(By Kathleen M. Cowper)

Margaret and Allison Birtwhistle 11 year old twins of St. Charles St. and Janice and Lorraine Cutway, also 11 year old twins of Cirle Road, together held a very successful bazaar at the Birtwhistle home, on Saturday.

The girls heard an appeal over C.F.O.X. Radio on Monday for held for Mr. and Mrs. George Brady and their three children of Parkview, whose home was lost by fire last Thursday and in which they lost everything. The girls decided they wanted to do somehting to help this family. They began by gathering second hand toys, books, etc., around the development. Much time was spent fixing up and cleaning the toys and even dressing some dolls, in fact they were busy all week.

At 11 a.m. the sale begain at the Birtwhistle home. As well as the toys, the girls had "Koolaide" and 'Fudge" for sale.

At noon, home baking donated by the neighbours was sold as well.

Later in the afternoon the girls had the opportunity to personally present Mr. and Mrs. Brady with $45.36 which they had realized from their sale. A few toys which had not sold were given to the Brady's also. Mr. and Mrs. Brady both expressed their sincere thanks.

Congratulations girls for your thoughtfulness, your efforts and the wonderful success of your bazaar.

How A Toronto Woman Survived Japanese Prison Life

Medical men have long suggested that women are better able to survive extreme hardship — physical and mental. Now an unusual form of evidence to support this theory appears in an article in Maclean's, in which Ethel Mulvany Rogers recounts her 1,294 days in a Japanese war prison near Singapore.

She was imprisoned with 1,000 other women and 100 children in a jail built to hold 450 people. Their sole item of diet was a green, slimy soup made by boiling a spinach-like weed in water.

"To stay alive," she relates, "I ate wood, spiders, grasshoppers, and the green, slimy slugs that loitered near the prison drains."

The experience reduced her from a healthy women of 160 pounds to "a shiveled old woman, and 80-pound bundle of skin and bone."

But she — and a great many other women — did survive. To keep their stomachs supplied with some salivary juices that made them feel better, the women spent several hours each day discussing mouth-watering recipes. When Mrs. Rogers was put into solitary confinement for 120 days, she kept her mind active by mentally furnishing her cell as a luxury apartment by meticulously cleaning her fingernails with a tiny silver of wood, and by memorizing passages from her Bible — one of her few personal possessions.

Besides solitary confinement, she suffered interrogations that went on as long as 14 hours at a time, during which she was forced to stand in spite of a severe case of dysentery. She suffered the sharpest pains in a dental chair, where her captors broke some of her teeth and pulled them out in pieces. They also shocked her spine with an electric device, causing her to kick her knees up so violently that she knocked herself unconscious.

She was liberated at the end of the war.

"But even two years later, back in Toronto, she was still so deeply scarred by her experiences that "I would cross the street to avoid meeting a blameless Japanese child."

Mr. Roma Gervais the new Police Chief, who was hired at last Wednesday's Meeting of the Police Commission. Mr. Gervais comes to Chateauguay from Montreal with 25 years service with the Montreal Police Dept. He joined the force in 1930 and rose from a Constable to the rank of Act. Captain and retired from the force in 1955. He is well aware of the work that is ahead of him and isn't wasting any time getting started. He has been on the job since he was hired and overnight on the week-end had the office at the Police Station changed around. Everything cannot be done overnight and now it remains with the public to bear with him and give him a chance to prove himself without any unnessary interference from the councils or the public.

Bombers Defeat Ramblers 9—1

(By Kathleen M. Cowper)

The football season got off to a start on Sunday with real football weather, sweaters, coats and even parkas were the dress of the day and no complaints of sweating, except by the players. Improvements to the grounds were quite evident with the addition of seats on both sides of the field and a fence around most of the field. The fence is necessary as there are always people who want to see a football team out but who don't want to supoprt it financially and without finances a team is no go — congratulations to the executive for improvements to date and now on to the game.

Chateauguay kicked the ball off to get the game underway and in the first quarter the play was all in the centre field with both teams feeling each other out and the closest the play got to either end was the 20 yd. line, the quarter ended with no score.

The Bombers got started early in the 2nd. quarter when they kicked from the 15 yd. line for their first point.

Shortly after this Chateauguay lost the ball on their own 12 yd. line on a fumble and the Bombers took over. Their first pass was knocked down in the end zone and their 2nd. down brought them to Chateauguays 3 yd. line. A penalty to Chateauguay put the ball in play on their 1 ft. line and they held the Bombers here on 2 downs but on the 3rd. down No. 24 R. Horner got over the line for the T.D.T. The convert was good for 7 points.

Chateauguay picked up a Bomber's fumble on their own 27 yd. line but on their first play a pass was intercepted by the Bombers and they were on the go again. No. 22 L. Sansom of the Bombers carried the ball for what was thought to be a T.D. but was called back by the officials just as half time was called. The score half time Bombers 8 Ramblers 0.

In the 2nd. quarter No. 20 D. Little of the Bombers was shaken up in a play and was taken to the doctor's and then transferred to the Lachine Hospital with possible fractured ribs.

In the 3rd. quarter the Ramblers picked up their first point, when on 3rd. down Algis Rimkus kicked the ball from C.F. into the end zone to get Chateauguay away.

Most of the play again remained in the centre field area with both teams having their share of incomplete passes and fumbles a final goal attempt by the Bombers from the 25 yd. line was blocked almost before it left the ground so the only scoring was the Ramblers 1 point.

The final score saw the Ramblers trying a little too hard to even things up and it showed up in their passing being off and a fumble recovered by Bombers worked down to a kick into the end zone for 1 point. Two Bombers players were shock up in this quarter and both had to be helped off the field. There was no more scoring in the game and it ended up Bombers 9 — Ramblers 1.

The next two weeks the Ramblers are on the road with Marieville this week and Valleyfield next week and returning home Sept. 3rd.

Horticultural Notes

Saturday next, August 19th, the Chateauguay and District Horticultural Society will hold their Annual Summer Exhibition and Flower Show in St. Andrew's Memorial Hall, Chateauguay Basin.

The show committee under the chairmanship of Jim Mahoney are preparing for a record number of entries from the new members in the various developments, who have already shown their gardening enthusiasm by taking many of the prizes in the recent garden competition.

To the new members a word of advice. Don't you judge the merits or demerits of your flowers, pick the best blooms, enter them in the show and let the judges do the judging. You will probably be surprised, moreover this is the best way possible of comparing your flowers with those of other exhibitors.

Attention all ladies. An innovation this year is a CLASS FOR HOME COOKING. The committee decided it was high time the little lady was given a chance to display her culinary efforts and added three classes to the show schedule.

SCOTCH SHORTBREAD,
CAKE — ANY VARIETY,
LOAF OF BREAD.

Due to an oversight these three classes were unfortunately omitted from the schedule. The committee is hoping for some real competition in these classes, which will be judged by Mr. Jean Paul Bourcier of Chateauguay Bakery.

Exhibits may be delivered to the Exhibition Hall between 7 p.m. and 10 Friday and 8 a.m. to 10 a.m. on the day of the exhibition.

Doors will be open to the public at 2 p.m. and the show will be officially opened by His Worship Mayor D. Currie at 3 p.m. Afternoon tea will be served and the flowers and vegetables will be sold at 5 p.m.

Students Help Erect Museum

YELLOWKNIFE, N.W.T. (CP) — Young in years but long on the history of the Territories, this northern community is shaping a home for reminders of the Northwest Territories' colorful past.

The thumping of hammers and screech of saws signal steady progress on the Museum of the North being built largely by students under the sponsorship of the Yellowknife Museum Society, scheduled for official opening about July, 1962.

High school students did the excavation and started work on the building last September. A Yellowknife contractor put in the basement and students resumed work this spring.

When students return to school in the fall, interior finishing and construction of display cases to house records of the Territories' early history will be undertaken.

Five-stage construction plans call for extensions to be built in future. The society decided to construct the museum when it found suitable quarters could not be economically rented.

Cost of the museum is estimated at $25,000.

Dog And Child Help Save Another Dog's Life

(by B. Hamilton)

A near tragic mishap occurred on Thursday to Tina, a seven month old German Shepherd dog owned by Mr. Gerry Baker of Violet St.

Tina, who was tied up on the back lawn got a little restless and jumped through the basement window. The rope to which she was tied, was not very long causing Tina to dangle in mid-air. King the other German Shepherd, who was tied up in the carport, sensed something was wrong and barked to attract attention.

Little Carl Noble, a neighbour came over to investigate, peering through the basement window he saw the catastrophe. He rushed home to tell his mother who in turn summoned Mr. Bell of Violet St., for help. Mr. Bell quickly cut the rope and saved Tina's life.

Mr. Baker wishes to express his sincerest gratitude to Mr. Bell, Mrs. Noble, Carl and not forgetting King for saving Tina's life.

Seigniory Park Beach Club News

(by Kathleen M. Cowper)

The Seigniory Park Beach Club, representing Montreal in the Vermont Swimming Championships held in Burlington, piled up seventy-nine points to finish second in the over all team standings, three points behind New Jersey YMCA a total of three hundred swimmers coming from eighteen clubs in the New England States as well as New York and Michigan, took part in the gala event.

The outstanding figures among the Montrealers were Richard Pound who came up with two spectacular victories in the century free style and back stroke of the Senior Men's division and Alison Glendenning who won the breast stroke in girls 15 and 16 years division and fifteen minutes later came through to cop another gold medal in the Senior group. As expected, Steve Rabinovitch won the breast stroke in an easy fashion and placed second behind Pound in the free style.

Two youngsters, Maxiane Berger and Claire Senecal, showed class in free style and breast stroke events respectively leaving behind two New England champions and breaking two meet records.

The Seigninory Park Club lost a great opportunity to win the meet when its winning Senior relay team was disqualified because Jacques Corbeil, swimming butterfly, broke the stroke when caught in the line ropes. The Montrealers set seven new meet records.

East-West Negotiations Over Berlin Appear Certain

East-West negotiations over Berlin now seem virtually certain and there is even a possibility of a summit conference. A summit meeting was predicted by West German Chancellor Adenauer last week, as he told an election rally he was convinced there would be talks with Russia on Berlin.

Soviet Premier Khrushchev told a Kremlin reception at Moscow that negotiations would take place because President Kennedy, Prime Minister Macmillan and President de Gaulle were "sensible men." And in Washington, U.S. State Secretary Dean Rusk told reporters: "I think we all understand that negotiations will occur."

Khrushchev openly staked Russian prestige on the Berlin issue but he declared Russia would not be the first to "press the button" and touch off a nuclear war. He said the West has declared it would fight "allegedly" for the freedom of West Berliners, and commented: "But this is a fairy tale. West Berlin has 2,200,000 inhabitants, but if war is unleashed millions might die."

Despite rigorous police controls 1,332 refugees from East Germany registered in West Berlin in 21 hours up to 1 p.m. last Saturday. In the same period the previous week the figure was 1,100.

REVOLT CRUSHED

A west-pocket midnight revolt against Argentina's President Arturo Frondizi came to an abrupt, bloodless end a few hours later as the last rebel holdouts surrendered.

The diehards gave up without firing a shot after receiving a surrender ultimatum from troops who ringed the telephone exchange in Buenos Aires, which they had seized.

The other insurgents had surrendered less than five hours after seizing the government radio station to broadcast claims they were taking over the government. One of the group claimed they were anti-Communist nationalists with no political links.

NEW SPACEMAN

For more than 25 hours last week a Russian army major, Gherman Stepanovich Titov flew around and around the earth in a spaceship. Weightless all the while, he ate, slept and worked inside his craft. The historic journey ended in the Sartov area 450 miles southeast of Moscow, after Titov had travelled 434,960 miles, going around the earth 17 times, travelling about 300 miles a minute.

"All the space ship's equipment worked without fault," said Titov. "I felt in excellent health."

The first man in space, Russia's Major Yuri Gagarin, was visiting at Pugwash, N.S., at the time of Titov's flight. Gagarin immediately took off for Moscow to be present at the welcoming for Titov.

AIR DISASTER

A British airliners was flying too far to the east when it crashed into a mountain top near Stavenger in Norway, killing 34 London schoolboys. Two teachers and three crew members also lost their lives.

A preliminary report by a Norwegian investigating commission said the plane apparently followed a normal course in its initial landing approach, then went too far to the west.

AIR HIJACKINGS

A French Algerian with a history of mental troubles added to the rash of aircraft hijackings that have caused consternation in the U.S.

Albert Charles Cadon, 27, took over a Pan-American Airways DC-8 jet at gunpoint last Wednesday and forced the pilot to fly to Havana. The plane, with 72 passengers, was en route from Houston, Tex., to Panama.

In Cuba, Premier Fidel Castro ordered the plane returned to the U.S. but held Cadon in Havana. In Washington, U.S. senators vented their anger by pushing through a bill fixing death as the maximum penalty for air piracy. And President Kennedy announced that armed border patrolmen would ride some flights in future.

FIRES ON RAMPAGE

The worst forest fires in Newfoundland's history raced through spruce and fir woods last weekend, driving several hundreds from their homes. Most of the women and children of another four remote fishing villages were crammed aboard schooners or trucks and taken out, while the men remained to fight the fires.

The villages of New Chelsea, Winterton and Hants Harbor on Trinity Bay, 100 miles northeast of St. John's, were evacuated by 600 women and children. Farther northeast 150 women and children of the Bonavista Bay community of Appel Cove were taken to safety aboard the transport department vessel Acadia.

