Spectacular Junior Show

The Twenty-second Annual Show of the Howick Ayrshire Calf Club

The Howick 4H Ayrshire Calf Club staged another of its outstanding annual shows, at Riverfield, on Saturday, September 19. As usual the show was staged in the Paddock which has been loaned to the Howick Club for that event each year for 19 years, by Chester Orr. Incidentally, while Chester and Mrs. Orr have sold their farm, with the exception of their house and grounds, they have ensured that the Paddock will be available to the Calf Club each year as long as that Club stages its annual show.

The Masters of Ceremony were Donald Robertson, Production Service, Canada Department of Agriculture, Montreal, and Robert "Bobby" Ness of Terrace Bank Farm, Howick, who is also the Club Leader. The official judge of the various classes, the Showmanship and Judging Competitions was John Rennie, Head Herdsman, Alderwood Farm, St. Valentin, Que. We are not aware whether this was John Rennie's first essay at judging (instead of fitting, preparing and showing cattle) but he made a nice, expeditious job of the quite heavy chore. While the "showmen" were boys and girls, their exhibits were invariably of a high order indeed and they deported themselves like seasoned veterans. It therefore was that John Rennie had to make a number of quite close decisions.

Altogether, 18 boys and girls had entries in either the junior or senior calf classes: 11 of them showed junior and senior yearling heifers, their Club entries of last year; 7 of them showed 2 year old heifers, their calves of two years ago; 7 of them showed cows which had initially been their calf club entries. Finally, 7 of them showed groups which included their calves of this year and calves of former years.

The winners in the junior heifer calf class were: 1, Brodie Templeton; 2, Donald Morrison; 3, Gordon McKell; 4, Muriel Cairncross; 5, Wayne McKell; 6, Beverley Smith; 7, Dot Cairncross; 8, Raymond Smith.

Senior heifer calves: 1, John McArthur; 2, Rollie Ness; 3, Bernice Ness; 4, John Logan; 5, Kenneth Roy; 6, Alden Logan; 7, Bruce Cairncross; 8, Billy Welburn; 9, Billy Ness; 10, Elmer Black.

Junior Yearling heifers: 1 Alden Logan; 2 Raymond Smith; 3 Dot Cairncross; 4 Billy Welburn.

Senior Yearling heifers: 1 Rollie Ness; 2 Bernice Ness; 3 John Logan; 4 Kenneth Roy; 5 Muriel Cairncross; 6 Bruce Cairncross; 7 Wayne McKell.

Champion heifer: John McArthur with his first prize senior heifer calf Cherry Bank Royal Bella 2nd.

Reserve Champion heifer: Rollie Ness with his first prize senior yearling heifer, Burnside Amelia.

Two year old heifers: 1 Dot Cairncross; 2 John Logan; 3 Kenneth Roy; 4 Raymond Smith; 5 Bruce Cairncross; 6 Wayne McKell; 7 Billy Welburn.

Cows, any age (former Calf Club entries): 1 Bernice Ness; 2 John Logan; 3 Kenneth Roy; 4 Muriel Cairncross; 5 Dot Cairncross; 6 Raymond Smith; 7 Bruce Cairncross.

Groups (this year's calf entry and previous calf entries): 1 John Logan; 2 Kenneth Roy; 3 Dot Cairncross; 4 Raymond Smith; 5 Bruce Cairncross; 6 Wayne McKell; 7 Billy Welburn.

Junior Showmanship: 1 and the Parker Cup, Rollie Ness; 2 John Logan; 3 Beverley Smith; 4 John McArthur; 5 Billie Ness; 6 Gordon McKell; 7 Wayne McKell; 8 Elmer Black; 9 Bruce Cairncross; 10 Alden Logan; 11 Billy Welburn; 12 Donald Morrison.

Senior Showmanship: 1 and the Burnside Challenge Cup, Bernice Ness; 2 Kenneth Roy; 3 Muriel Cairncross; 4 Raymond Smith; 5 Brodie Templeton.

Special Showmanship class for Boys and Girls under Club age: 1 Barbara Logan 2 Sheila McArthur; 3 Carolyn Templeton; 4 Andy Ness; 5 Allan Ness; 6 Kenneth McFarlane; 7 Carol Smith; 8 George Cairncross; 9 Allan McKell; 10 Rodney McKell; 11 Alvin McArthur; 12 Betty Cairncross; 13 Barbara Ness; 14 Kirk McKell; 15 Ross Peddie.

Judging Competition. There were 21 entries in this class and the following are the top scorers:

1, Raymond Smith (97 points); 2, Dot Cairncross (95); 3, Brodie Templeton (91); 4 Rollie Ness (88); 5, John Logan (85); 6, Beverley Smith (83).

Huntingdon Legion Holds Social Evening

The initial event of the social activities for the winter season sponsored by the Huntingdon branch of the Canadian Legion was held Friday evening, September 18, in the Legion Hall in the form of an Invitation Dance. A good attendance is reported by President Roland Roy. The program was arranged by the Entertainment Committee of which Lorne McIntyre is chairman and John Heald, vice-chairman.

The drawing for a television set was the centre attraction of the evening, and Mr. A. L. Sellar was the lucky winner. The consolation prize was won by Mr. John Cunningham.

The playing of cards and dancing to the music of the Thompson Orchestra from Cornwall was enjoyed by all who participated in this very successful evening.

HOPPERS DEPART

SASKATOON, (CP) —Grasshoppers, which only four years ago swarmed over Saskatchewan crops now are reported practically non-existent in the province.

It is the usual practice to keep the lights in the showroom and over yard entrance on at night and in this instance, the light in Mr. Smellie's office had also been left on. Thus the premises were well lighted and makes the robbery even more bold. Further, when it is considered that the safe was moved from the front by the showroom to the rear door out of the shop and probably onto a truck or similar conveyance, the robbers could not have been greatly concerned.

The stolen safe contained a considerable amount of cash and cheques, and insurance and finance papers.

Finger prints were taken by members of the Montreal police who were expected to return to the scene of the crime on Monday, September 21, and complete their investigations.

Trailer Truck Crashes Through Bridge at Chateauguay Village

Was Carrying New Automobiles Which Were Damaged — Driver Suffers Broken Spine

Residents of Chateauguay Village were startled Friday night, to hear a crash in the vicinity of the Bridge and upon investigation it was learned that on auto-carrying truck belonging to the Charlton Transport Co., of Oshawa, Ont., had hurtled through the steel guard rails of the bridge on the north side and landed on the river bank 20 feet below.

The double-decked ramp truck and three new cars were wrecked.

One car came to rest at one end of the back gallery of Mr. Hector Lefebvre's house, 65 Salaberry Blvd., South, and the trailer, narrowly missing the corner of the house, was found lying on its side at the other end of the gallery near the bridge, where Mrs. Lefebvre had been standing a few minutes previously.

The driver of the truck, Laurier Fournier, who suffered a broken spine, was taken by ambulance to the Verdun General Hospital.

The work of salvaging the wrecked cars was undertaken by Emile Danis, assisted by local men and was later joined by mechanics from the Charlton Transport Co., who worked all night and until noon on Saturday when the wrecked cars were hauled away. Temporary repairs were made on the bridge in the afternoon.

Change to Standard Time Saturday Night

The citizens of Huntingdon and surrounding district are warned to remember and change their time pieces on Saturday night, September 26. This time, you put your time pieces back one hour to conform to Standard time once more. Officially, the time changes at one minute after midnight on Saturday and therefore comes into effect Sunday morning.

Dies Result Of Accident

Employee Falls From Machine At Woollen Mills

Only vague details are available on the fatal accident which occurred at the Huntingdon Woollen Mill Ltd., Dalhousie Street, on Wednesday, September 16, in which a millworker lost his life. Isadore Emond, about 45 years of age, a resident of Lake Street, was discovered by a fellow-employee in a pool of blood behind the machine which the deceased operated.

Only the day before, Emond was absent from work, pleading illness. It is supposed that he suffered a weak spell at work the next day, and he tumbled head-first over his machine which was well-guarded as to safety. In his fall, his hand became entangled in a V-belt, and it was badly crushed. His co-worker confessed that he didn't see a thing, and what actually happened still remains a mystery.

The injured man was taken to the Huntingdon County Hospital, and later was rushed to the Royal Victoria Hospital in Montreal, where he died at 4 a.m. Friday. Doctors attributed his death to the fractured skull he received when he fell.

Emond, who has a family of four children, was buried Monday from St. Joseph's Roman Catholic Church in Huntingdon.

Traditions Worthily Upheld

Spectacular "Red and White" Show of Howick-Huntingdon Ayrshire Club

The second annual Red and White Show was staged in conjunction with Havelock Fair, Havelock, Que., on Wednesday, September 16.

The entries this year were not so large as those of last year but the opinions expressed by Gilbert MacMillan, Huntingdon, well agrees with those of our own and several others. Last year Gib MacMillan was an interested spectator, this year he was the judge, and he said: "While there are not as many animals at this year's show as there were a year ago, the quality of the animals is generally of a higher standard than was the case a year ago, and, in that instance same was very good indeed."

Mr. MacMillan also commended the owners and their helpers on the excellence of the fitting, preparation, and, especially so, the presentation of the animals paraded before him. In that respect, we might add that the animals were prepared and presented just as carefully as though they were on parade at Ormstown, the Royal, etc.

Therefore, by and large, it was a splendid, spectacular show, worthy of the traditions of this great Ayrshire centre, which is often proudly acclaimed as "The Ayrshire of America"; that is insofar as the Ayrshire cattle population is concerned.

Happily, the rains which fell in the lower or lowland regions of the H-H Club area avoided the upland district in which the show was staged. It was therefore an ideal day for an outdoor cattle show.

Altogether 88 head were paraded by 12 exhibitors, with Prof. A. Cote and Hugh Peckham of St. Martine Agricultural School and Mitchell A. Ness of Burnside Farms as the Ring Committee.

The exhibitors were — Howick; J. B. Cairncross; W. W. Elliott; P. D. McArthur & Son; J. Earle Ness & Sons; Gerald A. Roy & Son; Wm. Smith & Son. J. G. Wilson, St. Valentin; Oscar Vaillancourt, St. Chrysostome; Mrs. R. L. McCaig & Sons, Ormstown; J. Grant Whyte, Huntingdon.

There were no two-year-old bulls and only one bull, 3 years or over, and so it was that J. Grant Whyte's Cherry Bank Royal Philip was first prize aged bull and, automatically, senior champion male. However, that bull also won the grand male championship, while the members of the first prize junior herd were also sired by him, likewise the junior champion female.

