SKELETON BROUGHT TO WINDSOR MILLS.

St. Ch. Seminary 5Jan07

Fracture of Skull Size of Silver Dollar.

SOME CLOTHING STILL REMAINS —EAST SHERBROOKE MAN DISAPPEARED EIGHT YEARS AGO.

Windsor Mills, Oct. 22.—(Special.)—Constables Martin Ryan and C. Tremblay, by direction of the coroner, made their way into the woods and removed the skeleton found last week by Lancaster, the hunter. They were not able to drive within several miles of the place. They brought the skeleton to Windsor Mills, and it now awaits the arrival of the coroner to-night.

A representative of the Record saw Constable Ryan this morning and also viewed the remains of the unknown man who met death alone in the woods. The bones were brought to Windsor in a bag. The report that there was no clothing attached was incorrect. The man's clothes still covered the bones, but so weather beaten that it is impossible to tell their color. His boots were laced and apparently nearly new, not being worn very much. They were not of the woodman style, but the ordinary laced boot. By the side of the body was the rotted remains of a tuque, evidently the head gear worn by the man. Its color cannot be made out, but it was evidently the ordinary tuque often worn by lumbermen and men in the woods during the tall or winter. Little can be learned from his clothing. It would appear that he wore some sort of an overcoat which came nearly to his knees. The man was of ordinary height. A little hair still remaining on his head is of an auburn color, indicating that the man was of a light complexion and not of an extreme old age. The Record representative, on advice from Sherbrooke examined the bones of the leg to see if there were indications of a fracture which might identify him as the missing East Sherbrooke man. No such indications could be found in the hasty examination made.

The side of the skull is broken in. The fracture is about the size of a silver dollar. The man was lying on his back and there was nothing about the spot to indicate that the fracture of the skull could have occurred as a fall or from falling limb of tree afterwards. The man's stature, the remains of his clothing, his boots, the color of his hair may lead to identification. One intimately acquainted with him just previous to his disappearance might find something here that he would recognize.

Eight years ago an old man, Pierre Beard, of East Sherbrooke, suddenly disappeared from home and has never been heard from since. His relatives made inquiries but could get no trace of him. It appears that he quietly left home during the day and never returned. The old man in his younger days was quite a hunter, and at the time of his disappearance it was thought he might have wandered into the woods and lost his way or met with mishap.

The article in Saturday's Record regarding the discovery of a skeleton in the woods near the line between the townships of Windsor and Stoke, was brought to the attention of relatives of the old man. Perhaps this might solve the mystery of his disappearance. They reported to the coroner. It appears that a few years before his disappearance the old man in question sustained a broken leg. The mark of this must still be borne, and will serve to establish whether or not the skeleton of the Windsor forest is the remains of the East Sherbrooke man, whose sudden disappearance has been an unsolved mystery for eight years.

CORONER AT WINDSOR.

The coroner, Dr. Bachand, went to Windsor Mills, Saturday evening, to institute inquiry into the "skeleton mystery." He appointed two men to proceed into the woods and remove the bones to Windsor Mills, at the same time noting carefully the place where the bones lie. The Coroner will return to Windsor to-night to continue the inquiry and if circumstances warrant will institute a formal inquest. The broken skull suggests foul play, and so if the identity of the bones can be established a searching inquiry will be held.

HUNDREDS OF LIVES WERE LOST.

Terrible Storm Swept the Florida Coast.

VESSELS WRECKED AND PEOPLE SWEPT TO DEATH—HOUSEBOATS LOADED WITH MEN SWEPT OUT TO SEA.

Jacksonville, Fla., Oct. 22.—A special to the metropolis from Miami, Fla., says:

"The Miama steamer St. Lucie was crushed by the high waves in Thursday's hurricane, and out of 100 persons on board, 35 were lost. The steamer Peerless also lost about the same number, they being blown off the vessel. The launch Elmora has capsized and it is thought to be a total loss. The launch Manny was badly damaged.

Work barges Nos. 6 and 7 and dredge No. 4, of the East Coast road, broke away and drifted to sea, but are now safe on the outer side of Biscayno Bay.

The Peninsula and Occidental shed was badly damaged.

There was heavy loss of life on the dredges and Long Key steamer. The steamer Vigilancia is expected sometime this afternoon with bodies, and will bring details of the storm news.

DEATH AND DESTRUCTION.

Key West, Fla., Oct. 22.—Survivors from one of the house boats of the Florida East Coast Railway extension, along the Keys, tells a harrowing tale of death and destruction caused by the storm of Thursday.

W. P. Dusenbury, civil engineer in charge of the work on Long Key, who wonderfully escaped death, arrived here on the Russian steamer Jennie, among other survivors rescued. He said Houseboat No. 4, on which were 150 men, was struck by the storm early on Thursday morning, and was driven out into the Gulf. The house boat soon began to break up, and, as the great waves hit her, men, singly and in twos and threes, were washed into the sea and drowned. Some went below for protection, but when the top of the boat was carried away, the waves rushed in and the boat was soon sent to pieces. Thirty or forty of the men were crushed to death in the collapse. The others grabbed timbers to save them from drowning. Mr. Dusenbury was in the hold, but succeeded in getting a log and floated until Friday night.

To one piece of timber 16 men were clinging; nine were hanging to another. The sides of the house boat was crowded with men. It turned over three times, each time reducing the number. The Jennie sighted the wreckage and succeeded in rescuing the 49 men, who were brought here. Three other steamers with searchlights, were picking up dead and alive men when the Jennie left the scene.

