HOWICK LADY IN PAINFUL ACCIDENT

On Saturday night, Mrs. John Kerr of Howick, who was visiting with her daughter, Mrs. Arthur Kerr, Fertile Creek, met with a very painful accident. They were going for a drive in the car and while waiting to get in, Mrs. Kerr fell on the cement walk. It is not known the cause, unless she took a weak turn. Medical aid was called and advised that the patient be taken to Valleyfield Hospital Snnday a.m. When an X-ray was taken it was found the hip bone was broken. Mrs. Kerr has the sympathy of her many friends.

V'lfd, O'town Troops Return From Camp

Boy Scouts Return From One Week's Camping At Tamaracouta—Badges Awarded

On Saturday, August 6, the Ormstown and Valleyfield Troop of Boy Scouts returned from Camp Tamaracouta, after spending a very enjoyable week together at the Montreal District mountain camp. Ormstown was under the supervision of T. Chadsey and Valleyfield under C. F. Fitton, assisted by Don Whalley.

The boys all camped together in Rupert's house, a delightful spot amid the pines on the shores of the lake. The location was a fortunate one, being midway between the beach for non-swimmers and the landing stage and diving boards for the more experienced swimmers.

Saturday was spent in settling down and exploring the wonders of Tamaracouta. Sunday dawned bright and clear and the day was largely spent in the boys taking the various swimming tests to enable them to enjoy the privilege of the use of boats.

Monday, the serious work of the camp began when during the morning the boys were encouraged to take up some badge or first class Scout work. Hence the day saw the boys busy learning cooking, tree felling, tracking, nature study, rescuing and artificial respiration, swimming, marksmanship, pioneering and countless other activities common to scouting. The local Scoutmasters took their part in this work, Mr. Chadsey being responsible for the Nature study and, assisted by Mr. Whalley, Rescuers, and Mr. Fitton the Swimmers. The weather being unsettled in the evening a great sing-song was enjoyed in the Hall, followed by ghost stories.

Tuesday morning, as all mornings, found the boys back at work on Scoutcraft, but the afternoon was spent on a hike along nature trail to the Falls. The evening was spent at the Amateur Concert, the local boys being represented by Bergen and Charlie McCarthy, played by Middleton Roman and Sidney Thomson, who secured third prize.

Wednesday saw a swim meet. The evening finished around a campfire, where Mr. Chadsey officiated.

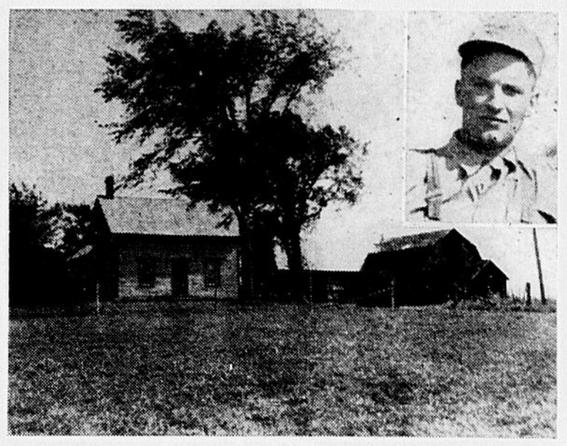

Thursday afternoon was spent playing Softball, the Valleyfield and Ormstown boys defeating St. Barnabas in the last innings. The initiation of the squires of Tamaracouta took place in the evening and caused much merriment amongst the boys. Due to the fact that the Valleyfield and Ormstown boys were only staying one week, no squire was nominated from amidst their ranks.

Friday afternoon was passed in a Scoutcraft relay. Here the home troop did credit to themselves, coming in fourth. In the first Aid section, full points were obtained. The evening saw the last camp-fire, when the Riverside Troop played host. The Camp Factor honoured the Troops by attending and played glowing tribute to the Officers and boys of the two troops.

Saturday, going home day, all too soon arrived, but not before the boys had won proficiency badges in all the various branches. Never an evening meal passed but that Ormstown and Valleyfield had a long list of names to be read out. In fact, one evening the predominance of Ormstown boys' names was so obvious it drew applause from the assembled diners and congratulations from the Camp Factor.

Perhaps the greatest benefit of Scout Camp is the good fellowship and friendships established amongst the boys. Certainly Ormstown and Valleyfield came to know each other far better than ever before. A comradeship between these two fine Troops so near together was forged which should do much to forward the ideals of Scouting in the District. In early September Ormstown plays host to the entire District in the Annual Rally, but we know the boys of Valleyfield and Ormstown look forward to the day not only in friendly rivalry for the various competitions but also to renew the friendship made during the past glorious week in camp.

A Farm On Land Once Indian Reservation

—Gleaner Photo.

Above is shown the farm of Mr. Alpha Leblanc on the 5th and 6th ranges of Dundee. Because Mr. Leblanc is unable to locate the Indian land title it has created an interesting situation. Before 1888 the white population in the municipality of Dundee held their land on long term leases, paying what was known as an Indian rent. After 1888 when the Indian title to the lands in the municipality of Dundee was extinguished by the purchase of all lands by the municipality, each of the white farmers was given a deed. The Government, it is stated, now claims a deed was never issued at this time to the farm shown above. In a letter to Mr. Black, M.P., the Government is said to have written that the only way the whole matter can be straightened is by a more or less purchasing of the land all over again. It is in this connection that Messrs. Albert Fraser and Oliver Derocher of Dundee have been appointed to interview the Minister of Mines and Resources, which also deals with Indian Affairs, to have the whole thing straightened out one way or another. In the inset at the top right is seen Alpha Leblanc.

Considers Financial Program Of Vital Importance To Women

Mrs. Amy B. Hilton of Montreal Business and Professional Women's Club Addresses Members of Chateauguay-Huntingdon Women's Institutes.

Mrs. Amy B. Hilton, Past President of Montreal Business and Professional Women's Club, spoke at a picnic gathering of Chateauguay-Huntingdon Women's Institutes on "A Recipe for Continual Happiness." This had two chief ingredients, security for those who are near and dear and independence for them throughout their lives and a plan for one's own security at a time when working days are over.

The speaker considered a financial programme of vital importance to women and largely within their power to promote. Clearly and effectively Mrs. Hilton explained the benefits of life assurance as a means of safeguarding the future of family life and security in old age. "It is rather shocking how much our future happiness depends on money. Women are not only interested in life assurance on the lives of their husbands. Last year more than a billion dollars of life assurance was on the lives of women. Insurance gives security of capital. There are many ways of investing money. Put your savings in a bank and they have really just gone visiting for they will very soon be spent."

Questioned as to annuities, the speaker explained that they could be purchased on deferred plan or a lmup sum invested to provide income for a stated period of years. Any balance at maturity would be payable to the estate. Explanatory literature was distributed.

The County President, Mrs. James Bruce, thanked Mrs. Hilton for her instructive address.

Mrs. Louis Cappiello, Vice-President of Huntingdon Branch, welcomed the Institute members and guests.

Mrs. Bruce requested that the Branches discuss in their meetings and bring decisions to the Semi-Annual Board meeting on the following subjects: Spelling Match: Shall it be continued? Dramatic Contests: To be continued or not? Improvement of Rural School Grounds: Shall this be continued? The Question of a County Library.

The picnic was held in the beautiful maple grove of Mr. N. W. Fennell, Herdman. Recitations by Miss Janet Morris of Aubrey and Mrs. R. Whitehead of Franklin Centre, were greatly enjoyed.

Life Membership Certificates in the Women's Institutes were presented by Mrs. J. Bruce on behalf of Huntingdon W.I. to Mrs. Wallace Merson, President, and Mrs. W. L. Carr, Convener of Publicity. Mrs. W. B. Matthews, Hudson Heights, President for Vaudreuil County W.I., presented the Life Membership Pins.

Shades Of Old Iroquois Tribe Indians Loom Up At Dundee

Case Arises In Respect To Municipality Of Dundee Once Being An Indian Reservation With All Land Belonging To Them

Is there property in the township of Dundee which, although unknown to the present holders, really belongs to the Indians of the St. Regis Indian Reservation, descendants of those mighty warriors of the Six Nations Indians of years ago?

At the present time there seems to be some difficulty along this line and Mr. Albert Derocher and Albert Fraser have been appointed by the Municipality of Dundee to interview the Federal Minister of Mines and Resources, which Department deals with Indian Affairs, to see what the trouble is all about.

There was a time when the whole municipality of Dundee was a part of St. Regis Indian Reservation. It was in the early days and white men filtered in here and there and took up residence where they could.

So many came in that in time it was clearly seen something had to be done about it.

What to do?

In 1888 the white population of the Dundee district decided to apply to the Lieutenant-Governor of the Province of Quebec to issue debentures in order that the district might be bought up by the white population and made a bona fide part of the Province of Quebec and uot, as then, an Indian Reservation.

In connection with this, the following advertisement appeared in the Huntingdon Gleaner of that time: "LOAN WANTED. Municipality of the Township of Dundee. The undersigned will receive sealed tenders up to the 30th instant for a loan to the corporation of the said Township of $50,000. John Davidson, Secretary-Treasurer, Dundee, Que., Nov. 8, 1888."

Thus in 1888 the Indian title to the land in the original Indian Reservation of St. Regis was extinguished when the white population of the Municipality of Dundee paid to the Government the sum of $50,000 for it.

Previous to this, and especially back in 1885, the Indians and white men alike lived in the vicinity of Dundee. The municipality of Dundee was formed in 1855. At this time the farmers paid an Indian land lease on the land they farmed.

When the Municipality of Dundee extinguished the Indian title by paying $50,000 for the land, the valuation of the land was set by valuators who decreed that the best land was worth $2.50 per acre and the poorer land in accordance with that price. A rate was then levied on the farmers of the Municipality of Dundee to cover the sum of $50,000 over a period of 20 years.

After the lease was extinguished there remained for the Indians the present St. Regis Reservation along the banks of the St. Lawrence and including quite a number of Islands out from the mainland.

By 1890 quite a number of white settlers were buying up lots in the Municipality of Dundee at the rate of $2.50 per acre. These lots were sold by the department then known as the Department of Indian Affairs. At this time the purchasers were given grants of the land to show it was theirs and not a portion of the Indian Reservation.

It is this title, it is thought, that a present resident of Dundee has not in his possession to show that the land is his and not any part of any Indian Reservation. Alpha Leblanc, with a 100 acre farm on the 5th and 6th ranges of Dundee, has not a first record of purchase of the land, it is stated, to show it was originally bought from the Indians through the former Department of Indian Affairs.

The question all came about through the queer quirks of law.

Alpha Leblanc recently sought a loan from the Provincial Farm Credit Bureau. This Bureau decided to give him the loan. But before doing so it was necessary that he produce a clear title to his land. It seems that the title of Mr. Leblanc contains no record of it having been purchased in the beginning from the Dept. of Indian Affairs.

The first white owner of the land was one, D. McMaster, deceased. Since that time numerous others have owned the land and the changes of ownership have all been duly recorded at the Registry Office in Huntingdon. Yet the Indian land title, the original title, is not available. The inability to secure this original title seems to be the big fly in the ointment.

The delegation of Messrs. Derocher and Fraser from Dundee will endeavour to remind the Department of Mines and Resources, which includes the Department of Indian Affairs, that Mr. Leblanc should automatically have his original title from the fact that the Municipality paid the sum of $50,000 at one time to extinguish the Indian Rights on the whole district.

And so the matter lies.

Mr. Leblanc is quite in order to get his loan, the government already having authorized it, but without the title being complete of the land they can not put this loan through.

From Dundee the Gleaner proceeded to St. Regis Indian Reservation to ask the Indian Chiefs what they thought about the whole situation. Their statements were, of course, all the same and what the Gleaner would naturally think they would say, regardless of whether it was right.

There came forth not from his glorious wigwam of yesteryears, but from his tumble down shack one, "Big John" Jacobs, Life Chief of the Iroquois. Arrayed in unbecoming clothes and with a wondering look on his face, he brought from his shack an old yellowed piece of paper, quite disreputable in appearance, but on it the following impressive words: "Sir James Kempt, Knight Grand Cross of the Most Honourable Military Order of the Bath, Captain General and Governor-in-Chief in and over the Provinces of Lower Canada, Upper Canada, Nova Scotia, New Brunswick and their several Dependencies, Vice Admiral of the same, Lieutenant Governor and Commander of all His Majesty's Forces in the said Provinces of Lower Canada and Upper Canada, Nova Scotia and New Brunswick and their several dependencies and in the islands of Newfoundland, Prince Edward, Cape Breton and Bermuda, etc., etc.,... I do hereby appoint you Grand Chief of the Iroquois tribe of Indians of St. Regis".

After reading that mouthful the Gleaner was convinced he must be something or other, so maybe he was a Life Chief, or something, after all. The Indian Chiefs have often been laughed at for their long and high sounding names but we doubted if any one of them could by any possible stretching of the imagination ever come within striking distance of the high sounding and long title of the English official who granted the Indian the trinket title

"End Of The Line; All Out Here!"

But Ste. Martine Worker Doesn't Hear Bus Driver—Result Is Trouble and Expense

It's O.K. to sail away off into Dreamland now and then, but then one has to be careful when and where that dream sail is to be.

An employee of the St. Martine Canning Plant found this to be the case during the early hours of Monday morning.

He jumped aboard the Montreal-Huntingdon bus on Sunday evening enroute to St. Martine. It had been a nice week-end in Montreal. In fact, the effects were still quite noticeable on Sunday evening and it had the tendency to make the merry-maker doze off into Dreamland until the effects should more or less disappear.

The bus arrived at Ste. Martine in due course of time. The bus driver called out the stop. But our friend dozed peacefully on, blissfully unaware that it was his stopping-off place.

The bus proceeded to Huntingdon and all passengers cleared out . . . all except the one that was supposed to get off at Ste. Martine. After he was disturbed from his slumbers he was informed he owed the price of transportation from Montreal to Huntingdon. To this he violently objected. In fact, he refused to pay. So the bus driver picked up his suitcase and carried it off, stating it would be returned when he paid his fare.

