RAPID EXPANSION OF INDUSTRY IN DOMINION New Endurance Flying Mark—Pope To Leave Vatican Today

Report Chinese Fired On Five Soviet Planes

Telegram from Manchuli, Manchuria, Declares Distant Sound of Firing Heard—Shooting, However, Was Believed to Have Been Caused Merely by Excitability and Nervousness of Chinese Troops.

(Associated Press Despatch)
LONDON, July 25.—Reuter despatches from Tokyo this afternoon quoted a telegram from Manchuli, Manchuria, saying Chinese troops had fired on five Soviet aeroplanes which appeared over the border town about seven a.m. Later in the morning distant sounds of firing were heard, but they died down shortly afterwards.

The shooting was believed to have been caused merely by the excitability and nervousness of the Chinese troops.

The newspaper Nichi, in a special despatch from Manchuli, said Russian and Chinese troops had opened fire on each other when sixteen Russian aeroplanes appeared over the city.

SNOWDEN HOLDS NO HOPE FOR A TAX REDUCTION

Chancellor of Exchequer Says that Time Has Come When Best Financial Brains of World Should Try to Make Finances Serve as an Instrument for Upbuilding of Trade and Employment.

(Associated Press Despatch)
LONDON, July 25.—Right Hon. Philip Snowden, Chancellor of the Exchequer, told a banquet of bankers who were guests of the Lord Mayor at Mansion House last night, that he could give no hope of a substantial reduction of taxation in the near future. He thought that the time had come when the best financial brains of the world should try to make finance serve as an instrument for the upbuilding of trade and employment.

Mr. Snowden appealed to the bankers to exercise caution in lending abroad to countries where exchanges were unfavorable to Great Britain. He added: "I hope we shall be able to tide over the present situation without further increase in the bank rate, because I believe that the psychological effect of such increase would be very injurious at the present time."

Canadian People Should Unite In Dealing With U. S. Tariff Problem

Country Should Not Act in Spirit of Retaliation, But Should Frame Policy Adapted to Needs of Canadian People, Hon. Hugh Guthrie Urges—States When This Has Been Achieved Canadian Nation Can Snap Its Fingers at U. S. and at Whole World.

(Canadian Press Despatch)
LONDON, Ont., July 25.—United, non-partisan action to meet the situation arising out of the upward revision of the United States tariff was urged here yesterday by Hon. Hugh Guthrie, prominent Conservative, at a political meeting. The situation, he declared, is one in which the Canadian people should present an united front. "Let us not act in a spirit of retaliation," he urged, "but let us frame a policy adapted to the needs of our people. Then we can snap our fingers at the United States and the rest of the world." He indicated that the Conservative party was ready and willing to co-operate in

AVIATORS ARE SOARING TOWARDS 300TH HOUR MARK IN AIR

(Associated Press Despatch)
ST. LOUIS, MO., July 25.—Soaring towards the three hundredth hour mark in the air, the St. Louis "Robin" kept to its endless circling above Lambert St. Louis Field today. Only the final wearing out of the motor will cause Dale "Red" Jackson and Forest O'Brien, to descend from the atmosphere which has been their home for approximately twelve days and which brought them at least temporary fame as the pair who set a new endurance flight record. They elapsed the old mark of more than 246 hours on Tuesday.

Women's Right To Senate Being Discussed Before Committee Of Privy Council Today In London

"Is a Woman a Person Entitled to Be Called to Canadian Senate?" Is Question Under Discussion—Alberta Women Pressing Appeal Against an Adverse Decision of Canadian Supreme Court, Which Ruled that Under Meaning of British North America Act Women Are Not "Persons" Eligible to Senate—Attorney for Quebec Province Not Opposing Appeal.

(Canadian Press Despatch)
LONDON, July 25.—"Is a woman a person entitled to be called to the Canadian Senate?" This is being argued before the Judicial Committee of the Privy Council, representative women of Alberta pressing an appeal against an adverse decision of the Canadian Supreme Court, which ruled that under the meaning of the British North America Act women were not "persons" eligible for the Senate.

Hon. N. W. Rowell, attorney for the appellants, today concluded his argument of a day and a half. The Lord Chancellor (Lord Sankey), Lord Darling, Lord Hewart, Lord Macmillan, and Lord Lancelot Sanderson, constitute the board hearing the appeal. The attorney for Quebec Province is not now opposing the appeal.

Meaning of the Word Persons
More than once during Mr. Rowell's argument, their Lordships have made it plain they believe themselves concerned entirely with the meaning of the word persons as used in the B.N.A. Act sixty-two years ago, and the meaning then attached to the word by the Imperial Parliament. When Mr. Rowell suggested it was a matter of public policy that women should be admitted to the Canadian Senate, Lord Darling asked if there was any recognized interpretation of what constituted public policy.

GAS DEPT. HAS A NET SURPLUS OF $7,367.51

Financial Statement for Six Months Shows Expenses $32,820.75 and Revenue $40,188.26.

An increase of $2,001.76 is shown in the revenue of the gas department for the first half of the present year as compared with the same period last year. The revenue for the six months period ending June 30th last was $40,188.26 and in 1928 amounted to $38,186.50.

The expenses during the past half year showed a decrease of $607.69 as compared with the 1928 six months period. The expenses items, which include the following production, $22,288.11; distribution, $1,533.30; general expenses, $1,239.34 and fixed charges, $7,860, totals $33,920.75, as compared with $33,238.44 in same period last year.

The gas department at the end of June had a net surplus of $7,367.51 whereas for the same period in 1928 the surplus was $4,758.06.

CANADIAN BISLEY TEAM PRESENTED TO QUEEN

Will Sail Tomorrow for Home on Steamer Montrose, With Expectation of Lt.-Col. Blair, Who Will Not Return for Another Month.

LONDON, July 25.—Lt.-Col. G. T. Chisholm, of Toronto, commanding Lt.-Col. R. M. Blair, of Vancouver, winner of the King's Prize, and the remainder of the Canadian Bisley team were formally presented to the Queen at the garden party at Buckingham Palace today.

The Canadian team, as a whole, sailed on the steamer Montrose tomorrow, but Lt.-Col. Blair will not return until the steamship Duchess of York sails on August 25th.

Mr. Rowell admitted there was not. "I suppose public policy is what the judges think the time," Lord Darling continued. "There was a time when a judge thought that if a man stole a sheep he should be hanged."

Mr. Rowell then urged the meaning of the word might change in the course of years. Lord Tomlin remarked they must interpret the words in the meaning they held at the time the act was passed.

Lord Darling remarked that when Pope wrote his essay on "Man" and Darwin wrote his "Descent of Man," neither intended to exclude one of the sexes.

Intended To Confer Complete Self-Government

Summarizing his argument, Mr. Rowell maintained the B.N.A. Act was intended to confer complete self-government in domestic matters and had always been so construed by the Privy Council. Lord Darling on this particular point said one must test it by an extreme case. If the Canadian Parliament ruled that no male person should be elected to the Senate, would such a ruling be considered within the competence of the Canadian Parliament? he asked.

After some consideration, Mr. Rowell replied that if the ruling did not change the terms of the B.N.A. Act then Parliament could do it, but if the ruling did change the terms then Parliament could not.

The Dominion Government is opposing the appeal, though it has intimated steps might be taken to change the B.N.A. Act to admit women to the Senate.

One Of Greatest Events In History Of Roman Catholic Church Takes Place Today

Large Number of Persons Gathered Before St. Peter's Cathedral in Rome to Witness First Emergence of a Roman Catholic Pontiff from Vatican Since Destruction of Papal State in 1870—Pope Pius Planned to Leave Vatican at 7 O'Clock in Evening.

(Associated Press Despatch)
ROME, July 25.—Crowds, Romans, Italians and Roman Catholics from all over the world, flocked today to the plaza before St. Peter's Cathedral to witness the first emergence of a Roman Catholic pontiff from the Vatican since destruction of the papal state in 1870.

In deference to the wishes of His Holiness, Pope Pius XI, the crowds were markedly solemn and silent, taking vantage places as they were available and standing throughout the intense heat of the Roman day to witness at dusk tonight one of the greatest historical events in the life time of the Roman Catholic Church and of the United Kingdom of Italy.

Marking the end of sixty years' self-imposed imprisonment for rulers of the church, Pope Pius planned to leave the Vatican bearing the Sacred Host at 7 p.m. (one p.m. Eastern Standard Time) proceeding to the altar of the long procession to an improvised altar on the steps before the Cathedral. There before a kneeling multitude of between 250,000 and 300,000 persons he planned to impart the benediction of the Blessed Sacrament, returning afterwards to his quarters.