There was another house boat with 150 men on board, at Long Key, which Mr. Dusenbury thinks was also swept to sea.

CHURCH AND STATE.

A POSSIBLE WAY TO AGREEMENT IN FRANCE.

Nice, France, October 22.—(Special.)—While disclaiming to speak on authority of the Pope, Bishop Chapon in an interview to-day flatly declared his conviction that if the Church hierarchy through bishops is given right by a decision of Council of State to decide on regularity of Catholic Associations in France to which Church property may be sutrendered, a modus vivendi between the Church and Government is possible, and Vatican will not insist upon parliamentary action in circumstances.

HELPS U. S. FISHERMEN.

IMPORTANT CONCESSION FROM ST PIERRE-MIQUELON.

Washington, Oct. 22.—What is believed here will prove a valuable concession to American fishermen has been granted by the governor of St. Pierre-Miquelon, near Newfoundland. The State Department has been informed that under certain restrictions American fishermen may catch fish in the territorial waters of the islands, which belong to the French Government. As understood here, the restrictions imposed are not such as to prevent the rights given from being of convenience and value to American fishermen. The herring fisheries in these waters are at times extremely valuable, depending on the run of the herring. Bureau of Fisheries experts who have been in these waters say the run varies greatly. Last year fish were few, but at times they are extremely plentiful.

TO BLOW UP COURT MARTIAL.

CRONSTADT ARRESTS DISCLOSE THE PLOT.

St. Petersburg, Oct. 22.—It has been established that the five men arrested in Cronstadt on Oct. 16 for having in their possession a bomb were implicated in a plot to blow up the building where the court martial trying the mutiny cases was sitting, in revenge for the executions of mutineers. A soldier named Vlasoff had volunteered to throw the bomb, which was of the highest destructive power and had been supplied by the St. Petersburg revolutionists, who sent it to Cronstadt in charge of a man and a woman. Several soldiers have been arrested on the charge of being connected with the plot.

CONDEMN TEACHER'S PERMIT SYSTEM.

Whether all Protestant school teachers should undergo professional training, or whether, as at present, permits to teach, without such training, should be granted to meet local conditions, was the subject of considerable discussion at the closing session.

The matter arose on the presentation of a resolution by a special committee, which had been appointed by the executive to consider the subject, and it was to the following effect:

That the association placed itself on record in the following particulars concerning the scarcity of teachers and the admission of persons to the rank of teachers without previous training:

1. We affirm the action of the executive committee of this association taken at the meeting of January, 1906, endorsing the following resolution of Mr. J. C. Sutherland, before the Protestant Committee of the Council of Public Instruction:

That this committee, while it recognizes the fact that in some districts of the province the school boards have difficulty in obtaining teachers, even when offering what may not be designated as large, but at the same time average salaries, is of opinion that the question of the supply of competent teachers is here, as in other parts of the world, an economic one, not merely in the sense of direct money reward, but also in the sense that the conditions of life in some of the municipalities are such that they constitute a factor in determining the teacher's choice of a situation. Therefore, the committee is not prepared to endorse a movement looking towards a general lowering of the standard required for admission to the teaching profession to meet localized conditions at a time when increased salaries should be looked for, in keeping with the prosperity of the country, supplemented by Government subsidies.

2. According to the most reliable information, our teachers are more efficient and better paid as the result of professional training, and it is demanded by the most enlightened educational bodies and people of the world; and whereas the admission of persons without training to the work of teaching is a retrograde step, we regret that the Protestant Committee of the Council of Public Instruction deemed it expedient to make special provision for the admission of persons without professional training, and, therefore, we sincerely hope for the early termination of this arrangement.

The adoption of the resolution was moved by Mr. H. J. Silver, seconded by Mr. E. M. Campbell.

Prof. Kneeland said it must not for a moment be thought that the members of the Protestant Committee who supported the resolution carried at the May meeting, granting permits to teach without previous training, were not alive to the educational needs of the province, nor that only those who voted against it were the educationists in the province. It was the oldest educationist who supported the resolution before the committee. The movement, he remarked, originated with a resolution of some years ago, which made it compulsory for all teachers to take training in the Normal School.

It was not an attempt on the part of the committee to let down the bars and it was not an attempt to make it easier to get into the teaching profession; but it was an attempt that there should be some demand made upon those who entered the schools as teachers. If they did not possess a normal school training they must show some qualification for the work.

Rev. Principal Shaw said that he was a little responsible for the enactment, some twelve years ago, that all the teachers should attend the Normal School, but as the years had advanced, and the cry had come for teachers, he saw that it would not be either possible or fair to demand that candidates from the remote parts of the province should be compelled to come to the Normal School, with all the attendant expense. Principal Peterson, Mr. Silver and Mr. Sutherland had bravely stood up in committee for the old regulation, but there were fourteen who voted to relax the present rule.

The president, Rev. Dr. Barclay, said that his sympathies were entirely with the resolution which had been submitted by the special committee.

BANQUET IN HONOR OF COUNCIL AND BAND.

