THE EVENING STAR.

VOL. V. NO 177 — MONTREAL WEDNESDAY. JULY 30. 1873 — PRICE ONE CENT.

MEDICAL.

TO THE AFFLICTED.—All those who are afflicted with loss of memory morbid sensitiveness, impoverished blood, indecision of character, depression of spirits, sense of shame, lack of confidence, palpitation of the heart, incapacity to attend to business, wasting away of brain force, constipation, imbecility, impotency, and are generally aware of the cause (I need not mention it), I will simply state that by my new mode of treatment the vital forces can be restored without the usual injurious drug and nostrum treatment, and that I have given much time and careful attention to this fearful source of the ills which afflict the human family and that my efforts have been crowned with great success. I am averse to advertising, but I don't see how I am to make my discovery known otherwise and yet I don't see why physicians have not a right to place new and useful medical discoveries before the public. Consultation hours from 8 to 11 a.m., and 7 to 10 p.m.

POETRY.

WHISPER SOFTLY, MOTHER'S DYING.

Whisper softly, mother's dying,
Soon she'll close her loving eyes,
Angels wait to bear her gently,
To the home beyond the skies;
Kiss her lips, for soon she'll leave us;
Mother clasp me to your breast,
As you did in days of childhood,
When you sang your child to rest.

Whisper softly, mother's dying,
Soon we'll miss the truest love,
And we'll miss the voice so loving,
When her spirit's flown above,
Mother, ask the shining angels,
Ask them if you cannot stay,
Who will care for us in sorrow?
When they've taken you away.

Whisper softly, mother's dying,
And she tells us not to weep,
She will watch o'er and protect us
Thro' the night when we're asleep;
Darling mother, guide our footsteps,
Be with us from day to day,
Hark! the angels now are calling—
Mother, dear, has passed away.

SWEET IN THE MOUTH.

SIN AND ITS WAGES.

A Few Short Sermons.

[N. Y. Tribune.]

There is something which all of us should have found out long ago, and which some of us are fated never to find out—the wisdom of a wise and well ordered life. Whether the sin we serve be squalid or splendid, the wages thereof are all the same, and are death either of soul, which is the worst, or of body, which may be of little consequence. The demi monde of Paris had preached to it a sharp sort of sermon, by which it profited after the old left-handed fashion. A Spanish woman who for twelve years or so has led a life which brought her a fine domicile and diamonds and equipage, was weak enough at last to

for whom his family had arranged a marriage, which the painted demoiselle in vain tried to break off. Her passion may have been no better and no purer than that of a tigress for her mate; but such as it was, it took possession of her body and of so much soul as she happened to possess. After dining with the gentleman at a restaurant, she drove home with him in a cab, storming, pleading, threatening all the way. From him she rushed into her splendid apartments filled with a thousand objects of exquisite elegance—books, pictures, statues, jewelry, plate, china, tapestry, furs, and, dearer than all to the female heart, not less than one hundred and seven dresses. Around her were the rich results of her brilliant bargains with folly, and below upon the pavement still stood her nobleman paying for the cab. In a moment, frenzied and despairing, she has rushed to the window and in another moment she is bleeding and palpitating and dead upon the sidewalk. It was a swift descent, yet who can tell how long it seemed to her? Who knows what she would not have given, not the perishable wealth which she left behind, but her own soul, for one more year of life in the shabbiest and most shameful of Parisian quarters? Was it a consolation even then to feel that she would be gossipped about and gabbled of as "Cette pauvre Pepita Sanchez?" Yet it was only a nine days' wonder.

All the world came to the auction of poor Pepita's goods and chattels—four or five hundred women, the wives of ministers and deputies, and everybody's wife, so that there was a treble line of barouches and broughams for two days blocking up all the avenues to the Rue Drouot. There, too, were novelists, statesmen, artists and officers, journalists and stock-brokers, joking, laughing, and looking. Poor Pepita was not there—she was somewhere else, of course. And where?

ONLY GONE HOME TO GET HER WAGES!

But Paris soon enough had another sensation. M. Touches had been living on intimate terms with "a lady of good family," having deserted his own wife and his children. Going home one night he found that the lady of good family had hanged herself. She was in a hurry, we suppose, to receive her wages. M. Touches must have lost his head, for instead of informing the police, he put the body in a great trunk and carried it to Neuilly, where he had hired a house for its reception. Strangely restless, he brought the lady back again to Paris. At last, at his wits' end, he went to the police and made a declaration of what had happened. Then he went to prison, where he also hanged himself. Finis!

ONE MORE LITTLE STORY,

and this time the scene is in London. It is Miss Dora Bryan, aged 21, who has been paid. She was the daughter of a well-to-do tradesman, and had been liberally educated, as so many dear daughters are by loving fathers, so that "she was mistress of the French, Italian, and German languages," and had for three years been governess in a private family. She got to the streets through the usual methods of shameful profligacy and her own miserable credulity. One morning she stood at the door of a stable in the Glengall-road, Peckham, and humbly asked the horse-keeper to give her some clean water to wash herself, as she was "miserable, wretched, and dirty, and had not a friend in the whole world." The groom gave her water and a towel, and, having cleaned her face and hands, she "thanked him and blessed him for his kindness," and went away. It was the poor child's baptism in "the article of death." That very morning a policeman found in the waters of the Grand Surrey Canal. She had been paid her wages.

HER DEAD BODY FLOATING

These are incidents which we have imported from far over the water, not because of such there is no home production, but for the sake of freshness and novelty. London newspapers, perhaps, may to-day be moralizing and drawing the most respectable deductions from the events in New York. In every element of painful and startling horror, our Goodrich tragedy, not yet ended, equalled these. It is a consolation to reflect that such lessons cannot be wholly wasted. It is not possible for us to know who or how many may profit by them, but we can understand that in the nature of things somebody must. Such griefs are all within the divine economy. It is not according to divine order that love and tears and despair should be wasted, or that any life should be a failure, without saving other lives from like insolvent catastrophe.

IRELAND.

Two daughters of Mr. O'Donnell, of Dunmore, Sligo, were drowned on the 28th ult., while bathing near their residence.

It is stated that Mr. de la Poer, one of the members for Waterford, is about to leave the House of Commons to enter a monastery.

Government has sent to the Belfast Town Council an account for £3,000, for the service of the extra police during the riots in August last.

There are more persons killed or injured by what are called "street accidents" in the city of Dublin than in any other community of its size as to which statistics are to be had.

The commission of a shocking murder was reported from Terragh, in the county Sligo. The victim was a man named Londom, and the murderess was his wife, who, some time ago, was an inmate of a lunatic asylum. She is in custody.

In the action for assault brought against Mr. Larkin, an inspector of schools, the jury returned a verdict for defendant on certain points reserved. If these points were decided for the plaintiff, they would give a verdict for him with £200 damages.

In the new act to amend the law relating to juries in Ireland, it is enacted that any person who cannot read and write the English language, or who is mentally afflicted, shall be absolutely freed from being returned or serving on any jury.

On the 16th ult., at the Wandsworth (England) Police Court, a Presbyterian minister, named R. A. Barson, was committed for trial on a charge of bigamy. He was lately married to a lady named Biss Boulton, of Portsea, although his wife, the daughter of Mr Kidd, J. P. for Armagh, was still alive, and when in prison for this offence he wrote to Miss Hamilton, also of Armagh, asking her to come and give false evidence in his behalf.

On the 8th ult., as five young men, from Portree were returning from a boating excursion to Connaught, the boat upset and three of their number were drowned. The boat was scarcely able to take more than three persons, and some of the young men standing up, it became overbalanced, and plunged its living freight into the angry waves. The two that were saved grappled the stem and stern, and with desperate tenacity retained their hold until relief came to hand.

Lately, while Mr. Robert Heard, J.P. of Pallistown-House, and his family were at worship at Kinsale, a neighboring farmer named Barry entered the house declaring himself the rightful owner of the house and estate. His giant form and fierce countenance so terrified the servants that they fled in dismay, leaving everything in charge of the intruder, who proceeded with all assumed authority to lock every door in the house. A posse of police was secured and the "claimant" ejected, and an order issued for his transfer to the Cork Lunatic Asylum.

The total number of emigrants from Ireland last year was 78,781, which is an excess of 6,777 over that of the preceding year. It was generally believed that the tide of emigration had slackened, but these figures, which are taken from the returns of the Registrar General, proved the reverse. What is most remarkable, is the fact that 34 732 of these emigrants went from a single province—Ulster—which offers abundant employment and high wages for labor. We suspect that these high wages lie at the root of the matter. Munster, which has more than a fourth of the population of Ireland, sent forth only 15,308 emigrants. These figures show that it is not want of employment which urges the people to emigrate.

The Orange deputation from Canada, Messrs. Boulton and McDonald, have been entertained in the Antient Concert Hall by the members of the society in Dublin. About 100 sat down to dinner, including some Grand Masters, Secretaries, and Chaplains from the Provinces. Mr. Thomas Caldbeck, J.P., presided. The company wore the scarves and badges of their Order. After the toasts of the Queen, the "glorious, pious, and immortal memory," and the health of "Our Brothers" had been given, the chairman proposed the health of the guests, who responded in enthusiastic terms. Mr. Boulton said the Orangemen of Canada looked to Ireland as the great mother of them all, and they felt justly proud of her and her history. He assured the "brothers" in Ireland that "it only required some enemy to threaten the Sovereign in order that it might be known what myriads of soldiers would start from the ranks of the society to defend her."

