can increase power

BBC approves new owners of radio, TV

OTTAWA (CP) — The Board of Broadcast Governors yesterday approved power increases for English language radio station CKTS in Sherbrooke and the share transfer turning Senator Paul Desruisseaux's control of French-language CHLT-TV along with radio stations CHLT and CHLT-FM over to a subsidiary of the Montreal-based Power Corp. holding company.

CKTS radio power will be increased from 1,000 watts to 10,000.

Quebec may ask reversal

QUEBEC (CP) — Premier Daniel Johnson speaking to newspapermen before a Cabinet meeting yesterday said his government now is studying a recent transaction in which Power Corp. bought the CHLT private radio and television stations in Sherbrooke.

He was not sure of the constitutional legality of such a move by Power Corp., a firm which he described as a public corporation with its shares on the stock market.

Should Quebec decide the sale is unconstitutional, it would ask the Board of Broadcast Governors to turn down Power Corp's application for the right to operate the radio and television stations.

Premier Johnson added that he considered recent statements by Mr. Roberts to be "a breakthrough, a favorable one in relations between the two racial groups."

Mr. Johnson was referring to statements made by Mr. Roberts Wednesday in Montreal in which he supported increased teaching of French in Ontario and the maintenance of strong government support for bilingual universities.

Mr. Roberts also backed Premier Johnson's stand on federal-provincial tax sharing, saying the federal government must agree to a new distribution of taxes and not just ask the province to raise their own taxes if they need money.

Civilians die

SAIGON (CP) — U.S. officials today untangled the confusion surrounding the Viet Cong ambush of an armed convoy in the central highlands of South Viet Nam Thursday by reducing the death toll to nine from 20. Eight of the dead were civilians, including a Canadian.

Communist explosives and gunfire tore up a procession of seven trucks carrying civilian workers of the Page Communications Engineers, Inc., a Washington-based company doing communications work for the U.S. military in Viet Nam. The civilians were on their way to a mountain-top project 13 miles from Dalat.

Visit 'useful'

MOSCOW (AP) — British Foreign Secretary George Brown left for London today after three days of talks with Soviet leaders about Viet Nam, control of nuclear weapons and other world problems.

"I had the most useful visit I could have possibly hoped to have," Brown said before leaving from Moscow's International Airport.

Fire over crowd

JERUSALEM (AP) — Troops of Jordan's Arab Legion drove through the streets of Ramallah today firing in the air above a chanting demonstration demanding arms to fight Israel.

Reject TV

LONDON (CP) — The House of Commons has rejected the idea of televising its own debates—even as an experiment—after protests that TV cameras would turn the august Commons chamber into a "place of entertainment and public amusement."

Council demands evidence of Grafftey

OTTAWA (CP) — The Canadian Highway Safety Council challenged MP Heward Grafftey Thursday to back up statements criticizing the council or withdrawing them.

Philip J. Farmer, executive director, told the standing committee on justice and legal affairs that Mr. Grafftey, Conservative MP for Brome-Missisquoi, should "either supply evidence or withdraw his statements."

He referred specifically to Mr. Grafftey's statement at a previous committee meeting that the council accepted "silencing money" from the auto industry.

Mr. Farmer said the council, a non-profit organization, received 94 per cent of its 1966 budget in contributions from car manufacturers. The suggestion that the council was "receiving bribes" was false and irresponsible.

Mr. Farmer added that he would be happy to talk with Mr. Grafftey about the council's work. The Conservative MP is a member of the committee but was not present at Thursday's meeting.

SAFETY STANDARDS

The council presented a brief to the committee favoring mandatory minimum safety performance standards for all cars manufactured in Canada or imported.

It suggested "development of standards should be a co-operative effort between government, industry and independent research groups."

It also suggested changes in the Criminal Code so that "true disclosure be made of the blood alcohol level of all drivers suspected of intoxicated or impaired driving."

Using figures projected from a series of accident studies, the council suggested that 1,420 of the 4,879 persons killed in traffic accidents in Canada last year could have lived if they were using seat belts.

Another 480 would have survived if using both a seat belt and shoulder harness and a further 280 would have lived with a seat belt and double shoulder harness.

The council also noted a recent survey of 566 accident hospital cases in Canada showed that while seat belts were available to 24 per cent of the victims, only three per cent were using them at the time of the accident.

Replying to a question by Donald Tomin (L—Welland), Mr. Farmer said driver education and periodic re-examination are important aspects of the safety program. Some 1,000,000 Canadian drivers got licences without any test at all, he said, and many long-time drivers are not equipped to cope with such recent developments as multi-lane expressways.

"We feel we're on the verge of a major breakthrough" with the provinces on high school driver-education courses, Mr. Farmer said. Where such courses were in use, accidents had been cut by half and violations by 80 per cent.

New York under smog blanket but pollution less critical

NEW YORK (AP) — A stagnant air mass trapped a blanket of smog on New York City today but fears of a major health hazard diminished.

Officials said air pollution remained about 1 1/2 times above normal but dropped from the critical level it reached Thursday night.

No deaths were attributed to the city's hospitals. The weather bureau forecast cloudiness and some showers in the area, alleviating the air pollution during the morning.

Austin N. Heller, city commissioner of air pollution controls, said the weather pattern is expected "to result in a breaking of the air inversion and in much lower levels of pollution."

Heller said an air pollution reading of 60.6, or five times the average amount, registered at 8 p.m. Thursday may have been the city's highest. Early today it was 18.5.

The count, based on a statistical measurement of sulphur dioxide and carbon monoxide in the air, indicates the amount of harmful substances in the atmosphere. The average reading is 12 and the level considered dangerous is 50.

The smog over New York was part of massive inversion blocking the escape of fumes from the lower atmosphere along areas of the middle Atlantic coast.

Heavy pollution was reported in Philadelphia and Boston, where sulphur dioxide in the air reached six times the normal level Thursday. Weather bureaus in both cities predicted there was a chance of relief today or Saturday.

At the smog's height in New York City, Heller said he was close to calling an air pollution alert which would have closed some industries and kept cars from the streets. All municipal incinerators were shut down.

If agreement ratified

Air Canada hopes to fly by Sunday

MONTREAL (CP) — Air Canada hopes to get its first few planes off the ground Sunday if the airline's 5,200 striking machinists ratify an agreement to end their costly walkout at meetings across the country Saturday.

As the International Association of Machinists' strike entered its 11th day today, Air Canada officials estimated the grounding of 86 planes has so far cost $3,300,000 in lost revenues.

With the loss rising by $300,000 a day, an airline spokesman said no time will be lost getting flights back on schedule if Saturday's membership meetings accept an agreement reached by Air Canada and IAM negotiating teams Thursday.

He estimated 24 hours will be needed before the first planes can leave the ground and that all services will be in full operation within three days.

Mike Rykus, Canadian head of the IAM, said early today that results of the vote at the membership meetings, to be held at 10 a.m. local time, will likely not be known till mid-afternoon Saturday.

"We're hopeful the agreement will be accepted," he said. "The IAM leadership will certainly recommend acceptance."

Tentative settlement terms were reached by negotiating teams for both sides after 45 minutes of bargaining in a downtown hotel Thursday. Spokesmen refused to release terms of the settlement until after the ratification meetings.

Mr. Rykus would only say that he is "reasonably pleased" by the agreement, which followed six days of on-again-off-again bargaining between the airline, a Canadian National Railways affiliate, and the union.

Talks, broken off hours before the strike began Nov. 14, resumed on Nov. 19 after the union offered by telegram to resume negotiations.

Bitter sessions during the week wound up several times with each side blaming the other for refusing to alter its position.

The machinists, whose wages ranged from $2.04 to $3.17 an hour under their previous contract, made public a demand for a 20-per-cent wage increase plus six per cent in fringe benefits over a one-year contract.

Prior to the strike, Air Canada had agreed to an 18-per-cent increase in wages over a two-year period.

Some 4,000 other union employees of the airline have been thrown out of work by the strike, the first since Air Canada began operations in 1937.

Project Chairman Arthur S. Jackson said square dance clubs across the country are showing interest.

Saskatoon, for instance, says: "Certainly June 28 is a day that everyone will have circled on their calendar around here."

The Trans-Canada Centennial Square Dance Train will pull out of Halifax June 24 and gradually pick up enthusiasts as it moves west.

Reservations are coming in at a rapid clip, Mr. Jackson said. The round trip from Halifax to Vancouver can be made for $38 for a couple.

WASH FOR CENTENNIAL TREE — The sign on Canada's centennial gift to New York City's Yuletide festivities receives a steam wash

Thursday before the Christmas tree started the journey from Ottawa. The 64-foot spruce tree from the Petawawa Forest Reserve, 120 miles west of Ottawa, will be the 37th Christmas tree to stand in Rockefeller Centre.

Denominational
Quebec schools are discussed

MONTREAL (CP) — Fourteen educational groups appeared Thursday before the opening hearings of the Quebec superior council of education on recommendations of the Parent report on education in Quebec.

The Parent report, published in May, 1966, advocated that non-denominational school boards run Protestant, Catholic or neutral schools, according to the wishes of the community.

Le mouvement laïque de langue française (French-language lay movement), decried the adoption of non-denominational schools on a limited basis, saying that this would only delay the process of giving Quebec a streamlined modern educational system.

The group called for the establishment of a completely non-denominational, free and public school system—including university.

The Quebec Association of Protestant School administrators and the Protestant regional school board of Chateaugay supported the reforms but opposed many of the means prescribed to attain them.

La Fédération des collèges classiques (the Federation of Classical Colleges) charged that the report was intended to benefit the English-speaking minority of the province.

