised so that the largest attendance ever to be present at Huntingdon Fair will be on hand. If such is done as quickly as possible both the Fair and the Army would benefit accordingly.

Col. McCormick's Allies

IN TWO recent issues the Saturday Evening Post has devoted considerable space to a biographical sketch of Col. R. R. McCormick, publisher, editor and dictator of the Chicago Tribune. It is a "success" story of an unusual kind, for its subject started his career with enough inherited wealth to insure him from the necessity of ever having to wonder where his next meal was coming from. His biographer shows that, instead of being a millionaire playboy, the colonel has been a hard worker, not only retaining his share of the McCormick millions, but substantially increasing them.

The subject of the sketch is of interest to Canadians, for the McCormick empire extends into Ontario and Quebec, where two newspaper companies, the Ontario Paper Co., Thorold, Ont., and the Quebec North Shore Paper Co., Bale Comeau, P.Q., are wholly-owned subsidiaries of the Chicago Tribune and sell their total output of newspaper to the Tribune and the affiliated New York News. Establishment of a newspaper mill in Canada was one of McCormick's moves to beat competition in newspaper publishing in the Chicago field. The Hearst papers, represented in Chicago at the outset of McCormick's publishing career by the Examiner, had an advantage over most other newspapers through the favorable price concessions they were able to secure from newspaper manufacturers. Col. McCormick met this threat to the Tribune's business side by establishing his own newspaper mills.

Presumably this move gave him a better price for his newspaper than even the power of Hearst had been able to obtain, for four years after the colonel became dictator of the Tribune the Chicago Herald merged with the Examiner, and twenty-one years later, the Herald-Examiner gave up the struggle. When Col. McCormick launched his battle against competition in Chicago newspaperdom, there were eight newspapers in the field. Now there are only four, and the Tribune is the only morning paper.

The provincial governments of Ontario and Quebec have been allies of Col. McCormick in his rise to power. When the depression of the Canadian newspaper industry in the early years reached the point that government intervention was invoked in the mill and forest workers and the government on them, a plan was evolved to increase newspaper production. Mills were built only that percentage of their output that would give a total output equivalent to what the industry would absorb. The plan was to mitigate the hardships of depression on employment for all on a necessarily reduced scale. McCormick's companies, however, were obtaining exemption from the production orders, by pleading that non-commercial status. Thus employees weathered the depression without inconvenience, enjoying the isolation from the common lot that the colonel himself apparently always has been able to secure.

The Fluid Milk Situation

THIS is a season in which there will be much discussion on milk prices. Producers will want more, and there are communities in which the producer will have to have more money. Distributors will want more, and distributors may have to have more. Cost of producing milk has been rising, likewise the cost of distribution. This is a problem which must be dealt with by both operators and producers, each with regard to the needs of the other, and the final approach to the public must be made with a united front and all the facts, and with an insistence that urban people must permit the people who "live and work on the land to have a square deal."

Mr. Allan C. Fraser, Secretary of the National Dairy Council, Ottawa, quotes the remarks of an economist as to what has happened in Ottawa and is quite likely applicable in other cities. The economist proportions how the national income has been divided between farmer and laborer. Laborer has fared well, states the economist. The salaried class has likewise fared very well—the $200 per month man, by the reduction in costs of living at periods in the past 15 years, has enjoyed a very substantial increase in his pay—in one instance being the equivalent of $45 and in the other $60 per month. Much could be said on this subject but space confines on to the simple comment that the salaried and wage classes as a whole have not suffered, and the milk producers have suffered substantially at times within the same period, and that the milk distributors' costs have been influenced adversely by what has been received by both the wage earner and the salaried class and that the same factors which have made things rather difficult for farmers, that is the rising costs of the "tools" has applied to the milk distributing trade with considerable force.

Every housewife knows right well that butter and cheese have been advancing in price with marked regularity. These advances all point towards better financial returns for the dairy farmer, and that is just what the farmers of the Chateauguay Valley deserve. The farmer deserves recompense, but let him take heed and not be careless.

To get a just recompense for his effort, his legitimate share can only be obtained if he stands firm by his agricultural organizations such as the National Dairy Council, Montreal Milk Shippers' Association, local creameries or co-operatives, etc.

Fraud on Bank Clerks

ONE of the mysteries of political life in this country is that the so-called unemployment insurance law was precipitated through the House of Commons with little or no criticism, and even with cheers, from Opposition benches. Possibly organized labor, which is mainly employed on an hourly basis, is pleased at the moment because such trades will, under present arrangements, benefit from the weekly contributions of bank clerks and retail clerks and others in the lower paid group who seldom are out of employment.

An immense new bookkeeping job has been foisted on business and employers generally, for if the revenue were demanded from workers in order to help with the war effort or to brake inflationary tendencies, the machinery for the collection of the national defence tax would have sufficed both for business and government. But every large business must add to payroll staff and every small business must submit to an additional nuisance. And Ottawa payrolls are swelled by some thousands of persons—perhaps 6,000 at a time when help is scarce.

Canada adopts a scheme that was a failure in Britain. In Britain, a depression proved the unemployment fund inadequate and even those who had not paid into it were given weekly grants of equivalent amounts. This would be the condition in Canada in the event of further unemployment, for the principle has been established that the workless shall not be allowed to starve. But Opposition members of the Commons are so in awe of Mr. King's political acumen that they cheer the announcement of the inauguration of the scheme.

People who are struggling to make ends meet today are paying into a fund from which there is only the remotest chance of their benefiting. It has been ruled, for instance, that college students with summer jobs must pay, although these boys when they finish college will be mainly either in exempted employment or engaged in a professional activity on their own account or soon, because of their superior education, beyond the $2,000 class. Yet out of money earned for paying next year's tuition, they must help the fund which pleases only those who are engaged in seasonal employment.

The scheme cannot be classed even as a compulsory savings scheme for the reason that the money once paid into the fund can be recovered by the payer only if he or she is ousted from a job because there is no work. A stenographer who works ten years and then gets married can get nothing back. A youth who slowly makes his way upward beyond the $2,000 class cannot benefit. The beneficiaries are mainly Canada's largest and ever-growing permanent force, the civil service. Is this the reason Opposition politicians seem to be afraid to attack it?

Maintain Cordial Relations With the Army

THIS week the Gleaner was asked by the officers of the Chateauguay Military Basic Training Centre No. 41, if we would extend a hand towards maintaining the cordial relationships that have existed between the Army and townsmen. It seems that occasionally men in military clothes have asked merchants to accord them credit. Some local folks have extended such credits and when the soldiers left, the merchant was left with an unpaid account. Mr. Merchant naturally feels all he has to do is to send his account to the Camp and that the Army will see to it that he is paid. Such things are just not done by the Army, so the best way to maintain the fine spirit or cordial relationship between Army and civilian is to decline according credit to soldiers. If a soldier asks for credit, all Mr. Merchant has to say is that he regrets his inability to do so as the officers of the Military Camp have requested that such not be done.

DR. SHIRRIFF (Continued)

Do not believe Dr. Fortune had any medical education. The first registrar was a John Munro, who had his office above Burrows' store. He was a hunchback and given to drink. Lighthouse succeeded and had to go to Durham when the office was moved there. His tall gaunt aspect got him the name of "The Last of the Mohicans." His wife, a sister of Schuyler's, was a coarse, gross-looking woman, terribly addicted to drink and opium, and frequently ill of d.t.s.

Brown was a sober man of bluff stout aspect, but always in monetary difficulties. His family did not turn out well. The Americans got a Dr. Missoune as rival to Bell. The people could not catch his name and called him Methuselah. He did not stay long.

Rye whiskey could be got at Malone and Port Covington for 20 to 25 cents a gallon. It was weak but not poisonous liquor. A good deal was made locally, among the more prominent distillers being Wattey and McIntosh on the Ridge. Schuyler was here before Shirriff and married a daughter of Brown's in 1835.

Dr. Whyte and his son John came in 1836. The doctor was three times married. Do not know what made him come out unless, like others, he thought Canada was an Eldorado. He did not practice. He bought his farm from an American named Butterfield.

I built my house on the island in 1838 and occupied it in 1839. After my marriage in 1838 I rented the house on the corner of the Plank Road, which Charles Crawford had built but had to give to Lewis for debt. Col. Campbell lived in it after I left it.

PETER CALDWELL — In year 1817 father (William) left Pollockshaws with family, all their effects being packed in a cart, making a large load. They drove to Greenock where they got on the "Peace of Hull," which had 80 passengers, among them being his future wife, a daughter of William Miller, who was five years at New Paisley and one near Montreal before going to Chateauguay. They were six weeks and three days in reaching Quebec and three weeks in getting to Montreal. The crew mutinied after leaving Quebec and deserted, so that the ship was worked by the passengers. They stuck five times in Lake St. Peter. At Quebec his father drew 400 acres on George St. and was induced to remain at Montreal.

On March 17, 1821, they left Montreal in traineaux, bringing their furniture, eight barrels of flour, eight potatoes and four of pork, two horses and a cow.

JOHN GILMORE—Came to Huntingdon in traineaux, bringing their furniture, eight barrels of flour, eight potatoes and four of pork, two horses and a cow.

