Higher Milk Prices Hoped For

Producers Hold Meeting — Want $5.50 Per Hundred

A General Meeting of the Huntingdon Branch of the Montreal Milk Producers' Association was held in the County Building on Saturday, June 23. It was agreed that $5.50 per hundred pounds was needed to meet the cost of production for the coming year. Messrs. Myles Tillotson, Mac Ruddock, John Caldwell, M. Rosenbaum, Gordon Ferry, Donald Rowat, Bert Rankin, Wallace Rennie were appointed to attend the Advisory Board Meeting of the Montreal Milk Producers' Association, to be held in Mount Royal Hotel on July 5, 1951.

Although the price of milk is discussed wherever farmers meet, only 23 out of a possible 400 were present at this meeting. It would appear that most producers are either satisfied with present price of milk or are quite willing to let George fight it out for them. It is high time that farmers took more interest in the marketing of their produce. In future it is hoped a better attendance will be seen at these meetings.

The Ormstown Band led the Parade from the Lodge Room to the cemetery and after the service, from the cemetery to the Monument, where a wreath was placed by the Noble Grand, W. C. Tedstone.

Band Does Well In Parade

Will Play at Lawn Social Tonight

The Huntingdon Citizens' Band made a very good showing at the St. Jean Baptiste parade held in Montreal on Sunday. Mr. Don Moore reports that the band was one of the best in the parade and he had many encouraging remarks made to him on both appearance and the quality of the playing.

The members paid all their own individual expenses to and from Montreal and the money received for the services of the band is to be placed in the fund toward clearing the debt of uniforms, etc. As a result of the participation in this parade, it is quite probable an engagement may be obtained for a future parade in the early spring of 1952.

Several applications have been received by others desirous of playing in the band and Mr. Moore has announced that he will soon start a new class and that anyone wishing to join should get in touch with him at an early moment in order to be assurred of a place.

The band has several engagements lined up and one of these will be at the Strawberry Social to be held on Braithwaite's Lawn tonight (Wednesday).

Annual Bible School Underway at St. Andrew's Church

The Annex and lawn of St. Andrew's Presbyterian Church, Huntingdon, are again buzzing with activity as St. Andrew's Fourth Summer Bible School is getting underway. The first day's attendance was just slightly under that of last year's opening day but the enthusiasm shows no sign of diminishing and the prospects are good for a rapid growth during the first week. An efficient staff of experienced teachers has been assembled and instruction is given through the eye-gate, the ear-gate, and handwork. The School is designed to make the child acquainted with the content of the Bible and every course is directed toward that end. There is time for recreation too, a brief recess being given each morning for the playing of games in the open air. The sessions will continue through this week and the week following, closing with a Demonstration program on the night of Sunday, July 8th. All children are welcome to take advantage of this opportunity of learning more about the sacred Scriptures of the Christian faith and there is still plenty of room for those who wish to attend the School.

Dr. A. T. Bazin Presented With Starr Award at Meeting C.M.A.

"Grand Old Man" of Medicine Recalls Lean Years of C.M.A.

The Canadian Medical Association has more than 5,000 members in 10 provinces and has a powerful voice in medical matters everywhere in Canada but there was a time in its long history when it was broke and most people thought it should disband.

The story was recalled on Wednesday, June 20th, by Dr. A. T. Bazin, Montreal's "Grand Old Man" of medicine and such a distinguished leader in building the strength of the C.M.A. that the association presented him that night with the Frederic Newton Gisborne Starr gold medal for his "valuable contributions towards medical service for the public."

Founded In 1867

The C.M.A., was founded in 1867, the year of Confederation — its first president was Sir Charles Tupper — but it was never very strong and during World War 1 its annual meetings were discontinued.

In 1921 at the annual meeting in Halifax, the C.M.A. was $15,000 in the hole, mainly to the publisher of the Canadian Medical Journal. Dr. C. F. Martin of Montreal was one of the few who opposed disbanding.

"We sold a bond issue to the profession," the 78-year-old Dr. Bazin recalled. "We paid off our publishers and redeemed our bonds long before maturity. We appointed Dr. T. C. Routley of Toronto as field secretary and his flare for organization did much to build membership. Later, when the provincial associations were brought in as divisions we began to show some strength."

Mayor Houde Speaker

Dr. Bazin recalled 1929 when he was president and the convention was held in Montreal. "And Mayor Camillien Houde was our guest speaker, as he is again today," said the veteran surgeon. Six Montrealers who were once president of the C.M.A. are alive today.

Expressing happy pride at being given the Starr award, founded by Mrs. Starr in memory of the late Dr. Starr, Dr. Bazin said one of the activities that gave him greatest satisfaction was his part in founding the Royal College of Physicians and Surgeons of Canada.

"Fred Starr and I spent many happy and busy years working on that project," he said. "For the benefit of the public as well as the profession," he added.

Dr. Bazin is known to many people in this district.

Softball At Fair Grounds Saturday

Negro Team to Feature in Tournament

The Huntingdon Girls' Softball Club and the H'don Merchants' Boys' Team is sponsoring a girls' softball tournament to be held at the Huntingdon Fair Grounds, on Saturday, June 30th, and they are offering a very good line-up of teams.

The girls have been practising hard for several weeks now and are anxious to make a good showing during the season. They cannot do this unless they obtain the support of the general public and therefore they hope that this attraction on Saturday will draw a good attendance. One of the teams that will take part in the tournament is a Negro Girls' Team known as the Montreal Brown Dodgers, this should prove an attraction in itself. Two other teams have signified they will enter, they are Rosemount-Mansfield, Rosemount Boys' Club, both being girls' teams.

The games will start at 1.30 p.m. and the final game is to be under lights. A special drawing will take place at night for a choice of any one of the articles listed in the advertisement on another page of this issue. Refreshments will be on sale at the grounds and the price of admission is very reasonable.

If you want to have an afternoon of enjoyment, then plan to attend the softball tournament at the Fair Grounds on Saturday afternoon. The local girls promise to be in top form and to put up a real game. In case of rain, the tournament will be held on the following Saturday afternoon, July 7th.

Road From Canadian Border to Chateaugay, N.Y. Widened

Work has been progressing for the past few weeks on the highway leading from Chateaugay "four corners" to the Canadian border where the original road has been widened two feet.

The was one of the first concrete roads built in Northern New York, being originally only 16 feet wide with blocks 13 feet long and for the past few years has been in need of attention.

Late last fall some of the worst parts were black topped and it is expected that it will all be black topped this summer. With the two-foot extension and the black top the road will be in very good condition to take care of the heavy traffic between the village and the border.

This road carries some heavy loads, principally logs going north and cattle coming into the village. The work is under the supervision of Albert Trudeau of Constable.—Malone Telegram.

There were 5,847 hotels in Canada in 1949 and these could accommodate 268,343 persons.

Innovation in Service At St. Andrew's Church

Weather permitting, the evening service of St. Andrew's Church on Sunday, July 1st, will be held in the open air at the summer home of Mr. and Mrs. C. M. Oney, Port Lewis. This will provide an opportunity for the summer population along the lake-shore to attend a service of worship near at hand. Also those who regularly attend the evening service and who wish to make the trip to Port Lewis will find transportation available from the Church at 6.30. If the wather should not be suitable the service will be held in the Church at the usual time.

Dominion Day Activities

If you are looking for entertainment on Dominion Day, July 2nd, the Huntingdon Agricultural Society has planned some Horse Racing for the afternoon at the Fair Grounds, Huntingdon. It promises to be an interesting afternoon for all who are fascinated by this particular sport.

On the same day, at Greig's Grove, Cairnside, the Annual Farmers' Picnic will be held. A full program of sports such as racing, softball and so forth, as well as speeches by prominent individuals, is planned. The Ormstown Band will provide music during the entire day. Plan to attend this picnic and don't forget to take along your basket of eats. There will be plenty of room for everyone and a grand time is assured.

British Travellers May Now Carry More Money

MONTREAL, — Travellers entering or leaving the British Isles may now carry with them 10 pounds instead of the five pounds allowed formerly as well as any amount of foreign currency, it has been announced.

This welcome news for tourists is contained in a recent announcement by the Bank of England, the Cunard Line reported. The Bank's note stresses, however, that visitors should make sure that the amount of foreign currency they have with them is correctly endorsed in their passports by the immigration officer at the U.K. port of entry. This is because tourists will not be able to leave the country with foreign currency in excess of the amount noted in their passports.

Agronomes to Hold Convention Next Week

The agronomes' view of the dairy industry. Such is the theme of the next annual convention of La Corporation des Agronomes, which will meet in Montreal, in the Mount Royal Hotel, July 3, 4 and 5.

More than 700 persons coming from all parts of the province of Quebec will participate in this annual meeting which has now become a major event from a social and professional point of view.

Speakers have been chosen from among the leading agronomes of the province. Mr. Peter Nadeau, Manager of the Belle Vallée Dairy, Valleyfield, will speak on the Economics of the Dairy Industry; Dr. Ernest Mercier of the Dominion Experimental Farm, Lennoxville, will deal with the animal husbandry side of the question; Mr. Roland Lesperance, agriculture journalist in the Quebec Department of Agriculture will study plant production in relation to dairy production; Mr. Paul Bégin, director of Studies, Dairy School, St. Hyacinthe will deal with techniques of dairy processing; and finally Mr. Octave Hénuset, chief inspector of agricultural cooperatives in the Montreal region will speak on cooperative activities in the dairy industry.

