

IMMERSION KIDS BETTER, PROF SAYS

By ANNA FUDAKOWSKA
LENNOXVILLE — There's a tendency for French-immersion pupils to be better students, says Dr. Fred Genessee, an immersion consultant with the Protestant School Board of Greater Montreal.

Speaking to about a hundred parents, teachers and students at Bishop's University last night, the McGill University psychology professor says immersion students won't come out of the system sounding like little Quebecois, but they will be more relaxed and prepared to chat in French.

DR. FRED GENESSEE
...immersion works

After his five-year study of immersion programs within the PSBGM, Dr. Genessee has found unlike the English-only control students, "the immersion children do not let structural problems get in their way."

Dr. Genessee discussed two programs — total immersion from Grade 1, decreasing yearly and finishing the secondary school years, 40 per cent French and 60 per cent English and total immersion in Grade 7 with the exception of an English course, followed by 40 per cent French, 60 per cent English in the remaining four years of secondary schooling.

Genessee's assessment of the programs included comparative studies at all levels between English control groups — English-only education with the same amount of French as has generally been taught in the past: immersion and French-control children. The immersion evaluation consisted of four major areas: English-language development, academic achievement, French-language development and social implications of attitudes upon leaving the program.

Throughout the program, he was aware that the English control students were generally hesitant about speaking French, while immersion children tackled grammatical problems in French in one way or another through their ready willingness to speak the language.

He noticed English-language development comes a little later — at the end of Grade 2 — to an early-immersion child, than an English control child, but there are no problems with English language literacy proficiency in the late immersion, because the child has already developed it when he begins to tackle the French.

Academic achievement in the immersion program is most thoroughly assessed in the area of math, since math programs have the most standardized curricular while others vary greatly from one teacher to another. At first, the immersion children know concepts in French because their English is not as strong but by the end of Grade 11, they do as well as English control children and score consistently higher than francophone students. Below-average students placed in immersion programs do not have more problems than they would in English control groups and it is evident that students who have trouble in school will have trouble no matter what they're doing.

Conclusive data on French proficiency is only available to the end of Grade 8, said Dr. Genessee, but he feels early immersion is better than late, if only because these children are noticeably more proficient in French. It remains to be seen what will happen at the end of the secondary schooling, he added.

Budget makes few waves

OTTAWA (CP) — The federal sales tax is slashed by 25 per cent, with modest income tax benefits and a mild program of economic stimulation, in the federal budget presented Thursday by Finance Minister Jean Chretien.

"Of course, some would have wanted more but I have offered the maximum I could under present circumstances," he said in defending his second formal budget and his fourth major financial statement in his tenure.

Calling it a budget without a political gimmick, Chretien told reporters Thursday he had gone as far as he thought he could in generating economic activity at a time of slow growth and harsh federal spending restraint.

Critics, calling the budget a Chamber of Commerce exercise in its varied scattering of business and investment benefits, said they expect yet another budget before the Liberal government must face the electors by next summer.

"These were major budget moves: —The federal sales tax of 12 per cent is cut to nine for everything but tobacco and alcohol, costing $1.3 billion by March 31, 1980. Manufacturers would be monitored to ensure the cuts were passed to consumers.

—The personal income tax deduction for working taxpayers is doubled to $500 and the inflation-indexed personal income tax deduction rate is raised to nine per cent at a cost of about $1.2 billion for 1979.

INCENTIVES WELCOMED — The Progressive Conservatives welcomed the budget's industrial incentives and praised Chretien for reducing sales taxes, but lamented the lack of housing assistance.

The New Democratic Party said the budget sent the country to a hard winter. Party Leader Ed Broadbent said the budget is a disappointment to those hoping for a turnaround in the economy. Labor leaders called it a nickel-and-dime budget with nothing for the unemployed, but business leaders congratulated Chretien for his restraint, labeling the budget sensible and responsible.

Running throughout the measures and Chretien's remarks was the constant message that the road to economic health lies in keeping costs under control and remaining competitive on world markets.

He said Canadians have behaved responsibly in keeping their wage demands moderate during the last three years and urged them not to let up, setting off a new spiral of higher wages followed by higher costs.

Chretien could not say how soon consumers will notice a price drop resulting from the decrease in federal sales taxes. Consumers would have to rely on market forces to make sure the savings were passed along to them.

He said the government will monitor prices to make sure the sales tax drop is reflected on store shelves. But it has no intention of taking a hard line against offenders.

"If there is flagrant abuse, we can use publicity to make them look bad."

Chretien called the increase in the indexing provision on personal income tax exemptions to nine per cent a generous measure which will cost the government more than $1 billion, but critics were skeptical.

The nine-per-cent indexing rate on exemptions raises the basic personal exemption for a single person to $2,650 but critics said this is hardly a measure for which the government deserves much thanks.

Labor spokesmen and political critics said inflation indexing has been built into the exemption rate on income taxes since 1974.

Chalifoux tells court

Desmarais on snatch list

CLAUDE VALENCE
...other plans?

MONTREAL (CP) — Claude Valence, accused in the kidnapping of Sherbrooke credit union employee Charles Marion, once offered co-accused Rene Chalifoux $225,000 to kidnap Power Corp. chairman Paul Desmarais, a Quebec Superior Court trial was told Thursday.

In other testimony at the trial of Claude and Jeanne Valence, the court was told police searched the apartment of another accused and found a list with the names of businessmen Charles, Edgar and Allan Bronfman, as well as Desmarais.

Rene Chalifoux, testifying under protection of the court — meaning his testimony cannot be used against him — said in March, 1978, Valence showed him an old copy of the French-language edition of Maclean's magazine, which featured Desmarais.

"He (Valence) offered me $225,000 if I would go get the man on the magazine cover," Chalifoux said. "The man was Desmarais."

Valence, a 43-year-old land evaluator from Sherbrooke, 140 kilometres east of Montreal, and his wife Jeanne, 42, are charged with conspiracy, kidnapping, forcible detention, attempted extortion and extortion in connection with the Marion kidnapping.

Marion, loans manager at the Caisse Populaire de Sherbrooke Est, was kidnapped Aug. 6, 1977 and released 82 days later after a $50,000 ransom was paid by his family.

Chalifoux, 56, of the Montreal suburb of Longueuil, and Michel De Varenne, 36, of Sherbrooke also face charges, while Louise Beaubien, 26, of Sherbrooke has been charged with complicity after the fact and illegal possession of firearms.

Chalifoux, a heavy machine operator who told the court earlier he participated in the Marion kidnapping, said Valence opened an April, 1976, copy of Maclean's magazine to an article featuring the Power Corp. president.

Police witnesses said they found the list with the names of the Bronfmans and Desmarais during a search of De Varenne's apartment. In a later search of the Valence home they found the Maclean's magazine featuring Desmarais and a copy of a book written by Marion about his kidnap experience.

Quebec provincial police officer Roch Gaudreau, who took part in the search of the Valence home, said two newspapers — one dealing with the kidnapping of Italian statesman Aldo Moro and another dealing with the October, 1970, kidnapping of Quebec Labor Minister Pierre Laporte — were found under a mattress. Gaudreau said police found a revolver, an electronic dart gun and a knapsack containing a compass, rope, gloves and a whistle, in a closet.

Provincial police witnesses said they found a similar dart gun in De Varenne's apartment along with $5,392 in cash hidden in a chair, and that $120 of that money was linked with the ransom money paid for Marion's release.

MINISTERS STALL 3-CENT GAS HIKE

QUEBEC CITY (CP) — Consumers will have to wait until next month to find out whether the New Year will bring higher prices for gasoline and home-heating oil.

An unhappy federal Energy Minister Alastair Gillespie left a meeting with his provincial counterparts to skip a three-cent-a-gallon increase scheduled for early next year.

"I can tell you I got no help from the consuming provinces today," Gillespie said as the one-day meeting wound up.

Private talks are expected to start in early December between Ottawa and Alberta, which produces 85 per cent of the country's oil, on the controversial pricing proposal.

At issue in the talks is an agreement signed 18 months ago between the two governments, providing for a $1-a-barrel oil price increase every six months. But it also says an increase can be cancelled if it would put the Canadian price above the average U.S. level.

Gillespie says a January increase would put the price above U.S. levels. But even if it did not, it is time for consumers to get a break from steadily rising fuel prices.

La Presse poll: Levesque seen as Quebec leader

MONTREAL (CP) — A majority of French-speaking Quebecers believe Premier Rene Levesque, and not Prime Minister Trudeau, represents the true aspirations of Quebec, says a poll published in La Presse on Thursday.

The poll shows that only 28 per cent of non-francophone Quebecers feel the same.

Over-all, the results — third in a series of four appearing in the daily La Presse this week — indicate that francophones and non-francophones are sharply polarized.

The telephone poll of 856 people, conducted by the Centre de Recherches sur l'Opinion Publique between Oct. 18 and 27, shows that 49 per cent of the respondents feel Levesque better represents Quebec's aspirations, compared with 31 per cent for Trudeau.

Of the French-speaking respondents, 54 per cent gave Levesque the nod.

Nine per cent of the respondents felt neither of the leaders represented Quebec's aspirations, while the rest offered no opinion.

JAY PEAK SOLD

JAY, Vt. (JD) — Jay Peak ski area has been sold for an undisclosed sum to a group of Laurentians businessmen, The Record has learned. Jay officials were not available for comment as we went to press, but early reports said the buyers were those who now own and operate the St. Sauveur hills.

Budget's bottom line: Small savings

OTTAWA (CP) — If you're a single, hard-working, unemployment-insurance-premium-paying citizen who just bought a $3,000 motorcycle last week, too bad.

If you'd held off until the federal budget Thursday, the bike would have cost less.

That's because the government abolished a five-per-cent excise tax on motorcycles, a saving that honest dealers should pass on to their customers.

But don't feel too bad. At tax time next year, your basic personal tax exemption will increase by $20 to $2,650. And that employment expense deduction you could claim last year is higher this year, doubled to a maximum $500 from $250. So you'll pay less tax.

Not to mention the general reduction of 25 per cent in the federal sales tax — to nine per cent from 12 — for everything but tobacco and alcohol. That is a manufacturer-level tax so it won't necessarily be passed to you consumers although Finance Minister Chretien says he'll be watching closely — and suggests you do too.

To celebrate, you can buy a cup of coffee with the few pennies saved each week from reductions in unemployment insurance premium rates starting Jan. 1.

If you're a married doctor with two kids, who just bought a small aircraft for weekend kicks and incorporated with a group of colleagues to cash in on small business tax benefits, tough luck for you too.

That aircraft, or the new boat engine your neighbor bought, would be cheaper because the 10-per-cent excise tax was abolished. And next year, you'll have to pay regular individual income tax rates, higher than those you were paying in the business group you'd organized. The government has banned such groups.

But your friends in specific, legitimate small enterprises, ranging from manufacturing and resource development to farming and real estate, can still pay at the lower small business tax rate.

But because of your family, your total personal exemption at tax time will still increase, as it will for other families — rich and poor — to $5,970 from $5,480.

COST RISING

If you're one in the small group of Canadians who travel by air, your ticket costs will rise April 1 by a maximum $15 for travel in Canada and the United States, and up to $12 for international trips. Most such trips will cost the maximum, officials agree.

But that's no big deal if you're a mine owner. You'll be in the money because you can write off 100 per cent of your mining development costs, better than the 30 per cent writeoff you had last year. And the townships you build around your mines will be taxes less.

And it could mean some help to the unemployed, if you keep your promise to create jobs with the new tax bonuses.

If you're one of the 798,000 unemployed, keep your fingers crossed that the long list of business incentives contained in the budget will lead to new jobs.

If you're going to be unemployed in January, better save money now. Unemployment insurance benefits will be smaller in the new year.

"I have a balanced platform. I'm pro-life on abortion, and pro-death on capital punishment."

Alberta-Quebec gas deal seems imminent

QUEBEC (CP) — Alberta and Quebec agreed Wednesday to open talks aimed at doubling the use of western natural gas in the eastern province.

Don Getty, Alberta's energy minister, said a decision to work towards increasing sales of gas came during a private meeting with his Quebec counterpart, Guy Joron.

"It's more than just studies," Getty said as he and Joron emerged from talks with other provincial ministers. "We expect some recommendations to governments fast—within a month."

Getty said the Alberta government is willing to consider lower prices to boost sales of natural gas in new markets.

Oil companies in Alberta complain they have a growing surplus of the fuel and that new markets must be found, either in Canada or the United States.

The Quebec government would like to see natural gas sales in the province at least doubled, Joron said, adding "that is a conservative estimate and perhaps it can be tripled or quadrupled."

The private talks between the two provinces overshadowed a general meeting of the provincial energy ministers who were preparing for their meeting today with federal Energy Minister Alastair Gillespie.

