New Calumet Mines Officially Opened on Saturday

Attended by a large number of guests, including Federal and Provincial Government officials and mining engineers from Ontario and Quebec, the new Calumet Mines on Calumet Island, were officially opened by M. A. Thompson, of Montreal, president, on Saturday.

Pressure of a button released the first truckload of lead and zinc concentrate which crashed through a paper wall erected in a large warehouse.

With an investment of more than a million dollars, the mines, are expected to supply a considerable part of Canada's metal needs. Already extensive drilling has been done on the 200, 300 and 400-ft levels and the main shaft has been sunk to 700 feet by the 300 employees.

Donning miners' suits, complete with plastic hats and portable headlights, the guests made an hour-long inspection trip of the tunnels deep in the earth. The largemouth and processing machinery was also examined.

After the opening ceremony, the mine manager, J. M. Cunningham-Dunlop, presented mounted ingots of lead and zinc from the mine to the president and other officials of the company, who included W. B. Maxwell, of Toronto, and H. C. Hackett and H. Andrew Davis, of Montreal.

Objective $440,000.00

On Monday an army of workers, resolved to uphold the enviable record of the County of Pontiac, embarked on the 5th Victory Loan. It is the second loan this year, and it means that in loaned money and taxation Canadians are paying $480 per capita for the war, and the regular costs of Government which have been reduced to a minimum. A feature of the loan is that the bonds are not sold to the Banks, and have been, until now distributed approximately half to individuals and half to Corporations.

The aim is to have as wide a distribution as possible, bonds are as low as $50 and can be purchased on the installment plan. The loan is being regarded as a kind of test of public conscience and resolution. It is known that wages and bank accounts have never been higher, on the other hand few consumer goods are available.

The slogan of the 5th Victory Loan is "Speed The Victory", it is anticipated that the response will be an over-subscription and so express to our valiant fighting forces the confidence we have in them.

The County objective is subdivided as in previous loans into five districts, as follows:

Shawville—Chairman, Morley Hodgins, objective, $150,000.00
Campbell's Bay—Chairman, Asa Smith, objective, $100,000.00
Fort Coulonge—Chairman, Jas. Ward, objective, $75,000.00
Chapman—Chairman, I. P. Cahill, objective, $65,000.00
Quyon—Chairmen, W. McKee, G. O'Reilly, objective, $50,000.

The County Chairman, Mr. E. C. Lawn, in congratulating the workers on their past performances, and calling on them to do their utmost, stated that the task of selling Victory Bonds is one of prime importance, and to bring the war to a victorious conclusion we must have and maintain overwhelming superiority in men and equipment and our war effort on the home front must be commensurate with that of our fighting forces.

The Unit Organizer is Mr. J. A. Roberts, and the Secretary is Mr. G. G. McDowell; Rev. Mr. Fokes and Mr. W. G. Cowan are Publicity chairmen, and Mr. Harland Rowat is County sales supervisor.

OTTAWA REPORTS

That The Ceiling Prices On
Apples Will Stabilize Prices
During the Marketing Season

The ceiling prices placed on apples formed one of the main orders established by the Wartime Prices and Trade Board during the past week. According to the Board, the order made very little change in the prices that were prevailing in the industry at the time the order was announced. The main effect of the order will be to stabilize prices for the period during the marketing season when prices generally rise.

In the light of a short crop this year and of increases in the costs of production, the Prices Board feels that the prices set by the order will give growers in the three main producing zones in Canada a satisfactory return.

Provision was made to allow dealers to dispose of stocks already on hand and they were given until October 9 to do this, regardless of the fact that the order went into effect September 22.

Growers and shippers who sell apples direct to consumers through the public markets or from door to door will be entitled to the same price that retailers receive in their own districts. That is they receive their basic growers' price, plus both the wholesale and retail mark-ups. Sales to retailers are to be made at the wholesale ceiling price.

Included in the first group for the purposes of the order are the Gravensteins of Nova Scotia, all the members of the McIntosh family, the Fameuse and the Snow, the Northern Spy, the Golden Russet, the Delicious, the Newton and the Winesaps. The second group includes all the other varieties.

In the zoning, Ontario and Quebec have been placed together under the order. A uniform ceiling price has been set for this zone which is to be the grower's or shipper's ceiling price at all distributing points in Ontario on the south of the main line of the C. P. R. as far west as Sudbury. This is also the basic ceiling price at Montreal.

The Maritime Provinces form zone two, and Kentville, Nova Scotia, headquarters of the Nova Scotia apple marketing board and centre of the Annapolis valley apple industry, is the basic price point.

Zone three is British Columbia where the prices are set on the basis of the standard box wrapped and on a f.o.b. Kelowna basis.

In all three zones, the wholesale and retail ceilings are set on the basis of the basic ceiling price at shipping point, plus transportation costs wherever necessary, and plus mark-ups of 12½ per cent of the selling price for wholesalers and 20 per cent of the selling price for retailers on unbroken packs and 25 per cent where retailers have to break packs into broken lots of apples for sale.

Shippers and dealers may add storage and shrinkage allowances after December 1st at the rate of 30 cents a barrel per month, or 25 cents a hamper or crate.

"Flying Flea"

Details on the performance of Britain's secret "Flying Flea" were made public by the Air Ministry last week for the first time, although the plane has been in action on all fronts since the war began for artillery spotting and observation work.

The tiny plane, a low-wing monoplane, has a maximum speed of 125 miles an hour and can take off from roads, fields or wherever there is a 50-yard runway.

The "Flying Flea" is unarmed and depends entirely on manoeuvrability to escape enemy fighters.

THE WAR - WEEK — Commentary on Current Events

In Allied Air Superiority Lies The Promise of Ultimate Victory

After magnificent victories which drove the invader back for hundreds of miles but failed to crush him, the Russian summer offensive appears to be slowly grinding to a halt because of autumn rains and stiffening German resistance. The Red Army continues to advance into White Russia and the Germans are evacuating their last positions in the Caucasus; but Moscow also reports that the major part of the front along the Dnieper River is being "stabilized." This would mean that the Germans have escaped a threatened catastrophe and that hopes for a further Russian advance in force might have to be postponed until the Red Army is able to launch another winter offensive, says the New York Times.

