Is Caouette to step down as deputy Socred leader?

Drastic changes in the set-up of the Quebec wing of the Social Credit party may emerge from a rally of Socred forces in Quebec City this weekend.

Chief interest revolves around the future of Real Caouette, deputy national leader of the party and chief of the Quebec delegation at Ottawa.

According to certain quarters within the party, Mr. Caouette is expected to resign his seat at Ottawa and devote his efforts to launching a provincial Social Credit party. His post as Quebec leader would be taken over by Dr. Guy Marcoux, MP for Quebec - Montmorency and party whip in the House of Commons.

Many strong arguments can be advanced for Mr. Caouette quitting the federal field.

Reportedly he has come under strong fire from many of his Socred colleagues for the poor showing made by the party in the April 8 elections. The malcontents claim the Quebec leader failed to follow up the advantages gained in the 1962 elections.

His critics blame him for becoming embroiled in a dispute with Eric Keams, president of the Montreal Stock Exchange. As a result Caouette apparently lost his head and engaged in a campaign of personalities and name calling which aggravated a large number of potential Socred supporters instead of carrying on the campaign of offense which proved so profitable in 1962.

Another factor that might force the resignation of Mr. Caouette is the open fight between himself and the national party leader, Robert Thompson. Except that they carry the same political title, the two men appear to disagree upon almost everything, from nuclear armaments to the internal discipline of the party. This was apparent when six Quebec Socreds made an attempt to pledge their support to the Liberal Government.

Mr. Thompson ordered Dr. Marcoux the party whip, to investigate the situation and immediately drew a public rebuke from Mr. Caouette who said that he was the one who should have been charged with the inquiry. The six later withdrew their pledges of support to the Pearson Government.

But the greatest single factor in the possible resignation of Mr. Caouette from the House of Commons is his desire to "get even" with Quebec Premier Jean Lesage. He blames the last minute entry of the Quebec Premier into the federal campaign for much of the Social Credit setbacks. He has vowed vengeance and has stated his intention of launching a provincial Socred party in the hope of ousting the Liberals when the next Quebec general election is staged, probably in 1966.

He believes the time is ripe for a new party to succeed the Union Nationale as the Official Opposition in the Legislative Assembly. He believes the UN is breaking up under its present leadership and that a new group with a strong nationalistic color can make substantial headway in the province.

While many of the Quebec Socred supporters agree with him, they feel that the party itself should confine its activities to the federal field. Their economic reform doctrines can be applied only at the national level as banking and currency matters are under exclusive federal jurisdiction.

Thus they are believed to have given an ultimatum to Mr. Caouette that he must confine himself to the House of Commons or move into the provincial field.

Of course nobody will speak officially on the subject of the week-end conference in Quebec which is termed "an ordinary meeting concerning party organization" but the 200 delegates from all parts of the province are likely to engage in some bitter arguments.

Coin meeting opens

The Quebec Numismatic Association's 1963 convention officially opened this morning at 10, when Ald. Antonio Pinard performed opening ceremonies at the New Sherbrooke Hotel.

The convention continues Saturday and Sunday, with a banquet scheduled for 6 p.m. tomorrow. With the exception of the banquet hour, tables of coin displays and numismatic items for sale will be open to the public throughout.

This afternoon at 3:30 the first of two auctions will be held at the New Sherbrooke with J. E. Charlton of Toronto presiding. Up for sale will be a 1947 Maple Leaf proof set, a 1908 specimen set, and a 1921 silver five-cent piece, all rare items prized by numismatists.

This week has officially been Coin Week in Sherbrooke, following a proclamation by Mayor Nadeau at the request of Sherbrooke Numismatic Society president Lionel Lessard.

Each visitor to the convention will be greeted with a complementary ribbon and will be welcome to browse at display tables, though not to bid in the auctions. The second auction is scheduled for Saturday at 1 p.m.

Dealers are attending the convention from all parts of Canada as well as some United States points. Exhibitors from Quebec are eligible for awards in eight categories, including one for juniors and one for paper money. A bronze medal has been struck to commemorate the convention.

Heaviest blast yet in Montreal

Black Watch armory rocked by explosion

FORE!—It's that time of year again when young and old men's fancies lightly turn to thoughts of golf. At the Oasis Club for the Blind, Neil Tracy is shown the way by Jean Wielgus. The president of the club, Yves Nadeau, explained that the 40-member group had held successful bowling tournaments and that indoor golf was being tried. Mr. Tracy said he was less interested in golf. His idea of indoor sport, he said, was cribbage. (Record photo by Gerry Lemay).

MONTREAL (CP) — An explosion that was heard as much as four miles around rocked the Black Watch armory in central Montreal early today.

About 40 panes of glass in windows around the back and one side of the armory were broken, a rear door was knocked off its frame, and back windows in at least half a dozen homes and buildings nearby were shattered. No one was injured.

Detective Sergeant Leo Plouffe, of the Montreal police bomb squad, called it "the most powerful explosion we've had yet" and scoured the rubble in the lane behind the armory for clues.

There was no immediate evidence linking the latest explosion with the separatist Front de Liberation Quebecois, the self-styled terrorist organization that has claimed responsibility for other bomb attacks on armories and federal institutions, but police said they couldn't discount FLQ involvement.

Two mimeographed statements purporting to be from the FLQ were mailed Thursday to news agencies and newspapers. In them, the organization said it set off bombs at an army recruiting centre in Montreal, in which one man was killed, and at a Royal Canadian Legion Hall in St. John's, Que., 25 miles south of Montreal.

The statement also threatened a Quebec mining company whose workers are on strike and announced the appointment of a revolutionary tribunal to judge "foreign oppressors and traitors."

Today's bomb was set off in a one-foot gap between the Black Watch building and the storage area of a building next door. It blasted a hole about three feet across in the brick facing of the storage building and sagged the wall over a 16-foot area, but hardly clipped the stone foundation of the armory.

The explosion took place despite extra precautions taken since the start of the wave of bombings two months ago. Army provost corps and city police patrol armories every 20 minutes and there is someone on duty 24 hours a day, but no one was seen in the lane.

Only caretaker W. W. Thompson and the armory's fireman were in the building at the time. Sgt. Henry Dollard, steward of the sergeant's mess, had just gone out for something to eat in a restaurant next door when the explosion shook the building.

Lt. Col. William Redpath, commanding officer of the Black Watch, said all reasonable precautions had been taken. But he had ordered his night staff to stay out of lanes and the garbage area, he said, because these were the most likely places for FLQ bombs.

In view of the recent statements by U.S. officials, including Defence Secretary McNamara, many Canadians have expressed hope that the United States will not insist on the Bore program for Canada.

The value of these missiles has been questioned, and many Canadians feel that it would be wise for the U.S. government to release the new Liberal government from its obligation.

Pearson made it clear in advance that the discussions would be informal and that details would have to be worked out later. He said his main purpose was to renew a personal friendship with Kennedy and to establish an atmosphere of co-operation between the two governments.

The No. 2 issue on the agenda was trade. Pearson has indicated that he agrees in principle with Kennedy's program to reduce tariffs by 50 per cent.

Canada is reported ready to accept a nuclear role in the North Atlantic Treaty Organization at least.

Pearson has had similar talks with British Prime Minister Macmillan in London, as part of his announced program of trying to restore Canada's prestige in world affairs.

Relations Low
The meeting between Kennedy and Pearson finds relations between the U.S. and Canada at the lowest point in years. Former prime minister Diefenbaker was highly critical of the U.S. on many questions.

The outstanding issue before Kennedy and Pearson is whether Canada will accept nuclear warheads for the Bomarc B missiles on launching pads at two Canadian bases—La Macaza, Que., and North Bay, Ont. Pearson has pledged that his government will carry out all nuclear commitments made by Canada, but he has made it clear that he is cool to the idea of having nuclear weapons on Canadian soil.

Canada is reported ready to accept a nuclear role in the North Atlantic Treaty Organization at least.

Mr. K wins the first skirmish; China-Russia talks in Moscow

TOKYO (AP) — Premier Khrushchev has won a preliminary tactical skirmish in his ideological war with Communist China. The first peace talks will be held in Moscow, not in Peking as Communist chief Mao Tse-tung had hoped.

Chinese Premier Chou En-lai informed Soviet Ambassador S. V. Chervonko Thursday that his government accepted Khrushchev's invitation to send a delegation to Moscow to discuss ideological differences splitting the Communist world.

Khrushchev had proposed the Mao head the Chinese delegation, but nobody expected the Chinese boss to agree to that. Chou said the delegation will be headed by Teng Hsiang-ping, top theoretician of the Chinese party, and Peng Chen, mayor of Peking.

Today, as if to dispel any illusion that Peking's "hard line" is weakening, the official Peking People's Daily published a long denunciation of Yugoslavia's new constitution.

Taking a slap at Khrushchev, who has accepted the Yugoslav Communists back in the fold as reformed sinners, Peking's mouthpiece said the constitution proves "that they were talking sheer nonsense who consider that the Tito group have shown some repentance and changed their wrong policy."

TITO A 'REVISIONIST'
Peking calls Yugoslav Marshal Tito a revisionist, the same label it applies to Khrushchev. The People's Daily reiterated that it is "an inescapable duty" of all Communist parties to fight the Yugoslav renegades.

Two months ago, Mao and the Chinese party's central committee invited Khrushchev to come to Peking for a Red summit meeting. Acceptance would have been tacit acknowledgment that the Chinese Communists were on a par with the Soviets as leaders of the Communist world. Khrushchev countered by asking Mao to come to Moscow, or to send a delegation.

Significantly, Mao in reply proposed that the Moscow meeting take place in mid-June rather than mid-May as Khrushchev recommended. This suggests that Mao does not want his delegation to engage

2 children killed by car

LAKE MEGANTIC—(Staff) —Two children were killed near Courcelles, north of here Thursday afternoon about 5:15 when a car went out of control at a curve on Highway 28, careened for 425 feet into the yard where they were playing, struck them and then hit a pile of logs.

Killed were Jocelyne, 6, and Claude, 2, the children of Mr. and Mrs. Jean-Luc Belanger.

The driver of the car, Lionel Turcotte, of Tupper Lake, N.Y., was taken unconscious to St. Vincent de Paul Hospital in Sherbrooke where his condition was described as good Friday morning.

Pope accepts peace prize

VATICAN CITY — Reuters — Pope John today accepted the Balzan Peace Prize with a renewed appeal for world harmony.

"Peace is a house," the Pope said, "a house for all."

He noted that it was the first time in history a pope had been awarded a peace prize.

"The pope who is speaking to you intends to persevere humbly in his action at the service of men and the peace of the world," he said.

