THE SHERBROOKE RECORD, MON., AUG. 23, 1971

Over 100,000 attend Expo '71

Officials pleased

By DAVID MAGIL

SHERBROOKE — It's all over for another year.

This year's Sherbrooke Exposition drew more than 100,800 visitors, an increase of nearly 20,000 over 1970's figures.

Eastern Townships Agricultural Association president Warren Ross told The Record last night he was very happy with the way this year's fair has proceeded.

He said he is more than pleased with the results of two changes instituted this year.

Despite the small registration for the dog show, he is confident the number of entries will increase in coming years.

"The people are enthusiastic and we can expect to have a great show next year," he said.

For more on Sherbrooke Exposition, please see pages 3 and 8.

Mr. Ross also revealed that many people have commented favorably on the moving of cattle showings back into the Arena from the tents in which they were held in 1970.

"Everybody can see and the cattle don't get nervous," he explained.

The fair closed last night with a giant bingo game and the raffling of two cars.

Saturday was highlighted by a dog show in the Arena which drew more than 35 contestants.

Friday featured beef cattle judging and a parade and sheep dog demonstration in the arena.

Fatality count set at 56 over weekend

At least 56 persons died in accidents across Canada during the weekend, 46 in traffic.

A survey by The Canadian Press from 6 p.m. local times, Friday until late Sunday also showed eight persons were drowned and two others died in miscellaneous accidents.

The 46 weekend traffic deaths and the 51 highway deaths during the week brought the number of persons killed on Canadian roads since Jan. 1 to at least 2,170.

Ontario recorded the highest weekend death toll with 24 accidental deaths—18 on the highways and five by drowning. A man also died after being struck by lightning on a golf course near Niagara Falls.

Quebec reported 11 persons dead in road accidents and a drowning.

In the Atlantic provinces, Nova Scotia and New Brunswick both recorded three traffic deaths. Newfoundland and Prince Edward Island reported no fatalities.

In the Western provinces, British Columbia recorded eight deaths—five on the roads, two by drowning and one in a shooting accident. Alberta recorded five road deaths and Saskatchewan, one. Manitoba remained fatality-free.

The survey does not include industrial deaths, known suicides or slayings.

Witness held in murder of motorcyclists

THETFORD MINES (PT) — An important witness is being held at Quebec in connection with the murder of two motorcyclists, members of the Jarrets Noirs at Ste-Marie-de-Beauce recently.

The suspect was identified as Jacques "Ti-Cail" Baillargeon, 23, of Quebec. He apparently is a member of a Quebec motorcycle gang which already has had several run-ins with the law.

Last year, Baillargeon had a near encounter with death when he was fired at during a riot in the old capital.

He is presently being detained by the Quebec Police Force and appeared Friday before a Quebec judge.

It is hoped that interrogation of this most important material witness will lead to the arrest of seven presumed accomplices in the double murder of Serge Bourque, of Notre-Dame-des-Pins, and Jacques Giguere, of Ste-Marie-de-Beauce.

The arrest of Baillargeon is seen in some quarters as proof that the murders were a result of rivalry or feuding between two different motorcycle gangs. Apparently dispute centred around drug trafficking rights and resale of stolen motorcycles.

E.T. REPORT

Weekend claims four

SHERBROOKE (PT) — Four persons were killed in traffic accidents in the Eastern Townships over the weekend.

At Boynton, near Ayer's Cliff, Roseline Champagne of Montreal died in an accident which occurred when a sports car lost control and smashed into a rock at the side of the highway on which she and a companion were travelling towards the United States border.

Andre Brouillard, 22, and Ghislaine Brouillard, 17, both of R.R. 1, St-Georges-de-Windsor, died in a head-on collision which took place at about 4 a.m. Sunday in that Richmond county town.

And in Ste-Marie-de-Beauce sometime Friday night, Joseph Jacques, 43, of R.R. 3 near that town, died in an accident that saw the car he was driving overturn and plunge into underbrush at the side of the road.

Young woman killed

AYER'S CLIFF (PT) — A young woman lost her life and her travelling companion suffered cuts and scratches as a result of a violent collision between a sports car and a rock which occurred late Friday night on autoroute 55 about a mile from Boynton Point near here.

Dead is Roseline Champagne, of Montreal, while Frederick Gaudet, of St. Lambert, is reported in satisfactory condition at La Providence Hospital in Magog.

The European car in which the pair were travelling towards the American border lost control going around a corner and swerved off the road, hitting a rock nearby.

Miss Champagne was pronounced dead at the scene of the accident by attending physician Dr. Jules Bouchard, of Rock Island. The couple, both in their twenties, were then taken to La Providence Hospital in Magog.

Agents from Coaticook detachment of the Quebec Police Force were charged with reporting the accident, which occurred at 11:45 p.m. Friday south of a bridge at Boynton.

Put out auto fire

SHERBROOKE (PT) — Smoke issuing from the front of a car is a bad sign, as one Sherbrooke citizen learned Friday night when he called Sherbrooke firemen to extinguish a fire in his car motor.

Lucien Cote, of 944 Sideleau Street, Sherbrooke, watched his car suffer an estimated $200 damages during a fire which occurred when his car was travelling in the King East and Kennedy Street area.

As well as bringing fire and police authorities to the scene, the unusual incident attracted a number of curious onlookers.

Two fire trucks were dispatched to the scene of the "fire" at the intersection and the situation was soon in the capable hands of Capt. Theodore Degraze of the Sherbrooke fire department.

The incident occurred at about 7:30 p.m., but firemen took only a few minutes to extinguish the fire.

Elsewhere in Sherbrooke Friday, police reported at least a dozen minor accidents. However, no one was injured in any of them.

Right arm severed

MAGOG (PT) — A young Magog man, Real Cote, had part of his right arm completely severed Wednesday evening in an industrial accident at the Dominion Textile plant here.

Taken to La Providence Hospital in Magog, he had to be transferred immediately to St-Vincent-de-Paul Hospital in Sherbrooke, where Dr. Louis Hebert had to effect a grafting operation to sew Cote's arm back together again.

Cote, 28, did not lose consciousness either during the accident or while he was being taken to the hospital. He bled profusely, according to observers, and it initially was feared that doctors would not be able to graft because of the time lapse between the accident and arrival at St-Vincent-de-Paul.

Mr. Cote now has returned home to recuperate from the accident and subsequent operation.

Magog couple hurt

MAGOG (PT)—Roussel Aldrich, 19, and Alain Sager, 20, both of R.R. 2, Magog, were victims of a motorcycle accident Thursday night.

The accident occurred at the corner of St-David and Main Streets when the motorcycle on which they were travelling hit a car driven by Jean-Guy Charland, of 310 Main Street West, Magog.

Mr. Charland was travelling east on Main Street and wanted to turn left to enter a parking lot. It was at this moment that Sager, driver of the motorcycle, decided to beat Charland to it by cutting across his path.

Charland's car sent the two young motorcyclists flying towards a telephone pole, which they hit on the other side of the road.

The injured were taken to the Centre Hospitalier Universitaire in Sherbrooke where they are reported in satisfactory condition.

Critically injured in car mishap

AYER'S CLIFF (PT) — A young Waterloo man is in critical condition at the Centre Hospitalier Universitaire in Sherbrooke following a car accident which occurred on route 50 just inside the Ayer's Cliff town limits at 3:15 a.m. Sunday.

