American pumps idle on 'Gasless Sunday'; Not enough gas to fill up in Canada

NEW YORK (CP) — "Sorry, No Gas," read the sign at Sylvester Williams's service station in Los Angeles. "I'm going along with the program," said Williams, who kept his station open on Gasless Sunday to do repair work and rent trailers. "They still come in and say, 'I need some,' but I won't pump any gas."

Williams was among the majority of the estimated 220,000 gasoline dealers in the United States who closed their pumps or entire stations Sunday, a week after President Nixon called for a voluntary step to help ease the fuel shortage.

In response, thousands of American motorists apparently gave up plans for Sunday drives, leaving those who didn't to seek out fuel at the relatively few service stations still selling it. Only a few went across the border to Canada.

In Europe, seven countries now have banned Sunday driving while many service stations in Britain were closed.

"I've never seen it so light," Al Sanders, a Wisconsin State Patrol dispatcher, said of the traffic situation. He said a counting device on Interstate 90 near Madison counted about 200 cars an hour during the afternoon—compared with the 1,000 to 1,200 averaged on previous Sundays.

ROADS DESERTED

Sanders's report was echoed by police and American Automobile Association officials in states across the U.S. In Georgia, the manager of a gas station-restaurant said Interstate 75—the main route to Florida—"looked like a desert road."

The search for gas took some motorists long distances. At the H. G. Willis station in Memphis, Tenn.—where a sign proclaimed "Be Thrifty, Drive 50 So Nixon Can Fly"—one driver reported he had travelled 150 miles before finding an open station.

As in other cities, police in St. Paul, Minn., reported numerous telephone calls from panicky motorists with nearly-empty gas tanks.

"I wish I knew what to tell them," said a dispatcher. "I need gas in my own car."

In the minority were those Americans determined to have their Sunday drive, no matter what.

"Cruising around is our only pleasure," said machinist Joseph Strickland as his car was gassed up in Concord, N.H., at one of three stations open in the city.

"We don't go nightclubbing or drinking or things of that nature. My wife and I like to get out and ride around."

Despite the closed stations in the U.S., there was only a trickle of Americans crossing the border to buy gasoline, a Canadian Press survey showed.

Service station operators in the Maritimes reported an increase in customers but said this was due to Canadians gassing up on their way south.

Several operators in Quebec reported a heavy but normal flow of Americans. In Cornwall, Ont., there was an increase in the number of border crossings and U.S. motorists were frank that their purpose in going to Canada was to buy gasoline.

"They don't make any bones about it," a customs official said.

Other Ontario points reported no increase in traffic.

Manitoba, Saskatchewan, Alberta and British Columbia reported no sizable increase in traffic from the U.S. Icy road conditions prevailed in Alberta and may have cut down traffic.

In Europe, meanwhile, Italy banned Sunday driving this weekend, joining Holland, Belgium, Luxembourg, Denmark, Switzerland and West Germany.

Even the Vatican was affected by the stay-at-home campaign. Pope Paul's St. Peter's Square congregation fell to 1,200, instead of the expected 10,000.

A motoring organization said 95 per cent of gasoline stations were closed in Britain, also being affected by union overtime bans in coal mines and electricity power stations. A country-wide six-per-cent voltage reduction was imposed and road traffic was down 75 per cent.

Italy took to bicycles and buses in its first car-less Sunday while Holland was observing its fifth Sunday without cars.

Treasury Secretary George Shultz warned Americans that higher gas prices are inevitable as President Nixon prepared to announce today that he is creating a new super agency to deal with the country's fuel crisis.

Shultz also said the administration is considering higher taxes on petroleum products, although he acknowledged such a step might produce problems for the economy.

To co-ordinate all government policies dealing with the energy crisis, Nixon is expected to create a federal energy administration headed by William Simon, deputy treasury secretary.

Nixon is reported to share the view of Simon's boss, Shultz, that rationing is not the answer.

He will take over as the president's energy czar from John Love, who has held the position since July and who is believed to have recommended rationing.

In a nationally broadcast speech Sunday night, Senator William Proxmire (Dem. Wis.) contended that Nixon's energy proposals were not enough to prevent severe fuel shortages, loss of jobs and cold homes this winter.

ARABS VISIT — Two consuls and five ambassadors from Algeria, Morocco, Syria, Lebanon and Egypt visited Sherbrooke last night sponsored by Arab-Sherbrooke Friendship Committee. The fathering was organized to show the solidarity of Canadian Arabs with the Arab cause and to meet with civic leaders. Seen above are Dr. George Saine of Sherbrooke; the Archbishop of Sherbrooke, Monsignor Fortier, Yabya Abou Bakr, representing the Egyptian government; and Faez Rifia, consul of Syria.

Many go 'gasoline shopping' Drivers try to beat rising prices

Many drivers in Eastern Canada went "gasoline shopping" Sunday following price increases for gasoline and fuel oil that went into effect Saturday.

But many drivers and homeowners beat the increases in a last-minute blitz Friday.

"Everybody was filling up," one service station operator in Ottawa said, adding that Friday was one of the busiest days on record.

A fuel oil dealer in Halifax said many of his customers "threatened to quit unless we filled their tank up by midnight Friday."

The increases, ranging from four to 5.9 cents a gallon, were approved for parts of the country east of the Ottawa Valley last week by federal Energy Minister Donald Macdonald.

He said the increases are justified due to the rise in the costs of Middle East and Venezuelan crude oil. Arab oil prices climbed almost 70 per cent in October and Venezuelan prices shot up 56 per cent shortly after.

RAISES PRICE AGAIN

As retail dealers changed the price stickers on their pumps Saturday, Venezuela announced yet another price increase, bringing the price of crude to $7.74 a barrel, up 50 cents.

Mr. Macdonald said Saturday that Eastern Canada, which depends on Venezuelan imports for much of its gasoline, will not be affected immediately by the latest Venezuelan price increase.

He said oil companies will have to show "overpowering evidence" that further price increases are necessary.

Fuel oil prices rose about four cents a gallon across Eastern Canada, fixing the price at about 36 cents in Nova Scotia and Prince Edward Island, 32 cents in New Brunswick, 32.5 cents in Quebec and 34.5 cents in Ottawa. New fuel oil prices for Newfoundland have not yet been announced.

Gasoline is most expensive in Newfoundland where Golden Eagle Oil Co. raised its prices by five cents a gallon to 73.5 cents for regular and 79.1 cents for premium.

Not all dealers, however, increased prices. One dealer in St. John's said he plans to raise his prices only after his old stock is gone.

"I don't see how you can put the prices up legally," for old supplies, he said.

DRIVERS CONFUSED

Another operator said many drivers appeared confused by the different prices.

OTTAWA (CP) — The next few weeks could be anything but festive for MPs, especially those on the government side of the House, if Conservative plans bear fruit.

Donald Macdonald, federal energy minister, today was to start moving legislation supporting measures already taken to alleviate the energy crisis through the Commons.

The Conservatives plan, next Monday, to introduce a motion of non-confidence in government energy measures into the debate and are confident they have worded it in such a way the New Democrats, who hold the balance of power, cannot ignore it. The Conservatives, with 106 members compared with 109 Liberals, gleefully expect the 31 New Democrats at last to support them in toppling the government.

Also in the 264-seat House are 15 Social Credit members, one vacancy and two independents.

For their part, the NDP are ready. Party Leader David Lewis has often made public his unhappiness with government energy measures and the eager willingness of his party to fight an election on the issue.

Indications for some time have been that the government would like to recess for Christmas Dec. 14, but the weight of legislation before it, most of which they would like cleaned up before the recess, indicates a somewhat later break.

Two of these matters involve debate on legislation to create a foreign investment review board and legislation to severely limit the use of electronic surveillance equipment.

Justice Minister Otto Lang is getting the roughest ride of all on his electronic surveillance — bugging — bill with the opposition pushing hard for amendments that would sharply limit police use of such equipment.

The main obstacle has been the opposition opinion — supported by some Liberals — that the bill would give police powers that could be open to abuse.

The result of the long, sometimes bitter, debate will be known Tuesday when the legislation comes to a vote. It then would require final Commons approval, Senate approval and royal assent.

Other legislation still facing the House would increase family allowances to an average $20 a child starting Jan. 1, peg the Canada Pension Plan (CPP) to rising living costs and authorize Canadian National Railways to borrow up to $300.5 million and Air Canada up to $140 million to pay for operating expenses and new equipment.

