Change In Depth Of Atlantic Sea Causes Interest

Scientific Men and Mariners Are Greatly Interested in Announcement Made by Captain David W. Bone that Part of Sea Bottom Has Vanished—Depth of New Bottom, Whatever It May Be, Will Not Be Discovered Until Special Survey Vessel Makes Measurements.

(Associated Press Despatch) NEW YORK, Dec. 7.—The report of Captain David W. Bone, of the steamship Transylvania, that a part of the Atlantic sea bottom about one hundred and fifty miles east of the Island of Nantucket has vanished, leaving a deep hole where former soundings showed a depth of only about six hundred feet, has aroused as much interest among scientific men as among mariners.

Captain Bone is not only an experienced navigator, but is known to be an individual of unusual information and competence and to be a good observer. Another pertinent fact is that the recent Newfoundland earthquake probably centred in about this region and was evidently much more violent under the sea than on land. Captain Bone's report of the dropped sea bottom is widely believed.

The depth of the new bottom, whatever it may be, will not be discovered until a special survey vessel visits the spot and lets down its special deep sea plane wire of steel until the bottom is located. The area of missing bottom continues, Captain Bone reports, for fifty miles or more.

Two Possible Explanations

There seem to be but two possible explanations; either that Captain Bone was considerably south of where he believed his vessel to be and accordingly was in deeper water, or that something very unusual has happened very close to the bottom east of Nantucket and south of Nova Scotia.

As favoring the latter possibility, the earthquake felt in New England and around the southern shore of the Gulf of St. Lawrence on November 18th unquestionably showed its greatest violence at sea. The only serious damage done by the shock was that of the great tidal wave which rolled against the coast of Newfoundland, such waves being a frequent sign of very violent shocks somewhere on the sea bottom. Not less than ten of the submarine cables between North America and Europe are reported to have been severed by the shock. What is still more significant, ships at sea in that neighborhood, even including the giant Olympic, were lifted and checked in their courses as though by a collision or a bomb explosion directly underneath.

Surprise to Scientists

The surprise to scientists in Captain Bone's report is that any shock at all could cause so great a change in the sea bottom. Large blocks of the earth's crust do not drop down suddenly out of sight in this way, like a cave in mine or a trapdoor falling out of a roof.

No geologist believes any more in the existence of vast internal caverns, one of which might collapse and down its roof.

Never in historic times has there occurred on the land surfaces of any continent an earth displacement of as many vertical feet as Captain Bone reports.

ARRANGEMENTS UNDER WAY FOR NAVAL MEETING

Plenary Conference Opens January 21 in Historic Royal Gallery of House of Lords—Plenary Session Will Be Held at St. James' Palace, Which His Majesty Has Allowed to Be Used.

(Associated Press Despatch) LONDON, Dec. 7.—Arrangements of the most elaborate kind are under way for the naval conference according to information given The Canadian Press yesterday. The thirty actual delegates to the conference will be attended by about 150 experts. But this formidable body of deliberate opinion will be eclipsed in numbers by the newspapermen.

Not far short of 400 reporters from all parts of the world will sharpen their ears and their pencils. There will be eighty from the United States, sixty from London, forty from France, thirty from the Dominions and seventy-five from other nations.

The plenary conference opens January 21 in the Royal Gallery of the House of Lords, the same magnificent chamber in which the British Empire Service League entertained the wearers of the Victoria Cross recently. The House of Lords is jealous of its privileges. It has given the conference this hospitality willingly enough, but has stipulated other portions of the palace of Westminster are not to be available.

However, this plenary session will hardly furnish more than an impressive send-off to deliberations of a far more important and intimate character, the venue of which through the King's graciousness will be at St. James' Palace, a building far more impressive in its historic significance even than the House of Lords. St. James offers a fair amount of accommodation for those having business with the conference. Already work is under way in installing extensive telephone equipment.

One of the rooms placed at the disposal of the writers from the world's press will be that in which King Charles I. slept his last night on earth on the eve of his execution, and slept very calmly, too, if historical records are correct.

Passes for admission to the Palace will be issued to persons duly authorized, but precautions are being taken to ensure they do not fall into irresponsible hands.

NO STATEMENT GIVEN OUT BY PREMIER KING

Declined to Make Any Comment Regarding Cabinet Meeting—Was Also Noncommittal About Opening Date of Parliament.

(Canadian Press Despatch) OTTAWA, Dec. 7.—There is no reason to expect an immediate announcement with respect to cabinet appointments, Premier Mackenzie King told newspaper representatives here last evening. The Prime Minister, who returned to Ottawa yesterday morning from a speaking engagement at London, Ont., presided at a Cabinet meeting yesterday afternoon. He had nothing to say however, at its conclusion. Mr. King was asked if the meeting had taken up representations which were made to him in regard to the unemployment situation. He had no statement to make in reply to the question. He was non-committal also when asked about the date of the opening of Parliament. It would be about the same time as last year, he said.

Last year Parliament opened on February 7th. As the opening usually takes place on a Thursday, it is not improbable that February 6th will be chosen for the day on which Parliament will convene this year. The work of preparation for the session is going ahead. Indications are that the session will be a fairly strenuous one. Particularly in view of rumors that an election may take place in 1930.

FEAST OF OUR LADY OF LORETO

(Associated Press Despatch) LORETO, Italy, Dec. 7.—The feast of Our Lady of Loreto, patron saint of aviators, began today in this little Adriatic port town, initiating a programme of religious observances and popular rejoicing which is due to last until next Tuesday. The commemoration centred about the "Holy House," that strange building enclosed in the church of that name, which is alleged to have been the Holy Family's dwelling in Nazareth and to have been transported here across the seas by angels.

Twenty-Six Persons Were Killed During A Furious Hurricane That Raged Throughout British Isles

Hurricane Which Swept in from Atlantic Was Still Raging Today—Wind Reached Velocity of 108 Miles an Hour—Many Accidents Occurred at Sea as Result of Storm—Windows Were Broken and Roofs Blown Off Small Wooden Buildings in London.

(Associated Press Despatch) LONDON, Dec. 7.—A new hurricane which swept in from the Atlantic still raged over the British Isles and nearby coasts today, spreading destruction and confusion in its wake. The Seilly Islands reported a wind velocity of a hundred and eight miles an hour, while eighty and ninety mile velocities in other parts of England were common.

As many as twenty-six already were dead in the furious storm, nineteen of the victims losing their lives in sea mishaps in which huge waves and winds swamped smaller craft before they could make port. Considerable anxiety was held for some vessels which either were not reported or were known to have been in difficulties. Throughout the night the gale tore through London, smashing windows and unroofing smaller wooden buildings.

Torrential Downpour in London. Crowds leaving the theatres last night were surprised at the violence of the blast which at that time was accompanied by a spectacular electric display and a torrential downpour.

The Hungarian steamer Honved, it was believed, would ride out the storm, giving rise to some anxiety. A small Dutch steamer, the Merwed, was driven ashore near New Haven and the crew of eleven landed by breeches buoy. The steamship Francis Duncan, founded off Land's End with a loss of sixteen of her crew of twenty-one. The other five clung to wreckage until picked up by the steamer Alice Marie. An Irish fishing boat with three men disappeared in the storm.

Several Trawlers Were Sunk. Spanish despatches said several trawlers were sunk in Ferrol Harbor while the Spanish cruiser Prince Alfonso broke its moorings and swung into the cruiser Jaime, damaging it slightly. The gale blew with great violence along the entire coast of Spain.

Spanish sources also reported an Italian steamer on fire and asking aid of Magadara, Morocco. Its position was believed precarious since no other ships were reported in the vicinity.

CONSUMPTION IS EXCEEDING PRODUCTION

According to Report of U.S. Secretary of Agriculture There Is a General Upward Trend in Dairy Production, But Domestic Consumption of Dairy Products Still Exceeds Domestic Production by About One Per Cent.

(Associated Press Despatch) WASHINGTON, Dec. 7.—Despite a general upward trend in dairy production the domestic consumption of dairy products in the United States has consistently exceeded domestic production by about one per cent, according to the annual report of the Secretary of Agriculture, Arthur M. Hyde. There is reason to believe, the report adds, that this close adjustment will continue.

Dairy imports during the year consisted largely of European varieties of cheese and of fresh milk and cream from Canada.

The report does not mention the proposed increases in the duties on milk and cream from 1.2 cents to 6.1-2c and from 30c to 55-3c.

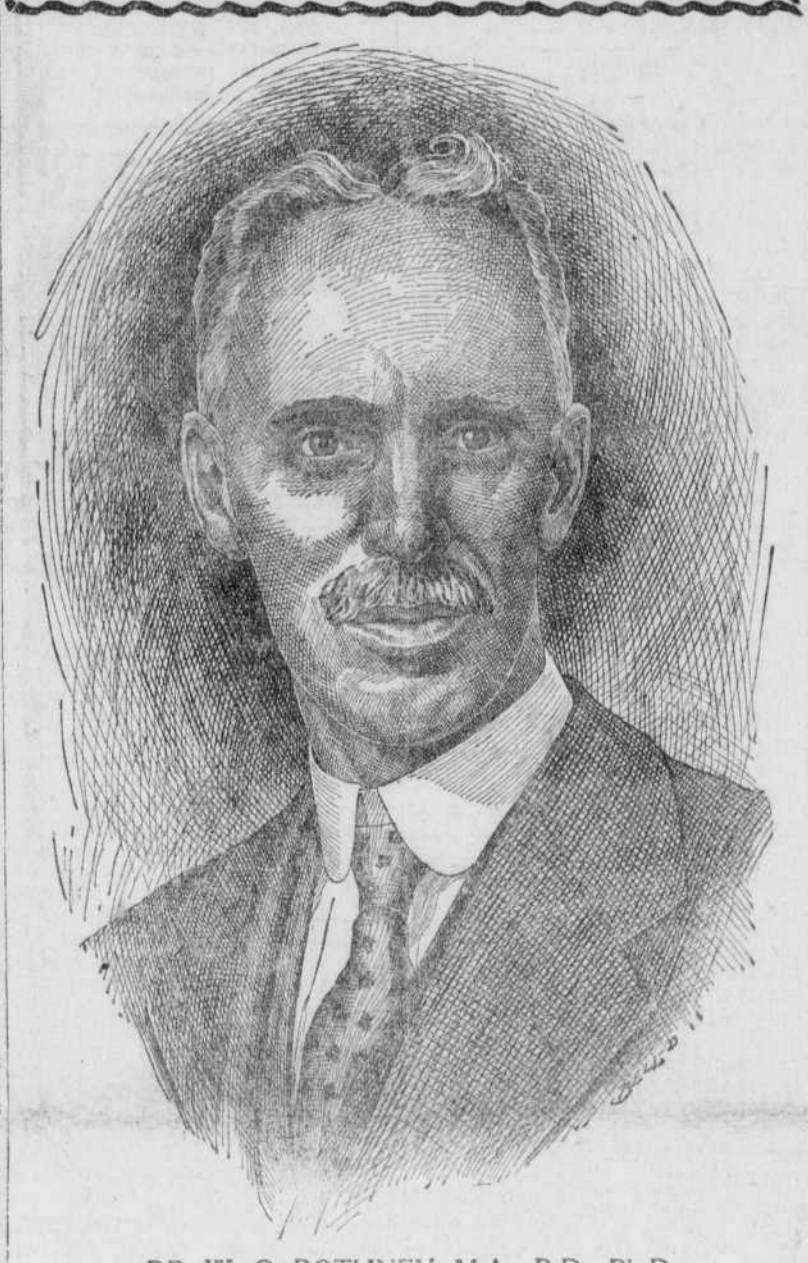

TWO PLANES DAMAGED IN TAKE-OFF FOR SIBERIA

Alaskan Airmen Delayed in Search for Comrades Missing in Arctic Circle Since November 9.