Main issue at that meeting will be Ottawa's controversial proposal to skip a scheduled Jan. 1 increase of $1 a barrel in the price of oil. The increase would add about three cents to the price of a gallon of gasoline or home-heating oil.

Oil increases to be gradual, shiek says

PARIS (AP) — Saudi Oil Minister Sheikh Ahmed Zaki Yamani has told a French television audience future increases in oil prices should be gradual "so as not to disrupt the world economy."

The increases, he said Tuesday, "are in the long run in the interests of the consumers as they encourage the development of other energy sources."

In response, French Industry Minister Andre Giraud said Western countries have not recovered from the 1973-1974 price rises and that any future increase would be a serious blow to Western economies.

The ministers of the Organization of Petroleum Exporting Countries (OPEC) will meet in Abu Dhabi on Dec. 16 to decide on 1979 oil prices. A Kuwait newspaper has quoted unidentified Arab sources as saying some OPEC members already have agreed to a 10-per-cent increase, but that hard-line members such as Algeria, Iraq and Libya will try for more.

In July, OPEC Secretary-General Ali M. Jaidah said at an OPEC meeting in Geneva that there would be a "revision" in prices in 1979. OPEC decided in July to freeze the price until the December meeting.

The 13 members of OPEC produce more than half the world's oil.

Crude oil has sold for $12.70 U.S. a 42-gallon barrel since mid-1977.

MEMO

Close call

BATHURST, N.B. (CP) — For 2½ days this week, residents of this northeastern New Brunswick city went about their daily routine unaware that two miles away railway repair crews were wrestling with three derailed tank cars full of deadly ammonia gas.

The tankers, containing about 210 tons of ammonia gas, were among five Canadian National railway cars which left the tracks at Nepisiquit, about two miles south of this city of about 12,000 last Sunday.

Toxic chemical found

SARNIA, Ont. (CP) — Dow Chemical of Canada Ltd. said Wednesday a highly-toxic chemical previously thought to be man-made also is a byproduct of all fires, even cigarettes.

Research undertaken by the company's American branch, Dow Chemical Co., after a deadly substance was found in fish caught near its Midland, Mich., factory, has shown that the substance, TCDD, is produced by burning.

Negotiations break down

QUEBEC (CP) — Negotiations to end a bitter labor dispute which began in September, 1977, at the Commonwealth Plywood Ltd. plant in Ste. Therese, north of Montreal, are in limbo, a spokesman for Labor Minister Pierre Marc Johnson said Wednesday.

Talks between the minister, the Confederation of National Trade Unions (CNTU) and the company wore on until 4:30 a.m. EST, although there was no direct contact between the disputing parties.

Public prefers papers

MONTREAL (CP) — Newspapers are winning the advertising war with television and will never be supplanted by the tube, says newspaper magnate Jacques Francoeur.

Audience fragmentation by a multiplication of channels "is silently killing TV as a commercial vehicle," Francoeur told the Advertising and Sales Executives Club of Montreal on Wednesday.

Job program a failure

OTTAWA (CP) — The government plans to take a fresh crack at an employment tax credit program that has failed so badly so far that less than 9,000 of a projected 50,000 jobs have been created.

Employment department officials announced a new attempt at winning business support for the program as it was criticized by Conservative MPs at a Commons committee Wednesday.

Officials said they have organized a new advertising campaign for later this month to attract employers to the program. They have changed basic rules and replaced a discouraging, thick document for employers with a small, colorful pamphlet.

Time ripe for purchase

Economy: Consumers content

OTTAWA (CP) — Consumers are optimistic about the economy and feel this is a good time to make a major purchase, says the Conference Board in Canada.

In its most recent survey of consumer buying intentions, just released, the board found a high level of confidence among the buying public, with many expressing plans to buy new cars, furniture and major appliances and to renovate their homes.

The board releases its consumer buying survey every three months. Latest survey covers July 1 to Sept. 30.

The board is a private, nonprofit, independent research and analysis organization, supported by more than 700 members including business firms, government departments and agencies, unions, industry and trade associations, and others.

It said the level of consumer confidence during the latest three-month period dropped slightly from the previous quarter of the year, but remained strong.

Except for the exceptionally strong confidence level recorded in the second quarter of this year, the index stands at its highest level since 1974, board statistics show.

"Consumers felt secure both about their current financial position and their short-term financial outlook," the board said.

EXPRESS OPTIMISM

Its survey showed one major improvement in consumer attitudes compared with the previous quarterly results. More consumers expressed optimism about the economy's performance in the near future.

This news comes one day before Finance Minister Jean Chretien releases his budget, the third in his 14 months as finance minister.

The board said the strength of buying intentions may be explained partly by the temporary reduction in retail sales taxes in last spring's federal budget. The cuts expired in most provinces in October.

"It appears however that a genuine shift in consumer sentiment may be underway.

While consumer sentiment did not improve from the previous survey, consumers remained optimistic on a number of fronts and felt more confident than at this time last year," the board added.

GOLD BOOM BENEFITTING BC PRODUCERS

VANCOUVER (CP) — The soaring price of gold is putting a lustrous gleam in the eyes of those working in British Columbia's gold mining industry.

The price has been rising and many observers think it will continue to go higher as investors buy gold as a protective hedge against rising inflation.

"Gold will reach $300 an ounce by the end of 1979," said A. H. Jukes, president of Mosquito Creek Gold Mining Co., which is planning to open a new gold mine outside Wells, 450 kilometres north of here.

Jukes said recently that the steady rise in gold prices over the past few months has been a key factor in the company's decision to build a $1.2 million, 100-ton-a-day gold ore mill.

Jukes said the mine should be in operation by the end of this year. The ore will be shipped to Cominco Ltd.'s mill in Trail, B.C., until Mosquito's own milling operation is completed.

PRODUCTION SMALL

B.C. traditionally has been a comparatively small producer of gold. In 1977, the province produced 190,000 ounces valued at $31.3 million, compared with 170,000 ounces worth $21.7 million in 1976. Industry sources, however, say that if prices continue to climb, this figure could exceed $40 million this year.

Northair Mines Ltd. is planning to start a new gold mine about 60 kilometres north of Stewart, near the B.C.-Alaska border.

The company now is the province's largest gold mining operator with an operation at Brandywine, 70 kilometres north of here. It basically produces only gold, in contrast to other mines that produce gold ore as a by-product of copper mining.

"We've already begun road construction and other parts of the infrastructure and expect to start up the mine by October, 1979," said Don McLeod, Northair's president.

Carolyn Mines Ltd., which owns a gold mine near Hope, was conducting a feasibility study on mining gold after spending $3.5 million on the property during the past five years.

"The soaring price of gold will certainly allow us to mine the lower grades of ore as well as the higher grade when we go into production," said company president Orval Gillespie.

"We hope to go into gold production maybe in a year's time or so."

MORE JOBS

Carolyn plans to build a 1,000-ton-a-day mill. Depending on the degree of automation, the mine and mill will employ about 100 workers.

"This could increase to 200 when we go to a 2,000-ton-a-day mill, as we plan," Gillespie said, adding that if gold prices continue to increase, more small gold properties may move into production.

"But don't expect fast action," he said.

Lead exposure deadly to workers

OTTAWA (CP) — A labor spokesman says Canadian workers are still exposed to dangerous levels of lead, a poisonous metal which can cause severe illness or death.

While the United States government has announced strict regulations to protect workers against lead exposure, the hazard is not being dealt with in a serious and concentrated effort by governments here, says Victor Rabinovitch of the Canadian Labor Congress (CLC).

"In Canada, at least 8,000 workers are exposed to lead in high-risk industries including primary and secondary smelters, lead battery plants, pigment (paint) industries, in car manufacturing and printing plants," Rabinovitch said this week. He is secretary of the CLC's committee on occupational health and safety.

Federal and provincial health experts are studying the effects of lead in the human bloodstream for recommendations to the provinces on lead exposure in the work place, a health department spokesman said.

Reactions favorable to federal budget

Most business leaders from across Canada reacted favorably to Thursday's federal budget, although some said Finance Minister Jean Chretien could have done more to stimulate the economy.

"It seems to be a cautious and responsible budget," said Sid Dology, a senior economist with the Toronto Dominion Bank in Toronto.

But Dology said he was skeptical about Chretien's projection of four to 4½ per cent in real growth.

"My feeling is that the likely growth in the economy will be between 3½ and four per cent, particularly considering that the United States economy faces a risk of recession or at least considerably lower growth in 1979," he said.

One of the critics, M. A. Upham, president of the Ottawa-based Mining Association of Canada, said the measures on resource taxation do not do enough to stimulate new investment and create jobs in mining.

And Dennis McDermott, president of the Canadian Labor Congress, described the budget as a non-event which lacks political sex appeal and means a spring election is unlikely.

HOLDING ACTION

McDermott said the budget is a holding action until next year, when he predicted the government will draw up another budget containing pre-election goodies.

The government's mandate runs out in July. Also, McDermott said there is no guarantee the reduction of the federal manufacturing sales tax to nine per cent from 12 will be passed on to consumers.

In Calgary, J. E. Baugh, chairman of the Canadian Petroleum Association, said the provision on investment in plants and machinery would stimulate projects in Alberta's oil sands as well as gas and oil production in producing provinces.

He said the association was encouraged to hear Chretien recognize evidence indicating a growing gas surplus in Western Canada.

"We expect that the government will look favorably on exports of natural gas if the current National Energy Board hearings determine the existence of an exportable surplus," Baugh said.

Sam Hughes, executive director of the Canadian Chamber of Commerce, said the budget is sensible and responsible and Chretien had avoided going political.

"He could easily have been more stimulative but has chosen the more practical route," he said.

SAYS MASTERFUL JOB

Pat Johnston, research director of the Canadian Federation of Independent Business, described the budget as a "masterful job."

She said the federation is particularly happy with the 25-percent special research and development tax credit for small business.

William Small, president of the Housing and Urban Development Association of Canada, said the budget is "a lot of small things done in a small way, but nothing with a substantial impact."

He took issue with Chretien's statement that stimulus for the housing industry was not needed because there are too many houses in Canada now. The minister should have done something to reduce mortgage rates which would have encouraged the purchases of unsold houses on the market, Small said.

Erik Nilsson, an economist with the Canadian Manufacturers' Association, said his group was pleased that Chretien did not introduce a program of massive stimulation.

"The minister has taken some sound and responsible action by introducing some direct measures which are necessary if we are to build upon the strength of manufacturing," he said.

WAS DISAPPOINTED

Norman Ross, president of the Canadian Real Estate Association, said he was disappointed Chretien did not bring some relief to homeowners.

The association did not expect Chretien to deduct income tax from mortgage interest, as proposed by federal Conservative Leader Joe Clark, but an alternate idea was expected, Ross said.

The Canadian Importers Association was happy with the federal tax cut because it probably will mean Canadians will pay less for imported goods, foreign trade director Peter Dawes said.

H. J. M. Watson, comptroller with Steel Co. of Canada Ltd., said the steel industry will benefit from the sales tax cut, investment credits and unemployment insurance cuts.

"He (Chretien) has reduced our costs to some extent, thereby allowing us more money for investment purposes,"

Roy Bennett, president of Ford Motor Co. of Canada Ltd., said the sales-tax reduction will help increase vehicle sales and contribute to a growth in the economy.

WILL STIMULATE

Russell Harrison, chairman of Canadian Imperial Bank of Commerce, said the budget may be mildly stimulative.

But the government should have made bigger cuts in its own expenditures, he added.

"Substantial reductions in government spending would have provided room for more significant tax relief for the private sector, assisted the dollar and improved the federal deficit."

Alasdair McKichan, president of the Retail Council of Canada, agreed that the budget would be mildly stimulative. But he estimated that the three-percent reduction in the manufacturers sales tax would mean a drop in prices at the retail level of only 1.8 per cent.

"This is so small that it would hardly be noticed on small articles," he said. "But it would be of minor help on a big article—for example, a consumer would save $180 on a $10,000 car."

TAKE SOME TIME

McKichan said the sales tax cut does not apply to goods already in inventory so it would be some time before price cuts reach the consumer.

Gerry Devlin, executive director of the Canadian Life Insurance Association, said the budget was not clear on whether registered retirement savings plans (RRSP) will be affected by provisions to discontinue the practice of buying an annuity contract with borrowed money.

OLF in Townships: The problem is quantity

By ANNA FUDAKOWSKA
SHERBROOKE —

According to Raymond Gosselin, it's going to be quite some time before the Townships can be considered francized.

"The major problem we have encountered here is different than that which arose in Three Rivers; there it was a question of the quality of language while here it is a question of quantity," said the president of the Office de la langue française.

