World News In Brief

Des Moines, Ia., Feb. 22.—(AP)—Mrs. Opal Dixon today awaited formal sentence to life in prison after an all-woman jury yesterday convicted the 35-year-old mother of two married teen-age daughters of the "hypodermic syringe" robbery Jan. 22 of the Des Moines Bank and Trust Co. of $3,950.

The charge on which Mrs. Dixon was convicted—entering a bank with intent to rob—carries a mandatory life sentence in Iowa. Judge Russell Jordan set Feb. 28 for formal sentencing.

Los Angeles, Feb. 22.—(AP)—Chemical experts agreed today that a 300-gallon mixture of chemicals equivalent to 3,600 pounds of explosive virtually as violent as nitroglycerin caused the downtown Los Angeles explosion which killed 15 and injured 158 Thursday.

A mixture of perchloric acid and acetic anhydride was the lethal poison which disintegrated the O'Connor electroplating plant, wrecked nearly a block of buildings and rattled a square mile of the city, said police chemists. Workmen still searched today for two others still missing.

Milwaukee, Feb. 22.—(AP)—Counsel Harry V. Neisser today described as a "terrible mistake" the arrest of Rev. Dr. John Lewis, 72, pastor of one of Milwaukee's oldest and largest churches, on a charge of arson in connection with a $150,000 fire at the church he has been pastor for nearly 12 years.

The elderly pastor of the Calvary Presbyterian Church appeared on the arson charge yesterday and was released on $1,000 bond pending a hearing March 10. Neisser, his counsel, said the district attorney's office was "wrong as it could be in the interpretation it had placed on evidence in the fire."

Dr. Lewis, who has held pastorates and college posts in both the United States and Great Britain, has denied the charge in an oral statement to Joseph Tierney, assistant district attorney.

Arson is punishable by a prison term one to ten years under Wisconsin law.

Fort William, Feb. 22.—(AP)—A Fort William Liberal Riding Association's proposal that Northwestern Ontario secede from the rest of the province was countered last night by the suggestion that the proposed division should take in all of northern Ontario stretching from the Manitoba to Quebec borders.

The latter proposal, made here by unofficial lakehead sources, contended that Northwestern Ontario alone, taking in the Kenora, Rainy River, Fort William and Port Arthur provincial ridings and with a total population of between 125,000 and 150,000 persons, would find it difficult to finance a skeleton provincial administration.

Bill Indicates Quebec Is Ready To Resume Tax Talks

Quebec, Feb. 22.—(AP)—Premier Maurice Duplessis made public last night the text of a bill submitted to the Quebec Legislature to authorize the Provincial Government to conclude with the Federal Government any tax agreement "which it may deem appropriate, effective and just."

The bill, which indicates that the Quebec Government is prepared to reopen tax discussions with the federal authorities, received first reading in the Legislative Assembly yesterday.

It would have effect only until March 31, 1948, and would "re-open and safeguard the case may be, the constitutional rights of the province" and "search for and apply the best means of attaining the objects of the federal pact."

It would be designed "to simplify the methods of collecting taxes, to reduce them to reasonable proportions and to lighten the burden for the taxpayer." It would come into force on the day of its sanction.

Premier Duplessis released the text of the bill at a press conference but declined to make any comment about it.

Worst Blizzard Of Winter Again Disrupts British Recovery Plan

Early Easing Of Rent Bars Under Study

Commercial Rentals May Be Advanced Immediately And Pre-War Housing Prices Shortly After May 1.

Ottawa, Feb. 22.—(AP)—Reports circulated in the capital today that the Government would take action shortly to increase commercial rentals, possibly by as much as 25 per cent, but that domestic rentals would remain unchanged until May 1.

These reports, unconfirmed in official quarters, said that the upward adjustment in commercial rentals would be on a sliding scale which would range as high as 25 per cent. This may become effective at the month-end.

The Cabinet is known to have had increases in rents under study for some time but is thought to have decided to leave domestic rentals unchanged until the traditional moving period around May 1.

There have been reports that the Government has been under heavy pressure from landlords of both types of accommodation to make some adjustments which would give justice to owners of pre-war accommodation which still is renting at pre-war rates.

Today's reports coincided with recent indications that the Government already has printed, or is in the process of printing, forms to be made out by landlords in application for increased rentals if and when they are decided.

The Government is known to feel that there are many cases of injustice in the field of rentals, particularly among those owners with pre-war homes and premises, but has been unable to find a formula which an equitable adjustment could be made.

A number of plans have been considered by the Prices Board, the agency in charge of rentals controls, but none up to now have proved to be satisfactory to the cabinet.

It was considered possible, however, that some solution to the commercial rentals problem, admittedly far less complex than that of domestic rentals, now may have been devised.

But, even if the Government does take some steps to increase rentals generally, it was not likely that the vital eviction control will be removed.

Ottawa, Feb. 22.—(AP)—Police boarded a Vancouver-bound train at Ottawa and arrested an unidentified 15-year-old boy they said absconded with approximately $12,000 for the Mount Royal Hotel, Montreal.

Police said the lad told them he was clerk's messenger at the hotel and it was his duty to carry the daily receipts to the bank for his employers. Instead he had walked past the bank, purchased more than $200 worth of clothing and two round-trip tickets to Vancouver. Police found approximately $6,500 in his luggage.

He was returned to Montreal in company with a private detective employed by the hotel.

Return of Snowstorms and Gales Disrupts Delivery of Coal to Industrial and Power Production Centres.

London, Feb. 22.—(AP)—The people of Britain—confronted by what the non-alarmist Times of London calls "the most disturbing statement yet ever made by a British government"—today watched "the worst blizzards yet" of the worst winter of this century falling on the United Kingdom and awaited the signal to open battle to meet the government's increase-production-or-go-hungry challenge.

With the return of snowstorms and gales hampering transportation of coal to power stations and probably further delaying the industrial switch-over of electric power in all areas save in that of Midlands factory and producing zone, Britons had time to digest the grim news contained in the economic white paper issued yesterday.

The nub of the national problem is an increase of coal production to meet the demands of industry which must be thrown into higher gear to meet demands of the export program—an increase of which is the only means by which Britain can hope to import pre-war luxuries or even some of life's necessities.

The Times described the survey as "the most disturbing statement ever made by a British government" and added: "The account which it gives of this country's plight is frank and grave. The continued reluctance of the government to insist outright upon root and branch remedies which should follow inexorably from their analysis is at least alarming."

What the little people of Britain face, in general, is this: All amenities must be sacrificed at personal expense to meet the national need which now is the immediate need of all.

There now probably will be no increase in food rations, except possibly for a seasonal rise in milk supplies, although until a few weeks ago a more generous allotment of food had been expected. Clothing coupons must be stretched farther. Beer production has dropped during the power switch-off and may not rise again to the "pre-freeze" level. Pressure is being exerted in some quarters to trim imports of Virginia-type tobacco—the chief British source—until the country's trade balance improves.

Rationing of domestic consumption of gas and electricity—both produced from coal—is almost certain. Already shortages have forced an unofficial cut by half of the ration of coal and coke for household grates.

Railway trains probably will be forced to operate at slower speeds through a shortage of timber for ties; hence those who commute by train will have to spend longer dreary hours going to and from their jobs. The building program—a crying need in blitzed areas—will be slowed down with short lumber supplies again delaying work.

To meet export necessities a large proportion of many types of goods now going to the needy domestic market may be diverted overseas—and part of the already short manpower available must be devoted to the task of restoring the merchant marine to carry the load.

If coal production does not improve, if lack of public co-operation undermines the great national effort, the standard of living—already low by North American standards—will fall even lower. The Government may have to abandon many long-term plans for improving the lot of the little people of Britain. As during the Second World War, the bulk of the awesome responsibility rests heavily on the tired shoulders of the common people of Britain.

U.K. Expects No Assistance From Outside

Canadian and U.S. Loans Now Being Used as Vital Part of Economic Recovery.

London, Feb. 22.—(AP)—Sir Stafford Cripps, haggardly peering at documents in the light of a single candle, announced casually at a press conference today that Britain was entering a hard economic battle for restoration of national life without expectation of further financial help from outside.

After reviewing the economic White Paper being on Britons to make a new effort to save the foundation of the country without any prospect that they would be encouraged with more food or leisure, the Board of Trade president said:

"No more financial assistance from the Dominions or anyone is expected."

He said the Canadian and United States loans now were being used as a vital part of the economic picture as Britain struggles toward a balance between exports and imports under rigid controls this year. By the end of the year, exports must be 140 per cent of 1938, under the influence of the fuel crisis, they probably will be down substantially from the 111 per cent reported in the fourth quarter of 1946.

"We are determined to go ahead without asking others outside to help further," said Sir Stafford.

Britain expected no early improvement in food standards, it was clear workers could do better in production to save Britain, and prices and employment conditions must not be allowed to act as bars to production.

Sir Stafford would seek to divert more goods to North America where dollar currency can be obtained to fill Britain's greatest monetary need.

Washington, Feb. 22.—(AP)—President Truman yesterday asked the United States Congress to vote $350,000,000 for direct relief to "liberated" countries in 1947, now that U.N.R.R.A. is going out of business.

Chairman Charles Easton (Rep.-N.J.) of the House of Representatives Foreign Affairs Committee, a native of Poughwash, N.S., immediately introduced authorizing legislation with a proviso that the countries receiving the aid must permit United States newspaper men to report on its use. He said his committee will take it up next week.

Another bill would be necessary later to make the actual appropriation. Chairman John Taber (Rep.-N.Y.) of the House Appropriations committee told newspaper men he is withholding judgment until more details are available.