Plans for Ceremony
Plans for the ceremony did not call for any resumption of the regal splendors which the Popes enjoyed from the reign of Charlemagne until the fall of their temporal power in 1870. On the contrary the ceremony was merely an enhanced likeness of the benediction of the Blessed Sacrament such as any Canadian Catholic may attend Sunday afternoon in his parish church.

The procession as nearly as possible was to be a reproduction of the Corpus Christi procession which the pontiffs partook in prior to the fall of the temporal power. A colorful guard of the pontifical gendarmes will lead the procession in full uniform, followed by the colors of the papal guards with an escort. Heralds with trumpets, and pealing church bells over all Rome were to proclaim its advent.

Various clerical denominations, including seminarians, have been assigned places between the color guard and the papal cortege proper, of which higher officers of the Pope's armed corps were to lead the way with chamberlains of the sword and cape in Spanish costume, and the cardinals following.

Pope Will Appear on Platform Carried by Twelve Men

The Pope himself finally was to appear on the "podio" or platform, holding aloft the Eucharist. The "podio" will be borne by twelve men, to be constantly changed during the procession. The Pope's emergence was made possible by the Lateran Treaty of February 11th, which established peace between the Holy See and the Italian State, and fixed St. Peter's definitely as part of a sovereign Vatican state, over which His Holiness exercises supreme authority. The emergence from the Vatican is not emergence from the Vatican state on to Italian territory, an event which some believe will take place some time in the near future.

CRUISERS PART OF LONG TERM PLAN OF 1925

British Naval Estimates of Last March Showed Reductions Amounting to Seven Million Dollars.

(Associated Press Despatch)
LONDON, July 25.—The two new cruisers, work on which will be suspended according to Premier MacDonald yesterday, were already deferred from 1927 and 1928. They were part of the long term programme of construction adopted in 1925.

The naval estimates of last March showed reductions amounting to $7,000,000. The year's construction programme included the two 10,000 cruisers, deferred from 1927 and 1928; and one other cruiser, six submarines, eight destroyers, one flotilla leader and six sloops.

U.S. Not To Aid In Channel Work Unless This Country Agrees To Go Ahead With Waterway To Sea

It Is Understood U. S. Government Takes Position that Present Channel Through Thousand Islands Is Sufficient for Its Needs and Sees No Reason Why It Should Spend Some $2,000,000 Widening It Unless Deep Waterway Project Goes Through.

(Canadian Press Despatch)
OTTAWA, July 25.—United States is not inclined to join with Canada in deepening the St. Lawrence River through the Thousand Islands unless it has the assurance that Canada will eventually go ahead with the deep waterways project to the sea. A report to this effect is circulating in Ottawa and is being accepted by officials of the departments affected as definite.

With terminal works now well under way in Prescott, to accommodate the big grain boats from the upper lakes as soon as they are able to use the Welland Ship Canal, the prospect of the United States refusing to do sufficient widening of its channel in that portion of the Thousand Islands where the steamboat course is in United States waters for these boats to reach Prescott, is considered somewhat worrying. It is feared the big boats will not risk the channel unless the widening is done.

Tenders Offered Today
The tenders were opened today by the Public Works Department for the Canadian section, which requires the removal of nine shoals near Brockville. The tenders agree to have a channel twenty-five feet deep and 450 feet wide in that vicinity by July 1st next.

The portion it was expected United States would do is in the vicinity of Alexandria Bay, and consists of widening a present 350 feet channel to a width of 300 feet, and that down-bound boats use one channel and the up-bound the other. This would cost Canada about $4,000,000.

COMMISSIONER OF EGYPT AND SUDAN RESIGNS

Resignation of Lord Lloyd Announced in Commons by Right Hon. Arthur Henderson Last Evening—May Be Taken Up in Both Houses Tomorrow—Thought to Be Result of Strained Relations With Foreign Office.

LONDON, July 25.—In the House of Lords and the House of Commons tomorrow the resignation of Lord Lloyd, high commissioner for Egypt and the Sudan since 1925, will again take the stage. Lord Lloyd returned from Egypt last Friday and the House of Lords consequently may witness a poignant scene of the former high commissioner defending his own actions.

The resignation was announced with dramatic suddenness in the House of Commons last evening by Right Hon. Arthur Henderson, Secretary for Foreign Affairs, who added that His Majesty's Government accepted it with regret, fully realizing the sincerity of the motives which led Lord Lloyd to place his resignation in its hands. The Foreign Secretary had sent an intimation to Lord Lloyd before he left Egypt, based on the attitude the high commissioner had adopted toward the policy of the government.

Later he had sent a telegram of "such a character that most people would have accepted it as an invitation to terminate his position" in the Foreign Secretary's words.

It is stated authoritatively today that if Mr. Henderson submits the full correspondence to the House it will be revealed the differences did not arise under the present government, nor was Lord Lloyd's action due to any sudden and sharp differences between the Foreign Secretary and himself over the present government's policy. Apparently the Foreign Secretary decided to send the telegram as a result of reading the correspondence between Lord Lloyd and the previous government.

Outlook Good For New Record Of Industrial Production This Year

Highly Optimistic Report on Canadian Financial, Industrial and Commercial Situation Made to London by F. W. Field, Senior British Trade Commissioner at Montreal—Possibilities of Inter-Empire Trade Bright, With Canadians Desirous of Buying Empire Goods—Exhaustive and Far-Reaching Report.

(Associated Press Despatch)
LONDON, July 25.—Exhaustive to the final degree is the analysis of the financial, industrial and commercial conditions in Canada, which comprises the annual report of F. W. Field, British Senior Trade Commissioner at Montreal, made public here today. Mr. Field's extensive knowledge of trade condition acquired over a period of twenty years' service in the Dominion, has enabled him to observe the progress of long established industries, and the launching and development of new ones. His report of one hundred pages explanatory of the general commercial situation of Canada is a compendium of authoritative information which is bound to be helpful to Britons on the lookout for opportunities to extend their own sphere of activities.

The report points to the satisfactory conditions of Canadian industry in general. "In no previous period has there been such a rapid increase in manufacturing," it declares in reference to the fiscal year ended March 31, 1929. "The increases in the volume of production of iron and steel has been substantial and that of motor vehicles has surpassed all previous records. Almost all branches of Canadian production have shown corresponding improvement during the period."

Mr. Field notes that the Dominion ranks fifth among the nations of the world in total trade, second in exports and total trade per capita, third in favorable balance of trade and first in favorable trade balance per capita. "The increase of $270,000,000 last year in trade," he says, "was greater than Canada's total trade thirty years ago."

Great Bank Savings.

Of banking, the senior trade commissioner records that "the increase in deposits $155,000,000 represents in the main the new wealth of the public entrusted to the banks' care, and constitutes an important addition to the chief sources of credit in Canada. The increase in commercial loans, $164,000,000, was made possible largely by the greater savings of the Canadian people, and as loans of this character are made almost wholly for productive purposes, their greater volume reflects the expansion in practically all branches of Canadian industry and trade."

Touching on the investment of capital in the Dominion, Mr. Field directs attention to the number of United States firms which have established branch works in Canada. The total is estimated at from 600 to 700, varying from small assembling works employing a few hands to large industries employing several thousands.

With regard to immigration, the Senior Trade Commissioner finds that "more producers and more consumers are needed in order to ensure the balance of economic conditions. The view, which appears widely held, is the desirability of promoting as actively as may be practicable the immigration to Canada of well-selected settlers and others whose service can be productively employed throughout the Dominion."

One Hundred New Factories.

In the last two years, the report says, over two hundred important expansions have been added to existing factories and over one hundred new factories have been erected. These were notably in the real and artificial silk, pulp and paper, motor car and allied industries, and in concerns supplying construction materials and household goods of all kinds. Canadian manufacturing plants are turning out in physical volume approximately 140 per cent of the output reached at the peak of war time activity ten years ago, Mr. Field reports; and in spite of lower prices, their products have a gross value over twenty per cent higher. The outlook is for a new record of industrial production in 1929.

The rapid expansion of Canadian industry is placing the Dominion as one of the leading industrial producers. Concurrently the difficulties of many United Kingdom manufacturers in regard to the marketing of their goods here are increasing. At the same time the development of industry is calling for the importation of large amounts of raw materials, semi-manufactured articles, machinery and equipment.