Air Front Carries On

But one front carries on irrespective of rain or mud or the season. That is the air front, which the Allied advance in Italy is steadily expanding in range and effectiveness. Despite low clouds and fogs which made September a bad bombing month, the British Royal Air Force was over Nazi-dominated territory every day and twenty-five nights last month. Though the total bomb load it was able to drop decreased by nearly one-third as compared with the previous month, the United States Eighth Air Force was able to exceed all previous records. Berlin, Munich, Hannover, Kassel, Frankfurt and many other towns have felt its blows. And during the last four days and nights the air attack has been pressed home with even greater vigor.

3,000,000 Nazis Tied Down

But so new and so debated is this front that the world in general, and the Russians in particular, keeping their eyes glued to the struggle on the ground, are prone to overlook both its size and the effect it already has produced. According to the best estimates, the air front alone has tied down some 3,000,000 of Germany's badly strained manpower—1,000,000 for anti-aircraft guns and 2,000,000 for related tasks. Numerically, and disregarding quality, this figure begins to approach the total of German soldiers engaged on the whole Russian front. And the manpower and productive energy required to maintain this front on the Allied side is of similar proportions.

Bombs Plus German Winter

The air front has knocked out the industrial capacity of some of Germany's leading cities. According to the most conservative estimates it has reduced Germany's war production capacity by at least 15 per cent and is continuing to reduce it instead of permitting the enemy to recuperate. The effect of this will become more noticeable when German supply reserves begin to run out. It has forced Germany to shift from bomber to fighter production and to concentrate the larger part of her fighter strength in the west. Above all, it is the one front which is bringing the war home to Germany herself, with telling effect on German morale. And this effect should increase when the blast of the bombs is added the severe cold of a German winter.

Loss of War Averted

How much all this has helped to relieve pressure on the Russians cannot be calculated in figures. But there can be no doubt that the share of the air front in Russia as well as other Allied victories on land has been substantial and sometimes even decisive. For a land front without sufficient air coverage is as vulnerable today as a similar naval front on the sea. The air front alone will not win the war, but it has already averted the loss of the war. And in the Allied air superiority, which is growing despite all German counter-measures, lies the promise of ultimate Allied victory.

Corsica Is Ours

It will not be long before Hitler feels the loss of Corsica. The island commands the European coast of the western Mediterranean as Crete, commands the eastern coast.

Crete, however lies at the tip of the Balkan peninsula. Corsica rises near the top of the Italian boot like a salient thrust at the German "blood line." Hitler is building on the River Po. Bastia, where the French are still mopping up, is only fifty miles from Italy and 110 miles from the French coast. It is within 240 miles of Marseilles and less than that from Rome. Bombers from this anchored carrier could sweep all southern Germany. Unfortunately, Corsica is a tangle of mountains. The airfields there are few and small. But they probably can and will be developed.

Perhaps what happened to Corsica gives us a preview of what will happen in France. When the Germans started to withdraw they found themselves struggling through an angry population already armed. Many were ambushed and annihilated before the French "Goums" and American Rangers arrived from Africa. There is a trail of German blood along the whole length of the island. Getting out of Bastia was like escape through a burning doorway.

Allied Prisoners Reported Free

The Morocco Radio said 20,000 American and British prisoners had been liberated by the Italians and have joined Italian patriots despite Field Marshal Erwin Rommel's offer of 1,800 lire reward for each prisoner handed over to the Germans.

SCOUTING...

Overheard at the wedding of a former Boy Scout and a "Wren". A fellow Scout wishing the bridegroom "All the best"—with the hope that he wouldn't be "wren-pecked!"

In a letter received at Dominion Headquarters of the Boy Scouts Association at Ottawa, Lady Baden-Powell, widow of the founder of the Scout Movement, and Chief Girl Guide of the world, expressed the hope to make a tour of Canada after the war.

When hooligans made trouble in a section of Trinidad, British West Indies, and police reserves were not large enough to handle the situation, 76 older Scouts, Rover Scouts and Scoutmasters were enrolled as special constables. The trouble has been cleaned up and the Scouts complimented by the Commissioner of Police for their splendid service to the community.

A British Boy Scout, now serving as an officer with a Gurkha Regiment fighting the Japs who has just been awarded the Military Cross, writing to his mother said: "My Boy Scout Training has proved invaluable out here. It is knowing how to take care of yourself in the jungle that means the difference between life and death when you are fighting in this country."

ASH CANS FOR THE AXIS

WAR ALCOHOL PLAYS ITS PART

There goes a barrel of grief for Hitler

... a dose of concentrated high explosive to blast some skulking U boat into sudden oblivion. Relentlessly, month after month, the grim submarine chase goes on . . . and in that hunt of death, Alcohol has its part to play. The explosive with which the "ash cans" are charged utilizes War Alcohol; even the propellant that lobs the depth charge overboard contains his same critical war material. Alcohol is proving its worth these "al" war days . . . in the factory, the laboratory, on the field of battle itself. To make explosives and plastics, a tremendous quantity Alcohol is needed. Aerial compasses and other delicate instruments are sealed in alcohol. As a practical disinfectant, Alcohol is the constant ally of doctors and nurses. In the welding of our fighting machine, Alcohol has a myriad of uses; every ounce that can be produced is needed now. That is why all our plants are on 100% war production, for the duration.

Have You Heard?

The small daughter sat watching her mother making up her face, no doubt wondering what it was all about. When it came to the time for the application of the lipstick the small girl could contain herself no longer. "What do you put all that on your face for, Mummy?" she asked. "Mummy puts it on to make her look pretty," came the reply.

"I'm sorry I can't accept you, Bill, but circumstances over which I have no control prevent me." "And what are those circumstances?" "Your circumstances."

WHAT SCIENCE IS DOING

8,000 Photos A Second

Various means have been developed whereby fast-moving machinery can be "stopped" photographically. One way is by the use of spark photography—the moving object being photographed by the exceedingly brief illumination provided by an electric spark. Such spark photography has caught the swift flight of a rifle bullet and its behavior on striking various kinds of objects.

Fast-moving machinery parts may also be "stopped" photographically by the use of a flashing or intermittent light. If the flashing light is perfectly synchronized with the engine movement, the wheel, piston, or other part to be studied will appear to stand still.