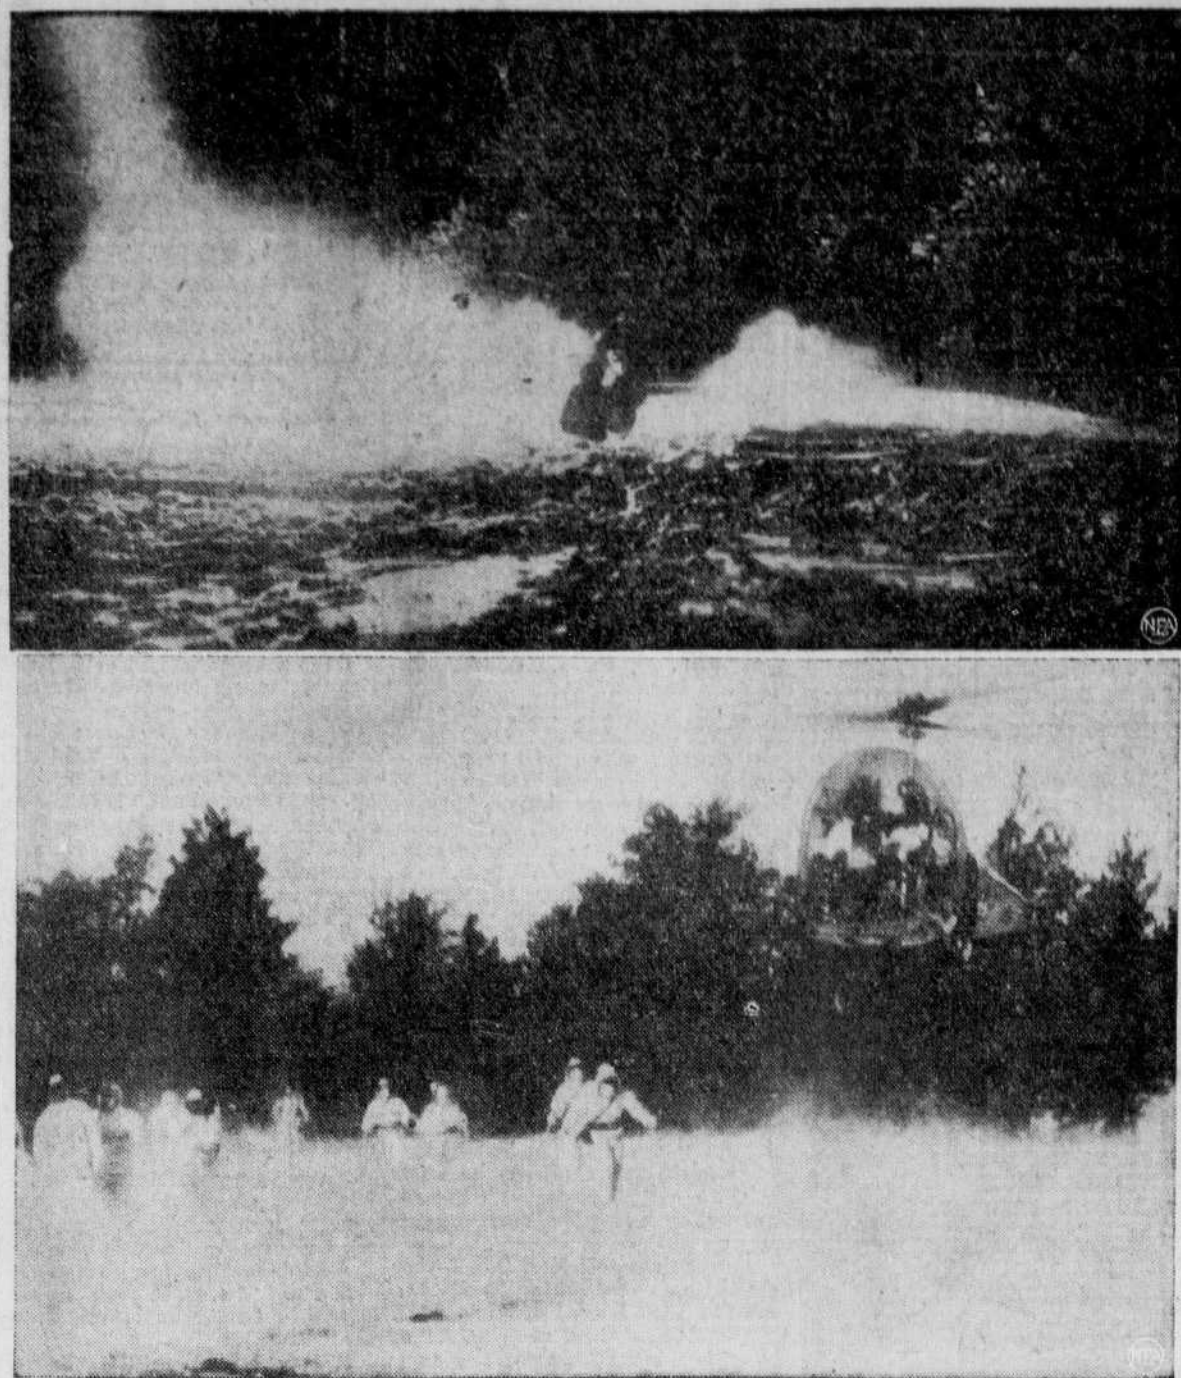

The appropriation would be in addition to $300,000,000 budgeted to the War Department for relief in the occupied countries—Germany, Austria, Japan and Korea. On this request Taber already has served notice that "they will have to show us that they need this extra money before they get it."

Under the United States plan, the 823 islands—including the Marshalls, Carolines and Marianas—would be administered by the United States, which would be allowed to fortify them.

But whether the Security Council approves the plan or not, the United States Government has made it clear that she intends to keep this strategic chain of islands because she considers them essential to American security.

Meanwhile, the Big Four of the Security Council—the United States, Britain, Russia and France—appeared near to naming a candidate for the governorship of Trieste—a tough police job.

U.K.'s Bread Ration Is Up To Dominion

Strachey Says Canadian Wheat Shipments of 12,000,000 Bushels a Month to Be Required for Some Time.

Ottawa, Feb. 22.—(AP)—Canadian wheat shipments of approximately 12,000,000 bushels a month will be required for the next few months if the British bread ration is to be maintained, Hon. John Strachey, British Food Minister, said today.

Mr. Strachey told a parliamentary press conference that was about the amount Canada shipped in January and, although he did not want to place all the burden of maintaining the ration on the Dominion, it was the quantity Britain would need until St. Lawrence River navigation was re-opened in May.

Predicting the ration would continue until spring, he said it was true that Britain obtained wheat supplies from other sources but stressed that Canadian shipments were the "biggest single factor" in the British supply position.

Of his trip to this continent, he said that he had come with a view to dealing with immediate supply problems and looking forward into the next crop year.

The crux of the current shortage in wheat deliveries lay in a number of factors which might delay the fall shipments which might have helped Britain build her stocks up satisfactorily. These factors include labor difficulties, weather conditions, the boxcar shortage and

MacKenzie King's Condition Better

Ottawa, Feb. 22.—(AP)—High Government sources disclosed today that it had been feared two days ago that Prime Minister MacKenzie King, abed with a heavy cold, was developing pneumonia but they added that this danger now was passed and Mr. King's condition was "very much better."

One informant said that Mr. King, who has been confined to his home since last week-end, developed a high fever Wednesday and for a time there was "real concern" about his condition.

It also was disclosed that Mr. King's regular physician had called in a specialist for consultation.

The informant continued: "But he is really much better now. His temperature has dropped to normal and all the danger is passed. But for a time we were really worried."

This source added that the 73-year-old Prime Minister, although he still is abed, resumed work today and signed a number of letters sent to his Laurier Avenue home from his offices in the east block of the parliament buildings.

Jews Seeking Reparations From Austria

Token Payments to Aid in Rehabilitation of Jewish Refugees Urged in Brief to Foreign Ministers' Deputies.

London, Feb. 22.—(AP)—The four-power Foreign Ministers' deputies had a memorandum today urging that Austria be required to pay Jewish "token reparations" because of persecution of Jews in the country from the time Germany took over in 1938.

The deputies, doing preliminary work on Austrian and German peace treaties, received the recommendation yesterday from the American Jewish Conference.

The conference proposed that Austria pay an unspecified sum to "an appropriate Jewish body to be designated by Allied authorities."

In addition, said the memorandum, all unclaimed Jewish property in Austria should be turned over to such a body to help in "rehabilitation and resettlement" of Jewish survivors of persecution.

Of this amount, $2,849,300 was voted for ordinary departmental expenditures and $120,000 was voted for capital expenditure by the Mines and Fisheries Departments.

Thirteen departments were voted money, with the estimates as follows:

Agriculture, $1,000; game, $60,000; executive council, $45,000; education, $36,000; mines, $30,700 plus $105,000 capital expenditures; fisheries, $51,500.

No General Freight Rates Inquiry Will Be Conducted

Ottawa, Feb. 22.—(AP)—The inquiry into the railways' application for increased freight rates is not going to evolve into a general investigation of Canada's railroad rate structure, the Board of Transport Commissioners indicated yesterday after a renewed outbreak of argument over the scope of the current hearings.

Chief Commissioner J. A. Cross said he did not think the hearings were going to "drift into any general freight rates inquiry" after railway counsel had lodged protest at the range of questioning being undertaken by provincial counsel opposing the lines' request for general 30-per-cent increases.

The question of the scope of the inquiry, argued at earlier hearings, came up again when Isaac Pitblado, chief railway counsel, took exception to the breadth of questions being put by Manitoba counsel Wilson McLean to C. E. Jefferson, C. P. R. freight traffic chief, in his third day on the witness stand.

"We now are getting into a general freight inquiry," Mr. Pitblado said. "We don't object to having one later, but we do not think it should be imposed upon this inquiry."

New House Seating Plan Under Debate

Western Member Urges That Redistribution of Seats Be Undertaken by Independent Commission Rather Than House Committee.

Ottawa, Feb. 22.—(AP)—The long-expected debate on the proposed re-adjustment of Commons representation opened last night and drew a motion aimed at referring the Government's redistribution bill to an independent commission rather than to a committee made up of members of the House itself.

The motion came from Stanley Knowles (CCF—Winnipeg North Centre), who said he did not think a House Committee constituted a "sure way" to obtain an "impartial" redistribution and urged that the matter be placed in the hands of an independent tribunal.

Only a handful of speakers took part in the brief debate, which began late in the sitting. They included Hon. C. G. Power, former Air Minister and Liberal Member for Quebec South, John R. MacNicol (PC—Toronto Davenport), George Black (PC—Yukon) and Rea (Conservative) Union des Electeurs for Pontiac.

State Secretary Gibson, sponsoring the bill, explained the main provisions of the measure, which will give Quebec Province eight additional seats in the House, and said a House Committee would be established to determine the boundaries of the new ridings.

The House opening was featured by the adoption of a motion to again defer, until March 3, resumption of the Throne Speech debate so that precedence might be given to the handling of the Government's control legislation.

Reconstruction Minister Howe told the house that, except in the case of Dominion Coal Co., subsidies paid on coal production in the Maritime Provinces will be suspended during the current coal strike.

Before opening the redistribution debate, the House completed study in committee of a Government bill to continue for one year wartime bonuses paid rural mail carriers.

Formal third and final reading was deferred to another sitting.

Postmaster General Bertrand said he could not agree to Progressive Conservative requests that the Post Office Department establish a uniform basis for paying the carriers because it was impossible to find any such yardstick.

John Diefenbaker (PC—Lake Centre) said that if there was an election year "there would be a lot of playing around" by the Minister with mail contracts and complained that the bill would give the Minister "a great big patronage melon to be distributed as he pleases without the control of Parliament."

Request for a better deal for the rural carriers came from Arthur Smith (PC—Calgary West), John Sinnott (L—Springfield), G. J. Tustin (PC—Prince Edward-Lennox), Russell Boucher (PC—Carleton Place) and W. D. M. Wylie (SC—Medicine Hat).

In opening the Redistribution debate, Col. Gibson said representation in the House under the bill, would be as follows, with present representation in brackets:

Ontario 83 (82); Quebec 73 (65); Nova Scotia 13 (12); New Brunswick 10 (10); Prince Edward Island 4 (four); Manitoba 16 (17);

ed. All elements going into the making of rates should be considered, including territorial matters.

"The reasonableness of all rates is an issue before the board," he submitted.

When the session ended, Mr. Jefferson was still on the witness stand, and he was to undergo resumed cross-examination on Monday morning.

REPORTS GIVEN BY INSTITUTE AT WAY'S MILLS

Way's Mills, Feb. 22.—The February meeting of the Way's Mills Women's Institute met at the home of P. B. Buckland, with Mrs. John MacKinnon, hostess. A delicious baked-bean dinner was served at noon, to fourteen adults and three children. The meeting was called to order by the president, Mrs. W. B. Sargeant, with the usual opening exercises. The minutes of the previous meeting were read and approved. The roll call subject, "What can be done to help the shut-in neighbour?" was then answered.

Plans for a paper salvage campaign were made, and everyone was asked to save all the paper possible for this project. Instructions will be given later as to when this is to be collected. Mrs. Sargeant's garage as a depot for this collection kindly offered the use of a room in the spring. It is hoped that a substantial amount may be raised in this way.

Several letters of thanks from Institute friends in the old country were read expressing their appreciation of the boxes received at Christmas time. These boxes were opened at a meeting of the Institute, and as one contained a Christmas cake, it was cut and served at this meeting. This, particularly, seemed to be most appreciated, as fruit cake has become a rarity there.

Gordon MacKinnon, of the Way's Mills School, then delivered the address which he had prepared for the contest sponsored by the Teacher's Association, entitled "Has The Age of Adventure Passed?" He opened his remarks with the dictionary definition of adventure, a dangerous undertaking, or to put in the power of chance. He gave examples of explorations of new lands, and accomplishing new feats. His address was very much appreciated, and all expressed their thanks and best wishes for his success in this contest.

Several letters of thanks were read from shut-ins, who had received Christmas boxes. Plans were made for a sale to be early in the spring. Conversers were appointed to look after each department.

Miss Oliver and Mrs. Dobb were elected as a nominating committee for the 1947 list of officers. Mrs. Hill and Mrs. Cass were asked to compile the program for the coming year. Money was voted for the school prizes, the nature of which is to be determined after conferring with the teachers. The following convener's reports were read: Agriculture, Mrs. Cass urged all poultrymen to order their chickens earlier than usual to ensure earlier delivery of eggs to Britain; home economics, Mrs. Dobb, who asked for Canadian receipts for a new cook book; welfare and health, Mrs. Geddes, who reported that life expectancy has increased from 21 years average in the 16th century until in 1940, the average male lived to the age of 63 years and the female to 66 years; changes in nursing education were reported by Mrs. Holmes, who stated that nursing schools are to be separated from hospitals, and the course reduced to two years. Miss Oliver, a services, reported the letters of thanks from overseas. Institutes, Mrs. Hovey read interesting data regarding the formation of the Blue Cross Plan, relating that teachers in Baylor, Texas, originated the idea.

The discussion topic, "How to prevent accidents at home and abroad" was answered with many timely hints.

Our favorite story about Raoul is the time a process server was waiting outside a sound stage to serve him with papers in a minor lawsuit. All of a sudden the door opened and 20 guys with black patches over their right eyes walked out.

Raoul was one of them but the process server just threw up his hands in disgust and went home.

Canadian Border Points Were Much Busier Than Last Year But Tourist Car Entries Off

Border officials checking traffic from the United States during January were 16.2 per cent busier than in January, 1946, the Dominion Bureau of Statistics reported today.

During the month a total of 342,312 automobiles crossed the Canada-U.S. border, compared with 294,593 the same month last year, including 227,400 cars of foreign registry and 114,900 returning Canadian vehicles. Of the foreign cars coming in, 189,790 were of the non-permit or local class, while 24,906 entered on tourist permits and 13,288 as commercial vehicles.