The first registrar was John Munro. He had met with an accident when a child and had not got his growth, in addition to being deformed in back and chest. He drank some but not to excess. He kept his office in Lighthouse's store, and at his death Lighthouse succeeded him. Munro's brother, Hector, was killed by the kick of a horse at the door of the old Thompson barroom. When an apprentice, and therefore before '33, I was sent out with a petition to the Government to obtain the appointment of magistrates to hold courts. The prayer was granted, and William Lamb and Charles Dewitt held the first court in French's, Orsen French being clerk.

When Seeley's father came in '30 men were so scarce that the shoemakers had to go and help at the raising of his barn.

I remember well the visit of one Governor, but do not remember his name. A shed was put up between my shop and the road, where a public dinner, served by Milne, was held. On the upper bridge he met Henry Turner, with whom he had been at school, and whom he recognized and warmly shook hands with.

I think it was in '36 we had early frost, and provisions were dear that winter; peas for seed cost $2. Towards the end of March, 1839, we had a heavy snowfall which lasted until May.

Brown's object in refusing to have the common survey for settlement was, I think, a selfish one, to preserve intact the water power. He was the first to break his rule by putting up a house for his sawyer where Mr. Cowan's now stands. Needler had his mill rented for some time.

The first temperance lecturer spoke in the Methodist Church, so it must have been after 1840. He came from Malone, accompanied by a band of musicians, and they did a good work. Parsons (who called himself a chemist) caused quite an alarm among the women by the warmth with which he denied that liquors were made up of drugs.

One of the Barclays who lived near the lake, and another, were drowned when returning from working in the Beauharnois Canal, which was then being built. They were the worse for liquor.

Benjamin Lewis died at Miller's tavern on his way home, of cholera, and was buried at Dr. Muir's. It was reported that Lalanne died of it too, but he was away at the time, and it is doubtful as he was subject to fits. He helped McNeel in his store.

During my apprenticeship, French who was a very even-tempered man, kept the Thompson tavern, and I acted as stable boy and sometimes in the bar.

The village was often nearly burned by bush fires. One time it had almost reached Lewis' barns. The court was sitting at the time, when all left to fight the fire, but had a shower not come we would have been beaten.

Needler built the mill at Rockburn, but found the water insufficient. He got in an engine, finally sold out and became miller to Brown in the old mill, and was also in the new one. He was taking the Durham mill, which he would have liked to buy, but Brown would not consent. As Brown died a year after he left for Lindsay, he could have had it had he remained. The year of scarcity he sent Butterfield and old Seeley to the Basin to draw wheat from Montreal, with which he supplied the county, and for much of which he never got paid by the farmers.

Oil Controller Predicts Gas Rationing Will Not Be Necessary if Car Owners Continue to Show Spirit of Co-operation

THE most disturbing of all domestic affairs with which the Government has been actively concerned in the past few days have been the labor troubles in three centres, the aluminum plant at Arvida, Quebec, the coal mines in Cape Breton and the steel car plant at Hamilton, Ont. In each case special questions are involved. Investigation during the next few days will disclose whether there was a wilful attempt at sabotage at Arvida. In Cape Breton a point at issue is an old right of having a final decisive wage plebiscite among the miners on arrangements made by mine unions with employers. The cardinal point about the trouble at all three centres is that the strikes have seriously affected Canada's war effort. They have held up production of vital supplies, and the country is anxious and determined to have the disturbances settled without further delay. At Arvida the men are back at work but golden hours have been lost. The Minister of Labor, Norman McLarty, has gone to Cape Breton to try to straighten out the mess there and at the time of writing affairs seem to be reaching a climax at Hamilton. It is hoped discussions of labor department officials with representatives of labor and employer will put an end to the present impasse.

Duke on Air Tour

The Duke of Kent, the brother of the King, is now well launched on his air tour of the joint air training schools of Canada. He will not be able to see them all. Time will not permit, but before he returns to London in six weeks' time he will have inspected a large number of training centres which have been sending an increasing flow of trained airmen across the ocean to the air battle line. The Duke, who is an air commodore of the R.A.F. on the staff of the inspector general of the air force in Britain, said in Ottawa that the British people were "fully conscious of the great value of Canada's contribution to our joint cause in having thought out and put into operation the vast Commonwealth Air Training Plan." The Royal Duke, who has visited this country twice before and has a number of friends on this side of the water, is very youthful in appearance, very good-looking, is modest in demeanor and has an engaging smile.

Canada's wheat carryover at the end of the crop year, that is on July 31, will be shown to be under 500 million bushels. The Bureau of Statistics has not yet made its final returns, the item of uncertainty being the amount still in the hands of the farmers. Some months ago it

OPINIONS OF OTHERS

SOLDIERS, $1.30;
WAR WORKERS, $6.30
(Amersburg Echo)

WHILE the recruiting drive in Canada, which just closed, reached its quota it was far from satisfactory in many districts. One of the reasons that greater numbers of young men do not respond to their country's call is that the majority of them are making high wages in the war industries. It's rather difficult to persuade a fellow to leave a job that is paying him six or seven dollars a day to go to a job of soldiering at $1.30 per day. The need for manpower has not been sufficiently driven home to the youth of our country and because we are so far from the scene of activity they do not feel the urge to enlist. Many of them only weigh the money part of it and feel they are losing some of their liberty to go into a job that pays less money. How to overcome that is a difficult problem. The government could place the young soldiers and the young war-worker on a more even basis. They could scale down the fat wages paid the war-workers or perhaps jack up the soldier's pay—even though Canadian soldiers are the highest paid of any army. If the government doesn't want to start conscription then it should make the army more, or the war-materials jobs less, attractive.

WHEN WILL QUEBEC ACT?
(Shawinigan Standard)

FOR almost as many years as we can remember the people of Quebec have been trying to get our Provincial Government to pass two laws and do not seem to be getting anywhere.

The first, and most important, is to make it necessary for all wagons to carry lights after dark and the second is to have compulsory insurance on motor vehicles.
A large number of fatal road accidents are caused by no other reason than a wagon without lights, being hit by a car. Some farmers have enough sense to put lights on anyway, why other do not and why the Government does not compel them to is beyond us.
The second law would save a lot of worry and money for our car owners and would probably take a lot of the jalopies off the road, without horns, brakes and in lots of cases without brains behind the wheel.
They speed along the highways risking nothing but their own necks knowing that they can smash an expensive car without costing them anything. They have no money of their own, earn very little and carry no insurance of any kind. Knowing that they cannot be taken to court successfully, the drivers of these cars often neglect the primary rules of the road and therefore get into a greater percentage of accidents than the careful driver who takes every precaution to protect himself and others.

Mr. Godbout could remove and curtail both these highway menaces by the simple process of law and in our opinion now is the time when he has such a large majority.

Hand Freezer Method of Making Ice Cream Popular With Many

ALTHOUGH the automatic refrigerator is used a great deal in making ice cream today, many homemakers still prefer to make it in the good old hand freezer. This reliable method always produces that smooth, light ice cream that never loses its popularity. The recipes given below will enable you to serve a "cool off" dish on any warm summer evening. And Mother! Why not have a freezer full of ice cream for Dad and Junior when they return from the baseball game—or at least have it ready for masculine arms that are always willing to handle this particular type of "crank."

Basic Recipe

Dissolve rennet tablets by crushing in cold water in a cup. Warm the milk and cream, sweetening and flavoring slowly, stirring constantly. Test a drop on inside of wrist frequently. When COMFORTABLY WARM (120 deg. F.) not hot, remove at once from heat. Add dissolved tablets; stir quickly a few seconds only; pour at once, while still liquid, into freezer can and let set at room temperature until firm and cool. Freeze in ice and salt mixture, 4 parts ice to 1 part ice cream salt, for 10 to 15 minutes. Remove dasher. Repack with ice and salt and let set until ready to serve. The recipes given will make approximately 1/2 gallon each.

Vanilla Rennet-Custard Ice Cream

2 rennet tablets
2 tablespoons cold water
3 cups milk
1 cup heavy cream
1 cup sugar
1 tablespoon vanilla

Make rennet-custard ice cream according to directions as given for basic recipe.

Grape Rennet-Custard Ice Cream

2 rennet tablets
2 tablespoons cold water
2 1/2 cups milk
1 cup heavy cream
1 cup sugar (more sugar may be added if desired)
1 1/2 cups grape juice
2 tbsps. lemon juice

Make rennet-custard ice cream according to directions as given for basic recipe. When frozen to a soft mush, add fruit juices and finish freezing. Remove dasher. Repack.

with ice and salt and let set until ready to serve.

Orange Ice Cream

(Automatic Refrigerator Method)
2/3 cup sweetened condensed milk
1/2 cup orange juice
1/2 tablespoon grated orange rind
1 cup whipping cream

Blend sweetened condensed milk, orange juice, and grated orange rind thoroughly. Chill. Whip cream to custard-like consistency and fold into chilled mixture. Pour into freezing pan. Place in freezing unit. After mixture is about half frozen remove from sides and bottom of pan. Beat until smooth but not until melted. Smooth out and replace in freezing unit until frozen for serving. Serves six.

CHOCOLATE ICE CREAM

(Freezer Method)
2 squares unsweetened chocolate
1 1/3 cups (1 can) sweetened condensed milk
1 cup cold water
2 cups thin cream or evaporated milk

Melt chocolate in top of double boiler. Add sweetened condensed milk, and stir over boiling water for 5 minutes until mixture thickens. Gradually add water and thin cream or evaporated milk. Blend thoroughly. Cool and freeze in 2 quart freezer. Remove dasher. Pack in ice and salt for 1 hour or more after freezing. Makes 1 1/2 quarts.