"You've got to check the prices every half hour to keep track of it," he said.

The largest increases were in Ottawa where prices went up as much as 5.9 cents a gallon.

Imperial Oil dealers raised their prices to 66.9 cents a gallon from 61 cents for regular while premium went to 71.9 cents from 66 cents.

An attendant said business was "not too good" Sunday.

In Prince Edward Island, Gulf Oil Canada Ltd. and Imperial Oil both raised gasoline prices by four cents a gallon. Premium now costs 71 cents at Gulf stations and 73.4 cents at Imperial stations. Regular costs 66 cents at Gulf and 68.4 at Imperial.

In New Brunswick, Gulf increased its gasoline price to 69.7 cents for premium and 64.7 cents for regular, up 4.3 cents a gallon. Imperial Oil raised prices to 71 cents a gallon for regular and 66.8 cents for regular, up four cents.

Texaco dealers in Halifax now are charging 74.2 cents for premium and 69.2 cents for regular, an increase of 4.5 cents a gallon.

Schreyer urges energy conservation

WINNIPEG (CP) — Premier Ed Schreyer said Sunday if Canadians care about what happens to future generations they must become more conscious of the need to conserve energy resources that can't be renewed.

Reflecting a concern that dominated the three-day convention of the Manitoba New Democratic Party, Mr. Schreyer said an awareness of energy conservation should be stressed in schools and applied to many aspects of life.

The 37-year-old premier, elected by acclamation to a fifth one-year term as provincial leader, said huge oil reserves that remain to be tapped probably will provide fuel for no more than 30 or 40 years.

In long-range terms it was important to focus on proper use of non-renewable resources while developing renewable power sources, such as the Nelson River hydroelectric project, to the best advantage.

Mr. Schreyer defended the export of hydroelectric power from Manitoba to the United States, provided neighboring provinces are not left short. Revenues from the U.S. sales could be used to build more power sites on the Nelson River.

URGE SPEEDUP

The convention urged a speedup of the Nelson River project, with the minority arguing the scheme will damage the delicate ecology of the North and should be scrapped or at least postponed for further studies.

Energy question got the greatest attention from speakers, from the formal talks by federal leader David Lewis and Alberta leader Grant Nottley earlier in the convention down to the floor-level debate Sunday afternoon.

A broad statement on energy policy adopted by the convention said non-renewable oil and gas resources are fast being depleted in Western Canada. Only increased public ownership and control could ensure Canadians or security of supply and price.

Gasoline station operators in Canadian border centres generally said business during the weekend was normal despite the request by President Nixon to close United States stations on Saturdays and Sundays which had threatened to send an influx of Americans across the border in search of fuel.

While traffic over the border was reported normal, a survey by The Canadian Press of border point stations showed that with few exceptions, there was little more than a trickle of U.S. customers at Canadian pumps.

In the Maritimes, gas station operators near border points reported an increase in customers but Canadians headed for U.S. points provided most of the extra business.

Although the U.S. gallon is one-sixth smaller than the Imperial gallon, gasoline prices in most of Maine currently are between 44 and 46 cents a gallon for regular and between 45 and 48 cents a gallon for premium.

Prices in the St. Stephen, N.B., area near Calais, Me., retail between 68 and 70 cents for regular and between 73 and 75 for premium.

One operator in St. Stephen said he had noticed an increase in U.S. cars for about three weeks while four stations surveyed in Woodstock, N.B., said there has been no increase.

HEAVY FLOW NORMAL

Operators in Lacolle and Hemmingford, Que., reported a heavy but normal flow of U.S. cars to their pumps.

"Americans come in by the bagful and it's impossible to tell unless you have someone posted at each gas station in the area," a provincial police spokesman said.

A customs supervisor at Lacolle said traffic Sunday had been very slow and "in any case we can't tell whether they're going in only for gas or not and they wouldn't tell us if they were."

In Ontario, there was a noticeable increase in the number of border raids at Cornwall where drivers willingly said their sole intent in crossing was to replenish their gasoline supply.

"They don't make any bones about it," a customs official said.

Kevin Edwardson, working at a station about a quarter mile from the Seaway Valley Bridge there, said he had had more than the normal quota of U.S. customers on what had been a quiet day.

"I've had about seven or eight in here for gas," he said.

However, customs officers at the Prescott, Ont., Ogdensburg, N.Y., crossing said they had experienced no increase in traffic from the U.S.

"If anything, it's less," one said.

WEREN'T ASKING

Customs officers at both Niagara Falls crossings said there had been no major increase in U.S. traffic and since they were not questioning drivers as to their reasons for crossing, it was difficult to ascertain exactly how many were only after gasoline.

"We've had the odd one but nothing to get excited about," said Mary Wale, who operates a station near the bridge.

George Frank, whose station is about one-half mile from the border, said he believes many Americans are worried Canadian operators won't serve them.

"Friends have told me that when they go over to the American side and try and get gas, service station operators tell them to go back to Canada for fuel," he added.

A customs official at the tunnel linking Windsor with Detroit, said there had been no increase in U.S. traffic Sunday.

"We've had the odd one come across for gas but traffic, in general, is no heavier than usual for a Sunday," said a traffic supervisor at the Ambassador Bridge between the motor cities.

He added that the influx of Americans Sunday night was deceiving as many were headed for Windsor's harness track.

Ron Beauchamp, a Windsor operator, said he was "very disappointed" in the number of Americans stopping for gas, adding he had had only four U.S. customers up until 4 p.m. Sunday.

Attendants at stations in Manitoba generally reported a quiet day.

All 10 stations checked in six communities along the North Dakota border reported no noticeable increase in U.S. vehicles.

However, at Fort Frances, Ont., Williard Williamson reported all six U.S. cars he served at his station only a block from the border had driven across, filled up and immediately returned.

Customs officers at North Portal, Sask., said crossings from North Dakota were about normal for a Sunday and they knew of no Americans coming across just to fill their tanks.

Extremely icy road conditions prevailed along much of the Alberta-Manitoba border Sunday with no great influx of U.S. cars reported.

UCW meeting

WAY'S MILLS — The Way's Mills UCW met on Wednesday afternoon, Nov. 21 at the home of Mrs. Lottie Drew, with an attendance of ten ladies.

The meeting opened with a moment of silence in memory of Mrs. Mary Horn, a charter and life member, whose death occurred on Nov. 12. As a tribute to Mrs. Horn, the president then read the poem "On Giving," a selection from "The Prophet," by Kahlil Gibran.

The worship service, conducted by Mrs. Weyland Pope, had as its theme: "Giving and receiving."

A mission and stewardship program followed. Mrs. Mayhew introduced the new study kit, Mission Impossible — Unless and Mrs. Cass reviewed the first section of the study book For A Time Like This.

At the business session plans were made for Christmas cheer, ideas for banners were presented and the church calendars were put on sale. A donation was voted to the Mission and Service fund in memory of Mrs. Horn and an article of furniture will later be placed in the Union Church as a memorial.

At the social hour, a tape recording of parts of Dr. Wilbur Howard's address at conference was heard. Refreshments were served by the hostess assisted by Mrs. Arthur Jordan.

The next meeting will be on December 12 at the home of Mrs. W.B. Holmes.

Goldenager's Ball—a gala event

MANSONVILLE — A first in Mansonville! — The Goldenager's Ball with well over 150 senior citizens and younger people in attendance Saturday evening, Nov. 24 in the Mansonville Town Hall.

Lovely white-haired ladies costumed in floor length daytime and evening gowns, some in velvet pants suits and others with just a piece of grey in their hair, in one-piece pant dresses, all more than pleasing to the eye. Nostalgia filled the air as those seated enjoyed the music and watched the waltzes, dances of yesteryear and World War 2 Poikas. The elderly even took a turn at today's modern style dancing alongside younger people, lending a happy note to the evening. The graceful ballroom dancing of Mayor and Mrs. Bruce Armstrong was sentimentally admired.

