Bourassa-Levesque debate held

Quebec Premier Robert Bourassa, whose Liberal government is being challenged in a provincial election Nov. 15, defended his government's record in a two-hour radio debate with Parti Quebecois Leader Rene Levesque Sunday in Montreal.

Elsewhere, campaigning leaders of three small but influential parties spoke on jobs, taxes, strikes and what they called corruption in the Liberal government.

Mr. Levesque also charged corruption during the debate. Mr. Bourassa, 44, premier since April 29, 1970, countered by asking the one-time Liberal cabinet minister to cite specific cases. Mr. Levesque didn't.

"It's a permanent scandal which affected the liquor board, Loto-Quebec and the Olympics," he said.

Politicians of other parties were more specific. Jerome Choquette, who quit the Bourassa cabinet to form the Popular National Party, said in Quebec City a James Bay hydro-electric contract was awarded to Bechtel Corp., a U.S. firm, because the government "was keeping an eye to its election fund."

Mr. Choquette, 48, former education minister, said that if this party wins the election, he will hold a formal inquiry into how Bechtel got the consulting contract.

PROMISES FARM AID At Laurier Station 25 miles southwest of Quebec City, Union Nationale Leader Rodrigue Biron attacked the government's record on labor and promised more aid to farmers and small businesses.

Maurice Dellemare, only Union Nationale member of the Quebec National Assembly at dissolution, cited numerous alleged scandals in Mr. Bourassa's government, including criminal charges of corruption against Liberal member Gerard Shanks, who has been suspended from the Liberal caucus pending his trial.

At Donnacona, near Laurier Station, Parti Creditiste Leader Camil Samson came out in favor of subsidies to hard-pressed dairy farmers, and against the right of teachers, nurses and other public employees to strike. He said Quebec holds the "world championship for strikes."

Mr. Samson predicted that a minority government will be elected and Creditistes will hold the balance of power.

Voters sent 102 Liberals to the 110-seat assembly in 1974. At dissolution, standing was Liberals, 96, Parti Quebecois 6, Popular National Party, 2, Creditiste 1, Union Nationale 1, independent 2, vacant 2.

The radio debate opened with a sharp attack by Mr. Levesque on the government's record of labor relations, which he said is the worst in Canada. The province accounted for 41 per cent of the country's labor disputes and the reason was the "climate" created by government.

WILL AMEND LAWS Mr. Bourassa replied that he intends to amend labor laws to restrict the right of workers in essential public services to strike.

The premier also attacked the issue of independence, one which Parti Quebecois candidates have played down so far.

Mr. Bourassa said Parti Quebecois plans to hold a referendum on independence would scare away investors and force unemployment even higher.

He defended federalism as a system which imposes fewer constraints than independence would, and noted that other provinces support constitutional guarantees for the French culture in Canada.

Mr. Bourassa defended himself with volleys of statistics against accusations that Quebec, facing a $1 billion budget deficit, is already the most highly-taxed province. He said the deficit was foreseen and Quebec's debt costs are lower than Ontario's.

No attempt had been made to conceal the prospect of a $1-billion deficit. It became public Friday when government confirmed, after a Radio-Canada report, that the deficit would be closer to $1 billion than to $360 million previously forecast.

CITES ONTARIO CASE Mr. Bourassa said the estimate had been increased by $200 million as a result of contract settlements with civil servants and by a $50-million loss caused by a province-wide construction strike. Ontario, he said, would have a larger deficit.

Former federal cabinet minister Jean Marchand, meanwhile, was nominated Saturday as Liberal candidate in the Quebec City riding of Louis Hebert.

He said Quebec would be hurt economically by independence. The best way to handle "the English Canadians who don't love us" was to pursue the battle within Confederation.

"I haven't been sent by Trudeau to control Quebec politics," he said. "I owe nothing to anybody, not even Prime Minister Trudeau."

Mr. Marchand and Mr. Trudeau entered federal politics in 1965 to bolster Quebec's strength in Ottawa.

Says Mao's wife plotted overthrow

PEKING (Reuters) — Mao Tse-tung's widow, former actress Chiang Ching, once hoped to succeed her husband as chairman of the Communist party, the official Chinese media reported today.

An editorial appearing in three journals said the dying Mao had been aware of his wife's plotting and severely criticized her and the so-called Gang of Four leftist radicals.

It quoted Mao as warning in December 1974 that Chiang Ching had "wild ambitions" to become party chairman and make her youthful colleague Wang Hung-wen head of the National People's Congress, China's rubber-stamp parliament.

The editorial hailed as a "great victory" the appointment of Hua Kuo-feng to succeed Mao and the purge of the four radicals—Chiang Ching, Wang, former vice-premier Chang Chun-chiao and propagandist Yao Wen-yuan.

It hinted that the former politburo members have not been executed. "Learn from past mistakes to avoid future ones and cure the sickness to save the patient," it counselled.

Analysts said the editorial suggested that a wide-scale purge of leftist is unlikely by stating "help more people by educating them."

Mao first criticized the radicals' plotting in July 1974 and again six months later, it said. At one point he told them irritably: "Don't function as a Gang of Four, don't do it any more, why do you keep doing it?"

The editorial added: "Toward Chairman Mao's criticism and education, the Gang of Four took the attitude of counter-revolutionary double-dealers, who comply in public but oppose in private."

It said the Shanghai radicals put their nose into everything and attempted to overthrow a large number of officials in the party, state, army and provinces.

AIMED AT SPLIT "They carried out criminal activities to split the party, working as a unit, going their own way, establishing their own system inside the party, doing as they wished, lauding it over others."

The editorial was the most detailed denunciation of the Gang of Four that has appeared in the official media. It follows Sunday's rally here of one million people to acclaim Hua as chairman.

US election drawing near

WASHINGTON (AP) — With eight days until harvest time, the U.S. presidential candidates are taking their scythes where the hay grows thickest.

The political hay is in seven of the largest states, which both camps consider vital for victory and still winnable by either man.

Voters in those states—California, New York, Illinois, Ohio, New Jersey, Pennsylvania and Texas—will be seeing a lot of Republicans Gerald Ford and Bob Dole and Democrats Jimmy Carter and Walter Mondale before the Nov. 2 presidential election. Among them, those voters control 207 of the 270 electoral votes needed to win.

Ford opened a $4-million media campaign Sunday, directed at six of those seven states.

He also spoke today about inflation during today bought on the Mutual Radio Network.

His campaign committee bought 30 minutes of prime television time in California and put the president on to be interviewed Sunday by a campaign volunteer, sportscaster Joe Garagiola.

TALKS OF ISSUES Ford talked about three issues in comparing himself with Carter: national defence, taxation and foreign affairs.

He said Carter's call for a cut of $5 billion to $7 billion in the defence budget would weaken the country. Ford noted that he supports production of the B-1 bomber, which Carter would delay.

Ford said Carter's proposal to eliminate tax loopholes and deductions would raise taxes for middle-income Americans, a charge Carter has denied. Ford said his proposal for a tax cut would help those in middle-income brackets. The president has said he would reduce taxes with any budget surplus that accrues in the next four years.

He said Carter has no experience in foreign affairs, while he has met with 124 world leaders in two years as president.

Rhodesian talks

GENEVA (AP) — Four black Rhodesian leaders gathered in Geneva today to try to paper over their rivalries before starting negotiations with Prime Minister Ian Smith on Thursday.

Robert Mugabe, who says he speaks for most of the guerrillas battling Smith's white-minority government, and Joshua Nkomo, who runs the best-organized black political machine in Rhodesia, arrived Sunday. They said they hoped to bring Bishop Abel Muzorewa and Rev. Ndabaningi Sithole into the "Patriotic Front" they have formed.

Muzorewa, Nkomo's rival for the remnants of a nationalist coalition called the African National Council, and Sithole, who founded the Zimbabwe African National Union (ZANU) which Mugabe now claims to control, were due today.

Mugabe and Nkomo vowed in arrival statements to step up the guerrilla war in Rhodesia unless there is a swift and complete transfer of power from the country's 278,000 whites to its 6.4 million blacks.

Arrested near Trudeau

TOKYO (CP) — A Japanese man was arrested by police today moments after Canadian Prime Minister Trudeau had passed him on a street between the Japanese parliament building and the Constitution Memorial Hall.

The man, who appeared to be in his early 30s, was said by police to be carrying "a bottle of chemicals," which he hoped to throw at the prime minister.

Trudeau had just completed a 20-minute meeting with Shigesaburo Maeno, speaker of the House of Representatives of the Japanese Diet (parliament), and was on his way to the hall less than one-quarter mile away when his bullet-proof limousine passed the man standing on one side of the street.

It is not known whether the prime minister noticed the man or was told of his arrest.

The man was seen carrying a small Canadian flag at the time of his arrest. Police said he planned to burn the flag as a sign of protest. Police declined to elaborate.

Election in Prague

PRAGUE (AP) — The official Czech news agency CTK reported Sunday a 99.7-per-cent voter turnout in general elections held on the weekend.

A total of 198,119 representatives were elected to federal, state, district and local parliamentary bodies by more than 10 million voters, the agency said.

Only candidates of the Communist-led National Front were allowed to stand for election. However, Czech officials had said earlier that about 40 per cent of the candidates were not members of the Communist party.

Officials said 32.2 per cent of the candidates were under 35 years old and about 30 per cent were women.

Fire kills 25

NEW YORK (AP) — Investigators believe a fire that killed 25 persons at an overcrowded second-storey club may have been started by a man who was thrown out after arguing with his wife, sources say.

Authorities said a flammable liquid may have been used to start the fire early Sunday morning in the only staircase in the South Bronx building.

Most of the victims died of smoke inhalation in the 25-by-40-foot room. Twenty-four persons suffered injuries. Most of them broke bones when they leaped from a window, unable to use a blocked fire escape.

"The poor people never had a chance," one fireman said.

Police Commissioner Michael Codd said at the scene that his detectives are looking for "a specific person." He said later that the man is reported to be in a hospital, among those injured during the blaze.

Sources said the man in question had an argument with his wife and was told to leave by the proprietor of the Club Puerto Rico, where more than 50 persons of Dominican descent had gathered for a party. The club's occupancy permit is for 20 persons, city records show.

HUSBAND, WIFE ARGUE Jacob Melendez, 27, leader of the band playing for the party, said he heard an argument between a man and woman, apparently over the woman's dancing with another man.

"Don't worry, I'll get you," Melendez said the man yelled before he was thrown out.

"The man then left," Melendez said. "We continued to play and everyone was having a good time. About an hour and a half later, I heard a noise and immediately saw flames and black smoke by the door."

Ceasefire pact goes to summit

CAIRO (AP) — Arab presidents and kings are opening a summit conference to ratify the latest ceasefire agreement in the Lebanese civil war and to try to figure out how to make it work.

Today's meeting of the 21 Arab League members was called to approve the peace agreement reached last Monday in Riyadh, Saudi Arabia, and to make plans for the 30,000-man Arab peacekeeping force provided for in the agreement.

The ceasefire was to take effect throughout Lebanon last Thursday morning. But Christian forces have continued their drive to clear the Palestinians from the Arkoub area of southeast Lebanon, along the Israeli border.

The Christians said the Palestinians will not be allowed back in the border zone from which they raided Israel before the civil war began. But that violates a key provision of the Riyadh pact, which calls for observance of the 1969 Cairo agreement restricting the Palestinian guerrillas in Lebanon to their refugee camp and the Arkoub. Israel also has vowed that it will not allow the guerrillas to return to their former bases in the border area. It has been supplying arms to the Christian forces north of the border.

PUT UP FRONT Christian artillery has been shelling the town of Bint Jbeil sporadically to try to drive out the Moslem defenders. Other Christian forces were moving toward the village of Meis al-Jabal, six miles northeast of Bint Jbeil. Meis al-Jabal and Bint Jbeil are the last two major Moslem holdings along the border.

The Riyadh meeting was attended by Yasser Arafat of the Palestine Liberation Organization, the presidents of Syria, Lebanon and Egypt, and the rulers of Saudi Arabia and Kuwait.

The agreement in effect approved Syria's military intervention in the Lebanese war to prevent the Christians being overrun by the Palestinians and their leftist Lebanese Moslem allies.

Because of this, Libya is boycotting the Cairo summit, and Iraq sent its foreign minister instead of its president.

Syrian forces are to make up between a third and a half of the peacekeeping contingent.

Halloween will be celebrated Sunday in Winnipeg despite confusion over issuing a collection permit to UNICEF, which gives children boxes in which to hold donations while trick-or-treating.

Canadians set their clocks an hour earlier at 2 a.m. local times the last Sunday in October. This is the first year since 1971 that Halloween has fallen on a Sunday.

In Sarnia, Ont., students at the Sarnia Christian School were to ask the mayor this week to hold Halloween on Saturday because they object to trick-or-treating on a day of worship.

Spokesmen for Ottawa council said the city has considered changing the night for trick-or-treating but has not made a decision. Officials of the nearby townships of Gloucester and Nepean said there is no possibility of a change in their districts.

Town councils adapting to Bill 22

By GEORGE BERGERON

(Record Reporter)

EASTERN TOWNSHIPS

A recent survey conducted by The Sherbrooke Record indicates that Eastern Townships municipal councils elected by English majority populations have had to implement very few changes to conform to Quebec's Official Language Act.

Bill 22 requires that records, council minutes and public notices be published in French and that the French version become the official version. Town councils, however, may conduct their meetings in English if 10 per cent of councillors are English-speaking while council minutes may be published in English at the town's discretion. Bill 22 further requires that all municipal correspondence with the Quebec government must be in French, the official language.