Gosselin, touring the province to explain the ins and outs of the provincial government's language legislation, spoke this week during a press conference held at the end of a day-long information session on Bill 101.

In cities like Three Rivers and in areas like the Saguenay, he said, the people are concerned with the quality of the language being passed on to them and their children in schools and businesses which are still riddled with anglicizations. But here in Sherbrooke, where there had been such a strong anglophone concentration in the past — the vestiges of which remain to date — it is a matter of quantity, involving large cash outlays in many areas before the region may be considered francized, Gosselin added.

"The two aspects which came out of today's workshops were that of the municipality and that of billposting," he said. Gosselin said mayors and representatives of municipalities had been used to conducting council meetings in English and the paperwork was also in English. The law requires all administrative work to be carried out in French on a municipal level. As a governmental agency, the municipality must communicate with other governments and organizations in French.

The placing of posters, placards and notices may be a financial problem for some municipalities, who will have to find the funds necessary to ensure these are posted in French.

Gosselin spoke of various lessons learned while on the tour, of which Sherbrooke is the fourth stop. The first phase involved the North Shore, Gaspé, Îles de la Madeleine; the second Rouyn-Noranda, Amos, Val d'Or, LG-2, Poste de la Baleine; the third included Jonquière, Alma and Three Rivers; then Sherbrooke and Granby while the fifth phase, preceding Quebec City, includes Temiskaming. Gosselin plans to be holding the final sessions in Quebec City on December 7 and 8.

"When we were with the Inuits, Indians and civil servants up at Poste de la Baleine, for example, we learned a very valuable lesson.

"They told us that they did not mind receiving academic lexicons in French but please not to make them count elephants in them but seals," he said.

He added they had gone there with a slide show but the equipment refused to function and although at first it was a disappointment, he later considered it a blessing when he recalled it contained photos of skyscrapers and busy streets.

"This year we will have visited what is considered as the 22 most important centres in Quebec. But I still come up against some revelations shocking to me because I simply would never have thought these possible," Gosselin said.

"Like the time I took a taxi in the Gaspé and the driver said to me 'I'm sorry, but I don't speak French' — it was a shock to me."

He added that two of the Magdalen Islands are entirely English-speaking and they must francize themselves administration-wise, which will cause enormous problems for them.

Companies which have more than one hundred employees must obtain a francization certificate by January, 1981, while those with 50 or more must do so by January, 1983. The whole process takes about three years and four months. In other words, it takes four months to complete a general information report or profile of an enterprise and 12 months for the completion of a linguistic analysis at the end of which the government decides if the company has attained the desirable degree of francization. If not, the company's francization committee must provide a program of francization with the government's approval and if approved, the program is applied for a period of two years; if the desirable degree of francization is accomplished then, the company receives a permanent certificate of francization, although the program is not necessarily ended.

Two-thirds of the companies' francization committees are made up of executives and one-third, employees. Each enterprise employing more than 100 people had to have a francization committee by November 30, 1977. The language charter was tabled in August, 1977, the Office de la langue française was created in November and, although it began to function immediately, its president, Raymond Gosselin, was chosen in December 1978 was to be the year of information on Bill 101.

Gosselin said many information sessions have been held on the legislation: 14 in Montreal and six in Toronto. Because Ontario is highly industrialized and its businessmen spend much time in Quebec, the OLF maintains an information bureau on the 20th floor of the Plaza Building which is permanently staffed by three people. 80 per cent of all requests at the bureau concern the language charter.

"We didn't quite have the right formula for the first session we held in Toronto because 800 people showed up for it — and that was definitely too much — and that was on January 31, 1978. "Our new formula became a day-long session like the one we have had here — a general session at first and a specific one in the afternoon which dissects the issue. From that emerges a reference tool such as the 21 documents we produced for the Canadian Manufacturers' Association in Toronto.

Gosselin said the first time the OLF held an information session in Toronto, the general reaction was, 'are you crazy?' at many of the aspects, while the second time, the atmosphere was much more relaxed, with the climate sane and quiet.

Wednesday's turnout at the New Wellington numbered about 200 and was considered by the organizers to be an excellent response. 600 invitations had been sent out, in many cases four per enterprise, and 200 responded. About 10 per cent used the instantaneous translation equipment provided.

Gosselin said no one is balking at the cost involved in francization because people had already passed that point, and while business in general has reacted very well, small ones have problems and may react more slowly.

The only caution encountered was that of the municipalities. Gosselin stated that border town reaction paralleled reactions of other border towns, such as those in the Outaouais region and maybe two or three enterprise towns on the North Shore. As regards place names, Judith Grenon of the Toponymie Commission said that only generic names (i.e. rue instead of street) would be changed and specific names (i.e. rue King) would remain. Municipalities asking for changes in specific names will be heard by the commission, which will then decide. The responsibility for names will be shared by the commission and the municipality so that a municipality seeking to change its name must contact the commission and, following discussion, the commission must approve. She stipulated that the commission is one for approval and not for francization.

In addition, Grenon said, municipalities must provide the commission with their official names as well as those of their streets. The commission will assess these and in cases where a name is spelled in three different ways or where there are two or three different names for one place (Lake Lovering - Lac Cristal), the commission will decide on the official name.

The commission will also offer services to municipalities in compiling geographic names in a volume containing over 75,000 official names.

Friday's column by Terry Scott

Police do care

Police officers, by tradition, are portrayed as stoic, hard-nosed guys but everyone knows that underneath that professional shell lies the compassion of a latter-day saint.

This week's bouquet for service above and beyond the call of duty goes out to Sgt. Alyre Threault of the Town of Brome Lake police force, for a heartwarming event which began a few weeks ago in the wee hours of the morning.

Patrolling with colleague Denis Brazeau near West Brome, Threault came upon a car with a burned-out headlight, the result, he learned, of the driver striking a small fawn.

An examination of the young buck showed a broken leg but the driver told police he had been advised to leave the fawn there and it would eventually manage to keep on going.

"We went over to check on the fawn and saw it hobbling on three legs," recounted Threault. "Then we tried the provincial game warden but there was no answer."

"I came down to a decision of picking him up and taking him home or killing him. So, with Denis' help I tied his legs and put him in the car. I have a small barn on my property and we took him there so I could put the bone back in place and set it in a cast."

GAME WARDEN APPROVES

The following day he advised the provincial game warden, who readily approved of Threault's nursing the tiny fawn back to health. Under provincial law, deer are not permitted to be retained as pets.

For the next two weeks the sergeant played physician, watching admiringly as his patient regained strength on a diet of apples, carrots, cabbage, and a variety of other raw vegetables.

"I guess everybody in the neighborhood came up to see him during those two weeks," laughed Threault. "He was doing just fine, walking around the pen like a dog on a leash."

Satisfied the fawn had sufficiently recovered from the accident, the police officer turned him over to Granby Zoo where the animal could gambol safely within the confines of a protective pen.

"I don't know how he's doing now," Threault confessed yesterday. "I really miss him, though. I feel kind of bad that I had to give him up."

DAMAGE IRREPARABLE

Alas, the kind-hearted sergeant won't receive the opportunity to renew acquaintances with his new-found friend.

A check with the zoo yesterday revealed that the fawn had to be destroyed shortly after its arrival because damage from the blow was irreparable.

"It's really a sad thing," said the resident veterinarian. "But infection had spread widely inside the leg and it would have cost $200 or more just for the small chance of saving it."

"Deer, unfortunately, aren't like human beings. They can't walk around on crutches. And besides, the fawn was simply too heavy to be able to recover from such a break. A dog might have recovered but not a deer."

The story, obviously, deserved a happier ending but there's solace for all of us in knowing that someone cared.

Prospects for the opening of Glen Mountain in time for the ski season continue to grow dimmer by the day.

Jean-Guy St-Georges, trustee of the bankrupt resort said last week that all bidders had underbid during the first call for tenders in September.

He revealed that a second call for tenders would be conducted this week and he expected that bids would be opened next Friday.

Earliest possible date for the emergence of a new owner would be the final week of November, and considering that inspections and legal formalities would occur after that, odds for a pre-Christmas opening, at least, are not high.

Now that Via Rail has taken over the CPR Farnham-Montreal run, insiders claim it's only a matter of time before commuters carrying the cheaper fare student cards are nailed in the pocketbook.

Currently hauling out $47 monthly to ride the rails, the fee would be about $160 monthly if, as many feel, Via decides to charge them full fare.

That's enough to discourage anyone from pursuing higher learning.

Social note dept.: New bromont mayor Pierre Jacob, along with Cowansville - Bromont kingpin Roland Desourdy among the group who turned up at the Queen Elizabeth Hotel to honor the 20 great Montrealers last week. Their interest, one would presume, centred upon mayor Jean Drapeau.

Townships talk

Housing project underway

FLEURIMONT (AF) — The latest of 123 new subsidized housing projects in Quebec is one for 13 subsidized housing units for retired people. The club d'Age d'Or Notre-Dame-de-Protection under president, Antonio Domingue, first pushed for the housing units in the spring of last year through a report supported by a petition. The Municipal Affairs Ministry, with prompting from St. Francois MNA deputy, Real Rancourt, recently approved the construction of 13 of the proposed 50 units. Rancourt said the remainder would follow after more pressure is exerted.

Theatrical co. needs musicians

COWANSVILLE (AF) — The Townships Theatrical Company de l'Est Inc. is in need of musicians — particularly violinists — for the musical section of its spring production of My Fair Lady, which is to be presented live at the Massey-Vanier High School auditorium. All interested may call C. Beaudoin at 372-6692 in Granby between the hours of 9 and 4 or 263-2215 in Cowansville after five o'clock and on weekends.

CLSC hold assembly

WINDSOR-RICHMOND (AF) — The CLSC verification and administration committees recently held an assembly during which the finances covering the period April 1 to September 9 of this year were adopted of a $308,000 budget covering a total of 12 months. At this meeting it was also resolved to hire several auxiliary nurses for supplemental home care to elderly people as well as a secretary for the Windsor branch. The CLSC also hopes to hire a second doctor soon for the Richmond branch. The locales of both branches of the CLSC have also been completely renovated and the CLSC has entered into agreements with various centres, such as:

- With the Centre hospitalier St. Vincent-de-Paul de Sherbrooke, for analysis of laboratory samples supplied by the CLSC.
- With the CHUS for the laundering of linen from the CLSC Richmond health clinic.
- With the Foyer de Richmond and the Wales Home to send their lab samples for transport into Sherbrooke.
- With the department of community health to avoid duplication of medical home care services to the same clients.

Allore search continues

LENNOXVILLE (ME) — The search continues for Theresa Allore, the Champlain Regional College student who has been missing for two weeks.

Students at the Lennoxville campus and the King's Hall, Compton residence could not recall the 19-year-old girl's plans for the early evening of Friday, November 3.

Allore was last seen leaving the Dewhurst Dining Hall on the Bishop's-Champlain campus, where King's Hall residents normally eat their meals. Apparently all that she said to dinner companions was the non-committal adieu, "See you later..." and nothing has been seen or heard from her since.

In a community situation such as at Bishop's-Champlain, a prolonged absence of an individual does not necessarily mean that someone is missing, says Champlain College Campus Director William Matson. "People are free to come and go as they please. We can't be expected to stop someone from walking away somewhere."

A year ago there was a case of a student who was last seen staggering out of a local pub. He wasn't seen until his body was located frozen in a field. What seemed incredible, says Matson, is that absolutely no one saw, or admitted to seeing, the missing student that night.

"The fact remains that we have no information on what happened to this girl — nothing concrete has come forth. If someone did see her, for some reason, that person has not come forward," Matson said.

RAFLE urges decision change

SHERBROOKE (AF) — To show their support for St. Francis MNA Real Rancourt's stand to continue the Relance Agricole et Forestière de l'Estrie (RAFLE), the Eastern Townships Parti Québécois recently sent a telegram to the Minister of Agriculture, Jean Garon, asking him to re-evaluate his decision so as to satisfy the project's promoters. Signed by the president of the regional executive council, Claude Boucher, and the president of the St. Francis County executive, Marc Dubreuil, the message demands that RAFLE Forestry and Cattle-fattening Projects be continued.

Conceived by ordinary citizens, the RAFLE project forms a foundation for the current government program backing private initiative and should be allowed to continue.

The Townships PQ goes on to state that concerning the profitability of the pilot project dealing with the teaching of cattle-fattening techniques, it is evident that any program involving the teaching process will have only medium and long-term results. They, thus find the short-term profitability aspect unacceptable.

They say the cattle-fattening courses will necessitate adjustments in the original project, but that too many people's time is involved to let the project drop as easily as proposed.