"He would not depart from the teachings of the gospel, which is equally removed from both harshness and indulgent weakness, which each harm souls."

in a full-scale debate with the Soviet party's central committee, which is to meet late this month to discuss ideological matters.

The dispute between the two Communist giants is over the strategy the Red world should follow in its drive to take over the rest of the world.

Peking holds that Khrushchev's policy of peaceful co-existence is an unacceptable revision of Marxism-Leninism, that war with the West still is inevitable and that even a nuclear war would be worthwhile because the Communists would be hurt less than the West.

Khrushchev contends that Communism can and must win the world by peaceful means or means that won't produce a world conflict. He holds that a nuclear war would devastate both sides.

LONDON (AP)—The weekly magazine Time and Tide says Mao Tse-tung, 70, leader of the Communist party of China, has an incurable disease and will retire before the end of the year.

The Conservative magazine in a Moscow - dated dispatch says the ruler of Red China will be succeeded by head of state Liu Shao-chi "who belongs to the right-centre of the party and who believes in peaceful co-existence with the West."

Witches to die

DAR ES SALAAM (Reuters) — Three Tanganyikan "student witches" were sentenced to death in high court Thursday on charges arising from the 1961 murder of a middle-aged woman in a secret midnight jungle ritual. The dead woman was drugged and then held down while her head was cut off, the court was told. Her body was then cut up for drying, before being turned into powdered "medicine."

Try to revive city slum clearance project

Another attempt will be made before the end of June to get the co-operation of the Federal government on the city's projected slum clearance plan in the East Ward.

Last year Sherbrooke municipal authorities attempted to obtain the co-operation and aid of the federal and provincial governments as well as the Central Housing and Mortgage Corporation, but dropped the project after all three agencies showed only lukewarm interest in the project.

Alderman J. M. Jean-son, head of the special local committee organized at the request of the governments said Thursday that another request will be put to the new Minister of Public Works in Ottawa within a month.

The area affected by the slum clearance plan (copies of which were sent to government authorities last year) is known as the Assumption Parish.

With a new Minister of Public Works, Alderman Jean-son said that perhaps the chances of obtaining collaboration now would be better.

Said Alderman Jean-son: "Last year we wrote letters, and the matter was allowed to drag on and on. We hope to re-open the case with the new Minister of Public Works as soon as the new government has settled down."

"We hope that we will have better luck this time," he said.

Members of the special city committee for the projected East Ward slum clearance include Alderman Jean-son, chairman, Alderman Felix Thibault, Alderman Robert Gauthier, and architect Denis Tremblay.

Spaghetti and sauce to go with astronaut

CAPE CANAVERAL, Fla. (AP) — Astronaut Gordon Cooper's Faith 7 spacecraft is like a woman's purse. Reach in and you'll find almost anything.

If Cooper rockets toward his 34-hour space flight as planned next Tuesday, he will carry along such items as an inflatable balloon, four cameras, an exercise device, medical monitoring gear, maps, star charts, medical monitoring devices, geiger counter, a 28 foot expandable radio antenna, sharp repellent, a raft, an alarm clock, parachutes and spaghetti and meat sauce.

He'll even carry his own private satellite—a baseball-sized object equipped with flashing beacons which he plans to release into orbit during the third of his intended 22 circuits of globe.

The longest U.S. manned space flight yet planned is scheduled to start with the roaring of an Atlas rocket between 9 a.m. and 11:30 a.m. Tuesday. If the mission goes the full distance, Cooper's space chariot will parachute to a landing in the Pacific 80 miles southeast of Midway Island 34 hours, 19 minutes later.

SEEK MEDICAL DATA
Project Mercury officials primarily will seek medical data during the long-duration mission to determine if a man's ability to perform is impaired by prolonged exposure to space weightlessness.

As Cooper sweeps about the globe, medical sensors attached to his body will relay to ground stations information on heart-beat, blood pressure, temperature and respiration.

Doctors at each station will watch for any signs of stress that might dictate early termination of the flight.

As a means of preventing deterioration of muscle tone during the long weightless period, Cooper plans to exercise by pulling on a bungee cord—a giant stretchable rubber-bank-like device attached to the spacecraft floor between his feet.

The 36-year-old air force major will eat regularly to maintain his strength. The menu includes energy-giving bite-size tidbits and new dehydrated space foods which, when mixed with water, produces spaghetti, beef and gravy, chicken or lobster.

A television camera aboard Faith 7 may give home viewers their first look at one of their astronauts in orbit.

PORT-AU-PRINCE, Haiti (Reuters)—The government allowed a group of Americans to leave Haiti only after the United States ambassador threatened to call in a U.S. naval force cruising off the coast, a U.S. embassy source said Thursday.

The source confirmed exit visas were issued Wednesday to a group of civilian evacuees following a threat by Ambassador Raymond Thurston to bring in the naval force.

WASHINGTON (AP) — It would take a major amphibious assault, co-ordinated with a paratrooper attack, to overcome powerful Russian-stiffened defenses of Cuba.

This is the current assessment by U.S. intelligence authorities, as reported by the Senate preparedness subcommittee.

LONDON (Reuters)—The opposition Labor party hammered Britain's ruling Conservatives and other anti-Socialist parties in town council elections Thursday.

Labor captured 541 seats and control of the councils of some 30 important towns and cities. Jubilant Socialists hailed the result as a heartening pointer to their chances of gaining power in the general election expected within a year at the latest. The government's five-year term of office expires in October, 1964.

MOSCOW (Reuters) — The Russian Supreme Court today completed hearing witnesses in the spy trial of British businessman Greville Wynne and adjourned until the afternoon when defence and prosecution attorneys were expected to present their final arguments.

Today's hearing was taken up with testimony on the habits and character of Wynne's Russian co-accused, scientific worker Oleg Penkovsky.

SOUTH GIVES CARDS A CHANCE

"When worse contracts are reached," mumbled South when he saw dummy, "I expect to be declarer."

Meanwhile, North wandered around the table to look at South's hand. This is not good bridge etiquette, but it happens all too often.

"Where did you find that immediate two no-trump bid?" yelled North.

"The same place you found your jump to six," replied South. "Keep still and let me see what I can do with this mess."

After that peroration South proceeded to make the slam and there was nothing East and West could do about it.

South figured out that there was one combination of cards that would allow him to make

Show Business

By BOB THOMAS
HOLLYWOOD (AP) — A bold new concept of film production, announced this week by three studios, gets the support of James Stewart.

Columbia, MGM and 20th Century-Fox startled Hollywood with the news that they are considering construction of a new studio to house all their movie-making enterprises.

"It sounds like a step in the right direction," commented Stewart. "I think the only practical way to make pictures is the way they used to be made — with a big-studio operation. You've got to have a big contract list to choose from and you've got to make a lot of pictures to keep them and the studio busy."

"That's what MCA is doing with Universal and Revue. And that's how the new setup could be for the three companies that are considering the new studio. I'm all for it."

Stewart refuses to join the crepe-hangers who declared that Hollywood is washed up.

CLAIMS POTENTIAL GOOD
"The potential for film is greater than it ever was," he declared. "There are more outlets than ever, and movie makers have to think in terms of using them all."

"First, a film might be shown in Cinemas. Then it can be transferred to Todd-AO size film for a subsequent run, then to 35mm. Then it can be put on 16mm film and shown everywhere in the world. The quality of the image won't suffer; in fact, since you are starting with large film and blowing it down, the quality is better."

"After all the theatre possibilities have been exhausted, then the picture would move to television."

"Yes, I know some people in Hollywood think of television as the enemy. But we've come a long way from the days when we couldn't even show a television set in a living room in movies."

"We've all got to get married to television, whether we like it or not. It should be a part of our thinking. We've got to consider that every picture we make will ultimately be played on the home screen."

Mother's not the same, somehow

Mom discovered adventure this year.

So did Dad.

Adventure that's beautiful and powerful and streamlined and carefree and has 28 horsepower. It's called Evinrude. Now everything is different.

Mother can do a racing shift. Dad can balance on one ski sometimes. And meals are always late.

Adventure is fine. But it's supposed to be for young people. It always was, until Evinrude came along and changed everything.

Now look at them.

They go flying off every morning, for miles, cavorting around the lake like a couple of teens. Sometimes they don't come back till after lunch. Everyone's talking about it.

They've changed. When they're not out on the lake, they dance. Or go to the movies. They both look far too healthy.

And meals are always late.

Lennoxville makes offer

Ascot rejects fire protection agreement

By SANDRA PICKFORD
(Record staff reporter)

The Township of Ascot has turned down a request by the municipality of Lennoxville to share in the cost of the upkeep of the Lennoxville fire department, it was learned Wednesday.

Ascot has forwarded a letter notifying Lennoxville that it finds the offer unacceptable.

In a proposal drafted by Lennoxville's fire department committee and mailed to Ascot council following a special meeting of Lennoxville council April 11, Lennoxville said it would undertake to purchase a new fire truck providing:

(1) that the grant from Quebec towards the truck be at least 50 per cent of the cost and;

(2) that the township of Ascot would enter into a three-year agreement to pay $100 per month to assist with the maintenance of the fire department.

Under an informal agreement between the two municipalities, Lennoxville had traditionally given fire aid to parts of Ascot County within a four or five mile radius of its limits.

Some six weeks ago, however, following a breakdown in Lennoxville's 33 year-old firetruck, Lennoxville notified Ascot that because of the condition of its equipment that had been sent to Ascot in the past, Lennoxville could not continue to answer fire calls outside of Lennoxville, Town Secretary Treasurer Ken Herring said Wednesday.

Parts of Ascot County that are now without the aid of the Lennoxville fire department include homes on Route No. 5 to Capelon, the Nichol farm, Huntingville, Eaton Road, Spring Road, Glendale Road, Brick Yard Road, Johnville Road and Moulton Hill.

Mr. Herring said Ascot residents seeking fire aid from Lennoxville will be referred to the Sherbrooke fire department.

Ascot County is on direct call with Sherbrooke, North Hatley and Waterville fire departments.

Lennoxville's Mayor Archie Mitchell and Ascot Township Mayor Delmer Fearon have met several times recently in an attempt to find a way in which the two municipalities could obtain better fire protection.

Following several discussions Lennoxville's fire committee drafted up the agreement which also defines financial responsibility for fire calls, limits of area to be served, effect of winter roads, number of men to be sent, authority to summon equipment and prior claim of Lennoxville to use of the truck.

Explaining Ascot council's decision to turn down Lennoxville's proposal for financial aid for the upkeep of the fire department Mayor Delmer Fearon said that Ascot has about one major fire a year.

"We pay Lennoxville between $100 and $200 a year for fire aid. Under this new agreement," he said, "Ascot will have to pay $100 a month, plus the present hourly rate for answering each call." Lennoxville charges a flat rate of $50 for the first hour and $25 for every hour after when it answers a call in Ascot Township.

