FIVE THOUSAND ATTEND TWENTY-EIGHTH ANNUAL OPENING ORNSTOWN SHOW

CORONATION INFLUENCE SEEN IN SCHOOL PARADE WHICH PROVES OUTSTANDING FEATURE RECORD CROWDS EXPECTED

The twenty-eighth Annual Ormstown Exhibition held under the auspices of the Live Stock Breeders' Association of the District of Beauharnois opened last night and all indications pointed to one of the biggest and best shows in the history of the Association. An estimated crowd of 5,000, the largest for years, was on the grounds, and record breaking attendance for the remainder of the week is expected by the advanced sale of tickets which is larger than it has been for many years.

A parade, composed of students of the Ormstown High School, which proceeded from the school down the main street of the town to the Exhibition grounds, started early this morning, but the show was officially declared open by Donald E. Black, Chateauguy-Huntingdon, M.P., who was introduced by R. R. Ness, president of the Exhibition. In his opening address, given in French and English, Mr. Black said: "Mr. President, ladies and gentlemen, on behalf of the directors of our Show, we give you all a very hearty welcome here tonight. We hope you will all come back and bring your friends, as a great deal of the success of the show depends on your support. We also extend a welcome to all our Exhibitors, Americans and Canadians, and we will do our best to make your week a pleasant one for you. I have the honour to pronounce the Show now open."

Events in the arena during the evening included entertainment by Stanley's Races and Acts, Marie's Animal Circus and Carr Bros. European Clowns, and the judging of 7 events in the Harness Horse classes. The results of the judging were as follows:

Single carriage horse, not exceeding 152 hands—First, Miss E. Viau, Boucherville, Que.; second, J. W. Nesbit, Montreal; third, Miss E. Viau, Outremont; fourth, Earl Spafford, Knowlton.

Road horse, open to district of Beauharnois—First, W. C. Collings, Hemmingford; second, Donald E. Black, Aubrey, Que.; third, W. C. Collings, Hemmingford; fourth, Stanley Bryson, Brysonville.

Single harness pony, over 13, not exceeding 142 hands—First, R. A. Cameron, Rowanville; second, J. W. McVey, Longueuil; third, Philippe Desjardes, Outremont; fourth, Miss E. Viau.

Harness tandem—First, J. W. Nesbit, Montreal; second, E. K. Wilson, Lachute Mills; third, Miss E. Viau, Boucherville.

Saddle horse, over 152 hands—First, Miss E. Viau; second, C. J. Brooks, Bellow's Falls, Vt.; third, Edward J. McVey; fourth, M. T.

Attempt to Enter Osmond Store Made

Two Men Seen Forcing Way Into Ormstown Building

HAD CUT OUT GLASS

When Robert Winter was on his way home shortly after two o'clock Saturday morning, he saw two men making an attempt to enter Osmond Bros. store. On investigation it was found they had cut out a pane of glass in one of the rear windows and had evidently tried to pry open the door with a chisel before being interrupted. Mr. Winter was able to give a good description of the men who were not known locally.

The town officials have put on a night watchman during exhibition week, and the store owners are co-operating with them by leaving their premises lighted all night.

Mr. J. Alfred Langlois, bishop of Valleyfield, will make his visit to St. Malachie's parish on Saturday afternoon, when he will administer the sacrament of confirmation to a number of boys and girls. He will also spend Sunday here.

The regular monthly meeting of the Ormstown Garden Club met at the home of Mrs. A. W. Swan on Thursday evening, June 3rd. Mrs. Blair gave a very interesting and instructive talk on "Vegetables and their Culture." Questions were asked and answered.

Mrs. M. R. Stalker kindly offered her home for the next meeting which is to be on Thursday evening, July 8th. Patrick Meehan and son, Mr. Howard Meehan of St. Paul's, Minn., motored here and are spending two weeks with relatives, and at present are guests of Mr. and Mrs. George Murphy.

Mrs. Thos. Young of Malone, N.Y., spent last week guest of Mrs. A. W. Swan, and during exhibition week she is the guest of Mrs. Alex Logan.

Stark, Montreal, fifth, E. J. McVey.

The judge of the classes shown was Dr. E. Watson of Toronto. In Stanley's Races and Acts two jumping horses, without drivers, thrilled the audience with a clever jumping exhibition. First, they leaped over the hood of a car parked in the middle of the arena and then "High Spot," the best jumper of the two, gained great applause by jumping over the engine of the car with a man lying on the top of it.

Another entertaining feature of this act was a game of Push Ball, played with the largest ball of its kind in the world. Four mounted men, two on each side, endeavoured to drive the ball over their opponents' goal line by shoving it with their hands or knocking it with their horses.

During the afternoons, Stanley's Races and Acts will feature Roman Chariot Races and Roman Standing Races on the race track. The Carr Bros., famous European Clowns, added a particularly funny note to the proceedings with their balancing stunts, jumping and acrobatics. The highlight of their performance came as they played a violin and guitar to the accompaniment of a large rubber ball, which they bounced with their heads while playing the instruments. They also played the violin and guitar, while one of the brothers stood on his head on top of the other's head.

The Three Rosebuds, tap and novelty dancers, gave a smart performance, dancing with their ankles chained to each other's and then a dancing number with skipping ropes.

"Mr. Wheeler Man," part of Marie's Animal Circus, amazed the crowd with his bicycle gymnastics, doing all kinds of fancy riding on single and two-wheel bicycles. His fine performance drew great applause from the audience.

Another act of the Animal Circus was presented by Marie's trained dogs that showed almost human skill in their performance. They walked tight wires blind-folded, rolled barrels and teetered on a saw-saw.

The inside of the arena was gaily decorated with Coronation flags, streamers and crowns. Hunter's Electrical Shop of Huntingdon supplied the decorations.

Ladies of Fort Covington Home Bureau Visited Dundee

The Dundee Women's Institute held a most interesting meeting in their Community Hall on Wednesday afternoon, June 2nd. Twelve members of the Fort Covington Home Bureau joined them for an exchange of programmes. Mrs. Plait, the president, conducted the usual opening exercises and routine business. Seventeen members responded to the roll call "An Import or Export of Canada."

Mrs. Gardner as convener of Agriculture read the following articles: "Virginia's Peony Farm," "The Gold Apple" and "Extirmination of the Corn Borer." The convener of Home Economics, Mrs. Fleming, read the provincial outline of work and also gave a recipe for a "Hot Weather Beverage." She had made a pie from a part of this material and it was served at supper time.

A recipe for cookies was also given which were served later. Other hints were read which were labor saving. Mrs. Grant gave a report of the County Convention held last month.

The president then introduced Mrs. John Derchie of the Fort Covington Home Bureau, who gave a very interesting talk on "Slips that Fit." She also exhibited a number of slips which had been made by the Franklin County leaders, telling of the best use of each one. Textiles were discussed and

Grants Received By Farmers Were $6582 not $1210

In the last issue of the Gleaner, concerning Grants allotted to farmers in the County of Beauharnois for hail damage during an August 1936 storm, we stated that the amount was $1210.50. Mr. Delpha Sauvé, M.L.A., who with the help of Auguste Boyer, M.A., had obtained this compensation from the Department of Agriculture has since informed us that the grand total of money received was $6582.50 instead of $1210.50.

This amount was divided as follows in the County of Beauharnois: in St. Cecile parish nine farmers received $565.80; twenty-five received the sum of $2534.60 in the parish of St. Stanislas de Coste while $342.20 was distributed in the parish of St. Louis de Gonzague to forty-nine farmers.

A few weeks ago the farmers in St. Louis were compensated by receiving grains for that which was destroyed by the storm.

Pioneer of Chateauguy County Dies

Mrs. Wm. Ross, Ormstown, Was Prominent in Church Work

Mrs. William Ross, a member of one of the pioneer families of Chateauguy County and a native of Ormstown died suddenly Friday afternoon at her home on Main St., East.

Mrs. Ross was in her usual health and had been about her house work all day and during the afternoon had talked with many friends as she did some gardening in front of her home. After preparing supper she complained of feeling ill. Dr. Stalker was called but she passed away almost immediately.

The late Mrs. Ross, who before her marriage was Margaret Emma, daughter of James Reid and his wife Jane Weir, was born in Ormstown 70 years ago. In October 1896 she was united in marriage to William Ross and the couple resided on the farm homestead on Chateauguy River Road until Mr. Ross's death in 1907. Mrs. Ross with her family came to live in Ormstown in 1922, where she has been ever since.

A staunch adherent of St. Paul's United Church, Mrs. Ross was held in high esteem by her many friends and acquaintances to whom the news of her sudden death came with sincere regret.

A kindly and pleasant lady, she was closely identified with several organizations that principally devoted their efforts to church work of which she was a keen worker. She was an active member of the Ormstown Ladies' Curling and Bowling clubs.