Backtalk

To those of you who called:
 Yes, this is the warmest November since 1934. Terrific. It must be lovely to live in a world where this is the most important issue in your daily grind.
 No, there is no such word as irregardless. We know that. But have you ever found yourself using a wrong word at nine a.m. when you've already written a few thousand and the phone won't stop ringing and everybody's shouting and all hell's breaking loose? It's just too bad it had to be at the top of front page.
 Yes, we use French terms in The Record. We're sorry if we offend our more dyed-in-the-wool, staunch English readers, but there happens to be in power a government which doesn't communicate in any language but French. We do our best to translate, but sometimes there just isn't an equivalent. We're trying to live with it; we suggest you do the same.
 To you, ma'am, who don't like all those stupid pictures... we're using as much Sweetsburg Court as we can, and we have no doubt Mr. McCaghey would be gladdened to hear your words of praise.
 No, the editor isn't a communist. He's not a fascist pig, either — just a poor slob who's trying to cope with putting out Quebec's second-largest English-language daily.
 ...and he's sure glad you're all reading the paper so closely.

Oh, woe

Oh, woe is us... the Union of Quebec Civil Servants is hiking its union dues temporarily. Reason? As the union itself puts it, the hike is to fill the union's coffers to finance 'means of pressure other than a general strike' in the almost certain event the government doesn't come through with a better contract offer.

There are tough times ahead. If we were you, we'd stock up on Christmas booze now.

JAMES DUFF

Answers?

Earlier this fall, a combined-forces anti-terrorist squad mounted an armed raid on a hilltop resort outside Katevale. There were never any charges laid in connection with the raid and we never heard much about why the police were up there. But we can piece it all together from information since obtained.

The group, In Struggle, is a Marxist-Leninist outfit which takes the line that the world is gradually falling under the sway of the transnationals and supernationals and the say of the worker in society's evolution is gradually being eroded by government, management, even the labor movement. It is not yet a group dedicated to violence but an RCMP source tells us the group has definite links with European groups of the same beliefs, and the Mounties and QPF were up there in the hopes of busting one or two key people they had been told might show.

We also understand the raid was a deliberate attempt to scare the group into thinking there's an informant in their midst, which is okay by us — it's all part of the spy vs. spy game.

We're not particularly sympathetic with what has come to be known as the Far Left. The movement is too full of ideology-sputting fools and lacking in workers dedicated to a new social order, which is perhaps all to the good.

But surely there should be some form of official explanation why the raid took place? It gives those who wouldn't care otherwise the impression the police have something to hide. And that attitude — as we all know — has led to bad news in the past.

Among many European police forces, there's a general policy of issuing statements on any action, even if it's only to tell us an investigation is in progress and there'll be nothing more forthcoming. This business of police runaround is frustrating and unnecessary and until we're told otherwise, we have the right to know.

Washington Merry-Go-Round

Nicaragua: Leftist swing inevitable?

by Jack Anderson and Les Whitten

WASHINGTON — Nicaraguan dictator Anastasio Somoza tells anyone who will listen that the Sandinista rebels are left-wing, Cuban-trained terrorists who would lead his country down the primrose path to communism.

Disguising his shaky position with bombast, the Big Banana of Central America has now begun castigating his democratic neighbors for giving shelter to the "Nicaraguan Sandino Communists."

Somoza figures, correctly, that the most important outside support he needs to maintain his dictatorship is that of the United States, which put his father in power 46 years ago and has kept the Somozas in control ever since with military and economic aid. But Somoza's ruthless tactics are proving an embarrassment to the Carter administration, and the State Department is quietly trying to get a "line" on the rebels, to determine their background and politics.

We sent reporter Bob Sherman to Central America for a first-hand look at the Sandinista National Liberation Front. He spent several days in a remote, secret guerrilla training camp, where he ate and slept with the rebels and watched them train. He went underground and met sources and contacts in the anti-Somoza movement at "safe houses" and in out-of-the-way restaurants, after hair-raising taxi rides designed to throw off the dictator's ubiquitous spies.

He came away with these conclusions: —The Sandinistas are, as they claim, a politico-military organization that cuts across all classes and ideologies. The cement that holds this unlikely structure together is the determination of all its components to get rid of Somoza and his straps.

—The guerrilla group has agreed to support the establishment of a democratic provisional government once Somoza is kicked out.

—The Sandinistas do not seek an official position for themselves in a provisional government. Instead, they have put their trust in the so-called "Group of 12," an interparty coalition of 12 prominent Nicaraguans, many of them longtime exiles from their native land. Risking arrest, they returned to Managua last year to lend their prestige to the anti-Somoza movement.

—So white-hot does the anti-Somoza flame burn in the Sandinista camp that the rebels recently withdrew their support from the Broad Opposition Front, a coalition of 15 political parties that was supposedly unwavering in its opposition to the dictator. What caused the Sandinistas' disenchantment with the coalition was its agreement during recent negotiations to put two Somoza loyalists on a proposed three-member junta that would set up a provisional government. The Group of 12, meanwhile, withdrew from the negotiations and sought refuge in the Mexican embassy.

—Left-wing influence on the Sandinistas is minimal. Of the three main political groups that make up the rebel camp, the only avowedly leftist group — the Proletariat — appears to have little or no influence among either the guerrillas or the population at large.

—The dominant political group in the Sandinista movement calls itself the "Third Party." It is pledged to establish a free, democratic government, and has so informed President Carter.

—The Sandinista training camps are located in remote areas near the Honduran and Costa Rican borders, not in Cuba, as Somoza suggests.

—There is no evidence that any communist country is supplying arms to the guerrillas. Their American- and European-made weapons are purchased from arms merchants.

Although even Somoza acknowledges he has something less than a majority of Nicaraguans behind him — more objective estimates put his support at about 10 per cent of the population — the guerrilla leaders now believe that nothing short of an all-out war will dislodge him. Negotiations will not do the trick, they feel.

For this reason, they are trying to convert their forces from an undisciplined guerrilla band into a more conventional army capable of fighting Somoza's National Guard on its own terms.

The Sandinistas believe that their biggest obstacle to victory is the United States. They do not believe the congressional ban on direct military support is effective; Somoza, they contend, is buying arms from nations like Israel, which obtain them originally from the United States.

They also feel the cutback on U.S. economic aid to Somoza is inadequate. They want the United States to impose an all-out blockade like that thrown up around Cuba in the early 1960s.

Thus far, rebel leaders and anti-Somoza businessmen agree, the left wing has had little influence in Nicaragua. But they warn that a swing to the left is inevitable if Somoza is not deposed soon. The longer he remains in power and milks the Nicaraguan economy for himself and his cronies, the wider the gap will become between the haves and the have-nots — a situation that can only encourage support for leftist solutions.

New beginning

Editor:

They say life begins at sixty-five, but my life began when I joined the Knowlton Senior Citizens Club, now known as The Golden Age Club.

We meet every Thursday afternoon at the Legion Hall, we play cards or do whatever we want. I call it "Home away from home", like one million other senior citizens do.

Someone asked me why I joined, and I said I joined because I was lonely and depressed, and at my age I thought the change would do me good. Now I look forward to our meetings because we really have a good time.

I believe in prayers and religion and I think a lot of senior citizens find valuable support if they believe in a merciful God. We have a right to grow old with dignity and grace.

Our president, Mr. Grayson Cousins, his wife and our secretary Harold Spencer work very hard to give us a nice afternoon.

I think we have around 150 members, so we meet new friends. I got to know a man and he told me he was on 20 pills a day, and I asked him if he had one wish, what would he wish? He stopped to think a minute then he said, 'I'd like all people from all parts of the world, all colors, all races, and all creeds, get together and say let's all shake hands and love one another; that's the way God would want it.'

I want to thank Mr. and Mrs. Cousins, Mr. Harold Spencer, and the kitchen staff for their support.

Thanks to Ayer's Cliff folk

Editor:

I would like to thank the people of Ayer's Cliff and surrounding district, for their help at the Ripplecove Inn fire of October 1st, 1978.

Special thanks are in order for the ladies who made coffee and sandwiches throughout that tragic night as well as the ladies who helped give mental and physical comfort to the fire stricken senior citizens.

These thanks are also extended to the Magog Fire department; and also the Quebec Police for a long and tedious job well done.

Last, but certainly not least, to my own firemen and the other men of the community who, although were not members, gave valuable help through a very long and tragic ordeal.

Can anyone help?

Editor:

I am doing genealogical research on my family and I am trying to find the descendants of my grandparents, whom I believe still live in your area.

My mother was Maud Florence Young, married to Percival Hart Gale, Maud had one sister named Nettie who married a Robert Hazle. My grandfather was John Young, born around 1848-1850 (approx.). He had, I believe, six brothers (all biblical names). He married an Ethel Walker, born around 1845-1850. Ethel had brothers and a sister by the name of Mary (married to Tom). Ethel was believed to come from a family of tall people.

Last known residence of John Ethel Walker was in Sherbrooke.

Will any descendants of Ethel and John Young, please write to the granddaughter, with any information they have. I will gladly send copies of the genealogical sheets in return when I have compiled them. Granddaughter is Myrna Gale Johnson, 1244 Larch Drive, Cranbrook, B.C. V1C 2K1.

Sincerely,
 Myrna Gale Johnson

Alberta's new Liberal: Just paying those dues

EDMONTON (CP) — Nick Taylor once qualified for government assistance to help pay medical care insurance premiums.

Then he made his fortune producing plastic cups.

Now, the 50-year-old Alberta Liberal party leader spends much of his time jetting to London and Madrid watching affairs of Lochiel Exploration Ltd., his world-wide firm that specializes in finding oil under oceans.

Why, with all that behind and before him, would the former Prairie farm boy choose to lead a fading Western political party?

"Different people try to pay rent for the space they occupy in this world in different ways," the businessman-turned-politician said in an interview.

"I feel that politics is where the action is if you're going to design a better world." Taylor has never held a seat in Alberta politics. No provincial Liberal candidates have won a riding since 1970 and the party last formed the official opposition in 1959.

Yet on almost every sitting day of the oil-rich province's legislature you can find Taylor dutifully in the Speaker's gallery, casting a critical eye at the members below.

OFFERS COMMENT

After major speeches he invariably hustles to the press gallery to offer comments and colorful, vindictive adjectives to describe what he says is the spectacle of a free-enterprise government gone wrong.

Which leads to another and more significant Nick Taylor puzzle.

With what observers call a suicidal political strategy, Taylor constantly criticizes the government for trying to depend too much on Alberta's limited, albeit tremendous, resource base.

"Lougheed's expansion plans are modelled on turn-of-the-century systems, the kind you found in the eastern United States and Europe."

Lougheed was elected in 1971 and again in 1975 on a platform that included promises to widen the province's industrial base, particularly with regard to petrochemicals—byproducts of natural gas and oil used to build plastics, fertilizers and other modern products.

Taylor says Lougheed is headed for economic disaster. The Liberal leader says it's impossible to develop sound manufacturing industries so far from the huge Eastern markets.

CRITICIZES PREMIER

Taylor adds that Lougheed knows provincial politics and local economics but is ignorant of national and international market places and their rules.

"The man didn't buy a bathing suit and he's out there trying to swim," Taylor says of the premier. "His whole economic dream is going backwards."

At a recent news conference, the Liberal leader pointed to fertilizer plants in Medicine Hat said to be facing a financial squeeze in the export market because of lower-priced products from other countries and predicted it was only the beginning of Alberta's plunge to economic despair.

Taylor unknowingly scheduled his news conference to coincide with the appearance of several news stories announcing the prosperity of an Edmonton fertilizer plant and which cited the generally healthy picture of the domestic fertilizer industry.

Taylor predicts that after oil and gas run out Alberta will have to develop another industry—the service sector which emphasizes technological rather than labor-intensive production.

Although it would be unpopular because that type of industry supplies fewer jobs to feed a growing population's employment demands, he says the government should be going that route now.

ATTRACT THE EDUCATED

To develop that type of economy the government must initiate programs that would attract highly-educated, affluent workers. Quality of education, arts and recreation services must all be improved.

Taylor left his father's farm and struck out for himself as a teen-ager, unsuccessfully at first. Although at one time he qualified to receive government assistance to help pay his medical care insurance, he was "too damn proud to take it."

In the 1960s he and a business partner established a plant to manufacture styrofoam cups in Alberta. The plant was later sold and the future Liberal leader entered the oil exploration industry.

Taylor seems to have resigned himself to his scarce chances for political popularity. "Anyone living in Alberta is going to have a hell of a time accepting what I say. The fact that I'm not premier shows that few people do."

CP's London bureau: Move evokes ghosts of past

EDITORS' NOTE: Following is a periodic report on some of the offbeat aspects of life in London as seen by a Canadian correspondent.

By BRUCE LEVETT
LONDON (CP) — Essentially, this is a ghost story.