(Associated Press Despatch) NOME, Alaska, Dec. 7.—Pilot Franklin Dorband's plane was cracked up and the plane piloted by Joe Crosson was slightly damaged when the aviators attempted to take off from Teller, Alaska, yesterday for North Cape, Siberia, to search for Carl Ben Eielson and his mechanic, Earl Borland, missing since November 9, when they attempted to fly to North Cape, where the fur trading ship Nanuk is locked in the ice.

DR. W. O. ROTHNEY, M.A., B.D., Ph.D.

Doctor William Oliver ROTHNEY, M.A., B.D., Ph.D., Professor of Education at the University of Bishop's College, Lennoxville, ranks among the foremost educationalists of the Province of Quebec and is actively engaged in the training of high school teachers. Doctor ROTHNEY is a member of the Protestant Committee of the Council of Education of the Province of Quebec, a member of the Protestant Central Board of Examiners and author of "Character Education in the Elementary Schools," which was published in 1921.

Doctor ROTHNEY is a son of the Eastern Townships, having been born at Leeds Village, County of Magalloway, on July 29, 1874. During his early years he received education at the old Doctor's Schoolhouse, one of the first log school houses in the Township of Leeds. Later he pursued his elementary education in a more modern building, as well as at Leeds Model School, Leeds Village.

After leaving school he worked for four years on his father's farm, at the same time carrying on private study of high school subjects. At twenty years of age he wrote on the examination for the model school diploma, and as a result was granted this diploma by the Protestant Central Board of Examiners for the Province of Quebec. He was immediately engaged as principle of Kinross's Mills Model School at a salary of $250 per annum. The following year he taught as principal of Leeds Model School, Leeds Village, at a salary of $300 per annum.

In 1896 Dr. ROTHNEY went to Morris College, Quebec, then a college of McGill University, where he successfully wrote his matriculation examination, securing a scholarship in mathematics as well as entrance to first year Arts.

Two years in Arts were taken in Morris College, and the remaining two years in Arts were taken in Manitoba College, Winnipeg, and Macalister College, St. Paul, respectively, securing his B.A. degree from the latter institution in 1904.

Before graduating in Arts, however, three years in Theology were taken, one year in each of the following colleges: Morris College, Manitoba College and the Presbyterian College, Montreal, graduating in Theology from the last mentioned institution in 1901.

After graduating in Arts, Dr. ROTHNEY returned to Manitoba College, where he did one year of graduate work, securing his B.D. degree in 1905. During his college years Dr. ROTHNEY spent most of his holidays in home mission work in Alberta, under the direction of the Presbyterian Church in Canada, his first mission field being that of Beaver Lake, fifty miles east of Edmonton, and a drive of eighty miles from the nearest railroad.

In 1905 Dr. ROTHNEY returned to his native Province to become principal of Three Rivers High School. Later he held in succession the principalships of Huntingdon Academy and St. Francis College High School. The summers of 1907 and 1910 were spent in Europe visiting most of the European countries, and enquiring into educational conditions there.

In 1911 he was appointed Inspector of Protestant Schools, and in 1915 he was appointed Lecturer in Elementary Education in the School for Teachers, Macdonald College.

After two years in Macdonald College Dr. ROTHNEY resigned his position to pursue graduate studies in American Universities, securing his M.A. degree from the University of Chicago in 1918, and his Ph.D. degree from the Hartford School of Religious Education, Hartford Seminary Foundation, in 1921.

During the next six years he continued his work as school inspector, being appointed Inspector of High Schools in January, 1927. In September, 1928, he resigned the high school inspectorate to become Professor of Education in Bishop's University, which position he now holds.

In 1910 Dr. ROTHNEY was married to Agnes Brodie Linklater, of Oak Bank, Manitoba. He has four children, three boys and one girl. Another daughter passed away in infancy.

Dr. ROTHNEY is a member of the United Church of Canada. He resides in Sherbrooke, and his home address is 7 Howard Avenue.

Stock Market Assumed A Much More Hopeful Tone In Past Week

Market Entered Upon New Phase of Readjustment, Leaving Behind Pessimism and Uncertainty Which Came as Natural Aftermath of Worst Decline in Its History—Prices Advanced Under Buying Which Was Frequently Interrupted by Profit-Taking—Advances in Utility Group Earnings of Canadian Companies Are Known to Have Been Maintained at a Favorable Level This Year.

(Written for the Canadian Press by Thomas Thompson)

ONTARIO, Ont., Dec. 7.—The Canadian stock market entered upon a new phase of the readjustment process this week, leaving behind much of the pessimism and uncertainty which came as the natural aftermath of the worst decline in its history.

Prices advanced under buying which was frequently interrupted by profit-taking, but with a series of constructive news developments involving the credit situation, oil companies and dividend action by a number of leading corporations in the United States, Canadian traders re-entered the market on Thursday and Friday as active buyers of the mining issues, British American Oil, International Nickel and Ford of Canada "A". Power stocks also reflected the improved situation, and public utility issues were in demand both at Toronto and Montreal.

Selective Buying Accounted For Majority of Advances

Advances in the utility group, and renewed demand for food shares reflected the belief of many traders that these stocks would be least susceptible to lessened trade activity during the winter months. Gains were not of spectacular proportions, however, and it was significant that selective buying, based on special developments concerning individual companies, continued to account for many of the major advances.

BREEDERS HAVE REALIZED VERY GOOD RETURNS

Livestock Industry Shows Further Improvement for 1929, Although Favorable Trend Not as Sharply Defined as in 1928—Current Year, However, Was Profitable One.

WASHINGTON, D.C., Dec. 7.—The livestock industry, which has asked assistance of Congress through the tariff, showed further improvement of 1929, though favorable trends were not as sharply defined as in 1928, according to the annual report made by Secretary of State, Arthur M. Hyde to the President today.

The Secretary's report of course, did not refer to the tariff. It noted that certain branches of the industry showed losses but gross returns to the livestock producers in the first eight months of the year were approximately $93,000,000 more than in the corresponding period of 1928.

Undoubtedly the current year has been profitable for the livestock industry on the whole, the report said.

World Conference In Paris Has Encountered Problem Regarding Import And Export Regulations

Move to Abolish Import and Export Restrictions Given Setback—Sixteen of Leading Industrial Countries Have Ratified Instrument, But Nine of Them Have Made Their Acceptance Contingent Upon Ratifications of Poland and Czechoslovakia.

(Associated Press Despatch)

PARIS, Dec. 7.—The international conference for abolition of import and export restrictions and prohibitions, which convened Thursday in Paris, encountered serious difficulties at the plenary session yesterday morning, when an effort was made to evolve an arrangement for putting the convention into effect among those nations whose signatures had been affixed without conditions.

Sixteen of the leading industrial countries of the world, including the United States, have ratified the instrument, but nine of them have made their acceptance contingent upon the ratifications of Poland and Czechoslovakia. It was hoped the two latter countries would withdraw from their positions and announce a willingness to ratify, or else that the nine hesitant states would endorse the pact regardless of the Polish and Czechoslovakian attitude.

At yesterday morning's session, however, the two groups reiterated their positions. The Poles and Czechs explained why it was impossible for them to accept the convention at the present time, and the nine conditional states—Germany, Belgium, France, Italy, Hungary, Rumania, Jugoslavia, Luxembourg and Denmark—regretted their inability to ratify the pact unless the Poles and Czechs did likewise.

Faced with this pessimistic situation, the president of the conference, M. Collin, of Holland, requested the delegates of those states which have ratified unconditionally, namely, Great Britain, the United States, Northern Ireland, Holland, Portugal and Japan, to assist them from their governments. If it was desirable to place the convention in force at once among the unconditional group. The delegates were asked to obtain their replies by next Tuesday, when the fate of the conference will be determined.

In addition to the conditional and non-conditional ratifiers, ten other countries, which have not ratified at all, are attending the present conference. To these the president addressed an appeal to join with the unconditional group, so that an important section of the economic world might embark upon the new movement for free trade. If not free trade, abstention from the pact of the nine conditional States will, unfortunately, greatly limit its operation. If the effort now under way proves fruitless it is likely the conference will adjourn until early spring. This will give the Czechs and Poles time to study their respective situations with a view to changing their present attitude before July 1, next year, when the convention was to have come into full force.

SALESMANSHIP IS LACKING BY BRITISH FIRMS

Ontario Road Builders' Association Asks for Free Entry into Canada of Certain Road Construction Machinery Not Made in This Country—Britain Not Taking Advantage of Preference.

(Canadian Press Despatch) OTTAWA, Dec. 7.—"Poor salesmanship" on the part of British manufacturers was the characterization applied by W. H. Moore, K.C., chairman of the Tariff Advisory Board, yesterday when D. Routley, on behalf of the Ontario Road Builders' Association, contrasted the efforts put forward by American machinery manufacturers to secure the Canadian market with the lack of effort on the part of the British.

Mr. Routley was asking for free entry into Canada of certain road construction machinery of a class, kind or size not made in this country. At present Great Britain has a preference of 12½ per cent. on these articles as against twenty per cent. general tariff. The chairman pointed out that Mr. Routley's suggestion would have the effect of eliminating the British preference. Against this it was argued that apparently the British manufacturers had not taken advantage of the preference they already enjoyed.

Mr. Routley was let for road construction in Canada the contractors were flooded with literature from the United States in connection with the purchase of machinery. Not a line was ever received from the United Kingdom, however.

Edouard Fortin Declares He Is in Field in Forthcoming Provincial Bye-Election—P. H. Bouffard Selected at Convention as Candidate.

(Associated Press Despatch) BEAUCE JUNCTION, Que., Dec. 7.—There will be at least two Liberal candidates in the forthcoming provincial bye-election in Beauce County. At a gathering of the electors, Edouard Fortin, who withdrew from the official Liberal convention held several days ago, declared that he was in the field until December 16th, election day.

Mr. Fortin, editor of L'Éclair de Beauce, was supported by Leonie Cliehe, mayor of St. Joseph de Beauce. Mr. Cliehe, one of three probable candidates whose names were brought before the party convention which selected P. H. Bouffard, lawyer, as Liberal standard bearer, appealed to the electors to rally with him in favor of Mr. Fortin. His appeal was greeted with applause.

CURRIE BACKS PREMIER KING ON VETERANS

Former Commander of Canadian Forces Stresses Need of Intelligent Action by Soldiers' Organizations.

MONTREAL, Que., Dec. 7.—In regard to the remarks of Premier King in connection with the Government attitude towards disabled returned soldiers, Sir Arthur Currie, principal of McGill University and hon. president of the Canadian Legion, B.E.S.L., made the following comment.