Her death is deeply lamented by her many friends and relatives. Those surviving are one daughter, (Continued on page 5)

Hemmingford Society Held Closing Event

Young People Entertained Howick Friends in Final Meeting

The closing event of the year for the Young People's Society of Hemmingford took the form of a social evening, at which the members of the society, along with those of the Knox Y.P.S. entertained the Y.P.S. of Howick. Through the generosity of the Anglican Church of Hemmingford, the meeting took place in the Parish Hall. The programme opened with a sing-song followed by games under the direction of Mr. and Mrs. Ross, Mabel Keddy, Mrs. Percy Barr, and Nesbie Barr. An advertising competition was followed by a more strenuous competitive game. Next followed a dressmaking game in which the gentlemen were requested to make dresses for their partners, being provided only with newspapers and pins. The results were remarkably good, and, to Mr. Cecil Younie, of Howick, the prize was given for the best model. Mr. Younie dressed Miss Lois Grey, his partner, very becomingly as a queen.

Mr. Rose then made a speech, welcoming the guests and also commenting upon the generosity of the Anglican Church, and of the musicians, Mr. Bert Sarver, Mrs. E. Cleland and others. Mr. Younie replied in a speech on behalf of the Howick Society. Mr. Percy Barr then spoke on behalf of the Knox Y.P.S. Refreshments were served and dancing then followed for some time. An enjoyable time was had by all.

Their success appears to be successful until the corn meal starts falling out of the baby. There is a happy ending, however, when the boss's sweetheart enters the picture and announces their engagement is made.

The cast of the characters was: the young wife, Miss Rueie O'Hare, the husband, F. Hutchins; maid, Lomrya Poppel; the boss, A. Tomlinson; the boss's sweetheart, Florence Demers.

The Week at Ottawa

Lower Tariffs Hinted at Imperial Conference London Will Have Far-Reaching Effects on War, Peace and Trade

By Wilfrid Eggleston

The news which has been trickling out from the Imperial Conference at London has been scanty but encouraging. If the private reports which have come through to the Gallery here can be believed, a world movement toward lower tariffs is all ready to be inaugurated, with Messrs. Mackenzie King, Roosevelt and Chamberlain as the leaders.

There is no telling how far-reaching such a move might be, on war and peace, as well as on trade and prosperity. A correspondent of mine describes it as much the most hopeful thing that has happened in Europe in the past year. Until recently it appeared as though economic depression was driving certain nations to war, that the fear of internal revolution, due to hard times, was growing so strong among the rulers that a pretext for war would be developed if nothing came along in ordinary course.

Now we believe that international trade raises the standard of living of all who take part in it, naturally want to see whether by this indirect means a ghastly conflict cannot be avoided.

It is open to argument to what extent the tariffs of the world were imitative and retaliatory, but there is little doubt that most of them were put on in seeming self-defence. A few years ago there was a tariff race as bitter as the present armaments race. United States put up a layer, and Canada followed suit. Japan and Germany then gave a demonstration of a commercial brand of paint cleaner, which was most satisfactory. The members of the Institute then escorted their guests to the dining-room where lunch was served by Mrs. McPhee and Mrs. D. Smellie. The meeting certainly proved a step in advance toward international understanding.

Mr. and Mrs. George Sloote, two sons, Steve and Bill, and daughter Mary, were Sunday guests of Mrs. Mary Kazualk and family.

Miss Nellie Smellie, of Montreal, is spending a week's vacation at the home of her parents, Mr. and Mrs. D. A. Smellie.

Miss Lello Cameron, R.N., of Malone, N.Y., is spending a couple of days with Mr. and Mrs. A. D. Cameron.

Huntingdon Play Is Awarded Grand Prize In Skating Rink Amateur Competition

Local Entrants Capture Majority of Awards But Contestants From All Over District Were Favoured by Judges

COMMUNITY SINGING CONDUCTED

The final concert of the third District Amateur Competition held under the auspices of the Huntingdon Skating Rink Association, was given by O'Connor Hill, Huntingdon, on Thursday evening.

As this was the final concert the judge's decision was announced and prizes were awarded. The winning contestants were as follows: Group: Grand prize $25.00 "Corned Babies" by Huntingdon talent; second prize $15.00 Alton Warden, Huntingdon; third prize $10.00, Novelty Dance, Huntingdon; fourth, $5.00, Junior Orchestra, Huntingdon.

Individual junior section, "Lady in Blue, Plattsburgh, $5.00; Helen Oney, $2.00; Senior section, Royal Bruce, Franklin Centre, $5.00; Miss C. Claussen, Plattsburgh, $2.00.

Honourable mention, $1.00 each: R. Hannah, E. Hannah, Hinchinbrook, J. Taylor, E. Montpetit, L. Montpetit, Huntingdon.

The program opened with a novelty tap dance "Jack in the Box" by the Misses I. Telfer, N. Goodfellow, J. Wilson, J. Pierce, and I. Warden of Huntingdon followed by a song and dance number "Alabama Coon" by Miss Helen Oney, of Huntingdon.

The two prize-winning entries came next. First Alton Warden dressed as a young man about town, singing "It's tough to be so tough," followed by the second prize winner "Corned Babies," a play presented by Huntingdon talent on behalf of St. Andrew's church tennis club.

The play related the story of a young married man who secured a loan to buy a car. He needed more money for "new arrivals" in the family. The action speeds up to a riot of fun and comedy when the boss expresses a desire to see the "new arrivals." In a panic to secure the necessary funds for display when the boss arrives, the young man and his wife secure a large doll stuffed with corn meal to take the place of the younger baby and decide to tell the boss that the older child is away.

As an added attraction community singing was led by Messrs. A. Tomlinson, S. Poppel and Dr. J. Tomlinson. Accompaniment for this was played by J. Montgomery, Huntingdon.

Candy was sold during the intermission by the young people of St. Andrew's Presbyterian church.

Miss Evelyn Purcell of Huntingdon was the accompanist for the evening. The judges were: G. Demers, Mrs. E. M. Wood and I. H. Bowden, and the masters of ceremonies, M. Hunter and F. Hutchins.

The drawing for the Sanacell Blanket raffled by the Badinton Club took place and Miss R. Walsh of Huntingdon was the lucky winner. It was donated by A. E. Hunter.

Huntingdon Minister Returns To Pulpit

After being absent from the United Church, Huntingdon, for 12 Sundays the Rev. J. H. Miller, D.D., returned to his pulpit Sunday morning.

Rev. J. B. Maclean, D.D., Minister of St. Andrew's Church was away attending an Assembly Conference at Ottawa, consequently a large part of the congregation of Presbyterian and United Church members were present to hear Rev. Miller.

The congregation is pleased to note that he has completely recovered and hopes he will be given strength to carry on his pastorate work without detriment to his health for the 35 years Dr. Miller has administered the gospel, this was the first time he was obliged to forsake his duties for more than a month at a time.

During the past few weeks Dr. Miller and Mrs. Miller have been visiting at Kingston, Iroquois and at Pembroke, Ont.

Heavy Loss Suffered When Aubrey Creamery Destroyed

Tuesday morning at Dundee, the Aubrey Creamery formerly owned by J. D. Currie and for the past two months operated by Mr. Geo. Sutton was the prey to flames of unknown origin which razed the whole structure of the 67 year old building, leaving nothing of what was once a fine creamery but a mass of smoking and twisted debris.

Mr. Sutton with his helper, Lionel Latreille, were working the evening previous packing butter which was to be shipped the following morning to Montreal. About midnight Mr. Sutton drove his helper home, a distance of about 3 miles. However, he returned in a short time and then went to bed at his boarding house at Mr. J. D. Currie's about 12:30 A.M. About 1:30 A.M., an hour later, Mr. H. A. Miller, whose residence is only a few rods distant from the factory, was awakened by the noise of flames crackling. Looking out of the window he saw the south end of the factory which contained the ice house enveloped in flames.

Mr. Miller dressed and went out to summon help at Mr. Lyle Currie's. Together they aroused Mr. Sutton who quickly came to the scene of the fire. However, by this time the fire had gained considerable headway and it was impossible to do much to check it. Several others by this time were on hand to offer assistance but to no avail. The

Defeated Malone Chiefs 6-4 In Hard Fought Pitching Duel

The Huntingdon baseball team won its second game in the Canadian-American league warfare at Malone, on Sunday, when they walloped the Malone Chiefs to the tune of 6-4.

The game proved to be a pitcher's battle most of the way, with sterling performances being turned in by both moundmen. Lerly Marlow, 15-year-old Malone hurler, thrilled the 300 hundred fans present by striking out 15, while Zachar had plenty on the ball and held the Chiefs powerless most of the way.

Zachar, small but cool, was steady in the pinches and pulled himself out of holes by coolness under pressure.

Errors played a big part in the Chiefs' loss. They committed seven and collected five hits, while Huntingdon made six errors and five hits.

Crompt and Shea were the sluggers for Malone, each getting two baggers, while Elder, Taylor and Monique did most of the willow work for the locals.

For Huntingdon, McCabe and Kirby replaced O'Connor in right field and McCoy substituted for Hunter in left field.