The Towns of Lennoxville and Rock Island have had no difficulties with language requirements imposed by Bill 22 since public notices, bills, council minutes and other related business were bilingual before the set up of Bill 22.

Lennoxville with 70 per cent of its 4,000 residents English-speaking has conducted council business in both languages since 1970 while councillors representing the 1,434 citizens of Rock Island have discussed town affairs in French and English since 1972.

Secretaries of both towns confirmed that due to their bilingual policies they did not face readjustment problems which other municipalities have had to face since the adoption of Bill 22.

The Town of Brome Lake has been posting public notices in both languages for a number of years and they are continuing to record their minutes in English for the present. An informed source said "that they had recently received a letter from the Quebec government reminding the town council that they must conform to government regulations in the briefest delay. The council will continue to record their minutes in English," the source confirmed, "but an official French translation will be provided. We have no alternative," he concluded.

A member of the Ayer's Cliff Village Council reported that Bill 22 has caused certain beneficial reactions. It has motivated a number of councillors to take French courses because of the increasing necessity of being bilingual. The council, composed of seven Anglophones and two Francophones, representing a population of 859 residents in a community which is 65 per cent English now make council minutes available in both languages.

The Municipalities of the town's discretion. Bill 22 further requires that all municipal correspondence with the Quebec government must be in French, the official language.

Villages of Hatley and Austin are continuing to record their minutes in English but a member of the council said that French versions have always been available to the public. Members of each council find it harder to read French but their intention is to conform to regulations in spite of the added expense to the taxpayer. Both municipalities report that a translator will not have to be hired since certain members of the council are fluent enough in the French language to cope with the translation of minutes and French correspondence with the Quebec government. The municipality of the Village of Hatley has a population of 550 while Austin has a population of 1,077 with 60 per cent of its residents English-speaking.

The Municipality of the Village of East Farnham has had to break with past traditions. Minutes, formerly recorded in English, are now translated into French. Correspondence which had previously been carried out exclusively in English is now wholly French. East Farnham's 360 residents are evenly divided in terms of language and are represented by six councillors, three English and three French.

North Hatley with a majority of its 775 residents English, have always posted bilingual public notices. An informed source reports that the effects of Bill 22 are minimal. (See Bill 22 on Page 12)

Acquitted of charge of criminal negligence

SWEETSBURG WARD

(JM) — A petite Christine

Morin sobbed with tears of joy here Friday afternoon

when the jury foreman said

the nine woman three man

panel had decided in favor of acquittal in her trial on a charge of criminal negligence

causing the death of

Jean Guy Lalonde, 39, at the Morin household in Brigh-tam, December 26, 1973.

The jury deliberated for one hour and 57 minutes.

Chief defence lawyer

Gilles Poussard, head of the South Shore Legal Aid Community, in his plea to the jury, resumed the facts in the Boxing Day shooting and reiterated testimony which depicted the victim as a violent man prone to sudden rage with little or no provocation. He cited an attack on Christine's younger sister

Suzanne when she wept following her father's funeral,

the attack on Mr. Morin

when he went to visit his estranged wife in Rouge-mont when Lalonde assaulted him without saying a word; his petulance and childish behaviour whenever he lost a game of cards or checkers with the children, and his various assaults on

Christine's brother Michel

for little or no reason.

"You have seen how small Christine is," Mr. Poussard said. "Picture how she felt

on the evening of December

26, 1973, following the arguments and the pushing and hitting of three members of her family when this bulk of a man, 5'10" and 200 pounds, lunged at her with his arms

raised in a threatening

manner. She had procured

the gun to tell him to leave and when he lunged at her she shot. She said, in her declaration to the police, she only intended to wound him

at the most, however unfortunately the single shot proved fatal.

"I feel the only possible verdict is she shot in legiti-mate self-defence of herself and members of her family."

Crown Attorney Claude

Noisieux resumed the facts

in the case and suggested

there was not sufficient evidence of animosity between

Christine and the victim to justify the defence's allegations of fear on her part. He told the jury if they had the slightest credible belief she had acted in self-defence they must render a verdict of no guilt as they had no other option. He then suggested if they felt the crown had not proven beyond all reasonable doubt she was guilty of criminal negligence they had the option of finding her guilty of two lesser included charges: discharging a firearm with the intent to cause bodily harm, or discharging a firearm dangerous to the public peace.

Judge Pelouin then charged the jury and almost directed a decision of not guilty by reasons of self-defence. He told the jury they were not bound by his opinions on the case, however they were bound by his instructions on law.

The jury was dismissed during his charge when Crown attorney Noisieux, in an almost unprecedented move, told the bench he had to discuss a point of law as the judge was about to tell them the maximum penalty for criminal negligence was life imprisonment. When the jury returned Judge Pelouin re-read the penalty for criminal negligence and added the minimum penalty was a suspended sentence or a jail term ranging from one day to life at the discretion of the tribunal.

Prior to dismissing the jury to allow them to begin their deliberations Judge Pelouin congratulated the defence team of Mr. Poussard and his associate Jean Riou. He then told the panel they had four possible verdicts: not guilty, guilty as charged, guilty of discharging a firearm with the intent to cause bodily harm, or discharging a firearm dangerous to the public peace.

Crown attorney Noisieux and Mr. Poussard later told The Record they would readily have accepted a complete panel of women in the case. They said they found women made more attentive jurors than men. History would have been made here Friday if one of the nine women had been elected forelady. History was made in the District of Bedford a few years ago when the first woman sat on an English jury in a murder trial in Quebec.

Money needed for Academy repairs

INVERNESS (CW) — A

campaign is now being waged to contact former teachers and pupils of the

Inverness Academy for funds to renovate the bell tower on that building, instead of removing the tower,

as has been already considered by a majority vote of the lodge owning the building, as more feasible.

However, the response to the suggestion that the tower

be repaired has been unanimous, with generous contributions coming in from far and near in fact, a substantial cheque for that purpose came from Donald

L. MacKinnon of Victoria,

B.C. Donald graduated in 1914, and enlisted shortly afterwards to serve in the 5th

CMR until he received his honorable discharge in 1919.

It is planned by the committee in charge of this work (Kenneth MacKenzie and C.W. McVetty) that a plaque be placed in the hall

downstairs of the building which was built in 1889,

showing the names of all those who wish to see the bell tower maintained in a high state of repair as a mark of their loyalty to this fine old school.

A list of all those contributing to assist us in this project will also appear before December 15th in the Sherbrooke Record. Those

interested should get in touch with the committee.

TO PERFORM — Le grand magic circus de Paris et ses animaux tristes will be performing Thurs., Nov. 4 at 8:30 p.m. sponsored by the Bishop's University-Champlain College Cultural Series.

Production planned by avant-garde theatre group

LENNOXVILLE — "Le grand magic circus de Paris et ses animaux tristes," a contemporary theatre with live music and 15 actors performing a theatrical fiesta a-la-three-ring circus, will be appearing at Centennial Theatre, Lennoxville on Thursday, Nov. 4 at 8:30 p.m.

Artists from various arts and performing arts experiences form this homogenized theatre troupe, described by the London Times as "a marvelously omniscient group of actor-musicians, switching with absolute confidence between grotesque clowning and Ravel-like melancholy."

Their productions are extensions of living out one's fantasies to conquer what Jerome Savary (leader, director and creator of the circus) has called the "liberty of action." The company's work represents an incredible variety of techniques, from Felliniesque lights to mime to musical revue, dancing, singing, acting, and acrobatics. The style of presentation is zany, amusing, sensational, and undeniably unique. The tremendous audience excitement generated is the basis of the group's successful performances.

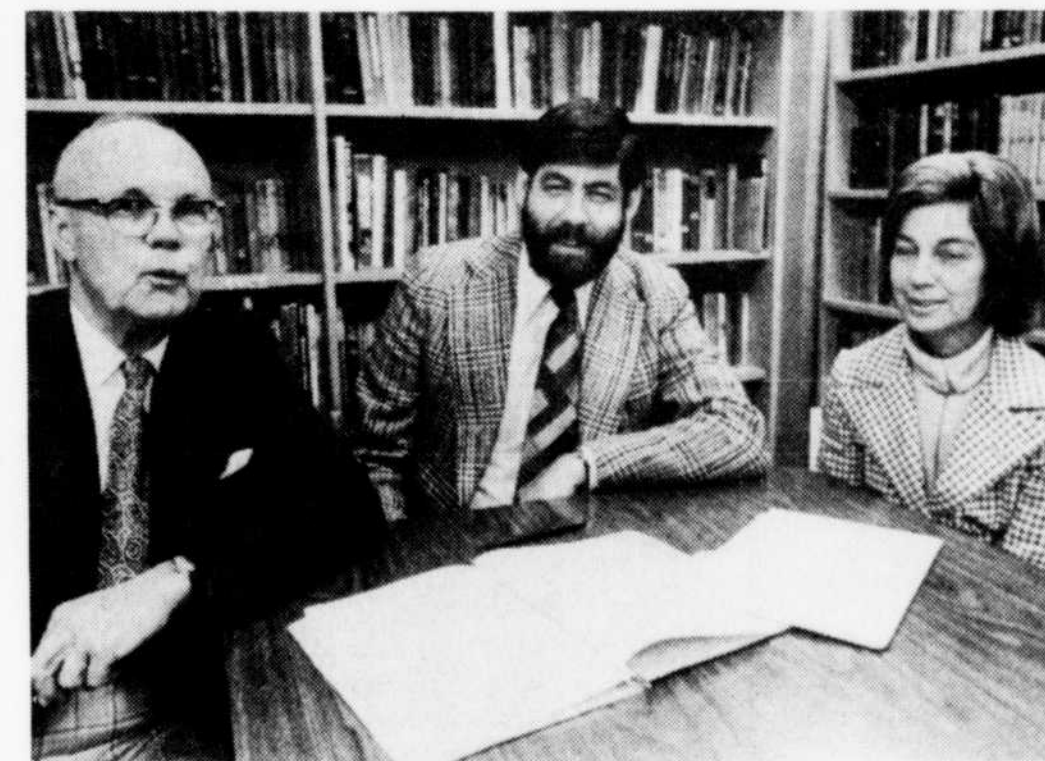

Many major European festival appearances include Rome Festival of Theatres, Grenoble-Maison de la Culture, Vienna Festival, Berlin Festival, Zurich Festival, Festival d'Automne, which result immediately in re-engagements. The company has extended runs each season in London, Paris, and Strasbourg. Le grand magic circus has been viewed by more than 500,000 spectators in three years, and has been presented in 15 countries.

The plays or "entertainments" are entirely the work of Jerome Savary, prince of humor and avant garde, and also a "grand" specialist of French Mythology from the Middle Ages. Born in Argentina of bohemian parents, he spent most of his early life travelling throughout the world before creating the company as a street theatre in 1966 with the name "le grand theatre panique." Since then, the company has grown to become a celebrated theatre throughout Europe.

The theatre production which "le grand magic circus" brings for its North American tour is called "les grands sentiments," a play based on love the subtle joy of sadness, an exploration of the modern world through fairy tale characters. The production will be presented in both English and French.

Please note that "le grand magic circus" is mature, avant-garde theatre, which may be inappropriate for viewing by children.

This is the third event in this year's Bishop's University-Champlain College Cultural Series. Tickets will be on sale at Centennial Theatre, 563-4966 beginning October 28th.

council of Sercovie; Marc Leclerc, former president of Laiterie Leclerc; and Philippe Therberge, assistant director general of adult education.

The university also is beginning a series of English language courses for senior citizens. Courses begin tomorrow and continue until April. Approximately 80 people will be divided into four groups according to their knowledge of English.

and the UN

As the future of the United Nations looms more and more ominous, a bright voice has been heard from Vienna offering a third home to the embattled world body. Ever since the Austrian's neutrality, the federal republic of Austria has vied with Switzerland for primacy as the seat of international diplomacy. Although the Austrian foreign minister, Dr. Willibald Pahr, in his recent speech at the United Nations emphasized that the new international centre in Vienna should supplement, rather than compete with, the established UN centres in New York and Geneva, it seems obvious that a reorganization of the UN, without which the UN body as now constituted is fated to wither on the vine, will need imply some drastic house moving.

Vienna's claim is well founded, both historically and in economics. The Congress of Vienna, at the end of the Napoleonic Wars, has left a living tradition of internationalism that for almost two centuries has survived the vicissitudes that have transformed Vienna from the capital of a huge multilingual empire to that of a small neutral republic. Where Geneva has remained tainted with the dismal failure of the old League of Nations — a failure whose lessons do not seem to have made the delegates in New York any wiser and while New York is becoming less and less livable, Vienna, despite all her past adversities, has remained her gay old self.

The city already houses the — somewhat disreputable — Organization of Petroleum Exporting Countries, and if the pointless albeit bloody kidnapping of the OPEC ministers may point to some slackness in local security, the Viennese can justifiably claim that the kidnappers and their victims were both Arabs, a family affair that was as unexpected as it was difficult to prevent.

The Mutual Balanced Force Reduction talks (MBFR, or "much better for the Russians," as so many at NATO continue to believe) are dragging on in Vienna with no better results, but perhaps more comfort, than the SALT II talks in Geneva. The International Atomic Agency that is to prevent the proliferation of nuclear weapons — a hopeless task — but has been responsible for some good scientific work, has its headquarters in Vienna, and there are similar bodies that find it more convenient, and cheaper to settle among the hospital and friendly Austrians than among the dour and xenophobic climate of Geneva, or the expensive chaos of New York.

