

Covered bridges disappear as cars widen, roads straighten

By CUTHBERT JONES

The destruction of the Earlston Bridge by fire over the weekend has removed another of those picturesque structures which were once common in the Eastern Townships. Half-a-century ago each municipality boasted at least one such bridge and in many cases even more.

In fact, as late as 1935, the Town of Lennoxville had four such structures within its limits, the so-called "Long Bridge" linking Bishop's College School with Bishop's University, one on College Street connecting the town with the University, one on the road to Huntingville and another on the main road to Rock Island.

But the coming of the automobile heralded the disappearance of many of these communications links. Increased traffic forced the use of wider bridges and the substructures of most of these bridges were insufficient to bear the weight of loaded trucks.

And while picturesque, the bridges were often dangerous in other ways.

Very often the approaches were bad and the wooden sides interfered with motorists sighting on-coming vehicles, with the result that serious accidents were frequent.

The real move toward the disappearance of covered bridges, especially on the main highways, got underway in 1935 following the decision of the provincial government to assume highway maintenance costs.

Before that time, highway improvement was limited generally to the repairing and perhaps surfacing of existing traffic arteries, with the rural municipalities still being held responsible for the costs. Government aid was limited.

But with the assumption of highway costs by the province, the program of straightening the roads, reducing curves and easing the grades got into full stride. This often meant that bridges must be replaced to serve the straighter roads. And the approaches were changed.

Thus in a comparatively short period of time, three of the Lennoxville covered bridges were removed and the fourth a few years later.

And there was the same story all over the province.

To old-timers, one of the favorite butts for jokes was the sign over most of these bridges warning: "Walk or pay two dollars."

Obviously designed in the earlier days to warn drivers of teams and wagons that the bridge was not a harness track, jokers turned it to their own use and more humorous (?) car drivers would invite their passengers to get out and walk across to avoid the payment of the fine.

After first day Jarring optimistic over Mideast talks

By MILTON BESSER

UNITED NATIONS (AP)—In an air of guarded optimism, delegates from Israel, Egypt and Jordan began separate discussions with UN envoy Gunnar V. Jarring Tuesday and aimed at bringing peace to the Middle East.

A 22-year emphysema marred by three wars made the task a formidable one, but as the three delegates opened their talks under the United States ceasefire plan, they expressed hope that peace is possible.

Israeli Ambassador Yosef Tekoah was the first to go to Jarring's office on the 38th floor of the UN building overlooking New York City's East River. He met with Jarring for 45 minutes and was followed by Jordanian Ambassador Abdel Hamid Sharaf, who remained 25 minutes. Then Egyptian Ambassador Mohammed Hassen el-Zayyat and Jarring talked for 35 minutes.

The talks were the second stage of the U.S.-sponsored peace move that achieved acceptance of a 90-day ceasefire Aug. 7 between Israel, Jordan and Egypt. The military standstill will end Nov. 5 unless extended.

The three delegates talked freely with reporters after their preliminary talks with Jarring.

"WE CONTINUE"

Jarring would only say: "We have begun. So we continue."

The basis for the negotiations is the resolution adopted unanimously by the UN Security Council Nov. 22, 1967. It created the post of special representative, held by Jarring, a Swedish diplomat, and calls for the withdrawal of Israeli forces from Arab territory won in the June, 1967, six-day war and recognition of the right of Israel to exist within legally-established boundaries.

Teikoah told reporters: "If the Arab governments prove desirous of attaining genuine peace with Israel, we are confident that this will be possible."

But he said prospects would be better "were it not for news about continuous violations of the ceasefire by Egypt."

In Jerusalem, Israeli Foreign Minister Abba Eban said Teikoah had been instructed to tell Jarring that violations could hinder the peace talks.

Teikoah paid a second 35-minute call on Jarring in the afternoon before preparing to return to Jerusalem for consultations.

ISRAEL VIOLATED FIRST
El-Zayyat told reporters the first violations of the ceasefire were by Israel, but that Egypt did not publicize them.

"I really think if you are going to sail one way you should not row in the other way," he said.

He added: "People who can make war in six days certainly can reach a solution in 90."

Sharaf said that Jordan demands total withdrawal of Israel from all occupied Arab territory and a solution to the Palestine refugee problem. The meeting with Jarring was "fruitful," he said, and Jordan would present later its concrete position.

Peace was not the mood of other Arab countries and the Palestinian guerrillas who opposed the ceasefire and negotiations.

BACKS GUERRILLAS

Algerian President Houari Boumediene said his country would back "unreservedly" the guerillas even at the cost of "disagreements with a number of Arab countries."

Boumediene made his remarks to Algerian troops who were withdrawn from the Egyptian front along the Suez canal to protest the ceasefire.

Al Fatah, the largest of the Palestinian guerrilla organizations, has received radio equipment from Communist China following Egypt's decision to halt Fatah broadcasts, an official source said.

QUEBEC IN FOCUS

Robbery suspects arraigned

ROBERVAL, Que. (CP)—Six Montrealers, including two women, were arraigned in provincial court Tuesday on charges arising from the $25,898 robbery of a credit union last Friday, near this community 145 miles northwest of Quebec City.

Alexander James MacDonald and Ronald Walker were charged with armed robbery and bail was refused pending preliminary hearing Sept. 9.

Roger-Léo Cote, his wife and Mrs. Walker were charged with possession of $13,624 of the stolen money and chose trial before judge and jury. Bail was set at $1,500.

Roger Doyon was accused of receiving a stolen car and was released without bail pending preliminary hearing, also set for Sept. 9.

Early Friday, two armed and masked men held up the credit union and fled in a stolen car.

Three suspects were arrested a short time later in a heavily wooded area near Chambord, 10 miles away.

Cote, his wife and Mrs. Walker were arrested in a motel near Alma, about 30 miles away.

GPs agree over medicare

MONTREAL (CP)—Two candidates have placed themselves in the running for the presidency of the Quebec Teachers' Corporation and one of them says he will try to get a slate of five candidates elected to the executive of the influential labor organization.

Yvon Charbonneau, a candidate for the presidency of the 60,000-member organization, said Tuesday he has aligned himself with at least five candidates seeking six posts on the QTC's executive.

Viateur Dupont, Mr. Charbonneau's opponent, said he has no intention of forming a similar slate. Nominations for posts in Quebec's largest teachers' organization will be held today and the election is set for Friday.

Raymond Laliberte, president of the QTC since 1965, announced earlier this year he would step down to take political science courses at Laval University in Quebec City.

Candidate forms slate

MONTREAL (CP)—Dr. Gerard Hamel, president of the Quebec Federation of General Practitioners said Tuesday his association has made a breakthrough in negotiations with the Quebec government over implementation of the province's health insurance plan.

"Agreement has been reached between government negotiators and those of our association which will provide certain fundamental guarantees to protect the freedom of practice of the medical profession," he told a news conference.

He said the government had agreed to negotiate all details of the medical care program that bear directly or indirectly on the medical profession.

General practitioners had voiced suspicion that the program would make them all civil servants or "dehumanize" the practice of medicine.

The federation now believes the greatest stumbling block in the path of implementation of the program has been removed.

"However we can't speak for the medical specialist," Dr. Hamel said. "Their dealings with the government are entirely separate from ours."

The specialists are still bogged down in negotiations, he said. Fee schedules and other details of the program remain to be worked out.

The health insurance legislation was adopted by the Quebec national assembly last month, but the plan itself cannot come into effect until the doctors and the government agree on the terms of the doctors' participation in the plan.

Re-restricts gas imports

OTTAWA (CP)—The national energy board Tuesday issued a statement re-introducing a gasoline import policy ruled invalid by an Exchequer Court decision earlier this month.

Under the policy, importation of motor gasoline and motor gasoline blending components will be permitted in Quebec and the Atlantic provinces and denied in the four western provinces.

Foreign gasoline will be permitted to enter Ontario on a limited basis with the board to decide in each case whether importation is "consistent with the development and utilization of Canadian indigenous oil resources."

A policy with similar effects introduced last May 7 was jeopardized when Mr. Justice W. R. Jaccett, president of the Exchequer Court, ruled in favor of a request by Caloil Inc. of Montreal that it be allowed to import gasoline without marketing restrictions.