Jean-Paul Bisson, 22, son of Mr. and Mrs. Gerard Bisson, of 658 Foster Street, Waterloo, initially was taken to La Providence Hospital in Magog along with his three passengers but later had to be transferred to the CHU due to the serious nature of his injuries.

Roland Dion, 22, and Gilles Dion, 18, both of Warden, and Yvette Desautels, 18, of Eastman, returned home Sunday after receiving first aid treatment at La Providence.

Mr. Bisson's father said late yesterday that an operation on his son's head was performed earlier during the day, and that Jean-Paul remained in critical condition.

"They had to open up the whole top of his skull," he explained.

CHU authorities declined further comment on the accident.

The car, travelling on route 50, failed to make a turn, lost control, and hit a utility pole at the side of the road, knocking the pole over and across the road. Traffic had to be rerouted for 1½ hours before Hydro-Quebec maintenance men arrived to remove the live cable from its position in the middle of the road.

The car, upside down, was found by police 264 feet away from the spot at which it had left the road. It was facing the opposite direction from that in which it was travelling.

Ayer's Cliff Police Chief Wayne Little said the car was a total loss.

New federal building to be erected

LAKE MEGANTIC (PT) — The federal department of public works soon will erect a new two-storey federal government building here, it was announced Friday by Jean-Luc Pepin, minister of trade and commerce.

The local post office, courts, custom offices, manpower centre, unemployment insurance office and central government services all will be lodged in the new quarters.

The project had been postponed on numerous occasions for various reasons, mainly involving differences between the town of Lake Megantic and the federal government.

The building will be situated on Frontenac Street on the site of the former post office building.

Mr. Pepin had been authorized by the department of public works to accept the conditions proposed by municipal authorities of the town of Lake Megantic concerning the outward appearance of the future federal building.

National Farmers Union protests P.E.I. policies

CHARLOTTETOWN (CP) — Spokesmen for protesting Prince Edward Island farmers met Sunday to reassess their position after the weekend arrest of Roy Atkinson, president of the National Farmers Union.

The Saskatoon organizer was charged Saturday with "conspiracy to intimidate" after farmers, for the second straight day, blocked the main access route to the island by moving tractors, trucks and other vehicles onto the Trans-Canada Highway outside the CN ferry terminal at Borden.

Mr. Atkinson was jailed briefly, then released on $500 bail and is to appear in court at Summerside, P.E.I., Tuesday morning.

He met Sunday with local NFU organizers at a farm outside Summerside where plans were made for the next move in the dispute which centres on farm policies of the P.E.I. government.

The meeting was closed but a spokesman said later Mr. Atkinson would hold a news conference today, probably in Charlottetown, and farmers would continue to press their demands.

The demands, which stem from policy resolutions adopted in March, include lower vehicle registration fees, low-interest loans, legislation to outlaw corporate farming and the right to use marked gasoline in farm trucks.

Meetings were held during the spring between NFU and government officials and the dispute heated up late in July when Premier Alex Campbell announced the province could not afford to meet the demands.

Highway demonstrations started Aug. 12 with farmers marshalling tractors at key points across the island and calling for a meeting with the premier.

The protests peaked Friday when farmers blocked the highway outside Borden, disrupting ferry service to Cape Tormentine, N.B., and snarling traffic at both terminals.

RCMP officers, acting on orders from Justice Minister Gordon Bennett, broke up the demonstration about six hours later. Heavy earthmoving equipment was standing by in the event the farmers refused to leave. It was not needed.

The highway was blocked at the same point Saturday but protesters dispersed quickly after RCMP arrested Mr. Atkinson and ordered them to move. There were no other arrests.

BRING IN POLICE

RCMP officers from across the island were brought in to police the demonstrations and at one point the four-man Borden detachment swelled to 57.

NFU spokesmen claims to have involved a majority of the province's more than 3,000 farmers in their demonstrations, but refuses to disclose the size of NFU membership of the island. It has been estimated at less than 1,000 by some island agricultural officials.

Premier Campbell said in a radio broadcast Friday the government would not accept the NFU "as representative of our farmers" or be forced to govern "under the threat of ultimatum."

"We will not be harassed into making decisions upon terms which will satisfy one part of our society to the detriment of the majority of island citizens."

Kennedy aide linked to PC defeat-Dief

KITCHENER, Ont. (CP) — Former prime minister John Diefenbaker charged Saturday night that former United States president John Kennedy assigned one of his top political organizers to the national Liberal party during the election which saw Mr. Diefenbaker's downfall.

"He turned over one of his top organizers to the Liberals," Mr. Diefenbaker said. "This man operated out of Toronto under an assumed name."

The former Conservative prime minister said Kennedy wanted him to quit selling wheat to China "and told me so."

"I had to point out that Canada was not Massachusetts or even Boston," Mr. Diefenbaker said.

This independent attitude, he said, angered Mr. Kennedy and led him to work behind the scenes to effect the Diefenbaker government's downfall.

ADDRESS PRESS CLUB
Mr. Diefenbaker was addressing the Kitchener-Waterloo Press Club after a speech to the 54th annual Kiwanis district convention.

U.S. leaders have little regard for their Canadian counterparts, he said, and this is evident by the controversy over the recently-announced additional tax on imports and Canada's clashes with the late president Kennedy.

He said U.S. President Richard Nixon's failure to give Canada advance warning of economic measures including the additional import tax reflect Washington's usual low regard for Ottawa.

Ottawa's request to Washington for exemption from the new tax, he said, was like "carrying a tin cup to put out a forest fire."

QUEBEC IN FOCUS

Held as witness into death

LA MINERVE, Que. (CP) — A 38-year-old woman from Laval, a suburb of Montreal, was being held by Quebec Provincial Police Sunday as a material witness in the hanging death of 12-year-old Daniel Goddard.

The boy was found by a neighbor Friday night hung, gagged with his hands tied behind his back, in a cottage rented by his parents for the summer.

After lengthy questioning Saturday, QPP homicide detectives took the woman into custody on a coroner's warrant as a material witness.

La Minerve is about 100 miles northwest of Montreal.

Shot to death Friday

RESTIGOUCHIE, Que. (CP) — Two young men, one a teenager, were shot Friday night as they allegedly attempted to enter a school on the Restigouche Indian reserve.

Provincial police said the two men were shot by a guard.

Indians demonstrated at the school Sunday and said they will refer the shooting to the Quebec Federation of Indians.

A police statement is expected today.

One of the men was in serious condition at hospital with leg wounds. The other suffered minor injuries.

The guard was posted at the school earlier this summer because of vandalism.

Bus fares to increase

MONTREAL (CP) — Fares on provincial buses will be increased by five per cent effective Aug. 30, Provincial Transport Ltd. has announced.

However, special day and weekend rates between Montreal, Quebec, La Tuque and Roberval will remain unchanged.

The company recently signed a new contract with bus terminal employees and a company spokesman said the increase was due to union demands.

Bus mishaps injures 34

VAL D'OR, Que. (CP) — Thirty-two persons were injured early Sunday, eight of them seriously, when a bus overturned and rolled down an embankment after swerving to avoid a moose that crossed a road in La Verendrye park in Northwestern Quebec.

Provincial police arriving at the scene, 130 miles northwest of Ottawa, rushed the eight seriously injured persons to hospital in Val d'Or where they were reported in good condition.