WEDDING

MacWha-Flemming

On Friday, August 1st, at three o'clock in the afternoon, the marriage of Miss Margaret Helena Fleming, R.N., to Mr. John Albert MacWha, B.Sc., was solemnized in the United Church at Valleyfield, Que., the Rev. M. W. Williams officiating.

The bride's dress was a mid-night blue sheer with white accessories, and she wore a corsage of orchids; she was attended by Mrs. George Grant, who acted as matron of honour and wore white or blue crepe, white accessories, and a corsage of sweet peas. The groomsmen were Mr. Geo. Grant, the bride's eldest daughter, and Mr. and Mrs. J. Sprague Fleming of Juniper, N.B., and a graduate of Chippman Memorial Hospital, St. Stephen, N.B. The groom is the only son of Mr. D. St. Stephen, N.B., and a graduate of Mount Allison University.

Following the ceremony a reception was held at the home of Mr. and Mrs. George Grant, 65a Ave., Grande Ile, after which the young couple left for the Laurentians where they will spend their honeymoon; upon their return they will take up residence at 26a Ste. Cecile Street, Valleyfield, where Mr. MacWha is employed as chemist in Defence Industries.

THE CHILDREN'S COLUMN

"JO-JO"

They say he is only a dog and is dumb—
And yet, when I call him, I know he will come.
His stubby tail wagging, he waits at my knee
I wish that all men were as faithful as he.

He never complains he's neglected and sad;
A pat of the hand makes him merry and glad.
Unquestioning, trusting, wherever I be—
I wish that all men were as faithful as he.

He growls out a challenge if danger comes near;
Each order obeys without whimper or fear.
Regardless of others, his faith is in me—
I wish that all men were as faithful as he.

Oh, yes, he is only a dog, you may say;
Yet I can depend on him, day after day.
I think this old world would be a better place
If only all men were as faithful as he.

PETER PIPER

This is an amusing game for children. A blackboard is needed upon which the verse, "Peter Piper," etc., is illustrated or written so that the words are mixed up and it will be difficult to point out. Some older person will be needed to superintend the game.

One child is given a pointer and as the others sing, to any familiar tune:

"Peter Piper picked a peck of pickled peppers,
Now if Peter Piper picked a peck of pickled peppers,
Where is that peck of pickled peppers,
Peter Piper picked?"

she must point out each word or drawing as soon as it is sung.

If a mistake is made in pointing the child takes her place with the rest and another child is out. Each one is given a turn.

It is an achievement, if done successfully, and some suitable gift should be given as a prize.

A HYMN

I'm not too young for God to see;
He knows my name and nature too.
And all day long he looks at me,
And sees my actions through and through.

He listens to the words I say,
And knows the thoughts I have within.
And whether I'm at work or play,
He's sure to see me if I sin.

Oh! how could children tell a lie
Or cheat in play, or steal, or fight,
If they remembered God was by,
And had them always in His sight!

If some good minister is near,
It makes us careful what we do;
And how much more we ought to fear
The Lord who sees us through and through.

Then when I want to do amiss,
However pleasant it may be,
I'll always try to think of this—
I'm not too young for God to see!

Facts of Interest To Movie Fans

Special Treat: Curious, the interesting bits and pieces of a story that come to light months later. Hitting 1941 right on the nose was the news break of Bette Davis' marriage to Arthur Farnsworth. Now we have this charming little account direct from the pen of Bette's mother, telling of their 750-mile trip to the altar.

Writes Mrs. Davis: Our secret plans seemed to be going smoothly. Then as we were sitting before the fire at Bette's home on a cold rainy night, a horrible thought came to me. How could we get the wedding bouquets, and not be found out? Bette's friend, Ruth Garland, who, with her sister, was to stand up with her, saved the day. "I have a plan," she said.

Benny, "The Parisian Florist," had always kept Bette's house filled with such perfect flowers that we felt it only fair to let him do this, too, even though we must try to keep him from suspecting our secret. Benny himself greeted Ruth as she entered his shop next morning. "Benny," she said, "I want you to help me. I have a little friend who is going to be married New Year's Eve. She's way up in the hills and she doesn't have very much. The flowers are to be my contribution. She must have the most beautiful flowers you have ever made—THIS most beautiful. I'll tell her she's going to have them. She then told him the disturbing fact that these flowers must travel twenty-four hours by motor. This meant that the lilies of the valley were so much wanted would be impossible to use. Finally white roses and white orchids were decided on for the wedding bouquet, and pale pink carnations for the attendants, green orchids for the bride's mother and a corsage of white orchids, which, if he had only known, were to be for Jane Bryan, now Mrs. Justin Dart, our hostess. He could give her no assurance that even these flowers would be fresh after such a long journey, but he promised to pack them as well as possible and she had to take the risk.

Through rain, snow and landslides went the flowers. Bette and her party had left Montreal, not in a boulder in Jerome they were obliged to make a 150-mile detour through Flagstaff and only arrived at the ranch three hours before the wedding was scheduled. Ruth Garland and I had left Sunday and so were lucky enough to avoid the detour, but we spent the extra day worrying about the rest of the party AND the flowers.

At eight-thirty a horn blew and the boys in something faintly resembling a car, but mud from top to bottom, drew up at the door. With bated breath we bore the huge bawls into the room.

Removing the covers we lifted the still damp cotton, layer after layer, and there, crisp as the day they first bloomed, lay the wedding flowers. Bette gasped, as did we all, and Ruth G.'s face was wreathed not in smiles, but grins. Her plan had worked. Jane had brought with her by plans from Phoenix a bunch of lilies of the valley. These we tucked in among the roses and the orchids. Bette even had her much-wanted lilies of the valley after all.

Finally at nine-thirty all was in readiness and the service, so beautifully read by Dr. Price, was performed.

And so ends the tale of the flowers.

RUTH F. DAVIS.
P.S.—Benny was gratified.

Oil Home Machinery

Little Lubrication is Needed, But That Little Should be Properly Applied

A very little oil applied when needed keeps household equipment working longer and always ready for work. It does wonders for the squeaky bedroom door, the sewing machine, the vacuum cleaner, the washer, and any other appliances that need occasional lubrication. There are right and wrong ways to lubricate and one can use too much oil as well as too little.

The best guide to follow in oiling any household machine is the one given by the manufacturer, who naturally recommends what suits his appliance best. He knows where his machine should be oiled, how often it should be oiled, and the best kind of oil to use. A good grade of oil is important. Sooner or later a poor grade of oil becomes dry and sticky and gums up the machine.

Oil and Cover Machinery

Any electric motor must be kept dry and covered. Covering the motor and putting it away carefully when not in use helps to keep it so. This applies to the sewing machine, too. When the electric fan is put away it should be oiled and covered to protect it from dust.

The sewing machine needs a light grade of oil. The manufacturer's directions will indicate where to apply it. After oiling, wipe off the whole machine thoroughly and before threading the needle, run the machine rapidly several times and wipe around the needle bar each time very carefully. Just one small drop of oil left on the machine will badly spot a new dress. An excellent precaution is to stitch first on a piece of blotting paper or absorbent cloth before trying a newly oiled machine on anything valuable.

Sewing machine oil will not do for electric motors as it will not stand up under steady heat.

By using cooking or salad oil for lubricating small cooking equipment like egg beaters or meat choppers, the chance of flavoring the food with machine oil is avoided.

Household Hints

Use for Old Zippers

Some of the modern gloves have small slide fasteners down the back. When these gloves are worn out, don't throw away the zippers. They can be cut off and used on the pockets of homemade dresses, shirts, windbreakers, etc., and will give a smart professional look to the garments.

To Save on Laundering Blankets

To avoid having blankets soiled by face creams (which are used so extensively these days) baste a strip of cheese-cloth over the end of blanket, covering the whole width of blankets down about 18 inches on each side. This strip of cheese-cloth is easily removed and laundered when it becomes soiled. This saves many a spot on the blankets.

To Save Stockings

To save runs in your stockings, try cutting off the tops of your old stockings and using these under the tops of good ones. They will help to take the strain off the stockings where the suspenders are fastened.

BABY'S UPSET STOMACH QUICKLY CORRECTED

BABY'S little "Tummy" is often easily upset. It is easily righted again, too, if you know just how to do it. Let Mrs. M. S. Always of London, Ont., tell you. "Baby's Own Tablets are a great help at the first sign of upset stomach, during teething time or when a cold is coming on. They work quickly yet gently to carry away poisons and promote quiet sleep. Walking about at night is unknown in our home."

And Mrs. W. R. Sharp says: "I nursed my baby shortly after being alarmed over a motor accident and that upset her stomach to the point of convulsions. I gave her Baby's Own Tablets and she soon stopped crying—went to sleep and when she awakened was her own good self again."

Equally effective for diarrhoea, colic, teething troubles, simple croup, constipation and simple fever. Sweet-tasting, easy to take, prompt in their action yet harmless. Analyst's certificate in every box. Buy a box today for sickness or often strikes in the night. 25 cents. Money back if not satisfied.

PULP AND PAPER FOR FREEDOM

You Have a Right to be Proud!

If you work in the pulp and paper industry these days, you have a right to be proud. Your industry is doing a good job for Canada and for freedom.