After about 25 years doing business at the same old stand just off Fleet Street, The Canadian Press is moving its London bureau.

Among the remnants are three packets of stomach powders; a leather button from a trench coat; an unused eraser; a copy of a 1958 Time magazine with Teddy Roosevelt on the cover.

When, in this ballpoint age, did you last see a bottle of ink?

There is a cut-throat razor and a drawer full of round-peg plugs which did not fit today's square-peg receptacles.

A case of Italian paintbrushes; one shoelace—unused—four blocks of wood and one million paper clips.

There is a large, empty drawer—empty because it has no bottom. We have a lightbrown cardigan which may be valuable if there is ever a remake of Mrs. Miniver.

There are five busted portable typewriters, retired after service in Moscow, Peking, Paris, Brussels and from Lusaka to the gates of Damascus.

There is a necktie with horseshoes and riding-crops—oops, I think that's mine.

CYCLING GRAZE
One drawer contains a wellworn pair of cycling slippers, Twinkletoes size. The maps on the walls have far too much red in them.

There are stacks of notes for long-forgotten stories written by long-forgotten foreign correspondents. Beside them are copies of only half-believed expense accounts.

There are 25 years worth of British parliamentary companions. Beside them nestle 25 years of the Canadian Parliamentary Guide—

Pearson, Diefenbaker, Tommy Douglas . . .

There is a salmon-colored folder containing clippings concerning the election of a "young, vibrant" Pierre Elliott Trudeau.

There is a small envelope, about the size of a pay packet. Inside is a rock, outside, in a spidery, Spencerian hand, is written:

"From ground-levelled wall of Horka farm where the Lidice men were shot." There are pads of outdated expense slips marked in pounds, shillings and pence.

There are typewriter ribbons which fit no known typewriter, and two-eared headsets with speaking horns which could have come from the Viking helmet of Hagar the Horrible.

But we're not going far. We can still look up toward the Blind Lady of Justice crowning the dome of the Old Bailey.

The ghosts should have no trouble finding us.

Secrets Act hangs over RCMP probe

OTTAWA (CP) — The Official Secrets Act hangs over an inquiry into RCMP wrongdoing like a knife that may flash through the placid hearing room any moment.

Amid rumors this month that John Starnes, retired director-general of the RCMP security service, would tell all, lawyers joked that he would be spirited away before he could say anything.

In reality, little effort was apparent to get Starnes to say anything in public. Any significant testimony was probably given to the commissioners in secret.

Former solicitors-general Jean-Pierre Goyer and Warren Allmand, who take the witness stand this week, may thus find it difficult to defend themselves publicly against allegations by senior officers that they knew of RCMP wrongdoing.

The government may prevent publication of documents, or even testimony, that would strengthen their case, or that of the RCMP.

The three commissioners— Mr. Justice David C. McDonald of Alberta, the chairman, Guy Gilbert of Montreal and Donald Rickerd of Toronto—have been trying to get at the truth for nearly a year.

MOST AGENTS
But most of the witnesses have been RCMP security service agents who have spent their adult lives in the strange world of counter-espionage and counter-subversion.

They sometimes seem to come out of author George Orwell's world of doublespeak in which disinformation—lying to confuse the enemy—and plausible deniability—doing something, then denying it in a way people will accept—are everyday euphemisms.

In this world, the truth, the whole truth and nothing but the truth more often than not is an official secret to be guarded through deception.

Frustrations rife among small-town cops

SHEDIAC, N.B. (CP) — Veteran small-town policemen everywhere are feeling the same frustrations, brought on by rapid changes in police work, that led to the resignation of the police chief in this resort town of 5,000, says a New Brunswick police consultant.

"Policing has changed," says Ken Fitch, a 22-year veteran of the RCMP and a former employee of the New Brunswick justice department who now runs his own consulting service.

"It's just a whole new ball game." Chief Ronald Goguen, who continues to head the force here until a replacement can be found, agrees that the game has changed. However, after 20 years on the force, 11 as chief, he says he is not sure he can continue to play.

"The high degree of training and expertise emphasised in Ken Fitch's report are beyond my reach at this time," Goguen said in his letter of resignation given to town council Tuesday.

Fitch, who studied the Shediac force and recommended expansion and modernization, said small-town police work 20 years ago usually was done by men hired off the street.

"It involved, maybe, catching a young fellow taking a drink at the age of 16, giving him a boot in the ass and sending him home," Fitch said.

NEED TRAINING
"Now, because of the arrival of drugs and other social and economic problems . . . you have to have somebody who is trained in the management field."

Administration headaches have multiplied with police budgets in some communities now 15 times higher than 20 years ago, he said, and complex, often unenforceable, legislation requires more court work, especially when situations cannot be handled by an old-fashioned, well-aimed boot.

Documentary producer:

Dionne split now 'a mistake'

OTTAWA (CP) — The producer-director of a documentary film on the Dionne quintuplets says the tragedy of their broken family life might have been avoided if different government action had been taken in the 1930s.

Donald Brittain, who produced the film jointly for the CBC and the National Film Board, based on Pierre Berton's book, The Dionne Years, says it now seems a mistake to have separated the five girls from their family.

The film is to be shown on CBC-TV's English network Sunday night.

The Quints—Cecile, Emilie, Marie, Yvonne, and Annette—were made wards of the state by the Ontario government soon after their birth in 1934, to manage their affairs and save them from circus-like exploitation.

The children were taken from their parents and raised in a hospital-like nursery, put on public view like animals in a cage but otherwise isolated from childhood companionship or the world at large. Even their mother and father had to seek permission to visit them.

Brittain's film, and his views expressed in an interview here when the show was previewed for reporters and TV critics, make it clear that bringing the girls up in highly-artificial nonfamily circumstances was a mistake.

Brittain, who was a parliamentary press gallery correspondent before moving into the documentary drama film field, was six years old when the quintuplets were born, and remembers the times and circumstances.

Brittain has won national and international awards for his work, including an international Emmy for last year's Henry Ford's America, and the 1978 John Grierson Award for outstanding contribution to cinema in Canada.

He does not believe that "media hype" was to blame for the frenzied interest at the time in the quints, who probably had more publicity than any human being theretofore in history.

A Chicago circus promoter, interviewed in the show, describes how he planned to show plaster models of the prematurely-born infants if they themselves could not be brought to the windy city for display.

TO SPLIT PROCEEDS
An agreement was signed giving the promoters 70 per cent of the proceeds, Oliva

Dionne, the father, 23 per cent, and the Dionne parish priest seven per cent of the proceeds. The agreement was scuppered by Dr. Allan Roy Dafeo, the simple country doctor who delivered them and was their physician-guardian.

Brittain said it was important to make the film now to interview as many people as possible who were directly involved in the Dionne story, and who are fast aging. Old newsreels and other films, including some home-movie shots, are fast deteriorating.

While Brittain said he talked to Oliva Dionne about making the film, he does not include an interview with him. Dionne is still living near Callander, a few miles south of North Bay, and wants privacy.

Since exploitation caused much of the bitterness, heartache and tragedy in the Dionne family, Brittain said, he decided not to exploit them further by seeking interviews with the three remaining Quints, who are living quietly in St. Bruno, a suburb of Montreal.

Revue Extraordinaire at BU's: An evening of fun

By NELSON WYATT
LENOXVILLE — It may be hard to think of a train wreck and a battle as highlights of a fun evening, but such was the case at the Centennial Theatre last night.

In an atmosphere as cozy and friendly as your living room, the curtain went up on Show Extraordinaire: Songs and Stories of the Eastern Townships and for about 90 minutes, that's exactly what the audience got.

The show, part of the Bishop's-Champlain Cultural Series, was the collective creation of the students of the BU Drama department under the co-ordination of Michael Mawson, a former Bishop's professor now involved in theatre work in Toronto. Taking a collage of events ranging from the Battle of Eccles Hill to a quilting bee, the students staged a rapid-fire lighthearted look at local foibles and fancies, as well as area history.

The plot revolves around the efforts of the Duke of Lennox as he endeavors to find out where the town of Lennoxville is and why it was named after him because after all, as he thunders at the beginning of the play, "I didn't have any choice in the matter."

Guided by such Townships notables as Father of Confederation Alexander Galt (Rob Stein), local historian Katherine Day (Kristan Kafke), Megantic Outlaw Donald Morrison (Marshall Button), and pioneer missionary Thomas Chapman (John Dolan), Lennox runs across raiding Fenians, a wolf hunt and an unlikely couple of comic customs guards known as Tweedle-dum and Tweedledee, played by Shirley Jones and Sydney Ainsworth.

Geoffrey Towers, a veteran of BU drama productions, turned in a solid performance as General Lennox, alternating from the crusty, blustering personality that the former Governor-General usually displayed to expressions of outright confusion when dropped into such strange surroundings as the Stanstead wolf hunt. Likewise, solid performances were John Dolan's portrayal of Reverend Thomas Chapman, Rob Stein's vignette of a habitant whose grandfather rented out the back-room of his East Angus Hotel to smugglers, Francois Fournier's depiction of a Sherbrooke ragpicker and David Rittenhouse's Jordan, a heavenly figure who aids Lennox in his quest.

Other stars of the night were the technical crew, headed by Tom Schindler. Fiery explosions and mood-setting slides projected on the back wall of the stage all contributed to achieving just the right atmosphere for the play. A major technical trick also employed was the use of a laser light to convey Jordan's presence in the form of a pulsating blip on the stage back wall, when he spoke.

The production gives the feeling one is dropping in on old friends. It isn't structured in the traditional sense where set acts are played out; instead it is staged in one act with a steady stream of vignettes that seeks not only to produce local trivia but gives a sense of what the Townships and its people are like. The pace is brisk — a little too brisk at times, perhaps — but charged with enough energy to make the audience feel like participants rather than spectators. This is evident from the moment the audience begins tapping their feet to the music supplied by a collection of local musicians for the play and a woman near this reviewer nodding her head in agreement to the Farmer's Wife poem by Mrs. George Arkley and performed by Brenda Hartwell.

The drama students, who created the play from scratch a few months ago, researched, wrote and staged it in one of the shortest time spans ever accorded a play at BU. Their efforts were not in vain if the smiling faces and complimentary chatter after last night's show is any indication.

The "Show Extraordinaire" runs tonight and Saturday evening with Cultural Series passes being honored for tonight only. Ticket prices are $2.50 for students and $3.50 for the general public. They can be obtained at the Centennial Theatre box office or the Centre Cultural at the Université de Sherbrooke. Showtime is 8:30.

The Teddy Bear Pendant

in gold electroplate to honour Teddy's 75th anniversary

Limited edition, available only until the last day of 1978

There are lots of Teddy Bears in the world . . . and each of them is the only one for somebody. A friend to count on. Always loving, always there—always with an understanding smile. Someone you can always cuddle up to.

Maybe that's why it was so hard, when the time came, to put your Teddy away with the other "outgrown" toys.

Well, now you can be together again! Look at the little fellow at the top. You'd know him anywhere, wouldn't you? Loving and lovable as ever. And wearing well for a 75-year-old, too.

Because, believe it or not, it's now 75 years since the first fond owners clasped Teddy's paw for the very first time, since they first adoringly wrapped their arms around Teddy's middle (you could hardly call it a waist!). And that deserves a celebration. Teddy and you together . . . when you wear The Teddy Bear Pendant. A limited edition in gold electroplate. With his own chain to hang about on. He travels in a cozy flannel pouch, where he likes to take a quiet snooze every now and again.

And if you know a little girl who's still cuddling her Teddy threadbare, she'd love this little fellow, too. (But please note there's a limit of one per person.)

The Teddy Bear Pendant. To give someone special or wear yourself. The Teddy you need never say goodbye to.

40th anniversary

Mr. and Mrs. Clarence Gillander were honored at a party on Nov. 4, at the Rifle Club Hall, Lennoxville, Que. to celebrate their 40th wedding anniversary.

The event was organized by relatives and friends and it was not until shortly before the set date that Clarence and Edna were informed of the arrangements. As the family group greeted them at the door, Edna was presented with a corsage of red roses by Mrs. Lena Lewis, sister of the groom, to complement her becoming floor length green polyester gown, featuring a cape with miniature pleats. Clarence was presented with a white carnation boutonniere by his niece, Mrs. Alan Warcup.

The honored guests were escorted to the front of the hall to stand under a ruby colored "40", where a receiving line was formed to include the groom's two sisters, Lena and Marjorie and Mr. and Mrs. Charles Warcup. After congratulations, the bride and groom led off by dancing a waltz to the strains of the Casteau Orchestra and then it was: "On with the dance, let joy be unconfined".