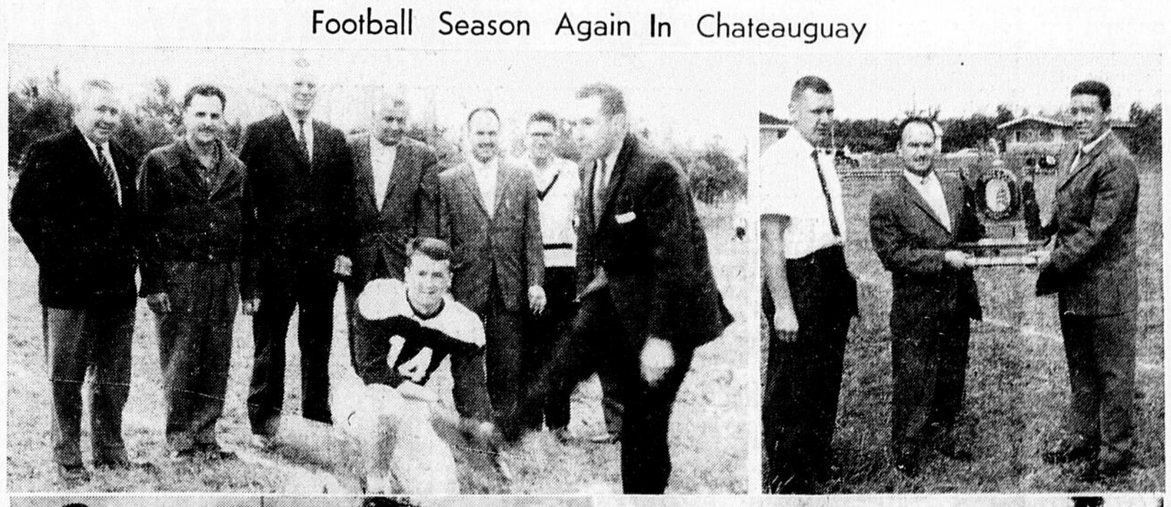

FEDERAL DEFICIT

A budgetary deficit of $340,421,000 for the 1960-61 fiscal year which ended last March 31 was reported last week by Finance Minister Fleming's office. This compares with his June 20 budget speech forecast of a $345,000,000 deficit and with his original prediction in last year's budget speech of a $12,000,000 surplus. For the current fiscal year, the government has budgeted for a $650,000,000 deficit.

Final accounting for the 1960-61 fiscal year showed budgetary revenues at $5,617,639,754, compared with $5,289,751,209 in the previous fiscal year, and Mr. Fleming's June 20 preliminary figure of about $5,616,000,000.

Expenditures rose to $5,958,060,846 from $5,702,861,053, and were about $3,000,000 less than forecast by Mr. Fleming in June. Defence took the biggest share — $1,537,966,276 compared with $1,532,504,546 in 1959-60.

CONNECTING TUNNEL AID FOR HOSPITALS

WINNIPEG (CP) — Winnipeg hospitals have taken a big step toward integration of hospital services in the city.

A ribbon-cutting ceremony recently opened a labyrinth of tunnels connecting Winnipeg General Hospital with the Children's Hospital.

Tunnels eventually will connect these two with the partially-constructed Manitoba rehabilitation hospital and the Cancer Foundation's treatment and research institute, which has yet to be started.

The 320-foot tunnel, built by the sanatorium board of Manitoba with the co-operation of the hospitals concerned, will provide easy access for doctors, hospital personnel and patients between the four institutions. It will also connect the hospitals with the General's psychiatric wing and the medical faculty at the University of Manitoba.

The brightly-lit 12-by-12 foot tunnel contains the piping for the steam which the General Hospital provides to the other institutions from its facilities.

Film On Africa To Be Shown Here

"Black Gold," a feature-length sound, color film produced by the T.L. Osborn Evangelistic Association, will be shown on August 24th, at Heath's Hall, Huntingdon, at 8.00 p.m.

Filmed entirely in Nigeria, West Africa, "Black Gold" is unique in that no scenes were staged and no actors used. Events are captured exactly as they took place. Portraying the jungle of complex pagan mysteries which characterizes so much of Africa, the film has a realism which alters nearly every concept of this neglected land.

Africa, often referred to as "the dark continent," is a strange mixture of organized moslem cities with their towering mosques and poverty stricken villages dominated by witchcraft and hocus-pocus mysticism. "Black Gold" visits these towns and villages, observes a pagan fetish market, captures the hideous, unalterable tribal markings and witnesses virtually every phase of existence surrounding these benighted people.

Missionary-evangelist T. L. Osborn, of Tulsa, Oklahoma, producer and narrator of the film, has conducted mass evangelistic campaigns in over 40 countries, drawing unprecedented crowds. The effects of his campaigns are clearly evidenced in this dramatic film.

"Black Gold" will be presented by Rev. C.C. Grant, a cooperating evangelist with the T.L. Osborn Evangelistic Association. The public is invited and there is no admission charge.

Lawrence Helm Escapes From Prison In U.S. Is Recaptured After Intense Search

Excitement was high when some thirty policemen set out to recapture an escaped prisoner at Alstead, New Hampshire, in the United States.

Lawrence Helm, who is known in Huntingdon, Que., and who since his turn to a life of crime several years ago, was the man the police were after. He is now 32 years of age and had been arrested previously with others as being implicated in a robbery at Alstead. Following this arrest he had been lodged in a cell in the prison and this was located on the second story. With Helm were three other Montrealers: Gilles Asselin, his brother John and Samuel Bercovitch. They had been arrested on July 22nd at Leominster, Mass. They had been taken to Keene to answer an accusation of burglary committed on July 21st, which had netted them $1,000. Protesting their innocence they requested a court hearing.

While they were consulting their lawyer in the prison, Helm and Asselin jumped 30 feet from the second story window and escaped. Asselin was captured a few minutes after, two streets from the prison. Helm, however managed to get farther away and for a longer period. There was an intensive search by the thirty policemen and finally he was caught up with and did not resist arrest.

Helm and Asselin's wives were arrested and accused of helping their husbands to escape. Both admitted having driven Helm around for several days. Two other Montrealers were arrested at Walpon and accused of helping Helm in his escape. They were: John Pearson and Fred Meilleur.

People in Huntingdon will remember at least some of the escapades of Lawrence Helm when he started his life of crime at a very early age right here in this town. He was very clever and covered up his crimes so well that it was thought that an organized gang was at work. It was finally learned that he engineered the various jobs by himself and he was dubbed "The Lone Wolf". Finally he made a little mistake which led to his first being arrested and sent to jail. He served his time and in a few short months after his release he was again in trouble and was sent back for a further term. This has been going on ever since and now apparently he is living in the United States and leading the same sort of life.

VACATIONING IN SUNNY JAMAICA

Emerging from the swimming pool at the world-famous Tower Isle Hotel, situated on Jamaica's picturesque north shore where he is a guest is Mr. Ronald Bruce, school teacher of Huntingdon. This is Mr. Bruce's second visit to the island.

Armand Brunet

net said it did not. The reason was that at about this time wages began to increase and this soon made up any difference in costs.

The stone mostly used was Marble — Blue and White; Granite — Grey and Coloured — Red, Black and Pink. Also used was Laurentian Granite which was quarried at Brownsburg and this was brown in colour. A large number of monuments were made up in this kind of granite. Red and Black granite came from Sweden and was sold to Mr. Brunet through some firms in Scotland. Mr. Brunet said it has been the policy of his firm all through the years to use only good quality stone and workmanship and he has never tried to do, or sell cheap monuments. Many a time he has turned a customer away rather than do an inferior job and one which might be reckoned cheap. As a result, the monuments turned out by this firm have withstood the rigors of time and the firm has maintained a reputation for a good product.

This firm has not stood still and has progressed with the various new methods. As recently as seven years ago, the sand blast method of working the stone was introduced into the business and this has meant another improvement in the time taken and the work done. Further to this, no longer is stone cut and worked at the Brunet Shop. Today, all the stone is cut and made ready by the firms which supply the stone and the Brunet shop just attends to the finishing which is the scrolls and the lettering. Mr. Brunet said that the cost got out of hand several years ago and no longer would workers be content to just work a part of the year. He therefore scrapped his former machinery and obtained his stone from the larger firms. These firms, he said, can keep their men working all the year round and do the jobs more cheaply into the bargain. Some of his former employees are now working for the firm he obtains his supplies from. Just the same, he has plenty of work to do in finishing the monuments and erecting them where required.

Mr. Brunet figures his territory in this day as from Dundee to Laprairie and as far as the county lines. This comprises about 67 cemeteries. During the time he has been in business he has made and erected approximately 3,750 monuments. He also cut the stone for the Memorial Arch at the Ormstown Exhibition Grounds and which forms the monument erected to the memory of those who served and died in World War 1; he made and erected the monument in the Community Centre Memorial Park in memory of those who served and died in World War II.

Another monument was erected at Havelock for those from that area who served and died in World War I.
The two stones that mark the Legion Plots in the Protestant and Catholic Cemeteries in Huntingdon, were also made and erected by this firm.

During the depression years was a hard time for this firm, however, by hard work and persevering, a good business was maintained. Speaking of the early years, Mr. Brunet said that horses were used both for travelling the country for business and the transportation of the stones to the cemeteries. It meant, he said, that he was often away from home for several days at a time. It is much different now with cars and trucks.

Asked for something unusual which might have happened over the years, Mr. Brunet said there was nothing he could remember. Do you have people order their monuments before they die? He said this was not unusual, in fact it was becoming quite common. He had a number of these with the names already cut and erected in various cemeteries, waiting the time when the date of death would be inserted. He said this happened when people, who have no relatives left to look after this sort of thing, decide to do this before they die. He said this sometimes happens many years ahead of the actual death. In this way, these people make sure that their grave will carry a suitable marker.

Mr. Brunet's mother is still living and she is 94 years of age. In her earlier days she used to keep the books for his father and still maintains a lively interest in the business. She is quite alert and has a splendid memory.

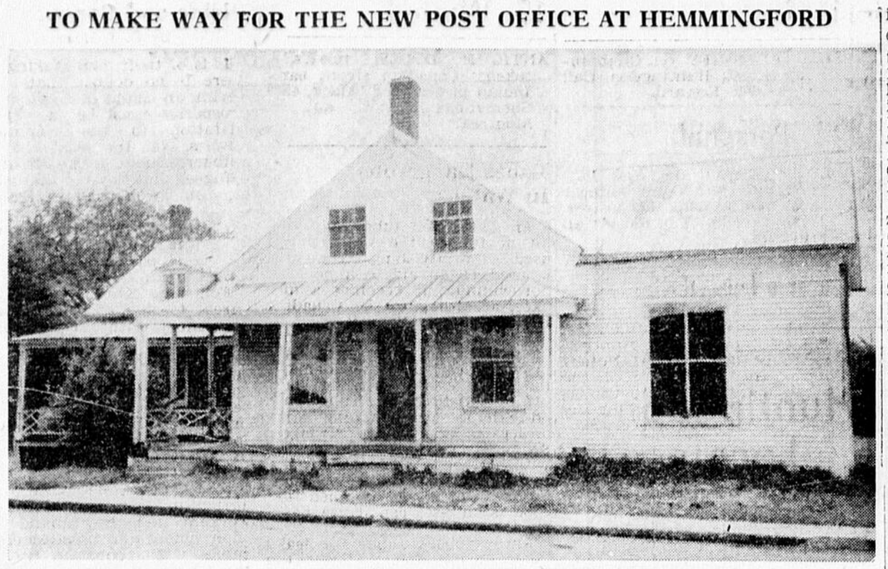

Mr. Brunet was born in Ormstown and lived there all his life. He was married in 1926 to Irena Daoust and has three sons and a daughter. One son and the daughter are married, but the other two sons are in the business with him. These are Bernard and Gilles and thus the business is moving into the third generation. As Mr. Brunet is getting to the point where he feels like retiring, he is gradually leaving more and more for his sons to do and so that they will get a grounding in the business. Some day they will no doubt take over as Armand did from his father.

Mr. Brunet said that the firm had one employee who was with them for 52 years, viz: Treffle Duval, who worked at cutting, lettering and blacksmithing.

Asked if more monuments are sold today than was the case in earlier years, Mr. Brunet replied that there are more sold today. He attributed the fact to the reason that people had more money today.

So Mr. Armand Brunet is celebrating his fiftieth year in the business of making monuments and is proud of the fact that even early monuments are still to be seen standing in most of the cemeteries in the Chateauquay Valley area as a mark to his workmanship and quality of production.

TO MAKE WAY FOR THE NEW POST OFFICE AT HEMMINGFORD

Right The First Time

by C. J. Harris

At his first press conference the chairman of the new Royal Commission on Health Care made it clear that the Commission's concert will be the wellbeing of the public and not the welfare of politicians. The Commission's public hearings will welcome all relevant submissions, stated Chief Justice Emmett Hall of Saskatchewan, but he went on, "We want an objective inquiry, not a show... We will not be catering to sectional interests or political groups."

It is not an unimportant point Vote catching has become a main motive in legislating on health, welfare and social security. Inadequate investigation has been the rule rather than the exception in the field; glittering election promises have generally been fulfilled only with poor performances. As illustrations of the pitfalls there is the 14-year record of the first provincial health insurance scheme, reviewed in the course of a series of articles on Saskatchewan by Stuart Shaw of the Toronto Globe and Mail.

"The one area in which Saskatchewan can be said to have broken new ground," wrote Mr. Shaw, "is in health insurance. In 1947, the Province was the first to establish a comprehensive hospital insurance scheme under which each resident is entitled in case of illness, to free ward care and other specified services. In its first year, the cost of this scheme was $7.5 million, but by 1960 it had reached $35 million. This is paid partly by compulsory premiums now set at $24 annually for an individual and $48 maximum for a family; partly by a special 3 per cent sales tax, and partly by grants from the Dominion, which, in fact, meet 40 per cent of the bill.