Up to the present time the dairy industry has been the base of our agriculture. Will it hold this position in the future? What are the main problems underlying recent developments in the production and consumption of dairy products. What new developments may be expected. Such are the questions to be studied by the agronomes at their annual meeting.

At the time of the 1941 census there were about 300,000 more males than females in Canada.

THESE BIRDS WANT TO BE IN THE NEWS

Consciously, or unconsciously, these birds have done their best to get into the news and they have succeeded. The parent built its nest in a bush near one of the windows at The Gleaner Office and in full view of the linotype operators who have been watching the progress for several days. The Gleaner photographer took the above shots on Friday just as the mother was feeding her young. On the left, one fellow is receiving a very juicy morsel, while the others open their mouths and get none. At the right, the last of the morsel is just disappearing. By the time this was written the young birds had flown and the nest is empty. They are canaries, by the way. Perhaps they have gone to rustle their own food now, but at least they came to the right spot to get into the news.

An old butter box can be quite easily turned into an excellent record holder — using thin plywood for the divisions, out of which half-circles are cut.

Attractive bases for lamps may be made from pieces of 2 x 2, 2 x 4, old bottles, crocks, chair legs, etc. — with shades of heavy parchment (or heavy wrapping paper, varnished), which can be laced with leather shoe laces or heavy colored parcel string.

It was with regret that the Powerscourt congregation heard Rev. W. Conrad preach his farewell sermon on Sunday. Mr. Conrad has served the congregation for the past four years and the relationship has been a happy one. A splendid sermon was preached, and those who heard it had a good message to carry away.

Work has commenced on the erection of a new fence at the Powerscourt cemetery which will add greatly to its appearance.

Athelstan

ATHELSTAN — The Southern Division Womans' Missionary Society held its June meeting on Friday afternoon at the home of Mrs. Reese. The worship service conducted by Mrs. T. J. Graham. Christian Stewardship Secretary was in the form of a questionnaire, dealing with tithing, various passages of Scripture proved the command given to generations all down through the ages, as to what was expected of them, their duty and privilege in giving of not only monies but of their time and talents in the work of Christ, whose teaching while here upon the earth was the blessedness of giving. The study program entitled "A Work Camp in Europe" an adventure in International Friendship prepared by Miss Helen Burlton Missionary secretary of the Student Christian movement, gives us a picture of the Work Camps in the devasted countries of Europe in one of which she shared, namely Camp Agapé in Northern Italy. The question arises, What is a Work Camp? As Christianity is the most practical of faiths and Christ is Lord over all areas of life, His followers then should be deeply involved in the affairs and tensions of the world. Yet, it must be apparent to any thoughtful observer that the distance between Sunday and Monday in our modern society is a vast distance, that the prevalent attitude is that "business is business" and that there is little or no relationship between the sanctuary and the shop. Work Camps are the attempts of men and women to help each other to reconcile some of these contradictions. They are based on the belief that Work and Worship are part of the same experience, and that all those things in modern society which rob work of its dignity and significance and make it less than an offering done to the glory of God are contrary to His will and must be opposed by those who are members of Christ's continuing body on earth — the Christian Church.

Refreshments were served by the hostess at the close of the meeting.

Editorial Notes...

Dominion Day or Canada Day

ON Monday, July 2nd, the whole country will be celebrating Dominion Day, or should we say Canada Day. The word "Dominion" is gradually being struck from the official records so we believe that quite probably July 1st will become known as "Canada Day." Of latter years Dominion Day has become known more simply as "July 1st," so probably like the United States holiday July 4th, our Canadian holiday may just be known as July 1st even if it is celebrated on the 2nd.

However, we do believe that changing the name does take away some of the true significance of the day. Actually we celebrate this holiday in recognition of the birth of the Dominion, and regardless of what the day is called, we do not believe it should obliterate the true significance. We realize we are growing up all the time and that Canada now has a national status wherein the people of this country are now known as "Canadians," but as the "Dominion of Canada" we made tremendous strides and we should be proud to retain at least some part of this history and not just let it be known by a date.

Be all this as it may, next Monday will be celebrated in Canada as a holiday and most everywhere will be sponsoring some kind of activity to entertain the people. As per usual the Farmers' Picnic is being held at Cairnside and a number of speakers have been invited to address the gathering. This is one picnic that is always sure of a good attendance. In Huntingdon, The Agricultural Society is sponsoring a race meet at the Fair Grounds during the afternoon of July 2nd. Probably those people who do not attend either one of these functions, will be going on a trip or visiting friends and relatives, or maybe just staying home. In any event everyone will plan to spend the holiday in the way that suits him or her best.

Usually on these holidays there is an accident toll and we make this appeal to all to drive safely and avoid accidents by exercising methods of caution in everything you do. We all want to enjoy the holiday and we do not want to mar it.

School Closing and Graduation

THIS week will see the end of examinations in the schools and the closing for the summer vacation. It will also witness the end of school for some students and the beginning of a new life either in the employment field or a further course of studies for others.

For the past few weeks the students have been slugging away at the tests set them and some have already gained their marks and know the results. Others will have to await announcement later in the year of the results attained.

This week a graduation dance is being held at Huntingdon High School and this will mark a farewell to those who will graduate this year. Similarly, there will be others at the many schools in the district who will be leaving such schools as graduates. It is to them that we wish to offer a little advice. No doubt they will get lots of it, but too much will never do any harm. These boys and girls are going out to make their mark in life, they are going to find it far different to anything they have experienced up to this point. Life is hard in all its forms and only by practical experience do we gain the conception of the game of life as it is played. These graduates are going to meet varying kinds of people, some who will help them, some who will try to lead them on devious paths and the job will be to pick out the true from those who are not so true. In this they must rely upon their judgment and be ready to draw back from that which is wrong to that which is right. Thus as in the previous school life they had to be alert for their learning, they must be doubly alert for their own safeguards.

The boy and girl who studies their line of employment and continually strives to please and succeed will be the one who will make the most progress. Whatever the chosen line of employment, it requires more than doing what one is told. The employee must be alert and ready to do better, follow instructions implicitly, be willing to be told and not so apt to know it all at the beginning. Self confidence is a great thing, but it can be carried too far and rather than lead to success can lead to downfall.

A good piece of advice offered by a Manitoba newspaper is as follows: "Next to trying too desperately is the fault of not trying at all. Even the doctrines of leisure and recreation so commonplace a few years ago are taking on a new look in these times. We are learning that the goal of life is not idleness but achievement. So don't be a fadist on short working hours. It is nice to have abundant leisure, but history is basically the story of great men who worked late."

Sport Lesson

A British government research group has been studying the country's greatest spectator sport — soccer — and its relation to economic and social welfare.

It has come up with the interesting statement that there is a link between the football field and the workshop — that a team's victories or defeats have an effect on its supporters which is reflected in their standard of work during the week. Victory means increased output, while defeat makes for despondency and declining production.

Between 70,000,000 and 80,000,000 persons attend Old Country soccer games every year. For a great number the Saturday afternoon game is the recreational highlight of the week and the emotional reaction, particularly in group work, is understandable.

But the research group's conclusions, by implication, point up the value of active participation in sport. It is unlikely that the psychological effect of victory or defeat on the player himself can take away from the all-round benefits he enjoys as a result of playing, rather than watching, the game.

Britons, crowded into the "tight little isle," have no choice. They cannot all be players. But Canada, with its wide open spaces, has a golden opportunity to give its youngsters the recreational facilities that lead to the building of healthy bodies and minds.

Canada has thousands of potential athletes, and they should not be deceived by the glamor of big-time sport and the production of specialized athletes. Community rinks and playing fields — many have been built as memorials since the war — are the places where healthful recreation and properly-controlled play should be enthusiastically and carefully sponsored.

Oil Situation In Iran

WHILE the Korean affair is still going strong and peace feelers are supposed to have been given out, the situation in Iran is becoming increasingly intense. The Iranian Government has finally taken over, but the technicians of Britain and the U.S. will not sign on with the government to operate the wells and business. There have already been numbers of applications from foreigners of different extraction including some from Germany and Russia.

Great Britain was offered control, but without profit, and it seems that she should have retained this control under the circumstances. In these times it would be better to be in control less the profits. If Russian technicians get to be in charge of the oil in Iran, it could go very hard with the rest of the world. Winston Churchill when he heard the news, bowed his head and was greatly overcome.

We do not realize the seriousness of this situation and it would seem that the government of Great Britain has not fully realized it, to relinquish all control in such a way. If troops were sent to Iran to try and force an issue, then there would be nothing whatever to stop a third world war. The United States feared this and urged Great Britain to handle the affair with kid gloves. This also may prove to be a mistake. It would seem to be better fighting for our rights than that they should be swallowed up later by a squeeze play that will surely come.

Oil is a vital commodity in the world today for almost everything and it is especially vital to Great Britain who has no supply of her own. Great Britain therefore must depend on what she can obtain from outside sources. Iran was a very important and vital source of supply, its loss is actually a victory for Russia. As long as we keep playing into the hands of Russia and granting such easy victories, we are signing our own death warrant — No wonder Churchill bows his head for such things are terribly hard knocks for such a great man to bear.