DECEPTIVE PLAY WINS FOR SOUTH

The code word ARCH for Analyze the lead; Review the bidding; Count your winners and losers and How can I make (defeat) the contract.

East and South both analyzed the deuce of clubs lead as fourth best. South has to bring home the diamond suit to make his contract because he can only count eight winners in the other suits. He also sees that he isn't going to have enough time if his opponents cash three clubs and two diamonds first.

His only hope is to get them to abandon the club suit. East produces the ace of clubs and South makes the brilliant, deceptive play of the king. If he just drops the ten East will know that South holds but one other club and will continue the suit. When South drops the king East is likely to decide that South's other club is queen and that South has two clubs stoppers.

Let's see how East thinks after South does drop the king. He Analyzed a fourth best lead. His Review of the bidding shows that West can only hold two or three high card points and that they almost surely will be in spades. He Counts enough potential tricks to defeat the contract with a spade shift and leads a spade.

South puts on the king and leads a diamond. In spite of the fact that West played the three of spades on the first spade lead East is likely to try another spade and South makes his contract.

About Television

By CYNTHIA LOWRY

NEW YORK — (AP) — Most held as many adults as children, and the older ones probably enjoyed it as much as their juniors.

Bill Cullen will join Betty White on New Year's Day to give NBC's report on the Pasadena Tournament of Roses Parade. It will be Cullen's first assignment to the job, but Betty's 13th year as TV hostess of the event.

The talking, singing, piano-playing conductor and the New York Philharmonic Orchestra were back on CBS to start another series of Young People's Concerts. The program—possibly because of its difficult subject—seemed more informal and slangy than usual.

Bernstein explained and re-explained musical modes, which apparently are a synonym with musical scales, and he moved busily from podium to piano, from Bach to the Beatles to illustrate his points.

The program, in color, was taped in New York's Lincoln Centre before an audience composed mostly of children. The living room audience probably explained a network executive.

Most controversial program of the coming weekend probably will be ABC's Saturday Scope, which this season has concentrated on the Viet Nam conflict. The program will show segments from Viet Rock, a protest play with music now playing off Broadway and containing savage satire.

"It represents another point of view on this vital subject," explained a network executive.

Garbage disposal, utilities expenses highest per capita

Of all Quebec's 139 towns with a population exceeding 5000, Sherbrooke spends the highest per-capita amount on garbage disposal and public utilities.

This year the City of Sherbrooke expects to spend $10.06 on each of its 70,138 residents to take away their garbage and $70.21 for public utilities. That's pretty high compared to Lucerne which spends only seven cents on each of its 6500 residents for garbage removal and Salaberry de Valleyfield, with a population of 28,450, which spends 80 cents per capita on public utilities.

Montreal spends $4.45 per capita on garbage removal and $5.32 per capita on public utilities.

These figures come from a little booklet put out by the Quebec Bureau of Statistics containing a breakdown of the budgets for 1966 and 1967 of Quebec towns with a population of more than 5000. The booklet contains the figures on how much each town expects to spend on police protection, debts, public utilities, and snow removal, just to mention a few.

Income in city is 65th

For average personal income Sherbrooke rates 65th in a list of 88 Canadian cities and towns which was compiled by a statistical analysis of 1964 income tax returns. Sherbrooke has an average personal income of $4,396.

The report lists average incomes for 88 cities and towns. Portage la Prairie, Man., was last with an average income of $3,775.

Sherbrooke fell well below first-place Sault Ste. Marie, a northern Ontario steel center whose 23,416 taxpayers reported incomes averaging $5,417. The Soo also led in 1963 with $5,314.

Sarnia, the Ontario chemical centre followed close behind with an average income of $5,340 for its 19,975 taxpayers. Windsor moved into third place at $5,278, displacing Oshawa which dropped into fourth with $5,424.

St. Catharines, Ont., jumped to fifth spot from 19th with an average of $5,184.

VANCOUVER MOVES UP

Vancouver jumped to sixth from 11th and the lead among non-Ontario cities with its 250,820 taxpayers reporting an average income of $5,162.

Toronto residents filed 762,741 personal returns with an average $5,104 and was 12th. Montreal's 682,101 taxpayers averaged $4,953 and was 17th.

Ottawa, which dropped three places to eighth, had an average of $5,144 among its 124,172 individual taxpayers.

Pay visit to airport, newspaper

The fall chill in the air and the threatening clouds overhead did not dampen the spirits of thirty-five Mansville Intermediate school students yesterday as they visited the Sherbrooke airport and the Sherbrooke Daily Record.

Accompanied by their principal Vance Patterson, and two teachers, Miss Donna Armour and Mrs. A. Cote, the children arrived at the airport at about 10 a.m. and were greeted by Guy Cloutier, vice-president of the Sherbrooke Aero Club and W. S. Richardson, president of the club.

After a tour of the main building which included an explanation of the various maps and charts, and the theory of running an airport, the students were escorted outside where they were allowed to inspect several aircraft.

Jacques Lareau, manager and chief instructor of flying and Raymond Lambert, an instructor, showed the workings of the planes to the interested students, and answered their many questions. The students were permitted to sit in the planes and inspect the instrument panels.

The spectators were treated to an unexpected sight as a large plane landed on the field near where the students were looking at the planes. This particular plane was a private one which had flown from South Carolina to La Guardia in New York the night before and then on to Sherbrooke.

It was suggested that the pupils might write a composition about the tour when they returned to school and these essays be judged, the winner to receive a ride in a plane at Sherbrooke airport.

The students then moved on by bus to Sherbrooke where they toured the offices of the Sherbrooke Daily Record. Beginning in the editorial department or newsroom, they were treated to an inside view of how a newspaper is put out each day. They followed the process from the newsroom to the printing shop and the various processes were explained to them.

Apartment from the actual mechanics of producing a paper, the students were shown the advertising and circulation departments. Each student was given a chart of the processes which go together to make a newspaper.

Better economic understanding is urged by C of C president

"To turn challenge into opportunity we must promote trade expansion, sound employment policies, and improve communications between our two main language groups. We must upgrade our education and do a better job on economic understanding," said the president of the Canadian Chamber of Commerce in Sherbrooke last night.

Roger Deserres spoke at the general dinner meeting of the Sherbrooke Chamber of Commerce held at the Le Baron motor hotel.

Mr. Deserres said that the Chamber, working at local, provincial, and national levels can contribute to Canada's growth and expansion.

The speaker said that special effort should be taken to expand Canada's trade with the United Kingdom, the United States and Japan.

Mr. Deserres said that he was "convinced that businessmen in this province can sell much more than they have been doing."

The Chamber believes that the general level of wage rates and benefits must be dependent on economic conditions, national productivity, and our ability to compete at home and abroad. A continued upward spiral in wage rates and fringe benefits without regard to these factors will endanger the economic health of the nation warned the guest.

On taxation, Mr. Deserres said that the tax burden on the Canadian economy has become so heavy that taxation will have a serious effect on our economy unless there is proper co-ordination.

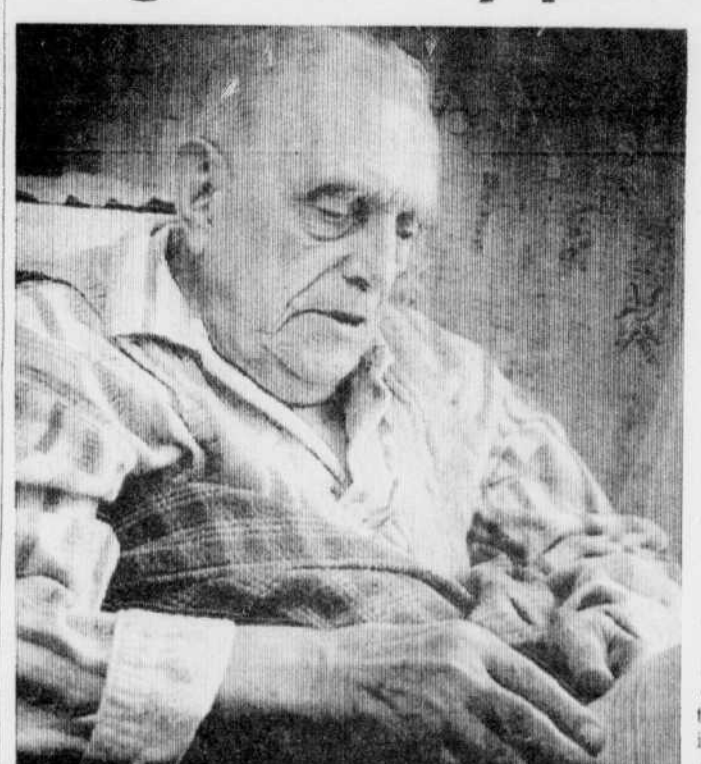

"We must somehow fashion machinery which will permit a strong federal government to accomplish the economic and social responsibilities which properly belong to it, but without impairing the fiscal freedom and responsibility of the provinces," Mr. Deserres suggested that with patience and understanding a solution could be worked out.

Discussing national unity Mr. Deserres said that "a strong and powerful Quebec is good for our country. The answer for Quebec and the rest of Canada lies not in making provisions for Quebec to go one way, while the rest of Canada goes another. The answer lies in binding the interests of Quebec and Canada together, as neither can hope to survive without the other."

Expo 67 can provide every Canadian with the opportunity to see his country in relation with the rest of the world. Mr. Deserres suggested that Canadians do a better job on economic understanding during Canada's centennial year.

Must pay for car that he ordered

A Sherbrooke Superior Court Justice has ordered a Sherbrooke man to pay for a car he had ordered from a dealer but later refused to accept, claiming that no deal was made.