DR. LAWRENCE E. LAMB

Polyunsaturated fats are safe

Dear Dr. Lamb—According to an article I read, the use of polyunsaturated oil in cooking is just as harmful to a person's health as saturated fats. The article states that heating to a normal degree and time in the average cooking resaturates the fats or oil and actually contributes to the very condition they are supposed to alleviate. In addition, the heated oils are toxic and even carcinogenic. The main point of the article is the negligence on the part of physicians in advising the use of polyun-saturated fats and oils to lower blood cholesterol without stressing that such oils and fats should not be heated or used in cooking.

Is this an accepted medical position?

Dear Reader—NO! It is not an accepted medical position and is misinformation. In writing on this point, Dr. Ancel Keys of the University of Minnesota, who has long been a champion of polyunsaturated fats states, "Heating oils, as in ordinary cooking, or a reasonable re-use of frying oils does not make them dangerous."

To this may I add that the Inter-Society Commission on Heart Disease reported on diet Dec. 15, 1970, and once again recommended limitation of fat and that about a third of the fat should be of the polyunsaturated fat type.

This represents more accurately accepted medical opinion. Even the dissenters feel the evidence is strong enough that it is the best advice that can be given at the present time.

The changes in the diet that need to be accomplished to meet the recommendations are not as difficult as many imagine. You can decrease the percentage of fat in a meal and still use meat. For example, if a lean roast is boiled, or pot roasted with the fat skimmed off the fluid and served with vegetables boiled with the meat, the per cent of calories from fat will be reduced.

The problem is the American habit of serving a potato with the meat garnished with a lot of butter, margarine or sour cream. If the food that goes with the meat was not soaked in grease or fat and salads were served with low-fat dressings made with polyunsaturated fat, the meat issue wouldn't be so important. Serving fish and chicken part of the time would balance out the distribution of various types of fat. To a large extent, the problem is not so much the fat that comes naturally in food, but the habit of artificially adding fat to naturally nonfat foods, failure to serve a balanced diet, and too much of everything.

The silly season

The observation has already been made on this page in the past few weeks that summer is the silly season in the political world.

Legislatures are in recess for most of the time and elected officials find themselves with time on their hands, seemingly, to sit back and ponder all those matters which were imponderable when the crush of activity of the fall, winter and spring seasons were upon them.

The same situation holds true, it would appear, in the academic community.

It was reported last week that Dr. Morrie Baum, a professor of psychology at Bishop's University in Lennoxville had seized upon a moment of divine inspiration and proceeded to found a chapter of the Parti Quebecois at the university.

To this date the news of this revolutionary happening has been sufficiently exciting to the members of the Bishop's community that Dr. Baum has corralled one recruit for his new movement. It remains to be seen, of course, what enthusiasm will be generated when the student population returns in force for the start of classes next month, but any reasonable assessment of the clientele to which the good professor is catering would indicate that the bandwagon will be an abysmally quiet and slow-rolling one.

Bishop's University draws its students from two primary sources: the Eastern Townships and the English-speaking suburbs of Montreal. In neither locality is there likely to be found a hotbed of separatist sentiment.

The question then presents itself: just what motivated Dr. Baum to launch upon this venture foredoomed to, at best, apathy, or, more likely, ridicule?

The professor is quoted as saying his neophyte organization is meant to attract those people in the area who are "progressive, believers in a socialist democracy, and are convinced that some things in Quebec have to change."

Even Jean-Marie Cliche, president of the Sherbrooke chapter of the PQ, is doubtful about the chance of the separatist group gaining any sort of toehold at an English-language university of as long traditions as is Bishop's.

It may be that Dr. Baum, who is about to enter upon his second year of teaching in Lennoxville, is unaware that the campus is nowhere near as politically radicalized as is that of Montreal's McGill University, where the professor held forth previously.

If Dr. Baum believes, then, that it is his calling to awaken the Bishop's student body to the call of progressivism, socialist democracy and change, he may well find himself a prophet without disciples.

The Bishop's community remains one of those college campuses where academic pursuits, athletics and off-hours entertainment hold sway among the students.

This fact, combined with a small enrollment which restricts the number of potential followers, makes radical campus politics a difficult cause to promote.

And if Dr. Baum wants to maximize his chances of getting some sort of ball rolling, he most certainly should not embrace the PQ as the vehicle for his aspirations. The goal of Quebec independence is hardly one to enchant the English-speaking Eastern Townshippers and Montrealers who study at Bishop's.

It is only regrettable that a professor should be spending his time trying to drum up support for a hopeless cause, in the Bishop's context at least, instead of lending what talents he possesses to more worthwhile and plausible causes.

If Dr. Baum seeks progress and change for the better, he could do well to abandon the fascination he is displaying for a political thesis based on a return to a lost isolationist age.

And if he seeks social democracy, perhaps he should examine what elements have most opportunity to gain from Quebec independence. Those elements are neither the people of Quebec nor democracy.

In the arms of the Kremlin

By LUBOR J. ZINK

OTTAWA — The Indian-Soviet treaty signed in New Delhi this week appears to be the first spinoff from President Nixon's new Asian policy. The 20-year "friendship" treaty, reportedly arranged at short notice, is in fact a camouflaged military pact. Prompted by rising tension between India and Pakistan, it reflects the decline of Western, particularly American, power and prestige in Asia.

As a member of the British Commonwealth of Nations and a developing country which seeks to adapt the Westminster-type parliamentary system to its conditions and needs, India would normally turn to Britain and the rest of the Commonwealth for assistance in any of her difficulties. Since Britain ceased to be a serious power factor in the Far East, and since the Commonwealth now amounts to little more than a strife-torn fiction of common interests, India would normally seek help from the United States as the world's most powerful and richest democracy.

While geography and India's initial desire to steer a neutral course in the East-West ideological and power conflict have not exactly favored close ties with the U.S., in the case of dire emergency an alliance with the major democratic country rather than with the leading totalitarian power would still be India's natural choice.

The fact that India has now formally turned to Moscow instead of Washington in what the government in New Delhi obviously regards as dire emergency gives a fairly clear indication of the decline of American power in Asia.

The picture is, of course, complicated by Pakistan's nominal membership in the U.S.-led Southeast Asia Treaty Organization under whose provisions it receives American military equipment as well as economic aid. But this could have hardly been a major factor in India's decision to sign a pact with Moscow, for the shipment of U.S. arms to the military regime in Pakistan is currently under review in Washington and American help in the border war with China has not been forgotten in New Delhi.

I think there can be little doubt that what pushed India into the arms of the Kremlin was the American retreat from Indochina and, above all, President Nixon's sudden "detente" with Peking.

Although the Indian Government ostensibly approves of both these U.S. moves, it cannot but interpret them as weakening of American power.

It's logical for the political and military planners in New Delhi to conclude from this that in the event of war with Peking-backed Pakistan, they would need an ally with a greater determination and staying power than the U.S. seems to possess.

The net result of these calculations, the clincher of which must have been the announcement of Nixon's trip to Peking, is the slide of India into the Soviet camp. Considering the population and the strategic position of the subcontinent in the Indian Ocean area, this represents an enormous Soviet gain in what the Kremlin calls "correlation of forces," and a grievous Western loss even if the shift is viewed in terms of the outmoded "balance of power" concept. For once it has India in its clutches, the Kremlin won't let it slip away, won't let its strategic potential lie dormant, and won't watch India's internal struggle for survival of its shaky democratic structure with detached benevolence.

Many Western observers of Soviet affairs delight in describing the ruling clique in the Kremlin as a bunch of aged, dull, unimaginative, slow-moving bureaucrats out of touch with reality and unable to reach any major decision when it is needed quickly. The alacrity with which they responded to India's treaty proposal in a potentially explosive situation puts this image in doubt.