"The statement of the Prime Minister the Right Honourable W. L. Mackenzie King in his speech last night at London, with reference to the duty of Canada towards returned soldiers suffering from war disabilities and to the dependents of those who did not return, will be read with much satisfaction by all who are interested directly or indirectly in this very important question."

"I know the Prime Minister is sincere in his sympathetic attitude towards the returned soldiers' plea for a change in the letter as well as the spirit of the Pensions Act. I believe his remarks will receive widespread endorsement and approval. It will be the duty of the returned soldier organizations to lay an intelligent appreciation of the situation before the Department of Pensions and to indicate the manner in which the Pensions Act might be revised."

WIDER OUTLOOK CALLED FOR BY SPECIALISTS

Canon Cody Stresses Need of Wide Field of Interest at Banquet of Radiological Congress.

TORONTO, Ont., Dec. 7.—"Let none of us be satisfied to be only a specialist, but let us keep the doors open to the wider fields of human interest," was the message brought by Rev. Canon H. G. Cody, chairman of the Board of Governors of the Radiological Society of North America at their convention banquet.

"A man cannot be a good specialist unless he has a wide general outlook," said Mr. Cody, in pleading with the Radiologists to not allow themselves to be isolated from the other branches of the medical profession or from the other realms of human knowledge, culture and religion.

Dr. M. J. Hubeny, of Chicago, the retiring president of the Society, presented his valedictory address. "The most striking and dramatic aspect of the recent history of man," Dr. Hubeny said, "is the chapter associated with the progress of natural science and its application to human understanding and social problems. It is no exaggeration to say that the scientific advances of the last century have done more to extend our knowledge of the cosmos, physical nature, man and society than all the achievements of the human intellect down to the year 1875."

STATES INDIRECT TAXATION CRUSHING LOAD TO FARMER

Head of Farmers' Organization Advocates Concerted Action on Part of Consumer for Reduction of Taxation.

(Canadian Press Despatch) TORONTO, Dec. 7.—Advocates to the United Farmers of Ontario convention were told by President Bruce McNevin in his annual address that they must form a much stronger farm organization than exists at present if they wished to secure relief from the crushing burden of indirect taxation being borne by the Canadian consumer.

"Adjustments in taxation must come and for this reason I cannot too strongly urge preparation on the part of the farmers if they wish to secure justice," said Mr. McNevin. "In direct taxation 25 years ago the rural municipalities paid in round figures, $7,000,000 of municipal taxes. This today has increased 400 per cent. while financial returns from the municipalities have only doubled and the population has remained stationary or actually decreased."

A resolution that the Canadian Government be urged to regulate the flow of migrants to Canada so that in no year would the number from other countries exceed those of British birth, was carried without discussion.

OPPOSITION TO QUOTA LAW FOR THIS COUNTRY

Washington State Officials Feel Present Regulations Sufficient for Control of North American Immigration.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 7.—Immigration from Mexico since March 1, 1929, when visa requirements were tightened under a new policy of the State Department, has decreased more than 62 per cent. Mexicans are now coming into the United States at the rate of about 15,000 a year as compared with an average for previous years of 50,000. The decrease is regarded as justifying the State Department's contention which was advanced by Secretary of State Kellogg at the time several bills were being pushed in Congress for putting Latin America on a quota basis that immigration from this continent could be taken care of otherwise. The figures are especially interesting in connection with the measure of Representative Albert Johnson, of Washington, to restrict immigration from American countries to a maximum of 50,000 a year. The maximum under existing quotas is now about 155,000 for the rest of the world.

If Mexico alone were to be considered under the Johnson proposal, it was pointed out today, the limitation to a maximum of 50,000 would not affect existing immigration. The total for the last fiscal year from all non-quota countries, including Canada and Latin America, however, was 98,000, and of this number the Canadian total was 51,670. Officials are convinced, therefore, that the proposed 50,000 maximum restriction would operate most severely on Canada.

The new policy with respect to Latin America visas dates officially as from February, 1929, when conference of American consuls in Mexico was held in Mexico City for the purpose of emphasizing the desirability of bringing requirements for visas up to the standard prevailing in other parts of the world.

The State Department was convinced that the immigration law of 1917 was sufficient, provided its terms were interpreted in the same way they had been with respect to European immigration.

Since Mexico is the only Latin American country which has any considerable immigration to the United States, efforts were concentrated on that country. As a result, emphasis has been laid upon four considerations in granting visas to prospective immigrants. These are: Likelihood of becoming a public charge, physical and mental unfitness, literacy, and the labor imposed on contract laborers by the law of 1917.

SALVATION ARMY RELIEF FUND

Many requests for assistance have been made to the Salvation Army during the past few weeks. The help given has consisted chiefly of meal tickets, clothing and groceries. During the command of Captain Lorimer no one has been refused a meal, no matter what their religion or nationality. Due to the kindness of several citizens, clothing has been distributed, such as overcoats, sweaters, underwear, stockings and shoes.

In order to meet the demand for Christmas baskets and clothing, the citizens of Sherbrooke are asked to subscribe to the winter relief fund. Cheques should be made payable to "The Salvation Army" and not to any individual. Acknowledgements will be made through the Daily Record.

Captain Lorimer is in receipt of an interesting letter in which the writer states that she and some friends were "listening in" to a church service. When the collection was announced, some one suggested that they, too, take up a collection and pass it on to the Salvation Army for their relief work. This resulted in a dollar being sent with the letter. The writer suggested that others might do likewise. Needless to say, Captain Lorimer readily agreed with the suggestion.

OZONE PRODUCER FILLS ROOM WITH FRESH, PURE AIR

There is an appliance now available about the size of a cigar box which may be plugged into an electric socket and which at the turn of a switch it is said will produce ozone. The manufacturers claim that a few minutes of operation will find a large room full of fresh, pure air, as the ozone oxidizes and renders harmless the unpleasant odors.

Our health and span of life are determined by the kind of air we habitually breathe. When we realize the danger of breathing impure air, and the number of times we breathe a minute, seventeen, it is vital to

BOY SCOUT NEWS

FOURTH TROOP MEETING

On Friday evening, December 6th, the Fourth Troop Boy Scouts opened their regular meeting with a troop supper, served at 6:15 p.m., with three full patrols in attendance. Following the troop supper, the regular Scout meeting programme was run off to schedule with great success. Inspection was made by the A.S.M., which took up general appearance and neatness of shoes, won by the Beavers succeeded by the Fox Patrol. Special inspection was held by the S.M., which proved to be a tie between three patrols namely Fox, Otter, Wolf Patrols. Several games were run off, which were all keenly contested. A short period of drill was held by A.S.M., B. Bradford, followed by several miscellaneous features.

The patrol competition stands thus: Wolf patrol, 5004 points; Otter patrol, 3854 points; Fox patrol, 291 points; Beaver patrol, 2434 points. The meeting was brought to a close by flag lowering and dismissal.

6th Troop (St. Andrew's)

Individual athletics, run off as a patrol competition which included basketball, one minute patrol plays and further instruction in photography by Mr. R. Semple occupied the major portion of the 6th Troop programme last evening. Fifteen minutes were allowed each patrol at the opening of the meeting to improve their patrol corners and extension lights were installed, which helped to make the corners more cheerful. The crowd patrol was decorated very attractively.

A large number of points were earned and the S.M. gave out clues to each patrol on the special two months' treasure hunt, to correspond with the number of points earned. Mr. Semple offered a prize to the scout taking the best picture of a moving horse and sleigh, while three prizes are offered by the troop for the best three pictures taken, developed and printed by any scout. After making several announcements, the S.M. brought the troop meeting to close by prayer and the night yell.

give thought to the kind of air we are breathing. Many people talk about the need for fresh air but carelessly neglect to provide it. They work and read in hot, stuffy rooms, in which the oxygen in the air is slowly reduced as it is drawn into the lungs and combines with the blood. Carbonic gas poisoning follows, the symptoms being dizziness, anemia and headaches. The treatment is plenty of fresh air. The ordinary oxygen which we breathe is composed of two atoms. Ozone is a condition of oxygen composed of three atoms and is much more active. When ozone comes in contact with noxious gases of polluted air one atom is released to oxidize an atom of gas rendering it harmless and odorless. Agents, J. S. Mitchell & Co. Ltd.

FUNERAL OF MRS. T. W. PAGE

The funeral of the late Mrs. T. W. Page took place from her late residence at Brompton Road, on Tuesday afternoon, Dec. 3rd, at 2 p.m. officiated and spoke words of comfort to the bereaved family and friends. The hymns "Nearer My God To Thee" and "Safe In The Arms of Jesus," were sung with Mr. R. Lavers and Mr. H. Buck leading. The late Mrs. Page was born at Kingsley, Que., in 1850, the daughter of Avery Wentworth and Sarah Tallin. She was married in 1899 to Mr. Thomas Willis Page and since that time has devoted herself to her home and family, besides caring for an invalid mother for many years.

Mrs. Page's death was a great shock to her family and friends. Although she had not regained her usual health since a severe illness two years ago, her sudden death was entirely unexpected.

Mrs. Page leaves to mourn her death her husband and eight children, Dorel, Raymond, Gordon, Eva Maud, Muriel, Violet, Vernon and Phyllis Doreen.

Much sympathy is felt for Mr. Page and family by their many friends. The remains were laid to rest in Elmwood Cemetery, beside her eldest son, Earl, who predeceased her eleven years ago.

The Stage And Screen Attractions

THE PREMIER

Two feature pictures will be shown at the Premier Theatre tomorrow, as special Sunday attractions. These will include "Side Street," starring the three Moore Brothers, Matt, Tom and Owen, and "Gun Law," with Tom Tyler in the leading role.

"Side Street" is a story of New York police and racketeers, behind a tender theme of family love. "Gun Law," is full of heroic action typical of the western plains. Tyler appears as Tom O'Brien, a handsome, hard-fighter, two-fisted, good-natured cowboy, with one objective—to marry the girl he loves. She resents his attentions, and only by chivalrous accomplishments does he succeed in winning her.

Richard Barthelmess and Marion Nixon are again seen together in "Young Nowheres," the newest Barthelmess starring vehicle produced by First National-Vitaphone, which will be shown next Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday at the Premier Theatre. These two stars appeared in "Out of the Ruins."

"Young Nowheres" was directed by Frank Lloyd and was adapted to the screen by Bradley King from a magazine story by I. A. R. Wylie.

"Young Nowheres" stands as a gem of tender sentiment and humanity. It is the story of a young elevator boy and his love for a wistful little chambermaid. Bert Roach supplies much of the comedy element and Anders Randolph is a prominent role. "Young Nowheres" is entirely in dialogue and is the third Barthelmess picture to be made, the others being "Weary River" and "Drag."

The second picture on this bill will be "Flying High," with William Fairbanks and Alice Calhoun in the leading roles.

Billie Dove appears with a first class cast in the all-talking picture, "Her Private Life," which will head the programme at the Premier Theatre for the last three days of next week, beginning on Thursday.

Opening in London, the story moves to the colorful background of English country life, where Miss Dove portrays a titled English woman. Then the action swings to New York, where the heroine is shown pawning her last jewels so that she may eat. Only at the end does the light of happiness and love dawn upon the horizon.

Miss Dove has a new leading man in "Her Private Life." He is Walter Pidgeon, former stage favorite, and he is ideal as the handsome lover in this story. Pidgeon sings the theme song.