Mr. Justice Evender Veilleux of the Sherbrooke Superior Court ordered Emile Trepanier to pay Brouillard Automobile Ltd. a sum of $3,296.60. The firm was represented by Dewey Zaor.

The judge wrote in his five-page judgment that February 1 the defendant had signed a contract to purchase a new 1965 automobile, and two winter tires all for a sum of $3,110. Trepanier paid a deposit of $1,100 by cheque. After having signed the contract, wrote the judge, the defendant went to see another car dealer to buy a car. He refused to take delivery and to pay for the car bought from the plainiff.

The defendant claimed that he had not chosen the color of the car and consequently the contract was not complete. He also asked for the return of his down payment of $1,100.

Without doubt, ruled the judge, the reason the defendant did not wish to take delivery of the Brouillard car was because he had bought another car at another establishment.

To stand trial on charge of dealing stolen car and motor

A Dunham man has been ordered to stand trial at the next term of the court of Queen's Bench on charges of receiving a stolen car and motor.

Real McDermott's preliminary hearing and voluntary statement were held yesterday in Sherbrooke Court of Sessions with Judge Benoit Turmel presiding.

According to the testimony of Aime Pelletier of Granby found his car stolen March 31, 1965. On April 5 Alexis Cote of Luceville (Rimouski) bought a vehicle from McDermott.

Constable Norman Girard testified that in an inquiry held he found the Cote car's number to be fictitious because the identification numbers of the motor were changed.

The car was identified as Pelletier's.

Cote explained that McDermott revealed to him in a telephone conversation that he preferred that the police did not see the motor number.

Roger Patenaude of Montreal had his car stolen April 26, 1965.

A provincial police officer found the motor installed in the truck of Lionel Cadorette of Richmond.

Mr. Cadorette testified that he found the motor in a car. The car was parked in a used car parking lot. He had bought the car from McDermott, he claimed.

Maurice Maltais and Jean Guy Gauthier of Sherbrooke pleaded guilty to a charge of breaking and entering and being in possession of a breaking and entering tools. The incident took place October 14, 1964.

Maltis pleaded guilty to a charge of receiving 25 stolen tires valued at $350. This took place May 30, 1965. The two charged that plea yesterday. They had been in jail for two months awaiting trial at the Assizes.

Gaston Roy, 22, of Brimontville, was fined $200 and had his driver's licence suspended for six months.

Roy pleaded guilty to a charge of impaired driving and to a charge of dangerous driving.

Gilles Prince 'Baron' and Joseph Durand pleaded not guilty to a charge of breaking and entering and stealing $400 worth of goods in Magog Township. The two were arraigned yesterday in Court of Sessions.

Marcel Martin, of East Angus, was given a suspended sentence provided he post a $500 bond to promise to keep the peace for two years.

Martin was found guilty earlier this week on charge of stealing four radiators which he sold for $78 to a scrap dealer. Martin had been in prison for 10 days.

New hospital aim of Asbestos citizens

ASBESTOS—(Staff)—About 20 citizens of this town noted their approval Wednesday of collecting funds and applying for grants to build a 100-bed community hospital to replace the present 27 bed hospital termed "very inadequate" by one of the town doctors.

The majority of Asbestos doctors and executive of the local Chamber of Commerce as well as other citizens supported the idea at yesterday's meeting and within the next four days plan to set up a corporation to organize the hospital construction campaign, explained Dr. Pierre Bouché, an Asbestos doctor who supports the project.

He pointed out that the idea of building an Asbestos hospital has been considered for the past 20 years but nothing has been done about it.

Simplified building by-laws needed

The current quandary in which a number of Sherbrooke proprietors find themselves in connection with basement apartments stresses one of the troubles inherent in attempting to regulate every conceivable construction problem that may arise in a single by-law.

Inevitably such a by-law or set of regulations must be so long, contain so many provisions and so many exceptions and deviations that it becomes almost unintelligible to a lawyer who specializes in the construction industry.

In the mass of verbiage contained in such a document there are bound to be contradictions and ambiguities with a certain policy being permitted under one section and expressly forbidden under another.

None will argue that unrestricted construction should be permitted in any city, town or even village. Certain standards must be established as to the nature of construction and type of building to be erected.

Thus a broad, general building code must be enacted.

But to seek to legislate for eternity every detail of construction is something else.

Methods and materials used in the construction industry change as they do in any other line.

Public ideas on suitable housing develop with the years.

Something that was rejected a few years ago may be popular today. Something that was the style is now considered outmoded.

The rumour over basement apartments is a case in point.

Not very many years ago basement rooms were considered in the slum category. Now they are considered an integral part of the most advanced home.

Perhaps the best course that could be followed by a municipality would be to lay down a broad, general policy leaving the acceptance or rejection of individual plans to a group of experts.

Certainly it would be more sensible than asking a building inspector, who might be extremely capable in his own line, to judge upon the meaning of conflicting legislation.

Quebec problems when Expo closes

Warnings by economists that Quebec province may suffer a severe economic slowdown following the close of Expo-67 have been reiterated by Roland Parenteau, general director of the Economic Guidance Council, a government advisory body.

The comparatively high prosperity which Quebec has enjoyed for the past two years is more the result of massive spending of government and private funds on projects in connection with the World Fair.

Huge construction projects have produced a demand for building workers that has attracted men from all sections of the province and thus relieved any danger of unemployment in the areas only indirectly affected by the project. Similarly, many other lines of industry have geared their activities to the increased business expected from the exhibition.

But when Expo-67 folds, what then?

Already many construction workers are returning to their home communities because many of the buildings are near completion and the finishing touches can be applied by a small number of specialists.

This condition may become aggravated as early as the spring of 1967, but many of the workers may find alternative employment in maintenance work and similar duties.

But in 1968, such fields of opportunity will vanish.

Logically all levels of government should seek to defer as much of their capital spending as possible until 1968, thus providing a backlog of public works that could serve to cushion the effects of the Expo spending letdown.

Such a policy would also relieve the pressure on the money markets which has resulted in a sharp upturn in interest rates.

Improving coroner's jury set-up

Sessions Judge Jacques Trahan, acting as special coroner investigating a Montreal industrial plant explosion which claimed several lives, may be setting a precedent in empanelling a "blue ribbon" jury of chemical and electrical experts to probe the blast. If he is his precedent may be followed in future inquests where determination of the cause of death involves highly technical problems.

One of the weaknesses of the Coroner's Court system in this province, and elsewhere on the continent for that matter, is that the juries generally comprise men who are selected more for their availability at the moment the inquest might be held rather than for any ability of judging the rights and wrongs of the various arguments.

Thus their verdicts were often vaguely worded just to cover the provisions of the law and when they did make recommendations their suggestions were so often far removed from the point at issue.

By empanelling a group of experts there is a reasonable possibility that the recommendations of the jury may be constructive and thus deserving of attention by the governments.

Other papers say:

State voting menaces Bonn position

The message from Sunday's elections in Bavaria is the same as that which came from Hesse two weeks ago. It is simply this: nationalism is a new force in German politics — but West Germans are still overwhelmingly committed to parliamentary democracy. The two parties that matter are the Christian Democrats (whose members in Bavaria campaign under the banner of the autonomous Christian Social Union) and the Social Democrats. If this is not first understood, it is all too easy to get out of focus the emergence in the Hesse and Bavaria elections of the National Democrats as a successful small right-wing splinter party.

Until this year, another small (but more respectable) splinter party — the Free Democrats — had managed to pick up the votes of those West Germans who for one reason or another felt disillusioned with their country's two main political parties. But with the appearance of a new spirit of nationalism right across the board in Germany, the fringe protest vote has switched in both

(Christian Science Monitor)

Hesse and Bavaria from the Free Democrats to the more questionable National Democrats.

Prof. Erwin Scheuch of Cologne University, a student of the National Democratic Party, estimates that there is in Germany a sediment of 10 to 15 per cent of the population that easily falls for extremist or authoritarian politics. Presumably the party's support in both Hesse and Bavaria has come largely from this segment, together with votes from the hardcore of German refugees from the lost territories to the East.

Yet the success of the National Democrats in both Hesse and Bavaria is a warning — not to outsiders that a new Hitler is in the wings but to both Christian Democrats and Social Democrats that, to keep broad national support, they will henceforward have to give evidence that they are German-minded. For the past 15 years or so, West Germany (as West Germans see it) has worked its passage by often putting the interests of the Western alliance before those of Germany. Sometimes this has meant acquiescence in less than top-dog status. And whereas this was perhaps accepted by those Germans old enough to have a residue of shame for Nazi excesses, there has now reached maturity a younger generation which sees no reason whatsoever why it should inherit everlasting sackcloth and ashes.

This is the fact, no matter how the political parties at the center in Bonn manage to solve the current crisis in federal politics. The immediate effect of the Bavaria election, of course, will be to weaken the position of the Free Democrats in bargaining for a coalition. This, in turn might increase the likelihood of the Christian Democrats and the Social Democrats forming the grand coalition so often talked about.

NAME IS JUSTIFIED

French Canada says:

Liberal traditionalists and reformers are uneasy together

Montreal Le Devoir—During the convention just held by Quebec Liberals in Montreal... two different groups... one might even say opposing groups—met face to face.

The first group, representing the majority, was composed of the traditional elements, coming mainly from small centres, but including a good number of older militants of urban centres, particularly in the greater Montreal area.

For the members of this group, politics is primarily something practical. It consists mainly of fighting election battles in regions where votes are won one by one. The group is not much interested in ideology. But its members are very attached to the person of the leader.

Their rallying point is not the internal quality of the party, but rather the fight to be waged against the common adversary.