Compared with January last year, tourist car entries declined about nine per cent. Short-term American traffic to Canada gained 16.6 per cent.

On a provincial basis, American tourist car entries in January

YEAR REVIEWED AT ST. ANDREW'S CHURCH RALLY

A highly successful year was reviewed in reports presented at the annual congregational meeting of St. Andrew's Presbyterian Church held under the chairmanship of A. C. S. Davidson.

Following a supper served by St. Andrew's Auxiliary, the meeting opened with devotional exercises by Rev. E. A. Wright. A report of all church organizations was then presented and indicated a very successful year. The financial report showed that all expenses had been met during the past twelve months.

The Church Board reported the purchase of two memorial windows, shortly to be installed and dedicated, while another memorial window was shown to have been presented to the church by the late W. W. Shaw in memory of his mother and father.

A memorial Honor Roll Plaque was placed in the church by the Lennoxville Women's League.

The thanks of the congregation were extended to the members of the choir and the organist, W. W. Gibson.

A brief address was made by Rev. Mr. Wright, who expressed his thanks to all members for their support and co-operation during the past year.

ACTION OVER RENT IS WON BY PLAINTIFF

In a judgment handed down in Magistrate's Court, Judge Dorais Panneton maintained action of the plaintiff and ordered defendant to pay the sum of $88 and evacuate premises occupied within 48 hours of judgment. The case involved a non-payment of rent charge lodged against Philip Tremblay by Wilfrid Arpin, both of Sherbrooke.

Arpin alleged that Tremblay had taken possession of the tenement in question and remained for eleven months and he demanded payment of $169 made up of ten months at $16 and one month at $9. Defendant claimed he was never paid rental and demanded in addition to the $169, $16 for maintaining the premises during the time of evacuation. Defendant also demanded immediate evacuation.

Plaintiff, on the other hand, argued that certain upkeep of the house had been neglected and further that last July, plaintiff had agreed to accept $6.50 weekly until the arrears had been paid up. Plaintiff maintained that this payment had been made regularly and that the action was premature and asked that it be dismissed.

In his judgement, the Magistrate declared that if the bargain of weekly payment struck between the two had been maintained, the defendant would have paid to date the total of $412.50 and would owe Arpin nothing.

Plaintiff reduced his demand to $88 and Judge Panneton maintained the request and ordered evacuation of the premises within 48 hours.

Long-Term Immigration Plan To Bring Thousands To Canada

Revenue Minister McCann has predicted that "when we do embark on a definite long-term immigration policy and implement it, it will mean an influx into Canada of thousands, and that will probably be within the next five years."

The lone medical man in the Federal Cabinet told the first annual dinner of the Ottawa Academy of Medicine that the government "has not yet formulated a policy in regard to immigration, but I can say that the matter is being studied and gives the closest consideration."

The text of his address to a closed meeting, obtained today, showed that he added: "In any policy to be formed on immigration, the complexion of our present population should not materially change. We are being pressed by individuals, groups and agencies, both in our country and in foreign lands, to grant entry into Canada, but there would not appear to be urgency on our part until we can take care of our own... our housing problem is not yet solved and surely it is not a kindness to bring people into Canada until they can get housing accommodation."

He said that since VJ-Day 75, 1,301 physicians, an average of one for every 1,017 of population. The greatest concentration was in Ontario with its one for 843. British Columbia had one for 938 and a low of one for 1,597 in New Brunswick.

Further, about 43 per cent of Canada's doctors were concentrated in the seven urban areas with a population of more than 100,000.

Communities of less than 10,000 were served by less than 35 per cent of the country's physicians. Scarcity of doctors in the smaller communities was most acute in New Brunswick and Saskatchewan and least so in Ontario.

MISSIONARY ON FURLOUGH GAVE FINE ADDRESS

A general meeting was held in St. Paul's Church Hall, at which Miss Jessie Carson, missionary teacher on leave from Northern India, gave a most interesting account of her experiences there.

Miss Carson wore the typical garment of the women and girls of India. Her discussion included such topics as: The caste system and two main religions of India—Hinduism and Mohammedanism and their effects on the peoples' lives, something of school life, enthusiasm for scouting and guiding, travelling in India, the present political strife and the contrast of poor and rich people amid the many inhabitants.

Though bribery abounds everywhere, all are sincere in their religious beliefs, though illiterate, many are capable and not unwilling pupils. The great need for medical workers and the cheerfulness of the sick, especially lepers, was stressed.

Missionaries spread their influence through schools, hospitals and by travelling from village to village.

Miss Carson sang three songs in the native tongue.

INVESTITURE WILL BE HELD FOR CHAIRMAN

At an investiture to be held in Montreal tomorrow afternoon, Lt.-Col. Charles E. Beaudry, first padre of the Sherbrooke Fusiliers Regiment mobilized in Sherbrooke in 1940, will receive the Member of the British Empire medal from Canada's Governor General, Viscount Alexander.

Col. Beaudry will receive his decoration at the same ceremony as 117 other officers and men of Canada's armed forces.

Col. is presently attached to the Department of National Defence as vice-general to Mr. Maurice Roy, of Three Rivers, who is chairman of the Canadian Armed Forces. He held the rank of Captain when he joined the Sherbrooke Fusiliers Regiment and remained with that unit until it reached England. He was then transferred to another unit before being appointed assistant to Mr. Roy.

MUCH NATURAL RUBBER WILL BE AVAILABLE

Large quantities of natural rubber reached Canada during the past year, and greater supplies will be available to rubber manufacturers in the near future, it was announced Thursday by A. G. Partridge, President of The Goodyear Tire and Rubber Company of Canada, Limited, at the annual meeting of the Company shareholders.

"As anticipated," Mr. Partridge declared, "large amounts of natural rubber were received during 1946 and an ever increasing supply is expected from now on. This will permit a blend of crude and synthetic in all articles of rubber manufacture, including tires, which will produce qualities unexcelled in previous days."

Mr. Partridge stated that there is a continuing need for expansion of rayon yarn production in both Canada and the United States. However, the Goodyear Cotton Company at St. Hyacinthe, P.Q., is producing both cotton and rayon cord fabrics in sufficient quantities to meet the requirements of the company's tire factory at New Toronto and its mechanical rubber goods plant at Bowmanville.

The Goodyear executive stated that two new factories at New Toronto are approaching completion. The new plants will produce "Airfoam," a cushion rubber product intended for automobile, airplane and furniture seats, and "Pliofilm," a rubber hydrochloride film used packing various commodities. Manufacture of these two products will start as fast as equipment can be secured and installed.

The profits of the combined companies for the year 1946 transferred to earned surplus amount to $1,660,013 which, after allowing for dividends paid during the year on the outstanding issues of preferred stock, is equivalent to $5.40 per share on the 257,250 shares of common stock outstanding. The net expenditures for additions to buildings and equipment, amounting to $1,722,707, represented mainly cost of additional equipment and facilities for the anticipated production requirements not only of lines presently being produced but for the manufacture of new products. Further heavy expenditures in 1947 are contemplated to complete the program of extension and modernization of the plants and equipment. Unanimously re-elected to the Board of Directors were P. W. Litchfield, Chairman, A. G. Partridge, C. H. Carlisle, R. C. Berkinshaw, P. A. Thomas, P. E. H. Leroy, and E. J. Thomas.

WORK, BRITAIN'S SOLE SALVATION

Visions of a Britain under a Socialist Government entering a great period of prosperity through higher wages and shorter hours, so often painted by leftist exponents, have been rudely shattered by the new program outlined by Prime Minister Attlee for the economic recovery of the nation. Instead of promising a new heaven and a new earth for the people of Britain, the White Paper warns that "we may never restore the foundation of our national life" unless the country concentrates on providing more fuel, boosting manpower in essential industries, expanding individual production and sharply increasing sales abroad.

In its blunt statement the Labor Government warned that the only real solution for the existing crisis in Great Britain was greater production. Each individual must work harder, early retirement is to be discouraged, women are urged to re-enter industry while the workers are called upon to accept the entry of at least 100,000 foreign workers to fill the gaps in the industrial production line. For these sacrifices on the part of the workers, there are no rosy promises of extensive pay increases, of improved living conditions or of the easing of the present strict rationing. Rather, a picture was given of a steady deterioration from the existing levels. Failure to produce more for export will mean continued food rationing, less smoking and private motorizing and widespread unemployment resulting from lack of raw materials and the inability to re-equip industry.

Admittedly most of Britain's economic problems ante-date the advent of the Socialist Government, many of them resulting directly from the heavy expenditures of British manpower and wealth on the winning of the war. But the experiences of the Labor Party in its short term of office have demonstrated effectively that there is no substitute for hard work in repairing the damage caused by the war. The new policy probably will be very unpopular with the extremists in the party ranks, but vague theories and fancy dreams must give way to cold realities.

THE BLACK MARKET AND CHINESE RELIEF

Undoubtedly one of the greatest handicaps to Chinese recovery, both in the economic and political fields, is the widespread black market which reaches into the highest quarters of government. However, the peak of this black market insolence seems to be reached in the proposal of President Chiang Kai-Shek that to stave off economic collapse $200,000,000 worth of UNRRA supplies be peddled on the "free" market, a nicer but decidedly less accurate name for the black market.

The rather astounding proposal comes at the very time the Chinese Government has been promised a huge loan from the United States Import-Export Bank when it cleans house and gets rid of some of the inefficiency, corruption and unpopular one-party rule that doom it to insecurity at present. The political and military bosses who have heretofore dominated it have counted on using the Chinese Communist threat to bludgeon the United States into granting the loan without conditions.

When General Marshall explicitly refused to be manoeuvred into underwriting reaction in China, he must have foreseen the present economic crisis. It was obvious that every sort of appeal would be made to change American policy, but so far no effective reasons have been advanced for such a move.

President Chiang, in his recent announcement that private fortunes held abroad would be called home and industries mismanaged by bureaucracy would be turned over to private ownership, gave hopeful evidence of a desire to get at some of the root causes of the present trouble. If he can persuade the Kuomintang reactionaries to carry out these provisions, as well as to implement the political democracy of the new constitution, United States aid will probably flow freely, but nothing is to be gained by holding out false palliatives that can only postpone inevitable change. Certainly democracy is not to be sold at inflated prices on the black market.

U. S. AND COMPULSORY SERVICE

President Truman, in urging the introduction of compulsory military training for the youth of the United States, is taking a realistic view of the international situation which offers a marked contrast to that displayed by the administrators of this country who are letting their outlook become clouded by political expediency.

The United States, like Canada, has long avoided the creation of a large, standing peacetime army and certainly the idea of becoming a militarist nation is just as abhorrent to its citizens as it is to the people of this country. But the world situation is such that grim necessity forces a change in the principles of raising and maintaining an adequate defence force. It is obvious that voluntary enlistment will not provide a standing army large enough to meet the needs of the nation, while such a system also precludes the establishment of an adequately trained reserve.

One thing seems certain. The next war will be a hit-and-run affair. The aggressor nation will strike with stunning suddenness, thus hoping to deliver a knock-out blow before his opponent can become organized. There will be no time to mobilize and train a large defence force. This must be available for instant service while an adequately-trained reserve must be ready for immediate mobilization. This, as President Truman fully realizes, can only be achieved by having every young man in the nation receive a period of military training in the armed services and then supplement it with service in the National Guard or some similar unit.

Canada is in a similar position to the United States, except that its comparatively small manpower makes it essential that every available citizen be prepared to do his duty. However, the present Government at Ottawa prefers to seek favor with the noisy minority who are opposed to all plans for preparedness. Thus the modest standing army planned during the war years is being cut below the point of efficiency and the reserve army, which was supposed to provide the first line of reinforcement is being starved financially and lacks the equipment needed for anything but the most basic of training.

ANALYZING LILIENTHAL OPPOSITION

Tennessee Sen. Kenneth McKellar's smear campaign against confirmation of David E. Lilienthal as chairman of the Atomic Energy Commission seems to be taking hold.

Following the Hitlerian propaganda technique that if you stretch the facts often enough and far enough, the people will believe you, McKellar has succeeded in planting suspicion in the minds of his senatorial colleagues.

Three arguments—and a whispering campaign—have been launched against Lilienthal. First that he has communistic leanings. Second that he is opposed to private enterprise. Third that he is the last of the New Dealers and should therefore be liquidated by the Republican majority of the Senate.

The whispering campaign is that Lilienthal is of Jewish blood. He is. But what of it? Or is this the Nazi Germany of 1937?

To get this whole story out in the open and end the vicious gossip in this country that has just fought a war for "Freedom of Worship," Lilienthal's parents were Czech Jews. Lilienthal himself was born in Illinois. He went to DePaul University in Greencastle, Ind., a Methodist institution. He married a girl brought up in the Methodist faith. In Knoxville, their children attended an inter-denominational church and Sunday school.