The ruby-red guest book, a gift of Mrs. Marjorie McElreavy and her daughter, Lillian, the chief organizer of the party, was presided over by Mr. and Mrs. Archie Smith, assisted from time to time by others. The book contained over 200 signatures.

On behalf of all present, Mr. Roy Suito presented the honored couple with the gifts, donations of money and the guest book. Both Clarence and Edna graciously thanked all for the gifts and for coming or helping in any way to make the occasion such a pleasant and long-to-be-remembered occasion.

At midnight, lunch was served. Seated at the head table were the bride and groom, Mr. and Mrs. C. Warcup, Mrs. Marjorie McElreavy, Mrs. Lena Lewis, Mrs. May Kinghorn, aunt of the bride, and Mrs. Myrtle Oliver. The delicious wedding cake was made by Mrs. C. ### Aldershot chapter IODE meets SHERBROOKE — The regular monthly meeting of the Aldershot Chapter IODE was held at IODE House, Moore Street, on Tuesday, Oct. 24.

Prior to the meeting proper, a sherry and dinner party was held, at which members of the Aldershot and Sherbrooke Chapters bid farewell to Mrs. Nellie Loughheed, who is leaving to take up residence in London, Ont. Gifts were presented, and everyone wished Mrs. Loughheed well in her new surroundings. Mrs. Loughheed has served in the IODE for over 50 years and will be greatly missed in this community. A 50-year pin will be presented to her when it arrives from Toronto.

The regular meeting opened with the Prayer of the Order. The Regent thanked the members for their help in putting on the dinner.

The minutes of the previous meeting were read and approved.

Mrs. Wheeler and Mrs. Foreman reported having attended Stanstead Chapter's tea and sale in September.

The Education secretary will order 50 flag folders for distribution to Mrs. Foreman's class at Sherbrooke Elementary.

Welfare secretary Mrs. Wark reported that the Christmas basket appeal and distribution will not be carried on as in the past as Mrs. Loughheed did a great amount of the work and is leaving. However, Aldershot Chapter will fill special requests on their own and donations will be most welcome. Donors will still receive duplicate receipts for income tax purposes.

It was decided to hold our Christmas Buffet on Nov. 18 from 3:30-5:30 at the IODE House. The price will be $3.00 and we will serve ham, salads and squares. Members were asked to bring Christmas decorations and help decorate the evening before.

The next meeting will be on November 24 at the home of Mrs. Laura Page.

The meeting was adjourned at 10:00 p.m.

ANN LANDERS SAYS:

It's a standard greeting

Dear Ann:

I am European born and have travelled extensively. As you know, greetings vary from country to country. To my way of thinking, the most stupid of all is the American greeting, "How are you?" Actually, it is the most intimate question a person can ask, yet it is bandied about with great casualness.

The truth of the matter is that very few people are truly interested in how you are, therefore it is hypocritical to inquire. If you took the average person at his word and began to tell him about the state of your health (or your emotional well-being) he would be sorry he asked.

I have a splendid idea which I hope you will help implement through your widely read column. The very next person who greets me with the question, "How are you?" will get the truth. He will never ask again. I shall say, "I am appalled by a world that spends 400 billion dollars a year on weapons of destruction. I'm concerned about what the have-nots will one day do to the haves. I'm worried about man's inhumanity to man at every level of society. I am upset by the increase in alcoholism. I am scared to death by so-called 'research studies' that tell us nearly everything we eat, touch, wear or smell may give us cancer. I am also bored out of my mind by people who ask me how I am when the truth of the matter is, they don't give a damn."

Will you join me in this crusade?

The Realist

Dear Realist:

Sorry, you'll have to carry on without me. "How are you?" is a standard greeting which does not imply an offer to pay one's doctor bill.

Another such greeting is, "What do you know?" Some people could tell you all they know in six minutes, but who wants to listen?

There is a big difference between cold and cool. Ann Landers shows you how to play it cool without freezing people out in her booklet,

HEALTH

Lawrence E. Lamb, M.D.

Just one drink?

By Lawrence Lamb, M.D.

DEAR DR. LAMB — I read your column in which you had a letter from a woman warning about mixing alcohol and Librium. This is a good solid point; however, as a recovering alcoholic, I was shocked to read that she claimed to have been an alcoholic because she mixed it with Librium.

She now says she is no longer an alcoholic and drinks socially. This is very dangerous stuff for the suffering alcoholic trying to maintain sobriety.

Your writer, if in fact she is a true alcoholic, is using one of the million excuses that alcoholics use to justify their continued use of booze which has already brought her so much heartache.

It is my own experience, along with knowledgeable persons in alcoholic rehabilitation fields and programs, that there is no cure for alcoholism except total abstinence. Alcoholism is a progressive disease. It cannot get better by being a social drinker, it can only get worse.

I myself tried to be a social drinker for years. I also ended up in mental institutions, jails, hospitals and divorce courts. I have seen old drinking friends die terrible deaths trying to be social drinkers. We all accomplish these things without tranquilizers or drugs of any kind, just the most insidious drug of all was enough to do it — alcohol.

DEAR READER — Sometimes it is hard to interpret what people mean from what they tell you or what they write. As I recall the lady's letter, she was concerned about substituting Librium or tranquilizers for alcohol.

As far as the occasional use of alcohol in a person who has been an alcoholic, I would tend to agree with you that it is a very poor idea. Many experts also agree with you that it is virtually impossible for a real alcoholic to drink socially or have an occasional drink.

After a person has completely stopped, it's the idea that he can have just one drink this one time and get away with it that often gets him back to the old habit and the problems he experienced before.

While I agree with you, I might point out that there are other knowledgeable workers in the field who think that some former alcoholics can have an occasional drink without getting into trouble. I agree with you that this is dangerous, but I feel obligated to point out that you and I don't have complete agreement on our position.

It's entirely true that alcohol, all by itself, can cause an unending list of health problems. I am sending you The Health Letter number 1-4, Alcohol, Whiskey, Gin, Vodka, Rum, Wine and Beer. It will give you information on what alcohol does to the body and why. Other readers who want this issue can send 50 cents with a long, stamped, self-addressed envelope for it. Send your request to me in care of this newspaper, P.O. Box 1551, Radio City Station, New York, NY 10019.

Meanwhile, I'll go along with you in agreeing that the safest and wisest course for anyone who has ever been an alcoholic is to never, never drink any alcoholic beverage of any type again.

ASTRO-GRAPH

Bernice Bede Osol

November 20, 1978

Without expending too much energy, an abundance of good fortune will come your way this coming year. You'll have to guard against being so complacent that you let these grand chances pass you by.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 22) You'll make a favorable impression on those you deal with today if you're expansive and friendly, rather than aggressive. Don't come on strong. Like to find out more of what lies ahead for you? Send for your 1979 copy of Astro-Graph Letter by mailing 50 cents for each and a long, self-addressed, stamped envelope to Astro-Graph, P.O. Box 489, Radio City Station, N.Y. 10019. Be sure to specify birth sign.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23-Dec. 21) You've got more going for you today than you may realize. If you take things in stride and don't allow yourself to get uptight, good things can happen.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) Keep you friends out of your commercial affairs today. You'll fare better if you can separate your social life from that which is strictly business.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18) You may get angry if those you are attempting to help don't understand or appreciate what you're trying to do. No need to be irked. They'll soon get the picture.

PISCES (Feb. 20-March 20) This should be an extremely productive and rewarding day for you. Going in with the wrong attitude, however, will severely diminish your possibilities.

ARIES (March 21-April 19) Maintain control at all times today, because you have a tendency to overindulge in too much of the good things. Moderation is a must.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20) If you don't expect everyone else to have the deep compassion you feel for others, you'll be able to laugh it off today when a close pal does something unkind.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20) Your first ideas will be your best ones today. Heed any inspiration you get and don't let coworkers lead you astray.

CANCER (June 21-July 22) Material opportunity is all around you today. However, don't foolishly feel you have a free license to spend extravagantly or become wasteful.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) You're reasonably lucky today, but that does not include what you may be trying to do for others. Dame Fortune is granting favors only to you.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) Put that optimistic attitude you have today to practical use. Don't let it block out your common sense. All will go well if you remain level-headed.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 23) Chances are you'll be mingling with influential or prominent individuals today. Be yourself. You don't have to put on airs in order to get along with them.

Give East the ace of clubs and he will probably make five odd, but West plunks the ace on South's king and South has to lose two clubs and a heart.

A Louisiana reader wants to know what he bid in response to partner's opening one notrump.

We raise him to three. It may not make, but we want to try for this game rather than for a club game or part score.

By Oswald Jacoby and Alan Sontag

Can the Stayman convention be used in response to a two-notrump opening? Of course, it can't. Obviously, you are almost surely looking for game or slam, but you still want to be able to find those 4-4 major suits.

Three notrump really isn't a bad contract. It goes down because West holds the ace of clubs and the defense collects four hearts and a club.

Four spades is a far better contract. Of course, you can divide the East-West cards so that it won't make, but it is the sort of contract that you want to be in every time you get these cards.

The play is simple. South wins the heart, plays three rounds of trumps while stopping in dummy and leads a club toward his own hand.

St. Paul's Rest Home Activities

BURY — Again we are writing to tell you of the activities of the Home over the past year.

Your response last year was most encouraging and we would like to thank you. From donations received, a generator was purchased, providing full service to the Home during periods when there is an interruption of electrical power.

Further repairs were made to the Carriage House so that it was used on July 1st as a dining hall. Pancakes and sausages were served during the day this year and it was well supported, yielding a profit of $879.97. The day was not only a financial success but also enjoyable, thanks to the entertainment provided by Art James, Norman Davis and the members of the Orchestra, the Hootenany organized by Dave Donachie and his Group, and the Band from the Polyvalent Louis St. Laurent in East Angus.

The Flea Market was open on July 1st and on Saturday afternoons from July 29th to September 23rd. Sales amounted to $1,497.51. We would ask you to remember the Home when you have items that are no longer of service to you.

A Farmers' Market was held each Saturday afternoon in conjunction with the Flea Market. Tables were rented to persons with vegetables home baking or used items for sale. It proved popular for both the persons renting the tables and the public. This Market will be continued another year.

A successful Dance was held on September 9 with music by Art James, Norman Davis and their Orchestra. A profit of $587.20 was realized.

ASTRO-GRAPH

November 18, 1978

This coming year an older friend might figure in helping you bring into reality an extraordinary dream you've been harboring. It will be of a lasting and beneficial nature.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 22) Something you learned that you never dreamed you'd have any reason to use will surprisingly work well for you today.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23-Dec. 21) Someone is willing to do something for you she wouldn't do for others. It would prove awkward for her if anyone else were to learn of it.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) A friend will come up with the solution to a difficult problem you've been faced with. You can now make a quick decision regarding the matter.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 19) You'll be able to pick up the loose ends of a project left undone, due to something unusual that occurs today. The completed task greatly advances your interests.

PISCES (Feb. 20-March 20) If you make and follow certain guidelines you'll not only be able to keep a difficult promise, you'll have plenty of spare time for fun today.

ARIES (March 21-April 19) You'll have an opportunity to change something today that has been bugging you for a long time. You'll feel like a monkey is off of your back.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20) You do your best thinking today when you're under pressure. You'll be surprised at how quickly you come up with the answers.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20) Your realistic approach to things today is a far cry from yesterday. You're now able to figure out practical ways to benefit yourself.

CANCER (June 21-July 22) If you can forget about another stick by your guns, no matter how unusual your ways appear to others. Once they see the type of results you achieve, everyone will jump on your bandwagon.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) Someone may offer you something today that you've been wanting for your home. This person no longer needs it. You'll be able to put it to good use.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) A chance to reestablish a bond with one with whom you've had a disagreement will be presented to you today. A stronger friendship will result.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 23) A sudden opportunity to play that ace-in-the-hole you've been holding will be yours today, gone be by-gones.

giving you the advantage over your opponent.

Sunday, Nov. 19

November 19, 1978

Things you couldn't get a handle on will now fall into place nicely this coming year. You'll be able to use the coming months to make great strides toward realizing your ambitions.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 22) Sometimes you have to cast a little bread upon the waters in order to multiply your profit potential. Don't expect help from others if you're not first willing to give.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23-Dec. 21) There's a time and place for everything. If you wish to discuss a business matter, do so in private. Your commercial affairs will bore those not involved.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) Avoid debating sensitive subjects this evening with one whose views oppose yours. Heated words would result. In other areas, you'll get along fine.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 19) A domineering older person might try to take advantage of your good nature today. If you see her coming, get busy quick.

PISCES (Feb. 20-March 20) Use your philosophical outlook to douse the sparks that are about to set off a bonfire between two pals today. You'll know just what to say.

