A taste of New Orleans - Treme

GOING VIRAL

ELLEN GOLDFINCH

At the risk of being repetitious, I'll rail against HBO again. Trying to follow a series on HBO is a frustrating experience. I never know when it's on, because it's either on almost every night (which means that HBO is replaying the same episode several times) or it's not on at all. So imagine my TV columnist joy when I found out that Treme is on Sunday nights at 10:00. Now I can program the machine to record it.

Treme is a series that is in its second season and has gathered itself a following of loyal fans. By the way, Treme (pronounced tre-may) is a neighbourhood of New Orleans that is close to Bourbon Street and is the home of many musicians. The show's first season starts off just after Hurricane Katrina decimated the homes and lives of the people of New Orleans and with the lead-up to its first post-Katrina Mardi Gras.

David Simon and Eric Overmyer, who created The Wire, brought onboard writers who are familiar with the New Orleans scene including Tom Piazza who wrote Why New Orleans Matters, as well as a journalist from New Orleans' Times-Picayune, and one of the writers for the documentary, Faubourg Tremé: The Untold Story of Musicians in Black New Orleans. I believe that this crew of writers has done a wonderful job in giving the series a gritty realism.

Since food is a major part of New Orleans culture, we get to watch restaurateurs trying to keep their businesses alive and entrepreneurs who use the influx of federal money to make their fortunes. There is La Donna (Khandi Williams) who is a bar owner looking for her brother who disappeared during the hurricane. She is helped by Toni, (Melissa Leo), a civil rights lawyer. Toni has problems of her own. Her husband, Creighton (played by the always wonderful John Goodman) is a failed novelist who is on the verge of mental collapse and her teenaged daughter, Sophia (India Ennenga) is doing what all teenagers do - drive their parents crazy.

Yet it's the music of New Orleans that separates this series from all others. Real musicians are used, such as Annie the street violinist (played by real life musician, Lucia Micarelli). Her trials and tribulations as a professional make for interesting watching and her problems are complicated by her relationship with D.J. Davis McAlary (Steve Zahn) who provides a lot of comic relief to the show as a the kind of guy that everything happens to. Another music plot focuses on Antoine Batiste (Wendell Pierce), a trombonist who is desperately trying to get in with a band again. The show brings us into the music of the streets and clubs of New Orleans and we get to hear everything from Dixie Land to a sort of club music called Bounce.

Treme is one of those shows, like The Sopranos, that brings you into a world and culture that you would never be exposed to otherwise. The musical scenes are well filmed and don't have the choreographed preciousness of Glee, but then again, this show is targeted towards an adult audience. If you enjoy good music and good drama, give Treme a try.

Upcoming highlights: Next up on Treme - Annie starts composing, Davis discovers a new talent and Sophia gets an internship. Sunday night, 10:00, HBO. Happy watching!

Things I meant to do

OUTSIDE THE BOX

KELLY MCDEVITT

I try not to strictly review or recommend web series with this column, partly because I doubt how many of you actually watch web television, and partly because I tend never to listen to reviewers when it comes to the things I watch. And I hate to be hypocritical. So every once in a while I try to preview a series I've heard about, let you know what to expect, usually with the intention of going back to it later for a review.

And then I forget all about it because I have the memory of a turnip.

Last February, I wrote about an upcoming web series based on Mortal Kombat, the iconic fighting videogame. The web series grew from a short film, Mortal Kombat Rebirth. Released last year and starring Jeri Ryan (Star Trek Voyager, Boston Public) and Michael Jai White (Spawn, Dark Knight), Rebirth was designed by director and choreographer Kevin Tancharoen as a pitch for a feature-length R-rated Mortal Kombat movie. That idea didn't fly, but the short was so popular online that it was picked up and retooled as an original series called Mortal Kombat Legacy.

Well the series is now six episodes into its first season (turnip memory), and there is some serious money and talent behind it. Produced by Warner Brothers, the show was able to retain White as Jackson Briggs and Ryan as Sonya Blade in the leading roles. It also picked up Canadian Tamoh Penikett (Battlestar Galactica, Dollhouse) as Kurtis Stryker.