Returning to the bus later the bus driver found the man in it, playing around with the lights and having a general fine outing all by himself. He was told to get out of the bus. This he refused to do. The policeman was called. The policeman asked the inebriated one what he was doing in the bus. He stated he did not have a place to sleep in. "Well, come along and I'll get you a nice place to sleep in," said the policeman. The inebriated one went along. He was ushered into the police cell and there he slept.

In the morning when sense had returned he was called upon to turn out some cents—cents to the amount of $2.01, his fare and fine.

Here endeth the epistle of he who went off into Dreamland and forgot to get off at his place of abode in accordance with the usual practise of those who travel by bus.

Here It Is!

H'don Picnic Stanley Park Vancouver

Former Huntingdonians Hold 7th Annual Picnic Under Chairmanship of Dr. Robert Elder

The seventh annual picnic of former Huntingdonians convened at Stanley Park, Vancouver, B.C. on the afternoon of the 6th August and was attended by a large number of Huntingdon people and their friends.

Shortly after 3 p.m. the guests began to assemble and the reception committee extended the glad hand of fellowship to one and all, and following the usual custom each guest signed register, after which the exchange of Huntingdon news began.

In mingling with the crowd it was noted by the conversations, that all were making reference to early life in Huntingdon and each expressing the hope that they would be able to pay a visit to the place of birth, meantime the refreshment committee under the able management of Mrs. G. Cunningham was busily engaged in arranging what proved to be a most delicious repast.

After all had done ample justice to the excellent delicacies provided, Dr. R. Elder in the capacity of Director of Ceremonies called the meeting to order and in well chosen words welcomed the guests and extended the sympathy of the Huntingdon people to those who had been bereaved during the past year.

The following persons responded when called upon to address the gathering: Mr. F. L. Bott, Mr. R. J. Sparrow, Col. J. A. Macgregor, Mr. H. McArthur, Mrs. Hall and D. F. Warren. The addresses were in keeping with the spirit of the occasion and were well received.

The Chairman, on behalf of the association, presented Mr. G. Cunningham with a smoking set and to Mrs. Cunningham he handed a beautiful hand bag in view of their 37th wedding anniversary. Mr. and Mrs. Cunningham suitably replied, thanking the Huntingdon friends for the good wishes expressed and also for the presentations.

The chairman thanked the General committee for their successful efforts in making the 7th annual gathering such an outstanding success after which the meeting was brought to a close.

District Case Recorded In Law Journal

Case In Which Erle C. Martin Was Successful Plaintiff Appears In Superior Court Judicial Reports.

There is recorded in detail in the Superior Court Judicial Reports of the Province of Quebec for the months of July and August a case in which Erle C. Martin of Huntingdon was the successful plaintiff. In these reports are only cases of unusual interest in the annals of law in the Province of Quebec and ones which set more or less of a precedent. In view of this fact there is an honor attached to the appearance of this case in the Superior Court Judicial Reports.

The chattel mortgage case was taken by Dame Faubert against a Mr. Brown as the latter had moved his possessions to Canada after a seizure had been placed on them in the United States. The defendant had moved the chattel mortgage into Canada from the State of New York, and the trial was brought about in the Province of Quebec. The fact that such actions are valid in the United States of America and were done according to law prompted Dame Faubert to take the action above mentioned against Faubert.

The motives were explained in court by the parties interested and the Court acknowledged the plaintiff's rights and the defendant was forced to pay the sum amounting to the seizure operated and the court's expenses.

Erle C. Martin of Huntingdon was the successful lawyer who represented the plaintiff on this exceptional occasion.

V'lfd Fair Present Fine Entertainment

Cattle Entries Yet To Be Surpassed—High Grade Cattle Exhibited—Good Attendance

Valleyfield's twenty-ninth annual Fair was officially opened on Monday evening with a grand show of cattle, commercial, industrial and agricultural exhibits and one of the best show performances seen in Valleyfield in recent years. The entertainment in the spacious arena was supplied by the Hamid Circus of New York.

Opening night was marked by a good attendance of the citizens of the district. The Arena was beautifully decorated with exhibits of all kinds which were thoroughly appreciated. Among the better known exhibitors which have taken space in the Valleyfield Arena this year, are: Singer Sewing Machine, La Fonderie de l'Islet, Le Progres de Valleyfield, T. A. Laniel, Majestic Bottling Works, N. A. Ostiguy, Montreal Cottons Ltd., Shawinigan Water & Power, Robin Hood Flour Mills, De Laval, Atelier E. Fortier, McDonald & Robb, Valleyfield Canning Co., Joseph Robb Co., Ltd., Garage Ben Viau and Beatty Washing Machine. In a corner of the arena the Farmers' Club caught the eye of many with their variety of exhibits.

On the show grounds, the most valuable cattle of the district await the inspection of the judges in order that they may participate in the money prizes which are distributed at the Valleyfield exhibition this year. It is reported that the cattle entries at Valleyfield have reached a new high and that the animals shown are rated among the best in the district.

Hamid Circus of New York City presents the best of entertainments in the Arena in the evenings and the various acrobatic numbers have been highly appreciated by the thousands who flock the area each evening.

Today is a civic holiday in Valleyfield and yesterday was the children's day at the Fair. A record crowd is expected to attend the ceremonies at the Fair today and tomorrow and the varied entertainments on the grounds suffice to have each and everyone spend a most enjoyable time.

Valleyfield Fair is under the management of Dr. S. W. Laroche, president, and Jacques Malouin, N.P., secretary-treasurer.

Valleyfield Fair will come to a close on Friday evening when a special program will be presented.

FLOWERS AT GARDEN BRILLIANT DISPLAY CLUB PARTY, O'TOWN

The display of cut flowers and bouquets brought to the Garden Club Party last Saturday afternoon by the members and their friends was very pleasing, and each one of the sixty persons present is indebted to Mrs. James T. Elder for the priviledge of sitting beside the rock garden and pool, watching the goldfish and the pink and pale yellow water lilies close their dainty petals as the sun faded in the West.

On a long table were bouquets of various types in suitable containers: Stately gladioli, fragrant lilies and roses, pansies and scabiosa, also zinnias of many different kinds.

Under the arbor the committee served tea and cakes, thus adding to the funds of the club.

Wife Stares At Unconscious Husband Driving Their Car

Dr. and Mrs. Wm. Tenant of Bowmanville, Ont., spent a few days at the home of the doctor's mother, Mrs. Tenant, Howick. On their way to Howick, they met with rather an exciting experience. While motoring through St. Henri, Mrs. Tenant noticed the car leaving the road. She asked her husband where he was going. Not receiving an answer on glancing at him, she saw he was unconscious. She put on the brakes at once but not before the car struck a hydrant. It was some minutes before the doctor was revived. With the sudden stop Mrs. Tenant was bruised and was struck on the face. The doctor had a broken rib. The car was damaged but not badly.

Keeps Warm! Even Tourists From Old Georgia Feel Heat

It keeps warm!

In fact, it must be very warm. When tourists from that very warm and sunny state of Georgia complain strenuously about the heat here in Huntingdon, then it's warm in Huntingdon.

This party of tourists from Georgia parked their car on Chateauguay Street, Huntingdon, on Monday. A merciless heat beat down on the pavement and the thermometer was crying aloud to the whole wide world that it was registering well above the 90 mark in the shade. Then, of course, there was the humidity. And it was the humidity that the Georgians just couldn't take.

"It sho am waaa--mm in this Canada of yours," drawled a Georgian, as he wiped from his brow enough perspiration to almost float a toy yacht. "Waaa--mmm", stated another member of the party in disgust. "I neber did feel such d—, etc., etc., waaa-mm weather in all my bo-r--nnn days."

These tourists from Georgia had no snowshoes in their car, nor did they have skiis or any other equipment to enjoy snow sports as they passed through this country of which so many Americans in the far south have the strange impression that snow and ice is to be found even in the summer time.

Investigation In Order

THERE appeared in last week's Gleaner a story concerning skeletons being unearthed near O'Neil's Corner.

It stated that some weeks ago when men were working in a gravel pit on a farm at O'Neil's Corner they came upon the remains of what appeared to them to be two human beings and that the remains were buried about two feet below the surface of the ground.

Such a finding should call for an investigation. Possibly no more would be known after the investigation was held than before. Then again, an investigation might disclose something. Regardless of the outcome, however, an investigation would seem to be in order.

The very fact that the bodies were buried only two feet below the surface of the ground is in itself significant. It suggests a hurried burial.

The men who unearthed the remains were unable to find anything whatsoever which would serve as an identification mark. But those skilled in the science of this could readily find signs which would be significant one way or the other.

Noted Agriculturists Here

HUNTINGDON is to be honored Saturday evening, August 20, with a visit from a distinguished group of International agricultural economists. A banquet is to be held at the Chateau on Saturday evening which will be followed by addresses by internationally-known agricultural authorities.

This gathering in Huntingdon is a prelude to the opening of the Fifth International Conference of agricultural economists being held at Macdonald College, Ste. Anne de Bellevue, from August 21 to 28. At this conference some of the most pressing agricultural problems in the world today will be up for discussion. Among the subjects on the program are the following: "Social Implications of Economic Progress in Present-Day Agriculture"; "Land Tenure and the Social Control of the Use of Land"; "Farm Labour and Social Standards"; "International Trade in Relation to Agricultural Development."

With the possible exception of re-armaments and the dangers of international warfare no greater international problems confront the world than those of agriculture. For this reason the conference at Macdonald College is of utmost importance and it is to be hoped that ideas will be formulated which when put into practise will help to remedy conditions in the international field of agriculture.

The gathering in Huntingdon on Saturday evening will be composed of representatives from many countries throughout the world. On behalf of the Chateauguay Valley, the greatest agricultural area in the Province of Quebec, the Huntingdon Gleaner takes pleasure in welcoming these distinguished agriculturists to our midst.

Life Insurance Advertising

FROM coast to coast in Canada there appeared in leading daily and weekly newspapers from July, 1937, to June, 1938, an exceptionally large volume of advertising sponsored by the Life Insurance Institutional advertising.

In the province of Quebec practically all of the daily newspapers carried this advertising. Only two of the weekly newspapers in Quebec carried this series of advertisements, the Huntingdon Gleaner and the Rouyn-Noranda Press. This selection of the weekly newspapers in this province speaks for itself.

This campaign of co-operative life insurance advertising, the most striking public relations advertising and publicity activity on this continent, is now in its eighteenth year, its continuation for the succeeding twelve months having been voted unanimously at the annual meeting of the Canadian Life Insurance Officers Association at London, Ontario, recently.

As the advertisements illustrate, the basic purpose of the campaign is to give policyholders and the public at large, a better understanding of:—

1. The fundamentals of a business that intimately touches the lives of millions of Canadian men and women.
2. The actual relationship between companies, policy-holders and beneficiaries.
3. The value of life insurance to the nation, as well as to the individual.

Today, as in 1920, when the first advertisement appeared, A.B.C. daily newspapers continue to be the chief media employed in this co-operative institutional campaign, but the list of media has been gradually extended to include A.B.C. farm and financial publications and a special group of Class "A" Weeklies.

Altogether, over the period of the campaign covered by this portfolio, more than two hundred publications were employed and the number of individual messages to policy-holders through the combined circulation of these dailies, weeklies, farm and financial publications, was over fifty million.

Thousand Islands International Bridge

A NEW unit will be added to the many links of communication between the United States and Canada with the formal opening of the Thousand Islands International Bridge tomorrow, August 18. The governments of both the United States and Canada will be represented at the dedication ceremonies which will mark the opening of an International gateway through the picturesque Thousand Islands region.

Distant about a two-hour drive by motor car from Ottawa, Canada's capital city, the Thousand Islands International Bridge spans the island dotted St. Lawrence River from Ivy Lea, Ontario, to Collins Landing, New York, a distance of about eight and a half miles. The new structure comprises a series of five separate bridge spans resting on five islands and linked by strips of highway. The actual link between the United States and Canada is a ninety-foot concrete arch, the shortest of all international spans, over the Rift between Wellesley and Hill Islands. The Rift is a narrow space of swift running water which once was run by small steamers to give excursionists a thrill.

Two islands of the St. Lawrence Islands National Park, Georgina Island and Constance Island, serve as stepping stones for the bridge as it reaches from the Canadian shore over a broad majestic expanse of water. A new scenic highway leading from Brockville and Gananoque to the bridge head is under construction, and when completed will form part of the much-travelled highway from Windsor to Montreal and Quebec City. On the United States side the bridge emerges about four miles west of Alexandria Bay, a comparatively short drive from Watertown, the focal point for Syracuse and other large centres in the northern part of New York state.

The new international bridge provides another avenue of approach to a popular vacation area rich in scenic attractions, for in this region the waters of the St. Lawrence are studded with more than 1,700 picturesque islands varying in size from less than an acre to several square miles. About 200 of them can be seen when crossing the bridge. As early as 1904, the Government of Canada set aside a number of these island as national reservations which, together with a small mainland area, now form the St. Lawrence Islands National Park.

Swimming and Body Building

INCREASE in swimming ability during the past decade—in the last ten years the swimming public in America is estimated to have increased 450%, is not entirely prompted by life-saving desires. True, from a standpoint of human safety, a knowledge of swimming is most important; but aside from this, no other exercise approaches swimming for all-round development of the body.

This is brought out effectively in an article, "Learn How to Swim" in the Summer issue of "Health". It is contributed by John D. Devlin, Swimming director of the Central Y.M.C.A., Toronto, who says in part:

"Swimming exercises the large fundamental muscles of the trunk and limbs. The leg kicks develop the lower back and abdomen muscles along with the leg musculature. The arm strokes develop the chest and upper back muscles. The muscles of respiration are developed to an unusual degree. The upward lifting and stretching of the arms acts to lift and broaden the chest. Suppleness is promoted generally in all the joints and much is done to equalize the unbalanced muscle pull associated with poor posture. Swimming is one of the very few exercises that promotes a symmetrical development of the arms and legs, of antero-posterior posture, and of lateral symmetry. Swimming permits free and unobstructed movements in the full range of joint action without sudden or violent jars, due to contact with apparatus or to the ground.