The energy board had earlier refused to permit Caloil to import 160,000 gallons of foreign gasoline apparently intended for Ontario, a market which the board seeks to largely preserve for domestic gasoline.

RULES AMENDED
Subsequently, government licensing regulations were amended to get around the court decision, which ruled the board policy unconstitutional. The result of the regulations change was Tuesday's policy statement.

Both the May 7 policy and Tuesday's re-incarnation are based on the 1961 national oil policy designed to encourage Western Canada oil production by reserving all markets west of the Ottawa valley for domestic oil. The rest of Canada east of the valley is supplied by lower-cost imports.

The latest policy statement provinces are supplied with gasoline derived entirely from Canadian-produced oil. Importation, it said, would not be consistent with the development of Canadian oil resources.

"Accordingly and, of course, without refusing to consider any application for a licence, the board does not propose to issue a licence for such importation unless there is something exceptional in an individual case."

The board said most of Ontario's demand for gasoline is met through the refining in the province of Western Canadian oil. This is supplemented by Quebec gasoline refined from foreign crude and some direct foreign imports.

Council meets the public Roll readily accepted

By GERRY FLAHERTY

SHERBROOKE — More than 45 English-speaking and 100 French-speaking residents attended separate meetings at Marymount School last night, continuing public question-and-answer sessions to explain the new municipal valuation roll.

Deposited Aug. 14, the first scientific valuation in Sherbrooke history set taxable value at $328,301,000, and non-taxable at $109,496,390. The roll will be used to determine taxation rates for the fiscal year 1971.

Jean-Louis Perras and Jean-Guy Martel of the Municipal Valuation Service addressed the English gathering, with North Ward Ald. Everett Nicol in attendance to answer questions from constituents.

At the French meeting, Mayor Marc Bureau, North Ward Ald. Luc Lamoureux and city lawyer Jacques Besre shared the head table.

English residents listened intently to the detailed explanations, and seemed pleased with the procedures available to them if they question the new valuations. A number approached Mr. Martin and Mr. Perras after the meeting was adjourned, asking specific questions and thanking them for their efforts.

One gentleman complained that the person who had evaluated the outside of his home did not identify himself properly, while another suggested Mr. Godon, who is handling complaints, will be so busy you won't be able to get near him. Jules Godon's office is located on the third floor of the Sherbrooke Trust building.

But considering the questions and the interest shown by the North Ward residents, a comment made by one person seemed to indicate the general mood. "I think your system sounds very good," he said.

Insurance for heads

No policy best policy

MONTREAL (CP)—Canadian insurance companies who say marijuana causes dangerous altering of perception will refuse to issue life policies to users of the drug and other hallucinogenics starting this fall.

A spokesman for Sun Life Insurance Co. of Canada said Tuesday: "The theory is that someone using marijuana is more prone to fatal accidents because it varies perceptions severely."

In a new set of questionnaires to be issued in the fall, the company will ask applicants for life policies whether they are habitual users of marijuana or other drugs.

Previous questionnaires dealt with cocaine, heroin and alcohol as well as other habit-forming drugs.

Correction

In yesterday's photo feature on the burning of the covered bridge, the location of the bridge was incorrectly identified. It was the bridge at Earlston which burned, and not the one at Capelton, as stated.

To control uranium resources

Policy board awaits specific guidelines

OTTAWA (CP)—Federal officials commissioned to administer foreign-ownership policy for Canada's uranium resources are waiting to find out just what the rules will be.

"We are in a box where we can't say just how the policy would be applied in a particular case," one official said Tuesday.

Detailed regulations are awaited to back up a series of statements by Energy Minister J. J. Greene during the last six months.

Pressure for clarification of foreign-ownership rules has taken on a sense of urgency as U.S.-owned Gulf Minerals Co. of Toronto is developing plans for exploitation of uranium at Wollaston Lake in northern Saskatchewan.

Gulf's plans, reported to include sharing ownership with a West German company that would market the uranium, would require approval by the Atomic Energy Control Board. But the board is awaiting guidance in the form of regulations.

"Broad principles have been enunciated, but we have no details yet," a board spokesman said.

The original policy statement last March 2 by Prime Minister Trudeau was designed to block the sale of a controlling interest in Canadian-owned Denison Mines Ltd. of Toronto to U.S.-controlled Hudson's Bay Oil and Gas Co.

The basic rule was that no more than one-third of a uranium mine should be foreign-owned and no more than 10 per cent should be held by any single foreigner or foreign group.

Established foreign-owned producers were exempted, but if such producers chose to reduce their interests they would have to sell up to two-thirds to Canadians.

On May 5, Mr. Greene announced that the exemption rule would be extended to foreign-owned exploring companies. Such a company could retain control of its properties if it could show the control board it had been genuinely exploring for uranium. The company would have until March 2, 1976, to show the board that its uranium property was commercially viable.

If the company decided to sell any of its interest, sale would have to be to Canadian residents until foreign ownership was reduced to one-third.

In the absence of formal regulations backing up the policy line, the control board has issued no ruling on whether Gulf Minerals qualifies as a uranium-exploration company under the May 5 policy. But officials say there is little doubt that it does.

However, Gulf's reported plans to sell a 49-per-cent ownership in its $50 million Saskatchewan project to Uranerzbergbau GMBH of West Germany has some Ottawa officials puzzled.

101 young musicians from 20 lands

JEUNESSES MUSICALES WORLD ORCHESTRA — The young musicians gather once a year to perform together. This year the group assembled at the Orford Arts Center under the direction of Erich Leinsdorf.

The Jeunesses Musicales World Orchestra conducted by Erich Leinsdorf will perform on CBC Radio in a concert recorded at Salle Wilfrid-Pelletier, Place des Arts, Montreal.

This orchestra consists of 101 musicians, between the ages of 16 and 23, from 20 countries. The idea of a world youth orchestra was conceived some time ago by the International Federation of Jeunesses Musicales. But it is only since the backing by the Canadian Government last year, that the commission members were able to hire Erich Leinsdorf, one of the world's great conductors, and organize the first rehearsals at the Orford Arts Centre in August 1970. Auditions were held in America and in Europe by Mr. Leinsdorf.

The program of The Jeunesses Musicales World Orchestra on the CBC radio networks will consist of Firebird Suite, (1910 version), Igor Stravinsky; Concerto for Orchestra, Bela Bartok and Prelude a l'apres-midi d'un faune, Claude Debussy.

Hair bridges the language barrier

The American Tribal Love Rock Musical "HAIR" will open at the Comedie Canadienne theatre on September 22nd, with previews starting on September 15. The Montreal production which will feature performances in French and English, is being produced by Michael Butler, world wide producer of "HAIR", with John F. Bassett who produced the Toronto production, in association with Michael Gelinas and Sam Gesser.

As in the Toronto production, the cast will be an all Canadian one selected from applicants in the Montreal area. There will be eight performances given each week with evening performances Tuesday through Friday at 8:30 p.m. There will be two performances on Saturday at 6:00 and 10:00 p.m. and one on Sunday evening at 7:30 p.m. and a matinee on Wednesday at 2:30 p.m. There will be no performance on Monday. The matinee and evening performances on Wednesday and the 10:00 p.m. performance on Saturday will be performed in English, all other performances will be in French. All performances during previews and the first week of regular performances will be in French and the first English performance will be on Wednesday, September 30.

"Canada has been most receptive to "HAIR", said Michael Butler. "It is a country I have come to respect and enjoy. All of us look ahead to bringing the message of HAIR to Montreal."

The Toronto production of HAIR is now in its 7th month and has broken every Canadian theatrical record. Gross revenue at the box office is now in excess of $2,000,000 and the show celebrated its 224th performance today. Other North American "HAIR" productions are now playing to capacity audiences in Los Angeles, San Francisco, Seattle, Las Vegas, Chicago, Detroit, Boston, and New York and a new production will open in Miami later this month.

WHY HAIR?