Now, however, a special motion picture camera has been developed which is capable of taking 8,000 consecutive pictures a second, each with an exposure of 33 millionths of a second! Such amazingly brief exposures not only "stop" the motion of machinery and other phenomena involving rapid movement but also make it possible to project the resulting film in slow motion for detailed analysis of the operation photographed.

This special research camera differs from the ordinary movie-taker in that the film flashes past the lens at a steady 70-mile-an-hour pace.

Pumpkin, cucumber and melons do not cross-pollinate and may be planted safely in the same garden.

HOW TO RELIEVE PILE TORTURE QUICKLY AND EASILY

If you are troubled with itching piles or rectal soreness, do not delay treatment and run the risk of letting this condition become chronic. Any itching or soreness or painful passage of stool is nature's warning, and proper treatment should be secured at once.

For this purpose get a package of Hem-Roid from any druggist and use as directed. This formula which is used internally is a small, easy to take tablet, will quickly relieve the itching and soreness and aid in healing the sore tender spots. Hem-Roid is pleasant to use, is highly recommended and it secures the height of folly for any one to risk a painful and chronic pile condition when such a fine remedy may be had at such a small cost.

If you try Hem-Roid and are not entirely pleased with the results, your druggist will gladly return your money.

The Farmer and the Victory Loan

By W. H. Brittain

It is not necessary to remind Canadian citizens that through no fault of their own, except the common failure to understand and foresee the coming storm, we have been attacked by a mighty and a ruthless force. Our treacherous adversaries have shrunk from no savagery, no cruelty, no horror, destroying one by one their selected victims. Can anyone imagine that our lot would be any better in the event of defeat? Certainly our enemies have not failed to warn us of their intentions. Therefore, we are left no choice but to mobilize all our materials, all our moral and all our spiritual resources to stem the tide that for so long threatened to engulf us.

Today our sons, and those of all other United Nations, serve on all the fighting fronts of the world. We do not intend that ever again our men shall have to face the mechanized monsters of modern war without the protection that can be bought with money. We who have been free from bombs, who have not been driven into the roads homeless and destitute, who have not had to witness the destruction of our property and the slaughter of our families, are asked for money in order that the young lives that stand between us and the fury of the enemy are equipped with tanks and planes and guns that will protect their own lives and bring them early victory.

The vast sum required cannot be left to the great financial and industrial institutions, or to the comparatively few wealthy individuals among us. No one is compelled to give and no one is even asked to lend without interest and without security. But you are asked to lend what you can afford at interest rate that, in these times, is attractive and only on the best security anywhere obtainable. This is no real sacrifice, for not only will the investor be paid a return on his money which will be repaid him on maturity, but all of it will be spent in Canada to buy supplies. This includes food supplies, along with ships and shells and machine guns.

It is important to remember that with this loan it is not a question of borrowing at 7 per cent and lending at three per cent. The Banks will lend the money at the same rate as the bond is carried. Thus, those with a reasonable expectation of securing funds later can make their contribution now.

FARMERS AND FARM WORKERS

If Your Farm Work has Slackened for the Winter, You Are Needed Elsewhere in Essential Employment

Lack of fuel wood will be serious to our population. A shortage of saw-logs and other necessary forest products would threaten our war effort. Therefore, any man on the farm not needed at home during the Fall and Winter, should offer his services at once for work in the woods until the farm again requires him.

Farmers engaged in essential work during the off season will be allowed to return home when needed. Also, those on postponement under Mobilization Regulations will continue on postponement while in approved essential work during the slack on the farm.

Please answer this vital call NOW.

THE CHARTERED BANKS of Canada keep abreast of the Dominion's expanding needs.

Six times since 1870 the Bank Act under which the Chartered Banks operate has been revised by parliament—six times in that period the activities of the banks have been carefully scrutinized by the people's representatives.

Every ten years the Bank Act has been thus revised. Each one of the six decennial revisions has contributed much to the evolution of the banking system to meet the expanding needs of a developing Dominion.

In 1934 the sixth revision of the Bank Act was made. Fifty members of the House of Commons made up the committee, which examined witnesses—among them bank officers, government officials and reformers—and studied exhibits filed by various individuals and organizations. Findings were submitted to the House, and later that year the Bank Act was revised in many important particulars.

Through democratic enquiry and decision, the Canadian banking system has grown and been adjusted to meet the needs of the people, providing a depository for savings and a sound basis for Canada's free economic development.

Mobilization Medical Examination System Changed

The procedure followed for medical examination under National Selective Service Mobilization Regulations is being changed, so that it will be as follows:—

- If a man called lives a reasonable distance from a "Reception Centre", he will be ordered to report at such a Centre for medical examination. In the Province of Quebec there are two Reception Centres—Montreal and Quebec. In any event, immediately after his examination, a man will return to his home.
- If a man called lives too far from a "Reception Centre" to have a medical examination there and to return home within a reasonable time, he will be ordered to be examined by one of a panel of physicians near his home, of whom he will be notified.
- In a case where a man called lives in a very remote locality where there is no panel of physicians, he will be ordered to be examined by a doctor of his own choice in his locality.
- Each man required to be medically examined will be notified by mail, through an "Order—Medical Examination" sent by the Registrar of the Mobilization Division, and this will instruct him specifically on how he is to proceed with his medical examination.

The change of system for medical examinations does not change any man's right to apply for postponement of military training, nor does it change the classes of men liable to call. It is designed to cause the man being examined less inconvenience, for in many cases he will be required to be examined once instead of two or three times as formerly. A man who is able to be examined at a Reception Centre will be relieved of any uncertainty as to what is his medical category, for his category will be finally established after the one examination.

The law requires any man receiving an "Order—Medical Examination" to follow carefully the instructions sent by the Registrar with this Order.

RADIO REPORTER

By REX FROST

There has long been the need for a dramatized news feature originating in Canada. Formerly broadcasts of this type mostly originated in the United States or overseas. So it is a matter of congratulation that ten stations of a Canadian network, originating at CFRB, Toronto, have just commenced a new series of dramatized news-of-the-week programs, Thursdays, 9.30 to 10 p.m. The presentations are of versatile character, including news interpretations from Canadian magazines, and bringing to the microphone in person, people who have hit the headlines. The program is styled "Canadian Cavalcade" and is well worthy of your interest.