"A fact of considerable importance to girls and women is that swimming is one exercise that does not develop the body in a way harmful to physical beauty. The muscular development associated with swimming is a smooth rounded type rather than characterized by extremely hard, bunchy or knotty muscles. Flexibility in all the joints is promoted which improves physical grace in general. Even an excessive amount of swimming will not make one scrawny and thin nor will it add a great deal of extra weight. Swimming as a recreational exercise has been called a normalizer as far as its effect on body weight is concerned".

The Love of a Child

IN A CASE in a Northern New York state court involving the custody of a child the judge has allowed the father seven weeks in which to "win the love" of his nine-year-old son, who has spent most of his time with his grandparents. How shall any man or any woman, win the love of a son, of a daughter, of any child? Parenthood does not confer the offspring's affections automatically or instinctively; it only provides a vantage point in which to win it, but this is also a danger point in which it may be lost. It is one of the pleasanter commentaries on the human race that there are so many children who do love and admire their fathers and their mothers.

A whirlwind campaign of cake and circuses would be expected to create in any child a sentiment compounded of gratitude and a desire for continuance of the fun. The result would not be complete justification for a decision in favor of the man on hearing the son say, "Yes, I love my father because he bought me ice cream and took me on a camping trip." Such tactics graze bribery, and there is the peril that the feeling which they inspire will be forfeit as soon as the attentions cease. The most solid basis of love is not the material, and although the age at which one may accept the gift and not the giver is hard to fix, it is an early one.

Children are wiser than grown-ups realize. Perhaps wishful thinking causes the adult to believe that because he has learned so much since his childhood, every child must be far his mental inferior. It may be that he has not learned so much as he believes, or that what he has learned is facts and figures, that he knows no more of people than he did years before. If there is any formula for how to treat a child, it is "like a human being."

Letting Live Energy and Ideas Through

YOU have probably noticed that the first water you draw from the faucet in the morning is flat and lifeless.

It is not only flat and lifeless in itself but it will not make a good cup of coffee no matter how good the coffee's radio program or how expert the cook.

Furthermore, the only way to get at the good water is to let the stale water run off so the reserve of sparkling water can come along.

This simple fact suggests something regarding your energies which you have probably observed, but which we are all prone to forget or disregard. You have doubtless often gotten up in the morning feeling punk. You had a good breakfast thinking the coffee would bring you to life. But it didn't. You thought you just couldn't get going. You turned on a little willpower and made a start. Presently you found the stale feeling working off and new life began tingling through your veins, nerves and muscles. The reserve Pep was there, it couldn't get through until stale energies had been worked off.

If you do work requiring creative thought or concentration, you have probably known something similar to happen mentally. When the mind lags, a five or ten minute period of relaxation in a quick nap will often restore you as good as new. Many have of course found that a cup of black coffee will whip up dormant powers. However, you may have also discovered that a change in mental work or merely sticking at what you're doing will use up your stale mental energies and new sparkling power will thus get through. Presently you feel a new zest in living and tingling, scintilating ideas begin to perc.

"There's something in it," as the monkey said, sticking his hand into the cocoanut.

BULLET IN TIE

Bandits held up Frank Kuletzki in Cleveland, and one fired point-blank at his heart. Mr. Kuletzki believing he had been shot, fell. The robbers ran away. Their victim got up and staggered to his home a short distance away. He was taken to hospital, but the doctors found nothing but a bruise on his chest. The bullet had struck a cigarette case in his pocket. They found the bullet hanging in his tie.

OFFICIAL WHIPPING

Riding on a subway train in New York, Thomas Bradley, 16, thought it a good joke to pull the whistle cord repeatedly and was taken into police court for it. His mother went with him. Judge Overton Harris announced choice of a jail sentence or "a thrashing that will show welts" for the boy's punishment. The judge asked his mother to decide and after she chose the thrashing, told the judge she would follow his instruction to bore holes through a paddle that would produce welts distinguishable by the judge.

HANDCUFFS BRIDE

Donald Palk, 22, of Denver, Col., heard his friend planned to "kidnap" his bride, Miss Adalenat Toof, at their marriage. So as they walked from the church he fastened her to his wrist with a pair of hired handcuffs. When safely away they could not find the key. A locksmith had to release them.

IN STEP WITH LIFE

Miss B. Elizabeth Horner, just out of college and in search of a job, inserted this ad in a newspaper:
College grad, young and gay,
Likes to play, but must make hay,
Will mind the hash, sling the hash,
Most anything to earn the cash.

CROWS STEAL FUSES

Two crows have caused four "blackouts" at Butterworth, Cape Province. Power station officials were puzzled by the disappearance of fuses from the top of an electric light pole in the centre of the town, with consequent complaints from lightless households. After fuses had mysteriously disappeared three times a native was put to watch the pole. He saw two crows settle on it, dislodge the fuses and fly away with them in their beaks.

NO USE FOR CASH

Mefsud Chantich, young Moslem farm laborer of Shevarlia, Bosnia, can find no use for cash. All he asks for a season's hard work is food, clothing and an occasional haircut. He says nothing would induce him to change his lot.

NEW SPECTATOR SPORT

In Pittsburgh, Pa., a huge excavation was being dug for the building of a planetarium and hall of science, given to the city. As a protection to passersby a high board fence was built around the site. When digging started so many persons with nothing better to do wanted to see the workers they complained to the contractor, who obligingly had windows cut into the fence for the benefit of the curious.

Carnegie Submits Rules
(Brampton Conservator)

Dale Carnegie, whose book on "How to Win Friends and Influence People" has focussed attention on what he has to say, has penned an interesting article entitled "Grab Your Bootstraps." Therein he gives eight rules which he claims will help to get rid of some of the "imaginary" fears that are retarding progress at present. Probably we can all benefit by following the advice handed out in a least some of the rules. They are as follows:

1. Analyse your fears. When you realize the basis of your fear you will be on the way to conquering it.
2. Determine what your next step will be. A soldier who knows where his second line of trenches is—is not defeated.
3. When your friends talk discouragement, talk encouragement.
4. Determine how much of your thinking is directed toward solving going over and over the same thing.
5. Act as if you were not afraid.
6. Don't think about your troubles at night.
7. Keep physically fit. The more discouraged you are, the more golf you should play.
8. Remember the present recession will pass. Others always have. If carried out, these rules are guaranteed by Carnegie to cure all ailments.

OLIVER DEROCHER

of Dundee. Mr. Derocher was born at Constable, N.Y., where he attended school. He came to Canada with his parents when 12 years of age, settling at St. Anicet. He worked around with numerous farmers until he was a young man. Then he took unto himself a wife and moved to Barre, Vermont, where for five years he ran a mill. He then returned to Canada and rented a farm at Dundee. After working this farm for five years he bought the farm on which he now lives. He takes an active part in the municipality and has been councillor for Dundee for the past four years. Mr. Derocher has noted a steady progress in the farming district of Dundee. He owns four farms in the Dundee vicinity which have a total of 1,000 acres. He has these farms rented out on shares. There is a total of about 100 cattle on the farms. His tenants on the farms number 12 adults and their children total 28.

MODERN MATILDA

Peach Jam

No one likes standing over a hot stove for hours waiting for jelly and jam to boil to the stage where it will be of the right texture to set properly. And yet housewives used to do this every summer with practically all the fruits. It was because these fruits lacked the jellying substance, pectin, so they didn't have any other way of doing the job. The modern cook just adds the right amount of bottled fruit pectin and in no time has a delicious batch of jam with a marvellous flavour and colour.

This boon to housekeepers is the result of he work of two brothers named Douglas. These boys grew up in Scotland in the shadow of a jam factory where the air was laden with the odour of boiling fruit juices. Robert went to work in a jam factory where he learned some of the mysteries of what makes jam and jellies jell. From this experience he realized what it would mean to women to be free of the uncertainties in home jam making. That gave him the idea and later he and his brother Charles, learned how to extract pectin from fruits that had plenty of it and make it ready to use in fruits that lacked it.

Peach Jam

3½ cups (1¾ lbs.) prepared fruit
7½ cups (3¼ lbs.) sugar
1 bottle fruit pectin.

To prepare fruit, peel about 2½ lbs. fully ripe fruit. Grind or choo very fine. If desired, about 3 teaspoons spice may be added. Measure sugar and prepared fruit, tightly packed, into large kettle, mix well, and bring to a full rolling boil over hottest fire. Stir constantly before and while boilling. Boil hard 1 minute. Remove kettle from fire and stir in bottled pectin. Then stir and skim by turns for just 5 minutes to cool jam slightly, to prevent floating fruit. Pour quickly. Paraffin at once. Makes about 10 glasses (6 fluid ounces each).

The Tradition of Jelly Making

That magic phrase "home jelly" brings to mind rows of gleaming, colorful jars on a shelf, shimmering glasses of various hues all ready for winter use. It's more than an art, more than even a pleasant occupation, jelly making is a tradition. A tradition is usually a custom which is handed down from one generation to another and that used to be so with jelly making. It was a tradition in the sense that mothers used to have to teach their daughters the secrets of jelly making; how and when to choose the fruit, how long to boil it and numerous other hints to secure a good batch of jelly. But even then it did not always turn out as hoped. Sometimes fruit had to be thrown away with a great loss of sugar, time and fuel because it wouldn't jell.

Jelly making is still a tradition in the sense that good cooks pride themselves on their ability to capture delicate summer flavours for winter use. But the hard part of the tradition, learning how to do it, has been removed by modern jelly making methods. The reason that some jellies wouldn't jell in the old days was because they lacked sufficient pectin and even after long boiling, which robbed the fruit of much of its colour and flavour, the results couldn't be depended upon. Modern cooks use fully ripe fruit, add bottled fruit pectin, boil for only a few minutes and turn out delicious jellies, the texture of which they know will be right.

Plum Jelly

4 cups (2 lbs.) juice
7½ cups (3¼ lbs.) sugar
½ bottle fruit pectin

To prepare juice, crush thoroughly 4 pounds fully ripe fruit. Do not peel or pit. Add 1 cup water. Bring to a boil, cover, and simmer 10 minutes. Place in jelly cloth or bag; squeeze out juice. Measure sugar and juice into large saucepan and mix. Bring to a boil over hottest fire and at once add fruit pectin, stirring constantly. Then bring to a full rolling boil and boil hard ½ minute. Remove from fire, skim, pour quickly. Paraffin at once. Makes about 11 glasses (6 fluid ounces each.)

Ethics of Etiquette

MORE MATTERS CONCERNING CHILDREN

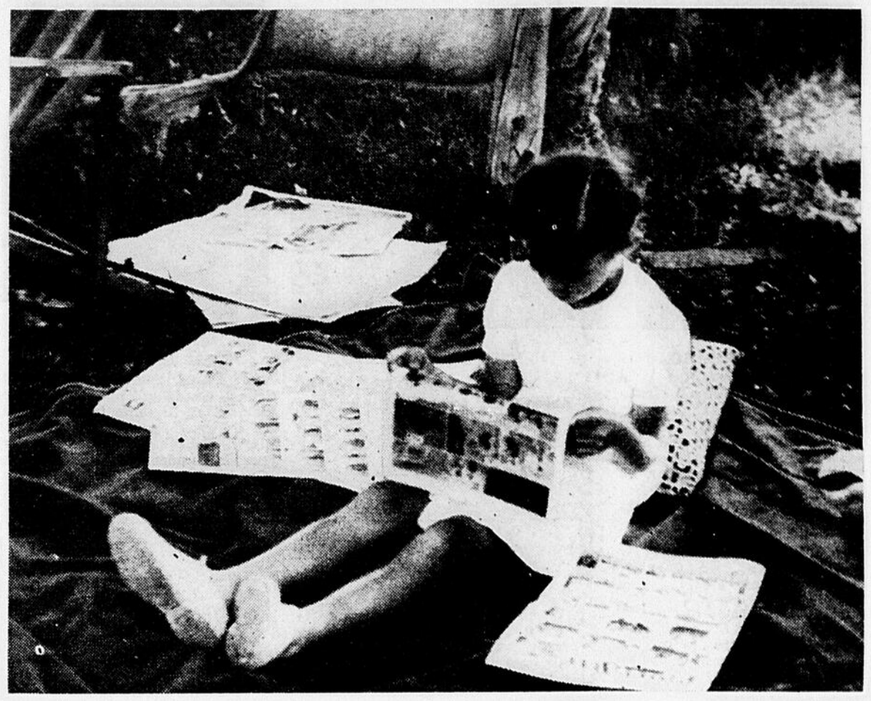

The developing mind asks questions, and the child old enough to ask questions should be answered. It is deplorable to hear an impatient mother hush up a child that asks where the birds are flying to, or why the flowers have pollen, or where the sun goes at night. The mother should answer the child to the best of her knowledge, and if she cannot answer she should promptly say so. If she is wise, she will enter into a compact with the child to search out the information and discover together what the answer should be. The child is delighted by such confidence and puts great trust and faith into the parent who takes its little problems thus seriously.

Reading aloud to children is an excellent plan. "Chivalry, generosity, truth, courage, endurance, and many other good qualities can find their way most pleasantly into a child's inner consciousness by way of fiction." Perhaps the greatest advantage of reading aloud to children is that it teaches them concentration and familiarizes them with the proper pronunciation of English. Children themselves should be asked to read aloud when they are able to do so; it is a training that will prove highly valuable later in life.

A promise to a child should be held sacred. Nothing so quickly destroys the child's fath and confidence in its elders as a broken promise; and nothing so quickly engenders sullenness, petulance, and disobedience in a child as lost faith in its elders. A promise once given must not be broken, no matter how difficult it may be to fulfill it.

The well-bred child is not a tale-bearer, and any tendency toward tale-bearing is quickly discouraged. But when questioned it tells the truth. A child should never be accused of breaking a vase or scratching a chair unless one is certain that it has really been the cause of the damage. The proverb says, "A suspicious parent makes an artful child."

WHAT TO DO WHEN OVERCOME BY HEAT

The extreme heat of summer is a real danger. Excessive high temperature is a similar danger to those who work in factories, engine rooms and other hot places and who fail to take precautions against heatstroke and heat exhaustion.

Heatstroke and heat exhaustion are radically different in their effect upon the patient and in the treatment required.

In heatstroke the face is red or purple, the skin is dry and hot, the temperature, measured by the thermometer, high, and the patient is unconscious. In heat exhaustion, much the opposite is the rule. The face is pale, the skin moist and cold and the temperature low; the person is usually conscious. Remember the differences. In heatstroke, a dry skin; in heat exhaustion, a moist skin.