October 9

Horses have not been in as active a demand for five years as they are at present and those having good heavy animals get prices nearly 50 per cent over that of this time last year. During the past month a number of Clydes have been picked up at from $110 to $140.; in exceptional cases $150 has been paid.

October 23

John Flemming of Dundee had a horse and buggy (valued at $200.) stolen from his premises on Saturday night. Word was sent far and near, and on Monday afternoon Allan Smallman recognized the animal which was passing through Malone, and seized both thief and rig. The thief turned out to be a tramp who had slept in Mr. Flemming's barn all night, and therefore knew where everything lay.

On the 2nd inst., the body of Alexander Campbell was buried in the graveyard at South Georgetown. On Friday night the grave was opened and the corpse taken away. The thieves seem to have been startled in their horrid work as they did not refill the grave and left an auger behind. The snow bore tracks for an acre of the body being dragged behind them. Every effort is being made by the relatives to trace out the guilty parties and recover the remains. The dissecting rooms in Montreal have been searched without success.

On Monday full time was resumed at the foundry in this place, which is now running to its full capacity upon a large order for plows for Manitoba. In the style and finish of these plows Boyd & Co. have been more successful in satisfying the Western farmers than any other Canadian manufacturer. To provide against the contingency of failure in their water power from too high or too low water, the firm has erected a very fine horse power motor.

February 19

John H. Blair, Hendersonville, writes that he has a cow which gave last season sufficient milk to make 161½ lbs. of butter at the Helena factory which netted him $29.93. Before and after the factory operated, 94 lbs. of butter were made worth $19.50 while he sold $2 worth of milk besides what he used. A calf was raised and when killed at New Years weighed 245 lbs. and the hide of which sold for $3.36. Altogether this valuable cow brought him $52.79 besides the meat, and he asks, Can she be beat?

February 26

Wm. Cowan, a constable of Fort Covington was at Dundee village on Saturday evening on the lookout for a prisoner who had escaped from him and made tracks for Canada. Unfortunately he imbibed a little too much liquor and slipped and fell on the hotel stoop or near by and broke a leg. He was not conscious of what had happened until some time next day.

Weekly Review

Born Into Starvation

By LEWIS MILLIGAN

The world's population is increasing at the rate of 200 million every ten years, and half of that number is being added to the already overcrowded Oriental countries in which the people are existing at undernourishment levels. It has been estimated that ten million would have to emigrate from China and India every year just to keep the populations stationary in those countries, but there is no place for them to go.

The mass poverty that has resulted from this condition of things in the Orient is being capitalized as a means of spreading Soviet propaganda among the people. To offset this movement the British Commonwealth has sponsored what is known as the Colombo Plan, providing for a six-year program of industrial development for South and Southeast Asia. The Canadian Government has offered to subscribe $25 million toward the scheme, on the condition that similar grants be made by "other countries." This is said to be a hint to the United States, but Washington has put forward a plan of its own.

Meanwhile Communism has been spreading in Asia. The Communists gained control by force in China, and it would seem that part of their policy is to reduce the population by mass executions and by throwing hundreds of thousands into the battle for Korea, where they are being slaughtered wholesale. In India the movement is more insidious and is being introduced as Socialism or the Welfare state. But it seems that under the new system in the villages, where the government has taken the place of the landlords, the government official or tax collector is no better than the landlords' men. "In fact, he is usually the very same person, with the very same remarks to make and the very same threats," writes a Presbyterian social worker. "Furthermore," she says, "this government has thought of some new ways to get money from villagers. For example, there was a man who collected money for a co-operative seed store but couldn't tell them where the seed store was to be or when it was to be built. 'I only know I'm supposed to collect,' he said. 'There ars always hawks hovering over us,' the older villagers say."

In an article that appeared in The Economist (London), the Indian correspondent for that journal wrote: "Everywhere in Asia the first enthusiasm for the welfare state has died in disillusion, and men are beginning to talk of production. But so far the liberal state has shown no sign that it knows how to increase production. Most of Asia—Malaya is the only notable exception—has been getting poorer for twenty years; much of it for fifty years. Whatever test one takes one always gets the same answer of increasing poverty." And he might have added—increasing population.

Financial aid and free gifts of food would bring relief to the people, but it would not begin to solve the crucial problem of over-population. Such assistance would have to be extended indefinitely, and it would only tend to weaken the will of the people to help themselves and change their ways of life. Ignorance and superstitution are the chief causes of the problem, and it can be solved only by the people recognizing their responsibility for the children they bring into the world. Poverty in the Orient is not a cause, but an effect. The Indian and Chinese people are producing more babies than they or the resources of their countries can provide for.

An interesting sidelight was thrown on the problem recently by Dr. George Gilmour, President of McMaster University. Speaking to the Victorian Order of Nurses, he said that Christianity in India "had so lowered the infant mortality rate as to ensure death by starvation to millions of adults; because there was simply not enough food or land available to meet the situation." It would seem more merciful that children should die in infancy rather than that they should grow up to exist under conditions of squalor and starvation that prevail in many parts of India. To use a scriptural phrase, it would have been far better if they had never been born.

DEMAND FOR LABOR

SUDBURY, Ont. — (CP) — Latest figures from the local office of the national employment service showed 2,557 job openings available, mostly in heavy industries, while only 622 men were registered as unemployed.

The Week At Ottawa...

OTTAWA, (CP)—National health insurance has been a talking point on Parliament Hill for a good many years, but the government has always refrained from making any definite promises.

A government spokesman last week however committed the government to making what at the very least may be considered a gesture toward national health insurance.

The "gesture" came from Health Minister Martin during consideration in the Commons of the estimates of his department for 1951-52. He announced the government will give consideration to establishment next year of a special committee on national health insurance.

Mr. Martin made the statement after Opposition members challenged him to match the proposed scheme of the Canadian Medical Association for prepaid medical care.

The Minister said he understood the C.M.A. plan is to bring together various regional prepaid medical care agencies so that national coverage can be offered to employees of such organizations as the railways.

There was no uniform plan of prepaid medical care for all provinces. He looked on the C.M.A. plan as a serious attempt to meet that problem.

Mr. Martin said he had discussed the plan with the Canadian Medical Association. In his opinion no health insurance program could succeed without the co-operation of the medical profession, governments and voluntary agencies.

The Canadian Government, he said, would never embark on a national health insurance scheme that would disturb the existing relationship between doctor and patient. But the government wanted to see an arrangement that would reduce the cost and incidence of disease.

Needs Provincial Acceptance

Because in Canada the provinces have jurisdiction over health matters, any health insurance scheme that is adopted will have to be accepted by the 10 provinces.

Until such time "as we are ready and equipped" the provinces will not co-operate in a national health insurance scheme, Mr. Martin said.

Stanley Knowles, C.C.F. member for Winnipeg North Centre, said a national health insurance program should come under the governments concerned and not under autonomous medical bodies.

Dr. W. G. Blair, Progressive Conservative member for Lanark, said a national health plan for Canada is a necessity. One of the big needs of Canada was more hospital beds. The municipalities had trouble getting them built. If there were to be treatment for all needing it, there would have to be a further extension of the government's health program.

Mr. Knowles urged a social-security program to provide enough doctors and hospitals, a plan to pay for those services and a system of sickness benefits which would compensate the worker for income lost through illness.

Old Age Pensions

One of the reasons Mr. Martin's statement that appointment of a special committee would be considered has aroused hopes of a national health insurance scheme in certain quarters is the government's performance on the recommendations of a similar committee.

Two years ago a committee was created to study the problem of old-age pensions. That committee's recommendations — providing for an old-age security program — were translated into legislation by the government. Last week the recommendations began their way through the Commons in statutory form.

Under the legislation, the federal government offers to make it easier for the aged and blind to qualify for pensions and allowances. If the provinces accept, the federal government will share with them the cost to the needy between 65 and 69 and blind persons 21 and over.

Mr. Martin told the house the over-all cost of the whole social-security program will be $400,000,000 a year.

Under the proposed new program, the federal government will pay $50 a month to all over 70. The 65-69 pensions will be paid on the "means test" basis. Present pensions are supplemented by the provinces.

Will Aid Universities

All parties supported the government announcement of intention to give financial aid to Canadian Universities.

Prime Minister St. Laurent—acting on recommendations of the Royal Commission on Arts and Science—said Parliament will be asked to vote the money (expected to be about $7,000,000) before adjournment of the present session.

He did not disclose how much the grants will total but they will amount to about 50 cents per capita of the present estimated population.

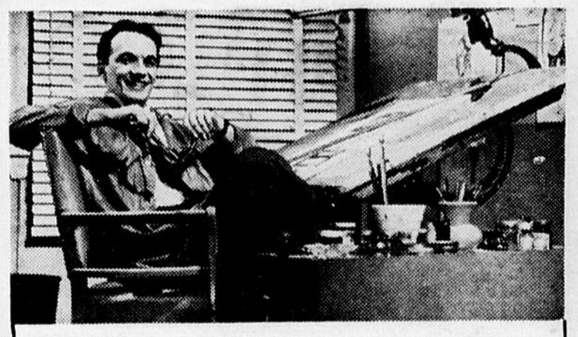

Mr. St. Laurent at the same time said the publicly-owned Canadian Broadcasting Corporation also will be provided with interim financial assistance. In evidence before the Royal Commission, CBC officials said that in order to maintain services at their present level they required $3,000,000 a year in addition to the CBC's current income of $7,500,000. The Commission recommended that amounts needed by the CBC over and above revenues from licence fees and commercial programs be covered by a statutory grant by parliament.