He said the only benefits Ascot council will get out of the proposed agreement was faster and better service with the new fire truck.

Singer ordered to put up bond to keep peace

The Court of Sessions in Sherbrooke Thursday became a patron of the arts, in a way, when a young singer was allowed to go free on a $200 bond to keep the peace following his conviction on charges of breaking and entering four cottages.

The singer, Paul Aube, about 20, asked Judge Evender Veilleux to give him another chance. He said he had jobs singing in hotels in Windsor and in Richmond. He had just been released from jail after a term for obtaining money by false pretences, he said, and anyway, the cottages in question were not properly locked.

The judge agreed that people who leave cottages open put temptation in the way of potential thieves.

Addressing Crown Attorney Benoit Turmel, Judge Veilleux asked with a smile, "Would you deprive the public of an artist?"

He ordered Aube to sign a $200 bond to keep the peace for a year, and warned him that he would face a much more severe penalty if he should get into trouble again.

Aube had pleaded guilty to breaking and entering four cottages around Deauville last Monday.

CANVASSER'S RALLY — Canvassers of the Sherbrooke Hospital's Eastern Townships Campaign, 1963, rallied at the Sherbrooke Hospital Thursday night for a briefing on the campaign and to receive their canvas kits. The Sherbrooke Hospital's drive for funds opens May 13 and continues to May 31. This year's objective is $50,000. Above, the chairman of the Melbourn district, Fred J. Newell receives his kit from Sherbrooke Hospital nurse

Water supply systems

Will choose soon

By JAMES DAVIES
(Record staff reporter)

One of three systems under study to improve Sherbrooke's drinking water supply will be decided upon by council before the end of June, Ald. J. M. Jeanson, waterworks committee chairman, said Thursday evening.

Before Council selects the system, Ald. Jeanson said he will propose that council members visit Canton, Ohio, to study the "aquifer" system in use there.

Mr. Jeanson said he discussed the matter with Mayor Armand Nadeau Thursday and the latter agreed in principle with the idea for the visit.

Canton and Chateaugay, Que., use the system of having water flow through underground deposits of gravel. City officials visited the Chateaugay system Wednesday and said they were "satisfied" with their investigation. Mr. Jeanson noted that the city would not proceed with tests on the basis of a visit to one place alone.

Methods of improving the city's water supply now being studied by council include: (1) drawing water from Lake Memphremagog via a 19 mile pipeline, (2) the building of a filtration unit to process the present water supply drawn from the Magog River and (3) an "aquifer" system whereby water is run through an underground gravel bed.

"Before we proceed any further with plans for improving water in Sherbrooke," said Alderman Jeanson "I am going to suggest to Sherbrooke council Monday night that a visit of city officials be made to Canton, Ohio."

"Once we see how the aquifer system works in this city with a population of 113,637," he added, "we will better understand what kind of results to expect in Sherbrooke."

Alderman Jeanson noted

Bird watcher's notes

By J. GRAHAM PATRIQUIN

Designs for Survival, William Anderson's epic nature production, scored heavily with Eastern Townships audiences in Waterloo, Compton and Lennoxville, as well over 1200 people enjoyed the showings. Waterloo High School, a newcomer to the Revue circuit, expressed its determination to have next year's production also, offering proof, if it is needed, that the Revues are not only highly entertaining, but enjoy top rating with those whose major concern is the training of our next generation.

Seen through the Anderson camera-lens, nature's designs include a fascinating variety of camouflage, leg and wing structure, eyes, jaws and mouths, of other anatomical parts and of wildlife behaviour which keep the species thriving and in balanced supply.

Memorable sequences, especially, were the Angler Fish successfully at work, a cactus-eating squirrel, and a crab whose consumption of a minnow might just as well have been a hungry eater of a hot dog, somewhere along the midway.

Locally — at L.H.S. Auditorium — the seating problem disappeared, as advance-sale ticket holders filled, but did not overcrowd the hall's capacity in either the afternoon or the night showing.

Field expeditions, underway at Brompton Lake on Saturday, begin the group activities of birders out of doors, and this reminds your narrator to clear his desk of early spring items.

We acknowledge with pleasure the reports from readers both in the nearby vicinity, and farther afield. Regarding the latter, several of the club's weekend dates might afford an opportunity for more distant Townships residents to become acquainted with the St. Francis-Massawippi birding sites and citizens. Friends are always welcome.

Mrs. Arthur Mahannah, of Brigham, inquired some days ago about an albino Robin, seen in an orchard near her home. They are, according to the best scientific information, rare but regular occurrences in the bird world. One report of them, authenticated by an accompanying photograph, tells of four in a group. How often they occur is impossible to say accurately. It is highly unusual, however, for one person to see more than one albino of a species in a lifetime.

Thirteen-year-old Nicole Grimard returned by herself to her London Street home Thursday afternoon, ending a four-day police search, started after she left the house Sunday evening, supposedly on her way to church.

Sherbrooke police reported Friday that she returned to her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Gaston Grimard, 79 London Street, at 2:50 p.m.

H. and S. suggestions deserve study

Two resolutions before the Federation of Protestant Home and School Associations, now in session in Montreal, designed to promote bilingualism among English-speaking children deserve immediate consideration by the educational authorities of the province.

One suggestion is that the teaching of French start at the kindergarten level in English-speaking Protestant schools and the second that Protestant school boards be allowed to employ Roman Catholic teachers for instruction in the French language.

Anyone who has had the opportunity of witnessing children learning a second language must come to the conclusion that youngsters under the age of eight or nine are natural linguists. Given any reasonable opportunity of coming into contact with languages other than that of their parents, they acquire the second tongue with little apparent difficulty. But as they grow older and school curricula become more crowded they seem to lose this natural trait. Acquisition of a second tongue becomes harder.

But the extension of French courses to the younger grades requires a greater supply of bilingual teachers than is available under the present set-up in this province. This is especially true of the Protestant schools. Few Protestant teachers of French extraction can be obtained locally and the situation is met partially by importing teachers from Europe, especially Switzerland.

By permitting engagement of Roman Catholic teachers for French courses, the quality of French language instruction could be improved materially without any material menace to the present confessional nature of education in this province.

These are changes that could be effected with little delay and without awaiting the far broader reorganization of the Quebec educational system envisioned in the report of the Parent Commission.

A stupid man is a person successful at making difficult mistakes.

Spirit of Hyannis Port could fade

As Prime Minister Pearson begins informal talks with President Kennedy at Hyannis Port today, all the signs seem to point towards a vast improvement in relations between the United States and Canada.

Pearson, it has been said by the American press, is Mr. Kennedy's kind of man and conversely, Mr. Kennedy is Mr. Pearson's kind of man. The two should hit it off in great style, the pundits appear to feel.

While there can be no doubt that relations between the American president and Mr. Pearson will be much better than they were in the past few years between Mr. Diefenbaker and Mr. Kennedy (how could they be worse?) the rosy picture being painted now may not always be so pretty.

Mr. Kennedy is approaching an election year. The glow is off his administration, and the New Frontier to many Americans doesn't look too much different from the old deal. In foreign policy, Mr. Kennedy has made serious mistakes, and his Republican opponents are making ready to pounce on them.

In Europe, Mr. Kennedy has a formidable foe in General de Gaulle. While it is true this situation is not entirely of Mr. Kennedy's making, it is nevertheless a fact that Mr. Kennedy has shown no inclination to bring his views more in line with de Gaulle's. This is hardly surprising, since the two are so far apart, especially on the issue of the Western nuclear deterrent.

While most of the European leaders agree in principle with Mr. Kennedy's broad ideas on an Atlantic trading bloc, they differ from him on how this may best be achieved.

Trade may be one of the most significant considerations discussed by the Prime Minister and Mr. Kennedy this week. And foreign policy, particularly as it concerns Canada in her NATO and NORAD role is certain to be well gone over. So will a number of other issues, many of which are causing Mr. Kennedy domestic political trouble.

In all of these discussions, Mr. Kennedy will have to keep one eye open for the coming 1964 presidential elections. With the best intentions in the world, he will have to keep the American voter more in mind than Canada's well-being.

This is not to say Canada will be used in any way. But Canadians should not be surprised if Mr. Pearson finds it necessary, because of Mr. Kennedy's preoccupation with his own political fate, to depart from that all-embracing oneness that appears to permeate this week-end's meetings.

Soul mates are wonderful if they don't wind up as skippers.

They've taken fun out of the zoo

Officials of the Bronx Zoological Garden in New York are a devilishly clever lot. They have managed to make a pulpit out of a cage in the park. Not literally, of course, but close enough to make one wonder if they are not in the wrong business.

A cage in the ape house bears a sign: "The most dangerous animal in the world." Their curiosity piqued, visitors file up to the bars to be confronted with a mirror reflecting their images and they read: "You are looking at the most dangerous animal in the world. It alone of all animals that ever lived can exterminate, and has done so to entire species of animals. Now it has achieved the power to wipe out all life on earth."

At one time a zoo was just a place where parents brought their children for a Sunday afternoon outing and a little nature study. As long as they didn't worry too much about the humanness of caging dumb animals, parents could relax as well; perhaps the condition of the beasts reminded them that things weren't so bad after all.

The insufferable smugness which led zoo authorities to put up the signs in the first place should have driven them to using much more effective means. They might have persuaded one of their own to take a place in the empty cage, and attached a suitable description: "Crepe hanger. Recognizable by moans and grim forebodings of disaster. Easily angered by laughter and cheerfulness."

Other papers say:

Ottawa still requires high revenue

Premier Lesage says Quebec must be free to manage its own financial affairs as it sees fit, without interference from the federal government. No one can dispute that claim. No one can deny that Quebec must have revenues sufficient to pay the costs incurred by its government, with the approval of the provincial legislature. But the same is equally true of the federal government.

When Mr. Lesage budgets for huge deficits that are entirely Quebec's business. It becomes the nation's business only when Quebec asks the federal government to reduce its own revenues. And that is what Mr. Lesage has proposed.

All the provincial govern-

(Winnipeg Free Press)

ments can fix corporation, personal income and estate taxes at any level they may desire. The federal government, however, has left to the provinces 17 per cent (rising to 20 per cent by 1968) of the income tax field, nine per cent of the corporation taxes and 50 per cent of the estate taxes.

So long as the provinces adhere to the existing federal tax rates in these areas their residents are not subject to double taxation. Some provinces already have raised their rates, as they are entitled to do, and in these cases double taxation, within narrow limits so far, has begun.

Now Quebec (and perhaps other provinces) seem determined to raise more provincial revenue by driving the federal government further out of the three basic tax fields. Mr. Lesage suggests that the provincial governments shall be given 25 per cent of the personal income tax, 25 per cent of corporation taxes and 100 per cent of estate taxes, for a total cost to Ottawa of $250 million annually.