"We shall probably lose the greater part of our trade in certain conditions. The view, which appears widely held, is the desirability of promoting as actively as may be practicable the immigration to Canada of well-selected settlers and others whose service can be productively employed throughout the Dominion."

SEA FISHING INDUSTRY HAD ACTIVE PERIOD

Canadian Catch During First Half of 1929 Had Landed Value of $9,364,822, Which Was an Increase of $50,000 Over 1928 Figures, Despite Reduction of Nine Million Pounds in Weight of Catch.

(Canadian Press Despatch)
OTTAWA, Ont., July 25.—The Canadian catch of sea fish in the first half of 1929 had a landed value of $9,364,822. This was an increase of $50,000 over 1928 figures despite a reduction of 9,000,000 pounds in the weight of the catch, which was 280,000,000 pounds.

Statistics compiled by the Dominion Fisheries Branch show that there was an increase of 4,710,300 pounds in the catch in June, as compared with June, 1928, and an increase of $162,283 in the landed value of the catch to the fishermen. The catch on the Pacific coast was less by some 3,100,000 pounds than that in June of last year, but on the Atlantic coast there was an increase of more than 7,800,000 pounds.

The total sea fish catch on the Atlantic coast in June was 59,593,000 pounds. The increase of 7,822,700 pounds over the total for June 1928, was due to the greater success of the Nova Scotia and Prince Edward Island operations. The Nova Scotia catch was 55,250,200 pounds as against 43,899,200 pounds in the previous June. In Prince Edward Island the fishermen landed 4,160,800 pounds while in June 1928 their catch was only 4,142,400 pounds. On the other hand, the New Brunswick catch was slightly less than in June of a year ago—4,152,400 pounds as compared with 4,329,700 pounds—and Quebec's landings were only 7,589,600 pounds as against 10,399,000 pounds.

HEALTH & DIET ADVICE

By Dr. Frank McCoy

Author of

"The Fast Way to Health"

Questions To Health and Diet Will Be Answered By Dr. McCoy, who can be addressed in care of this paper. 1926 McCoy Health Service, Los Angeles, Cal.

EXERCISING THE INTESTINES

The entire intestinal tract may be considered a muscular tube requiring exercise and work just as would any other muscle of the body. We do not consciously feel these intestinal muscles contracting, but they are, nevertheless, almost always actively contracting and pushing the food forward through the various stages of digestion, absorption, and excretion. Civilized people, by using refined and mostly overcooked food, usually suffer from constipation because they do not use a large enough quantity of the rough fibrous foods to provide these intestinal muscles with sufficient exercise.

Every rancher who raises horses and cows realizes that if these animals were fed exclusively upon the grain, the animals would soon become sick. They can use an almost unlimited amount of the straw and hay, but must be fed very cautiously on grain.

We have learned to feed cattle and logs as to produce the best stock for markets, but it seems odd that we have not learned to use these same lessons in our own behalf.

I have given you this homely reference to live stock in order to emphasize our need for more of the "hay" foods in the diet rather than too much of the heavy, concentrated foods, such as the grains and other foods rich in carbohydrates, fats or proteins.

At least one, and preferably two meals each day should contain plenty of green vegetables, both in the cooked and raw state, in order to give sufficient bulk to the intestines and to insure a good supply of the organic salts and vitamins so abundantly found in these foods.

The leafy vegetables, such as spinach, chard, lettuce, celery and kale, as well as string beans and the small non-starchy squashes, are most valuable parts of a normal diet and may be used in combination with any other food without fear of overeating or using bad mixtures. They are easily digested, and also assist in the digestion of the "heavier" foods by making a softer, less sticky mass through which digestive juices can more readily penetrate.

These non-starchy vegetables, the bran of cereals, and the edible skins and pulps of fruits, by stimulating the intestines, help to maintain a sufficient amount of moisture, and by speeding the passage prevent auto-intoxication. This method of avoiding the poisons from intestinal putrefaction is most valuable for everyone to learn.

Even if one has defective teeth, these bulky vegetables should be used. They may be ground through a vegetable grinder or finely chopped. Most people make the mistake of filling up first on the concentrated foods and then trying to eat their vegetables.

This process should be reversed. It is a very good plan to first fill up on the non-concentrated foods. There is very little danger that one will use too many of these in the diet. Of course, some concentrated food is needed, but they should be kept down to the minimum requirements of the body.

If they wish to have the best of health and strength eat the "hay foods" and avoid the dangers of auto-intoxication.

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS

Weeping Eyes

Question—Mrs. A. P. asks: "Could you tell me the cause for my eyes continuously weeping. I have used boric acid and witch hazel, also had my lenses changed, but this eye weeps just the same."

Answer—The cause of the eye weeping may be due to inflammation of the tear glands, and I would suggest cold wet compresses. A fasting and dieting regimen, such as is outlined in my "Cleansing Diet" should prove beneficial, inasmuch as it will remove from your system any toxic material causing the irritation.

Custards

Question—Mrs. Q. K. writes: "I never see anything in your diet and health about puddings and custards made of milk and eggs. Are they advisable to eat?"

Answer—Wholesome custards can be made of milk and eggs without sugar. Add a few raisins or some vanilla for flavoring.

Heart Consciousness

Question—J. B. E. asks: "Will you be good enough to tell me when a person is continually conscious of his heart beat, especially at night, does it mean organic heart diseases? Does a strong heart beat mean that the organ will wear out unduly soon?"

Answer—Being conscious of the heart beat may not indicate any organic trouble, but merely heart consciousness which seems to be normal with some people. However, I believe it would be a good plan for you to have your heart examined, as there may be some trouble which could only be determined by a diagnosis.

Gynecology

Question—Mrs. C. asks: "Will you please tell me what the word 'gynecology' means?"

Answer—The term "Gynecology" means "the science of the diseases of women."

FATHER OF HON. H.M. MARLER HAS PASSED AWAY

Mr. William de Montmolin Marler was One of Leading Notaries in Montreal—Born in Drummondville, Where Father Had Settled Many Years Ago.

One of the leading members of the legal profession in Montreal, William de Montmolin Marler, passed away at the Royal Victoria Hospital in that city Tuesday night, at the age of seventy-nine. Mr. Marler was the father of the Hon. Herbert M. Marler, Canada's first Minister to Japan and formerly a member of the federal cabinet. Hon. Herbert Marler was in Winnipeg at the time of his father's death, on his way to Japan, and left at once for Montreal. The younger Marler is well known in the Townships, having been named Liberal candidate for Stanstead a year ago, only retiring as such when he received the diplomatic post during the winter. A few weeks ago he was feted by his friends at Coaticook, and on that occasion paid tribute to his father and spoke of the filial respect characteristic of this province.

Drummondville was the home of the Marlers for many years. Mr. Marler, senior, was born there in 1849, son of G. L. and Mary Ann Collins (Woodwards) Marler. He was educated in Drummondville and Montreal schools and at McGill University, where he graduated in Arts and Law. McGill in 1897 conferred upon him the degree of Doctor of Civil Law. Mr. Marler practised his profession of notary for many years, and had an impeccable reputation, standing at the height of his business.

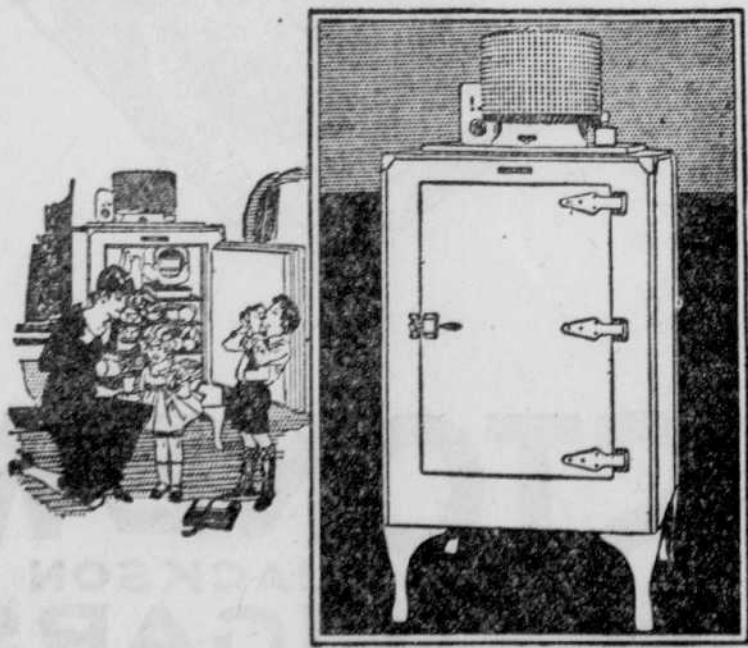

Mr. Marler was honored by Montreal notaries in 1922 on the completion of his fiftieth year of practice. He was at various times a professor in the Law Faculty of McGill, which granted him an honorary LL.D. degree two years ago. He is survived by his widow, four sons and two daughters.