If you're going to make a show based on a hand-to-hand combat game, you should do it with people who know how to fight. What I find most impressive about the cast of this series is the slew of talented stunt actors and martial artists - five-time martial arts world champion Matt Mullins, stuntman Darreb Shahlavi (300, Chronicles of Riddick, Night at the Museum) to name a few - playing characters in their own right rather than filling in for celebrities. I guess this is what happens when you get a choreographer behind the camera.

The series is incredibly gory, but well filmed and stays true to the characters it's based on. The fight scenes are clever and well choreographed. Fans of the video game, martial arts and action films alike will be impressed.

Mortal Kombat Legacy is being hosted on YouTube by the gaming website Machinima.com, a web site focused on producing content for gamers. The word machinima, a combination of "machine" and "cinema," generally refers to film projects shot using gameplay footage, the best of which is the Halo machinima series Red vs. Blue.

Machinima.com produces an incredible number of machinima series for various purposes. Some are stories filmed for entertainment, much in the same line as Red vs. Blue; others are informative and historical series geared towards hardcore gamers - for example an entire series dedicated to exploring the maps of Halo 3.

(The website's "About Us" section claims to provide "comprehensive gaming-focused editorial and community programming to the hard-to-reach core 18- to 34-year-old male demographic." Good thing too, because nobody's making content for 18- to 34-year-old males these days. Snort.) But even if you're not a gamer, or are only mildly interested in videogames, there are some interesting series from this site.

For example, the series All Your History Are Belong to Us looks at the historical development of videogames and rather intelligently demonstrates how other trends in popular media lead to the rise and fall of certain gaming genres. As a Cultural Studies student, I have to say I was impressed. Did you know that supply and demand games like Farmville all got their start with David Lynch's - and by extension Frank Herbert's - Dune? So much for prescience.

To watch Mortal Kombat Legacy and a pantheon of other gaming-related series visit www.youtube.com/machinima.

'Priest' is a real yawn

ADAM BUDD

It's possible that in choosing "Priest" over "Thor" last weekend, I made a mistake. It is also possible that given the choice between two comic book adaptations again, I may just stay home (unless it happens to be Christopher Nolan's highly anticipated new "Batman." - every rule has exceptions).

Based on a South Korean graphic novel, "Priest" centers on a secret cadre of religious warriors. The priests protect the human race in an ongoing war with vampires, who are more like blind mad dogs rather than the archetypical Dracula we've come to know.

The film begins with a violent animated exposition which explains how the priests defeated the rival race of vampires and attained complete control of humanity. From there, we follow a young priest (Paul Bettany), now cast aside after the victory, as he rebels against the religious rulers who are trying to cover-up the fact that the blood-sucking beasts have somehow reemerged. He suspects the vampires have murdered his brother's family so he leaves the church to fight the "vampire menace."

I have a slight bias against comic book genre films and "Priest" is no exception. It takes a rich premise of heresy, loyalty and blood and turns it into a rather run-of-the-mill adaptation. The heresy is a given: we know our protagonist, predictably named Priest, will go against the church in order to avenge his brother's death. His loyalty to his family acts only as a thinly veiled excuse for the spectacle of violence. As a result the blood flows easily and with no sense of justice. A loud yawn a few rows behind me solidified the feeling in the cinema - "Priest" is flat and generic, and even unbearably boring.

However there is one saving grace, as the visuals are incredible. The city that the priests protect is straight out of "Blade Runner" with jaw-dropping detail and scale. The choking dark atmosphere of the fascist religious state is contrasted with the sun bleached wide-open plains of the desert. The setting is evocative and the visual world of "Priest" is intriguing in its anachronisms.

One thing's for sure: it's not "Batman," which has set the standard for comic book adaptations. For take-your-breath-away action, leather cat suits and villains that are truly evil, we'll have to wait until 2012.

Rating: 2 deadly heretical priests out of 5.