Knowing full well that the military government of Pakistan has, contrary to Peking's loudly proclaimed commitment to support all "liberation" movements, the backing of the Maoists, the men in the Kremlin did not hesitate to take the risk of Soviet involvement in a conflict that could escalate into an all-out clash with China.

Moscow's readiness to sign such a risky pact with India (which on her part sees no alternative to a credible deterrent of war with Peking-supported Pakistan) seems to confirm, at least indirectly, the widely held assumption that a Sino-Soviet war is merely a matter of time. Those who hold this view now are saying that a clash between India and Pakistan over the fate of the unfortunate Bengalis would merely provide a convenient excuse for Soviet destruction of China's budding nuclear arsenal.

I still don't see it that way. Had the Kremlin wanted an excuse for attacking China before it grew too strong for a quick knockout punch, it had the excuse of the border clashes on the Manchurian border.

The fact that the border skirmishes did not escalate meant that Moscow did not regard war with China as inevitable. For if it did, why let China grow stronger?

It seems much more likely that the Kremlin has reason to expect big changes in the Peking regime after Mao's death — changes that would allow a patching up of the Sino-Soviet rift. If so, Moscow may genuinely see the pact with India as a deterrent of a conflict it does not want. Thanks to the American cave-in policy, the pact does, of course, offer an excellent opportunity for expansion of Soviet influence in Asia and the Indian Ocean area.

It was, on the whole, a victory for the dirigistes, the economists who believe in strongarming the situation so as to bring about the desired results.

The opposite approach is the market approach, with intervention substantially limited to careful increases in the money supply to keep steady the flow of grist for the expanding economic machine. It is obvious that Mr. Nixon's patience gave way, and that he turned from the course of action recommended by Messrs. Friedman and Schultz, in order to act decisively; or, if not that, in order to appear to be acting decisively.

Concerning what he actually did, a few observations: 1) It's remarkable that a single man can exercise the power the President exercises. Granted, those powers have been given him over the years by Congress, which happily dishes up enabling legislation and leaves it to the President to use the powers, or not. It was so in the matter of price controls. Whenever he chose, he could invoke them. He has chosen. We shall have price controls. For how long?

Here Mr. Nixon is playing the game artfully. He does not believe that price controls work either over the very short term or over the very long term. In the long term, price controls cannot work in a moderately free society because no human intelligence can keep track of the distortions caused by freely acting enterprises and consumers. In the very short term they cannot work because people will resist adjusting to them if relief is in prospect. To be told by an employer that he cannot grant a raise for 90 days means merely that on the 91st day the employee will insist on getting a raise that takes into account his accumulated, 90-day thirst.

That being the case, the likelihood is that some time before the 90th day, the President will announce an additional 90 days, or 180 days, or whatever — stretching out the wage and price control period to an intermediate length, where temporarily it can be effective. Meanwhile, he hopes for a psychological break in upward expectations.

2) There are complicated reasons why the President is entitled to believe that the United States is unfairly shouldering too much of an overhead that should be distributed more equitably among responsible members of the international community. He didn't give these reasons.

He should have. Because the enormous tariff increase will strike most people as a turn towards protectionism pure and simple. If Mr. Nixon is trying to tell Japan and Germany and Italy and France and England that our plight is related to our international commitments, done substantially for the benefit of Japan and Germany and Italy and France and England, he would have done well to have said so.

Meanwhile, we are seeking to protect the dollar by the old and discredited expedient of The Tariff. Mr. Nixon did not point out that tariffs are themselves inflationary. It follows that if American consumers are not permitted to shop around for the lowest priced goods (that is the tariff's effect), they must pay higher prices. Poor, poor Mr. Sato, Peking, and now tariffs. He will know what Pearl Harbor felt like.

3) Mr. Friedman can absolutely be counted upon to say that his theories were not given an adequate exercise. There is no doubting that he is correct. But it is possible that his theories suffer from the overriding disqualification that they simply cannot get a sufficient exercise in democratic situations — because it takes longer for them to produce results than the public is prepared to wait.

That raises all the ancient issues: is a society, once it has started tinkering with the economy as substantially as ours has done, forever committed to economic interventionism? Is it eternally involved in fine-tuning — up this tariff, down that tax, up that expenditure, freeze that interest rate: the only thing remaining constant being the rhetoric? That is always the same. Coueist. Things are getting better and better.

Thanks — needless to say — to the current management.

WASHINGTON — At bottom, none of the all too numerous great wars of the modern era was fought for moral or ideological or even political reasons. The reason in each case was always basically the same, in fact.

An overly dangerous upset of the balance of power was threatened by the France of Napoleon, by Hohenzollern Germany and then by Adolf Hitler's Germany. All other nations felt themselves directly menaced by the upset in the balance of power. The most unlikely coalitions therefore took form to set the power balance right once more.

Here, really, is the key to the series of articles in this space. In these, I have been trying to explain why my view of our country's situation in this weary, perilous world is so sharply different from the currently fashionable, more optimistic view. What seems to be happening; to the world balance of power is the real heart of the matter.

The worst of it is that, for the life of me, I cannot offer an exact mathematical formula that you can put into a computer in order to determine the exact present state and future trend of the world power balance. Besides the obvious military, political and geopolitical factors, there are just too many intangibles such as firmness of national will and a national capacity to act with swiftness and ruthlessness decision.

Worse still, all the intangibles now favor the Soviet Union rather than the United States. They are the same intangibles that favored Adolf Hitler in the '30s, until the coalition formed against him, far too late to prevent World War II but not, thank God, too late to win it.

Worrying about the power balance would not be such a lonely business in America today, I believe, if most Americans had not given up reading history.

Our trouble, I sometimes suspect, is that in about my own generation Americans almost universally ceased to study the Old Testament, for no nation intimately familiar with the Old Testament, as this nation used to be, can possibly cherish the illusion that the historical process is anything but harsh and full of danger.

Endangered balance

At any rate, the greatest philosophical-historical work ever written, Thucydides' study of the cruel Peloponnesian War, opens squarely with the problem of the power balance. And Thucydides took it completely for granted — as needing no further explanation — that Sparta, Corinth and the other allies were quite rightly worried by the increasingly overweening power of the Athenian empire.

The record further shows that good intentions do not alter the dire effects of a total upset of the power balance. The first Romans entered Greece as "liberators," with the sincere intention of freeing Athens and the other Greek states from the bullying power of Macedonia. But Rome's power was quite unchallengeable by then. Thus the liberated Greeks soon enough ended as subjugated Greeks.

Exactly how and exactly why the power balance produces such drastic and often terrible results you cannot put into computer terms. But it always has done so. And we cannot suppose that God or history has now made a special exception from the rules of the power balance in favor of this fat, self-pitying, guilt-ridden, rather flabby country of ours.

To make matters worse, the inner nature of the power balance itself has also mutated drastically. No nation can any longer claim to be a serious power in the balance that is not also a serious nuclear power. Thus the world balance at present is strictly bipolar — between the United States and the U.S.S.R. in fact.

Because the balance is so purely bipolar, at least as yet, there is another point we also have to face. Everyone else's freedom — the freedom of Israel and Britain, France and Peru, Italy and Indonesia and even Japan at the present time — depends exclusively upon the will and strength of the United States. This is why it is 10 times more unsafe for the United States to weaken and to withdraw into itself than it was in the feckless years between the two world wars.