The second group can be found, in spectacular moments, around Mr. Rene Levesque. But its field of interest largely surpasses the personality and the ideas of the member for Montreal Laurier. Certain members of the group, including Mr. Levesque, are very nationalistic. Others, for example Messrs J. P. Lefebvre and Robert Boudreau, do not find their primary interest in nationalism. What unites these elements is a common attachment to the intellectual content of politics, their unanimous desire to make politics a very demanding intellectual and social adventure.

A preliminary impression is left in the wake of the convention: The coexistence of the two groups will not be possible unless Mr. Jean Lesage continues to play the role of delicate referee and conciliator. —Claude Ryan (Nov. 21)

Granby La Voix de l'Est—Quebec's minister of cultural affairs, Mr. Jean-Noel Tremblay, told the business writers' press club:

"It is suggested that we decree unilingualism in Quebec; we are asked to make commercial and industrial firms use French; there are demands for French signs and posters. All this can be done through the authority of laws. The state has responsibilities in this field. But will it assume them when this would do nothing to change the habits of our people who seem to have lost the sense of their destiny?"

Mr. Tremblay is absolutely right on this point. We make demands ceaselessly, but we don't take the trouble to exercise the rights we already have. French signs, the use of French in business, the practice of unilingualism would certainly give a new image to our province. But would that change the habits of our people? Do not French-Canadians themselves court the use of English? Let us open our eyes and ears. English signs often are those of French-Canadian companies, and for every French-Canadian who speaks correctly, there are two who speak a real jargon. . . . It is the duty of our elite, that is to say of the minister of cultural affairs, of school commissions, of teachers, of patriotic societies and of French-language associations to contribute, each in their own domain, to the improvement of spoken French. It is in this way that we will assure French the place of honor it should have in this province. . . .

Biculturalism need not be at obstacle to the respect of French, especially in this province where we are the majority. Teaching of English is necessary to facilitate our relations with the English-speaking ethnic group in Quebec as well as in the rest of the country. Instead of limiting ourselves to deploring the anglicization of our people, let us teach them their language correctly and it is certain that they will be proud to speak it well. —Roland Gagne (Nov. 17)

Ottawa Le Droit—Mr. Paul O. Trepanier, president of the Progressive Conservative Association of Quebec province, recently criticized French-speaking Canadians for not having taken their rightful place in the ranks of the Conservative party.

Perhaps the reproach has a bit of merit, but God knows the thing was not made easy for them. Rather it could be said they were prevented from taking their place. To speak only of the present generation, let us say that it was certainly not Mr. Diefenbaker who facilitated the task of French-Canadians, he who tolerates in his entourage men, avowedly anti-French, such as Gordon Churchill, Erik Nielsen, Terry Nugent, etc. When one realizes what a spot these men enjoy in the heart of the leader, it is enough to discourage the best sentiments of good will among the Conservatives of French-Canada.

If it was not Mr. Diefenbaker, it was even less his immediate predecessor, Mr. George Drew, who, although he developed the best of sentiments towards the end of his political career, practically reproached us for existing when he was premier of Ontario, and feared that family allowances would only make it easier for us to multiply.

No, let us not believe that French-speaking Canadians have neglected to take their place in the Conservative party. They were simply refused that place. —Marcel Giguere (Nov. 16)

Quebec l'Action — The remarkably well-prepared brief which the Association of Retail Druggists of Quebec presented to a committee of the legislative assembly on medical insurance in Quebec City contained many wise observations, but also some debatable statements.

The organization recommends the application of a universal medical insurance plan by stages, and urges that the patient be free to choose his own doctor, that the doctor be free to choose his patients and that the doctor have the right to decide whether he will participate or not in the plan. So what happens to the liberty of the patient to choose his doctor if the doctor decides not to participate in the plan? As compensation, will it be necessary to give the patient the choice to participate or not in the plan, through a formula of personal contributions? . . .

The brief states that druggists can prepare an average of six prescriptions an hour and that it would be reasonable to fix a fee of $1 for each prescription. This is not in the least out of line when one considers what electricians, plumbers and other workers are getting.

But we are less in agreement with the economists who established that the cost of preparing a prescription, without including the cost of ingredients, works out to an average of $2.08. What is surprising in the brief is the abundance of detail used to establish the cost, such as wear of the counter, wear of the cash register etc. Let us be prudent. By trying to include all the details, they will wind up either by forgetting some or by falling into exaggeration.

Under any regime which adopted this formula, it would be impossible to find a prescription that would cost less than about $4. From the outset, that appears to be an increase in the cost of a good number of prescriptions. . . .

Let's not play on words: If the patient pays a part of his medication, or if the state covers the full cost, in the end it is always the taxpayer who will have to pay. —Roger Bruneau (Nov. 21)

TODAY IN HISTORY

Alastair Ruday Macdonell of the clan Gengarry was captured by a British ship 221 years ago today — in 1745 — while attempting to join Bonnie Prince Charlie's campaign to seize the Scottish throne. Because his clan had been refused permission to fight on the right of the Jacobite line at the disastrous battle of Culloden, Macdonell changed sides and became a spy for the English under the code name "Pickle." After first pocketing all the Jacobite finances he could find, he succeeded to the chieftainship of the bankrupt clan in 1754 and died seven years later, living in acroft beside his ruined castle.

In connection with the adoption of the budget Mayor Lee Watson made the following statement:

"The recognition of the individual property owner towards his direct financial obligations with respect to the cost of services and improvements has been an important factor in keeping the funded debt of the municipality at a reasonable level."

After stagnation

Russian economy is on the move

By PETER WORTHINGTON

MOSCOW — (TNS) — As the Soviet Union moves deeper into Year Two P. K. — Post Krushchev — any resemblance between the economy then and now is strictly temporary.

The changes are daily becoming more apparent. Already agriculture shows signs of being revitalized with less controls and more incentives. And though the greatest grain harvest in Russian history has been reaped this year, it's a mile too early to boast that problems down on the farm are kaput.

Soviet grain has had a fairly regular cycle of good year followed by bad — even years good; odd years bad.

Today about one-third of the labor force is employed in farming. Western experts say that until this work force can be reduced to about 15 per cent, producing 30 per cent more than at present, Soviet agriculture won't be truly efficient.

It's in Premier Kosygin's industrial reforms that the average person has a chance to see changes for himself.

More firms are swinging over to the new system whereby profit is a main index of success. Some 800 firms are said to have changed to the new system so far this year, plus all the hanger-on business.

So far only efficient and successful firms have made the switch. Not the so-so, second-rate and marginal industries.

In the past, inefficiency and carelessness weren't important.

MEMORIES

I remember when I first came to Moscow, going on two years ago. I was in a restaurant where one waitress was rude and slapdash beyond compare. She got orders mixed, the meat slid off the dish on one occasion (and was lifted back on with her fingers), and she continually grumbled.

My companion finally protested to the head waiter. He looked genuinely sympathetic and shrugged: "What can I do? Of course she is awful. In your country she would be fired immediately, but here we have responsibilities to workers and do not fire people."

He seemed proud of the fact. Today this attitude may be changing. Kharkov economist Evsei Liberman, the alleged architect of the new profit-motive system, told me this summer inefficient workers are on borrowed time.

"We cannot tolerate them in our industry. An inferior worker, after he has been given a chance to improve, may be downgraded to a less-desirable job," said Liberman.

"Or he may even be required to move to a different area to work, where things are more unpleasant."

So far, in Moscow, there has been no flowering of manners and smiles.

In the drive to improve quality and service, the press is quick to scold and expose sins of bureaucratic mismanagement.

Some absolutely ludicrous examples come to light, that defy understanding — lumber that cannot be sold because it must be burned, factories that make wheels double weight so as to exceed quotas as cabbage canning plants that can't be shut down though no one buys the product.

The great danger — and temptation — is to latch on to these examples and to assume the whole economy is bungling, incompetent and insane.

True, their examples reflect deep social and economic chaos, but one must remember that despite everything the Soviet Union is still the second greatest industrial power on earth.

One of the Soviet prides, is watch-making.

They are extraordinarily cheap by Western standards, and very stylish. In men's watches anyway. They haven't invented women's watches yet, but merely make smaller men's models.

The best watch on the market is an automatic, calendar, shockproof, waterproof model called "Poljot" which sells for about $15.

It resembles a $100 or $150 watch in the West.

The only trouble is, along with all its "proof," it may also be time-proof.

In the space of one year I'm on my fourth Poljot. Everyone kept perfect time up to the moment it quit.

NO ARGUMENT

When I take it back to the store to have the one-year guarantee honored, they don't even check it but give me a new one.

Another newsmen here is on his third watch.

If this is an indication of the Soviet watch-making industry, it must give comfort to the Swiss.

And they are expert watch-makers — better than the ones the system churns out for its own citizens.

But things are improving. A citizen who wants a car now has to wait only a year or so instead of three or four years.

And there is even a dry cleaning establishment in town where you don't have to remove all the buttons first.

So far Mr. Brezhnev has had the biggest immediate success in his streamlined agricultural program — largely because he decided to pay the farmers.

But Mr. Kosygin's industrial reforms may yet make the greatest headway.

Traditionally agriculture has been an annoying way of boomeranging on its exars.

Anyway the Soviet economy looks better today than it did in the stagnant days of B. K. — Before Krushchev.

The PRAYER FOR TODAY FROM The Upper Room.

Thy steadfast love, O Lord, extends to the heavens, thy faithfulness to the clouds. (Psalm 36:5, RSV).

PRAYER: Confronted by the fact that we cannot overcome our sins in our own strength, we turn to Thee, O God, seeking Thy mercy and forgiveness. We thank Thee that Thy mercy "is from everlasting to everlasting." In the name of Christ the Redeemer, we plead, Amen.