The make-shift band of friends and relatives (some formerly from Mansonville) who had not come together musically for many years, were very versatile and talented. From Essex Junction, Vt., Levi Masse who won awards and trophies, and is a member of the Vermont North-East Fiddlers Assoc. (he was included on Record Discs made by the Assoc.), played violin and guitar, and his wife Kathleen was on piano; Bill Masse played violin guitar and saxophone while his wife, Eleanor, took her turn at the piano; they are from St. Albans, Vt., have a three-piece orchestra and play for the Veterans of Foreign War there. Their drummer Stan Driscoll, a blind person, who showed excellent talent was also called for square dances. Also on the piano in turn was Debbie Fleury and Joseph Fleury on violin, both from North Hyde Park, Vt., another drummer taking his part was Denis Viens of Cowansville; Marcel Carrier, Granby, formerly of Mansonville, played the guitar, sang and called for square dances. He also sang a duet with his sister, Gisele Carrier of Cowansville, who is a school teacher. Another well-known and talented square-dance caller was Mansonville's Francis McKeelvey.

Local boys playing the guitar were Francois Carrier, Raymond Parent and Jean-Maurice Laliberte, who also played the violin. The Masse Boys, as they were once known before they left the area in the late '30s, are sons of Mrs. Edna Masse still living here.

Mrs. Masse and Mrs. Betty Klopfer acted as hostesses, greeting everyone at the entrance to the dance, while Mr. Eugene Lamothe acted as ticket seller. Refreshments were prepared and made available by ladies of the Golden Age Club.

The gratifying event was organized by Mrs. Bernice Morin, Chairwoman of the Entertainment Committee for the Goldenagers, who pinned corsages and boutonnières to the guests clothing at the shoulder and who also thanked the orchestra participants for coming such long distances and making the occasion a happy and memorable one.

The highlight of the evening occurred when Mrs. Morin led the guests-of-honor, Mayor and Mrs. Armstrong on stage and a grandson of the Armstrongs, little John David Mowat of Ramsey, N.J., presented Mrs. Armstrong with a lovely large bouquet of red American Beauty Roses tied together with wide silver and gold metallic mesh ribbons, from the Goldenagers.

Bruce, as he wishes to be called, voiced sentiments and appreciation on behalf of his wife as well as himself. Their family was present for the happening.

Later on in the evening, Mrs. Morin led the large gathering in singing Happy Birthday to Mrs.

Louis Laliberte, who turned 78 the very same day.

The activity and gaiety of this particular night was proof of the pudding, that you are only as old as you think — and many a young oldster showed gracefulness on the dance floor in the happy town of Mansonville.

Tax increase not expected

Budget disclosure tonight

SHERBROOKE (CC) — Residents of Sherbrooke who are now counting their money as the added expense of Christmas approaches may be given a little respite today.

There should be little increase in municipal taxes next year.

Mayor Marc Bureau and his team of Civic Action party councillors are expected to adopt the 1974 municipal budget at this evening's council meeting with no major tax increase.

Sources at city hall say there will be no increase in taxes during the next fiscal year. One councillor said: "There is a redistribution in some areas but the major part of the population will not be faced with any additional municipal taxes to pay."

Last year, in an attempt to balance the budget, council was forced to raise the mill rate for city tax purposes to $10.40 for every thousand dollars of property evaluation from its previous rate of $8.80. It also implemented a special $0.80 additional tax for garbage collection and cut out discounts for prompt payment of electricity bills.

But many factors have led up to what is expected to be a no tax increase budget.

During the last year the city has benefited from increased government grants. Also, many municipal departments have been revamped during the past year to promote increased efficiency and more rational allocation of budget resources.

The rationalization process has been so successful that a few of the city's departments could have a budget surplus. In addition the payment of the accumulated operating deficit which has to be removed by 1976 has already been provided for in the tax increase last year.

One of the major reasons for the tax increase in 1973 was to secure funds to alleviate the operating deficit of $915,000 which had been accumulated administrations prior to the Bureau team.

Government legislation demands that all operating deficits be cleared up before 1976.

A budget without tax increases is also expected because this is Sherbrooke's election year. Some councillors wanted such a budget to help them gain re-election when the population goes to the polls next November.

The council has come under considerable fire because of its fiscal and rationalization policies. Many groups have vented their anger against the municipal administration when they were refused grants by the city.

The budget will be released to the press early this afternoon. The city's finance committee chairman, Jacques O'Bready, along with Mayor Bureau and city technocrats who prepared the budget will be on hand.

Included in the budget will be the city's capital expenditure plans for the year. Already $75,000 has been voted to ease traffic congestion on Portland street. Other projects will be announced today.

Makes reference to parasitical institutions

Taboika blasts ETRSB decision

By MICHAEL ISAACS
Record Reporter

LENNOXVILLE — Frank Taboika, president of View Point Development Inc., blasted the Eastern Townships Regional School Board (ETRSB) Friday for its decision to refuse his company access to the Alexander Galt Regional High School (AGRHS) sewage pipe.

Taboika's company is to build 33 houses on land adjacent to AGRHS. Taboika feels that the ETRSB commissioners voted against permitting him to use the school's pipe because they were opposed to the idea of a housing project.

He pointed out that commissioners were well aware of the fact that the AGRHS pipe could satisfy the requirements of 100 houses and alleged that none of the commissioners had visited the site of the houses-to-be before making the decision.

Labeling the ETRSB decision "myopic," Taboika claimed that the board has moved to block the progress of the area.

"When 33 houses are to be built, each of which is to bring hundreds of dollars to the municipality in taxes, it is totally unreasonable that certain parasitical institutions should be permitted to block economical development of those houses," he declared.

Under the category parasitical, he listed educational institutions and the Lennoxville Agricultural Research station, which, he contended, receive fire and police protection for virtually no contribution to the budgets which maintain these services.

"They should remember that they are representatives of the people of the area," Taboika said to ETRSB members. "When they make a decision which is going to affect the economy of the area, they should consult with their constituents before deciding." He claimed that they had not done so with regard to the sewage question.

When the ETRSB made its decision at its last meeting, three reasons were forwarded in support of their position. Board members were worried that should they grant such a privilege to one company, they would be inundated with similar requests.

As well, they suggested that the government would not allow a private commercial enterprise to use the sewage systems of government buildings.

Finally, as ETRSB director-general Wendell Sparkes pointed out, Camille Bernard, director of the Lennoxville Research Station, was applying pressure to the board with the intention of causing them to make good on their predicted filter system and more sewage would further aggravate the situation.

Taboika, on the other hand, contended that the likelihood would be small that requests for use of the sewage system will exceed the capacity of the pipe. He claimed that he had no knowledge of any governmental regulation prohibiting private use of the facilities of government-owned buildings, in this case the sewage pipe.

With regard to a filter system, he claimed that it will be only a number of years until such a system is constructed. He declared that since the expenses will be too high for local ratepayers to support by themselves, the government will assist the subsidization of the system's construction.

"As for the experimental farm," he said, "it is rather presumptuous of them to dictate to the citizens of the area that they can hold a monopoly on land, sewage and water systems of the area and also have no responsibility to the local ratepayers."

According to Taboika, the most significant aspect about the project he has called University View Point Development is to be found in the security which such houses will bring to faculty members of various educational institutions in the region.

Taboika said that he will not be blocked because of the board's decision. According to Asot laws, to which the development must adhere, houses may and must have septic tanks if they are situated on lots of more than 30,000 square feet.

Taboika has measured his lots in accordance with these requirements and will conform to them when buildings are being constructed. There will be no problem with water since the main water line runs across his land.

"Contrary to the ETRSB, the Lennoxville Town Council has been very co-operative with us and will permit us to tap the water supply," he concluded.

Border Red Cross holds annual meeting

ROCK ISLAND (IH) — The annual meeting of the Rock Island - Stanstead - Beebe and area branch of the Canadian Red Cross was held the afternoon of Monday, Nov. 26 at the home of Dr. and Mrs. J.S. McCannel in Rock Island.

The president, Mrs. Jean Beasse, presided and first expressed appreciation to the McCannel's for opening their home for this meeting. She also welcomed the good representation present.

One of the highlights of the meeting was when L.E. Roberge, honorary president, presented Mrs. Beasse with her service pin and certificate which is the second highest award in Red Cross. Mrs. Beasse, many years ago, became interested in Red Cross as a canvasser in a campaign. Since then she has served for several years as Chairman of the Disaster Fund, in other capacities and, the past year, as branch president.

Paul Lebel, commissioner for the province, attended the meeting and after the reports had been given he congratulated the people on their achievements the past year and said this Branch is one of the leading ones in the province according to size.

Jean Beasse, treasurer of petty cash and special funds, gave his report.

John Getty, campaign chairman for the 1973 year, noted a sum of $1,555 collected in Rock Island, Stanstead, Beebe, Way's Mills, Fitch Bay, Stanstead East, and Fairfax. The objective had been $1,200.