Sherbrooke singer Vincent Vallières' latest release goes Gold

Coming to Cowansville this summer

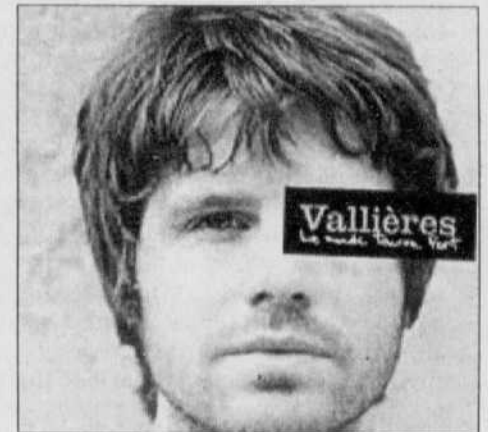

JESSE FEITH

It has been well documented that in today's music industry, album sales are at an all-time low as artists struggle to sell their music to the masses that can easily access it for free from illegal downloads online. Record sales have been plummeting since the early 2000s and music certifications such as Silver, Gold, Platinum and Diamond are being handed out less and less frequently as they are based on total units sold or shipped by an artist. In Canada, an album is certified Gold once it ships 40,000 copies, Platinum as of 80,000 and Diamond after shipping 800,000. As of last week, Sherbrooke's own singer-songwriter Vincent Vallières' latest album, "Le Monde Tourne Fort," has officially sold 40,000 copies, making it certified Gold in Canada. Born in Sherbrooke back in 1978, Vallières learned to play guitar as a young teenager and quickly began singing songs from his idols such as Robert Charlebois and Paul Piché before starting to write his own music and lyrics around the age of 15, at which point he won second place at the Cégeps en Spectacle event in 1996, backed by his band Trente Arpents. Vallières put the money to good use as he and his band recorded a demo CD titled "Le Vent Du Nord," which would lead them to signing a record deal with producer Bernard Y. Caza the following year. The band would finally release their self-titled debut in 1999, yet despite mostly positive reviews and even two minor radio hits, the band found themselves unable to pierce into the always stubborn Montreal music scene, a must for Quebec artist trying to make it. The band stuck together throughout the difficult times, yet after extensive touring through Quebec and trips out East, Vallières was evolving as an artist, finding himself going in a different direction than his band mates, turning towards more rock-style songs and shedding the nice boy image that his then record label had him marketed as. The next couple of years would be Vallières' evolving period and would see the release of three albums: "Bordel Ambient" (2001), "Chacun Dans Son Espace" (2003) and "Le Repere Tranquille" (2006). By 2009, Vallières had settled into his role as a Quebec artist and was growing more and more comfortable with his musical style as he began the recording process for "Le Monde Tourne Fort," his latest and most successful release. Layered in personal lyrics and simple, to the point music, the Sherbrooke native's talent comes through on each and every track. Accompanied by Olivier Langevin on electric guitar and piano, André Papanicolaou, also on electric guitar and piano, Michel-Olivier Gasse on bass and Simon Blouin on drums, Vallières and company deliver 13 stellar songs from the opening title track "Le Monde Tourne Fort" to the closing song titled, "Février." The 40,000 copies sold is an impressive landmark for a Quebec artist and something Sherbrooke music fans in particular can hang their hats on.

Vallières will be touring Quebec throughout the next couple of months, stopping in Cowansville on July 17.

Scott Woods is 'All Aboard' in Richmond

Canadian fiddle champion Scott Woods and his band are making a stop in Richmond as part of their cross country tour to deliver a live performance of an all-new 2011 show called "All Aboard!"

This two-hour live variety show brings to life the old-time music of years gone by and can be enjoyed by those from 2 years old to 102 years old. There are plenty of popular old-time tunes, traditional country favourites, wholesome family humour, trick fiddling and even some great Canadian step dancing. Scott Woods and his band perform with zeal and appeal that leaves audiences wanting more.

Scott Woods hails from Fergus, Ontario and is a Canadian Open and Grand Masters fiddle champion. For seven years, he was the musical director and played the part of Don Messer in "Memories of Don Messer's Jubilee."

Performing a limited number of concerts across the country each year, all of which are benefit concerts, Scott Woods has helped to raise hundreds of thousands of dollars for local charities, churches and community service groups.