The Canadian Broadcasting Corporation and the British Broadcasting Corporation have recently been indulging in a series of exchange features. Perhaps you've caught them in the 10.30 to 11 o'clock Friday night spot. As part of this series Friday, October 15, will provide a "Canada to Britain" broadcast, which will also be heard over the CBC network, entitled "The Spacious Land" and which will interpret the revolution in Canadian farming which has taken place during the years of the war. It should be of particular interest to listeners in rural Ontario, as well

SUNDAY SCHOOL LESSON

October 24

HONORING OUR PARENTS—Exodus 20:12; Luke 2:48-51; Mark 7:6-13; John 19:25-27.

GOLDEN TEXT.—Children, obey your parents in the Lord: for this is right, Ephesians 6:1.

Memory Verse: Oh give thanks unto Jehovah; for he is good. Psalm 136:1.

THE LESSON IN ITS SETTING
Time.—The Ten Commandments were given about 1445 B.C.; the incident taken from our Lord's boyhood occurred in April, A.D. 8; our Lord's condemnation of Jewish men who dishonored their parents was spoken in April, A.D. 29; and the word from the cross was uttered on Friday, April 7, A.D. 30.
Place.—The Ten Commandments were given at Mount Sinai; the incident from our Lord's boyhood took place in the Temple in Jerusalem and later at Nazareth; the discourse about unfaithfulness to parents was given at Capernaum; our Lord was crucified outside the city wall of Jerusalem.

Honor For Parents

"Honor thy father and thy mother, that thy days may be long in the land which Jehovah thy God giveth thee." The honor for our parents is love combined with reverence. It also includes gratitude and obedience and support in their old age. A spirit of obedience and respect to parents implies a well-ordered life in general, a prospect of prosperity and a long life.

"And when they saw him they were astonished; and his mother said unto him, Son, why hast thou thus dealt with us? behold, thy father and I sought thee sorrowing." Jesus' parents were amazed because the simple and obedient childhood of Jesus had not prepared them to find Him questioning these great men.

First Words of Jesus

"And he said unto them, How is it that ye sought me? knew ye not that I must be in my Father's house?" These words are memorable as being the first recorded words of Jesus. Notice that he does not accept the phrase, "Thy Father." He speaks of "My Father," recalls who He was and from whence He came. He came to do His Father's work and here in His childhood He is conscious of His divine mission.

"And they understood not the saying which he spake unto them. And he went down with them, and came to Nazareth; and he was subject unto them; and his mother kept all these sayings in her heart." Jesus went on as an obedient child to Joseph and Mary. The set time had not come to claim his independence. Though the Son of God, He was also the Son of Mary, and he recognized His mother's claim upon His love, care and obedience.

Doctrines of God and Man

"And he said unto them, Well did Isaiah prophesy of you hypocrites, as it is written, This people honoreth me with their lips, but their heart is far from me." These ritualists were honoring God by mere outward worship but their hearts were full of pride, uncleanness and hypocrisy.

"But in vain do they worship me, teaching as their doctrines the precepts of men. Ye leave the commandment of God, and hold fast the tradition of men." Only the Commandments of God are to be observed. When we follow the doctrines of men, then we go astray.

Responsibility Avoided

"And he said unto them, Full well do ye reject the commandment of God, that ye may keep latest rumor is that the BBC MAY (spelled in CAPITALS) go commercial . . . may agree to broadcast a limited number of programs with a soap, a cigarette, a cough syrup or other commercial sponsor. Anent such rumors, it is our impression that, as and when the BBC goes commercial, Farmer Bousfield's famous cow from Appleby which recently astonished British agriculture by giving birth to four calves, will be seen taking a jump over the moon, followed in quick procession by her quadruplet offspring.

your tradition. For Moses said, Honor thy father and thy mother; and, He that speaketh evil of father or mother, let him die the death: but ye say, If a man shall say to his father or his mother, That wherewith thou mightest have been profited by me is Corban, that is to say, Given to God; ye no longer suffer him to do ought for his father or his mother; making void the word of God by your tradition, which ye have delivered; and many such like things ye do."

They rejected the authority of God for the authority of man—a sin which is very common in our day. Notice that the same punishment was to be meted out to those who cursed their parents as to those who cursed God (Lev. 20:9; 24:16). Our Lord did not condemn the practice of giving to God except where it was done to get rid of the duty of aiding our parents. He shut his heart and his hand to his parents and obeyed the law of man, not of God. When the religious leaders of a nation tamper with the Word and substitute their own inhuman laws, then follows conflict, and civilization is threatened.

Christ's Care For His Mother

"These things therefore the soldiers did. But there were standing by the cross of Jesus his mother, and his mother's sister, Mary the wife of Clopas, and Mary Magdalene." When Jesus therefore saw his mother, and the disciple standing by whom he loved, he saith unto his mother, Woman, behold thy son! This incident shows how Christ, in his dying moments yearned over His mother. His thoughtfulness and love shone out, even in death.

The Disciple's Obedience

"Then saith he to the disciple, Behold thy mother! And from that hour the disciple took her unto his home." Jesus gave a mother to his dearest friend, and a son to the broken heart of His widowed mother. John regarded his trust as a mark of loving confidence in him. The point to notice is that of his perfect obedience.

After That?

Now that the Japanese are being more or less put in their places one does not hear so much about Port Darwin, which must make it dull for the troops there, relates The Manchester Guardian. One American soldier on leave put it this way: "When you've been there a few weeks you find yourself talking to yourself. After that you find yourself talking to the lizards. After another couple of weeks you find the lizards talking to you. Then you find yourself listening."

FEATHERED FRIEND

One way to find housing these days is to move in with someone else, as did the amazingly tame sparrow, Butch, who invaded a Chicago home and promptly made friends with the family's bewildered terrier.

HONOR R.C.A.F. BOMBARDIER

Flight Sgt. A. W. Larden, of North Bay, Ont., has just been awarded the conspicuous gallantry medal. With the announcement of the decoration the story of his exploit was revealed.