WORLD OVER.

In Denmark 450 out of every thousand of the population gain their living by agriculture, a very high proportion.

Two rooms in the Paris Louvre, containing a remarkable collection of Raphael's drawings, have just been opened to the public.

The Amico del Popolo announces that the Prince of Lampedusa has, from his observatory, Del Colli, rediscovered a comet first seen in 1675 at Greenwich.

The death from consumption, at Venice, is announced of Mr. Arnold Scheffer, a young painter of talent, son of M. Henry Scheffer, and nephew of M. Renan.

The French imports during the past year have suffered a decrease to the extent of 118 millions of francs; the exports, on the other hand, have increased 192 millions.

The French Government has instructed the Prefect of the occupied departments to interdict public rejoicings on the occasion of the evacuation of the territory by the German troops.

The death is announced of the Marquis de St. Simon, at Paris, aged 75. He was a descendant of the author of the celebrated "Memoires," and had inherited all his titles. He leaves two sons.

A report is brought by the Cape mail that a nugget of gold weighing five pounds has been found at Leydenberg; but later advices state that the prospects at the new goldfields are not brilliant.

A block of stone from Easter Island, Polynesia, has been deposited in the Jardin des Plantes, at Paris. It represents the head of an idol, rudely carved, and weighing 3,000 kilogrammes. The nose alone is a yard in length.

On the 3rd July Prince Poniatowski, who has recently become popular in England through his musical compositions, died suddenly at his residence in Ebury street, London. The Prince was a Senator of the French Empire. His age was 57.

In Akola, Central India, within the last two or three months, no fewer than six or eight children are ascertained to have been destroyed by wolves. These animals are getting so bold that, in daylight, and within sight of the mothers, they come and carry their infants away.

A new Archbishop of Lima has been consecrated, and on taking the oath of office he swore to hold the laws of the country superior to any orders proceeding from Rome. It is stated that this is the first time that a Peruvian prelate has disowned the right of the Pope to interfere in the internal affairs of the Republic.

A special telegram from Berlin announced that Colonel Romanog, who was attached to the Kasalinsk corps of the expeditionary forces against Khiva, had committed suicide. The deceased was one of the first engineers in the Russian army, and the author of many scientific works.

The Viennese journals have published an appeal to the Beethovenists to afford aid to the widow of Carl Beethoven, the nephew of the great composer. The widow, it seems, had a small allowance for a short time from the opera house at Vienna, but it was withdrawn when the new administrative arrangements were made.

The captain of the Murillo (the vessel which ran down the Northfleet) has been sentenced to pay a fine of 200,000 reis by the Custom House authorities at Lisbon for entering the Tagus on his last voyage from London, and suddenly leaving on the ground that he merely went for orders, whereas he had a cargo for the port.

The Germans are reported to have adopted a 158-pounder gun in a seige artillery. This is the largest gun ever attempted to be used in field operations. They have also been making some 700-pounder guns, throwing a projectile 100 pounds heavier than any of those now made by the British.

According to the Melbourne Age, a bushranger, who was killed some years ago in an attempt to escape arrest, is asserted by another bushranger, Power, who is now in prison, to have been no less notorious a person than Arthur Orton although he went by the name of Cosgrove.

M. Vuillaume, the celebrated violin maker, has presented to the museum of the Conservatoire de Musique, at Paris, several Oriental instruments of violins by Stradivarius, and a rebeck which he has himself executed from a drawing in a manuscript of the 13th century.

A difficulty has arisen over the Mass that Verdi has undertaken to compose in memory of the late Manzoni. The clerical authorities at Milan decline to permit women to sing in it, and the maestro, we are told, is not disposed to cut down his ideas to the standard of intelligence and ability possessed by boy choristers.

It is stated that Prince Adalbert of Prussia bequeathed the whole of his private fortune, including a handsome palace, situated at the Potsdam Gate, in Berlin, to his morganatic wife, the Baroness von Barnim, nee Elssler, who has offered to sell the same to the Government, as her intention is to reside in Austria.

A German inspector of passenger cars states that a single stem of hemp, with the leaves and blossoms, mixed with the stuffing of a car seat, will protect it from moths for years, and that hemp for this purpose should be gathered just when in blossom, dried rapidly in the shade, and kept in covered wooden vessels in a dry place.

A Samurai, of Hokoyama Ken, says a Japan paper, digging in the hill-side, came upon an ancient vase, which crumbled beneath the touch. It contained coins to a considerable amount, and a brick with the name of Minamoto Morenori engraved upon it. He also found a stone box with Riyo Kobangs, each valued at ten dollars or thereabouts, in all 945 golrios, 218 boss, all very ancient; with 73 bundles of silver balls, on which was engraved Kioho (epoch) 12 month Ikeda.

The Turkish Government has reverted to its original resolution of instituting an enquiry into all the circumstances connected with the recent riots in the church of Bethlehem, and His Excellency Zeiver Bey will leave shortly for Palestine as special commissioner of the Porte for this purpose. Zeiver Bey is head of the department in the Ottoman Ministry for Foreign Affairs, which takes cognizance of the religious affair of the non Mussulman communities in Turkey.

MISCELLANEOUS.

Five foolish young Belgians laid a wager that they would remain awake continuously for seven days. They kept up all manner of exciting exercises, and drank large quantities of coffee, and one of them won the bet, though with the loss of twenty-five pounds in weight. Two fell asleep after 130 hours, one was seized with inflammation of the lungs, and had to give in to save his life, and the other fell asleep on horseback, and then fell off and broke his arm.

The celebrated "cow tree" of South America has lately been imported into Europe, in the hope that the young plants may be acclimatized. This wonderful tree yields a good quality of milk. It flows freely from incisions made in the trunk, and is commonly used as an article of food by the inhabitants of districts where the tree is abundant. The tree grows upwards of a hundred feet high, with a smooth trunk six to eight feet in diameter, and without branches for the first sixty or seventy feet of its height.

We read of this curious optical atmospheric illusion being frequently seen by travellers in the East, but it is very rarely witnessed in England. A few evenings back, a most extraordinary mirage was seen from Kirkham and the vicinity. It was near sunset, and the northwestern sky was of a rosy hue, when spectators, looking towards that point, saw distinctly against the sky the fac simile of the town of Lancaster, which is in that direction, but far out of range of the natural sight from that point. All the houses stood prominently out, and the castle and other buildings were distinctly seen; in fact, the resemblance was exact. This curious illusion was seen by numbers of people, and excited the greatest interest.

In 1872 there were 2,278 petitions for the separation of married couples in France, of which 2,171 were presented by wives; 138 had for cause adultery on the part of the wife, and 73 on the part of the husband; 27 applied for separation after less than one year of marriage; 430 after four years; 180 after 10 years; 863 between 10 and 20 years; 5 after the silver epoch, and there were 59 that could not state how long they were united in misery. Of the total, 844 of the marriages had children. Fundholders and professional people figure to the number of 509, praying for relief; merchants, 411; farmers, &c., 499; artisans, 999; servants, 68. Such is the statistical picture of French social life for a twelvemonth, and remarkable by the lowness of the figures.

The island of Santa Cruz is drying up. This gem of the West Indian Seas was a garden of freshness, beauty and fertility twenty years ago; it was covered with woods, trees abounded everywhere, and rains were profuse and frequent. One fourth of the island has now become an utter desert. Forests and trees have been cut away, rainfalls have ceased, and the process of dessication beginning at one end of the island has advanced gradually and irresistibly upon the land, till for seven miles it has become dry and barren as the sea shore; houses and plantations have been abandoned, and the advance of desolation is watched by the people, wholly unable to prevent, but knowing almost to a certainty the time when their own habitations, their gardens and fresh fields will be part of the waste. Indeed, the whole island seems doomed to become a desert. This sad result is believed to be owing entirely to the destruction of the trees upon the island some years ago.—[Scientific American.

One of the saddest cases of death under terrible circumstances, says the Fort Wayne, Ind., Gazette of the 11th July, we have lately encountered was brought to our notice yesterday evening. Mr. R. P. Mink, of Kalamazoo, Michigan, Road-master on the Grand Rapids and Indiana Railway, died under very remarkable circumstances. Last Monday, while giving instructions to the groom in attendance on the horses, he suddenly dropped, and, as was supposed, expired. The weather being warm the body was packed in ice and brought down to this city en route for Valparaiso, Ind., for interment. Arriving at the destination, where full preparations had been made for the funeral, the friends and relatives were thunderstruck to find evident signs of life about the body. Restoratives were applied, but without effect, and R. P. Mink is now a dead man, but it is past question that he was consigned to his icy tomb while life was still abundant, as the fact of his having so well withstood the confinement attests.

FAMILY MATTERS.

Asparagus for the Lungs.—The frequent use of asparagus is strongly recommended in affections of the chest and lungs.

Liniment for Sprains, &c.—One pint of spirits of alcohol, one drachm of camphor two drachms of opium, and two drachms of spirits of turpentine.