This concert will take place at Richmond Regional School on July 5, 2011 at 2 p.m. and 7 p.m. Tickets for the Scott Woods show are only $20 for adults and $10 for kids 12 and under. Tickets are available from Phyllis 819-826-5883, Lynn 819-876-7179 or Ernie at 819-838-4210.

How to (ribbit) draw the perfect frog (ribbit)

GOOD READS

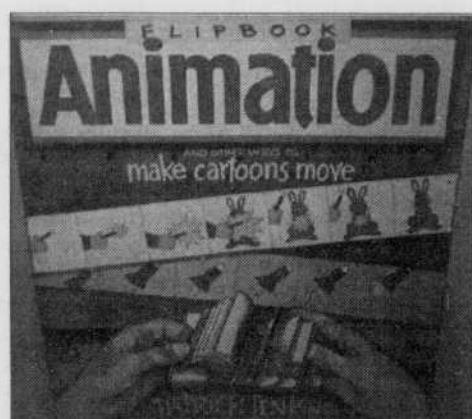

ELEANOR BROWN

Kids know that drawing is more about capturing movement and feeling than it is about getting the nose right. But there comes a time for some when a perfect nose begins to matter. Or at least, when the proper shape of a frog begins to matter.

The Magic Pear, by Morgan J. Sweeney, was first published in 1887, and uses the shape of a pear to create the likeness of a frog, a rabbit, a cat, and other critters. "My little dears," it begins, "this pear is a Magic Pear. It has an elephant in it." This how-to reprint appeared in 1977, with 12 different possible drawings made out of a fruit, and ends with drawing a man. (With a reader's imagination, a woman's not far behind.)

From there, try 1-2-3 Draw People: A Step By Step Guide, by Freddie Levin (2007). Its tips begin with more shapes — squares, rectangles, ovals — all of them useful when drawing a kid playing soccer or dancing ballet. A body or a face is made up of many smaller parts, all of them coming together to create the whole. The author explains proportion and how to plan a picture so that it's perfect. This is much harder than when using just pears, and will take more time to get right. But it's a lot of fun to work it all out and draw you, your family or your friends.

Freddie Levin uses the same ideas in another book, 1-2-3 Draw Mythical Creatures (2003). "This book is designed to help the young artist break down complicated images into simple shapes and see the relationship between the shapes. To encourage young children with little confidence or children with poorly developed motor control, cut circles, eggs and ovals out of tag board. Have the child move these basic shapes into position on drawing paper and trace around the shapes, to get the first step of each drawing."

Plus there's the sphinx, pixies, trolls and dragons. Harry Potter fans will love the three-headed dog and the hippogriff, all borrowed from ancient mythology.

Once kids have the basics down, they can try out other projects. How about creating a flipbook? Flipbook Animation And Other Ways To Make Cartoons Move, by Patrick Jenkins (1991) shows the way. Old-style cartoons were made by hand, with dozens of pictures filmed one after another to create one minute's worth of moving picture. It takes time and planning to do, but you can create a flipbook using the same idea.

Does that seem too hard? It's not. Jenkins shows how to make a fish swim. Draw little fish lips at the far left of a piece of paper. Then draw a little more of the fish on each sheet, and presto! Soon you can collect all the pictures, flip them, and watch a fish zooming about.

Jenkins gives great instructions and makes the complex easy. He shows how to connect the paper, how to organize each drawing, and even how to make the fish do a loop-the-loop.

There are all kinds of steadily harder projects here, from a fly buzzing about your nose to a rocketship landing. And because Jenkins is a movie lover, so there's also cool info on how films used to be put together, and even how to create old movie devices with stiff paper, pencils and light bulbs. It's a lot of fun.

So far, these books have been stuck on pencils (and erasers!).

The Children's Book of Painting, by Lothar Kampmann (1972) features two children who play with paint and crayons and will give your children lots of ideas on an otherwise wet afternoon. Splotches can become trees and fireworks, thanks to blowing at paint with a straw. Or remember painting one side of a paper and folding it over? Or how about stencils?