Knowlton, Oct. 22. — (Special)— Mr. L. G. Green, proprietor of the Lakeview House, issued an invitation to the members of the Knowlton Council and the members of the Knowlton Band, and several other gentlemen of the town, to dine with him on Friday evening last. At nine o'clock twenty-six gentlemen sat down to prettily decorated tables and partook of a very elaborate dinner—some of them say the best dinner they ever sat down to in Knowlton—of many courses and served well. Among invited guests outside the two bodies named were Dr. Harris, J. L. Fay, B.C.L., W. H. A. Davies, S. Courtney, Mr. Leach and J. N. Robinson. Three members of the Band were unavoidably absent. After the inner man was fully satisfied, speeches were in order and Mr. Fred England as Mayor, thanked the host for the honor and good dinner both for the Council and Band which would doubtless speak for itself. But he wished to thank them for the pleasure they were occasionally giving the village in the way of music. Mr. A. W. Pettes thanked Mr. Green also, in a few well chosen words. Mr. Green was always doing the Band a good turn and they appreciated it very much. Dr. Harris expressed the appreciation of the invited guests not in these companies, and Mr. Fay made quite a lengthy speech, complimenting the Band on their usefulness and pleasure-giving opportunities. He, as secretary of the village, heard a good deal from outside the Council that they were blamed and complained about because of the scarcity of water, high taxes, and so forth, but he felt in his position he could say that they deliberated and took much pains in their decisions. Theirs was a thankless and payless job, and there were but few who would accept the councillor's office. He felt they did their duty carefully and that they should be better appreciated then they were.

After the speeches were over they retired to the Hall where the Band played a few choice selections, and all returned to their homes about eleven o'clock having heartily enjoyed the evening.

CAUGHT ON A REAR CAR STEP.

Montreal Man Hung on Some Time Then Fell to Track.

JUST AS PARLOR CAR CONDUCTOR CAME TO RESCUE.

Montreal, Oct. 22.—Mr. Homer Taylor, of Montreal, a dealer in railway supplies, was killed Saturday morning by a fall from the rear end of the Canada Atlantic Express between Ottawa and Montreal.

Mr. Taylor was returning from a business trip to the Capital. At Alexandria he disembarked from the train and walked to the refreshment room where he partook of a light luncheon. While Mr. Taylor was yet in the restaurant the train started. Running from the place he found himself opposite the last car. This was the parlor car. Mr. Taylor took hold of the rail and found footing on the step, but when he tried to open the door he found himself unable to do so, the platform trap inside being down and preventing opening of the door.

No one aboard the train noticed Mr. Taylor's precarious position except a man on the station platform at Alexandria, who warned him of the water tank. Mr. Taylor heard the warning and drew himself closer to the car to avoid being crushed.

As the express commenced to speed at the rate of about sixty miles an hour Mr. Taylor's position became more precarious, but he hung on. Not until he was there for about four minutes was he discovered, and then by a passenger who noticed him when he walked to the rear end of the car. Not understanding how to open the vestibule door the passenger rushed into the car and notified the porter to hurry back to pull up the trap and open the door. Just as the frame swung inward, offering an avenue of escape to Mr. Taylor, the latter swayed, lost his hold, wavered on the steps for an instant, and just as the porter tried to grab him, he fell and was dashed on the roadbed, the porter and the passenger watching the last of the tragedy.

THE MODUS VIVENDI

TEXT MADE PUBLIC BY THE U.S. STATE DEPARTMENT.

Washington, D.C., Oct. 22.—The American State Department has just made public the text of the modus vivendi relative to the Newfoundland fisheries, which has already been dealt with in abstract form, which the people of Newfoundland have expressed a desire to see in its entirety, before the Cabinet of the island colony decides upon a line of action. The modus, instead of taking the form of a treaty, is embodied in correspondence between the British Foreign Office and the American Ambassador at London.

The provisions are as already understood.

WON'T USE PURSE SEINES.

St. John's, Nfld., Oct. 22. — The agents and captains of the American herring fishing vessels at Bay of Islands, Saturday, signed an agreement with the native fishermen to abandon the use of purse seines for the present season. This is a concession to the colonial fishing folk, who strongly resent the employment of these contrivances.

MISCELLANEOUS SPORTING NOTES.

The Minto cup goes to Ottawa by the decisive score of eleven to two. The Capitals defeated the Tecumsehs, Saturday, winning the championship by 15 to 3. Tecumsehs put up a miserable quality of the national game, lacrosse. Capitals have often done better. In the third quarter a free fight occurred with the result that two players from each team were put off for twenty minutes. Shea and Murton got in a mix-up and before it ended about a hundred men were on the field.

Harry Lewis, of Philadelphia, got the decision over Jack Dougherty of Milwaukee, Wis., in a ten-round bout before the Milwaukee Boxing Club, Friday night.

Messrs. Parker and Fisher shipped a big car of cattle, calves and pigs to Montreal on Saturday.

The team of Mr. Dubois, of Barford, hitched on Saturday in Mr. Bachand's yard, got away and ran out of the yard, colliding with a milk team, upsetting the cans outside the post office, the runaway horse throwing himself down. He got up again and ran up the street and out of sight almost before anybody knew anything had happened. He was hitched to a very nice wagon almost new, which was very badly smashed up.

What Is an Abrash?

This question is answered in a most interesting manner by George Leland Hunter in an article entitled "The Truth About 'Doctored' Rugs" in Country Life In America. He writes: "Abrash is a most interesting word. In Persia if father, son and grandson have Roman noses, then a Roman nose is the abrash of that family. If gluttony is characteristic of generation after generation, then is gluttony the hereditary abrash. If it is a strawberry mark on the left shoulder, then the strawberry mark is an abrash. The abrashes of a rug are the stripes or bands that run parallel or entirely across the pile. When seen for the first time by Americans accustomed to admire and insist on the deathlike uniformity that characterizes machine products abrashes are apt to impress them as defects, particularly if wide. It takes experience and acquaintance with the art industries to grasp completely the significance and artistic value of individuality."