The present, indeed, closely resembles the tragic '30s. We do not have Adolf Hitler's rhetoric to warn the few who will listen. But everywhere the Soviets are now probing, and often most successfully probing, for major upsets in the world balance of power.

The great problem of today, therefore, is the great problem of the 1930s — to prevent the kind of final upset in the balance that must either lead to World War III or to general submission and a new world empire. And in solving this problem, also, the unique responsibility is American.

Bridal showers

INVERNESS — A very pleasant social evening was enjoyed in the Orange Hall at Inverness, on the evening of August 10, where Miss Joan Stevenson was the guest of honor at a miscellaneous shower.

Miss Stevenson who was soon to become the bride of Mr. Winston White, had made application previously to become a member of Orange Lily Lodge of the L.O.B.A. and had been informed that her initiation would STANSTEAD — Approximately 30 relatives of the Dewey Family gathered at the home of Mr. James Dewey at Stanstead to honor him and his fiancée, Mrs. Carole Thompson of Montreal whose marriage took place on August 20, for a Jack and Jill shower.

This had been planned as a surprise by Mr. Dewey's sisters-in-law, Mrs. Lawrence Dewey and Mrs. Donald Dewey, and Mrs. Thompson's daughters, Heather and Bonnie. The bride and groom elect were presented with a corsage and boutonniere.

take place that evening. Hence, going to the hall that night excited no suspicion, and she was dumbfounded on entering the hall to be greeted by some 60 ladies waiting her appearance.

Joan received many useful presents for her new home, for which she expressed her sincere thanks.

A social hour was enjoyed by all following a delicious lunch prepared and served by the members, and intimate friends of the family involved.

The evening was delightfully spent socially with music, and chatting. On behalf of the group, little Miss Cindy Dustin presented the couple with a gift of money for which they voiced their appreciation and for the grand surprise.

The refreshments served included a shower cake, made and decorated by Mrs. Horace Doyon in the design of wedding bells in a color scheme of white with green and pink roses. This was cut and served by Mrs. Thompson.

KABOBS — The sweet-sour flavor of the beef makes a unique meal-on-a-skewer.

Combined with a tangy salad dressing, the taste combination is delightful.

Meal-on-a-skewer to try

Take some morsels of meat and vegetables, thread on a skewer, marinate and broil. The result is kabobs—one illustration of the whole being better than the sum of its parts.

The reason is the marvelous merging of flavors that gives the finished product a unique taste. Vary the combinations and marinades and the meal-on-a-stick is transformed into a new dish. Here, for instance, is a kabob recipe from our Test Kitchens that has a piquant sweet-sour flavour—a delicious complement for most meat-vegetable assortments.

The marinade in these Plum Good Beef-Bobs is a simple mixture—jars of baby's strained plums, an envelope of au jus gravy mix and some oil and vinegar. After marinating, baste the kabobs with the sauce to keep them moist while grilling.

Serve the kabobs with crusty rolls and a tossed green salad with a creamy dressing. This Tangy Salad Dressing is a tempting combination of dairy sour cream and prepared mustard.

PLUM GOOD BEEF-BOBS
1 envelope (½ oz.) Gravy Mix

2 jars (4½ oz. each) strained plums (for babies)
¼ cup vinegar
¼ cup salad oil
1½ pounds sirloin or round steak, cut into 1-inch cubes

Large mushroom caps
Combine gravy mix right from the envelope, strained plums, vinegar and salad oil in small saucepan. Bring to a boil; simmer 2 to 3 minutes, stirring constantly. Cool. Thread steak, mushrooms and tomatoes on 6 skewers, place in shallow pan, and pour plum sauce over them. Let stand ½ hour. Grill over medium hot coals 15 to 20 minutes until meat is cooked, brushing with sauce occasionally. 6 servings.

TANGY SALAD DRESSING
½ cup dairy sour cream
2 tablespoons salad oil
1 tablespoon Prepared Mustard
1 tablespoon Instant Minceed Onion
¼ teaspoon salt
½ teaspoon pepper
Combine ingredients; let stand 10 minutes. Serve on lettuce wedges. Makes ¾ cup.

Unique family reunion held

A most heart-warming and unique reunion was held recently at the home of Mr. Elmer Cummings in St. Johnsbury, Vermont, for the family of the late Mr. and Mrs. Frederick Cummings of Richmond, Quebec.

Though the setting was quite far from where the family actually lived and grew up, it was somewhat appropriate, in that Mr. and Mrs. Cummings were married in nearby Waterton, Vermont, back in the year 1898. It was in their memory that all of their eleven children got together, along with numerous friends and relatives from all over Canada and United States to pay tribute.

The children, in order of their birth are as follows: Melzar Cummings, Mgr. CIBC retired, Vancouver, B.C.; Oscar Cummings, Cda Packers, retired, Toronto, Ontario; Elmer Cummings, restaurant owner, retired, Las Gatas, California; Walter Cummings, buyer for Frank Tea & Spice, retired, St. Johnsbury, Vermont; Grace Warn, school teacher, retired, Havelock, Ontario; Ruth Satchell, registered nurse, retired, Toronto, Ontario.

Darel Cummings, purchasing agent, Union Twist Drill, Derby Line, Vermont; Roy Cummings, farmer, retired, Richmond, Quebec; Marcia Walker, school teacher, retired, Ottawa, Ontario; Myrtle Bradford, secretary, retired, Lachute, Quebec; Dorothy Cummings, bank clerk, retired, Halifax, N.S.

Few families of this magnitude and seniority can boast of meeting without absences due to sickness or death and this is what made it so unique. The highlight of the day was a visit by Ruth Hanks of Whitefield, N.H., she being the sister of the original Marcia Cummings.

Accompanying the direct family were Herbert and Florine Cummings of Silos, Ala.; Herbert and Nancy Mosher, Nashua, N.H.; Mr. and Mrs. Melzar Cummings and their son

Brian; Adams, Mass.; Russell Silverson both of Lachute, Quebec. Not to be forgotten; Wyman and Phyllis Ails and their sons Stuart, Kenneth and Jamie, Cobourg, Ontario; Allan and Diane Ails, Georgetown, Ontario; Robert and Jean Satchell, Brampton, Ontario; Douglas and Louise Jenkins, Montreal, Quebec; Gabrielle Paine, Derby Line, Vermont; Donna Jenkins and William of days gone by.

MARRIED — Mr. and Mrs. Stewart B. Williams are seen above cutting their wedding cake. Mrs. Williams is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Asa Squires, and Mr. Williams is the younger son of Mr. and Mrs. Baxter Williams.

Williams, Squires wed

FOSTER — On Saturday afternoon, July 17, at St. Luke's Anglican Church, Waterloo, the marriage of Heather Dawn, fourth daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Asa Squires of South Stukely, to Stewart B. Williams, younger son of Mr. and Mrs. Baxter Williams of Foster, took place.

Rev. David Mercer officiated at the double ring ceremony. Mrs. Merdoch presided at the organ. Baskets of seasonal flowers decorated the altar, and the guest pews were marked by white ribbon bows.

The bride, given in marriage by her father, wore a white lace gown over crepe, featuring an empire waist, long sleeves, and tiered ruffled panels in the skirt. The long veil, featuring hand embroidery around the edge, was attached to a pearl and sequin crown. The veil was made and worn by the groom's mother 25 years ago.

The maid of honor, Miss Julie Heath, wore a yellow floor-length gown of flowered sheer with an empire waist and an A-line skirt.