"The greatest controversy has arisen, however, not over rising costs but over the service rendered citizens in return for their premiums and taxes. It is obvious that the value of a health insurance scheme depends upon the subscriber being able to get hospital care when he needs it. The Saskatchewan Government however, has never shown much interest in building hospitals or modernizing existing ones. It prefers to leave this to the municipalities — whose resources are often inadequate — and it gives them little assistance. Between 1947 and 1958, the number of hospital beds in Saskatchewan increased only from 9,184 to 10,612. In Alberta during the same period the increase was from 9,111 to 14,616 beds and in Ontario from 40,688 to 58,029... Indeed, looking at the record of the last 17 years — the haphazard experiments in public ownership, the attempt to provide hospital insurance without building hospitals, the bad beginning of the health service — one is bound to wonder if all these radical policies were not planned with an eye more for political advantage than for solid progress."

Once it is law, even a faulty welfare program is almost impossible to change. Surely it is time that we learned that the proper course is to keep politics out of the picture and plan right in the first instance.

Tubes Dangerous In Water

An old inner tube can be a lot of fun in the water if it's used as a plaything. If a tube is used as an aid to a poor or nonswimmer, it becomes a menace, according to the Canadian Highway Safety Council.

Besides creating a false sense of security, an inner tube used in water can do other damage, too. If the user tries to show off by twisting the tube into odd shapes or wrapping arms or legs in it, even the strongest swimmer can become tangled with his head under the surface. Metal valves, if not taped and directed drownward when the tube is in use, can cause nasty scratches.

Always check tubes for leaks before using them, advises the Rubber Association of Canada, and closely watch patched or chafed areas for weaknesses. The association also declares it is better to underinflate a tube than to overinflate it.

A tube can be fun in the water only if precautions are taken to assure the user's safety.

Divide and Conquer

by C. J. Harris

It is of their own making, but there is no doubt that West Berlin, an island of freedom and prosperity, must be a terrible irritation to the communist powers. Not the least of the embarrassment is the stream of refugees that flows to that island and on through the 100-mile escape corridor to the West. By all Marxian logic the flow should be in the other direction, to the "workers' paradise" behind the Iron Curtain.

Following Khrushchev's latest threat to sign a separate peace agreement with East Germany the stream mounted to a new peak of 3,000 arrivals over a single week-end. Mainly, of course, the refugees fled through fear that the Berlin loophole might be closed. But all spoke of food shortages, and farmers told of the ruin of the farms through bureaucratic bungling since the forced total collectivization of agriculture last spring. Industrial workers said they abandonned their homes and possessions because of the constant pressure to work more, for less pay. Others forecast that the East German government will soon impose the "internal passport" system, identity cards valid only for a local district that will mean the loss of freedom of movement within the country.

However, the communists' revival of the Berlin crisis probably has motives other than simply to close the escape route and wreck West Berlin's prosperity. Perhaps China is pressing Moscow to act tougher. Perhaps Moscow wants a war scare to distract the attention of the Russians from food shortages and other economic problems. More likely, however, the main motive is the old one of attempting to divide the Western powers.

There is no legal question of the Allied military rights of conquest in West Berlin. The United States, the United Kingdom and France are fully empowered to garrison West Berlin to protect the city's independence and its people, and to have access to the city. These rights exist until they are relinquished by treaty or violated by force or arms. Nor will these rights be lost to the Allies if Russia signs a separate peace treaty with East Germany.

However, it now appears that East Germany, backed by Moscow, will soon claim that the Allied rights of conquest do not include freedom of civilian traffic to West Berlin. This would be contrary to the acknowledgment definetely given by Russia in the Four-Power Agreement of 1949. It is a point that would make a nice case for an international court of law. But the communists are not willing to debate the point in a court of law. They hope that bluster and doubletalk will scare us into a backdown on Berlin and bring disunity in the West.

Bent Rim, Wheel Can Ruin Tire

The life of an automobile tire can be considerably shortened and danger to the car and its occupants increased by a bent or dented wheel or rim. Adding to this peril is the fact that rim and wheel damage is not easily noticed. The Canadian Highway Safety Council joins with the Rubber Association of Canada to urge motorists to make regular inspections of rims and wheels. It takes but a few minutes and could save a life.

The vital importance of a car wheel, the contact between car and road, is evident. A bent wheel wobbles as it turns, twists and wrings the rubber and wears the tire unevenly. This will destroy the tire. Wheels can be bent by driving in ruts, swerving heavily against curbs, or in accidents.

Driving against a curb can bent a rim. The tire's bead moves a little at every turn of the wheel and in time the tire will chafe through and fail at that point. Rust can pit a rim where the tire fits on it, causing leaks with tubeless tires. Rusted rims should be cleaned and polished to remove the scale and restore a smooth surface.

New Nickels All Canadian From Now On

OTTAWA (CP) — The Royal Canadian Mint has placed an order for nickel coin blanks with a Canadian company—the first such order in the Mint's history. The finance department announced last week an order has been placed for 10,000,000 of the blanks with Sherrit Gordon Mines Limited.

Since 1922, when pure nickel was first used in Canadian fivecent pieces, the government has imported the blanks from foreign companies.

Mint officials said it is the first time that Canadian producers have put out a suitable nickel blank at competitive prices.

The Courage Of Youth

Recently in South Carolina there was a traffic automobile accident which claimed the lives of three young men. A fourth youth also might have been a casualty had he not exercised uncommon good sense.

The still living youth who, shortly before the fatal accident, told the boys to let him out because the driver was travelling too fast. He ignored the pleadings of his soon-to-be-doomed campanions to be a good sport and go along with the crowd.

This young man's action should serve as an example to others. It is not "chicken" to refuse to take foolish and unnecessary risks. It takes courage to go against the crowd. How many more young people would be alive today if they had followed their instincts rather than the crowd?

Teatime Topics

Have you ever had a neighbor tell you the name of one of your plants, then looked it up in a botany book and found the plant has another name?

To end such confusion the International Plant Index is compiling a master index of the world's 1,700,000 plants.

For years, botanists have identified and named plants but scientists working in different times and places have often attached different names to the same plant.

At the Connecticut agricultural experiment station in New Haven, Conn., a roomful of equipment is cataloguing the work.

The cards, which will index the plants by group, family, genus and species names, will include the author who first identified the plant and pertinent details about publications where he first classified it.

The results will be published in some 50 volumes for researchers throughout the world.

TASTY DRESSINGS

It's salad season and, of course the season for dressing too. Here are four dressings which can be made in just a few minutes.

For hot or cold fish try tarragon dressing. Combine 1 cup mayonnaise; 1 tb. sp. catsup; 1 tsp. lemon juice; 1 tsp. chopped fresh tarragon. Stir all ingredients to make a pale, rosy dressing.

For Andalouse dressing for cold asparagus tip salad, mixed green salad, egg salad or cold meat, combine 1 cup mayonnaise ½ cup catsup; 1 small tin pimentos, drained and chopped; ½ tsp. paprika.

Russian dressing, good with seafood or tossed green salads, can be made by combining 2 cups mayonnaise; ¼ cup catsup; 1 tbsp. chopped, canned pimento; 1 tbsp. chopped chives.

Avocado dressing can be made from 1 cup French dressing; 1 tbsp. catsup; and 1 tbsp. grated horseradish. Shake well and pour over avocado halves on crisp salad greens.

NEW PRODUCT

Polytetrafluoroethylene is a fat name for a product which can replace cooking fats in frying pans.

It's the generic name for a plastic which is sprayed on aluminum frying pans and baked at a temperature of 750 degrees.

The coating enables one to fry eggs, steaks and other foods without the use of grease or shortenings and the food won't stick to the pan.

The producers say the plastic-coated pan can be cleaned with a wipe of a dish cloth or sponge.

They're also expected to be a boon to people whose diet forbids fat-fried foods.

TO WASH GREENS

To wash dandelion greens, young spinach or leaf lettuce, cut off the roots and bruised leaves and swish up and down in the sink or in a pan of lukewarm water. Lift out and shake them instead of draining off the water. Keep using fresh water until they are thoroughly clean.

Taste as you go. That's the advice of the experts when it comes to making sandwich fillings.

August is sandwich month and the federal agriculture department has preparation tips for homemakers. First: try the filling with the bread to make sure it has sufficient seasoning and flavor interest.

Make certain that the filling is sufficiently moist to prevent dryness in the sandwich but not so moist that it seeps into the bread. Complement the flavor of the filling with the ingredient used for moisture — such as salad dressing, mayonnaise, milk, cream, catsup, chili sauce or fruit juice.

Flat fillings can be pepped up with salt and pepper, a few drops of lemin juice, vinegar, pepper sauce or Worcestershire sauce, prepared or dry mustard chopped pickles or olives, horseradish or whatever seems most suitable. But be sure to add only a little at a time.

Something crisp or crunchy is suggested for the filling. You might try adding lettuce, cucumber, pickle, nuts, celery, green pepper, carrot or cabbage.

And for a touch of originality add a trace of a suitable herb or spice. Mustard goes well with cheese, basil with tomatoes, curry or savory with chicken, oregano with lamb or pork, celery seed with cole slaw, marjoram with onion and cayenne with egg.

For meat sandwiches, use several thin slices of meat rather than one thick one.

VINTAGE CADILLAC IS STILL RUNNING

DAWSON CREEK, B.C. (CP) — Cadillacs are not commonly seen on the streets of this northeastern British Columbia community. Especially rare is a 1929 model of the car.

And when owner Roy Kidston, a towboat worker in Vancouver, tells you his car still has its original motor, averages 12 miles a gallon on the highway and made the 750-mile trip here from Vancouver without so much as a flat tire, it is easy to overlook the "square" body style.

Within an hour of his arrival here, Mr. Kidston was offered a 1956 automobile in an even trade for his partially-restored antique.

But this proud owner has other plans. He said he intends to restore the car to showroom condition after driving it back to his home city. Cost of the job, estimates Mr. Kidston, would be about $8,000.

LAST CLASSES

HALIFAX (CP) — The Acadian school, established for poor children in downtown Halifax 147 years ago, has housed its last classes. As the city demolishes rows of worn-out homes, the demand for the old brick building diminishes.

Cry Of Anguish

Have you ever talked to a driver who has killed someone — a little child, a young woman, a happy man? If you have, you have seen a sick and broken person. He has seen for but a brief moment the look of terror in his victim's face. He has felt the impact of his car smashing bone and flesh. He has heard the cry of anguish. And why? Maybe he was in a hurray to get to the office. Maybe he glanced away from the road too long. Maybe he passed a car on a hill. Maybe he was sleepy and tired and failed to pull off the road. Maybe he was a speed-artist, or maybe he was drunk. Whatever the cause, he killed someone.

The year is still young and while experience has proven that some of us will kill someone before it is over, a little reflection on our responsibility will save lives (probably more than you think!). Let us remember that we have definite moral obligations when at the wheel. Let's remember that a car is not a toy to be played with. Let's remember that God made the human body of bone and flesh, not indestructible materials that can withstand the weight of a speeding car. And, let's remember that it is so easy to be responsible for the death or maiming of a person, but not so easy to forget what we have done.

Well folks, as summer is quickly coming to an end for this year and fall draws closer so do thoughts of school and the 1961-62 term. The new High School erected next to Maple School is almost ready for occupancy and from the looks of the outside your writer believes students are going to enjoy a good year. Boys and girls who have been away from Chateauguay since June are in for a surprise when they see all the new houses that have been built within view of the school. Most of the kids who finished at Maple a year ago and who have been commuting to schools in town are looking forward to going to their own High School here in Chateauguay. Although we haven't heard much lately, there may be a new English Catholic School near Vetville for next year, let's hope so!

-o-

A dance was held Saturday night at the Chateauguay Heights Recreation Club and even though there was a heavy rain and strong winds there was a good turn-out of teenagers. A rock-'n-roll contest was held with the winners receiving records as awards. On behalf of all the teenagers, your writer wishes to thank Mr. and Mrs. Gagnon who chaperoned the dance. On August 25th another dance will be held, but there will be more with regard to this in next week's column.

-o-

On Saturday night, August 19, a dance will be held at the Chateauguay Aquatic Club. Everyone is welcome so let's see a large turnout. Also, don't forget the Aquatic Club Tombola being held on the Pie XII school grounds on the 17th to 19th inc. It looks as though it will be a lot of fun, so come one, come all.

-o-

We hear Steven Reiffenstein of 88 Carlyle, Chateauguay Heights, is spending this week at Georgian Lake with his uncle and aunt. Steven recently asked for a Chateauguay Gleaner route in The Heights but was told there were none available. He then asked if he could start one and was told if he could find 15 new customers, he could have a route too. Within a few days Steven (with a little help from Mrs. McCutcheon) handed in a list of 24 new subscribers and said he would be adding more customers to his route when he returned.

While on the subject of Gleaner routes, an additional route boy is required in the newer part of Prudential. Before canvassing for subscribers, however it would be well for anyone wanting a route to phone either Mrs. McCutcheon at OX. 2-6068 or Mr. Robinson at OX. 2-8566 and arrange an interview.

-o-

Now that R.L. is a free man again he has his eye on one of his former favourites. Good luck boy... B.D. was seen having fun Saturday night after seeing a certain girl... Understand a group of youngsters who have been rifling pockets of clothes left unprotected on the beach while the owners went swimming have been apprehended. These kids have been stealing lighters, cigarettes, money, watches, etc. all summer and it is good thing they have been arrested before these "small" thefts lead them into lives of crime.

-o-

All teenagers are invited to use this column. To have your news in the Chateauguay Gleaner, simply phone OX.-2-2440 and ask for Wayne. How about phoning me before Sunday night and telling me how you spent your vacation. Or if you have a special beef, let's hear it and hear what other kids think about it. This is your column, please use it.