George Drew, Progressive Conservative leader, welcomed the announcement of aid to universities but received the statement on the CBC with some reservations. He said not many members will welcome the CBC proposal without a "proper examination," in view of the fact the broadcasting organization "has enjoyed certain monopolistic privileges."

The university grant will be divided among the provinces in proportion to their population. Within the provinces the division among institutions will be in proportion to their enrolment of students at university level.

On the basis of the latest population estimate, the grant could be divided this way:

Newfoundland $177,500; Prince Edward Island $48,000; Nova Scotia $329,000; New Brunswick $261,000; Quebec $1,988,000; Ontario $2,256,000; Manitoba $397,000; Saskatchewan $437,000; Alberta $447,000, and British Columbia, $569,000.

"No garret for me!"

"Time was when people used to joke about the typical artist who starved in a garret. Today those jokes have a hollow ring.

"Look around and you'll see lots of commercial artists like me making a very good living, thank you. I own my own home. Have a pretty good car. Everything's going my way. And yet . . .

"There'll come a day, years from now, when I'll want to start taking it easy. What will happen then? Will the garret get me?

"No sir! I've got things worked out so that I can go right on living comfortably. It won't be long before old folks will be paid some kind of benefits. And I'll be glad to get that help when my turn comes—just like everybody else. But I'll have to add to that income with my own life insurance.

"That way, I'll be able to live a care-free independent life later on. And my family is being protected with that same life insurance from now till the day I retire.

"So I'm really sold on the idea of planning my future the life insurance way—the way that meets all my security needs!"

Public Relations

Making up definitions of "Public Relations" seems to be the favourite hobby of people in the public relations business. There are scores of them, ranging from a short slogan to a bill of rights with many paragraphs. However, they all boil down to a few words well known to every literate person, words which, if put into universal practice, would change the face of the world.

Public relations is about nine-tenths doing and one-tenth talking, though its philosophy is made up of many ingredients: sociology, economics, psychology, communication and other knowledges. All these should combine to form a system of human understanding. Alas! although men have developed sciences which enable them to accomplish many great achievements, they have not yet found the catalyst that will fuse these knowledges into a science of human relations.

Except for belligerent people, public relations is necessary to enjoyment of life. Xenophon, who was a Greek general and an historian of around 400 B.C., remarked sagely that it is far easier to march up a steep hill without fighting than along a level road with enemies on each side. An environment made up of good friends is beyond price. As Lincoln put it: the best way to destroy enemies is to make them your friends.

Instincts and Emotions

Our society is civilized, we like to think. But civilization is a very recent phenomenon in human history. Arnold J. Toynbee remarks in his Study of History that the earliest civilization originated no more than 6,000 years ago.

For all practical purposes, the material of human nature within our civilization is the same as that with which the Stone Age men and women had to work. Our environment is different, but basically we are primitive people in a modern world. It is dangerous, as well as advantageous, to be heirs of all the past insofar as material things are concerned, and to carry with us still the urges and impulses of ancient days.

There are three things we can do with our instincts in trying to conform to the requirements of civilization: we may follow our primal impulses, we may deny their existence, or we may use them for ends which are in harmony with our most ardent wishes.

The third is, of course desirable. It is an outcome of self-control. And, says George Bernard Shaw, "The survival of the fittest means finally the survival of the self-controlled, because they alone can adapt themselves to the perpetual shifting of conditions."

If we recognize the need of self-control in our public relations, and the need to regulate instincts and emotions by self-discipline, we have passed the first hurdle. But there is more to it than that.

Intelligent public relations must be built upon a solid foundation of knowledge. Children may take life as frankly beyond them. They do not feel the need to fit their environment or the things that happen to them in patterns of meaning. But grown-ups govern their lives by reason, and the fuel behind all effective reasoning is knowledge.

We may have to school ourselves to think things out in their relations to other things; we may have to train ourselves to walk all around questions. The person of culture must know both sides before he can judge or talk or act with wisdom.

A Few Dim Characters

Most of the scoffers at our idea of public relations will be egocentric people who are convinced that the only sensible way to go through life is by getting their own way, getting the best of every bargain, grabbing credit for everything they or their fellow-workers do, getting ahead at the expense of other people.

They are the people who absorb like sponges all the compliments you give them; people who always let you reach for the check; people who criticize, but resent criticism; people who demand attention but never volunteer a service. They are wrapped up in themselves and their wants. When fortune smiles on them and their colleagues and neighbours perform in a satisfactory "giving" way, they are urbane and boastful.

The self-centered person is an unpleasant personality, quite unfitted for public relations. To paraphrase Nietzsche, he is a slave to himself, so cannot be a friend to others; he is a tyrant over his neighbours, so cannot have friends.

The fault-seeing person is another warped character. His excessive criticism creates tension and builds unhappiness. The fault-finder harps so much on what is wrong with his acquaintances that they avoid him; he criticizes the state of the universe without doing anything effectively to better it. He may not be dishonest, or stupid, or shallow-minded, but he certainly is going the wrong way about bettering his public relations.

The envious man is not in much better position. The habit of thinking in comparisons is a fatal one. When something pleasant occurs it should be enjoyed to the full, without souring it by thinking that it is not so pleasant as the experience so-and-so had.

Dislike and hatred are passions which vitally affect our physical life and corrupt our humanity. They exist in some persons as a kind of folkway prejudice, a kind of "general feeling of againstness."

Fear is a powerful enemy of good public relations. We may be afraid to do our best for fear our best will not be good enough. Or we may avoid people for fear they may disturb our tranquility. The way to conquer such feelings is to analyse the fears coldly and critically, and then obey Napoleon's exhortation: always take the first step toward your enemies and put on a good countenance.

Last among these factors which militate against good public relations is dependence upon people. We are, whether we like it or not, dependent upon our environment in our quest for happiness, but not in the sense of "leaning." The character of our civilization makes absolute self-reliance impossible, but the wise man accepts protection and a crutch only to the extent that they help him toward re-establishment of his self-reliance.

Don't expect, for example, a totalitarian country with all its promises of security to give you good public relations. Parasitic dependence, leaning on the state, have always carried with them police forces, secret denunciations, suspicion of one's friends and even, as in Hitler's Germany, fear of one's family.

On Judging People

Out of this roll-call of some of the positives and negatives of public relations there arise a few principles: to judge people generously, to bear with other people's ideas, and to build fellow-feeling with our neighbours — all of which add up to getting along with people.

An honourable man will be generous in his judgments of men and women. We are all ready to say that if people knew the truth behind our lives they certainly would judge us more charitably, so let's look at the other side. If we knew what is going on behind the scenes in others' lives, we, too, should be slower to judge harshly.

When it comes to judging people by success or failure we are employing an unfair method. We are evaluating them according to the consequences of their actions, and how would we like that judgment applied to our best efforts, some of which went astray because of factors over which we had no control?

We might adopt instead the basis of judgment given on an office motto that was common twenty years ago:

"When the One Great Scorer comes to write against your name, He writes not that you won or lost, but how you played the game.

Beware of Prejudice

What really does make public relations difficult is prejudice and intolerance. These twins close the doors to truth and knowledge about people.

Prejudice may be a belief based on repeated hearsay or tradition. Voltaire called it "The reason of fools." Bigotry is blind and obstinate adherence of one's own opinions, with intolerance toward those who have other views. As a result we unconsciously select examples favourable to our view, and simply fail to notice anything that tells against it.

Civilization is lopsided in its development. We are more skilful with our hands than in our thinking. Only when we reach the place where we can face facts without emotion can we achieve perfect tolerance.

A Simple Mistake

The universality of men's aversion for one another is a shocking feature of today's world, and it arises from a simple mistake. We start, in our thinking and in our idealistic manifestos by public bodies, with the false assumption that "people are essentially alike." Then, when we find by experience that they are unlike, we confuse the issues and denounce and persecute each other because we are different. We should, instead, try to find out in what way we are different, then proceed to learn why.

It is not easy to remove a prejudice quickly. A man has to try with the idea that there is fun in succeeding in being open-minded, and that his life will be fuller and sweeter. All the prejudices that beset mankind are allergic to truth; the mark of an educated man is his willingness to expose pet prejudices to it. Anyhow, the other side of a subject always has points of interest.

No one has the right to expect to enjoy good public relations un-

THE LATE GEORGE MONTGOMERY

One of the finest men we have ever met, passed away last week. That was George Hugh Alexander Montgomery, K.C., B.C.L., D.C.L., L.L.D. (Bishop's, Dalhousie and Montreal Universities respectively), mostly George Montgomery to his many friends and acquaintances. Most of the Gleaner's readers will have read about his status and reputation as a lawyer, as a director of numerous financial and industrial corporations, etc.

However, it was as George Montgomery, Laird of Lakeside Farms, Phillipsburg, Que., long standing breeder of Ayrshires that the writer knew him. In fact the Lakeside herd is one of the oldest established Ayrshire herds in Canada, and it has been a frequent, prominent exhibitor at Ormstown Exhibition. In that respect, we understand that George Montgomery was one of the largest shareholders of that Association which made possible the institution of Ormstown Exhibition.