The fine supporting cast includes Montagu Love, Holmes Herbert, Roland Young, Thelma Todd, Zasu Pitts, Mary Forbes and Brandon Hurst.

Kills Cooking Odor and Other Offensive Smells In A Few Minutes.

Stuffy, humid air—the haze of stale, sour tobacco smoke—bad indoor odors peculiar to certain types of business and professions—you meet them everywhere. They cause headaches, fatigue, that "half there" feeling. To open windows is to invite drafts—cold—sick leaves—lowered business efficiency—loss of time and money. In winter when windows are closed tight, homes are shunned—stores and theatres lose patronage because of offensive indoor smells.

The amazing little Corozone device destroys obnoxious odors and purifies close, stuffy air as if by magic. In a few minutes you have all the fresh air you need—full of vitalized oxygen—without opening windows—without danger of drafts.

You are as alive as the air you breathe!

Y'S MEN DANCE GREAT SUCCESS LAST EVENING

"Gas Woiks Gambol" Novelty
Dance Well Attended—Prizes
Awarded for Costumes.

The cheap dance halls which are to be found scattered through the slums of any great city had nothing in the Y's Men of Sherbrooke were hosts to about two hundred couples at a novelty dance, "The Gas Woiks Gambol."

During the past few weeks news regarding "strange doings," to be carried out at the dance had raised the interest of Sherbrooke's younger set, who, on arrival, expected anything. Even the most optimistic and "well informed" guests, however, found that most of their calculations were far from the truth, for the surprises "sprung" on the participants were many and varied.

Numerous notices on the walls calling attention to the rules governing the establishment, interspersed with which were reward notices of wanted men from every police office from the north pole to the tropics, greeted the guests on entering the hall.

In the serving room was the old-time bar, where smart bar tenders waited upon the thirsty public, who paid for their refreshments with bogus money which they had received at the door.

About fifty per cent of the guests entered into the spirit of the dance by appearing in costumes and all types of crook from the sleek confidence man to hunchy thugs were depicted. The gentle art of pick pocketing was practiced on numerous occasions, many an unsuspecting patron discovering that all his bogus money had disappeared and he was out of funds until he grabbed some for himself.

The only thing that prevented the general public from being openly fleeced was the vigilance of Chief of Police Cliff Bryant and his sturdy officers, who had their hands full taking care of the unruly dancers.

During the evening Y's Men Bill Seward and Mr. Bobby Brown entertained the guests, the former with some of his famous ditties and the latter by means of tap dancing and comic songs. Their efforts met with great success and they were forced to respond to several encores each.

At eleven o'clock dancing was stopped and games played, everything from the dangerous to exciting rolling the dice to crown and anchor being indulged in, following which dancing was resumed until one o'clock.

Prizes were awarded for costumes to: The Misses Mona Bigg, Alice Sangster and Aline McKenna and Mr. N. S. Emerson.

Six members of the Central Y's Men's Club from Montreal were present, including the president, Y's Man Art Forrester.

MARRIAGES

LOISELLE—MARCHAND

COWANSVILLE, Que., Dec. 7.—A quiet wedding took place in the Church of St. Therese on Monday, November 25th, when Miss Marie Marchand was united in marriage with Mr. J. Loisel, youngest son of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Loisel, of Dunham. The bride, who was unattended, was given away by her brother-in-law, Mr. Armand Bonneau, and wore navy blue crepe with black coat, silver mesh collar and cuffs, blue and grey felt hat and carried an arm bouquet of pink roses and ferns. The groom was supported by his father.

After the wedding breakfast, the party motored to Montreal and spent the day to luncheon at the bride's home, where a reception was held for the immediate families. Mr. and Mrs. Loisel left the same evening for their future home in Lowell, Mass. All join in wishing the young couple much joy and prosperity.

Social and Personal

The many friends of Mr. H. A. Cochran, who was so seriously injured in an auto accident in October and is still confined to his bed in the Sherbrooke Hospital, will be pleased to learn that although Mr. Cochran was obliged to undergo a second operation on his arm, he is doing nicely and is in hopes of being able to leave the hospital before Christmas.

The Nurses' Home was en fête yesterday afternoon when Mrs. David Wilson and Miss Buck received the numerous guests who attended the "Jam Shower" organized by the Sherbrooke Hospital Ladies' Auxiliary on the benefit of the hospital. The jam, pickles, etc., were taken in by Mrs. W. E. Moore, who had charge of the prettily decorated table, where carnations and narcissi were arranged. Flowers were also used in the living room, where the reception was held. Mrs. D. J. Salls and Mrs. Robert Newton presided at the daintily appointed table, where lavender "mums" and tapers were artistically arranged. The delicious refreshments, which were supplied by the hospital, were served by the following members of the Auxiliary and nurses, Mrs. Gault Parker, Mrs. L. A. Dorey, Mrs. E. A. Tomkins, Mrs. George Harkness, Miss H. Huband, Miss J. Fenton and Miss Murchison. During the tea hour Miss Hatchette played bright dance music on the piano which was much enjoyed by the guests. The Auxiliary members are very grateful to all who sent or brought their donations of jam, etc., and also to those who assisted in other ways to make the afternoon a success.

Twelve-year-old Stewart Marlin, of Lennoxville, was brought to the Sherbrooke Hospital last evening suffering from a fracture of the right arm. The boy was cranking a car, when the crank flew back, hitting him on the forearm. His condition is reported as good this morning.

REV. C. RITCHIE BELL ADDRESSED HI-Y CLUB
"Thoughts or Inner Conversations" was discussed last night by Rev. C. Ritchie Bell as he addressed the Hi-Y Club, and the absolute necessity of good thought was strongly emphasized. This could be secured very freely from a rich past as brought to us in poetry and plays by the great writers that have appeared on the world's stage. The place of thought in the building of life was next stressed in its development of character. It was here and here alone that true satisfaction could be found. All through the ages there had been a struggle for the finding of a transmuting force which would change the crude and worthless metals into gold, a something that would not tarnish but keep bright and appealing, but this could only be found as men's minds were freed from cankered thought and a faith in life's great verities was implanted.

In closing his address the speaker pointed out the chief factors for building up of good thought, high character and fullest satisfaction. Store the mind with good imagery and good literature, form the best of friendships, but above and beyond all have the friendship and fellowship of the great Helper of Men, Jesus of Nazareth.

At the close of the address the speaker was heartily thanked by John Hogg.

NAVIGATION SEASON AT MONTREAL NEARS CLOSE
Lord Downshire, Last Ocean-Going Steamer, Sailed Today for Great Britain—Season Satisfactory from Passenger Point, But Poor for Grain.
(Canadian Press Despatch)
MONTREAL, Dec. 7.—Bringing to an end the 1929 St. Lawrence season of navigation for ocean-going boats, the steamer Lord Downshire was leaving today for Great Britain. Owing to an approaching heavy storm, the steamship companies were instructed yesterday by the Department of Marine that all ships seeking to sail for sea must leave Montreal by noon today.

Work of taking in the remaining buoys on the St. Lawrence is being rushed by the department. The usual winter aids to navigation, used by coastal boats but useless during the winter, are being laid down in place of the light buoys. The concluding season, while reported as satisfactory from the point of view of passenger traffic, saw grain shipments out of the port of Montreal reduced to less than half the volume exported last year.

Mr. and Mrs. Harold Phillips and little son, Bruce, left today to spend the week-end in Montreal and the guest of relatives.

Mrs. Frank Thompson, who has been spending a few weeks with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. George Borlase, Dominion Avenue, is leaving today for her home in Providence, R.I.

The C.G.I.T. of Plymouth United Church met last evening in the church hall with the president, Miss Jean Evans, in charge of the meeting. Plans were made for the Christmas entertainment, the date of which will be announced later. The meeting closed with "Taps."

Miss Emmaline Hetherington was given a surprise party at her home on St. Louis Street on the occasion of her birthday on Wednesday last. About twenty-five guests arrived, and a most enjoyable evening was spent in games, playing cards and dancing to radio music. A very delicious chicken supper was served by Mrs. J. Hetherington, assisted by Mrs. J. Scott and Mrs. Fred Hetherington.

The members of the Sherbrooke Ladies' Rifle Club held their weekly shoot at their club room last evening. A friendly match has been arranged and will continue for a month, the captains being Mrs. J. Shaw and Miss E. Grant. New targets have been installed similar to those used by the men, with the range slightly shorter. The range officer, Mr. Pankovitch, is a good instructor and the members are looking forward to a very enjoyable season. Last evening Mrs. Shaw's team won out. The following were the scores made by her team: Mrs. M. Logan, 95; Miss E. Van Roden, 94; Mrs. J. Shaw, 82; Mrs. A. Hubler, 69, and Mrs. M. Burbank, 68. Total, 408. Points made by Miss Grant's team were: Mrs. L. McCallum, 82; Mrs. M. Willard, 88; Miss E. Grant, 89; Miss C. Lamb, 62, and Miss E. Veilleux, 46. Total, 371.

LENNOXVILLE

Hon. W. D. Euler Is Optimistic

Dominion did not continue to make progress, it would be because of finance and not actual conditions. Touching upon the work of his department at Ottawa, the minister said the machinery, adequate before the war, fell short of requirements now. One of the problems confronting his department, he said, was smuggling. Action has been taken to cope with this, including appointment of specially selected and trained inspectors.

Income taxes this year are $10,000,000 in excess of the previous twelve months, he announced. Referring to some of the large sources of revenue, Mr. Euler told his hearers the tax from cigarettes is almost equal to revenue from liquor.

PLANE ENGINES DISCUSSED BY TARIFF BOARD

Pioneer Flier Supports Duties Advocated by Aircraft Company—Strong Argument Against British Preference—Claim Canadian Industries Should Be Protected First.

OTTAWA, December 7.—One of Canada's infant, but most promising industries, the manufacture of airplane engines, and one of Canada's pioneer flyers, J. A. D. McCurdy, made their appearance before the Tariff Board yesterday, the former to seek an increase in the drawback on materials brought in for manufacturing purposes, and the latter, by his signature, to the brief presented by President James Young, of the Canadian Pratt and Whitney Aircraft Company, to support the request.

Another appearance on this item was J. A. Wilson, head of the Canadian Air Board in the Department of National Defence. Mr. Young, in his brief stated that all airplane engines should be subject to one set of duties, namely, 15 per cent British preference, 25 per cent intermediate and 27½ per cent general tariff. He pointed out that after a 10 per cent drawback of 50 per cent would be granted by the Dominion Government on materials or parts imported for the making of airplane engines, provided that 40 per cent of the production cost was incurred in Canada. Those engaged in this industry, he said, are not in a position to comply with for at least two years. He urged that the drawbacks be 99 per cent on the preference, 80 under the intermediate and 75 under the general tariff. He was not in favor of the tariff reduction being applied until the industry was able to comply with one of a considerable percentage.

Another feature of today's hearings before the Tariff Board were the representations made by three western Ontario representatives of the machine tool industry, G. B. Howard, of the John Bertram and Sons Company, of Dundas; A. J. Oliver, of R. McDougall Company, Galt, and R. M. Hamilton, of Canada Machinery Corporation, Galt. The Brown Boggs Foundry and Machine Company, Hamilton, was also included in their representations. These three men came out rather "flat-footed" against the British preference, declaring that "we should prefer ourselves first," and that while the British preference was a thing, the principle "we have to make a living."