The blood donor clinic, in 1973, surpassed its objective of 150 pints. There were 162 donations of blood.

Gilles Beland, who was assistant to Chairman Germain Poulin, made recommendations for the 1974 clinic.

The Women's Work, always outstanding, noted that November 1, 1972 to November 1, 1973, there had been 12 shipments of work material received, and 11 shipments of finished work sent to headquarters in Montreal.

The shipments included 1,820 finished, sewed and knitted articles plus 29 crib quilts donated and 3,619 swabs. The workers gather at the home of the chairman, Mrs. Elizabeth Cass, in Beebe, semi monthly and they, along with others, sew and knit in their own homes.

Mr. Lebel had the highest praise for these workers which, he said, is second to none across the province.

Each July Mrs. Cass has a tea and invites all associates of the committee. This year a special invitation will go to Mrs. Kimpton in Montreal who is provincial chairman of Women's Work.

There were 48 items loaned from the loan cupboard the past year. This was an increase over the previous year. The items

Domtar conflict settled

WINDSOR (CC) — The Domtar plant here is back to normal today.

All activities are in full gear and the more than 650 employees who were locked out of the plant last Wednesday evening are at work.

A solution to the conflict, which had halted work at the plant, came last Friday during a meeting between company officials and union negotiators in Montreal.

According to the union the company finally agreed to sign a statement of non-reprisal against the union and union employees. Up until then the company had reserved the right to prosecute the union and employees for damages caused to plant and equipment during contract negotiations.

Canadian National Trade Union technical advisor Alfred Lafond called the signing "a great victory."

The signing of the contract, which has already been approved by the employees, will give the workers retroactive pay amounting to a total $0.42 an hour. Contract negotiations started seven months ago.

Opinion from the French-language press...

This is a translation of editorials on current topics, translated from the French-language press of Canada.

Montreal La Presse: After President Nixon's address to the American nation on the controls needed to prepare for a marked shortage in hydrocarbon supplies, the Canadian energy minister, Donald MacDonald, also gave a severe picture of what we can expect in this field.

The prospects are a little less gloomy in Canada. However, the success of the first phase of voluntary restraints, to a large measure, will affect the progress in the battle against the shortage of oil products.

In other words, the civic conscience and the public's sense of responsibility will contribute toward delaying possible rationing and even prevent its appearance. It is hoped that the appeal made by the energy minister will be heard and put in practice by the vast majority of consumers.

Home heating can have a direct influence on the use of supplies, and consequently on the threat, more or less important, of a shortage. Until now, in the U.S. as in Canada, the approach of winter has not manifested itself as in previous years, at this date.

A generally mild winter could contribute greatly to ease the situation. Nevertheless, one should not depend too much on that to solve certain real difficulties which will present themselves in any case.

After a first increase of three cents a gallon on gasoline, the next increase of between four and five cents, to go into effect in the next few days, will be badly received by motorists who will again see the cost of living as well as the cost of production going up another notch.

The stability of the current government in Ottawa can only suffer the repercussions. In any case, the current prospects and the resulting experience can only make us reflect on our tendency to waste energy—Cyrille Felteau (Nov. 27)

Ottawa Le Droit: To break with a friendly country on the sole demand of a more important client is part of international bargaining.

Such was the decision made by Canada when it officially recognized mainland China. It had to give up Taiwan, not as a nation but as a myth.

The U.S., which wants to normalize its relations with Mao, today finds itself in the same dilemma and the decision it must take is all the more painful as Taiwan owes, in large part, its existence and its success to American aid.

It would take prodigious imagination to believe that a small island located 150 miles from the Chinese shores, with a population of some 15 million, represented the whole of mainland China with its 700 million people.

Before reaching a cordial agreement with Peking, we had to yield to Chairman Mao's demands and accept the principle of an unique China.

That is the choice Washington must make. It is not easy. The Americans have, on many occasions, reiterated their promises never to abandon their nationalist allies.

Chiang Kai-shek is justly worried over the prospect of a reconciliation with his enemies of yesterday.

From the contents of the statement published after State Secretary Henry Kissinger's four-day trip to Peking, everything points to the belief that Taiwan has serious reasons to take fright.

Mr. Nixon's surrender of Formosa would be a new defeat for U.S. foreign policy and a personal failure for the president.

In the next few months, it will be interesting to see how Mr. Kissinger gains the good graces of the big without crushing the small—Fulgence Charpentier (Nov. 22)

Trois-Rivieres Le Nouvelliste: Once again David Lewis' New Democratic Party has placed the sword of Damocles over the head of Pierre Elliott Trudeau's minority government.

In other words, Mr. Lewis warns the Trudeau government against an eventual increase of oil prices.

If the government authorities accept that Canadian oil industries raise the price of their products, the NDP will withdraw its support of Mr. Trudeau. As a result, Canadians might be called upon during the winter season to settle the dilemma in a general election.

It is not the first time Mr. Lewis has acted in this way. This tactic, which Mr. Lewis refuses to call a threat, has been fruitful for the NDP. It was perfectly logical for Mr. Lewis to use once again the same tactics to get his point of view accepted.

If the government leader decides to fly on his own wings, it is clear that he will have no other alternative than to call upon the Canadian voters.

Since Sept. 4, the Canadian oil industry has voluntarily frozen its oil prices for a five-month period. However, the government recently agreed to a first increase of three cents. It is obvious that these industries will again increase their prices. What will happen after Jan. 31, when the price freeze period will end?

Mr. Lewis wants to put everything in motion right away so that Canadians will not have to suffer a new price increase in this field.

His intention is valid and without a doubt Mr. Trudeau will have to take it into account in the elaboration of his national energy policy if he does not want to face Canadian voters on the question.

It is clear that if the prime minister does not take into account the NDP demands, he gives this political group all the cards necessary in a future election campaign. The New Democrats could easily make this question the theme of their campaign.

One thing is certain, this new threat hovering over Mr. Trudeau's head could play an important role in the elaboration of the federal government's energy policy.

Mr. Lewis' demands are vast. But they have the advantage of touching Canadian wallets closely. It remains to be seen whether Mr. Trudeau once again will play Mr. Lewis's game—Rejean Lacombe (Nov. 22).

Quebec Le Soleil: The slowdown observed in price increases in North America in September appears to be caused by improved food production. Earlier in the year, the increase in food prices was the main factor in general price increases.

This tendency to moderation coincides with the end of controls on the price of beef in the U.S. Sept. 12. Relaxing the controls led to an increase in offers by producers, who had been waiting for this occasion.

Faced with a situation of food shortage, producers are placed in a favorable position as prices have a tendency to go up. In addition to this natural attraction, government intervention, notably in Canada, has acted in various manners to guarantee more stable incomes to farmers.

As a result, farmers increase their production, which slows down the price race as supply adjusts to demand.

We are currently seeing this phenomena in Canada and the U.S. Prices, especially food prices, are increasing less rapidly than in previous months. But the farmers do not seem disposed to return to old prices. At most, we can hope to see prices stabilize or at least increase in only a moderate manner.

However, Canada is closely linked to the economy of other Western countries. By exporting and importing many products we also import inflation. We know to what extent inflation in the U.S. has had repercussions in Canada.

The scarcity of oil in the world will contribute during the next few years to general price increases in consumer countries, essentially industrialized countries.

A temporary scarcity of food and a longer-term scarcity of energy can only aggravate inflationary tensions in the next few years.

Inflation will become the major economic problem of developed countries—Gilles Boyer (Nov. 21)

Arabs' allies

All the king's horses and all the king's men are engaged in gigantic efforts to put back on the wall the NATO Humpty and the EEC Dumpty, whose fall during the Middle East crisis has shattered all the bland assumptions about Western security and Western solidarity. The dirges and lamentations of the passing of a great ideal are heard not only from America — where they are uttered more in anger than sorrow — but also from Europe.

Andrew Schonfield, director of the British Institute of International Affairs, writes: "If European countries were to allow themselves to become tacit allies of the Arab oil states in operating an embargo on the supply of oil to American customers, they could not expect American military forces to supply a defensive shield for Western Europe."

In Germany, the large-circulation Die Welt wrote that in a major international crisis the nine members of the European Economic Community have discarded their neutrality to support the Arab viewpoint, which is the viewpoint of the Soviet Union, and having taken sides against Israel have aligned themselves with the Soviet Union against the United States.