This is an excerpt from the book and lyrics by Jerome Ragni and James Rado:

We both took off together jiving our space out once more. I shall hang in silver to blow and zap the minds of the straights. We know where the dead bodies are. The war was over several hours ago, and the future is speeding on... aluminium people. There's Myriads of galaxies inhabited by intelligent beings. The war is gone... now we're on the other side of the planet... visions from another lifetime... the search for extraterrestrial life... many tiny jewelled violet flowers... giant green waves dancing... the paper coloured sun... the world at fun... sealed in darkness waiting to be born... a new kind of light has rayed through... a new openness. So sing the children on the avenue. Stop making deals, spreading rumours. Stop making bombs, stop killing. Live baby live. We are acrobats of God; run naked in the streets, sandbags full of poems. The poet writes words in dust that change skylines. Mind blown words of nuclear bombs; electric wine. There is chewing gum stuck on the bottom of America. The poet pleases on the grass.

We had the life of the spirit crushed out of us by an unnatural and inhuman way of life. I'm going to get it back. We met last night in a circle of chairs. List in a land where the language is love. Jesus split the Bible and went back to the sky. Texas is printed on the label of my shirt. Electronic trajectory, lift off! HAIR is holy, its curls belong to God.

Time for fun in the country

A hot summer morning in the countryside, a 100-acre farm, a barn with a new roof, three horses, about a dozen lively young people, a truck that's been converted into a radio studio, musicians, amplifiers, instruments, hay everywhere and a sound that's big and fresh. The neighbours couldn't figure out what it was all about, but the kids at the taping didn't care.

They positioned themselves in the loft, sat on the hay and practised as the technician set up the amplifiers and recording system.

"Have you got a chart for that one?" pianist Bill Martin asks guitarist Clive Vanderburgh. "It's in D."

The drummer moves his chair and starts again. The hay in the barn looks incongruous with the shiny instruments and yards of electrical wire.

As the sun gets hotter, the technician, Ashley, peels off his shirt to shouts of, "Ooh, Oh, Ashley, disgusting?"

Eithne hands out cold drinks and explains that three of the group are heard on most shows: guitarist Clive Vanderburgh, pianist Bill Martin and flutist Maribeth Solomon. But there's a nucleus of about 13 people from which Eithne draws talent for each show, including singers Julie Amato and Carol Lipson, Paul Zaza (who plays bass in the Toronto production of Hair), Brian Russell, bass guitarist and singer, and Jan Kadelka (also in Hair).

It's the kind of show that's done by teens with their interests in mind. Usually, the show is done in a radio studio, but once in a while, the show goes out of the studio — and into the sunshine!

In postal dispute

Talks get down "to the meat"

By KEVIN DOYLE
 OTTAWA (CP) — Postal mediation talks today are at a stage where mediator Thomas O'Connor expects there will be some indication of whether they will succeed or fail. Mr. O'Connor, a Toronto labor relations specialist, said Tuesday the talks had reached "the meat of the issue."

In interviews on the weekend he said there should be some sign by today of whether the 27,000 Council of Postal Unions and the federal treasury board can reach a contract agreement ending the 11-month dispute.

Rotating strikes by the postal workers since May, and the government response of closing down offices, has cost the post office alone about $30 million in lost revenue, government sources say.

This figure represents only a part of the total cost of the strikes and the government's action. This figure represents only a part of the total cost of the strikes and the government's action.

The cost to businesses and individuals of disrupted postal service in addition to wages lost by striking workers would push the figure far above $30 million.

Tuesday, the main post office and 41 staff offices in Toronto were closed by the strike, with 5,838 workers idle.

Strikes also closed offices in Maniwaki, Que., Cobourg, Ont., and Regina. The post office suspended work for the day at 10 other post offices.

Service was suspended at Amos, Malartic, Val d'Or, Trois Rivieres, Cap de la Madeleine, Shawinigan, La Tuque and Grand'Mere in Quebec and at Napanee and Arnprior, Ont.

A total of 6,179 workers were on strike and another 238 suspended.

The unions announced Monday they will suspend strikes from Thursday to Monday to allow delivery of old-age pension cheques which go into the mail at the end of the week.

Last week, more than a million family allowance cheques piled up undelivered in Ontario and Quebec because of the strikes.

Mr. O'Connor has said his personal deadline for settling the dispute or breaking off the talks is Sunday. Prime Minister Trudeau said last Friday a week to 10 days would be allowed to reach a settlement.

Mr. O'Connor first met both sides last Thursday after his appointment was announced last Wednesday. The talks were interrupted Friday while the mediator returned to Toronto but have continued every day since.

The postal workers, who now earn an average hourly wage of $3.06, are asking for a 58-cent an hour increase over two years—a 9.5-per-cent boost in each year.

The government has offered 47 cents an hour over three years, representing a 5.9-per-cent annual increase.

Bagg meet the Moulin

By GERRY FLAHERTY

SHERBROOKE — With "we play our own songs, or someone else's done our way" as their motto, four young men from Timmins, Ont., The Bagg, have been screeching and stomping at the Moulin Rouge here for 10 days. The engagement continues until Aug. 30, when the group moves on for a two-week stand in Granby.

They've been playing together for four years, manager Joseph Vargo explained, and they're going places now. "The group's name will be changed to The Band Called North in time for the first recording session set for Thunder Bay, Ont., Oct. 1," he said.

Vargo is also the manager of the Souls of Inspiration, a rock group which has played the Sherbrooke area frequently. The Souls fly out of Montreal tomorrow as they journey east to play at the four Canadian pavilions at Expo 70 in Osaka, Japan.

Bagg members include two brothers, Roman Pysznyj on lead guitar and Steve on the organ. Andy Anderson plays bass, and Doug Baker beats the skins.

"We've been through a lot together,"

Roman mused, "and we believe we now have our own kind of rock sound." It has been difficult progressing musically, however, for night club audiences prefer the group to perform a song which is popular on the charts at the time.

"One-nighters are the greatest, for persons come to concert-type performances to hear The Bagg's music, not any impersonations of other groups," Roman said. Their idols? "Chicago and Vanilla Fudge."

Manager Vargo, 26, now lives in Sherbrooke with his wife, the former Patricia MacPherson, and two children. He's a busy person these days, since recording companies are eagerly seeking Canadian talent.

"Six or seven years ago, you couldn't give away a Canadian rock group, but now we're flooded with offers," he said.

Canadian groups which have led the way in this trend, according to Vargo, include The Guess Who and Sugar 'n Spice of Winnipeg. The Band and Motherlode of Toronto, Illustration of Sherbrooke, 49th Parallel of Calgary, The Poppy Family of Vancouver, and Montreal's Mashmakhan.

US seeks near-total mercury elimination

WASHINGTON (AP) — The interior department, which investigated lawsuits seeking immediate and total elimination of mercury discharges, now says small discharges may be permitted if they prove harmless.

Officials said Tuesday all of the companies being sued have drastically reduced their mercury wastes.

But they still don't know if there is such a thing as "harmless" discharge of the poison; it may still become necessary, they say, to ban mercury dumping entirely.

The lawsuits filed against 10 industrial firms late last month seek injunctions to halt forthwith the discharge of any mercury or mercury compounds in any form.

Actually, an interior department source said Tuesday, the department is seeking two things: Rapid reduction of mercury discharge to the lowest practical level of no more than eight ounces a day; and the cleanup of waste mercury already deposited on stream beds by the industrial discharges.

A justice department lawyer, Martin Green, conceded the government has been negotiating with the companies involved and "if anything can be worked out which is acceptable, that might provide a basis for resolving these suits."

One of the companies, Oxford Paper Co. of Rumford, Me., has already shut down its mercury-using operations, and most of the others have cut their mercury discharges to around the eight-ounce level, interior department officials said.

Still unresolved for Oxford and the others is the question of cleaning up mercury already discharged, the second request in the federal suits.

Any time a man says this nation can exist with a seven per cent unemployment rate, he is either out of his mind or displaying a callous disregard for human need.

MHW scrimps while clamor rises over deficits

By KARIN MOSER
 MONTREAL (CP) — Following in father's footsteps isn't easy, particularly when Dad is Expo 67 and the son is the Man and His World exhibition.