The new Vienna international centre, which the Austrian government built at a staggering cost of $700 million and that is now being offered to the UN at the nominal rent of five cents per year, will undoubtedly cause other specialized agencies to seek a new home on the Danube. At one time the fear was expressed that Austria is geographically too exposed and the UN bodies there could be easily subjected to physical pressure from the neighboring Communist bloc. Alas! events at the New York General Assembly, at the UNESCO headquarters in Paris and the International Labor Organization offices in Geneva have demonstrated that the Soviet Union will have her own way whatever the distance from her borders. The argument has thus become specious and the charms and advantages of Vienna as an international centre deserve serious consideration.

Canadian Forces Base London closes

LONDON, Ont. (CP) — If Canadian Forces Base London is closed, one of the casualties will be an annual $9-million payroll and some senior non-commissioned officers may retire, says a spokesman for the Help Save CFB London Committee.

Jack Shields, 50, a retired army captain and chairman of the committee, says the London base is one of several the federal defence department may decide is not essential and can be closed. The others are in Summerside, P.E.I., Moncton, N.B., and part of CFB Edmonton.

Mr. Shields said committee members include local members of the Ontario legislature and members of Parliament, labor unions, the local chamber of commerce and residents of the cities of Windsor, St. Catharines, Owen Sound and Stratford.

Recommendations from the defence department regarding the closings went before the external affairs and defence cabinet committee early this month and will be examined later by the full cabinet.

SWITCH FUNDS

The federal government says it wants to close some bases and put more money into combat activities.

C. R. Nixon, deputy defence minister, said in May that the forces need only 23 bases. There now are 32 plus one in Lahr, West Germany, and 36 stations. These are smaller and used mainly for radio and radar communications.

Military spokesmen say the rationale for the closings is the desire to have three main operational army concentrations at Valcartier, Que., Petawawa, Ont., and Calgary, Galetown, N.B., would continue as the large training base and naval and air bases would continue unchanged.

Lt.-Col. W. J. Pettipas, commanding officer of the Royal Canadian Regiment in London, says he believes a number of senior non-commissioned officers would retire rather than move from London.

CULLEN OPPOSED

J. S. (Bud) Cullen, federal manpower and immigration minister who represents the nearby riding of Sarnia-Lambton, says he is opposed to closing the base because 350 civilian jobs would be lost.

He says he realizes some bases have to go, particularly in a time of restraint, but "this doesn't make sense because bases are not being operated at present on purely military considerations."

The London committee says the area also would lose another $5 million in related contracts and other disbursements.

In August, the unemployment rate was 6.4 per cent in London, 3.7 per cent in Edmonton and 7.6 per cent in Prince Edward Island.

Military personnel in London number 1,000 and there are 350 civilians who work at the base.

At Summerside, there are 1,000 military and 305 civilian personnel with a total payroll of $11 million. The emphasis at the base is on air force activities.

MAINLY SUPPLY BASE
CFB Moncton is mainly used as a supply base with 122 military and 375 civilian personnel. Total payroll is about $5 million.

There are 3,100 military and 700 civilians at CFB Edmonton with a total payroll of $43 million. The base now supports the Canadian Airborne Regiment.

The defence department is not thinking of closing the entire Edmonton base, only Griesbach barracks and the transfer of the regiment, likely to Petawawa. The air base would remain in Edmonton.

A source in the department of regional and economic expansion says the department would like to see the bases at Moncton and Summerside left open.

Wellington home a treasure of history, art, antiques

LONDON (CP) — Apsley House, the London home of the first Duke of Wellington whose forces at the Battle of Waterloo saved England and Europe from Napoleon, is a treasure house of history, art and period furniture.

In the heart of London at Hyde Park and Piccadilly, it's a handsome structure with a portico-style front of four Greek columns. The first duke bought it in 1817, two years after the victory at Waterloo, and the name Apsley is from one of the titles of the original owner. It remained the family's London seat until 1947 when the seventh duke presented it to the nation with a provision that the family be allowed to live in part of it.

Apsley House is full of Wellington memorabilia and many of the priceless gifts bestowed on the first duke by grateful European rulers. Probably the most interesting part for history buffs is the high-ceilinged red-damask-walled Waterloo Gallery, where every year until his death in 1852 at the age of 83 the first duke held an annual banquet on the date of the battle.

ORDERS ON DISPLAY

A huge painting of the first of these dinners hangs in the gallery, as does a fine equestrian painting of the duke as a young man by the Spanish artist Goya.

His many decorations and orders are also on display in one room, including the Order of the Bath and the Order of the Golden Fleece, as well as some of his uniforms, batons and swords. One sabre, worn at Waterloo, was, ironically, made by Napoleon's goldsmith.

Many of the paintings throughout the house depict scenes of Wellington's battles. There are several of Waterloo, although the duke complained that most paintings of that battle were not accurate. Not here, however, is the famous painting of the meeting of Wellington and the Prussian Prince von Blucher whose arrival towards the end of the day threw the French into panic. To see it you must visit the Houses of Parliament.

Nor is Wellington's protagonist at Waterloo forgotten at Apsley House. In the main hallway, beside the beautiful curved, free-hanging staircase, is a colossal marble statue of Napoleon by Canova, presented to the Duke by his grateful sovereign, George IV. On one wall is a portrait of Napoleon in his favorite pose, hand inside his jacket.

PAINTINGS ABOUND

For those interested in art and period furnishings, Apsley House has several gems. The Duke's favorite painting is Christ's Agony in the Garden by Correggio. There are two of Velasquez' early paintings. One, the Water-Seller of Seville, was painted when he was only 20. Here, too, is Murillo's Isaac Blessing Jacob.

Many of the more important paintings in the Duke's art collection were captured in the baggage train of Napoleon's brother Joseph when he fled from the Battle of Vitoria in the Peninsular War. Most had been plundered by Joseph from the Spanish royal collection.

For those interested in beautifully proportioned rooms and fine furnishings, Apsley House is a must. In the Plate and China Room it's difficult to tear oneself away from the display, in rosewood cases, of the costly gifts showered on the duke by the rulers of Europe. Obviously only a few plates from each of the gift service sets are on display. There are also two Sevres breakfast sets.

The Portico Room is in various shades of green with a huge gold-framed mirror above the marble fireplace. The ceiling, with a magnificent drop crystal chandelier, is ornately decorated, as are all the ceilings. The furniture is in rose damask with gold detail.

The first duke is buried in the crypt of St. Paul's Cathedral in London.

AID officials fret over image

WASHINGTON — Behind their fashionable walled villas high above Port-Au-Prince, American AID officials are in an absolute tizzy over our criticism of their lifestyle.

We questioned whether they should draw hardship pay for distributing aid to the hungry people of Haiti. They are supposed to help develop the impoverished nation and to feed its malnourished millions.

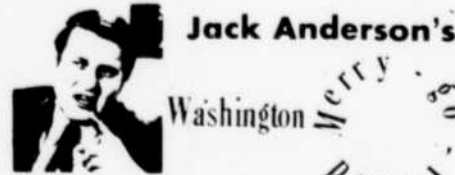

They manage to do this in a style that is the envy of stateside tourists who pay premium rates for a few days of similar pleasure in Port-Au-Prince. For as we reported last August, the AID officials live in tropical luxury. They swim in private pools, are waited on by gracious servants, belong to exclusive private clubs and attend lavish cocktail and dinner parties.

To help them endure the tribulations of such an existence, they collect "hardship" allowance — a bonus of about 15 per cent above their regular salaries. They also draw generous housing and educational allowances so they can live in the grand manner and put their children through special schools.

Our reports infuriated the AID bureaucrats, who kept the wires burning between Port-Au-Prince and Washington as they speculated on ways they might repair their image. Donor Lion, a high muck-a-muck temporarily in charge of Latin-American aid assured his minions in Haiti that the home office was "taking issue with Anderson column."

Lion pledged that headquarters intended "to demonstrate to AID field personnel our continuing support of their efforts." He requested "as much information as possible" from Haiti "to respond to Anderson and to congressional and other inquiries concerned over Anderson's charges."

Yet try as they might, the AID contingent in Haiti couldn't refute the facts that we reported. Their responses were cabled to Washington by U.S. Ambassador Heyward Isham, who made a valiant effort, at least, to present all the mitigating circumstances.

"It is true," he acknowledged in one cable, "that some Americans live in comfortable houses with swimming pools." But he contended that there simply was too little housing "that would be acceptable by American standards, except those owned by wealthier Haitians. Many of these are built with swimming pools."

Actually, some middle-class houses are available in Port-Au-Prince. Our reporter, Hal Bernton, stayed in one. But these homes might not be adequate for families. It costs the taxpayers an extra $4,600 to $6,900 a year in housing allowances, which are paid to the AID officials to help them meet the higher rents for their hillside villas. But Ambassador Isham pointed out that diplomats from other countries live in equal splendor in Port-Au-Prince.

Specifically, six of the 17 AID officials in Port-Au-Prince have individual swimming pools, four share pools and seven struggle along without private swimming facilities. The AID director, who has a 21-by-9-foot pool, complained that he can't get enough water out of the local system to keep it filled to capacity.

The ambassador also acknowledged that AID officials belonged to three "exclusive private clubs." He insisted, however, that membership was "virtually mandatory for those wishing to play tennis or golf, as all three have tennis facilities and one the only golf course in Haiti." It was a "personal decision," he emphasized, whether AID employees joined.

"Americans living in Haiti usually employ servants," it was also acknowledged, but this is "necessary to maintain living standards similar to those in the United States."

We don't know whether a staff of servants is essential to uphold American living standards. But this wasn't our point. We merely questioned whether our AID administrators in Port-Au-Prince are entitled to 15 per cent extra hardship pay.

In all the thousands of words they wrote in defense of themselves, we could find only one paragraph that might justify a Haitian hardship allowance. "Service in Haiti exposes all employees and their families to several diseases endemic to Haiti, including malaria and dengue fever," they noted. In the past three months, one AID employee has been sent home for medical reasons.

Footnote: We will take up other AID complaints in a future column.

ANGRY ALEXANDER: We recently reported that Internal Revenue Commissioner Donald Alexander, over the strong protests of his subordinates, eliminated a key question from the income tax forms. The question had been used to trap tax cheats who deposit their hidden profits in foreign bank accounts.

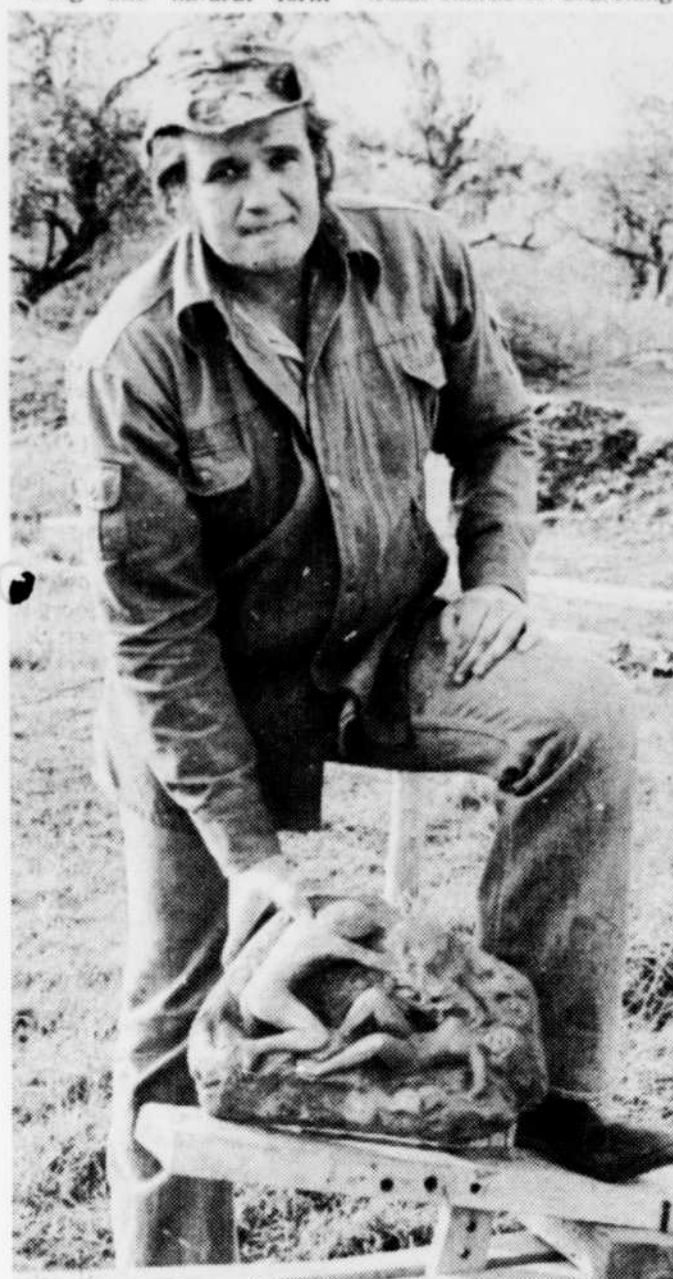

We invited Alexander to comment. Rather than give us an explanation, he waited until the column appeared. Then he used his intelligence division to get the list of the newspapers that published the column. He sent a letter to our editors claiming he had unanimous approval for removing the question.

The truth is that many law enforcement officials, at every level of the federal government, don't want the question removed. In fact, the Justice Department sent a confidential letter to the IRS insisting that the question be left on the tax form.

Rep. Charles Vanik, D-Ohio, has now introduced legislation to get the foreign bank account question reinstated. Sixty congressmen have signed a private letter to Treasury Secretary William Simon asking him to restore the crucial question.