Chancellor Brandt, anxious about the "cold monster" attitudes adopted by the member states of the EEC, has made a stirring speech in which he reiterated the solid basis of Franco-German friendship and pleaded for a speedier approach to European unity.

Mr. Brandt fears that France may go it alone, and the recent utterances of French ministers all point in that direction. Moreover, Prime Minister Heath's "Gaulist instinct is not dead," writes Mr. Schonfield; and to placate such Gaullist sentiments the European members of NATO have divorced themselves entirely from the United States efforts to match Soviet supplies to the Arabs with equivalent assistance to Israel.

Except for Portugal, all the NATO countries denied overflight rights to the planes of the American airlift, and Britain even refused to allow American reconnaissance planes to use British Mediterranean bases. On the other hand, two NATO countries, Greece and Turkey, allowed Soviet planes flying war supplies to the Arabs to operate in their air space. Thus in the first major crisis over an overt Soviet threat to upset the balance of power in the Middle East, NATO allies refused to back the United States.

One should interject here that this refusal of the European powers to fulfil not only their NATO obligations but also their EEC obligations towards The Netherlands — a small country, but hardly one of which the British know nothing — will do little to encourage Israel to place much trust in European promises of multinational guarantees of her future borders. How can the Europeans, who have recklessly cocked a snook at the United States, be expected to come to the aid of the Jews?

The villain of the piece is undoubtedly France, and one wonders where is the vaunted logic of her policies. On the one hand she objects to the Vienna arms reduction talks because they would reduce American forces in Europe. On the other hand, she has been leading Europe in its refusal to back the United States — even though Washington has acted in Europe's own long-term interest. Moreover, France subscribes to the Arabs' right to pick and choose their customers.

"There are normally laws in an orderly society which compel the vendors of essential goods and services to supply all comers," Mr. Schonfield remarks in commenting on President Pompidou's announcement that because of this right France has to establish with the sellers of oil "the basis of a confident, balanced and lasting co-operation."

Still hankering for a great-power role, or perhaps with a more sinister intent, which would match the recent Chinese suggestion to State Secretary Kissinger that Israel be eliminated whereupon the Soviet Union would have no more excuse to linger on in the Middle East, France continues to demand that the armies of the five permanent members of the Security Council — United States, the Soviet Union, China, Britain and France — make up the Middle East peace force. This could not but become an occupation force and bring on disaster even quicker than the present selfishly nationalist French policies.

The German press has been almost unanimous in acknowledging that Europe was united in only one respect: to give in to oil blackmail. Whether a truly united Europe with a joint foreign policy will have the courage of the convictions of its founders, or whether it will follow France's selfish lead, is a question that those who now hope to repair the damage cannot but ponder.

Dr. Kissinger does not seem to believe that the answer is in the affirmative, and Mr. Schonfield argues that it would be best if France left both NATO and the European Community.

These are sad times for those who believed in a European regeneration and who have considered NATO as the best instrument of collective defence.

Report shows living costs vary widely across Canada

OTTAWA (CP) — A new government report showed Thursday that some living costs vary widely across Canada, including dentistry and medicine prices 16 per cent higher in Ottawa than Regina and tobacco prices in St. John's, Nfld., 38 per cent above Vancouver.

The figures on dentistry and medicine, personal care, alcohol and tobacco are the first in a new series that will show Canadians which cities are cheaper to live in.

The regular monthly reports on living costs in Canada and its major cities which have long been published by Statistics Canada give only the size of price increases or decreases and do not show which cities have lower prices.

For instance, one city could have a bigger price hike in a given month but still be less expensive than other cities because prices were lower to begin with.

WILL FILL GAP
 The new series, the first of its kind in two years, will fill this gap by comparing actual price levels. Later reports will compare transportation, clothing, housing and food costs in the various cities.

"We started with the simpler ones to sort of get our feet wet," said a Statistics Canada spokesman on Thursday's initial report comparing August prices. The new report does not show prices in dollars and cents, but in terms of a price index with 100 equalling the average of all 11 cities.

Thus, Ottawa's price index of 109 for dentistry and medicines was nine per cent above the average for all cities and 16 per cent above Regina's index of 93. The Regina index was seven per cent below the average and the lowest of the 11 cities.

Other city indexes for dentistry and medicines showed St. John's, Charlottetown and Halifax each two per cent above the all-city average. Saint John, N.B. one per cent higher and Toronto five per cent higher.

Cities with lower than average prices for dentistry and medicine in addition to Regina were Winnipeg and Vancouver, both two per cent lower, and Montreal five per cent less. Edmonton was even with the all-city average.

In personal care supplies, the biggest spread was in Charlottetown prices which were 12 per cent higher than Montreal and Halifax. Charlottetown costs were nine per cent above average while Montreal and Halifax were three per cent below average.

St. John's and Ottawa's indexes for personal care supplies were two per cent above average. Saint John seven per cent higher, Toronto three per cent higher, Winnipeg one per cent above and Regina four per cent higher. Costs were one per cent lower in Edmonton and in Vancouver.

In fees for personal care services such as haircuts and beauty parlors, Toronto had the highest prices, eight per cent above the average, and Charlottetown the lowest at 15 per cent under average.

That was a 27 per cent price difference between the two cities.

Vancouver was second highest with costs six per cent above average.

Cities with lower prices were Edmonton at one per cent lower, St. John's and Winnipeg two per cent, Regina and Halifax eight per cent, Saint John nine per cent, Montreal six per cent and Ottawa five per cent lower.

The tobacco price difference of 38 per cent between St. John's and Vancouver was substantially because of tax differences, the report said.

The St. John's prices were 32 per cent above the all-city average and Vancouver's five per cent below. Others above the average were Charlottetown at five per cent, Ottawa, Halifax and Winnipeg four per cent, Saint John two per cent, and Toronto one per cent. Montreal and Regina were one per cent below average and Edmonton two per cent lower.

China may be able to influence oil politics

PEKING (Reuter) — China has been mentioned little during the current Middle East oil wrangle, but it has the potential to give a vigorous new twist to international oil politics.

"Whoever has oil has leverage," commented one Western envoy here. "And China certainly has oil" although how much is not known outside China and maybe not even by the Chinese themselves.

In the past, China's name rarely has been associated with oil because the Chinese have been neither great producers nor consumers of oil.

China often has said it is self-sufficient in oil, and even exports a little to allies such as North Vietnam and North Korea, but this does not mean much in terms of total world supplies because the amounts involved are relatively small.

Figures for Chinese oil production are as elusive as most other statistics here, but one Western estimate put production in 1970 at 18 million tons — about 14 days' production in the United States.

Despite China's doubling of this output figure in the last three years, the total does not add up to more than a tiny fraction of existing world supplies.

What must be exciting the attention of countries who find their oil supplies threatened by the Arab export cut are China's untapped oil reserves.

Some Western authorities believe China is sitting on massive oil reserves which it has just begun to discover, let alone exploit. One U.S. oil equipment representative was quoted as saying earlier this year that Chinese reserves may be the third-largest in the world.

A visiting Canadian geologist said recently that even a cursory glance at China's geology indicates the probable existence of large oil fields far more than China can handle at present.

But China realizes it has neither the technology nor the financial resources to exploit these supplies rapidly on its own. Thus, if China was to become a major oil producer quickly it would have to rely on a substantial infusion of foreign technology and money.

There are also territorial issues involved in some of the offshore oilfields, with Japan, South Korea, Taiwan and others laying claim to areas also claimed by China.

Earlier this year, several U.S. oil company representatives were invited to China, raising hopes that the Chinese were about to launch into large-scale deals for joint oil production.

But the hopes proved premature, as the Chinese interest at that stage appeared little more than collecting relevant data on oil production techniques and costs.

Some qualified observers here believe the recent Middle East crisis may prompt the Chinese to hasten plans for developing their oil resources.

BEND TO SOVIETS
 One theory is that China is concerned that Japan, faced with a threatened halt of its Middle East oil supplies, will be obliged to turn to the Soviet Union and accept Moscow's terms — which Japan has so far found unpalatable — for long-standing joint projects to exploit Siberian oil and natural gas.

The Chinese argue that the pipeline could just as easily be used for supplying Soviet troops on the border as for transporting oil to Japan.

To dissuade Japan from going ahead with this project, the Chinese may be prepared to offer at least some share of the Chinese oil resources, possibly in exchange for Japanese help in getting the oil out of the ground.