Expo 67 had 50,000,000 visits and worldwide praise. There were only a few murmurs of "deficit, deficit."

Now there are closed-door conferences at Montreal city hall on how to keep the three-year-old offspring alive. Its future life-style is being questioned while the provincial government is faced with providing another $5.5 million transfusion to cover part of its certain deficit.

Last year's deficit ran to $7.9 million, although many justified this by saying that more than $100 million in tourist dollars came into the area.

Is Mayor Jean Drapeau's suggestion to turn the fair into a year-round event, complete with a winter sports program, the solution to decreasing the deficit? Or should the opening and closing dates be closer than this year's June 12-Sept. 7 to cut down on expenses?

Two things about the exhibition are clear:

—Attendance is running about the same as last year's figures; at Aug. 25 last year total attendance was 5,061,152 by the end of the day compared with 4,974,923 this year before the day started.

—And price of an all-day ticket to the fair is still $2.50. CHILDREN FREE

To meet complaints by Montrealers that admission is too high, children under five are being admitted free to the site this year.

Family visas were made available at $12 for 12 tickets, with adults entering on two such tickets and children on one.

For the last two years the fair has been opening on June 12 and closing Sept. 7. Last year La Ronde, the amusement area of the exhibition, remained open for an additional four weeks. It has not been decided whether to follow this pattern this fall.

Last year's closing attendance figure stood at 6,575,317 and fair officials are optimistic that this year's figures will equal or surpass that total.

Meanwhile, Lucien Saulnier, city executive chairman, has confirmed that the city is hard at work studying the future of Man and His World with an eye to cutting costs and improving the content of pavilion exhibits.

While the former Union Nationale government allocated an annual provincial grant of $5.5 million to absorb the operating deficit, a large question mark looms as to whether Premier Robert Bourassa's Liberal government will be as generous.

BRINGS IN TAX

City hall officials say that even though there is a deficit, the eight-per-cent sales tax pulled in by the provincial government on hotel and meal expenses incurred by tourists more than makes up for any exhibition losses.

In addition, more than 2,200 persons, most of them college and university students, are employed by the fair.

One criticism came recently from Serge Tcherdynne, a Swiss consultant who claims a report was submitted to municipal officials showing the fair cannot survive unless more money is poured into the operation and a new system of administration is worked out.

But the mayor's office has denied receiving such a report.

Magog M-men may strike

SHERBROOKE — The CSN central council of Sherbrooke yesterday announced its support for 2,500 maintenance men currently involved in negotiations for more pay with the Magog Catholic School Commission.

"These men are engaged in a courageous struggle to obtain a contract providing pay scales in line with those paid by school commissions in Coaticook, Asbestos, East Angus, Windsor and Sherbrooke," the CSN said.

The release said affected employees held a secret strike vote Aug. 14, with 100 per cent of ballots cast in favor of a strike if required. The strike could not begin legally until Sept. 6.

Government payrolls

How many Canadians work for governments of one kind or another?

More, it would seem than most of us ever imagine. The number swells of course when the various Crown Corporations and other public agencies are included.

A breakdown recently compiled on the basis of latest Dominion Bureau of Statistics information indicates that nearly 1,500,000 are on the public payroll. These include 371,000 in the employ of the federal government and its various agencies and corporations; 337,000 work for the provincial administrations; 187,800 for the municipalities; 93,000 are in the armed forces; there are 236,000 teachers, 22,000 professors, 45,500 working for hydro systems, 78,600 for the Canadian National Railways, 17,000 for Air Canada, 46,000 policemen and 60,000 fire-fighters, including part-time firemen.

Interestingly enough, this total of nearly 1,500,000 Canadians in the public service is not far short of equalling the number who work in manufacturing, the nation's largest single productive employer and wealth producer.

It also means that nearly one of every five working Canadians is currently employed in the public service of the economy, providing services in some shape or form.

Heath fights inflation

It would appear that Britain has come to the same conclusions as Canada concerning inflation — high wages are the primary cause. And the reaction in both countries is almost identical.

As might be expected, British trade union leaders are responding to the government's policy of wages restraint with the same negative attitude which has been demonstrated in recent months by their Canadian counterparts.

It has become inevitable that there must be a showdown.

The British unions, like their Canadian counterparts, turn a blind eye to exorbitant wage settlements as a major cause of inflation. They are obviously preparing for strike action, something made clear by the wildcat strikes now crippling the British automotive industry.

But Britain is following the Canadian line in declaring its preparedness to endure strikes in the long-range interests of the economy.

The new British policies promise to bear down most heavily on the public service and nationalized industries. This is perhaps unfortunate, since it will tend to make members of the unions concerned feel they are being used as scapegoats. Uniform application of wage-restraint principles to all segments of labor would seem to be fairer.

Nevertheless, the Heath government means business. And it is recognizing the same fundamental fact that the Trudeau government has acknowledged.

It is that unjustified wage settlements are a luxury which no economy can afford in the long run.

When will the message eventually get through to the unionists.

DOUGLAS FISHER

An attempt to understand sport

OTTAWA — I followed the recent strike at the Ottawa Citizen through some members of the Newspaper Guild local.

The Guild honored the picket-line of the printers. Guild support was crucial and for some days the solidarity of the group wavered.

"Where are your weaknesses?" I asked several of the militant reporters. The reply was: "Well, first the jocks. They are very disturbed. They want to go back to work." A former Guild organizer explained further: "The jocks feel they've a duty to David Loeb and the Rough Riders, a sort of community responsibility which is being undermined by this silly strike."

There, the use of the phrase, jocks, was to cover the sports department. "Jocks," short for jock-strappers, is the down-putting term of those disinterested in, detached from, or critical of sports and focussed physical activity.

I'm touting two books which develop remarkably similar conclusions although they examine the subject from incongruously different viewpoints and disciplines. You'll laugh at the contrast in titles. The racy muckraker is by Leonard Schechter, sports editor of Look magazine (yes, Jim Bouton is a protégé). Entitled The Jocks, it's available at newsstands (Paperback Library). The scholarly history is by Dennis Brailsford. It is titled Sport and Society; Elizabeth to Anne, and is published by the U of T Press.

One motive for Sport and Society is to break down "the most remarkable of all existing academic taboos." Writers and scholars have given "little attention to man as a playing animal." Brailsford was a friendly, bemused historian on a physical education faculty. He was bothered by the low status and fuzzy generalizations these teachers had for play and exercise. He chose the remote period of 17th century England because it began with a golden age for sport with the virile Elizabethans; then despite promotion of sport by the early Stuart courts, the dour forces of puritanism began to destroy the prestige and popular acceptance of sport and play. The work ethic, the joylessness, except in God, of puritanism has had profound effects on Western society, not least in Canada.

"Battles are no longer won on the playing fields of Eton; the character-building qualities of games are doubted and it is hard to show how climbing rock-faces can promote powers of leadership . . . The new phraseology (to justify sport) is often as question-begging as the old. What is needed is a dual approach to the subject's problems, the first to discover what it can demonstrably do and the second to discover what it ought to do . . . Where physical pursuits have little justification beyond that they give pleasure and do no physical or mental harm to man or beast, it is inviting intellectual scorn to postulate grander motives for them."

Reach for the analogy between that and the despairing cynicism of the last paragraph in Schechter's The Jocks.

"There are shadows on our land, shadows of hate and war and poverty and despair. So we get caught up in games. There must be better ways to spend our time. For when we spend it, we are returned falsity. We cannot even be sure our games are honest. The quick buck, the carpetbagging, cheating owner, the bet, the fix and the dump are always there, lurking just beneath the surface and at the edges of our minds. And I tell you, you have not heard the last of them."

The laughs and gags are legion in Schechter's book. The centerpiece is the attack on the illiteracy, sycophancy, sloth and petty corruption of those who report on pro sports. The heroes (e.g. Casey Stengel) are so few, the jerks so many, that a reader enjoys, is scandalized and eventually is prodded into self-examination — if he's a buff or a jock. The wallop is so strong that one can miss the incoherence in Schechter's thesis and not recognize the easy, semi-plagiarism of scandals.