Malone scored three runs in the third inning and one in the sixth. The third and fourth innings were the big ones for Huntingdon as they

Good Exhibits In Ladies' Department

Many Fine Displays Are Shown in Industrial Building

ALL SPACE IS TAKEN

Keeping pace with other sections of Ormstown Show Industrial Building exhibits are plentiful and of good quality. According to reliable authority the display in the Ladies' Department is exceptionally good and one well worth seeing.

In the flower and plant section, coleus, gloxinia, begonias and ferns in the handicraft work, crocheting, hooked rugs and fancy work are being shown to advantage.

One section of the building has been reserved for baking entries made from special ingredients listed in the prize list. The exhibit of home-made cooking, preserves and farm products is easily up to the standard set in former years.

The display of hand-made drawings and woodwork done by the pupils of Ormstown's Catholic School was an outstanding one in this department.

Bishop Of Diocese Visits Huntingdon

One Hundred and Forty-one Children Confirmed On Saturday

SEVENTY-SEVEN BOYS

Visits Hinchinbrooke For Confirmation Services Sunday

Parishioners of St. Joseph's Church, Huntingdon, had the honor of having in their midst on Saturday and Sunday the bishop of the diocese, His Lordship Mgr. Alfred Langlois.

This pastoral visit, which is made by the bishop every three years in all churches of the diocese saw more than 141 children receive the Sacrament of Confirmation on Saturday. Of those confirmed by His Lordship, 77 were boys.

Arriving in Huntingdon early Saturday afternoon Mgr. Langlois immediately proceeded to administer the Sacrament of Confirmation and then visited the cemetery.

The sermon in both French and English was by Father Stanislas, Franciscan, from Chateauguy-Bas. In his closing remarks His Lordship reminded everyone that it was a duty to honor and respect the dead.

The afternoon ceremony came to a close with the singing of the Libera by the Choir of the Parish. Sunday morning a large congregation was present for the Low Mass which was conducted by the bishop. The singing on this occasion was by the choir of St. Joseph's School and the Convent.

At the solemn High Mass at 9:30 a.m. led by the vicar of the parish, Father John Leduc, the bishop, was present at the Throne.

After High Mass and before the benediction of the Blessed Sacrament, Mgr. Langlois addressed the gathering. He added a few special congratulatory remarks to the different choirs upon their rendition of the musical programme of the day.

On his closing remarks His Lordship congratulated the parish priest, Father Pigeon, upon his moral and intellectual administration of the parish.

The singing at the High Mass was done by the men's choir, St. Joseph's School and the Convent choir. They sang the Mass of the Angels in Gregorian style.

The Amateur Contests

FOR the third year in succession the Huntingdon Skating Rink Association has sponsored amateur contests. The contests have annually produced considerably new talent and this year has been no exception to the rule. The type of entertainment has greatly improved and this year improvement in the quality of the acts from night to night was particularly noticeable.

Contestants entered the contests, not for the sake of self-glorification but because they felt they were helping a worthy cause—the Skating Rink. In doing this they afforded the public an opportunity to see what talent they had.

In regard to the programs it was delightful to see so many capable juvenile acts presented. The training the children received was largely due to the untiring efforts of Miss Evelyn Purcell and Miss H. Gnaedinger. While these ladies trained the children, a word of praise must be reserved for the proud parents who saw to it that the contestants appeared in appropriate costume and stage settings.

The amateur concert will undoubtedly do much good for the participants, for it will help them to overcome stage fright, which will be invaluable to them in years to come.

If we were to ask some of the parents to appear before an audience, they would fess and fume for a week before, and for days after. The people who cannot appear in public and give expression to their thoughts are to be pitied, and what is more their community suffers on that account. These people may have good ideas but because they lack the faculty for public expression their ideas are lost.

In England, boys and girls for generations back have been taught singing in the schools, consequently today when you meet a number of folks born in England you will find many talented ones among them.

Though the Huntingdon Skating Rink Association may have netted little from the three contests, it has performed a valuable service for many of our young people.

The contest has not only aided the youth, but the dramatic skits presented by the adults proved that we have many people in whom latent talent may be found. Huntingdon County could feel perfectly justified in entering future Dramatic Festivals, as was done this year for music, if this talent were developed. The day of amateur entertainment is fast being restored. The radio and movie have not permanently displaced such entertainment.

Destruction of Flowers

THE season of the wild flower is here and once again Canadian woods and fields are covered with beautiful plants and flowers.

Old mother nature is particularly extravagant with her beauty in this country but she expects us to protect her gifts after she has bestowed them.

Just as soon as the first wild flowers begin to appear many people think it is their privilege to go out and gather in many of these as they want. Without considering the havoc they are creating in a beautiful scene or the future life of the plants they are picking, these fluorescent vagabonds go blithely on their way.

The reckless plucking of wild flowers has already caused the disappearance of some of the finest plants of the woods through the damage caused by removing with the blooms, all the foliage which is needed to mature the roots. Some flowers should never be gathered freely, because the blooms cannot be picked without removing all the foliage on which depends the maturing of the bulbous root for the following season's crop.

Other species may be picked freely so long as the plant body is not disturbed. Before wild flowers are gathered, one should have sufficient knowledge about them to know which varieties can be picked and the proper way to pick them.

The plucking of wild flowers should be done in a sane and thoughtful manner with due regard for the future. Enough flowers should always be kept to form seeds and no wild plant should ever be picked up by the roots.

Instead of rushing for a gun every time they see an unusual animal or bird, the youth of Canada now take pleasure in protecting strange feathered or furry creatures. The same attitude must be adopted towards wild plant life.

World Trade and Civilization

THE peoples of the world are concerned primarily with happiness; with getting the most out of their daily lives. To insure happiness, there must be peace, security and bodily comfort, to which should be added the maximum of the comforts and luxuries of life that nature and the development of science through the instrumentality of the most effective world economy, make possible. Our yardstick is the "standard of living." To the extent that by intelligent planning we expand the productivity of each country, to that extent do we encourage the creation of wealth and improve the standard of living of that particular country.

As we promote by co-operation of all countries the exchange of the wealth in the world as a whole, we still further enhance the prosperity of the peoples of all countries. We spread throughout the world the natural resources and capitalize the individual characteristics of all peoples. That is foreign trade.

But we do more than simply advance the standard of living. To an important degree, we promote the other essential attributes of human happiness—peace and security. I say this because it seems clear to me that political disturbances within any country or political differences between countries, resulting too frequently in armed conflict, develop primarily through the urge of economic necessity, such as a demand for a higher standard of living, or for a broader opportunity to capitalize the resources of the nation and the ambitions of its people.

If this be true, the more we stimulate industry within each country, and between all countries, the less becomes the urge for conflict and the greater becomes the probability of peace and security. There is, therefore, a direct relationship between world trade and industry, on the one hand, and world civilization on the other. As we promote the former, we advance the latter.

The foregoing are the remarks of the president of General Motors, Alfred P. Sloan, Jr. There is so much truth in the statement that one can not help but think Anthony Eden, English Foreign Secretary, feels the same way about conditions.

He is continually endeavouring to bring about peace in Europe. Strife arose between Russia and Britain, and it was quickly settled; as flares may blow in France, they are quickly subdued; Germany, at times, looks as though she would like a quarrel, but Germany, and Britain, realize they ought to be become friends and commercial traders with one another.

Italy, with its strong-armed leader Mussolini, would like to defy the world, and to a certain degree has done so, but only at the expense of her youthful blood and financial resources. The diplomacy of governmental officials in Britain is a great binding link throughout the world for peace, which means "World Trade and World Civilization."

Popularity of the Telephone

THE use of the telephone in this area is extensive, perhaps more generally used than in any other like territory in the Dominion. Here we have 975 subscribers on the Huntingdon Bell Telephone exchange catering to a population of approximately 7,175 people.

World-wide telephone statistics compiled as of January 1, 1936, show that an annual average of 210.8 telephone conversations were held in Canada for every man, woman and child in this country. The United States, with a comparable figure of 197.0, was in second place. Denmark, with 173.9 per capita calls, and Sweden with 152.2, followed.

Canada's position among the countries of the world in the matter of telephone development in the larger centres continues to be impressive. With 1878 telephones per 100 population in communities of 50,000 and more, this Dominion ranks sixth in the list. The United States is fifth with a figure of 1932. Sweden is the leader in this regard, followed by Switzerland, Norway, and Denmark, in that order.

In less populated areas, Canada ranks in fourth place, this world-wide survey reveals. Canada, it is shown, has 7.23 telephones in operation per 100 population in communities of less than 50,000 persons. Next to the leadership of the United States with 9.87, there follow New Zealand with 9.84 and Sweden with 7.56. Fifth, sixth, and seventh positions are taken by Denmark, Switzerland, and Australia, respectively.

On the basis of telephone development throughout the whole population, Canada with 10.99 telephones per one hundred people is second only to the United States with a comparable figure of 13.69 telephones. Denmark is third with 10.64; New Zealand fourth with 10.59 and Sweden fifth with 10.28. Of telephones in service per 100 population among large cities of the world, Vancouver is fourth, Toronto eleventh and Montreal eighteenth in the list.