This would mean a large and unthinkable loss of federal revenue at a time when the national government is in deep budgetary deficit and has been for six years. If it were to accept Mr. Lesage's formula the federal deficit would be vastly increased or, alternatively, federal taxes outside the three basic

Detroit in midst of prosperity; Windsor is plunged into gloom

By ED MAHONEY

WINDSOR — (TNS) — Across the river the skyscrapers of Detroit glimmer in the sunlight and sparkle after dark and the magnificence of the view seems to rub salt in to Windsor's wounds.

The vision of Detroit is a reminder of the reality on the Canadian side of the narrow river that separates the two border cities.

In the shadow of the big buildings there may be dimness and troubles too, but from the Canadian side, where a lot of things are bad, everything on the American side looks good.

"SHOULD BE U.S."

"We should have been a part of that," said one Windsor businessman, telling of the markets the city would enter if the border were wiped away. And in fact, 4,000 Windsorites are a part of it, holding jobs on the other side.

For years the rest of Canada has been hearing about industry moving out of Windsor, about jobs disappearing, about financial troubles beginning in the depression and continuing long after. At the end of April there were 7,500 people looking for work, a large number in a population of close to 200,000.

FORD AGAIN

Ford of Canada started the exodus in a big way in 1953, when switch of assembly operations to Oakville began taking 4,400 jobs away from Windsor. Ford is in the news again, moving its parts depot from Windsor to Bramalea and closing out more jobs.

Other recently announced departures includes those of Somerville Industries Ltd. whose operations will be moved to other plants at Oshawa, Brantford, Toronto and Hamilton. Palmer-Pann Corporation's Canadian division, producer of paint-by-number supplies, is closing down Canadian activities.

But the news isn't all bad. If unemployment is high now, it's been worse in the past. Industry began moving out in a big way ten years ago, and it hasn't stopped yet, but some industries are arriving or expanding. The city's credit rating has improved.

WORRIED

Windsorites are insecure and worried about the future—but who isn't? The economic situation could be compared with such industrially underprivileged areas as the Maritimes and the Ottawa Valley.

The man in the street has his doubts about Windsor and its ability to recover, but the community's leaders insist that things are starting to roll and that the city, given a fair hearing, can bring new industry and new money to Canada's "sun parlor country."

But at the moment, there are problems: In Windsor in 1963 a man has a hard time selling his home. A prospective buyer may not be confident of having a job long enough to be able to pay for it.

In Windsor you don't ask a university professor what automation means. You ask a man loitering outside the Unemployment Insurance office and he tells you he worked in a plant for 21 years, then lost his job to a pushbutton.

DREAMS FADED

In Windsor you drive by tracts of land where three and four decades ago dreams of mighty industrial development were dreamed—but didn't come true.

And then you drive by silent, empty plants, the dreams that came true for a while, then faded away as far as Windsor was concerned. Next to the Detroit skyscrapers the most dramatic sight in town is the vast expanse of shattered windows in shut-down factories.

The Windsor story sounds like a gloomy one, but there are two sides to it. The biggest local industry, Chrysler Canada, is having a spectacularly successful year, the parts plants that remain are enjoying a parallel boom, and some new industry has been coming in.

And Windsor is a pleasant place to live, in many ways. The weather is Eastern Canada's best. Summer comes earlier and stays later than it does in the Toronto area. Detroit provides recreational, cultural and shopping facilities far better than an average city of Windsor's size could have.

The morale of the average citizen is a little shaky, but on official levels there appears to be plenty of confidence that the town will weather its current difficulties and go on to vigorous new industrial life.

People may be worrying, but they keep on spending. Customers move away from the city, but new customers keep coming in and business continues to grow.

IMPROVING

The Windsor situation is improving. The skyscrapers are all on the other side of the river, but the Windsor main street shops are doing their best to put up a good front. A lot of the old ones in the area are gone, making way for parking space and for redevelopment. Windsor has attractive new civic and government buildings.

Windsor has to reverse the recent decline and start a new, more diversified industrial life. Officially and unofficially, on both the municipal and provincial levels, plans are being made—and some of them sound as though they might work.

Successful meeting expected

Kennedy-Pearson honeymoon short?

By RON COLLISTER

HYANNIS PORT, MASS. — (TNS) — When Prime Minister Pearson meets here with President Kennedy in search of a new era of goodwill in Canada-U.S. relations, it might be well to remind him that sometimes these pow-wows boomerang.

Two years ago this month, President Kennedy and his wife flew to Ottawa to talk with Prime Minister Diefenbaker.

The capital gave the presidential couple an unprecedented welcome. Mountie horses nuzzled the pretty Mrs. Kennedy. And the president's words were applauded from coast to coast.

But that meeting, as this year's Canadian election showed, introduced a new era of venom in Canadian-U.S. relations.

Mr. Pearson, with thirty years in diplomatic service, knows the hazards.

Creating goodwill isn't just a matter of turning on a tap. That may cause a temporary flush of pleasure, but not enough to budge the problems that have to be faced later.

There are signs that this meeting will be a success for Mr. Pearson, just as his London visit was.

The talks have set only a narrow objective, an improvement in climate.

And Mr. Pearson, day after day during the election campaign, gave President Kennedy ample evidence of his personal goodwill, in defending the U.S. against savage onslaughts and sticking to his guns on the acceptance of U.S. nuclear weapons in Canada.

The mood of the talks is sure to be good.

But what about later? President Kennedy, an admirer of Pearson as opposition leader and before, is sure to expect Prime Minister Pearson to "produce".

Mr. Pearson has this advantage over his predecessor, John Diefenbaker: he is much better known in Washington.

And a Jack-Mike partnership is possible. During the Canadian election campaign the Guardian of Manchester said about Pearson: "One can see him as a very effective partner with Mr. Kennedy."

These problems will remain:

Will Mr. Pearson yield to Kennedy's pressures for Canada to join the organization of American States?

This isn't something that Canada could accept and forget about.

As the crisis around Haiti and the Dominican Republic shows, it could involve Canada — the least suspect nation — in a costly hemispheric police force project whenever a Latin republic popped.

It would be a natural role for Canada in the hemisphere, with its experience as a police force in the Middle East.

And what about the day when the U.S. will need an intermediary to make peace with Cuba?

Surely, a Canada outside the OAS and clearly not an instrument of the organization could do a better job. A decision is not easy and Pearson will not be making it at Cape Cod.

Will Mr. Pearson yield to Anglo-American pressures to join a NATO nuclear force?

Mr. Pearson has not struck one of his better performances in tackling this problem.

Believing in a stronger NATO, he can be assumed to back the idea in principle.

In London, he appeared to be backing the idea, the British thought he was, then he seemed to shy away from it.

A senior government official puts it this way: "If it is feasible and practical, then Canada could be expected to do what is necessary."

Probably the most serious obstacle to Pearson making up his mind is the feeling that such a NATO force will not find agreement at the NATO council meeting in Ottawa on May 22.

The Germans and French don't believe it goes far enough.

Is it really a European deterrent? The U.S., at any time, could remove its Polaris submarines, the British their Vulcan bombers.

What is left? — tactical planes with nuclear weapons, none with the ability to strike Russia.

This, clearly, is not enough to satisfy the French, who press on with their own nuclear deterrent, and the Germans, now impatient to acquire their own.

To make these two nations happy, the U.S. may have to agree to make much bigger concessions to a "Made in Europe" nuclear deterrent.

Also trade. — The U.S. is delighted with Pearson's strong support — in principle — for the Kennedy crusade for lower tariffs.

Pearson's position is more impressive because Canada is in a poorer position to barter for tariff cuts than Britain or the U.S.

Uncertainty clouds race issue

BIRMINGHAM, Ala. (AP)—Prospects for a final settlement of the Birmingham desegregation campaign were uncertain today despite an optimistic statement by Negro integration leader Dr. Martin Luther King Jr.

King said Thursday night that an agreement virtually had been worked out except for minor details. A series of statements and counter-statements followed.

City officials immediately said an agreement worked out by a biracial committee was not binding on them. The committee, composed of business and civic leaders, has no official status.

The committee resumes work today. Rev. Ralph D. Abernathy, one of the Negro leaders, said a press conference would be held later.

Both King and Abernathy warned that demonstrations would be resumed if no agreement is reached during the day.

NO DEMONSTRATION

For the second straight day, there were no massive demonstrations Thursday. Earlier demonstrations resulted in the arrests of approximately 2,400 and use of fire hoses and police dogs to disperse Negro crowds.

The Negro leaders called a truce Wednesday while the biracial committee worked for a solution.

King had said at a press conference shortly after noon Thursday that agreement had been reached on two goals of the integration campaign.

Points on which agreement had been reached, he said, provided for desegregation of lunch counters and other public facilities in the downtown stores, and improvement of job opportunities for Negroes.

Two other points sought were demands that charges against the 2,400 arrested be dropped, and for the formation of an official committee of Negroes and white persons to deal with racial problems.

CLARIFIES STAND

Shortly after King's comment Thursday night that only minor details remained to be worked out, his top aide, Rev. Wyatt Tee Walker, said there appeared to be some misunderstanding about what King meant. He said King issued this statement to clarify it:

"Things are almost worked out, but there are still some last-minute details to be dealt with." He did not say what details.

Mayor Albert Boutwell and the man he defeated for the post in a recent election, Police Commissioner Eugene (Bull) Connor, said they were not committed to any agreement worked out by the biracial committee.

"I want the people of Birmingham and Alabama to know that I have been in no meeting with anyone regarding any trade with Martin Luther King, or in making a deal with him for integration," Connor said.

Earlier, he said: "If they want to integrate the lunch counters downtown, I'm not going to stop them. That's their business."

Illustrated talk given to UCW at Beebe meeting

BEEBE — Mrs. W. Boomhour, of Waterloo, was the guest speaker of the Wesley United Church Women on May 1. The meeting was well attended by members as well as ladies from Granville U.C.W. and other guests.

The guest speaker showed slides of a trip which she and Rev. W. Boomhour took last year to Europe, including Scotland, and as the slides were shown she made a running commentary on them.

Mrs. H. S. Beane introduced the speaker, who was thanked by Mrs. F. Stanton.

At the business meeting, which was held earlier in the evening, plans were completed for the annual spring supper and sale to be held on May 11, and committees were appointed to convene the supper. The sale tables will feature home cooked food, fancy work, aprons and a white elephant table.

It was reported that the gift of a sweater and a shirt have been purchased for a boy and a girl in the Indian School run by the United Church in Manitoba. These to be sent to the children at Christmas.

Another letter was read from the adopted boy in Hong Kong expressing thanks for the monthly gift, and telling of his work at school and of his family.