Rocks chiselled into sculptures

MILBY (BS) — A combination of talented sculpturing and natural form

FACES AND FIGURES are the subject matter of rock sculptures by Ron Young of Milby.

gives work done by Ron Young of Milby its own particular character. Searching the fields and brooks of his farm, Mr. Young finds volcanic rocks which he then carves into the face or figure of a person. However, the rock never loses its basic outline. "I can usually see a basic form in the rock before I start carving it," he says. With a general idea of his aim in mind as well as remembering the rock's basic form, he begins with his hammer and chisel.

And he has been surprised at the success he has had in creating his sculptures. Although having no formal art training, Mr. Young had spent much time drawing, but feeling limited by its two dimensional character, three years ago he turned to rock sculpturing.

So far he has done about 12 sculptures, many of which he has sold or given to friends.

For the future he would like to exhibit his work as well as take on a bigger project. He plans to apply for an Opportunities for Youth or a Local Initiative Project grant with which he can hire four or five other sculptors to aid him do a large carving which he feels could become a tourist attraction in the Townships.

A SENSE OF STRENGTH is achieved by the unfinished character of rock sculptures created by Ron Young. Rather than from the rock to his own conception, he works within the form already existing in the rock, leaving its basic outline intact.

Base antennas can kill CBers

By Ink Dipper
(EDITOR'S NOTE: Ink Dipper (KYZ-3916) is the handle of the editor of The CB Times-Journal.)

If every CBER could talk to Ames White, fewer of them would be electrocuted in base antenna accidents.

White, of Charlotte, N.C., almost died earlier this year when the base CB antenna he was taking out of a tree touched a power line loaded with 7,200 volts of electricity.

His advice is simple: "I wouldn't fool around wires. Period. Once it's (electricity) got you, it's too late."

White is lucky. He has a few scars and missed work for three months, but he is alive and regaining his health. Dozens of other CBers this year won't have been as fortunate.

No one knows for certain how many CBers have been killed this year putting up or taking down base antennas, but the number is considerable. Enough died that electric companies across the nation issued warnings about the hazards.

The companies' advice is similar to White's — stay away from power lines!

High voltage power lines are not always insulated, and weather and time can wear off insulation that is on lines. Power lines running into homes also have enough power to kill under the right conditions.

With cold weather moving in, more new CBers who have enjoyed their radios in their cars are going to plan on CB-ing inside this winter. They'll be putting up base antennas, and the following things should be remembered:

- Don't assume that a line is a telephone or television cable line. Don't touch any lines.

- Don't assume that power lines are insulated. Even if they are, don't touch them.

- Don't do the work on a windy day. The wind can blow the antenna or tower into a line.

- Don't touch the antenna if it falls across a power line. Call the electric company, which would rather send out a serviceman than have a customer electrocuted.

- Make certain that should the antenna accidentally fall it will not touch a line. Do more than just estimate — step off the distance to the nearest line or use a measuring tape.

- Wear gloves that will insulate, and wear rubber boots or rubber-soled shoes to lessen grounding.

- Put the antenna together as close as possible to the installation site. This will eliminate having to carry the antenna near possible hazards.

- Have enough manpower to prevent the antenna from toppling.

If a person has been shocked, give mouth-to-mouth resuscitation if breathing stops and, simultaneously, closed-chest heart massage if the heart has stopped beating. When calling for an ambulance, make it clear that the victim has been shocked so that special equipment can be brought.

If the person is still touching or near the power line, pry him away or move the wire with a piece of wood, rope or other non-metallic object. Don't touch the person, because there may still be enough current passing through him to kill a second person.

THIS MAN TALKS YOUR LANGUAGE

No matter what language or languages you speak, or what you do for a living, Rodrigue Biron and the Union Nationale talk your language.

Because they have spent a lot of time listening to your complaints.

Here are solutions.

Rational, well thought out.

And on a human scale.

Weigh them for yourself.

Language

Bill 22 will be abolished. There will be 2 official languages in Quebec—French and English. And, in order to insure the use of both languages, a much greater emphasis will be placed on the teaching of both languages in all schools.

Labour

In the public sector, the Union Nationale will replace the right to strike with a programme of continuing and permanent negotiations.

In the private sector, all union finances will be supervised.

And the right to strike will be subject to a secret vote under the supervision of an independent body.

A few other facts

- Tax reductions to increase investment in Quebec.
- Concentration on the backbone of the Quebec economy — the small businessman.
- Establishment of day-care centres.
- A network of in-home assistance for the physically handicapped.
- Establishment of polyclinics to relieve hospital centres of minor cases.

- Income tax reductions on real estate taxes and certain tenant taxes.
- The Quebec Housing Corporation will be able to secure mortgage loans to individuals and cooperatives.
- Establishment of a Department of Recreation and Sport.
- Education will be free for all Quebec citizens.
- Greater autonomy to municipalities by establishing a more equitable distribution of the income derived from the sales tax.

- Abolishing the school real estate tax.
- Compulsory automobile insurance at a reasonable cost.

There is much, much more information about the Union Nationale solutions to Quebec's problems. So you'll be receiving the complete party platform in the mail in the next few days.

Read it. Think about it. Talk about it with your Union Nationale candidate. Because he wants to talk your language.

There's plenty of variety in Canadian cheese choice

Canadian cheddar cheese needs no introduction, but have you enjoyed the variety of flavors and textures found in some of the European type cheeses produced in Canada?

There are so many variety of "gourmes" cheeses now made in Canada you could try a different one nearly every week. It's easy to recognize the Canadian product because the package or wrapper will be marked with the name and location of the manufacturer.

A cheese tray is one good way to introduce yourself, family or guests to different varieties of quality Canadian cheese.

Brick, which is sold today in brick shape, is soft and creamy-yellow inside and brown on the surface. It's mild flavored, open-textured, good for sandwiches, snacks and with fruits.

Camembert is creamy-white, with a grey-white mold surface. It has a creamy interior which may be almost fluid depending on the degree of ripeness. Its flavor is mellow and pungent and adds a distinctive note to a cheese tray.

Somewhat similar to mild cheddar is Colby, a pale yellow, mild flavored cheese. It comes in the form of a cylinder and is good both in sandwiches or on a cheese tray.

One unripened cheese is cream cheese, white, soft and creamy with a mild flavor. Flavor variations are also available.

Gouda is easily recognized because of its ball shape, with flattened top and bottom and red waxed surface. It makes a colorful centerpiece for a cheese tray and has a mild nut-like flavor.

Oka, with its russet colored surface and creamy colored inside, has a full rich flavor and odor. It's excellent with crackers and a good accompaniment to fruit.

It's important to select cheeses with varied textures and flavors. In case some guests are less adventurous, it's always a good idea to serve the ever-popular medium cheddar as well. Most varieties of cheese will be at their best if set out at room temperature 30 minutes before serving time. Cream cheeses though, are best served cold.

Another delicious way of sampling various Canadian cheeses is to use them in hors d'oeuvres. Two interesting ideas from Food Advisory Services, Agriculture Canada are "Cheese Stuffed Eggs" and "Miniature Towers."

CHEESE STUFFED EGGS
6 hard-cooked eggs
2 tablespoons butter, softened

2 teaspoons mayonnaise or salad dressing
1/4 cup (1 ounce) grated old cheddar cheese

Salt and pepper
Dash cayenne
Dash paprika

Cut eggs in halves lengthwise. Remove egg yolks. Mash and combine with butter and mayonnaise. Add cheese, salt, pepper and cayenne and mix until smooth. Stuff egg white halves. Sprinkle with paprika.

MINIATURE TOWERS
8 ounces cream cheese, softened

1 teaspoon Worcestershire sauce
1/4 teaspoon salt
1/4 teaspoon pepper

12 slices bologna (about 1/2 pound)
Blend cheese and seasonings until smooth. Spread each of 3 slices of bologna with filling and stack. Top with slice of bologna. Make two additional towers with remaining bologna and cheese mixture. Prue Acton is very individual

By Ellie Grossman

NEW YORK — (NEA) — They struck her funny, the questions about her background—how she got to be one of Australia's leading designers—and Prue Acton stopped for a moment, wrinkling her nose in amusement.

"I'm so used to people knowing everything about me and having files of information," she said in a lilting inflection that may be Australian or just Prue Acton.

She was curled in an arm chair in her room at New York's Plaza Hotel, a bit bushed from her one day in the city before proceeding to Paris, London, Tokyo, and then home to Melbourne.

Still she looked fresh, a clean-scrubbed young woman with frizzy light brown hair. Altogether too young, it seemed, to have daughters aged nine and two, or to be 32 years old herself and the head of Prue Acton Australia, a $15 million industry.

In any case, back home most people know that Ms. Acton graduated from the Royal Melbourne Institute of Technology 12 years ago. And that her family immediately set her up in business which is common practice in Australia, she said.

I made five outfits, put them over my arm and went to some boutiques. I didn't even know then that you show winter clothes the summer before, but it was an instant success and the clothes sold incredibly well.

Now, she has 50 employees in her own building, including "one fabric designer, an accessories designer and a girl who does the Japanese collection—I have five contracts in Japan—and we all come together and work with ideas.

"I also own two Prue Acton boutiques and franchise 12 others and I do seven lines a year for Australia, some up to 200 garments. Then, I'm producing two a year for the States, which are carried through Joseph Magnin in San Francisco and Saks Fifth Avenue and Bergdorf Goodman in New York."

And she makes "absolutely everything. Shoes, a line of cosmetics, dresses, whatever I want to make or whatever I feel is fashionable." She got up and said, "Let me show you some of my clothes."

"They're very individual," she said, pulling pieces from the closet and spreading them on the carpet. "In Melbourne, our clothes tend to have a little of the theater that English clothes have about them. Sydney is much more tailored and I do have some tailored clothes in my collection, but I'm not mad on clothes that say you must do this or that."

The outfit she wore, for example, was adaptable and un-tailored. She could wear the beige silk fringed vest over something other than the black scoop-neck jersey. And the full, matching fringed skirt would do well with just about anything. And one was not to feel restricted by the handsome appliques on the vest. "Wear it over jeans if you want," she said.

"This crocheted lace top can be worn with jeans, too, or over evening pajamas. I like to make clothes that aren't going to date terribly. My skirts—I do a lot of patch skirts—are rather long so you can shorten them, but you don't have to worry about letting them down."

While she estimated prices—skirts perhaps $100, an evening outfit, $300—she laid out her favorite item, a short-sleeved peasant dress in black navy silk. "I like to wear it off my shoulders, with this,"—a necklace of beads and stones from the bureau drawer. Prue Acton jewelry, of course.

The point, though, is to wear what you like, whenever and wherever you like. To put "very beautiful fabrics together nicely and then play them down or make them high fashion."

"Often," she said, "I put a small P.A. on the back of the neck so someone can come up and discover it and say, 'what's that? I do love clothes not to say things too strongly at first.'"

That's how she likes to live, too. Casually. She and her husband, menswear designer Mike Treboar. They're not terribly social, she said, the way designers are thought to be. Not that they don't have dear, close friends, but she does love to play house and spend all her spare time with the children, which explains the need for the housekeeper and "people like that."

And the country house, why, that's the treat. Just 45 minutes from Melbourne, with horses and sheep and the beach.

"It's a really huge bluestone house about 140 years old that was imported brick by brick from England. It came over as ballast on the ship," she said. "We call that pre-fab, do you say that here?" And she laughed.

It's a lovely life, all right, and as if it weren't sweet enough, the Australian fashion industry created a Hall of Fame recently because they ran out of awards to give her. "There's just one other member, but it's fairly new," she explained.

The other member is male. Probably he's producing signature clothes, too, which are as popular in Australia (along with culottes and pinafore dresses) as they are here.

But like as not, he hasn't made a tote bag such as the one she pulled from the closet. No name on it, just the picture of a smiling, frizzy-haired young woman who looks, she said, "like a cross between Mary Pickford and Jimi Hendrix with all the hair. It was funny and funky enough for me to do it," she said.

Can you match that, M. C. din, Mr. Halston, Mr. ...?

Stork Shower

RICHMOND — On Saturday, Oct. 2nd, Mrs. Raymond Mastine entertained at the home of Mrs. A. Abercrombie at a surprise stork shower for Mrs. John Winget.

Little Wendy Lake and Miss Tina and Pezzi wheeled in a baby bassinet laden with gifts, for which Mrs. Winget thanked everyone.

That same night, all the neighbors gathered at Nelson Mastine's and drove down to the home of Mr. and Mrs. S. Lake and Wendy's at St. Cyrille and Wendy's at Warming. The night was spent in dancing and playing cards.

Fashion and Beauty Tips

Corral long hair
Cowl-neck sweaters are the rage this year but tricky to wear with long hair. Try wearing braids or a chignon with them for a neater look from the back.

Rule of thumb
A good rule of thumb in buying clothes is the more wear you expect from something, the more you should pay for it, and vice versa.

Pamper lips
If cold, dry weather produces chapped lips, wear neutral-color lipstick — and plenty of lip moisturizer — until cracked lips heal. Then you can use your regular lipstick colors again.

Free toes
Remember, a shoe and your stocking should extend at least one quarter of an inch beyond your toes for healthful comfort.

Pick up
When fuzzy balls (pills) begin appearing on sweaters, use a piece of masking tape to remove them. Or lift them gently off with your fingers.

Undercover
For wear under a sheer blouse, you might consider an alluring, elasticized tube top instead of a bra.

Ann Landers says: Go ahead with hospital tests

Dear Ann Landers: I wonder if you realize what a wonderful service you perform when you urge people to get themselves tested for VD. Here's my story.

I'm a faithful reader. I believe in you. Several weeks ago you said, "If you suspect you have VD and are ashamed to go to a doctor, go to the city or county Health Department, or to the emergency room of the nearest hospital." You were talking to me.