Beggars Outwitted.

Many years ago an ingenious plan was adopted by the grand duke to rid Florence of beggars. It was proclaimed that every beggar who would appear in the grand plaza at a certain mentioned time would be provided with a new suit of clothes by the duke free of cost. At the appointed time the beggars of the city all assembled, and the grand duke, causing all the avenues to the square to be closed, compelled the beggars to strip off their old clothes and gave each one, according to promise, a new suit. In the old clothes thus collected enough money was found concealed to build a beautiful bridge over the Arno, still called the "Beggars' bridge," and the city for the time being was relieved of the beggars by which it had been previously overrun, as none would give to the well dressed individuals who implored charity, not believing their tales of distress.

BETTER CLASS OF TAILORING.

Has Conquered the Prejudice Which Custom Generates.

The man who wears a comfort last C width shoe does not of necessity wear a Physique Type C suit of Semi-ready tailoring, but the man who has studied the reason why he will to-day pay more for a store shoe than he would pay for a shoe made on the cobbler's bench, will understand why Semi-ready tailoring must of necessity win all the better class of tailoring trade. No tailor can possibly excel the work on a Semi-ready suit or overcoat, even though but it be a $15 serge or tweed, for good tailoring helps the new physique type system of the Semi-ready. The physique types A, B, C, D, E, F, and G, mean more than mere shoe widths, just as do the five variations of each type and the many sizes of each variation.

Boucher & Lacroix, of Sherbrooke, are the possessors of the Semi-ready franchise.

About two hundred persons sat down to both dinner and supper.

Posters are out for a promenade concert and dance to be given by the band on November 1st in the Lake View House hall. On the success of this entertainment depends largely whether they can decide to keep Prof. Hubbard on as teacher through the winter months or not. If they can continue under his tuition they will be in good form for the following summer. The band has been a great source of pleasure to everyone for several seasons, and the help the outsiders can give by purchasing tickets for the concert will be laying up pleasure for the summer to come.

At the concert given by the ladies during the early part of this past summer for the Children's Hospital in Montreal, it was decided that Knowlton should furnish a cot complete for that institution. Mr. C. K. Temple kindly consented to open the subscription for that purpose at the Bank and receive any amount from any person who felt disposed to donate. He has the papers now open at Molson's Bank and will gladly receive any amount no matter how small at his office during his usual office hours. So good an object should reach the hearts and pockets of many, when remembering it is for crippled children to receive treatment, perhaps cure.

Light refreshments were served by the members of the congregation, and the very satisfactory sum of $65 was realized.

Yesterday being the day appointed in the Church of England of Intercession for Sunday Schools, the service at St. Peter's Church was conducted in the morning by Rev. Dr. Parrock, of Bishop's College, Lennoxville, who preached from the text Luke 2, 46: "And after three days they found him in the temple, sitting in the midst of the doctors both hearing them, and asking them questions." The preacher began by referring to the custom of the Jewish Church of giving religious instruction to the youths of the congregation in the temple, of the boy Jesus conforming to usage in this respect, and astonishing all who heard him by his understanding and answers. He spoke of the great value of Sunday School teaching, the relations between teacher and pupils, modern methods, etc. In the evening the sermon was preached by Rev. E. A. Dunn, Professor of Divinity at Bishop's College, who took for his text: "Train up a child in the way he should go, and when he is old he will not depart from it." Prov. 2, 26, and "Suffer little children to come unto Me," Luke, 18, 16. The offertory both morning and evening was for the Sherbrooke Protestant Hospital.

MORE OFFENDERS TAKE THE TEMPERANCE PLEDGE.

An old man named Caney, an inmate of the Sacred Heart Hospital, and who has been giving the sisters considerable trouble by running away and getting drunk, appeared before Justice of the Peace Kennedy at the Police Station this morning. It appears that on Saturday he escaped from the Hospital and came to the city where he secured liquor, and reached an incapable state. He was let off on suspended sentence on condition that he take the temperance pledge.

Two frequenters of the police cells, and upon whom the fines seem to have but little effect, one man having appeared on eleven charges, were fined, this morning by Justice of the Peace Kennedy, $5 and costs, on condition that they go with an officer and take the temperance pledge from their spiritual adviser, for one year, and report once each week, to show their condition at the police station.

THE BAZAAR

Everything so far as the Bazaar in aid of the Sacred Heart Hospital, has been successful. It is hoped that to-night's and to-morrow's attendance will continue to increase, and that the amount required will be realized. Saturday afternoon the orphans visited the bazaar. Saturday night a grand supper was held, presided over by Bishop LaRocque, and many clergymen and citizens were present. During the evening, Mrs. Ed. Codere and Mr. Eugene Codere delivered much appreciated music. Mrs. A. Codere and Miss Eva Dussault sang much to the pleasure of all present, and many articles were raffled.

To-night a grand dinner will be served, and there will also be numerous attractions.

To-morrow night a dinner will be given and the visitors entertained by the orphans. The final raffle will then be held, after which the evening as well as the bazaar will be brought to a close.

IS CONVICTED OF MANSLAUGHTER.

ALEX. McEWAN GIVEN AN INDETERMINATE SENTENCE AT MINNEAPOLIS.