China already has bought at least one offshore oil rig from Japan.

Can't believe she ate the whole thing

Dear Ann Landers: I'm an average housewife, 30 years old with two darling little girls and a nice hard-working husband. We are expecting another child in eight weeks.

This morning my father came over with a beautiful present for us, a lovely three-and-a-half-pound roast. I decided to prepare it in advance and serve it for dinner tonight. I was really excited because we haven't had any beef for quite a while.

At 4 o'clock the roast was finished so I took it out of the oven and put it on the sideboard. It looked so tempting I decided to take a little taste to see if the seasoning was right. Well, Ann, I can't explain what happened to me but it's like I went berserk.

I couldn't stop eating. I ate the whole roast. Afterwards I felt so guilty I nearly cried. I felt like a rat when I was preparing the substitute dinner, a tuna casserole with noodles. I was so ashamed of myself I just couldn't tell my husband what happened.

Will you please tell me why I did such a rotten thing? It might help if I understood. — A Texas Glutton

Dear Tex: Sometimes pregnant women develop a sudden passion for a food they haven't had in a long time. Then they become compulsive about devouring large quantities of it. They just can't stop eating. This is probably what happened to you.

Don't prepare any more roasts "in advance" until your baby is born.

Dear Ann Landers: Here's a tardy but relevant response to that Canadian reader who was fed up with Americans who don't know one thing about Canada. (He said "the further south I went the more ignorant U.S. citizens are.")

Please tell our neighbor to the north to think nothing of it. I live in the Pacific Northwest and you wouldn't believe the things New Yorkers, Texans and Iowans have said to me. Here are some examples.

"You have electricity and plumbing! Isn't that wonderful! How long have you had it?"

"We brought our fur coats and parkas (it was June) because we didn't think you had any summer this far north! The weather is beautiful! How come?"

"Do the Indians give you much trouble?"

So please be aware, Miss Landers, that ignorance is not a matter of geography. There are plenty of Americans who don't know anything about their own country, much less Canada. What's more, all the ignoramuses aren't in the South — Pacific Northwest Revisited

Dear P.N.: Well said. I agree. Dear Ann Landers: I'm a security guard in the Kansas City airport and I have a message for everyone who travels by plane. Please don't bring gift-wrapped packages aboard, or boxes that are taped shut or tied with knotted strings or ribbons. We have to tear off the gift-wrappings and cut the ribbons and strings.

A lot of folks get mad at us. They act as if we do it to be ornery, but we must inspect every package because those are the rules. Furthermore, we do it for their protection. We want to provide them with as much safety as possible.

After all, THEY are going to board the plane, we aren't going anywhere — Trying To Perform A Service

Dear Trying: As one who travels extensively I thank you for your dedication and for your letter. I appreciate both.

The marriage of Nancy Louise daughter of Mrs. Louise Coleman, and the late Glen Coleman, and the late Glen Coleman, took place on October 27, in St. Alban's Anglican Church, Scotstown. The Reverend Maxwell Jones officiated at the double-ring ceremony and Mrs. B. Atkin played the wedding music.

Given in marriage by her brother David, the bride wore a white floor-length hooded dress of polyester satin and carried white and pink carnations. The maid of honor, Miss Colette Lapointe, was in a two-piece floor-length dress of orange and beige knit and carried white carnations.

Mr. Jacques Carrier, friend of the groom, acted as best man. Following the wedding, a reception was held in the Church Hall. Miss Mary Lou MacDonald, cousin of the bride, was in charge of the guest book.

Thanks were also extended to those who supplied food and who assisted at the recent Food Sale, the results of which were most satisfactory.

unable to look after the Food Table. After some discussion it was decided that the cost of tickets for children would remain at half price.

DERBY LINE — The South of the Border Home Extension Club's November 26th meeting was held at the home of the president, Mrs. Denise Benoit in Derby Line, with 13 members attending. The meeting opened with the Salute to the Flag and Homemakers Creed.

The roll call was most interesting as each one presented a hand-made Christmas idea or gift. The usual reports followed.

It was noted that this Club had topped the Orleans County Club giving gifts to Operation Gift Lift to Waterbury Hospital. These gifts are selected by the patients there for their family at Christmas time.

There was discussion about the Christmas remembrances to senior people and it was agreed to do the same as usual.

The next meeting in December will be held earlier, on the 10th at the home of Mrs. Marilyn Barrup with a pot luck supper at 6:30 p.m., a Christmas party and gift exchange.

The meeting adjourned and the topic creative recycling was presented and demonstrated by Mrs. Diane Provoncha and Mrs. Diane Kelley. This was most interesting as items can be

Key 73 campaign ends; results not dramatic

By R. J. ANDERSON
Canadian Press Staff Writer
Some participants expected
God to work a miracle in 12

Mr. Robert Dodds-Hebron

The Chairman of the Board, Dr. W.K. MacLeod, Sr., is pleased to announce the appointment of Robert Dodds-Hebron, Eng. to the position of General Sales Manager of Lynn MacLeod Engineering Supplies Limited.

Mr. Dodds-Hebron comes to us well qualified having graduated from McGill University (Mining) and holds a degree in Business Administration. His extensive experience and knowledge gained through years of service as Executive Vice-President with one of the leading Asbestos Mining Companies at Senior Management level brings strength to our organization.

months. They found He is chary of miracles and operates on a day-to-day basis. A bold venture into mass evangelism, unique in its broad approach, designed to win a continent for Christ, the Key 73 organization self-destructs Dec. 31, on schedule. It may never be revived.

A Cross-Canada Survey by The Canadian Press shows that its impact on the public consciousness was less than overwhelming. Its results, if not entirely negative, were not dramatic.

But some church leaders aver it was not a failure. They say it brought together church people who never before had rubbed shoulders or shared faith. They say it enlarged the areas of understanding and appreciation of the varieties of Christian emphasis.

That, said Rev. Keith Woolard of the United Church of Canada, is God's everyday approach—"bringing into being changes of attitudes, motivation and life-style."

SOME WEREN'T TOLD
About 140 Christian church groups in Canada and the United States participated in Key 73. It was mass evangelism, but not a crusade in the Billy Graham style.

The program, five years in the planning, was devised, in both Canada and the United States, at the national level. It was left to individual congregations whether they would participate. Some did not get the message.

Said Rev. James W. Moulton of Northminster United Church, a congregation in the Toronto suburb of North York:

"It was planned on the upper levels and it didn't really get down to the lower levels. Nobody in Northminster was totally enthusiastic; no one was burned up with excitement."

"It hadn't any real impact on the congregation. It was a fringe thing. But there may be a few indirect results."

In Canada, 28 church groups, including all the major denominations, took part in the program of spreading the word of God throughout a continent through the newspapers, television specials and word of mouth from pulpits and direct visits to homes. Bibles, booklets and pamphlets were distributed widely—but many were left in distribution centres.

DIDN'T MEET GOAL
The goal was to confront every person in Canada and the United States with the gospel of Jesus Christ. As the year ends, even Key 73's most enthusiastic participants conceded that they would come nowhere near the goal.

Financial problems plagued the U.S. program. By mid-November, little more than $250,000 of an expected $2 million had been raised to pay for national television coverage.

The only major program televised by the campaign's headquarters in St. Louis was a half-hour special that opened the drive in January. There were local successes.

"Denver was completely saturated with Bibles," said Rev. Theodore Raedeke, U.S. executive director of Key 73. Eighty-five per cent of homes in Nebraska were visited by campaign representatives. And there was "interaction between groups with no track record of working together."

Public relations of campaign headquarters left much to be desired.

JEWS UNIMPRESSED
Jews were singled out in an early resources handbook as a target for conversion. It said: "This is a program which prepares Christians to witness effectively to Jewish people."

Some Jews shrugged off what they referred to as another Christian "conversion binge," but Most Rev. E. W.

Scott, primate of the Anglican Church of Canada, felt compelled to issue a statement disavowing "any approach which is geared to proselytizing Jews."

In Canada, local television programs were carried on a local basis in January. Key 73 sponsors said only three Canadian communities with TV outlets carried programs on the campaign.

The CBC in September put on two one-hour shows. Come Together, an experience in Christian love starring Pat Boone, and VD Blues, aimed at young people.

Of Canadian churches, the United Church appeared to be the most enthusiastic. The Roman Catholics the least.