I'm a married woman with children. My husband travels and I became involved with a man who works at the plant. Two days after I had sex with him I was sure he had given me VD.

I phoned the Chicago Board of Health for an appointment like you suggested. A nice woman answered all my questions. She must have thought I was the dumbest thing alive, but she was polite and helpful. I was told to come in for a test. She assured me everything would be strictly confidential and it wouldn't cost anything.

When I arrived at the Board of Health, I was surprised to see so many others. I "signed in" and answered all the questions truthfully, except the one that asked "Single or Married?" I put down "Single." I was given a number and told to wait until mine was called. In 15 minutes I was led to a small (immaculate) examining room. The doctor was a woman.

The examination was painless and it only took 12 minutes. Then a technician came in and took blood from my arm and a culture from my body. They labeled both with numbers, not my name. The polite doctor said, "We will phone you in three days with the results."

I wasn't treated like I had leprosy or, worse yet, like a tramp. Everyone was so considerate and respectful I couldn't believe it. In three days I received the phone call. My tests were negative — no VD, but I had a yeast infection. The person on the phone told me what to do about it. I was never so relieved in all my life.

Please print my letter so others will not be afraid to go get tested if they get in a similar jam. I am — Blessing You

Dear Blessing: Thanks for letting me know. And now an added word to my readers. Remember: Most city Boards of Health charge nothing for VD tests AND treatment. Hospitals do charge, but they usually recommend the free services. Anyone who thinks he may have VD should go at once. No questions asked, minors included. Parents will NOT be notified under any circumstances.

Dear Ann Landers: I wonder how many people are aware that American Red Cross can be the answer to their prayers? Well, it can, but someone has to tell them, and that someone can be you.

For example, a veteran who has a service-connected injury or an illness that has worsened with age may be entitled to compensation or other medical benefits. If he has turned 65, he may be eligible for a pension, depending on his income. The widow of a veteran might qualify for a pension, a home loan, or medical care.

Congress has authorized the American Red Cross to provide counseling and assistance with VA procedures for all veterans and their dependants and survivors. All a person need do is contact his local Red Cross Chapter for information about individual benefits. This service is free and confidential.

As a volunteer I am enormously proud of the services performed by the Red Cross for people who had no idea they could get help. Please print this letter and pass the word. Ann. — Janice Stanton, Ptomac, Md.

Dear Janice: Here's your letter and my thanks for the opportunity to give visibility to one of the world's most respected service organizations. I hope the phones will ring like crazy today at Red Cross offices all over the U.S., Canada, Nassau, etc. They have a lot to give — and are ready, willing and able.

Dear Ann: For reasons too numerous to mention, I am leaving my wife. The dilemma revolves around our daughter who will soon be three years old.

In your opinion, would it be best for the child if I left and made no attempt to see her again? I would, of course, contribute to her support. I love the little girl very much but I hate to put her through the problems so many divorced parents heap on their kids. They always seem so torn and hung-up. Everybody loses. What do you say? — Troubled

Dear T.: If you walk out of this child's life and think you can walk back in ten or twelve years from now — forget it.

Try for as generous a commitment as you can get in regard to visiting privileges. Your presence could contribute a great deal to your daughter's emotional support. This is far more important than any financial assistance you might give her mother.

BEEBE — The October meeting of Unit one U.C.W. of Wesley United Church was held in the church, with a hot dish supper served in the dining room at 6 p.m. to members and invited guests, being Mrs. Dale Miller area vice-president of Hatley, Rev. and Mrs. Ralph Rogers, members of Graniteville U.C.W. and Unit two members of Wesley United Church, numbering approximately 40 in all.

The tables were centered with small arrangements of yellow and orange flowers with a sprig of cranberries for added color.

When all had assembled around the tables, Mrs. M. Mosher, president, welcomed all and asked Rev. Rogers to speak the blessing.

At the termination of the meal, Mrs. Mosher asked Mrs. Gordon Laberee to say a few words, this she did graciously, extending a welcome to the church and area to Mrs. Rogers, paying high tributes to Rev. Rogers for services rendered over the years he has resided here.

She also presented Rev. and Mrs. Rogers with a beautiful hand painted framed picture of the Narrows Bridge, on the Beebe-Fitch Bay Road, as Rev. and Mrs. Rogers were recently married. Both were taken by complete surprise but gained their composure and graciously expressed thanks to all for the wonderful gift and they stated they would make room on a wall in a suitable place to hang the wonderful and appreciated gift.

Mrs. Lawrence Goodspeed also paid tribute to Rev. Rogers for his leadership over the years and wished them (Rev. and Mrs. Rogers), many years of happiness.

Mrs. Mosher introduced Mrs. Dale Miller, guest speaker, who also congratulated Rev. and Mrs. Rogers. Mrs. Miller spoke on the Summer Event held in the University of Ottawa in August. Mrs. Charles Bullock, president of Graniteville U.C.W. expressed thanks on behalf of the assembly. All retired upstairs to the parlor where the business meeting was conducted by Mrs. Mosher, opening with all repeating the Purpose and Function and the Lord's Prayer.

Devotional leader, Mrs. Ines Myers, used the Thanksgiving theme, and read an article entitled, "Thank God for Life," the singing of a Thanksgiving Hymn and prayer.

Routine reports, as well as the report of an executive meeting were read and accepted.

It was decided to send a donation to a Catholic mission in India to buy food (rice) to feed a starving child for one week.

Correspondence included a thank-you from Mrs. Beane for the pleasant afternoon spent on her birthday, also for the gift of flowers.

A letter was read, stating that the support of a child through Foster Parents Plan had increased, but it was agreed to carry on with the same child. A cash gift will be forwarded for Christmas.

Mrs. F. Finlayson, Literature chairman, read an article written by Janet Somerville, taken from the Church Observer.

Flower committee chairman, Mrs. G. Laberee, stated it was very difficult to get fresh flowers during winter for church decorations and it was agreed that artificial ones were very attractive and realistic. A donation was made to purchase some flowers especially to be used during the holiday seasons.

Miss V. Moranville, Social Functions, reported a very good turn-out of Beebe church members at the joint service held recently in Stanstead South United Church, Rock Island.

Community Friendship, Mrs. Aulis stated get-well cards had been sent to shut-ins at home and in hospitals, birthday celebrants were remembered, including a forgotten patient in the Butters Home, in Austin.

The delegate, Mrs. Aulis, to the October U.C.W. Rally held in North Hatley gave a full report of the activities. The joint service will be held on October 31, in Wesley United Church. Unit two members have offered to be responsible for the coffee hour following the service. Miss Leona Shepard to be in charge of the lunch.

Thanks were expressed by Mrs. Dale Miller for the invitation to attend the meeting. Mrs. Charles Bullock, president of Graniteville U.C.W. and Mrs. D. Drew, Unit two members, each extended thanks on behalf of their unit.

The November 10 meeting will be at the home of Mrs. Sally de Pencier with Mrs. Clarence Nutbrown as co-hostess.

RICHMOND — The general meeting of the U.C.W. of Richmond-Melbourne United Church was held in the church parlor on October 6, with eleven members present.

The president, Mrs. Vesta Armstrong, opened the meeting by welcoming the members. She then asked Miss Bernice Beattie of the New London Unit to lead the devotional period. She read two short articles on the theme of "Thanksgiving" followed by a prayer and the hymn "Come, ye thankful people come."

The Melbourne Unit visited the Wales Home residents and made the collection in place of the Harvest Supper.

Chalmers Unit reminded the members of the Tupperware Party held on October 19 at 8:00 p.m. in the church parlor.

The New London Unit did not hold a meeting in September but collected in place of the Supper, visited the Wales Home, and at this meeting, donated an electric kettle to the U.C.W. Mrs. Armstrong expressed thanks for this very useful gift.

Mrs. K.G. Nourse will represent the Chalmers Unit on the Nominating Committee and Mrs. D. Perkins, the New London Unit. Melbourne Unit has not yet appointed a representative.

The Fall Rally was held in Drummondville on September 14 with several members attending and taking part in the programme. Mrs. H. MacNaughton reported on a very interesting day. Rev. McQueen from Plymouth-Trinity Church, Sherbrooke spoke on his work with young people in the Sawyerville-Sherbrooke area.

Mrs. Vesta Armstrong read the report written by Mrs. Connie Lloyd on the Summer Event which she attended in Ottawa in August.

Mrs. Armstrong stated that she had ordered Church Calendars for 1977 and hoped to have them for the Christmas Sale on November 6. A sale of food, handicrafts and novelties will be held on Saturday, Nov. 6 at 4:00 p.m. and a casserole supper will be served at 4:30. Adults $2.50, children 6 to 12 years, $1.25, under 6 years - no charge.

It was moved by Mrs. Grace Taylor and seconded by Mrs. H. MacNaughton that the November U.C.W. meeting be cancelled. Carried.

Mrs. Armstrong expressed her thanks to all those who had donated food for the Wales Home Reception Day, as well as for the family party held in the Church Hall on a recent Saturday night. She also thanked the new London Unit for taking the devotions and serving refreshments for the meeting.

The meeting was closed with the mizpah benediction.

LENOXVILLE — The general meeting of the United Church Women was held in the Lounge, Douglas Hall, with the president, Mrs. D. M. Robinson presiding.

Mrs. Muriel Brand gave a most interesting report of Summer Event which was held at the University of Ottawa in August. All joined in singing the hymn, "I Love to Tell the Story", with Mrs. T. A. Judson at the piano. Mrs. Brand explained that the story was told in many ways with music, discussions and talks by various speakers. Miss Janet Somerville, the theme speaker, made the Biblical story of the Exodus come alive by comparing people of the present day with the ancient Israelites who dared to ask for freedom from their oppressors and make a covenant with God. Many people today are changing their lifestyles, showing concern for spiritual values rather than materialistic ones. Mrs. Brand was thanked by Mrs. R. Blackadder.

The minutes of the last meeting were read by Mrs. C. P. Mallalieu.

The resignation of Mrs. Robert Sutor as Vice-President was received with regret.

The location of fire extinguishers and first-aid equipment was given by Mrs. D. M. Robinson.

The president, Mrs. Garland Page, opened the meeting with the U.C.W. Purpose repeated in unison.

Devotions were led by Mrs. Blanch Hyatt, who, in keeping with Thanksgiving, read some appropriate articles on: How we should be thankful at all times for so many things. The hymn, For the Beauty of the Earth was sung, with Mrs. Donald MacRae accompanying at the piano.

Mrs. William J. Lane read the minutes and Mrs. Norman Flint gave the treasurer's report. Mrs. Bertha Ball read a thank-you note from Mrs. Wentworth S. Richardson, who had the misfortune to fall and sustain a fractured wrist and ribs, and all wish her well and a return to the Unit before too long.

Mrs. Flint gave a brief resume of the Regional Rally held at North Hatley, with a good representation from all points of the Quebec Sherbrooke Presbytery areas, numbering close to one hundred.

The meeting closed with the mizpah benediction and a pleasant social hour was enjoyed, when the hostesses, Mrs. Flint and Mrs. Hyatt, served tea and delicious home made breads.

Articles left form the spring tea and sale table were auctioned, plus some pot holders donated by Irene Kerr and some dish towels donated by Cris Blake.

The next meeting will be held at Mrs. C. Johnston's home on the regular day. The devotional period will be taken by Dianna Taber and the roll call will be something with the word remembrance in it.

The meeting was closed with a prayer, and lunch served by the hostesses.

The Nominating Committee was appointed and the Oyster Supper by the Session was announced and will take place on November 5. Date of the Christmas Sale and Tea is November 25.

Devotions were in charge of the members of unit 4 and led by Betty Joyce, the theme being "A new concept of prayer."

Refreshments were served by unit 3, at the close of the meeting.

WINDSOR — St. Andrew's U.C.W. held a short business meeting on Wednesday evening, Oct. 13, at the home of Mrs. D. Morey, with eight members and two guests present.

The main business of the meeting was to make final plans for the casserole supper and sales table to be held in the church hall on Saturday, Nov. 13, from 4-7 p.m. A cordial welcome is extended to all. A variety of handicrafts and novelties will be available for early Christmas shoppers.

The November meeting will be held at the home of Mrs. F. Harper with Mrs. H. Dubuc as hostess.

At the close of the evening, refreshments were served by Mrs. Morey and Mrs. F. Doyle.

farming and gardening

SPRING IN WINTER — Bulbs should be placed deep enough in pot so that the soil covers the whole bulb except the tip. The pointed end always goes upward. Then the soil should be pressed down firmly all around the bulbs, and watered. Here Mandy is ready to insert an identification marker into the pot to give the name of the bulb, and its variety, and then place in a cool cellar, garage or outdoor shed, where they will not freeze, for about thirteen weeks.

How to have spectacular spring flowers in winter

Wouldn't it be delightful to have spectacular Spring flowers in the middle of Winter. You can — by "forcing" them. What's forcing? It's an easy technique that forces flowers to grow months before they usually do — so that you can have Spring inside, while Winter is still outside.

All types of flowers — like tulips, daffodils, hyacinths, crocus and many other Miscellaneous bulbs — can be forced to bloom in your home months earlier than in your garden.

All you really need are bulbs, containers, soil and a cold location where the bulbs can develop roots. The bulbs are potted in the Fall, the same time you plant your outdoor bulb garden, so you don't have to double work.

Selecting containers

After deciding on the bulbs you want, choose containers that reflect your decorating tastes. Metal, ceramic, plastic or clay will do. You can use paint, paper, seashells, or any other material handy to transform any dull containers into attractive settings for your flowers. If new clay pots are used, soak them in water for 24 hours prior to use.

Before selecting containers, keep in mind that forced bulbs require well-drained soil, so containers must have a drainage hole, and must be deep for roots to develop.