First, many of your industry's products are directly used for war needs—pulp for explosives, wrappings and containers for munitions and food, boards for army buildings, paper to do the Nation's business, newsprint to sustain a free press. You are keeping this supply flowing without a break: here in Canada, to the United States, across the seas.

Second, the products your industry is selling in the United States and other countries are the largest single industrial source of the money Canada must have to pay for munitions. Pulp and paper exports last year gave Canada nearly 250 million dollars of vital foreign exchange. Every export shipment that leaves your mill is a body blow to Nazi slavery.

Whether you work in the woods, or in a mill or in an office, you are part of the war job your industry is doing. You can take pride in the job. Keep it rolling for freedom.

What's in the Wind

by PAULA DICKS

IDEAS are funny things! They won't work unless you do.

How true! I always get my best ideas for this column when occupied with some technical operation such as running the washer or mixing dough. When I've no pencil and paper—or just when I'm too hot and indifferent about everything in general.

Black Record . . .

Hitler is like a mule. Without pride of ancestry or hope of posterity.

Force and fraud. Fraud and force. That is old German gospel. German people are offensive persons, judged by other people's standards.

Germans always cry out before they hurt someone else. The technique of self-pity developed into the technique of aggression.

Nazism is like a beach tree. Nothing can grow beneath it.

These are just some of the snappy remarks made by Sir Robert Vansittart in a small pamphlet entitled "Black Record," a reprint of seven broadcasts. The booklet is dedicated to Dorothy Thompson by the author.

Sir Robert Vansittart is Chief Diplomatic Adviser to the British Government. He recommends that such historic labels as "Great" be accepted with reservation.

Frederick the Great was a Prussian perverser bent on killing and dominating people. Catherine the Great of Russia, another Prussian with the morals of a street-walker, also had a bent for killing and dominating people.

"I call Dorothy Thompson great and Catherine the Great a street-walker. I wish history would adopt this standard," says Vansittart.

Perhaps it will hereafter. Note his name begins with "V."

Canadian Wings for Britain . . .

A kindly, peaceful, friendly man who has spent a lifetime assisting the unfortunate and generally trying to promote ideas that would result in a more even distribution of pleasure and profit, is being widely congratulated by his innumerable friends.

On July 29 it was announced that Sgt.-Air Gunner Murray Hugh Ross, member of No. 29 Squadron, Royal Air Force, had been awarded the Distinguished Flying Medal.

Murray Ross is the only son of Howard S. Ross, K.C., Montreal lawyer. Only a few weeks ago I had the privilege of reading a letter written by Sgt. Ross to a friend in which he modestly and briefly mentioned some of his experiences.

Possibly they may have been the very incidents that brought him the distinguished award. His work consisted of night flying over the "Battle of Britain" ground of last September. During bright moonlight nights the squadron works very hard and on dark nights they rest.

He mentioned sending some souvenir pieces of a Heinkel III. Since that time he said that he and his pilot had brought down another Heinkel, which fell in a London park.

Sgt. Ross was working in London when war broke out and has been in the R.A.F. a year and a half.

He writes of the pleasant country of Kent where they have gardens, rolling hills and all that goes to make a beautiful English countryside. They are stationed only a short distance from London, but have little time to go there.

One thing they can and must do, however, is to take moonlight flights over France. It is thrilling to pick out the beach and fields from high altitudes. One beautiful night nothing happened. They saw nobody and nobody spotted them.

One thing he expresses a keen desire for is a real juicy steak. Here's hoping that Sgt.-Air Gunner Murray Ross, D.F.M., will soon get leave to come home to Canada where he may have a good juicy steak every night if he wants one.

His wife, by the way, is at present secretary to the manager of the Seignior Club at Monte Bello, Que.

Whatever we may do in the way of providing for our continued protection and security in this jitterbug world, we will never be able to equal, much less exceed, the valor and courage of those desperately determined few who were ready to clutch the controls and press the guns in the first awful days of crisis over England.

Cash in Hand—For War Relief

Mr. C. Aubrey Smith, who played the lead in "Old English" at His Majesty's, was the guest of honor at a tea given by Montreal Women's Press Club at the Ritz Garden last week. Mr. Smith, who has been in many Hollywood productions, played the Colonel in "Lives of a Bengal Lancer."

British actors in Hollywood are selling autographs for War Relief Funds. During the tea in Montreal Aubrey Smith put his signature on tea cloths and other articles brought for the purpose. The money goes into his left-hand pocket," he remarked. Printed autograph slips were also sold to those present.

I brought one home and Florence is delighted to have it for her War Scrapbook. I took my guests to the Hill-Clark-Francis Sproule and Howard S. Ross, K.C.

This was one of those delightful summer adventures that come up unexpectedly. I had decided to pass up the tea. But it turned out that Thursday was picked as a day for a conference on surplus milk price with Borden Company.

Two men from Huntingdon County and a couple from Maxville, Ont., along with the president of Montreal Milk Producers' Association, went to the Borden Company office to discuss the situation with the manager, Mr. Clarence Cluff, formerly of Huntingdon.

I had a good time at the Ritz Garden Party and believe that a satisfactory agreement was concluded at the other meeting.

Diplomatically speaking, all the arrangements were perfectly satisfactory . . . for once!

Margot Blaisdell, secretary of the Montreal Women's Press Club, and I were talking to Lorne Franklin, the auctioneer, and Douglas Ness in the Chateau at Huntingdon on Saturday night. Mr. Franklin said he saw Aubrey Smith at the Royal York in Toronto and he sold the bunch, doubling the investment.

Must have been an auction sale. We only paid ten cents for ours.

Will the Shortage of Gas in Canada Head to Horse Revival

Greater Use of Horse Transport Would Not Abate Liability for Damage, But Insurance Protection is Already Provided—"Get A Horse" May Regain Some of Its Force as Sound Advice

"Get a horse!" was once a favorite gibe at pioneer auto drivers in the early days of the motor car. Long since outdated and barren of meaning, it may currently regain some of its force as sound advice to meet the new wartime curb on civilian use of gasoline.

The horse's day may be definitely over as a general means of either private or commercial transport. But use of horses may temporarily be revived, it is believed in some circles, to supplement the reduced use of cars and trucks resulting from curtailed supplies of gasoline.

Should this develop, those who turn to horses for either business or pleasure are going to find they are quite as liable for any negligence or damage done by horses and wagons, as they are now in operating autos. However, they will find the insurance companies have thoughtfully provided liability protection for owners and drivers of horse drawn vehicles.

Causes of Damage

Runaway horses are probably the most common cause of damage from use of horses and wagons. A recent case involved a breed wagon driver who left his horse unattended for a few minutes while he went to make a delivery.

The driver neglected to attach a weight to the horse's bridle when he left standing in the street. The horse became frightened and ran away down a busy city street. At an intersection it collided with a parked automobile which it tried to jump over.

The result was a damaged car and a suit against the breed company, as well as an injured horse and a smashed wagon.

Other Causes

There are other ways in which claims may arise. A horse standing at the side of the road may turn out suddenly into oncoming traffic. Or it may back up, causing damage to somebody or something behind. If it can be shown the owner or driver was at fault, he may be sued for damages.

Then there are horses that kick or bite at passers-by, which may also lead to claims for damages. Riding horses as well as delivery horses may be the cause of such claims.

The status of these claims is similar to that of suits arising out of operation of automobiles. Claims may be made either for damage to person or to property.

Insurance Coverage

To take care of such cases, insurance protection known as the teams liability policy has been developed. This is also sometimes known as horse and wagon insurance.

It gives protection against claims that may arise when injury is caused any person not in the employ of the owner, or when damage is done to the property of another if the owner of the horse can be shown to be legally liable.

Under the teams liability policy giving public liability and property damage protection, a teams liability policy also provides the insurance company will fight any claim that may be taken into the courts. This is of just as much value to the owner when he is innocent as when he has been negligent.

The fact that an owner of a horse was not negligent in any way, does not prevent actions being brought against him. But if he is insured, he turns the whole matter over to the insurance company who fights the case for him. If legal liability is shown on his part the insurance company pays the bill.

Collision Insurance

It is also possible to obtain collision insurance saving the insured from loss if his horse is injured or vehicle damaged.

Under the teams liability policy, standard limits of coverage are the same as in automobile insurance—$5,000 to any one person and $10,000 for any one accident, with $1,000 protection for damage to property. It is understood these can be increased, however, under certain conditions.

Counsel—How far were you from the scene of the accident?

Witness—Two yards, three inches.

Counsel—Did you measure the distance?

Witness—Yes, I guessed some silly ass would ask that question.

Mill Worker Is Victim of Fatal Accident

R. Cruickshanks is Electrocuted at New Liskeard, Ont.—Artificial Respiration Efforts Are Futile

Reginald Cruickshanks, employee of the New Liskeard plant of Hill-Clark-Francis, Ltd., was electrocuted while at work in the boiler room there on Wednesday morning. Artificial respiration efforts, kept up for nearly three hours, failed to revive him.

Cruickshanks, it was stated, usually worked in the yard but on Wednesday morning he had been engaged with William Robertson in cleaning the tubes of a boiler, and the men were at work in the boiler itself when the accident occurred. Robertson received a shock, but was able to assist in efforts to get his companion out of the boiler.

The men had been using a lamp on an extension cord and Cruickshanks apparently came in contact with the wire. Robertson thought he had been overcome with heat and had fainted, and he lifted the man up to the manhole by which they had entered the boiler, holding his body so that the head was outside to get the air. At the same time, help was summoned.