These latest statistics make it clear that Canadians continue, as they have done over a long period, to place a very high value upon their telephone services. This fact is emphasized in their continuing to be the world's leaders in telephone usage.

Ideas For Better Business

PERHAPS one of the greatest mistakes most of us make, is that of forming the habit of thinking small thoughts. We lack faith. We forget that the supply of good is unlimited. Those capable of making effective use of ideas are the ones who usually get them.

You may have an old established business, but perhaps it is not better or larger than it was years ago. Such a business tells in an unspoken manner that its head is one of small thought and short of constructive ideas. Success comes to people who, not necessarily have wealth at the start, but have ideas and ability to put ideas into operation. You must be able to manage, to net a profit.

In place of grouching and blaming conditions one should have greater faith in the future. You would feel better as an individual and the country would sooner become prosperous.

Constructive thoughts and ideas are indeed magnets. They attract the kind of people, ideas, orders, promotions, honors and rewards that rightfully belong to them. It is the thinker of big thoughts who creates a big business. No others can accomplish that result.

Think these few lines over and place them first upon yourself and your line of business and determine whether you personally are doing all that you might. Have your ideas been the keystone of success or have you still to thing up a good idea?

Ormstown Exhibition pioneers thought out constructive ideas that would make Ormstown the seat of a great livestock exhibition. They are to be congratulated upon their forethought. Many merchants in the Chateauguy Valley started out in a very small way, and today have valuable businesses and substantial financial reserves. Others are merely marking time.

Whistling is Not Applauding

WE all like to see people enjoy themselves—especially when their enjoyment springs from appreciation of entertaining effort put forth by others. In the O'Connor Theatre, audiences attending the amateur contests were inclined to be a bit rude.

Too many people talked during certain acts that perhaps did not appeal to them. This was annoying to the entertainers and to the people sitting near who wished to listen. Applause, in the form of boisterous cheering and whistling is not in good taste. That type of applause belongs to the baseball diamond and the hockey arena—not to theatres.

ENJOY PHONE JOKE

A manufacturer of pyjamas in New York named Katz, seeing an opportunity for a little extra publicity, gave his telephone operator instructions to say "Are you calling Katz pyjamas?" when answering calls. Soon after the custom was started, this response struck a caller's funny bone and he told a couple of his friends, who called up the Katz factory just to hear the operator's ludicrous question. These friends told their friends and by the next day several emergency operators had to be put on duty to answer callers who wanted to hear the same silly question. The third day the calls totalled 3,000. Then, for fear the thing should get into the papers and become epidemic, the head of the firm gave orders for telephone operators to say "Are you calling Mr. Katz?" That cut the fun off short.

WOMAN GOLD MINER

When the price of gold went up, making the mining of it more profitable, Mrs. Effie Myers, a former school teacher, with a ten-year-old daughter and sick husband to support, obtained a four-year lease on a famous old Santa Rita mine in the Victor, Colorado, district, which had made fortunes for three owners previously before it was abandoned. Mrs. Myers has been operating this mine all alone. She runs the engine hoist as well as going down into the mine in the big barrel which takes out the ore. The ore in which she is working now is returning $200 a ton. She would have no difficulty in disposing of her lease at a big profit but instead she is planning to hire a crew of men as soon as she has a surplus large enough to pay them wages, and will then take out gold on a bigger scale.

CAR SHOWS POWER

His car stalling in a slippery spot, Oliver H. Satter, farmer near Harry or Kan., set it in low gear and with the aid of a neighbor began pushing it out of the mud. When the wheels struck solid ground it started off under its own power heading straight for a ditch. The two men thought the ditch would stop it, but they were mistaken. The car hurdled the ditch, tore through a fence and started off across the field with headlights pursuing it. Before they caught up with it the runaway car had crashed through two hog fences and two barbed wire fences in its wild race of about a quarter of a mile, finally dashing down into a ravine where a tree stopped it.

TRACE JAIL-FOOT

If Edward Thomas, 26, had not had such a big foot, he might not have appeared at London shortly and then have gone to prison for 12 months with hard labor. But a foot-print 13 1/2 inches in length was too good a clue for the police, and led them infallibly to Thomas, who stands seven feet in height. In all London, only one footsize to beat that which has fallen Thomas for house-breaking is reported. One firm regularly ships 17-inch boots to a customer at Shanghai!

TOMB IN PERIL

The most sacred building in Christendom, the ancient Church of the Holy Sepulchre, over the burial place of Christ in Jerusalem, is in danger of collapse. Ominous cracks in the structure of the cupola were made worse by the recent earthquake in Palestine, and fears are now felt for its safety. Signor Luigi Marangoni, an Italian architect, has sailed for Palestine to examine the fabric.

LIGHTNING IN WELL

During a recent thunderstorm lightning struck a tree on the farm of Walter N. Coble, Crane, Mo. The tree stands over a well 96 feet deep and the bolt of lightning followed the tree down into this well. Next morning Coble found no water in the well. Probing around with a drillers' bit, he discovered a cavern under the well, the roof of which apparently had been battered in by the lightning.

The president then called on the guest speaker of the afternoon, Dr. Stalker, who took for his subject, "The Demons of Medicine," and in a most interesting way told of how a number of these demons have been conquered, illustrating his address by the use of the microscope. The meeting closed in the usual manner and dainty refreshments were served by the hostess, and a social half hour spent.

Precious minerals produced by cows

More than 35 million pounds of nature's finest minerals, more precious than gold, are in the milk Canadians drink each year. This provides everyone with approximately three pounds of indispensable calcium, phosphorus and other food minerals. Milk's mineral combinations are wonderfully constructed; perfectly proportioned in their bones, teeth and body building properties.

"Undoubtedly milk plays a more important part than any other article of food in making the ordinary American diet adequate in its mineral content."
 — Dr. Henry C. Sherman, Ph.D., S.D., Mitchell Professor of Chemistry, Columbia University.

By constantly reminding the public of milk's matchless food values, Borden advertising and salesmanship help to increase the market for dairy products.

that SAVES-

CLOTHING

MONEY

Hundreds of tests prove that clothes will last longer when washed in a Westinghouse Washer. Rubbing, pounding, wrenching and friction are all eliminated by the cushioned-action Gyrotor, exclusive with Westinghouse.

Steaming hot suds are gently but continuously working through and through every fibre of the clothes, while the repelling action of the Gyrotor wings cushions the clothes from contact with the Gyrotor itself.

The speed of Westinghouse cushioned-action washing cuts the time required for the average family wash to an hour or less and in addition, much mending is eliminated. The conveniently located and easily operated controls relieve the operator of all work and annoyance.

Westinghouse cushioned-action washing saves clothes, making them last as much as 50% longer. The cost of operating should not exceed one cent for an average washing.

These Westinghouse Washers may be seen at our local office. Easy terms of payment if desired.

Quebec Dislikes Colonist Plan Fears Farmers' Opposition

Tremblay Sees Settlement on Nearby Land as Unfair to Established Families—Still Hopes For Federal Cash

Possibilities of encouragement from provincial sources of a project whereby some 500 families now in Montreal on relief would be placed on abandoned farms close to Montreal are dim, according to Hon. William Tremblay.

The project in question was one which was placed before the Brien Unemployment Committee this week. Mr. Tremblay said that the farmers around Montreal have been established there for many, many years, for generations in most instances, and were working under great difficulties at the present time, and seeking to gain as much of the Montreal market as possible. To give colonists $2,000 each to set them up on adjoining farms and thereby enable them to enter into competition with the old-established farmers would hardly be fair, said the Minister, who remarked that he had informally discussed the matter with Albert Rioux, deputy Minister of Agriculture, and J. E. Laforce, deputy Minister of Colonization.

Colonization to his mind, said Mr. Tremblay, meant breaking new ground, and not using public funds to establish farmers in competition with those already established, and anxious to secure their logical market.

The Minister of Labor intimated that he had not yet despaired of securing a reversal of the decision which the federal Government had given to the effect that only $1,400,000 would be allotted to the province of Quebec this year for relief works.

He said he had taken the matter up again with Hon. Norman Rogers, federal Minister of Labor, and expected to receive an answer within a short time. He hoped it would be possible to obtain a larger grant for public works in this province, since that would mean so much more progress in doing away with the "dole," and eliminating this form of relief was his ultimate aim.

The Minister was asked as to his interview with the city authorities the previous day, and said he would first have to lay his information before the Cabinet. He said that the necessity of eliminating from the "dole" lists all those who had no right to be there had been emphasized.

Nearly $12,000,000 will be spent this year by the Quebec Government mainly for the purpose of bringing colonization settlers closer to civilization.

Since 1923 colonization work had proceeded far beyond highway construction with the result that many settlements were left in the wilderness, isolated from civilization.

The present Government, however, will open 1,800 miles of roads with no fewer than 103 bridges and will construct 256 schools this year. To obtain help from the Government, the settler must show his sincerity and make effort to help himself. No help would be forthcoming for those who felt the Government should feed them.