The deMontmolin family is an old French Protestant one, the first to come to Canada being Francis deMontmolin, a minister who came to Quebec in 1786. He was the first to sign the address to the Bishop of Nova Scotia in 1789. The minister's son in turn had a daughter, who married Leonard Marler, a British officer, who was stationed at the Chateau deRamezay, where he was in charge of ammunition during the war of 1812. George Leonard Marler, son of this officer, settled in the Eastern Townships at Drummondville, and his son was William deMontmolin Marler, who died Tuesday. The fine Marler house was burned to the ground some years ago and the estate was sold to the Drummondville Golf Club and forms the present links there now.

GLIDER CLUB PLANS

The plans and specifications of the proposed gliders for Sherbrooke have arrived. The executive feels that in order to have at once a safe and properly working glider all the material for the first glider should be imported. This will cost some where between $150 and $170, and the suggestion is that all interested pay a membership fee of $10 to meet this expense. Several interested have been spoken to and the plan has been well received. The acting secretary would be pleased to hear from any persons prepared to join in this project. The Department of Defence, Ottawa, and the National Glider Club of the United States, have promised to assist the local club.

Auto Runs 59 Miles On Gallon Of Gas

Automobile engineers who worked for years in an effort to reduce gasoline consumption have found the solution in a marvellous invention that fits all cars. An actual test made by one of the engineers showed 59 miles on a gallon of gas. Thousands of car owners have already installed this new invention. They not only report amazing gas savings, but are also surprised to find quicker pick-up, instant starting, smoother running motors and disappearance of carbon. E. Oliver, 999-1718 E. Third St., Milwaukee, Wis., for a limited time is offering a free device to those who will help introduce it. They also need men everywhere to make over $100 weekly in their own territory taking care of local business. Write him at once for free sample and big money making offer.—Adv.

INVESTIGATION IS CARRIED OUT AT SPRING HILL

Inquest Held Yesterday in Connection With Death of Mrs. Theodore Martin, of Spring Hill, Who Was Found in Room Yesterday With Throat Cut — Was Subject to Periods of Despondency.

(Special to the Record.)
LAKE MEGANTIC, July 25.—A verdict of "suicide while of unsound mind" was returned by the jury empanelled yesterday by Acting Coroner Dube, of this place, to inquire into the circumstances surrounding the death of Mrs. Theodore Martin, of Spring Hill, who was found in her room early yesterday morning with her throat cut and a razor lying by her side.

The tragedy occurred soon after Mr. and Mrs. Martin had returned from the station here where their eldest son and his bride had taken the train for a wedding trip, having been married during the previous day.

Mrs. Martin stated that she was not feeling well and that she was going to her room for a rest. Shortly before ten o'clock Mr. Martin went to the room, and on entering, found his wife lying on the floor with a bad wound in her throat. Dr. Leo Blais, of this place, was at once called, but on his arrival he found that there was nothing he could do, and a few minutes later, the unfortunate woman passed away.

At the inquest held yesterday afternoon by Acting Coroner Dube, the fact was brought to light that Mrs. Martin had not been well during the past few months and suffered periods of despondency. At the conclusion of the evidence a verdict of "suicide while of unsound mind" was returned by the jury.

The funeral will be held tomorrow from the late residence to the Spring Hill Church, with interment in the local cemetery.

SHERBROOKE'S ELECTRIC DEPARTMENT

Further evidence of the healthy financial condition of Sherbrooke's Electric Department is furnished by the semi-annual report made public yesterday. This shows a handsome surplus of $144,114.69, which is an improvement on the figures for the corresponding period in 1928 of $22,260.38.

This highly satisfactory statement is the result of capable management and earnest effort, and the officials in charge of this important department are to be congratulated.

The statement places the total revenue for the six months at $254,821.25, which, less the discount of $10,005.47 allowed for prompt payment of accounts, leaves a net revenue of $244,815.78; while expenditures amounted to $100,701.09.

Figures such as these are highly encouraging and speak well for Sherbrooke municipal ownership. The Electric Department has been operated most successfully for years, and there appears to be no reason why this state of affairs should not continue, for the administration of this valuable asset of the city is in the hands of capable officials, assisted by a qualified and conscientious staff.

PHILANTHROPISTS' GIFTS

Every country owes much to its rich men who have sought to use part of their wealth in the interest of their fellow-men, and the following tabulation of the contributions toward educational and charitable objects by some of the well known philanthropists will no doubt prove of interest to many:

John D. Rockefeller	$ 600,000,000
Andrew Carnegie	375,000,000
Cleveland Foundation	150,000,000
Henry C. Frick	85,000,000
James B. Duke	80,000,000
Milton S. Hersey	80,000,000
Payne Whitney	60,000,000
George Eastman	60,000,000
Mrs. Russell Sage	40,000,000
Henry Phipps	31,000,000
Benjamin Altman	30,000,000
John Stewart Kennedy	30,000,000
James Couzens	27,000,000
John W. Sterling	20,000,000
Edmund C. Converse	20,000,000
Edward S. Harkness	20,000,000
J. R. De Lamar	16,000,000
Mrs. Stephen V. Harkness	16,000,000
Augustus D. Juillard	15,000,000
Henry E. Huntington	15,000,000
George F. Baker	12,000,000
J. P. Morgan	10,000,000
Mrs. Elizabeth Anderson	10,000,000

$1,802,000,000

Many people pile up wealth and know not where it will go when they have departed. It is infinitely better to make some such provision as has been done by these millionaires, that will assure part, at least, of their riches being used for the happiness and betterment of the world.

CANADA'S EXPORT TRADE

Canada's trade is developing by leaps and bounds. This fact is quite apparent from the latest figures relating to the export business to countries with which the Dominion exchanges most-favored-nation treatment. These statistics show that whereas Canada in 1922 exported to thirteen foreign countries with which she had favored-nation arrangements goods valued at $73,000,000 Canadian export trade with the same group during the fiscal year just ended amounted to $195,000,000, an increase of $122,000,000. From these countries Canada imported $45,164,000 in 1922 and $90,000,000 in the past fiscal year. These countries include the following: Argentina, Belgium, Columbia, Denmark, France, Italy, Japan, Netherlands, Norway, Spain, Sweden, Switzerland, Venezuela.

It has been the policy of the Government to assist Canadian manufacturers or exporters to widen their markets, and the result is that Canada now grants to or receives from forty-three different foreign countries tariff concessions which stimulate trade. Total imports from these countries in the fiscal year just ended were $103,694,837, while Canadian exports totalled $220,779,389.

Canada's domestic exports to British countries that granted tariff preferential treatment to her in 1922 and 1929 (fiscal years) were $317,585,982 and $503,864,623 respectively. Of these $299,361,675 and $429,730,485 went to the United Kingdom.

Canadian exports to thirteen countries with which this country exchanged most-favored-nation treatment in the fiscal years ended March 31, 1922, and 1929 were as follows:

	1922	1929
Argentina	$ 3,233,520	$14,493,798
Belgium	12,419,251	27,451,064
Columbia	127,820	1,801,880
Denmark	2,243,861	5,983,897
France	8,248,438	16,243,747
Italy	15,340,430	23,038,832
Japan	14,877,168	42,106,953
Netherlands	9,592,938	44,465,864
Norway	3,914,231	7,437,128
Spain	848,495	5,704,260
Sweden	1,221,018	4,796,490
Switzerland	367,794	560,460
Venezuela	512,499	1,792,685

In the face of these figures it is impossible to deny that this country is facing one of the most thriving eras in its history.

FORESIGHT AND FORTUNE-TELLING (By Glenn Frank)

Our present-day civilization may be described as a race between foresight and fortune-telling.

By foresight I mean dependable scientific forecasting.

By fortune-telling I mean unreliable popular prediction.