A call was put in at once for the doctor and other men working in the plant got Cruickshanks out of the boiler, a task of some difficulty, since the only egress was through the oval-shaped manhole, which is approximately 14 inches by 11 inches. The man was carried into the outer part of the boiler room and artificial respiration started.

Men from the Northern Ontario Power Company responded to an appeal for help, the respirator of the local fire department was brought into service and first aid men went to work on the body of the victim. Their efforts were kept up until two o'clock when they were abandoned and Cruickshanks pronounced dead.

The accident happened shortly after eleven o'clock, it was stated. The victim, who was a married man with one young daughter, lived in Diamond Township, west of the town. He had been employed formerly as caretaker for T. H. McCamus at the latter's summer camp at the Old Fort (Temiskaming Speaker).

Annual Sale of Ayrshires at R. R. Ness & Sons Averages $192; Demand is Moderate

Howick Branch of Canadian Red Cross Society Enriched by $125 from Calf Donated by Burnside Owners—Donald E. Black, M.P., is Purchaser—Good Attendance from Quebec, Ontario and United States—Well Managed Sale

There were a number of interesting features in connection with the Burnside Sale of August 2—some of them interesting to students of the breed; some of them most gratifying from a breed standpoint; others perhaps not so gratifying and yet hard to explain; some of them complimentary to the owners of Burnside herd, Messrs. R. R. Ness & Sons, Howick, Que., and yet some of them must have been rather inexplicable to them.

However, to sum up the sale—it was perhaps in a few respects a little disappointing, and yet, on the general aggregate, a sale of which Messrs. Ness & Sons might well be proud.

An amateur statistician, who is also somewhat of a student of the herd, compiled a set of figures after the sale, with the remark: "I do not know if these figures prove anything to you, but, while I have dealt with several angles in connection with the sale, I believe that they bear out that fact very well—that breeding counts and that you really cannot estimate the value of the good sire."

Well Managed Sale

Excellent weather prevailed and there was a good attendance from Ontario and Quebec, as also a number from New York, Vermont, Massachusetts, Indiana and New Brunswick.

The sale was managed in their usual efficient manner by Lorne E. Franklin, as auctioneer, and Douglas A. Ness in connection with pedigrees and general sale management. The animals were in excellent fit and were brought into the ring in excellent shape by Mitchell Ness, assisted by Archie Roy.

Red Cross Gift.

The first animal to be paraded was the February 12, 1941, bull calf, Burnside Victory Bond, by Barr Peter Pan, Imp., with Bernice Ness at the halter. This calf, from Burnside Dairy Queen, with two over 11,000 lbs. records to her credit and the dam is by Howie's Top Grade, Imp., and from the Hundred Thousand Pound cow, Burnside Stately Blossom 2nd. This calf was donated to the Howick Branch of the Canadian Red Cross and so that organization's funds were enriched by $125, when the calf was knocked down to Donald E. Black, M.P., by Chateauguay-Huntingdon.

Ten to Indiana.

The first 18 females made an average of $217.50, and several of these tops went to the bids of Dr. C. W. Dahling for Garretts Farms, New Haven, Indiana. In Dr. Dahling's lot was included Sally Molly R100 at $440.00, a real bargain price for a cow with such a record at back of her and for such a prospect for this year's show as she undoubtedly is. Dr. Dahling also paid $300.00 for sale mare, Sophia, born May 3, 1937, by Barr Peter Pan, Imp., and from Howie's Sophia 3rd, well known sister of the celebrated Howie's Top Grade.

Maroon Get Second High.

The second high priced animal of the sale was Burnside Barr Jean by Barr Peter Pan, This heifer went at $410.00 to the bid of Val. Winter, acting on behalf of F. M. Connell, Maroon Farm, Orillia, Ont. Maroon Farm also purchased Burnside Golden Sunshine.

Three Sevens and Star Dust.

H. Little added two to his recently formed Three Sevens herd at Frelleburg, Que., when he purchased Burnside Barr Pearlina, at $260.00, and Burnside Barr Pearlina 3rd, at $230.00, full sisters by Barr Peter Pan. Star Dust Farm

Mrs. Henpeck—You haven't the spirit of a mouse.

Mr. Henpeck—Certainly not, my dear. If I resembled a mouse in any respect whatever, you might be afraid of me.

"Are these chickens freshly killed?" asked the demure young housewife of the butcher.

"Fresh killed, lady?" he replied. "Why, artificial respiration would probably bring 'em round!"

The young husband rushed up to the nurse as she came down from his wife's room.

"Tell me," he asked excitedly, "is it a boy?"

Nurse: "Well, the one in the middle is."

STRENGTH OF WEEKLIES

Simeon Strunsky, one of the leading editorial writers of the New York Times, maintains that a single copy of a weekly newspaper slowly absorbed may succeed in driving home a point more effectively than seven daily newspapers repeating the same point every day for a week. He says, "With us, the small town and country newspaper, which is often a weekly journal, is more influential than the daily press." A weekly newspaper which is read and absorbed in the seclusion and comparative leisure of a small town or country newspaper, which is often a weekly journal, is more influential than the daily press. EYE DEFECTS CAUSE OF MOST REJECTIONS IN THE R.C.A.F.

Of 4,601 Royal Canadian Air Force recruits who were rejected for service in air crews, 2,066 were found unsuitable because of eye defects, a table prepared for a House of Commons sub-committee on war expenditures showed.

Defective color vision caused failure for 20.9 per cent of the men rejected for air crew duties and defective visual acuity for 19.4 per cent. Other eye defects led to the rejection of 4.5 per cent of total failures.

Heart inefficiency brought the rejection of 419, or 9.1 per cent of the total who failed.

FIRE LOSSES SHOW LARGE INCREASE

There has been an increase of 874 fires for the year of 1940 as compared with 1939, according to a survey just issued by the Industrial Accident Prevention Association. Shockingly, the number of children losing their lives by fire was reported as 102 compared with 73 in the previous year. The report says that: "Most of these tragic deaths occurred when parents left their children alone in their homes. This laxity and shirking of responsibility on the part of parents cannot be too strongly condemned."

The statement continues: "Of particular interest, due to their losses sustained in industrial establishments. These losses show a comparatively small increase of 123 in number for Canada and a cost of slightly more than $350,000 for 1940 over the preceding year."

"In view of the present national crisis," the report concludes, "it becomes the duty of each one of us to see that this preventable waste of property and lives is reduced."

OLD PROPELLER BLADES APPEAR IN NEW FORMS

Winnipeg—What happens to old propeller blades? Trans-Canada Air Lines works them up into a variety of aircraft parts and keeps 'em flying. Since war started T.C.A. has manufactured much of its own equipment. The aluminum blades at the end of their service life become oxygen fittings, plumbing blocks, tank flanges, cabin fixtures, a host of minor parts. Prop shanks have even found their way into the instrument shop fabricated into vacuum chambers for testing flight instruments.

THAT IMPORTANT PIECE OF FOCAL FURNITURE
A Room Needs a Centre of Interest Just the Same as a Menu—A Handsome Big Piece of Furniture Will Pull Room Together

Every woman knows the sort of man she'll have if she picks up odds and ends . . . with no main dish, no piece de resistance to build the meal around. A room presents the same problem—it needs a focal point, one big piece of furniture to centre the design.

An Enduring Investment

So important is this piece of furniture that it's even wise sometimes to splurge here and do without some other things. With one really handsome eye-catcher, placed against the main wall, the room can have distinction, no matter how skimpy or make-shift are the other things. Then another good excuse for shooting your wad, or a lot of it, on one fine thing is that this can be an enduring investment to pace your future purchases—a start on a collection of really lovely possessions you hope to have. For there is no permanent economy in a room full of shabby shoddy furniture, while beautiful things are not out of reach of most of us if we plan ahead and acquire them gradually. And there's no better place to begin than with this focal piece.

Favored Styles

Its selection depends on many things—primarily on the room and on your own taste. For a simple informal family room, don't go in for elegance and furbelows. Yet you needn't be mean if you don't care for that design for living. The current popularity of 18th Century English and Federal American furniture is no fable of fashion. This furniture has dignity with simplicity that makes it suitable in many homes. The next most favored style for an American family is colonial maple, which is charming if it's a hearty earthy effect you're wanting. Modern furniture appeals to modern people, because of its clean forthright lines, its direct uncomplicated approach. Think hard before deciding on the style of this main piece of furniture—be sure it reflects the spirit as well as the facts of your family picture.

A Gracious Piece

This focal point may be tall or it may be low and low. The break-front is probably the most favored idea right now among high furniture. And certainly it does present over a room with poise. It is useful besides, combining shelf space with cupboard and desk compartments. It is large but doesn't jut out into the room.

TELEPHOTO TRANSMITS MILITARY MAPS

Maps, key to all military situations, can now be sent over telephone wires from general headquarters to divisional headquarters during active warfare. The results of the latest aerial survey of enemy positions can be made available to the fighting forces within a few minutes after the map-maker has completed his drawing! This miracle is accomplished by telephoto.

Developed as a result of research in Bell Telephone Laboratories, the art of sending pictures, charts, and diagrams by wire has been in general commercial use for several years. Many of the pictures of far-off events seen in your newspaper have reached you so quickly because of telephoto. Now, this amazing development is ready to take its place in the battle line!