The bridesmaids, Linda Vaillancourt and Miss Cheryl Squires, sisters of the bride, were in pale green. Miss Donna Sylvan, niece of the bride, was junior bridesmaid and Penny Squires, younger sister of the bride, was train bearer; both wore pink.

All the dresses were of the same style as that of the maid of honor, and all were made by the bride's mother, except that of the maid of honor, which was made by Mrs. Bruce Heath.

Mr. Stanley Whitehead was best man, and the ushers were Randal Williams, of Foster, brother of the groom, David Tibbitts of South Stukely and Lloyd Harvey of Dunham.

The bride's mother wore a blue fortrel dress with navy and white accessories, and a corsage of roses.

The groom's mother wore pink fortrel with navy blue accessories, and a rose corsage.

The groom's paternal great-grandmother, Mrs. J. J. Irwin, wore a blue fortrel dress with white accessories and a corsage of yellow roses.

Mrs. Maurice Williams and Mrs. Lena Sidorchuk, paternal and maternal grandmothers, were both in hospital in Montreal and Sherbrooke, respectively, and were unable to attend.

Following the ceremony, the reception was held at the Canadian Legion Hall, Lewis Street, Waterloo. Mrs. Marilyn Sylvan, eldest sister of the bride, was in charge of the guest book.

The bridal table was centred with a four-tiered wedding cake made by Mrs. Baxter Williams and decorated by Mrs. Malcolm McPherson.

For travelling, the bride wore a pale yellow fortrel pant suit with white accessories and a rose corsage.

Guests were from Milton, V., Montreal, Cowansville, Dunham, Knowlton, Sutton, Foster, South Stukely, Waterloo and Florida.

The bridal couple are now residing on Foster St., Waterloo, where the groom is employed.

The bride was entertained prior to her marriage at a large shower in the church hall, South Stukely, given by Mrs. Norma Vaillancourt, and at a "lawn shower" at the home of Mrs. Bruce Heath, and Miss Julie Heath.

KEVIN GERARD — Eight and a half month old son of Mr. and Mrs. Stanley Crawford of Sherbrooke, Quebec, is the grandson of Mr. Albert Crawford, and the late Kathleen Crawford of Sher., Mr. and Mrs. Gerald Fullum of Albert Mines, the great-grandparents are Mr. Ernest Crawford of Sherbrooke, Mr. and Mrs. Dave Flanagan of Sherbrooke, and Mr. and Mrs. Albert Digby of Albert Mines.

Children's fashions are liberated

It's the children's turn for fashion liberation.

The profusion of Canadian fabric and clothing fashions, now ready for the back-to-school buying rush, include all the ingredients for good looks and practical performance. The whole gamut of grown-up styling favorites; the versatile put-together items; the care-free and comfortable fabrics, plus care labelling and standard sizing.

Shorts, natural for little girls, are shown for Fall, combined with skirts, dresses and vests. The pant dress is very strong and the fact that the dress can be worn alone or as a topper for pants is hampered home in countless displays.

Knickers are a natural for youngsters. They go it alone as jumpsuits or they are teamed with vests, zippered sweaters and jackets. Colored tights are the magic key which will help unite any variety of items and are shown in many versions and colors, including lacey designs for dress-up wear.

Care-free Canadian knit fabrics are a great favorite for children's clothing and feature new heather and denim effects. Corduroys in new Donegal print patterns or wide-wale versions trimmed with suede-like fabrics are everywhere this year.

The peasant influence, a carry-over from summer, is still strong in girls' dresses for Fall. You see it in puff sleeves, full skirts, hemline flounces and in small printed cottons and blends with "ethnic" braid trimmings. Polka dots, plaids, stripes, mosaic prints and even patchwork patterns abound in cotton, wool and man-made fibre blends in knits, jerseys, denims, plaid fabrics and cords.

For boys, there are five major styles: The blazer suit with shirt and tie, the sleeveless belted cardigan suit, the casual sporty look of the Eisenhower battle-jacket suit, the sport pant and shirt combination, and the "overall." The latter comes in stretch denim, complete with buttons, shoulder straps, white stitching and buttons.

Boys' fabrics tend to solid shades, but the aforementioned plaids, stripes and denims are used in great variety. Corduroys are big in boys' fashions and of course knits of all descriptions.

In coats, the Canadian children's wear manufacturers obviously had last winter in mind. Not that anyone hopes for a repeat of those conditions, but the styles have prepared for it just in case. Girls' coats are long, hooded, belted and trimmed or lined with fake fur and feature such cozy extras as shoulder-warming capes and patch pockets. Many of these coats will be worn with knickers or pants tucked into high boots.

Coat fabrics range from all the man-made piles and crushed velvet to artificial sheepskins and leather-look suedes and nylon ciro. Pile fabrics form the linings or the outer fabric or simply trim hoods, pockets, collars and cuffs, but the overall look is completely weather-resistant.

Personals

Congratulations and love are extended to Mr. and Mrs. George Speck, who will be celebrating their 50th wedding anniversary tomorrow, from Lloyd, Rowena, Everett, Pauline, Alma, Carl, Gerald, Ina, Lois, and their families.

Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Wilkin have returned to their home, Prospect St., Lennoxville, after spending three weeks with their son-in-law and daughter, Mr. and Mrs. Heinz Lorenzen, in Unionville, Ontario.

By Ann Landers

Dear Ann: It is Sunday afternoon, our 13-year-old boy went to a ballgame, the 10- and 12-year-old girls are in the neighbor's pool and my husband went to his favorite tavern to get drunk. I am not writing to ask for advice. I am writing instead to thank you for the advice you gave me two years ago.

A few years ago I would have been crying my eyes out, or pouring out my anger to a friend on the telephone. But today I am calm, content and very happy with my life. Why? Because I listened to you and joined Al-Anon.

Every woman who is married to an alcoholic must at some point decide whether she is going to allow his problem to defeat her or learn how to live with it. Since I joined Al-Anon I love and understand my husband more than ever. Our marriage is better than most marriages where no drinking problem exists. Due to a marked change of attitude toward my husband, he has become a better father and a better person.

At the moment my husband has expressed no interest in joining A.A. I hope one day he will do so, but he must come to the decision himself. If he never comes to it, it's all right with me. I have learned to live with him and I appreciate the many other wonderful blessings in my life.

Please Ann, keep telling people about Al-Anon. It's a life saver, both literally and figuratively — in every sense of the word.

—Gage Park Member.

Dear Member: Not a week goes by that I don't receive at least three or four letters from readers in praise of Al-Anon. For those who would like to write for literature, the address is: Al-Anon Family Group Headquarters, Inc., P.O. Box 182, Madison Square Station, New York, New York 10010. I urge you to do so. You have nothing to lose but the price of a stamp.

Dear Ann Landers: I am bothered by a problem which I am sure is a continual source of conflict for many divorced women with small children.

When I first began dating, several men offered to pay my babysitter. I would not allow it because I had a good job and made more money than most of the men who asked me out.

I lost my job three months ago.

My financial situation isn't what it used to be. These past several weeks I hinted to a couple of men who seemed very eager to date me, that it would be nice if they paid my sitter. They did not respond. Finally I came out and asked Mr. Z if he would mind paying my sitter when he drove her home. He agreed, but in such a cloddish manner that I felt like a beggar. Mr. X told me straight out that he didn't feel my sitter was his responsibility, and that I should not have asked him to pay her.