NOTED SOLDIER DIED IN LONDON, ENGLAND, TODAY

General Sir Charles Gordon Held High Command in British Army During Great War—Was Governor and Commander-in-Chief at Gibraltar from 1923 Until 1928.

(Associated Press Despatch)
LONDON, Dec. 7.—General Sir Charles Gordon, famous British soldier, who won wide praise for his successful withdrawal of British and Anzac forces from the Gallipoli Peninsula during the Great War, died today in London. He was sixty-nine years old.

Sir Charles joined the army in 1879 and saw service in Malakand and later was on the staff in South Africa. He was in command of the second division in the first fighting in 1914 and later was given command of the first army corps.

In October, 1915, he was appointed to take over the command of the Mediterranean expeditionary force and to determine whether the Gallipoli campaign should be continued. He decided on evacuation of the peninsula and succeeded in withdrawing his forces from a most dangerous position with but slight losses. This difficult military feat was widely praised in military circles as it had been feared that the troops would be destroyed in the process of evacuation. The German and Turkish commanders were taken completely by surprise.

Sir Charles was to have succeeded Field Marshal Haig in command of the first army, but in October, 1916, was sent to India where he remained as commander-in-chief until 1920. He was governor and commander-in-chief at Gibraltar from 1923 until 1928.

ITALY'S HEIR PAID VISIT TO HIS HOLINESS

Crown Prince Humbert, Accompanied by His Younger Sisters, Drove Today from Quirinal Palace to Vatican—Crowds Cheered Children of King Victor Emmanuel as They Passed Through Streets.

(Associated Press Despatch)
ROME, Dec. 7.—Crown Prince Humbert, his younger sisters, Princesses Giovanna and Maria, drove today from the Quirinal Palace to the Vatican and paid their respects to Pope Pius XI. They were accompanied by Count de Vecchi, Italian Ambassador to the Holy See, who introduced them to the Pope. It was the first time Humbert, Giovanna and Maria had seen the Pontiff.

Troops stood at attention as the children of King Victor Emmanuel passed by. The crowds cheered the royal trio to the echo; particularly their future king, whose name has been on every tongue because of his engagement to Princess Marie Jose of Belgium and the attempt against his life in Brussels several weeks ago.

The Crown Prince presented the Pope with some super artistic gold plate and the two princesses gave him a large silver vase worked in bas-relief.

The Pope presented Humbert with three examples of the Jubilee Medals done in gold, silver and bronze, and a beautiful miniature of himself.

The Pontiff gave Princess Giovanna a rosary entirely in gold, with designs symbolic of his Jubilee; to Maria he gave a rosary of coral and gold and a miniature representing the Holy Child and the Angels.

UNITED CHURCH HYMN BOOK HAS BEEN APPROVED

TORONTO, Dec. 7.—The new hymn book of the United Church of Canada has been approved by the executive committee of the general council and will be placed in the hands of the publishers.

It is expected the new book will be ready for and given first use at the next council, to be convened in St. Andrew's Church, London, next September.

Rev. Robert Laird, D.D., treasurer of the church, presented an interim report to the committee showing an increase in receipts for the missionary and maintenance fund. The report stated that $3,450,000 would be required to meet disbursements in carrying on the work under the boards of home missions and other branches.

REMAND GIVEN BY JUDGE IN BANK ROBBERY

St. Johns Man Faces Voluntary Statement on Charge of Complicity—Two Bandits Testify—Were Reluctant Witnesses.

MONTREAL, Dec. 7.—Eugene Deschambault, of St. Johns, Que., accused of complicity in the hold-up of the Canadian Bank of Commerce branch at St. Chrysostome, for which three men have already been convicted and sentenced to penitentiary terms and the lash, appeared for enquete yesterday before Chief Judge Proulx and was remanded until December 12th for voluntary statement.

Deschambault's automobile was used by the three bandits in their journey from St. Johns to St. Chrysostome. It was the contention of the defence yesterday that the car had been hired from Deschambault by Chief Judge Proulx and that the accused had received over $300, proceeds of the hold-up, which netted the three men now under conviction $1,630.

Paul Ravary and Leon Guillelte, two of the men now under sentence, were called as witnesses by the Crown. Both were reluctant witnesses and inclined to be resentful over the failure of Detective Jardine, of the Provincial Police, to keep what they claimed was a promise to get them off with a two-year sentence if they made a statement before trial. Guillelte accused the detective of "letting them down" because, instead of receiving a two-year sentence, he and Ravary were sentenced by Judge Marin to five years in the penitentiary and six strokes of the lash.

The hearing was marked by heated passages between F. Philippe Brails, K.C., Crown prosecutor, and Lucien Gendron, K.C., attorney for the defence, over the right of the Crown to make use of statements made by two of the bandits before trial. Chief Judge Proulx allowed the statements to be used under reserve of the defence's objection.

After the manager of the bank branch had testified as to the facts of the hold-up, Ravary was called. He freely gave evidence as to plans the men had made for the hold-up, but when Mr. Brails started to question him about Deschambault's alleged participation in the proceeds he turned to the judge and said: "I have been condemned. Am I obliged to talk now?"

Mr. Brails reminded him that he was under oath as a witness, and would be punishable for contempt of court if he did not speak. Later Ravary showed more reluctance, and when questioned informed the Crown that although he had sworn to tell the truth, he would only tell as much of the truth as he pleased. "We'll see about that," Mr. Brails countered.

Ravary finally admitted that the men had used Deschambault's car to go to St. Chrysostome and that afterwards they had counted and divided the money in Deschambault's home. He did not know if Deschambault had received any part of the proceeds but, as he put it, "they all had money in their hands."

(Canadian Press Despatch)
OTTAWA, Dec. 7.—The bank statement for the end of October shows a falling-off in call loans by Canadian banks, both in this country and abroad. In Canada the call loans were reduced from $290,865,686, the total at the end of September, to $268,856,008 at the end of October. The call loans outside Canada showed an even greater falling-off. On September 30 they totalled $313,381,231 and on October 31 they were $282,283,450.

On the other hand there was an increase of current loans in Canada from $1,404,371,359 to $1,473,427,797. The total for the end of October was $246,355,474 more than the banks had out in current loans in Canada at the same date last year. There was also a slight increase in the current loans outside Canada.

Demand deposits showed an increase over the month before when an notice or saving deposits remained almost stationary.

GOVERNMENT IS URGED TO HELP RETURNED MEN

United Farmers of Ontario Pass Resolution Asking the Federal Government to Pension Return-1 Soldiers Who Have Suffered Partial or Complete Breakdown.

TORONTO, Ont., Dec. 7.—A resolution urging the Canadian Government to pass legislation to provide for all partially disabled and disabled soldiers, was passed at the final session here yesterday of the annual convention United Farmers of Ontario. The resolution which will be forwarded to the Government by the executive committee points out many returned soldiers are enduring great hardship because at the time of their discharge they were pronounced fit but have since suffered a partial or complete breakdown and are ineligible for a pension. The resolution further points out totally disabled soldiers' families are cared for by the Provincial Government and through the country through the Mothers' Allowance, but as all care of soldiers is within the province of the federal government, it urges the Canadian Government to amend present legislation to provide for all totally disabled soldiers.

BUILDING ACTIVITIES

When the present year ends, twenty-four days from today, Canada will be able to boast of many new annual records denoting wonderful progress, with the total for construction contracts very probably the outstanding item.

Notwithstanding the depression caused by the Wall Street crash, the construction contracts awarded during the past month amounted to no less than $45,375,500, the largest total for any corresponding month except that of 1925, when a total of $46,972,800 was recorded, and building contracts to date this year are twenty per cent. over the 1928 figures.

The building barometer, generally regarded by experts as one of the most reliable barometers of general conditions, clearly indicates that Canada is marching steadily along the road of progress and prosperity.

AN OFFICE FOR THE CITY TREASURER

The suggestion which was made at the City Hall several months ago that the City Treasurer be provided with a private office appears to have been passed up without due consideration by the City Council. At least no action has as yet been taken by the authorities.

The suggestion is one which merits serious thought. It is a well known fact that the Treasurer needs such an office, not only for his own convenience, but for the convenience of the many citizens that have occasion to consult the Treasurer on some personal matter. As things are at present it is often very embarrassing for both parties to have to talk over private matters in the midst of a busy public office.

The City Secretary, City Engineer, Health Officer and Superintendent of the Gas and Electric Departments have their private office, but in the case of the Treasurer, one of the most important officials at the City Hall, an exception seems to have been made.

An office such as the Treasurer should have could very easily be made in one section of the public office on the ground floor of the City Hall, where it would be conveniently situated for all purposes. This matter should be given immediate attention.

ACTION REQUIRED

Indications are that, as a result of the determined campaign which has been carried on for several months past, there will be a rearrangement made in the regulations governing the treatment of those who are suffering in civil life because of the sacrifices they made for their King and country during the long and terrible years of the Great War.

Sir Arthur Currie and General D. C. Draper have both expressed the opinion that it is vital that the Pensions Act be rewritten from first to last; while the declarations of Rt. Hon. Mackenzie King, Prime Minister, that Canada must deal generously with soldiers whose health was shattered in the war, and of Hon. J. L. Ralston, Minister of National Defence, that the duty of the people of Canada to the war veterans of this country is not complete, clearly show that the Dominion Government is entirely sympathetic toward returned soldiers and is desirous of co-operating with the Canadian Legion.

Championing the cause of Canada's soldiery who have as a legacy from the war a permanent handicap in their efforts to make a living, the Toronto Globe points out that the Federal Government has not been niggardly in the point of money, but what is obviously now required is a ruthless slashing of red tape, the elimination of too-elaborate administrative machinery, a survey of the broad necessities of the situation that is certain to exist for another forty years, and a wholesome dose of simplicity and sympathy administered to the whole veterans' welfare problem.

The Federal authorities certainly will make no mistake in dealing kindly, sympathetically and generously with those who suffered disabilities of any kind in fighting for their King and country.

AMERICA AND MASS PRODUCTION

(By Glenn Frank)

European critics of the machine civilization of the United States labor, I think, under a mistaken notion that America has gone over bag and baggage to the philosophy and practice of mass production.

The fact is that it is only here and there, in a few significantly administered industries, that the underlying philosophy of mass production and mass distribution is clearly understood and creatively applied.

It is not accurate to assert that American industry is dominantly an industry of standardization, mass production, and mass distribution.

It is a large-scale industry. But the few instances in which the full significance of standardization, mass production, and mass distribution have been worked out to date are little more than laboratory demonstrations of what these principles might mean to the nation as a whole, in reduced costs and increased leisure, if they were honestly and ably applied to all phases of American industry, that is, to all phases which are rightly subject to such application.

By and large, the Big Business regime is, as yet, maladministering these processes.

The wastes of mass selling are today largely absorbing the economies of mass production.

Many American industries that are supposed to be practicing the principles of standardization, mass production, and mass distribution are merely perverting them.