Which soil to use

Light soil is the key, especially for drainage.

Agricultural outlook conference announced

OTTAWA — Agriculture Minister Eugene Whelan recently announced that the annual Agricultural Outlook Conference will be held at the Government Conference Centre here on December 13 and 14.

The two-day conference will follow the same format as previous years with sessions on the outlook for individual farm commodities, farm income production costs and trade prospects for agricultural products.

Market outlook papers will be presented by Agriculture Canada economists and their remarks will be discussed by panels of farmer and industry representatives. The conference is coordinated by Agriculture Canada's Economics Branch.

"This important meeting will bring together the heads

Combine equal parts of weed-free garden or potting soil, peat and sand or vermiculite. (Never use soil in which bulbs have been grown before). And don't worry about fertilizer — the bulbs contain all their own food.

For best forcing results, follow these simple steps:

1. Place a piece of broken clay pot or a few flat stones over the drainage hole to prevent clogging and to stop the soil from flowing out.

2. Fill the pot half full.

3. Gently place the bulbs on top of the soil with their tips just below the rim. Don't press the bulbs into the soil, because it can damage their base, and hinder root growth.

4. Add the remaining soil, stopping when just the tips of the bulbs are still visible.

5. Water well — either from the tap, or immerse the entire pot in a pan of water — until all the soil is moist.

6. To get the most out of each pot, plant as many bulbs as will fit, but don't let them touch each other or the pot. Six tulip bulbs or fifteen crocus, for example, will fit a six inch pot. Dense planting is also best for the small Miscellaneous bulbs, such as muscari or scilla. Hyacinths can be potted singly or in groups of three, five or more. Plant tulips with their flat sides facing the edge of the container; then the first broad leaf to bloom will form a border around each pot.

7. Label each container, noting the variety, color, date of planting, and the date for removal from storage.

8. After planting and labeling is completed, the potted bulbs need a period of cold storage of at least 13 weeks to develop roots, stems and buds. Rooting should be done at a temperature of 35 to 45 degrees Fahrenheit.

9. For indoor rooting, place the pots in a cool cellar, garage or outdoor shed, where they will not freeze. And remember, that pots rooted indoors must be kept in complete darkness, and watered regularly.

10. For outdoor rooting, dig a bed deep enough to hold the pots and about three inches of sand. Spread an inch of sand or pebbles on the bed bottom for drainage. Then, set the pots, and cover them with two inches of sand and a mound of about six inches of soil. Next, dig a small trench around the bed for water to run off. Water the bed regularly until freezing weather sets in. And, apply a mulch of hay, straw, evergreen branches, etc. to prevent freezing and heaving.

11. After thirteen weeks, the bulbs should have developed good roots, and the stems should be two or three inches tall. Place the well-rooted pots in a 60 to 65 degree area. After a few weeks, the stems will elongate and the buds will enlarge.

12. Now the pots can be placed in 65 to 72 degrees areas for flowers to bloom.

13. Water the pots regularly and keep them away from heaters and drafts.

14. Potted bulb flowers in bloom prefer cool locations — 60 to 65 degrees for daffodils and crocus — 65 to 72 degrees for tulips and hyacinths. Warmer temperatures will shorten their bloom, so move the pots to a cool location at night.

The most important tips to remember are: 1. Water the bulbs regularly through each step of forcing. 2. Containers must be well-drained for good results. 3. Do not try to force bulbs into flower until the roots are fully developed. 4. Purchase only good quality bulbs that are firm, clean, and free of bruises — bargains can cause disappointments. 5. Handle the bulbs carefully; they are living plants and should not be dropped or thrown around.

Domestic wool production declining

OTTAWA — Despite continuing demand for wool in Canada, domestic production is steadily declining.

Recently-published figures in Agriculture Canada's 1975 Wool Grading Report indicate that the total Canadian wool clip is down about four per cent from 1974. Only three provinces — Saskatchewan, Alberta and British Columbia — increased production in 1975 over the previous year.

"Canada produces only about one-tenth of the 32.4 million pounds of wool used domestically. This year's production continues the downward trend that started in the 1940s," says Andy Stewart of the wool grading section in Agriculture Canada's Livestock Division.

Alberta and Ontario are the largest producers of wool at 1,172,000 and 675,000 pounds respectively. They supply more than half of Canada's total production. Saskatchewan is third with 547,000 pounds and Quebec is running fourth at 207,000 pounds.

To grade raw wool, it is first divided into three types, according to where it is produced. Western Range is wool produced by large or range flocks in Western Canada. Western Domestic includes wool produced from small farm flocks in the west, and Eastern Domestic takes in wool produced by farm flocks in Eastern Canada.

Each of these types is graded to establish the quality of the fleece, since it is quality which determines the selling price. The highest quality wools for the three types are "Choice X", "Bright" and "Special."

In a third step, a grader will pull out a small group of fibres to determine the length of the wool. The grader then measures the strength and diameter of the fibres. Individual fibres in fleeces vary from very small diameter fibres in fine wools to the large diameter fibres found in coarse wools.

"Last year's wool clip is generally of good, average quality. About 10 per cent of the total three-million-pound clip was rejected because it was defective — containing foreign matter or damaged to some degree," Mr. Stewart says.

About 50 per cent of Canadian production is used in worsted woollen production and must be exported for combing. The felt mill trade in Canada consumes a further 35 per cent. The remainder goes into various segments of the domestic woollens industry.

Canadian wool production has some problems. Producers in large wool-producing countries like Australia and New Zealand have a competitive edge because of their large sheep populations.

The reduced domestic wool production follows the declining sheep numbers in Canada, because of predators and production costs involved in wintering sheep.

Advantages of sorghum outlined

OTTAWA — Sorghum, a corn-like plant that carries its seeds as kernels on the tassels or panicles, has an advantage over corn — the more it's cut, the more it grows.

"Sorghum is vigorous, easy to grow, requires less moisture than corn and can be planted as an emergency crop when seeding is delayed in spring. It is a major crop in the southwestern United States and in China where it withstands the dry climate better than other grains," says F.S. Warren, a corn specialist with Agriculture Canada's Research Station here.

But sorghum has a serious disadvantage. It reacts to stress — like drought or frost — by producing fatal hydrocyanic (prussic) acid.

"About four or five animals are killed annually in Canada by fatal doses of the acid," Dr. Warren says.

"Sorghum has not been recommended in this area since 1965, after research proved that it had no yield advantage over corn in Eastern Canada. Since then, farmers who plant the crop have had no warnings of the potential hazard. There is no practical test to determine when it is safe to feed.

"We advise that sorghum be cut in mid-July and again by mid-September and made into silage," the scientist says. "When the plant is made into silage it loses some of its poisonous acid. Cattle can be grazed on the new growth."

Dr. Warren says that some farmers use sorghum for grazing in the fall when they run out of fresh feed. But a frost-nipped field can be lethal for cattle.

"If the crop gets rain after a period of drought or frost, the acid will start to dissipate after three days or more and it will be safe for feed," Dr. Warren says. "However, our tests indicate that sorghum's yield isn't sufficiently greater than corn to make it worth the risks."

The final service of worship, for the season, was held in Chalmers United Church, with Mr. Bob Shaughnessy of Sawyerville officiating and Mrs. Leslie Irving of Scotstown at the organ. The congregation was joined by friends from Scotstown, Sherbrooke and St. Elie d'Orford. Mr. Shaughnessy will be conducting weekly services in Scotstown for those wishing to attend.

Mr. and Mrs. Galen Vance of Ayer's Cliff were weekend guests of Mrs. Vance's brother, Mr. Gilbert Wintle and Mrs. Wintle.

Weekend guests of Mr. and Mrs. Roscoe Morrison were Mr. and Mrs. Jay Morrison of Brossard, Mr. and Mrs. John Ball of Willsboro, New York and Miss Beverly Ball of Montpelier, Vt. Others visiting at the same home were Mr. and Mrs. Allan Matheson and Brian of Sherbrooke, Mr. and Mrs. Ronald Rowland of East Angus and Mr. Wayne MacAulay of Lachine, accompanied by Mr. and Mrs. David Brown of London, England.

Mr. Kenneth Melver was visiting his sister, Miss Anna Melver and Mr. and Mrs. Tom Baird in St. Lambert.

Mr. Douglas Beaton has returned to his home, having spent several days in the Sherbrooke Hospital. It was with sincere regret that the community heard he had the great misfortune to lose a hand, working on farm machinery. His brother, Mr. Eric Beaton of Picton, Ont. is spending some time at the Beaton home in North Hill.

tributions which one cow carcass can provide.

The President, Mrs. Bain, turned the meeting over to Mrs. Black who had invited three guest speakers. The first was Miss Susan Mastine of Richmond who informed the members of a planned Woman's Center to be located in Sherbrooke. She hoped some of them could enlighten her on some of the needs of rural women. Miss Mastine is hired by the government and jointly works with the area school Boards. Interest and Ability tests and access to counselling will be available and would help women to reach their personal and professional goals. A host of miscellaneous information will be available.

The next two speakers were introduced and are new to this area, Mrs. Doreen Fletcher and Mrs. Vivian Fisher. They displayed a variety of their own Art plus selected pieces by other individuals. Among them were striking collages created by the Sawyerville 6th grade students taught by Mrs. Fletcher, also admired were statues of The Three Wise Men, pictorial creel work, a stuffed doll in old fashioned attire, mobiles and a special patch work quilt.

Former students of Mrs. Fletcher were each assigned to design and make a quilt block to represent their family origin. It was a unique, attractive and educational quilt which signified a variety of nationalities of the past, now learning together in friendship.

All three speakers were warmly thanked for their interesting talks and display. Much to our delight, Mrs. Fletcher and Mrs. Fisher became members of our group.

At the close of the meeting, a potluck lunch and friendly conversation was shared.

MELBOURNE (JW) — Thirteen members of Gore Branch W.I. met at the home of Mrs. Irma Johnston on Wednesday, Oct. 6, when Mrs. Ruth Mountain, president, opened the meeting with the repetition of the Mary Stewart Collect.

By Oswald & James Jacoby

Oswald: "Starting in 1975, New York's Cavendish Club runs an invitation tournament for the benefit of the Children's cancer fund. Jim Jacoby won it last year with Jeff Westheimer. This year it was won by Allen Sontag and Peter Weischel, one of the best young pairs today."

Jim: "I was unable to play this year, but judging by the Peter and Allen played, I doubt very much if we could have repeated."

Oswald: "Allen and Peter gained a lot of points when an opponent's attempt to fix them backfired. East's one notrump was pure whimsy and gave Peter a chance to bid two hearts. Allen tried a three-club cue bid. Peter jumped to four hearts and Allen bid six."

Jim: "There wasn't any real problem in the play. Peter drew trumps and attacked spades by cashing dummy's ace and his own queen. When East showed out (obviously East's notrump had been pure whimsy), Peter was able to finesse against West's jack. He had to lose a club at the end, but he could afford it."

Ask the Jacobys

A Missouri reader wants to know if the experts spoil bridge with special complicated conventions.

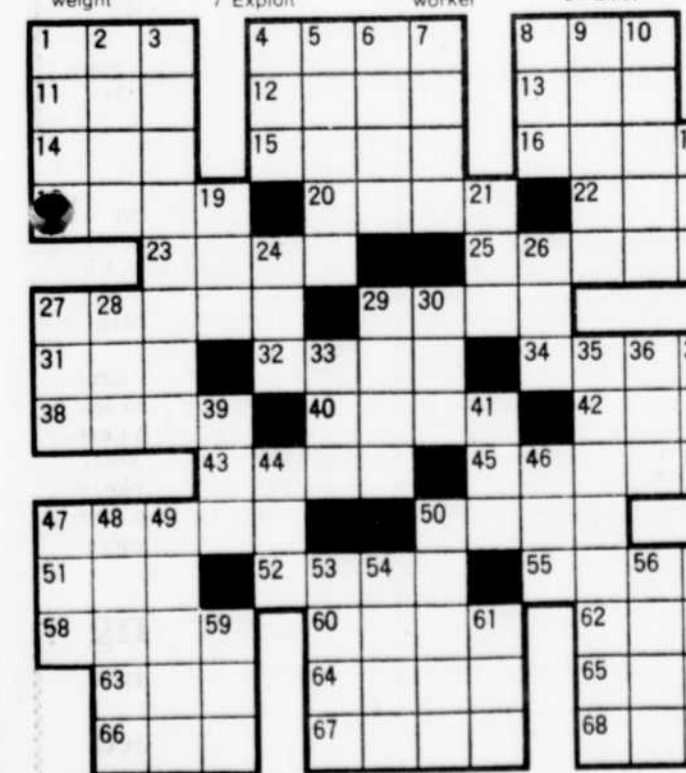

We don't think so. Jack Nicklaus is allowed to attempt golf shots that the average player can't make. Jimmy Connors is allowed to hit a tennis ball as hard as he wishes. In world competition a player should be allowed to use his full skills.

(Do you have a question for the experts? Write "Ask the Jacobys" care of this newspaper. The Jacobys will answer individual questions if stamped, self-addressed envelopes are enclosed. The most interesting questions will be used in this column and will receive copies of JACOBY MODERN.)

Rough Riders whip Ti-Cats 48-10

Bob Shaw, head coach and general manager of Hamilton Tiger-Cats, wasn't upset following his team's 48-10 loss to Ottawa Rough Riders in an Eastern Football Conference game Sunday. He was furious.

"It was a ridiculous performance offensively and defensively," Shaw said. "We missed blocks, tackles, dropped passes. They just brutalized us."

"If the players are satisfied with mediocrity, then... what can I do?"