Canada comes into The Jocks briefly — largely through its connections with the Filchok-Hapes football scandal and the Hanlan-Courtney rowing scandals of 90 years ago (the first big scandal). A germane subject touched on is the prostitution of city and state politicians in backing stadium-building to the crass benefit of speculators, contractors and owners in the name of community pride and tourist spending.

I recommend both books highly. The Jocks is an imperative for the sports nut. Sport and Society has value for physical education teachers, readers of history and the politicians trying to understand sport and their role in it.

Canada caught in middle in doomsday race

By JOHN BEST

OTTAWA (CP) — Canada, living in a nuclear no man's land between super-powers, is watching the forces at play in the latest phase of the American-Soviet competition for superiority in doomsday weaponry.

Closest to home is the anti-missile missile system, beginning to sprout at two U.S. sites just south of the Saskatchewan and Alberta borders.

It could ripen into a billions-of-dollars protective shield against Soviet and Chinese rockets, scientific observers here say. Or it may prove no more than a pawn in the U.S.-Soviet strategic arms limitation talks in Vienna.

This was indicated in a White House announcement in mid-August that the U.S. had offered to give up its anti-missile defence system entirely if the Soviet Union would agree to limit the number of its huge SS-9 offensive missiles and abandon its own missile defences.

COULD UPSET BALANCE

The U.S. so far hasn't asked for and doesn't need Canadian participation for defensive missiles planned to seek out and destroy any attacking nuclear warheads, looped at the U.S. from the north high over Canada.

But if that system should be extended, Canadian co-operation might well be needed and sought, it is suggested.

Canada's view is that any anti-missile defence system is harmful to prospects of a nuclear truce beyond the existing curbs on testing of nuclear weapons as observed by the U.S., Russia and Britain. Canada thinks the counter-missile could upset the balance of U.S. and Soviet deterrent forces, setting off an even greater arms race.

The 1968 agreement to continue for five additional years the North American Air Defence Command, in which Canada co-operates with the U.S. for anti-bomber defence, carried this stipulation:

"This agreement will not involve in any way a Canadian commitment to participate in an active ballistic missile defence."

The U.S. has not pressed the matter.

"There is no urgency in their minds for us to participate," says Dr. J. F. Ruddell of the defence research board.

KEEP IN TOUCH

Defence scientists keep in close touch with developments in both anti-missile and offensive missile weaponry for obvious reasons.

No matter how little enthusiasm Canadians generally might have for weapons of mass destruction, Canada nevertheless does lie between the U.S. on one side and the U.S.S.R. and China on the other.

The flight paths of any long-range nuclear missiles fired in either direction lie over Canada. Only missiles fired from the far Pacific coast of Asia heading for southern California would miss Canada—and not by much.

"We are in no man's land and we always will be," said Dr. G. R. Lindsey, director of defence research analysis. "That is something that is simply a fact of geography."

One consequence is that a nuclear explosion with the power of millions of tons of TNT might take place over Canada.

Spartan defensive missiles, to be stationed in the northern states under President Nixon's Safeguard anti-missile system, have a range of about 400 miles.

Interceptions of attacking Soviet or Chinese missiles would—if the system works properly—occur above Canadian territory at a height of about 75 miles, it is said.

Dr. Lindsey has said that even if a Sprint warhead burst three miles above the ground, it would produce no fallout and no important radiation or heat risk. It probably would break some windows. At an altitude of 20 miles, Sprint would not produce any of these hazards. Its maximum range is about 35 miles.

The exact location of the western launching pads, to be built in the vicinity of Great Falls, Mont., and Grand Forks, N.D., has not evidently been determined yet.

FUNDS ARE VOTED

Great Falls is about 80 miles and Grand Forks about 50 miles south of the border. They are the only two sites in the projected 12-base Safeguard system for which Congress has voted funds.

President Nixon is asking authorization for an additional site in Missouri, plus authority to do advanced preparation work for five other sites.

The five include three whose Northeast, Northwest and Michigan-Ohio areas.

The avowed purposes of the Safeguard system are to protect the U.S. attack-missile arsenals from Soviet weapons; protect U.S. cities against a slowly developing threat from Chinese long-range rockets, and provide protection against accidental missile launchings from any source.

A new emphasis on protecting American attack weapons is partly attributable to Russia's development of powerful new missile carriers capable of hurling warheads at more than one target.

U.S. planners fear this development poses the threat of a surprise overwhelming strike at the heart of the nuclear deterrent, possibly by the mid-1970s. The U.S., however, also is developing its own multi-headed attack missiles.

Agnew's trying out a new act

By FRANK MANKIEWICZ and TOM BRADEN

WASHINGTON — Vice President Spiro Agnew — getting ready for the fall political circuit — is busy working up a new act. Like all performers, the Vice President constantly needs new material. The old jokes about the media are wearing thin, so Mr. Agnew has turned to economics.

Economics isn't called the "dismal science" for nothing, but in the Vice President's hands it comes alive. There is humor for everyone in his initial effort — appearing in, of all places, the Washington Post. Agnew's one-liners appear under the witty headline "The Myth That We Are in a Recession."

The joke here is that Administration economists are the ones who have said we are in a recession, and so has Treasury Secretary David Kennedy. Then, while the reader is still chuckling — perhaps a bit nervously if he is one of the million and a half people who have become unemployed since Mr. Agnew was inaugurated — he moves to some really solid material.

If the course of what he calls "some observations that I don't believe have been getting through to the public in most recent newspaper commentary," the Vice President says the economy is now making two major readjustments. We are going through, he writes with a straight face, a "major decline in defense spending" while we are cooling off "a long inflationary overheating that had become increasingly dangerous."

Now of course neither of these statements is in any way true; the rich humor derives from the fact that present spending levels actually increase the amount of defense and war spending.

Furthermore, inflation is rising at a more rapid rate than it was in 1969. The figures for July show that the wholesale price index rose at an annual rate of 7.2 percent as compared with a 1969 rate of 6 percent.

Mr. Agnew develops his joke about "a major decline in defense spending" at great length, milking it for more laughs than probably are in it. He calls it a "massive reordering of priorities," and even says that by "mid-1971 the reductions will approach $20 billion." Here the Vice President's hyperbole may have gone too far. Sen. William Proxmire has demonstrated that there has been as yet no reduction in defense spending — that presidential boasts about cutting the defense budget rely almost solely on imaginative bookkeeping. In terms of dollars spent on defense this year we are still ahead of last.

When he turns to unemployment, Agnew's humor becomes a bit cruel. He talks of jobs and careers terminated in defense plants and laboratories — reductions which, as he says, "tend to hit selected professions and skills" far harder than general reductions. Then he says these problems could have been made easier if Congress had enacted some of Mr. Nixon's programs, including the "revolutionary new approach to family assistance."

Agnew's reference to the Nixon welfare reform plan, benefiting families on welfare earning less than $2,000 per year, may come as a bit of a shock to out-of-work aeronautical engineers and space scientists, who don't ordinarily think about food stamps.

Finally, the Vice President tries to top Mr. Nixon in one respect. A few months ago, there was a good laugh in Washington when the President, flanked on television by Housing Secretary George Romney, denounced Congress for not acting on an emergency housing bill Mr. Nixon said he had submitted in February. It turned out that he had not submitted a housing bill in February, or any other time. Mr. Agnew, trying for the same laugh, now says the bill was sent to Congress "early this year."

Not only is there still no such bill, but the President had vetoed a more modest Democratic housing bill a few days before Agnew's article. There is real humor in that, but the Veep blew it.

On the whole, Mr. Agnew was funnier when he was talking about the press. He didn't know anything about that subject, either, but he didn't have to work so hard.

BERRY'S WORLD

"I should have invested in something like this, instead of the market—I don't understand IT, either!"

The PRAYER FOR TODAY FROM The Upper Room

For the moment all discipline seems painful rather than pleasant; later it yields the peaceful fruit of righteousness to those who have been trained by it. (Hebrews 12:11, RSV)

PRAYER: Eternal God, grant us the light to see that love lies behind law and discipline. Grant us the grace to discipline ourselves and our children in the pursuit of godly living. In the name of Jesus we ask it. Amen.