Uses of Ice.—In health no one ought to drink ice-water, for it has occasioned fatal inflammations of the stomach and bowels, sometimes sudden death. To drink any icecold liquid at meals retards digestion, chills the body, and has been known to induce the most dangerous internal congestions. If ice is put in milk or on butter, and they are not used at the time, they lose their freshness, and become sour and stale; for the essential nature of both is changed when once frozen and then thawed.

The Tomato.—Dr. Bennett ascribes to the tomato the following important medical properties: 1st. That the tomato is one of the most powerful aperients of the liver and other organs; where calomel is indicated, it is probably one of the most effective, and the least harmful remedial agents known to the profession. 2nd. That a chemical extract may be obtained from it that will supersede the use of calomel in the cure of disease. 3rd. That he has successfully treated diarrhœa with this article alone. 4th. That when used as an article of diet it is almost sovereign for dyspepsia and indigestion. 5th. That it should be constantly used for daily food; either cooked, raw, or in the form of catsup, it is the most healthy article now in use.

What is Needed.—What we need for our dwellings is more ventilation and less heat; we need more outdoor exercise, more sunlight, more manly, athletic, and rude sports; we need more amusements, more holidays, more frolic and noisy, boisterous mirth. Our infants need better nourishment than colourless mothers can ever furnish; purer milk than distilleries can manufacture; our children need more romping and less study. Our old men more quiet and relaxation from the labours of life. All men, both young and old, need less medicine and more good counsel. Our cities need cleaning, paving and draining. The cholera, and many other fearful epidemics, are called the opprobia of our art, and our fellow citizens upbraid us with the feebleness and inefficiency of our resources in staying their fatal progress. When will they learn that although we do not fail to curse these maladies, the more precious secret of prevention is in our possession, and has been for many years.

Sealing Wax for Fruit Cans.—Do not buy any sealing wax for your bottles of fruit, or fruit juice called wine, or anything else you want to seal up for future use. Make it yourself. Beeswax, ½ oz.; English vermillion, 1½ oz.; gum shellac, 2½ oz.; resin, 8 oz. Take some cheap iron vessel that you can always keep for the purpose, and put in the resin and melt it, and stir in the vermillion. Then add the shellac slowly, and stir that in, and afterwards the beeswax. When wanted for use at any other time, set it upon a slow fire and melt it so you can dip bottlenozzles in. Recollect the vermillion is only put in for the look of the thing, and if you want to use it for any purpose where color is no object, as for instance sealing over wounds upon trees, you may leave the color out. For any purpose, such as an application to trees, where you want it tougher than the above preparation will make it, add a little more beeswax, and leave out the vermilion. If the vermilion is left out in the above, the wax will be all the better for it, as this is a sulphur of mercury, and is merely used for coloring purposes.

GEMS OF THOUGHT.

Alexander being asked how he conquered the world, replied, "By not delaying."

True politeness is perfect ease and freedom. It simply consists in treating others just as you love to be treated yourself.

The most important principle, perhaps, in life, is to have a pursuit: a useful one, if possible—and, at all events, an innocent one.

There are many hours in every man's life which are not spent in anything important; but it is necessary that they should not be passed idly.

It is not until the flower has fallen off that the fruit begins to ripen. So in life, it is when the romance is past that the practical usefulness begins.

Prayer is very profitable; at night it is very profitable; in the morning it is our armor. Prayer should be the key of the day, and the lock of the night.

The most firm and stable earthly structures are but temporary, and the most enduring earthly possessions come to an end. No one, therefore, should look to them as his chief good, or trust in them for happiness.

No man is so happy as a real Christian, none so rational, so virtuous, so amiable. How little vanity does he feel, though he believes himself united with God! How far is he from abjectness, when he ranks himself with the worms of the earth!

Many men pass 50 or 60 years in the world, and when they are just going out of it they bethink themselves, and step back, as it were, to do something which they had all the while forgotten, to wit, the main business for which they came into the world—to repent of their sins, and reform their lives, and make their peace with God, and in time prepare for eternity.

Mahomet's definition of charity embraced the wide circles of kindness. "Every good act," he would say, "is charity. Your smiling in your brother's face is charity; an exhortation to your fellow-man to virtuous deeds is equal to alms giving; your putting a wanderer in the right road is charity; your removing stones, and thorns, and other obstructions from the road is charity; your giving water to the thirsty is charity. A man's true wealth hereafter is the good he does in this world to his fellow-man. When he dies, people will say, 'What property has he left behind him?' But the angels who examine him in the grave will ask, 'What good deeds hast thou sent before thee?'"

GORED TO DEATH.

SCRANTON, Pa., July 24.

A shocking, tragical occurrence took place at the farm of Mr. Sidney Oram, late President of the Council of this city, to-day, by which an old man named William Hill lost his life. Hill took a special pride in tending to a bull kept by Mr. Oram in a barn not far from his residence.

At about five o'clock this morning Hill went into the barn to feed the bull. Later on Mr. Oram got up and went into the farm to look after his stock. On his return he was met by Mrs. Oram in a terrible state of excitement, who exclaimed, "Oh, Sidney, poor Willie!" She had heard an unusual noise coming from the direction of the barn, and, as if by presentiment, supposed some one had been killed by the mad bull.

Mr. Oram and his wife proceeded to the barn, and there at the door they found poor old Hill, in a kneeling posture, his hands resting on the ground and his head bent between them. His hat was off and his long gray hair was tossed over his forehead and clotted in the blood oozing from a great scar on the right temple, produced, it is supposed, by being tossed against some jagged corner or nail in the framework of the barn. What is most strange about the matter is that the barn door was adjusted and fastened. It is supposed that the old man on receiving the fatal wounds retreated from his powerful assailant and before he became enfeebled from hemorrhage succeeded in securing the door and then fell forward into the position in which he was found.

Upon examination it was found that the bull had struck him on the right side, completely smashing three ribs and tearing out a large piece of one, together with severing the lungs in a shocking manner, and ripping his victim clear across from the right to the left breast. A doctor was called in, but it was too late, Hill was dead.

Mr. Hill was seventy years of age and lived with his wife in a miserable basement on Lackawanna avenue, in Hyde Park, of this city. Owing to the frequent potations of his wife it is said that the old couple lived very unhappily together. Hill is spoken of as a sober man, but somewhat self-willed and daring for one of his years. He took a special pride in being the only one who could attend to the bull, little dreaming of his untimely fate. The bull is a thoroughbred Devon, of a blood-red color and is three years of age.

THE steam fire-engine was disabled while proceeding to the fire on Monday night, and there is no doubt that the City Passenger Railway is responsible for the accident. It is equally safe to assume that owing to the break-down and consequent non-appearance of the machine at the fire, the damage done was much greater than otherwise would have been the case. There have occurred periods when the city might almost be said to be dependent upon the steam-engine in case of a fire, and such periods may occur again. What if at such a time a City Passenger switch breaks an axle? When will the citizens demand the removal of the present old-fogy rail, with its abominable switch obstructions, and the substitution of the modern flush tramways? If all the damage done to vehicles by the tracks in Montreal could be ascertained, to say nothing of the annoyance they cause, we suspect not many days would pass ere the company would be made to toe the mark.

WE have to beg of our ancient contemporary the Herald that he will show some little consideration for the feelings of his readers in these days of sweltering heat. This is not the time to propound puzzling problems and inveigle the innocent public into an attempt to peer through a murky mystery. Nay, we must protest against the course which the Herald has been pursuing these last few days. Our grievance is briefly stated thus: Our contemporary fastens upon some story which seems well suited as a text for an attack upon the Government or the Ministerial party. So far, so good; but—here's the rub—the same issue will contain several editorial articles all embodying a different version of the same story! Now we submit that to expect the "gentle reader" to weigh, consider, and sum up the various versions and satisfy himself as to which is nearest the truth is to expect too much in these days of semi-tropical heat. We, therefore, humbly beg of our dear old friend to kindly put an explanatory note at the head of the column stating which of the versions is the correct one. This simple expedient would, we are sure, avert many a naughty ejaculation, and perhaps save some readers from fretting themselves into a fever.

We are moved to make these few remarks on account of the uncertainty many of the readers of yesterday's Herald must feel respecting the question whether Attorney-General Clarke, of Manitoba, "deliberately spat in his (Mr. Royal's) face" as stated in one column, or whether he was guilty of "throwing his quid of tobacco into the face of his opponent" as stated in another column, or whether the articles based on these several versions are based upon a canard. For ourselves, as in neither version is it stated that Attorney-General Clarke was knocked down the same instant that he threw or spat, we are led to conclude that the whole matter is either grossly exaggerated or a simple fabrication. Still we must plead the cause of the "gentle reader" and earnestly beg for the explanatory note.