The junior and reserve grand male championships went to Burnside Non-Such first prize senior bull calf for Wm. Smith & Son. The reserve junior male championship went to Mrs. R. L. McCaig & Sons on their first prize senior bull calf, Glengarry Lucky Major.

As indicated by the list of awards which is given hereafter, the female classes were exceptionally strong, both as regards quality and in most instances quantity. Undoubtedly, the two most spectacular individual classes of the show were the classes of 10 dry cows, 3 to 4 years of age, and the 9 aged cows, in milk.

Pannell Daisy 2nd (imp) headed the 10 cows, 3 to 4 years old, dry, and then annexed the senior and grand female championships. She was sired by Nethercraig High Test.

Cairnbrae Tibbie, by Deschambault Top Grade N., headed the aged cow in milk class, and then won the reserve senior and reserve female grand championship awards for R. J. Roy & Son.

Cairnbrae Tibbie subsequently won the special prize for the best cow in milk of any breed.

Elm Manor Model Fashion, by prize senior yearling heifer and the junior female champion for J. junior female champion for J. Grant Whyte. The reserve junior female champion was Alderwood Theory, by Barwheys Theory, second prize senior yearling for J. G. Wilson.

The most spectacular, most impressive group class, probably also of the entire show, was the Dairy Herd — four cows — in which class the first award is the Ayrshire Society of Quebec's Challenge Trophy. The winner of first place and the Trophy was a group entered by J. G. Wilson — Innismere Nettie, Cluaran Fancy Maid, Alderwood Heather Bloom and Gladden Hill Princess.

The other group classes were also particularly noteworthy, especially so the get of sire class which was headed by a group by Burnside Emperor for J. Earle Ness & Sons.

Awards:

Junior bull calves (3) 1 and 3, Mrs. McCaig & Sons — Glengarry Lucky Major and Ridgehaugh Robert's Lad; 2, J. G. Whyte — Elm Manor Coronation.

Senior bull calves (6): 1, Wm. Smythe & Son, Burnside Non-Such; 2, R. J. Roy & Son, Terrace Bank Eventide; 3, J. E. Ness & Sons, Terrace Bank Tinker; 4, O. Vaillancourt, Brown King; 5, G. A. Roy & Son, Oakburn Skymaster; 6, O. Vaillancourt.

Junior yearling bull (1): O. Vaillancourt — Rose Terrace Lady's Man.

Bull, 3 years and over (1): J. G. Whyte — Cherry Bank Royal Philip.

Senior and Grand Champion Male: J. G. Whyte — Cherry Bank Royal Philip.

Junior and reserve grand champion male: Wm. Smith & Son — Burnside Non-Such.

Havelock Fair For 1953 Proves Successful Event

Tractor Rodeo A Feature Attraction — Large Entry in Cattle Section

From a weather point of view, Wednesday, September 16th, looked like a bad day for Havelock annual one-day Fair. In Huntingdon it rained almost all the morning and was quite dull. The same conditions prevailed at several other surrounding points. It was afternoon before The Gleaner reporter arrived at the Fair and he fully expected to find that the weather had had a dampening effect on everything including attendance. This is where the surprise came, the grounds were fairly dry, there was a large number of cars on the grounds and of course the cars brought a number of people, the sun was shining and it was comfortably warm. Asking the question — did it rain here? The answer, just a little not very much, been fine all morning.

That was good, as for many years Havelock Fair has managed to have good weather. While 1952 was a record year for attendance, 1953 did not disgrace itself. It proved that it was the second largest attendance since the fair has been held. Yes, the officials were quite pleased with the results.

As usual, the Lacolle Curling Club provided the midway and this was patronized quite freely by the patrons of the fair. Judging from the numbers carrying away prizes, they were very well satisfied too. The ladies of Zion and the Gore churches provided the dinner and had a very good patronage, later they served supper for all who wished to partake of it.

There was a large entry in the cattle section of the Fair, but this part of the story we are leaving to Mr. Frank Napier and it will be found elsewhere in this issue. Entries in the other departments were down, no particular reason could be given for it, but it was so. The sewing and fancy work section was particularly small this year, but what was on exhibition was very good. The same condition prevailed in the cooking and preserves. Harvesting in the fruit section has not yet got into full swing and it was noticable that not as many entries were on exhibition as is usual at this particular fair. There was a good entry in the vegetable section with all tables being well filled. Some exceptionally large pumpkins were shown and they will make a large number of pumpkin pies for the Hallowe'en season. Speaking of pies, what was shown in the cooking section was of very excellent quality and many of them were spoken for as the owners offered them for sale. There was a good exhibit of flowers and plants and some very good specimens were on show.

The various booths operated by the different church societies had plenty to offer and were quickly sold out. The refreshment booth also did a good business during the day.

The usual horse show drew much attention and here Donald Black was showing his usual enthusiastic interest as a lover of horses. Some fine examples of driving skill were to be seen as well as fine horses.

Something new and which attracted a great deal of interest was the Tractor Rodeo. This was really a test of skill and judgment in driving a tractor. The events were entered by juniors, both boys and girls and also by some of the older men. While it looked simple enough, it proved to be quite hard to do and very few came through with flying colours. The contest consisted of a tractor hitched to a two-wheeled trailor for the juniors and they had to drive both through a measured staked opening without knocking down the stakes or even touching them. After this they had to back the trailer up to the back of a truck in a required fashion. While many of the contestants showed experience in handling a tractor, they lacked judgment when it came to measuring distances and in getting their vehicles through tight spaces. For the senior contestants, the idea was almost the same except that they had a four wheel trailer hitcher behind the tractor.

The contestants could choose their own make of tractor and these were on the grounds, and new models. The results are as follows: Seniors: 1st, Donald Fisher, Hemmingford, Que., (Farmall); 2nd, Donald Hadley, Hemmingford, Que., (Ford); 3rd, Tom Lowden, Franklin Centre, Que., (Ford). Juniors: 1st, Bruce Cairncross, Howick, Que., (International); 2nd, a tie, Glen Hadley and Winston Sample, Hemmingford, Que., (Ford); 3rd, Wayne Hadley, Hemmingford, Que., (Ford); 4th, Ernest Maither, Huntingdon, Que. (Ford).

The swine, sheep and poultry divisions had good quality exhibits, but as in some of the other sections, entries were down. Several changes had been made in the grounds which were for improvement. A wider entrance was made and the ticket booth was at the entrance instead of being on the highway as formerly. This helped to avoid the congestion when peopel were getting their admission tickets. Some of the buildings had been covered with imitation brick and this gave them a much improved look. These improvements have been carried out for several years now and they all have a great influence on the success of this annual fair. The 1953 fair was another successful one and the officials are to be congratulated.

Howick-Huntingdon Ayrshire Club Sale Average Price $249.

An average price of $249.00 was obtained for the cows and bred heifers in the annual sale of Howick-Huntingdon Ayrshire Club at Ormstown, on September 22.

L. A. Lindsay of Portsmouth, Virginia, U.S.A., purchased 13 bred-heifers for a total of $3,095.00 or an average of $238.00. He also purchased 3 heifer calves. Paul Coolley, St. Valentin, Que., paid $370.00 the top price of the sale for the 3 year old heifer Terrace Bank Donalda. The next high priced animal was Clearbrook Barbara Ann, at $350.00. She went to J. Willis McGee, Anderson, South Carolina, U.S.A.

College and Residences Being Built For Brothers In St. Anicet Vicinity

A real estate transaction of considerable significance was completed recently when the home and farm property belonging to the Leslie family just east of St. Anicet was sold to the Brothers of the Order of the Sacred Heart whose headquarters are in Granby, Que. The reported price is near the $25,000.00 mark. The farm itself comprises 250 acres more or less and fronts beautiful Lake St. Francis.

According to reliable information, the Order are starting out to build on and improve the property immediately. They are planning to build a three storey structure on a hill on the south side of Highway No. 3, which will be 250 ft. x 100 ft. The ultimate use of the building will be College and residential facilities for the Brothers. Shovels and bulldozers are already on hand commencing the excavation and leveling work on the property. It is said that the Order are negotiating for the purchase of an adjacent farm owned by a Mr. Dupuis.

Old-Timers Baseball Game On Sunday

This coming Sunday, September 27, an Oldtimers Baseball Game will be played in Cluff's Field when the Oldtime Beavers and the Huntingdon Relics will match their skills in a battle that should prove most interesting. Also on the day's program will be a batting and hitting contest and races for the children. Free ice cream will be passed out to every child present.

There will be no admission charge but a collection will be taken up to help the Ball Club defray expences for the day.

STIFFER PENALTY

EDMONTON, (CP) — Fines on cattle marketed with horns will be increased from $1 to $2 in Alberta. The new penalty goes into effect Sept. 1.

Prize Distribution at Huntingdon High on Friday

Grade I Enrollment Passes 60 Mark — Second Teacher Engaged — More 6-year-olds to Be Accepted

The prize distribution night at Huntingdon High School is to be this Friday at 8.15. Rev. R. S. Beal is to be the speaker for the evening and other prominent persons will be in attendance. The students, principal and staff hope that a good attendance will be on hand for the event.

Total school enrollment is now over 360 and Grade 1 has an enrollment of over 60. To cope with this, Mrs. Mervyn Graham of The Gore, has been engaged as an additional teacher for Grade 1. Grade 1 will be made into two classes and as an aid to solving problems for 1954, the Board has decided to accept children who will be six years of age up to the end of December. The parents of such children are asked to phone the Principal, Dr. H S. Cook, at the school immediately as the class will be started on Monday, Sept. 28th. This means that if you have a child who will be 6 years old between now and the end of December, 1953, you should contact the school at once.

Several new pieces of equipment have been purchased for the school use by the Board. Considerable Physics equipment has been purchased and made available for use; A new electric sewing machine has been installed and also a fitting room for the Household Science classes; A new spirit duplicator for the junior grades has been purchased.

There will be increased sports activities at the school this year and there will be a one-day softball competition at Valleyfield in the near future, sponsored by the C.V.T.A. Basketball is being organized for both the boys and the girls and it is hoped to have several interschool matches during the year. Hockey will be organized for both boys and girls.

The Students Council will again function this year and in due course will hold a magazine subscription campaign similar to that of last year. The money raised from this campaign will be used to provide sporting equipment and the balance will be for social affairs at the school.