During the past several years the late Mr. Montgomery left the management of the Lakeside Ayrshire herd and farms to his daughter, Mrs. John McFarlane and Manager J. P. (Jim) Cavers (formerly of Ormstown) but he was always keenly interested in the Lakeside herd and the Ayrshire breed in general.

FIELD-DAY EXTRAORDINARY

As was mentioned last week and also announced in the Gleaner Advertising Columns last week and this week, the annual field-day of the Howick-Huntingdon Ayrshire Club will not be just an ordinary field-day. In addition to the usual judging contests for juniors and seniors, and the basket luncheon, speakers, etc., there will be two interesting, unusual features.

TOWN COME TO COUNTRY IDEA

The Howick-Huntingdon Ayrshire Club has extended invitations to the President and Members of the Montreal Farmers' Club (comprised of business and professional men interested in agriculture and livestock) and a number of other Montreal business and professional leaders to attend its field-day at the Burnside Farms of R. R. Ness & Sons, Howick. Hence this "Town Come to the Country" idea.

Burnside's recent Ayrshire importation from Scotland will also be paraded during the course of the afternoon programme.

OUTSTANDING GUEST SPEAKER

The chief guest speaker will be A. W. Peterson, Assistant Director, Production Service, Department of Agriculture, Ottawa. To Mr. Peterson it will be sort of a "Home-Coming". Originally a "city boy" (a native of Montreal) he received most of his initial practical experience in livestock (Ayrshires) and farming at Burnside, having worked there in between one or two sessions at Macdonald College, from which College he received his B.Sc. (Agr.) degree.

INTERESTING VISITORS

Last Wednesday three interesting people from England had dinner at the Huntingdon Chateau, and were apparently of the opinion that that hostel is one of the most pleasant hotels, albeit one of the best dining-rooms (from a cuisine point of view) they stayed or tarried at during their tour from New York to California, up the coast to British Columbia, from thence to Jasper Park, Calgary, Winnipeg, Toronto, Niagara Falls, Ottawa, Montreal, the Howick-Huntingdon and other districts of Quebec.

FROM SHROPSHIRE

These guests were Mr. and Mrs. W. H. Slater, and their niece, Miss Dodd, of Wellington, Shropshire, England.

Mr. Slater is a past chairman of the Ayrshire Society of England and Wales (the English branch of the Ayrshire Cattle Herd Book Society of Great Britain and Ireland). He is the owner of three Ayrshire herds, numbering about 800 head in all, which are maintained on the Eyton, Hadley and Sheriff Hales farms, which are some 1,200 acres in extent.

ST. HYACINTHE AND MACDONALD

On the Monday, the Slaters and Miss Dodd were conveyed around various Ayrshire herds in the St. Hyacinthe, etc., district by Francois Boulais, Secretary of the Quebec Ayrshire Club; on the Tuesday they were the guests of Professor A. R. Ness at Macdonald College. On the Wednesday they visited the Howick-Huntingdon district under the guidance of Douglas A. and Mitchell A. Ness of Burnside; were the luncheon guests of Mrs. Douglas A. Ness at Woodside Farm and of Douglas A. Ness at dinner at the Chateau. Gilbert McMillan and this writer were also guests of Mr. Ness and since both Messrs. Ness and McMillan had met Mr. Slater before in the old country, and Mr. McMillan had visited Sherrif Hales, the conversation was most interesting. However, it was a case of "Tempus Fugit" and Mr. Ness had to rush the party to Montreal to catch their train to New York. On the Thursday they were to visit Strathglass Farms at Port Chester, N.Y., and embark on the Queen Mary, homeward-bound on the Friday.

FARMERS' PICNIC

The long established Farmer's Dominion Day Picnic will be held as usual in Greig's Grove, Cairnside on July 2.

AYRSHIRE EXPORTS

According to a report from E. W. Richmond, Secretary-Manager, Canadian Ayrshire Breeders' Association, the Record Office reported that 38 transfers of Canadian Ayrshires were made, as between May 26 and June 11, 1951 to 13 United States purchasers, the latter representing 8 different states. The latter being New York (2 head), Vermont (4), Maine (2), Massachusetts (5), Rhode Island (1), Tennessee (1), Florida (17) and Ohio (6).

Twenty-seven of these animals were furnished by Ontario breeders —22 from Western Ontario, 5 from Eastern Ontario; 9 by Quebec breeders and 2 by two N.B. breeders.

FROM QUEBEC

The Quebec sales to U.S. breeders were made by G. T. Dagg & Son, Shawville, 2 animals to Ohio; Jos. M. Jones, Mansonville, 4 animals to Vermont; Miss Daisy Johnston, Brome, 1 animal to Rhode Island. From Howick District went two head—one each from P. D. McArthur & Son and Douglas R. Templeton. The P. D. McArthur & Son sale was to Arthur F. Benedict & Son, Keeseville, N.Y., whilst the Douglas R. Templeton sale was to Leo Caplan, Great Barrington, Mass.

Barrie Memorial Hospital Notes

The Georgetown Group was in charge of sewing on Thursday, June 21.

Consumers and Producers are words freely used by the economists when they want to designate those who make and those who use goods. In the light of frequent misunderstandings that creep into relations between these two groups, let's take a peak at what these words really mean. All of us are consumers. We use, or "consume", food, clothing and materials which go into providing shelter. From that point we branch out into all sorts of manufactured goods and services according to our incomes, and quite often beyond. As such, we readily agree that how cheaply we can purchase all these things determines the amount and quality we are able to enjoy.

For the sake of argument we will assume that all of us are producers in one way or another, or have been. As the second Grange guidepost puts it: "the compensation of each should be based on what he contributes to the general welfare." All of us producers then, take the dollars we have earned at our labors, and, presto, in the twinkling of an eye, we are converted into "consumers". Now how do we act? As a producer, we are great believers in the Golden Rule. As a consumer, we think it's a fine thing for the other fellow.

Few of us begrudge supporting the producer of the goods we buy, but when we have to pay our taxes, his taxes and the taxes of everyone along the line, we begin to feel the pinch. We'd be further along the road to curbing inflation if this consumer-producer fellow, Joe American, John Q. Public, and Mr. Average Citizen, ganged up on the free-riders who are eating up our tax dollars.

Milk and related dairy products is New York's biggest farm business, and looms large alongside any other single industry we can name. National Dairy Month, noted each year at this time, winds up this week, and coincides, this year, with the centennial of the cheese industry, founded in this state 100 years ago, and the one hundredth anniversary of the commercial ice cream industry. The farmer is glad to see the lush green, natural pastures almost as much as bossy does, and Mrs. Housewife should be pleased to know that her husband's earning power lets her buy a quart of milk for 9 minutes average working time. It would have taken him 27 minutes fifty years ago. Milk's the best whole food, as well as the best buy on her grocery list.

Pulls Sister From River

Grace Ringulette, 8 years old, of Huntingdon, saved the life of her little sister Madeleine, 2 years old, on Thursday evening. Madeleine was walking alone on the sidewalk down by the Chateauguay River, behind their home at 95 Chateauguay St., when suddenly she fell into the water. Grace, who was looking out of the upstairs window, saw her fall, and ran to help her. She caught hold of the younger child's feet, and pulled her to safety. She is to be congratulated on her quick thinking and action.

Mrs. Carmen Stark read an interesting temperance article dealing with Alcoholics Anonymous.

This was the last program on Japan and Mrs. Grace Booth gave some interesting facts about the flowers of that country. Mrs. Violet Caldwell dealt with farming, Mrs. Pearl Milne's article on transportation was read, and Mrs. Alberta Stephen and Mrs. Elva Moore presented the religious picture. It was mentioned that a prominent Japanese had said, "I am not a Christian myself, but I know the reconstruction of Japan depends on the Christian way of life."

It was decided to cancel the July meeting and the members were invited to Mrs. Hazel Wilson's home in August for a corn roast. Delicious strawberry shortcake was served by the hostesses and a social time enjoyed.

Car Damages Lawn

Sometime last Friday evening a car was in some way driven onto the lawn at the residence of the Misses Walker. The wheel tracks show an arch shape and the lawn is quite deeply cut in one spot. Some people were supposed to have seen it. It would seem that the car was coming too fast to make the turn at this point and took the lawn in its sweep. Last fall, some trees were cut down at this spot, or it may not have been so fortunate for whoever it was. The people hereabouts complain that cars are driven at a high rate of speed along this road and they feel that something should be done to control the traffic so that more reasonable speed is exercised. There have been several accidents at this point over the years, usually by cars striking the trees, which bore mute evidence by the scars on them.

He is now President of the company which manages the farms of Cyrus Eaton, (native Nova Scotian and prominent financier, etc., of Cleveland, Ohio) in Ohio and Nova Scotia. The Eaton farm properties include a considerable estate and farms and Shorthorn cattle herd at Northfield, Ohio; some 3,000 acres at Deep Cove, Upper Blandford, N.S. Mr. Napier was very much impressed with the appearance of the district farms he saw enroute to Huntingdon, also during a short tour made afterwards, particularly as regards the hay crop. He said that the crops in the Huntingdon area are just as far advanced as they are in Ohio.