The 21,566 fans at Ivor Wynne Stadium in Hamilton knew what to do. Most of them departed in the cold and rain at the beginning of the fourth quarter.

The win clinched first place for Ottawa in the EFC. The Rough Riders have nine wins in 14 starts for a six-point lead over Montreal Alouettes and Toronto Argonauts with two games left in the regular-season schedule.

The Alouettes, who dropped a 17-10 decision to Edmonton Eskimos at the Olympic Stadium on Saturday, and the Argonauts each have six wins, seven losses and a tie for 13 points.

HAVE 12 POINTS

The Tiger-Cats have 12 points on six wins and eight losses, meaning the last two playoff positions will be decided on the next two weekends.

On Sunday, the Ticats and Rough Riders have a return engagement, this time at Lansdowne Park in Ottawa, while the Alouettes travel to Winnipeg for a game against the Blue Bombers. The Argonauts will try to improve their position on Saturday with a game at home against British Columbia Lions.

If that doesn't help decide the playoff positions, the last weekend of the regular season should. On Saturday, Nov. 6, the Rough Riders and Alouettes play at Montreal and the next day, Toronto plays the Ticats at Hamilton. Ottawa head coach George

Brancato said his team's defence was up for the game. "Defensively, we played our best game of the season," he said. "The defence has let up in our past couple of games but they studied films and worked hard all week."

The Ticat offence faltered after a Jimmy Edwards touchdown and a Ken Clark field goal in the first quarter. Hamilton gave up five of six fumbles in the game.

Tom Clements went almost the whole way at quarterback for the Rough Riders before being relieved by Condredge Holloway late in the game. Jimmy Jones was the Hamilton quarterback until the last six minutes when rookie Tom Shuman took over.

GREEN HAS 3 TDs

Ottawa running back Art Green scored three touchdowns while John Palazeti and Tony Gabriel had two each.

The Eskimos got a one-yard touchdown run from Calvin Harrell and three field goals from Dave Cutler, who also kicked a convert and a single on a wide field goal attempt, for their win before 55,337 spectators at the Olympic Stadium.

Don Sweet kicked three field goals and a single on a wide try to account for all the Montreal scoring.

Montreal coach Marv Levy was left almost speechless by his club's tendency to turn over the ball. The Alouettes fumbled five times and lost the ball on four occasions to Edmonton, 9-5-1 and second in the Western Football Conference.

"I have no idea how to handle those," said Levy of the fumbles. "You can tell them to hang on to the ball but after that, it's very demoralizing."

Running back Andy Hopkins twice fumbled the ball away inside the Eskimos 40 in the first quarter after Cutler had opened the scoring with a 45-yard field goal.

Saskatchewan drops 21-19 decision

REGINA (CP) — Saskatchewan Roughriders missed two field goal attempts in the final six minutes Sunday afternoon and dropped a 21-19 decision to Winnipeg Blue Bombers as Saskatchewan lost a chance to clinch first place in the Western Football Conference.

Saskatchewan lost its last chance for a tie—which would have clinched first place—when Bob Macoritti missed a 22-yard field goal attempt on the final play before a crowd of 22,508 who had gathered both to watch the Roughriders win the WFC title for the first time since 1970 and to pay tribute to retired fullback George Reed.

Macoritti also had a chance to tie the game with six minutes remaining but linebacker John Babinecz broke through to block his kick from the 23.

The Roughriders remained one point ahead of the second-place Edmonton Eskimos. Winnipeg, a solid third, moved within three points of Edmonton.

Quarterback Ron Lancaster, a longtime Red team-mate, directed a brilliant last-half display that fell inches short.

He scored one touchdown on a one-yard run in the fourth quarter and threw a 59-yard scoring pass to Steve Mazurak in the third. Macoritti completed scoring with a field goal, two converts and two singles.

Winnipeg quarterback Ralph Brock threw an eight-yard scoring pass to Gord Paterson and hit Jay Washington for 27 yards and a touchdown. Bernie Ruoff had the other Winnipeg points with two field goals, two converts and a single.

Winnipeg dominated the game until midway through the third quarter, both in scoring and territorial play. The Bombers constantly picked holes in the Roughriders defence. But the Riders came alive when Lancaster received good protection and threw his 59-yard scoring strike to Mazurak. The Saskatchewan comeback continued into the fourth quarter when running back Molly McGee, a former Ottawa Rough Rider playing his first game for Saskatchewan, burst 59 yards with a screen pass.

He was hauled down on Winnipeg's 10 and a Bomber interference penalty gave Saskatchewan a first down on the 5. One rushing play reached the oneyard line and Lancaster wedged his way across.

Saskatchewan defensive back Ken McEachern gave Saskatchewan further hope when he intercepted a Brock pass on Winnipeg's 49 and gave Lancaster excellent field position about halfway through the final period.

However, the advantage disappeared when Babinecz scooped past McGee to bat down Macoritti's first field-goal attempt. Brock could not generate any offence after that, however, and Lancaster drove the Roughriders within field-goal range again.

STILL FIRST

Macoritti was wide with his final attempt and the Roughriders remained only one point ahead of the second-place Edmonton Eskimos with a game in hand, while Winnipeg consolidated its hold on third place, two points in front of B.C.

The Bombers got their first major early in the second quarter after Chuck Willis intercepted a Lancaster pass. A 65-yard drive ended when Brock threw under pressure to Paterson for the major.

Winnipeg increased its lead on a 75-yard march that ended in Washington's touchdown. He eluded a tackler near the sideline and scored easily.

Versatile Steve Beaird did not score but chalked up 96 yards rushing before he was sidelined early in the fourth quarter with an apparent ankle injury.

mal. The council is conforming to regulations and council minutes are being translated into their official version.

A member of the West Bolton Village Council believes that government regulations "seem to be an imposition as far as the town is concerned since the official version will never be used." Ninety per cent of the 570 residents are English and only one out of the seven town councillors is French. While town business is and will be carried out in English, the council will have to record their minutes in French.

Contrary to allegations made recently in Sherbrooke's French daily newspaper, an informed source said that members of the Bury council will not resign to protest the language requirements of Bill 22. Bury is composed of 1,145 residents with 65 per cent of its population English-speaking. Although the council is presently recording minutes in English they will most likely provide an official French version in the near future.

Most municipalities in the Eastern Townships are made up of a large percentage of Francophones and this has necessitated the publication of official notices and important council business in both languages for a number of years. Members of town councils in an area so heavily populated with French residents have always had to respond to the public's questions in the language the voter could best understand. It seems, therefore, that the majority of municipalities will implement the stipulations of Bill 22 with very little difficulty since a large proportion of the requirements were already being observed by municipalities prior to Bill 22.

Dallas wins, 31-12 Champlain sports

Dallas Cowboys survived a scare and temporarily lost a quarterback against Chicago Bears in a National Football League game Sunday.

Roger Staubach, the Cowboys' durable star, went out of action in the third quarter with a fractured finger on his passing when he was hit by Bear linebacker Mike Hartenstein. Danny White replaced him and promptly hit Preston Pearson with a 15-yard touchdown pass for a 24-7 Dallas lead.

Even without Staubach, coach Tom Landry figured the situation was well in hand. But it wasn't.

"This was an incredible game," said Landry after Dallas eventually won 31-21. "How we ever got in jeopardy of losing I'll never know."

Elsewhere in the NFL, Minnesota Vikings remained undefeated with a 31-12 victory over Philadelphia Eagles, Cincinnati Bengals whipped Houston Oilers 27-7, Miami Dolphins edged Tampa Bay Buccaneers 23-20, Baltimore Colts blanked New York Jets 20-0, Pittsburgh Steelers shut out New York Giants 27-0, Oakland Raiders held off Green Bay Packers 18-14, New England Patriots beat Buffalo Bills 26-22, Denver Broncos topped Kansas City Chiefs 35-26, Cleveland Browns downed San Diego Chargers 21-17, Los Angeles Rams got by New Orleans Saints 16-10 and Detroit Lions defeated Seattle Seahawks 41-14.

San Francisco 49ers dumped Atlanta Falcons 15-0 in a Saturday night contest. St. Louis plays at Washington tonight.

Chicago linebacker Ross Brubacher got the Bears back in the game when he intercepted a White pass and returned it 25 yards before sending it to Hartenstein who went the final 12 yards for a touchdown. Then Virgil Livers ran back a punt 51 yards to set up Johnny Musso's two-yard touchdown run and it was 24-21.

White came back with a 54-yard toss to Golden Richards to set up the final Dallas score, a six-yard White to Pearson pass, and Dallas had its sixth victory in seven games.

Fran Tarkenton brought Minnesota from behind with a 35-yard touchdown pass to rookie Sammie White in the third quarter and Chuck Foreman added touchdown runs of 32 and two yards as the Vikings raised their record to 5-0-1. Tarkenton hit on 23 of 33 tosses for 249 yards to become the second man in NFL history to pass the 40,000-yard mark in passing yardage. He needs 91 yards to top all-time leader John Unitas.

Ken Anderson and John Reaves threw one touchdown pass each as Cincinnati took sole possession of first place in the Central Division of the American Conference. Miami needed a 29-yard field goal by Garo Yepremian with 55 seconds left to edge cross-state rival Tampa Bay.

SHUT OUT JETS

Bert Jones hooked up with wide receiver Roger Carr on touchdown pass plays of 79 and 41 yards and Toni Linhart kicked a pair of field goals as Baltimore shut out the Jets. Franco Harris carried 27 times for 106 yards and two touchdowns and the Pittsburgh defence turned in its first shutout in its last 20 games against the winless Giants, off to the worst start in their 52-year history.

Ken Stabler threw three touchdown passes in the second quarter—including an 88-yard pass-and-run connection with Cliff Branch—and the Raiders held on to beat the Packers. Steve Grogan threw for one touchdown and ran for another as New England built a 26-9 third-quarter lead and then held on.

The Bills, with Gary Marangi replacing the injured Joe Ferguson at quarterback, rallied behind a pair of O. J. Simpson touchdown runs but came up short. Ferguson suffered a back injury in the second quarter.

Quarterback Steve Ramsey tossed a pair of touchdown passes as Denver took Kansas City in a wild offensive game in which the teams combined for 53 first downs. Brian Sipe threw for two touchdowns for the Browns, including the go-ahead score on a 10-yarder to Oscar Roan in the fourth quarter.

Pat Haden came off the bench to fire a 40-yard fourth-quarter touchdown pass to Harold Jackson, lifting Los Angeles over scrappy New Orleans. Greg Landry threw for three touchdowns and the Detroit defence intercepted six Jim Zorn passes as the Lions rolled over the expansion Seahawks.

LENNOXVILLE — Champlain Regional College soccer teams wound up their seasons Saturday, the men coming up with a victory while the women were defeated.

Goals by Gary Bowers and Jean Claude led the Cougars to a 2-0 triumph over Thetford Mines CEGEP and clinched second place in FASCQ play behind undefeated Sherbrooke CEGEP. Horst Prager recorded the shutout, making several good saves along the way.

The game, played on snow-covered muddy ground, revenge a 2-0 loss to Thetford in the first game of the year. That fact that Thetford only had 10 players made the task that much easier for Champlain.

The women, down 1-0 at halftime, swapped second half penalty kicks which scored to end in a 2-1 Sherbrooke CEGEP victory. Brigitte Frot beat the Sherbrooke netminder to put Champlain on the board.

Sherbrooke controlled the ball in Cougar territory for a good part of the game, testing goalie Linda Hunting more than the Cougars did the Volontaire netminder.

It was Champlain's second defeat of the season, the other also coming from Sherbrooke. They were otherwise undefeated in eight other matches during the year against high school, CEGEP and university teams.

STRICKLAND SHARP

Mike Strickland ran for two British Columbia touchdowns and quarterback Rick Cassata found Jim Young on a 40-yard scoring pass. Passaglia converted all three touchdowns and had three field goals and a single.

Calgary quarterback John Hufnagel blamed turnovers—Calgary lost four interceptions and two fumbles—for the loss of an early 15-0 lead. Coach Joe Tiller said the Stampeders "don't know when to go for the jugular."

Flanker Tom Forzani took two scoring passes from Hufnagel, who also hit Willie Armstrong on a 21-yarder. Larry Cates ran for the first Calgary score. Cyril McFall had four converts and two singles.

Eskimos record easy weekend?

As hard as it is for head coach Ray Jauch to believe, Edmonton Eskimos had an easier weekend than their four Western Football Conference rivals.

The Eskimos lost running back Joe Lowery with a sprained ankle and defensive ace Larry Highbaugh with a head injury Saturday during a 17-10 victory over Montreal Alouettes in a rugged Canadian Football League interlocking game between the 1975 Grey Cup rivals.

Briefs

PICK 4 FOR SERIES

OTTAWA (CP) — Jim Boyce, Greg Halder and Dale Power, all of Toronto, and Rejean Genois of Quebec City were selected as Canada's team for the 1977 Davis Cup series, Jim Skelton, chairman of the Davis Cup committee, announced Monday. The first round for Canada is scheduled for Oct. 29-31 in Ottawa against the Caribbean. If successful, Canada would proceed against Mexico in Ottawa the next weekend.

HAVLICEK REPORTS

BUZZARDS BAY, Mass. (AP) — Veteran forward John Havlicek, fourth highest scorer in National Basketball Association history, reached a contract agreement and reported Monday to Boston Celtics. Havlicek, 36, a 14-year veteran with the Celtics, had stayed away from training camp during negotiations. Terms of the contract were not disclosed.

The victory left Edmonton within one point of first-place Saskatchewan Roughriders in the Western Conference but the Roughriders lost a chance to clinch first place Sunday when they bowed 21-18 to Winnipeg Blue Bombers.