The essential element in telephoto is the "electric eye" or photo-electric cell. A picture or map which is to be transmitted is mounted on a roller in the sending apparatus. As the roller revolves at 100 times a minute, a tiny light one-hundredth of an inch square moves over the picture. Dark and light areas in the photograph are translated by a photo-electric eye into electrical impulses flashing over the wires of the telephone system at the rate of 100,000 impulses a minute.

At the receiving station, the impulses are turned back into light, exposing a negative mounted on another roller, turning at the greatest cabinet makers of all time. But if there's not room for a breakfast, a secretary is a good choice, or if you want a more casual mood, then an open shelf cupboard or dresser. A fine shabby is stunning and so is a William and Mary cabinet. New looking are traditional modern pieces with grills instead of glass doors, and marbled, leather and mirror finishes.

Among the low pieces suitable for bearing the chief furnishing responsibility for the room are those units or sections of cupboards and shelves that fit together to make a long low cabinet. The advantages of this type of furniture is the fact that it can be shifted into different combinations if you move or wish to rearrange it. Another asset of this type of focal furniture is the fact that it provides a centre of interest for the room yet leaves the wall space above free for a picture or a hanging. Then too, it creates an effect that's a little more unusual.

ADDRESS SOLDIERS' MAIL IN INK

Postmaster General William P. Mulock has always shown a keen personal interest in providing a safe and expeditious service for mail to our overseas troops. One frequent cause of delay—a direct fault of the sender—is illegible addresses on mail matter.

It has frequently been found that pencil written addresses become smudged and unreadable during the course of transmission, with the result that it is very difficult for the Canadian Postal Corps to effect delivery.

When INK is used there is less danger of the address fading or being obliterated, and persons sending letters and parcels to soldiers overseas can help ensure their safe and speedy delivery by always having care taken to see that the address is written in a clear and legible manner in INK.

All mail should be fully prepaid and a return address given in the upper left-hand corner. Letters, parcels and newspapers for our troops OVERSEAS should be addressed in INK as follows:

Regimental Number, Rank and Name.
Name and Details of Unit (i.e., Company, Section, Squadron, Battery, Holding Unit, etc.).
Name of Regiment or Branch of Service.

Canadian Army Overseas.
If the soldier is still in Canada, mail should be addressed to him giving:

Regimental Number, Rank and Name.
Name of Regiment or Branch of Service.
Name of the Place in Canada where the Unit is stationed.

FEED GRAIN INCREASE

Feed grain acreages for 1941 are materially higher for the Dominion as a whole, although reductions are reported in Ontario, states the Current Review on Agricultural Conditions in Canada. The general increase should provide sufficient feed for the expansion in the numbers of livestock, provided the weather conditions are satisfactory.

Shelf Cabinet Has Charm . . .

An open shelf cabinet like this one has charm and usefulness and fits particularly gracefully into a room with not too much open wall space.

Motorists Drive Cars Into Sides of Moving Trains

Accidents at railway grade crossings in Canada continue to take a shocking toll of human lives. There were no fewer than 346 of these happenings during 1940, in which 133 persons were killed and 485 were injured, all of them occupants of motor vehicles. In a laudable effort to reduce the frequency of these tragic, and usually avoidable occurrences, the Canadian Pacific Railway has prepared a series of photographs and diagrams, based on actual incidents, which are painfully vivid in the emphasis they place on a moment of carelessness at the wheel and the terrible price that is often paid for such a lapse.

An analysis of these accidents also makes for a lamentable record of human failure, and should induce every motorist to study it and profit from the costly errors of judgment made by others. Sixty-eight of these accidents, which took the lives of 43 persons, occurred at crossings where safety devices were in operation to warn drivers of oncoming trains. More than half of the total of 346 accidents took place in full daylight when visibility and driving conditions were both good. One hundred and one of the accidents were caused, so railway investigators report, "not by a train striking an automobile, but, incredibly as it may seem, by motorists running into the side of the train." That is a humbling indictment, and it does, indeed, seem incredible.

What is the cause? The Canadian Pacific Railway declares that carelessness on the part of the motorist is largely responsible for this appalling loss of life. Some drivers of motor vehicles so completely succumb to a wild urge for speed, and to the deadly habit of "taking a chance" that they plunge ahead without thought for the welfare of themselves or those with them. Too often, in this race with death, they are the losers and the victims of their own folly. It is a frightful scroll they write, but its grim page could doubtless be shortened if every person at the wheel of a motor vehicle would only exercise a little intelligence and common sense.

HOW TO BE A PATRIOTIC DRIVER . . .

Watch Your Gasoline Gauge, Mr. Motorist!

By ROBERT W. JONES

Do you know how to start your automobile? Do you try to beat the other fellow when the traffic light turns green and race away at twenty-five miles per hour in second gear? Do you "open her up" on the highway and weave in and out of traffic? Do you leave your motor idling or flounce waiting for your wife or fiancée to finish her shopping? Do you neglect to check the engine performance of your car regularly?

If you do any or all these things, you're hindering Canada's war effort—you're just as unpatriotic as the man who fails to "do his bit" in other ways! Why? Because you're wasting gasoline and thereby making it necessary to utilize more tankers and to find more vital resources of American dollars for the importation of additional quantities of petroleum products. Furthermore, you are wasting your own money and bringing the day ever nearer when gasoline will be rationed, and the drivers of the Dominion's other 1,500,000 motor vehicles will be rationed.

By observing simple rules, it should be easy to get at least one more mile per gallon, according to W. H. Herbert, Vehicles Superintendent for the Eastern Area of the Bell Telephone Company of Canada, who has charge of nearly half of the nine hundred and fifty motor cars and trucks in the Bell Telephone fleet. "What does that mean in gallons and dollars?" we asked Mr. Herbert.

"Last year," he replied, "Bell Telephone motor vehicles traveled 7,262,798 miles. To us, a saving of one mile per gallon means about thirty-five thousand gallons or $10,000."

"Of course, if every Canadian truck and motor car driver made a real effort to save gasoline, the results would be astounding. According to the latest Dominion Bureau of Statistics figures, over 663,000,000 gallons of gasoline were consumed by motor vehicles in Canada in 1939. Let us suppose that, by careful driving, the average motorist can get twenty instead of nineteen miles per gallon. That's a saving of about 33,000,000 gallons on the annual estimated consumption of 663,000,000 gallons."

On the average, it costs 5.3 cents per mile to operate a motor vehicle. This figure represents actual running costs and does not include the more or less fixed charges such as depreciation, capital investment, etc. Of this amount, 1.9 cents—or nearly thirty-six per cent—is spent for gasoline. As by far the largest part of the "motoring" dollar is used to purchase gasoline, the company has always endeavored to obtain maximum efficiency from the engine of every vehicle in the Bell Telephone fleet.

In peacetime, it is good business—a matter of dollars and sense—to watch gasoline bills, and this applies to motorists who drive largely for pleasure as well as to business men and operators of large fleets of motor vehicles.

In wartime, when petroleum products are so urgently needed by the armed forces and war industries, it is even more important to save gasoline.

Here are some of the tried and tested ways to reduce gasoline consumption:

(1) Drive at moderate speeds. Some motor vehicles are equipped with governors. These limit the speed of heavy-duty trucks to forty miles per hour, half-ton trucks to forty-five miles per hour, and passenger models to fifty miles per hour. They prevent speeding and the unnecessary racing of motors in first and second gears.

(2) Inspect the motor regularly. Inspection of the trucks varies according to the type of work in which the various units are engaged. It ranges from 5,000 to 10,000 miles. This periodic mechanical inspection includes the checking and conditioning of the engine. Every 5,000 miles, spark plugs are cleaned or, if necessary, replaced, timing is adjusted, the carburetor undergoes the vacuum gauge test, etc. Every 10,000 miles, the exhaust fumes are analyzed to ascertain whether the mixture is rich, lean or normal.

(3) Driving tips. Experienced chauffeurs know that there are many ways to reduce gasoline consumption. Some drivers of vehicles are trained to save gasoline and thus cut down operating costs. For instance, they are taught how to start the engine. They are told to change from first to second gear before attaining a speed of ten miles per hour, to change from second to high before reaching fifteen miles per hour. They learn that the most economical way to travel is at a steady rate of speed, without weaving in and out of traffic which involves continual speeding up and slowing down. They know that wind resistance, and a sharp increase in fuel consumption, begin at fifty miles per hour (this is one of the reasons why there are governors on some motor vehicles). They never idle the motor when parked.

These practices have saved thousands of dollars, and tens of thousands of gallons of gasoline, during the last few years. On a gallon-for-gallon basis, they will do as much for the average motorist. Try them, and see for yourself!

Of course, if this remedy does not reduce your gasoline bills and gallonage sufficiently, you can drive your car less frequently, walk to work and, probably, improve your health—to say nothing of your pocketbook! (Blue Bell).

"May I ask what is your profession?" asked one of the older residents in the boarding house. "Scout?" said the newcomer. "Good!" exclaimed the senior. "You are just the man we want. Would you mind carving this joint of beef?"

Majority of Drownings Preventable

Loss of Life Causes Increasing Concern to Health Officials

Drowning accidents during the course of the summer will take nearly 300 lives in Ontario, Department of Health mortality figures for the past five years indicate.

The records, which show a fairly constant rate of drownings, indicate also that the majority of deaths may be prevented by ordinary care, not the fairly obvious expedient by not going near the water, but by the exercise of common sense in and on the water.