Old Auguste Comte, the French philosopher, expressed the spirit and purpose of modern science in his famous phrase "Voir; Prevoir; Pourvoir." Freely translated this phrase means, "See to foresee, foresee in order to provide."

Prediction is thus one of the major tasks of modern science, but the predictions of science, when they are soundly scientific, differ widely from the predictions either of the popular mind or of the professional soothsayer.

The predictions of science are but one phase of the three-fold business of science.

First, science must, if it is true to itself, begin by assembling and assaying all of the facts about the problem under consideration; clear observation must assemble the facts and controlled experimentation must test the facts.

Second, science must then study the facts as they are assembled and tested in the light of cause and effect; it must undertake accurately to forecast the effects that will follow from the causes represented by the facts.

Third, science must, if it is to complete its job, help us to work out ways and means of controlling the situation its analysis and forecasts have revealed.

There are, therefore three phases of the foresight of the scientist. They are:

Positive knowledge.

Reliable prediction.

Efficient control.

We might remake our civilization in one generation if all of us, or a controlling majority of us, really brought this sort of scientific foresight to the affairs of our time, but unfortunately most of us are practitioners of fortune-telling rather than scientific foresight.

If we are conservative, we predict that innovation will bring doom; if we are radical, we predict that our pet scheme will mean the dawn of a new day. And so our civilization proceeds as a game of pull-and-haul between unreliable predictions.—Cpt. 1929.

PRESS COMMENT

WHO'LL PRESS THE BREAKFAST BUTTON?

(Christian Science Monitor)

What is machinery doing for the home? It has revolutionized the manufacturing industries and given to mankind the eight-hour day and the prospect of a five-day week. But machinery has not entered the home as a well-defined movement to reduce to the simplest possible formula, and with the least possible human effort, what long has been designated as "the housework." Machinery has taken a small part in lessening the hardships of the housewife, but in no such degree as it has in ameliorating conditions among the industrial workers.

Machinery appears in the home chiefly in the vacuum sweeper and in the sewing and washing machines. There are various other electrical appliances that lessen the drudgery of the housewife, but they do not do away with it. The electric flatiron saves steps and time, but it still has to be pushed. Even the vacuum sweeper is devoid of any power of self-propulsion and does not skip over the parlor rug without being vigorously coaxed. The electric washer is a real labor saver, but it has not yet reached the stage of efficiency where it picks up soiled linen, washes, dries, irons and neatly folds it and places it where it belongs "in the second chiffonier drawer."

The average modern kitchen and its equipment are far in advance of those of a half-century ago, but they lack the co-ordination so eloquently expressed by the engineer in the layout of the shop or factory. In these days of the electric button the mere pressure of a thumb or finger ought to release enough kitchen mechanism to enable the housewife to read the morning paper while the range and its subsidiaries put into operation and complete all the necessary motions for an ordinary breakfast.

Arthur K. Remmel, Editor of the Fort Wayne (Indiana) News-Sentinel, says:

THAT there is a vast difference between publicity and news. Mere publicity will not bring the desired results. Indeed, there must be an element of news in the publicity—something that will attract attention. More than that, real money must be spent in real advertising. Churches must advertise, and, of course, the most effective advertising is newspaper advertising. The church not only should advertise, but it must advertise because it is slowly but surely losing ground in our great centers of population, which are inevitably to dominate the nation.

The right kind of advertising should increase the good will of the public toward the church. It should break down the prejudice of the public concerning those matters which are little understood by the mass of people outside the church, and there are many such. A general campaign should deal with the form of government of the church. Most churches may easily lay claim to the spirit of democracy in the manner that they are governed. The subject of creed should be handled in a popular manner. Few outside of the church have the proper conception of the doctrines which are actually taught by the church today. Their minds run back to medieval times for the church's theology. The terms of admission should be made very plain. To many men the barriers of church membership are almost insurmountable.

It seems to me that the different denominations represent different brands of an article that should be merchandised as effectively as a soap, a food, or an article of wearing apparel.

CUBS REGAINED TOP RUNG AFTER A HARD BATTLE

Chicago Just Managed to Nose Out Giants, While Brooklyn Upset Pirates—No Change in American League Race.

(By Edward J. Neill, Associated Press Sports Writer)
NEW YORK, July 25.—The Chicago Cubs, hard-fighting crew, were back in first place in the National League today, prodded there by the toughest fighter of them all, burly Hack Wilson.

For it was "Hackenschmidt," with an architectural style that resembles a quarter section of a fortress wall, who crushed the New York Giants with his big bat yesterday after even elements had seemed to contrive to keep intact a slender one-point margin of the leading Pirates.

The scene was set nicely for the graceful ascent of the Cubs into first place, when things began to happen that called for stern, brusque methods. For the second straight day the malevolent Brooklyn Robins, going nowhere in particular, but mighty pugnacious about it, swarmed all over the Pirates and beat them by 6 to 4. Everything was peaceful at Wrigley Field with Guy Bush, ace of the Cubs staff, going nicely, and the Cubs ran up a lead of 4 to 0 on the Giants by the time the sixth inning rolled around.

Rogers Hornsby hit one home run off Jack Scott, his twentieth of the season, and Hack got another, his twenty-fourth. Everything was under perfect control from a Cub standpoint. Then the peaceful scene turned into a mild madhouse. The Giants rose and slashed Bush for three runs in the sixth, thunder and lightning hit the field, and the game was halted while spectators and players rushed through the downpour from flooded bleachers and dugouts. The sun came out in an hour and play was resumed.

A Timely Home Run
Bush was out of there. In a few minutes there was also Art Nehf, and before the interrupted sixth was over Pat Malone was hanging on the ropes, and the Giants were leading by 7 to 4. But John McGraw's discarded chickens have a habit of coming home to roost at such times as these. It was a master mind who sent Hack Wilson to Toledo in 1925 after three poor seasons with the Giants. Hack waited until the seventh, when Heathcote and Hornsby singled, and then smashed his second home run of the day into the centre field bleachers, these three runs evening things.

A walk, sacrifice and McMillan's single gave the boys from the pineapple orchard a 8 to 7 victory and first place by half a game.

In all the Cubs used five pitchers, calling on Mike Cuyegros and finally Charlie Root, who held the Giants to only four hits the day before. Fitzsimmons was the victim of Hack's second homer and Mays finished for the Giants.

Robins Trimmed Pirates
The rampaging Robins, roughly espousing the Chicago cause, bunched their hits off Hainis Meier—no relation of Ernie Meier—while Bill Clark held the Pirates in check. Babe Herman weighed in with two vital triples.

Lloyd Waner fizzled his chance to be a hero by flying out with three on and two out in the ninth. The remainder of the National League batting was interesting but inconclusive, while the situation along the American League sector remained unchanged with both the New York Yankees and the Philadelphia Athletics winning the day's battles.

Both Athletics and Yankees Won
The Athletics kept their ten game lead intact by downing Cleveland 5 to 3, behind George Earnshaw's sterling hurling, and the Yankees crept up from behind to edge out Detroit 7 to 5. George Uhle threw against Herb Pennock, the Yankee southpaw, and both were hit hard. Jimmy Fox landed his twentieth home run for the Athletics and Bill Dickey, Yankee catcher, hit a home run and three singles.

Bill McKeehan came back to the St. Louis Cards from the Rochester farm to reap his reward for managing the Red Birds into a pennant last year and started off nicely. The Cards downed the Phillies 6 to 4, when Wallie Rottger, right fielder, hit a home run with the bases full in the sixth and Jimmy Wilson got another with Rottger aboard in the eighth.

The Boston teams struck blows for the home folks both home and abroad. The Braves bested Cincinnati 5 to 3 and the Red Sox took the St. Louis Browns 9 to 7. Bob Burke won a pitching battle with Alphonse Thomas as Washington edged out the Chicago White Sox 3 to 2.

BEDFORD WON E. T. LEAGUE GAME

BEDFORD, July 25.—An exciting ten-inning baseball game in the Eastern Townships League between Bedford and Farnham was played on the latter's grounds on Sunday afternoon, when Bedford emerged from the struggle winners by a score of 8 to 7. At the end of the fifth inning Farnham was leading by a score of 6 to 1, but in the sixth and seventh innings Bedford got after Carr, the Farnham pitcher, and socked the ball for three runs in each inning, one of them being a circuit hit by Macomber with two men on in the sixth, and a three-bagger each by Dube and Harvey in the seventh. From then on until the last of the tenth Carr tightened up and allowed only three scattered hits, one in the ninth by Lyons and two in the tenth by Hope and Macomber. Cummings for Bedford pitched himself into several bad holes during the game, allowing twelve hits, one of which was a three-bagger by Corbett in the fourth, and issuing six passes, one of which forced in a run in the second.