Currently popular articles that promise quick profits are picked out for specialized manufacture, their basic materials cheapened, their design stripped for economy rather than simplified for utility and beauty, factories geared for their fast production, and high-pressure sales campaigns put behind them. Their price is fixed as high as a sizeable traffic will bear. The wages of the workers who make them are kept as low as custom and trade union pressure will permit.

And it is assumed that this is an authentic application of the principles of standardization, mass production, and mass distribution!

This, however, is but a poor parody of these principles.

Another day soon I shall throw into contrast with this all-too-prevalent practice a picture of what the real philosophy and practice of mass production means both to the business that practices it and to the public it serves.—Cpt. 1929.

PRESS COMMENT

ONE ASPECT OF AIR-MINDEDNESS.

(Edmonton Journal)

The tendency to ape the skyscraper in art is specially noticeable in decorative forms of architecture, arches, cenotaphs, monuments and the like. The designs in the magazines are simply another aspect of it.

But people are going to get tired of the new fad. Straight lines grow tiresome. And some day a commercial artist flying to a distant city to keep an appointment is going to be struck with a new idea, a new way to capture the jaded public eye. He is going to see nature from a new point of view. Hitherto our pictures of nature have been from close-ups. From the air we see nature in panorama. Artists who think they have exhausted the possible combinations of straight lines and angles may see in the new traceries of nature something to intrigue their desire for the novel.

ENERGIZING SOVIET RUSSIA.

(Christian Science Monitor)

Soviet Russia, still at odds with the world over its political system, is redoubling its efforts to make itself self-sustaining and to catch up with other countries in the field of industry. Realizing the value of electricity, it is developing power schemes on the grand scale. It is accustoming its toilers in the field to the use of tractors, and is building new waterways to link up markets with the sources of production. No longer does it intend to depend upon the United States and Egypt for raw cotton supplies, since a vast irrigation programme has been launched which will turn arid tracts into fertile lands suitable for the cultivation of cotton.

The plan is to flood millions of acres of land in Turkistan and neighboring regions, plant sixty per cent of it with cotton, and the remainder with wheat, fruit, cereals and vegetables. Such a project, involving an expenditure of $250,000,000, is to say the least ambitious. It has been placed under the direct supervision of a competent authority on irrigation problems, Arthur Powell Davis, former head of the United States Reclamation Service, and the work is expected to take about five years to complete. Once the task is accomplished it ought to do much to help Russia to regain some of its old prosperity.

Soviet Russia has not kept pace with other western nations. It has lost prestige through the insidious propaganda of its Communist leaders and the attempt to spread political doctrines where they were not wanted. It has lost credit because of its repudiation of debts. Thus handicapped, Russia has not had much chance to make a showing in twentieth century enterprise. Compelled by force of circumstances to turn to the mechanical genius of America and other countries for assistance in rebuilding its provinces, it still lacks an important factor, sufficiency of funds. But that defect can hardly be repaired before the Soviet Government regains the confidence of the powers great and small, and until it does so its progress will necessarily be slow.

Efforts Being Made to Amass Evidence Which Would Place Six Additional Citizens in Custody.

PENTICTON B.C., Dec. 7.—Police are working to amass evidence which would place six additional citizens in custody on conspiracy charges arising out of the "tar and feather" case, Chief of Police A. Davies said yesterday.

With Charles Oliver committed for trial on a charge of forcible seizure of Dr. V. E. Latimer, who was subjected to a tar and feathering attack recently, the authorities turned their investigation into other channels. It is intimated that a number of other well-known citizens of Penticton may appear in court as a result of this investigation.

UNITED CHURCH INVESTIGATING RURAL PROBLEM

Commission Appointed to Make Inquiries in Connection With Churches in Rural Sections in Reference to Attendance and Depopulation.

(Special to the Record)
TORONTO, Dec. 7. — Is rural population declining? Is farm tenancy increasing? Is there much casual farm labor? What communities are overburdened?

These are the opening questions asked by The United Church's commission on "The Church and Rural Life" in a questionnaire now going out to secretaries of 116 Presbyteries. The aim is to get a conspectus of country life across the Dominion from the viewpoint of a Board of Home Missions.

Without committing themselves in advance to any definite conclusion on the whole problem, the members of the commission have indicated to the chairman, Rev. R. B. Cochrane, D.D., their approval of the kind of question reproduced below.

"To what extent have recent census returns revealed that rural population is dwindling in your district?"

"What proportion of casual farm labor is Anglo-Saxon and non-Anglo-Saxon?"

"What communities still have too many United Churches or Protestant Churches of all denominations?"

"How many unused churches are there?"

The suspicion that the tenant farmer moves no more frequently than his minister might be found in this question: "What is the average length of pastorate in rural charges in your Presbytery?"

Results By Counties.

As many Presbyteries correspond in area roughly to important territorial divisions, such as the counties in Ontario, some important data concerning recognizable units may be made available through the questionnaire.

The commission meets in two sections, in Toronto and Winnipeg, at the end of December, to consider the material sent in and take further steps to ascertain whatever it deems necessary to the enquiry.

The questionnaire contains a number of important queries as to the equipment, programme, efficiency and recent reorganization of rural churches.

How many rural pastoral charges have one, two, three, four or more preaching places?

How many churches have (a) nothing but one service each Sunday? (b) only fortnightly services? (c) week-day activities?

How many rural churches have accommodation for religious education in addition to the church auditorium?

How many rural charges are (a) self sustaining, (b) aid-receiving (c) supplied by students or other lay supply?

How many do not provide the minimum salary for the minister?

How many provide more than the minimum salary?

What has been done to encourage amalgamation and regrouping of preaching places into larger pastoral charges? And with what results?

These are the questions of fact which are being put to the secretaries of Presbyteries. In addition, they are asked for their personal opinions on this question: "What is the real need in rural work as regards (1) the minister and (2) the church or congregation?"

Members of the commission, which was authorized by the executive of the Board of Home Missions at its autumn meeting, are as follows:

The secretary, Dr. R. B. Cochrane; Rev. J. A. Cornie, D.D., Winnipeg; Rev. Geo. A. Dorey, Regina; Rev. Robert Hicks, Wallaceburg, Ontario; Rev. J. U. Tanner, Lancaster, Ontario; Rev. J. W. McConnell, D.D., Amherst, N.S.; Rev. J. R. Watts, D.D., Kingston, Ontario; Rev. G. A. MacDonald, Ottawa, Ontario; Mr. H. C. Martin, Stirling, Ontario; and Mr. Fred Mann, Brantford, Ontario.

U.S. COAST GUARD IS READY TO END BOOZE RUNNING

Admiral Billard Prepared to Wage War Against Liquor Smugglers—Promises to Put Them Out of Business.

(Associated Press Despatch)
WASHINGTON, Dec. 7. — The United States coast guard is ready to carry on a war of extermination toward liquor smugglers and can put them "out of business" if given the necessary means to accomplish that end, Admiral F. C. Billard said today in his annual report to Secretary Mellon.

The operations of the coast guard in preventing liquor smuggling, he continued, "are just another kind of war with a lawless element."

President Hoover in his annual message to Congress recommended that border patrols, whose duty it is to prevent liquor smuggling, be under the command of the coast guard and urged an increase of $2,298,000 in the appropriation for the service.

"It is perfectly evident that the smuggler has no intention of voluntarily abandoning his unlawful pursuit," Admiral Billard said. "In plain words, there is nothing to do but to put him out of business. This can be done, and the coast guard will do it if the necessary means to accomplish that end are placed at its disposal."

LET JEWELLERY ADD THE FINISHING TOUCH

—NEW SERIAL STORY— "The Seven Dials Mystery" By AGATHA CHRISTIE.

CHAPTER XV AFTER DINNER

George was not a believer in modern innovations. The Abbey was innocent of anything so up to date as central heating. Consequently, when the ladies entered the drawing room after dinner, the temperature of the room was woefully inadequate to the needs of modern evening clothes. The fire that burnt in the well-burnished steel grate became as a magnet. The three women huddled around it.

"Brrrrrrrr!" said the Countess, a fine, exotic foreign sound.

"The ladies are drawing in," said Lady Coote, and drew a flowered shawl over her shoulders.

"Why on earth doesn't George have the house properly heated?" said Bundle.

"You English, you never heat your houses," said the Countess.

"She took out her long cigarette-holder and began to smoke.

"That grate is old-fashioned," said Lady Coote. "The heat goes up the chimney instead of into the room."

"Oh!" said the Countess.

There was a pause. The Countess was so plainly bored by her company that conversation became difficult.

"It's funny," said Lady Coote, breaking the silence, "that Mrs. Macatta's children should have mumps. At least, I don't mean exactly funny."

"What?" said the Countess, "are mumps?"

Bundle and Lady Coote started simultaneously to explain. Finally, between them, they managed it.

"Hungarian Horrors have it," asked Lady Coote.

"Eh?" said the Countess.

"Hungarian children. They suffer from it."

"I do not know," said the Countess. "How should I?"

Lady Coote looked at her in some surprise.

"But I understand that you worked—"

"Oh, that!" The Countess uncrossed her legs, took her cigarette-holder from her mouth and began to talk rapidly.

"I will tell you some horrors," she said. "Horrors that I have seen. Incredible! You would not believe."

And she was as good as her word. She talked fluently and with a graphic power of description. Incredible scenes of starvation and misery were painted by her for the benefit of her audience. She spoke of Budapest shortly after the war and traced its vicissitudes to the present day. She was dramatic, but she was also, to Bundle's mind, a little like a gramophone record. You turned her on, and there you were. Presently, just as suddenly, she would stop.

Lady Coote was thrilled to the marrow—that much was clear. She sat with her mouth slightly open and her large, sad, dark eyes fixed on the Countess. Occasionally, she interlarded a comment of her own.

One of my cousins had three children burned to death. Awful, wasn't it?"

The Countess paid no attention. She went on and on. And she finally stopped as suddenly as she had begun.

"There!" she said. "I have told you! We have money—but no organization. It is organization we need."

Lady Coote sighed.

"I've heard my husband say that nothing can be done without regular methods. He attributes his own success entirely to that. He declares he would have never got on without them."

She sighed again. A sudden feeling passed before her eyes of a Sir Oswald who had not got on in the world. A Sir Oswald who retained, in all essentials, the attributes of that cheery young man in the bicycle shop. For a second it occurred to her how much pleasant life might have been for her if Sir Oswald had not had regular methods.

By a quite understandable association of ideas she turned to Bundle.

"Tell me, Lady Eileen," she said, "do you like that head gardener of yours?"

"MacDonald? Well—" Bundle hesitated. "One couldn't exactly like MacDonald," she explained apologetically. "But he's a first-class gardener."

"Oh! I know he is," said Lady Coote.

"He's all right if he's kept in his place," said Bundle.

"I suppose so," said Lady Coote. She looked enviously at Bundle, who appeared to approach the task of keeping MacDonald in his place so lightly.

"I'd just adore a high-toned garden," said the Countess dreamily.

Bundle stared, but at that moment a diversion occurred. Jimmy Thesiger entered the room and spoke directly to her in a strange, hurried voice.

"I say, will you come and see those etchings now? They're waiting for you."

Bill's Viewpoint

Bundle left the room hurriedly, Jimmy close behind her.

"What etchings?" she asked, as the drawing-room door closed behind her.

"No etchings," said Jimmy. "I'd got to say something to get hold of you. Come on, Bill is waiting for us in the library. There's nobody there."