MR. GLADSTONE'S motion last night for the granting of an allowance to Prince Alfred on the occasion of his approaching marriage met with some opposition and the question was finally postponed until to-day. In the House of Lords a motion to the same effect was carried without dissent. Respecting the Royal match the London Times says it is on both sides one of affection; and the Telegraph says that the Duke first formed an intimate acquaintance with the Russian Princess when he was a young midshipman at St. Petersburgh. This must have been a good many years ago; for his Royal Highness is within a few months of entering on his 30th year, and the Princess must have been quite a child, as she is now only in her 19th year. The Times says that last spring the Duke was a close visitor at the Bay of Naples, where the Princess was resident with her mother, and that he was then regarded as her accepted suitor. It is stated that the Princess will retain the faith of the Greek Church, in which she has been brought up, but that in the event of issue, the children will be trained as Protestants. The Princess herself will, it is understood, receive a handsome dowry corresponding with her exalted position. The London papers are careful to inform the public that the union possesses no significance; and the continental journals are expressing themselves to the same effect. The National Zeitung says that it will not help England to endure the conquests which Russia is daily making in Central Asia, and, above all the annexation of Khiva which now seems certain. Prince Alfred arrived at Jugenheim on the 16th inst., and was betrothed to her Imperial Highness next day.

THE Opposition party is still unsettled as to a candidate for the Western Division. The bigger organ this morning hints that none of those at present in the field are acceptable, and seems undecided as to whether it were better for electors to vote or abstain from voting. It is decided on one point however, and that is that whoever is elected should be "again the Government," arguing that the Pacific scandal warrants this ultimatum. From a east-iren party organ perhaps nothing else could be expected, but from our independent stand-point we regard such a conclusion as very illogical. In the first place the Pacific scandal has nothing to do with the Local Legislature; secondly, even supposing the charges proved, that only proves that Ministers are no more infallible than Opposition leaders. The principles of the Liberal-Conservative party survive though the men who are to-day in power go down. The country has thriven under this party, while we know that the policy of the Opposition is to make our country simply a market for the products of the semi-pauper labor of the European continent. Such a policy we know will not conduce to make Canada the beau ideal home of the industrious worker, and therefore we oppose it. In our opinion the party in power does not go far enough, but the party that wants to get in announce a backward instead of a forward movement. We are therefore thankful for what we have, and will work hard to get more. That is our position. As regards a candidate for the Western Division, we want to see a man elected who will worthily represent that populous and wealthy constituency. It is simply insulting and grossly impertinent to argue that none but an Oppositionist will decry rascality, bribery, and corruption. Witness the boast of a $10,000 corruption fund uttered in the recent "Reform" caucus. Why has the Herald studiously refrained from mentioning that fact? It has been repeatedly uttered at public meetings. But the questions mainly occupying the attention of the Local House are such as make the mere question of party a trifling consideration. The qualifications desirable in a candidate are honesty, intelligence, fluency of speech, an acquaintance with the requirements of the Province, contempt for sectionalism, and a determination to see "justice done though the heavens fall."

THE CONTEMPORARY PRESS.

The Gazette says:

"Confirmed as to the Herald for political information. Yesterday the Hon. A. Smith was referred to by it as the Lieut.-Governor of New Brunswick. He is not only not Lieut.-Governor, but he declined to accept the office when it was offered to him, a fact stated at the time in the columns of the Herald itself."

The Herald once more rises to explain as follows:

"Our readers will no doubt have perceived yesterday that in speaking of the Attorney-General of this Province, we intended to refer to Mr. Ouimet, not to Mr. Irving, who is now the Attorney General."

The Ottawa Times notices that:

"The Globe is taking in canvas It reduces, for the summer months, except on Saturdays, its sheet from forty to thirty-six columns. This will make a very unique volume when bound "in calf" at the end of the year. Could not that Pacific Scandal have kept its spacious columns distended to the ancient standard, at least until the 13th of August?"

We are informed that a story in the Witness last night respecting the late suicide in the rapids is made up of misrepresentations, ignorance, and false conclusions.

A correspondent comments upon a recent article in the same paper, in which it is sought to show that none of the candidates for the Western Division have an unsullied reputation, and asks, "What sort of a reputation has 'J. D.?' If men to-day are to be judged by their early life, where will he stand if viewed in this light?" We give it up.

THREE CHILDREN BURNED TO DEATH.

A correspondent writes from Cranbourne, Q., as follows:—

On the 21st inst., a man named Nedo, of this place, with his wife went in search of a stray horse; when they returned home they found their house consumed by fire, and three children burned to death, one of three years old, one eighteen months and the other six months.

MUSCULAR CHRISTIANITY.

A spectator who was present at the burning of Mr. Leahy's house, beyond the limits near the St. Gabriel Church on Monday night states that Mr. Duggan, grocer, corner of Grand Trunk and St. Francis streets, while looking on inquired why there was no water in the vicinity.

Father Salmon, between whom and the grocer, it is said, a grudge has long been standing, at once asked what business it was of his.

The valiant Duggan replied that it concerned him as much as Father Salmon whereupon the latter, whose weight is not of the slightest, knocked him down and threw himself upon him, then springing up as if he feared the consequences, he cried for "police" the latter came up and at his instance arrested Duggan, but a short time afterwards set him at liberty.

THE KNIFE.

A Midnight Prowler Stabs a Stableman.

Towards twelve o'clock last night a middle-aged man and woman were observed loitering about the corner of Dorchester and Bleury streets. They made several attempts to enter back yards, and finally tried to get into the sheds attached to D. Laverty & Co's Livery stables, No. 116 Bleury street, corner of Dorchester street. The stablemen warned them off several times, but still they persisted and endeavoured by force to make their way into a shed on Dorchester street. Here one of the livery stablemen, named Robert Lamouche, walked up, and as the man and woman persisted in pushing the gate, Lamouche pulled him and told him to go away. The fellow immediately turned round and with an open clasp knife and then coolly turned round to walk away with the woman. At first Lamouche did not know that he had been stabbed, but on walking a few paces he became conscious of severe injury. The blood by this time was freely flowing from the wound and on to the sidewalk. He was at once assisted into Mr. Laverty's office and placed on a couch, while medical assistance was sent for. In the meantime several men who were also watching the guilty pair, on learning that Lamouche had been stabbed, ran after and arrested the man and woman, who had gone off along Dorchester towards Alexander street. The pair shewed considerable resistance, the woman "making the welkin ring" with her foul language. No policeman could be found, and finally the couple were got to the Central Station where they were lodged in the cells.

STABBED LAMOUCHE IN THE ABDOMEN,

Dr. Kennedy attended the wounded man and expressed the belief that the wound, though deep and in a sensitive part, is not dangerous. M'Crae is an old frequenter of the Recorder's Court. He claims that the woman is his wife.

THE WESTERN DIVISION.

Mr. McShane Holds a Meeting.

An open air meeting, largely attended, was held on Chaboillez square last evening in the interest of Councillor James McShane, candidate for the Western Division. Mr. P. Dunn, who occupied the chair, stated that they had come together for the purpose of proposing candidates; Mr. McShane was a candidate proposed, and he hoped they would choose the best gentleman. For his part of the matter, he would distinctly say that he thought Mr. McShane was a just and proper person for to represent them there—in the Local Legislature at Quebec (voice: all right), and he was a man who was open and straightforward. He demanded three cheers for the candidate, which having been given, he concluded:—I hope he will be the elected candidate, gentlemen (applause), and that triumphantly. A lengthy pause here ensued. Cries of "McShane, come out"; "hurrah for McShane!"

Mr. McShane having "come out" said:—Gentlemen, a vacancy—Gentlemen, a vacancy—(voice: loudly, order), having occurred by the death of our late esteemed member, Frank Cassidy, Esq., for the Western Division, it now devolves upon you as electors of that Division to choose a gentleman to take his place.

At a meeting on last Friday evening, at which there were a large number of electors of all classes and of all nationalities, I was there unanimously chosen to represent the Division in the Local Legislature, (Voice, "Hurrah for you.") Gentlemen, I do not arrogate to myself the claim or right, for I know there are hundreds far more competent than I. (Voice, "No, no.") If you think it well that I should be your choice ("You will be so!") I hear some voices who have supported me for the past six years that I have represented the St. Ann's Ward in the City Council. (Voice, "You will do it again!") I see men men whom, perhaps, my past conduct might have pleased; still, I have tried to do the best I could. Before I should proceed much further, I should speak of the course, what side in politics I should take. I have ever been for years past a strong supporter (Voice, "You're an Irishman every inch of you"), of the Hon. Luther Holton and the Hon. John Young. There has, I must admit, been times when my friendship for men has carried me off that track, but in the future, in adopting that course, friendship shall never take me away again; I shall adhere to one standard, and never again support a government who has ever taken the money from the public to keep them in office (cheers and applause); a government, gentlemen, that has not the support of Upper and Lower Canada; a government who has bought up men from Manitoba, British Columbia and the Lower Provinces, sent to oppose them. I am proud to know that men like Holton, Huntington, and Anglin have the manhood and pluck to tell the men coming from their own province so how long were they in the position? they sold their influence and principles the first three days they were there. (Voice, "Hurrah.") Referring to the Anglin affair, he stated that had the House dared to act in a hostile manner towards that gentleman, he believed the roof of

THE BUILDING WOULD HAVE BEEN TORN DOWN.