Score by innings:
Bedford 0 1 0 0 3 0 0 1—8
Farnham 0 1 2 0 0 0 1 0—7
Batteries—Bedford: Cummings and Macomber. Farnham: Carr and Beatty.

CANADIAN OPEN GOLF TOURNEY OPENED TODAY

Predicted that Par for Kanawaki Course Will Not Be Good Enough to Carry Off Canadian Title—Some Startling Scores Made in Practice Rounds.

(Canadian Press Despatch.)
KANAWAKI, Que., July 25.—Some of the best golfers, pros and amateurs, in the United States and Canada, started today with joy in their hearts to assault par in the Canadian open championship. They thought they had a decided edge on the old gentleman before the competition started, and on every hand suggestions were made that par golf—in this case 280 for the seventy-two holes—would not be good enough to win. The Kanawaki course was not able to defend itself to any great extent for the weather was allied with the enemy. It has been hot and dry and golf balls, properly hit, roll great distances. Its long holes impotent, the course will have to fall back on the short ones to rally round.

The bold golfer may find trouble in plenty of the five one-shotters. Some of the teeth are removed from the ninth, however, by a big punch-bowl green offering an inviting target for a spoon or number 1 iron. A great field gathered for the title event, rich in pros but offering only a nominal award. The winner will only get $400 no matter how much he shaves par, but if a pro takes the title, and a pro always has, he can cash in heavily by having it after his name. At least two strong amateur threats appeared, George Von Elm, Detroit, and Ross Somerville, Canadian amateur champion, of London, Ont., and there may be others lurking in the shadow. Leo Diegel, who won the championship for the third time last year, found his path to a fourth honor disputed by practically every star pro in the business. Only Al Espinosa, runner-up in the United States, open, was missing and the Espinosa family was represented by Abe, western open champion.

Some startling scores were compiled in the practice rounds, but the figures might reasonably be expected to mount during the regular play. An opening round of eighteen holes moved the way for another eighteen tomorrow and a final thirty-six Saturday after the field of 170 has been reduced by the first two days' performances.

SPORTING NOTES
Y.M. SWIM AND RACE RESULTS
The swim from Fissette's Point to the camp, a little over a mile in length, was perhaps the outstanding event at the Y.M.C.A. camp this year. The distance was covered by three of the campers, Don Johnston, whose time was 41 minutes; M. Echenberg, 45 minutes; and Charles Willis, 49 minutes.

Another important feature was the five mile run from the camp to Katevale and return. Times made were very good and compared favorably with the five and two-fifths mile race held on July 17. The following completed the run. Crochetiere, 32 minutes; Katadolis, 34 minutes; 40 seconds; Johnston, 36 minutes; 20 seconds; Mutchler, 38 minutes; 10 seconds; Heilig, 38 minutes; 12 seconds; LeBaron, 39 minutes; 20 seconds; C. Willis, 39 minutes; 24 seconds; G. McNaughton, 40 minutes; 20 seconds.

McHarg, 98; Lt. J. Allen, 97; Sgt. M. Pankovitch, 95; Pte. A. Matheson, 95; R.Q.M.S. J. Strickland, 94; Pte. John Beattie, 94; Pte. J. Matheson, 92; Major H. R. Biggs, 92; Pte. F. J. Glass, 91. Total 951.

FOOTBALL
Y. M. C. A. CLUB
A general meeting of the committee and team of the Y. M. C. A. Football Club will be held tonight at seven o'clock at the Y. M. C. A. Important business will be discussed.

Q. C. R. PRACTISE TONIGHT
All Quebec Central players are requested to be on hand for a light practice tonight at seven o'clock sharp at the Parade grounds. The following players will represent the club when it meets Y. M. C. A. on Saturday: H. Stoyles, A. McHarg, W. Pearce, F. Twyman, L. Joiner, H. Loach, H. Grime, C. Hammond, B. Grime, J. McNally and J. Pendland, with H. Bennett, A. Mines and C. Stocks as reserves. All players to meet the Y. M. C. A. are requested to be on hand not later than three o'clock Saturday afternoon.

LACROSSE
NATIONALS TROUNCED BLACK HAWKS
In a one-sided game on the Parade Grounds last evening, the league-leading Nationals administered a bad beating to the Black Hawks in a scheduled league fixture. The Frenchmen had it all over the younger team, who were shorthanded at the beginning. The final score was 9 to 1.

TENNIS
DAVIS CUP FINAL DRAW.
PARIS, July 25.—George Lott for America, and Jean Borotra for France, will open the Davis Cup final on Friday at 10.15 a.m., according to the draw today. William T. Tilden will meet Henri Cochet at 4.30 p.m., Friday.

It was practically certain the French doubles team, about which there has been so much speculation, would be Cochet and Borotra, although there has been no definite announcement. Sunday's play will be a reversal of Friday's singles matches. Tilden meeting Borotra at 2.30 p.m., and Cochet taking on Lott at 5 p.m.

SCT. WEDDIE MADE FINE SCORE
The fourth D.C.R.A. match of the Sherbrooke Regiment Rifle Association produced a total of 951. There was some excellent shooting, especially by Sgt. J. Weddie, who scored 103 out of a possible 105. The scores follow:
Sgt. J. Weddie, 103; Major R. J.

The annual regatta of the Lake Park Canoe Club will be held on August 4th, this decision being reached at a meeting of the executive presided over by the president, Dr. F. Bertrand.

tain classes of manufactured goods and extend it in other groups," the report adds.

Electrical Industry Possibilities.
Mr. Field notes that the possibilities for increasing the sale of electrical equipment in Canada are expanding. United Kingdom manufacturers have lately taken a definite interest in the Canadian market, where an increasing appreciation of British electrical equipment forms a good foundation on which to build business. "Given the proper sales organization, a fairly satisfactory profit might be expected over the complete range of manufacturers," says the report. The reluctance of British manufacturers to make designs conforming to the standards of Canadian industry is disappearing, due to the collaboration of the United Kingdom manufacturers with the Canadian representatives, and to revised regulations of the various departments and the various electrical supply companies.

With regard to textiles, the Senior Trade Commissioner finds importations of cotton goods from the United Kingdom becoming increasingly difficult due to competition from the United States. The imports of artificial silk fabrics have grown, however; while the United Kingdom has more than half the Canadian import trade in woven fabrics composed in part of artificial silk, but not containing silk or wool. Great Britain's share during the period under review was 4,854,406 out of a total of 7,709,160 yards.

Dealing with another sphere of Canadian activity, Mr. Field says that "probably in no other country is greater use made of aircraft for the development and conservation of natural resources than in Canada. Since 1925 the number of operating firms has increased from 8 to 53. Last year 75,669 passengers, 2,404,682 pounds of freight and 316,631 pounds of mail were carried." The territories served by air lines are enumerated, and their substantial progress noted.

Empire Trade Favored.
Of inter-empire trade, Mr. Field observes general desire in Canada of extension in this regard. "Canadians," he says, "insist on buying Canadian products whenever possible, but they are anxious that their import business should be placed when practicable in the United Kingdom and other Empire countries."

Mr. Field explains Canada's unfavorable trade balance with the United States as due to imports of raw materials such as cotton, rubber, petroleum and coal. "But there appears to be an opportunity to change these statistics in favor of Anglo-Canadian and of Empire trade by larger purchases by the Dominion of British goods."

The Senior Trade Commissioner finds the outlook for Canada good. The basis of the Dominion's exceptional prosperity in the past few years has been the development of natural resources. Mining fields have been extended and new mines discovered; additional areas have been opened for cultivation; forest resources have been more effectively utilized, and the land generally has given of its wealth freely.

BOXING

BIG CROWD TO WITNESS DUNDEE-FIELD BOUT TONIGHT

(Associated Press Despatch)
DETROIT, Mich., July 25.—With a gate of more than $150,000 assured for the first ten rounds championship fight in Michigan under the new boxing law, Floyd Fitzsimmons' chief worry today was the weather, which threatened to dampen the ardor of 32,000 fight fans who purchased tickets for the welterweight bout between Joe Dundee and Jack Field at the Michigan state fairgrounds tonight.