Parent Report proposal on separate schools hit

GRANBY — (Staff) — The Parent Commission's recommendation to separate schools according to religion came under fire in a 16-page brief presented here yesterday by the Quebec Superior Council on Education by the Bedford Regional School Commission.

The Bedford brief recommends that there be only two types of schools in the province, French and English, "with built in guarantees for confessional instruction in moral and religious education as optional courses, as required by parents of various faiths."

Throughout 12 of its 16 pages, the brief referred constantly to the "dual" system of education and repeatedly condemned the commission's recommendation that regional schools come under a single regional board.

Book Four of the Parent Commission's report on education recommends the formation of Catholic, Protestant and non-confessional regional schools.

"To introduce English or French non-confessional schools or schools of other confessions," the brief states, "would add further to the fragmentation of our educational system, which is deplored by the Parent Commission."

The Board cannot envisage, the brief continues, French Roman Catholic, English Roman Catholic, English Jewish, English Protestant, English non-confessional, and French bi-confessional schools under one regional board.

In a section of the brief devoted to cultural diversity, the brief attacks the Parent Commission's concept of a unified administrative structure. The brief points out that in the Department of Education except for the directorate of finance, there is not a single Protestant who heads a directorate or a service.

"The Board believes," the brief says, "that in the appointments of administrators a similar situation would develop under a unified regional board with respect to 'cultural diversity'."

The brief expresses doubt that equal treatment for both French majority and English minority could be guaranteed under a unified administrative structure and recommends that the attack on discriminatory practices be waged at "grass roots" level by means of increased contacts in community undertakings.

It is interesting to note at this point that the Bedford Regional School Board and the Commission Scolaire Regionale de Missisquoi have cooperated with the Town of Cowansville to build an educational and cultural center for the use of all age groups that these authorities serve.

Continuing its attack against the single regional school concept, the report implies that any such move would result in the lowering of present Protestant educational standards. It calls for the commission's justification for the formation of single regional boards, namely the "present state" of English language Roman Catholic education, the weakest part of the entire report.

The brief states that while the Protestant high school leaving certificate has been fully recognized by both Canadian and foreign institutions of higher learning, English Catholic students have been required until recently to write separate qualifying examinations to enter leading universities.

Protestant Quebec's traditionally higher school taxes were cited as a contributing factor to the discrepancy between the standards of English Catholic and English Protestant standards. "It is the Board's contention," the brief continues, "that while the province should equalize valuations and establish normalized rates of taxation, a minority should not be deprived of the opportunity to invest additional sums so that it may exceed, if desired, the minimum standards established by the Department of Education."

At another point the brief states that the Board "considers any levelling of education to a single standard as a weakening of the whole fabric of Quebec."

And again: "This Board opposes firmly any attempts to lower present standards in any Quebec institution of learning."

The brief recommends that there be French and English tax rolls (as well as neutral rolls for corporations) and that the taxpayers be assigned to the rolls on the basis of the preferred language used in the home. It also suggests that legislation be passed that would allow a school board to contest the stated language claims to belong.

Quebec's future development depends largely on the province's linguistic dualism, the brief states and then goes on to warn that any shattering of bilingualism would close Quebec's doors to the world and the rest of Canada.

"The Board believes," the brief says, "that Quebec's strength as a result of its being a bi-cultural province, can best be maintained and enriched by a continuance of a dual system of education — English and French."

Trinity tea, sale

UCW sponsors exceptionally well attended Yule event

Gay, cheery Christmas decorations in the entrance hall of Trinity Church Hall greeted the exceptionally large number of guests who attended the annual tea and sale, sponsored by the United Church Women of Trinity Church on Wednesday afternoon.

The patrons, after being welcomed to the busy scene by Mrs. G. Barr and Mrs. G. Armitage, visited the various tables where large selections of assorted novelties were a joy to the early Christmas shoppers. Mrs. L. Humphries, treasurer, looked after admissions at the door.

Tea was served at individual quartet tables centered with greenery and lighted red tapers. The main tea table was centered with a Christmas arrangement; silver tea services and red candles adding a decorative note to the Christmas theme.

Serving the guests were Mrs. G. Wilkin, Mrs. J. Allen, Mrs. K. Burbank, Mrs. L. Campbell, Mrs. V. Davy, Mrs. P. Lancaster, Mrs. M. Campbell, Mrs. R. Grotty and Mrs. H. Hubert. Several C.G.I.T. girls and girls from the Sunday School, who also assisted in serving, were supervised by Mrs. B. Hyatt.

Presiding at the tea table during the afternoon were Mrs. E. A. Cooper, Mrs. H. Martin, Mrs. Bertha Crawford and Mrs. D. Armitage. Tea replenishers were Mrs. K. Mills, Mrs. E. Fuller and Mrs. B. Jarvis.

The large variety of knitted articles were looked after by Miss L. Farnsworth, Mrs. R. Dietz and Mrs. L. Clark, and the sewing table, featuring an infinite variety of articles, by Mrs. H. Williams, Mrs. William Lavalley, Mrs. M. V. Long, Mrs. W. Mutchler and Mrs. A. Wright.

Mrs. S. Barnes and Mrs. A. Falconer were in charge of the table of Christmas decorations. The many varieties of home-made delicacies, also well patronized, were supervised by Mrs. R. Gittel, Mrs. B. Carr, Mrs. J. Lathrop, Mrs. F. Mills and Mrs. A. Hight. The tea was a table of Indian handicraft from Caughnawaga, in charge of Mrs. G. Hall, Miss B. Hess and Mrs. G. Loomis.

Girl Guide fudge table and cook books were looked after by Rangers Edith Murray, Donna Moore, Nancy Hutchison and Jean Falconer, supervised by Mrs. N. Murray.

Kitchen duties were handled by Mrs. R. Bauman, Mrs. T. Cadman, Mrs. B. Arberry, Mrs. W. E. Hodge, Mrs. E. Martinson, Mrs. J. Wright, Mrs. M. Fuller, Mrs. J. Hazle, Mrs. C. Drummond, Mrs. W. Bowman, Miss C. Perkins, Mrs. W. McCoy and Mrs. J. Burnell.

Excellent sales were reported at all tables of the successful event.

600-year-old tradition ends
LONDON (AP) — A 600-year-old tradition that only men are fit to run the affairs of the City of London was ended Wednesday night by the wife of a judge.

May Donaldson, 45, became the first woman elected to the court of common council, the local authority for the capital's financial area.

Running as Mary Donaldson, she collected 306 out of 488 votes for a vacant seat representing the ward of Farringdon Without.

Council elections first were held in the 14th century and until 1920 women did not even have the right to run for election. The first female candidate who tried in 1961 was defeated.

The mother of three children, Lady Donaldson is the wife of High Court Judge Sir John Donaldson.

The excitement is building up—and, come Saturday, the only place to be will be watching the Grey Cup game, comfortably ensconced in front of the television set.

But somebody must stay calm. For after the game will come the demand for food. And many a woman will meet the problem head-on by inviting fellow-fans to enjoy the game, and buffet dinner afterwards.

The food can be simple, but better be ample.

Today's menu would fill the bill perfectly. Or it would be equally suitable for any after-party, the winter through.

It's practical to prepare and serve, and fancy without making outrageous demands on the budget.

Chicken breasts are the basis of the unusually delicious main-course dish. Thrifty jelly powders make a big and beautiful salad. For dessert, serve big squares of rich chocolate brownies, topped with ice cream and not fudge sauce. And don't forget hot rolls or French bread, and pots and pots of coffee.

DERBY, Vt. — A pretty late-carnations. The groom's attendants were Mr. Norbert Blais, of Burlington, Vt., as best man, the ushers, Mr. Laurie McMullen, brother of the bride and Mr. Dell Green, of Woodstock, Vt.

Mrs. McMullen, the bride's mother, chose a gold bonded shift dress, brown accessories and a corsage of rust mums.

Mrs. Gardner, mother of the groom, was in a dress of tan floral jersey, brown accessories, and a pink rose corsage.

Following the ceremony, a reception was held at the Newport Hotel where 72 guests enjoyed a turkey dinner. The bride's table was centered with a four tier cake decorated with silver trim and red roses and topped by a miniature bride and groom. The cake was made by Mrs. Muriel Gray, of West Charleston, Vt. Vases of red roses completed the table arrangements.

Later, the couple left on a short trip, touring the southern states. For travelling, the bride wore a gold Italian wool shift, with rust colored accessories, under a green wool coat, and a red rose corsage. Upon their return, they will take up residence at 21 Prospect Street, Ludlow, Vt.

Guests were from Burlington, Ludlow, Woodstock, White River Junction, Montpelier, and Beebe Plain, Vt., Waterville, Rock Island and Beebe, Que.

Phonovision, dictewriter to be used in near future

TORONTO (CP)—The secretary of the near future will have to know how to program her typewriter's memory bank to do her typing for her and how to set up the doodle pads and information for a meeting held by phonovision.

John Mulholland, a personnel adviser, told the National Secretaries' Association that typing and shorthand may still be necessary, but only as elementary tools.

"Ten years from now when your employer wants to send a letter, he will dictate it into a dictewriter which will type it for him."

He said an electronic typewriter with a memory bank is already on the market.

Phonovision, Mr. Mulholland said, will cut down business travel. It will make it possible for executives to exchange ideas and suggestions, reports, blueprints, graphs, charts, diagrams.

"If all this sounds fanciful, let me say that a group of top garment industry salesmen stayed in their home base city in the United States this fall . . . ordinarily they would have travelled to New York and other fashion centres to demonstrate the latest lines.

"They simply set up long distance showings with their picture phones. Buyers many miles away were able to look at the goods at a closer-up angle than they could have at a traditional ramp showing."