McKellar's charges of communism in TVA are based on the thinnest of evidence. At the height of the Dies Committee activity in 1940, Dave Lilienthal as TVA chairman asked the FBI to come in and screen all of TVA's 6000 employees. Ten out of 6000 were brought up for examination. Of the 10, three were found to be Communists. They were all in minor jobs. They were discharged.

THE OLD ARMY GAME? Then the charge that Lilienthal was opposed to private enterprise was dreamed up. It is easy to say but impossible to prove that this campaign is sponsored by the power lobbyists. It is also easy to say but impossible to prove that the Army brass has contributed to this, hoping to get a general in the chairmanship.

If the charge that Lilienthal is anti-free enterprise is based on the fact that during his chairmanship TVA bought out certain private electric power companies that competed in the Tennessee Valley, it must be admitted. But TVA also stimulated private enterprise in the valley. It brought in new industries. And some of the biggest corporations in the country have operated creek by creek with TVA. They get along fine. Aluminum Company of America, for instance.

Also, in the $500-million-a-year operation of the Atomic Energy Commission, the major operating contracts have been given to big business. General Electric operates Hanford, Monsanto Chemical operates Clinton Laboratories, Tennessee Eastman and National Carbon and Carbide operate Oak Ridge.

If there is anything to be alarmed at in this situation, isn't it that there is now too much concentration of atomic know-how in the hands of these big businesses?

THE OLD POLITICAL GAME? The Republican angle—that Lilienthal is the last of the New Dealers—is dirty politics, but it makes sense to a political boss. The effects of this hatchet-work are far more serious than merely deciding whether Lilienthal gets a job. If the Senate rejects him, he can probably get twice as much as the government's $15,000 a year. Big business would snap him up.

But who would want to succeed him? No right-minded man would want to submit to personal abuse such as Lilienthal has received. Things like this make it so hard for government to get good men. The whole cause of efficient public service loses if Lilienthal is licked.

As a Democrat, Lilienthal's record is particularly disappointing. He has tried to run TVA on a nonpartisan basis. There's the rub.

In the 14 years that TVA has been in business, Senator McKellar has recommended nearly 800 job-seekers to TVA. He has a right to do that. Some people think the way to get a government job is by having congressional pull. It doesn't work that way. In McKellar's case, TVA hired the ones it wanted and didn't hire the ones it didn't want.

But the Authority did not make its organization a political patronage racket. Administration of that kind is just what is needed for the Atomic Energy Commission.

Dead End

How Are You?

By REV. B. S. MURRAY, M.A.

Have you ever thought of life as a ladder with the basic step, the physical? There can be no doubt but that the ideal state of the body is health. In this condition the body can perform the maximum of work with the minimum of expenditure. So health and vigor of body are the golden mean between asceticism and athleticism.

A HEALTHY CHRISTIAN The conservation of health is of vital national importance with the accent on preventive medicine. Of course we could mention other "accents," not forgetting the growing general appreciation of God's out-of-doors. Health, fundamentally and definitely physical, blends with the volitional in goodness, the emotional in beauty, the intellectual in truth to form complete living.

It is not surprising then that Christians are interested in each other's health and repeatedly keep asking with Job to Amasa: "Art thou in health, my brother?" (2 Sam. 20:9). In our modern language we simply say: "How are you?" Now these two words, healthy and holy, come from the same root, suggesting the idea of wholeness. And surely our bruised, tired old world needs Christians emitting healthy, salutary, subliminal qualities. For somehow we have a tendency to catch these qualities and it would be a great boon for our generation if we had healthy souls in healthy bodies. Wouldn't it? Happily, the holy season of Lent offers us an annual opportunity to cultivate just this.

A TRIAD OF SYMPTOMS But unfortunately, as we scan the world we detect its being afflicted with various "isms." Man has lost his dignity and sanctity as a child of God; he is just a number. Now this dehumanization, the prevalent lawlessness, and mass hysteria combine to cause a serious crisis, which if not speedily remedied, will produce those unfortunate causes which will eventually lead to World War III. This, then, is a challenge for us to form a convenient framework for the progressive life of our nation, empire and world.

Nor is the Church of God immune from all this for we detect a symptom of something radically wrong in the prevalent indifference to spiritual matters. St. John found this in the church of Laodicea, they were "neither hot nor cold," and because of this he could do nothing with them. A low temperature marks an ailing disposition within a church. What is the temperature of your church? Then, there is the lack of appetite for spiritual matters which grips thousands of Canadians. Far too many are concerned only with the appeal to the senses and they go merrily on their way ignoring the fact that man cannot live by these things. This condition points to a serious malady. The all too evident state of lethargy appeals us when we find that "the sermon-saturated pagans in our pews do not want to be probed and prodded by a prophet-teacher. They want soothing syrup; what they need is a cathartic," so wrote Dr. Fort Newton.

A THREE-FOLD REMEDY Our concern is with spiritual health and its attainment. Knowing the symptoms of ill-health, we are in a position to suggest aids to good health. And one of the greatest aids to health is plenty of good food. This is a "must." We cannot live on delicacies. And it is so with the soul, for Jesus said: "I am the Way, the Truth, and the Life," but I am afraid its very familiarity has become our undoing. Who are supporting the new "cults" and "isms" abroad in Canada today? Professedly Christian people! I am amazed some are times to find so many people inquiring after some new thing. Nor do they stop until they are blown by every wind of doctrine. Peter, serious crisis, which if not speedily remedied, will produce those unfortunate causes which will eventually lead to World War III.

For the spiritual health of the individual and the church we need more exercise of that spirit of the Master who went "about doing good." Too many of us simply keep going about in circles! I want you to believe that there is nothing like ministering to others to help in our own soul's health, and the church would be stimulated to greater life if those who control that Divine "organism" would challenge all Her members to practice day by day what has been preached to Her through the centuries. Let that crusade begin with me and you! Now!

"ART THOU IN HEALTH?" So, Lent is a "Quiet Time" wherein we determine to develop sturdy, healthy souls. For at no time in our history, does the Church and the World need more those who are morally and spiritually sound. To do this we must be practical and arrange a daily program which must include communion with God, companionship with Christ, the service of our fellows, the maintenance of our integrity, vacation, the enjoyment of beauty, a step forward in the knowledge of truth, and right regard for our bodies. By such a plan we might well set forth in the morning and correct ourselves in the evening. Have a budget covering your time as well as your money! If that were more general, there would be less crime in our midst and less inharmonious living. No sane person can explain sin away; it cannot be done. I know that much of the mental disorders and emotional conflicts that grip

"WHITE LIE" BIDS MESH FOR 6 HEARTS

With air travel making the east and west coasts only hours apart, there is increased attendance of eastern players in Pacific coast tournaments, and at the winter nationals in Florida there was a good representation of Pacific coast players, among whom were Mr. and Mrs. Louis Newman of San Francisco.

Newman formerly lived in Washington, D.C., and recently became Life Master No. 63. He was a member of the team finishing second in the national open team-of-four championship, and he finished third with Mrs. Newman in the national open pairs.

Today's hand shows how well the bidding can be harmonized. When Mrs. Newman (South) bid two hearts, Newman (North) had a problem. Four hearts would have been an underbid, and an immediate jump to four no trump might have placed an under-slam contract in jeopardy. He therefore compromised with a "white lie" by bidding two spades.

Now Mrs. Newman was on the spot. She did not want to bid two no trump without clubs, and she did not want to bid her broken-down heart suit a third time. So she bid three spades, showing the There'll Always Be...

An England — And An English Crisis, Too

By BEVERLEY BAXTER
Conservative Member of Parliament

(Written for NEA Service, Inc.)
To understand Britain it is necessary to understand the English people. And by this I mean the English and not the Scots or the Welsh. The English are almost as unpredictable as their weather and almost as complex.

Napoleon said that they were a race of shopkeepers and he died on St. Helena as the enforced guest of these miserable traders. Hitler said that they were degenerates and would not fight. Perhaps in that Valhalla where would-be conquerors gather when destiny is tired of them, Napoleon, the little Corsican adventurer, and Hitler, the Austrian sign painter, will be able to compare notes. They can't both be right, for whoever heard of a degenerate shopkeeper?

The truth is that the Englishman is a poet, a dreamer and that he is fond of leisure. He loves walking in the rain, which is of course absurd, and above all he hates making plans.

How or why did Captain Cook discover Australia and New Zealand? He was sent out by the Admiralty to note the transit of Venus and to bring back the data. Captain Cook, like many other men who have come under the spell of Venus, got more or less lost and in the process he discovered two island continents (afterwards named Australia and New Zealand) and staked them with a British flag.

Was Britain grateful? Was he at once promoted and knighted? Not a bit of it. After a considerable delay he was given a bonus of 250 pounds, probably on the basis of overtime. The English never planned an empire, they never plan anything. They just stumbled on terra incognita because the first instinct of an Englishman is to get off the Island and go somewhere, anywhere. Fortunately the Scots followed in his wake and did something about it. They are not poets or dreamers, although they do all starry-eyed on Burns night; they are organizers. Hence the British Empire.

Now, true to character, the English are utterly unprepared for cold weather or hot weather just as they are unprepared for drought or prolonged rain. Their houses have no verandas whereon to sit and watch the coming of a summer twilight. Nor have they central heating in their homes to meet the winter if it should be really cold. Such innumerable oddities are they that the pipes are on the outside of the house, utterly defenceless against the frost. These pipes are particularly useful to cat burglars and perhaps it would be unfair to them to put them inside. After three burglaries the police insisted upon my wrapping barbed wire around the pipes of my London house. It seems inhospitable, to say nothing of restraint of trade, but the police must have their way.

For comfort we rely upon the romantic, Dickensian absorption in the open grate of coal fire which send a glow of warmth up the chimney and into the bricks on which it rests. It also enables the bore who talks too much to stand with his posterior to the grate, thus robbing the rest of us of any warmth that might have escaped. But this lends variety to English life for there is often as much as a 20-degree difference between the temperature of different parts of the one room.

Which brings me to the principal problem of British life today, which is coal. Britain is a small country which maintains a population of 47,000,000 without any raw materials except coal. Agriculture has never been fully developed because British economy has been based upon the importing of primary products, such as food, in exchange for manufactured goods. So abundant were the British coal fields and so excellent was the quality that coal was also an important export. It is not a mere play on words, however, to say that the record of the industry was a black one. There were good employers and good mines, and there were bad employers and poor mines. Royalties were paid on every ton of coal to owners of the fields who in most cases had nothing to do with the mining companies at all. Such was the nature of the industry that in the great coal mining districts there was practically no alternative employment, so that when slumps came the miners walked the streets aimlessly or sat in their cottages with desolation in their hearts.

Again I must record that there were many enlightened employers who were installing baths, arranging welfare schemes and paying as much as they could afford, but that was not the whole story. I am sorry to say. There should have been widespread amalgamations 25 years ago so that the rich pit could carry the poor one. Amalgamations did come, but they were too late to stem the rising resentment of the miners.

It was, in fact, the prolonged strike of the miners which brought about the general strike in Britain in 1926. These decent, honest men working underground at the pit face were the natural soil for the glib and eloquent agitator. Many a talkative miner got himself out of the pits by learning to make fiery speeches, and often enough he ended up as an M.P. where he continued to paint the terrible life of the men below ground.

Then came the war in 1939. Once more the State took over mines as in 1914, and a Minister of Fuel and Power was created to manage them. But foolishly young miners were conscripted for military service and many of them who survived the hazards of battle refused to return to the pits. When the government realized its blunder, war production had fallen so sharply that when young men were called up for military service there was a ballot which determined who should fight and who should be sent to the mines.

In spite of everything production continued to fall. Miners were being well paid, but now they came under income tax for the first time and they did not like it. Absenteeism increased alarmingly. The miner, who is a good enough fellow left to himself, could not see why he should work six days instead of five if the sixth day brought him into the income tax level.

Besides there was nothing to buy in the shops, and precious little beer in the pubs, so why earn money? Not for the first time the plans of men were wrecked on the stubborn rock of human nature.

But with the advent of the Socialist government there came a measure to nationalize the coal fields. The owners were bought out. (Neville Chamberlain had previously bought out the Royalty owners) and the miners' M.P.'s sang "The Red Flag" in Parliament. They are not Communists, but Socialism has failed to produce an anthem of its own so they had to borrow the Communists' dismal old tune which they then had borrowed from that German carol whose words were: "O Christmas tree, O Christmas Tree, you do not bloom in winter."

alone." I believe the tune is also used to acclaim the virtues of Mayland.

Unhappily the transfer of the mines to state ownership did not bring the torrent of production which had been hoped. The number of miners was still far below the required standard and an attempt was made to induce the union to accept some thousands of Poles who were willing to undertake the work. Trade Unions, however, are basically suspicious of all forms of dilution, and the Miners' Federation refused to admit the Poles. Whether the government should or should not have overruled this is a debatable question. For one thing the country could not face a strike nor is it easy for a Labor Government, financed as a party by the trade unions, to take a strong independent hand in such matters.