ARIES (March 21-April 19) Worrying about all the loose ends you have to tie up today may keep you from making a good schedule. Relax, there's someone who is going to help you.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20) You might find yourself in an extremely frustrating social situation today. You're lucky — a pal bails you out in the nick of time.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20) There is too much tension in the air to attempt discussing a serious matter with your mate today. Bury yourself in a project. Let the issue cool down.

CANCER (June 21-July 22) You'll have a fine time socially if you can forget about another stick by your guns, no matter how unusual your ways appear to others. Once they see the type of results you achieve, everyone will jump on your bandwagon.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) Your budget is strained, so put your thinking cap on to dream up things to do. Good times don't always have to cost a lot of money.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) You're kinder to outsiders and treat them with more consideration than you do your own family today. Remember, with one with whom you've had a disagreement will be presented to you today. A stronger friendship will result.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 23) An excellent chance will present itself today to bury the hatchet with someone. Don't nurse a senseless grudge, just let by-gones be by-gones.

This week I am pleased to be able to show you one of a set of three stamps issued by Ireland for Christmas 1978. With all the Irish-Canadians we have around us I would have thought that more would collect this country's stamps. Among the customers I have for these, there isn't a single Irishman. This is strange, don't you think? They do put out some very nice stamps without issuing every week, as some countries do. If you think you would like to start a collection of Irish stamps, please contact me; I have always a few extra sets in stock just in case someone decides to collect them and as we all know when one leaves it 'til later the price of a set goes just one way — up.

This past Sunday afternoon, I attended the St. Francis Collectors' Club, and although there were other events taking place, many turned out and I am sure they enjoyed themselves. The next meeting, on December 10 at 2 p.m. in the St. George's Church Hall in Lennoxville, will give you a demonstration on the use of the black light to bring out the phosphor "tagging" on the stamps of Canada. Many of you have read about the "tagging" of Canadian stamps and other countries for that matter, but do not really know what it is all about. Come along and see for yourself, just how this light picks it up. If you are interested in stamp collecting, turn up at one of your local clubs and get to know some nice people.

Oh, yes, this past week was again a very busy one. My wife and I attended the Army and Navy Veterans Banquet on Saturday night in Lennoxville. A great roast beef dinner was served, followed by a dance with a live orchestra, all for $3.50. Now I ask you in this day and age, how is it done? I will tell you: They have a very active Ladies' Auxiliary, who did all the work and didn't even have time to sit with their Veteran husbands. The place was packed and the speeches were kept short, which I am sure everyone appreciated.

Finally, some of the mail has arrived this past week. Many packets from overseas came in with stamps of the British Commonwealth and it was quite a task sorting those who have certain countries booked ahead. All I received are now either in the mail or ready to go, with one exception, the Isle of Man sent my stamp order, but on the new regular issues, they missed sending one sheet of the 50p value, therefore they all have to wait here 'til I hear back from them with the missing sheet. This is all part of stamp dealing, which you as a collector never sees.

Will someone help me out? I have asked for any of you who have extras of the current Commemoratives, such as the CAPEX 30c and $1.25 values nicely used to send them in, either for cash or a credit towards stamps you need that I may have. Remember, my stock contains stamps from Aden to Zanzibar.

Hints about Stamps

By M.M. Woodman

If any of you who read this column are thinking of something for Christmas for someone who collects coins or stamps, it is high time you let me know what you would like. The reason is our mails are not yet back to normal and suppliers do not always have what you want in stock. We, in turn, have to try another firm who might be able to come up with the item. It is not like it used to be; things are different. Even if you have the money to buy something, it is not always possible to get it. Am I right?

As for those plate block albums and pages, keep your hopes up. Maybe we'll be lucky and see them before Christmas. June is the month I first placed an order for some and I have added to that three times since then. About 19 people want one of these to get their plate blocks safely put away; I know I shall be happy to get mine out of envelopes and put back into binders again.

If you are thinking of selling any of your coins or stamps, please contact me and I will try to make you as fair an offer as possible. The market on good Canadian stamps was never better. How long things are going to keep going up, is anyone's guess. Would you believe that only four years ago, one Canadian stamp sold for $15 and there were not that many takers? Today a stamp in the same condition is now worth $125. Almost unbelievable, but true. There is one thing though; mint stamps seem to have the field today. It seems everyone wants a well centred, mint, never-hinged stamp. So much the better; you never can have anything too good. Of course, you will pay more for it, but in the end it will always be worth more.

Once again I will advise you on how to soak your stamps off paper. I know I have said this before, but several have asked me again. First, get a large dish, fill it with lukewarm water with a very slight amount of detergent added, then take all the stamps you want to soak, making sure none are on brown or colored paper, and put 50 or so in the dish. Leave them about 10 minutes, remove the stamps with a pair of stamp tongs and place them face side down on say, plain white paper towels. Don't use colored; I did this once and spoiled the lot. Let them dry for a few hours and you will be ready to sort them. If you find that you have 100 that you don't want, I am sure any dealer will take them in trade for a stamp or stamps that you need in your collection. The higher the value of the stamp, the more you will get. Of course, if they are the 25c, 30c or $1.25 commemoratives, you need not have a 100 of each in order to have a dealer take them off your hands. He is always ready to put these in his stock where collectors can find them.

In 1934, Canada brought out a Commemorative stamp with the seal of New Brunswick. This New Brunswick stamp is now selling for over $2 in used condition. For the next 10 days, I'm pleased to include one of these with your order, no matter how large or small, as long as you ask for it. This will be a gift from me, no strings attached, except that you order something you need from me. I can spare about 100 of these so there is not much chance of me running out before you get your copy.

Any questions you would like answered please let me know as it is hard talking to oneself. I wish I could help from time to time but I must know what you would like to know in order that I can answer or if I don't know, I could try to find the answer for you.

You can contact me at 849-4958 or write me at P.O. Box 83, Dixville, Que., J0B 1P0

GRACE C. WASSON of Boston, Mass., Mrs. Grace Channell Wasson, who passed away in Boston, Mass., November 6, 1978, had been active in the work of the Church of Christ, Scientist for more than 30 years.

In June, 1977, she was named First Reader of The Mother Church, The First Church of Christ, Scientist in Boston, Mass. She was the first woman to hold the principal post in the conduct of Sunday and Wednesday worship services at the Church. Mrs. Wasson's parents (Mr. and Mrs. Leonard Stewart Channell) introduced Christian Science to the Sherbrooke area of Quebec, Canada. Mr. Channell, in fact, started the Sherbrooke Daily Record and later served as President of the Canadian Press Association. In 1908, in Boston, he assisted other Christian Scientists who had been recruited to launch The Christian Science Monitor, the Church's respected newspaper.

Mrs. Wasson attended The Principia in St. Louis, Mo., was graduated from the University of Toronto Conservatory of Music, and later taught singing in Ontario. Her devotion to the public healing ministry of Christian Science began in 1946 when she became a Christian Science practitioner. In 1952 she became a teacher of Christian Science. Mrs. Wasson leaves her husband, Elgin M. Wasson, of St. Louis, Missouri; two children, Channell M. Wasson of Palo Alto, California, and Mrs. Thomas A. Graves, Jr. of Williamsburg, Virginia; and four grandchildren.

Construction accident kills man

FRELIGHTSBURG (JM) - Roland Turmel, 57, of Cowansville, died as the result of a construction accident here late Monday afternoon. Turmel, an explosives contractor, had been hired by the municipality to widen a portion of the Des Erables concession road. According to well-informed sources, the victim told his two assistants to seek cover prior to the blasting. The men found refuge in a wooded area approximately 100 yards from the blast site. Turmel, who was wearing his hard hat, then detonated the explosion. His companions said they returned to the scene, where they found Turmel's body 40 feet from the blast point under a slab of rock. The Cowansville detachment of the QPF were alerted and the body was taken to the BMP hospital where death was confirmed by Dr. Jean-Charles Gaudreau. Police sources said the cause of death was a massive skull fracture. Coroner Noel E. Monast said he will hold an inquest in the case December 13. Members of the Quebec Workmen's Compensation Commission are expected to assist police in the investigation to determine the cause of the fatal accident.

Attend the church of your choice this Sunday.

Immersion

"If the use of French is restricted to school, it will be made or broken in the maintenance or follow-up program in the last years of secondary schooling where the French-language teaching maintains parity with English control children," he explained.

Dr. Genessee said people traditionally argue the younger you are when you learn another language, the better you know it. He also said that due to muscle development young children learn to sound more like francophones, although older children learn faster and are more efficient.

If students are asked about immersion, they are enthusiastic, admitting that it was a lot of work, but saying that they would advise a younger brother or sister to go through it, he said. "Asked why it is good to learn French, most of the students say first, one has to learn it as one needs it for a job. In other words the first reason is utilitarian. The second is social, as the kid reveals his awareness of many francophones surrounding him, giving personal, cultural reasons and signifying his integration.

"This business of learning a second language should not stop at school," Dr. Genessee said. "The broadcast and newspaper media in the immersion child's life are unfortunately, for the most part, English. Neither does he seem to have a lot of extracurricular activities which promote the use of French. His context - in the home, say - does not support his school experience."

Dr. Genessee said the advantage of late immersion is the child is academically more agile than the early immersion child by the time he begins to study his second language. Although these students are more efficient, they receive no credit for extra French courses, and early immersion has a time-factor advantage since these children have more to build on. However, they are not taking advantage of their learning experience because everything around them - home, community, news media, is not in French.

Genessee felt the two-year immersion program will probably take over Grade 7 immersion, as concentration at this level has been deemed preferable. Asked whether children from the two immersion programs discussed were able to attend CEGEP in French, he replied he thinks they are but is not sure if the kids do.

He said French-language skills learned in schools are not necessarily skills needed for communication with francophone children. He is of the opinion that the follow-up years should consist of communication courses rather than grammar courses. When confronted with a suggestion for the elimination of the English control program, Dr. Genessee expressed his belief in the necessity of education consisting of a series of options since there will always be individuals who are not adept at learning another language.

He also said that the average child in the province of Quebec is still getting more exposure to English outside the school than to French, confirming the fact that on an international scale, today's society is permeated with the English influence.

He admitted that it is already evident regional immersion programs inherently possess serious administrative problems. One concerned parent expressed the sentiment that closure of anglophone schools is the deterrent against sending children to French schools.

Gus Haig's column

The times, they are a'changing, according to one Bob Dylan and this fact has not escaped the attention of Bishop's University basketball coach Garth Smith. With over 20 years of coaching the wars of the hardwood and 315 victories under his belt, Garth is more than qualified to expound on the evolution of the modern-day athlete.

"My coaching philosophies have changed since I started in 1958. Back then, discipline was more rigid and consequently more accepted. Today's kids are a new breed, much better coached. They are more demanding and they expect more of a say in coaching decisions, for example."

In recent seasons, Garth has enjoyed a great measure of success, but there have been lean years as well. He explains, "I don't subscribe to the recruiting methods of certain schools. I guess basketball in Canada got serious in the Maritimes in the early 60's. Some universities would bring up these tremendously talented one-year-wonders from the states who had, shall we say, dubious academic credentials."

"To this day many schools still recruit the same way."

"A new transfer rule, prohibiting a US player from playing immediately, after leaving the U.S. should achieve equal parity for smaller universities."

"At Bishop's, I like to think we have bona-fide student athletes, which is a valid reason why we will be hard-pressed to win a National Championship. It's a question of priorities."

Garth Smith is the dean of active Canadian coaches.

TOO NICE TO COACH?

It has been suggested by some that Garth is too good-natured to stand the rigors of coaching - a nice-guy-finish-last label.

"Yes I've heard that said before. I feel it depends. The personalities on the team dictate how I treat them. You'll never catch me spying in the bars on some of my players. Generally, they're responsible kids."

Certainly, after 500-odd games there have had to be countless highlights, and Garth offered one in particular. "Back in 1958 in a much bigger league than today, we had a small rookie team and we trounced a much bigger U of Ottawa who were in first place at the time but it's almost impossible to choose one single thrill or one outstanding ballplayer. Peter Munzar, Ron Thomas and Bruce Stevenson come to mind but there have been many others."

OPTIMISTIC THIS YEAR

About the prospects of this year's edition of the Gaiters, Smith is optimistic.

"It will be a dogfight this year. Both McGill and Concordia have improved themselves immensely. To get back to the Nats this year, we'll have to be disciplined."

He is also enthused over the invaluable aid of assistants Don Caldwell and Wayne Hussey.

"They both have helped our program a great deal. Hopefully, we complement each other well."

So, in his own unassuming way, Garth Smith has lent much dignity to the Bishop's University Athletic Department and one cannot help but wish him continued success for 78-79.

Beavers journey to Montreal for rematch

SHERBROOKE (BP) — Wednesday's triumph over Montreal Juniors at the Sports Palace is now a thing of the past as the two Quebec Major Junior clubs prepare to renew their rivalry this evening at the Maurice Richard Arena at 8 p.m.