Dundee, the Italian champion, from Baltimore, has not shown any considerable fighting ability since he gained the title two years ago, and consequently will enter the ring strongly suspected of being about to lose his crown. Field's supporters expect him to knock out the champion. Dundee has been down several times, but never out.

Elmer (Slim) McLelland, Detroit, will be the third man in the ring.

POWER STOCKS AGAIN

FEATURES

MONTREAL, July 25.—The Montreal Financial Service today says: The power stocks were again the features of the local market yesterday, with Montreal Power, Shawinigan, Quebec Power and Power Corporation recording more than appreciable advances. Montreal Power sold up to a new record high for all time and Quebec showed the largest gain.

There are many on the street who seem to believe that Montreal Power is selling too high. At least this is the opinion expressed by the majority of traders and the so-called speculators for quick turn. "As far as this last group is concerned, they have a reputation of being always wrong." The investor and even the speculator who buys stocks for a longer hold, is still of the opinion that it is the cheapest stock on the board.

Yesterday the stock sold at its best price in its history. Purely on its dividend paying basis of $2.40 per annum, the stock off-hand may appear too high, but investors have learned from past experiences that "power" is apparently never high enough. The stock for the last decade has been selling more on its management and future than on actual earnings. Its growth in earnings has been constant because its business usually increases in bad as well as in good years.

At its present price, Montreal Power nets the investor only two cents much less than Government bonds and much less than even bank interest. This comparison was called to the attention of a large shareholder and he replied he had been told this a half dozen years ago when Power was selling in the eighties. The stock has since been split, and the stock is now more than 1000 a share.

To make money, this shareholder maintained that one must have a lot of patience. On the average, the long pull man accumulates profits faster than the man who tries to catch market turns.

Heavy profit-taking in Shawinigan was noticed from the action of the tape. Such selling, however, is of no special importance and the buying still looks better than the selling. Many are wondering just why the stock is going up and where all the buying comes from. For one thing it is known that the floating supply of the stock has greatly diminished as a result of the consistent buying from large American and English "investment trusts", thus helping the stock to move on any large buying.

As far as Power Corporation is concerned it is known that this company has a stock interest in Montreal Power. Shawinigan and Quebec Power. The writer understands that only two weeks ago, Power Corporation bought in the open market, a large block of a low price utility stock, which stock has already advanced more than eight points, indicating a paper profit of around twenty per cent. The amount of money invested is understood to be in the neighborhood of half a million dollars.

Although current rumors about the company's mix-up with the Beauharnois Company, certainly have something to do with the present move, those who know about the company's operations and how earnings are running, are of the opinion that the large increase in both gross and net revenues this year warrant a decidedly optimistic feeling about the outlook for the stock. The statement for the year ended December 31st last showed net equivalent to $2.17 per share, the number of shares outstanding has since been increased by 17.32 per cent through the ten per cent stock dividend and the offering of new shares in the ratio of one in fifteen. The writer is given to understand by one who knows, that if current earnings are maintained, and in all probability, they will be, more than maintained, the final showing will result in per share earnings substantially higher than last year, taking into consideration the increase in the number of shares outstanding.

OLD "JIGGLE" IN MONEY

RATES STARTED AGAIN

NEW YORK, July 25.—The New York Advisory Service today says: The old "jiggle" in money rates has started again, and was used as an excuse, in the absence of any special reason for the reactionary tone in the market, that the late dealings today. The market, however, has been fit to ignore these occasional flurries on previous occasions, and after it gets some of its present irregularity out of its system, it should ignore the money factor again. No particular change is noted in the policies of the dominant interests and there are still a number of important constructive campaigns to be consummated, which are not likely to be interfered with by anything more than occasional normal market checks, a constructive trading position, therefore, is still in order. Union Bag & Paper acts as though it has only begun to reflect the important sale of its power plant holdings to the Mohawk Hudson Corporation announced yesterday. Sales will net them equal to thirty-two dollars per share. Company still holds valuable power rights, its bag and paper mills, and its new west coast pulp mill, which is the lowest cost pulp producer in the country.

American Bosch action indicates resumption of dividends and should provide additional trade turn.

Murray Corporation recently subjected to unwise speculative selling, again second quarter earnings promise to establish new high. Would pick up some of it while in the 90s.

General Public Service shows independent strength and is headed for new high on this move. It is in a favorable buying range.

PRICES STRONG THIS MORNING AT MONTREAL

Several Substantial Gains Were Registered During Early Trading Today—Brazilian and Shawinigan Received Most of Attention.

(Canadian Press Despatch)

MONTREAL, July 25.—Stock prices were generally strong at the opening of the Montreal Stock Exchange this morning, and after the first half hour's trading, which was fairly active, several substantial gains had been registered. Brazilian and Shawinigan received most of the attention, the former advancing to 62, up 1 1/2, and the latter rising to 95 1/2, a gain of 1 1/2 points. Quebec Power rose two points to 92, Power Corporation was up one at 118 1/2, while fractional gains were registered by Canadian Power and Paper, Montreal Power and Dominion Textile.

Nickel lost a quarter at 48 and Alcohol dropped to 22 1/2.

MIXED PRICE MOVEMENT EVIDENT AT NEW YORK

(Associated Press Despatch)

NEW YORK, July 25.—Mixed price movements took place at the opening of today's stock market. Initial gains of 1 1/2 to nearly two points were recorded by Allis-Chalmers, Marmon Motors and Southern California Edison. United States Steel common opened fractionally higher. Montgomery Ward fell back a point and American Smelting, Pullman and North American Company showed fractional recessions.

due to scarcity of floating supply, and it is hard to provide some puzzling fluctuations, but we feel that this stock is definitely headed for a much higher objective and would consequently take advantage of the trading dip from today's step to buy it.

Goodrich—Our buying recommendations were repeated while the stock is available in the 70s. Marmon Motors—Despite reactionary tone, we look for a sizable independent move and would add to holdings at these levels.

TRADING FORECASTS

Early irregularity is expected to be followed by rallying tendencies, particularly in the rails, selected utilities and steels.

OPINION OF BROKERS

J. S. Baché—It is evident that if the average industrial price continues to have the same difficulty in crossing its peak of earlier in the month as it has had on four previous rallies in the past two weeks, the next minor movement will be toward moderately lower levels thus affording a more attractive buying range.

Hornblower & Weeks—Even though the present movement turns out to be nothing more than a rally in company with the general market, a fairly substantial movement and fairly substantial commitments in the favorable issues should prove profitable.

ANOTHER IRREGULAR SESSION TODAY

NEW YORK, July 25.—The New York Mirror today says: Further correction is taking place in the market, as expected, due to the fact that the market is expected to be made public after the close today and that the tightness in money also will not have disappeared. Another irregular session will be seen today. Numerous stocks should be bought during this period of irregularity. While it is true the market is becoming more selective, yet there are so many issues headed for higher ground that the advance could well continue after this technical correction to well into the fall. It is still advisable to maintain a trading position in the market.

With the change of the name of Postum to General Foods a sharp advance in the stock would not be at all surprising in view of the new name. The new name will be used today for the first time and the new symbol on the tape will be "GF". It is worth a speculative trade for this reason alone.

Another change in Chrysler Motors is expected this fall. An eight is likely to take the place of the big imperial six.

The new Shenandoah Corporation stock formation of which was told exclusively in this letter July 23rd, is quoted at twice the price at which it is expected to be offered tomorrow.

The standard rails, several of the public utilities and those specialties which are able to maintain their top prices are still capable of making higher prices.

MARKET SUMMARY

Air Reduction earned $3.61 a share in first half 1929.

A Scottish clergyman had a parishioner who was a rabid politician with distinct democratic leanings. One day when the parson called, he was told of a new litter of kittens.

"And do you think they'll be interested in politics?"
"Deed yes, sir. They're Conservatives."

The parson was surprised, and even more so on his next visit, for he was informed they were Liberals.

"Why this change, John?"

The MYSTERY of the BLUE TRAIN

by AGATHA CHRISTIE

Poirot Further Explains How Murder Mystery was Solved.

CHAPTER XXV.

"Explanations?" Poirot smiled. He was sitting opposite the millionaire at a luncheon table in the latter's private suite at the Negresco. Facing him was a relieved but very puzzled man. Poirot leaned back in his chair, lit one of his tiny cigarettes and stared reflectively at the ceiling.