Now I am sour on both of these jokers and think I'd rather stay home. If a fellow really wants to take a girl out, isn't the sitter part of the date? I await your nationally sought opinion.

—Bellingham, Washington

Dear Bell: A man who asks a woman out is under no obligation to pay her sitter. He did not hire her, she does not work for him, and it should not be considered part of the date. Sorry I couldn't give you the answer you were after, but fair is fair.

Teachers have contributed much

HISTORY'S GREATEST TEACHERS

NEW YORK — Who were the greatest teachers the world has ever known and why? An examination of instruction through the centuries provides pedagogical perspective on how civilization — through enlightened educators — has overcome its many "class struggles."

Centuries ago, the primitives taught the art of survival, and the ancient Jews stressed adherence to tradition. The Romans later advocated the military life and the early Christians felt only the monastic life, not the worldly, was worthwhile.

History has it that the great social movements of the eighteenth century and the beginnings of the industrial revolution aroused profound humanitarian interest in the education of the masses. And few books have exercised such deep influence on the theory and practice of education as Jean Jacques Rousseau's "Emile," in which he attacked the formal education of the day and insisted on following nature as the best guide to the educative process.

Rousseau taught us a valuable lesson. He was the first to develop an educational theory based on naturalistic principles. Education, he believed, should be close to nature, and the child should be free to grow as a healthy human being.

Intellectual training and the powers of observation and of the senses were to be cultivated through contact with nature, and the ideas of conduct were to be acquired through "natural consequences."

The core of Rousseau's theory was put into practice by Johann Heinrich Pestalozzi in various schools in Switzerland. In his aim to psychologize education, he combined physical, moral, intellectual and manual work.

His major emphasis was on helping children learn by experience and observation, rather than by verbalism and memorization. Pestalozzi's work came at a crucial point in the history of education, when nations were beginning to establish systems of compulsory elementary education.

Developing the idea of the kindergarten was not child's play. The founder was Friedrich Froebel, who used this work to express his conception of the school as a garden in which children are comparable to unfolding plants. Making use of plays, games and songs, he opened, in 1837, a school for children between the ages of three and seven in Germany.

Between 1837 and 1852 Froebel established other kindergartens, and also a school for the training of young women as kindergarten teachers. Although Froebel accepted the teaching of Pestalozzi and Rousseau, the principles underlying his kindergarten are a fusion of religious concepts, outdoor life, idealistic philosophy and the emerging scientific spirit.

In America, where there has traditionally been a yearning for learning, a Springfield, Massachusetts Yankee named Milton Bradley originated such modern teaching aids as crayons and flash cards and "taught America to play." He was an extraordinary, fascinating 19th century man who left his imprint on our country, on the games we play and on our modern educational system.

Referred to as "The Edison of the American Kindergarten,"

Bradley with Elizabeth Peabody of Boston helped introduce the Froebelian theory of our modern kindergarten to the country.

Today, the company he founded in the 1880's produces up-to-date teaching-learning aids to support and reinforce text study in elementary mathematics, including the New Mathematics concepts. Its reading aids consist of visual and practice aids that speed the communication of a language sense from learning the alphabet to sentence construction. Along with art materials, general classroom aids provide a variety of learning activities and games that help the child develop mental and manual dexterity.

Modern American education was bountifully endowed by John Dewey, an advocate of pragmatism rather than absolutism. In the teachings of Dewey streams of thought meet in one comprehensive theory which has influenced all sectors of American schooling from the preschool level to that of the graduate and professional schools.

This is true although Dewey's theory was evolved primarily to improve public elementary education. But out of it has radiated an awareness of education as a tool of living, of learning, and of thinking whereby the social environment, not merely knowledge for its own sake, becomes the main objective.

Opposed to this theory is a new form of scholasticism and humanism which centers education in the knowledge of great books. Advanced by Chancellor Robert M. Hutchins and Professor Mortimer Alder of the University of Chicago, the theory is less of a systematically argued set of principles than a curricular pattern based upon the reading and discussion of great books. Advocates hold that inasmuch as human nature has not changed significantly during the past ten thousand years the problems of man are today essentially the same as in the remote or more immediate past.

Such are the theories and practices of some of the World's great teachers who, through the ages, have provided society with a truly educational experience.

Oswald: "East's tigerish contribution was rather cowardly. He did not double because he too expected that South would be able to bring home nine tricks."

Jim: "East held the first trick with the jack of spades. He continued with the ace and queen. South had his first trick. He led a club to dummy and returned a low diamond to finesse the queen after East played the four."

Then South ran off the rest of the clubs while discarding two of his hearts. East's three discards were the eight of hearts and eight-seven of spades. West got rid of two little hearts."

Oswald: "The defense had made it difficult for South. East was marked with the ace-king of hearts, king of diamonds and either the four of spades or a low diamond, but tigers always figure out end holding correctly. South played a heart from dummy and made the last two tricks on the end play when East had to lead away from his king-seven of diamonds."

The Day Under Your Sign

ARIES (Born March 21 to April 19)—Look over your records and weed out non-essentials. This will be a particularly hectic day at best.

TAURUS (April 20 to May 20) — You usually have difficulty in adjusting to new circumstances, but this will prove the exception.

GEMINI (May 21 to June 21) — Be careful not to stumble around in the dark, literally or figuratively. A negative day.

CANCER (June 22 to July 21)—Most of the day is under good aspects. Some spotty negative influences, but can be overcome with fine effort.

LEO (July 22 to Aug. 21) —You can reach record but you may have to "give" more than "take" in this particular instance.

VIRGO (Aug. 22 to Sept. 21) — Readiness to adapt to circumstances will impress those who count, particularly those who win the checks.

LIBRA (Sept. 22 to Oct. 22)—Anything that brings pleasure is under excellent stars today. Be selective in companionship, however.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23 to Nov. 21) — There seems to be no full after last night's storm. Difficulties can be worked out, so keep trying.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22 to Dec. 21) — Keep busy, but at your own pace and without anxiety. Take a more positive attitude about situation.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 to Jan. 20) — New-found friends will be so congenial that you'll feel you have known them for years. A fun day.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 21 to Feb. 19) — Minor details may trip you up, but you'll handle important matters with dispatch — as you usually do.

PISCES (Feb. 20 to Mar. 20)—Early morning schedules you prepared in care-freeness may have to be thrown to the winds before the day is over.

Case of mistaken identity

SHERBROOKE (PT) — A Martinville citizen has been the victim of a "mistaken identity" case for some time now.

Andre Vachon, secretary treasurer of the municipality and an employee of the department of roads and highways in Sherbrooke, is worried about his reputation because of another Andre Vachon.

One man named Vachon appeared in court last week to plead guilty to three accusations of obtaining money under false pretences.

This was not, however, the Andre Vachon who lives in Martinville and who recently had to have his name changed to Joseph Andre Vachon.

The latter said that the mistake had resulted in a court seizure at his home, one which should have been executed on the other Vachon.

Discussions at Bishop's

LENNOXVILLE (PT) — Several speeches and discussions on various subjects will be held Bishop's University here starting in September when students return to college. Dr. Morrie Baum announced recently.

The sessions, which anyone is free to attend, will be chaired by psychologists, psychiatrists and sociologists from the University of Sherbrooke. Discussion will revolve mainly around a central theme of psychology of the Quebec people and of Quebec today. Dr. Baum added.

established. It is planned to have at least one lecture a month.

Dr. Baum, a psychology professor at Bishop's University, emphasized that the Lennoxville population will be encouraged to attend, as scope of the project is not confined exclusively to students.