What should be done in these cases? First call a doctor. Then remember that the hot body should be cooled and the cold body warmed. In heastroke lay the patient on his back in a shady place and remove as much clothing as society will allow. Sponge body with cold water. Apply ice-bag or cold cloths to the head. Give no stimulants, but after the patient has become conscious let him have all the cool water he will drink.

In heat exhaustion lay the patient in a reclining position. Loosen clothing. Keep warm with hot water bottles, blankets or other handy materials. Give stimulants: tea, coffee or one teaspoonful aromatic spirits of ammonia in half a glassful of water.

In hot weather wear light, porous clothing. Avoid unnecessary exposure to the sun or excessive heat either indoors or outdoors. Keep your head covered in the scorching sun. Drink plenty of cool water and to each glassful add a tablet of common salt (gr. v) either with or without 5 gr. dextrose. Use a liberal amount of salt food to replace the salt lost through sweating.

LOYALISTS LAG

On its latest voyage to New York the French liner Normandie brought 36,000,000 silver pesetas from Spanish Loyalists to be deposited in the Federal Reserve Bank of New York city. That much money is no small item of freight for the shipment weighed 186 tons. This and other shipments of money to America by the Spanish Loyalists indicate they have lost hope in their cause.

Dahlia's Whatnots

The Spice of Life.—

It sounds trite to observe that some of the commonest things are the most marvellous. But how "fearfully and wonderfully" we are made! Take appetite, guide to our gastronomic performance. Did you ever think how peculiarly and faithfully it fulfills its office? How delicious the new potatoes were when suddenly the guide said: Enough is as good as a feast! You looked at a second piece of the season's first apple pie, but the guide whispered: Cut it out. And so on down the list of foods and beverages. You may be still ravenous, but the officer, appetite, says: Move on. This guide's family name, so to speak, is Pleasure. Yet, functioning by means of the sensory faculties of sight, smell and taste it rules the basic process of the body's nourishment and growth, of life itself. Not only so, but it exerts an immeasurable control over economic, social, and artistic matters. Fancy, if you can, the slump in the wheat market if appetite went on strike and everybody kept on eating new potatoes and never got to the bread; nor yet the pastry. Appetite's demand for change is remarkable, but so is the supply. The variety and orderly succession of our fruits and vegetables is a tribute to the designs of Providence. Appetite is tempted and satisfied in turn by rhubarb, strawberries, raspberries, blackberries, apples, etc., etc., and also similarly by vegetables from asparagus along to late maturing and long keeping winter vegetables. It does look as if there was a Plan and a great Designer. There is the variety, not only of season and taste, but also of form and colour.

If only we numans could conform to the design of Nature as consistently as the little humming-bird that yearly hovers about my scarlet runner blossoms! Wise little thing! Its business in life is to extract nectar, not to emit aridity like some superior beings. Some of the latter tend to be freakish rather than satisfying, not unlike a hollyhock which struck me as something of a phenomenon; its two topmost flowers, exactly opposite each other, were two different colours, one a deep, rosy crimson, the other a delicate pink.

Of course, you are aware that the busy humming-bird hums with its wings and therefore cannot justly be compared with the over-talkative idler whose remarks have more sound than weight. Some one has said that the less there is in a bottle the more noise does it make as it is emptied.

Home Remedies.—

It is unreasonable to ascribe to Providence the blame for aches and pains which we get by being too stupid to move out of a draught. Also it may sound as unseasonable as growing lettuce in a hotbed in July to be telling cures for neuralgia and earache in this warm weather. But it seems to stay open season always for such ailments to hunt out the weak spots in our frame. A ginger poultice, re-moistened as it dries, will give considerable relief to neuralgia. If your earache refuses to yield to warm oil try this: Lie down with your ear all but touching a hot, not too hot, iron around which you have wrapped a moist flannel cloth and over that a dry flannel one. The woolen texture helps the steam to do the trick in a trice.

Jot it down.—

It may sound peculiar and fussy to suggest making out a programme of your day's duties, i.e., a list of what you plan to do each day as it comes, or the night before. But a friend of mine, a woman of unusual executive ability as a housekeeper and a social success, surprised me by stating that she daily jotted down a list of things to be done. "Of course, I don't always manage to get them all done," she remarked, "but it helps."

Walking for Pleasure.—

We have always heard about what walkers the Old Country people were, and always been told what good roads they had. Now that we have got that delightful smooth surface on our roads, everybody is saying what a pleasure it is to go for a walk, and people are taking walks unheard of heretofore.

A Modern Scribe.—

We in this vicinity, who know Mr Russell and have heard his vivacious public readings, were greatly interested to read that his handwritten copy of the Bible had proved an attraction at Glasgow Exhibition. A first superficial thought would probably be, What misdirected energy! Yet is not this a modern repetition of the labors of love performed by pious men in the early and middle ages before printing was invented? But for their zealous industry the Scriptures must have perished. May not Mr. Russell's effort serve to some degree, to revive an interest in them in some minds? Who knows but that it has been acceptable to Him who upheld Mary when the critics accused her of wasting the ointment?

Home Talent.—

The other day in a city store I asked a salesman how much linoleum would be required to cover several small spaces of different sizes. He amazed me by the speed of his calculation. Said I to myself, What a splendid example of the perfection wrought by practice when a man has brains to start with? However, the weight of the material and sales tax and freight charges changed my mind and I made my purchase in a country store. The ready reckoner's little "sum" proved wrong by about two square yards. Cities get their bright men from farms, quite often.

MELOROL ICE CREAM CHOSEN FOR THE QUINTS

Famous Five Enjoy A MelOrol Cone On Fourth Birthday

What an occasion for the little girls! Ice Cream for their birthday! Of course, it had to be the finest ice cream obtainable. Those responsible for the well-being of the Quints always insist on the best, and that is why they chose Borden's MelOrol Ice Cream in preference to any other.

They knew that these rich, round, individual portions of wholesome ice cream are automatically wrapped right at the freezer. This special wrapper gives the utmost sanitary protection to MelOrol . . . preserving its purity, perfect freshness and fine flavour.

One big reason— protected purity of MelOrol Ice Cream

Two shipments of MelOrol Ice Cream go up to the Quints every week . . . with all its "fresh-from-the-freezer" goodness and fine flavour preserved intact . . . absolutely pure and wholesome, not touched by hand.

These advantages make Borden's MelOrol entirely different from ordinary ice cream. Moreover, MelOrol is scientifically blended and frozen amazingly fast, making it smoother, creamier, more satisfying. Try Borden's MelOrol Ice Cream today. Try it in cones, sundaes, sodas, malted milks. Mothers, insist on it for your children.

A Fortune Awaits

Oh, that a nice inventive man
Would patent make and sell,
An onion with an onion taste,
But with a violet smell!

Dundee

Mrs. Bell Daly, Mrs. Nora Langevin and two children motored from Longueuil on Friday with Mr. and Mrs. Humphreys and spent the day with Mr. and Mrs. Wm. McNicol and family.

Mr. and Mrs. Frank Graham and two children of Montreal were recent guests of Mr. and Mrs. George Sheard. Master Archie Graham remained to spend a couple of weeks with Mr. and Mrs. Sheard.

Miss Violet McNicol, who recently spent three weeks with her aunt, Mrs. Alex. Walsh of Verdun, Que., returned home on Thursday with her father, Mr. Hugh McNicol and Mr. Roy McNicol, who motored down and spent the day in Montreal. Mrs. Walsh and young grandson also returned with them and will spend a few days with Mr. and Mrs. McNicol.

The United Church Ladies' Aid held a social evening on Friday. Quite a large number turned out for the event. The ladies served refreshments. A short programme of recitations by Lorna Fleming, Marilyn Cameron, Gladys Stowell and remarks by the Chairman, Mr. McBride, of the Presbyterian congregation brought the evening to a close. Proceeds amounted to $22.

Mr. and Mrs. John Gray, Miss Gladys Gray and Mr. Jas. Gillan of Montreal were Sunday guests at the home of Mr. and Mrs. D. S. Smellie.

Master Bruce Dick of Montreal is staying at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Jas. Colquhoun for a few days.

The W.M.S. of the United Church met at the home of Mrs. J. J. Fraser on Thursday afternoon. During the afternoon some of the ladies went over to the church basement where they worked at quilting, while others remained at the house and pieced quilt blocks. Delicious refreshments were served by the hostess, assisted by her daughters, Miss Bernice Fraser and Mrs. Basil Hewson.

Mr. and Mrs. Warren Vass, two sons Donald, and Bobby, and Mrs. Fox arrived on Wednesday night from Bedford, Mass., and spent a couple of days at the home of Mrs. Marion Vass.

Visitor (to Indian chief in reservation): "Chief, can you tell where I can buy some good Indian beadwork?"

Chief: "I got mine from a mail order house in Chicago."

Mr. Stanley Arnold of the Dundee Customs staff is doing relief work at Franklin Centre, replacing Mr. Ross Fraser, who is on vacation.

Threshing is in full swing in this locality just now. With but a few exceptions the farmers all report a large yield per acre of oats and barley and in some cases wheat. The quality too is excellent. The buckwheat crops are not harvested yet but look very promising. Corn crops are very well advanced on most farms, some farmers even talking of filling silo before Sept. 1st.

The Provincial Roads Dept. are doing some much needed resurfacing work on Highway No. 3, starting from the west end at Dundee Lines. They expect to cover at least five or six miles along this route. Road Patrolman Dan. Cameron is in charge of the work under Mr. Gray of the Roads Dept. Farmers living along this gravel highway are in hopes the Dept. may do something in the near future about eliminating the dust nuisance along this much travelled road.

The last regular meeting of the local Y.P.S. was held in the basement of the church on Friday evening, Aug. 5. About 35 were present. A committee was appointed from the Society to assist with the arrangements for the Annual Field Day on the 20th, being sponsored by the Girls' Softball Team. After the business meeting those present enjoyed a social hour. Roasted weiners with all the trimmings, also sandwiches and coffee were served at the close.

HOME TREK AT 101

Parents of Charles Jonaitis, 10, his sister, Betty, 8, and John Heich, 11, were alarmed when the children failed to come home after their usual play time in Lincoln Park, Chicago. Visions of kidnapping and murder came to their minds. Police were called but there were no clues until next morning when the Jonaitis family received a postal card from Charles postmarked at a substation only a block away. The card read: "Can Betty and I come home and get some food and clothes? If so, write yes or no on bottom and leave the card on the kitchen stove. P.S. If we come home are you going to give us a licking?" That eased the tension. Policeman Dewey Ritenour then heard one of Betty's little friends named "Dolores" had said she knew where the trio was hidden. She led the policeman to their hiding place in a thicket in big Lincoln Park and there, bedraggled and hungry, were the three runaways, glad to return home, whether or not they got a licking.

Any Reason Better Than None

After a long talk on the value of peace, good will and disarmament, a teacher asked his class if they objected to war.

"Yes, sir, I do!" said one boy.

"Good! Now tell us why."

"Because, sir," added the boy, "wars make history—and I don't like history."

Matrimonial

Leduc-Higgins

The marriage of Mary Emma Ola, daughter of Mrs. P. R. Higgins and the late Mr. Higgins, to Pierre Alcide, son of Mrs. J. B. Leduc and the late Mr. Leduc, took place quietly at St. Anicet, Monday, Aug. 15, Reverend Léo Berthiaume, pastor of Hinchinbrooke, officiating.

The bride, given in marriage by her uncle, Mr. Edward McGinn, wore a floor length gown of powder blue silk chiffon over taffeta, with hat and accessories to match and carried a spray bouquet of peach gladioli. Her only attendant was her cousin, Veronica McGinn as bridesmaid, who wore pink silk chiffon over taffeta, with hat and accessories to match and carried a colonial bouquet of yellow gladioli. Mr. Francis McGinn acted as best man for the groom.

After the ceremony a reception was held at the home of the bride's mother, where breakfast was served to the immediate relatives and friends. Later the couple left on a motor trip to Quebec and Ste Anne de Beaupré, returning by the Eastern Townships, the bride travelling in a navy blue chiffon dress suit with hat, shoes and purse to match.

Sutton-Cookman

On Wednesday afternoon, Aug. 10, at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Geo. B. Cookman, Odelltown, Que., the marriage took place of their eldest daughter, Elma Louise, to Mr. George Hartley Sutton, eldest son of Mr. and Mrs. Edward Sutton, Covey Hill, Que.

Rev. Mr. Fraser of Lacolle was the officiating clergyman.

The bride entered the drawing-room which was tastefully decorated with a profusion of cut flowers, on the arm of her father, looking charming in a floor length dress of white chiffon with short puffed sleeves, white shoes and a shoulder length veil with a coronet of orange blossoms, and she carried an arm bouquet of pink roses, white carnations and baby's breath and ferns.

She was attended by her sister, Miss Faye Cookman, who also looked very pretty in a pale blue net dress, white hat and shoes and carried a bouquet of Gladioli and ferns.

The groom was supported by his brother, Mr. Edward Sutton.

Mrs. W. S. Cookman of Hemmingford played Lohengrin's Bridal Chorus as the bride entered and also Mendelssohn's wedding march during the signing of the register.

Those attending the wedding besides the immediate families were Mrs. Nellie Clarkson, Mrs. W. S. Cookman, also the Misses Helen and Edna Bustard of Hemmingford.

The bride and groom left amid showers of confetti and good wishes for a motor trip to Gaspe, the bride's going away dress being of blue sheer with small blue hat and blue accessories.

On their return they will reside in Dundee, where the groom operates a butter factory.

We extend our good wishes to the newlyweds, and wish them every success during their married life.

LONG WAIT FOR "GIDDAP"

About 5 o'clock one afternoon a neighbour noticed the four-horse team of Ambrose B. Brown, 55, standing idle in a field being planted to corn near Circleville, Kan. Members of the Brown family, becoming uneasy when he had not returned about 9 o'clock, notified neighbours who went to the field where they found the team still standing on the same spot. Nearby lay Brown, dead, with a wrench in his hand. County officiers were called for an investigation and it was 11.30 before they arrived. The team was still standing there as nothing had been touched. The coroner pronounced the farmer a victim of heart disease, death having come suddenly while he was working on his planter. The remarkable fact about this occurrence is the horses having stopped at command of their master, stood still for six and one-half hours, without feed or water, waiting for the familiar "giddap."