On Friday, September 18th, Dr. Hawkins and a group of 25 students from McGill University and Macdonald College, visited the school and watched the proceedings and held discussions.. They are to return again this Thursday, September 24th, when those wishing to meet them, may do so.

John Cunningham Known to Older Residents Athelstan

Was Found Ill by Police in Montreal and Could Not Give Them Any Information

Some of the older residents of Athelstan, Que., regretted to note the passing of the late John Cunningham whose death occurred in Montreal early this month. The deceased was born at St. Chrysostome, Que., and lived for some years with his uncles, Messrs J. and H. McGill at Havelock. He was a frequent guest at the home of the late Mr. and Mrs. William Saunders and family at Athelstan and became well known to friends and neighbors here. The deceased was found by police wandering aimlessly and ill on Gouin Boulevard, last month. They could not discover from him whether he had any relatives or where he came from so he was taken to the infirmary at Bordeau jail for his own safety. He died there on Sept. 5th, and was buried because no relatives could be traced.

According to reports a nephew, Lester Cunningham, who lives in Chicago, arrived in Montreal the past week to claim the body and made arrangements to have it

Daring Robbery at Garage In Huntingdon Friday Night

Thieves Take Safe and Contents From Riverside Motors Reg'd

A daring robbery was executed in Huntingdon over the past weekend. It was either very late Friday evening or very early Saturday morning when thieves broke into the office of Riverside Motors Reg'd on Chateauguay Street. Entrance was gained through a back door. A safe, weighing between 500 and 700 pounds was wheeled out of the office, and the bold lawbreakers made their escape.

Lark Earliest Riser Sparrow Laziest Bird

After sleeping in for three years, the lark has again won its title as the earliest early bird.

About 700 bird watchers throughout the world—including 400 in Britain and a few in the United States—proved that May 24. They got up before the lark just to find out exactly what time it does rise and sing.

The survey was organized by Noble Rollin, head of the World Bird Research station at Glanton, Northumberland, in the north of England.

The previous three surveys showed that the lark, instead of being the earliest riser in the bird world, had become a sluggard. The curlew, wood pigeon, and the pheasant had all sung their dawn chorus before it.

But this time the larke must have heard the rumor going around that it was a sleepyhead. For throughout the Brirish Isles, at least, it and its kinfolk were up at the first glow of dawn.

The earliest lark in Britain sounded off at 3 a.m.

The bird watcher who heard it sing at Northampton, England, reported: "It was so early I nearly dropped mv notebook in amazement."

Mr. Rollin himself noted the order in which birds greeted the day thereabouts. His timings: lark, 3.11 a.m.; redstart, 3.30; song thrush, 3.44; blackbird, 3.47; robin, 3.48; goldcrest, 4.13; willow warbler, 4.29.

The watchers discovered that the laziest bird is the sparrow, "who gets up when it feels like it."

Editorial Notes...

Ninety Years

IT is now 1.15 p.m., September 18, 1953, ninety years from the time when the first edition of the Gleaner was printed by the late Robert Sellar. I fully expect Daniel Macfarlane and Daniel Boyd were standing near the old hand press, similar to the one standing on the lawn before the present Gleaner office to receive one of the first copies printed.

Daniel Macfarlane and Daniel Boyd were stalwart friends and supporters of Robert Sellar the founder; they stood by him in the many trials and tribulations he endured during his many years at the helm of the Gleaner. His years were from 1863 to 1911. From 1911 until 1917 he had his two elder sons, Leslie and Watson with him in business and they conducted the business under the name of Sellar Bros. Robert Sellar was the editorial writer. Watson Sellar left Huntingdon to study law in Regina and a couple of years later in the summer of 1917 Leslie joined the air force. From that date Robert Sellar re-assumed the editorship until the eldest son Leslie returned from active service in January 1919. It can therefore be said Robert Sellar the founder of the Gleaner was its editor for 55 years.

Leslie Sellar died in August 1922, and from that date to December 1924, Watson Sellar and the present editor, who was a younger brother were joint owners. Watson Sellar looked after the editorial and news end of the business. Since December 1924, the Gleaner has been in the hands of the youngest son of its founder.

Today started off by being just like any other business day about the Gleaner office. Only Sid Smith, the news editor, realized it was the 90th anniversary date and that was because he was working on compiling and completing a 90th Anniversary Souvenir booklet. In view of the fact that the employees did not realize that this was a birthday date of importance to the Gleaner, it was my pleasure to so enlighten all the staff. From that moment on, things seemed to just hum about the plant.

The typesetting machines were fast turning out the silver shining lines of type for the Souvenir Booklet. The typesetting machines were being operated by Miss Eva White, Donald MacRae, and Keith Howden. Most of the type for the book was set up by Miss Marceline Bazinet, who is this week away on holidays.

I hear Wm. R. Boyd, grandson of the late Daniel Boyd looking up pictures for the souvenir brochure. The cuts used in the book have been largely by W. R. Boyd. I am going to celebrate the 90th anniversary by having a couple of hours off this afternoon but before I leave Archie Laberge or Robert Martin will be showing me a purple proof of the front cover of the brochure and then the press will be clicking off the covers so that all our paid-in-advance subscribers will have a copy of the completed brochure.

Albert Antoine, who is in charge of the printery will have the staff working on the printing during next week and the brochure will go out with the Sept. 30th edition.

A grand spirit of co-operation has long been accorded the Gleaner by the staff, the correspondents, subscribers and advertisers. If there is any one business in the world that demands united effort, it is that of publishing, so we are naturally very happy to think that such has so prevailed throughout this long period of time.

When the Gleaner 90th Anniversary Brochures are printed; the first copy will be filed away with an accumulation of Gleaner records, the next to Robert G. Sellar, the only grandson of the founder, and who is preparing himself with a view to being the future owner and editor, the next copy I feel should go to Wm. R. Boyd, grandson of the late Daniel Boyd, who watched the first Gleaner come off the press in 1863 and likewise to Danny and George Macfarlane, great-grandsons of the late Daniel Macfarlane we have referred to as a pioneer supporter of the Gleaner.

The First Reponse

THE Gleaner editorial appeal and letters written by the Hospital Honorary Secretary with a view to raising $3,000 for the beautifying of grounds about the Hospital and other incidental expenses is meeting with acceptance. We have learned that several donations will be forthcoming and it appears highly probable the objective will be attained. On Thursday evening the Huntingdon Dutch Club voted that a $10 gift be forwarded to this fund. ($10 is the maximum amount the Dutch Club is permitted to donate toward any appeal).

The following letter speaks for itself and may we all say to Mr. J. W. McConnell, thanks for your most generous offer. The donation, we are quite satisfied will be just as Mr. McConnell intimates in his letter, viz: "This ought to be a "sellar"!

18th September 1953

Dear Mr. Sellar:—

I tried to get you by 'phone immediately upon receipt of your letter of the 14th which only reached me a few minutes ago.

It seems to me you are giving yourself plenty of scope between now and Thanksgiving Day to raise $3,000.00 deficit for the Huntingdon Hospital.

There is little use giving you a contribution unless it is "in aid of the goal". Therefore, let me say that I will contribute the last $1,000.00 to clear up this deficit. This ought to be a "sellar"!

With best wishes,
Yours sincerely,
J. W. McConnell

Irrespective of the amount of money you may feel able to contribute toward this fund for the benefit of the Huntingdon County Hospital, all donations will be appreciated and carefuly spent so as to attain the greatest benefit.

The Official Opening of the Hospital will not take place on Thanksgiving Day, as it has been learned such a date is not acceptable to two men that must, out of courtesy, be present for the occasion. The exact date will be announced as soon as known.

Fire Prevention Week

FIRE Prevention Week has been set this year for the week from October 4th to the 10th. More concentration will be placed on preventing fires during this week and with the hope that such will help to cut down on the number of fires in forthcoming months. The idea is to remove all possible hazards and in this way prevent fires. Actually this is not just one week's job, it is an all-time one.

By far the largest number of fires are caused by carelessness. People are careless where they throw away matches, cigarette ends, pipe ashes, etc. They are careless about their stove pipes and furnaces and chimneys, going through one year after another without giving them proper attention and cleaning. They are careless about the way they overload electric power outlets and the wiring they use. They allow rubbish to accumulate in dangerous places such as attics and basements and often near stove and furnace pipes. They are careless in the use of inflammable liquids, pouring coal oil on fires to get them started; cleaning clothes in the house with danger of open lights.

The above are just a few of the hazards which must be watched for, there are others which commonsense should warn us of. If we take care to get rid of these hazards, there is greater chance that we shall never suffer a fire. That is the whole idea of Fire Prevention Week, to concentrate on getting rid of the hazards that may cause fire. This does not mean in a few isolated places, but everywhere, only by everyone working toward this end can the object be accomplished.

The firemen have a plan in mind to interest the young people in fire prevention, they believe this is the coming citizen and there is need to get started young. With this in view they plan a distribution of material to the schools and perhaps a competition for fire prevention week. They have also prevailed on a number of storekeepers to stress Fire Prevention in their advertisements.

Fire losses in the Town of Huntingdon have been very low for the past several years, but this cannot be said of many other surrounding areas. Farm fires are often bad losses and any hazards that can be removed at these points may mean the difference between having a fire or not. This is very important in view of the fact that no fire fighting services are available to rural dwellers. It would be well if fire extinguishers were kept in easily accessible places to be used if fire should occur. The outlay for fire extinguishers might easily be a saving of barns and buildings that would perhaps be a total loss.

Let us all give serious thought to the hazards of fire and to fire prevention, not just for one week, but all the time.

Picketing The Churches

By LEWIS MILLIGAN

A group of people who had been holding Christian services in temporary buildings in a growing suburban district of Toronto decided to build a church to accommodate their increasing congregation and Sunday School. Being working folk they could not afford the cost of raising such a structure at the present rates and they agreed to use what money they had in purchasing materials and do the work of building themselves.

The work was getting under way when the business agent of the A.F. of L. Bricklayers Union made a speech in Toronto in which he threatened to picket churches for using "unfair labor practices."

The complaint was that the men employed were not working union hours or getting union wage rates. As a result of this, said the labor leader, the Church was getting some "unfortunate advertising," and it was no wonder that the Church and Labor were growing further apart.

When I came to Canada over forty years ago I lived for several years among farmers in Eastern Ontario, where it was a common practice for neighbors to get together and form a "Bee" in "barn-raising." The work was usually directed by an old hand at the job, and the neighbors worked all hours like bees to complete the building in record time.