Bill was striding up and down the library, clearly in a very perturbed state of mind.

"Look here," he burst out, "I don't like this."

"Don't like what?"

"You being mixed up in this. Ten to one there's going to be a rough house and then—"

He looked at her with a kind of pathetic dismay that gave Bundle a warm and comfortable feeling.

"She ought to be kept out of it, oughtn't she, Jimmy?"

He appealed to the other.

"I've told her so," said Jimmy. "Dash it all, Bundle, I mean—some one might get hurt."

Bundle turned around to Jimmy.

"How much have you told him?"

"Oh! everything."

"I haven't got the hang of it all yet," confessed Bill. "You in that place in Seven Dials and all that."

He looked at her unhappily. "I say, Bundle, I wish you wouldn't."

"Wouldn't what?"

"Get mixed up in these sorts of things."

"Why not?" said Bundle. "They are exciting."

"Oh, yes—exciting. But they may be damnably dangerous. Look at poor old Ronny."

PURCHASE OF AMERICAN LEGATION PROPERTY IN OTTAWA THOUGHT LIKELY

Action on Housing and Salary Question of Ministers to Follow Recent Wholesale Resignations.

(Associated Press Despatch)

WASHINGTON, Dec. 7. — The possibility that the United States may very soon remedy its lack of a legation at Ottawa and may also increase the ministerial salary is suggested in that part of President Hoover's message to Congress where he asks more liberal appropriations for the work of the State Department.

"I know of no expenditure of public money from which a greater economic and moral return can come to us than by assuring the most effective conduct of our foreign relations," the President said.

While it is not considered here that the resignation of Hon. William Phillips, first minister to the Dominion, was in any way related to the ministerial rating of $10,000 a year, it is known that he was caused some annoyance by the lack of an official residence.

The State Department has been perturbed of late because of resignations. Shortly after Mr. Phillips resigned Major Dorsey Newson, first secretary of the Ottawa legation, announced his determination to leave the service and enter business.

Others who have resigned within the past few months, are John Van A. McMurray, minister to China; Stokely W. Morgan, former chief of the Latin American division of the State Department; Jay Pierpont Moffat, first secretary at Bern; Alphonse Gaullin, consul general at Paris; Percy Blair, former secretary of the Embassy at London.

Don't neglect to read the Classified Advertisements in this issue. They likely name something you want.

the thing down very comfortably. But the bright lads will have to be their very brightest. We must come down to details. First of all, where will the sacred formula be tonight? Will Eberhard have it, or Sir Oswald Coote?"

"Neither. I understand it's to be handed over to the Air Minister this evening, for him to take to town tomorrow. In that case O'Rourke will have it. Sure to."

"Well, that's only one thing for it. If we believe some one's going to have a shot at pinching that paper, we've got to keep watch tonight, Bill, my boy."

Bundle opened her mouth as though to protest, but shut it again without speaking.

"By the way," continued Jimmy, "did I recognize the commissioner from Harrods in the hall this evening, or was it our old friend Lestrade from Scotland Yard?"

"Scintillating, Watson," said Bill. "I suppose," said Jimmy, "that we are rather butting in on his preserves."

"Can't be helped," said Bill. "Not if we mean to see this thing through."

"Then it's agreed," said Jimmy. "We divide the night into two watches."

Again Bundle opened her mouth, and again shut it without speaking.

"Right you are," agreed Bill. "Who'll take first duty?"

"Shall we spin for it?"

"Might as well."

All right. Here goes. Heads you first and I second. Tails, vice versa."

Bill nodded. The coin spun in the air. Jimmy bent to look at it.

"Tails," he said.

"Damn!" said Bill. "You get first half and probably any fun that's going."

"Oh, you never know," said Jimmy. "Criminals are a very uncertain lot. What time shall I wake you? Three thirty?"

"That's about fair, I think."

And now at last, Bundle spoke. "What about me?" she asked.

"Nothing doing. You go to bed and sleep."

"Oh!" said Bundle. "That's not very exciting."

"You never know," said Jimmy kindly. "You may be murdered in your sleep while Bill and I escape scot-free."

"Well, there's always that possibility. Do you know, Jimmy, I don't half like the look of that Countess. I suspect her."

"Nonsense!" cried Bill hotly. "She's absolutely above suspicion."

"How do you know?" retorted Bundle.

"Because I do. Why, one of the fellows at the Hungarian Embassy vouched for her."

Off to Bed

"Oh!" said Bundle, momentarily taken aback by his fervor.

"You girls are all the same," grumbled Bill. "Just because she's a jolly crackling woman."

Bundle was only too well acquainted with this unfair masculine line of argument.

"Well, don't you go and pour confidences into her shell-pinked ear," she bored stiff in that drawing room and I'm not going back."

She left the room. Bill looked at Jimmy.

"Good old Bundle," he said. "I was afraid I might have trouble with her. You know how keen she is to be in everything. I think the way she took it was just wonderful."

"So did I," said Jimmy. "It staggered me."

"She's got some sense, Bundle has. She knows when a thing's plumb impossible. I say, oughtn't we to have some lethal weapons? Chaps usually do when they're going on this sort of thing."

"I have a blue-nosed automatic," said Jimmy with gentle pride. "It weighs several pounds and looks most murderous. I'll lend it to you when the time comes."

Bill looked at him with respect and envy.

"What made you think of getting that?" he said.

"I don't know," said Jimmy, carelessly. "It just came to me."

"I hope we shan't go and shoot the wrong person," said Bill with some anxiety.

"That would be unfortunate," said Mr. Thesiger gravely.

VICTORIAVILLE WANTS BETTER MAIL SERVICE

Question of Having Speedier Movement Between Victoria and Montreal Will Be Taken Up With Postmaster-General.

VICTORIAVILLE, Que., Dec. 7.

Manufacturers and merchants of the town of Victoriaville, are preparing to approach Hon. Peter J. Veniot, Postmaster-General, with the request for a speedier mail service between their community and other points. Through the local branch of the Canadian Manufacturers' Association, they will submit that at the present time altogether too long is taken for the movement of mails between Victoriaville and Montreal, and Victoriaville and Quebec. Manufacturers having branch offices in Montreal are particularly emphatic in their stand that mail is too slow in moving from factory to office.

In the city of Quebec, bodies there have gone further in their move for better postal service than is customary.

The Quebec Board of Trade, the Quebec branch of the Canadian Manufacturers' Association, the Quebec Retail Dealers' Association, the local branch of the Commercial Travelers' Association, the Quebec Wholesale Grocers' Guild, the Boot and Shoe Manufacturers' Association, the Grain and Provision Merchants' Association and the Quebec Builders' Association are collaborating in this connection.

Through the Quebec Board of Trade, a special letter is being distributed to members of all the bodies named, stating that better postal service for Quebec city and between that city and other points is being urged. Each member, therefore, is asked for a personal survey of mail conditions as they affect him or his business, over a period of a week. Space is provided for the remarks of each member in summing up his survey and the remarks are to be sent to the Board of Trade.

The Board points out that its purpose is not to express criticism of the Post Office service, rather the formulation of constructive suggestions based on faults in the mail service revealed in the week's survey. Those receiving the letter are asked to include with their survey any envelopes or other documents that will prove assertions made as to poor mail service. It is emphasized that generalities will be without value.

St. Louis Physician Tells of Experiments on White Rats to Radiological Society.

(Canadian Press Despatch)

TORONTO, Dec. 7.—A St. Louis physician, Dr. Edwin Ernst, of the Bernard Free Skin and Cancer Hospital, told the Radiological Society of North America, meeting in its annual convention here, that X-ray has found a valuable ally in dietetics. The paper was prepared in conjunction with Dr. Louis H. Jorstad.

"Experimental work was done on white rats," Dr. Ernst said, "whose dietary corresponds more with the dietary of man than most laboratory animals. It was found that when an increased amount of fat soluble vitamins were added to this balanced diet, the animals withstood as much as 20 per cent. greater amount of X-ray, thus making it possible to give a larger dosage of X-rays and to secure more beneficial results in conditions demanding a high X-ray dosage."

It was also found that small amounts of X-ray will protect the animal against the deficiency of these vitamins for a period of time. Apparently the X-ray causes a liberation of the vitamins in the body and thus in using larger doses of the X-rays it was not unnatural that upon adding these vitamins to the diet, a larger amount of X-rays could be given without untoward effects. The fat soluble vitamins are present in cream and butter and cod liver oil.

UNEMPLOYMENT BILL MAY BE PASSED SOON

Every Effort to Be Made to Get Bill Through Both Houses Before Christmas—Government Capitulat in Change of Clause Regarding Seeking of Work by Unemployed.

(Canadian Press Despatch)

LONDON, Dec. 7.—Every effort will be made by the Government to get the Unemployment Insurance Bill through both houses before Christmas. An official statement was issued yesterday saying there is no immediate prospect of the passage of the bill being interfered with as a result of the delay caused by last night's postponement one clause. The idea of withdrawing the bill and substituting a shorter measure covering the points which the government wish to bring into operation from the beginning of the New Year has appeared to be dropped.

As a result of Philip Snowden's straightforward talk to a meeting of the Parliamentary Labor Party the members agreed by resolution not to press any amendments to the Bill of a financial character and to co-operate in getting through.

It was freely predicted that the malcontents of the party who have been criticizing the Bill were due for disciplinary measures, but it appeared that the meeting had been called to explain that the strong demand in the party for the reduction of the "waiting period" from six to three days before benefits could be born, would be impossible and would cost 4,000,000 pounds.

Right Hon. Philip Snowden, Chancellor of the Exchequer, made clear that no more money was available for the purpose of the Bill. Faced with immediate defeat in the House of Commons at the hands of a majority of its own followers co-operating with the Liberals, the Government last night capitulated in one of the most important clauses in the Unemployment Insurance Bill dealing with the "genuinely seeking work" condition for the receipt of unemployment pay.

The dissentients objected to the provision that claimants must prove they had tried to find work. Right Hon. Margaret Bondfield, Minister of Labor, and Sir William Jowitt, Attorney General, defended the clause, the latter pointing out without it the whole onus of finding work would be thrown on the employers. The dissentients retorted this was exactly what they wanted.

Finally the Government accepted the advice of Right Hon. Stanley Baldwin, Conservative leader, to withdraw the whole clause and re-draft it. But as clause seven of the Bill dealing with payment of benefits is now dropped it has been suggested it may be necessary to withdraw the whole Bill and substitute a shorter measure.

A softening tone was noticed in poultry and dairy products at the Sherbrooke Market yesterday. Butter dropped two cents a pound, creamery selling at forty-three to forty-seven cents, while dairy butter was offered at forty to forty-two cents.

Drops of three cents a pound were noticed in the price of chickens and fowl, the former ranging from thirty-five to forty-two cents a pound and the latter from twenty-nine to thirty-five cents a pound. Turkeys were unobtainable, the live birds being kept for the nearer approach of Christmas.

Market Assumed Hopeful Tone

In a high of 47% on Friday in anticipation of a favorable dividend action by the directors. But the hopes of the most optimistic traders were exceeded when, at the close of trading, it was announced that the regular twenty-five cent quarterly dividend would be accompanied by a bonus of fifty cents a share, payable on January 2nd, and the directors at the same time stated they would "give further consideration to the interests of shareholders" at a meeting to be held before the annual shareholders meeting in February.