For and about Women

Marriage

GAUTHIER—WELLS

The marriage of Deanna June Wells, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Russell Wells, of Lennoxville, to Flying Officer Laurier Denis Gauthier, R.C.A.F. Station, Comox, B.C., son of Mr. and Mrs. Phyllis Gauthier, Short Street, Sherbrooke, took place on April 20, 1963, in St. Patrick's Church, Sherbrooke. Msgr. Rosario Moisan officiating. John Codere was the organist. Easter lilies and large white chrysanthemums were used to decorate the church.

The bride, who was given in marriage by her father, wore a toe-length gown of white Swiss jaguard, fashioned with a fitted bodice, having a round neckline and long sleeves ending in points over the hands. The sheath skirt had a split panel, lined with peau de soie, falling from the waist at the back. Her short net veil was held in place by a tiara of seed pearls. She carried a white bible and a corsage of sweetheart roses and streamers.

Mrs. Andre St. Francois, sister of the groom, was the matron of honor and wore a street length gown of orchid lace over taffeta, fashioned with a full skirt and short sleeved lace jacket. She wore a matching headress and carried a colonial bouquet of yellow carnations.

Miss Bonnie Wells, sister of the bride, as bridesmaid, was identically attired as the matron of honor, the color being apple green. She carried a colonial bouquet of yellow carnations.

The bride's wedding dress and attendants' outfits were made by the bride's grandmother, Mrs. Hyatt.

The ushers were: F/O Bob Robert, Greenwood, N.S., and F/O Ivan Giroux, Comox, B.C.

The bride's mother wore an ensemble of periwinkle blue silk shantung dress, with coat of variegated blue imported Swiss brocade, lined with the same material as the dress. She wore white accessories and a corsage of deep pink carnations.

The groom's mother was attired in a navy blue dress, with white accessories and a corsage of pale pink carnations.

Following the ceremony a reception was held at the home of the bride's parents, the dining-room being decorated with pink and white streamers and wedding bells.

The head table had a centerpiece of pink and white variegated carnations in a silver bowl, flanked by white tapers in crystal holders. The sideboard was centred with a wedding cake, flanked by white tapers in silver holders.

Later the couple left by plane for Comox, B.C., the bride wearing for travelling, a Copenhagen blue wool suit and black accessories. Her corsage was of pink sweetheart roses.

The couple will reside in Comox, B.C.

Mary Brooks Picken on sewing

How to sew a fine seam....

Seams are most important for they help to shape the garment. Seams will sag if not properly stitched. They must support the garment for you. Fabric must look as though it had grown together—not pushed, crowded or puckered. When seams are pressed open they will be smooth and flat. It behooves everyone who sews to learn to do a perfect seam, smoothing the fabric together so easily that neither side of the seam can pucker—and, of course, taking precaution to press each seam before it joins another.

Any extreme excess in seam width can be trimmed, just be sure the seam is wide enough to give support to the garment. Remember, seams represent the structural lines of a garment. Custom-made garments always have good supporting seams.

Some complain that the seam allowance is too wide on some patterns. This can be a safeguard, especially if you have put on weight, for dresses are easily altered at the seams.

(A) shows a plain, pressed-open seam. This can be from 1/2 to one-inch wide.

(B) shows how a plain seam can be pinked. Many good dresses have pinked seams, especially in firmly woven fabrics such as gingham, pique and the fine thread synthetics.

(C) shows a pressed-open, overcast seam. Especially right for wool, chiffon, crepe, any fabric that ravel easily.

(D) shows a clean, stitched seam. This is used in most drip-dry fabrics, those fabrics that go to the tub often. The stitching gives strength and provides support. In using such a seam—when pressing after washing, always press the seam open on the wrong side before beginning your pressing on the right side.

(E) shows how dart seams should join a body seam. The armhole seam should be stitched—once on the seam line, once in the seam itself—for strength, then the raw edges overcast. Note especially the scissor clips at the waistline where there is a slight curve. This is done so the seam will press flat and give a good structural line on the right side.

Homemaking

Kitchen Brush-Up

Corners and spaces under cabinets, stoves or refrigerators make cleaning the kitchen floor a slight problem. You will find that brushes designed for other purposes can make the kitchen task easier. You won't have to get down on your hands and knees. For reaching under items or into difficult spots, try a long-handled brush designed for sweeping snow from cars.

Polly's pointers

by Polly Cramer

DEAR POLLY — My suggestion will be a boon to the career girl who washes her lingerie in the washbasin. A plastic drinking glass, inverted, serves as a simple plunger. There is no harm to fabrics from the use of this soft plastic and rubbing fabrics and brushing gloves to get them clean does cause friction that can be wearing to clothes. I am a home economics teacher and use your tips on my bulletin board. I am very grateful to you for them.

BEE

GIRLS — Each of you take a bow; the tips this teacher uses are yours. I can only accept Bee's thanks in your names.

DEAR POLLY — Members of our family live in distant states. Now each family has bought an inexpensive transistor tape recorder and we mail tapes to each other instead of writing letters. Even children who are too young to write can use it. It works very well and 10 cents postage usually mails a 3-inch reel of tape. It is so wonderful to hear the voices of those you love.

MRS. G. C.

DEAR POLLY — A child's discarded toy drum will make a decorative magazine rack for his room. Cut out the top of the drum and reinforce the bottom with a heavy cardboard circle. He will love having comic and other small books all together in one spot. You will like the way it helps keep the room neat.

MRS. B. H.

DEAR POLLY — Now that my daughter has outgrown her doll-size ironing board, I put it to use when working at my sewing machine. I set it up by my chair and as I finish each seam, I lay the material on the little board and press it without getting out of my chair. It is a perfect height to use while sitting and is big enough to accommodate most of the pressing I need to do while making a garment.

MRS. D. M. D.

GIRLS — This I like. I confess there have been times when I did not press a seam open simply because I was too lazy to get up and go to the ironing board. But be sure the iron is placed where it can't burn you or start a fire.

DEAR POLLY — On the top front of the kitchen drawer where I keep sandwich wrap, I have marked on the exact length to tear paper for half a sandwich, one or two sandwiches. The light pencil marks do not show when the drawer is closed.

My children love to play in the tub after their baths. So to make it easier for all of us, I give them their baths, then scrub the bathroom while they play and I can watch them. The result is happy children and a cleaner bathroom, and I have more time to spend on it while they are within sight.

PAULINE

DEAR POLLY — I am sure many housewives have the same limited space for hanging clothes that I have. I took an old basketball basket, just the hoop without the net, and put it on a bedroom wall. The hoop is painted to go with the room's decor and it is surprising how many clothes can be hung on it in such a little space.

MRS. G. K.

GIRLS — This would be an idea for the laundry room, too. Freshly ironed things could be hung on the hoop. When not in use for this purpose, what a wonderful place to put a big basket of greens or flowers. Think I will put one on my porch for vines and flowers, this summer.

DEAR POLLY — When my children receive a new game, I use cellulose tape to reinforce the corner seams of the box, inside and out. This prevents the box from coming apart at the seams from too much handling.

M. C.

GIRLS — A big rubber band around the box will also be a help when there are loose cards or parts that are easily scattered or lost.

POLLY

DEAR POLLY — Don't throw away those old window shades. They make excellent canvases for the art student or amateur painter in your family.

E. S.

DEAR POLLY — On chilly spring days, put the children's sweaters on backwards for added throat protection as they play.

No time for chores

Once upon a time I wrote a column pointing out that the wife who wants her husband to get ahead shouldn't expect him to spend evenings and weekends helping her around the house.

A man, I claimed, needed time for reading, studying, figuring out the answers to job problems, and just for relaxing, to keep moving up the success ladder. So wasn't it shortsighted to expect him to spend his evenings helping with the dishes and getting the kids to bed, and his weekends being a handyman, leaving him little time to himself?

Letters poured in from angry wives, claiming their husbands not only routinely helped them with housework, but enjoyed doing it. (Nary a letter from a husband claiming to love housework, however.)

Now a study of what are the main causes of husband-wife squabbles lists as No. 5 "conflicts over sharing household tasks."

Obviously, the picture the wives painted of their husbands loving to help with the housework isn't quite the way things are in many families.

There is bound to be quite a bit of rebellion on the part of husbands at being expected to be mama's little helper, if husbands and wives argue more over "sharing household tasks" than they do over their children or in-laws, as the study showed they do.

Working wives, who have no household help, do, of course, have a right to expect husbands to lend a hand with household chores.

But full-time homemakers whose financial security depends entirely on how well their husbands succeed would be smarter to manage the housework without their husband's help. They should permit their husbands to concentrate on making a success of jobs or careers.

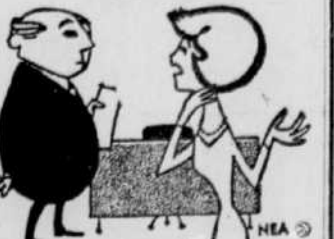

Food Tips

Mushrooms Parmesan are a gourmet accompaniment to beef dishes. To make them, wash, drain and stem 1 1/2 pounds of mushrooms. Place caps in a baking dish and sprinkle with olive oil or salad oil, using about 1/4 cup of oil. Then season with salt and pepper and top with a mixture of 1/4 cup fine dried bread crumbs and five tablespoons grated Parmesan cheese. Dot each mushroom cap with margarine and bake about 20 minutes in a 350 deg. F. oven. Makes four to six servings.

THE WORLD OF SPORTS

Frank Robinson goes 5-for-5 and Redlegs crush Colts 13-3, Cards bomb Dodgers to post 10-7 victory

It's May, and suddenly Frank Robinson's bat is beginning to act like a divining rod for base hits.

A notoriously slow starter, Robinson went 5-for-5 and drove in seven runs on two homers, two singles and a double Thursday night as Cincinnati Reds erupted for its biggest offensive outburst of the season and crushed Houston Colts 13-3.

It was easily Robinson's best night and gave every indication that his bat, usually rather quiet in April, is beginning to point toward the ball like a divining rod to water now that May is here. In nine days, he has doubled his home run and RBI production.

The 27-year-old right-handed swinger, key to Reds' National League pennant chances, now has six homers and 22 runs batted in. He has raised his batting average up to .301 and led Reds from ninth place to sixth.

Robinson drove in two runs with a third inning double, hit a two-run homer in the sixth and connected for a three-run shot in the eighth. The sixth inning homer came off Jim Umbricht, Colts pitcher returned to the active list only hours before the game after recovering from cancer surgery.

FEELS GOOD
Umbricht, who pitched only one inning, said: "I'm not throwing real well, but I felt real good."

While Reds were unleashing their attack against Colts, St. Louis Cardinals bombed Los Angeles Dodgers for 17 hits, including a grand slam home run by Bill White, in a 10-7 victory.