Bombardier of an English based heavy bomber, he brought the aircraft safely to a North African airfield after the pilot had been seriously wounded and the Navigator killed by anti-aircraft fire during an attack on Tunis. The aircraft was over the Italian Alps when it was hit. The navigator was killed at once. The pilot fell over the controls, wounded, Larden who had never before piloted an aircraft for any length of time took the pilot's place. Fortunately he had some knowledge of the controls. He realized there was little chance of his being able to get the aircraft back to England, so after taking evasive action he decided to jettison his bombs and make for the North African coast, but the bomb release mechanism had been damaged by shell fire and he found it impossible to release the bombs. Larden flew on. He had been at the controls for nearly five hours when the wireless operator shouted through the intercom that he had made contact with a North African air base. Larden had never attempted to land a bomber before and the crew breathlessly awaited the ordeal of the landing by night. They circled the airfield and made a perfect belly landing . . . with nearly four thousand pounds of bombs still in the bomb bay. When they landed it was found that there were 36 holes in the aircraft. Here is F. Sgt. Larden (right) lighting a cigarette for Sgt. T. Guy of Northampton, the radio operator who made contact with a North African base.

A FARM WIFE CHATS TO WOMEN

By

Gwendoline P. Clarke

Well, here I am again—back home from my summer vacation. You didn't know I had been away? Oh, but I have—definitely! I spent two whole days in the city this week. And I would defy anyone to cram more into that short time than I did. Each day was a mixture of shopping, visiting and shows. I was staying with Daughter, and it was really funny. Daughter was on night shift and when I got out of bed in the morning, refreshed after a night's sleep, she crawled into it, weary after a night's work. In a few minutes she would be asleep and I would slip out to go visiting or shopping. About two-thirds back I came again and then we would finish the day together until it was time for Daughter to go to work again.

You know — I have always thought of rooming houses as such stuffy places with a variety of cooking odours, a minimum of privacy and everyone wanting the use of the bathroom at the same time. But now I realize there are other types of rooming houses, for the place where Daughter lives is as much like a home as any place could be—complete with a six-months-old puppy who will steal your shoes and tear your stockings as quick as a flash, if you don't watch out. But he was a darling puppy and he and I were the best of friends. The hostess of the house is one of the best—young, friendly and ready to do anything for you. Why, just imagine, even though Daughter does not board there nothing would do but I must have my breakfast with the family. And was I glad, for the smell of the coffee as it perked just about got me down! Of course I had to wake up at six o'clock in the morning just when I had a chance to sleep in—such is the force of habit.

The sales clerks in the stores were also very friendly. There was the job tailor who was doing a small repair on my winter coat. He was very busy but when he knew I was from out of town he said he would get the job done somehow before I left. And he did. And the middle-aged woman in the dress department — she knew what I wanted better than I did myself—and she hunted the store over until she found it.

As for the man in the "shoes" it wasn't long before we discovered we had mutual friends of long standing.

City people unfriendly and disobliging? I should say not. At least, not if you approach them with the thought in mind that they are human beings—remembering they are men and women with worries and problems like our own, each with his or her living to make and many of them with boys and girls away from home but yet never far distant from them in their thoughts. "And the colonel's lady and Judy O'Grady" in this day and age are not only "sisters under their skins" but they each have the same amount of coupons in their ration books, the same worry about how to make the sugar last out, and how to stretch the butter just a little further.

By Saturday noon I was back home again but I didn't find a welcome sign out on the doormat. Instead I found a note on the kitchen table from Partner—"Gone to Tom's threshing — let the horses in for a drink if they come to the gap."

So I got into my work-a-day clothes and was soon back in harness once again, busy with chores outside and in the house. Now they are finished and here I am at my typewriter until Partner comes along. They say variety is the spice of life and I'm thinking I have at least got a pretty fair share of the spice, if nothing else.

"SALADA" TEA

THE HUMAN COMEDY

"Wake up, Mr. Grogan! They're sending a telegram. Wake up!" cried Homer.

SYNOPSIS

Over the Macauley house in the small town of Ithaca, California, hovers the protective spirit of Matthew, the father who died two years before. He loves them all, five year-old Ulysses, his eldest son Marcus, in an army camp, his young daughter Bess, his beloved wife Katey. Then there's sixteen-year-old Homer who has a job after school as a messenger boy. Already Homer has seen despair and death through his work. He wonders about love too, hurt because his girl Helen Elliot favors his rival Hubert Ackley. And there's rich Diana Steed who's leading Tom Spangler, manager of the office, around by the nose. Homer marvels at the way Spangler's taken in by her. Out at the army camp, Marcus and his buddy Tobey, an orphan, leave for battle on a troop train. Marcus tells Tobey that after the war they'll both come home to Ithaca and build the future together. For the first time, Tobey feels that he'll have a 'place' in the world.

CHAPTER V

It was about a week later that the family received that letter. Homer had carried it with him all day. Now, during a lull in office hours that night he opened it. Willie Grogan's eyes were bright with interest so Homer decided to read it aloud.

"Dear Homer: First of all, anything of mine at home is yours. My books, my phonograph, my records, my clothes when you're ready to fit into them. They are all yours as you are now the man of the Macauley family of Ithaca."

The letter went on to tell about his army checks going to Ma, to state in yearning terms how much he missed them all, to speak of his pal, Tobey.

Then Homer sat up a little more stiffly as he came to the next paragraph. "I am proud that I am serving my country, which to me is Ithaca and all the people. But I am terribly afraid, although I know that when the time comes I shall do what is expected of me. I may be killed in this war. I must come right out and tell you this. Do not be unhappy. I am glad that I am the Macauley who is in the war for it would be a pity and a mistake if it were you. You are the best. God bless you. So long boy. Your brother Marcus."

The clock ticked away the silence as the young boy and the old man sat down there, drowned in thought.

Homer spoke in a thin, new voice. "If my brother is killed in this war I'll spit at the world. I'll hate it forever. I won't be good. I'll be bad. I'll be the worst there is. I'll be the worst that ever lived."

Willie Grogan stared at him. Then he shook himself, got out his bottle and took a deep swig of the warming liquor.

The seasons went on in their eternal way and then it was Autumn. Ithaca was celebrating the harvest time with a picnic on the outskirts of the town. The ground were lively with music and dancing. Flags of every nation fluttered in the breeze.