CORRECTION

Paper Mill and Union Agree on Contract

In the report of the new contract agreed upon by Howard Smith Paper Mills Ltd., and the Syndicate National des Travailleurs de la Pulpe et du Papier, published in this newspaper last week, the new rate given was quoted as $1.44. This was erroneous, and the new rate is $1.14 per hour. We make this correction in order to avoid any misunderstanding that may occur from publishing the higher rate.

Mr. and Mrs. W. W. Kelley of San Antonio, Texas, are guests at the Chateau, Huntingdon, while visiting relatives and friends in the district for the next few weeks.

Wedding

LAVOIE-McGOWAN

The scene of a very pretty wedding took place on June 9th at 9 o'clock at St. Patrick's Church, Herdman, Que. Rev. Father Marcel officiated when Edith Madelyn McGowan, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Percy McGowan, Herdman, Que., became the bride of Henry Gerald Lavoie Jr., son of Mr. and Mrs. Harry Lavoie, of Malone, N.Y.

The church was decorated with spring flowers and Mrs. Gerard Leduc played appropriate selections on the organ and Miss Jean Wilson sang "Mother Beloved" and "Because."

Given in marriage by her father, the bride chose a formal wedding gown in French ivory satin and the bridal veil of silk illusion. She carried a bridal bouquet of white gardenias.

She was attended by her sisters, Mrs. James Kirnan of Montreal, as matron of honor, and Miss Mary McGowan as bridesmaid and Norma Lewis as flower girl.

The matron of honor wore a gown of Victorian blue tissue faille trimmed with matching lace and lace mitts and a matching picture hat. Her bouquet was of American Beauty roses.

The bridesmaid wore a gown similar to the matron's in buttercup yellow with matching picture hat and she carried yellow carnations.

The flower girl wore an apple green faille and a matching poke bonnet and carried a nosegay of sweet peas and lilies of the valley.

Leo Lavoie, brother of the bridegroom was best man, and ushers were James Kirnan of Montreal, and Rupert McGowan of Huntingdon, the bride's brother.

The bride's mother wore navy blue faille with white accessories and a corsage of American Beauty roses.

The bridegroom's mother wore lilac crepe with white accessories and a corsage of white gardenias.

A wedding reception followed at the home of the bride's parents.

The bride's table was centered with a wedding cake in an arrangement of spring flowers and lighted tapers.

Before they left on their wedding trip a cocktail party was held at the Chateau in Huntingdon.

For travelling the bride wore a suit in buttercup yellow with black accessories and a corsage of white carnations.

The bride is a graduate of the Valleyfield High School and is employed in Huntingdon.

Mr. Lavoie is a graduate of Franklin Academy and is presently Assistant-Manager of the Army Store in Malone.

They will reside in Huntingdon.

Guests from out-of-town were: The bridegroom's parents from Malone and his sister, Elinor, and Miss Jean Wheatley, also of Malone, Mr. and Mrs. E. L. Raymond and son, Michael of Ilion; Mrs. Leo Lavoie of Massena; Mr. and Mrs. C. J. Darnell and Mr. and Mrs. Benson Bradley, all of Cornwall, Ont., Mrs. Ed. Harrigan, Saranac Lake, N.Y., and Miss Margaret Lapointe, also of Saranac Lake, N.Y.

The young people had had their first quarrel, and all evening neither one of them had said a word. Finally the husband decided to give in. "Please speak to me, dear," he said. "I'll admit that I was wrong and you were right."

"It won't do you any good," replied the bride tearfully. "I've changed my mind."

"Hey, there!" a passing motorist called to a hillbilly who was reclining under a tree, "Your house is on fire!"

"Know it," the hillbilly replied without moving.

"Well, why don't you do something about it?"

"Doin' it now," the hillbilly replied. "Bin a-prayin' fer rain ever since she started.

A stout, bald gentleman was discussing his tennis technique. "My brain barks out a command to my body: 'Run forward speedily. Start right away. Slam the ball gracefully over the net.'"

"And then what happens?" he was asked.

"And then," the heavy-set fellow replied, "my body says: 'Who ME?'"

When the owner of a pool hall and liquor store in a Colorado town gave a $50. check to the Methodist Church, the parishioners questioned acceptance of "tainted money." But in the pulpit next Sunday the minister said:

"There have been expressions of concern over whether we should accept a certain check. Here is that check. Verily, it is the devil's money. I can think of nothing that will cause the devil more pain than to apply his money to the work of the Lord. I am placing the check in our fund. Amen." — From "Life's Like That."

YES! IT'S A BIG ONE!

This is not the first muskie caught this year, but we believe it is the largest so far. It was caught by Cecil Pease of Trout River, on Sunday evening about 8.30, near Sylvestre's Point on Lake St. Francis. This beauty weighed 30 pounds and measured 50½ inches. The fish was quite thin, otherwise we think it would have weighed near 40 pounds. It was caught with a muskie-hound and the new type trolling rods. Mr. Chester Pease assisted his brother Cecil by doing the gaffing job successfully. The Pease family have landed several of these fine fish during the past years and it usually is a father and son, or as in this case, brothers, making it strictly a family affair.

Hints on Hay Storage

OTTAWA — The curing process in hay takes place in both field and storage and suitable field curing as well as proper methods of storage are required for the preservation of hay, points out Wm. Kalbfleisch, Agricultural Engineer at the Central Experimental Farm, Ottawa.

In harvesting, it is desirable to rake hay into straight, even windrows so the hay will dry uniformly, and large bunches, which tend to remain green at the centre, will be avoided. These green, damp bunches may cause heating in the barn and, moreover, may cause overloading of harvesters or bailers and subsequent time-loss due to breakdowns.

In dropping long hay into a barn from a hay fork, labour may be saved by spreading the hay through a system of planks or poles which deflect it toward the sides of the mow. This also reduces packing below the hay fork and makes for better curing along the centre of the mow.

Only long lengths of chopped hay should be placed in the mow. Hay in short, two-inch lengths will form a dense mass in the mow and will spoil unless it is extremely dry. Hay cut in four inch lengths can be stored in the same condition as uncut (loader) hay. Cut hay should not be tramped or walked on.

Baled hay can be stored in stacks or mows when it is cured in the same manner as long hay gathered by the hay loader method. Spacing bales about two inches apart in the stacks may aid in curing. If harvested too green, as frequently is the case, baled hay may heat severely when placed in storage.

It seems each year new pests appear to attack our gardens and this year still another has been added to our list. This unexpected hazard was the spray used by the Township of Hinchinbrooke to destroy roadside brush. Although we agree this is a most effective way of controlling the brush, we were dismayed to see that tomatoes, cucumbers, peas, hollyhocks, rose bushes and other plants were also susceptible. Because of its effect on gardens it is felt that caution should be exercised in the use of this spray and it should be used only when there is no wind.

June Set Aside For Dairy Farmers Said Encouraging

TORONTO — Reports on the progress of the June Advertising Set-Aside reaching Dairy Farmers of Canada headquarters in Toronto, indicate a good response across Canada, according to Erle Kitchen, secretary-manager. The set-aside is made each June to finance the dairy food advertising and sales promotion program launched last year by division of Dairy Farmers of Canada.

"The Set-Aside campaign is little more than two weeks under way and reports are necessarily meager," said Mr. Kitchen, "but they show that there are very few spots in Canada where there is not a willing response. One extremely encouraging feature is the support and co-operation being given by the processors and distributors. This is particularly true in the case of the creamery operators. With recent short supplies of butter and the many aggravating problems with which the butter industry has had to contend during the past couple of years, it augurs well that this branch of the industry is realizing that the domestic market must be held and increased at all costs, and that the only machinery presently available to achieve this object is our nation-wide dairy food advertising and merchandising campaign.

"Operators and producers are aware, too, that per capita consumption of butter held its own during 1950 despite all competition, and it showed an increase in January and February of this year. It can be more than a coincidence that the strength in per capita butter consumption is occurring at a time when the Dairy Foods Service Bureau advertising and sales promotion effort is well under way. We feel that we can reasonably attribute some of this strength to our selling program," states Mr. Kitchen.

Mrs. Knox in giving notes on Christian Stewardship, told how Christ referred to his followers as "stewards" (to serve) disciples (to follow) friends and partners, who were to work with Christ, as co-workers with Him.

The study lesson was taken by Mrs. Math McKell, and was a resume of the whole book on Japan. Some very important questions were brought out and discussed such as "Would Communism appeal to the Japanese people more than democracy? — Are the Japanese sincere in wanting peace? — Should we import Japanese goods in order to help them buy the food they need? Rev. Mr. Edwards was present at this meeting and gave some interesting points in this discussion. A short report on the Sectional meeting at Valleyfield was given by Mrs. Gruer and Mrs. Everett Orr. The meeting closed with prayer by Mr. Edwards.

Trench Silos For Grass Silage

OTTAWA, June 20, 1951 — Trench silos offer safe and inexpensive storage for one of the farmer's most valuable field crops — grass silage — says W. F. Cordukes, of the Division of Field Husbandry, Soils and Agricultural Engineering, Central Experimental Farm, Ottawa.

Trench silos require few building materials, can easily be built with farm labour and equipment and are frostproof, windproof and fireproof.

In locating a trench silo, the type of soil and drainage are important considerations. Areas with high water tables and stoney soils are unsuitable. The silo should be located conveniently as possible to the barn for ease of feeding. It may be entirely below ground level or partly below.