Covering The Sports

A dull bronze trophy, fastened to a weathered wooden base, proclaims that Canada holds a world championship.

It's the Harmsworth Trophy, won for world supremacy in the noisy, wet world of unlimited-class powerboating. But strangely, in a land where the Stanley Cup and Grey Cup are national symbols, this rust-colored tablet is almost unknown.

And it isn't for lack of a colorful history.

The trophy-formally the British International Trophy—was donated by Alfred Harmsworth who later became Lord Northcliffe of the famous British newspaper chain.

England won it first when it was put up for competition in 1903. The next year it went to France, then back to England for two years. The United States held it for four years, then England regained it for two.

Then Gar Wood came along and the trophy went to the United States for 36 years.

First Triple Win

Canada's Miss Supertest 111 has won it the last three years—the first time a single boat has ever scored a triple win.

Millions have been spent to possess this trophy.

Harry Esders of Paris spent $100,000 to build Excelsior in 1925. She was destroyed by fire in a trial run.

In 1926 he built another, at greater expense. This one actually started in a Harmsworth race in the Detroit River. She dived to the bottom after running only a few minutes.

Canada first got interested in 1930 when Marion Carstairs of England entered two boats—one built at Gravenhurst, Ont., and designed by Bert Hawker, a Canadian boat-maker.

Hawker drove his own creation—Estelle V—in the race, but a gas tank seam opened and dumped gallons of volatile fuel into the cockpit.

Estelle IV, driven by Miss Carstairs, hit a log in the first race.

Famous Series

The famed Kaye Don of England came over in 1931 with Miss England 11 and won the first of the best-of-three heats from the U.S. Gar Wood, in the second heat, drove Miss America IX across the starting line ahead of the gun, drawing Don over offside also. This left Wood's second boat — Miss America VIII — the only fair boat in the race. But it didn't matter. Don turned over his craft on the first turn.

The boats have come in all sizes. Miss Supertest weighs more than 7,000 pounds—much of it in her 2,000-horsepower engine.

Wood packed 6,500 horsepower into Miss America X.

But despite its colorful past few boats can be found suitable to enter the Harmsworth these days.

The ugly bronze tablet has fallen victim to the jet age—nobody is doing research on the big reciprocal engines any more. For that matter, few countries are building them.

It seems the Harmsworth has gone just about as far as it can go.

Remarks A Hotel Desk Clerk Gets Tired Of Hearing

Remarks a hotel dest clerk gets tired of hearing:

"But I tell you my name really is John Smith!"

"This is Room 812. There is a party going on in the room next door. Will you please ask them to be more quiet?"

"Whaddaya mean you're all filled up, and I need a reservation? What am I—an Indian?"

"Now, don't look so flustered when you register, Joe. Otherwise" — giggle, giggle— "he'll be sure to recognize we're on our honeymoon."

"This is Room 1210. Could you please arrange to switch us to another room? My wife doesn't like the wallpaper in this one."

"Hello, hello! You told me you'd give me a room with one of those new hideaway beds. Well, you sure did. I give up. Where is the bed?"

"Why is it that every time I go to a hotel that says it has single rooms from $8 to $16, the only ones empty are the $16 ones?" Who lives in the $8 room — you?"

"This is Room 812 again. That party in 814 is getting wilder. They are running up and down the hall now barefooted. What are you going to do about it?"

"My bill comes to $11.65. Can you cash my personal cheque for $200? I'll need some pocket money to get out of town. No, I've never stayed here before."

"Hello, I'm the fellow in 1210 you switched to 1806 an hour ago. I hate to bother you again, but can you switch us just once more? My wife is afraid of heights and we need a room on a lower floor."

"This is Room 812, and this is my last warning. Either that racket next door in 814 stops in three minutes, or I call the police."

"This is the housekeeper. Can you catch the couple that just checked out of 706? Four towels, two blankets, a bedspread and a floor lamp are missing."

"I gave your bellboy a dime tip, and he sneered openly as he left. Please connect me with the manager."

"This is Room 812. Never mind about that party going on in 814. They just knocked on my door and invited me to join it, and I am—in my pajamas."

"This is the fellow that you switched from 1210 up to 1806 likes this room fine but wonders and then down to 219. My wife if we can't have one just like it with a front view) What're the chances?"

"My little boy just bumped his head through the television screne. No, we don't want a doctor, but could you send up another TV set right away? My little boy is crying. It's his favorite programme."

"Thish ish the man in 812 that joined the party going on in 814. Boy, what a shindig! But your hotel dick is up here telling us we gotta quiet down. What a nerve! We're jush havin' a little fun. Tell him to go away or I'll call the cops—so help me!"

70 Goes Into 30

by C. J. Harris

It is a grim prospect but in the Canada of the future the untrained are likely to be the unemployed, almost the unemployables. This problem and some answers to it were the subject of a recent speech to a convention of Ontario technical educators by J.M. Pigott, chairman of the Pigott Construction Company. Nothing the forecast that 70 per cent of children presently in Grade Two will leave school before they reach junior matriculation level, Mr. Pigott added the point that, even now, of all jobs available to Canadian workers only 30 per cent are open to the untrained. Since 70 does not go into 30, unemployment is the future prospect for most of the early school-leavers.

A greatly expanded apprenticeship program in industry would be part of the problem's solution, urged Mr. Pigott, but along with that there must be a more realistic attitude on the part of both parents and young people. "My company", Mr. Pigott related, "a construction company ordinarily carrying from 20 to 25 apprentices, is frequently faced with the visit of a father or mother with a boy whom they wish to apprentice so that he can learn a trade and the reason given is almost always the same, he takes no interest in school. I am sure you will agree with me that very few of us liked school It always needed the pressure of parents — very intensive, anxious pressure — to see that homework was done and progress made in school... I believe firmly that the wages paid to young men and women in their teens are much too high for their own good. The boys today have their minds set so firmly on owning a car of their own and possessing things that other people possess that they leave school to get an income. When you look at the wages that unskilled young men can get in industry, and have been getting up to a year ago, one can recognize I think one of the main problems we have to face."

Nor is it only impatient youth that is betrayed by the lure of big money. Mr. Pigott recalled that when he started in the construction business in Hamilton that city had a population of 65,000, bricklayers received 40 cents an hour, and the union had 400 members. "Today", he went on, "they get over $3.00 an hour and, in spite of the fact that the city has grown to four times its size then,the union membership would not exceed 125 men." It was a very demanding union; only a bricklayer's son could learn the trade, and they led all labor in enforcing higher wages. Inevitably, they priced themselves out of work, replaced by other materials and other construction methods.

At that, considering the example set by many of their elders, the improvidence of today's youngsters may not be too difficult to understand.

Tailored Kitchen

The housewife who spends much time in her kitchen should have equipment planned so that she suffers the minimum of inconvenience. A tall woman who has to use a low sink or ironing board or the short woman who must stretch up to cupboards and counters set too high for comfort may both become fatigued. When planning the home, the kitchen should be designed for the housewife who will spend much time in this household laboratory.

Police have been busy drawing up drivers when they are around but a near accident during the week proves the fact that the sign is either not being noticed or is being ignored. Smarten up fellows, it has been placed there to lessen the danger at the next street which happens to be a Railway Crossing. Too often we hear people say! 'Oh we have lived here all our lives and we never had to go around before and we are not going to do it now', Count yourself lucky to be able to go around, you won't if you ignore the sign.

Changes To Come In Family Motoring

TORONTO — Vast changes are coming in family motoring — but they'll come gradually, says the August issue of "Imperial Oil Review" in an article based on interviews with automotive and fuels experts.

The piston engine will be with us for at least five and possibly 20 years but it will be much improved, the Imperial Oil magazine says. It may some day be replaced by the fuel cell, which converts chemical energy into electrical energy, or the rotating combustion engine. A current experimental rotating combustion engine produces 100 h.p., is only 16 inches long and has one long central rotor which, from the end view, looks somewhat like a triangle with curved sides. It has no pistons; only one redesigned type of spark plug; a liquid cooling system and a carburator. Other possibilities are the gas turbine engine, electric cars with solar charged batteries, thermionics (producing electricity by the combustion of fuel), and the free piston engine (operating on the diesel principle with no spark plug and, at most, two pistons).

Tires are getting better, the article continues. The industry is developing new types of cord and experimenting with such material as dacron and glass. A year round tire that has anti-skid material embedded in its tread is in the research stage.

Special metal brake linings which prevent "fade" during emergency stops may replace the present fibrous lining. Mufflers will be more durable and a new catalytic type will completely burn away or neutralize harmful exhaust gases, the Review says.

Bodies will have new rust preventatives, salt resistant undercoatings and more durable paints. There'll be more development work on plastic bodies. New greases will make possible permanent chassis and suspension lubrication at the factory.

According to the Review, highways may become automatic with cars responding to electronic signals, possibly from buried cables. Before that we'll see asphalt binders that will contribute to crack-free roads, asphalt pavement that will bear several times present loads and colored road surfaces to define routes at cloverleafs, indicate speed zones or even reduce eye fatigue and influence driver's mood.

Designers will pay special attention to women and cars will be designed accordingly with lighted vanity mirrors on sun visors, four sets of seat covers (one per season), fancy carpets in trunks and special shelves for purses, the article concludes.

Thirsty?

When out on a hike in hot weather, little wayside streams or even pumps or wells on abandoned prpoerty should not be allowed to tempt the thirsty walker to drink. Water from such sources may be badly polluted, regardless of how crystal clear they seem to be. If such water must be used, it should be boiled for more than five minutes or else treated with one of the commercial water purifiers on which the druggist can advise. Before depending upon water from any source at camp or cottage, a sample should be tested by the local water works. The local health department can inform enquirers as to procedure for this.

Your Lawn This Summer

Lawns are in fine condition this summer, as compared with last year. The generally cool weather and frequent rains have favoured exceptional growth of turf, for the following reasons:

1. — The grass grows better when it is cool. When the temperature stays at 85° or over, growth ceases and the plants gradually turn yellow, even though conditions are otherwise very favourable;

2. — Cool weather reduces transpiration and thus slows down loss of water from the soil;

3. — Finally, frequent rains encourage the growth of the many lawns which have been made on too thin a layer of good soil. Owners of such lawns may rejoice this year, but not too heartily, because fortune will not often smile on them.

In spite of such good conditions, there may be more sombre clouds on the horizon. Some lawns may be turning yellow even during this moist summer. In certain cases, these may be suffering to some extent from want of moisture, or the roots may lack air or nourishment: or the trouble may be caused by a combination of these deficiencies.

It may seem strange to be hearing of drought in a wet season. But think of an asphalt pavement. After a shower, the streets dry quickly. The same thing happens to a lawn if the ground is too hard, no matter how thick the underlying layer of good soil. Moreover, if water cannot soak into hard ground, air will scarcely penetrate it either, and the lawn will suffer not only from lack of moisture but also from the poisonous effects of almost complete lack of aeration at root level. The paths trodden by pedestrians across vacant lots provide a typical example of packed soil where nothing will grow. Small lawns and parts of the lawn near the house are more likely to be trodden more often. Lastly, hard or clay soil becomes packed more readily than sandy land, but in the end the results are the same in both cases.

Mr. André Sauvé of the Quebec Department of Agriculture recommends the following measures for the prevention and correction of packed soil:

1. — Reduce trampling to a minimum and give natural processes such as wetting and drying, freezing and thawing, a chance to act. Water the lawn very slowly;

2. — Pierce or slit the surface of the lawn to a depth of 3 or 4 inches with special implements;

3. — If the soil is clay, it may be removed and replaced to a depth of six inches with sandy loam;

4. — Plough up the lawn and mix with the soil a generous amount of organic matter in the form of strawy manure, peat or muck soil, sawdust, etc.

As already mentioned, lawns which now look yellow may in some cases be suffering from lack of nourishment, and many people will let almost anybody persuade them that, during a summer like the present one, undernourishment is most likely to be the cause of the trouble. Nevertheless, the truth is quite otherwise. Drought and poor aeration at root level, as described above, are more frequent causes by far.

"Elmer" Goes National

"Elmer the Safety Elephant", a primary school traffic safety program initially restricted to Toronto, more recently to Ontario, will be available next year to schools across Canada. "Elmer" has proven so acceptable and effective in Ontario schools that the Canadian Highway Safety Council was asked to take it on as one of its projects. The Council agreed and "Elmer" officially will be launched in time for the 1962 fall term.

The Toronto Telegram originated "Elmer" and still holds the copyright. When "Elmer" (who never forgets) became popular in Toronto Schools tarough the assistance of the Toronto (now Metropolitan) Traffic Safety Council, the Telegram asked the Ontario Safety League to administer the program province-wide. Now CHSC has "Elmer" under its nation-wide wing through the co-operation of the Telegram and OSL.

The likeness of the elephant appears on a six-foot pennant flown from the flagpole of a school until a pupil causes a traffic accident. Then a mournful assembly is held and the flag is lowered. If the school goes 30 days without a traffic mishap, a happier ceremony raises the pennant again. Police and local safety officials are prominent in these ceremonies and all "Elmer" activities.

CHSC will encourage provincial safety groups to promote "Elmer" in the provinces.

Post Office Encourages "Printed In Canada" Mailings

Changes in postal regulations designed to discourage a misleading appearance of Canadian origin in foreign printed and advertising material brought to Canada for mailing were announced recently by Postmaster General William Hamilton.

Under existing postal regulations to avoid placing postage stamps on each of many identical pieces of printed advertising material, bulk postage may be paid at the time of mailing. A permit obtained from the Post Office is printed on the envelope as an indication that this has been done. Such permits are termed "postage-paid-in-cash."