First-place San Francisco Giants defeated Milwaukee Braves 8-2 as Felipe Alou continued to pound the ball, Chicago's second-place Cubs ran their winning streak to six by beating Pittsburgh Pirates 3-1 behind Dick Ellsworth's two-

HIT FIRST PITCH

White hit the first pitch by Dodger reliever Dick Scott for his grand slam as Cards exploded for seven runs in the fifth inning. Gene Oliver and Charlie James also homered for St. Louis. Cards turned the tables on Dodgers, who had scored 22 runs against them in two games.

Alou drove in three runs with his seventh homer and two doubles, scoring four runs and raised his league-leading batting average to .384 in Giants' victory at Milwaukee. Ed Bailey also drove in three runs while Billy O'Dell won his fourth without a loss in a battle with Warren Spahn. The victory was the Giants' ninth in 10 games on a current road trip and 13th in 15 away-from-home games over-all.

Cubs also won their ninth in 10 games as Ellsworth, who missed his last turn due to arm trouble, allowed only a second inning single by Don Clendenon and Dick Schofield's single in the ninth. Chicago put it away in the first. Ken Hubbs struck out but reached first when the third strike got past catcher Jim Pagliaroni. Billy Williams followed with a triple and Ernie Banks hit a sacrifice fly.

Tim Lincecum of Lachine, Que., drove in two runs with a bases-loaded single and Johnny Klippstein uncorked a wild pitch that sent the winning run home in a three-run ninth inning upsurge that gave Mets a sweep of the three-game series with Phillies.

Wings' Gordie Howe wins Hart Trophy

Flyers win 5-2, rhubarb breaks out

EDMONTON (CP)—A threat to withdraw his club from the Memorial Cup junior hockey championship vanished today as coach Hap Emms of Niagara Falls Flyers said his club would be ready for the sixth game Saturday against Edmonton Oil Kings.

Flyers turned back Edmonton Oil Kings 5-2 to cut Oil Kings' margin to 3-2 in the best-of-seven series. It was by far the best game of the series and it finished on a wild, bitter note both on and off the ice.

If a seventh game is needed it will be played Monday. A sellout crowd of 6,746 fans saw Flyer Terry Crisp score two goals, the second the eventual winner. Gary Harner, who broke his left leg in the second period, Bill Glashan and defenceman Don Awrey added singles.

Defenceman Jim Eagle and Doug Fox tallied for Oil Kings, who never overcame a two-goal margin built by Flyers in the opening period. They trailed 3-1 after two periods.

Harner was the second Flyer to suffer a broken leg in the series. The first was Gary Dornhoefer Monday night.

RHUBARB STARTS
The rhubarb started with less than two minutes to play when Gregg Pilling of Edmonton and Rick Morin of Niagara Falls crashed against the boards.

Pilling's stick then struck Morin on the head while Morin lay on the ice. The American-born defenceman was taken to the dressing room on a stretcher and 12 stitches were required to close the cut.

Meanwhile, Flyer and Oil King players pushed and shoved in front of the Edmonton bench. Sticks were waved and gestures made.

Emms exchanged verbal taunts with Buster Brayshaw, Oil Kings' coach. Brayshaw also shook his fist at a press box occupied by Eastern sportswriters and sportscasters. Moments before a box of sugar cubes and plastic aprons was hurled into the Edmonton bench and fans shouted to Brayshaw it had come from the press box.

Police investigated but could not determine whether the debris had been thrown from the box, but Art Potter of Edmonton, Canadian Amateur Hockey Association president, said later all radio and newspaper personnel in the box faced expulsion from the facilities.

MAY BAN GROUP

He said he received a report from the arena management and added the guilty party was ordered to appear at the Exhibition Association offices today or the entire group would be banned from the box.

Emms had harsh words for Potter, too. He said the CAHA official was "strictly a homer" and his actions were dictatorial. "I don't care if they suspended me, but that's what I think."

The Eastern coach said Potter failed to follow the rules in the CAHA manual on three questions he had raised. On one, whether the goal lines should be 10 feet from the end boards instead of 15 as at Edmonton Gardens, Emms has protested the entire series.

Potter said any criticism of his actions would be taken before the semi-annual meeting of the CAHA. "I won't rule on them myself."

Potter said he thought the series so far had been cleanly played and had no thought about warning either coach.

He added if Flyers had carried out a threat to default the series to Oil Kings the club would have faced a lengthy suspension.

Emms said after the game his players would decide whether they wanted to continue the series or leave for home. "The players can't go on the way things are going now and risk the chance of being crippled for life."

The meeting later was cancelled. Emms' son Paul became embroiled in a fracas with other fans after remarks made to his wife. He was handcuffed by three policemen and carried to the sanctuary of a dressing room corridor.

LAST NIGHT'S FIGHTS

Cops event for sixth time to set record, wins NHL scoring title for sixth time also, polls 81 out of 90

MONTREAL (CP) — Gordie Howe of Detroit Red Wings has won the Hart Trophy as the National Hockey League's most valuable player for an unprecedented sixth time.

The league announced today Howe polled 81 of a possible 90 points in voting for the second half of the season, giving him a season total of 111 points, more than double Stan Mikita of Chicago Black Hawks who had 54.

Howe, an effortless skating ring winger who turned 35 at the season's end, was superb in the last half of the season. He came from behind to win the league scoring title for the sixth time—also a record—with 86 points. His total of 38 goals was the league high.

The slope-shouldered, 202-pounder from the hamlet of Floral, Sask., has scored a league record of 1,202 points in his 17 NHL seasons. Last season he won the award in 1951-52, 1952-53, 1956-57, 1957-58, 1959-60 and last season.

ALSO COACHES
Howe, who is also an assistant coach of Wings, receives $1,500 with the award. He gets $1,000 for leading in the over-all voting and $500 for leading in the second half.

This brings his bonus money for the season to $5,000. He pocketed $2,000 for being named to the first all-star team in both halves of the season and $1,500 for being the leading scorer in both the second half of the season and in the whole season.

Howe has been named to the first or second all-star teams in 14 of his 17 NHL seasons, and in the last eight seasons, he's made the first team eight times.

Mikita was centre on the first all-star team and Hall was first-team goalie. Sawchuk was second-team goalie and Mahovlich won first all-star rating on left wing by a wide margin.

Other players to receive votes in the over-all standings were: Dave Keon of Toronto, 11; Lorne Worley of New York, 9; Henri Richard of Montreal, 9; Andy Bathgate of New York, 8; Jacques Plante of Montreal, 8; Pierre Pilote of Chicago, 3; Bobby Hull of Chicago, 1; Bob Pulford of Toronto, 1.

Plante won the award last year. After Sawchuk with 44 points.

Floyd Patterson insists neither his injured hand, planned trip to Birmingham would stop the fight

NEW YORK (AP) — Floyd Patterson insisted Thursday that neither his injured finger nor his planned trip to strife-torn Birmingham would alter the date of his July 22 rematch with heavyweight champion Sonny Liston at Las Vegas.

"The fight definitely will go on July 22," said the former champion who was knocked out in the first round last September. "Even if my hand hasn't healed, it will go on."

Patterson appeared at a press conference wearing a small bandage on his right hand. It covered a scar that remained when a doctor removed a callous near the knuckle of the right hand.

The rematch, originally set for Miami Beach, Fla., in April, was postponed from April 4 to April 10 because of an injury to Liston's knee. After it was rescheduled for Las Vegas June 27, it was set back by Patterson's minor operation.

JOINS JACKIE
At the conference called to announce that he and Jackie Robinson were going to be partners in a real estate venture, Patterson said he was going to visit Birmingham next Monday with the baseball Hall of Famer, first Negro to play major league baseball.

"I was sitting around camp, reading the papers and watching television," said Patterson. "I saw them turn the hoses on the people and heard about the dogs biting the people. I felt guilty. It was just as much my fight as theirs."

"Some people say this will affect my career or the gate of my fights. I don't care. The fight becomes secondary to something like this. I told Jackie I wanted to go with him to give the Negroes down there confidence in the Negroes of the north."

"I expect to be arrested. I expect to be handled roughly and put in jail."

"If they turn the hose on me, I'll turn my back," he said. "If they put the dogs on me, I'll protect myself. If anybody attacks me, I'll endure it."

Jets rally to win 5-0 over Arkansas club
LITTLE ROCK, Ark. (AP)—Columbus Jets got to pitcher Billy Smith for three runs in the second inning Thursday night and went on to hand Arkansas Travelers their first shutout of the International League season, 5-0.

Orlando McFarland led off for Columbus with a double and Gary Rushing tripled him home. Then Rex Johnston slammed a two-run homer with two out.

Ray Herbert tosses two-hitter to blank Yanks 2-0 to hold top spot, Orioles down Red Sox, Indians lose Ray Herbert was just another good journeyman pitcher before he made his way to Chicago. But there, under White Sox manager Al Lopez, he found the magic touch.

Herbert hadn't caused many sensations in eight seasons at Detroit and Kansas City, although he won almost as many as he lost.

Then came the trade to Chicago. Last year, his first full season with White Sox, he had a 20-9 record.

This season his start is even better. He's 4-1 and all the victories have been shutouts, the last three in a row. The latest was a two-hit, 2-0 blanking of New York Yankees Thursday night that protected White Sox one-game lead and dropped Yankees to fifth.

Baltimore Orioles climbed into a share of second with a 4-1 triumph over Boston Red Sox while Washington Senators finally got around to beating Mudcat Grant, whipping Cleveland Indians 6-0 behind Dave Stenhouse in the only other games scheduled.

ALLOWS THREE RUNNERS
Herbert, a 33-year-old right-hander, allowed the stumbling Yankees only three base-runners in extending his scoreless inning string to 27. Clete Boyer singled in the third and Joe Pepitone in the fifth for Yankees' only hits. Bobby Richardson walked in the fourth.

A two-run double by shortstop Ron Hansen was all the hitting support Herbert needed. His four shutouts are only one off the league high of 1962. The others have come on three-hitters against Kansas City and Washington and a four-hitter against Baltimore.

Grant had won 12 straight in Washington before Senators finally got to him. He left in the fourth after Ed Brinkman unloaded a three-run homer. Stenhouse spaced seven hits in gaining his first shutout of the season.

Chuck Estrada and Stu Miller combined for a three-hitter in Orioles' victory over Boston. Estrada had a one-hitter through seven innings, but retired after allowing a lead-off double to Bob Tillman in the eighth. A bunt single and an infield out brought him in.

LAST NIGHT'S STARS
Batting — Frank Robinson, Reds, went 5-for-5, hitting two homers, two singles and double, and driving in seven runs in 13-3 walloping of Houston.