"Yes, I will give you explanations. It began with the one point that puzzled me. You know what that point was? The disfigured face. It is not an uncommon thing to find when investigating a crime and it rouses an immediate question, the question of identity. That naturally was the first thing that occurred to me. Was the dead woman really Mrs. Kettering? But that line led me nowhere. For Miss Grey's evidence was positive and very reliable, so I put that idea aside. The dead woman was Ruth Kettering."

"When did you first begin to suspect the maid?"

"Not for some time, but one peculiar little point drew my attention to her. The cigarette-case found in the railway carriage and which she told us was one which Mrs. Kettering had given to her husband. Now that was on the face of it, most improbable, seeing the terms that they were on. It awakened a doubt in my mind as to the general veracity of Ada Mason's statements. There was the rather suspicious fact to be taken into consideration, that she had only been with her mistress for two months. Certainly it did not seem as if she could have had anything to do with the crime since she had been left behind in Paris and Mrs. Kettering had been seen alive by several people afterwards, but—"

Poirot leaned forward. He raised an emphatic forefinger and wagged it with intense emphasis at Van Aldin.

"But I am a good detective. I suspect. There is nobody and nothing that I do not suspect. I believe nothing that I am told. I say to myself: how do we know that Ada Mason was left behind in Paris? And at first the answer seemed completely satisfactory. There was the evidence of your secretary, Major Knighton, a complete outsider whose testimony might be supposed to be entirely impartial, and there was the dead woman's own words to the conductor on the train. But I put the latter point aside for the moment, because a very curious idea—an idea perhaps fantastic and impossible—was growing up in my mind. If by any outside chance it happened to be true, that particular piece of testimony was worthless. I concentrated on the chief stumbling-block to my theory, Major Knighton's statement that he saw Ada Mason at the Ritz after the Blue Train had left Paris. That seemed conclusive enough, but yet, on examining the facts carefully, I noted two things. First, that by a curious coincidence he, too, had been exactly two months in your service. Secondly, his initial letter was the same—'K'. Supposing—just supposing—that it was his cigarette case which had been found in the carriage. Then, if Ada Mason and he were working together, and she recognized it when we showed it to her, would she not act precisely as she had done? At first, taken aback, she quickly evolved a plausible theory that would agree with Mr. Kettering's guilt. Bien entendu, that was not the original idea. The Comte de la Roche was to be scapegoat, though Ada Mason would not make her recognition of him too certain, in case he should be able to prove an alibi. Now, if you will cast your mind back to that time, you will remember a significant thing that happened. I suggested to Ada Mason that the man she had seen was not the Comte de la Roche, but Derek Kettering. She seemed uncertain at the time, but after I had got back to my hotel you rang up and told me that she had come to you and said that, on thinking it over, she was now quite convinced that the man in question was Mr. Kettering. I had been expecting something of the kind. There could be but one explanation of this sudden certainty on her part. After my leaving your hotel, she had had time to consult with somebody, and had received instructions which she acted upon. Who had given her these instructions? Major Knighton. And there was another very small point, which might mean nothing or might mean a great deal. In casual conversation Knighton had talked of a jewel robbery in Yorkshire in a house where he was staying. Perhaps a mere coincidence—perhaps another small link in the chain."

"But there is one thing I do not understand, Monsieur Poirot. I guess I must be dense or I would have seen it before now. Who was the man in the train at Paris? Derek Kettering or the Comte de la Roche?"

"That is the simplicity of the whole thing. There was no man. Ah—millionnaires!—do you not see the cleverness of it all? Whose word have we for it that there ever was a man there? Only Ada Mason's. And we believe in Ada Mason because of Knighton's evidence that she was left behind in Paris."

"But Ruth herself told the conductor that she had left her maid behind there," demurred Van Aldin.

"Ah! I am coming to that. We have Mrs. Kettering's own evidence there, but, on the other hand, we have not really got her evidence, because, Monsieur Van Aldin, a dead woman cannot give evidence. It is not her evidence, but the evidence of the conductor of the train—a very different affair altogether."

"So you think the man was lying?"

"No, no, not at all. He spoke what he thought to be the truth. But the woman who told him that she had left her maid in Paris was not Mrs. Kettering."

Van Aldin stared at him.

"Monsieur Van Aldin, Ruth Kettering was dead before the train arrived at the Gare de Lyon. It was Ada Mason, dressed in her mistress's very distinctive clothing, who purchased a dinner basket and who made that very necessary statement to the conductor."

"Impossible!"

"No, no, Monsieur Van Aldin; not impossible. Les femmes, they look so much alike nowadays that one identifies them more by their clothing than by their faces. Ada Mason was the same height as your daughter. Dressed in that very sumptuous fur coat and the little red lacquer hat jammed down over her eyes, with just a bunch of auburn curls showing over each ear, it was no wonder that the conductor was deceived. He had not previously spoken to Mrs. Kettering, you remember. True, he had seen the maid just for a moment when she handed him the tickets, but his impression had been merely that of a gaunt, black-clad female. If he had been an unusually intelligent man, he might have gone so far as to say that mistress and maid were not unlike, but it is extremely unlikely that he would even think of that. And remember, Ada Mason, or Kitty Kidd, was an actress, able to change her appearance and tone of voice at a moment's notice. No, no; there was no danger of his recognizing the maid in the mistress's clothing, but there was the danger that when he came to discover the body he might realize it was not the woman he had talked to the night before. And now we see the reason for the disfigured face. The chief danger that Ada Mason ran was that Katherine Grey might visit her compartment after the train left Paris, and she provided against that difficulty by ordering a dinner basket and by locking herself in her compartment."

"But who killed Ruth—and when?"

"First, bear it in mind that the crime was planned and undertaken by the two of them—Knighton and Ada Mason, working together. Knighton was in Paris that day on your business. He boarded the train somewhere on its way round the seigneurie. Mrs. Kettering would be surprised, but she would be quite unassuming. Perhaps he draws her attention to something out of the window, and as she turns to look he slips the cord round her neck—and the whole thing is over in a second or two. The door of the compartment is locked, and he and Ada Mason set to work. They strip off the dead woman's outer clothes. Mason and Knighton roll the body up in a rug and put it on the seat in the adjoining compartment among the bags and suitcases. Knighton drops off the train, taking the jewel-case containing the rubies with him. Since the crime is not supposed to have been committed until nearly twelve hours later he is perfectly safe, and his evidence and the supposed Mrs. Kettering's words to the conductor will provide a perfect alibi for his accomplice."

"At the Gare de Lyon Ada Mason gets a dinner basket, and shutting herself into the toilet compartment she quickly changes into her mistress's clothes, adjusts two false bunches of auburn curls, and generally makes up to resemble her as closely as possible. When the conductor comes to make up the bed, she tells him the prepared story about having left her maid behind in Paris; and while he is making up the berth, she stands looking out of the window, so that her back is towards the corridor and people passing along there. That was a wise precaution, because, as we know, Miss Grey was one of those taking a bath and she was willing to swear that Mrs. Kettering was still alive at that hour."

"Go on," said Van Aldin.

"Before getting to Lyons, Ada Mason arranged her mistress's body in the bunk, folded up the dead woman's clothes neatly on the end of it, and herself changed into a man's clothes and prepared to leave the train. When Derek Kettering entered his wife's compartment, and, as he thought saw her asleep in her berth, the scene had been set, and Ada Mason was hidden in the next compartment waiting for the moment to leave the train unobserved. As soon as the conductor had swung himself down on to the platform at Lyons, she followed, slouching along as though just taking a breath of air. At a moment when she is unobserved, she hurriedly crosses to the other platform, and takes the first train back to Paris and the Ritz Hotel. Her name has been registered there as taking a room the night before by one of Knighton's female accomplices. She has nothing to do but wait there placidly for your arrival. The jewels are not, and never have been, in her possession. No suspicion attaches to him, and as your secretary, he brings them to Nice without the least fear of discovery. Their delivery there to Monsieur Papopolous is already arranged for and they are entrusted to Mason at the last moment to hand over to the Greek. Altogether a very neatly planned coup, as one would expect from a master of the game such as the Marquis."

"And you honestly mean that Richard Knighton is a well-known criminal, who has been at this business for years?"

Poirot nodded.

"One of the chief assets of the gentleman called the Marquis was his plausible, ingratiating manner. You fell a victim to his charm, Monsieur Van Aldin, when you engaged him as secretary, on such a slight acquaintance."

"I could have sworn that he never angled for the post," cried the millionaire.

"It was very astutely done—so astutely done that it deceived a man whose knowledge of other men is as great as yours is."