CHINCHILLA SCARCE

There are fewer than 20 chinchilla fur coats in existence, and all are at least 10 years old and valued at from $50,000 to $80,000 each. No chinchilla pelts are available at present and there are fewer than 2,000 chinchillas left in the world. These facts developed recently when 44 of the small fur-bearing animals —described in the Los Angeles Times as "worth their weight in gold"—were shipped from Inglewood, Calif., to a fur farm at Afton, Wyo. A price of $75,000 more than $1,700 apiece, was paid. Chinchillas once were abundant in their natural habitat, the bleak Andean altitudes of South America, but the wild supply was exhausted years ago.

SHIRT TAILS BOBBED

Under British protectorate, the Malay States have a tariff barrier against cotton goods brought in. Recently a member of parliament in London reported Japanese traders are evading this tariff by shipping shirts to the Malays with tails several times as long as necessary. The tariff per shirt is the same, no matter how long the tails are. Once past the customs officers, the excess yardage in the shirt tails is cut off and no duty need be paid on this

Ormstown Nine Trounced In League Fixture At H'don --- Town League Ends This Week

Shawinigan Defeats Gleaner To Take First Position In League Standing—Dundee Holds Anual Field Day Saturday—Montreal And Verdun Girls At Ormstown Saturday evening Playoffs In Town League Next Week

Huntingdon won their first game of the year against Ormstown on Thursday evening by the score of 13-6. The locals were playing at their best, making very few errors while their opponents dropped numerous fly-balls which should have been handled.

A miniature fisticuff developed in the sixth inning when Faille of Huntingdon and Smith of Ormstown exchanged a few blows of no consequence. Smith was at bat, both players exchanged hot words and the fight was on. The game was soon resumed, however, and the players kept their heads up for the remainder of the contest.

A good crowd was on hand to witness this match and the local boys certainly presented a fine exhibition to their home town fans. This is the brand of ball that should have been offered all season but for unknown reasons nothing startling was shown until Thursday's battle.

Two exhibition games were played with Huntingdon teams on Saturday afternoon and two victories were gathered by these teams. The Leach Textile Town League team went to Montreal on that day and defeated the Holdsworth Dyers, 16-9. The Canadian General Electric team of Montreal lost to the Shawinigan nine in Huntingdon, 11-7.

A pick-up team from Huntingdon, headed by George Hood, lost an exhibition game to Kensington over the week-end. N. Stark and C. Duncan were the heaviest hitters for Kensington while Guy MacDonald and Senecal were each credited with one homer. The score at the end of the game was 15-13.

The Huntingdon Girls will meet the Beauharnois Girls and the Cornwall Girls in the near future, it was announced this week. The local girls' team has not had any game since their victory over the "Has Beens" a few weeks ago.

City Gas lost an important contest to Leach Textiles on Friday evening in a regular town league fixture. The score was close throughout and the Textilers won 14-13. Faubert of City Gas did not get the support required and the Leach nine profited by this fact to always keep leading. Leach have a total of six points to their credit and City Gas is still in fourth place in the league standing with eight points.

The Dundee Girls' Softball team and a number of supporters motored to Hogansburg, N.Y., on Saturday afternoon where they played the St. Regis Indians' Girls' team. The St. Regis Girls were not able to cope with the tactics of the visitors and Dundee came home with another win. The final score was 11-3.

On Thursday evening at the Dundee grounds, Dundee Girls lost to the Huntingdon Boys' Junior Team by the score of 8-3. The game was very interesting and closely contested.

Excitement is running high among the sport fans in Dundee with the Annual Tournament and Field Day only a few days off. Mr. L. A. Forsythe is offering a Cup for the winning team. It is hoped the weather will be favorable so that a large supporting crowd will turn out.

A remarkable pitcher in the Huntingdon Town League this year is N. Lefebvre, one arm athlete, who has won his last two starts with the Shawinigan. The lad won his contest against the Chateau early last week and was credited with a victory over the Gleaner nine on Monday. He fields and bats as well, if not better, than the average player in this loop.

Montreal Maroon Girls will visit this district for the second time this year on Saturday evening when they will meet the Verdun Girls at the Ormstown Fair Grounds. A double header will be presented that evening. The first game will be played between the Montreal girls while the second contest will feature the Ormstown Red Wings and the Ormstown senior team.

Local umpires have been selected for the playoff games and the directors of the Town League have promised to stand by them in all disputes, which might arise.

Shawinigan won their last regular Town league game on Monday when they defeated the Gleaner team, 11-10. This victory placed the Shawinigan in first position for the first time this year.

Playoff games in the Town League will start on Monday between the second and third team and the winner will meet the first position team for the championship. The semi-finals will consist of a series best out of three games while the finals will be a best out of five series.

Gold Cup Presented District Curlers

A grand sporting gesture was witnessed at the Huntingdon Chateau on Monday evening when the district curlers were the recipients of one of the finest of gold cups. Mr. W. Earl Moffat, of Providence, R.I., a former Ormstown resident and a frequent visitor in the Chateauguay Valley, is, according to reports, a most active curler and does all he can to create more interest in this popular winter sport. After learning about the game in Ormstown Mr. Moffat who is living in Providence, always had in mind to present his fellow-curlers in Ormstown with a cup. On his arrival here this summer, Mr. Moffat informed the Ormstown curlers of his decision and stated that he had a cup to offer the district curlers and another one for the Ormstown curlers. The first cup is to be played for weekly between the teams which comprise the district league curlers, while the second one will be played for between the Ormstown curlers.

Although the thermometer had reached a high level on Monday, it did not keep very many of the active curlers from attending this gathering at the Chateau. Riverfield, Ormstown, Huntingdon, English River, Aubrey and other curlers were present and greatly appreciated Mr. Moffat's donations.

Dr. M. R. Stalker, president of the Ormstown Curlers, thanked Mr. Moffat for his donations and felt sure the trophies would create much interest both in the local and district games. Donald E. Black, M.P., for Chateauguay, who attended the function, also addressed a few words of praise to Mr. Moffat. At the conclusion of his remarks, Mr. Black congratulated the directors of the Ormstown softball upon installing flood lights for their games at the Fair Grounds. Other speakers were heard and the evening was brought to a close with words of thanks to Mr. Moffat.

Town League Playoffs Start Monday

The Chateau, Shawinigan and Gleaner teams will start their playoff games on Monday evening, whatever the issue of the remaining contests may be. Such was the decision taken by the directors of the Town League at a meeting held on Monday at the Chateau. The standing at present finds Shawinigan in first position followed by the Chateau team and then the Gleaner. The leaders are in a rather tough spot. The Chateau have another contest on hand and a victory will place them on an equal footing with a total of sixteen points. Should this happen, the problem will be solved quickly as these two teams will fight it out on Monday in a sudden death contest for first place. The loser will meet the Gleaner in a best out of three series. The winners of the semi-finals will meet the leaders of the league in a best out of five series for the Championship of the Huntingdon Town League.

Local umpires have been selected for the series and it is assured that their services will be appreciated as the directors have promised these persons to stand by them whatever the issue may be. Messrs. I. H. Heath, S. D. Popeck, C. Faille will divide the umpiring duties in the approaching series. Three umpires will be on the field in all the playoff games; the umpire in chief at bat, one at first and second and the third one will have charge of third base.

The games of late in this league had been closely fought and if this brand of ball is played during the coming series, the fans will certainly have an ideal opportunity of witnessing some good ball games.

HUNTINGDON WINS 2ND CONSECUTIVE MATCH IN LEAGUE

Huntingdon added another victory to their small list when they won a regular Southwestern Quebec softball league tilt on Tuesday evening from Valleyfield Falcons by the score of 6-2.

The Huntingdon clan was playing at home. Behind the steady mound performance of George Wilson and the sensational fielding of R. Senecal in center field, Valleyfield never had a chace to overtake Huntingdon's lead.

The victory was the second one of its kind within one week as Ormstown were victims to the local aggregation on Thursday last and the Falcons were the second team to lose.

It is regrettable to note that Huntingdon were unable to start their winning streak a few weeks earlier as they only have a slim chance of reaching the playoffs in this loop.

In Tuesday's contest, the locals took the lead in the second inning and from then on they were never hampered by any of the Valleyfield rallies. Rapin was consistent on the Valleyfield mound but his teammates did not give him the usual support. Several balls were missed in the Valleyfield infield which netted timely tallies for the Huntingdon nine.

The line-up was as follows:

Huntingdon — Senecal, Hunter, White, Antoine, Lefebvre, Fortune, DeRepentigny, Faille, Wilson, Prevost.

Valleyfield—Whitehead, May, Ion, Burgess, Leroux, Searle, Bell, Anderson, Rapin.

Score by innings:

Valleyfield ..... 110 000 0—2
Huntingdon ..... 022 020 x—6

Provincial League Adds Springfield

Important Hockey Loop Enlarges International Scope—Lachine, Shawinigan Falls Entered — Valleyfield Braves Still In League

The Provincial Hockey League cleaned house at its annual meeting Wednesday night in Montreal, dropping four of last year's clubs—Granby, Drummondville, Lafontaine and St. Jacques.

It "went to town," as the saying goes, with the inclusion of Springfield, Mass.; Lachine and Shawinigan Falls.

Boston Olympics, the champion Sherbrookes and Valleyfield remain to round out a six-team loop.

Next season all the Provincial League matches will be played on artificial ice. New arenas will be opened at Lachine, with Albert "Battleship" Leduc in charge, and at Shawinigan Falls.

Applications were received from Cornwall, Quebec City and Verdun, but these were tabled due to complications.

President Boivin was re-elected for a fourth term. Other officers are Ulysse Paquin, first vice-president; Dr. O. E. Caza, Valleyfield, second; Dr. Rene L. Duberger, Sherbrooke, third; Paul LaHaye, president Publicity Committee, Ernest Comte, secretary.

Of chief importance, of course, was the inclusion of the Springfield entry. Lucien Garneau, owner of the Springfield Club of the Canadian-American League, was present and said he will use mostly native Springfield players on the Provincial League team.

Walter Brown, manager of the Boston Garden, was present with his coach, Hago Harrington and sundry attaches. Napoleon Cote was down from Quebec.

Canadian teams will make two trips across the border, visiting Springfield and Boston on each week-end jump with games on Saturday nights and week-end afternoons.

Boston guarantees visiting teams $400 up to $1400 net gate and $100 over that figure. Springfield it pledged to pay visitors $200. Boston is guaranteed $200 and Springfield $100 for games in Canadian cities.

JAILBREAKER RETURNS

After escaping from his cell at the Darwin police station, in Australia, a diminutive Irishman sauntered through the town, hailed a policeman, borrowed 50 cents from him, bought himself some drinks, returned to the police station and gave himself up. The story of the escapade was related in Darwin court when Con Maloney was charged with wilful and malicious damage of government property. The case was dismissed. It was stated Maloney, who had been arrested on another charge, was placed in a police cell. The door was padlocked, but he broke the padlock and escaped without attracting attention. When he returned he said to the constable in charge! "Do you want me now? I have broken out of my cell. Come along and I will show you." He had not been missed, and the constable who had lent him the money thought he was out on bail.

NO MOVIES WANTED

Significant of the attitude of many communities toward moving pictures was the special election in South Center, Iowa, recently, which resulted in a majority vote against the building of a movie theatre to cost $15,000. This is the second time this town of 1,650 population has voted against movies, the last vote being more decisive than the first. Of course, the people of Sioux Center who wish to see movies can go to nearby cities which have them, but for a town of this size to vote against movies as it would against pool rooms or saloons is pretty good evidence that something is wrong with modern motion pictures.

The Week at Ottawa

Plans To Increase Efficiency Of The Country's Defence Forces — The Future Of Hon. C. A. Dunning?

By Spectator

Changes in National Defence Department

The most momentous announcement that has broken the midsummer silence of parliament hill during the past week has been the word of plans to increase the efficiency of the country's defence forces. As has been said in the case of the United Kingdom, although in Britain defence measures are, of course, on a much more extensive scale, Canada does not intend to be "shot sitting". There will be a gradual and thorough reorganization of the military forces. Boards of advisers for the three services, army, navy and air force are to be appointed. These committees, composed of men with records of distinguished service will be available for consultation on matters concerning the efficiency of the services. Air marshal W. A. Bishop, V.C., distinguished air man of the war will be a member of the air board and General Tremblay, famous commander of the 22nd regiment of infantry will serve on the army board. The others on the committees also stand high on the country's roll of honor.

A number of promotions in rank have been announced, among these being W. A. Bishop, formerly vice air marshal to air marshal, a new rank for Canada's forces, Col. L. R. La Fleche, Deputy Minister of the National Defence Department to the rank of major general and Commodore Percy W. Nelles ranking officer of the navy to rear admiral.

A new vitality is being instilled in the defence forces. The development of militia training camps has made rapid progress in recent months. The air force, comprising 2100 men, and which will have about 300 planes by the end of the year is coming more to the fore and taking its rightful place as an extremely important arm of defence. The establishment of 130 searchlight bases at strategic points on the Pacific coast, to be followed by the establishment of similar posts on the Atlantic seaboard is a forward step in the creation of an effective air shield for this country. It has been suggested that Canada might perhaps coordinate civil and military aviation in the manner which is to be followed in the United Kingdom. In any event the lessons to be learnt from the destruction wrought by aerial attacks in Spain and China, have given the air force an assured place in Canada's line of defence.

The inspection of Canada's flying fields being made by Captain J. M. Robb with a view to the establishment of training schools for R.A.F. pilots in Canada will probably lead to a considerable expansion in training facilities in this country. Not only the R.A.F. but the Canadian air force as well will reap benefits from this. It will afford greater opportunties for the training of a voluntary reserve of pilots for the Canadian force.

Arrangements have been made for the training of fishermen on the West coast in the off season as a voluntary reserve for the navy. This is in accord with suggestions made in the House of Commons last session. Next year the plan will be extended to the Atlantic seaboard.