In somewhat similar fashion "business reply electros" are made available to prepay postage on business reply post cards. Until the present, no restrictions had been placed on the use of these special permits for material printed outside Canada. Under the new regulations, which go into effect, October 1, the Post Office will no longer make available either type of permit for materials printed abroad for mailing in Canada.

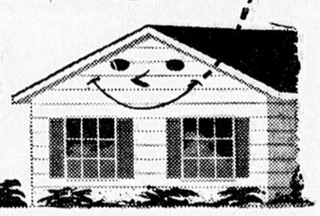

In announcing the change, Postmaster General Hamilton said that in the past some foreign advertisers had used Canadian postage-paid-in-cash dies to give their material a "made in Canada" appearance. The inclusion in foreign periodicals and advertising materials of business-reply cards bearing Canada Post Office permit numbers had heightened this impression, he said. In future, the post office will decline to issue such electros to foreign publishers or advertisers unless written assurance is furnished that the electro will be used only on mail matter printed in Canada.

The change in regulations coincides with a recent announcement by the Postmaster General that, effective August 1, the postage rate on foreign publications mailed in Canada would be increased from an average of about two and one-half cents per pound to a flat rate of five cents per pound.

Mr. Hamilton said that the rate and regulation changes had been under study for some time by the post office and that their implementation also conformed with recommendations of the Royal Commission on Publications recently tabled in the House of Commons.

Ormstown's new Post Office was officially opened last Thursday evening. A large crowd gathered to witness the ribbon cutting ceremony and to inspect the building. M. Barrington, the local Federal representative acted as master of ceremonies. Rev. P. R. Stote gave the invocation prayer, followed by a few words by Mr. Barrington, Mayor McCormick, Msgr. Langlois, former Post Master Mr. G. McLaren and Mr. Demers the present Post Master. The closing prayer was given by Rev. C. Hood. Mr. M. E. Barrington then cut the ribbon, which barracaded the door, thus indicating the office was open to the public. The office was blessed by Msgr Langlois, then Mr. Demers acted as host to the many interested citizens who inspected this "Property of the People". The large airy office will be a cheerful place for the post office staff to work, there is an ample kitchenette, up to date wash rooms and the very latest in Post Office Equipment fo a town of this size. All box numbers remain the same as in the old office.

One Quarter Of A Million Dollars Announced By Canon Lucien Beauchamp

Last Friday, Canon L. Beauchamp, Rector of the Valleyfield Seminary announced that one quarter of a million dollars had already been subcribed to "Le Fonds de Construction" of the Seminary. This figure represents gifts from 113 priests, alumni and laymen who have been solicited during the last seven weeks.

Except for the committee of the Faculty of the Seminary and the committee of the Diocesan Clergy, which have submitted their reports, no other official report has been made. Consequently, the actual subscriptions from the alumni section are not complete and the figure for the alumni solicitation will undoubtedly increase after the first official report is made in the near future.

The solicitation of the Faculty was under the chairmanship of Father Paul-Emile Leduc, Vice-Rector of the Seminary. The Diocesan Clergy was solicited by the Religious regional Deans: Msgr D. Julien for Beauharnois; Canon A. Pilon for Chateauguay; Msgr J.A. David for Huntingdon; Canon H. Cuillierrier for Soulanges; Msgr Jean-Denis Cadieux for Valleyfield and Canon A. Brazeau for Vaudreuil.

Mr. Léo-Georges Perron, General Chairman of the campaign, pointed out that the actual average gift to the Seminary is two thousands dollars.

Because the campaign is still in the organizational stage, no other solicitation has been conducted. At present, committees are being formed for the solicitation of the Industrial Firms, Municipal Corps, School Commissions, Banks, Caisses Populaires, etc. When the memberships are completed, these campaign areas will be solicited. This solicitation will have to be terminated before the middle of September, at which time solicitation will be organized for each of the sixty parishes in the diocese.

Entries Coming In For Huntingdon Fair

Entries are coming in for Huntingdon Fair which will be held on August 31st, September 1st and 2nd. This is about the earliest that entries have been received says Mr. Leon Beaudin the secretary, and he hopes that now this has started it will continue right up until Fair time.

A midway has been secured so that the children will be able to enjoy the merry rides they like so much.

Membership tickets are selling well and they are worth getting now as they allow five admissions to the Fair on Fair Days. Membership is also required when making entries, so get yours now and get those entries in.

On the opening night a parade of floats is to be held to get the Fair off to a good start. Everyone can help in this by making this parade a real outstanding one. Plan to enter a float of some kind or a decorated bicycle or anything that will add to the parade. Get your entries in for this right now so that the committee will know what they have to arrange for. The more cooperation that is given in this, the greater will be the success of the Fair. A band will lead the parade and in the event of wet weather it will be held the next evening.

Rotarians Shown Film On Salmon Fishing

Walter A. "Swat" Dixon, Director of Advertising and Public Relations for New Brunswick Electric Power Commission, of Fredericton, N.B. was guest speaker at the Huntingdon Rotary Club on Monday. Introduced by his brother, George F. Dixon, the speaker said he was happy to be back in his home town for a visit and had looked up some of the old haunts of yesteryears including Clay Bottom, Russell's Island, the Lower Bridge and other places where he and his old gang went swimming. A number of Rotarians being on vacation, the speaker only found one of his "old gang" present, Earle C. Martin, who remarked his shins were still sore from the days he played hockey against the visitor.

A past president of the New Brunswick Forest and Game Protection Association, Mr. Dixon is a keen fisherman and showed the Rotarians a film entitled "Salmon Fishing on the Miramichi". The film was in color and showed anglers fly-casting for the gleaming twelve-pound game fish and various methods of landing the catch. The 15-minute film was of special interest because the anglers were all friends of the speaker's and once of twice the cameraman had included him in the film. Mr. Dixon gave a running commentary on the film and later explained that the salmon have two runs in the Miramichi, one in July and one in September.

Bob Reid, owner of the Chateauguay Hotel at Chateaugay, N.Y., was an invited guest at the meeting. Mr. Reid is also an ardent fisherman and he has also caught salmon in the Miramichi.

ABANDONED RELIC

ATIKOKAN, Ont. (CP) — An old logging engine abandonned in the bush near this northwestern Ontario mining community will be salvaged for display in a museum planned by the department of lands and forests. The little steam engine was last used to haul logs 35 years ago.

About 300 Boys and Girls Enjoy Rotary Picnic at Lac Hermas, Hemmingford

Upwards of 300 boys and girls attended the picnic held at Lac Hermas, Hemmingford under the auspices of the Huntingdon Rotary Club. President H. A. D. Somerville, M.P.P., had everything well arranged for the afternoon at Lac Hermas, Messrs Fortin, owners of the recreation grounds and Lac Hermas were also present. A goodly number of lifeguards were on duty supervising the swimming. Mr. Fortin intimated that the depth of water in the swimming area was up to four feet in depth. Beyond the floats the water was up to five feet in depth, but no swimming was permitted in that area. In the second lake which covers an area of 10 acres water skiing is the popular sport. Messrs. Fortin have acquired another 10 acres of land and this lake is to be increased in size by 10 acres. The entire area used as a recreation park is 200 acres in size and across the road from it Messrs. Fortin own another 200 acres of land. The park is well laid out there being a substantial area set apart for camping in a bush. What was ones a gravel pit has been filled in and converted into a driving range for golf enthusiasts.

In order to have some control over the influx of week end visitors a charge is made of $1.50 per car. Hemmingford folks are welcomed to use the park free of charge. What revenue is received each year is used to help maintain the general appearance of the grounds.

Rotarians accompanied the boys and girls who were transported in autos and three school busses. Each boy and girl received 25c from the Rotary Club after they had their swim which permitted them to buy themselves a treat at the refreshment stand.

Good Attendance At Symposium Held Last Saturday

Mr. Eric Wesselow of Chateauguay Heights, held a demonstration of watercolor painting in the High School Cafeteria at Huntingdon, on Saturday afternoon. There was a very good attendance and rapt attention was paid to Mr. Wesselow as he lectured on the art of watercolor painting. This was the first of three such lectures that the famous artist will give here.

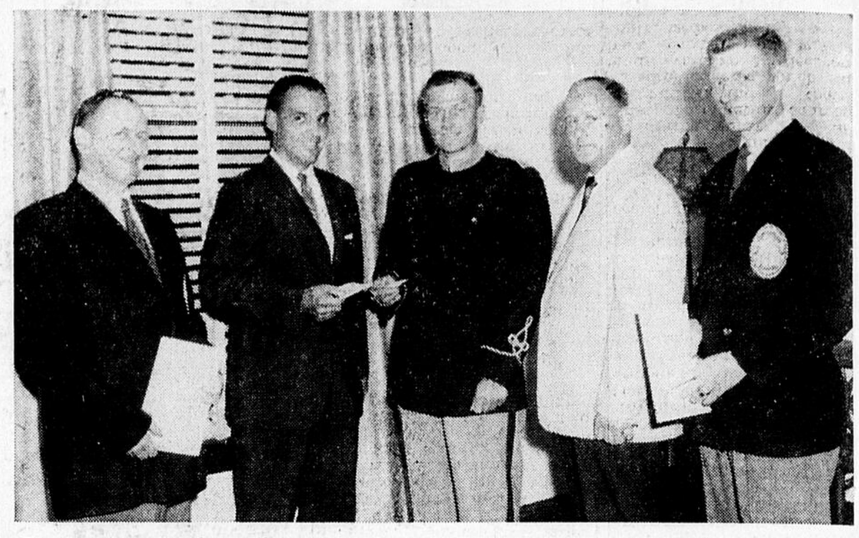

Mr. Wesselow is well known to a large number of people in this Chateauguay Valley area and his subjects are very dear to many people in Huntingdon and district, thus it was that while he was giving his lecture, the audience was so attentive that one could have heard a pin drop.

During the afternoon, Mr. Wesselow made a watercolor painting of a bouquet of flowers belonging to Mrs. F.G. McCrimmon. During the course of the afternoon a drawing was held for this painting and Mr. Walter Rember of Ormstown was the lucky winner. Mrs. McCrimmon was responsible for securing Mr. Wesselow to conduct the symposium and she feels that she was most fortunate in obtaining the services of this gentleman for the three Saturdays as he is a most busy man.

Next Saturday afternoon, a further symposium will be held at Grove Hall, behind Braithwaite Bros. Store on Chateauguay Street. This time the lecture and demonstration will be on oil painting. As there are many more interested in this art than that of watercolor, it is expceted that there will be an even larger attendance. A cordial invitation is extended to everyone who may be interested to be present on Saturday, August 19th.

Trouble that looks like a mountain from a distance, usually is only a hill when you get to it.

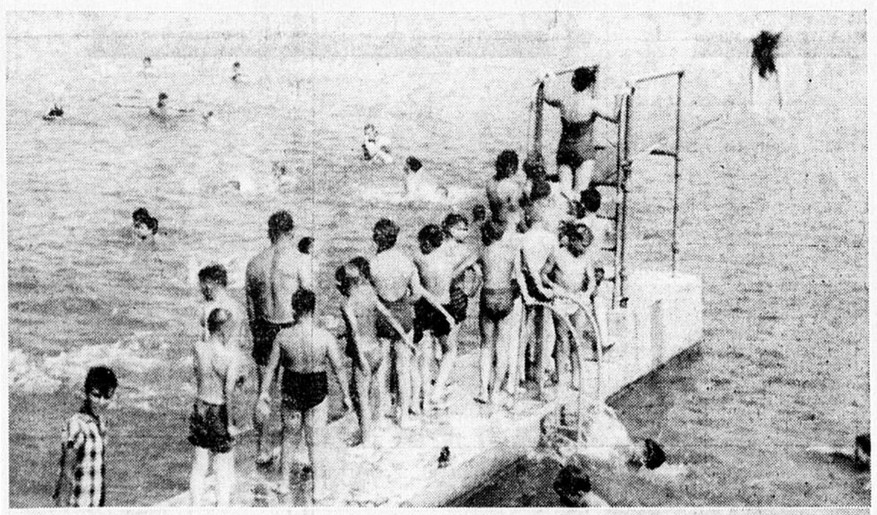

ORMSTOWN BAND RECEIVES GIFT OF MONEY

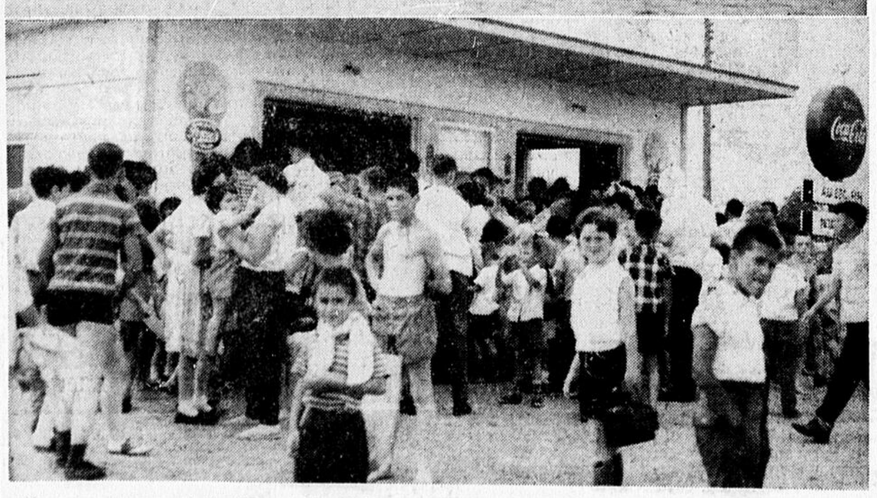

The Ormstown Band was the recipient of a cheque for fifty dollars from Mr. Jacques Viau, local representative of Molson's. Mr. Viau met the Band Master, Mr. Lindsay Cullen and some of the members at the Ormstown Hotel, where a short presentation ceremony was held, then the Band met in a body at the Snowden Convalesent Home, where they presented a fine concert of old favourite songs and band numbers. A large crowd soon gathered and all expressed a desire for more open air concerts. Mr. Cullen on behalf of the Band members extended his thanks to Mr. Viau for his generous gift. Mr. Viau is an old friend of the Ormstown Band, he has shown his interest on many occasions by his open praise and his benevolence. It is the fond hope of the members to some day erect a Band Stand in Ormstown so that the concerts so much in demand will be easier to present.