Over on a bench, shielded by a bush, sat Tom Spangler with his wife Diana. The six months they had been married seemed like a dream. His arms went around her tenderly. "This is the most beautiful place in the world," he said softly. "I guess it must be, because it's ours."

She spoke with a rush of feeling. "You do love it don't you?" "I love everything." His voice roughened. "You don't ask me if I love you because I do. I love you and the whole world and everything in it. You know honey I don't go much for sentimentality but whatever happiness may be I've got a pretty good idea it's something like this." His tone was rich and intimate. "I can't wait to see who it is. I'd like it to be a little girl. I'd like to have a little girl around looking like you. I'd like to hear the voice of a pretty little girl like that." There was a long pause. Then he said gently, "I used to think you were a fool. Well, I was pretty wrong."

Not a quaver in her voice as she replied, "I'm not the least bit afraid, Tom."

"Good. Then—this won't hit you too hard, Diana . . . Diana . . . I'm going . . ."

He could almost hear the pull at her heart. Then she said, "I knew it would come. How soon?" "About a month."

"Where?"

"I don't know yet. It's the Navy. After that . . ."

Now her voice lifted with a smiling courage. "It's all right, Tom. I know how to pray."

Tom couldn't speak. There were tremors running through him. But he felt great, as if he were in church on Easter morning. Diana was good. She was a really fine woman. And he was a lucky man. He would never have believed that a woman could be as brave and wondrous a creature as Diana. He was glad he knew it. It made the birds sing better, the sun shine brighter . . .

It was at this very moment that Homer was hurrying back from delivering a telegram. Business had been slow. He had loitered for a soda. Now he looked at his watch, the one Marcus had given him. Gosh, he better hurry. Mr. Grogan would be waiting for him. He hopped his bike and was off.

It was close to twilight as he walked into the office. One of his pockets bulged with cookies that he had bought for Mr. Grogan. It would be fun, surprising him.

As he stepped in, the telegraph box was rattling. Homer's breath quickened. Mr. Grogan wasn't answering the box. He must be having one of his drinking spells again. Yep, he was sitting there not moving at all.

"Mr. Grogan, Mr. Grogan!" Homer cried.

Quickly, he got a cupful of water and splashed it into Grogan's face.

The old man's eyelids fluttered. "That's right, Homer," he mumbled. "You're doing fine . . . just fine . . ."

Homer patted his shoulder pityingly. "I'll hurry and get the coffee. Be back in a minute."

He ran out and over to Corbetts. The barkeeper was maddeningly indifferent as he said that he was just fresh out of the stuff. It wouldn't be ready for another five minutes. Frantically, Homer dashed out. The music from the juke box pursued him like a devilish refrain. In the office the telegraph box was still clicking.

"Mr. Grogan!" he cried. "They're sending a telegram. Wake up." If poor Mr. Grogan missed out, even once, the company might retire him. And he's said so many times that if he didn't work, he would die. "The coffee isn't ready. So wake up yourself. They're sending a telegram . . ."

His voice trailed off to a whisper. Mr. Grogan was so still—too still. A dash of water wouldn't help. Neither would that fresh coffee from Corbetts.

Yes, Willie Grogan had died. He had died working, just like he always said he wanted to. Homer stood there numbly. He knew he ought to do something. Yet for a second he couldn't.

He heard the door open. It was Felix, one of the regular messenger boys. Felix stared at his white face. "Say, what's the matter, Homer?" Homer gestured at Grogan. "What's the matter with the old man?"

"He—he's dead."

"Ah, you're crazy."

"No, he's dead."

Felix let out a mournful little sigh. He hadn't understood Mr. Grogan but he had respected him. He went to the telephone and dialed Mr. Spangler's house. There was no answer. "He's not in, Homer. What'll we do?"

"I don't know." Homer went to the typewriter. "He was receiving his message I think . . ."

Afterwards, he could hardly recall taking that unfinished telegram out of the typewriter—the one Mr. Grogan had been trying to write at the last.

The words swam before Homer's eyes. "Mrs. Kate Macauley, 2226 Santa Clara Avenue, Ithaca, California. The Department of War regrets to inform you that your son, Marcus . . ."

(The tragedy of Marcus' death will hit Homer hard. It may shake his faith in life itself. Is there anyone he can turn to who will help him find the road back? Be sure to read the concluding installment.)

Brenner Pass

Much has been heard recently of the Brenner Pass. The name is derived from Brenner, a mountain in the Tyrolean Alps which rises to a height of 6,777 feet. The road from Germany to Italy, traversing this mountain, reaches an elevation of 4,658 feet, and yet is one of the lowest roads practicable for carriages over the main chain of the Alps. A railway through this mighty gorge was opened the same year as Confederation in Canada, namely, in 1867.—Kingston Whig-Standard.

Men usually begin to decrease in height after the age of thirty.