Hunting and fishing in the E.T.
By NORM NICHOLL

From time to time, we have mentioned that some type of forestry plan should be implemented to help the deer population to survive. Vermont has started such a plan that might lead to formulating such an approach.

The new idea is being carried on in a portion of the northeastern corner of the state, in a 38-acre section of the 1,000 acre Hurricane Brook Wildlife Management Area. The basic idea is to manage the timber stand to provide better shelter and browse for the deer.

By cutting the hardwood, much potential good may be accomplished. A tighter softwood cover overhead to support greater snow loads, thus providing better winter protection.

At this present, it is an experiment. In this mixed stand of timber, hardwoods have been dominating the softwoods, even though their numbers were fewer.

The upper branches make umbrellas over the softwoods. At ground level, roots of both are intermingled as they compete for nutrients. Few branches were low enough to provide nourishment for wintering deer. Frankly few deer have been able to yard in this area.

Hardwood pulp, saw logs, veneer logs from trees removed provide income to cover expenses for this management experiment. If this pilot project works perhaps private owners can be induced, when practical, to follow the guidelines formulated on this plot.

The basic ideas set forth in brief seem to have merit.

REPLY: We received a letter from Bert Hamilton, Magog, some time ago which was mislaid. Mr. Hamilton was grumbling about having to get in touch with his conservation officer to get his over 65 licence.

Unseeded Montrealer upsets net favorite

VANCOUVER (CP) — Mila Zarabova, an unseeded Montreal girl, scored the big upset of Sunday's play at the Canadian junior tennis championships, downing top-seed Tiffany Savard of Vancouver, 7-6, 3-6, 6-0, in the quarter-finals of the girls' 18-and-under singles.

Experts had thought the Eastern girl's chance were slim against the more experienced Miss Savard.

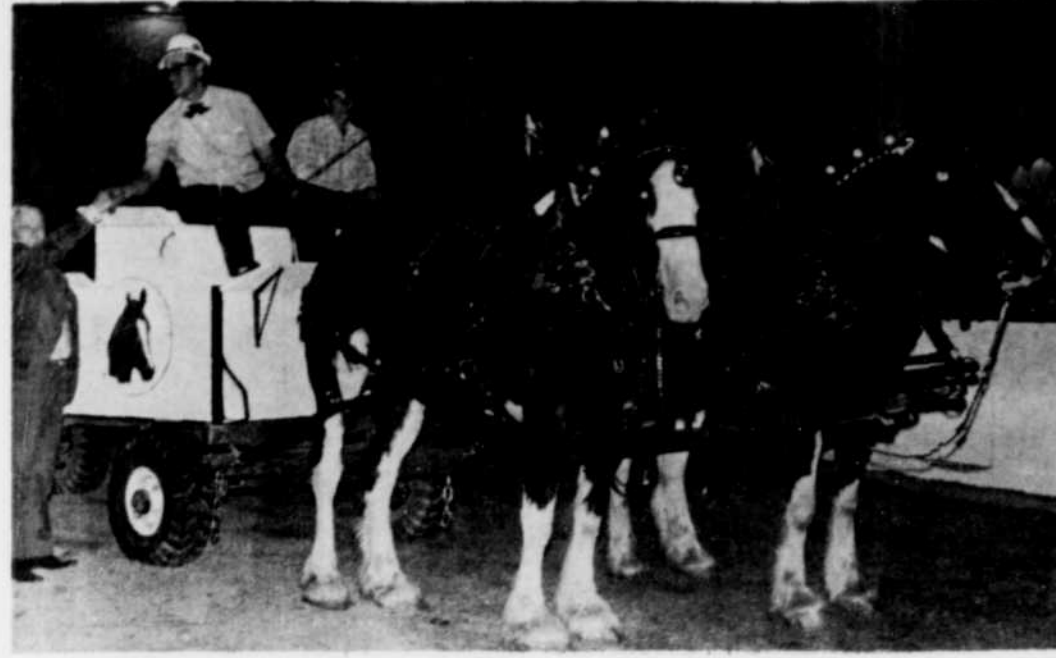

Winning a tie-breaking first set, the Montrealer then let down under Miss Savard's pressure in the second set. In the third set, Miss Zarabova played picture-book tennis to whitewash a lethargic loser.

Scheduled to place Miss Zarabova in the semi-finals was Kim Tindle of Vancouver who defeated Leslie Harris of Montreal, 6-4, 6-3.

Adrienne Straub of Toronto defeated Theresa Quigley of Toronto 6-4, 6-3 in quarter-final play. Miss Straub, second seed in the under-18 singles, was to play a semi-final match against Janet Hall of Vancouver, the third seed, who defeated Kathy Morton of Galt, Ont., 6-1, 6-4.

Hall of Famer dies

HAMILTON (CP) — Brian Timmis, a member of Canada's football Hall of Fame, died in hospital Sunday at the age of 71. He had been ill for several months.

Entries total 235 for Canadian junior golf

EDMONTON (CP) — A record 235 young golfers from across Canada have registered for the Canadian junior golf championships to be played in conjunction with the interprovincial junior team matches here this week.

The previous high total was 192.

The team matches, which have attracted entries from all 10 Canadian provinces, start today at Windermere Golf and Country Club.

Centre of attraction today was the Quebec team, last year's champions, coached by Dollard St-Laurent, a former National Hockey League player.

Weiskopf withstands Jack Nicklaus rally

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — Tom Weiskopf responded to a Jack Nicklaus charge with an eagle three on the 17th hole Sunday and won the $30,000 first prize in the Philadelphia Golf Classic.

The 6-foot-4 Weiskopf had a final-round 70 for a 274 total, 14 under par on the 6,708-yard Whittemarsh Valley Country Club course. It was his second victory of the year.

Weiskopf, who held a three-stroke lead starting the final round, finished one stroke ahead of Dave Hill with Nicklaus at the pace. Hill also eagled the 17th and had a 68 for 275.

Nicklaus, playing about two holes in front of Weiskopf, blew his chances when he missed a four-foot putt on the final hole and finished with a 67 for 276.

Homenuik tops CPGA field with 72-hole 273

SASKATOON (CP) — Wilf Homenuik of Winnipeg struggled to a three-over-par 73 Sunday for a 72-hole total of 273 and first place in the $25,000 Canadian Professional Golfers' Association tournament.

The 33-year-old Winnipeg veteran, picking up $5,000 in prize money, had earlier rounds of 65-67-68 over the par-70, 6-311-yard Saskatoon Golf and Country Club course.

Finishing second and earning $3,500 was Gary Slatter of Burlington, Ont., who shot a three-under-par 67 during the final round for 275. He had five birdies and an eagle on the par-five, 495-yard 16th hole.

Earlier, Slatter had a 68 and a pair of 70s.

Dick Munn of Vancouver, who blew to a two-over-par 72 final, shared third place with Bill Wakeham of Cowichan Station, B.C., with a 71 Sunday. They each picked up $2,000 with 277 totals.

Munn was 69-65-71 in earlier play and Wakeham was 68-73-65.

After the four-day tournament, CPGA directors named Homenuik and Moe Norman of Gilford, Ont., to represent Canada in the World Cup competition at Palm Beach Gardens, Fla., in November.

Norman, a disappointment during the week, earned $925 in a tie with Bill Wright Jr. of Edmonton, Vaughan Trapp of Victoria and Ken Fulton of St. Julie, Que. Each had 280, seven strokes behind Homenuik.