The same process was followed in erecting a church for the community. An economical way of enlarging a barn was by building a lean-to along each side and another across the rear. The barn then took the form of a Gothic church, with nave, side aisles, choir, and clerestory. It has been suggested that the church, liks the home, was influenced by the barn. The barn certainly came first in the early days and was often used for church services.

When I moved to Toronto it was a common sight to see newly-arrived immigrants working in their spare time to build a home for themselves on the outskirts of the city in what was called "shacktown." Many of these rude structures were later enlarged and developed into modern homes, and I happen to know that at least one immigrant, a mechanic who lived in shack-town, became a prominent labor leader in after years. I can well imagine what he would have said forty years ago if the unions of that day had picketed his building job.

As for the statement by the bricklayers union business agent, that Church and Labor were growing further apart, the answer is that the Church is not a closed shop, but is an open Christian fellowship for all sorts and conditions of men.

There are no fixed dues for membership and the services and ministrations of the Church are free to all. Some labor union leaders may have drifted away from the Church, but union members and their families are connected more or less with local congregations. Even those who do not contribute regularly to church funds expect a clergyman to marry them, baptize their children and bury their dead decently.

The Very Rev. W. E. Jackson, Dean and Rector of Christ Church Cathedral, Hamilton, in replying to the criticism of the business agent of the Bricklayers Union, said: "It is a strange thing that Labor leadership can so easily forget, if indeed it ever knew, that the whole program for social service belong to, is part of, took its rise from, and was encouraged by Christian teaching. In fact social justice has no reality and justification apart from Christianity.

"If Labor deliberately separates itself from the Church, it is merely cutting away its own foundations. In countries where the Church is frowned on or outlawed so also is the freedom it teaches, and Labor should realize that it can only operate where freedom is recognized. The downfall of the Church would be accompanied by the downfall of Labor as well."

Ormstown

Mrs. Margaret Lindsay returned to Hemmingford last week to resume her teaching duties. Mrs. Lindsay spent the summer months with Dr. and Mrs. C. Hyndman and family, Edmonton, Alta., and with Miss Agnes Campbell, Duluth.

Mr. and Mrs. E. F. Gregoire of Toronto have returned home after spending ten days with Mrs. Gregoire's mother, Mrs. Rose Elder.

Mr. and Mrs. Harold Kuhn, Christine and Ricky returned to Montreal after spending a week with Mrs. Elder.

Mr. and Mrs. Archie Beattie of Sutton, Que., were Sunday callers of Mr. and Mrs. D. Beattie and family.

Mr. and Mrs. E. F. Gregoire and Mrs. Rose Elder spent Thursday of the past week with Mr. and Mrs. Bennett Russell, Mooers, N.Y.

The Gore

THE GORE—Recent guests of Mr. and Mrs. Josie Moneypenny and family have been Mr. Orick Pollock, Mr. Ralph Pollock, and Mr. Bert McClellan of Peterborough, Ont., Mr. and Mrs. Harry Moneypenny, Mr. Stanley Moneypenny and Miss Irene Farrel of Montreal.

Miss Roberta Ruddock spent the week-end at the home of her parents, Mr. and Mrs. John Ruddock and Harriet.

Mrs. John Ruddock spent a couple of days the past week visiting with her brother-in-law and sister, Mr. and Mrs. Ken. MacIntosh, Huntingdon.

Mr. and Mrs. J. Ruddock, Misses Roberta and Harriet were Sunday guests of Mr. W. D. Ruddock and Mr. and Mrs. Stanley Ruddock.

Mr. and Mrs. Walter Graham, Walter Jr. and Howard of Montreal were week-end guests of Mr. and Mrs. W. J. Graham.

Franklin Centre Consolidated School Fair

FRANKLIN CENTRE — On Saturday afternoon at the Town Hall, Franklin, a School Fair for pupils who had received Government Seeds in the Spring was held. Mr. L. Beaudin, agronomist, judged the exhibits and gave many helpful hints for next year's Show. The results are as follows:

Carrots—1 Mary Kosturik; 2 Bobby Morgan; 3 Gordon Lindsay.

Beets—1 Norman Moneypenny; 2 Gordon Lindsay; 3 Jimmy Barr.

Cucumbers—1 Norma Dunn; 2 Jimmy Barr; 3 Winston Rennie.

Onions—1 Winston Rennie; 2 Billy Douglas; 3 Mary Kosturik.

Corn—1 June Brooks; 2 Jimmy Barr; 3 ——

Cosmos—1 Pat McMillan; 2 June Brooks; 3 Norma Dunn.

Petunias—1 Norma Dunn; 2 Pat McMillan; 3 Winston Rennie.

Asters—1 Norma Dunn; 2 Norman Moneypenny; 3 Margaret Manning.

Snapdragon—1 Winston Rennie; 2 Billy Douglas.

Mixed Bouquet—1 Winston Rennie; 2 Margaret Barr; 3 June Brooks.

Mr. and Mrs. J. T. Thistlewood of St. Laurent visited the latter's parents, Mr. and Mrs. J. Ross.

Mr. and Mrs. W. D. Jack and family spent the week-end with the latter's parents, Mr. and Mrs. T. Ross. Saturday visitors at the same home were Mr. and Mrs. Geo. Jack of Montreal, Mr. and Mrs. J. Ballantyne and family of N.D.G. and Mrs. J. Martindale of Short Hills, New Jersey.

Labor Day callers at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Willard Blair, were Mrs. Howard Hunter, Miss Betty Hunter, Mrs. Howard Holcomb, Brenda, Janice and Gerry, of Chateaugay, N.Y.

W.I. Meeting

The Franklin Centre W.I. met at the home of Mrs. Frank Rowe for the September meeting with a large attendance.

Following the usual manner of opening, the roll-call was answered by naming a country and giving one of its customs.

The School Fair was discussed and the date was set for September 12 to be held in the Town Hall.

A very pleasing item on the program was a demonstration on smocking by Mrs. Glen Waller. Mrs. Waller had a number of finished dresses and also a stamped design to learn on. The president gave a very hearty vote of thanks for her kindness in coming.

The guest speaker was Mrs. Petch, of Hemmingford, and she gave a very interesting account of the A.C.W.W. meeting which was held in Toronto and which she had had the pleasure of attending. Her talk was much enjoyed, especially since some of the members had met the delegates at the luncheon in Huntingdon.

Mrs. E. Lindsay reported that the Book Mobile is to be at the School on September 15, but as it is rather a busy season now, this was left over until a later date. Mrs. R. J. Blair read an article from the Macdonald Farm Journal entitled "For the Ladies".

At the close of the meeting, delicious refreshments were served by the hostess, assisted by Mrs. A. Rowe and Mrs. J. Rowe.

Aubrey Riverfield

Calf Club Fair

AUBREY-RIVERFIELD — The annual fair of the Howick Calf Club which was held at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Chester Orr on Saturday, Sept. 19, brought to Riverfield many interested spectators, and friends of the Calf-Club members. This event, held at the Orrs' for the past twenty years, has become a most popular gathering for all those interested in Calf Club work. Among the many visitors were Hon. and Mrs. R. R. Ness, Mr. and Mrs. Andrew Bennie, Mr. John Moxley of Macdonald College, Mr. and Mrs. John Rennie of Lacolle (Mr. Rennie judged at the event); Mr. Colin Muirhead, Macdonald College Journal, Mr. Waterston, Family Herald & Weekly Star, Mr. Frank Napier and Mr. Robert Sellar of the Gleaner, Mr. and Mrs. Parker and son Walter, of Montreal.

Mr. and Mrs. Wm. Easton of Belleville spent a few days last week as guests of Mr. and Mrs. Gordon Easton.

Saturday visitors of Mr. and Mrs. Russell Gruer were Mr. and Mrs. Allen Willard and their sons, Keith and Bobby, of St. Laurent.

Mr. and Mrs. Taylor and daughter, Jean, spent the week-end at their cottage.

Mr. and Mrs. Lambert and Mr. and Mrs. Percy have taken up residence in the house recently vacated by Mr. and Mrs. Ewart Orr.

Mrs. Dick Tanner, Lorne and Lorraine, of Toronto, visited Mr. and Mrs. T. E. Robertson during the past week-end.. Mrs. Janet Reddick, who spent the past few weeks at Belleville and Toronto, accompanied the Tanners to Riverfield.

Mr. and Mrs. Harold Robertson and family motored to Waterloo, Que., on Sunday, where they visited Mr. and Mrs. Tom Wilkinson.

Mr. and Mrs. J. A. Jones, Miss Peggy Jones and Mr. Hugh Jones were Sunday guests of Mr. and Mrs. R. C. Bunbury.

Mr. and Mrs. Hiram Reddick, Mr. and Mrs. James Anderson and Miss Mildred Hay are spending a few days at St. Catharines, Ont.,. and expect to return via Belleville.

Guests of Mrs. George Robb for the past week were Mrs. J. Allen and Mr. William DeField, of Warehouse Point, Conn.

Mrs. D. E. Black entertained at tea on Friday.

Mr. and Mrs. J. S. Carmichael and Mr. and Mrs. Stewart Carmichael were dinner guests of Mr. and Mrs. Bruce Hamilton of Ormstown.

Mr. and Mrs. Fred Cleaver, who for the past five years have been living near Riverfield, have moved to a new home at Havelock.

Many local farmers and their families were exhibitors or spectators at the recent Havelock Fair.

The Week At Ottawa...

OTTAWA, (CP) — The seven per cent, $38,500,000-a-year freight rate increase of last March is here to stay.

The Cabinet in a three-hour meeting last week turned down the request of eight provinces—all but Ontario and Quebec—to rescind it. But two things the provinces asked for—uniformity of accounts and equalization of freight rates—are being considered by the Transport Board.

The Cabinet deferred decision on the Canadian Pacific Airlines application to operate a cargo service between Montreal and Vancouver. Agreement to the application would end Trans-Canada Air Lines' monopoly of the east-west transcontinental services.

Cabinet Changes

Prime Minister St. Laurent announced a small reshuffle inside the cabinet, bringing a new figure into the government ranks. Jean Lesage, 41, (Montmagny-L'Islet) becomes minister of resources and development. Hon. Robert Winters, 43, who has been resources minister since 1950, becomes Works Minister in succession to Alphonse Fournier who was appointed to the exchequer court bench before the August election. Other appointments:

Robert Bryce, Deputy Finance Minister, will be clerk of the Privy Council and secretary of the Cabinet.

Gordon Robertson, assistant clerk of the Privy Council, will be Deputy Resources Minister.

Maj.-Gen. H. A. Young, Deputy Resources Minister, will be Deputy Public Works Minister, succeeding E. P. Murphy who is retiring.