AT HUNTINGDON ROTARY CLUB PICNIC FOR BOYS AND GIRLS AT HEMMINGFORD

Above are scenes at the Huntingdon Rotary Club picnic for boys and girls, held this year at Lake Hermas, Hemmingford, on Thursday afternoon, August 10th. Top shows the boys and girls using the specially built wharf and diving board, which appears to be quite popular. Centre is a general view of the very fine lake and the shore line. The lower photograph shows the boys and girls as they crowded around the refreshment stand after they had had a swim and received a quarter each for refreshments.

Armand Brunet Observes 50th Year In Monumental Business At Ormstown

Probably one of the oldest monumental works in this particular area is celebrating an anniversary this year, this is the monument works of Armand Brunet at Ormstown, Que.

The anniversary is one which marks fifty years of operation by Mr. Armand Brunet. However the business was established before his taking over, by his father, Gonzague Brunet, which would be about 77 years ago. Mr. Armand Brunet went into the business with his father in 1911 and worked with his father until he died in 1925. His brother Romeo also worked in the business for a time and they started making sewer tile in 1918. However, in 1927, Romeo looked after this part of the business entirely and a few years ago removed the equipment to Valleyfield, where he is now carrying on the making of the tile.

It is a far cry today, to those olden days when all work was done by hand labour. When Mr. Brunet entered the business, the raw stone was bought at the quaries and sent to Ormstown, where this stone was worked up into the monuments that were sold for tombstones and such. It was hard work and the cutting and shaping of the stones was done by hand with chisels and such and often required that a large stone be split, or sliced, when extra special skill in order not to spoil any part of it was required. In doing this, the stone would not always come out even, that is it might be a little thicker at one end, according to the grain when the split was made. Under such circumstances, it meant much more labour to even this up. Machines were used for polishing the stone, but much different to those in use today. The wording and the scroll work were cut with the aid of chisels and required much painstaking labour and skill. At this time five employees were kept working in addition to the father and sons. This was not an all year round job. There were usually two apprentices and they had to learn how to cut and letter and also to forge their own tools. This matter was quite important, as the stone cutting very soon dulled the tools, requiring that they be re-sharpened frequently and re-tempered to make them hard. Hundreds of these cutting tools were made and kept in use in order that there be as little delay as possible.

Along about 1920, one might say an evolution took place with the introduction of air power tools. The Brunet works adopted this method and these tools were used for most of the work which had been done previously by hand. The result of this was that the employees were cut down to only one. During the early days it took from eight to ten days to complete an average monument, while with the use of the air tools the time was cut in half. Asked if this made any difference to the price, Mr. Bru-

Chateauguay Valley Historical Society Gets Immediate Response

First reaction to the news announced in last week's Gleaner that the Society had been formed, was notification from several sources of the existence of old records, almanacs, and catalogues — some of which date back more than a century. Some of these were offered outright to the society, others are available for research.

The most important point is that the flow of information has started. It is the society's hope that all those throughout the area who have such documents will let the society know. Such sources of information are invaluable for the research which society members will undertake in the months and years to come. An Immediate appeal is therefore made — if you have any old sources of information, of any type, in your possession please let the society know in writing — including the following information only at the present time:

1.—Type of document - e.g. almanacs or school records or catalogues, etc.

2.—Whether you are offering to donate these items to the society's library, or loan them, or whether you are willing to make them available when they are required for research.

3.—If for any reason you desire to hand these over to the society in the immediate future — and cannot keep them yourself more than a short time — please let the society know the date by which you wish to have them collected.

4.—Your name and address.

This information will be gratefully received by Mr. D.R. Lambie, Howick, Quebec or by any of those from your own area who attended the founding meeting, and who were listed in last week's Gleaner.

No formal arrangements have yet been completed to house and catalogue items which are offered. It is for this reason that the society wishes to know if the donor must pass them on by a certain date. Until the society elects its executive and appoints regional conveners all those attended the meeting on August 4th, agreed to act as temporary conveners for the purpose of receiving information.

While the society has several possible projects on which to work one immediate objective must be the commencement of a research library — in the sense of collecting sources of information, and the knowledge of other sources which can be made available. No decision has been reached as to whether a centralised library will be formed.

Meanwhile all those who are interested in becoming members or anticipate having information or articles of interest to the society... are urged to give their names and addresses to any representative of the society. These will be collated at the time of the next meeting, and it is hoped that many others will be able to attend this meeting since it is expected that the executive officers will be elected at that time. Notice of the date and place of the meeting will appear in The Gleaner.

A foretaste of fall weather was experienced on Sunday when the mercury plunged thirty degrees lower than it had been the previous week. Going from one extreme to the other is not too pleasant, with many cases of coughs and sniffles amongst the children.

A pleasant surprise was received last week when Mr. J.P. Cote, our Council representative, handed a $200.00 cheque to the West End Home Owners' Association, on behalf of Chateauguay Centre. This money is to be used for children's recreation.

POT LUCK BINGO

Monday, August 21st. Don't forget one and all to come and try your luck. Everyone welcome especially the children. It will start at 7 p.m. sharp and will be held on St. Louis Square. Let's hope the weatherman co-operates to make this a huge success.

Contrary to last week's column the Fall Fair will not be held at the former rink, but will take place at the ball park. Seems that Mother Nature has taken over the rink and it has turned into a hay field.

-o-

Any green thumbs in the district? Mrs. Jones and Mrs. Mackey who are in charge of the plant booth at the Fair are appealing for plants. How about starting a slip now, so one will be ready to donate to the booth in time for the Fair? Just get in touch with either lady and pledge a plant, so they will know just how many to expect.

-o-

The "Aquabelles" — the swimming group under Mrs. Pat Muir have been suspended for several weeks, but will start again on Saturday, September 9th. On that day several of the girls will try to pass their Juvenile Test — Practice hard girls for the big event.

Sorry to see Mrs. Syd Mitchell limping around these days. Last Week Mrs. Mitchell turned her heel on a stone and since then has been laid up. That is quite a tall order for anyone as active as Mrs. Mitchell, and hobbling around on crutches is pretty slow going. Hope it won't take too long to mend.

HERE and THERE

Well folks, have heard little or no real criticism regarding recent weather, which has been better than average, with a taste of every kind incidental to late summer, so hope it continues for a while yet. Due to lack of authentic information, have been unable to keep pace with all the residents who have been flitting to and from on visits, but occasionally see friends who have evidently newly returned after short absences. Among these Mrs. M. Wilkins of "Sicily" and Mrs. A. Montpetit of "Arras" Dave and Mrs. Watson, "Dunkirk" back with us after a visit to Atlantic City and Ridgewood, N.J., where they visited many friends who gave them a very warm welcome. The warm weather also contributed towards a very pleasant ten days jaunt which ended on 11th inst. For a change, Mrs. N. Lavine spent last week visiting friends and relatives at Quebec and Levis, leaving poor hubby Nelson a grass widower, but with the help of his many friends, his lonliness was made sufficiently tolerable to keep his morale up to par. Our pal Jack Bain off to Rawdon from 9th to 16th insts. doubtless to sort out his hunting gear in readiness for the hunting season, though he will find plenty to keep him busy whilst still enjoying the change of scenery. We have certainly missed him buzzing around the last few days. The usual few lines received from Dave and Mrs. Findlayson whilst away on their U.K. tour, but presumably still in Scotland, but moving around too fast to keep pace with, though enjoying a rare time. Two more months before they are due back at "Vimy".

HAPPY EVENT

Our hearty congratulations to George and Mrs. Meilleur, of "Cambrai" upon acquiring their first grandson, to be christened Randall Arthur. Mr. Stork delivered the new baby to daughter Elinor Brown at the Reddy Memorial Hospital on 10th inst. at 10 minutes to 10 p.m. Mother and baby both fine; Grandpa very proud and nervous, but improving.

WHO SAYS?

The ladies of Vetville do not show initiative? During afternoon of 11th inst. an impromptu picnic on "Amiens" lawn, right below my window, sponsored by Mrs. J. Young of "Mons" and Mrs. L. Allaway of "Amiens" to entertain several neighbouring ladies from "Lens" and Mrs. A. McKenzie and Mrs. R. Ramsay of "Amiens". Quite an elaborate Tea Party with all the frills. (I know, as I was remembered by means of a very tasty 'sample'). Declared by all to have been an unqualified success.

SPECIAL NOTE TO EDITOR

Many of us, and doubtless other readers also, read the final instalment of that very interesting feature of the "Gleaner" — Historical Notes Gleaned from "Seller's" History, in last week's issue. We sincerely hope this will be replaced by an equally popular feature. Feel sure I am expressing the sentiments of the majority of all readers in passing a vote of thanks and appreciation for this very interesting feature.

ODDS AND ENDS

This correspondent greatly intrigued by the persistence of a rather large Cricket which has evidently installed itself as an uninvited lodger in his apartment. Mr. Cricket pops into view from nowhere almost daily, and though it has been shown the way out on several occasions, seems determined to refuse eviction, as it returns like the bad penny, but to date has defied all attempts to locate its hideout. Being deaf, Cricket Chirps do not annoy, so have decided to allow it free accommodation. Someone did mention that these insects are "lucky"! For me, much preferable to those blankety mosquitoes. Advance notice to those interested. Second Polio Shot 7th September. From the increased activities noted recently, seems quite possible the new Shopping Center may be in operation this Fall after all.

YARNS and ANECDOTES

Prior to being dismissed parade on conclusion of a morning's drill, the Sergeant-Major stated that he wanted four volunteers who were good at Drawing, and another four who were reliable Checkers, remarking that he only wanted those who considered themselves to be fully qualified. Instructing the former to fall-in on the right of the parade, and the latter to fall-in immediately behind the former, he then dismissed the remainder and as expected, found more than the required number of each type of volunteers asked for, knowing that they expected to be detailed for some particular staff job which would relieve them from routine parades. Imagine the reaction when they were informed that there would be plenty for all those who had volunteered, including the following injunction: "Orderly Sergeant, take the names of these men, and see that the Drawing Experts report at 2 o'clock to the Quartermaster-Sergeant to draw Squadron Rations; Forage and Coal. The other squad will report at same time to the Orderly Corporal, and will thoroughly check all the Barrack Room Windows, and see they are thoroughly cleaned. These are the two Fatigue Parties you said would be required Sergeant." (This "gag" was usually successful ONCE with a new draft of recruits to a regiment.)

Antique Collection Waiting For Museum

ELKHORN, Man. (CP) — The newly formed Manitoba Automobile Museum Foundation on this western Manitoba village is 66 cars worth $100,000 richer as a result of a gift from a district farmer.

Isaac Clarkson had travelled thousands of miles in the last 15 years to build up his collection of cars, dating back to a 1902 Oldsmobile and including such items as the rare 1914 Briscoe which has only one headlight in the centre of the radiator; one of the first Whippets; a 1908 chain-driven, two-cylinder Reo with motor placed at the rear; a 1912 Flanders; and a 1909 Hupmobile. Of the 66 cars, 47 are in running order.

Where Is Berlin Leading Us?

THE world is settling down once again following the second man in space project of the Russians. This time the man actually orbited the earth several times and them parachuted himself back to earth, while the ship landed nearby. During the space travel he passed over this part of the world as well as many other parts several times in a very short space of time. He was able to look down upon the world and to send messages to some parts of it.

The full impact of this feat does not fully register until one takes the time to think about and realize what it means. The country that commands this power has great control over all the earth. While this space ship is travelling at a terriffic speed, it's probably not possible for great observance of any given point, or would it be possible to say—drop a bomb, or missile on any pinpointed area. This would be due to the speed of travel which would require a specific timing to guarantee that say a bomb or a missile would drop on New York City. At the speed of travel it would mean that the bomb would have to be released far ahead of the target and the distance to travel down would also have to be calculated as well as the speed at which the ship is travelling forward. Until it is possible for the space man to fully control his ship, it is doubtful if these vehicles can be used for bombing missions. It would require some slowing down and perhaps hovering a few seconds over a given target area. However, a complete observation of activities on earth might be able to be noted and the information relayed to earth positions. In the event that missiles were then sent off, the space ship could observe their travel and whether they actually hit their target and relay this information in the matter of minutes. Much more accurate data could be obtained in this way and more direct hits could be made.

At the moment we have this Berlin question in hand and from events the way they are taking place, it looks as if we may have to do battle over this situation before it is settled. Russia no doubt is making all these demonstrations at this time in order to try and frighten us and make us change our minds.

If warfare did break out over Berlin, in the beginning at least, it would most likely be of the conventional type. While Russia has threatened on occasions to send missiles on American bases located in other countries if Berlin is under attack, it is likely that she would think twice before doing so. Quite recently it has been announced that Russia has hydrogen bombs which are powerful enough to wipe out very large areas and two or three of these would be enough to destroy the whole of England. She has said she would use these in case of war breaking out.

Now with the success she has had with her space program it is possible she could use these vehicles to direct such an attack and to report back where these bombs or missiles should be put to be most effective. We must not discount these facts, but we must take them fully into consideration in arriving at any decision should it come to war over Berlin. Unless the United States is holding back on her space program, we must assume that Russia is far ahead. This would mean that the States has a lot of catching up to do before she can be too confident of anything. Thus no matter what we may think, the situation does hold an element of fear for consequences of any rash or hasty judgment.