A Few Practical Facts Concerning Racial Problems

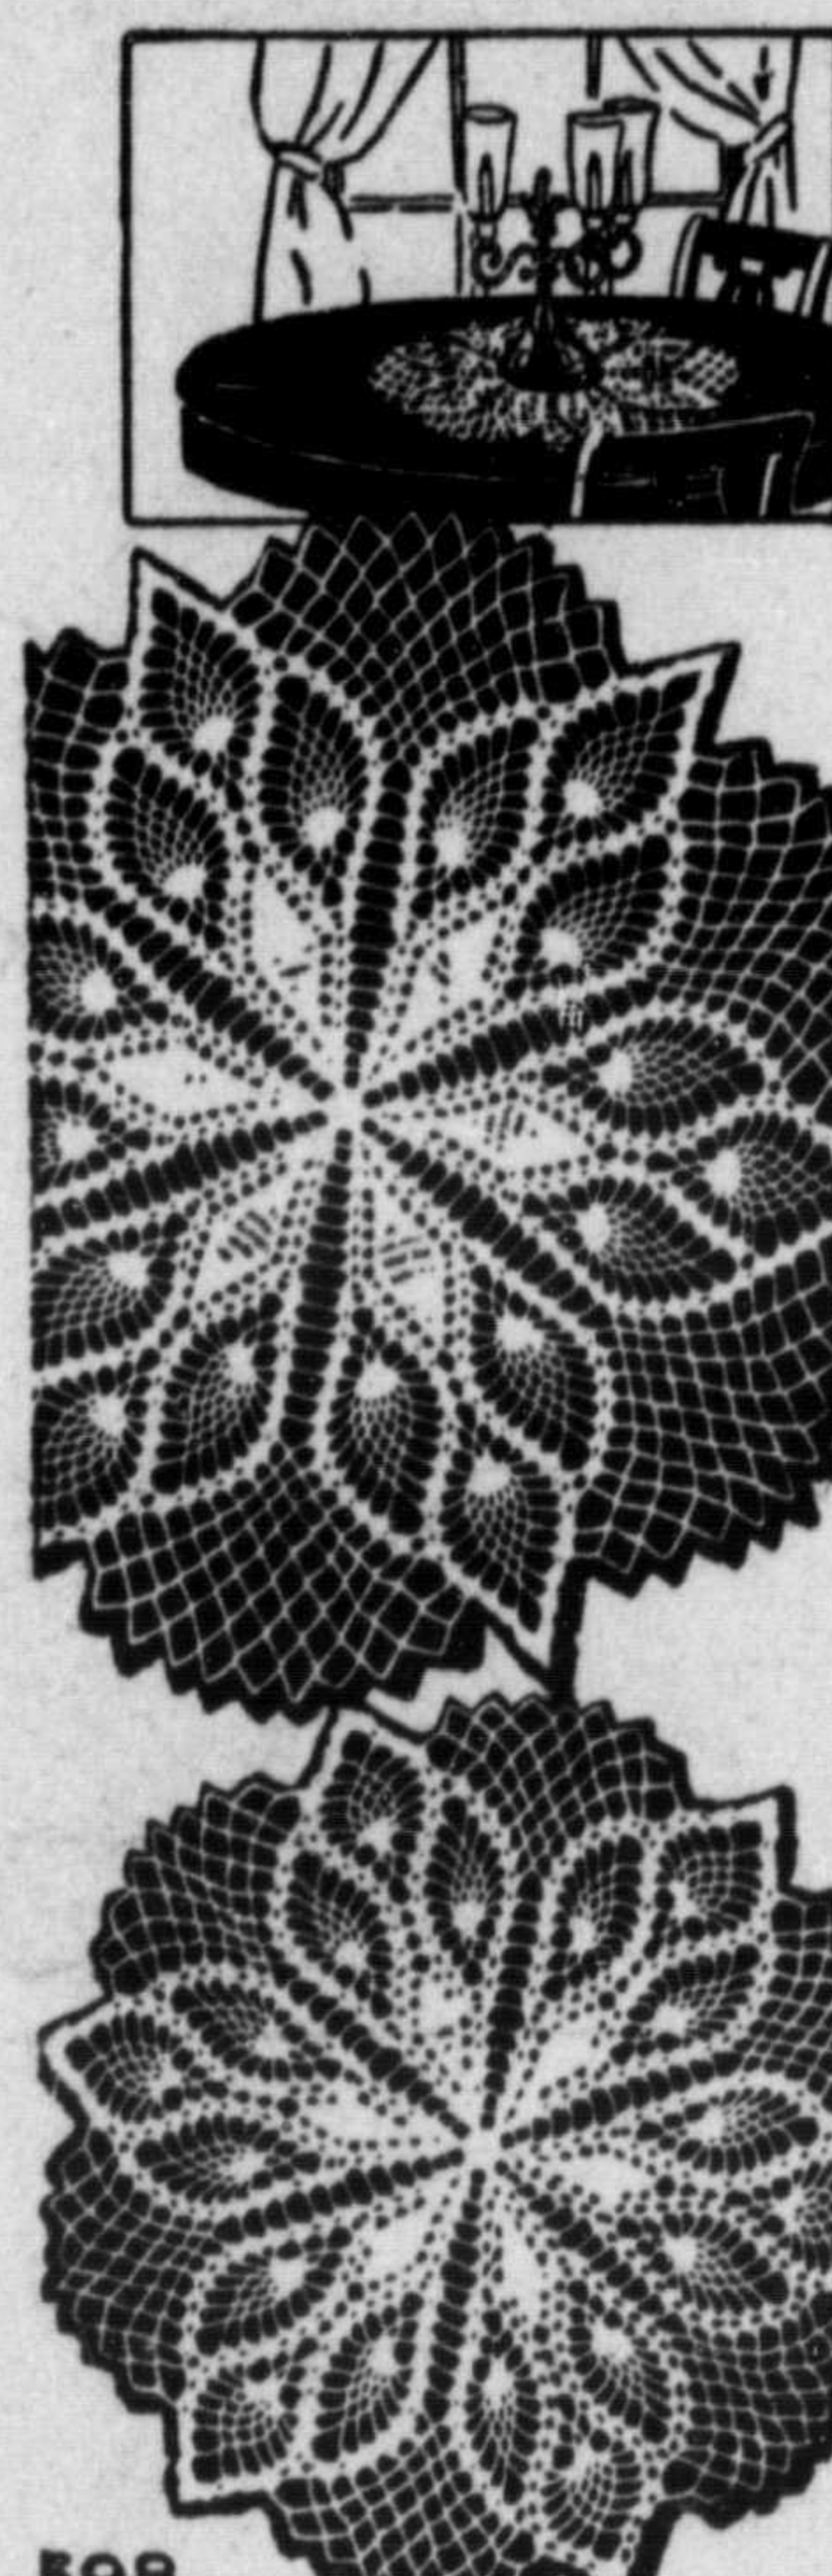

Those Who Raise Race Cry Are Branded as Traitors

A plea for a better understanding between the races in Canada was voiced by the Hon. Valmore Bienvenue, Quebec Minister of Game and Fisheries, in an address to the Toronto Rotary Club last week.

Mr. Bienvenue said: "Let us not hesitate to brand as traitors those who raise the race cry . . . It is so much easier to sow prejudice than to uproot it . . . If a dis-senting voice be heard among our people, for example, as regards the war effort, at once certain ill-inspired English-Canadians jump to general conclusions and yell that we all possess a feudal and reactionary mentality that we are as a blind flock led by a fascist clergy. At that rate, why not judge all Americans after Al Capone?"