Minneapolis, October 22—Alexander McEwan, convicted of manslaughter in the first degree, was sentenced Saturday, by Judge Andrew Holt, to the state penitentiary on the reformatory plan. The length of this indeterminate sentence depends upon the demeanor of the prisoner, and he may be released by the board of pardons at any time after five and before 20 years, the limit prescribed by the statute for his crime. He is said to be a Montrealer.

NEW FRENCH MINISTRY.

M. CLEMENCEAU ENTRUSTED WITH THE TASK OF FORMING ONE.

Paris, October 22—M. Clemenceau, minister of the interior, was summoned yesterday to the Elysee Palace and entrusted with the task of forming a new ministry. He expressed his acceptance and then consulted M. Sarrien, the former premier, with regard to the political situation; M. Dubost, president of the senate, and M. Bourgeois, minister of foreign affairs, whom he urged pressingly to retain his portfolio. M. Bourgeois was inflexible in his refusal, pleading ill-health. M. Clemenceau also held conferences with his political friends, including General Picquart, the defender of Dreyfus, who was restored to the army and promoted in July. M. Clemenceau declares he has not yet offered any portfolio, and saw General Picquart only to obtain information on certain phases of the army estimates. It will take him four days to choose his ministers.

At the Poor-house Door

By NANCY HAZLIP

Copyright, 1906, by Ruby Douglas

"I don't see why you would name a girl child Jessica—you might 'a' known she'd grow up so prim and high headed and hateful no man in his senses 'd ever want to marry her, and, land knows, women that don't marry have a hard time," Grandma Cole said to her son's meek widow.

Mrs. Cole answered a little tremulously. "But, mother, they do want to marry her. Jessy might 'a' had four proposals last year, if only she'd 'a' gone and let the men speak out."

"And who were the men, I'd like to know?" Grandma puffed, her throat swelling visibly. "Widderers with nine children, or else one foot in the grave, or cranky old bachelors, or maybe even preachers. Besides, how can you know even a preacher wants to marry you unless he ups and says so? I never did hold with this way of makin' out every man that went to a house or even rode past it had a notion of goin' there courtin'."

She paused in breathless triumph. If Mrs. Lem Cole had been wise she would have held her peace. Grandma bore controverting very ill indeed, and to prove her in the wrong was to risk everything. Mrs. Lem knew that very well, but a goaded woman is often a desperate one. Therefore she burst out: "Well! Three of the men—and they weren't widowers nor preachers, but real good chances—asked me to ask Jessy if she'd listen to 'em. And the other one"—

"There wasn't any other one. Maria, I don't believe one word you're sayin'," Grandma broke out furiously. "Four proposals indeed! Why, Ann 'Liza didn't have but three in the whole of last year and the beaus around her all the time like bees around a honey pot."

"The other one was Jimmy Wakefield. And he wouldn't be stopped. Just up and asked Jessy like a man," Mrs. Lem said, not meekly, but with such red spots in her cheeks she looked almost as young as her daughter.

"Get out of here, you!" Grandma panted. "Jimmy Wakefield, indeed! Why he's never had a notion to anybody but Ann 'Liza. And she's goin' to take him, too, when she gets good and ready. Don't you dare talk of him wantin' that stick of a Jessy. If I thought there was any truth in what you've said I'd send you straight out of the house."

"Then we'll go without waiting to be sent," Jessy burst out from the doorway. She had been standing just outside, feeling somehow that her dear patient mother might need her help and countenance. "I don't like to tell, to say such things," she went on, "but mammy told the truth, nothing but the truth. And she shan't stay here to be insulted. Unless you ask her pardon we'll go away."

"Where? To the county poorhouse? I don't know any other chance for ye," Grandma said, white faced, her eyes flashing.

She was an imperious old lady, nobly partial to her namesake and favorite grandchild, Ann Eliza Wicks, partly because Ann Eliza was pretty and taking and impertinent, partly also because she had money enough of her own to be entirely independent.

Grandfather Cole had left everything to his wife. She held on to it with a grip of iron. All her five children had prospered except luckless Lemuel. He had left wife and daughter little except his ill luck. It had followed them so throughout the three years since his death they had at last been forced to accept the shelter Grandma had grudgingly offered.

"Teach school! You know I won't have that," grandma had said to Jessy's plan. "No, missy, I'll marry you off in a year. Then you can take your mother home with you. Remember beggars mustn't be choosers. You ain't quite a beggar. You'll get something when I die, of course. But I ain't going to see my husband's money wasted as long as I can help it, even if I had any to spare, which I haven't. It costs such a lot to do things. Why, just even half livin' nearly bankrupts me. Ann 'Liza has to have things. She's got a delicate appetite, and so notionate. She can afford to be, because she can keep on havin' what she wants when she comes to spendin' her own money. You've got no money to spend, so you'd better learn economy every way."

Jessy had been for going away then, but her mother's timorous fears had prevailed on her to stay. Jessy was not strictly pretty. Her eyes were too serious, her lips too severe. She had a good chin, fine and clean cut, and a lovely neck below it. Her hair was flaxen, her eyes a water blue.

Ann Eliza had black eyes and hair and very high color. Grandma thought her the prettiest creature in the world. She likewise thought Jessica hardly passable. But now as she faced her grandchild she saw a Jessica new and strange, one whose cheeks were damask roses.