Prime Minister St. Laurent said he hopes Premier Lanier of France will be able to visit Ottawa when he comes over to the United States soon. President Eisenhower has been invited here for about the same time, if he can make it. Mr. St. Laurent's own world trip to the Antipodes will start in February and last five weeks.

Grain Payments Soon

The Government came up with a new crop forecast and the announcement of a $100,000,000 Wheat Board payment to farmers on the 1952-53 crop.

Many Prairie farmers will need the money to tide them over the coming months.

Britain, Canada's largest wheat market, still isn't showing interest in wheat at a maximum price of $2.05 a bushel, and last month Canada's exports under the International Wheat Agreement were only 12,000,000 bushels, a fifth of the August 1952 amount.

The Wheat Board payment includes $64,000,000 covering an interim payment of 12 cents a bushel on all grades shipped to the board, and $36,000,000 to cover the close-out of the 1952-53 oats and barley pool.

Wheat cheques will start moving out on Oct. 1, followed by oats and barley payments. All payments will be completed by the end of the year.

Trade Minister Howe, who announced this, gave no indication of any special government help to encourage farm storage. It now seems there'll be just a little less to store. The Bureau of Statistics has scaled down its Aug. 1 estimate of the wheat crop by 9,525,000 bushels.

Its Sept. 1 estimate, modified by the lower production now expected in Manitoba and Alberta because of late maturing, forecasts 594,268,000 bushels. This would still be the second largest harvest on record.

Stocks of Canadian wheat July 31 were estimated at 362,700,000 bushels. Farmers are expected to harvest their second largest crops of barley (273,005,000 bushels) and rye (29,300,000 bushels) and the biggest crop of soybeans on record (4,800,000 bushels).

Defence: Little Saving

Next year's defence budget is likely to call for the same amount again—around 2,000,000,000.

The Government may try for a small reduction—say around $100,000,000—but that would have little effect on the individual taxpayer.

There will be a smaller outlay for such primary things as factories and airfields, but production of fighting equipment has to go on.

However, there is a chance of a substantial cut the year after.

Cost of Eating

The average family in five major Canadian cities spends $23.91 on food each week.

So says the Bureau of Statistics which made a survey in the metropolitan areas of Halifax, Montreal, Toronto, Winnipeg and Vancouver in the last four months of 1952.

The average size of families was 3.18 persons giving an average food expenditure of $7.52 for each. Biggest item was meat—$1.68 apiece.

More Houses

Total of 46,319 housing units were completed in the first seven months of the year, and starts made on 58,580. Completion rate is 40 per cent higher than last year's; starts are 33 per cent more.

One Time, Please

The Brotherhood of Locomotive Firemen and Enginemen want all Canada to go on daylight-saving time next summer. The way it has been with some areas on standard time and others on fast time has caused "absolute confusion", they say.

Round Byre AND Ring

By Frank Napier

Ninety Years Ago

On September 18, 1863, The Huntingdon Gleaner was established by Robert Sellar, an emigrant Scot who came to Huntingdon after a few years in Toronto. That is 90 years ago, a long period in the life of a community or a district of which The Gleaner may well be said to have been an integral part.

Since The Gleaner has been that district's leading publication — for several decades its only publication — it has contributed in a very material way towards the progress and attainments of the farmers of the District of Beauharnois or Chateauguay Valley, particularly so the counties of Huntingdon and Chateauguay, as livestock breeders. The Gleaner is of course concerned with the many phases of the life and industry of the district is serves, but, in this instance we are only concerned with the livestock industry. Albeit, one of the most important industries with the farmers of this district, not only as producers of livestock but of milk as well.

It is of course true that it was "the blood, sweat and, sometimes, tears", of the farmers themselves that made this district the great dairy cattle and milk producing district it now is; has been for several decades. But through the years The Gleaner has furnished the medium which has, to quite a large extent, advertised the achievements of its district livestock breeders.

The late Robert Sellar started the original Gleaner with little or no financial backing, so to speak; had many long, lean years to contend with. During these struggling years, however, he had built-up a National-wide reputation as a country newspaper editor; albeit a fearless one insofar as his editorials and editorial policies were concerned.

Robert Sellar's sons actually commenced the extension policies which led up to the present firm which prints The Gleaner and several other publications, also a huge volume of other printings, but they are more or less contemporary history. Nevertheless, Robert Sellar laid the foundations from which evolved that considerable sized printing and publishing firm.

Havelock Fair

While the Ayrshires "stole the show" at Havelock Fair, insofar as dairy cattle were concerned, there was nevertheless a good display of Jerseys and Holsteins. Likewise, a small but select showing of animals of several beef cattle breeds. Since it was their annual "Red and White" Show the report concerning the Ayrshires at Havelock is given in another section of this issue. However, here are a few of the highlights in the other breed sections.

Jersey Section

While the idea of a Jersey "Parish Show" at Havelock Fair this year was abandoned some time ago, there was nevertheless a pretty good show of Jerseys. The exhibitors being W. McEwen, Ormstown, Wm. Hope, Franklin Centre, E. E. Brown, Huntingdon and J. E. Sproule, Franklin Centre, between them they presented 45 head which were judged by J. D. McCaig, Chief Inspector, Advanced Registry for Dairy Bulls.

W. T. McEwen had the senior and grand champion male in Wendybrook Beacon Prince, also the senior and grand champion female in Folleigh Kathleen, first prize aged cow, dry. The reserves in both instances also went to W. T. McEwen's first prize aged cow in milk, Honeyholm Valiant Grace. W. T. McEwen also showed the junior champion female while the reserve champion female was shown by Wm. Hope.

E. E. Brown won 4 first, 4 second and 2 third prizes.

Holstein Show

The Holstein show at Havelock was not so large as that held this year at Huntingdon, but in the latter instance it was the district Club's "Black and White" Show. Nevertheless there was quite a nice show of Holsteins at Havelock this year. Some 60 head from 4 herds were on exhibit, with J. D. Lang, Brysonville, as judge.

Despite the fact that their well-known champions, Rockwood Canary Rocket and Garrymede Connie Pabst, were not out at Havelock, K. McRae & Son, Howick, won most of the firsts in the classes in which they had entries; also first on senior and junior herds, respectively. Incidentally Rockwood Canary Rocket and Garrymede Canary Pabst are being prepared for the Royal Winter Fair.

R. E. Blair, Franklin Centre, showed the senior and grand champion male while the senior and grand champion cow was shown by H. Robertson, Riverfield.

Other Breeds

We did not have an opportunity to look over the other breeds when same were being judged. However, it would seem that the Scotch Shorthorn, Dual Purpose Shorthorn and Aberdeen Angus breeds were worthily represented by small exhibits. A. B. Neilson of Glenelm had forward a small but select group of his Scotch Shorthorns.

The Howick Calf Club

The Howick Ayrshire 4H Calf Club held its annual show at the farm of Chester Orr, Riverfield, Que., on Saturday, September 19.

Organized as it was in 1931 or 1932, it would appear that this is not only one of the oldest existing Calf Clubs but that the show staged by same is the oldest of its kind in Ayrshire circles in Canada.

The first two shows were held in the Church Shed, the third in the Curling Rink, but the nineteen subsequent shows have all been held in Chester Orr's permanent pasture field, or paddock. In the latter respect, we believe there is a real human interest story. Year by year Chester Orr made the field available, and in that respect we may say that it is a strikingly scenic spot bordered as it is at the top by the road into the farm, on the far side by the highway, on the bottom by the English River, and on the right hand side by the grove of trees which border the Orr garden and lawns. Each year Mrs. Orr has thrown open her lawns and house for the mid-day luncheon, prize awarding and other exercises pertaining to other than the show proper.

A few years ago Chester and Mrs. Orr decided to sell their farm and retire from active work. That is all except their house, garden and lawns. But, the deeds on the farm included a clause which ensured, in effect, that so long as the Howick Calf Club existed the Paddock concerned would be available, free of charge, to that Club for its annual show.

It may also be of interest to note that the Club has been most fortunate indeed in its Club Leaders. Its first Leader and Local Organizer was Douglas A. Ness, of Burnside Farms, then came, for a number of years, Archie F. Roy, of Balquhidder Farm, incidentally one of the original members of the Club. Archie Roy was followed by Robert ("Bobby") Ness of Terrace Bank Farm, who has filled that position for a number of years and who was one of the most brilliant Club members of his day.

During these years also, this Club has had the fatherly guidance of several Dominion Department of Agriculture officials, including Major S. J. Boily, who was largely responsible for the initiation of Calf Club work in the Province of Quebec. During Major Boily's tenure of office J. P. Fleury was also actively interested in Calf Club work, and during the years he has been in charge of Production Service (Dominion Department of Agriculture) work in the Province of Quebec, he has continued his interest in Calf work. However during the past several years the Calf Club activities of Production Service, in the English speaking Club districts of Quebec, have been supervised by Don Robertson, one of Mr. Fleury's assistants. It therefore was that Don Robertson was Master of Ceremonies, along with Bobbie Ness, at this year's Howick Calf Club Show.

As an indication of the virility of the Howick Calf Club we may say that 18 boys and girls showed their calves, either in the junior or senior calf classes; that 11 of them showed their senior or junior yearling heifers which had been their Club calves of last year ;seven of them showed two year old heifers, their Club calves of two years ago; while 7 showed cows which had been their calves of several years before then. Seven of them showed groups comprised of their present year's calves and former Club calves.

Unfortunately several of the present members have now reached their Calf Club age limit, but it would seem that there are quite a number of presently under-age prospective recruits. In the special class for boys and girls under Club age, fifteen boys and girls paraded. Moreover, with but three or four exceptions, the calves they showed were not Club calves.

We are not aware of the names of the various Club secretaries, but the present secretary is Muriel Cairncross of Sunny Pine Farm.

Late W. Elmo Ashton

The many friends and acquaintances of W. Elmo Ashton will regret to learn, as we did that he passed away on Saturday last. It would appear that he had undergone an emergency operation, but we are not aware at present how long he survived that operation.

Anyway, there has passed on a great figure in the livestock world. A man who was eminently well liked by adherents of all breeds of cattle, even although he was an ardent Jersey breeders and booster of same.

Judged Championship Show

D. E. McCaig, Secretary of the Quebec, Jersey Cattle Association and Fieldman of the Canadian Jersey Cattle Club for Eastern Ontario, Quebec and the Maritimes, judged the Jersey classes at the Western Fair, London, Ont., last week. That is the Jersey Championship Show for Western Ontario. The 185 head there exhibited were comprised of winners at the various District Jersey Parish Shows held at various points in an area which stretches from Brooklin in York County over the balance of the counties which comprise Western Ontario.