Mr. Dunning's Future

Will Hon. C. A. Dunning bring down the budget at the next session of parliament? Will he accept a portfolio a little less exacting than the ministry of finance? Everybody is pleased that Mr. Dunning is making a good recovery from the illness that attacked him at the close of last session and prevented him from attending the House during the last few days before prorogation. But the strain of the onerous duties of the Finance Department has broken the health of a number of his predecessors in office, Robb, Fielding and Rhodes among them, and it may be that Dunning's friends may prevail on him to assume a less exacting porfolio. Monetary reformers have been critical of his, what they consider, too strict adherence to the laws of "orthodox" finance, but all recognise the value of the service he has been giving to his country. A clear thinker, lucid, courageous and good humored in debate, an able administrator of the country's finances, he is too good a man to lose. But to his own private advisory board, formerly consisting of his sense of duty, his ambition and private inclination, a new member has been appointed, his doctor. The state of his health will be the governing factor in his future.

Airlines coming under Transport Board

Before the end of September air lines operating in Canada will be brought under the control of the Transport Board. An act was passed last session creating the Board of Railway Commissioners into a Transport Board with jurisdiction over air lines and steamships (the control over steamships being qualified to some extent) as well as over railways. Airlines operating in the north under sharp competitive conditions have been cutting rates on passengers and freight, below cost levels. With the transport board in operation fair rate schedules can be established, and these air lines will have a chance of making a fair profit on their operations. Air lines in Canada carry from 26 to 30 million pounds of freight annually, much of this being to mining areas lying beyond the reach of the railways. Aerial transport over the Mackenzie river watershed where mining development and prospecting have been increasingly active during the past and the present year, has been expanding rapidly.

Before the end of the year passengers will be carried on regular schedules over the Trans-Canada Air Lines which at that time, it is confidently expected, will be operating from the Atlantic to the Pacific. It is only in the eastern section from Montreal to the Atlantic seaboard that airports and equipment are not yet in complete working order. From Montreal westward the line is ready.

But to get back to the story. We asked Chief "Big John" what he thought of the Municipality of Dundee and should it really belong to the Indians. Chief "Big John" immediately disappeared into his "wigwam" to reappear again shortly with an old cloth map of the whole Huntingdon County. After giving a few indignant grunts he majestically proclaimed, "There she is. Indians own whole county of Huntingdon. The Queen gave it to us."

That was enough. We left soon afterwards before another Chief might make a claim to the whole North American continent.

A Search

Following such a conclusion as this, it was impossible for the detective to leave without an examination of his quarry's room and property. His information was not substantial; and of the secretary's past, about which he was particularly interested, he had discovered nothing. Accordingly, he bent every effort toward persuading Mrs. Phipps to permit him to leave some message of greeting in Gardiner's chamber for him, appealing to her sense of the sentimental. It would please the secretary to find a memento from his friend on his desk when he came home; otherwise, Gilmore explained, as he was leaving town shortly, he would have no other means of communicating with him. And thus entreated, Mrs. Phipps succumbed. Though ordinarily she would have considered the request most unusual, her visitor had made a favorable impression upon her; he had convinced her he was well acquainted with her boarder. She hesitated to interfere with a possible touching reunion, the thought of which warmed her heart.

The room to which she escorted him on the second floor had something of the qualities of a study. The furnishings, though inexpensive, made for a snug, comfortable atmosphere in which one could readily relax. In addition to articles usually necessary to a living room, a typewriter rested upon a small desk, where the secretary evidently did extra work either for himself or for the office. Under the desk was a waste basket; behind it, a clothes closet, and next to the bed a chiffonier.

Gilmore wasted no time studying these things; he had to make the most of the period permitted him behind the closed door. As soon as Mrs. Phipps was gone, he turned to the desk—the most natural place to find letters or papers that might give him a clue to the secretary's past. He sorted swiftly through typed business letters, carbon copies, a report of a directors' meeting and a year-book. In one drawer he found Gardiner's checkbook account with a Philadelphia bank, which indicated his deposits to be limited to a small weekly sum out of his salary. Gilmore had the ability to grasp the importance of papers at a glance; the difficulty was that in this case none of it was important in connection with his quest.

In the chiffonier and closet, which came next in his systematic search, he hoped to find some item that would link the secretary to some definite locality. But he was disappointed. The shirts, socks, ties and suits had all been recently purchased at local stores; all of them carried the labels of Philadelphia shops. Most of them were of material of the best quality, but apart from informing Gilmore that Gardiner's salary, if not his bank account, was ample, they were valueless.

Nowhere had he found a single indication of the secretary's past experience. In the desk there was not even a letter or communication, a fact indicating that Gardiner's correspondence had been virtually nil. Otherwise, Gilmore would have certainly found some note, at least from his family, did he have one. But there was nothing of the sort. The bank account and all his clothes were of local origin. Gardiner himself had apparently been so taciturn that even the talkative Mrs. Phipps knew nothing of him.

It was as though his life had begun abruptly from the moment he had reached Philadelphia; beyond that, for all the traces he had left, he might never have been born.

Wedding Announcement

For what reason should Gardiner have made such a determined effort to blot out all evidence of his former life? What was the secret behind the curtain that was so shameful that he sought desperately to cover it, Gilmore had asked himself? Philip Nixon had known it, was aware of facts so disgraceful that he had opposed any relationship between his daughter and his secretary. Although he had kept Gardiner in his employ, that screened past must have been, indeed, discreditable, if it would have turned Eleanor Nixon against him. But the financier took with him those obliterated years; had they been so terrible that he had paid for his knowledge with his life?

The obviousness of its position caused the detective almost to overlook the wastebasket. But just as he was about to open the door and rejoin Mrs. Phipps, he realized his omission. Merely to be thorough, so that he should not have the feeling that he might have missed something, he returned to it. It required less than a moment to search through crumpled scraps, unfinished business notations and rejected sheets.

And then, suddenly he found what he was looking for. Almost at the bottom of the container, crumpled and partly torn, lay an envelope, addressed to Gardiner in a sprawling hand. The postmark was dated June 6, less than two weeks ago; the station stamped on it was Akron, O.

Within was a card upon which was printed in a flowing script, the following announcement:

"Mr. and Mrs. Samuel Denby announce the wedding of their daughter, Ella, to Richard Santell, of Cleveland, O., on the fourth of June, nineteen hundred and twenty-nine, at the Church of Saint Mary's, corner Little and Oak streets, Akron, O."

Here was something tangible, a message from some former friend of Gardiner's; probably the announcement had been sent either by the groom or the bride, whom he had known in the past. Not more than two weeks had elapsed since the betrothal; it was not too late to make inquiries. Here was a starting point that might easily lead to the clarifying of the entire mystery surrounding the young secretary.

Pocketing the announcement, Gilmore rejoined Mrs. Phipps in the living room below. Glibly, but convincingly, he informed her that he had decided not to leave any message for his friend, but had changed his plans to the extent of remaining in town another day, and would call on Gardiner at the offices in the morning. As he yet wanted to surprise him, he hoped Mrs. Phipps would keep his presence a secret, until after he had visited him. The detective would immensely appreciate this courtesy from her. And responding warmly to his charming deference, and appeal, she promised that she would not mention his call until he had seen the secretary on the morrow.

By the time she did speak of it, Gilmore had reflected as he took his departure, he would have made some definite progress. Five minutes after his arrival at headquarters, he had sent a long, carefully worded telegram to the Akron police, relating the story of the marriage announcement, and asking for such information as they possessed of all parties concerned—but in particular, Donald Gardiner.

It was close upon 8 o'clock, when, in the meantime, Rankin found himself outside the door of E3, Russell Stirling's apartment at Garden Terrace. He had made the journey to Germantown in his own car, one that had seen much service while in his possession.

As he drew up before the towering apartment building, the statuary adorning its approach looked aghast to observe anything less than a Packard machine enter the drive. The structure itself, of red brick, decorated with white tile and an ornate frieze, was fifteen stories high, fronted by perfectly planned gardens, a fountain playing in the dusk wind, and little walks that led to a majestic portal. The stock broker must possess means to reside amid such exclusive surroundings.

Mr. Stirling

In reply to his knock, the door of E3 was opened by a butler whose stately demeanor seemed to proclaim him a gem among servants. It also concealed the smallness of his stature and the somewhat mean cast of his sharp eyes and ferretlike nose. Below bushy eyebrows were sallow features.

"I don't think Mr. Stirling can see any one just now," he said when Rankin had stated his business. "He is quite busy, preparing to go out on a dinner engagement."

"This is very important," returned the detective, "and I think he'll see me for a few moments. Tell him that some one from headquarters wants a word with him.

The butler retired, unable to conceal the fact that he was startled. Rankin was not surprised when he returned in a moment and obsequiously escorted him through a short hall into a living room. Often in his experience the magic words he had spoken were a touchstone that opened many closed doors.

The chamber, in its exotic luxury, would have done credit to a Sybarite; incidentally, it gave some indication of the type of man its owner would be. Extravagant draperies, painted in riotously modernistic designs, concealed an entrance to the rear; a gold-colored divan furnished the centerpiece of the room, about which were clustered several deep-seated formal chairs. Heavy Persian rugs deadened Rankin's footsteps. A grand piano, covered with a Chinese scarf, occupied one corner. The central lights were out, but a variety of lamps shed upon the furnishings a rich subtle lustre.

"I must apologize for my appearance," he began, offering the detective a limp, uncordial hand, "but as Higgins told you, I am preparing to go out. No, no, stay seated, Mr*" "Rankin."

"Yes, Mr. Rankin? I hope you will be brief. I am given to understand that you are from the police. To what am I indebted for this visit?

The words were urbane and smooth, revealing no sign of nervousness. Yet instinctively, Rankin sensed behind their outer calmness a veiled anxiety to conceal which told him the speaker was on the defensive.

"I am investigating the death of Philip Nixon," he replied, "of which you must have read in the papers—Mr. Nixon, you know, president of the American Motors Corporation."

"Ah, yes, I did see something about it; a most unfortunate affair, is it not? And you are investigating the case?"

"We at headquarters have learned that you were acquainted with him, and on the chance that you might be able to give me some information regarding him, I have come to ask a few questions."

Russell Stirling raised his eyebrows slightly, expressing pained surprise at the detective's recital.

"You've come to me to learn something of Mr. Nixon?" he queried, politely. "Mine was a barest acquaintance, and I'm afraid I could not possibly know anything that would be of assistance."

Rankin was equally polite, but he made his question pressing.

"However, you did know him, and we are making it a point to question every one who came in contact with him in any way. You had business dealings with him, I believe?"

"Yes; but only the slightest; nothing at all of consequence."

"I must ask what sort of business dealings."

'Oh! just a little matter of selling stocks," Stirling returned, with every appearance of reluctance. In addition to my brokerage business I have a side line of excellent investments, in which I had been hoping to interest Mr. Nixon. Further than that there was absolutely nothing."

The detective nodded at the glib explanation. I see; and were you successful in your efforts to interest him?"

No; I'm afraid not that is, while Mr. Nixon was quite willing to invest, matters had not reached the stage where a sale was effected. His tragic death intervened to prevent that."

And yet, Mr. Stirling, up to the day of his death, I have it from a reliable source that he absolutely refused to see you! Did you meet him, then, on tthe day he died?"

For the first time the line of defense was pierced, because of a blunder for which the broker himself was responsible. For a moment he hesitated, shaken visibly; only with an effort was he able to speak with the same even tenor he had before employed.

"I'm afraid I must contradict you, Mr. Rankin. I got in touch with Mr. Nixon by phone at his home, and we met soon afterward, during a lunch hour, outside, several days before his death."

It was a safe reply. Whether true or not, Rankin realized he would be unable to prove or disprove the meeting of two business men at the noon hour in any eating-place unless he could account for every moment of the financier's time for a week back.

18 FOOT GIANT

A large number of apparently human footprints, two feet in length and 11 inches wide, have been found in a field in the Jalpaiguri district, it is reported at Simla. The owner of feet capable of making such impressions is reckoned to have been at least 18 feet tall. So perhaps, hundreds of years ago, there were giants around Simla.

Answers To BRAIN TEASERS

Answers to Test Questions

1. Daniel Webster was a great orator and statesman. It was Noah Webster who edited the original Webster's Dictionary. Wishing to put the speaker right, the chairman whispered, "Not Daniel, but Noah". The speaker whispered in reply, "Noah did not write a dictionary; Noah built the ark".

2. The first premier, Sir John A. Macdonald, died in 1891; the second, Alexander Mackenzie, in 1892; the third, Sir John Abbott, in 1893; and the fourth, Sir John Thompson, in 1894.

3. The genus allium, which includes the leek, the garlic, and the onion, furnishes edible bulbs. The asparagus officinalis, whose young sprouts form an article of diet, is also a member of the lily family.

4. Half an inch a year is a scientific estimate of the rate of growth of a coral tree. To grow 100 feet would take 2400 years.

5. The minute hand will not pass the hour hand while the latter is going from XII to I; neither will it pass while the hour hand is going from XI to XII. The number of passes is, therefore, ten.

As a hint to beginners in the construction of "Challenge Crypts"; it would be well for them to know that the hardest Crypt to solve is not the one with the longest words. On the contrary, using rather short words, with letter frequency well balanced, and the absence of doubled letters, or pattern words, will give the solver more trouble than those which consist of many repeated letters, even if the word itself is unusual. Come on with your challenge, also some easy ones are needed. Watch for the hints in the easy ones and send in your answers to, Whizz Bang, Ormstown, P.Q.

Franklin Centre

W. I. Annual Picnic

The annual picnic of the Franklin W. I. was held on Aug. 5 at the home of Mrs. Alex Blair, and Mrs. Roy Blair.

A recitation, "Coals of Fire", by Mrs. Willard Blair was much enjoyed, as was also an address by our County Prsident, Mrs. James Bruce. Mrs. R. C. Manning who recently toured the Southern States, and spent some time in New Mexico visiting relatives, exhibited a number of articles from that country, the handiwork of the Indians, viz a lovely silky handkerchief made from the inner fiber of the cactus, a handsome wool scarf and a small tray made from white sand, and other articles. Mrs. W. Whitehead gave an amusing recitation called "Mrs. Peasley takes a chance".