THRIFTY PRISCILLA

LEADS A HELPING HAND

HOUSEWORK HANDS may be as much a result of wind and cold weather as of too much dabbling in dust and dishwater. But whatever the cause, rough, neglected hands give you away faster than anything else. Yet a simple beauty treatment for the hands shows results so quick that there's really no reason for letting your hands show you up.

Try to keep a jar of hand cream or lotion where you can use it every time you have your hands in water, and every time you come in out of the cold. If gloves are not freshly cleaned, give the hands a thorough cleansing when they come off, and follow with a good creaming. A hand cream that absorbs quickly is the best.

To soften roughened hands and keep the skin supple and free from the lines that come from dryness, regular beauty treatment should be repeated every two or three days. Massage the hands, using your hand cream and working down each finger toward the tip, and upward across the backs of the hands and well across the wrists. Leave an excess film of the cream over cuticles and nails and slip on loose cotton gloves—it's the soaking up of the emollients by thirsty hands and nails that does the real work.

With the current interest in the coat and dress ensemble, dress prints are styled to go with the silk coat. Often the coat is one of the new monotone ribbed silks, such as silk bengaline, silk surah, silk twill or silk gabardine. 1937 companion prints in silk use large and small sizes of the same pattern, or two sizes of the pattern with the colors in reverse treatment. Very new-looking are heavy navy or black silk shantung prints in small monotone designs, which may be used for either coats or dresses.

As coffee loses its strength when exposed to air, it should be kept tightly covered, especially after it has been ground. When coffee has lost its flavor from exposure to the air, it can be improved by heating the dry coffee in the oven, taking care, of course, not to let it brown.

Most infectious ills are spread by contact, directly or indirectly, between humans. If the chain of contact is broken, the dangers of infection are reduced. Studies of the washing of dishes used by troops and inmates of institutions show that the incidence of influenza may be reduced two-thirds or more through sterilization of eating utensils. Such sterilization is also helpful in the home.

Every woman needs a change of lipstick with the donning of heavier clothes and darker colors. A new lipstick has some of the exciting effect of a new bonnet . . . and it's so good for a "pick-me-up" feeling. Coral is a grand tone for practically every complexion . . . and most every costume. It's new and attractive with the popular black and equally so with the warm tones of brown, rust and green.

Household Hint: Next time you want to wipe off the leaves of your sun parlor or window plants, try using a cloth dipped in glycerine instead of water. You will find the plants will have a lovely lustrous look and will not dry out nearly so much.

"Rather!" replied Dick, heartily.

"But," said his uncle, "how on earth do you manage to tell them apart?"

"Oh," said the young man, "I don't try!"—(Lindsay Post.)

Farmers Urged To Return Statistical Cards to Ottawa

In June of each year, the Dominion Bureau of Statistics, in cooperation with the Provincial Departments of Agriculture, distributes card-and-schedule forms for the purpose of collecting statistics of acreages under crop and the numbers of live stock and poultry on farms.

An innovation of 1931 extended this survey to cover the breeding and marketing intentions with regard to live stock. In all of the provinces, except Prince Edward Island, Nova Scotia, Alberta and British Columbia, these schedules are distributed to the farmers through the rural school teachers. In these four provinces, the cards are mailed direct to the farmers.

The acreage and field crops, in particular, are the real foundation of the scheme of agricultural production statistics. Only slightly less important in the national planning is the necessity of having correct knowledge of the numbers of live stock on farms. The accuracy of our compilations in both these classes is largely dependent upon obtaining completed cards from a fair sample of the total number of Canadian farms.

Farmers are urged to fill in and return these cards for their own benefit.

It Happened Here

By The Peerless Peep

TO A FAIR ADMIRER OF THE FORMER SNOOPER'S COLUMN

"No Dear One, The Snooper is not back, not any farther back than the back seat of the car he usually rides in. Speaking of back seats and one armed drivers, reminds us of the speaker who addressed quite a large gathering in our town last year. He was talking about modern youth and mentioning the fact that the boys were able to drive their cars with one hand when out with their best girl. This remark caused quite a laughter from four or five "Old Boys" who were sitting in the Bald Headed row. Turning to them and pointing at them, the speaker said, "Well, boys, you sure can laugh at Modern Youth, for in your Hey Days, you took your sweetheart out in the old buggy, turned up some quiet country road, threw the lines over the dash and drove with no hands."

BRICKS AND BOUQUETS

Since writing in last week's paper, all kinds of bricks and very few bouquets have been thrown at this corner. In fact they have kidded the Snooper so much that we have decided to change the No-m-d-Plume from "By The Peerless Peep" to "By The Peerless Peep". We offer our apologies again to the Snooper and sincerely regret that we have caused him so much dodging, yes, we mean dodging in and out of alleyways to avoid the bricks which were being slung around by the "Fair Mechanics."

NEW ICE CREAM BAR CREATED

Seemingly our first article created quite a fad and has produced a New Ice Cream Bar known as "The Moonshine Bar". The sales have exceeded the output by trillions and our local ice cream dealers have been run ragged waiting on the parched customers. They claim it has been the greatest boom since the days of the "Klondike Kisses". We claim that the credit for this New Ice Cream Bar should go to this corner but our friends the "Fair Mechanics" insist that they are the ones responsible for its creation.

THE RETURN OF ROLLER SKATES

An old time fad has returned to the younger generation, only this time it comes in a different form. A few years ago it was all the rage to go to a rink which had a wooden floor and roller skate to the tune of some hurdy-gurdy playing "On The Sidewalks of New York". Nowadays they roller skate. "On The Highway To Malone" to the tune of "She'll Be Coming Around The Mountain" which echoes from the radios of passing cars. We were going to mention another tune for the later but knew we would be in discord, so enough said.

THE BIG SHOW

Well folks we're just leaving for the Big Exhibition, and thinking of going to the show, reminds us of a little poem and in mentioning same we offer our apologies to Tennyson: Who is she that cometh, Making such a dust, This G. In her new Ford bus, Nickel polished with hard toil, Full of gas and lots of oil, And a nice young "Scottie" She is taking in tow, For a ride To Ormstown Show.

The Peerless Peep has no Scoop for this week but hopes to be back in the Moonlight again next week.

24,000 BABIES DIE

A recent news item coming out of China shows most graphically the terrible living conditions in that stricken country. In Shanghai, a modern city as cities go in that part of the world, 24,000 babies were found dead in the streets in 1933. They were unwanted babies, babies whose parents had no food for them and who saw no chance of ever being able to care for them.

Apple Snow

Stew some fine flavoured Canadian-grown sour apples until tender; sweeten to taste and run through a sieve. To two cups of strained apples, use the white of one egg. Beat egg stiff and gradually beat the apples into it, and beat until quite stiff. It will be as white as snow. Serve with custard sauce and use more eggs if desired. The apple sauce should be thick and cold.

Scalloped Apples

3 Canadian-grown apples (chopped)
1/2 cup sugar
1/4 teaspoon cinnamon
2 tablespoons lemon juice
Grated lemon rind
2 cups buttered crumbs
1/4 cup water
1/4 teaspoon nutmeg

Melt the butter and add the crumbs. Mix the sugar, spice, and lemon rind. Put one-quarter of the crumbs in the bottom of a buttered baking dish; then one-half of the apples; sprinkle with one-half of the sugar and spice. Repeat, sprinkle the lemon juice over this and put the remaining crumbs on top. Bake 35 to 45 minutes. Cover during the first part of baking.

"That," replied the optician, "is an ophthalmometer."

Montreal Royals, hitting their stride at last have gained second place in the International League standing, 7 games behind Newark.

Dizzy Dean, St. Louis Cardinal pitching ace, won his fourth with Ford Frick, president of the National League when the latter demanded the temperamental pitcher sign a statement apologizing for statements he was supposed to have made about League officials.

War Admiral, son of the great Man O'War, added his name to the equine roll of honor when he won the rich $50,000 Belmont Stakes Saturday after previous victories in the Kentucky Derby, and the Preakness.

Advance sale of tickets on the Bradlock-Leahy best is tremendous. By Saturday noon the figure had reached the $500,000 mark so Bradlock is sure to make a neat profit, win or lose. As a champion he is dragging down 50% of the gate while Louis gets 12 1/2%.

If Joe Louis wins the heavy eight crown from James Braddock on June 22nd he will defend the title against Max Schmeling next September.

Most of the money Braddock collects after he splits the cash with his manager, Joe Gould, and squares off some obligations incurred during his long inactivity will be put into annuities and trust funds for his three children.

The way it shapes up now Bradlock will have an assured income of something more than $100 a week for the rest of his life, settling a large sum on each of his kids. That may not seem like a lot of money to some folks, but Jim never was a fellow to put on the swell, and he says it will be enough for him.

The big idea in Gould's mind is to put Bradlock's winnings away for his children, and he has his hands on the dough and give it all away, as he is a fellow who never has been able to say "no" to a friend, or even an acquaintance, when the touch is put on him. It might not be a bad idea for Gould to bury some, too.