Some two weeks before, D. E. McCaig had also judged the Jerseys at the Central Nova Scotia Exhibition, at which show his brother, John D., also judged the Ayrshires.

Jerseys for New York

D. E. Black, Aubrey, Que., purchased 9 head at the Maxwelton Jersey Sale for a client, G. R. White, Saratoga Springs, N.Y., and in order to fill his order he purchased 4 more head of Jerseys in this district. Two of the latter were purchased from James Rodger, Ormstown, and 1 each from Mrs. R. L. McCaig & Sons and W. T. McEwen, both of Ormstown.

Bull Calf Sold

G. A. Roy & Son, Oakburn Farm, Howick, reports the sale of the Ayrshire senior bull calf Oakburn Style Master to Ray McMillan, Franklin Centre. This calf is sired by Cherry Bank Royal Leader and is from the "Excellent" cow Oakburn Barr Pet.

Wedding

ORKISZEWSKI-RYAN

Tall lighted tapers and multi-colored gladioli adorned the altar and sanctuary of St. Roman's Church, when Rev. Father Paul Grondin officiated at the marriage of Helena Margaret Ryan, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Daniel S. Ryan of Hemmingford and Joseph Orkiszewski, Tulsa, Okla., son of Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Orkiszewski of Brooklyn, N.Y.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride wore a grey suit, with navy blue picture hat and matching accessories and an orchid corsage. Her sister, Miss May Ryan, bridesmaid wore a blue suit, with red accessories, and a corsage of white roses. The bride's mother's dress was navy blue, with a red hat and accessories and a corsage of red roses.

Mr. Ralph Sherman of New York City was groomsman. Ronald Fleming and Raymond Leahy, Plattsburg, were ushers.

Following the reception at Hotel L'Hermine attended by forty guests, the happy couple left for a short wedding trip before leaving for Tulsa, Okla., where they will reside.

Guests attended from New York City, Tulsa, Okla., Toronto, Ont., Plattsburg, N.Y., Montreal and Aubrey, Que.

Friend of Birds Has Many Patients

YORKTON, Sask., (CP) — To many boys and girls in this area Mrs. Jake Meekma is known as "the bird lady".

Most of Yorkton's sick or injured birds eventually find their way to the Meekma home. Almost every week during the summer, and frequently during the winter, Mrs. Meekma answers the door to be greeted by the remark: "We have a hurt bird".

She applies tiny splints to wings and legs, bathes cuts and wounds, and keeps the birds warm.

Her biggest task is to obtain food. "Swallows and martins will take only live insects, for instance, and it is quite a chore to go hunting water insects for snipes", she says. Sometimes she suggests that the youngsters take the bird back to where they found it so it can fend for itself.

Her most frequent "patients" are robins. She has cared for more than a dozen robins this summer. She has also tended wrens, bluejays, thrushes, orioles, grackles, hummingbirds and flickers.

Mrs. Meekma's home is surrounded by trees that shelter many birds, and a large colony of purple martins make their home in the back yard.

"Sometimes", she said, "they eat the queerest things. Like that blamed goldfinch who ate all the flowers off my ladyslippers."

Fish Tags Record Strange Journeys

Fish are finloose creatures, and once they take it into their heads to go wandering there's no saying where they may make their next stop. Proof of this comes daily to the Quebec Biological Bureau of the Department of Game and Fisheries in the shape of returned tags from fishes released to improve the fish populations of rivers and other watercourses.

A Montreal angler, A. Marleau, was fishing in the port of Montreal when he hooked a 19-inch, 2-pound dore which, as it turned out, had been tagged in Vermont and wandered into Canada through the islands of Lake Champlain.

How a sturgeon tagged by the Quebec Biological Bureau, at the Ile Juillet in the St. Lawrence, weighing 6 pounds, was caught 8 years later in Ontario weighing 19½ pounds, is the story told by the tag returned to the Bureau by George Vanston of Mallorytown, Ontario. He caught it in July this year. It was released in June, 1945. It had grown from 30 to 42 inches in length.

Listen now to the story of three fish that stayed near home. Fernand Burelle, of Beloeil, Vercheres County, went fishing in May and June along the Richelieu River, which borders his town. In that period, at spots not many miles apart, he caught three tagged dore, all of which had been released a year before at Missisquoi Bay which, considering this fish's capacity for taking long hikes, is a mere strolling distance away.

A reward goes with the return of these tages; the Biological Bureau is glad thus to learn more about the habits of fish. What anglers appreciate even more, however, is the fact that they also receive a typewritten statement of where the fish was released, how much it then weighed and other facts of interest.

SURVIVES WILD RIDE

SALMON ARM, B.C., (CP) — A large bulldozer driven by Bryon Carter rolled 700 feet down the steep slope of Quest Mountain. Carter walked away unhurt.

Meets Pen Pal For First Time

Montreal — An 18-year-old lad from London, Eng., ended a visit to Canada with a promise to return to a pen-pal sweetheart in Vancouver in two years.

He is John Battenbury, a member of the Rhodes Trust Educational Tour for British high school boys, which passed through CNR Central Station recently for Quebec City, where the group embarked for Britain after a two-week visit in eastern Canada.

During the tour, John saw his pen-pal, Glenda Arnold, for the first time since he was introduced to her by mail some four years ago. Glenda travelled from Vancouver to Toronto to meet him.

Rally Day Service at St. Andrew's

CHATEAUGUAY — Officers, teachers and pupils of St. Andrew's Sunday School were welcomed at the Sunday morning service by Rev. R. H. McColl who was assisted in the Rally Day Service by the Superintendent, Mr. David Reid and Madeleine L'Ecuyer, who told the children story.

Mr. McColl took as the basis of his talk Luke V: 3 and told some interesting stories of his work and life aboard the "Thomas Crosley."

The choir under the direction of Mrs. Eric Smith, led in the service of praise.

Evening Services

Evening Services are now being held and Mr. McColl, in a series of sermons is taking up the Apostles' Creed, the first sermon entitled "I believe in God" was given Sept. 14, and last Sunday night "I believe in Jesus Christ" proved helpful and inspirational.

Miss Elinor Watt presided at the organ.

Group II, W.A. Entertains

A Dessert Bridge under the auspices of Group II, of the Woman's Association was held Wednesday afternoon at the home of Mrs. Henry Cassidy with Mrs. Leonard Booth and Mrs. James Webster as refreshment conveners.

I.O.D.E.

A Military Whist sponsored by the Julius Richardson Chapter I.O.D.E. was held in the Julius Richardson School Auditorium on Friday night in aid of the Bursary Fund, with Mrs. Jim Johnson, general convener.

The regent, Mrs. E. R. Richardson, welcomed the guests. The Standard was carried to the platform by Mrs. R. L. Craik and the National Anthem was sung, with Mrs. L. G. Smith at the piano.

Cards were played at 30 tables. During intermission, soft drinks and ice-cream were sold. Prizes were presented by the Regent to the winners. The first prize went to the players at the table captained by Mrs. L. H. Melville with 33 flags, while those at the second table with Mrs. I. W. Gilbert had 32 flags to their credit.

A pleasing ceremony followed the distribution of prizes, when Mrs. Hugh Milmine presented Mrs. Mary Walcot, the former post-mistress at the Basin, with a bill-fold containing a sum of money and Mr. Hugh Milmine presented her with two beautiful lamps from the residents of the Basin and Chateauguay Heights. These gifts were tokens of the esteem in which Mrs. Walcot, who had served the community faithfully for so many years, was held.

In spite of her great surprise Mrs. Walcot fittingly expressed her thanks.

Mr. and Mrs. Ivor Jones left Friday night for Belleville, Ont., where they were week-end guests of their son-in-law and daughter, Flying Officer and Mrs. Kenneth L. Jackson and attended the Air Force Day Exercises at Trenton, Ont., on Saturday.

Mr. John Maxwell of Inverness, Que., was a guest during the past week at the home of his brother-in-law and sister, Mr. and Mrs. James Lang.

Mrs. George Hurditch who has been vacationing in Atherley and Hamilton, Ont., spent a week here as a guest of Mr. and Mrs. William Mitchell, en route to her home in New York City.

WEDDING
CHAVE-GOODFELLOW

The marriage of Helen Elise, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John T. Goodfellow of Woodlands, Que., to Mr. Richard William Chave, son of Mr. and Mrs. Bertram William Chave, also of Woodlands, Que., took place at three o'clock on Saturday afternoon, Sept. 19, 1953, in St. Andrew's United Church, Chateauguay Basin, Que., Rev. R. H. McColl officiating. Mrs. W. J. Davidson played Lohengrin's Wedding March and soft music throughout the ceremony. Autumn shades of Gladioli decorated the church.

The bride, given in marriage by her father, wore an original gown of white corded silk embroidered in pearls at the yoke and hemline. Her veil of tulle illusion was held in place by a pearl-embroidered crown. She carried a semi-cascade bouquet of pure white gladioli.

Mrs. John W. Goodfellow, as matron of honour, wore a street-length frock of Royal blue velveteen cut in princess lines and carried a bouquet of gladioli in autumn shades.

Miss Elizabeth Chave, sister of the bridegroom, Miss Grace McFee, Miss Joan Parkin, and Miss Joan Collum, as bridesmaids, wore street length gowns of velveteen, also on princess lines and in autumn shades of rust, brown, green and gold and matching bandeaux with chapel veils and carried arm bouquets of Gladioli.

Mr. Norman Richardson, Montreal acted as best man and the ushers were Mr. John W. Goodfellow of Woodlands, Messrs Wilfred Eagle, James Groggan and Ronald Burns, all of Montreal.

Mrs. Goodfellow, mother of the bride, was dressed in a street length gown of copper velvet with brown accessories and she wore a corsage of Talisman Roses.

Mrs. Chave, mother of the bride groom, wore a street length gown of Dior blue silk with blush pink accessories and had a spray of Rubin Lilies pinned to her hand bag.

The reception was held on the lawn of the bride's parents home, Lakeshore Road, Woodlands, where autumn flowers were used as decorations. The bride's table was centered with a four-tiered wedding cake and white tapers in silver candelabra.

The toast to the bride was proposed by Mr. Angus W. Ogilvy and responded to by the bridegroom. Mr. Norman Richardson proposed the toast to the bridal attendants and to the parents, Mr. and Mrs. Goodfellow and Mr. and Mrs. Chave.