He continued: Now, gentlemen, the revelations, the startling revelations, that have recently come to light and your knowledge, must astonish every man who has the welfare of his country at heart. I know this well, that any man who dare attempt here to do and say they would support such a Government, I would ask any one to answer me, could or would you give them support. (No, No!) A spontaneous "No" tells me, and I find that things must take a change. A man like Macdonald has held the country in his hands too long. (Interruptions, confusion; a voice, John A. Macdonald is a better man than you; talk about the Western Division.) Gentlemen, perhaps it may be well to let Macdonald alone just now, (voice, let him alone; he is dead,) but I wish to say a few words in alluding to the gentleman who composes the Ministry of the present local ministry at Quebec. Gentlemen, they are part and parcel with those at Ottawa; the one is the same as the other; it is the same wire, the same machinery. Now, what has Ouimet and Chauveau been doing for the past three or four years, but filling every position, every vacancy, with their own friends, cousins and nephews—and I am sure they would put their nieces in if they could. (Ironical cheers.) In regard to the question, gentlemen, to the question of Crown Lands, (voice, you are the man that should go in; confusion; voices, hurrah for McShane; go on McShane!) in regard to the question (voice, hufrah for McShane.)

Chairman: Will you listen to Mr. McShane?

The speaker resumed: With regard to

it is well known that almost millions of land has been given away; millions of acres where grows the most beautiful timber; some sold at $20 or $40 per 1,000 acres, given to the supporters of the Government. I know one tract of land, bought for $2,000, sold for $60,000 to an American firm; this is only one instance out of a hundred instances of the kind, by which the Local Government have endeavored to hold themselves in power. Their administration of emigration, you know full well, has been a most miserable failure; the past winter has proven that the situations are full of men who have been a disgrace to the country, men of whom

I SHOULD FEEL ASHAMED.

I know well that thousands of dollars have been spent to send agents to Europe, only to endeavor to induce immigration to this country, and I would ask you how well the money has been spent; how many hundreds, how many thousands, come to settle in Lower Canada, Montreal or Quebec during the last ten or fifteen years. I know your answer would be, "No." Where do they go? (Voice, "We'll know when you get in.") When I was coming across the Atlantic there were on board 1,000 passengers going to the other side, where they got every encouragement, where men were encouraged and cared for. Some go to New York, and in that land they were met by agents and sons of their country, and men who had tendered their hands, and they knew in landing upon their shores, if not money, they received a welcome and a warm shoe. (Hear.) I have often been amused to have seen a political gathering of the Government, to see the hangers-on and hear them speak so many times from this same platform here. I remember one night last year the opponent of the Hon. John Young; there were about seventeen or eighteen speaking; they were all hangers-on of the Government; it was no wonder they spoke in their favor.

Gentlemen, a great deal has been said recently of the workingman. Well, for my part, I say that I have never known any distinction between the workingman and the laboring man; every one of us in this country knows that we make ourselves by our work, and perhaps the workingman of yesterday may in a few years be wealthy. I say and nationalities; the workingman is as good as me, as you, or as any one of you, and I expect the support of the working and laboring men; you have always supported me, and I can assure you that I will never go back upon you. (Cheers.)

Gentlemen, the people have been always with me because I have endeavored to do all I could for the people and they will be with me in this campaign I know well; I see around me hundreds of men who are certainly doing their endeavor to send men to the Local Parliament. (Cheers. Voice: Three cheers for McShane). He thanked them heartily for his reception; assured them that he would endeavor to represent them as well as any other of the gentlemen of whom mention was made, and while repeating a portion of his remarks in French, urged that his wife was a pure French Canadian. (Voice: Encore.) He also expressed his confidence that he would secure

THE FRENCH-CANADIAN VOTE.

Mr. O'Heir being called upon, excused himself.

Mr. Mullarky simply endorsed the candidature of Mr. McShane.

M. Archambault, advocate, alluded to three candidates, Ald. McGauvran, as a Ministerialist, Coun. McShane and Mr. Howley as adherents of the Liberal party, and making professions in favor of neither of the latter, stated that he should support that one of the two who possessing the largest measure of confidence from the Irish citizens was their choice. He inquired if they chose Mr. Howley (No, no!) or Mr. McShane (Yes, yes,) and continued, heartily abusing the Government; he contemned an independant course for a candidate, holding that these must either approve or censure the conduct of the Government, which he considered was such as to disgrace not alone the Conservatives, but also the Liberals.

Mr. Stewart, of the Herald, supported Mr. McShane, and thought that the Parliaments at Ottawa and Quebec had for the past seven or eight years, at least, worked hand in glove

TO SYSTEMATICALL ROB THE COUNTRY.

(Cheers.)

M. Perrault was announced by the Chairman, but failing to appear, three cheers were given for Mr. McShane.

Finally Mr. Howley stepped forward to the front of the balcony and was received with hoots and yells. (A voice: We want no Anti-Christ here.)

Mr. Howley persisted with the following result, he said: Owing to (groans) the great kindness (groans.)

Mr. McShane interpollated, that he had no objection to Mr. Howley; (no, no,) he should like liberty of speech. (No, no.)

Mr. Howley: We stand here as friends, not enemies. (Groans and derisive cheers.) I am very sorry for it, (interruptions,) but as nature has given me (groans) a very powerful pair of lungs, (groans,) I can use them, (groans,) and use them I shall, (groans,) for your delectation (groans.) I desire you to act the part of Irish gentlemen. Gentlemen, one word, (groans,) I have got this to say, (groans,) that in electing Mr. McShane, you will not have—(groans.)

Mr. Steward at this point announced that the meeting was closed, and

Mr. McShane explained that he had not requested Mr. Howley to appear and address the meeting; he had come, and he (Mr. McS.) stated that he had no objection if the meeting was of the same opinion. (Voice, "We are not; we didn't ask for him.") He added that he had not proceeded to Mr. H.'s to create a disturbance, neither should he do so during the campaign, if he (Mr. H.) remained a candidate. Many others were to have spoken, when they were interrupted by Mr. Howley. (Voices, "Yes! yes!")

Mr. Howley: The stage was vacant. (Hisses.) I had not the slightest (hisses) the slightest idea of offending any one; I have never offended any one in my life. (Hisses and groans.

Mr. McShane, in conclusion, called separately for three cheers for the Hon. Mr. Holton, Hon. Mr. Huntington, the Hon. M. Dorion, the Reform Party, Mr. O'Donoghue, of Toronto, Mr. Anglin, and last of all for the Queen. They were given with considerable gusto.

IT IS BUT FAIR TO MENTION that the parties who so persistently interrupted Mr. Howley were comprised in a compact group immediately below the portion of the balcony from which the addresses were delivered.

The Civil War in Spain.

NEW YORK, July 30.

A Malaga (Spain) special despatch says: The Republican forces and the insurgents had several severe fights on Sunday and Monday. The insurgents occupied the churches of San Pieta, San Nicolas, and San Martin, and the Plaza Major, which was strongly barricaded. The troops advancing, on Sunday, along the Alemeda suffered severely from the rebels in the Puerta del Mar and in the citadel. After some sharp fighting there was a parley, but it came to nothing. The fighting was resumed and continued all Sunday. The losses were heavy, 160 men being dead already. It is reported that over 300 barricades are erected in the heart of the city.

LONDON, July 29.

The Government proposes, upon the marriage of the Duke of Edinburgh with the Grand Duchess Maria of Russia, to increase his yearly allowance to $125,000.

In the House of Commons this evening, the consideration of the Queen's message touching the marriage of the Duke of Edinburgh was resumed. Mr. Gladstone was present and made a speech urging the grant of the allowance asked. He referred to numerous precedents and set forth the auspicious character of the approaching alliance. Royal marriages, he said, rarely had a political significance given them in these days, but this union, while it was one of mutual affection, would be a new tie between England and what some regarded as a hostile State. It would cause a favorable change in the public feeling toward Russia. No time could be more satisfactory for such an alliance than the present. Mr. Gladstone paid a glowing tribute to the Emperor Alexander for the emancipation of the serfs. He then moved that £25,000 per annum be granted to the Prince and Princess, and £6,000 to the latter in case she survives her husband. In conclusion, the Premier deprecated discussion of a character likely to destroy the gracefulness of the act.

In the absence of Hon. Mr. Disraeli, the Right Hon. Mr. Ward Hunt seconded the motion.

Mr. P. A. Taylor, member for Leicester, said he could not vote for the motion.

Mr. James Holt, one of the members for Lancashire, inquired whether the Grand Duchess Alexandrowna was prepared to conform to the Church of England.

Mr. Gladstone replied that this could not be required of her by the Act of Succession, because she could not be an heir to the throne. He added that to push this question would be odious and insulting to the parties concerned.

Mr. Newdegate, member for North Warwickshire, suggested that the issue might become heirs.

After further debate it was agreed that the necessary appropriation bill should be introduced to-morrow.

In the House of Lords a motion for an annual allowance to the Royal pair was carried unanimously without debate.

A resolution censuring Mr. Sandamore, Superintendent of the Postal Telegraph Service, for alleged misappropriation, failed to pass the House of Commons to-day by a vote of 141 nays to 111 yeas.

VERSAILLES, July 29.

In the Assembly to-day the treaties of commerce with Great Britain and Belgium, concluded by the Duke de Broglie, were approved.