It is a loss of life that has caused increasing concern on the part of the provincial officials if, for no other reason, it entails an indirect dollars and cents loss in the Public Health program. As in the case of all deaths by accident, there is no profit in taking a lead in reducing the infant mortality rate, or of driving diphtheria into the ground, if the child thus saved, in later life dies in a lake or river.

A Dreary Record

The drowning statistics show a dreary record of non-swimmers wading beyond their depth—the man or woman who has changed places in a canoe. But they also give an equally disheartening report of the swimmers who have attempted distances beyond their strength.

Too many vacationists, forgetful of the fact that they have not been in the water for 10 months, will strike out in swims which require the strength that is acquired only by conditioning. In example, during the past two days, two men died in the Welland Canal, unable to make the 200 yards to the farther bank.

It is stressed also by department authorities that when an unconscious person is brought from the water, resuscitation should be started at once and maintained for a long period.

The victim should not, under any circumstances, be bundled off to the nearest doctor's office or to a hospital. The victim should be kept warm, and the chest should be pumped, and the head should be kept above water. The victim should be kept in all first aid courses.

CANADIAN OFFICERS SEEK INFORMATION ON NEW EQUIPMENT

From 300 to 400 officers and men who will be part of the 5th Canadian (Armoured) Division will go to the United States to obtain advance information on certain components of armored fighting vehicles which will come to Canada from the United States, Defense Minister J. L. Ralston said recently.

Officers have come to Canada from the United Kingdom to assist in instruction in armored fighting vehicles and officers and other ranks were being sent to the United Kingdom to obtain further knowledge of armored units' operations there.

"V" FOR VICTORY

By a master stroke, the British have turned the chief weapon of the Axis against them, and the next few months may well be the turning-point in the war.

By every device of propaganda, the British are strengthening the morale of conquered peoples with the slogan "V for Victory," symbolizing the "V" for every possible form—three dots and a dash, music, signs and signals.

The very inception of such a campaign at this time is an indication that Britain is stronger and more confident than she has ever been. It tells the powerful story of British preparedness to strike when the time is ripe, calling as it does on subdued peoples to prepare for that time. It is not a campaign which could be engaged in indefinitely, and when the time comes, Britain will strike.

BUSY SCHEDULE FOR MEMBERS OF NEW WOMEN'S CORPS

When the Canadian Women's Army Corps is formed—1,500 are to be enlisted soon—each member may expect to have a busy schedule of duties to perform, Defence Department officials said recently. And should the time come when these women go overseas their days will be more eventful still.

Present plans for the Women's Army call for them taking over the lighter duties of the forces and relieving men qualified to take on more combatant work. The girls will drive light transports, ambulances and staff cars and do stenographic work and such things as operating telephone switchboards—all concerned with maintenance and administrative duties.

Already many inquiries have been received as to what duties of the new corps will be and details on qualifications necessary will be issued soon.

Meantime in Britain, where women have had an active part in war operations, so many women have expressed a desire to know about the work of the British Women's Voluntary Service that the service has published an article describing "an actual day in the life of one of the county organizers."

On July 14, 1935, Messrs. Horace Brown and Fred Bisset left Huntingdon for the United States. Mr. Bisset gained employment in St. Albans, Vt., while Mr. Brown went on to Springfield. Mr. Brown still makes his home in Springfield and at the present time is renewing old acquaintances in Huntingdon. He wrote Mr. Bisset in Norfolk, Virginia, that he was going to be here, so this week we find the two men having a real good time in the home-town of their youth visiting about. Mr. Bisset leaves for his home today but before leaving Montreal he will visit with Miss Ruth Miller. Miss Miller has completed her nursing course in Montreal and is to return to Huntingdon this week.

Hold Successful Cattle Sale

A very successful sale of cattle was held at the farm of Evans Bros. on Saturday afternoon, when purchasers from every section of the Chateauguay Valley took part in the bidding. The average sale of cattle amounted to about $85. The highest figure reached during the afternoon was $140, which was paid for a grade cow. The sale was held due to the fact that the farm was overstocked.

WEEK AT OTTAWA

was predicted that the surplus would be about 575 million bushels, but as the year progressed exports to the United Kingdom were substantial and well maintained. Up to July 25 these exports were 20 million bushels over the amount shipped in the same period of the previous year. Another point of interest in regard to the wheat situation is that the 15 cents a bushel processing tax on wheat milled for domestic consumption is abolished. This is done to avoid a threatened increase in the price of bread. Costs of shortening, sugar and wages had risen and it was said that bakers would have to raise bread prices unless the processing tax was dropped. Some farming organizations had asked that the processing tax be increased to 50 cents a bushel. The 15 cent tax had brought in a return of about 5 million dollars which had aided in the Government's wheat financing plans. The condition of western crops caused by heat and inadequate rainfall is of course a matter of paramount interest to Ottawa at this time. In connection with the harvest it is pointed out that the earlier estimate of a reduction in wheat acreage of about 23 per cent is believed to be about accurate.

No Gasoline Ration Predicted

Observers in the capital find difficulty in understanding why there has been such a fuss over the gasoline restriction regulations. It isn't that there has been much opposition to it, but what they cannot fathom is why the cut in consumption has not been more prompt and complete. Britain took gas restrictions in its stride. The oil controller, G. R. Cotterell, however, says that the reduction in the first ten days across Canada has been about 15 per cent, and in the larger centres 30 per cent, and with the spirit of co-operation being shown he predicts rationing won't be necessary.

The appointment of Walter P. Zeller, a business man of standing, as an executive assistant to Minister of War Services J. T. Thorson, has met with general approval. He will be in administrative charge of the tourist policy of the Dominion. The Canadian Travel Bureau has been and will continue to be in the capable hands of Leo Dolan, but with Mr. Zeller in charge of administration, Mr. Dolan will have more time to carry out his extremely important work of propaganda and advertisement. The tourist traffic is of such importance to this country, and its development is such an immense task that there is plenty of scope for both officials.

Minister Thorson has also announced that all war charity organizations will combine in a single annual drive for funds. This will be in the spring, while community chests and other civilian welfare organizations will appeal for funds in the autumn. The rest of the year will be left open to the Government to launch its loan drives. The Canadian Red Cross Society, whose humanitarian activities in wartime are in the words of the minister, "above praise," has joined with the other war auxiliary bodies in the spring drive. The Red Cross has been sending 10,000 boxes weekly to British prisoners of war in Europe. It is now raising its weekly shipments to 35,000.

POTATO ACREAGE DOWN

Estimates in potato acreage in 1941 show reductions in Eastern Canada, following the low prices received for the 1940 crop. Acreage in the Prairie Provinces has been increased slightly.

According to the Dominion Fire Commissioner, the careless smoker is still the greatest fire hazard. In 1940 smokers started 12,284 fires through such bad habits as throwing away lighted cigarettes, dropping glowing pipe ashes and smoking in bed.

Thinking Back ...and... Looking Ahead

The United States, British Empire and the Dutch East Indies Have Established What Amounts to an Economic Blockade to Japan—Possibility That Germans Will be Outnumbered 2 to 1 by September in Russo-German Battle—Invasion More Likely in 1942 if at All

By DONALD C. MACDONALD

The more one stops to think about it, the more breath-taking is the realization that little more than 12 months ago Germany stood so triumphant in Europe that the whole world quaked with fear. France had crumbled before her might, now established just across the English Channel, 20 miles from Britain's shores. Free men and women the world over wondered if that last bastion of freedom in the Old World would fall too. Hitler seemed bent at a lightning pace for the world domination of which he dreamed.

Within the short space of one year the picture has become so completely altered as to be unrecognizable. Germany has won her Europe, and now holds it in a precarious grip, but meanwhile she has united the whole world against her. While the R.A.F. pounds relentlessly from the west, the amazing Russian army holds the "invincible" German forces deadlocked on the eastern front. And meanwhile the whole continent seethes with unrest as the bitterly anti-Nazi peoples whom Hitler has enslaved impatiently await the hour when they too may strike.

Japan's Economic Suicide
Symbolic of the new spirit which is fully as aggressive and militant, though inherently peace-loving and peace-seeking, as ever that displayed by the dictators, is the situation in the Far East. For four years the Japanese have tried vainly to conquer China. Taking advantage of the collapse of France, they tried to save their face in China by moving southward into Indo-China. The men of Vichy, who were willing to fight the British and their own countrymen, the Free French, in Syria, but unwilling to fight the Japanese in the Far East, have offered their collaboration. After a month's indecision back home, Japan acted. But the results have been not only immediate, but disastrous. The United States, followed by both the British Empire and the Dutch East Indies, have established what amounts to an economic blockade of Japan. It came in a matter of hours. Japan has committed economic suicide, not bringing on immediately effective death, but a slow one as her industries starve for raw materials, and her war machine runs out of oil. Her leaders have brought her to an untenable position, and yet one from which she cannot withdraw. But this much is fairly certain, despite the blustering defiance emanating from Tokyo: barring the unpredictable acts of completely desperate men, Japan will now be tight before proceeding further, until she has been assured (as Hitler has promised) that the Nazis will win the war in Europe by the end of this year. That is a hope which, for those who have eyes to see, has dwindled out of existence long ago.