The rematch might just reverse the upper hand held by Sherbrooke to Montreal's favor as the Juniors are tough, but the Beavers know what they have ahead of them and seem to be amply prepared.

"We pretty well know we're not going to score 10 goals against Montreal in their own arena but that doesn't mean we're not going to win," explained Sherbrooke captain Ken Johnston. "Montreal is always tough with the home advantage and they have a really good team. We're going to work hard, though, so we can get just two points behind Montreal instead of losing and being six behind. Right now we're in second place and we want to stay there.

"Our strategy is still to contain the 'Denis' line and we know we can do it if we're not too drained of energy. This will be our third game in four days and we're starting to feel the effects of it. I just hope it will be after the game," stated Johnston.

Indeed, containing the trio of Denis Savard, Denis Cyr and Denis Tremblay won't be as easy as it was in Sherbrooke. Every time a Beaver player gets close to one of them, the crowd will likely bring even the slightest infraction to the referee's attention.

"I hope my boys will be able to keep the very close-checking style that they did here in Sherbrooke and it surely won't be an easier time for us in Montreal," said Ghislain Delage before his club went through a light practice yesterday. "I'm sure (Montreal coach) Roger Bedard won't accept the players I send out against his team, and he will have the last choice."

"You can be sure (Montreal coach Roger) Bedard won't be sending out Savard when Jean-Marc Gaulin is on the ice," added the Sherbrooke coach, who has a contingency plan to stop the league's top scorer in any event. "It will be one of my right-wingers - Gaulin, Guy Perreault, Jimmy Mann or Andre Cote - who will work against Savard. I hope to use Gaulin again as much as possible but Bedard probably won't put him on the ice at the same time."

It was Perreault who also got a taste of chasing around the 17-year-old whiz scorer Wednesday at the Sports Palace and he isn't worried about the possibility of having to shadow Denis the centre a lot of the time tonight.

"I didn't have much trouble to follow him Wednesday," stated the 18-year-old Sherbrooke, "but on his home ice, he will want to make a big show for the home fans. I think we'll have to be careful about checking him because the crowd and the referee will probably be watching him a lot. He'll likely make more fake plays - like falling just when the stick is near his legs and things like that - so we'll have to watch about how we check him. No matter, we'll always have to stay close to him."

Maybe the Beavers are worrying more than they really should, though they already have a better record on the road than last year when they possessed some superstar scorers, but Delage had an answer for that easily. "The big difference this year on our road games is that the guys have big hearts and they work - they know how to work and they do it. The attitude is much better than last year when we had some big stars who would stop working after they got their two or three goals. My players are here to work hard for the whole team," he boasted.

The Beavers will likely be tired following the game in Montreal but they will have only one day to recuperate before they continue their 72-game QMJHL schedule on Sunday Hull Olympiques will supply the opposition Sunday at the Sports Palace, beginning at 7:30 p.m. Sherbrooke will be looking for their fifth consecutive home victory this season.

Jinxes end as Habs, Bruins, Flyers lose

Not since 1976 had Los Angeles Kings won a National Hockey League game from Montreal Canadiens in their own rink. Toronto Maple Leafs had been unable to win in Boston since 1974 and Chicago Black Hawks had been paying unprofitable visits to Philadelphia since 1973.

All three dry spells came to an end Thursday night.

The Kings, who hadn't beaten the Canadiens anywhere since Oct. 29, 1977, scored three times in the second period at Los Angeles and defeated Montreal 6-3. The Leafs bounced back from a 4-2 deficit to take a 6-4 decision at Boston and the Black Hawks were 4-3 winners at Philadelphia.

In other NHL games, Buffalo Sabres downed St. Louis Blues 6-2 and Pittsburgh Penguins defeated Vancouver Canucks 6-3.

The Kings, riding a four-game winning streak, took a

...two goals not enough

2-1 lead on Danny Grant's power-play goal late in the first period, stretched it to 5-1 in the second and survived a furious third-period onslaught by the Canadiens that produced Guy La-fleur's 10th and 11th goals of the season.

Montreal, unbeaten in eight previous starts, remained eight points ahead of Los Angeles, which moved into second place ahead of Detroit Red Wings in the Norris Division.

A makeshift fourth line of Bruce Boudreau, Pat Boutette and Ian Turnbull, normally a defenceman, made Toronto coach Roger Neilson look like a genius when Boutette and Boudreau scored within 14 seconds of each other in the third period to tie the score at 4-4.

Sittler's unassisted goal six minutes later put them ahead and Dave Maloney's second goal of the game into an empty net wrapped it up.

The victory left the Leafs one point behind the leading Bruins in the Adams Division although Boston has two games in hand.

Third-period goals by Jim Harrison and Reggie Kerr and outstanding goaltending by Mike Veisor, who faced 46 shots, gave the Black Hawks their victory at Philadelphia after they blew an early 2-0 lead.

It was a spectacular turnaround for Chicago after an 8-1 loss to New York Rangers at Madison Square Garden Wednesday night.

Two goals by Gil Perreault within 37 seconds in the first three minutes of the game dug the Blues into a hole at Buffalo and the Sabres ran the score to 4-0 before Garry Unger's ninth and 10th goals of the season brought St. Louis back within shouting distance.

At Vancouver, the Penguins won their first road game of the season and extended the Canucks' home-ice losing streak to five games with third-period goals by Peter Lee and Tom Bladon and an empty-net clincher by Randy Carlyle.

QMJHL roundup

Brian Fontaine scored three goals, including two in the third period, to lead Cornwall Royals to a 6-4 triumph over Laval Nationals in one of two Quebec Major Junior Hockey League games Thursday night.

Quebec Remparts and Verdun Black Hawks played to a 1-1 tie in the other contest.

Rod Willard added two goals for the Royals with the other by Bob Crawford. Gilles Hamel had three goals for the home-standing Nationals, while Alain Grenier hit the mark for one.

The Royals outshot the Nationals 58-30 before 1,939 fans. Claude Lafontaine scored for the Remparts in the second period against Verdun, but Michel Lanouette hit the mark for the Black Hawks at 12:53 of the final session to lift the home team into a tie.

The Remparts outshot the Black Hawks 37-33 before 1,190 fans.

In play tonight, Verdun will visit the Saguenéens in Chicoutimi, Trois-Rivières Draveurs travel to Quebec, Hull Olympiques play the Cataractes in Shawinigan and Sherbrooke Beavers take on the Juniors in Montreal.

CHAMPLAIN HOOPSTERS WIN

By MATTHEW ELDER
LENOXVILLE — Both men's and women's basketball teams came out victorious in CEGEP basketball action last night. The male Cougars outplayed College de Drummondville Voltigeurs 86-65, while their sister squad downed the Voltigeurs 67-55.

Enjoying a noticeable height advantage, the men's squad played a rather bland first half. Big Mike Drew was the exception, as he scored 28 points to finish with a game total of 46, as well as 18 rebounds.

"We weren't really into it in the first half," Drew said. "But we really came on strong after halftime, using our size advantage a lot more."

After a slim 44-35 lead at the half, Champlain pulled away to a 20-point cushion over the enthusiastic, but outplayed, Voltigeurs.

"I guess that shows you that you've got to take every team you play seriously, because we really came out flat at first," Coach Rod McKell commented. "Later in the game, we played some good basketball, and didn't lay back even when we built up that lead."

Rookie Frank Plourde played a strong game, netting 16 points and hauling down 16 rebounds in a good two-way performance. Lucas Gass added 13 points more, and 11 rebounds. Again, guard Glen Collie played a strong defensive

Scouting in action

by Rick Tracy

COWANSVILLE (TS) — Two members of the local Girl Guides' pack were honored Monday night for achieving their "cords", the second highest honor bestowed on a Guide.

The recipients - Allison Fogarty and Heather Sherrer, both 13, are among 19 girls in the Cowansville troop.

At the same gathering,

Norma Sherrer, Missisquoi district commissioner, was presented with a pin for her work in this capacity.

Mrs. Sherrer attributed the success of the local program to good leaders, public relations from guiding, and the support of the parents.

She noted that in 1979, the Girl Guide movement in town will be 40 years old.

Now here is a Scout in Action: The Chief Scout for Canada, the Honorable Jules Leger, has conferred upon David Dockrill the honour of a Certificate for Meritorious Conduct for his efforts during a fire at the Emile

Nelligan School. David, who is twelve years of age and a Scout at the 3rd Mackayville Group in Kaniatario District, was instrumental in putting out a fire in a classroom and directing other students out of the school and followed the fire drill regulations as laid down by that school. The Quebec Provincial Council would like to commend David Dockrill for his excellent work and also to congratulate him on receiving a Certificate for Meritorious conduct.

THE KARNIVAL'S COMING

Sherbrooke District Pack Scouts decided at a recent meeting that they would once again sponsor a district "Kub-Kar Carnival."

This second annual event will be held in early February, 1979, the exact date to be announced in early January, and will probably take place in the Sherbrooke Elementary School. Fifty contestants took part in the Carnival last winter and indications are that figure will double this year.

For those Cubs who are interested in taking part, either individually or with their pack, now is time to get started on the construction of the Kub Kars. Because of the track specifications, the Kars must be made from a kit that is available from the Scout Center in Dorval. It is up to each individual craftsman what form it finally takes - from the very simple block with wheels to the stream-lined and airfoiled piece of art.

This Kub Kar project will not only offer the Cub a chance at the District championship, but also passes the requirements for parts of Tawny Star and Toymaker Badge. To Cub parents, the Kub Kar kit would make an inexpensive Christmas present to an enthusiastic builder (only $0.95). Its catalogue number is 71-100 and can be ordered from the Scout Shop, 2001 Trans Canada Hwy, Dorval, Quebec.

More information about the Kub Kar Carnival will be coming out soon - watch for it!

Last year there was advertised a poster contest for all members of the organization both young and old. This was a world-wide contest entitled "World Environment Day."

Many applications were received, and we are again notifying everyone that this poster contest is again being offered for World Environment Day, 1979.

There are two categories - children up to 12 years of age and persons over 12 years of age. The theme for this year's poster is "only one future for our children - development without destruction." With this theme in mind, the posters must try to interrelate these two ideas of children representing the future and environment as an important part of the development process.

The text of the poster should be as short as possible while still transmitting very clearly the message of the theme. The poster's text must be written in only one of the official languages of the United Nations: Arabic, Chinese, English, French, Spanish or Russian.

The deadline for submission is November 30,

1978. All posters should be sent to the Environment Liaison Centre, P.O. Box 72461, Nairobi, Kenya. Further information is available by contacting the public relations services of the Boy Scouts of Canada at the scout center.

UCW Meeting

RICHMOND — The general meeting of the Richmond and Melbourne U.C.W. of Chalmers United Church was held in the church parlors on Wednesday, Nov. 1st, with 12 members present.

Mrs. Isobel Dykeman opened the meeting by welcoming the ladies on such a beautiful day, then asked the Melbourne Unit to conduct the devotionals. Mrs. Evelyn Wentworth opened with a reading followed by the hymn "All Hail the Power of Jesus Name". Mrs. W. Moreland read a scripture passage and Mrs. Wentworth an article on "Thankfulness", closing with a hymn and prayer.

The minutes of the last meeting were read and after a couple of minor changes, were accepted. Correspondence consisted of a note from Shawna Mallory thanking the ladies for the donation to her expenses to Summer Event, also a note of thanks for a sympathy card from Mr. and Mrs. Elmer Crack. A letter was also received from Mrs. Douglas McKenzie thanking the group for their farewell gift and social evening and also for all the help and kindness during their four years in the Richmond area.

The treasurer's report was read and adoption moved by Mrs. J. Barrington. Miss Jean Pepler stated the U.C.W. have a $1,000.00 Bond in safe-keeping which pays 5 1/2 per cent interest. She was asked to inquire if it would be advisable to sell it and purchase one with higher interest rate.

A lengthy discussion followed concerning the Manse and work that needed to be done there.

It was moved by Mrs. Vesta Armstrong and seconded by Mrs. Bernice Beattie that a donation of $1,000.00 be given to the Board of Stewards.

Mrs. W. Moreland reported 117 Wales Home and 41 local calls made and that Mrs. Beatrice Rodgers had sent out seven cards recently.

The Evening Unit will have Haste-notes and plates of the Trenholm Church and also Christmas baking at the Bazaar and are planning a pot-luck supper at their December meeting.

Mrs. Dykeman gave the Units the list of gifts for the Wales Home birthday party in December and asked to have them brought in to the next general meeting. She also asked each Unit to appoint a representative for the Nominating Committee. Mrs. Armstrong moved