A message from President MacMahon, proroguing the Assembly, was received and read. The President says he will answer for the preservation of order during the recess, and will insure the maintenance of respect for the authority of the Assembly. He pointed out the happy results of concord between the Government and the Assembly, among which he specifies the passage of the bill for the reorganization of the army. Alluding to the evacuation of the soil by the German troops, now fast approaching completion, he makes a graceful acknowledgment of the successful negotiation of President Thiers to that end, and praises the Eastern Departments for their heroism, and the French people for their patriotism and abnegation in the protracted trials they have undergone. The country, he adds, will never cease to feel a sense of its dignity when it remembers what a price it has paid for peace. But noisy manifestations of joy over the event should not be indulged in. Peace is the first necessity, and the Government is resolved to maintain it. Assurances are received daily of the sincere amity of the foreign Powers. The President closes his message by declaring that he shall continue the policy indicated by the frequent and unanimous votes of the Assembly.

At the conclusion of the reading there were cheers from the Right and Centre benches.

MADRID, July 29.

The Bishop of Granada, who was held as a prisoner by the insurgents in that city, has been released.

In this city the number of deaths from cholera is reported at 20 per day.

THE ENGLISH ARCTIC EXPEDITION.

An English artic expedition is at present endeavoring to reach the North Pole. The yacht Diana, under command of Leigh Smith, some time ago sailed from Dundee, and letters have been received from her by a whale ship which state that on June 1st she was 77 degrees 40 minutes northward to Spitsbergen. Reaching this point she will have gone almost 80 degrees north latitude, and the intention is to push northward from Spitsbergen as far as possible. Captain Hall, it will be remembered, reached 82 degrees 16 minutes north latitude.

A PECULIAR MURDEROUS WEAPON.

A man was hanged the other day at San Francisco for murder with a weapon of a peculiarly dagerous, and, for a long time, mysterious nature. This is a sand club formed by filling an eel skin with sand. When this instrument was first brought into use the authorities were greatly puzzled by deaths, apparently from violence, yet no marks could be found on the outside of the body. A burglar was finally captured with a sand club in his possession made out of an eel skin stuffed with sand. Being closely questioned he explained its use. When the victim is struck, for instance, on the head, he drops insensible and soon dies from congestion of the brain. Often the skull suffers no injury from the stroke, and if the person struck recovers sensibility he gradually relapses into a condition of idiocy. Sometimes a man struck in the body will be knocked down by the peculiar force of the blow and feel no immediate results from it. In a few weeks, however, the flesh will begin to mortify under the line of the blow and rot down to the bone. Heller, the celebrated pianist, is supposed to have met his death in Mexico from a stroke of this diabolical weapon.

Butter—Finest lots of Vermont and New York are taken at 20c, but there is more sold at 28c, and at these figures there is not a very driving trade. Fine Western is wanted at 24 to 25c, but the medium grades sell slowly.

16 to 19c; good Vermont dairies sell at 24 to 26c, and medium Western at 19 to 22c.

Cheese—The cool weather of the past few days has made dealers less anxious to close out their stock, and the market is a shade firmer, but there is no advance, and but very few Vermont or State factories will sell above 12c; although now and then a fancy factory will bring 12½c. Some very choice Ohio has been sold at 12c, but the bulk of the sales of the best factories have been at 11½ to 11¾; fair lots of factory have been sold at 9 to 10c, and skim is dull at 5 to 7c.

Eggs—The market is firm at 25 to 26c. for good lots of Northern and Eastern.

2nd EDITION

FOUR O'CLOCK

The News of Quebec.

QUEBEC, July 30.

Mr. Charles Pitt, the German Consul, was married to Miss Marie E. M. Lemble, daughter of Mr. Lemble, formerly shipbuilder, of Quebec, at St. Roch's Church, yesterday.

Hector B. Dufort, of the Crown Lands Department, died last night aged 38 years.

A report is in circulation that a large printing house, west of this city, is in difficulties.

The Stadacona Rifle Association match comes off on the 5th of August.

Three arrivals from sea to-day: SS. Acadian, coals; brigt. Little Annie, Barbadoes, general cargo, and schooner Reward, from Newfoundland.

Pilot Lachance is not satisfied with the decision of the Trinity House, as he fyled a protest this morning which will cause the Trinity House to bring the matter before our courts for a verdict.

The Hibernian pic-nic, owing to the rain of yesterday, is postponed till Thursday.

The Crops Around Ottawa.

OTTAWA, July 29.

The County Judges have awarded the premiums offered to competitors by the Township of Gloucester Agricultural Society for field crops. The report concludes as follows: The undersigned judges of field crops find the crops throughout the Township much better than was anticipated. Fall wheat is not very generally grown; but there are a few fields of very excellent quality, sound and free from weavel. Spring wheat is rather light, but the grain is likewise likely to be sound and good. Oats and barley as a rule are not very heavy, but the grain will be good. Peas, as far as they have seen, are good. The root crop is only middling, with the exception of potatoes, which are rather promising.

PUBLIC OPINION.

Postal Information Required.

To the Editor of THE STAR.

SIR,—There are a great many people interested in the mails to and from Murray Bay, Kamouraska, River du Loup, Cacouna, &c., at this season of the year, and yet, so far as I can see, there is no information as to when they close or when they are delivered published. Perhaps this in your columns might put the officials in mind.

Yours, &c., X.

SUICIDE.

A Mr. Ford, pipe maker, Colborne Avenue, committed suicide this morning shortly after eight o'clock by cutting his throat with a razor. The evidence went to justify a verdict of "suicide while suffering from a fit of temporary insanity," which was accordingly returned.

THE PACIFIC SCANDAL.

Mr. A. S. Hincks, son of the ex-Finance Minister, writes to the morning papers as follows:—

"I have to request that you will allow me space in your columns for a few words. I arrived in Montreal from England this morning, and wish to take the earliest opportunity of saying that there is no foundation for the statement that I was to receive $50,000 of stock in the Canada Pacific Railway, and that I never had any communication, directly or indirectly, either with Sir Hugh Allan or with anyone else on the subject of an allotment of stock in any Railway Company to the Pacific."

PLOUGHING MATCH.

It has been determined by the Executive Committee of Ottawa Agricultural District No. 1, that the Provincial ploughing match should take place on the 16th October next, in the township of Nepean, convenient to the city, but the precise locality has not yet been selected. Five judges are appointed, three from Ontario and two from Quebec. Those from Ontario are Messrs. D. Picken, Brockville; David Ray, Dundas; and Robert Sangster, Glengarry. The furrows shall not be less than six inches in depth, and not more than nine, or less than eight inches in width. $325 in cash prizes, and a gold medal by Mr. William Young, of Ottawa, will be awarded.

The match is divided into two classes, the senior and junior. The first prize in the former is $20 and the gold medal; second, $35; third, $30; fourth $25; fifth, $20; sixth, $15; seventh, $12; eighth, $10; ninth, $8; tenth, $5.

Junior classes, to be competed for by youths not exceeding 21 years of age:—First prize, $30; second, $25; third, $20; fourth $16; fifth, $14; sixth, $12; seventh, $10; eighth, $8; ninth, $6; tenth, $4. The entries will close on the 10th of October.

THE MENONITES.

The following is from the Winnipeg Manitoban:—

The Menonites, accompanied by Mr. Witcher made their tour of inspection to the eastern part of the province last week, and have decided upon accepting the eight townships reserved for them by the Government, south-east from Fort Garry, and form an intermediate settlement thereon of about 300 or 1,000 families. They express themselves eminently satisfied with the land; they seem to prefer a prairie country to any other. Since their return from the East, they have concluded their inspection of the western portion of the province, and seem to prefer this to the East, but no land has been reserved for them there yet, but a sufficient portion will no doubt be set aside for them when surveyed.

These people having occupied the steppes of Russia, where timber is scarce, understand the economising of fuel, which knowledge will be of great service to them in this country. Their second trip to the East was to inspect the southern portion of their reserve which they had not before seen. We may expect them next spring. The five gentlemen who visited us represent the whole sect. The townships taken by them contain about 184,000 acres.

SAGACITY OF A DOG.

An instance, wherein was exhibited the remarkable sagacity of a dog, is recorded as having occurred near Hamilton, Ont., lately. A few days since Mrs. Joshua Hewitt, living near Hamilton, left her little boy, aged about six years, in the yard, where he was amusing himself with a dog, while she went up-stairs to attend to some of her household duties. After she had been some time engaged in the chamber, she heard the dog creating a great disturbance below, barking and scratching at the door leading to the stairs. Apprehending that something was wrong, she ran down stairs and opened the door. With almost human sagacity the dog gave a bark of delight and ran to an open well in the yard. Seeing no signs of the child, the frightened mother ran to the well, which was fortunately filled nearly to the top with water, and discovered her child in time to snatch him from the water just as he was sinking beneath the surface. When rescued the child was insensible, but restoratives being applied, consciousness returned. The dog meanwhile manifested its joy by capering about the room, jumping upon the couch where the child was lying, and giving expression to its delight and affection, licking the face and form of the little one which it had saved from a watery grave.

The funeral of the late Lord Marjoribanks took place on the 26th ult., and was largely attended by the representatives of both political parties in the county. The remains were interred in the family vault at the Parish Church, Ladykirk, Berwickshire. The deceased nobleman has left about half a million as personality, and has bequeathed legacies and annuities to his political friends, and servants at his different households.