PM criticized for constant holidaying

By GERARD McNEIL
OTTAWA (CP) — Footloose Pierre Elliott Trudeau was taking the sun in the British Honduras as 1970 began. That same Christmas recess found him skiing for a week in the French Alps.

Bank, a new port near Vancouver, he hiked and surfed at Long Beach National Park. Last week he went skin diving for a week in the Caribbean. This week he is believed to be yachting in the Mediterranean. Even on vacation he doesn't escape work, his office said. He takes it with him. But the working hours aren't as long as when he's in Ottawa, when they usually run for more than those of the average man. "He didn't sign on for a 40-hour week," an aide said as a reporter raised the subject in an interview. The latest two-week vacation, interrupted by a brief cabinet meeting Friday night, has generated some criticism from the political opposition. Even Danish Prime Minister Hilmar Baunsgaard, visiting Montreal during the weekend, said Mr. Trudeau seemed to be away a lot. Prime Minister Baunsgaard came to Ottawa Monday to talk with Acting Prime Minister Mitchell Sharp, the external affairs minister, and attend a meeting of world federalists. Mr. Trudeau left the night before for Europe. CRITICS ARE VOCAL Most vocal opposition critic has been George Hees (PC—Prince Edward-Hastings), who says the prime minister shouldn't be away with the national postal dispute unsettled. Creditiste Leader Real Caouette also criticized Mr. Trudeau for holidaying at this period. Former prime minister John Diefenbaker, saying that he used to be criticized for taking a few days off to go fishing, said in Winnipeg Monday that the Trudeau record is one of "continued vacations and hoped-for vacations." Aides say that on the current vacation, as on others, Mr. Trudeau has taken along a stack of state papers as well as Michael Pitfield, deputy secretary to the cabinet for planning. They also note that mediator Thomas O'Connor was appointed last week to try to bring about a postal settlement. Mr. Trudeau couldn't intervene with a mediator at work, they say. Mr. Trudeau did say Friday night he expected results shortly.

Trudeau the traveller was well known long before he became prime minister. He took long canoe trips on northern rivers, crossed deserts on camelback, met Chairman Mao in Peking, swam the Bosphorus, bicycled through Europe. He even drafted his successful campaign for the Liberal leadership while in Tahiti. OFF TO THE NORTH Shortly after becoming prime minister in 1968, he made an extensive tour of the North, then took off for a week's vacation on the Spanish island of Ibiza. This was the first of a series of private vacation trips "to the Mediterranean" or "to the Caribbean," as his office puts it discreetly. When official tours are added, his mileage becomes astonishing. Highlight this year was a 9-day Pacific tour of seven countries. An autumn visit to the Soviet Union is still in the tentative stage. Meanwhile, within Canada, he probably has seen as much of the people in the last year as former prime ministers did during an election campaign. He manages to mix business with pleasure on the official tours. While in the country's northwest earlier this summer, he took time to boat down the storied Nahanni River in the Northwest Territories. On the Asian trip he went yachting for two days off Australia, received his black belt in judo while in Japan, swam in Kuala Lumpur. The vacation trips have raised questions about who pays. The usual way in which public money is involved in a vacation trip is through use of a government plane. Aides say such plane use is necessary when the prime minister is off the beaten track, so he can return quickly if necessary, and add the vacations usually mix work in with the pleasure. On his trip to the Caribbean last week, Mr. Trudeau used the transport department Jet Star. He spent several days at Andros, an out-island in the Bahamas, then chartered a flight to Nassau and boarded the Jet Star to go to St. Thomas in the Virgin Islands. BACK, THEN GONE He returned to Ottawa Friday night, then left from Trenton, Ont., Sunday on the weekly air force flight to Lahr, West Germany, getting off at some point to visit an undisclosed place in the Mediterranean. While there last summer, he voyaged on the yacht Adanac, owned by a friend from Montreal. Until Mr. Trudeau returns next Monday, Mr. Sharp is acting prime minister. A cabinet meeting is to be held today and the wheels of government are far from stopped.

A bomb scare failed to materialize in Minnesota but nearly 700 miles east the California Angels set off an explosion of their own, posing a definite threat to the Minnesota Twins.

The bomb threat occurred in the fourth inning of the Twins-Boston Red Sox game Tuesday night and Metropolitan Stadium was evacuated by the 17,697 fan for 44 minutes before play was resumed.

Tony Conigliero slammed a homer in eighth inning and the Red Sox held off the Twins for a 1-0 triumph. In Detroit, the California Angels lashed the Tigers in a doubleheader, 64 in 12 innings and 10-6.

The double victories by the Angels placed them a dangerously close 3 1/2 games behind American League West Division leading Minnesota.

In other AL action, Dave McNally won his 20th game of the season—the first major leaguer to make it—and the Baltimore Orioles trimmed Oakland Athletics 5-1, Chicago White Sox edged Washington Senators 4-3, the New York Yankees nipped Kansas City Royals 2-1 and Milwaukee Brewers nudged Cleveland Indians 4-2 in 10 innings.

SAID SET FOR 10:30

Police informed the Twins at 10:30 p.m., EDT, of the telephone threat and it was announced over the public address system that the male caller said the bomb would go off at 10:30 p.m.

The evacuation was orderly and without panic with some 2,000 fans, players, police and vendors gathered in the center-field area. The rest of the people milled in the parking lot.

After a 27-minute wait the fans were allowed to return to the stands and the game was resumed at 10:57 p.m.

Bill Zepp went seven innings for Minnesota, giving up only four hits before Tom Hall came on in the eighth and surrendered Conigliero's 25th homer.

Jay Johnstone capped California's second-game explosion with a grand slam homer in the Angels big six-run ninth inning, overcoming a 6-4 Tigers' lead.

Alex Johnson had a two-run homer and Roger Repoz a solo blast for the Angels while pinch-hitter Kevin Collins rocked a three-run belt for the Tigers.

The Angels fell behind 4-0 in the opener but eventually won it in the 12th on Fregosi's sacrifice fly and a run-scoring double by Johnson.

McNally reached the 20-victory mark for the third year in succession.

Rich Morales stroked a bases-loaded sacrifice fly in the ninth inning for the White Sox' victory over Washington.

Rookie Jim Lyttle dropped a run-scoring single into centre with two out in the ninth inning, enabling the Yanks to edge the Royals for the 10th time in 11 outings this season. Bob Oliver clouted his 26th homer for Kansas City.

Dave Campbell drove in three runs, including a ninth-inning winner, as the San Diego Padres plucked the Pittsburgh Pirates' feathery 4-3 Tuesday night in a game marked by Roberto Clemente's encounter with a runaway chicken.

The Pirates' superstar, making his first visit to San Diego since revealing a 1969 brush with would-be kidnappers in the California city, was given the bird as he took his right field position in the first inning.

A fan dropped the chicken onto the field—in a symbolic gesture—and it strutted past Clemente before being collared by a pursuing ballboy.

Clemente had claimed he was returning to his hotel with a bag of fried chicken after a game against the Padres 15 months ago when he was abducted by gunmen, who threatened his life but eventually released him unharmed—and even returned his midnight snack.

Despite the loss, the Pirates retained their three-game lead in the National League East as second-place New York Mets bowed to Atlanta Braves 7-6 and third-place Chicago Cubs lost to Los Angeles Dodgers 4-1. Philadelphia Phillies nipped Cincinnati Reds 3-2 in 12 innings; Houston Astros topped Montreal Expos 6-3 in 13, and San Francisco Giants trimmed St. Louis Cardinals 4-2 in other NL games.

Hal King's three-run homer capped a five-run Atlanta salvo in the fifth inning and the Braves withstood Donn Clendenon's late RBI spree to beat the Mets. Clendenon smacked a three-run homer in the eighth and a two-run single in the ninth.

Astros drop Expos 6-3 in 13 innings

MONTREAL (AP) — Pinchhitter Larry Howard ripped a run-scoring single, keying a three-run Houston 13th inning and sending the Astros to a 6-3 triumph over Montreal Expos Tuesday night.