If the Berlin situation does precipitate a war and suppose it should happen that the United States gains the upper hand to the detriment of Russian chances, then we feel that we can look for almost anything to happen. It is not likely that Russia would stand idly by without using all the equipment that she is supposed to have. It would be then that the tide could change and we could find ourselves in a very hot box. Berlin then is a danger spot and one that must be carefully watched.

New Food Sources

THE problem of how can the world produce enough food to sustain its rapidly-expanding population has gained urgency with every new population forecast.

Considerable work is going on all the time, in many parts of the world, in trying to solve this food production problem. Here and there, worthwhile results are being achieved. The Food and Agriculture Organization of the United Nations has just come up with two reports on typical projects.

A rice expert of the FAO after investigations in West Africa suggests that rice production there could be vastly increased by reclaiming millions of acres of tidal mangrove swamps along the coast and river banks. This has been started on a small scale, but many obstacles remain to be overcome—lack of large-scale mechanization, lack of storage and marketing facilities, lack of population in the growing areas, etc.

A second report tells how a Danish dairy production expert, Ejnar Faber, was sent to Brazil in connection with a project of the UN International Children's Emergency Fund to produce protein-rich skimmed milk for the poverty-stricken regions of northeast Brazil.

This expert worked three years in Brazil, showing farmers how they could grow five times more grass on their pasture land and quadruple the milk production of their cows.

He introduced a number of legumes, including clover, and brought in grass seeds (tall fescues) from the United States. With these, and phosphate fertilizer, range production was increased up to five times.

He also helped train farmers in practical methods of dairy production and extension services. Milk hygiene and herd sanitary problems were studied. The milk produced was shipped to a new dehydration plant managed by a co-operative society, which so far has been processing up to 3,250 gallons of milk daily. This yields perhaps 3,300 pounds of skimmed milk powder and 1,320 pounds of butter.

What happens with this new production? The co-op society can sell the butter through commercial channels, but the Brazilian government purchases all the skimmed milk powder at cost price, for free distribution to the undernourished children of the region.

For this continent, where farm problems in recent years have tended to become problems of surpluses, such international experiments are of more than casual interest.

Canada, Great Britain and the Common Market

EXPORTS, Imports and trade in general play a very important part in the economy of any country. Today this is even more important as the various countries vie with one another in competition to sell their goods and raw materials.

Canada is having difficulties in retaining and building new markets for its produce both raw and manufactured. Probably the most important markets for Canadian produce are the United States and Great Britain. Also the United States and Great Britain look to Canada as their important markets. In the past to a great extent Canada looked to these two countries for a great deal of the products required to supply its population. However as the years have passed, Canada has acquired its own manfacturing ability and in turn now wants markets in these two countries for its products. Also there are other countries which seek to sell to Canada the products they wish to dispose of. In many cases these other countries can undersell the products of Canada and in consequence our own domestic markets are endangered. This has lead to unemployment in this country and our economy has been affected.

Great Britain at the moment is facing a similar trend. For awhile a great many British products were being sold in Canada, but in order for Canada to improve its own economy restrictions were placed on the products coming in and thus sales from Britain and other countries have been lessened. It is thus that Great Britain is looking around for new markets in order to keep her economy on a more even keel. This has also necessitated restrictions being placed on the people of that country so that a more even balance can be obtained. A number of countries in Europe have banded together to do business with one another and have arranged their tarifs to permit a better intertrading. It would be of great benefit to Britain to join this so-called common market for she has much that could be sold to these countries and much which she could buy from these countries and so improve her economy. The point is however, Canada may suffer by her so doing, through the fact that in all probability Great Britain would be buying less from us.

This common market plan is something new in economy and is being watched very closely by all members of the Commonwealth, for it could affect all of them. In the past few years both Canada and Great Britain have gained much from trading with one another. Therefore both stand to lose in the long run. If Great Britain gets tied up with European Common Market she will have to abide by the rules and regulations of the bargain made. It is not likely she will be able to buy from Canada and sell such goods in the Common Market. It is more than likely that such goods will have to be British made. She will be bound to buy from the other members of the plan. It is very probable that once the plan goes into operation, Great Birtain will be able to make much betters deals and this will profit her economy.

It could eventually mean that Canada would not allow many of the British made products to enter this country and this in order to balance this country's economy. That is why we say both may suffer loss. Therefore there is still hesitancy on the part of Great Britain to actually sign on the dotted line, so to speak.

The Week In Quebec

QUEBEC (CP) The Liberal party was saddened Wednesday by the death of Dr. Charles Aime Kirkland Minister without portfolio and Member of the Legislature for Montreal Jacques Cartier.

Mr. Kirkland, 63, was first elected to the Legislature in the 1939 general election and had been re-elected since.

He was sworn in as Minister with portfolio July 5, 1960.

Mr. Kirkland seldom spoke in the legislature and when he did, his speeches were usually about water pollution.

He was lauded as the main propenent of water pollution measures approved during the last legislature session.

Premier Jean Lesage said he was the "Dean of the Liberal Delegation at Quebec."

"Because of his vast knowledge of politics, and men," Mr. Lesage said, "his loss leaves a profound void as much in the Legislative Assembly as in the Cabinet."

The next day, Premier Jean Lesage postponed his departure for the Premiers' conference at Charlottetown.

He had been scheduled to leave for the conference from Quebec City Friday but delayed his departure until Saturday to attend Dr. Kirkland's funeral.

The conference will be held Monday and Tuesday.

After the conference, Mr. Lesage will travel to Sackville, N.B., where he will receive an honorary degree of Doctor of Civil Law from Mount Allison University.

The premier was main speaker, Thursday at celebrations commemorating the 100th anniversary of Victoriaville.

He said one cannot love his country, his province, his city of his village if he does not make education his chief concern.

He said he saw education as the key to the blooming of the French-Canadian nation.

He said French-speaking Canadians' fears of disappearing are groundless, "If we take into consideration the realizations that have appeared here and there in the province."

"It is no longer a matter of being afraid, Mr. Lesage said, "But a matter of definitely taking our place under the sun.

"There is no longer a question of survival but of living."

Emilien Lafrance, Minister of Social and Family Welfare, said Thursday that the $10 monthly allowance to mothers of 16 and 17 year-old students will not be taxable in any way and will be paid on the first of each month from September through June.

He said the allowance will probably increase school attendance by about 20 percent in that age bracket.

He added that parents of children 15 years and eight months old will be able to apply for coverage by the allowance.

However, to collect the allocation, students will have to attend school at least 80 per cent of the time.

Students will be permitted to absent themselves for reasons of sickness, death of a member of the family, temporary closing of the school by competent authorities, and moving.

Mr. Lafrance said that schools included under the legislation — passed during the last session — are educational institutions established under the law of the Province, or Recognized by a school commission.

The schools must operate at least six months a year, offer 20 hour of classes a week and have at least 12 days of classes each month.

Mr. Lafrance added that the Government plans to take over slowly from the Federal Government the task of distributing some kind of School Welfare Allowances.

Speaking at a press conference, Mr. Lafrance said the Government's plan to make the $10 monthly allowance is one step in the direction of Provincial autonomy in Social Welfare matters.

He said the allowance would entail additional expenditures of about $7,500,000 and will help about 75,000 students.

Monday, the department said some 5,000 aged persons had applied for supplementary payments to pensions already being given to assist the aged, blind and crippled.

The additional payments are given to those who are needy.

Once applications are filed, Welfare inspectors examine each case before making a final Recommendation.

The Week At Ottawa

OTTAWA (CP) — Canada's capital has many attractions these summer days for the visitor. In the morning you can watch the traditional pomp and pageantry of the changing-of-the-guard on Parliament Hill, and in the afternoon ramble through the National Museum, Art Gallery and Mint.

In the evening you can saunter along one of Canada's most scenic drives above the high banks of the Ottawa River.

Now the capital has given advance billing for an $8,000,000 "Mile of Living History."

The federal government has approved a historic redevelopment of Sussex Drive — the capital's handsome ceremonial route from Confederation Square to the Governor-General's residence at Rideau Hall. Along the street are also located the Prime Minister's house, Otawa's new city hall the home of the United Kingdom High Commissioner in Canada, the French Embassy, the big Roman Catholic basilica and the National Research Council.

The new project to be carried out by the National Capital Commission — a federal agency responsible for the long-range development of the capital — calls for restoration of a stretch of historic buildings as "one of the few remaining links with Ottawa's past." The NCC hopes to make the area look like a typical street of the Confederation period and that this page out of Canada's past will be ready for the nation's centennial in 1967.

MANY TOPICS

With Parliament in mid-summer recess and Prime Minister Diefenbaker on holiday at Prince Albert, Sask., Finance Minister Fleming took over the reins at a cabinet meeting. Afterwards, in an interview with reporters, he ranged over such varied topics as the pension of the governor of the Bank of Canada, Britain's entry into the European Common Market, the health of the Canadian dollar and the Columbia River power project.

The Social Credit party suggested the government give every Canadian $100 to go on a spending spree as a panacea for an ailing national economy. The army said it will equip a Canadian missile force with Honest John rockets capable of carrying a nuclear warhead, and the air force announced its venerable C-5 will be retired from service as a carrier of VIPs. There was also talk that a second Canadian airline will soon be flying over the North Pole to London, England.

Mr. Fleming announced to reporters after the cabinet meeting that the directors of the Bank of Canada have suspended the rule by which the central bank's governor can claim a half-salary, $25,000 annual pension for life. He said the rule did not come to the government's attention until this spring and it was the government's belief that the then governor, James E. Coyne, shauld have vetoed the pension increase. The rule raised the pension for the holder of the $50,000-a-year post to $25,000 from about $12,000.

WILL NEED RULING

Mr. Coyne, who resigned as the bank's chairman after the Senate's Liberal majority quashed a government bill to fire him, has not yet indicated whether he plans to claim the pension. However, Mr. Fleming said that if and when Mr. Coyne makes such a claim it will by a question of legal interpretation whether he receives the $25,000. Meanwhile, a new rule will have to be written for the Bank's new governor, Louis Rasminsky, and his successors.

The Finance Minister expressed satisfaction with the present "significant" discount on the Canadian dollar, amounting to between three and four cents, as an assist to the Canadian economy. Commenting on a statement by Australian Prime Minister Menzies that he plans to sit on Britain's negotiations for entry into the European Common Market, Mr. Fleming said he did not see how Commonwealth countries could participate.

Turning to the long-projected Columbia River power scheme, he said the federal government is willing to have further meetings with Premier Bennett of British Columbia but he would make no prediction as to when the two governments would agree on arrangements to build the project.

GIVE-AWAY SCHEME

Social Credit's big give-away scheme was proposed following a meeting of the 11-member national executive. The party contends that a gift of $100 to each and every Canadian would put into circulation more than $1,800,000,000 and help the economy "regain the way to prosperity." It would create buying power that would permit the national production to reach the consumers, Social Crediters said, but it must not add to the national debt or increase taxation. However, Socred's new leader R.N. (Bob) Thompson frankly admits the government is unlikely to act on the proposal.

The army announced plans to add a "big punch" in the tactical fire support of Canadian ground forces serving with NATO in Germany. This fall the United States army will supply the 1st surface-to-surface missile battery and the 2nd surface-to-surface missile training battery of the Royal Regiment of Canadian artillery wth six Honest John rocket launchers, training rockets and associated equipment.

Four of the launchers, capable of carrying a nuclear warhead, will be provided to the 1st SSM battery which is to go overseas next year. The 27-foot, 20-mile-plus range rocket is directed to its target by information computed and given to the launcher before firing.

Early next year the RCAF's 11-year-old C-5 transport for carrying VIPs will be replaced with two turbo-prop Yukon transport planes, the largest aircraft ever built in Canada. The C-5 will continue to be used by RCAF Transport Command for passenger service, but special personage trips will be taken over by the Yukon, the CC-106.

In the civil aviation field, it was learned that the privately-owned Canadian Pacific Airlines stands a good chance of competing with the publicity-owned Trans-Canada Air Lines on the lucrative Trans-Polar air route into London. Final decision on CPA's bid for a Vancouver-Edmonton-London service is up to the cabinet.

Dahlia's Whatnots

MONICA

Throughout the Confessions of St. Augustine he speaks repeatedly of his mother's tears and prayers on his behalf and eventually of her rejoicing over his conversion. When she died, his mourning was intense.

Dwelling on the beauty of her Christian character, he tells of her faithful attendance at church and the active part she took in charitable work for the poor who looked to the church to relieve their wants. She showed only sweet patience and forbearance to her husband even when he strayed from the path of conjugal honor to which she, herself, adhered flawlessly. In her social life she merited the benediction conveyed by the beatitude, Blessed are the Peacemakers. Augustine says that instead of repeating any unfriendly remarks which she heard people make about each other, his mother made a point of mentioning anything that might help to create a more friendly attitude.

When in Italy, her health failed and she was sympathized with because she could not return to Africa where her husband was buried, she resigned herself to the inevitable, saying that she felt sure that in the Resurrection her Lord would know the place where she was to arise.

UNITY AND CHURCH UNION

An old and intimate acquaintance of mine has some very decided opinions about Church Union. For years it has been hard to reconcile herself to being called anything but a Presbyterian, but now she believes that in the next world we shall all be satisfied to be called Christians. She has a deep admiration for the prayers of the Anglican Church and its beautiful burial service. She regards its clergy as estimable, and rates their sermons as of a high order, but she is averse to intoning. While prepared to accept bishops and archbishops, she is resolutely opposed to the use of such words as "enthrone" and "lordship" in reference to the consecration or rank of these Shepherds of the Christian Church.