For let us analyze the situation back in Europe. As I write, more than six weeks have passed since the German army drove across the Russian border. For more than three weeks the Nazi war machine, with all of its blitz gone, has been stalled on the Russian front. According to an unnamed but reliable military expert in Europe, there is every possibility that by September 1 the Germans will be outnumbered 2 to 1 on the Russian front.

Russo-German Front
In the first onslaught Germany threw against Russia 120 divisions of men, along with 12 panzer divisions. It is estimated that she has lost 600,000 men, six complete panzer divisions, while a further number were exhausted. Meanwhile Russian losses have been greater—an estimated 880,000 men, and nine of her 18-20 mechanized divisions. But enough time has been gained, it is claimed, for complete mobilization of her European army—some 300 divisions, or 5,700,000 men. Further, the Soviet has another 20 mechanized divisions in reserve, which they have been able to bring into action or at least ready for it. Thus they have routed 15 German divisions to pit against Germany's 15, along with more than double the manpower.

Last week I outlined what observers believe to be the Nazi plans for the future, once the Russian adventure is completed—an achievement which was scheduled for now, the seventh week of the war. It includes extensive operations throughout the western Mediterranean (with Vichy collaboration), in north and west Africa, perhaps even across the "Strait of Deser" in South America—all combined, of course, with action by the Axis partner in the Far East. Reports of pressure to oust Darlan, who apparently cannot satisfy Nazi demands either suggest that this action may develop notwithstanding the set-back in Russia, or perhaps, because of it—to cover up on their Russian failure and turn the attention of the German people to something more successful. But what of the Allied plans? Have we no master-plan, as a counterpoint to these fantastic Nazi schemes, aiming at as rapid a completion of the war as is possible.

Allied Master Plan
We may rest assured that with the alert and imaginative Churchill at the helm, we have a plan. But obviously it is not known; there are some things to indicate it, but little that is conclusive, and much that is conjecture. But in outline, this it seems to be, or at least it is claimed to be by some observers.

It has its setting in eastern Europe, for there our Russian ally is the only land power in actual contact with Germany. It is claimed that once the battle-front has been definitely stabilized in the north, central, and as far south as Kiev—that is where the German attack is strongest—then the Russians will start a gigantic offensive in the south with these reserves of men and mechanized forces. In this southern portion, bordering on the Black Sea, facing troops that are mostly Rumanian, neither too well trained nor overly enthusiastic about the war, Russians will be able to sweep into Bulgaria, perhaps even Greece and southern Yugoslavia, most of which is occupied by Italian forces. They will have encircled the German armies in the north, and forced their retreat and perhaps disorganization.

Meanwhile, Britain will have stepped up her air offensive in the west, taking in wider German territory as the longer nights permit longer flights. It is added that invasion of the continent will be attempted, because even if it does not succeed, the season will be too late for Germany (whose reserves will be depleted) to attack Britain. Throughout the winter Britain's army, now supplied with the ever increasing production of both the United States and the Empire, could be built up again. It is argued that with German communication lines so completely crippled in the west, coastal traffic has had to be resorted to (which explains why the R.A.F. was able to find 150,000 tons of shipping in Rotterdam and sink it at one crack), so that it may not be impossible to effect a landing which would coincide with the Russian offensive in the east.

Too Good To Be True
As further evidence it is pointed out that Britain kept this "V for Victory" campaign on ice for months, to use it at the appropriate hour, now approaching. And the suggestion has been made by Henry Peterson, in a further article in "Saturday Night," reiterating his claim of victory by Christmas, that a declaration of war by the United States will be timed with this gigantic offensive as a final blow to German morale and a signal to Europe's downtrodden peoples to act. That all this will happen according to the armchair strategists' schedule would, of course, be too good to be true. Stranger things have happened already in this war, but it would be foolhardy, to say the least, that we should act on the assumption that what we now are doing assures victory. Plain logic, apart from pleasant prophecy, dictates that we double and redouble our efforts, and be thankful for these miracles, when and if they happen.

Hanson Baldwin, New York Times military observer, for example, declares that British invasion of the continent this year is absolutely out of the question, and points to the heavy losses in planes sustained in the British attack on northern Norway and Finnish ports last week.

The value of the above schedule, alleged to be that which the Allies will follow, lies, first, in its psychological uplift. For the first 18 months of this war we took the battering wherever it came, and made the best of it. Now we are choosing our time and place, and handing out the battering ourselves. Secondly, although it is most improbable that this plan, with its exact co-ordination of Russian, British and American effort, will be realized this year, it is quite possible that it will eventually be realized, and perhaps along the general lines suggested. But the time will more likely be next year, rather than 1941.

Royals Surprise Fans by Defeating Montreal Aggregation in First Encounter 17-12—Second Game Was Poor Exhibition

Although it is definitely true that the Huntingdon Royals are not in the class of the Montreal girls' softball squads, they nevertheless keep punching against these teams in exhibition games. On Saturday afternoon at the Log Lodge diamond the Mansfield girls' team, members of the Montreal Senior Girls' Softball League, played a double-header against the Huntingdon girls. To the astonishment of the visiting team, and to the many loyal supporters of the Huntingdon clan, the Royals captured the first game by 17-12. The first game was as interesting as the second contest was one-sided. The Montrealers, remembering apparently the trouncing of the first game, smashed the Huntingdon machine to bits and piled up a 29-3 score in seven innings of play.

Some sensational plays featured the first game. Betty Rock, aided by Eileen McCallum, and Marion Stark, were greatly responsible for stopping the Montrealers when they had two runners on bases. Eileen McCallum started two successful double-plays in the first encounter, while Betty Rock made a sensational one-handed catch with three runners on bases and two out in the fifth frame. Marion Stark, who patrols centre field for Huntingdon, snared everything that came her way during these games.

Huntingdon Wins, 17-12

Jessie Watchorn officiated on the mound for Huntingdon in the first contest and her remarkable control, along with the steadiness of the team, were great factors in awarding this game to the local girls. With the score 7-2 in favor of Montreal at the end of the third inning, possibilities of a victory seemed very doubtful for the Royals. However, they started a scoring jamboree in the fourth inning which put both teams on an equal footing. Another batting rampage by the Huntingdon girls netted them seven runs in their last attempt at bat at the end of the first game. The final score was 17-12 in favor of Huntingdon.

Although the first game supplied the fans with some nice plays, the second encounter was a decidedly poor exhibition. The Montrealers led throughout and the many desperate attempts made by the local squad to halt them in their batting sprees were futile. They had Huntingdon on the run and had them running until the last half of the seventh inning.

After the game the Royals entertained the Montrealers at the Log Lodge.

C. McCallum's HOMER WINS FOR ROYALS OVER BROOKLET NINE

In an exhibition game played at Brooklet on Thursday evening the Huntingdon Royals defeated the home team by a score of 7 to 4. A homer by diminutive Clair McCallum in the fifth inning with two runners on bases, won the game for the visiting aggregation.

This was one of the first games of the season played by the Brooklet team, and only Clair McCallum's deep line drive spoiled their chance of gaining a well-deserved victory. The Brooklet nine started the scoring for the evening with one run in their first half at bat. The Huntingdonians were not tardy in getting a few hits in the second to even the count. The score at the end of the second inning was tied but Huntingdon took a slim lead later on during the game and made sure of a victory by counting three runs in the fifth frame.

Claire McCallum went the route on the mound for Huntingdon, and I. Elliot's superb control for Brooklet was a great factor in holding the visitors down to such a low score. L. Arthur was the heaviest hitter on the Brooklet team as she secured four hits in four attempts.

The line-up of the teams was as follows:

BROOKLET—L. Arthur, I. Elliot, M. McIntyre, M. Elliot, N. Foers, E.

Sweet, Stewart, F. Gesty, B. Arthur, E. MacFarlane.
HUNTINGDON—M. Stark, E. McCallum, C. McCallum, B. Rock, M. McCartney, R. McCartney, Y. Anderson, A. Henderson, H. Rugar, K. Cahill, F. Leahy, E. Marshall.

W.I. NEWS

The Huntingdon Women's Institute met at the home of Mrs. J. J. Alexander on Tuesday. The roll call was responded to by giving a beauty spot in Quebec. The secretary, Mrs. Houghton, read a letter from Mrs. Blair. A letter of thanks was received from Mrs. R. Sellar. She also enclosed a sum of money for the over-seas parcels. Mrs. Houghton read a letter from Mrs. Archie Marshall, Glenelg, asking for help in supporting her family of small children and sick husband. The Elgin Council will be asked to investigate.

The donations to the Queen's Fund had been forwarded by the secretary, who had received a picture of Queen Elizabeth.

The W.I. exhibit at Huntingdon Fair will be shown this year as usual; the same committee as last year will act, with the addition of Mrs. Middlemiss. A prize will also be given for children's work.

The speaker of the afternoon was Mrs. Smallman of Dundee, who gave a short address on "Women and the Times." She told of the different ways that women can help in these times.

Some of these were: attending to nutrition in the home, labor-saving methods, religious instruction for children, interest in education, study classes and farm forums in the community, and proper use of the franchise.

Mrs. Hamill gave an interesting paper on "Nylon," the new Canadian product. Mrs. Bruce also gave some information about this produce.

Mrs. J. Chambers gave the practical idea, which was to simplify bed-making by making both hems on sheets the same width. She also told of a way to relieve the severe pain of a burn.

Refreshments were served and a social time spent. The collection amounted to $4.05, half of which is to be used for War Savings Stamps. A food sale held afterwards realized a tidy sum.