The undersigned takes pleasure in announcing to the public generally that he has on hand a choice assortment of first-class Furs, among which will be found a lot of very fine Shetland Seals, Sacque Caps, Boas, and Muffs; also, every other article usually found in a Fur establishment, which will be sold at reasonable prices for cash.

Is he Rich?

Many a sigh is heaved many a heart is broken, many a life is rendered miserable by the terrible infatuation which persons often manifest in choosing a life companion for their daughters. How is it possible for happiness to result from the union of two principles as diametrically opposed to each other in every point, as virtue to vice? And yet how often is wealth considered a better recommendation for young men than virtue? How often is it the first question which is asked respecting the suitor of a daughter, this: "Is he rich?" But does that afford any evidence that he will make a kind and affectionate husband? "Is he rich?" Yes, his clothing is purple and fine linen and he fares sumptuously every day; but can you tell him from this fact that he is virtuous? "Is he rich?" Yes he has thousands floating on every ocean; but do not riches sometimes take to themselves wings and fly away? And will you consent that your daughter shall marry a man who has nothing to recommend him but his wealth? Ah, beware! The gilded bait sometimes covers a bearded hook. Ask not, then, "is he rich?" but "is he virtuous?" Ask not, then, if he has wealth, but has he honor? Do not sacrifice your daughter's peace for money. See, however that in his dress he combines economy with neatness and taste. In this connection, Callen's will be found the best place in town for clothing, at 525 and 527 Craig street 166

The following appeared in our late Editions:

THE Liberals of the Dominion appear to be again at loggerheads. The Globe section wants the Pacific investigation made by a Royal Commission, composed of the members of the Committee, while the Herald section talk of the "Royal Commission Nonsense." The Globe section at present concede that the enquiry should be governed by the rules of courts of law, and the Herald section desire a mere hear-say tea-party confab with a verdict of "guilty" resolved upon at the outset. In the matter of the approaching Local Election the same want of unanimity is noticeable. One of the trio, Messrs. McShane, Howley, and McGauvran, is the chosen of the late Liberal Convention of caucus. Who the chosen one is has not yet been authoritively announced, but we see that the lesser Opposition organ denounces all three as rogues while the bigger Opposition organ finds fault with one of the three because he is simply a "honest man." It must be admitted that there is a wide divergence of opinion here. In view of this split in the ranks of the party which seems to have laid hands upon the constituency as though entitled thereto by some accredited right, we hear that the electors outside of these sections or factions meditate bringing out a candidate whom they believe will gather to his standard a goodly number from the ranks of each of the opposing candidates. Who this "dark horse" is has not yet been made known to us, but the parties interested feel confident that he will "take" with the majority of the "free and independent."

THE CONTEMPORARY PRESS.

The Witness say:—

"Canada seems to be cut loose upon the down-grade. Corruption in high places is only the out-crop of corruption below, and our hopes for the future seem to depend on men educated in the school of the past. Is the horrid and humiliating dose of public scandal which the country is swallowing going to act as a wholesome emetic, or is it to be only a new virus to poison the public mind still further. Where is the outcry of the pulpit? Where is the independence of the press? All is bad from top to bottom. Is there any hope of the country by a giant effort casting forth this corruption, or must it putrify before the whole world, until not only our morals but our commerce and material strength are prostrated—ruined?"

Has our contemporary ever reflected how much he contributes to render an affirmative reply to the concluding query impossible? Only the other day we were pained at seeing in his columns a system of robbery and fraud practiced on the wharves not only apologised for but actually commended Though we pointed out the article, imagining that it had crept in without editorial cognizance no retraction was made. If this is a sample of the morality taught by the "religious" press what can we expect from the portion not arrogating to itself that title? Let us hope that the extract from to-day's issue given above betokens a repentant mind, and a resolve to teach sound morality in the future.

THE "HERALD."

A correspondent asks us to explain the meaning of the Herald capping an article on Sir John A. McDonald's fit of diarrhoea with the query "Have we a Finance Minister?" We give it up. To explain all the eccentric things that appear in the columns of our ponderous contemporary would give an industrious man ample daily employment, and make up enough copy to fill a comic weekly.

ROUND TOWN.

— Thomas Pollock, a sailor, is under arrest, supposed to be insane.

— Inspector Gailey has made several arrests for neglect to provide cart-rests as required by law.

— A child whose mind is deranged was placed in the cells at the Police Court this afternoon. Poor little mortal!

— The jockey, Wise, who was injured at Decker Park, is convalescent; he will leave the General Hospital in a few days.

— A water proof coat was found on St. Paul street this morning, and left by Const. Kavanagh at the Central Police Station.

— The Police Magistrate lost last Saturday night a fine young cow, brown, of the Canadian breed; he apprehends it has been stolen.

— A sailor was severely injured this morning by falling down the hold of the steamship Palestine. He was taken to the General Hospital.

— Arrivals: Ship Abeona, Glasgow; ss. Stephenson, Liverpool, and ss. Georgia, Pictou, general cargoes; barque Ville d'Anvers, Antwerp, ballast.

— Francis G. Flood, grocer, corner of St. Constant and Lagauchetiere street, was fined this morning $50 and costs, for selling liquor within prohibited hours.

— Mr. M. Ryan, advocate, has asked us to state that the letter signed "M. R.," which appeared in the STAR of yesterday, was not written by him. This we willingly do.

— John McMunough, laborer, is under arrest for brutally assaulting a Mrs. Doucette, boarding-house keeper. The injuries are such as to warrant a remand until the 4th prox.

— The contractor has sent for more powerful machinery to Quebec, in order to place the ss. Precursor afloat; the chain tug has returned to her duties, and brought up a vessel last evening.

— High-Constable Bissonette, assisted by a posse of police from the Ontario street station, made a descent last night upon a disreputable house kept by Mdme. Ladoucer, on St. Lawrence street.

— John Calvin, laborer, St. Dominique St., detained for an assault upon his wife, was this morning discharged, it having been proved that the latter was a violent woman addicted to drink, and that the wounds she showed were self-inflicted.

MONTREAL'S MILLION.

We understand that Coun. G. W. Stephens, one of the directors of the Northern Colonization Railway recently appointed by the City Council, was refused permission to inspect the books of the concern to-day. What is there to hide?

MONTREAL TO CHICAGO.

There arrived in port yesterday morning a very fine new propeller named the Persia, which is intended to run between this city and Chicago. The Persia is owned by Capt. James Norris, of St. Catherines, Ont., and was built at Simpson's yard, No. 5 Lock near the same town. She is a first-class craft in every respect; roomy, being capable of accommodating seventy-five cabin passengers; and her appointments and furnishings are all that could be desired. She is commanded by Capt. J. H. Scott, a genial gentleman, who has navigated our inland waters for the last eighteen years. The Persia brought down a large company of American passengers who expressed themselves delighted with her accommodation. The agents in this city are Messrs. Norris & Routh, No. 5 St. Sacrament street, where information respecting passage or freight can be obtained.

HOW SMALL-POX IS SPREAD.

It is pretended that the pair of small-pox patients who left the General Hospital on Sunday took this course because they learned that they could not be attended to by their regular physician. No steps have as yet been taken against the carter in question, but assuredly his grave disregard for the law and his duty should meet with prompt punishment. A young man, well connected, entered the Hospital yesterday ill with small-pox, and in this case also a cab was employed. It may not be generally known that the ambulance is kept in such an out-of-the-way place as the premises of Mr. Dumaine, undertaker, St. Mary street, but at least communication might be opened with the police, who would obtain the vehicle. The van, to better purpose, might be placed in the hands of the latter, or at the Hospital, and due notice of its disposition given to the public.

THE QUEEN'S BENCH COURT ROOM.

Alterations are being effected in the Court of Queen's Bench room at the Court House, by order of the Sheriff. The "Rogues' Gallery," most distinguishable for its inconvenience and cramped proportions (which was perched upon the left hand in the extreme rear), has been removed, and will not be replaced. The benches upon which the public was wont to sit are being lowered, and also the box reserved for the prisoners; while the flooring in front of the judges' bench, in the portion allotted to the bar, will be elevated about one foot. The enclosures set apart for the representatives of the press are to be taken away and the space given over to the lawyers, the former to be henceforward doomed to sit several feet in the rear—an arrangement which cannot possibly conduce to their advantage, as to obtain a desirable hearing of the witnesses examined in Court has, under the circumstances which have for a considerable period existed, been sufficiently difficult at times to exasperate the mildest. The window-blinds will be repainted and the walls cleaned, so that on the opening of the Quarter Sessions it will present at least a cleanly appearance.

FICKLE AS THE WIND.

Elopement by a Bride.