While silos may have various dimensions, commonly used is a size eight to nine feet deep (three feet below ground surface) nine to 18 feet wide at the bottom and 12 to 18 feet wide at the top. Length of the trench depends on the capacity desired.

The sloping walls prevent caving or crumbling at the sides of the silos and allow for more thorough packing of the ensilage.

The entrance to the silo should be sloped to form a ramp to the silo floor.

The walls, floor and ramps may or may not be lined. Reinforced concrete, cedar poles or planks make excellent linings if a more or less permanent silo is required. If the silo is lined with wood, the lumber should be treated with preservative.

During the filling and immediately afterwards, the silage should be packed with animals or a tractor. Then the open top of the silo should be covered with a six-inch layer of earth to seal off the air.

For trench silos in Eastern Canada, a roof is not essential, but highly desirable. It may be a very simple construction, such as logs or rails covered with loose hay or straw. A more substantial roof may be built in sections six or eight feet long and the width of the silo. The frame may be of poles or lumber covered with galvanized iron and these sections may be removed easily for filling and conveniently replaced when the silo is full.

A FEW FACTS ABOUT JAMS AND THEIR USES

No one will deny that there are a great many sweet things in life and as far as foods are concerned no one will deny that jams are one of the sweet things of everyday living.

If you are one of those industrious, far-sighted homemakers who made a good supply of jams last summer and still have quite a few full jars on your fruit-cupboard shelves, the Consumer Section, Canada Department of Agriculture, reminds you that the time has arrived to take stock of what you have on hand. In other words, you can start your spring cleaning among the jam jars.

You'll probably find that those jams which are specially popular with your family have already disappeared, but you may find a jar or two of such jams tucked away on a high shelf to put on the breakfast table some fine morning when one of the family has a birthday, or a favourite cousin, aunt or uncle is paying you a visit. The smart thing to do is to alternate the few kinds of jams you have left, so that you won't be carrying any of the less popular ones over into next season, and for greater variety, you may want to buy some jams and honey to use along with your homemade ones.

Has it ever occurred to you that when we talk about the kinds of jam we buy, "kind" has a double meaning? It is natural to think of it as describing the fruit used in making the jam, in other words strawberry jam, cherry jam, plum jam, to name only a few. However, in another sense of the word there are three kinds of jam made and sold in our shops. The Consumer Section tells that jams are made according to definite standards, or, as we might call them, commercial or large quantity recipes accurately followed. First, there is "Pure Jam" made from fruit and sugar only, except that, in the case of a fruit naturally low in either acid or pectin, a small amount of either, or both, may be added to make up the deficiency so that the jam will thicken properly. Then there is "Jam with Added Pectin", while the third kind of jam is a combination of apple or rhubarb and another fruit, apple and plum jam for example. A pure jam has about one and one-half times as much fruit in it as a jam with added pectin, and about four times as much of the more expensive fruit as a jam containing apple or rhubarb.

You'll notice that the kind of jam, in both senses of the word, is always shown on the label of the jam jar or tin. It gives the name of the jam according to the fruit used and also you'll see the words "pure jam" or "jam with added pectin" or "apple or rhubarb and, naming the other fruit jam". Something else that is there for us to read, is the net weight of the jam or the amount in fluid ounces. Incidentally, jams may be sold in only five sizes of containers ranging all the way from a six fluid ounce jar which holds half a pound of jam to a forty-eight fluid ounce container, which holds four pounds of jam.

The home economists of the Consumer Section, Canada Department of Agriculture remind us that jams have other uses besides being a spread for the breakfast toast. They recommend that you try these tested and unanimously approved Jam Squares or Jam Cake the next time you want to bake something very tasty and a little out of the ordinary.

JAM SQUARES

½ cup sugar
1¼ cups sifted pastry flour
OR 1 cup plus 2 tablespoons sifted all-purpose flour
1 teaspoon baking powder
⅛ teaspoon salt
Grated rind of 1 lemon
1/3 cup shortening
1 egg
½ cup strawberry jam

Mix and sift together sugar, flour, baking powder and salt. Add grated lemon rind. Cut in shortening with pastry blender or two knives until mixture resembles fine oatmeal. Add well beaten egg, blending thoroughly. Press 2/3 of the mixture into a greased 7" x 7" cake pan, dot with the jam. Drop the remaining 1/3 of the dry mixture by spoonfuls on the jam. Bake in a moderate oven, 350° F., until lightly browned, 40 to 45 minutes. These are best when eaten fresh. Yield: 1 pan of squares 7" x 7".

JAM CAKE

¾ cup shortening—preferably part butter
1 cup brown sugar
2 eggs
1 cup jam
3½ cups sifted pastry flour
OR 3 cups sifted all-purpose flour
1 teaspoon baking soda
2 teaspoons baking powder
⅛ teaspoon salt
¾ teaspoon nutmeg
¼ teaspoon cinnamon
1 cup sour milk

Cream shortening until fluffy, add sugar and cream well together. Add well-beaten eggs and jam and beat thoroughly until light and creamy. Mix and sift together the flour, baking soda, baking powder, salt, nutmeg and cinnamon and add alternately with the milk to the creamed mixture, blending thoroughly. Bake in a large greased 10" x 10" cake pan in a moderate oven, 350°F., until done, about 1 hour. Yield: 1 cake 10" x 10".

MONTREAL—What man doesn't like having a fuss made over him? And what better way to fuss for him than to bake his very special favorite cake? Perhaps it is chocolate or perhaps it's a white cake, but I'll bet whatever type it is, it's a Swans Down cake that gets the loudest praise! For all cakes are fluffier, more evenly textured, more all-round delicious when made with SWANS DOWN CAKE FLOUR. That's because Swans Down is sifted and resifted until 27 times as fine as ordinary flour. You'll find all sorts of grand cake recipes in the Swans Down booklet "Learn to Bake—You'll Love It." Mail your request for "Learn to Bake — You'll Love It," with your name and address and 20c in coins, to General Foods, Limited, Dept. K, Cobourg, Ontario.

Are You "Scrimping Along" from pay-day to pay-day? It's no life for a woman, is it? So many of my friends have been doing just that since the cost of living got so high 'n' mighty. Now, with Personal Planning, the BANK OF MONTREAL'S wonderful, down-to-earth system of handling your money, most women can say "goodbye" to unpleasant scrimping. Several of my friends have already proved that Personal Planning their income helps it overtake rising prices and increased taxes . . . and even leave a bit over for savings. So take a tip from me and get your copy of the booklet "PERSONAL PLANNING" today. It's as close to you as your neighbourhood branch of the B of M . . . and the only obligation is to yourself!

No More Frowns For Me because of p-a-i-n-f-u-l corns! I've just made a new "foot friend" in BLUE-JAY Corn Plasters—with Phenylium! What's that? It's the greatest scientific discovery in years to us people with unhappy feet! It's the most effective medication ever invented for corns and calluses! Took ten years of scientific research by the Blue-Jay folks to perfect Phenylium . . . and now it's effective in 95% of the cases tested! So, if corns or calluses have been making you feel like growling at everyone . . . just buy "Blue Jay" Corn Plasters with Phenylium and end your troubles!

Breakfast Will Be A Gay Meal indeed when you give it sparkle with the tempting deliciousness of your homemade jams 'n' jellies. And with CERTO FRUIT PECTIN to help you, you can preserve all the choice, rich flavour of fully ripe fruits in jams and jellies, so quickly and easily. You see—Certo recipes cut the time to one-third of the former long-boil method for both jams and jellies. And you get up to 50% more jam or jelly from the same amount of fruit!

Serve It Hot—Or Serve It Icy Cold . . . this tea is always good! For RED ROSE TEA is quality tea, as you can tell from the very first sip. That's why it's important to insist on Red Rose when you're planning to make iced tea. For unless tea is above-average in quality, some of its flavour and strength is lost with the melting ice. Yes, my choice for both iced and hot tea is delicious Red Rose. Its flavour goes such a long, long way. It actually gives you more cups per pound—hot or cold! So when you want a truly good cup of tea—morning, noon or night—all year 'round . . . make it Red Rose! And ask for Red Rose Coffee, too. It's as good as Red Rose Tea!

SPICY-CRUST MUFFINS

2 cups sifted flour	1/3 cup shortening
2-1/2 tsp. Calumet Baking Powder	1 egg, well beaten
	3/4 cup milk
2 tbsp. sugar	2 tbsp. sugar
3/4 tsp. salt	1/4 tsp. cinnamon

Sift flour once, measure, add baking powder, 2 tbsp. sugar, and salt; sift into bowl. Cut in shortening. Combine egg and milk; add all at once to flour mixture. To mix, draw spoon from side of bowl toward centre (15 times), turning bowl gradually. Chop spoon through batter (10 times). Then stir only until all flour is dampened (only about 5 strokes). Public Relations less he can listen to both sides of an argument, tolerate things which are distasteful to him personally, and take the gentle, the favourable and the indulgent side of most questions.

Social Feeling

Much of what has been said may appear far removed from the practice of public relations. Business men attending a public relations seminar expect to be told things they should do. But before the "doing" stage there must be an "understanding" stage. Public relations is the sum total of the effect we have on other people, and that cannot be turned on and off like a lawn sprinkler. Just as soon as we try to build public relations by calculated astuteness we score a complete failure.

Many a business man could improve his public relations overnight by getting first hand contact with his public and finding out what he has been overlooking. Those who are fishermen will readily admit that it is not by their own taste, but by the taste of the fish, that they determine the choice of bait.