Later the bride and groom left by car for their wedding trip to Virginia. For travelling, the bride wore a brown tweed suit and coat to match with brown accessories and a corsage of white carnations.

Among the out of town guests were: Miss Eleanor Gilchrist, Mr. and Mrs. C. J. Lynde and family and Mr. and Mrs. G. G. Bennett all of Toronto, Ont., Mr. and Mrs. B. R. Muir, Como, Que., Mr. Ronald Kerr, Mr. Ian Kerr, Miss Alison Kerr of Montreal, Mr. and Mrs. Stewart Mercer, Montreal, Mr. and Mrs. Edward A. Williamson and sons of Lakeside, Que., Mr. and Mrs. George Douglas Goodfellow, Town of Mount Royal, Mrs. William Kydd of Montreal, Mr and Mrs. G. Edward McLean and family of Westmount, Que., and Mrs. Olive Goodall of Ormstown, Que.

Bandsmen who have joined the Reserve Army unit at Valleyfield attended a parade there last night (Tuesday) - - - The parade was part of a recruiting drive - - - Most of the bandsmen now have complete uniforms, i.e.: battledress winter; those who had complete outfits were in uniforms — others, missing any part, were ordered to appear in civvies - - - Bandsmen are pleased to have Jos. Forget back with his E-flat horn after his lengthy illness and long period of recuperation - - - several members of the third section are making rapid progress and will soon join the main body, among whom are: Carman Stark with a clarinet; two Lazure boys, one with a trombone and one on bass horn; Russell Paul, clarinet - - - Laurie Smith, solo cornet, is on forced absence due to being transferred from Howick's Bank of Commerce to Sutton — members hope his next move will be nearer Huntingdon - - - the '53 two-tone sports coupe that's parked outside the Masonic Temple on band nights belongs to trombonist Melvin Harrigan — nothing but the best for that boy - - - - Bandsmen requested to hand in their share of cost of heating the practice rooms, in full, to Lorne McIntyre at Monday night's practice.

At an executive meeting of Huntingdon Citizens' Band, held on Friday evening at the home of the president, Mr. Irvin McWhinnie, it was reluctantly decided that a date be set to make a house-to-house canvass for funds in support of the Band.

Simple as this sounds, it was not an easy decision to arrive at. As will be remembered, back in 1951 the Band made a financial drive in order to purchase uniforms and help cover other expenses. It was thought, then, that after each member had paid for his instrument, uniforms had been obtained, music bought, etc., that all would be clear sailing in the future and Huntingdon would have a self-supporting band.

Since then, part of this dream has materialized — Huntingdon has a band, and a good one too; but that's where the dream ends.

For some months past, the band has been operating by skimping on music and other necessities and cutting costs to the bone. Today the Band is not only penniless — it owes one hundred and fifty dollars.

When the Band was started, four members backed a sizeable note at a local bank in order to get the ball rolling and a band started. At the time, these four members were more than a little hesitant about backing the note. Now, again, the band is in desperate need of money immediately. These four members were at the executive meeting on Friday evening and again considered the advisability of securing a loan — they reached a unanimous decision: they had done their part in starting the band and had done their best since to keep it going, but due to added responsibilities and personal reasons, did not feel like backing a note for any further loans on behalf of the band.

The only alternatives left were to decide on a fund-raising campaign or ask local businessmen to back a note for at least a thousand dollars. Or pack up the instruments and forget about a band.

The bandsmen don't want to quit. The townsfolk have been loud in their praise of the band and for that reason it is felt Huntingdonians are proud of their band and want to keep it going.

The week of October 5th to 10th, Monday through Saturday, will decide the issue, as that will be Band Week in Huntingdon. Bandsmen will call on each family in town that week. If you want to keep Huntingdon Citizens' Band going, please have your donation ready. A dollar from each family is the objective, although all donations will be gratefully accepted. Each donation of one dollar or over will be acknowledged in the October 14th issue of the Gleaner.

Out-of-town friends who wish to make a donation may do so by mail to 'Huntingdon Citizens' Band, P.O. Box 380, Huntingdon'. Cheques or money orders should be made payable to 'Huntingdon Citizens' Band'.

In another section of this newspaper appears an advertisement re. Band Week. In next week's issue will appear a more detailed account re. the Band's activities and data relating to personnel as well as reasons for needing the money. For local people who do not need to be reminded of the services the Band has performed since its inception, let it suffice to state now that no municipal or town band is self-supporting. All bands of the calibre of Huntingdon, such as Valleyfield, Beauharnois, Granby, etc., in the province of Quebec, as well as hundreds in Ontario and many others in Quebec, receive annual grants, from their city fathers, of up to $10,000! Towns smaller than Huntingdon and of less importance support their bands — needless to say, the money is that of the taxpayers; in order to accomplish this in Huntingdon, taxes, in all probability, would have to be raised instead of lowered as was accomplished here recently.

It is hoped that the citizens of Huntingdon, who helped the band so nobly before, will again give generously during Band Week, Oct. 5-10. The bandsmen do not relish the idea of asking for money at your door; actually, their calls represent a service to each householder — if the Band is to keep going.

Tenth Wedding Anniversary

Mr. and Mrs. Harry Angell were pleasantly surprised on Friday evening, September 18th, when their families arrived to wish them best wishes on their 10th wedding anniversary. After playing a number of games of cards, delicious refreshments were served, including a birthday cake for the bride, Saturday being her birthday.

Jack Young and Roy Angell expressed the best wishes of the families and friends and presented the happy couple with several lovely gifts. "Harry and Isabel" thanked them for their kind wishes and gifts.

Ormstown

Ormstown Study Club

ORMSTOWN — About 125 people attended the opening session of the Ormstown Study Club on Wednesday evening when a most entertaining program was offered.

A Mock Parliament was enacted when the Prime Minister — Mr. Oscar Wing was supported by — Mr. Adam McNeil — Minister of Public Works; Dr. G. L. Sutton — Minister of Health; Mrs. M. A. Gartshore, Minister of Education; Mr. C. V. Curtiss — Minister of Trade and Commerce; Mr. Eric Purdie — Minister of Finance; Mr. Keith Greig — Minister of Transport; Mr. Alan Hooker — Minister of Agriculture.

The opposition was very ably led by Mrs. Dorothea Davidson honorable member from Peebles. Other constituencies represented on the opposition were — Mr. Arthur White of New Scotland; Dr. M. R. Stalker honorable member from Bullfrog Hollow; Mrs. Alan Hooker, representing the constituency of Foxdale; Mr. Thomas Duncan of Marblestone; Mr. Stewart Roy of the district of Bankville; Mr. Stanley Gage of Geddes Hill; and Mr. John K. Dickson from Balsam Lodge.

Parliament was opened in the traditional manner when the speaker was escorted by pages Daril Lang and Donald McCormick, with the sergeant-at-arms, Mr. Allan Cavers, carrying the mace. Mr. Ronald Duncan was the clerk of the court and Mr. Douglas Gartshore, the Hansard reporter.

Both parties were supported by the audience, divided fairly equally between the government and opposition.

Ronald Duncan, court clerk read the bill in hand — that the sum of $72,000.00 be voted for the purpose of draining the Frog Pond known as the Martin Creek, into the Chateauguay river east of Ormstown Village; the building of a dyke at the point where the United Church driveway crosses the creek; this dyke to be of sufficient height to hold back flood waters; the raising of the creek bed and adjoining lands between the dyke and Chateauguay St., sufficiently to provide drainage in an easterly direction and to develop this area as a park for the beautification and improvement of the village. Total cost of the project to be paid for by a tax to be levied on the taxpayers of the Municipality of Ormstown Village.

The ensuing debate created much interest and the ridiculous suggestions and impromptu riot provided a great deal of entertainment.

The speaker, Mr. Eric King, kept the house in order, and on one occasion only, was a member removed from the house by the sergeant-at-arms.

The vote taken resulted in a victory for the opposition.

Mr. John K. Dickson president, welcomed all members and prospective members and outlined the courses to commence at the second session. Painting for Pleasure, again under the direction of Mrs. G. McCrimmon of Huntingdon will be offered during the entire course. Mrs. Gordon Elliott will be in charge of the Typing, Mr. Stanley Gage of the High School Staff will conduct a course in Public Speaking. Four evenings will be devoted to Square and Folk Dancing with Mrs. Jacobs of Macdonald College, the instructor. Woodworking is also being offered under the guidance of Mr. A. White and Mr. A. Wilson. Music Appreciation with Mrs. K. Farquharson and sewing with Miss Elizabeth Campbell will round out a very balanced program.

Mr. Francois Cleyn of Huntingdon on the Textile Industry and Mrs. William Meikle on "Impressions of the Coronation", will address the combined section two consecutive evenings.

The Club will be directed by the following executive in 1953:—

President: Mr. John K. Dickson; Vice President: Mrs. Willa Hooker; Secretary: Mrs. Allan Cavers; Treasurer: Mr. Thomas Duncan. Executive Committee: Mrs. Wm. Hooker, Mr. J. K. Campbell. Advisory Committee: Mrs. Ward Rember, Mr. E. A. King. Programme Committee: Mr. Gerald Duncan, Mrs. J. Anderson, Mrs. Keith Greig, Mrs. A. W. White, Mrs. S. Roy, Mr. C. V. Curtiss, Mr. Eric Purdie, Mr. O. D. Wing. Refreshment Committee: Miss S. Cumming, Mrs. A. Marshall, Mrs. A. McCaig, Mrs. B. L. McGerrigle. Publicity: Mrs. Willa Hooker, Mrs. A. W. White. Library: Mrs. O. D. Wing, Mrs. S. B. Gage, Mrs. E. Sault, Miss L. McOuat. Films: Mr. S. B. Gage.

O.H.S.

Commencement exercises will be held at Ormstown High School on Friday evening. Prizes will be presented and Miss Ruth Low, already a popular speaker among the parents of O.H.S. students will give the address.

Interesting Assembly — John K. Dickson — Speaker

On Monday morning, Ellice House conducted an interesting assembly when Iris Waller and Grant Cameron, Ellice Prefects were in charge. Mr. John K. Dickson gave a most interesting address on "Early Days in Ormstown."

Macdonald Students Visit O.H.S.

A group of eighteen students from Macdonald College School for Teachers accompanied by Professor Mahood, visited Ormstown High School on Friday. In the course of the day, the students visited various class rooms and learned as much as possible about the administration of the school. Tea and cookies were served prior to the return to Macdonald College.