The change startled her. She turned half about, saying in a grumbling voice: "Maria, you oughtn't to provoke me so. Go out in the garden. I'm comin' pretty shortly. And you, Jessy, tell the boy to bring round the buggy. I want you and Ann 'Liza to drive over to the store for me."

"I'm sorry, but I can't go," Jessy said, holding tight to her mother's hand. "I shall be busy—packing up and finding out how we can best get away."

"Oh, shut up! Stop your foolish talk!" grandma commanded fretfully.

Ann Eliza came in from the garden, both her hands full of dewy roses. "Here! Take these and fix the parlor vases," she commanded Jessica.

Jessica shook her head and turned toward the door. Grandma had weakened sensibly; she was on the point of mumbling out an apology. But as Ann Eliza cried pettishly, "I wish you'd look at that; I told you what would come of setting beggars on horseback!" her anger flamed up hotter than ever.

"You do as you're told," she cried, catching Jessica by the shoulders and trying to shake her. "You say you want to work for a livin'; prove it by waitin' on your betters."

Jessica set her teeth hard, broke from the quavery hold and rushed away. At the steps she stopped, smiled bitterly and shook the dust from her feet. Over her shoulder she called clearly, "Mother, meet me at the big gate in an hour; by then I shall know exactly what we can do."

Ten minutes later she stood in the Wakefield yard facing Jimmy, with her heart beating so it half suffocated her. She had so dreaded to tell what must be told—to ask the help that was imperative. It was not much, only to carry her mother and their scant belongings to the poorhouse. Any shelter would be better than the Cole roof. There was nobody else she could ask. Jimmy was the only friend within walking distance—moreover, the single person to whom she could bring herself to make such appeal. She was, in a way, bound to make it. She had promised, when she denied him that dearer promise, to call on him if she found herself in need of him. Now she was blessing him silently that he had not asked anything; had listened only to what she cared to tell and said afterward, with a little soothing touch on her hand: "You did right to come to me, Jessy. Of course I'll take you anywhere you may want to go."

"You, you must only send us. Black Billy can take us in the wagon. Grandma will be so angry if she knows you helped us escape," Jessica had answered, but at that Jimmy only smiled.

Very shortly he made her sit down on the bench under the big elm and went away whistling, to reappear, all in a whiffet, driving a spanking pair, which drew a double seated vehicle spick and span.

"I think we'd better make the trip a quick one," was all he said in answer to Jessy's expostulation.

Almost before she knew it she was sitting beside him, bowling along the turnpike at the team's best pace. As quickly her mother was gathered up, and the hand luggage properly bestowed, Jimmy amazed Jessy by bidding her sit behind, adding, "I want to talk to mammy—and these horses don't let me turn my head for any considerable time."

Jessy began to feel desperately lonely—she could not even divert herself by watching the dazzle of the flying spokes as the wheels spun round. Jimmy was driving very fast, and keeping to the turnpike. It must be he meant to take them through town—that, no doubt, accounted for his choice of a rig. She knew he hated a shabby outfit—especially upon Saturdays and court days. It might be he had business that could not wait—but somehow she felt that he was unkind to think of anything but her extremity. Then she sank into a sort of daze, wondering dully how it would seem to find herself a pauper, duly committed. She had not thought of that before—of course there were legal forms before they could claim the last refuge of the destitute, and would not the authorities get back at grandma? She had a dim idea that well to do folk had to answer for their near kin.

No doubt that was what Jimmy was speaking about—he was talking low and eagerly to mamma. Yes, he was turning the horses toward the courthouse square. In a wink they drew up there, and Jimmy, springing down, held out his arms to her. "You know there are—arrangements—will you trust me to make them?" he asked very low.

Jessica could only bow her head; speech was beyond her. Jimmy looked at her, his eyes tender, yet mischievous. "I want to commit you for life to a poorhouse of which I am keeper," he whispered. "Mamma is willing. What do you say?"

"Nothing," Jessica said, but as she said it she laid her hand in Jimmy's strong clasp, and dropped her long lashed lids to veil a rush of happy tears.

A Clock Run by Man Power.

He was a fine old man who had been to South America, but who was devoting his old age to acting as the works of the clock in the piazza in Capri. It was he who rang those many, many bells we heard and puzzled over. Some forty rapid, high pitched bells at 12:42, seven bells of deeper tone at 3:06, and so on.

Adelaide had asked Archangelo, the old man's son, to explain these seeming irregularities and had learned that the bells were only intended to approximate the hour; that his father was old and occasionally forgot and rang too little or too much; also that he was but a man and that hunger sometimes came gnawing at his vitals at, say, 11:45, whereupon he rang for 12 o'clock and wandered home to his spaghetti. His appetite also accounted for occasional delays in the bell for 1 o'clock. Suppose Archangelo's mother was late in the cooking of the midday meal, could his father return to the piazza without his luncheon? And what does a quarter of an hour matter after all? In Capri it is truly dolce far niente.—Scribner's.

How Do You Like It?

When you go to a store that advertises up-to-date clothes, latest this, that and the other, and you find "they haven't got 'em"?

Men frequently tell us they have made the round of four or five stores and have had just this experience.

When they get around to us they find what they are looking for and quickly say:

"That's What I Want!"

Our clothes are the the BEST in the world. That's saying a good deal, isn't it?

But the facts warrant the assertion. The world's best makers make them. If examined critically, our clothes are found to exhibit "ALL THE NICETIES KNOWN TO THE TAILORING ART."

EASTERN TOWNSHIPS NEWS.