The latter statement was interpreted as an indication that the long awaited split in the shares, an issue of rights, or further dividend increases, will be discussed by the directors within the next two months. British American Oil seemed to a closing price of 45 1/8 under late profit taking yesterday but at that price it is still more than $5 above its corresponding level a week ago.

Canadian market. International Petroleum, closing at 24, shows a gain of nearly two points for the week. Imperial has risen from 27 1/2 to 29, and McColl-Frontenac has risen 1 point to 24. Superpetroleum at 27 is only practically above its price a week ago.

Nickel And Brazilian Advance. International Nickel, a feature of trading on Friday, shows a net advance of 3 1/2 points, closing yesterday at 34 after a somewhat irregular movement during the week. Demand for Nickel in London was a factor in the advance. Brazilian Traction at 46 is $4 a share higher for the week, and much of the gain is attributed to utility interests in New York and Montreal. Improved credit conditions in Brazil, the prospect for greater stabilization of the Brazilian coffee situation and faith in the future of the traction enterprise were all factors which contributed to the advance.

Ford of Canada "A" shares advanced under buying inspired by the announcement of new models this month and the prospect that Ford company will experience increased business and larger production in 1930.

Miners stocks suffered from the irregular movements of the stock market, but they moved upward in common with the majority of industrial, oil and specialties. Gold stocks were among the firm features of trading during the latter half of the week, and gains were shown by Dome and Kirkland Lake. Hudson Bay also displayed firmer tendencies, and there was marked improvement in the Lindsay issues and Noranda. Despite pessimistic reports concerning the outlook for the copper market, shares of leading copper concerns in the United States advanced on the burst of buying on Friday, and Noranda at $36.50 participated in the general improvement. A week ago Noranda sold at less than $35.

Power Issues Stronger.
In Montreal, power issues continued to advance, and with Brazilian as the leader, trading also reflected buying interest in Montreal Power, Quebec Power, Shawinigan and others.

Were Up.

(Canadian Press Despatch)
MONTREAL, Dec. 7.—Early trading on the Montreal Stock Exchange today found all stocks at higher levels, with the majority of the increases confined to fractions. Shawinigan gained 1 1/2 to 82 1/2, B. C. Power "A" was up 1 at 39 and Montreal Power up 1 at 133.

Brazilian, International Nickel, National Steel, Car, Dominion Bridge, Massey-Harris, Canada Car, Quebec Power, Steel of Canada and Winnipeg Electric gained fractionally.

IMPRESSIVE RALLY TODAY ON NEW YORK EXCHANGE

(Associated Press Despatch)
NEW YORK, Dec. 7.—Stock prices rallied in impressive fashion at the opening of today's market. United States Steel common opened with a block of 10,000 shares at 17 3/4, up two points. Initial gains of a point or two also were recorded by St. Paul preferred, Missouri Pacific, American Telephone, Columbia Gas and Vanadium Steel.

Special Meeting of Stockholders
Called for January 15 to Vote on Increasing Present 7,400,000
Authorized Shares to 29,600,000 Shares.

(Associated Press Despatch)
NEW YORK, N.Y., Dec. 7.—Directors of the proposed to stockholders that the present common shares be split up four for one, the new stock to be placed on a $1.00 annual dividend basis.

The dividend rate on the new stock would equal $6.40 a share annually on the present stock, which has been paying $4 in regular dividends annually with occasional extras, totalling $2 this year.

A special meeting of stockholders has been called for January 15th, on the present stock.

A special meeting of stockholders has been called for January 15th, on the present stock.

The announcement of the split up brought an immediate demand for the stock on the New York exchange.

A block of 7,400 shares changed hands within a few minutes after the announcement appeared at $39 a share, up $7.25 from yesterday's close. A few minutes later it ran to $42.

This will be the second four for one split up of General Electric common in recent years. The shares offered call money at 3 1/2 per cent and another decrease of $88,000,000 in brokerage loans, the New York market was strong and active yesterday, but the buoyancy there found only slight reflection in the local list.

The reason no doubt for the cessation of interest in the paper stocks is that the Canadian producers will only feel the benefit of the proposed $5 a ton increase in newspaper the latter half of next year and the full benefits will not begin to be derived until 1931, so that the annual statements of the various companies for 1931, which will make their appearance early in 1932 will be ones that will show exactly what the increase means.

The street apparently considers that the good news whilst announced, does not warrant the making of commitments in the "papers" until the companies are nearer the actual time when the benefits will begin to be felt. In the meantime, however, there are a number of buyers in the market.

The good news on Shawinigan which came in the form of an increase in the dividend of fifty cents a share per annum was a complete surprise to the street and a story is now that a similar welcome surprise will be forthcoming on Quebec Power before long. It will be remembered that Quebec Power only increased its dividend on October 15th last from $2 to $2.50 per annum, so it is not thought likely that another raise in the rate will be announced, but many take some other constructive form, the nature of which can only be surmised at the present time.

It was only natural to expect International Nickel would come to life sooner or later, as it has been under a quiet accumulation for the past few weeks. This stock has been one of the few meritorious issues that did not stage an appreciable recovery after the recent break and as a result a great many traders have been waiting for the signs of a real move to get aboard. Yesterday the stock gave such evidence and a large buying following developed, which resulted in a good advance.

LEO DIEGEL PUT HAGEN OUT OF TITLE FIGHT

"Larruping Leo," Canadian Open Champion, Will Meet Simling Johnny Farrell in Final for Golf Crown Today.

(Associated Press Despatch) LOS ANGELES, Calif., Dec. 7.—The great conjuror of the links, Leo Diegel, Canadian open champion, whose swanning clubs, as magic wands, carried him through to triumph over Walter Hagen, British open champion, yesterday, will pit his skill against the threat of smiling Johnny Farrell, United States open champion in 1928, in the final match of the Professional Golfers' Association tournament today.

Farrell will be seeking his first P.G.A. crown on the trying hill-crest course which saw the championship hopes of both the great Hagen and his fellow townsman from Detroit, Al Watrous, lost in the yawning traps and on the treacherous greens.

While the fiftieth putting of the great Hagen had much to do with yesterday's defeat on the thirty-fourth green, three and two, the fact that late death kindly with Diegel contributed largely to Sir Walter's downfall, his second in four P.G.A. meetings with "Larruping Leo." That the Argus Caliente professional was ready to make the best of the breaks, however, cannot be denied.

The five times holder of the U.S. National crown watched Diegel hole long putts when his own attempts failed by inches. This told the story.

Hagen's drives were more consistent, while the pair took turns placing their approach shots close to the pin.

Watrous cracked during his afternoon round with Farrell, to lose six and five after a rally on the twenty-ninth and thirtieth. The smiling Beau Brummel from New York had led the morning round two up.

SENATORS WILL MEET MONTREAL IN BIG GAME

Will Battle Tonight for Leadership in International Section of National Hockey League—Canadiens Clash With Toronto.

(Canadian Press Despatch) TORONTO, Dec. 7.—With first place in the international group at stake, Ottawa and Montreal Maroons will clash in the big game of the National Hockey League schedule tonight.

Ottawa needs no better than a tie to retain its one point lead over the Maroons, while the Maroons, to take first place in the international standings, must win. A Maroon victory would put the Montreal aggregation on top with a total of fourteen points to thirteen for Ottawa. A tie would leave Ottawa on top with fourteen points to thirteen for the Maroons.

While this battle is being fought at Montreal, Canadiens now only two points back of the Maroons, tackle the Toronto Maple Leafs, who have only three victories and a tie to show for their first seven games. A victory for the Canadiens at Toronto and a defeat for Montreal would deadlock these two clubs for second place in the international group standing.

In the only other game tonight, Boston, leading the American group standings, will battle the Detroit Cougars. Tomorrow night, Pittsburgh will meet the New York Rangers at Madison Square Garden, while the New York Americans travel to Chicago to clash with the rejuvenated Black Hawks.

(Associated Press Despatch) PROVIDENCE, R.I., Dec. 7.—Resignation of James Gardner, of Montreal, as coach of the Providence Hockey Club of the Canadian-American Hockey League, was announced here last night by President Jean Dubuc. Gardner has been coach of the Providence team since its organization.

The club finished in the championship play off last season, but has lost its last four games. No successor to Gardner has been named. Dubuc planning to handle the team until a new coach is signed.

SHIRES FINDS TROUBLE OVER FIGHT PERMIT

Illinois Athletic Commission Refuses Permit to White Sox Player Pending Production of Opponent.

(Associated Press Despatch) CHICAGO, Ill., Dec. 7.—The professional pugilistic career of Charles Arthur (The Great) Shires, White Sox first baseman, appears to be fading. Major General John V. Clinchin, chairman of the Illinois State Athletic Commission, has issued an order holding up the permit for Shires to engage in a preliminary bout with one mysterious Dan Daly, of Cleveland, at White City Monday night, on two counts.

The first count is that Gen. Clinchin and the Commission, in spite of diligent search, have failed to find anyone who has met a mysterious Dan Daly, of Cleveland, either socially or fistfully, and there will be no fight until a member of the Commission views such a person in fighting costume.

The second count is that Fred Gardner, a member of the Commission, watched Shires in a work-out, and learned toward the opinion that Charles Arthur was too much inclined to thrust salient parts of his anatomy unprotected into the path of his spar mates punches, and is not a real good fighter.

Final action will be taken tomorrow when the mysterious Dan Daly is to arrive in Chicago.

TWO BIKE TEAMS TIED FOR LEADERSHIP

NEW YORK, Dec. 7.—The final day of the six day bicycle race at Madison Square Garden found two hard-riding teams tied for first place, three bunched for second position and three deadlocked for third. The other three teams were scattered. The long grind ends late tonight.

The leaders were George-Dubois and Letourneur-Brocardo, who had circled the pine saucer 2,035 miles and nine laps each. But only a lap behind and always threatening the leaders were the combinations of Spencer-Deulberg, McNamara-Belloni and Hill-Walshour.

STRIBLING AGAIN MEETS CARNERA

PARIS, Dec. 7.—W. L. (Young) Stribling today faced a second opportunity to whittle down the man-mountain, Primo Carnera, to ordinary heavyweight size. Stribling lost on a foul to the Italian giant in London a few weeks ago after knocking him down for a considerable count.

DEMPEY WILL REFEREE FORAT-SCOTT BOUT

NEW YORK, Dec. 7.—The Otto Von Porat-Phil Scott fight, looms as one of the most important of the year, but there appears to be grave danger that another heavyweight will steal the spotlight at the charity boxing show in Madison Square Garden Monday night.

Announcement that Jack Dempsey will referee the big bout has started a big boom in ticket sales. Dempsey was granted a referee's license by the New York State Athletic Commission yesterday. Immediately officials of the charity show announced he would be the third man in the ring for the Von Porat-Scott battle.

Both Von Porat and Scott have declared Dempsey's selection as referee is agreeable to them. Von Porat, one of the hardest hitters among the heavyweights, probably will be a slight favorite over Scott when they step into the ring. The tall Norwegian has been learning fast and many observers will give him as a good chance as any to capture the vacant heavyweight title. Monday's fight is over the twelve round route.