Nowadays we are often told that unity of spirit must be achieved to make organic union work. But surely genuine Christianity implies charity and charity implies unity of spirit.

We are told of millions of our fellowmen in the undeveloped countries who are fettered by property, ignorance and disease, and still out of reach of the Gospel message. We are evidently not such good missionaries as the followers of Mohammed and Carl Marx, but can we members of the Christian Church continue to avoid the challenge of the underprivileged nations? We hear that their people become confused by the claims of so many different denominations; it is a frustrating thought that prejudice and formalism in the church are holding people back from combining forces in men and money for a united effort towards the uplift of the needy and helpless.

A BUDDHIST VIEW

A story is told of a discussion between a Christian and a Buddhist. Said the letter. You Christians seem to me to be very ordinary people with extraordinary claims. The Christian replied that our claims were made through Christ. The Buddhist retorted, "If Christ cannot do more for us than He seems to have done for you, it will not matter much.

This speech, of course, indicates prejudice and a one-sided viewpoint. Yet when we stop and think of the waste, the reckless frivolity, and the delinquency both adult and juvenile, which prevails in our North American society today the cynicism of the Buddhist does not seem so strange.

It may be a relieving thought to remember that in Southern India several Christian Churches have united in The Church of Christ.

Letters To The Editor

Montreaz, 18, P.Q.
August 8, 1961.

Dear Editor :

Concerning the Royal Commission of Publications which recently folded up its brief case with the completion of its report to the Federal Government, this report having recommended stringent protection for Canadian Publications against American competition, it is not cleared to this writer what the Government intends to do to remediate this touchy and somewhat complex situation.

The American competition as this writer sees it is not entirely one-sided, it should instead present a challenge to the Canadian Publishers and writers to use their ingenuity instead of complaining like babies in the woods.

Although, the situation appears to be somewhat dreary at the present time, there is always the silver lining in the horizon and the right sort of thinking instead of complaining should form the vanguard of a new era.

For instance, in order to help out, I have started a Literary Agency which will eventually be known as the Mercury Writer's Service which will handle Canadian scripts only, for a while, at least, that is Canadian Authors will be given first preference. This service will endeavor to sell the Canadian Authors' Work.

Anyone who is interested can write me at: 3552 Park Ave., Montreal, 18, P.Q.

In the interest of the Canadian Writers, I trust, Mr. Editor, that you will publish this letter in your columns. In doing so, you will certainly obtain the gratitude of us all.

Yours truly,

J.E. GODREAU (NIA).

Franklin Centre,
August 10th, 1961

Dear Mr. Editor:

I wish you could print this in your Gleaner, as a public menance. Where is the law when these 90 mile an hour cars pass through on a 30 mile speed zone. Well here is the results of our kind hearted be kind to animals and children and people walking here on route 52 Franklin Centre. Well in the last 7 months, 3 beautiful house cats and one lovely hunting dog worth money were killed here on 52, is there no law for these speed killers? There is a law to stop when you have an accident with humans, why not animals too? To me and other animal lovers they are just as good as people in fact animals are not given credit for their smartness, believe me they are real smart. There should be a law man hiding here and watch these speed killers, catch up on them, punish them for killing. Animals here have no chance of survival.

I had a beauttiful cat, angora, he was very smart, he never crossed the road without looking to see if a car was coming. On the 9th of August 7.15 p.m., some cruel hearted beggar killed my cat. We loved that cat like we would love a child, if we had one. Why must this sort of thing be left unprotected. I could name you all the people who have lost pets like this, we feel if the car was not speeding they would not have killed these pets. They seem to chase the animals 'til they don't know which way to turn so what happens they are killed by these killers. Last summer a child on a bike was hit, she didn't know which way to turn. We walk on the road here, when the cars pass they nearly tear your clothes off with the wind of the car or truck that is passing at the time. Are these killers in good with the Provincial Police that they are never caught, or are the people loosing their heads, too scared to write to the Editor of their newspaper and publish this sort of thing.

In Montreal it is published free. I hope you will do the same we all feel this is a criminal offence. When we need a policeman we can't find one. The rifles the boys play with too, are also dangerous. There are a couple around here who are careless they could put someone in bed for a time if the parents aren't more watchful. At night they shoot at the car parked in front or at the side of the house or at the house windows. Do you think this is fair we have a mark on the car where one shot hit we can show any time.

I also had two dogs, one died last year of some unknown sickness and this week by collie pup just turned 5 months had to be put to sleep by Dr. Whitehead of Ormstown. He also had some strange thing happen to him.

We feel very lost without our pets we lost the two the same day.

I remain

"An Animal Lover."
Franklin Centre Animal lovers,
please reply.

Although a bit unnerved at first, Kathryn soon rallied and thanked her friends for their gifts and kind wishes. Refreshments were served by Betty and Marjorie assisted by Mrs. McCormick.

There was so much to do and so much to see, but the ride on the Ox cart and the Bateau trip up the creek were two highlights of the day. Some of Canadian History should come easy to these children when they resume classes in the fall. Forty Pages A Minute Too Fast

Johnny can read and Johnny can speed all at once. But is this good? Should he speed when reading?

One boy did—and how. At the recent convention of the National Education Association in Atlantic City, a 17-year-old from Wilmington, Del., Robert Darling, demonstrated that he could read 120 pages of a book in 3 minutes. Moreover, he passed brilliantly, according to reports, a test lasting 20 minutes on what he had read. But some educators are a little less than completely impressed.

If the reading — speeding Johnny jets his way to a new record so fast that he misses the beauty of literary stars along the way, what's the good? There are readers and readers. Some would rather read one line 50 times than see how fast thy can go. Suppose Super Boy were reading his lesson on atomic energy at this rate. Would it be wise to let him experiment thereafter? In other words, is this a stunt or a standard?

Prof. Jean Chall of City College of New York, who teaches teachers of reading and has been in the field for 15 years, says the average adult reads about one-half page a minute and some of the best readers average two pages a minute. (The speedy youth read 40 pages a minute.)

"It may well be that he is the one human who has achieved the flight into space which we ordinary mortals doubted only a few years ago," Professor Chall said.

"Actually, reading 40 pages a minute is so out of line with familiar reading speeds that I hesitate to give a blanket 'no' to it. But I do have real doubts about this feat, for we do not know how difficult the book was, how familiar its content was, how intelligent and gifted the boy is, and how easy the comprehension.

"The easier the work, the more familiar the content, the more intelligent the reader, the faster we can read."

Dr. Allen H. Barton of Columbia University, who is directing a Carnegie research project in reading, found the youth's rate of reading "impressive". But he said he thought a good deal more should be known about the "rate of thinking." He said some hard-headed studies of such questions were needed.

Obituary

THE LATE MRS. ANDREW TOLHURST

On Friday, August 4th, 1961, Mrs. Andrew Tolhurst passed away at the Barrie Memorial Hospital, Ormstown, Quebec.

Janet (Nettie) Morin Tolhurst was born and educated in Lachute, Quebec, receiving her teaching diploma at McGill Normal.

She taught school a number of years in the province where she endeared herself to many life-long friends by the warmth and affection of her personality.

In June, 1912, she was united in marriage to Andrew Tolhurst of Montreal where they spent 41 years of happy life together, active in church and community affairs. Nettie was a member of the church choirs of Lachute and St. Laurent and was active in the women's groups of St. Andrew's United Church, St. Laurent and Howick United Church. Andrew and Nettie won many trophies from "Back River Horticulture Society" of which Andrew was a director.

In 1953 they had a Brick Bungalow built in Howick, Quebec and moved there to live in the Fall of that year. There they enjoyed two happy years together, then, suddenly, Andrew died of a heart attack in July 1955.

Nettie felt this loss constantly through the years and although she had long suffered from arthritic and heart conditions, at the end she was only one day in hospital having gone about her usual way of life to the last.

She leaves to mourn her loss one brother, Frank Morin of Lachute and several brothers and sisters-in-law also nieces and nephews, who will feel the loss of a fond sister and aunt and her keen interest in their welfare.

The funeral was held at Howick United Church on Sunday Aug. 6th, the Rev. C.R. Sutherland officiating, assisted by the Rev. J.A. Hockins of St. Laurent. The pallbearers were. George Tolhurst, Allan Tolhurst, Robert Tolhurst, Lorne Morin, Nelson Blore and Gordon Blore.

VICTORY IN SIGHT

FORT ERIE, Ont. (CP) — Although visitors still claim this town "the worst place for bugs", residents feel they have won their war on the pesky sand-fly. The situation was so bad once that head-lights were required when crossing the Peace Bridge. A $2,500-spraying machine acquired in 1954 has helped to reduce the summer hazard.

The bride, who was given away by her father, was in a full-length gown of white Chantilly lace, having a fitted bodice, with a sabrina neckline, with sleeves ending in points over the hands, and a bouffant skirt. Her elbow-length veil of tulle illusion was held by a coronet of seed pearls and she carried a bouquet, centered with a mauve orchid, surrounded by stephanotis and red roses. Her only ornament was cultured pearl earrings, the gift of the groom.

Mrs. Hubert Sherry, as matron of honor, for her cousin, wore a short dress of blue French lace, with matching veil headdress and blue satin shoes. She carried a bouquet of red carnations.

The bridesmaids, Miss Eleanor Peppin of Brushton, N.Y.; Miss Francine Toupin of Montreal; Miss Carol Saumier of Dewittville and Miss Hughette Lefebvre of Herdman, were dressed alike in short dresses of orchid silk organza with matching veil headdress and mittens, and orchid satin shoes and carried cascade bouquets of pink carnations.

Little Miss Chantel Robert as flower-girl was charming in orchid cotton with lace applique, with flower bandeau and carried red baby roses.

Mr. Hubert Sherry and Mr. Morris Saumier, brother of the bride, acted as ushers.

Mrs. Saumier, the bride's mother, wore a dress of dusty-rose, with lace bodice and sheath skirt of chiffon over poult de soie, with matcing shoes and hat and a corsage bouquet of red sweetheart roses.

Mrs. Roy, mother of the bridegroom was gowned in blue embroidered Swiss nylon, with white accessories and a corsage bouquet of red roses.

Mrs. Gerard Leduc played the wedding music and during the ceremony sang the "Ave Maria." Mrs. J. M. Beland of Montreal sang the "Our Father" and Mr. Roland Saumier, cousin of the bride, sang "Sancta Maria". Bernard Beland played a very beautiful violin selection during the consecration.

Baskets of white mums and gladioli were used to decorate the altar and sanctuary. The pews were marked with white satin bows and white pomponms.

A reception was held in the main dining-room of the Huntingdon Chateau, where one hundred and forty-five guests enjoyed a delicious turkey dinner. Mr. Marion Lefebvre acted as master of ceremonies and Mr. Guy Lefebvre proposed the toast to the bride. Miss Myranne Lefebvre registered the guests.

The Wilson Westernaires entertained during dinner and for dancing which followed.

Later, Mr. and Mrs. Roy left for Atlantic City, Philadelphia and Washington, D.C., the bride travelling in a shantung jacket dress of leaf green with fashion brown accessories, and a feathered fashion brown hat with beige satin trimming.

The bride presented each of her attendants with a matching pearl necklace and earring set, and the flower girl with a gold cross and chain.

HEMMINGFORD PEE-WEE SOFT-BALL LEAGUE

HEMMINGFORD — Very little has been heard of this League so far this year, hope this will be rectified in the near future! On Saturday afternoon, players chosen from the four teams, (up to 12 years of age) played an exciting match with the Ormstown Pee-Wee Team. Hemmingford were leading 8-1 at the end of the 2nd innings but Ormstown made a splendid recovery and at the end of the 5th innings the score read Hemmingford 12 — Ormstown 11. The Ormstown boys continued their effort and eventually walked off with the game, the final score being Ormstown 15 — Hemmingford 13.

On Saturday evening, August 5th, Mr. and Mrs. Kenneth Campbell had supper with Mr. and Mrs. Gerald Ellerton. Afterwards both couples went on to a meeting of the 3M Club at the United Church Hall. To Mr. and Mrs. Campbell's complete surprise, on entering the Hall, they found that the meeting had turned into a surprise party with some 125 friends gathered to celebrate their fifteenth wedding anniversary. During the evening, Mr. Lynwood Cookman, on behalf of the family and friends, presented the happy couple with a dinner service for 8, crystal salt and pepper shakers and a well-filled wallet. One guest, who was particularly welcomed was Mr. Robert Campbell, Kenneth's father, who will be celebrating his 86th birthday on September 1st. The Rev. -o-

The sharp reduction in the temperature this week-end is a welcome relief from the sticky humidity of the past few weeks and it also serves as a little reminder that Fall is not too far away. With the Fall comes various activities which take place around the same time each year and already one Turkey Supper is in the planning stage. Another event is a dance to be held in the High School on September 8th. These events will be advertised a little nearer the time but it is just as well to make known your coming events, with dates, so that there will be no overlapping.

One out of every four newspaper pages

One out of every four newspaper pages used by the free world originates from the pulp and paper mills in the Province of Quebec. These mills employ some 150,000 full-time and seasonal workers and pay annual wages of approximately $250 million.

Making an important contribution to the pulp and paper industry's world leadership position is electricity, of which there is an abundant supply in Quebec. Almost one quarter of the power sold by The Shawinigan Water and Power Company goes to the pulp and paper industry.

Other major economic advantages in Quebec vital to the pulp and paper industry include a ready supply of raw materials, excellent transportation facilities, and a stable and skilled labour force.

The Shawinigan Water and Power Company is proud to be a partner, along with the Province of Quebec, in the development of the Province's pulp and paper industry.

Shawinigan maintains an Industrial Development Department which is working constantly to attract new industry to its service area.