Mr. Mulholland predicted that the secretary of the future will need to be a device that connects her with a computer for information. The device might easily be a TV screen and keyboard. As she feeds information into this device, all relevant company records will be updated at the same time. Your employer and customers will demand information valid at that specific moment."

Clean Clothing Before Storing
Never store clothing without having it cleaned or laundered. Soiled materials attract moths. The grime also becomes embedded in the folds and often shows telltale signs of neglect the next season.

Lost paper delays trial

MONTREAL — (CP) — A missing document forced a sudden postponement Thursday of the drawn-out preliminary hearing of George Lemay on charges of conspiracy to commit and actually carrying out a burglary at a downtown bank branch over the Dominion Day holiday weekend of 1961.

Mr. Bruneau said he had been in touch with Claude Wagner, former justice minister, in relation to the missing testimony. Copies of various TORONTO — (CP) — Agriculture Minister J. J. Greene Wednesday criticized members of Parliament and labor unions for helping to break down authority in Canada.

MPs who "hinder and obstruct" Parliament and unions which disobey the law are endangering the effectiveness of major institutions, Mr. Greene told the University of Toronto Schools Old Boys' Association.

"We must give leadership the right and authority to govern for a reasonable term, and weigh a government's efforts, both right and wrong, at the end of that term."

"Even in the days when a government is wrong, we must back its authority and right to govern. Otherwise, there is no order in our society and freedom and democracy become synonymous with chaos."

CHARLOTTETOWN — (CP) — The Prince Edward Island legislature was prorogued Thursday but not before the Liberal government and Progressive Conservative opposition clashed in a heated verbal battle.

Two important money bills and three others received third reading and royal assent.

The special two-day session was the first exposure to legislative attack for Liberal Premier Alex Campbell. He survived it although there had been some doubt as to the future of the administration immediately prior to the opening of the house.

MONTREAL — (CP) — Lt. Col. Robert H. Hilborn, national president of the Tri-service Identities Organization, said Thursday that his organization supports military integration as "an intelligent and forward-looking step" but disagrees with Defence Minister Hellyer's methods of bringing it about. Addressing a service club, he said he was in agreement with former Chief of Air Staff, Air Marshal W. A. Curtis, who said the present set-up lends itself to a "military dictatorship."

Miss MacFarlane wanted to know what we did with the $4,995,368,152.00

Reading annual statements isn't Miss MacFarlane's cup of tea, but she put her finger right on the most important figure on our balance sheet, representing the highest total deposits in the Bank's 149-year history. Nearly half of this amount of $4,995,368,152, is the savings of individual depositors like yourself.

All that money was put to work in many ways and in many communities across the country... in industry, commerce, on the farm, in the fishing fleet.

At the Bank's year-end on October 31, 1966, a record $3,279,997,060 was on loan to people in all walks of life to buy cars, finance household goods, educate children and improve businesses. $906,160,879 was invested in high-grade Government bonds and public securities which have a ready market, and $139,545,596 in other securities—mainly short-term credits to industry.

Miss MacFarlane will also be interested to know that Canada's First Bank has been busy in other ways. We're starting our 150th year of activity, but we're not looking back on our long record of pioneering and achievement. Instead, we're looking well ahead. And moving ahead with a fresh, new outlook and new ideas and plans for constantly expanding and improving our services to you.

By WALKER RILEY

Macdonald College

If the success of the Royal Winter Fair can be measured in terms of tired feet and aching knees, then from my point of view, this year's was the best yet. As one of three staff members privileged (?) to travel with the entire second-year Ag-Diploma class, we left by chartered railway coach mid-night Monday and were back to the college for classes Wednesday morning. I must say they are a great crew, but they can sure get along with surprisingly little sleep. So in the time left from retrieving raincoats and shaving kits (my own), it was a good day at the Royal.

Quebec, as usual, made its outstanding showing in the Avershire classes. MacGillivray Bros., Roger Beaudry, Tom Ride, John Bradley, Roland Pigeon, R. R. Ness and Sons, Erskin Rodger, Douglas MacKenzie, Allister McArthur and D. G. Ross, between them just about cleaned the board. Roger Beaudry took the Grand Championship with a yearling bull that placed top of his class, while R. R. Ness and Son took the Premier Exhibitor award, the Premier Breeder award, the Seitz trophy, the Lessnessock trophy, and exhibited the Best Breeder's herd.

In Angus, Desourdy Construction Ltd. had an outstanding win in the market steer class. Pierrefonds Farm and Ben Lavin were also showing.

In almost all the other livestock classes, Quebec was represented by a solitary breeder. In Jerseys, it was Pierre Viellon, of Sweetburg, with the Junior Champion Female. In Shorthorns, Mrs. T. C. Stuart, Arundel was showing, and in Herefords, Jack Dodds, St. Andrews East. Otis Fowler, Kingsbury carried the torch for Quebec in the swine classes. He came home with the award for Reserve Champion Sow.

I didn't see hide nor hair of a Quebec Holstein at the Royal and it isn't because we haven't good show animals. Surely the boys could get together and take an outstanding Holstein exhibit down next year. Nor was there an entry in Guernsey or any of the sheep class that I saw. Quebec more than held her own in Maple Syrup, bringing home both the Champion and the Reserve. Alcide Gareau, Roxton-Pond and C. W. Curtis, Hatley did the honours. In all the field crop classes, there was only one entry from Quebec, but it was a ringer, Henry Mondry, who came from Europe only a few years ago, is now World Champion Flax grower.

On 500 acres at St. Basile-Grand, Henri grows Norland flax and Climax timothy. He was recently elected president of the Quebec Seed Growers Association.

On the personal side, I had a thrill to see the First Prize Alfalfa hay come from a neighbour's farm in the rocky hills of Muskoka. The soil is so acid there, it takes a double dose of lime before alfalfa will even show itself, and any natural potash was leached out many years ago.

I was a little disappointed to find very few progressive changes from last year. It is the same old Royal, except for newer machinery and remodeled stables. I first saw when I was twelve years old. But there was some attempt to tie new classes in the economics of today's agriculture.

Outstanding in this direction were the rail-graded steer classes. These animals were first judged on the hoof, then slaughtered and judged on the rail. The carcasses were on display in a refrigerated showcase, with a prominent score card. The results were remarkable. The first place carcass was second on the hoof, but none of the rest were close at all.

This top carcass scored as follows: Carcass weight per day of age 144; area of eye of lean per 100 lbs. carcass 2.33; fat cover per 100 lbs. carcass, 13. Points were also awarded for carcass grade, quality, and conformation.

One class of potatoes was judged on cooking quality, as determined by the dry matter content. I would like to see more of these commercial, useful classes, not only at the Royal, but at our local fairs.

The 1966-67 ski season got its first shot of winter atmosphere this past week when snow began falling, and it didn't take long for hill-riders to begin enlisting in their various clubs. At Owl's Head a report from George Cunnius indicates that season tickets are selling well, a situation that is especially encouraging for this area and its junior program. George mentions that Saturday mornings will be reserved for the young people, when a full scale training program shall be conducted. This interest on the part of young people has led to the creation of the Owl's Head Junior Ski Team, which looks like a good contender for the race circuit this coming winter.

A rather unique feature for the Owl's Head centre this year will be their planned Sunday afternoon race for all junior classes, with prizes being gold, silver and bronze pins, another added interest for young people. The junior program includes boys and girls up to the age of 14.

Biggest news for Owl's Head is their appointment to host the Quebec Junior Provincial Championships on January 21 and 22. Be sure, there's a big season planned here at this new area located close to Mansonville.

SKI PATROL BUTTONS
The new 1966-67 Canadian Ski Patrol buttons are now on sale, and a far cry from the format of former years. The size of a fifty cent piece, the new buttons feature a white CSPS crest in the top half of the circle with dates 1939 to 1967, and the words "Safety, Service, Security." A royal blue border circles the button, and crosses the centre with the association's name in both English and French. The bottom half has the Canadian centennial crest with dates 1867 and 1967 and the word "Confederation." Besides being a handsome souvenir of the centennial acts by Faith and Anne, June and Marilyn and Mary (Jolson) Murray. A tap dance by Ruth Hunter completed the show. There were jokes as well which added to the amusing entertainment. The group was highly complimented on the excellent talent.

PRIZES PRESENTED
The prizes for the men's bonspiel were presented to the winners, Raymond Greenwood, Peter Beasie, Allen River and Gus Connelly, and to the runners-up, Douglas Cass, Jean Paul Garneau, Maynard Rollins, and Douglas Henderson.

On the consolation side was Wilfred Dumoulin's rink of Harold Emslie, Raoul Villeneuve and a sub. The runners-up were Gary Caruthers, Alan Pocock, Leland Bullock and Perry Fitch.

Raymond Greenwood, president, extended a welcome and announced coming events, the finals of the O'Keefe's bonspiel, Dec. 3, the Butterfields Christmas party on Dec. 9 and said that the club Christmas party will be held on Friday night, Dec. 16, (note the change of date.)

Do-it-yourself

Pick the proper power to clear snow

More and more it's a case of power vs. snow rather than depending on hand shoveling to remove the white stuff.

Power snow-removal equipment is rapidly becoming as popular and common as the power lawn mower. Part of this may be a matter of status, but much of it is spurred on by newspaper reports of heart attacks that occur while shoveling snow. Whatever the reason, a well-running power snow remover can shorten a cold, wearisome job.

The equipment sitting there on the salesroom floor probably looks capable of battling a blizzard. But, like everything else, there's a unit that is best suited to your purposes, so pick wisely.