Emmanuel Shinwell, the Socialist Minister of Fuel and Power, is a friend of mine and, like all Conservatives, I wished him well. But he made the mistake of being too optimistic, and this led to a clash which was both prophetic and unpleasant.

The electricity companies, which depend upon coal since there is no natural power source such as Niagara, issued a warning to their consumers in October that there would likely be an electricity shortage when winter came. Shinwell was very angry and charged them with trying to sabotage the Socialist Government. Other warnings came from industrialists and they too were charged with lack of patriotism. Experienced financiers shrugged their shoulders. "Our whole economy is based on coal," they said, "and if the weather is severe this winter we can see industry going on part time and even closing down in some areas."

The general public, however, were not unduly worried. They are so used to backing losers at race meetings that they have become incorrigible optimists. I wish I could end the story here. But after Shelley's lovely phrase—"If Autumn comes, can Winter be far behind?" It could not indeed, and it came, and what a winter! I understand that it will be late June before all the burst pipes in Britain will be mended.

In fairness, this Arctic winter was bad luck for the Socialists. Britain, as I have said, is not prepared for snow and ice and cruel frost, and normally the British winter is no more than a damp, moist, unpleasant, repentance. Poor Shinwell did his best. He

Cuba Seeking Information Upon Luciano

Secret Police Making Inquiries in Activities of Gangster as United States Cuts Off Narcotics Supply.

Havana, Feb. 22.—(AP)—Cuban secret police sought leads today on the activities of Charles (Lucky) Luciano, deported New York vice overlord, in an investigation ordered after the United States cut off narcotics shipments to Cuba on the ground that Luciano's presence in Cuba might lead to "diversion of the drugs."

Interior Minister Alfredo Riquelme told Secret Police Chief Benito Herrera yesterday to determine how Luciano, who was deported from the States to Italy, had entered Cuba and how he was occupying himself.

Secret police said that they knew Luciano was in Cuba and that he had been seen frequently cut off electricity in private houses from 9 a.m. to noon and from 2 p.m. to 5 p.m., but worse than that, he could not deliver coal in sufficient quantities to keep the factories going. With the world markets clamoring for British goods and with Britain depending for her life on exports, hundreds of thousands of workers were laid off, and whole areas closed down completely.

Naturally, the impatience of the country vents itself on the Government, but the British are a pretty sane lot and they will not, even as they shiver, attribute to men the malice of winter. It must be remembered that much of the coal being produced cannot be delivered because roads and railways are blocked with snow. In fact there are villages where the people are only kept alive by the R.A.F. dropping food supplies to them.

Yet this is bound to injure the Government and weaken its support in the country. The people will not forget that the "Hard Faced Capitalists" were right in their warnings and that the "Soft Headed Socialists" were wrong in being optimistic. They realize too that coal cannot be taken from the earth merely by changing the ownership of the mines. Also the British as persistent gamblers will begin to distrust a government which is unlucky.

Churchill, as leader of the opposition, was going to put down a vote of censure upon the Government but, I think wisely, decided to postpone it. The nation would have resented a vote of censure and a possible general election at a period of crisis when all it wanted was some coal.

I doubt, though, if Shinwell (to use an Irishism) will be able to ride the storm once it is over. I hope by the time these words appear that Britain will have thawed out, but I cannot see an end to the long winter for Shinwell.

But the pipes will eventually be mended, the Poles will probably be let in to the coal fields, the factories will re-open and everyone will begin talking about the Derby which is run on the first Wednesday in June. Then there will come a drought or floods and the English will be totally unprepared for either.

You see, they are a race of poets and dreamers and improvisers. But they did produce Shakespeare and what's a burst pipe compared to him?

at the race track in Havana, though it had not been learned where he was staying.

The ban on further supplies of narcotics to Cuba was issued in Washington by Harry J. Anslinger, federal narcotics commissioner. Julian Soleriano, secretary of the Cuban Presidency, sought to discount the possibility that Luciano's presence could lead to diversion of imported drugs. He pointed out that the government recently decreed that all shipments of narcotics to Cuba be brought in through the port of Havana.

Luciano, former top man of New York vice rackets, was sent to prison in 1936 for 30 to 50 years. Last year he received a pardon from Governor Thomas E. Dewey—who as district attorney had prosecuted Luciano—and was sent back to his native Italy. Recently, however, reports reached Washington that Luciano had found a haven in Cuba.

Says Buying Power Down, Profits Up

Senate Labor Committee Told Better Balance Between Wages, Prices and Profits Needed.

Washington, Feb. 22.—(AP)—Red-haired Walter Reuther, president of the United Auto Workers, C.I.O., told the Senate Labor Committee today that, instead of new labor laws, the United States needs a better balance between wages, prices and profits.

He argued that workers' buying power has steadily declined while profits increased and that some remedy was needed. Senator Joseph Ball (Rep.-Minn.) insisted that what Reuther appeared to want was a continuation of the "controlled economy" wartime controls gave the country. He said such a situation would be "socialism, pure and simple."

Reuther retorted he considered a better wage-price-profit equation could be worked out under "our free enterprise system."

At one point Chairman Robert Taft (Rep.-Ohio) observed that, while economic relationships had "some bearing," other factors such as worker productivity must be considered in setting wage rates.

Meantime, Chairman Fred Hartley (Rep.-N.J.) of the Labor Committee and Clare Hoffman (Rep.-Mich.) of the Expenditures Committee disputed which one of their groups should investigate "labor racketeering."

Hoffman told the House later his committee would undertake its own such investigation, regardless. This may mean both committees will tackle the same subject.

Chairman Darnell Thomas (Rep.-N.J.) disclosed that the House Committee on Un-American Activities will hold hearings next week seeking to find out whether Communists had a hand in the months-long strike involving Reuther's union at the Allis-Chalmers Company at Milwaukee.

begin clearing Wellington Street early today.

In the Eastern United States area, the storm raged in many sections for almost 24 hours, snarling air and surface transportation and retarding industrial activities. It blew a few final flurries in Manhattan yesterday afternoon, then headed northward toward Newfoundland and the sea.

Snow drifts on roads to Lake Success, Long Island, N.Y., forced postponement of a meeting of the United Nations Security Council yesterday.

Traffic accidents on drift-choked highways and over-exposed from snow shovelling accounted for most of the deaths. A record fall of 27 inches was reported at Dickinson County, Va.

In New York City, snow crews worked through Thursday night, Friday and today keeping primary arteries more or less open, but secondary highways remained choked.

Many schools were closed in a dozen states. Railroad travel was returning to normal today after being slowed almost to a crawl in some sections.

The storm closed down eastern seaboard airports, including La Guardia, Newark and Washington terminals which were buried under two feet of snow until snowplows were loosed on them last night.

Washington wallowed in seven inches of snow, hampering operations in federal buildings and forcing President Truman to cancel his regular early morning walk.

Chevrolet Announces Its 1947 Models

Restyled for 1947 with the emphasis of a more massive front end and a smoother sweep to body contours, the new Chevrolet is announced. New front-end grille and complimenting bright work, as well as elimination of the body belt moulding, have done much to give the new model an air of greater luxury. This year, the usual shutdown for retooling was avoided and there was virtually no decrease in the rate of output when the new models went into production.

Late Judge Kenesaw Mountain Landis Saved Baseball As National Game

Chicago, Feb. 22.—(P)—The late Kenesaw Mountain Landis accomplished for baseball what baseball was unable to do for itself—he saved and safeguarded it as the national game of the United States after it was plunged into dishonesty and suspicion in the 1919 World Series scandal.

As commissioner of baseball for 24 years prior to his death in 1944, Landis ruled the sport as no sport was ever ruled before. Unwavering and fearless, his power was absolute. He swept away public distrust resulting from the 1919 scandal, put the game back on its feet and won the admiration of fans and players alike with his never-faltering, iron-fisted rule.

Club owners frequently winced when a Landis decision disrupted their plans, but his word was law, final. There was no appeal.

Before him the lowliest ball player with a just grievance had as many rights as the wealthiest or most influential of the 16 Major League Club owners who hired him.

Landis made his first important player-owner decision in 1940 when he granted free agency to some 90 players belonging to the Detroit farm system and valued at $500,000. Benny McCoy was one of them. He got $45,000 for signing with Philadelphia Athletics at $10,000 a year.

Landis charged the Detroit officials with "covering" young players and warned baseball executives that heavy fines and ineligibility would be the penalty for repetition of the offence.

Landis came into the game when it was reeling from the shock of the "Black Sox" scandal in which a number of players for Chicago White Sox, champions of the American League, had conspired to "throw" the 1919 World Series in which they were engaged with Cincinnati Reds.

The league club owners met a year later and drafted Landis from the federal bench at $50,000 a year. His salary as a judge was $7,500.

Landis' decisions in guiding baseball are legion. Shortly after taking office, he banished for life from baseball the eight White Sox players involved in the 1919 scandal. They had been acquitted in court in Chicago when indicted on a charge of having accepted bribes to "throw" the series, but Landis held they had forfeited their places in baseball.

In the first serious test of his authority, baseball learned in 1921 that Landis was really hard-boiled. He fined Babe Ruth, the supreme slugger, $5,000 and Billy Pierce, member of the world's champion New York Yankees, their full share of the World's series melon of $3,362 each because they defied a rule against barnstorming exhibitions. He also suspended them for the first month of the 1922 season.

In 1943 Landis reached out to ban an owner, William D. Cox of Philadelphia Phillies, because Cox had admitted betting on games in which his team was participating, a violation of the baseball code which Landis had set up.

Chicago White Sox Players Involved In Scandal Failed To Receive Share

New York, Feb. 22.—(P)—Baseball's greatest gambling scandal, the "Black Sox" affair of 1919, saw only $47,000 change hands to throw a World Series.

The eight accused players of the Chicago White Sox were supposed to have received $100,000, but due to what was termed a "double-cross," less than half that sum was involved.

Those allegedly behind the swindle included Arnold Rothstein, a wealthy New York gambler who was shot to death in 1928, Abe Attell, former world featherweight boxing champion, and Bill Burns, a former White Sox pitcher.

The money was to be paid in installments of $15,000 after the first game, $20,000 after the third day, $25,000 on the morning of the fourth day, and the balance when the series ended.

Eddie Cicotte disclosed at the trial on charges of having accepted a bribe that he took $10,000 as his share. The money was under his pillow, he said, in a hotel in Cincinnati, according to a pre-arranged plan.

At the hearing Cicotte broke into tears several times in relating his confession.

Joe Jackson, one of the eight, told the jurors he had demanded $20,000 but compromised for $5,000. He also found the money under his pillow at the same hotel.

It was while Jackson was leaving the courtroom that a little boy, with tears in his eyes, grabbed Jackson's sleeve and entreated "Say it ain't so, Joe, please say it ain't so."

Chick Gandil, ringleader of the eight, received the biggest take—$22,000—According to court records. The others, with the exception of Buck Weaver, got amounts ranging from $1,000 to $5,000. The others accused Gandil, who was the payoff man, of crossing them on the money end of the deal, but Gandil swore that Attell was the one who was holding out.

The others implicated in the plot were Oscar "Happy" Felsch, Charles (Swede) Risberg, Claude Williams and Fred McMullen.

When a verdict finally was reached in the case Aug. 2, 1921, all eight players were acquitted by the jury. On the day following their acquittal in court, Judge K. M. Landis, then entering his seventh month as baseball's new and all-powerful commissioner, banished each of the players from organized baseball for life.

JIM PERNFUSS IS PLACED ON LEAFS' LIST

Kitchener, Feb. 22.—(P)—Jim Pernfuss, 16-year-old left winger with the Kitchener Greenshirts Junior "B" team, has been placed on the Toronto Maple Leafs negotiation list—third twin city hockey to be signed by Leafs in the past week.

Announcement of the signing was made by Leo Schmalz, who earlier picked up Greenshirts' Ken Stemmler and Waterloo Tiger Cubs' defenceman, Bun Martin.

Runners Have Long Way To Go To Beat Dan Patch, Famous Racer

Dan Patch and his first driver, M. E. McHenry.

New York, Feb. 22.—Whirlaway is popularly supposed to be the top money winning horse of all time. He's, among running horses, for the long-tailed Calumet Farm champion won $561,000. But the real champion is a pacer, the mighty Dan Patch who ruled the turf 40 years ago.

He, according to conservative estimates, grossed more than $750,000, and some of the more enthusiastic Dan Patch fans insist he earned $1,000,000.

Whirlaway did all his money-winning on tracks.

Dan Patch tapped all sources, found them prolific in gold.