Member Admits Mistakes In Brewery Charge

Mr. H. F. Lawrence, M.L.A., St. Boniface, has issued a statement admitting he was wrong when he made charges in the Legislature during the recent session about low wages paid to employees by National Breweries, Limited, Montreal.

Mr. Lawrence recently made a trip East and he issued the following statement: "In the Legislative Assembly the recent debate on the provincial beer question, which dealt with the placing of a five-cent tax on beer imported into the province of Montreal, was paying 16 cents an hour to women and 21 cents an hour to married men. Representations were made to me that my statement was not correct. In fact, sufficient evidence was given to me whereby it demanded a personal investigation. Upon proceeding to Montreal, I found that wages as quoted were incorrect. In fact, going through Daves Brewery, I found the lowest wage paid to women was 30c an hour and to the men 37 1/2c per hour with a large number starting at a much higher wage.

The women's rate is 30% higher than the minimum rate under the Minimum Wage Act of Quebec. On this visit I found that the arrangements made for the comfort, health and welfare of the employees were of the highest order and equal to any I know of in any industry. If my statement in the Legislative Assembly has tended to do any harm to the 'National Breweries,' I regret it and I sincerely hope that with the co-operation I received from the various officials of the brewery, and the Minimum Wage Act of Quebec, the existing situation I have given will be the means of developing more amicable relations between the provinces in connection with interprovincial trade."

Ellen gets Her Man

For herself, Ellen found it hard to define just how Deteroux affected her. There was an undeniable magnetism about the man. His very size, his rippling strength, and the light easy swiftness of his movements and the gleam of his white teeth were attractive. And he was not unhandsome. Yet his eyes were repelling, and whenever Ellen felt them upon her, which was disconcertingly often, she was hard put to it to keep from shivering openly. The man was at once attractive and repulsive.

When the blankets had been properly checked in and accepted for, Deteroux and Angus Mackay left again, but Ellen stayed at the trading room, once more immersed in the study of her father's predicament and trying to plan a course of action that might avert the threatened calamity of the following spring.

Here, an hour later, Bernard Deteroux came to her alone. "You will pardon me, mam'selle," he began swiftly. "But I have a great affection for your father, and it would be well perhaps, if you and I should talk of a certain injustice which the future portends."

Ellen knew immediately what Deteroux meant. Somewhat doubtless through the channels of gossip, or because Angus Mackay had confided in him, this gigantic river man knew of the threat which hung over the old factor. Though she would not acknowledge it, Ellen realized that the task of rehabilitation she had set herself loomed as well nigh impossible. There she seized upon Deteroux's suggestion with unconscious eagerness.

"I have thought of little else since learning about it," she said wearily. "I refuse to give up without a battle, but it seems almost beyond hope to think of averting it."

Deteroux's cold eyes gleamed in open admiration. "You are very courageous, mam'selle. And Bernard Deteroux will be most happy to help you in any way possible. Now, because I have been much through all this country and you have but lately come back to it, it may be that I could give you some formation of many kinds, should you desire it. Ask me what you will. I promise that your confidence will not be abused."

Ellen looked at him seriously for a moment. She sensed breeding behind Deteroux somewhere. The man did not talk like the usual run of river-men. His brain was plainly alert, his tongue fluent. "Very well," said Ellen presently. "In a case of this sort it is well to know one's enemies in their true light. My father feels that John Benham, the free trader, is to blame for all his woes. Is it possible that one could come into this district and in three years upset the reputation of an old established post like Fort Edson?"

Deteroux shrugged. "It would seem so, mam'selle. I know of no other free trader in your territory but John Benham."

"But how can he do it?" persisted Ellen. "He cannot afford to offer more in trade than can the Hudson Bay Company."

"True," nodded Deteroux. "Yet, perhaps, it is not how much he offers for his furs, but what he offers."

Ellen stared at him for a moment. "I do not understand," she said slowly. "I forget, mam'selle," went on Deteroux swiftly. "I forget that when you left the post four years ago, the old order still existed. But in four years many things may change, as you know. In many ways our Indian is a child. He has ideals that are strange, mam'selle, and which we cannot grasp. Also he has weaknesses upon which the unscrupulous may trade. An Indian values many things, mam'selle, but most of all he values—whisky."

Ellen's eyes widened. At last she saw. "Whisky," she murmured. "John Benham trades whisky for furs? But that is against the law. The North-west Mounted Police will not permit trading whisky to the Indians."

Deteroux laughed softly. "You forget, mam'selle. You forget that though they are a great organization, the red-coats are, after all, but men. They are few and the north country is measured in millions of square miles. They cannot be in all places at once. And if Benham is cunning, as we know he is, he can do much that the law cannot prove. And the law must have proof."

—and if necessary—can furnish proof. Ellen's truant impulse died hard. "Is it reasonable that he, being of their blood, would deliberately brutalize them and rob them for his own selfish gain?"

"Reasonable," said Deteroux with a short, barking laugh. "Not to us, perhaps. But what is that which is said about the half-breed? He has all the vices and none of the virtues of either side of his heritage. Perhaps in John Benham this is also true. The Indian in him seems to exist in the greed of his white ancestry. If you had known men as I have known them, mam'selle, you would not wonder at anything they do."

Ellen was silent for a long time. She knew Deteroux was watching her closely. Grudgingly she gave in. "You must be right, Mr. Deteroux. There is no other way in which he could have stolen the trade from us in so short a time."

"You reason correctly, mam'selle," said Deteroux, and it seemed as though there was an unconscious note of triumph in his voice. "I hope you will not think me now as just a gabbling old woman, but one who sincerely wishes to help your father and you. Facts, though unpleasant, are best faced squarely and uncompromisingly. And if at any time I can be of further help to you, you have but to command."

"Thank you. You have already shown me a way out of my dilemma." "May I presume to ask what that is?"

"Of course. It is to furnish proof to the law that John Benham is trading whisky to the tribes. He will then be removed quickly and for good."

Deteroux seemed to hesitate. Something flashed in his eyes, which seemed momentarily to show emotion for the first time. Then he caught up his guard again. "I hesitate to warn you, mam'selle. But you must always remember that John Benham is fighting for high stakes. In a pinch he might become quite ruthless," said Ellen.

"I am not afraid," said Ellen quietly. "I too, can be ruthless."

"That is true," nodded Deteroux thoughtfully. "Well, duty calls, and the river trails are long. I will see you again, mam'selle—when I return."

Ellen suffered him to bow over her hand, though at the contact of his hard, calloused palm she could hardly repress a shiver. Strangest of all perhaps, was the fact that she could not analyze that flurry of feeling, it might have been repugnance, or then again it might have been something else. There was no denying the magnetism and virility of this man. Then another strange thing happened. As Deteroux, with his huge bulk, through the doorway, Ellen caught a glimpse of old Moosac's wrinkled face just beyond and Moosac was openly snarling.

At sight of the Indian, Deteroux seemed to hesitate, then, with a swift, cold laugh he elbowed the old Chippewyan aside and swung off on his way. Ellen darted to the door. At sight of her Moosac slunk away also, and when she called to him he did not answer.

For a long time Ellen stood there, puzzled furrows wrinkling her smooth brow. Distinctly she sensed some ominous undercurrent of stark conflict and hate swirling about her. It was inexplicable, but it was there. The more she tried to draw strange ends together and make some true picture of it, the more confusing it all was.

Finally she sighed and drew her thoughts back into more direct channels. Here at least she had a clear, damning trace to follow. The secret of John Benham's exploitation of the Fort Edson territory was plain. Her mode of attack was simple and direct. Proof of his trickery to offer to the law. And she must act now, while the trading season was at its height.

Immediately a load seemed shifted from her mind. She could think clearly at last, for ahead lay action. Thus, there was some strange, crushing weight in her breast which made her curiously cold and unfeeling. The John Benham she had known had seemed so clean and fine, yet she was now possessor of knowledge which made him that meanest and lowest of all mortals: a man who traded upon the weakness of the ignorant and primitive. And he was a half-breed! Feverishly she began her preparations. Her father objected strenuously to what she had in mind, but she overrode his objections with firm determination. And that evening when the hush of the night settled down over river and forest, Ellen Mackay was crouched in the bow of a slender birch-bark canoe, her face turned towards the north. In the centre of the canoe was a heap of baggage. In the rear was wrinkled, hunched old Moosac, wielding a dripping paddle. Lightly the canoe slipped away into the darkness. The dim lights of Fort Edson paled and faded from view.

Twelve days after leaving Fort Edson, Ellen found her first evidence of John Benham's nefarious trading activities. She came upon a small camp of Laird Indians, and saw there the influence of "fire-water" in all its hellishness. Less than a dozen families made up the camp. Their poverty was heart-rending. The bucks were bleary-eyed and besotted, sullen and stupid. Gaunt, stony-faced squaws stared at Ellen in silence as she picked her way through the filthy jumble of the camp. It was the plight of the children, of pathetic, half-starved paposes which particularly tore at Ellen's heartstrings. Unable to understand the brutishness of their elders, the look in their little eyes begging muffled for food and still more food, their plight was pitiful in the extreme. And if they were starving now, in the midst of spring and plenty, what would their future be when the cold, merciless hand of winter shut down again?