Most Rev. W. L. Wright, Anglican Archbishop of Algoma, said in Sault Ste. Marie, Ont. Key 73 was commendable as an objective but "response by both laity and clergy was lukewarm."

In Toronto, a leading member of the Pentecostal Assemblies of Canada, who asked not to be identified, termed the campaign "a lukewarm ecumenical effort."

Rev. George Ross, president of the Edmonton Evangelical Ministers' Association, said "The liberal groups made it somewhat difficult for some evangelical churches to become involved. But it did get some churches together."

Rev. Herb Kell, chairman of the British Columbia Key 73 central committee and a Lutheran minister from White Rock, said: "We had to go through all kinds of ecclesiastical machinery to get anything done. I learned to appreciate people like the Pentecostals more, their co-operation was tremendous."

Said Rev. John Robb, president of the Oshawa (Ont.) and District Association of Evangelicals:

"In some quarters it's (Key 73) a dirty phrase. Some of the more conservative churches don't like the idea of being lumped in with the liberal churches who deny the Scriptures and the miracles in it."

Rev. Jim Marnoch of St. John's Presbyterian Church in Winnipeg said direct evangelism did not work well. "The program struck an awareness in people of what it means to be a Christian in the world but.

RALLIES SUCCESSFUL
Canada also had its local successes, such as the "hundred days of renewal" in Botwood, Nfld., and well-attended rallies and church gatherings in Nova Scotia.

That supported the contention of Rev. Leslie Hunt, principal of Wycliffe College, University of Toronto, and chairman of the central committee. He said the response was "greater in the smaller centres."

Another member of the central committee, Rev. Kenneth McMillan, general secretary of the Canadian Bible Society, said 300,000 booklets for Key 73 were distributed throughout Canada but "we still have 200,000 in stock."

Rev. John Pearce of St. Peter's Anglican Church in Ottawa said he thought the program was successful and should be tried again, but not immediately.

"We have to have specials now and again," he said. "You couldn't have a special all the time because it would no longer be a special."

LAST YEAR — This is what it looked like last year at this time. Lilly's Leap trail at Owl's Head hasn't seen too many skiers this winter and the weatherman just isn't co-operating, calling for mild temperatures Monday with a chance of showers. The skiing season may be a short one!

Baseball winter meetings begin

HOUSTON (AP) — Denny McLain, Ted Uhlhaender, Elrod Hendricks and Wade Blasingame were among the better-known names available for a $25,000 price tag at baseball's annual winter draft today.

The 24 major league teams officially opened this year's winter meetings with their selection of minor league talent.

McLain, the one-time 31-game winner for Detroit Tigers, was one of thousands of players available for the standard fee.

So were Uhlhaender, an outfielder with nine years of big league experience; Hendricks, a catcher who spent most of his career with Baltimore Orioles; and Blasingame, a well-travelled southpaw who once won 16 games for the old Milwaukee Braves.

McLain and Uhlhaender were available from the roster of the Iowa team in the American Association; Hendricks from Rochester of the International League and Blasingame from Hawaii in the Pacific Coast League.

ABUSY WEEK
The morning draft raised the curtain on a week of busy activity.

In the next five days, executives from the major and minor leagues will carry on official business with the style of a big corporation.

Rule changes will be voted, the major one being the extension of inter-league trading to include the 30 days from May 15 in addition to the current period. Inter-league trades now are being carried on from five days after the World Series to the end of the winter meetings.

Two recent controversial developments have added spice to these meetings—the sale of the San Diego Padres and the managerial situations in the New York Yankee, Oakland Athletics and Detroit Tiger organizations.

A group headed by Marjorie Everett will be seeking formal approval from the National League to buy the Padres and keep them in San Diego. But it's reported that National League owners will turn down the sale.

If the Everett group is turned down, it would open the door again for a Washington entry in the San Diego baseball sweepstakes. Also taking the spotlight this week will be a formal hearing between the Yankees and Detroit Tigers and an informal one between the Yanks and A's in an attempt to resolve their confused managerial situations.

SITUATION CONFUSED
Ralph Houk left New York to manage the Tigers and

Dick Williams resigned from the A's, presumably to join the Yankees. But the situation was muddled when Oakland owner Charles Finley stepped in and refused to let Williams go to New York unless he received "adequate compensation."

Then the Yankees picked up Finley's lead and said Houk couldn't manage Detroit unless they got something in return from the Tigers. Both managers resigned while under contract.

American League
President Joe Cronin is expected to rule in both cases Wednesday.

Also on the agenda this week are an evaluation of the American League's revolutionary designated hitter rule and the possibility of a look at a centralized scouting system that will save money; clarification of World Series player eligibility and changes involving the draft, waiver procedures and options.

In Memoriam

ROBINSON — In loving memory of Laura who was taken from us suddenly two years ago Dec. 3, 1971.

Too young to die, too precious to lose.
It was God's Will, we cannot choose.
To hear your voice, to see your smile,
To sit and talk with you awhile,
To be together in the same old way
Would be our greatest gift today.
You never said goodbye to us,
But perhaps it's just as well,
For we could never have said goodbye
To someone we loved so well.

Gaiters tie Loyola

MONTREAL (BP) — The Bishop's Gaiters partially avenged last week's 4-2 loss to Loyola College in QUAA play as they tied the Warriors 3-3 in a Saturday contest.
 Mike Bookalam, Steve Connor and Dane Mitchell paced the Gaiter scoring, while the big gun for Loyola was Jim Houston, who netted the equalizing hat-trick for the Warriors.
 The Gaiters held a steady hand over the game, coming close on several occasions.
 Two Bishop's players in particular, Steve Mitchell and Erik Iversen, are still wondering how the Loyola goaltender made saves on their breakaways.
 Mitchell went in on the Warrior netminder twice in the first period, while Iversen made his break with 20 seconds remaining in the match.
 Like the score, the shots on net were even, both teams testing the other's goaler 44 times.

Champlain sports

BURLINGTON, VT (BP) — The Champlain Regional College hockey Cougars notched their third victory of the current season 8-7 over the University of Vermont Jayvees Saturday.
 John McCrea scored three goals, including the winner, for the Cougars.
 Alton Dezan netted two goals, while singles were tallied by Dave Nicolli, Bill May and Mike Whitworth.
 The American fans had an exciting contest to view late in the match, when CRC was given a penalty with two minutes left in the game time.
 The Jayvees had a two-man advantage when they pulled their goalie for a last-ditch effort in the last minute of play, but the Champlain squad held off the mounting attack.
 The game concluded this year's exhibition schedule for Champlain, but the Cougars will be out in full force following the Christmas break.

Nicklaus wants big ones

LAKE BUENA VISTA, Fla. (AP) — "One of these years," Jack Nicklaus said with a pensive far-away look in his blue eyes, "I'm gonna have a really great season."
 There was a moment of stunned silence. And then laughter.
 "You didn't let me finish my thought," Nicklaus continued. "What I mean by that is that sometime I'm going to be able to do what I want to do in the major championships."
 "Yeah," he responded to a question, "I'd like them all in a year."
 "My goals always have been the major championships (the Masters, U.S., British Opens and the PGA), they are always on my mind."
 "Right now," he said Saturday after closing another brilliant season with a victory in the Walt Disney World open golf tournament, "I'm looking forward to Augusta."
 The Masters, the first of four annual major tests of golfing greatness, will be held in Augusta, Ga., in April.
PLANS FIVE TRIES
 To prepare for the Masters, Nicklaus said he would play only five of the 14 tournaments preceding the Augusta event next year.
 "I'll play the Crosby, because I'm defending," he said. Nicklaus then plans a five-week break until the Los Angeles Open.