Remember to put old newspapers down... painting is fun, and kids should be encouraged to be a little messy (Good Reads repeats: a little!). Older kids can use these same techniques to create ever more sophisticated artworks.

Some kids want to create cartoon strips and comics. These next books are for them!

Begin with How to Draw Cartoons and Caricatures, written by Judy Tatchell (1987). "Cartoons look quick and easy to draw," begins this manual. "You may have found that they are not as easy as they look, though. This book is full of simple ways to do good cartoons."

There's a quick review of some of the techniques discussed in previous books in this column, as well as ideas on how to exaggerate eyes or mouth to create a true caricature. Plus templates for happy, sad, mad and funny expressions. And don't forget that your comic strip will need narrative, maybe a joke, perhaps scenery and sound effects! This book will help you plan it all out, in addition to helping with drawing technique.

Finally, Scott McCloud has written and drawn Understanding Comics: The Invisible Art (1994). It's an inventive 215-page work of philosophy, psychology and art history for serious students of what the French call le neuvieme art, and what the great Will Eisner, creator of the masked adventurer who starred in the famed Spirit series of the 1940s, called sequential art.

The history of comics can be traced in the Americas to pre-Columbian times, with ancient picture manuscripts. Over in Europe, the Bayeux Tapestry, which tells of the 1066 Norman Conquest, is a comic — a group of sequential images telling a story.

There are even sections on conveying sound in print, and on how realism and colour impacts the brain. Understanding Comics is for those who take the form seriously and want to read up on art theory, and more — in pictures and words.

All these books can be found in non-fiction with a green dot, and are numbered from 709 to 743 (the books are filed by number under the decimal system founded by librarian and educator Melvil Dewey in 1876; he divided books up into subjects so they'd be easy to find, but if you're having trouble, just ask).

Book Ends for Children

The theme for the TD Children's Reading Program this year is Splash! We'll be celebrating water — animals, pirates, ships and lots of fun.

The TD Reading program will start Wednesday, July 6, from 1:30 pm. to 3:30 pm, and will run each Wednesday until Aug. 10.

Places are limited, please sign up at the library ASAP.

Book Ends for Adults

Books and Brown Bags: Come have your lunch and discuss a book you've read and enjoyed. Every second Wednesday, from noon until 1 p.m. — please come by on May 18 for the next Books and Brown Bags.

International cast plays it for laughs in QNEK's Epic Proportions

DERBY LINE, VT./STANSTEAD, QUE.

QNEK Productions proudly presents Epic Proportions, a comedy by Larry Coen and David Crane, directed by QNEK Associate Director, Susan-Lynn Johns, as the first production of its 18th season — "We Go Retro." Epic Proportions is a screwball comedy romp behind the scenes of a 1930s motion picture. Join brothers Phil and Benny as they go to the Arizona desert to be extras in the huge biblical epic, Exeunt Omnes. Along the way, they encounter romance, danger, and a supporting cast of thousands played by a handful of intrepid actors.

Emily May (Jay, Vt.) is Louise, an assistant director in charge of extras and the focus of a romantic triangle in which two brothers; local farm boys who have signed on as spear carriers, vie for her affections. Benny Bennett, played by Damian Mooney (Albany, Vt.) is the one who wants to be an actor, but it is the thinker, Phil, portrayed by Avery Dull (Jay, Vt.), who first captures Louise's attention with his knack for manipulating crowds, a talent acquired in his high school marching band.

Brian McCrae (Newport, Vt.) portrays D. W. DeWitt, the nutty old director — and in an astounding feat — he plays DeWitt's assistant as well! In fact, a cast of 3,400 extras, assorted technicians and crew members, artistic staff, and stars are all played by a cast of twelve.

Ruth-Ann Fletcher (Derby, Vt.) overacts audaciously as an over-the-hill Queen of the Nile while Douglas Flint (Newport, Vt.) camps it up as a Roman senator, general, and fierce gladiator. France Bouchard (Ste-Catherine-de-Hatley, Que.) is Cochette, the costume designer with an eye for Louise; her daughter, Chloe Bouchard-Calvert plays the attendant to the Queen of the Nile and an Egyptian dancing girl. Angus Gluck (Irasburg, Vt.) plays designer Shel Silverman as well as a conspirator, a slave master, a guard, and a gladiator. Judy Castonguay (Island Pond, Vt.) Lisa Foster McCrae (Newport, Vt.), and Michele Streeter (Barton, Vt.), are conspirators, extras, Egyptians, and stagehands. Also appearing on stage as crew members are Molly Desormeaux (Ogden, Que.) and Jolyane Bouchard-Angers (Ste-Catherine-de-Hatley, Que.).