A quick survey and a question or two, to which she received hardly more than a grunt, showed Ellen that their winter's catch of furs were gone. These furs had gone to purchase "firewater," when they should have been used to trade for food and blankets, clothes, ammunition, and other supplies to carry the camp through another winter. There was nothing Ellen could do. She left presently, with the whole tawdry picture etched upon her brain beyond all forgetting. There was no mistaking this evidence. It lay all about the camp in the form of dozens of empty whisky bottles.

Ellen travelled ceaselessly. Bending her strong young body to the task of paddling, she drove Moosac to his labours until the old Chippewyan was hunched with weariness. She found camps of Yellowknives and Dogribs, of Rae and Simpson and Hay River Indians in which conditions approximated those of that first camp. Everywhere lay the evidence of the white man's stupid weakness. She shivered whenever she thought of what would happen when winter came down again. Everywhere she looked, instead of seeing the rioting splendour of the spring, the dread spectre of famine and wholesale death seemed to loom. It was before her eyes as she dropped to sleep at night, and was still with her when she awakened at dawn.

Ellen Mackay was crouching in the bow of a slender birch-bark canoe.

Valleyfield Council

The Council of the City of Salaberry of Valleyfield presided over by His Honor Mayor Bilette, accepted at their last meeting on Wednesday, June 2nd, suggestions of the St-Jean-Baptiste Society of Valleyfield the St. Jean Baptiste Society celebration to be held on June 24th.

The City Council, accompanied by the Clergy will officially bless, under the name of Jacques-Cartier the cross which was erected on the Cockburn Point, the Cockburn Point itself, and the bridge joining St. Laurent and Jacques-Cartier Streets.

It was moved by Ald. Larin and seconded by Ald. Monette that the Council accept the suggestions of the St. Jean-Baptiste Society. However, the Council is reserving the right to change the name of the Salaberry Bridge. The name Jean de la Lande has been deferred to keep the actual one.

The question of the Masson Bridge seems definitely settled. A letter from the federal member, Maxime Raymond, announced that a resolution will soon be passed giving the Masson bridge to the city of Valleyfield to serve as a passage between Cockburn Point and Victoria Street.

Consequently it was moved by Ald. Touchette seconded by Ald. Larin that the city ask tenders through newspapers for the transportation of the Masson Bridge and that the necessary specifications be made to this effect.

The request of Emilien Pilon for a restaurant was granted. Mrs. Joseph Boyer asked the sum of $25.00 for damages caused to her furniture when moving. These damages were caused by a city employee, Arthur Lebour. The petition was rejected.

Raoul Leduc and P. Bougie asked the Council for work. These demands are referred to Charles Lévêillé.

Frank Wesley offers his services as keeper of the new park which will be built by the Montreal Cottons with the co-operation of the City Council.

A report from the engineer for a sidewalk near the property of Arthur Vinet situated at the corner of Ave. Grande Ile and Blvd. du Havre was studied and filed.

The opening of a street on lot 32815, property of Mr. Quevillon, would cost $175.00. The mayor asked explanations as Mr. Quevillon demanded $100.00 for the lot and that it would cost $175.00 for the opening of the street. Ald. Monette and Touchette then explained that Mr. Quevillon has already given lots to the city and that the opening of a street would cause the snow to accumulate on his property.

It was moved by Ald. Monette seconded by Ald. Touchette that the opening of this street be made between St. Louis and St. Joseph Streets on a width of 66 feet.

A report from the city engineer is presented at this meeting concerning a petition made by citizens asking the drainage of Emile Pilon's property. This petition was presented to the City Council who will send a report at the next council meeting.

Beautiful Venetian Church Baldasare Longhena started the beautiful Santa Maria della Salute Church in Venice in 1631. It was to commemorate the great plague which had swept the city in 1630. The church was not completed until 1656. It occupies one of the most central sites in all Venice, near the east end of the famous Grand Canal. The very impressive dome is round outside, but octagonal inside. Sixteen large round-arched windows pierce the base of the dome. A number of excellent works of the old master Titian are contained in Santa Maria. The choir of the church contains late-renaissance stalls. The Virgin is seen on the high altar banishing the demons of the plague. This group is in marble done by Giusto Le Court. Throughout the church hang works by such masters as Tintoretto, and others influenced by the work of Correggio.

NUDISTS HOLD DANCE

In the crowded ballroom of a private house at Friern Barnet, London, headquarters of the Lotus League—100 nude delegates discussed for several hours the question of improving their campaign. After the meeting delegates danced in the ballroom—in the nude. A resolution, passed unanimously at the meeting, expressed appreciation at the government plans for a fitter nation, and added: "That this meeting considers it desirable that provision should be made in all localities for screened enclosures, where total nudity should be permitted, and facilities be provided at public baths and bathing places for those wishing to swim in the nude." The delegates urged the abolition of the custom whereby women are obliged to wear in public brassieres as well as slips, when taking part in any sport or recreation. The chairman, a grey-haired professional type of man, urged the women, who were in the minority, to take part in the discussion, stating they were anxious women should have equal facilities with the men.

Cornell University at Ithaca, New York state's agricultural and technical college, recently received a cashier's cheque for $25,000, signed by "L. H. Anon," with the request the money be used in "the most helpful place" in the institution. This is the third gift made to the university by the same mysterious person and under the same name since 1929. The first gift was for $20,000 and the second $10,000.

Do You Know that DOMINION STORES Spent Over $6,000,000 IN ONE YEAR in the Province of Quebec?

TYPICAL YEAR'S EXPENDITURE

Purchases from Manufacturers	$5,209,426.17
Purchases from Farmers (Island of Montreal only)	63,122.08
Taxes, Municipal, Provincial and Special	57,922.23
Salaries and Wages	663,669.36
Rents for Stores	182,203.86
Heat, Electricity, Telephones, etc.	167,336.83
Total, (Figures as of December, 1936)	$6,343,680.53

The figures given above indicate the vast sum of money involved in Dominion Stores operation. This money flows through the channels of manufacturer, farmer, landlord, employee and the public utilities to all parts of the Province.

Dominion Stores serve the people of Quebec through one hundred and twenty-four stores situated in the large cities, and in smaller towns as well. Not only are these communities able through Dominion Stores to obtain good food at low prices, but farmers for miles around find a market for their produce: a double-advantage that is eagerly sought and does much to explain Dominion Stores' steady growth.

Dominion Stores' policy is based on quick distribution from the producer to the consumer, therefore no time is wasted in shipping from distant points where we can get the goods close at hand; hence as much of our purchasing as possible is done within the borders of the Province.

Dominion Stores are a great asset to the Province. The money spent within the Province is concrete evidence of their value. The money saved the population served by our stores stays in the Province also and represents thousands of dollars per year. Low prices for good goods—that is the service we render.

HOW TO SWIM

by ART THORN

Confidence—that single word expressed the chief requisite of the beginner who desires to swim and until you realize that your body will not sink until you force it under, you will not be able to make progress. The simplest method of demonstrating this fact is to stand in shallow water, take a deep breath and then throw yourself downward on the surface of the water, pushing off from the bottom with the feet. Keep the whole body stiff with the arms outstretched in front of you. Immediately you will find that you are floating face downward on the surface of the water and that you can stay in that position as long as you have sufficient air in your lungs. If you are learning in a swimming pool you can cover quite a distance by pushing off with your feet from the side of the pool and floating across the tank but be sure and do it at the shallow end of the tank. If possible have an experienced swimmer demonstrate this method of floating which is known as the Dead Man's Float, and then you will know just what happens to you as you float on the surface.