A young woman, an English immigrant, was arrested this morning by Constable Goddard, under peculiar circumstances. It appears that she married some fourteen days ago, in England, a young man about her own age, and took passage on one of Allans' steamers. Whether fickle by nature or want of affection from the bridegroom, in the course of the trip forces she became enamored of a passenger, with whom, by a secret understanding without doubt previously concerted, she quietly left Quebec on their arrival. Her husband did not take her departure in good will, especially as it would seem from his account, that she carried off six hundred dollars, his property, or its equivalent in the form of a cheque, and being vigilant he had her taken into custody this morning, when their boxes and baggage were removed to the Central Station. She, as may be imagined, did not appear to be over-modest, and was by no means alarmed at her position. It is understood that the difference has been amicably arranged, and that the matter will not be presented before any of the Courts as must have been the result had a charge of theft been retained. It is not known what has become of the gay Lothario. He is probably in hiding, counting upon the probability that the patched-up match will soon fall to pieces.

A CORRECTION.

On the 13th inst. there appeared a report headed "A Sad Affair," which related how that a young man named Bergeron had died at the General Hospital from injuries received while engaged at his employment on the Grand Trunk Railway, it being added that his death was in part attributed to the unskilful treatment of a physician practising at Durham, E. T. This latter statement was credited to the parents of the unfortunate young man. We are informed the report was in all respects correct excepting that the blame was put upon the wrong shoulders; the party held to have unskilfully treated the patient not being the physician residing at Durham, but another practitioner whom the parents had called in. The report furnished us reflected upon the only doctor in Durham, viz., Dr. Prevost, how unjustly the following affidavit will show:—

PROVINCE OF QUEBEC, District of Arthabaska. }

I, the undersigned, father of the late Donat Bergeron, duly sworn, do declare that the physician practising at Durham said at his first visit, two hours after the accident, that the arm had to be cut off; that he told my son he would do better to go to the Hospital; that it is not the physician at Durham who bandaged the arm; that it is not him who said that he would soon be in a position to resume his duties; that it is not him who did not call again; but it was at his solicitation that I brought my son to the Hospital where I remained until he died. I do declare that I am satisfied with all that has been done by the doctor of Durham, and grateful to him for his good advice.

His
PIERRE X BERGERON.
Mark.

A VALUABLE MEDICINE.

We wish to call the special attention of all persons suffering from throat and lung diseases to a medicine which we have personally tried to our satisfaction, and greatly to the benefit of our health. Having suffered for some time past from Bronchitis, and more or less trouble with the lungs, we commenced taking Dr. Wheeler's Elixir in February last, and steadily improved through the Spring, the worst season of the year for such diseases. Sold at $1 by all druggists. 170

It was while involved in the mazes of her position that the letter from Bertram was handed to her by her maid, Fane, and it was not without a severe struggle between her impression of duty and her inclination that she read its contents.

It was similar to the one which he had sent to her while she was staying at Raby Hall. It was filled with urgings to grant him an interview, repetitions of his vows of adoration, and promises to make her happier than she could have dreamed of being even when they were first united. But he omitted to appoint the interview; he left to her the naming of time and place for their meeting, and that was precisely what she was too proud to do.

She tore his letter into shreds and burned it to pieces; she tried to forget that she read it, but in vain; she strove to banish him from her mind, but without success; even his proposition to grant him an interview haunted her, an idea began to dawn upon her that, if such an interview were ever consented to by her, it was she who, after all, would have to fix the time and place, for she alone knew that it could be accomplished without detection, or without interruption.

She was distracted by these harrowing thoughts, and was greatly disturbed likewise by a fear which clung to her that she while with the marquis some evening at one of the numerous assemblies or receptions which they attended, should encounter the Earl of Brackleigh.

It was not possible that such thoughts incessantly passing through her brain should not have their due effect upon her nerves.

She saw that the marquis suffered equally with herself. She could not fail to see how thin he had become, how haggard, and how pale his face was, while his eyes were like fiery meteors, which seemed to be gradually consuming all his vital power, and to grow brighter as they drew near annihilation.

He rarely spoke to her; he knew that, whatever might have been the case, he had no cause to be jealous of her, and he exhibited towards her none of that haughty impenetrableness which he had felt compelled to use when his mind was racked with doubt, and which she had returned with such interest.

She almost passed her time in her own suite of apartments, varied only occasionally by a promenade in the exquisitely laid out grounds attached to Westchester House.

She walked mostly in the evening, and then only when, excited by her unquiet thoughts, her apartments seemed too narrow for her to move in, and the air within them too stifling to breathe.

Since her return from England, Hagar Lot had contrived to obtain access to her and had repeated interviews with her. She had not assisted to calm her mind, for she had informed her of Floret's escape from school, her appearance at the gipsy camp, her subsequent unimpeded departure from thence, and of her journey to London, where, she informed her, she was at that moment residing, although she was unable then to say in what part.

Hagar, to enlarged upon Floret's growth, form, face, her accomplishments, and her mental qualifications. She spoke of them not as advantageous but aids to her ruin she predicted for her a short career of vice and horror in London, unless she was sent to Australia, or New Zealand, where she might contract a marriage with some honest settler, and there pass in quiet obscurity the remainder of her life.

Whatever might have been the inward emotions which the maidenless suffered, she did not betray them outwardly. She listened to Hagar in haughty silence, and she had finished she bade her make the necessary arrangements, as soon as she had discovered Floret, to send her to one of the colonies which she had named, and she promised to furnish the means.

Hagar, had used every word she could select which was calculated to make the marchioness wince and quiver with wounded pride, was unable to detect the bitter pain these words inflicted upon her.

She made Hagar feel as though she was asking of her a favour for some one in whom she had taken a great interest, and that she granted it in an icy, patronising tone.

It was that unspoken, intuitive perception with which nature has endowed women, which told her that she had crossed her path, was crossing her path, and would cross it somewhere, somehow, she could not tell how; certainly she did not dream that it was a rival.

On this very evening on which the Earl of Brackleigh had encountered Hagar supposing that she was the marchioness, she had just quit the latter, after what would have proved a stormy interview between any other two women.

Not the most scornful taunt which the marchioness addressed to her appeared to make any change in her impassible demeanour, her eyes only occasionally gleamed and glared as if they were lighted up by some internal flame, and when the marchioness, with an imperious bearing, swept from the room, Hagar followed her only with her eyes until she disappeared.

Her lips moved for an instant, and then, she, too, glided away to the garden, where most unexpectedly she met the man, who, from a bright, high-spirited, noble hearted girl, had converted her into what she then was.

Although the marchioness had quitted her with an offended air, she bore with her a suggestion which Hagar had submitted to her, and which now rankled and tossed most uneasily and painfully in her mind.

The marchioness sternly rebuked her for her horrible suggestion, but it remained uppermost in her mind—it worried, harried her. She could not endure her chamber. She felt as though invisible hands were dragging her towards her escritor, and unable to endure the struggle it cost her to keep herself away from it, she rushed into the garden to breathe.

The air of her chamber seemed to be laden with the odour of some vegetable poison.

Once in the garden, and in the free, fresh air, pacing its gravelled walks with her usual stately bearing and queenly step she felt herself able to think, to wish that the marquis had never been, and that Bertram had—always—even as when he first bent his mouth close to her burning cheek, and whispered fond and passionate words to her.

As this thought rested upon her brain on its slow way through it a quick step fell upon her ear, a sharp, firm grip caught her wrist, a low, hoarse voice whispered in her ear—

"Constance!"

She turned like lightning.

Within a foot of her own was the face of the man who was then in her thoughts, Bertram Earl of Brackleigh!

She did not scream, she did not faint, she did not struggle to fling off his vice-like clutch. She closed her eyes for a moment, and felt as if her whole frame, nerves, veins, and blood were changing into ice.

For an instant she was like one who had passed the boundary of life, and had entered upon the valley of the shadow of death.

She lost all recollection, all sense, feeling, touch.

For that one instant the world was a void to her.

The next she was conscious of a white face close to her own, of a hoarse hissing gibbering in her ear, of the shadows of dark trees—of, oh, God! the terrible words from the lips of one from whom she had been parted for years—

"Woman, I am your husband!"

Then, indeed, she had a terrible struggle with her emotion; but her power of self control, exerted with a passionate effort, prevailed.

She gasped for breath for a moment or two, and then, obtaining the mastery over her articulation, she said, in a low, but clear tone—

"Release me! I will listen to you!"

"Release you, Constance! What—to fly me, to summon help, to bring about that meeting in which I, or the man whose name you now bear, must inevitably fall!"

"Bertram," she said, in the same tone which was audible, though uttered so faintly, "if you remember what I was, you will not insult me to do that which I ask of you. You know that I did not fear you; I am unchanged. I do not fear you now."

"But——"

"Hesitate—and I will pour forth shriek upon shriek in such rapid succession, that your detention will continue to be the act of less than a minute more!" she exclaimed, with determined emphasis. "I have said I will listen to you—when did I ever break my word to you?"

"Never—never—never!" he replied, rapidly, and with emotion. "Oh, Constance—Constance! how bitterly, how ruthlessly, you have punished me for my seeming indifference to you——"

"Say freezing indifference!" she interposed, with an earnestness equal to his own. "Such a freezing indifference that it froze the first and passionate love of a young, unworldly heart into a mass of impenetrable ice, such as it has remained, even as it is."

"But I was young—a fool mad, blind, Constance!" he rejoined, excitedly. "Oh, heaven! if you had but reflected—if you had but reason! with me—if you had not leaped to a false conclusion, what years of surpassing happiness we might have both enjoyed—what years of bliss might be yet before us!"