Big, heavy equipment is a waste of money for a short drive and little sidewalk. Too small a unit on a long, wide drive and loads and loads of sidewalk is no better than no snow remover at all.

Power propelled or not? Most units are now self-propelled and the same considerations apply as mentioned these are features which you will have to decide on.

One feature that is very important is the discharge chute. Do not settle for one that throws the snow in only one direction. The wind can throw the snow right back where it came from unless you can adjust the chute. Most will adjust for right or left discharge; better ones have adjustable angles for greater control. If self-propelled, are there several speeds? Can it reverse? These become more important with increasing size. With no room to turn around it's rough to drag back a heavy unit to turn it.

Pick a power snow remover suited to your purposes.

For size, large units should be self-propelled. Aside from their own weight there is the weight and bulk of all that snow. It's an awful lot to be wrestling without the aid of power.

Plows Bow Out
Snow plows (a blade in front of a power unit) are rapidly becoming obsolete for home use. Moderate cost of the blade that you could attach on a garden plow or tractor was the prime consideration that made these popular for a time. All you can do with a plow is push the snow to one side. The snow thrower, on the other hand, tosses the snow a good distance away. A revolving auger scoops up the snow and forces it out through a chute, sending it 20 or 30 feet away.

Size of the bite the thrower will take will vary from 16 inches to 48 inches and prices vary with sizes. Prices vary with other factors, too, and

Blades Need Wheels
Snow blades should be powered independently of the wheels. This permits you to bite away at a snow bank without moving in and out. Better units have the engines protected from snow and ice. As with power mowers, there are a variety of starting systems—more important in the winter when engines get stiff and balky. Some models have provisions for electric starting.

Ask if there is a safety clutch or at least shear pins that will prevent damage if the blades pick up some solid object.

In respect to picking up stones and sticks, snow throwers are as dangerous as lawn mowers. Don't let the kids play in the shower of snow.

Sherbrooke Daily Record House Plan of the Week

LORD SIMCOE

HOUSE AREA:
1260 Square Feet on One Floor
(2520 Square Feet Utilizing Both Levels)
Exterior Dimensions: 70'0" x 25' 7 1/2"

Halliday's colonial style of two models based on the same floor plans, allows for either 3 or 4 bedrooms. Here's a crisp, spacious home in colonial or contemporary design, dramatic in appearance, adaptable as a two level dwelling if necessary or desired, with the basement stairs being so situated that the occupants do not get the impression of living in the basement. And, too, to make the lower level even more pleasant, this design provides for large windows, same as you would expect to find in any home.

Complete blueprints for this house plan may be obtained for $10.00 a set. In ordering, it must be specified whether the plans are to be as shown here, or in reverse to the above layout. It should also be specified whether or not the plans wanted will be used with a brick or stone finished house, or for one to be covered in wood or other materials. The above home can be built conventionally, or is available in complete factory-manufactured component sections, for which literature is immediately available. For details and plans, write to:

School Sports Scene

BIRTHDAY CONGRATS go out today from this corner to individuals in Sherbrooke, Lennoxville and Magog districts who are celebrating the fourth anniversary of the Sherbrooke Basketball League.

MORE WIDELY KNOWN as the 'SBL', still with Cecil 'Moon' Mullin first president and founder at the helm, it has over twenty senior and junior teams (boys and girls) in operation this season, from the end of November until the middle of March.

THIS NUMBER SHOWS an increase of two teams in the senior division, while there has been a drop of two in the junior boys' loop. The main purpose in forming this league was to provide basketball competition for English and French catholic schools and youth centres — something that had sadly been lacking, complete with organization, a number of years ago.

THE FIRST YEAR'S efforts, in 1963, with youth centres blossoming all over the City of Sherbrooke, was an introduction of basketball and all its intricacies to the French-speaking population. This was followed the next year by an increased interest in this 'American sport', even though some teams had dropped out. Loisirs Magog entered in '64-'65.

TWO FOREIGN TEAMS entered the league and seemed to raise the standards last year, providing keener competition in the upper divisions of senior boys. The term 'foreign' is applied to Lennoxville and Sherbrooke High School, because they were two protestant schools in the area, and joined so as to enjoy more of the sport in the short season.

NOW THAT YOUTH CENTRES ARE on the down-slope, as far as organization is concerned, the league has been transformed to accommodate the secondary schools. With five senior and four junior teams (boys), entered this year, the schedule brings out a home-home series, with the possibilities of staging a weekend tournament in January of 1967. The girls' division has not yet been completely arranged, but is expected to be ready soon.

GAMES THIS WEEKEND as openers, have St. Pat's at Seminaire Sherbrooke Sunday evening, 7:30 p.m.; while in the junior division, there is a game this afternoon at Mitchell School against Montcalm, and tonight, St. Pat's visits the Seminaire.

THE BABY BORN IN 1963 has grown rapidly, nourished by the immense interest shown by players and individuals in different schools and youth centres. President Mullin, his executive and the directors can well light the candles, and look ahead into another season.

HI - LO AND IN BETWEEN

• The St. Francis Valley Interscholastic Volleyball tournament being held at Sherbrooke High School tomorrow morning and afternoon deserves investigation by parents and students alike. Investigate . . . and you'll invest in the efforts of youth. Also, keep in mind there are students toiling in the cafeteria (members of the SHS Student Council) ready to serve you, and satisfy your appetite.

• One week from tomorrow will be the annual Cowansville Invitational Basketball Tournament in Granby. Rosemere, the defending champions for the fourth year in a row, may just find extra tough competition from St. Pat's High, and Chateaugay.

• Minor Hockey programs, under ET convener Bert Lacasse, are ready for the big swing . . . schedules have been released for the Midget division, the Pee Wee league is altered, but no word from Bantams yet . . .

• It's soccer in October, volleyball in November, basketball and hockey in January. How about wrestling in February? Efforts are being made to have some inter-school competitions organized. There's even a wrestling club at Sherbrooke High.

• One way of checking your love for a sport: If you can make it to a practice at 8 o'clock in the morning before going to classes, and better still, at 8 a.m. on Saturdays, man you've got it!

Dallas Cowboys gunning for first NFL title, Don Meredith tossing strikes, roll over Browns 26-14

Don Meredith is hitting his targets again and Dallas Cowboys are drawing a bead on their first title in the National Football League.

Meredith, whose passes were intercepted four times in an early-season loss to Cleveland Browns, picked the Browns' defence apart Thursday, directing the Cowboys to a 26-14 victory that sent them into first place in the Eastern Division race.

The victory moved Dallas one-half game ahead of St. Louis Cardinals, who were idle. The Cardinals take on the improved Pittsburgh Steelers Sunday without No. 1 quarterback Charley Johnson, out for the year with a damaged knee.

Meredith completed 16 of 24 passes for 131 yards and one touchdown, directed another touchdown drive and set up two

Beavers claw Eagles Gauls nip Tigers

DRUMMONDVILLE — Sherbrooke Beavers turned on the heat here last evening and knocked the Eagles from their high perch in the Quebec Senior League when they blasted Oscar Arbouchon's club 8-3. It was the first win for Coach Roy's club this year in Civic Centre.

In the other tilt the Gauls of St. Hyacinthe posted a 5-3 win over the Victoriaville Tigers and slid by the Eagles into top spot in the loop. It was a close battle and was only decided in the final minutes of play.

Rene Pepin started the Beavers on their way when he rifled a hard shot from a tough angle and Claude Cyr misjudged it. This started the scoring parade and a grand total of eleven goals were scored during the evening.

The Eagles came right back and moved ahead when Gordie Haworth and Skippy Burchell, who was making his first appearance with the Eagles, tallied. Rejean Richer offset this and then Georges Guilbault put the Beavers ahead 3-2. Roger Picard evened the count and then in the closing minutes Rod Gaudreault gave Sherbrooke a 4-3 edge.

In the middle session Rod Gaudreault came up with his second tally of the evening when he finished off a play with his line mates, Jim Beckman and Gaston Bouchard. It was the only goal of the period. In the third frame Georges Guilbault extended the lead and from then on the Beavers never looked back. Claude Cardin and Gilles Cartier completed the scoring for the evening and the Beavers set back protecting their big lead.

The Eagles had three new players in uniform last evening. Dino Ditomasso along with Skippy Burchell and Ronnie Racette were the players. Burchell had been picked up from St. Hyacinthe while Racette was making his return after a two-year suspension.

ROUGH RIDERS best team in Canada, says Keys but his club is ready

VANCOUVER (CP) — Coach Eagle Keys of Saskatchewan Roughriders, usually a stingy man with a statement, spilled off a couple of sentences Thursday for his club's detractors.

Giving careful consideration to the 8½ point spread favoring Ottawa Rough Riders in the Grey Cup game, the orator from Turkey Neck Bend, Ky., conceded that the eastern footballers might be tough to beat.

"We're playing against the best team in Canada Saturday," he said. "Or so I've been told."

But Keys warned against under-rating Saskatchewan in the game Saturday.

"We're ready," he said. "This team has never been in better physical condition."

A poll of visiting reporters and broadcasters gave a heavy edge to Ottawa. What modest support there is for Saskatchewan comes from a Western bloc.

Keys didn't comment on a rumor middle guard Ron Atchison is suffering from a bad back. He said Atchison, 35 years old and 240 pounds, is a definite starter in Saskatchewan's first crack at the Grey Cup in 15 years.

THUMPS RAIDERS Buffalo Bills thumped Oakland Raiders 31-10 in Thursday's American Football League action.

Villanueva booted 12-and 13-yard field goals in the third quarter and Don Perkins, who carried for 111 yards, capped his effort, with a 10-yard scoring jaunt in the fourth quarter.