Nowhere in history can proponents of the thoroughbred say that men smoked "Whirlaway Cigars" or that kids whooped over hills on "Man o' War Sleds." But they smoked "Dan Patch Stogies" and they rode "Dan Patch Sleds." Cattle munched "Dan Patch Feed." A nation toasted the fame of a crooked-legged pacer which came to an owner for $375.

Dan Messner bid $225 for Dan Patch's dam, spent $150 to have the mare bred to Joe Patchen, which briefly held the world pacing record at 2:01 1/4. Dan Patch beat his sire's time by six seconds. They figure that about 120 yards, maybe more. Even 120 feet would be enough.

Dan Patch won his first race as a four-year-old, defeating two unsung rivals handily. Proponents of the thoroughbred say that time is secondary to the manner in which a race is won. But Messner looked at his stop watch and blinked. There was a lot of one and two-eyed blinking over that race.

At Lafayette, Ind., a pacer, the name of which should be preserved forever, won a heat from Dan Patch. That horse was Milo S. The year was 1900. In 1901 a horse won a heat from Dan Patch, but the judges asked many close and perhaps embarrassing questions of Dan Patch's driver.

Never again was the great horse headed to the wire. He had a mark of 1:59 1/2. Star Pointer's record was 1:59 1/4, but the latter was in retirement at this point, and Dan Patch bestrode the free-for-all pacers as James J. Jeffries bestrode the heavyweight ranks of that day and year.

In 1902 Dan Patch figured in the record transaction for pacers, when Marion Savage, a manufacturer of stock foods, purchased him for $60,000. That marked a turning point in the career of a great race horse, and the world was startled by a new technique in advertising.

Dan Patch munched the food produced by his new owner. He broke records. Not every horse is a Dan Patch, but the food that made the champion invincible might do something for the lesser endowed by nature toilers in the shafts. And so, with advance men out before him, with blatant advertising sheets proclaiming his greatness, Dan Patch toured the country as never a horse has toured it before or since.

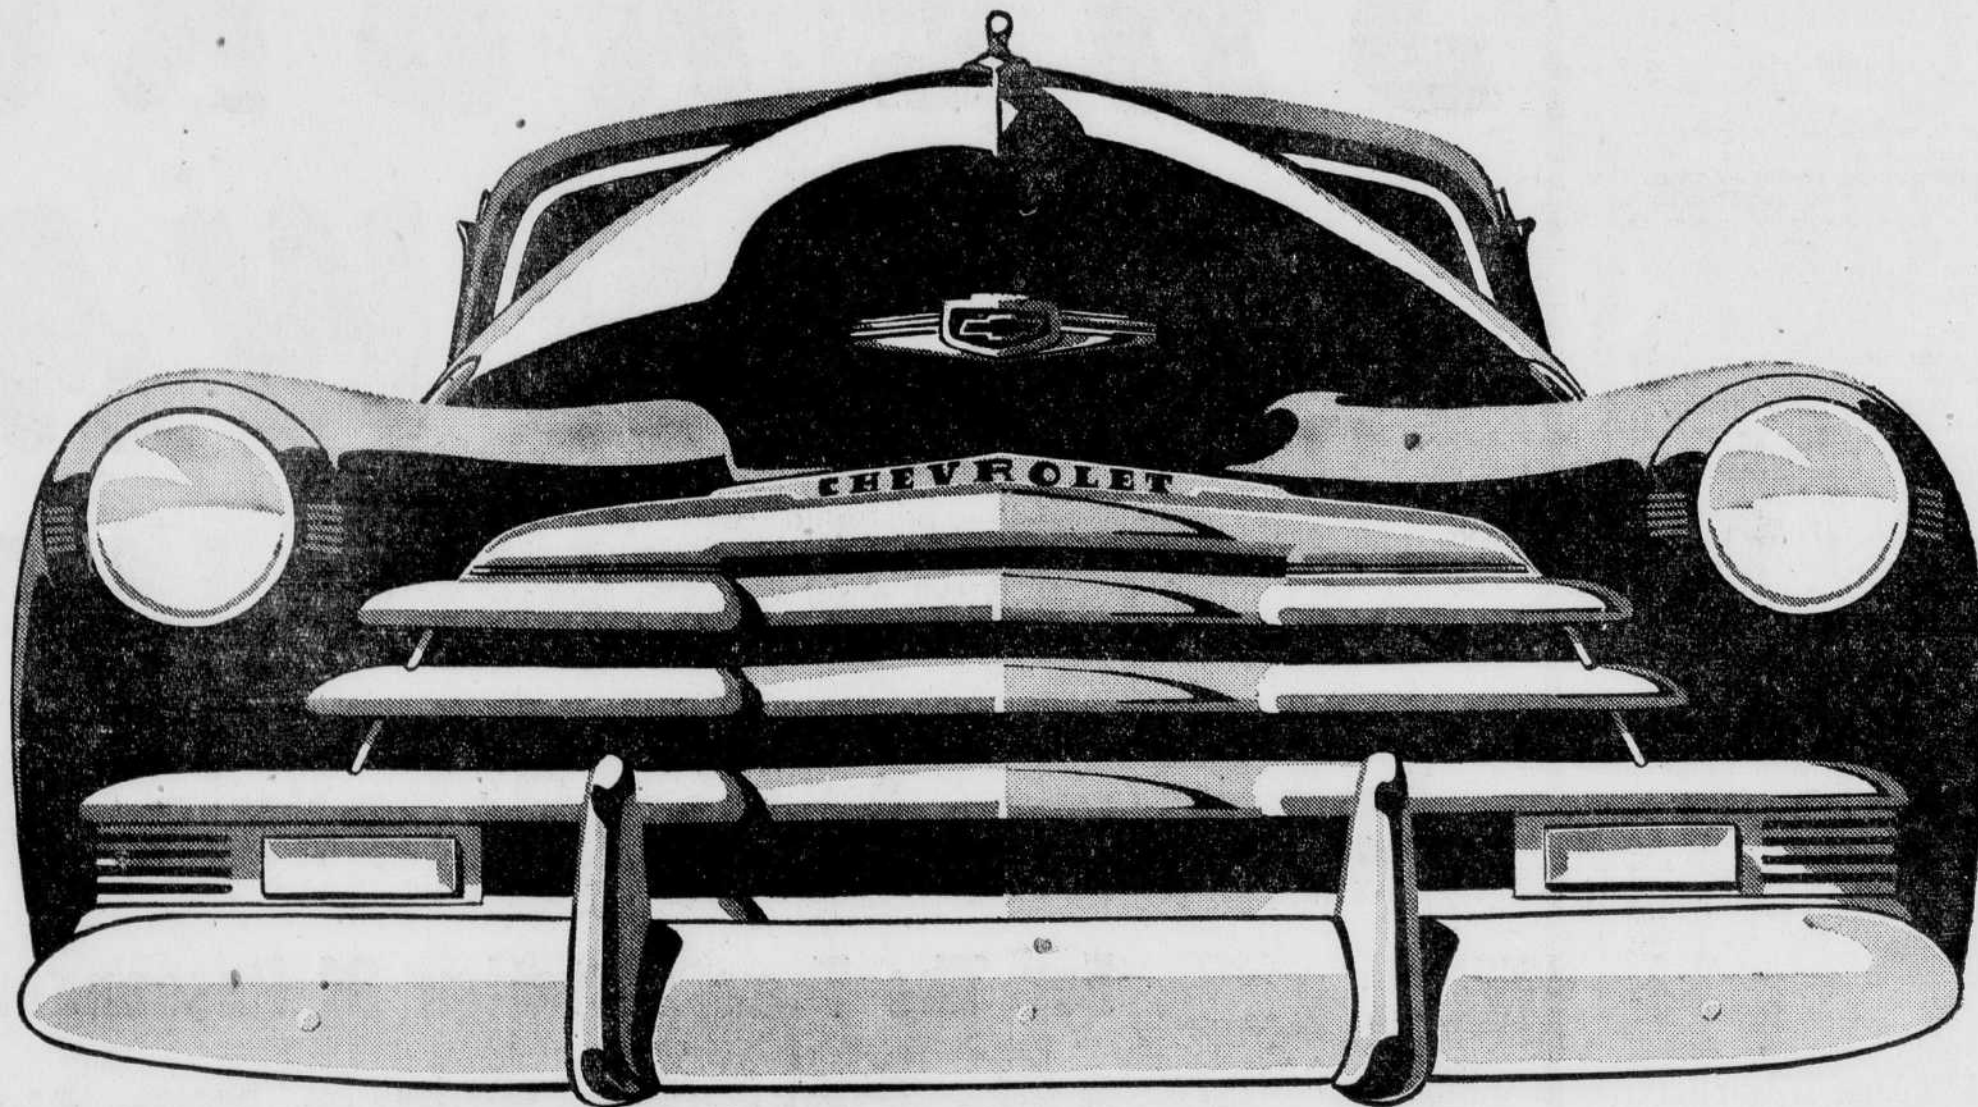

He had his private car, special grooms. The story of his life as a champion was available to those who wanted it and hundreds of thousands did.

He broke the record of Star Pointer. In ever community sports fans talked of him as they talked of Ty Cobb, and as those of a later era talked of Jack Dempsey and Babe Ruth. They argued over whether another horse ever would be foaled to equal him. In 1906 he performed before 600,000. In 1905, 45,000 raving fanatics saw him make his record of 1:55 1/4, a mark that stood for 33 years, until Billy Direct did 1:55 in Lexington, Ky., in 1938.

Dan Patch's greatest mile, 1:55, was disallowed because of a technicality. He had gone to the three-quarter in 1:25. Nothing seemed impossible.

In 1909 Dan Patch went lame. He was retired to stud, but never produced his like.

Remedy for Marital Spats

Couple Lives Happily After Taking Dose of Water Cure

The greatest enemy to domestic peace and happiness is not the wolf nor the siren. It is the daily spat in which so many married couples indulge and which wrecks more homes, causes more divorces, orphans more children, and breaks more hearts than all the deadly seven sins combined.

There are countless husbands and wives who ruin what should be a happy marriage by their senseless quarrels. With them every word is the fighting word and neither one can make the simplest statement without starting something. They can go to the mat over politics, or religion, or the O.P.A., or the baby's formula, or the new hat of the woman next door. Nothing is too big or too little for them not to get into a hot argument over it, and it ends up with the wife in tears and the husband banging the door behind him as he goes forth to find somebody he can talk to who will yes-yes him.

Now there isn't anyone with even ordinary human intelligence who doesn't know from experience and observation that nothing else on earth is so profitable as the family argument. It never gets anybody anywhere. A woman convinced against her will is of the same opinion still, as the old saw puts it. So is a man.

A husband and wife can scrap from the altar to the divorce court or the grave over each other's little peculiarities and tastes and habits without getting any result except hard feelings and alienation of the affections. Most married couples come, in time, to realize this and the futility of arguing with each other. They see that it is ruining their happiness, but they claim they can't help it; so it will be tidings of great joy to the victims of this pernicious habit to learn that a remedy for it has been found.

SURE CURE WATER CURE

It is the WATER CURE. A reader of this column, who has made this momentous discovery and who offers it for free to all married couples afflicted with the arguing complex, says:

"For many years my wife and I kept ourselves in a turmoil over arguing about trifles about which neither one of us really cared. We had many a midnight quarrel that would leave us sleepless. Finally, we agreed that the next time we had a fuss we would not say a word for five minutes, and we would just drink water until we cooled off. The remedy worked perfectly, and since then we have lived together in such peace and harmony that we are known to all of our acquaintances as the 'sweetheart couple'."

Let not the unbeliever scoff at the WATER CURE. I, for one, have perfect faith in its efficacy, for there is nothing else that takes the spunk out of the belligerent and humbles the self-assertive like getting dripping wet. No doubt this would apply inwardly as well as outwardly, for no one would care to indulge in a hot argument whose tummy was filled up with ice water. Nothing modifies our opinions like having them wet-blanketed.

We have made a great aid over the invention of the atomic bomb, but surely finding a way to preserve homes is more valuable to the world than discovering a way to blow them up. And so it may come to be that the WATER CURE for arguing will take its place among the great contributions to the morals and morale of our age.

The Record will be pleased to receive any letters to this Dorothy Dix column. These will be forwarded to Miss Dix who will answer them as quickly as possible.

Thirty-five members were present. Mrs. Nelson Lothrop presided over the district meeting, after which Miss Mary Todd took the chair for the Alumnae meeting.

Dr. T. J. Quintin, as guest speaker, reviewed the subject, "The Prevention and Control of Cancer." Tracing the history and origin of cancer as far back as the fifteenth century findings, he described the two types of cancer and their suggested causes, explaining each type with the experiments used in the laboratories where research is taking place.

Dr. Quintin also described the weapons at disposal to prevent cancer with early diagnosis: Microscope, Surgery, X-Ray, and Radium. Emphasis was made on the extreme importance of early recognition of symptoms.