Writers David Crane and Larry Coen, fellow students at Brandeis University, came up with the idea for Epic Proportions while watching an old-time, biblical extravaganza. Observing an extra being crushed under a falling column, Crane recalls one of the two posing the question: "I wonder what his day was like?" From this kernel of a plot grew a hilarious comedy romp.

The show will be performed at the Haskell Opera House, Derby Line, Vt./Stanstead, Que. on May 20, 21, 27 and 28 at 7:30 p.m. and on Sunday, May 22, at 2 p.m. The Sunday matinee will be audio described for the hearing impaired. For information and/or reservations call the QNEK Box Office, 802-334-2216; the Haskell Box Office 802-873-3022 (US) or 819-876-2471 (Canada); online at www.haskellopera.org. COUNTRY CONNECTION

JESSIE AULIS

Here is the latest news on the country music scene. From wedding, to comeback, to movie soundtrack, the artists are doing well and hitting the road for the summer.

Lambert and Shelton

Blake Shelton and Miranda Lambert tied the knot this week in Don Strange Ranch in Texas. According to Us Weekly, Miranda walked down the aisle in her mother's dress in front of friends and family.

Reba McEntire, Cee Lo Green, Martina McBride, Dierks Bentley, Charles Kelly and the Bellamy Brothers all attended the ceremony, along with more than 500 others guests.

Fans are so happy for the couple, and they can't wait to see the first official pictures.

Canadian singer Terri Clark

Grand Ole Opry member and long-time hitmaker Terri Clark has just released a brand new single called 'Northern Girl.' The Canadian singer celebrates her roots on this uptempo song and it has now entered the Canadian Hot Country charts as a single.

Her last album, the 2009 Long Way Home released after her divorce was a little dark. The date for the release of the new album hasn't been disclosed yet but it should be totally different, much lighter and happy.

Paisley in Cars Two

A few weeks after the release of Brad Paisley's new album, 'This is Country Music,' the soundtrack for the upcoming animated Disney film, Cars 2 will include new material from Brad Paisley.

The country singer was in Los Angeles last month recording songs at the famous Capitol Records studio. Paisley will have two songs on the upcoming soundtrack including a solo song and a duet with a British pop singer Robbie Williams.

The Cars 2 soundtrack is being released June 14 and the movie will be in

WIKIMEDIA

Terri Clark

theatres June 24.

Darryl Worley truly patriotic

Darryl Worley is once again honouring the United States and the military fighting for freedom by offering a new tune, 'Unsung Heroes,' available for digital download.

Worley is donating $1 from every download through his website of 'Unsung Heroes' to the US Army Family and Morale, Welfare and Recreation Command (FMWRC), a charity formed to benefit the families of the men and women serving overseas.

'Unsung Heroes,' penned by Worley, pays tribute to the men and women serving overseas. In 2003, Worley released his smash hit, 'Have You Forgotten,' which was also in honour of the fallen American citizens and soldiers after the devastating 9/11 terrorist attack.

Still to this day, 'Have You Forgotten' remains one of country radio's most-played songs and the biggest hit of Worley's career.

Worley broke into the country music scene over a decade ago and has since charted 19 singles, including three self-penned No. 1 hits: 'I Miss My Friend,' 'Awful Beautiful Life' and of course, 'Have You Forgotten.' With seven studio albums released throughout his career, Worley has sold more than 2 million records worldwide and has reached both gold and platinum certification.