A Good Templars lodge has been organized in the village of Huntingville. The lodge will be called "The Strathcona."

Timothy Hart, farmer of Jamestown, Mich., was instantly killed about 9.40 a. m., on October 2nd, by falling from a load of hay and striking his head on a stone culvert. He was a brother-in-law of Mrs. J. S. Maguire, Foster Square, Waterloo, P. Q., and formerly lived on the farm now owned by Mr. Norman T. Jameson.

The artesian well at the Waterloo reservoir has been forced out again in order to put in a larger pump. A depth of 400 feet has been reached and the well tested. It gave a supply of 2,000 gallons per hour. It was decided to bore deeper in expectation of striking a larger vein. The new pump will have a capacity of about five thousand gallons per hour, which should be ample as a supplementary supply. The quality of the water is exceptionally good. In fact it is as pure as water can be.

The home of Mr. Geo. Pope, of St. James street, St. Johns, was the scene of a happy event on Thursday evening, Oct. 11th, when Mr. Geo. O. Henry, superintendent of the lumber department in the Singer Works, led to the bridal altar Miss Elizabeth (Lilie) Pope. The bride is popular among her young associates. A large number of guests showed their appreciation of the occasion, the young ladies being especially in evidence. There was a splendid collection of presents giving evidence of great goodwill.

Mr. William T. Rockwell, a native of North Troy, Vermont and a veteran of the Civil war, died at the Soldiers' Home, Tilton, N. H., the 4th October, after an illness of several months, aged 55 years and 10 months. Thirty odd years ago the deceased came to Waterloo as superintendent of the Waterloo boot and shoe factory, which was at that time operated by a joint stock company under the management of the late Daniel Frost, Esq. When the concern went to the wall the late Mr. Rockwell returned to the States. Till his last illness he was superintendent of a large shoe factory at Marlboro, Mass. He leaves a widow, nee Carrie Milette, but no children.

Missionary anniversary services were conducted in the Methodist Church, St. Johns, on Sunday last, the preacher for the day being Rev. Dr. T. G. Williams, former pastor of St. James Methodist Church, and one of the most influential ministers of the Montreal Conference. Good congregations, helpful sermons and liberal subscriptions were the order of the day. The increase in the missionary offerings of the congregation will probably amount to fifty per cent, on last year. Mrs. Williams also delighted the Sunday evening congregation with her fervent address. On Monday afternoon she met the ladies of the congregation, effecting organization of a branch of the Woman's Missionary Society, thus accomplishing what has been desired for many years.

AUTOMOBILE JURISPRUDENCE.

(Quebec Chronicle.)

The increasing use of automobiles necessarily opens up a new source of danger to pedestrians whose rights to the secure use of the thoroughfares are not more respected by the drivers of the new style of vehicles than they have been by those of the older forms, and anything that tends to increase the public safety will be welcomed. An English jurist has recently laid down the law of the road in an automobile damage suit which may serve as a precedent in this country, and which reckless drivers, whether of motor or other cars would do well to keep in mind. Hitherto drivers of vehicles have seemed to have an idea that it was the business of pedestrians to get out of their way, but if the ruling to which we refer is followed up by our courts they will henceforth make it their business to get out of the way of pedestrians.

It seems that the driver of an automobile had run down and killed a cyclist while the latter was crossing the railway track and had his attention engaged in looking and listening for trains. His widow brought a suit for damages against the motorist, and though the defendant introduced evidence to show that he had endeavored to attract the attention of the cyclist by hooting and shouting the jury awarded her $7,500 damages. An appeal from the verdict of the trial was taken, and the plea of contributory negligence on the part of the cyclist was strongly pressed. The Court of Appeal, however, sustained the verdict, and the Lord Chancellor explained the decision by saying that the failure to heed the motor-horn does not necessarily indicate negligence. "When people are driving motor cars," said His Lordship, "or other vehicles on the public highway they have the duty to remember that deaf persons, blind persons and decrepit old persons are just as much entitled to use the public highway as they are, and if anybody thinks proper so to drive that there is a chance of serious consequences from a mistake of judgment or miscalculation and those consequences are not averted he will have to pay for them in damages."

It will be noted that even speed regulations would fail to protect the driver of an automobile, "or any other vehicle" under this ruling, for he would be bound to bear in mind that a safe rate of speed under some circumstances would be a dangerous rate under others. In itself the auto is not dangerous when restricted to its legitimate uses; the harm comes when reckless or irresponsible drivers ignore the rights of the deaf, the infirm, or otherwise helpless pedestrian.

CAGE FILLED WITH CHINAMEN DROPS 1000 FEET.

Johannesburg, Transvaal, October 22—The rope of a cage which was descending the East Simmer gold mine here yesterday snapped, and the cage fell a thousand feet. Twenty-three Chinese laborers who were being lowered into the mine, were dashed to pieces.

CONDEMN TEACHERS' PERMIT SYSTEM.

He did not think that any upward movement could ever be accomplished by taking first a downward step. He had not the slightest doubt that there was a growing increase of permits, and no doubt there would be, but while that might be so, there would be a decrease of teachers teaching with diplomas.

Inspector Hewton said that the people in the country were opposed to such a resolution as that now under consideration, and expressed the opinion that it would be a grave mistake for the meeting to put itself on record as passing such a resolution, which would tie the hands of the true friends of education in the country.