Howard, hitting for winning reliever Ron Cook, 3-4, drilled a hit to center after Joe Morgan and Jim Wynn had drawn walks off loser Mike Marshall, 1-6.

The runners moved up as Denis Menke flied to deep right and each came home on Doug Rader's single.

The Astros took a 2-0 lead in the third inning on a two-run homer by Morgan off Expos starter Carl Morton and added another in the fifth on a bases-loaded sacrifice fly by Rader.

The Expos tied it with three runs in the seventh. Bobby Wine scored the first Montreal run when Menke fumbled Boots Day's grounder. The other two runs scored on Rusty Staub's triple.

Sports in Brief

TORONTO (CP) — John William Jack Sutton, 78, expert fisherman and fly-tier, died of a heart attack Tuesday at his home in nearby Bay Ridge.

He was regarded as one of the world's top fly-tiers and his trout flies have been copied by commercial tiers in both North America and Europe.

Jack Sutton, a native of England, worked in the sporting goods department of a Toronto department store and was on the job until he became ill Monday.

Two of his most famous flies were the Sutton's Despair and Sutton's Red Badger streamer, which he invented about 40 years ago.

ATLANTA (AP) — It is virtually certain Cassius Clay will fight heavyweight champion Joe Frazier in Atlanta Oct. 26, a major prize fight, who is promoting the fight, said Tuesday.

Sen. Leroy R. Johnson, an attorney and head of House of Sports, Inc., said he planned to hold a news conference either today or Thursday to elaborate.

Johnson announced two weeks ago that the fight would be held in Atlanta, but Frazier's managers said they doubted the bout would materialize.

"I might say that now I am extremely confident that the fight will take place as we said it would," said Johnson.

He declined to comment when asked if Frazier and Clay had signed contracts.

FOREST HILLS, N.Y. (AP) — Jaroslav Drobný and Gerry Oakley won the last two singles matches Tuesday as Great Britain completed a 5-0 victory over Canada in the Stevens Cup international senior tennis team eliminations.

Britain now faces the defending United States team of Bobby Riggs, Vic Seixas and Straight Clark in the Challenge Round starting Thursday.

Drobný, a Czechoslovakian and winner at Wimbledon who now lives in London, rallied to defeat Jacques Giguere 7-9, 6-4, 6-4. Oakley added the fifth point by beating Jean Marois 6-3, 8-6.

NEW YORK (AP) — Billy Casper took over as the leading money winner on the United States pro golf tour with his victory Monday in the Avco Classic, which earned him $32,000.

Casper, jumping from seventh place with his fourth tournament triumph to overtake Jack Nicklaus, raised his earnings to $139,585. Nicklaus, who didn't play in the Avco, dropped to second with $134,660.

Gary Player topped $100,000 for the second-straight year at $100,631 for eighth place, and Bruce Devlin made it for the first time in his nine-year career with $100,386 for 10th.

The rest of the top money winners are Bruce Crampton, third, $127,174; Lee Trevino, fourth, $124,228; Dick Lotz, sixth, $115,070; Arnold Palmer, seventh, $112,869; and Dave Hill, ninth, $100,596.

TURIN, Italy (AP) — The main goal of the Canadian team at the 1970 World University Games opening in this Italian industrial city today is to gain experience at the international level, the head of the team said.

result for any of our athletes," said Major Danny McLeod of Kingston, Ont., chief of the Canadian delegation.

"We have little hope for medals. But we will try, of course."

The Canadian Intercollegiate Athletic Union made a major financial effort to send 46 men and 26 women, in addition to a number of coaches and manager, to Turin, McLeod said.

Carl Totzke of Waterloo, Ont., press officer with the Canadians, explained the difficulty of choosing competitors. Selection competitions were held among five different athletic associations. This resulted in team entries being largely from one university, instead of all-star squads from across the country.

The 12-man basketball team, for example, is entirely from the University of British Columbia. Outstanding names in the Thunderbirds lineup include John Thorsen of Prince George, Derek Sankney of Vancouver, Robert Malinski of North Vancouver, Terry MacKay of Vancouver and Alex Brayden of Port Alberni.

IS BEST HOPE

The basketball team is one of the top hopes of Canadian officials, McLeod said. In the preliminary round it is bracketed with South Korea and Portugal.

The United States and the Soviet Union must be regarded as basketball favorites, however.

Men's and women's volleyball teams are representing Canada for the first time at the university games.

The men's team includes eight students of the University of Montreal and two of the University of Ottawa.

Clark's cops 1st game of women's final

LENNOXVILLE — In Lennoxville Women's Softball League action Monday night, Clark's Pharmacy edged out Ascot 11-8 in the first game of the finals. It proved a very close game with neither team scoring in the first inning.

In the second frame, Ascot failed to score, while Clark's brought in three runs. In the third inning, Nancy Hutchinson and Judi Smith of Clark's both hit home runs to lead 5-3. Both teams were scoreless in the fourth, and in the fifth, Juana Schoff of Clark's notched a home run for the only tally of the inning.

In the sixth, Ascot rallied for three runs while Clark's added two to run the score to 9-5. The pressure was on in the top of the 7th with Ascot at bat. They scored twice to bring the final score to 11-8 for Clark's.

This is a best 3-out-of-5 series, with Clark's now leading 1-0.

The next encounter is slated for tonight at 6:30 p.m. at the Lennoxville Optimist Park.

Stamps go against Reed-less Riders

One team that is the most generous in the Western Football Conference and another that is the stingiest play host tonight to two of the most powerful teams in the Canadian Football League.

Calgary Stampeders, who have yielded just 60 points in five games for a conference low, meet arch-rival Saskatchewan Roughriders, the leaders in the West.

In the other game, to be seen on the CTV national television network beginning at 9 p.m. EDT, Toronto Argonauts meet Winnipeg Blue Bombers who have allowed 125 points in four consecutive losses, highest points against total in the CFL.

The Bombers have another questionable distinction in giving up the ball the most times through interceptions and fumbles. They have thrown 12 interceptions and fumbled eight times in their four outings.

But the Argos will be contending with a substantially revamped lineup tonight as Bomber head coach Jim Spavital attempts to mold his club into a cohesive unit.

RELEASED HALFBACK
Spavital released halfback Craig Tefft following the 27-6 loss to Hamilton Tiger-Cats last weekend and brought in a new halfback.

Taking over Tefft's right halfback position will be Paul Brule, a Canadian product of St. Francis Xavier University who has played commendably as safety.

"I've waited for a chance to play offence for two years," said

Brule. "I only hope I'm able to live up to expectations."

Toronto coach Leo Cahill says his club has not jelled as a football team.

"Perhaps we've given our quarterback too much. We may cut down on what's available to them for each game."

Cahill wouldn't say which of his quarterbacks—Tom Wilkinson and Don Jonas—will start.

In Calgary, the Roughriders will be out to avenge the stunning 30-0 loss to Calgary a week ago and defensive tackle Bill Baker expressed the mood of the defending WBC champions.

"I hear that if we don't win we may be walking home," he said.

INJURED KNEE
Fullback George Reed, who missed the Calgary debacle with a knee injury, has been working out with the Riders but no decision has been made on whether he will play the re-match.

The Riders will be without the services of middle linebacker Chuck Kyle who banged up a knee in the Calgary game. His spot will be filled by Ken Reed and newcomer Jim Duke will fill in Reed's defensive end spot.

Calgary coach Jim Duncan is hoping his defensive squad can repeat their fine performance against Saskatchewan. He singled out middle linebacker Wayne Harris for special praise.

"He carries the biggest part of the load," said Duncan. "Wayne is one of the reasons I feel we have one of the better defences in the league."

Harper, Cournoyer sign

MONTREAL (CP) — Veteran defenceman Terry Harper of Montreal Canadiens has signed a contract for the 1970-71 National Hockey League season, the club announced Tuesday.

Harper, 30, is entering his ninth NHL campaign, all with the Canadiens. He is the sixth Hab in two days to sign.

Earlier, right winger Yvan Cournoyer signed his 1970-71 contract.

Cournoyer was the Canadiens' leading scorer last season in his sixth year with Montreal. He scored 27 goals and added 36 assists for 63 points in 72 games.