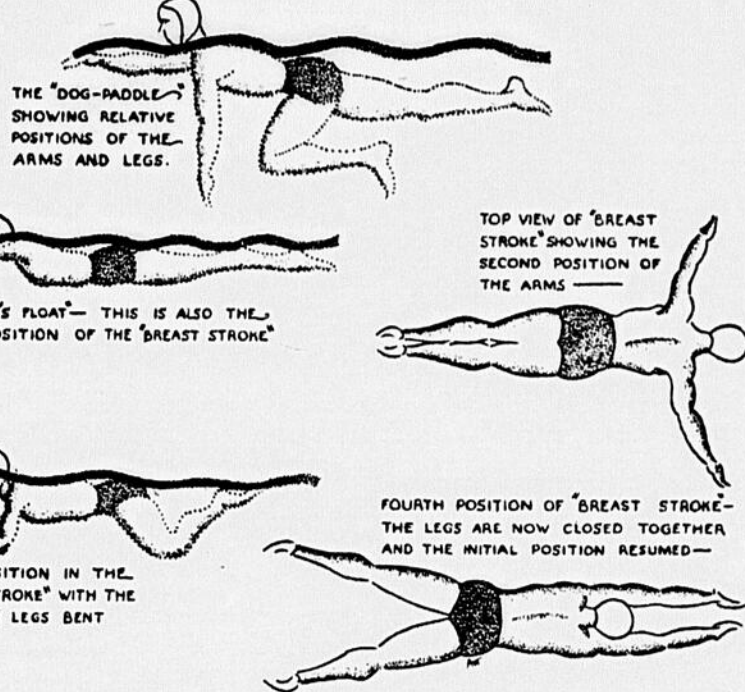

cannot swim as soon as he is thrown in the water. The reason for this is quite obvious. Dogs or other four-footed animals, when they find themselves in the water, simply carry out the same motions as when they are walking and their bodies lie low in the water with only their heads sticking out. Unfortunately, as far as swimming is concerned, man walks in an upright position on his two legs, and then when thrown into the water he has to learn an entirely new set of motions using the arms and legs to propel his body which is stretched flat in the water.

lying flat on the surface with the arms stretched out in front of the head and the legs stiff. The next motion is to sweep the arms backward and slightly downward, with the palms of the hands turned outward. Then the elbows are bent and the hands brought up under the chin with the palms together and the knees spread outward. The arms are now pushed straight forward into the original position and the legs are kicked out sideways, finally being brought together. This final motion is very important as the water pushed out from between the legs gives quite an impetus to the body. The body is now allowed to glide in the stretched position and then the stroke started all over again. The breath is taken as the arms make their backward swing and is exhaled gradually during the rest of the stroke.

Another beneficial exercise to practise which will give you confidence is to take a deep breath, duck your head under water, open your eyes and look around. Stay under as long as you can hold your breath. If you are in a swimming pool you might grasp the railing at the side of the pool, take a deep breath and then stretch yourself out face downward in the water, and keep your eyes open. This will give you the same feeling that you will have when swimming. You can practise holding on to the railing with one hand, one finger, and finally you will have confidence enough to float without holding on at all.

If this preliminary work is done and appear to be monotonous but it is absolutely essential for the majority of beginners. Unlike dogs or other four-footed animals, man your head under water, open your eyes and look around. Stay under as long as you can hold your breath. If you are in a swimming pool you might grasp the railing at the side of the pool, take a deep breath and then stretch yourself out face downward in the water, and keep your eyes open. This will give you the same feeling that you will have when swimming. You can practise holding on to the railing with one hand, one finger, and finally you will have confidence enough to float without holding on at all.

are walking on them. This allows the head to be lifted out of the water, high enough to breathe. The speed gained by such a method of swimming is not very great but it serves the purpose of giving the beginner confidence in himself, showing that it is actually possible for him to keep afloat in the water and breathe at the same time.

The next simple stroke is the breast stroke and this also allows the head to be lifted out of the water. This point is emphasized because in practically all other strokes the face is kept in the water and the head is only turned on its side while a breath is being taken. The Breast Stroke is entered by

A FACT A DAY ABOUT CANADA

A Marvellous Machine
There are few industries in which machinery plays so important a part as in the manufacture of pulp and paper.

The Fourdrinier machine on which most paper is made is almost a complete factory in itself. Wood pulp mixed with water to the consistency of thin soup is sprayed on a moving belt of bronze mesh at one end of the machine and by progressive screening, pressing and heating this thin film of pulp is converted into a sheet of dry paper at the other.

Only a Few Seconds
The entire process takes only a few seconds. This enormous piece of machinery costs over half a million dollars. It may be 300 feet in length, 15 feet in height and 25 feet wide. It weighs over 400 tons and can produce a continuous sheet of paper over 20 feet wide at the rate of 1200 feet a minute as long as it is in operation.

Magic Contraction
To the uninitiated observer the machine appears to be operating almost as if by magic. Only three or four men are to be seen taking the finished rolls from one end of the machine but the thousands of moving parts of this mechanical monster are under constant supervision of the paper maker and his assistants. However, the entire paper can be operated by a staff of six men.

Pulp Fuel
The preparation of pulp necessary to fill the mow of the paper machine involves a higher percentage of human labour but here also many improvements have been made in recent years. In the preparation of ground wood pulp, continuous grinders have largely taken the place of the older types of pocket machines into which pulpwood had to be fed in batches, by hand. Until recently all chemical pulp had to be cooked in huge digesters, a batch at a time.

Continuous Digesters
The latest development in this progressive industry is the continuous digester. Chipped wood is fed continuously into one end of the long metal cylinder containing this equipment and the cooked pulp comes out of the other as long as the machine is in operation.

Paper Value
At the present time the pulp and paper industry in Canada gives employment to over 27,000 men who produce paper products valued at over $102,000,000, an average of $5,800 per employee, every year.

Sugar
Sugar is almost entirely a British Empire product and Canada refines the new sugar cane imported from the Empire colonies. Most of our raw product came from British Guiana last year (260 million lbs.); Jamaica (140 million) and Fiji Islands (134 million).

NEWS from AROUND WORLD

The Duke of Windsor and blue-eyed, American-born Wallis Warfield were married Thursday, June 3rd, in the ancient and turreted Chateau de Candé in the pastoral village of sunny monts in France, and with a wistful plea for privacy to work out their own happiness, departed for honeymoon in Austria.

Two simple services united the couple whose romance led Edward VIII to abdicate the throne. The rotund country doctor and Mayor of Mentis, Charles Mercier, read the civil service prescribed by French law before required witnesses in the chateau salon. The religious ceremony was conducted by Rev. R. Anderson Jardine, vicar of St. Paul's Church, Darlington, England, who defied his Church in performing the ceremony.

The close of last week sessions of the Imperial Conference found prospects of an Anglo-American trade treaty, insofar as concessions worth consideration by United States are concerned, at a new point as delegates studied mounting indications of Dominion agricultural and British industrial opposition.

The attitude was still one of optimism that a treaty eventually will be worked out but there is apparently no possibility that the formula will be reached by the time the Imperial Conference adjourns on June 15.

Ten Catholic priests were arrested at Munich, Germany, Sunday after Hitler Youth groups tried to break up St. Boniface youth services in several churches, and a free for all fight started between Hitler and Catholic Youth before one church.

Trouble had been feared since Saturday night, when Munich's most popular catholic priest, Rupert Mayr, was arrested.

The Spanish situation is still tense as the following excerpts from political despatches at important cities will show:

Paris—Anglo-French agreement on a plan to keep neutrality patrol ships out of Spanish waters, and to unify the international fleet, as a means of preventing further trouble over the Spanish civil war, announced at the French Foreign Office.

Berlin—Four German submarines were sent to bolster the already considerable Reich fleet off Spain. Chancellor Hitler held a long conference with Nazi chiefs on the Spanish crisis.

London—Foreign Secretary Anthony Eden explained to Dominion delegates at the Imperial Conference his work on the civil war situation. Prevention, not reprisal, was Britain's aim, he said.

Paris—Julio Alvarez del Vayo, Spain's League Council delegates, declared in an address that the "sole hope for Spain and for Europe" is withdrawal of all foreign volunteers from the contending armies in Spain.

House Painter Who Takes His Kruschen Every Day

How many painters can continue to work when they are over 70? Here is one who can—and he still does some of the most trying jobs in his trade. How does he do it? He tells us in this letter:

"I have been in the habit of taking a few grains of Kruschen Salts in every cup of tea I have had for a great number of years. I may state that I am turned 70 years of age, being born on July 22nd, 1864. I am a house painter by trade and still at work. I can work off any ladder, no matter what height, or in cradles which are hung outside high buildings. I have been asked many times how I carry my age so well, as I only look about 50. Well, I tell them all that I take Kruschen Salts regularly every day."—J. S. A.

Kruschen is a combination of numerous mineral salts which assist in stimulating your liver, kidneys and digestive tract to healthy, regular activity. They ensure internal cleanliness, and so help to keep the blood-stream free from impurities.

STRAWBERRY ROOT ROT CONTROL
Seriously Curtails The Production Of Fruit

In many districts in Canada, black-root or root-rot (tending to seriously curtail the production of the strawberry. Evidence of the presence of the disease in a plantation very often appears along towards cropping time and is first manifested by a wilting of plants. Diseased plants die, the dead foliage becomes dry and brown, and affected areas in a bed appear to have been seared with flame. Further, diseased plants are almost devoid of fibrous roots and of larger roots that still remain are either black and dead or are approaching that condition as manifested by varying degrees of brownish discoloration.

Although no effective means of control of the disease are yet known, nevertheless certain precautions can be taken which greatly help to remedy the situation. In the first place careful choice of planting stock is important. There is to date no system of inspection which insures even relative health or purity of stock. Consequently, it is only to be expected that certain of the stock that is being offered for sale may be of inferior grade. A grower should at least learn something of the comparative health and vigor of the plants he is about to buy. Experiments at St. Catharines have shown that high initial vigor of planting stock is important.

Plants should be set out as soon as possible after digging or delivery, and planting time calls for especial vigilance on the part of the grower. Plants about to be set out should first be rinsed in water and the root system examined. Weaklings and all plants showing brownish discoloration of their roots should be discarded.