Bengals whitewash Vikings

"This team is a disgrace," said Minnesota defensive end Carl Eller after Sunday's loss by the Vikings to Cincinnati. "I think the National Football League should fine this club."
 Eller and the Vikings aren't accustomed to losing, much less losing big, but they ran into an aroused Bengal team and came away with a 27-0 defeat—the Vikings' worst loss since 1968. It was also the first time Minnesota has been shut out since 1962.
 "I feel we failed to prepare the team properly for this game," admitted Viking Coach Bud Grant. "We were in a wrong frame of mind."
 If the Vikings weren't ready, the Bengals were ready enough for both teams.
 "We were seething," said veteran Coach Paul Brown. "It's more of a challenge to play the good clubs."
 The victory kept the Bengals in the thick of the AFC Central Division chase Cincinnati and Cleveland are a half-game behind Pittsburgh right now but the Steelers have to play Miami tonight. Should the Steelers lose, all three clubs would be tied with just two games left in the regular campaign.
 The Browns stayed alive with a come-from-behind 20-20 draw with Kansas City Chiefs.
 In other games, Los Angeles Rams clinched the NFC West with a 26-0 romp over Chicago Bears. Buffalo Bills stunned Atlanta Falcons 17-6. Washington Redskins rallied past New York Giants 27-24. Dallas Cowboys dumped Denver Broncos 22-10. Oakland Raiders defeated Houston Oilers 17-6. New England Patriots downed San Diego Chargers 3-14. New York Jets held off Baltimore Colts 20-17. Detroit Lions tripped St. Louis Cardinals 20-16. Green Bay Packers stopped New Orleans Saints 30-10 and San Francisco 49ers topped Philadelphia Eagles 38-28.
 Essex Johnson raced 40 yards for one Cincinnati touchdown and Lamar Parrish went 23 yards with a fumble recovery for another. Ken Anderson hit on 12 of 17 passes for 105 yards and a TD.
 All of which impressed Minnesota's Grant.
 "They didn't do it with mirrors," he pointed out.
Browns 20 Chiefs 20
 Cleveland roared from behind with two long-range touchdowns

"Some people go goofy when you hit them," said Philadelphia Flyers' coach Fred Shero. "I didn't think it was intentional, it was just an immediate reaction."
 That "immediate reaction" by California Golden Seals rookie defenceman Barry Cummins opened a 24-stitch gash across the head of Flyers' center Bobby Clarke.
 The Flyers went on to a 5-1 win over the Seals in a National Hockey League game at the Spectrum Sunday night but not before a bloody melee occurred in the second period.
 It began when Cummins brought his hockey stick across the head of Clarke at the 11:32 mark. Seconds later the raucous activity began.
 Led by Bill Flett and Bob Kelly, the Flyers steamed off the bench, sticks in hand. Cummins went down under the pile. After order was restored, he was ushered to the Seals' dressing room with his face wrapped in a towel. He received three stitches and was ejected from the game.
 "Somebody said I hit him in the face with my stick first," said Clarke, who later returned to the game.
 But Flett disagreed. "I don't care what happened, you don't hit a guy over the head with a two-hander," he berated winger said. "It's too easy to kill somebody."
 Flett also received a three-stitch gash across the nose.
 "It's an unwritten rule you don't hit anybody over the head," said Kelly, who was ejected by referee Art Skov. "If they use him against us again, you can bet there will be a repeat."
 Less than four minutes later another fracas erupted. And before it was settled the Flyers had wingers Don Sleski and Dave Schultz and defenceman Ed Van Impe thrown out, while California lost forward Hilliard Graves.
 Referee Skov, fearing further violence, suspended the final 4:04 of the second period and tacked it onto the third.
 Clarke, known for unobtrusive play on a boisterous, physical team was badly shaken up by the incident.
 "I won't forget this," he said. "I have two little kids at home, and if I couldn't play hockey, what else could I do?"
 Six players were ejected for the incident, four of them Flyers. Cummins, playing his fourth NHL game, was among the Seals banished. The former Regina Pats junior received a match penalty.

 Elsewhere, Montreal Canadiens defeated Atlanta Flames 3-1. New York Rangers downed Toronto Maple Leafs 6-4. Boston Bruins trimmed New York Islanders 5-3. Buffalo Sabres slashed Detroit Red Wings 6-1 and Chicago Black Hawks slipped past Pittsburgh Penguins 2-1.
 In Saturday's action, Chicago blanked Montreal 5-0. Toronto defeated California 3-2. New York Rangers tied St. Louis Blues 4-4. Philadelphia Flyers beat New York Islanders 2-1. Buffalo whipped Detroit 4-1. Atlanta tied Pittsburgh 2-2 and Minnesota North Stars tied Los Angeles Kings 1-1.
 Tomorrow night, the Blues visit the Islanders and the Kings meet the Canucks in Vancouver.

Toros reverse tables; challenging WHA leaders

A month ago, Toronto Toros were tumbling around the basement of the East Division of the World Hockey Association, but today they're in fourth place and challenging the leaders.
 After disposing of second-place Houston 5-2 before a sellout crowd of 4,839 Sunday night and stalling the Aeros' drive to catch Edmonton Oilers, Toros' coach Bill Harris glowed with satisfaction.
 "Our main objective is to make the playoffs, but finishing second or third would take the pressure off," Harris admitted.

 The Toros have won four consecutive games and Harris credited the team's recent success to high morale among the players.
 "A month ago team morale just didn't exist," he said. "But the going has been a lot better lately. The players are working more together and there's more togetherness on road trips, too."
 Technically, the use of six defencemen has also been a factor, Harris observed. "It has helped us to play with more confidence."

game slump. Huck put on a one-man show for his sixth, seventh and eighth goals of the season. Winnipeg remained in a tie for fourth place in the West with the Saints, while the Nordiques shared second place in the East with the Crusaders.
 The Oilers' division lead continued to shrink on the weekend as a result of back-to-back losses to the Crusaders, who were paced Sunday by the two-goal effort of Jim Wiste and the sparkling goaltending of Bob Whidden.
 Tempers flared as the frustrated Oilers struggled to unlock the Crusader goal, but Whidden remained cool as he posted his first league shutout.
 "It wasn't one of my toughest games," he said. "I just go in there and try to do my best."
 The Whalers padded their lead in the East with their third consecutive victory, 4-3 over the Cougars Sunday. Tom Webster posted his 19th and 20th goals of the season as he led New England to its triumph.
 Bob Brown's second goal of the game late in the second period was the winner as Jersey Knights tripped the Fighting Saints in Sunday's other game.

BLOCK 30 SHOTS
Right-winger Tom Martin scored a pair of goals and goaltender Gilles Gratton blocked 30 shots, emerging as key man in the Toros' triumph. Two of the Toronto goals came on power plays.	Pat Hicke, 20-year-old rookie, who was assigned the task of checking warhorse Gordie Howe, was eminently successful.	"I liked the challenge—the only thing I had to watch out for was the elbows," he said.	As for Howe, he was disappointed with his performance, but admitted he was tired after playing 20 to 25 minutes on a double shift in Quebec Saturday night.	"We were all tired after getting up at 5:45 a.m. to come to Toronto," the former National Hockey League star said. "Tonight I felt as if the arthritis in my arm went right down to my ankles."
Howe said he would like to get 70 points this season, including 20-plus goals. He's not far off the pace, with six goals and 17 assists for 23 points in 22 games.	In other games Sunday, New England Whalers nipped Chicago Cougars 4-3. Jersey Knights edged Minnesota Fighting Saints 2-1. Cleveland Crusaders blanked the Oilers 3-0 and Winnipeg Jets dumped Quebec Nordiques 5-3.	In Saturday's action, the Aeros and Nordiques tied 3-3, the Crusaders defeated the Oilers 4-2 and Los Angeles Sharks upset the Cougars 5-4.	SLUMP ENDS

Bowl game match-ups

Alabama and Notre Dame will bring perfect records into their Sugar Bowl meeting New Year's Eve, which now looms as one of the numerous Games of the Century in recent years.
 The Orange Bowl, however, is tinged with a taste of lemon in the wake of Louisiana State's stunning 14-0 loss to Tulane, the first time that fate has befallen the Tigers since 1948.
 Alabama helped lower the curtain on the regular season Saturday night with a 35-0 pounding of Sun Bowl-bound Auburn.
 Notre Dame then went out and gave the experts something to chew on with a 44-0 whumping of Miami of Florida... just two weeks after Alabama beat Miami 43-13.
 Oklahoma, ineligible for post-season action, wound up with a 10-0-1 record by trouncing Oklahoma State 45-18. The Sooners' tie came against defending national champion Southern California early in the campaign.
 Elsewhere, No. 14 Houston came from 16 points down at halftime to defeat Tulsa 35-16 and No. 19 Tennessee edged Vanderbilt 20-17 on two field goals by Ricky Townsend in the final five minutes.
 Georgia earned a bid to oppose Maryland in the Peach Bowl with a 10-3 triumph over Georgia Tech while Army, Florida State and Texas-El Paso completed all-losing seasons. Navy thrashed Army 51-0, the biggest margin in the history of the 74-game series. Florida walloped Florida State 49-0.