Top five pirates of all time

Postmedia News

1. Captain Jack Sparrow (Pirates of the Caribbean): Johnny Depp brings a girlish daintiness to his lace-wearing pirate, as well as plenty of eyeliner, ensuring Captain Jack Sparrow straddles the fraying lines of gender with roguish charm. What makes Captain Jack so sexy is his undying confidence in every moment, his ability to play things by ear, and his unwillingness to be tied down to any beautiful woman - unless she's got tall masts and a broad beam. He's the thinking girl's bad boy who loves to play - and what could be more sexy?

2. Jamie Boy Waring (The Black Swan, 1942): Tyrone Power had the right name, the right looks and the right body to pull off the role of a former servant of his majesty who becomes a privateer in the hopes of smashing the Spanish Armada. When Captain Morgan takes over Jamaica, he re-pledges his allegiance to the Crown, but old ways die hard. Waring, like other pirate characters, is one of the few leading males who can get away with striking a woman in the face. The blow is always used as comic relief, along with the word "wench," but the behaviour epitomizes the pirate's unveiled pleasure-pursuing impulses - which all of us possess, but are generally too mature to exhibit.

3. Captain Vallo (The Crimson Pirate, 1952): A great pirate movie really needs great physical action and, thanks to Burt Lancaster's early history in the circus, he has no problems flying over the sets of The Crimson Pirate with acrobatic flair. Physicality is always a plus and so are defined pectoral muscles. Lancaster had them all in this rollicking matinee classic.

4. Peter Blood (Captain Blood, 1935): Errol Flynn and Olivia de Havilland play star-crossed lovers in this Golden Age classic of the genre directed by Michael Curtiz (Casablanca). Once upon a time, Blood was a doctor who tried to save people with kindness and skill. Yet, when he realizes he's being used by the powers that be, he rises up in revolt - and becomes a pirate for the public good. Flynn was one of the few leading males who could dance around in poofy shirts and a waxed moustache and still be considered sexy to women, setting the style agenda for years to come.

5. Sir William Walker (Queimada!, 1969): Though Marlon Brando doesn't exactly play a pirate in this Italian movie set in the 19th century, he does play a gentleman who turns into a revolutionary leader in the Caribbean. Spurring a slave revolt among sugarcane workers, Walker is a man willing to rise up against the establishment without mercy, while remaining human, emotional and passionate. The mixture of gentlemanly charm and bad-boy sexuality is an essential piece of a good buccaneering character.

Tim McGraw in court

Curb Records has announced they are suing country singer Tim McGraw for breach of contract.

"Sadly, after a 20-year relationship which has provided unprecedented success for both parties, Curb Records has chosen to end its accord with Tim McGraw by filing suit against him," a spokesperson for McGraw said in a released statement.

"Tim McGraw delivered his new album, 'Emotional Traffic,' to Curb in the fall of 2010. The label is holding the album hostage from country music fans in an attempt to force Tim McGraw to serve perpetually under a contract that he has already fully and faithfully completed.

"The only song Curb has released from the album, 'Felt Good on My Lips,' was a multi-week No. 1 hit," the statement continues. "Although Curb has not released the album, Tim McGraw has decided to perform new songs from 'Emotional Traffic' on his current tour because he feels it is one of his best ever.

"Most importantly, Tim McGraw wants to thank his fans for their continued support in his efforts to release new and exciting music."

No matter what the legal problems are, Tim McGraw will continue his Emotional Traffic tour, even without the release of the new album, after which the tour has been named. Time will tell what will happen, but sadly in the meantime, fans don't have the new music...

Titanic to return in 3-D

Postmedia News

Get ready to go down with the ship again, but this time in 3-D. To mark the 100th anniversary of the Titanic setting sail, Paramount Pictures, 20th Century Fox, and Lightstorm Entertainment will release James Cameron's Titanic in 3-D for the first time ever. One of only three films to have received a record 11 Academy Awards, including best picture and best director, Cameron's epic also launched the careers of stars Leonardo DiCaprio and Kate Winslet.

"There's a whole generation that's never seen Titanic as it was meant to be seen on the big screen. And this will be Titanic as you've never seen it before," said Cameron in a news release. "With the emotional power intact and the images more powerful than ever, this will be an epic experience for fans and newcomers alike." The film will be re-released worldwide April 6, 2012.