Sympathy is the purest expression of social sentiment, when it is thought of in its primary meaning: "Fellow-feeling." It is a great neutralizer of hard thoughts, it builds up a man's opinion of himself, it identifies a man with his community. But let it be real sympathy. Contrast the practical sympathy of the crippled poet Byron, who, unable to fight, offered to take half the blows a bully was giving another boy, with the selfish "sympathy" of Pepys, who wrote in his diary: "borrowed a coat of a man for 6d and so he rode all the way, poor man, without any."

Closely allied to practical sympathy is praise. Everyone responds better to approval than to censure. It pays in public relations to seek out praiseworthy attributes, even (or perhaps particularly) in persons we dislike. There is nothing negative in this: it is not enough to refrain from making unkind comments, we must try to find something pleasant to say in their place.

Analysing a Question

If we are really eager to improve our public relations, and run up against a problem whose solution does not appear readily, let us analyse it.

Suppose it is a matter affecting Allen and Jones. There are three approaches. We need to set down the answers to these questions:

How does this matter look to Allen? What significance has it for him personally?

How does it look to Jones? What is its significance to him?

How does it look to me, an outside observer, when I compare the way it looks to Allen with the way it looks to Jones?

And then, having judged the matter and reached a decision, act with dignity. Even the most serious difficulty in human relations can be solved if we are willing to keep ourselves out of the conflict and avoid angry debate.

Persuasion is better public relations than compulsion. The man who is persuaded feels he has gained something; the man who is compelled believes he has been despoiled of something.

And remember that wounded vanity is one of the greatest causes of all the trouble and hard feeling in the world, the great disrupter of public relations.

Good Manners

Human relations, individual, community, and international, would be improved if people would only mend their manners.

There is no law in the sphere of manners, and following the etiquette book however slavishly will not give us what is needed. Charming manners are subconscious. They mean regard for the other fellow's feelings. They make you treat every man with such consideration that his memory of you will be pleasant —and isn't that good public relations?

Great men have been good-mannered men. Despite the fact that several friends had been dining with Frederick the Great for years, he always sent them a politely-worded invitation for each meal: he did not with them to think that he took their company for granted.

It is in little things that our predisposition to good public relations shows itself. Courtesy may be the small change of public relations, but it adds up to a huge sum.

The man who writes a letter appreciative of another's promotion is performing good public relations. Prominent businessmen are proud to carry and show to their friends letters from strangers in humble walks of life commenting favourably on ideas they have expressed in speeches, in published articles, or in their advertisements.

Every Day — All Day

But it is on the street and in public contacts everywhere that most of us have our best chance to build good public relations. To find out just what can be improved upon in our daily encounters with people, nearly a hundred men and women were asked to name the most common breaches of good manners. Here is a summary:

Pedestrians failing to wait for the green light; jay-walking; walking on sidewalks more than two abreast, or zigzagging, or dawdling, or rushing, or daydreaming, or gathering in groups to talk.

Motorists racing the lights; honking horns; splashing; disregarding pedestrians; stopping astride the intersection white line; jockeying for an advantage over other drivers.

In stores: the disinterest of sales clerks; crowding by customers; refusal of clerks to see a customer near closing time; fumbling by customers who don't know what they want.

On street cars: pushing; spreading out over more seat than is necessary; lack of courtesy; blocking the steps and the entrance.

In elevators: smoking; refusing to move to let people off.

On the telephone: inaudible voices; mumbling; talking with pipe or cigarette in mouth; abruptness; lack of information; delay in answering when the call is put through.

In offices: unnecessary noise: dictating while smoking; borrowing and not returning; holding up work until late in the day.

In theatres: talking; cracking gum; eating; wearing big hats; shuffling feet; taking up both arm rests; breaking into a line-up.

In restaurants: holding table space while others wait; smoking; combing hair and applying make-up.

Now, there is a list that every reader will approve as a bill of complaints. Every item on it is a trifling thing that can be put right at the expenditure of only a little thought. What to do, of course, is for everyone interested in improving his public relations to go back over the list and tick off the items in which he offends, and in which he hopes to improve himself.

Humour and Patience

To a thoroughly civilized person all human endeavour will appear at times slightly comic. We need a sense of humour in good working order if we are to have the best public relations.

But humour must be handled lightly. Every joke must have a truth, and that truth must not hurt. A joke on yourself is an effective way of disarming hostility. It is, in fact the safest kind of joke. Next is the joke that conveys a compliment. Beyond that, it is wise to use imaginary people or people who are entirely out of range.

One way to advance quickly is to eliminate sources of friction before they occur. And be sincere. Good public relations can't be built on make-believe. The foundation of confidence is sincerity, and confidence in us is necessary if we are to be acceptable to our neighbours.

If a broad plan of improving the public's relations with itself were followed throughout the world, what kind of place would it be in which to live? Why, we could build the most gracious age in history, an age in which we should all like to live.

And, as was said in the first paragraph, that kind of public relations is built on a few well-known words. They make up the Golden Rule: "As ye would that men should do to you, do ye also to them likewise." Or, as we say it in our shortest way: Do as you would be done by.

FRANKLIN CENTRE — This community was shocked to hear of the sudden death of their late relative, friend and neighbour, Mrs. Miles Towns, on Tuesday evening at Huntingdon.

A few years ago Mr. and Mrs. Towns sold their farm here and moved to Huntingdon, to spend their declining years. Deep sympathy is felt for Mr. Towns, who is now alone, the last member of his family.

The funeral service was held Friday afternoon in the Huntingdon United Church. Interment at Hillside Cemetery.

The S.S. service at the Church of the Nazarene was marked by several special features. Rev. T. E. Martin addressed the Bible Study Class. Mr. Mullen presented an interesting object lesson "The Key to Heaven" and accompaning with guitar he sang several songs and choruses for the children.

Four young scholars received prizes for a quarter's perfect attendance. Although the goal of 51 present was not quite achieved the attendance reached a record for this year.

A capacity audience was present Sunday night at the closing service of the revival meetings at the Church of the Nazarene.

Mr. T. DeVerne Mullen, whose talented singing has been greatly enjoyed, sang a large number of requests, including, "It is No Secret What God Can Do" and old favorites, such as "Will the Circle be Unbroken."

Farewells were said to Mr. Mullen who left Monday for his home in St. Johns, N.B. Rev. Mr. Martin stayed over for the Musical Service with the Eastern Nazarene College quartette on Monday night.

School closed officially on Friday when all the pupils were present to receive their reports. Two long delightful months of freedom lie before teachers and pupils.

(Mrs.) T. B. McGinn,
Teacher

The above named school officially closed on June 22nd, but the day previous the teacher and pupils of grades 4 to 6 went on an educational tour to Ottawa, where they visited the Parliament Buildings and attended briefly, a session of the House of Commons. They were shown Rideau Hall, Laurie House, and several other government buildings, as well as a Seminary, a pulp plant in Gatineau Mills, the E. B. Eddy Match Factory in Hull and many other places of interest.

The children took an active interest in everything and were very grateful to their parents who financed the tour, to Mr. Thurston, the president of the School Board, who obtained permission, also to Mr. John Quenneville, who donated his car and chauffeur services. It was a more than ordinary educational experience.

The group was hospitably entertained by Mrs. Sadie Johnston of Ottawa, and by Mr. and Mrs. Harland McCarthy of Gatineau Mills, at the latter home they were overnight guess. t

In the current fiscal year Ottawa estimates an income of $785 million from income taxes on individuals.

The biggest little book in Canada

ONLY YOU know the personal story your bank book tells. Did you know there are 8,000,000 such bank books in Canada? Each contains information that is strictly private, each represents "money in the bank".

Your money is part of the grand total of these little books — a great pool of deposits mobilized and safeguarded in Canada's 3,700 branch banks.

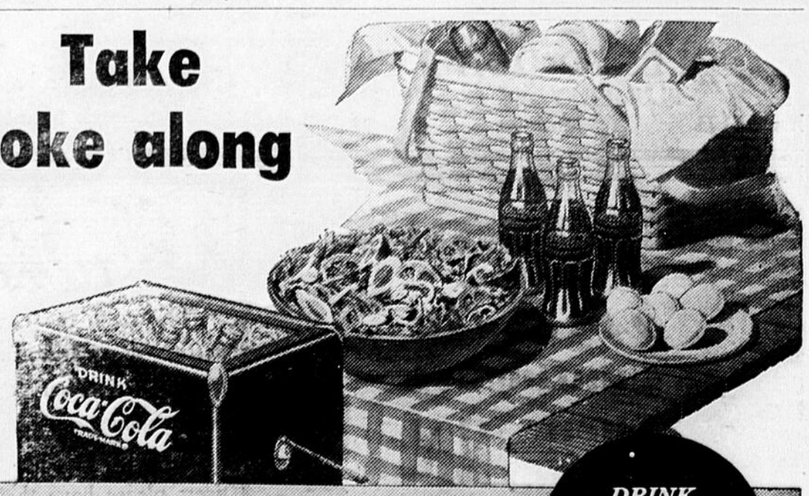

Your money in the bank and that of millions like you, enables the banks to provide the credit that helps keep Canadians producing, manufacturing, marketing.

That is how you help the chartered banks serve Canadians.