The hostesses assisted by the ladies served a bountiful lunch, and a pleasant social time was enjoyed on the beautiful maple shaded lawn, bordered by a lovely flower garden.

Across the Years at Valleyfield
A History of the Montreal Cottons

Late in the year 1873, there were three events, whose importance kept gossip, discussion and interest at a high peak amongst the people of Valleyfield and also among the population of the surrounding parishes. The proposed extension of the Ottawa and Coteau Railroad by building a line from Valleyfield to the northern main route caused much excitement; a few weeks later and almost simultaneously, came news of quiet negotiations for the Gillies and Peterkin farm properties upon which to build a cotton mill and the announcement of the intention to incorporate the town of Valleyfield under the name of "Salaberry." The construction of a spur line from Valleyfield gave visions of direct access to Montreal to provide a market for produce from St. Stanislas, St. Malachie and St. Louis, thus making Valleyfield at once a market centre, while the expected sale of the farm lands owned by Gillies and Peterkin for the purpose of erecting a cotton mill encouraged hope in the hearts of the citizens of the lake-side town for a real boom in business affairs. Upon this phrase of growth every one was united but the other two questions divided opinion into two bitter camps.

William Hobbs, an insurance agent in Montreal, had, with much shrewdness and calculation, learned that a group of businessmen had selected tentatively a site at Valleyfield for a cotton mill and forthwith had obtained an option upon the land that formed farm lands where the Montreal Cottons plant was ultimately built. The account of the transaction itself and the intrigue and battle of wits fought prior to the actual purchase in the name of the directors of the infant company is a story whose details must be related later on so that the early difficulties met in the founding of the company can be appreciated.

The aspect of an increased and wider transportation by rail caught the imagination of all forward-thinking people in the district but unfortunately there were misunderstandings and technicalities that finally defeated the scheme. The precise route was undecided but it was expected that the various parishes would be willing to pay bonuses for the privileges of contact by rail with the outside world. At that time a bridge across the St. Lawrence was not promised but those keen on the project expected Valleyfield (the parish of Ste. Cecile) to ratify the by-law granting a bonus of $40,000. The Valleyfield inhabitants were particularly anxious as a hint had been dropped that the crossing would be made at St. Timothee and in order to forestall such a move the council at Valleyfield moved quickly and at the meeting of October 6, 1873, the matter came up. The response was unanimous, if hasty, and the by-law for the bonus passed in the confidence that the rate-payers would ratify the action.

Then it was discovered that Z. Boyer, Secretary-Treasurer of Valleyfield had made a mistake in allowing only fourteen days' notice for the vote instead of the required legal fifteen, so the bill had to be withdrawn and all the proceedings gone over again. The law was published anew and a vote was to be taken in November, 1873. Meanwhile, the delay had given the opposition forces in the outlying parishes time to increase the weight of disagreement. Even in Valleyfield opinion was divided, but one of the directors of the Railroad Company, Mr. Hibbard came up from Montreal to explain the undertaking, emphasizing that if Valleyfield rejected the by-law, the Company would follow a route by St. Timothee and Beauharnois, which would suit the directors equally as well. His statements carried so much weight that the Council adopted the by-law with two Councillors voting against it. Again it was felt that the voters would undoubtedly ratify their action. St. Louis de Gonzague and St. Malachie were prepared to move next, but the folk of St. Malachie were bitterly opposed to the Frontier road; it was thought that no objections could be made to the Coteau line which would go directly to Montreal. In the parish of Coteau, the by-law was submitted and rejected through the influence of the Seignior, Mr. de Beaujeu, by 40 of a majority. Mr. de Beaujeu was in favour of the railroad but insisted on a route that would suit him better in passing through his land. Even in those days individuals were alive to political and personal motives that would bring financial returns, regardless of obstructing the common good of the majority.

The by-law would have had a good chance to be received successfully by the voters, despite hostilities among themselves, had not Mr. Alexander Buntin, the owner of the paper-mills, ranged himself against it. He felt that the railroad was not needed, that horses amply met the demands of transportation, that the line would tend to raise wages. Arguments against the enterprise also included the time-worn plea for conservation of public monies. It was difficult to impress the voters with the fact that it was only fair to pay a reasonable portion of the outlay that the promoters were willing to make in the hope of success. It was pointed out to Mr. Buntin that if his mills experienced the same degree of expansion within fifteen years, there would not be enough horses in the entire district to carry his paper. In view of the probable erection of a cotton mill at Valleyfield, which would have hauling necessities that would compete with Mr. Buntin, the paper mill interests were urged to see that the future would require a railroad for the carrying of freight. However, the poll was kept open for two days, only those who had paid their taxes being allowed to vote and a majority of 67 defeated the by-law.

It took several years to live down the bitter disappointment felt by those who had earnestly desired a wider and more useful outlook for Valleyfield. This feeling was admirably summed up in a leading editorial written by Robert Sellar in the 1873 Christmas edition of the Gleaner. In the closing paragraph, he castigates the shortsightedness of the opponents and voices opinions that are prophetic in their scope and tenor.

"No one who has ever stood on the embankment at Valleyfield could fail to be impressed with its extraordinary capacity for manufactures. No where else along the St. Lawrence can such water-power be obtained, and all that is needed to make it a second Lowell is enterprise, capital and a railroad. Cornwall has shot ahead of it with inferior advantages in the way of water-power and labour, and the only reason that can be given is, that Cornwall has certain and speedy communication with town every day in the year by the Grand Trunk. The ferry at Coteau and Caughnawaga are obstacles to that despatch and constant supervision indispensable in business of any magnitude. Valleyfield was offered a railroad, giving connections much superior to those of the Grand Trunk—a road which would put it in direct communication with the Ottawa Valley and the United States. It was offered also on the easiest terms—one dollar and four cents on the hundred dollars valuation, and like all the country valuations, that of Ste. Cecile is nominal, and far below what it should be. Yet even this small tax it was certain the present tax-payers would never have to pay. The advent of the railroad would hasten the development of its manufactures, and every mill that would go up would reduce the tax to be paid, so that in another twelve years it is questionable if the tax would be fifty cents on the hundred dollars. Yet to escape this trifling burden, the opponents of the railroad have deliberately blasted the prospects of their parish. Their great advantages are to remain only partially developed, their children are to go and seek that work in New England which, by securing a railroad, they might have had at Valleyfield. No wonder the District moves slowly; penny wise and pound foolish; farmers grumbling at low prices, yet refusing to give anything to secure a market at their door. Envious of the enterprise and energy of our neighbours south of 45, yet refusing to take the steps they have done to secure wealth and prosperity. The opponents of the railroad in Ste. Cecile may exult at their success, but they have done their town and parish the greatest injury it was in their power to inflict, and on them a heavy responsibility will ever rest . . . ."

Four decades later, in 1913, Abbé Lionel A. Groulx, who was then a professor of the College of Valleyfield, and who had had ample opportunity in his studies about the early history of Valleyfield to draw the conclusions that are made by students, visionaries, and mystics—and are consequently laughed at—corroborated in the manner of his Gallic insight the scathing but truthful words of Sellar. In a closing paragraph of his "Petite Histoire de Salaberry de Valleyfield," the learned Abbé writes these pungent, revealing and indisputable words:—

"Mais c'est notre humble avis—et nous serions fâché qu'on le prit pour autre chose—que Salaberry de Valleyfield devra se résigner d'ici longtemps à des rêves modestes. Il fera bien de n'espérer plus que les lents et insensibles progrés des petites villes de province, ennemies des succès trop brusques, ne grandisant que des apports de leur ambiance rurale. La fermeture du Canal de Beauharnois a profondément modifié notre situation géographique. Nous ne sommes plus sur la route de la navigation, a proximité de Montréal, nous avons contre nous cette loi d'économie sociale qui veut que les agglomérations humaines où les ouvriers se recrutent plus facilement, ou le problème du transport se trouve simplifié. Nos pouvoirs hydrauliques gardent toujours leur haute valeur intrinsèque, mais ils sont déjà pour une bonne part affermés. Et que nous font les richesses de notre houille blanche si de nos jours l'on trouve plus commode d'accaparer l'énergie électrique par des barrages et de la diriger, au moyen de fils, vers les grands centres industriels? Et Valleyfield a également contre lui de n'être, par sa position géographique, ni un terminus, ni le point aboutissant d'une région importante, comme Sherbrooke, comme Saint Jérôme, comme Trois Rivières. Tout près des frontières, Valleyfield n'est le centre commercial que d'un petit nombre de paroisses peu populeuses et mal reliées à nous par les voies ferrées. Nos industries elles-mêmes, sans le vouloir, ont peut-être contribué, avec les transformations du machinisme, à nous attarder sur la route du progrès. De jour en jour, dans les usines, la place se fait moindre pour l'ouvrier vigoureux et habile mis en face de ses machines qui suffit à faire fonctionner la main d'une jeune fille et même d'un enfant. Nous croyons que l'ouvrier canadien-français, dans ce pays où tant d'entreprises appellent son énergie et lui promettent la richesse rapide, désertera de plus en plus le travail des filatures où il ne peut prétendre qu'aux salaires inférieurs et au rôle de manoeuvre."

In these paralleled philosophies—one piercingly Gallic, the other pragmatically Anglo-Saxon—are couched the words of thinkers who arrive at the same conclusion, who, after nearly seventy years, can say that either one was wrong?

COUNTY FAIR WILL OFFER NOVELTY ACTS

The Franklin County Fair, Aug. 22 to 27, will include a marvelous variety of first class entertainment. Smash hits which will appear in Malone for the first time this year are Fanchon & Fanchon contortionists and acrobats, the Les Kimris Duo, which formerly appeared in the Billy Rose Extravaganzas, as revolving gymnasts, and the famous Gangler's Circus with its small animal performers, which has gained renown for the unique stunts that the animals perform.

The Malone Military Band will be featured during the performances as it renders concerts and furnishes the music for the vaudeville.

Ball Games Scheduled

A full week of baseball games between the Malone Stars and other Northern League teams will be offered for the baseball fans along with the customary trotting and pacing races. Lucky Teter, dare devil driver and stunt performer will again be a special attraction on the closing day of the Fair.

Each night a bigger and better display of fireworks will light up the horizon to top off the performances before the grandstand.

Animals Dominate Circus

A circus all by itself is the happy aggregation of animals known as Gangler's Circus, which comes to the Franklin County Fair on Aug. 22 to 27 inclusive.

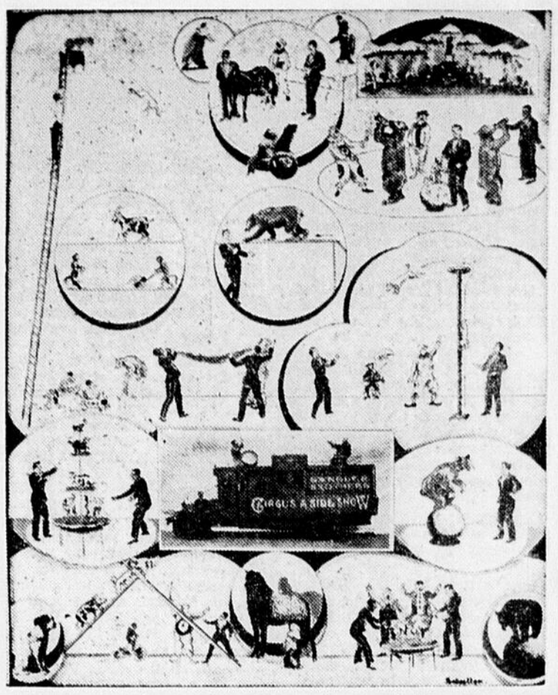

A horde of dogs, bears, ponies, goats, pigs, monkeys, leopards and members of the feline family are assembled by Circus Impresario Gangler into four presentations. His No. 1 display brings together his Dog Parliament for bright and snappy precisions and formations. Act N. 2 features a "pick out" pony—the intelligent charge picks out numbers which are called to him, distinguishes colors (which many humans can not), picks people from the audience who resemble Trainer Gangler's description of same and, last but hardly least, plays the musical bells. It is ready testimonial to the skill of the trainer and the intelligence of the pony.

Act 3 is the famous high-diving canine, who plunges into the arms of a Gangler clown from a height of 30 or more feet.

Act No. 4 is the climax—in this session Gangler assembles all his animals in a fast and furious entertainment which is supposed to follow the finales of musicals in styles and formation.

Gangler's Circus comes to Malone Fair after a series of long engagements in theaters.

FRANKLIN CO. FAIR ATTRACTIONS

Some of the animals with Gangler's Circus which will appear at Malone from August 22 to 27 inclusive. This Circus is hailed as one of the best animal shows in the circuit today.

FAIR WEEK

Huntingdon Locals

The Chateauguay Valley Good Will Shopping Club is being watched by the Gleaner staff with marked interest. When Mr. R. L. Taylor first offered the suggestion of having a Good Will Shopping Club formed in the Chateauguay Valley we were skeptical as to the value the merchants would receive for their participation in same, and also if the Club would leave any unsavoury odor when the campaign was over. Before definitely deciding in favour of the Club we made investigations in other towns, and got some surprises as to trade obtained by the merchants participating. Revelations are now being made in Huntingdon; for at one gasoline station two truckers have switched buying their gasoline from Montreal to Huntingdon in order to obtain the votes. By the time the campaign concludes this gasoline station will sell to these two truckers at least $450 of gasoline and oil. The truck drivers are happy, and the Gas Station operator is doubly happy to make the extra sales. Similar instances of sales on a smaller scale have been noted in other stores.

The Misses Phyllis and Marion McLaren of Ormstown were Thursday visitors at the home of C. J. Murphy.

Mrs. Arthur Labelle, Waltham, Quebec, returned home after spending the past two weeks at the home of her father, C. J. Murphy. Mrs. Labelle motored home with Misses Gladys Sullivan and Millina Murphy who spent ten days in Waltham.

O'Connor, President of the Board of Trade and Mayor Daniel Faubert accompanied by Mrs. Faubert and Mrs. O'Connor have returned home from a motor trip to Toronto, New York, New Jersey and other industrial towns near New York. The trip was made in the interests of the Town of Huntingdon industrial matters. The Board of Trade and Town Council are anxious to see the Windsor Silk Mills in operation at an early date and it was with that objective in view the trip was made. The results of the trip cannot be announced but encouragement is held out for an early arrangement being completed with some one of several industrial concerns to occupy this mill property.