Pitching — Ray Herbert, White Sox, allowed only two hits, posting third consecutive shutout and fourth in five games in 2-0 blanking of New York Yankees.

$200,000 at stake in Carling World Golf

TORONTO — The first of the annual Carling World Golf Championships with its purse of $200,000, will be played at the famed Oakland Hills Golf and Country Club near Detroit from August 27 to 30, 1964. The announcement was made by C. Norman Fry, President of Oakland Hills.

Scene of four U.S. Opens—the most recent being in 1961—Oakland Hills is recognized throughout the world as one of the toughest competition courses. It will provide a great golf test for the approximately 140 golfers from around the globe who will compete for the first true world golf championship.

Declared Mr. C. O. Dalton, President of The Carling Breweries Limited, Canada: "From the beginning we realized the importance of finding a course of national and international renown with members dedicated to the finest traditions of golf. We know Oakland Hills fulfills these requirements."

We are also pleased the site is near Detroit, a friendly city with easy access from Canada. May I again reiterate our hope that in a modest way The Carling World will aid in furthering good will and better understanding amongst all nations."

The Carling World is a joint venture sponsored by The Carling Breweries Limited in Canada, the Carling Brewing Company in the United States and Charrington United Breweries in Great Britain. It is being that these zones will be designated as follows: The United States; Canada; Latin America; British Isles and Eire; Europe; North Africa and Middle East; Africa; Asia and the Far East; and Australasia.

The $200,000 purse—the richest in golf history—will be divided as follows: first, $35,000; second, $17,000; third, $8,500; fourth, $7,200; fifth, $6,500; sixth, $5,800; seventh, $5,200; eighth, $4,600; ninth, $4,000; and tenth $3,500. The next 65 finalists will receive prizes in varying amounts and all professional contestants will receive a minimum of $450.

The Carling World will be played in the United States again in 1965 and in 1966 will move to the United Kingdom. In 1967, our Centennial Year, Canada will be the host country.

When he picks up his one-way ticket in June, Don will be setting out on a trail blazed earlier—and with varying degrees of success—by such west coast players as Fred Whittaker, Jack Cowan, Gogie Stewart and Errol Crossan.

Don learned his soccer in the British Columbia Juvenile Association and graduated to Vancouver Canadians of the Pacific Coast League. This season he was transferred to Royal City, the phoenix which rose from the ashes of the once-great New Westminster Royals. He filled a gaping hole on the right wing—created by a two-year suspension to Crossan—and won all-star honors at the position. Now he hopes to follow the steps Crossan took 10 years ago.

And if Birmingham, Manchester, Bristol City and Everton aren't interested, well, Don can always visit his uncle in Ireland. He's president of the Coleraine club.

Wilson wants try out with Birmingham

VANCOUVER (CP) — Don Wilson was born in the soccer city of Birmingham but left it at the age of eight.

Now he's 19, an all-star winger, and he's going back to try out with the team he has followed ever since he was old enough to know how the game is played.

"I don't know how things will work out," he says. "But if I don't make a try, I'll always kick myself for not grabbing the opportunity."

And if Birmingham isn't interested, Don also has letters of introduction to Manchester United, Bristol City and Everton.

Qualification races here tomorrow

The first qualification races at the Sherbrooke track will be held tomorrow morning with the opening event slated for 10.30 a.m. These classes are being held in order that young horses may register for racing.

In case of rain, Saturday morning, the races will be held Sunday afternoon starting at 1.30 p.m. The official opening of the racing season takes place Sunday, May 19, and a good program will be presented.

President Roger Trudeau held a meeting of the shareholders Thursday evening to complete plans for the coming year. Several things were discussed and the directors were given final approval of the meeting. One special thing was noted that this year several "Stakes" will be held.

The Club last year, owing to the late start caused by the fire and the construction strike, didn't get things underway until late. This year the early start will help matters. Another new feature will be the running of the Canadian Juvenile Stake. Last season Sherbrooke dropped the classic but this year the Canadian Trotting Association asked if they wanted to stage one leg of the event and the local club agreed.

Miss Eileen Morgan, racing secretary, has lined up 13 horses for the three different classes to be held. Seven colts will try and qualify in the pace while in the trot four are listed with two aged horses.

The list of horses and owners follows:

Cuban finally lands to play with San Diego

SAN DIEGO, Calif. (AP)—A Cuban whose advance to the major leagues was blocked when he could not get permission to leave Cuba is back with San Diego of the Pacific Coast League.

He is first baseman Rogelio Alvarez, a heavy hitter with San Diego last year.

San Diego bought him from Washington of the American League. Washington had acquired him from Cincinnati for outfielder Harry Bright, but the deal was called off because the National League club couldn't get Alvarez out of Cuba.

San Diego general manager Eddie Leishman said "no comment" when asked how Alvarez finally did get out of Cuba.

Doug Sanders fires 67 to lead Colonial

FORT WORTH, Tex. (AP)—Doug Sanders played without pain for the first time since the masters tournament and shot a three-under-par 67 for the opening-round lead in the $60,000 Colonial national invitation golf tournament Thursday.

The big news of the opening day was the withdrawal of controversial Don January, who disqualified himself.

January, invited to the tournament after a threatened player revolt, had an 83 and took himself out for playing the wrong ball on the eighth hole.

Bill Collins, another entrant hampered by injury—he has a slipped disc in his back—came in with a 68 for a second place.

The big three—Jack Nicklaus, Arnold Palmer and Gary Player—had difficulties with the course.

Nicklaus managed a 71 that left him four strokes out of first place. Palmer shot a 74 and Player a 73.

At Johnston of Montreal was tied for 11th spot with a 72 after the first round while Stan Leonard of Vancouver, blossoming to a 39 on the back nine after going out in 35, had a 74.

At Ballding of Toronto fired a 75.

Kroll collected $4,300 in winning the $50,000 Canadian Open last year. Prize money was boosted by $20,000 this year to attract more of the big-name pros. The tournament will be staged July 3-6 at Toronto Scarborough club.

Ted Kroll and Tony Lema to play in Open

MONTREAL (CP) — Defending champion Ted Kroll of Fort Lauderdale, Fla., and Tony Lema of San Leandro, Cal., have entered this year's $50,000 Canadian Open Golf Championship, it was announced Thursday.

Kroll collected $4,300 in winning the $50,000 Canadian Open last year. Prize money was boosted by $20,000 this year to attract more of the big-name pros. The tournament will be staged July 3-6 at Toronto Scarborough club.

Truckers are 'good neighbours'

What does good public relations mean to the commercial vehicle driver? How can a driver help his company's reputation with the public?

A driver must remember that he is in the public eye 24 hours a day. What he does and how he does it can reflect on himself and his company. This means, that while he is on the road, he must be careful and courteous at all times. In short, he must reflect the true personality of a professional driver.

But care and courtesy alone, is not enough. He must also be a good neighbour.

Most people realize that their welfare, happiness and prosperity is closely tied with the success of the company that employs them. Each year with the firm serves to strengthen this tie and makes both employee and employer more dependent on each other.

Most companies are judged not only by the quality of their service but by the public has a direct bearing on our success.

Our value to the community lies in many things, such as:

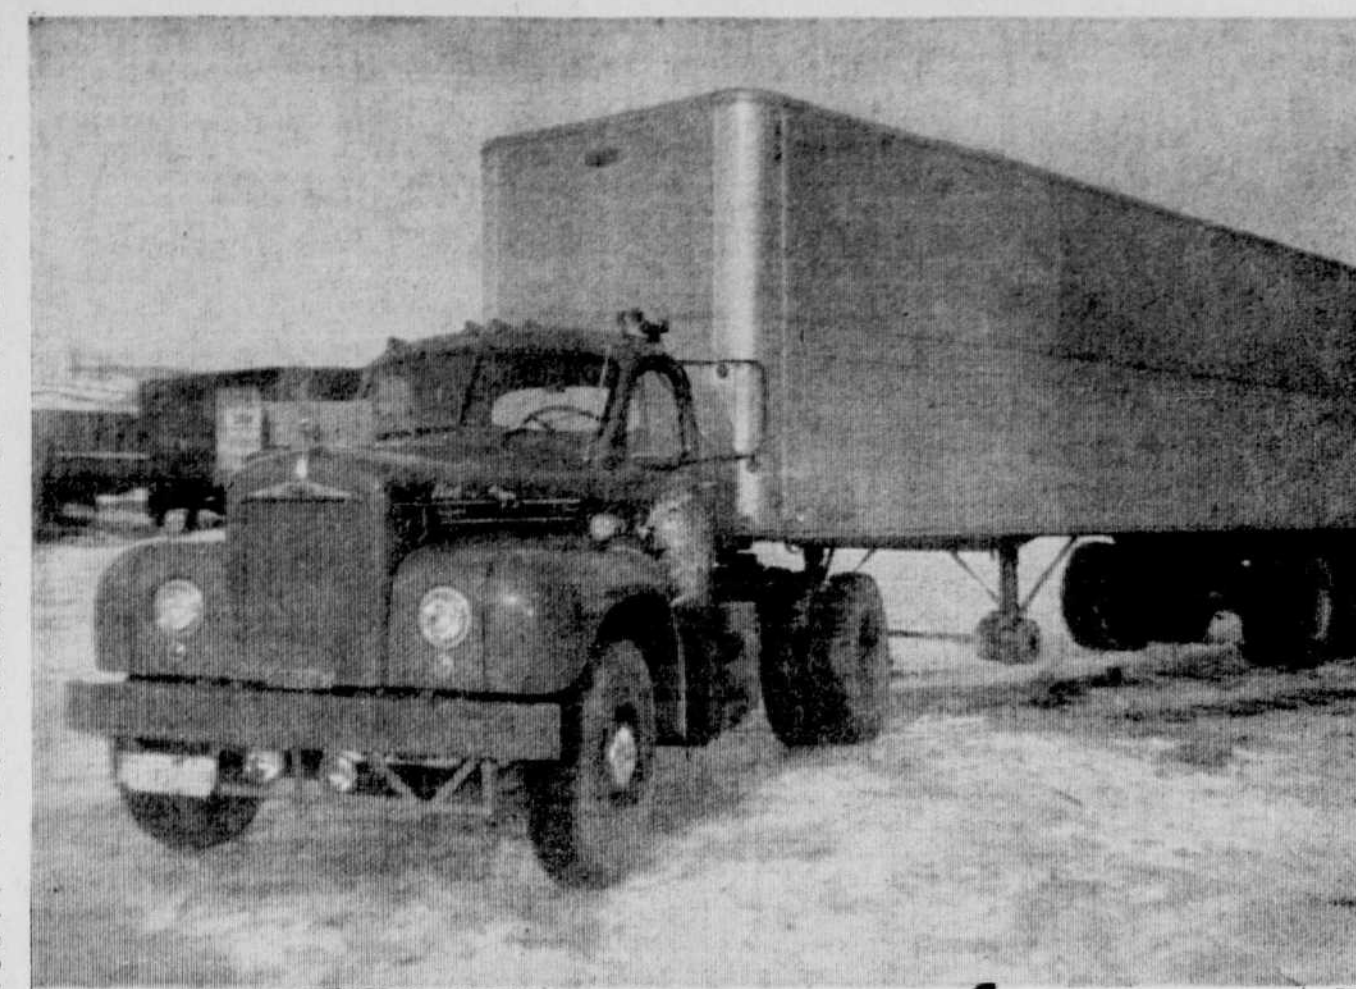

QUALITY SERVICE — Providing a dependable high quality service immediately sets the company and its employees up a few notches. The community always takes pride in any outfit that lives up to high standards.