British Columbia Lions lost a chance for victory on the last play against Calgary Stampeders but earned a 31-31 tie although Lui Passaglia was short with a 46-yard field goal bid.

Saskatchewan has two games remaining, while Edmonton has one. Third-place Winnipeg opened a two-point margin over B.C. in the race for the last playoff berth.

Calgary is out of the playoff race.

Jauch said he feels the Eskimos, despite the absence of a reliable ground attack, are improving as they near the playoffs. He said a 35-yard pass to Stu Lang, which set up the only Edmonton touchdown, was the key offensive play.

KICKERS' DUEL

Calvin Harrell scored on a one-yard plunge and Dave Cutler provided the other Edmonton points on three field goals, a convert and a single. Don Sweet did Montreal's scoring, three field goals and a single.

Linebacker Dan Kopley, the key to the stubborn Edmonton defence, was playing despite an undetermined back injury. The Alouettes lost defensive back Randy Rhyno with a severe hip pointer and quarterback Sonny Wade was shaken a couple of times.

Beavers hand Cornwall first loss

By STEVE BELL
(Record Reporter)

SHERBROOKE — While all the time complaining that he just didn't have what it took to score Friday night, Beavers' captain Jere Gillis was nonetheless very pleased with the evening's 5-2 victory over the previously undefeated Cornwall Royals.

The Beavers, all of whom played on a purely individual basis Friday night rather than as a team, a good example of this is the star list of the game.

Floyd Lahache, the Beavers' defenceman whose performance has been somewhat irregular at the best of times this season, (some games outstanding while others hardly worth mentioning) played a very strong game offensively, up front on orders from Delage. One of the coach's quick line changes that really paid off, Lahache beat Cornwall goalie Barry Borrett twice while in his new position in the first period.

Jere Gillis, who didn't make on the announced star list, is always a factor in how the team plays and last Friday Jere's performance was somewhat similar to that of the team as a whole, not up to potential and sporadic at times.

Ray Roy, who has a habit of being there when you need him again displayed this advantageous trait Friday night, scoring once, in the second period and nabbing an assist on Carter's third period goal. He also managed to stay clear of the penalty box with the one exception, a major for fighting in the second.

One not to be overlooked, Mark Green, basically one of the more dependable players, played an exceptional game breaking up plays and putting in a lot of good skating for the team.

The key to the Beavers' success was their ability to prevent the Royals from playing their own style of hockey.

While displaying good control around their net, the Royals were unable to make the necessary moves around the Sherbrooke goal to make the point.

Sherbrooke's defence and net minding, while not as tight as it has been or will be, held up very well. With Sevigny having to deal with only 20 shots as compared with the 38 shots on Cornwall goalie Barry Borrett, who played an exceptional game for the Royals.

Add to the Royals' inability to play their usual clean, tough skating game the fact that Cornwall coach Orval Tessier had to juggle lines Friday night as he had only 15 players dressed for the game due to injuries. And through the course of the game he lost two more, one to injuries and the other collided a game misconduct after a scuffle at center ice.

The Royals became un-

The Cornwall Royals have fallen on hard times, losing both games this weekend, first the Beavers beat them 5-2 and to add insult to injury, the previously unbeaten club was handed its second defeat by the Nationals Sunday night by a score of 9-6.

The Beavers fared a little better winning Friday night and losing last night to the Sorel Black Hawks by an embarrassing score of 10-3.

In other action last night, the Montreal Juniors whipped the Three Rivers team 7-4. Chicoutimi beat Quebec 6-2 and Hull tied Shawinigan 3-3.

NHL round up

Koroll leads Hawks in 7-3 win

Cliff Koroll felt alone Sunday night despite the 12,000 spectators at Chicago Stadium.

"It was a strange, weird feeling being out there all alone," said Koroll after he scored on a penalty shot to lead Chicago Black Hawks to a 7-2 National Hockey League victory over St. Louis Blues.

Referee Bruce Hood called the penalty shot against Chuck Lefley, who came from behind and tripped Koroll as Koroll was about to go in on goalie Ed Johnston. Johnston remained in the crease as Koroll came straight at him without any fakes and shot the puck under the goalie's stick hand and into the lower corner.

"I shut my eyes, shot and it went in," said Koroll. "Honestly, I was rubbery-legged out there."

FIRST 35 YEARS

It was the first penalty shot goal scored by the Black Hawks since 1941 when Joe Cooper scored against Montreal.

In other games Sunday, Philadelphia Flyers downed Colorado Rockies 5-3. Vancouver Canucks edged New York Rangers 5-4. Atlanta Flames and Pittsburgh Penguins played to a 3-3 tie and Buffalo Sabres edged Washington Capitals 2-1.

On Saturday, New York Islanders beat Toronto Maple Leafs 5-2. Philadelphia edged Buffalo 3-2. Montreal Canadiens routed Pittsburgh 9-1. St.

Louis beat Detroit Red Wings 4-2. Boston Bruins downed Los Angeles Kings 4-2 and Minnesota North Stars edged Chicago 4-3.

In the only game tonight, the Islanders take on the Canadiens at Montreal.

Last year there were 11 penalty shots awarded in the NHL, but Bob Nevin of Los Angeles scored the only one—against the Black Hawks and Tony Esposito. Chicago's Bobby Orr, returning to action after missing three games, all of which the Hawks lost, scored after 20 seconds into the game and Koroll made it 2-0 at 8:31 of the first period before connecting on the penalty shot five minutes later.

Orr added his second goal of the game in the final period. Red Berenson and Bob MacMillan scored for St. Louis while Ivan Boldirev, Dale Tallon and J. P. Boredeau added goals for Chicago.

SAYS KNEE OK

After the game, Orr said his knee, which has been operated on five times, felt fine although he held an ice pack on it.

Centre Rick MacLeish scored three goals to lead the Flyers past Colorado at the Spectrum. MacLeish's third goal of the game in the third period broke a 3-3 tie after Colorado had fought back from a three-goal deficit.

Vancouver coach Phil Maloney said the Canucks appear to have broken out of their early-season slump following their victory over the Rangers.

Ron Sedlbauer scored Vancouver's winning goal with his first of the season.

Curt Bennett's goal with 37 seconds remaining lifted the Flames into their tie with Pittsburgh. Atlanta was playing with six attackers after goalie Phil Myre was pulled with just under a minute remaining.

Jim Lorentz and Fred Stanfield each scored a goal as the Sabres increased their unbeaten streak against Washington to 11 games. The win raised Buffalo's record to 10 victories and a tie against Washington since the Capitals entered the league in 1974.

West, on the bench, coaching

Opposition very happy about it

Jerry West was on the Los Angeles bench, coaching the Lakers, which made Cleveland coach Bill Fitch happy.

"If they had Jerry West playing instead of coaching, we would have lost this ball game," Fitch said after his Cavaliers beat the Lakers.

game Atlanta Hawks defeated Milwaukee Bucks 115-91 and Seattle SuperSonics topped New York Nets 104-93.

On Saturday, New York Knicks beat San Antonio Spurs 117-98. Buffalo Braves defeated Philadelphia 76ers 108-105. Washington Bullets edged Detroit Pistons 98-97. Chicago Bulls defeated Indiana Pacers 102-97. Boston Celtics beat Milwaukee 111-108. Houston Rockets defeated Phoenix Suns 129-126. Denver Nuggets got by Kansas City Kings 120-99 and Portland Trail Blazers beat the Nets 114-104.

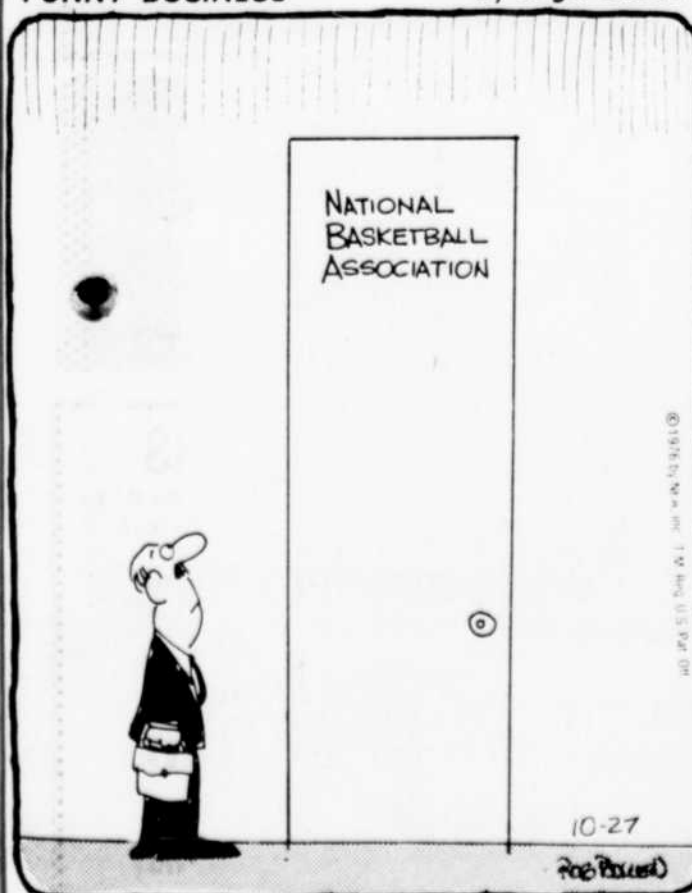

"We weren't really ready to play and I think that was indicated by the fact that we were outrebounded so badly in the first half," West said. "We had our chances but key turnovers and key fouls hurt us."

Jim Brewer grabbed 19 rebounds, high for the game, and added 11 points for Cleveland. Campy Russell had 16 points and Bobby Smith 15 in the balanced Cavaliers' attack.

Steve Hawes scored 19 points, John Drew and Lou Hudson each had 17 and Ken Charles tallied 15 as Atlanta clobbered Milwaukee for its first victory of the season.

Playing before a record home crowd of 14,098, Seattle outscored the Nets 28-11 in a 9½-minute period spanning the third and fourth periods to break open a close game and ease to victory in their season opener.

Nothing but victory

LENNOXVILLE — It was nothing but the winning way for three Bishop's University intercollegiate teams, as the football, basketball and hockey squads recorded victories.

In Montreal, the grid Gaiters played their second consecutive strong game in routing McGill Redmen 35-19, while the basketball team edged Queen's and the puck contingent nipped Queen's and Royal Military College in exhibition contests.

Rolling up close to 250 yards for the Gaiters in rushing were Jim Pooler and Bruce Wilkins, two standouts in last week's tilt as well. Pooler romped for 145 yards, while Wilkins ran for 100.

Jim Etcheverry, also continued his consistent passing average, twice catching the Redmen with red faces as he struck for two long touchdown passes. Gary Carbarino caught the first one which ended up being for 91 yards. Kevin Bennett set a league record this season by completing the other Etcheverry pass for 99 yards.

Wilkins scored the other Bishop's majors. His first came on a third down and short yardage situation on which he bulled his way through the McGill defence and crossed the goal line 55 yards later. The other came on a five-yard run.

McGill's main potential threat to the Gaiters were backs Tom Barbeau and Jim Trimble but the pair were held to under 100 yards combined. Barbeau played despite a broken hand and a leg injury.

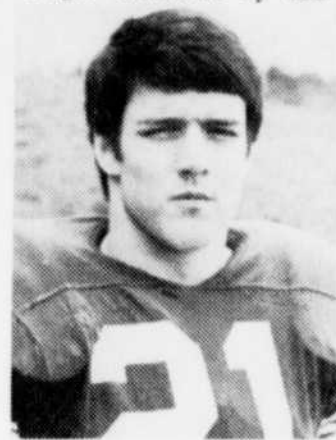

Bishop's totalled more than 500 yards offensively in the game, while McGill was kept to less than 200. Quarterback Etcheverry completed four passes for 198 yards, while Neal Greeley, the second Gaiter signal caller, completed three tosses. Joe Camalleri got a kick out of the game by booting two field goals, four converts and a single.

The Saturday triumph puts Bishop's in a second place tie with Queen's behind still-undefeated Ottawa going into next weekend's final games. A win by the Gaiters or a loss by the Golden Gaels would assure BU of meeting Ottawa in the East division first place versus second place playoff battle.

Hoop action saw the Gaiters win their third in four starts in pre-season play by defeating Queen's 83-72 before several hundred fans Friday. Twenty points late in the first half gave Bishop's a 39-33 halftime edge, which continued to grow to 68-46 with about five minutes to play in the contest.

Blair Shier continued to prove himself useful to the locals by scoring 23 points and snatching 20 rebounds. Ron Thomas lived up to his 'Magic' nickname by daz-

Two more newcomers to the Gaiters also scored in double figures. Ian McLean, other than scoring 15 points, guarded the Golden Gaels star and kept him from scoring often. David Francis ended the game with 11 points to his credit.

Queen's Bob Cooney, a former Magog resident, was high scorer for the visiting club with 11.

Bishop's coach Garth Smith was very pleased with the strong showing from his players. Besides handling themselves well in the execution of plays and passing, they had good averages in shooting. From the floor, the Gaiters shot 50 per cent, while from the foul line, they were 60 per cent. Smith said if they can keep up that average consistently, they will be hard to beat.

While their basketball squad was getting beat, the Queen's hockey team weren't getting any better treatment from the local hockey club. Goals by veterans Ted Moysey and Ken Knowles slipped the Gaiters to a 2-1 victory in their pre-season opener Murray Nadeau, a Champlain College grad last year, Knowles and Moysey rounded out the scoring with a goal apiece.

Coach Jim Moore said everybody played well in both games, especially Moser against RMC.