Meredith's six-yard payoff pitch to Dan Reeves in the second quarter was his 23rd touchdown pass of the season—tops in the league.

Leroy Kelly, who led the Cleveland ball-carriers with 115 yards, plunged a yard for the Browns' first touchdown and Frank Ryan passed 16 yards to Ernie Green for the other.

San Francisco's Brodie passed 24 yards to Dave Klopas for one touchdown and 45 yards to Dave Parks for another, and Klopas scrambled 32 yards for a third score with a fumbled punt runback.

STALL ON ONE Deadlocked 7-7, quarterback Tom Flores hit end Art Powell with a 35-yard pass reaching the Buffalo one-yard line, giving Oakland four chances at making a touchdown from there. They settled for a field goal by Mike Eischeid from the eight.

The Raiders netted only 58 yards rushing while fullback Wray Carlton alone ran for 97 against the Raiders and scored two touchdowns.

Oakland quarterback Flores hit on 17 of 39 passes for 245 yards and one touchdown—a 16-yard throw to Billy Cannon.

POTS WINNER — Normand Gingues of the Sherbrooke Braves, (8), is seen jumping just after he drove the puck by Ed Lacelle of Sorel for the winning tally, Jamie Kennedy helped set it up and Gingues made no mistake. It gave the Braves a 2-1 victory over the Sorel Black Hawks at the Sports Palace last evening. (Record photo by Gerry Lemay)

Braves eke out 2-1 win over Sorel in hard-hitting battle, Norm Gingues pots winner, Maurice Desy standout

Normand Gingues came through with the winning tally at 16:59 of the third period last evening to give the Sherbrooke Braves a close 2-1 win over the rugged Sorel Black Hawks of the Quebec Junior "A" Hockey League.

The Braves had several very good scoring chances during the game but failed to capitalize on their opportunities. It was a hard-hitting affair as both clubs were dish-ing it out but referee Parsons kept tossing them off.

The Braves had a good chance of moving out in front when Cournoyer went off and three local players broke in with one Sorel player back but they failed to click. Sherbrooke almost was caught napping but which hit the goal post when he had the goalie out of position. Pierre Jarry picked up a rebound to knock it into the net to tie the count 1-1. It was nice play as he snared the rebound pulled it back and then lifted it over Lacelle for Sherbrooke's first tally.

This gave the Braves a new lease on life and they commenced to click. Rathwell went off for charging and Jarry opened his mouth and was tagged with a misconduct. This proved almost fatal as the Hawks swarmed all over Desy and company. It was a good call on the charge and Jarry had no business getting involved in the matter.

The teams were trying to get the winning tally but the goalies were at their best. Denis Langlais got tagged with a minor but nothing happened. He returned to the ice and went off again when he was tagged with a slashing penalty.

Alain Pineault started the play for the winning tally when he made a pass to Jamie Kennedy who broke away with Gingues. Only one Sorel player was back. Kennedy faked a pass then lifted to his mate and he made no mistake in batting it home for the winner.

Two minutes later McLean went off leaving Sorel in a tough spot but before the Braves could capitalize Richard Lecours drew a foolish penalty when he slashed a player in the middle of the ice. This was bad at the time as it evened sides and it took Sorel off the hook.

In the final minute of play Perron went off for high-sticking and when the referee was reporting it Lecours opened his mouth and he got tagged out of the game. He also banged his stick on the boards. This could have been costly to the Braves as the Hawks could have tied the tilt. The kids will have to learn to keep their mouths shut or it may hurt their club.

Toronto only ideal place to hold Grey Cup, says Halter, Ottawa also bad site for 1967

VANCOUVER (CP) — The weather was the same as the Cup Thursday in Vancouver—and the retiring Canadian Football League commissioner, G. Sydney Halter, did his best to make the future still grayer for football fans on the West Coast and in the Ottawa Valley.

Although Halter doesn't make his official farewell speech until tonight, at the annual Grey Cup dinner, he made it clear in an interview Thursday that in his view Toronto is the only logical centre for Canada's professional football final.

Vancouver, where the game comes every third year, just isn't in the same league as Toronto when it comes to spinning the stadium turnstiles, he said. And Ottawa, which gets the centennial-year Grey Cup in 1967, has neither the weather nor the housing.

"I feel that the Vancouver area is just not big enough to support this game once the initial atmosphere of glamour begins to wear off. On the other hand, Toronto is in the centre of a vast pool of fans from many involved cities and will thus always be able to fill the stadium."

"Also, the housing situation in Ottawa is completely inadequate for a Grey Cup event and transportation into the city is poor. Frankly, I'm worried about the venue."

Halter said future Grey Cup attendances in Vancouver are headed for troubled times because of television, especially now that color TV has arrived.

"We could see some evidence of that this coming Saturday."

SELLOUT EXPECTED
Despite Halter's misgivings, however, there appears little doubt that a capacity crowd of 36,500 will watch Ottawa and Saskatchewan compete Saturday.

Fewer than 800 tickets remained unsold Thursday, most of them returns from eastern centres, and the sold-out sign is expected to be posted long before Saturday's kickoff.

Tonight's big attraction for Grey Cup fans is the 140-unit parade, being held at night for the first time in a bid to curb the vandalism of Grey Cup eve in 1965, when mobs of celebrants with nothing to do rampaged through the downtown area on a path of destruction until curbed by police dogs.

Another, and more effective, damper tonight is expected to be the weather.

"A number of storms are moving in one after the other from the Pacific," the weatherman said Thursday, "and the next one should hit Friday night. The outlook for parade time is rain."

But if it has been a quiet Grey Cup week so far, the police are none too confident this will prevail.

"The swingers," confided one officer, "just haven't begun to wing. Things will start hopping soon."

Meanwhile, the tempo of arrivals from points east is picking up. By car, plane, bus and train the visitors arrive—many only to head out again from Vancouver to hotels as much as 80 miles away.

One group is staying at a resort hotel at Harrison, 80 miles east, and will travel by bus for the parade tonight and again Saturday for the game. Another plans to fly via chartered aircraft from hotel headquarters at secret cove northwest of Vancouver.

Still others are bedding down in a train city of sleeping cars, with accommodation for 500, and another group is staying aboard chartered yachts tied up at the marina off a shore hotel.

A late arrival will be Prime Minister Pearson, scheduled to leave Ottawa today in a department of transport aircraft. He will perform the official kickoff a Saturday's game. Ottawa remains a solid favorite with the odds-makers and the weatherman promises that tonight's rain will give way to a cloudy, but dry, Saturday.

Six named to Hall of Fame

VANCOUVER (CP) — Retiring commissioner G. Sydney Halter and five other men were named Thursday to the Canadian Football Hall of Fame.

Selectors, here for Saturday's Grey Cup classic, named Halter and the late Dave McCann of Ottawa to the builders category.

Selected as players were Hugh (Bummer) Stirling of the old Sarnia Imperials of the Ontario Rugby Football Union; John J. Ferraro, former Hamilton and Montreal coach; Sylvester (Silver) Quilty, former Ottawa player and game official; and Greg (Hardrock) Kabat, player and coach at Winnipeg and Vancouver and one of Canadian football's earliest imports.

The six were named at a CFL luncheon, which turned into a eulogy for Halter, retiring after running the league since 1958.

Ted Workman of Montreal Alouettes reviewed Halter's years in office during which "he resolved East-West rules," negotiating rights and interlocking schedules. The seating capacity in all nine league stadiums had increased during Halter's regime, Grey Cup revenue had tripled and a players' association had won recognition.

DAVEY GETS BOOT
General manager Herb Capozzi of British Columbia Lions made a presentation to incoming commissioner, Senator Keith Davey—a three-foot-long football boot symbolizing "the size of the boot we think you'll have to fill."

Halter said: "The nature of this luncheon came as a complete surprise. My elation is tempered by the knowledge that at all funerals the eulogy is delivered whether deserved or not."

Among gifts to him was a cheque for $5,000 by the CFL executive to establish the G. Sydney Halter Canadian Olympic Fund.

It will be administered by Halter, a booster of amateur athletics, to help in the development of Olympic athletes.

Grey Cup is gold one for Vancouver

VANCOUVER (CP) — The Grey Cup is a gold one for Vancouver.

When the football battle for the $200 silver mug is over at Empire Stadium Saturday and all the whoop-de-do ends, there will be a lot more remaining than a bucketful of used ticket stubs that cost close to $350,000.

The best educated guess in town says the football fun generates more than $1,500,000 in business.

How much do visitors spend? Tourism officials say the rule-of-thumb is about $35 a day, roughly broken down this way: hotel $11, food $10, drinks $2, retail spending $5, taxis and spree.

Hotel managers expect their bars and restaurants to do between 30 and 40 per cent more business this weekend than normal.

One estimate says liquor, food and other costs for television parties on game day adds a good $175,000 to the spending.

But the team moved easily through the practice and returned to shelter unscathed.

Clair wouldn't make any prediction about the site of today's final session before Saturday's contest against Saskatchewan Roughriders for the Canadian Football League championship.

"We'll just have to wait and see how it is at game time," Jackson said Thursday, just before accepting awards as the top player and top Canadian in the Canadian Football League this season.

"Mud will slow up the offence—it usually balances out," Jackson added.

Ottawa coach Frank Clair wasn't taking any chances Thursday as he put his squad through their paces on a rain-soaked field on the University of British Columbia campus.

A day's long drizzle had left the practice field looking like a lake and it was not until the rain eased off that the Ottawa coach decided to let his men slosh around.

Just as the squad took to the field, the rain started again.

"If it had been five minutes later I'd have switched the workout indoors to the drill hall," said Clair. "It would have been a tough break to come this far and run into an injury because of bad footing at a practice."