HOSPITALITY — One of the things that mark you as a good neighbour is the way you treat guests in your home. The same applies here. The way people are treated when they come here call us on the phone or meet us on the highway, influences their opinion of us to a great degree.

GOOD APPEARANCE — We will not be considered as good neighbours as a company if we permit our vehicle to scatter trash all over the landscape, operate noisily and, in such conditions to fill the air with smoke and offensive odors. These are things that both you and your company can do to be good neighbours.

Hard-working brother of passenger car had influence on world history

The hard-working brother of the passenger car has been neglected by historians.

But, slighted or not, trucks have had a tremendous influence upon world history of the past half century.

Perhaps historians neglected the truck because it is almost impossible to determine exactly when and where it first came into being.

In the early days, trucks were only vaguely distinguished from other types of motor vehicles. The term 'automobile' was not universally used in this country until many years after 'horseless carriages' first appeared. And, while the word today denotes passenger cars, it once applied more generally to all self-propelled road conveyances. The word truck was of later coinage.

The origins of the truck can be traced back to the first cart, or perhaps just back to the steam vehicles of the French Captain, Nicholas Cugnot, and the American, Oliver Evans, early in the 19th century.

Cugnot's cumbersome creation was designed to pull artillery, which would make it a tractor in today's terminology. Evans' vehicle, a barge that moved to the waterfront of Philadelphia on its own steam-powered wheels, was what we would now call an amphibious truck.

The great revolution in transport, however, did not get underway until the end of the century, when lighter weight steam, electric and gasoline powered road vehicles were invented. Looking back only that far, it is still difficult to say exactly why and how the truck emerged—whether it developed from or preceded the passenger car.

In Germany, both Benz and Daimler turned out commercial vehicles about as early as they made automobiles. The same was true of such French pioneers as Levassor and Panhard. In the United States the early Duryea vehicles were called 'motor wagons' and were intended to carry both passengers and goods.

Most truck use was limited to the cities and towns for local deliveries until after World War I.

The great road-building campaign of the twenties sparked the future growth of highway transportation.

From this time on, the motor vehicle became the all-purpose work horse of our country. The development of new earth-moving construction and farm vehicles helped set off a tremendous spurt of industrial and agricultural expansion throughout Canada, which continues today.

A pleasant event was held at the Rolling Hills Motel, on April 30, when 16 members of the Ladies' Aid and friends enjoyed a turkey dinner, with all the trimmings.

The driver of a Smith Transport truck escaped with only an injured hand, a cut on his forehead and a shaking up, when a broken tie rod caused the vehicle to go over the embankment near the home of Ernest Wilson on the outskirts of the village. The truck, loaded with furniture, remained upright. Provincial Police investigated the accident.

Hays Earns Praise on Dairy Decision

Agriculture minister Hays had made good progress with his first major decision — establishing new dairy supports. His announcement last week marks another big step forward in solving the butter surplus. It has also been well received by dairy people and consumers. The new dairy plan involves: on butter, government buying and selling butter at 52 cents a pound and paying 14.5 cents a pound butterfat in compensatory payments to farmers shipping cream or whole milk to make butter; on cheese, the special payment of 25 cents a cwt. will be increased to 30 cents on milk for cheddar cheese, but will not apply to milk for other purposes nor to surplus fluid milk for cheese; and on skim milk powder, government will purchase certain quantities to maintain prices. But purchases will take seasonal surpluses mainly and purchase price will not be over 11 cents a pound.

Big opportunity to reduce the butter surplus is in eliminating surplus fluid milk from butter price support as well as the special 25-cent payment. Special 30-cent payment on cheddar cheese milk should also divert more butterfat to cheese than was used last year. The hope in Ottawa is that this new dairy plan will bring production of butter into balance with consumption in 1963. But other measures would be needed to keep them in balance and Mr. Hays announced that he intends to move in this direction. Indications are that such constructive action will be welcomed by both farmers and processors.

A few problems are being encountered in getting the new dairy program shaken down. The producers of cheese other than cheddar are asking that the special 30-cent payment apply to their milk also. The strong market for casein may be hurt if processors shift from casein to skim milk powder because of the higher government support for the latter. Another problem is how to prevent some of these price supports being viewed as export subsidies by countries importing certain dairy products. But Ottawa expects these problems to be satisfactorily solved in the next few weeks.

Turkey Outlook Moderates But Still Strong

Though turkey is becoming a year-round staple, producers face a less buoyant market this year than last. Several factors temper this year's market. The pattern of turkey production is changing, competition from beef and especially pork will be stiff and storage stocks are large. Storage stocks at January 1 were 25.9 million pounds, up five million from last year. Turkey consumption has been on the increase. In March it was nearly double that of March, 1962. But turkey slaughter from January 1 to March 31 was 1.6 million pounds (16 per cent) higher than last year and storage stocks at April 1 were still over 20 million pounds, 4 million higher than a year earlier.

Turkey slaughter dropped sharply in April and will be below last year's levels until early summer, reflecting light placements of poulters last fall and winter. But placement of poulters in March was up 32 per cent for broiler weights and 37 per cent for mature weights and eggs set for broilers showed a big increase in April.

Prices have been steady but dropped a little under last year's in April for some classes. Prospects are prices will run below last year's for the balance of the year. In the next few months while turkey slaughter is lower, competition from red meats will be strong.

est. Heavier supply will prevent much climb in price when cases in the fall. But at current retail prices, turkey is a good buy and will likely continue to move well during the year.

The question of hog quality is likely to be carefully examined by farm organizations, processors, and governments during the next year or two, according to indications from Ottawa. Improvement of the quality of hogs seems essential if pork is to hold its place in the consumer shopping basket.

A natural preference for beef, remarkable changes in methods of poultry production and marketing and consumer demand for lean meat, are diminishing the share pork held in the market. Concern over this has brought forth much discussion in the past few months. In 1952 per capita consumption of beef, pork and poultry meat was, respectively, (in pounds) 54.0, 56.0 and 22.0. In 1962 per capita consumption was 67.0, 53.0 and 31.6 pounds respectively.

Lack of improvement in quality appears to be the main factor in pork's failure to hold its own. In 1941, 31.5 per cent of hogs graded A; in 1961 only 32.7 per cent. But grading in itself can't change the quality of hogs coming to market. Improvement of quality seems to hinge on (1) hog producers being able to recognize, at the farm, hogs which will produce retail cuts that sell well with minimum of preparation and (2) enough price differential between grades to create a stronger incentive to develop breeding, feeding and management methods for low-cost quality production.

Preparation aids growth

By MARGARET DOVE

Flower and vegetable seeds should be planted in beds prepared in advance by fertilizing, spading, hoeing and raking. The plants will be easier to cultivate and the garden neater in appearance if seed is planted in straight rows.

The recommended method is to stretch a line to mark the rows. It need be no more than a piece of twine tied to two stakes.

When measuring the garden a stake is placed at each end of the row and the line stretched tightly.

SPACING

Small seed crops such as lettuce, beets and carrots are sown in rows 12-18 inches apart. Larger seeded kinds such as beans, peas and corn in rows 30-36 inches apart. Vine crops, squash, cucumbers and the like require much more room. Their hills should be spaced about 4 1/2 feet apart.

The term "hill" used to mean a mound of soil in which several seeds were planted. Now the term is properly applied to a depression scooped out of the soil by the hoe.

Several seeds are planted in the depression, covered with soil and well tamped so that the surface of the "hill" is about an inch below the surrounding soil. This allows every bit of water to remain and benefit the seedlings.

On very light sandy soils seeds are sown a bit deeper than those sown on heavier clay soils.

THINNING IMPORTANT

Thinning is very important in obtaining high quality annual flowers and vegetables. For proper development allow at least 4-5 inches for edging plants; 10-12 inches should separate individual plants of most other kinds.

The very sturdy tall annuals, however, such as cosmos, sunflowers, datura, require to be spaced 18-24 inches apart. Beets and onions should be thinned to 3 inches apart, carrots 2 inches and radishes 1 inch.

When transplanting flowers and vegetables a slatter solution will prove beneficial. The solution can be readily made by mixing a teaspoonful of fertilizer powder in a quart of water. Pour a cupful around each plant.

Choice of screening depends on your own particular needs

By MR. FIX

Condensation is annoying and damaging in the home. When hot weather arrives, it seems that all the things you have done to eliminate condensation are useless.

Cold water pipes begin to sweat. Water drips off them and forms puddles. Wherever there are exposed pipes you are likely to find this dripping water.

Items stored in the immediate area are likely to be damaged. The moisture doesn't do the pipes, and especially the fittings, any good either.

Prevention of sweating pipes is best accomplished by wrapping the pipes with an insulating material. The material must also incorporate a vapor barrier so that the insulation itself does not become saturated.

One of the easiest types to apply is in the form of tape which can be wrapped around the pipes. Available is a plastic cork wrapping. Since this tape is itself waterproof it needs no separate vapor barrier.

The tape is sticky and is applied by wrapping and then pressing it in place with your hands.

Vapor Barrier

Another insulating tape is made of glass fiber with a separate vaporproof tape which is wrapped around the glass fiber. In addition to protection it also provides the means for holding the glass fiber tape in place.

No matter which tape you use, remember to cut short pieces for fittings such as elbows and tees and for wrapping around valves.

Another insulating material—neater, yet more expensive—is tubing made of plastic foam. This is applied by slitting an opening along one side of the tube and slipping it over the pipe. The cut is sealed with an adhesive or tape.

There is also a material that can be brushed or troweled on. The mastic dries to a waterproof surface.

Attack the Air

While all of these are almost sure cures for sweating pipes, don't forget that moisture still exists even if it no longer condenses on the pipes.

Before it can damage other surfaces, do all you can to remove excess moisture from the air. Proper ventilation is important. Get rid of steam from cooking and from showers, either with an open window or with exhaust fans.