It is the nurses' responsibility to report such findings and to aid the medical profession with intelligent observations as this dread disease is responsible for eight to ten deaths in every hundred.

Dr. Quintin, having been introduced by Mrs. Lothrop, was thanked by Miss Mary Todd.

At the close of the meetings, refreshments were served by Mrs. Fred Simpson, Miss Helen Porter, Mrs. R. Cathcart, Mrs. R. Mooney and Mrs. C. Bryant.

"Mike and I had quite a talk after he had sobered up some at the hotel," Parker said. "He told me he'd spoken to you about going to Reno, so's to get the divorce over with in a hurry, and said he intended to finance it. But of course that's nonsense. I'll pay for it. But if you think Reno would be a good idea, you may as well get started next week."

"I don't know, Parker," she said. "Whatever you—There wasn't anything to say, suddenly."

"You won't need to worry about our folks. I feel rather attached to them, almost as though they were my own. They'll go on living here at the farm. I intend to do it over to them. And as for Sid's education—he told me the other day he thought he'd like to go to Purdue—I'll pay for that, too."

"You don't need to look out for them. I always did—before."

"You and Mike are going to the west coast, I understand," Parker continued coldly. "I'll put a checking account in an Indianapolis bank and you can draw on it for all your expenses in Reno, and I'm sure everything will work out satisfactorily for all of us."

He had it all thought out and arranged in his mind, she thought. And Mike had told her she was definitely going to marry him. Mike had taken a lot for granted. She wasn't quite sure she wanted to rush right into marrying Mike. You had to think about things first. And yet—

"I want you to know, Cassie, that I wish you the best of luck and all sorts of happiness."

There was a long, painful silence, broken only by the occasional snap of a spark in the fireplace.

"Well, good luck, Cassie," he reiterated. He crushed out his cigarette in an ash tray. "I'll take care of the checking account. And I—I suppose I won't be seeing you again."

They stared at each other briefly and then Cassie looked away. She was afraid she was going to cry. The strain of the evening, the quarrel with Leni—and now this scene with Parker—was too much. "The best of luck to you, Parker," she said stiffly. She got up, feeling stiff and awkward, and walked past him, out of the long, cheerful room, into the hall and up the stairs, slowly, her legs feeling like logs, too heavy to move.

Leni was still at the dressing table, examining her face. She went through her nightly ritual in silent absorption.

Cassie was too tired to do anything. She went to her own twin bed and sat on the edge of it while she took off her clothes. Then she crept between the sheets and closed her eyes.

Long after Leni had turned out the lights and the light, regular sound of her breathing indicated she was asleep, Cassie lay awake, her dark eyes staring into the blackness.

Parker couldn't sleep either. He was walking back and forth. She could hear the soft tread of his footsteps. She could creep out of bed without waking Leni and go knock on his door. She could tell him—quickly—"I'm not sure I want a divorce, Parker. It's going to seem so strange—to be divorced—never to see you again—to break up this life so completely and start something entirely new. I'm afraid, Parker. I'm not sure. Not sure!"

No, she couldn't do that. Of course not. Not when Parker had been the one who had wanted a divorce to begin with.

Presently the footsteps ceased and the house was still and there was just herself lying awake in the darkness. It was almost daylight before sleep came, and when she awakened the sun was shining.

For a moment she saw the sun and was aware of unhappiness without reason, and then it all came back. She and Parker were going to be divorced. Leni was in love with Parker—and perhaps he was in love with Leni, too.

And as for her—well, there was Mike—who had come back at last—whom she had loved for a long time. Or had it been only in her mind that she had loved him so long? The mind held on to things long after the heart had relinquished them, sometimes.

"Cassie, you awake?" Mama shuffled in. "Um hum." The bedroom clock said ten. Cassie yawned. Her eyes felt puffy and her head ached a little.

Mama started picking up Leni's clothes which were flung all over her side of the room.

"That Leni! She never gives a thought to nobody but herself. Told me she was used to a maid in New York and it spoiled her! She makes me sick, Cassie. You know yourself she never picked up her clothes before she went to New York and got those high and mighty ideas."

"Yes, I remember," Cassie said absently. "It's because she was always spoiled so. We all spoiled her when she was small because she was so cute."

Mama grunted and puffed, as she leaned to pick up the underwear and hose half under the bed. "If I was you, Cassie—course it's none of my business—I'd put my foot down about the way she runs after Parker. It's a disgrace. After all, Cassie—Mama's voice whined on and on.

"Oh, for goodness sake, Mama, let's don't talk about Leni!" Cassie said abruptly. She had wanted to just lie there in the warm bed and think—now that it was morning. Night time was a bad time for thinking. In daylight it was easier to be practical and face realities. "And Cassie, I'm sure I don't hold with you coming home with Mike—like you did yesterday. It don't look right, and I'll bet Parker didn't fancy it neither!"

LEGION GROUP
HELD MEETING AT ASBESTOS

Asbestos, Feb. 22.—The regular monthly meeting of the Canadian Legion, B.E.S.L. Branch No. 14, was held at the Iroquois Hotel with a very good attendance. Comrade I. W. Jones, president, presided.

The minutes of the last regular meeting were read and confirmed. R. Belyeu was duly admitted as a member. The ceremony was performed by the president, with the obligation being given by Comrade W. Hetherington, first vice-president, following which the members present welcomed the new comrade.

The secretary, Comrade Lebeau, stated that the membership was 112, with several applications pending.

Several appointments were made and accepted as follows: Sergeant-at-arms, Comrade B. L. Belyeu; reporter, Comrade W. N. Reakes; investigating committee, Comrades E. C. Storey, Bolduc and G. A. Cheese; entertainment committee, Comrades V. Ellis, W. Campbell, A. L. Kennedy and N. DeValosi; building committee, R. W. Wilson, C. Plourde, V. Provencier, T. Miller, Dr. J. Thibault, A. D. Hodge and B. P. Mills.

Considerable discussion arose regarding the purchasing of a lot for building purposes and it was finally left in the hands of the committee to investigate the problem fully and make a progress report accordingly.

A donation was voted to the "Aid to China Fund."

The treasurer, Comrade B. P. Mills, read the financial report of the play, showing a small credit balance, which was due to very poor weather conditions. A very favorable balance was expected for the Branch's funds.

The president read the telegrams that had been sent, supporting the Red Ensign and Maple Leaf design as a national flag as well as one supporting the demand for low cost housing for veterans.

A relief and visiting committee was appointed of Comrades Dr. J. Thibault, Dr. E. A. Cooper and R. Hull.

On behalf of the cenotaph committee it was announced that a drive was being planned for March 3 to 8, to secure funds to complete the cenotaph. This is a very worthy cause and deserves the support of the citizens at large.

The meeting was brought to a close with the singing of "God Save the King," after which refreshments were served, which had been convened by Dr. J. Thibault.

HEC SUTHERLAND WINS DOWNHILL SKI CHAMPIONSHIP

Wurtele Twins, Rhona And Rhoda, Dominate Ladies' Downhill Event

Beaure, Que., Feb. 22.—(C)—Montreal's Hec Sutherland, a 19-year-old daredevil, sent his Olympic stock soaring today when he came down the slopes of Mont Ste. Anne with the throttle wide open to win the downhill event in the Canadian Ski Championships.

The slender Montrealer, the most consistent downhill runner in the Province through the winter, came close to the hill record as he cannonballed down the mile and one half run. His time was two minutes, 24 8/10 seconds.

Second place went to Pierre Jalbert of Quebec, who established the record of 2:24.1 for the Mont Ste. Anne hill only a week ago. On the Dominion title run Jalbert's time was 2:25.5. The Clifford brothers of Ottawa—Harvey and John—finished third and fifth respectively while Jack (Porky) Griffin of Montreal was fourth.

The 25-year-old Wurtele Twins Rhona and Rhoda dominated the Ladies' Downhill competition once again, as they have been doing for years. Rhona came out on top in this instance while her sister, Rhoda, despite two mishaps, finished in second position.

Rhona came shooting down the slope without untoward incident, finishing in 2:40.6. Rhoda, who stumbled once but regained her balance quickly only to fall a few moments later, crossed the finish line in a time that was a little over seven seconds beyond her sister's mark.

Gunning for a spot on Canada's 1948 Olympic team, Sutherland kept on the pressure throughout the run. He went wide by a few feet on a turn or two but not enough to lose any speed. Indicative of his drive was the fact that at one stage, when he hits the bottom of a 400-foot scuss, he was poling furiously. Observers along the course remarked later that he was "blasting" every moment of the way down the steep incline.

Sutherland is expected to place fairly high in tomorrow's slalom race. If he does, then it will be difficult to keep the youthful Montrealer—who quit his job in a bank some weeks back to devote all his attention to skiing—off the Olympic Team. There are 12 ski berths open on the Olympic Team, nine to go to men competitors and three to women with selections to be made on the basis of showings in the recent Dominion Championships and the Karadhar at Mont Tremblant March 2. The Wurtele sisters appear certain of catching places in the women's division.

The 22-year-old Jalbert, who has started to regain his form only recently after suffering from rheumatic fever last year, might have shaved his time a bit if he hadn't been forced into going through a patch of small brush at a point on the run known as Mur Des Epines (Wall of Thorns).

Many of the experts rate Ottawa's Harvey Clifford as the man to beat in the slalom. Clifford, winner of the Laurentides Trophy for the Slalom at Valcartier, Que., last Sunday, also is regarded as having a good chance to capture the combined downhill and slalom title.

E.T. Intermediate "A" Loop Teams In Play-Off Semi-Finals Tomorrow

Magog will oppose Windsor Mills and East Angus will travel to Richmond tomorrow for the second game of the opening two-out-of-three semi-final series of the play-offs of the Eastern Townships Intermediate "A" Hockey League, according to details released by Bill Davis, league president, at a special meeting held in Sherbrooke of representatives of the league's teams. Each encounter will get underway at 2:30 in the afternoon.

The play-offs started Friday when Magog was host to Windsor Mills and East Angus received Richmond. If third games are necessary, Magog will play in Windsor Mills and East Angus will finish their series with Richmond on the latter's ice. Both engagements will take place Wednesday night, February 26th, at 8:30 o'clock.

The final round of the play-offs will be a best three-out-of-five series and will start on Friday, February 28th. In this round the winner of the Windsor Mills-Magog series will take on the winner of the Richmond-East Angus set, and the round will open on the ice of the team that wins the Richmond-East Angus series. The second tilt of the series will be played Sunday, March 2nd, on the home ice of the team that captures the Windsor Mills-Magog set, the third on Wednesday, March 5th, back in the town of the Richmond-East Angus series winner, and the fourth and fifth, if necessary, on Friday, March 7th and Sunday, March 9th, on the ice of the winner of the Windsor Mills-Magog round.

In the event of a tie at the end of regulation time, every play-off game that so ends will have one ten-minute overtime period, regardless of ice conditions. If necessary, in the final engagement on Sunday, March 9th, a winner must be declared regardless of ice conditions and overtime. If teams are still deadlocked after a ten-minute overtime period, the first goal scored will end the game.

It is very desirable that all contests be played on slated nights because the league champion has

CITY POLICE DOWN CIRCO IN VOLLEYBALL

The City Police volleyball team took three straight games 15-9, 15-8, 15-7, from the Circo in a regular fixture of the City Volleyball circuit.

The bluecoats played their usual steady game with Constable Roger Dion keeping things pretty much under control.

For the Circo club Len Gillam and R. Caunter played well but the constables were skilful in picking out the weak spots and then striking the ball in the hole left vacant by the Circo players.