There is a measure of justice in Mr. Bienvenue's words. No doubt Ontario people, or many of them, do seize too willingly upon instances of isolationist sentiment in Quebec, says the Toronto Star. But we think that the Al Capone comparison is extreme. If isolationists were no more plentiful in our sister province than Al Capone are in the States, a rapprochement between Ontario and Quebec would be more easily accomplished. It may well be, however, that Ontario, as well as Quebec, is responsible for the semi-alienation of Quebec from the rest of Canada. The faults are not all on one side. And a recognition of that fact is the best basis for a better future understanding.

I GOT RID OF MY CONSTIPATION WITHOUT "DOSING"!

When we're all doing our best to help win the war none of us can afford to be slowed up physically and mentally by common constipation . . . the kind caused by lack of "bulk" in the diet. If you're troubled that way, why not get right at the cause instead of "dosing" with purgatives that give, at best, only temporary relief. Here's a simple, "better way" to prevent constipation caused by lack of "bulk"—eat KELLOGG'S ALL-BRAN every day . . . grand-tasting as a cereal or in crispy muffins . . . drink plenty of water. Then see if you don't notice a big difference in the way you feel and look! Get started right away. Your grocer has ALL-BRAN in two convenient sizes. Made by Kellogg's in London, Canada.

tionists were no more plentiful in our sister province than Al Capone are in the States, a rapprochement between Ontario and Quebec would be more easily accomplished. It may well be, however, that Ontario, as well as Quebec, is responsible for the semi-alienation of Quebec from the rest of Canada. The faults are not all on one side. And a recognition of that fact is the best basis for a better future understanding.

As Mr. Bienvenue pointed out, the French-Canadians "shouldered arms with the conquerors of yesterday to drive off the armies of the American revolution," and "have shed their blood courageously side by side with the British in several wars." He is justified in claiming for his people the virtues of politeness, generosity and hospitality. And he is correct in saying that there is no inferiority in speaking two languages when some others take pride in speaking only one. There are, of course, great masses of Quebec's own people who take that same pride. But it is to be said for the God-bout government to which Mr. Bienvenue belongs that it has fought isolationism and emphasized the importance of learning English as perhaps no other Quebec administration has done before it.

The Quebec minister said very wisely that the British and French in Canada cannot hope to become exactly the same. "I believe, on the contrary, that since God wished us different we should remain that way. It takes all kinds of people to make a world," says the proverb, and I am sure that applies to the building of a vigorous country. We must therefore strive to become a whole, not homogeneous, but harmonious. And it is not by standardizing the races, nor by passing a steamroller over the country that we can succeed in creating harmony. . . . Let us remember that we can fraternize and esteem one another without being similar, and that it is not necessary to be twins to be brothers."

That is a great truth excellently put, and its general acceptance in Ontario would be a first step to national unity.

The Most Valuable Road In The World

One of the world's unusual roads connects Zanderry Field, Dutch Guiana, with the capital city of Paramaribo—a highway variously called 'the Million Dollar Highway and The Most Valuable Road in the World.'

Built on a base of mahogany and surfaced with aluminium, the road was constructed in record time by United States Army engineers. There is no estimating the intrinsic value of the materials which went into its construction—but here, the materials are the cheapest and most readily available.

Mahogany is one of the most common and most durable woods, and can be had anywhere just for the cutting. And Dutch Guiana has the world's richest deposit of bauxite, the ore from which aluminium is obtained.

Wyman Women's Institute

The October meeting of the Wyman Women's Institute was held at the home of Mrs. Hanlan Young, Thursday afternoon, with a good attendance of members and visitors.

The president, Miss Pritchard, presided, assisted by Miss Edey, who, owing to the resignation of Mrs. Pritchard was appointed to this office.

The meeting opened by saluting the flag, followed with the National Anthem and the usual procedure.

Announcements were made of the semi-annual county meeting to be held in Shawville, also a demonstration to be given by Miss Fletcher of Macdonald College, at Wyman.

The War Salvage has been registered and the committee urges salvage to be brought in by November 1st, that a shipment may be made.

Letters were read from the Provincial President, Mrs. Smallman and Mrs. Hodges, of the Consumer Branch, dealing with many interesting phases of Institute work.

Three ditty bags for the navy have been filled and shipped.

Reports were given of the Red Cross by Mrs. Hutchison and Mrs. Kilroy, and arrangements for sending Christmas boxes overseas are almost complete.

Practical hints on vitamin E were presented after which an article was read, entitled, "A little girl who fought for Canada."

Miss Louise Bryant, of Toronto, a guest of the meeting, gave a reading—A hymn of Edward McHugh, the gospel singer, which was much appreciated.

Each member is requested to bring an article for the talent basket to the next meeting.

The singing of "The Maple Leaf Forever" brought the meeting to a close, after which tea was served by the hostess and a social hour enjoyed.

Leo McNally, Former Campbell's Bay Citizen, Dies When Car Crashes Through Guard Rail

Leo McNally, 44, of North Bay, Ont., Canadian Pacific Railway ticket agent at Barriefield, Ont., was killed on October 18th, when his automobile crashed through a cause-way guard rail into the St. Lawrence River.

Ralph MacCarrow, who was following Mr. McNally in his taxi cab, jumped into the river and recovered the body. An autopsy will be performed to determine the cause of death.

Mr. McNally was returning to Kingston from Barriefield about 2:00 a. m. and had just crossed the lift bridge at LaSalle Causeway on Highway No. 2, when the car apparently went out of control and plunged through the guard-rail into about 20 feet of water.

Mr. McNally was a son of the late Cornelius McNally and Mrs. Emma McNally, of Campbell's Bay. His mother presently resides in Ottawa at 387 James street. He was a member of the staff of the Canadian Pacific Railway for a number of years, latterly attached to Barriefield Military Camp, and formerly located in Petawawa and Camp Borden.

In addition to his mother, he is survived by his widow, the former Maud Newell, of North Bay, whom he married a year ago; one sister, Dorothy, of Ottawa, and two brothers, Richard, of Morrison-Lamothe, Ltd., and Eric, of Ottawa. Dr. S. J. McNally, of Campbell's Bay, is an uncle, and Rev. Elwood T. McNally, parish priest there is a cousin.