Mr. and Mrs. J. E. Barrett, accompanied by Dr. M. T. Barrett and Mrs. Barrett of Philadephia are at present enjoying a holiday in New Brunswick. When leaving Huntingdon on Thursday they had no particular point of destination, but hoped to enjoy a good motor trip in eastern Quebec and New Brunswick.

Obituary

The late W. W. Rutherford

William Walter Rutherford, retired engineer of the Canadian Pacific Railway, died Monday in his 76th year at his son's residence, 3814 Marcil avenue, Montreal, after a short illness.

Descendant of a family which traced its ancestry back to 1109, Mr. Rutherford was born in Hemmingford, Que., and received his early education there, later attending Farnham and San Francisco schools. He retired from the C.P.R. 12 years ago after 35 years' service with the concern.

One of the pioneer residents of what was formerly known as Montreal Annex, he lived for many years at 11 Bernard avenue west, and had a wide host of friends in the city.

He is survived by two sons, Albert Rutherford, of Marcil avenue, and Ray Featherstone, of Toronto; two daughters, Mrs. Dr. Hutton, of Melrose, Mass., and Mrs. D. Gothel, of Eau Clair, Wis.; one brother, Charles, of Gardner, Mass., and two sisters, Mrs. M. McDowell, of Boston, Mass., and Mrs. D. A. Goitens, of Moores, N.Y.

The remains are resting at O. A. Collons Funeral Home, 5610 Sherbrooke St., West, Montreal, whence they will be removed for funeral service which will take place at Hemmingford Presbyterian Church on Thursday afternoon at 2 o'clock, E.S.T.

The Late Mrs. James Ritchie

Mrs. James Ritchie was called to rest on Wednesday, Aug. 10th, after a long and lingering illness, patiently borne. She was tenderly cared for by the members of her family.

Mrs. Ritchie was born at Norton Creek on July 8th, 1857 and was the daughter of the late Thomas Allen and his wife, Isabella McLeod. She was united in marriage with James Ritchie, of Dewittville in 1887, where she has lived the remainder of her life.

To this union three children were born, John, the eldest, who died in infancy, Allan, of Dewittville and Alice Margaret, now Mrs. J. Reid Brown of Montreal. Besides the son and daughter who mourn the loss of a kind and loving mother, she leaves two brothers, Messrs. Andrew and Fred Allen and one sister, Mrs. Smith, all of Vancouver, B.C., and three grandchildren, the Misses Margaret and Christine Ritchie and Dorothy Brown.

Mrs. Ritchie was a quiet, home loving woman, always pleased to welcome friends and neighbours, a devoted wife and mother, was a life member of the Dewittville W.C.T.U., in which society she always was a great worker and was ready always to assist in anything for the cause of temperance, as long as health would permit. In religiou she has a Presbyterian, having been a member of St. Andrew's Church, Huntingdon since 1881. Mr. and Mrs. Ritchie celebrated their golden wedding anniversary in 1931.

The funeral service was held at her residence, Dewittville on Aug. 12th and was conducted by Rev. D. E. Flint. Burial took place in Riverfield cemetery. The pall bearers were four nephews: Messrs. Andrew, Fred and Willie Allen and Robert Milne. Messrs. William Graham and John Darragh carried flowers.

Covey Hill

Members of the local W. M. S. who availed themselves of the kind invitation to a garden party and meeting under the auspices of the Riverfield Auxiliary were Mrs. Steele, Mrs. E. R. Louden and Mrs. W. A. Churchill. Mrs. Thos. Barr of Montreal who has been spending a week at Elm Terrace Farm and Mr. Churchill were also members of the visiting party.

Mr. and Mrs. L. A. Waddell spent a few days in the city.

The list of social hospitalities includes: At the Lilacs, Mr. and Mrs. E. Dowsley of St. Lambert, Mr. and Mrs. Ernest Cole of Lachine, Miss Alison Cole, and Mr. and Mrs. Herman Cole of Montreal; Mrs. D. Patton and children Jean, Norma and David of New York, for a month's visit with Mr. and Mrs. E. R. Louden and other relatives; Mrs. Abare of Lowell, Mrs. Blair and her daughter Patricia, and her mother, Mrs. Patenaude of Chazy, N. Y., with Mr. and Mrs. E. E. Perry, "Greenlea"; Mr. and Mrs. Gordon Duff (Miss Lizzie Watt), of Winnipeg, at Mr. James Watt's; the Rev. Robt. Wylie of Toronto at Mr. Fred Stevenson's; Messrs. Kenneth Meyer, Keith Davidson and Harry Utman, guests at the home of Mr. and Mrs. C. C. Waddell, en route to Washington and the Atlantic seaboard, also Mr. and Mrs. C. Dunn, Saturday evening callers at Mr. Waddell's; Mrs. C. Foy and son Fred of Rouses' Point, Mrs. Foy's granddaughter, Helena Eltheze of Brockville, guests at the Customs House, Master Gerald Bourdon returning home with them, also Mrs. R. J. Bourdon and children with the above guests on a visit to her sister and family, in Cadyville, N. Y.

Messrs. Frank Gough and Leo Vuillemot, Mrs. Helen Wilson of Montreal and Miss Margaret Arnold of Revelstoke, B. C., were recent visitors at the homes of S. M. Simpson and W. R. Perry. Mr. Vuillemot's parents have just returned from a European tour and were struck by the comparative absence of alarmist war-talk on the other side.

Miss Edith Sandham, member of a former Hill family, her grandmother, Mrs. Thicknesse and Miss Elinor Brown all of Montreal are occupants of "Kebbaty" for a week. Miss Brown also belongs to another old Covey Hill family, being a granddaughter of the late Geo. Spearman, a former owner of Mr. E. Vaillancourt's farm.

In Plain English

Asked to paraphrase the sentence, "He had a decided literary bent," a city scholar gave this version:

"He was very round-shouldered through excessive writing."

Riverfield

The annual garden party of the Presbyterian W.M.S. was held at the home of Mrs. J. J. Craig. Opening hymn 606, followed by the Lord's prayer in unison. After the business part of the meeting, Mrs. Pritchard, of Montreal, of the Supply Dept. read several letters thanking the different W.M.S. auxiliaries for the many boxes of clothing and useful articles sent to the needy mission fields. Mrs. Pritchard thanked the Riverfield ladies for their kind invitation, as she had always looked forward to meeting the Howick and Riverfield members and friends.

Hymn 291 was then sung and the Y.W.A. girls had charge of the meeting, when a service of meditation was carried on by the different members, which was very beautiful. A splendid paper by Miss Gertrude MacFarlane on missionary givings. Mrs. Janet Reddick moved a vote of thanks to Mrs. Pritchard on her coming to visit us and telling us all that our work was so greatly needed and also to Y.W.A. girls for the splendid programme they had prepared and the ladies of Covey Hill, who made an effort to be with us and to Mrs. Craig and Esther for their kind invitation. Mrs. Steele, of Covey Hill, thanked the Howick and Riverfield ladies for their invitation to attend the garden party, which they enjoyed very much. Lunch was served by the ladies and a social hour spent, when everybody admired Mrs. Craig's beautiful flowers.

ROYALTY GET JOBS

Their hopes gone of ever becoming the ruling family of Austria, the Hapsburgs are going to work. Through the aid of ex-Empress Zita, one of her younger sons, Archduke Felix, has found employment in an auto factory in England, and another, Archduke Robert, has a job in a department store. They hope to learn trades, then come to the United States, attracted by more liberal wages. Archduke Otto, eldest son of the ex-empress and pretender to the Austria throne, is seeking employment in Belgium, the family home.

Keeping The Milk Machine Tubes Clean

Simple Method Used To Keep Them Clean

Directions for the washing of milking machines commonly call for the use of several gallons of hot water per unit, states C. K. Johns, Division of Bacteriology, Science Service, Dominion Department of Agriculture, Ottawa, Canada. Many farms lack facilities for supplying such quantities and attempt to "get by" with the use of little or no hot water for the milk tube system. Although such methods are sometimes temporarily successful in keeping down bacterial contamination, the condition of the tubes is entirely unsatisfactory from the standpoint of physical cleanliness, while the rubber deteriorates more rapidly than when kept clean.

Realizing the need for a method simple enough to be carried out on any farm, yet effective in keeping the tubes both physically clean and free from bacteria, studies were conducted by the Division of Bacteriology, Central Experimental Farm, Ottawa, Ontario, over a number of years. These finally led to the development of a method which is the most nearly foolproof of any that has been tried. The surprising thing is that no hot water is required, other than for washing the pails, pailheads, etc.

Description of Method

1. Immediately after milking the last cow draw a pailful of clean cold or luke warm water through each unit by suction. The teat cups are raised and lowered so that air and water alternately surge through the tubes; this aids in removing the milk residue.

2. Place the milk tube system on a solution rack and fill with a weak solution of common lye. This solution (see below) is allowed to remain in the tubes until the next milking.

3. Wash and sterilize the milker buckets and pail-heads along with the other metal utensils.

The secret of the success of this simple method lies in the use of the lye solution. Compared with the hypochlorite solutions formerly employed and recommended it has the following advantages:

1. Lye is more readily obtainable.
2. It retains its strength better both in solid form and in solution.
3. Lye solution does not deteriorate as rapidly when in contact with rubber or other organic matter.
4. A solution of the correct strength is more readily obtained.
5. Lye is cheaper (soak solution costs less than 1.25 cents per gallon).
6. Lye dissolve casein and saponifies or emulsifies fat, leaving the tubes free from grease and slime.
7. It avoids the granular deposit reported by Parfitt where chlorine compounds are used with hard water.
8. It has a beneficial effect upon the rubber parts.
9. Lye is much more effective than chlorine compounds in the destruction of coliform organisms.

The method outlined has been in use at the Central Experimental Farm, Ottawa, for the past eight years, and has given perfect satisfaction. The lye solution provides a large factor of safety as illustrated by the following experience: Due to a misunderstanding, the suction rinse was omitted for a period of six months, the tubes going direct from cow to solution rack. When the mistake was discovered, the bacteria counts of the milk were studied; 33 of 44 counts were below 10,000 per cc., comparing very favourably with results from previous years when suction rinses with both cold and hot water had been employed. The tubes were free from grease and slime, but a granular deposit had been built up on the wall of the inflation due to the precipitation of calcium phosphate from the milk residue. This type of deposit has never been noted except under the extreme conditions outlined above. It is considered that any method capable of maintaining the tubes in a sanitary condition under such extreme conditions is worthy of recommendation to milking machine users.

Preparation of Lye Solution

(a) Stock Solution—Dissolve 3 tins high grade lye in 1 gallon (Imperial) of cold water. On account of the intense heat generated, it is best to use an enamelled pail. This stock solution should be kept in a tightly stoppered glass or earthenware jar.

(b) Soak solution for filling milk tube system—Take 4 oz. stock solution and dilute with clean cold water to 1 gallon (Imperial). This diluted solution contains slightly less than one half of one per cent (0.5 per cent) of lye, and has a distinctly slippery feel.

Imbroglio At Vlfd As Meet Is Postponed

No Quorum, No Meeting —Valleyfield Council Has Had One Meeting Within Past Month— Discontented Aldermen

For the third time within one month the Valleyfield Council has been unable to hold a meeting due to the absence of six of their members. The situation seems to have reached a critical stage at Valleyfield. It is stated that all city work will be stopped within the next few days, due to the fact that the pay lists cannot be accepted until a meeting takes place.

The imbroglio started at the beginning of July when the then Chief of Police, Ovila Claude, was dismissed as Valleyfield Police head. Mayor Larin, on this occasion had left the meeting as a sign of protestation and at the following meeting had refused to sign the minutes of the first meeting. From then on, Aldermen Goyette and Léger, along with Ald. Hébert, Brisebois, Bourdeau and Meloche, who apparently sympathized with Goyette and Léger, have refused to attend any meeting. It is reported that these aldermen stated a few weeks ago that they would not sit at the council for three months, duration of time in which any alderman can absent himself from Council meetings in Valleyfield without being disqualified.

On Wednesday evening last, Ald. Laniel, who was away from the City on a business trip, along with the aforementioned aldermen did not appear at the meeting at time stipulated, and consequently the Council could not sit, not having a quorum.

The Municipal Commission has sent one of its representatives to Valleyfield to look into the matter. The City of Valleyfield will probably be handled by them until the discontented ones decide it best to serve the interests of their public.

Mayor Armand Larin stated at the would-be meeting on Wednesday that he had been authorized by the Municipal Commission to sign the pay lists but did not favor the idea. If these pay lists are not signed the work will forcedly be interrupted until a quorum is formed. This will put several employees out of work.

Ald. Laniel, Desjean, Mallette, Daignault and Mayor Larin will appear at the Council-rooms this evening and only one of the six discontented aldermen will suffice to form a quorum and carry out the work which has accumulated since the last meeting.

"Is that long drink of water your husband?"

Showers for Bride-Elect.—

More than fifty people were present at the home of Mr. and Mrs. F. H. Hunter on Thursday afternoon on the occasion of a crystal shower and tea in honour of a popular bride-elect, Miss Elsie Sellar. Mrs. Hunter, Mrs. Thomas and Mrs. Hastings presided at the tea table and were assisted by Miss Norma Lunan, Miss Isobel McEwen, Mrs. Guest, Mrs. Benson and Mrs. F. Montle.

Miss Sellar was also the guest of honor at a party held jointly by the Lady Curlers and Bowlers at the summer home of Mrs. J. A. McCracken, Port Lewis, at which she was presented with a beautiful clock.

The members of the Mission Band of the United Church met at the home of Rev. and Mrs. J. H. Miller and presented Miss Sellar with a silver tray. Joyce Anderson read the address and Howard Kelly on behalf of the members made the presentation.

In the absence of Rev. J. H. Miller, D.D., who is on holidays, the pulpit of the United Church was occupied on Sunday by the Rev. Mr. Allenby of St. Johns, Que. Next Sunday, Rev. Mr. Mallalieu of Sutton will take charge.