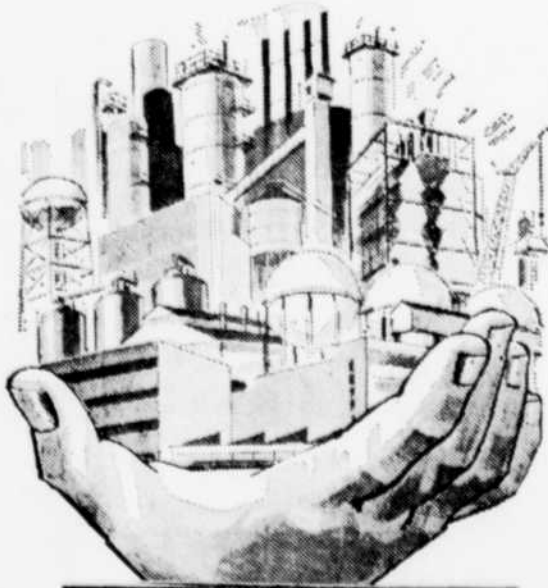

Goaltender Rogatien Vachon, defenceman Serge Savard and forwards Henri Richard and Claude Provost signed Monday.

Bridal shower

RICHMOND — On Thursday evening, August 13th, the Royal Canadian Legion Hall was the scene of a surprise miscellaneous shower, given in honor of Barbara McLeod, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Kenneth McLeod of College St., a September bride-to-be. The hall was prettily decorated with several baskets of summer flowers.

Upon arrival Barbara was welcomed by three of the hostesses, Mrs. Loretta Girard, Mrs. Walter Parkes and Mrs. Arnold Snowe, who presented the celebrant with a lovely corsage. To the strains of "Here Comes the Bride", played by Mrs. Lloyd Roberts, Barbara was escorted to a seat of honor at the head table over which hung an inverted shower umbrella decorated with pink and white streamers held in place by a cluster of white wedding bells.

The traditional shower cake was made and decorated by Mrs. Lloyd Roberts and centred the table flanked on either side by vases of cut flowers.

Seated beside the bride-to-be were her mother, Mrs. Kenneth McLeod who received a corsage from Mrs. Girard, her sister Mrs. E. Cote and little niece Tina Cote, and Mrs. S. Chiszyk, future mother-in-law of Danville who also received a corsage from Mrs. Parkes.

The many gifts were arranged on a long decorated table. At intervals they were presented to Barbara by Mrs. Snowe who in a few well chosen words expressed on behalf of the guests, best wishes for a happy wedded life. Assisting were Mrs. Parkes and Mrs. Girard. Mrs. Cote made a hat of the ribbon and bows which was presented to the celebrant.

The gifts, after being passed around and admired by the guests, were displayed on a long decorated table. Miss McLeod voiced her appreciation for the lovely gifts. She thanked the hostesses and those who assisted, for having arranged the surprise shower in her honor, including Mrs. Gordon Crack, Mrs. Orin Taylor, Mrs. Roy Blanchette, Mrs. Lloyd Roberts, Mrs. Walter Parkes, Mrs. Merton Montgomery, Mrs. Fred Roberts, assisted by Mrs. Omer Mallette, Mrs. Joyce Valliere, Mrs. A. Kerr, Mrs. Gerald Cote, Mrs. Gerald Wallis and Mrs. Brian Roberts.

A social hour was enjoyed after which a delicious lunch was served. Guests were present from Ulverton, South Durham, Danville, Upper Melbourne, Windsor, Melbourne and Richmond.

George Hamilton IV to appear on Sunday

George Hamilton IV, one of the most successful and enduring country music singers, is one of those very unique country performers who enjoyed a major record hit for the first time in the pop field and who later went "country" from "pop". Encouraged in his music by both his mother and his father, who was an amateur singer with a band in his own high school days, young George always enjoyed listening to the Opry on the air and to Gene Autry's singing the movies. George attended the University of North Carolina in Chapel Hill for a year, then transferred to American University in Washington for his final three years of college work. It was during this period that the guitar-playing young vocalist enjoyed his big first pop hit. Although by his own word, Hamilton never won a talent contest in his life, RCA Victor's Nashville a. & r. producer, Chet Atkins, felt there was a lot of talent in the six foot two inch, 160-pound singer

Atkins' faith paid off in a monumental way with George's recording, a few seasons back of "Abilene," which he followed with "Fort Worth, Dallas or Houston" and a sizable group of other hits as well.

Hamilton readily credits Chet Atkins with being the single most influential person in the development of his successful career. He also lists such singers as Hank Williams, Carl Smith, Ernest Tubb, Perry Como, Eddy Arnold, Johnny Cash and Gordon Lightfoot among his personal favorites, all of whom, he believes, have had an influence on his own singing. John D. Loudermilk is Hamilton's favorite among the current songwriters operating on the Nashville front.

Hamilton, who enjoys more than anything, being at home with his wife, "Tinky," has also found time to appear in two motion pictures, "Hootenanny Heart" and "Second Fiddle to a Steel Guitar," and looks forward to further activity in this area. His pet dislikes are, in his own words, "Hypocrisy and sophistication," and he honestly believes that "I am very unique, have very little talent but have a great desire to be a good country singer, a good husband and father and a decent citizen." Those friends who know him best will all attest to the kind of fine father and husband and good citizen George Hamilton IV really is. As for the part of being "un-unique with little talent," anyone who has had the pleasure of seeing and hearing this gifted artist on record and on stage at the Grand Ole Opry, would have to disagree vehemently.

with a solid seven-card heart suit."

They were sort of apologetic about Jeff's three-club call. It actually showed clubs. Ira's three-spade bid showed the ace, invited a slam mildly and warned about the diamond suit in case Jeff was thinking about no-trump.

Jeff's four no-trump call was plain old-fashioned Blackwood, as was Ira's five-spade response to show three aces.

This was enough for Jeff. He counted 12 to 13 and bid seven no-trump to get the maximum match point score.

Thursday, August 27

PAST . . . On August 27, 1945, Adm. William Halsey led the U.S. Third Fleet into Sagami Bay in the first step in Gen. MacArthur's occupation of Japan.

FUTURE . . . The juvenile segment of the youth market will expand again in the Seventies, while the relatively older segments will level off and decline.

The Day Under Your Sign

ARIES (Born March 21 to April 19) — Call a halt to foolish spending but proceed with home improvements.

TAURUS (April 20 to May 20) — Attend to those small, irksome chores that keep piling up.

GEMINI (May 21 to June 21) — Business under a cloud and decision of some sort must be made—and acted upon.

CANCER (June 22 to July 21) — Maintain dignity even though present situation is "hard to take."

LEO (July 22 to Aug. 21) — Utilize result-getting method that worked out for you once before.

VIRGO (Aug. 22 to Sept. 22) — You seem to lack the initiative necessary for making progress now.

LIBRA (Sept. 23 to Oct. 23) — Good day to visit elderly friends or shut-out with chums and for a treat.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23 to Nov. 21) — Do favors if asked, but do not volunteer unless someone approaches you.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22 to Dec. 21) — Forget cares. Go out with chums and have a relaxing, fun day.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 to Jan. 20) — Keep appointments on time even though you have to take a cab to make it.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 21 to Feb. 19) — Soundly planned procedure should work out just fine if put into practice.

PISCES (Feb. 20 to Mar. 20) — More than casual attention to domestic situation is a must now.

We didn't sweep the boards in Stockholm. The open pairs was won by Austria and Italy came in second and third. Fourth place went to Ira Rubin of Paramus, N.J., playing with Jeff Westheimer of New York.

Rubin is one of the great theorists. Some players think he would do better if he gave up some of his science for flying by the seat of his pants.

All conventions are allowed in a world's championship and Ira came up with a beauty for this one.

He invented a multipurpose two bid in any suit but clubs. This bid would usually show a weak two bid in the next suit but might show a very strong distributional hand in the suit bid.

This time Ira had the strong hand. Jeff's response of two spades said, "If you do have a weak two bid, let's play it there."

Ira's two no-trump call was the third straight artificial bid of the hand. It said, "I have a strong hand