Mr. Silver submitted that the resolution was not a vote of censure on the Protestant Committee, but an expression of regret that it should have been found necessary to take the step of admitting to the rank of teachers those who had no professional training.

Mr. C. W. Ford (Lachine), and Mr. N. T. Truell (Sherbrooke), expressed themselves opposed to the resolution; but on being put to the vote, it was carried by 59 to 9.

GAMBLING IN AUSTRALIA.

PROHIBITED IN VICTORIA AND NEW SOUTH WALES.

Sydney, Oct. 22—New South Wales' gambling suppression law has been passed and is now in operation. The Victorian House of Assembly Friday ratified the severest clauses of the antigambling bill, even deleting the exemption with regard to race courses, there by rendering betting under any circumstances a crime. The newpapers, as in New South Wales, are forbidden to publish betting news. The labor members alone fought the bill at every stage. The Chronicle's correspondent says that if the legislation is endorsed by the Legislative Council the police in Melbourne, as in Sydney, will be powerless to enforce obedience to the law, which far outruns public opinion.

DESECRATING SABBATH.

POPLAR POINT'S COMPLAINT AGAINST SPORTSMEN.

Portage la Prairie, Oct. 22—Complaints come from Poplar Point and St. Mark's district regarding those in high authority and others particularly Winnipeggers, who go out there on Sunday for shooting purposes. The charge is that they desecrate the sanctity of the Sabbath by going to Poplar Point and arranging everything for their shooting on Sunday. A petition has been prepared and will be forwarded to Earl Grey, who is mentioned as one of those guilty of the practice. The petition sets forth the loyalty of St. Mark's people to his Excellency, but urges that the spirit of Canadian law, providing for Sunday as a day of rest and quietness, be observed.

FIVE KILLED, TWO INJURED.

COLLAPSED WALLS BLOWN DOWN BY WIND IN SAN FRANCISCO.

San Francisco, October 22—Five men were killed and two injured under collapsed walls toppling over by the high wind yesterday morning. Three unknown men were crushed to death under a wall at Commercial and Montgomery streets, and another was badly crushed. Two were killed and one probably fatally injured under the ruins of a wall which fell on Mission street, near Third. Both accidents occurred at almost the same time.

STEAMER SUNK BY MINE.

RUSSIAN VESSEL FOUNDERS AND OVER ONE HUNDRED PERISH.

London, Oct. 22—A despatch received here from Vladivostock yesterday afternoon says the Russian wooden coasting steamer Warjagin struck a floating mine and foundered on October 20. A portion of her passengers and crew were saved, but the remainder, numbering 180 persons, were drowned.

Another message received by a news agency, says two hundred passengers perished on board the Warjagin, only one being saved.

Time to Change.

"Ladies and gentlemen," said the lecturer after bowing to the first round of applause that followed his introduction. "I propose this evening to address you on the all important subject of 'the training and fearing of Boys.' It is a broad subject that is demanding more and more attention every day. In the beginning, and in order to lay a broad foundation for the proper treatment of this great subject, I will"—

"Excuse me, professor," interrupted the harassed little man who was almost hidden away in the corner, "but how many boys have you?"

"Well, er, um—well, the fact is, sir, I have no children at all," stammered the lecturer.

"That's all right, then," said the little man, sinking back into his seat. "I was afeered you had a few of 'em, an' if you had I knowed it was a cinch you didn't know nothin' about raisin' 'em. You kin go ahead and I'll listen, 'cause I'm lookin' for expert advice on the subject."

But somehow or other the lecturer thought best to change the subject.

GUESTS AT WEDDING FEAST POISONED.

EIGHTY-FIVE TAKEN ILL AND TWO HAVE SINCE DIED.

Hamilton, Oct. 22—As the result of eating gelatine dressing in chicken boiled in copper pots eighty-five guests at a wedding feast in Oneida Township, near Caledonia, recently were taken ill and two have since died. The tragedy occurred two weeks ago, but the facts were suppressed at the time. Mr. and Mrs. Hector Foster, old and highly respected residents of that neighborhood, were celebrating their wedding and had made great preparations, ninety guests were invited. Chickens dressed with gelatine and boiled in large copper pots were served and not long afterwards eighty-five of the ninety guests were ill. Those who had partaken of the dressing were ill and the other five who had not were untouched. At first it was thought to be an epidemic of typhoid fever. Drs. Maw and Morrow diagnosed it as ptomaine poisoning. Mrs. Ferguson, wife of Rev. Mr. Ferguson, died shortly afterwards as the result of taking the dressing while her husband is critically ill. Mrs. Foster, mother of Hector, is also dead. Hector, his wife and two children are critically ill but all other guests are slowly recovering.

GIRL WORKED FOR SICK SOLDIERS.

AND ROMANCE ENDED UP BY HER MARRYING BOER WAR VETERAN.

Guelph, Oct. 22—When the Boer war was raging the ladies of this city engaged with thousands of others throughout the Dominion in making articles of wearing apparel to send to the comfort of soldiers lying in the hospitals in South Africa. Among those performing this charitable work was Miss Annie Callander, "Hillcrest." While at work one day Miss Callander was seized by the whim to place her name and address on a night shirt she was making wondering if she would ever hear of the matter again. The garment ultimately reached a soldier named Thomas Huby, of Sheffield, England, who, when convalescing in hospital, wrote to the address, thanking her for her interest in the cause. From this originated correspondence, which culminated in the marriage here yesterday at the home of the bride's father. Mr. Huby is now stationed at Halifax.