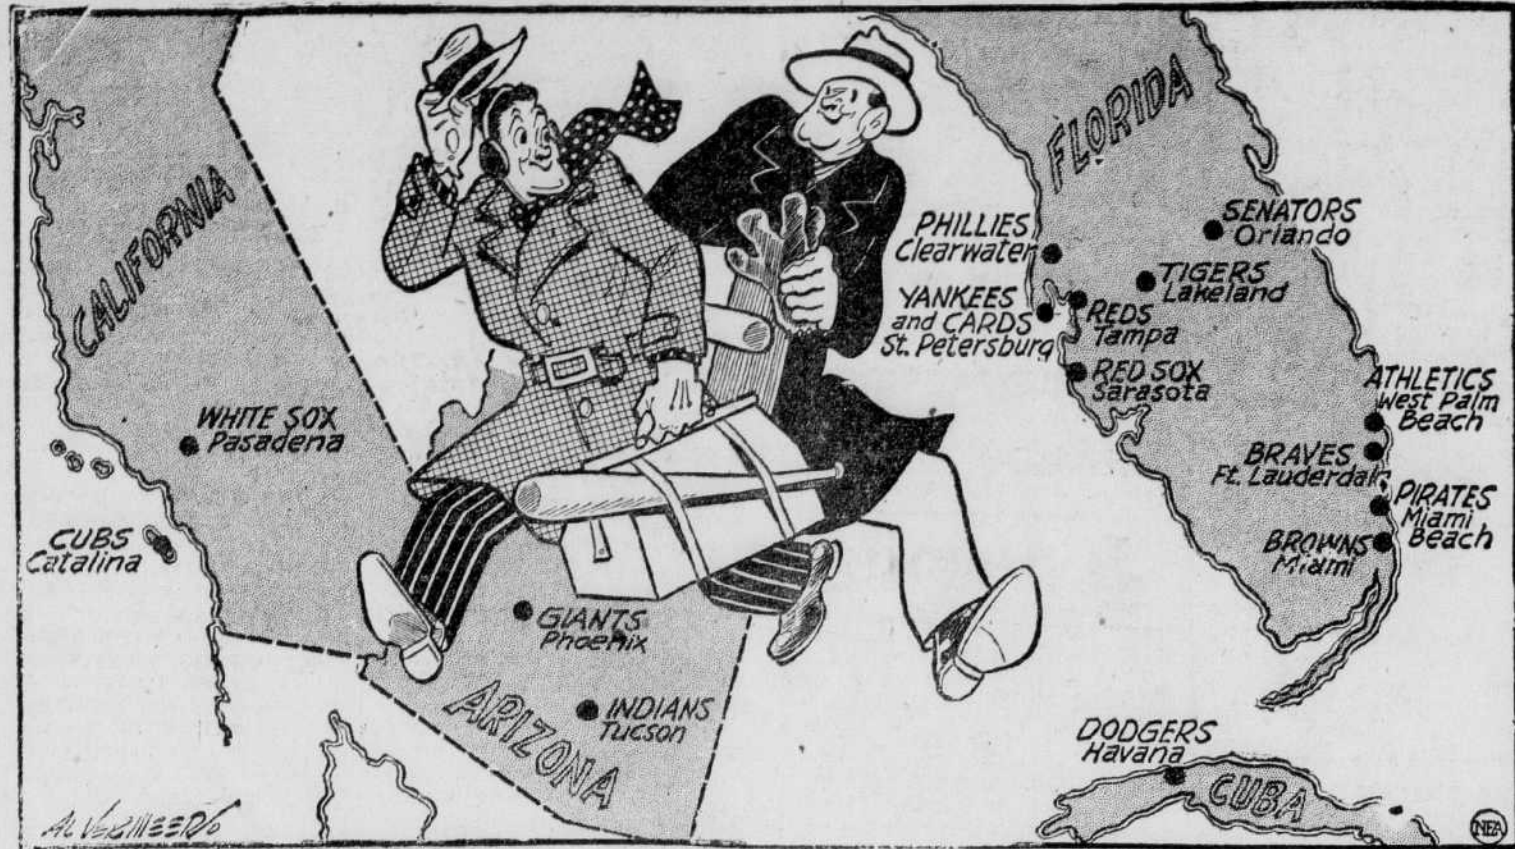

The lineups were:

City Police: Sgt. H. Perusse, Police Secretary M. Vigneault, Constables R. Dion, R. Rousseau, R. Bonneau and W. Edmond.

Circo: R. Caunter, D. Cote, L. Gillam, F. Currier, L. Berwick, E. Holland and H. Griffith.

Harold Pyle and Mac Cathcart acted in the capacity of referees and rendered sound decisions.

Inflated Scoring Likely If C.R.U. Adopts Changes In Football Rules

Toronto, Feb. 22.—(C)—Whether football fans will see inflation in the fall will be decided tomorrow when the men who write the rules go into their annual huddle here.

It's logical—and demonstrate—that a shorter field and an attack jazzed up by providing the ball-carrier more blocking add up to inflated scoring. Those are two recommendations that will come before the Canadian Rugby Union Saturday at the governing body's 56th annual meeting.

Just how much higher average scores the proposal to pare 10 yards off the official field length of 110 would result in, is conjectural. But last season's experience of Montreal Alouettes bears out the argument that it would be more than the 10 per cent you could mathematically expect.

In six big four league games last season on Montreal's 100-yard field at Delormier stadium, the Alouettes and their opposition totalled 201 points, about a 33-point-a-game average. In Montreal's away games on the league's three 110-yard fields, the total was 128 points, a game average of about 21.

The proposal to shorten the field to United States regulation length will find some support, both Toronto Balmy Beach and Winnipeg Blue Bombers having underized home grounds. But there will also be staunch opposition, mainly because the rule book notes that the field may be "as near as possible" to the 110 by 65 official dimensions.

The interference rule is due for discussion by the C.R.U. executive and the representatives from its six affiliate leagues. The three leagues that challenge for the Dominion title—Big Four, Ontario Union and Western Interprovincial—carry the big weight in these discussions with two votes apiece while associate members such as the Eastern and Western Intercollegiate leagues and the Quebec Union have a vote apiece.

The rule allowing men on the line of scrimmage to make interference for 10 days for the ball-carrier was extended from five yards last season on a one-year trial basis. Some delegates have proposed the blocking privileges be extended to backfielders. Some want the rule kept as it is others just don't like it.

There also will likely be argument over the regulation allowing each team five United States imports, instituted last season or a two-year trial basis. The O.R.F.U. wants it made clear an American is classed as an import until he's played three seasons in Canada; the Big Four and the O.R.F.U. both want the import-sizng deadline put back to Sept. 15.

Several minor rule changes were recommended at the various leagues' annual meetings. One is that unlimited substitution be permitted; another that a team blocking a third-down kick automatically gets possession, unless the kicking team makes yards on the play.

Seven More Names Are Added To Kingston's Hockey Hall Of Fame

Kingston, Ont., Feb. 22.—(C)—The names of seven more hockey greats were announced today as unanimously selected for membership in Kingston's International Hockey Hall of Fame. These brought the total to 17, including various hockey executives.

The new names:

Fred (Cyclone) Taylor, native of Listowel, Ont., former Ontario amateur star and Pacific Coast professional standout, now living in Vancouver.

Eddie Shore, native of Qu'Appelle, Sask., perhaps the greatest defenceman in National Hockey League history with the Boston Bruins, now managing American minor league teams.

Frank Nighbor, native of Pembroke, Ont., one of the greatest centres of the game in his days with the old Ottawa Senators of the fledgling N.H.L.

Aurel Joliat, for 16 seasons leftwinger of the old Montreal Canadiens, worthy too the rule book of the late great Howie Moren.

Russell Bowie, famous amateur star with the Montreal Victorias ending in 1907. Now living in Montreal.

Lester Patrick, native of Drummondville, Que., great player in his youth, astute manager in recent years of New York Rangers of the N.H.L.

Capt. James Sutherland, Kingston, hockey player of generations gone who for many years has had a large voice in organized hockey; former president of the O.H.A., former president of the C.A.H.A.

Whole articles could be written about each of the new hockey immortals, and have been done on several or them.

But we'll just take one of the list now. That's Eddie Shore, the most applauded, and most booed player in N.H.L. history. Eddie dominated hockey's big time in his playing days as much as ever Babe Ruth dominated baseball. He still holds the N.H.L. record for defencemen with 263 scoring points in his first ten years. Sometimes, Shore scored more points in a season than most forwards. He was voted to the N.H.L. all-star team for seven seasons. As the most dangerous defenceman—coming and going—he rang up 165 minutes in penalties in 1927. He retired at the end of the 1940-41 season. He's 42 now, practically bald, and crammed with hockey know-how.

Passes Combined With Screening Pay Dividends To William And Mary

By DICK GALLAGHER

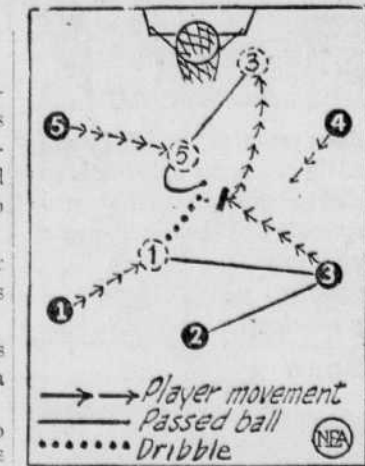

William and Mary Coach Williamsburg, Va., Feb. 20.—While many successful coaches keep passes to a minimum, fearing interception, William and Mary employs multi-pass plays to good advantage.

Passes combined with clever screening are the best methods of deception.

In the accompanying diagram is shown our four passes and a screen play.

2 passes to 3. 1 advances to about the free-throw line, receives a pass from 3, makes a short dribble and gives a backhand bounce pass to 5, who comes in to receive it.

Meanwhile 3 screens 1's guard and quickly gets in position under the basket, where he receives the ball from 5 for a lay-up shot.

Sherbrooke And Tigers Open Home And Home Series This Evening

The Sherbrooke Hockey Club has six games left to complete their schedule and are practically assured of first place in the standing.

St. Hyacinthe and Victoriaville, who are fighting it out for second place, would have to win all their remaining tilts, which would give them a total of 64 points and if the locals win only three of the games they would also end up with the same total of points, 64.

Sherbrooke hook up with the Tigers this evening in Victoriaville and tomorrow afternoon at the local Arena. The locals have a home and home series with Verdun Eagles and Lachine Rapides to close off their schedule and must win at least four of the remaining fixtures to be assured of first place, providing the Tigers and Saints win all their remaining games.

Sherbrooke can assure themselves of first place by taking the Tigers over the week-end. On the other hand, the Saints have to meet Victoriaville, Lachine and Cornwall, which will not be an easy assignment for them. The Tigers also have a hard row to hoe. They encounter the Gauls, Congars and the Rapides in their travels.

Bernard Lauzon may not see action tonight owing to a sprained ankle he received in the Saints-Sherbrooke tilt. The rest of the team is in good condition and will be ready to give the Tigers a battle royal.

The probable lineups will be:

Sherbrooke
Barefoot goal Nadeau
Heindel defence Roberge
Gouville defence Gagnon
H. Carnerie centre Dufault
O. Carnerie wing Dussault
McIntyre wing Thibault

Victoriaville
Sherbrooke subs: Cote, Bastien, Morehouse, Hayes, McDougall, Denault, Lauzon, Dion.

Victoriaville subs: Boyer, Mercier, Hebert, Burnett, Hayden, Gauthier, Wray, Valenti, Marcotte, Laurin.

35-33 Series Total Gives Richmond E.T.A.B.A. Women's Championship

Thanks to a field goal by Isabel Irwin with seconds remaining in the game, St. Francis College High School cagerettes of Richmond topped Y.W.C.A. 18-13 at the "Y" last night to win a home-and-home final series 35-33 and capture the 1946-47 championship of the women's section of the Eastern Townships Amateur Basketball Association.

The "Y" had trimmed the Richmond team on the latter's floor 20-17 in the first match of the total points round on Thursday, February 13. The "Y" won the title last season.

The victory gives the visitors the right to meet Thetford Mines in the next round of the Provincial Amateur Association play-downs. This series, like the one Richmond has just survived, will be a home-and-home set and the team that scores the most points in the two fixtures will advance in the play-offs.

The locals were short-handed at the time the winning goal was scored. Margaret Deane, one of the "Y's" centre players, had been ruled off the court near the end of the third quarter for getting her fifth personal foul.

On a gleaming, newly varnished, and painted court the "Y" opened the scoring but Richmond evened the count before the first quarter ended. The score at the end of the first ten minutes of play was 3-3.

It was one of two occasions during the match on which the score was tied. The other time was in the fourth quarter. The "Y" started the game three points ahead of Richmond. By quarter-time, though, the score of the tilt was tied, the "Y" was still ahead in the series 23-20. They had increased this to 29-23 by half-time. But Richmond cut into this lead during the third frame, and the score was 31-26 at the end of this quarter. In a big fourth quarter the visitors went places, deadlocked the score, and did well enough in the last few minutes to get the deciding goal. The final score of the game was Richmond 18, Y.W.C.A. 13; the score of the series, Richmond 35, Y.W.C.A. 33.

The locals were comparatively quiet in the fourth quarter as far as scoring was concerned. Flo Martin, right forward, notched their only field goal in that frame. There was no lack of scoring opportunities in the game. This made the contest a very exciting one for the fans present.

Though Evelyn Harrington, Richmond left forward, and Flo Martin shared top scoring honors with eight points apiece, Isabel Irwin, who scored the goal that beat the "Y," was obviously the star of the match. She was also third among the scorers with five points.

The teams and referees are as follows:

St. Francis College High School: J. Harrington, 2-0; H. Fee; M. Pope; E. Harrington, 3-5; V. Gantner; D. Perkins; M. McManis, 0-2; Smith, 0-1; J. A. Pyle; I. Irwin, 1-4.

Y.W.C.A.: F. Martin, 4-4; M. Fountain; L. Smith, 4-0; E. Martin; M. Dean; M. Northey; J. Andel; E. Tindale, 1-0.

Referees: Dick Wilson and Bill Cchoon.