Mrs. Susan Murphy Observes 85th Birthday

On September 17, Mrs. Susan Murphy observed her 85th birthday at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Ivan Barrington. During the afternoon, tea was served to her many friends who called to congratulate her. Mrs. Ernest Ouimet of Cornwall, Ont., was among the guests.

Parties Given For Bride-Elect

Mrs. Robert Anderson will entertain the bridal party this evening following the rehearsal for the marriage of her daughter Joyce Margaret Anderson to Mr. James L. Hillcoat which is taking place this Saturday, September 26 at Ormstown, Que.

Those who have already entertained for the bride-elect include Mrs. Marjorie Butcher at a kitchen shower, Mrs. Ashworth and Miss Peggy Hillcoat at separate miscellaneous showers in Montreal.

Personals

Mrs. M. Todd of Montreal spent the week-end with Mr. and Mrs. James White, Ross and Connie.

Miss Gladys Duncan of the Montreal General Hospital spent a few days last week with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Duncan.

Mrs. Andrew Bovay and son Philip of Geneva, Switzerland has returned home after visiting her mother, Mrs. Margaret Graham.

Miss Lorraine McOuat spent the week-end with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Howard McOuat, St. Andrew's East.

Mr. and Mrs. Puff of Kamloops, B.C., are visiting with Mr. and Mrs. Robert Eastwood and Gregg. Mr. and Mrs. Eastwood Sr., of Montreal were also guests of Mr. and Mrs. R. Eastwood.

Misses Allison Hooker and Saundra Warden left on Wednesday to enter a nurses' aid training at the Herbert Reddy Memorial Hospital.

Miss Shirley Marshall left last week to attend the Macdonald College School for teachers.

Miss Isabel MacDougall of St. Lambert spent the week-end with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Allan MacDougall.

Mr. George Sadler of Saskatoon, Sask., is spending a few days at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Adam McNeil and visiting other friends.

Miss Mary Lawrence of the Royal Victoria Hospital spent the week-end with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. H. Lawrence.

Mrs. Thomas Ligget and Gloria of Sorel, Que., called on friends here on Wednesday.

Mr. and Mrs. Stanley Gage spent the week-end with Mr. and Mrs. Gage Sr., Stanbridge East.

Bee Colonies Within Range

Seed growers who request honeybees from beekeepers for the pollination of red clover and other legume crops should insist that the colonies be placed in their fields. Experiments carried out for two seasons by the Apiculture Division, Central Experimental Farm, Ottawa, have shown that seed yields decrease progressively as the distance from the colonies increases.

In fields three-quarters of a mile from the apiary, the effectiveness of pollination by the honey bees was seriously reduced. This indicates the necessity of placing colonies around or within a field where this distance from the apiary may be exceeded.

The Mill and The Mill House
Dewittville, Que.

In this brief history of the Mill and the Mill House at Dewittville, we first salute Peter McArthur, one of the "Forest Pioneers".

Peter was a native of Scotland, born in 1794, and "descended from a noble family of Highlanders, many of whom had distinguished themselves in Naval and Military exploits." (1) He early showed signs of mechanical genius. He and his brothers, Daniel and Alexander, emigrated to Canada and shortly after their arrival they settled on the banks of the Chateauguay in the seigniory of Beauharnois, then a dense forest.

The Seignior of Beauharnois, the Honourable Mr. Ellice, engaged Peter and his brother, Daniel, to erect several mills on the Seigniory, including the grist mills at Ste. Martine, Howick, and Norton Creek — the latter, built during the years 1828-29, "still stands as a memorial of that age and the men who built it." (1)

It was Peter McArthur who built the first dam and mill at Dewittville, then called "La Portage" (later corrupted to "The Potash"), a short distance upstream from the present site. He had entered on possession of lot No. 3, 4th range, containing 123 acres, in October, 1830. The lot, purchased for 100 pounds, included the present Mill House property. He opened his mill in March, 1832, using an undershot wheel 14' x 16'. The toll was the tenth bushel, half the charge within the Seigniory itself. Peter had intentionally crossed the Seigniory line, now the Station Road at Dewittville in selecting the site.

The McArthur homestead for some years was the house until lately occupied by the Ken McIntoshes, now of Huntingdon, and two old oatmeal stones, worn thin, now serve as steps at the east end of the verandah.

"The Mill ran until '46 when it got played out for the building was not substantial." (2) In 1853 Peter's son, James, "sold the privilege" to John and William Walker of Vankleek Hill for 100 pounds and they put up the mill where it now stands. They did well and in turn sold to a Mr. Goundry. During the Walker-Goundry regime, the Mill operated as a grist mill and a carding mill, making wool rolls for spinning by hand. On October 9, 1883, Lachlan C. McArthur, a grandson of old Peter's, bought the property back and installed complete equipment for spinning yarn. This included three sets of cards, one old spinning jack, two hundred (200) bobbins, a double twister reel and a narrow loom for blankets brought in from Lowell, Massachusetts. Some of this equipment had been made in 1862, and Colin McArthur likes to tell of how years after the firm which supplied this machinery requested they be permitted to bring it back as an interesting antique of their industry, and it is now running off a small electric motor as an exhibit in their plant. The Mill remained in the McArthur family until 1952 when Colin McArthur, a son of the second Peter McArthur and great-grandson of the first Peter, sold the mill and his "new" house to Mr. Elzear Girouard of New Erin.

Tragedy had entered the history in 1906 when Lachlan met with a fatal accident in the mill. His widow then carried on the business for three years and built the house now occupied by the Ken Pearce's for herself. "Peter", Lachlan's brother, bought the mill in 1909. The business was then carried on under the name, "Peter McArthur and Son", the "Son" in this case was the second James. They also operated the sawmill on the north bank, and for many years James lived in the house now used by the Tolhursts of Montreal as a summer home. In 1918, they sold the farm to Donald McIntosh, Peter's brother-in-law. Colin then was taken into the firm which was then known as "Peter McArthur and Sons" until 1937.

Peter died in 1925, James in 1937, when the business was carried on under the name C. A. McArthur until 1952, when Colin sold to Mr. Girouard as already mentioned.

It is believed that part of the old Mill House was built before 1837. In 1885, the two bedrooms on the ground floor and the present second storey were added. Lachlan occupied the house after his marriage shortly after acquiring the Mill in 1883. After his death, the widow of the second Peter with her sons, James and Colin, lived there for several years. It is said that when "Jimmy" had a big garden in the section west of the lilacs that "there wasn't a weed in the place." In 1941, the Mill House property was sold to the Arthur Wilsons of St. Lambert. They made few drastic changes outside or inside. As a result, it is possible to see the original pine plank floor in one of the bedrooms with boards up to 14" wide and ascend to the second storey by a steep and well-worn stairway with esting reminder of the old days are an iron-pipe hand rail. An interthe many 18" square cast iron plates, perforated with rows of slits about ½" long. These plates were used at one time in the process of making kiln-dried oatmeal which had a distinctive flavour of its own, considered to be definitely superior to the modern product by many old timers. These plates now form a pathway at the side of the house.

In September, 1948, Mr. and Mrs. Anthony M. Reid of Westmount entered into possession of the old "Mill House". Ever since then, much of the spare time of the three boys (now young men) and their parents has been spent on the peaceful banks of the Chateauguay. The garden is not yet up to "Jimmy's" standard, but he would be interested to see the two old millstones which originally came from France, now forming the centre piece of the stone terrace on the southwest side of the house overlooking the flume.

The year 1953 marks the one hundredth anniversary of the opening of the Mill at its present location. The new owners of the Mill House, now celebrating their fifth anniversary there, gladly pay tribute to those who worked so hard in the old days in carving out farms and building up a useful industry, and they like to see Mr. Girouard and his sons continuing the business so that they can describe their summer home as "next door to the Mill at Dewittville."

Many thanks are due to Mr. Colin McArthur, now of Huntingdon, for his courtesy in making Items (1) and (2) available, as well as for supplying much of the other information.

Allan's Corners

Mr. and Mrs. Gordon Tannahill Honoured

ALLAN'S CORNERS — On Friday evening, September 11th, a wedding reception was held in honour of Mr. and Mrs. Gordon Tannahill, of Huntingdon. The gathering took place in the Brysonville Community Club hall. On their arrival, the couple were pleasantly surprised to find that the party was for them and Mr. Fred Moore led the grand march, followed by dancing. Delicious refreshments were served at midnight after which Mr. Harvey Forrester, as M.C., called the gathering to order. Many friends offered congratulations and Mr. Fred Moore presented the happy couple with a gift of money. Both Gordon and Lorraine expressed their sincere appreciation, inviting everyone to visit them in their new home.

Mr. and Mrs. John Dooling accompanied Mr. John Cullen to Bromptonville the past week where they were overnight guests at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Donald Cullen and family.

Pvt. Arnold McIntyre of London, Ontario, spent the week-end with his wife and little sons, Alan and Murray.

Mr. and Mrs. Wm. Barr, Georgina and Norma, of Montreal, spent the week-end at the home of Mrs. Helen Peddie.

Miss Patricia MacLeish returned home last week, having spent the summer in Northern Ontario, and spent the week-end at the MacLeish home here.

Mr. Jim Barr has resumed his teaching duties at King's School, Westmount.

Miss Vera Rutherford arrived home last week, having spent the summer touring Western Canada. She also travelled South to San Francisco, where she spent some time.

Mrs. Thos. Bell, Connie and George visited on Sunday with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. A. A. Tannahill.

Mrs. Charles Wright and family spent Friday visiting with friends in Montreal.

Mr. and Mrs. Wm. Barr, Georgina and Mr. Jim Barr spent Saturday at Malone, N.Y.

Mr. and Mrs. Gilbert Pierce of Montreal spent Monday at their home here.

Homework Or Housework?

Walter O'Keefe, the quizmaster of the popular radio show, "Wizard of Odds" who knows that the odds can always be beaten has a bit of advice for the university bound gal. "A college education can do a lot for a girl," says O'Keefe. "But if it's a husband she wants out of life, she'd better stop and think. Only 70 per cent of college graduates marry, while 90 per cent of high school graduates make the grade in the marital department."

New Quebec Described In New Publication

Quebec's northland, whose immense iron deposits have been making headline news, is described in a timely publication just released by the province's Minister of Mines, the Honourable C. D. French. Issued as Geological Report No. 56 and appropriately entitled "Northern Quebec, A new Mining Area," this interesting publication was compiled for the Geological Surveys Branch of the Quebec Department of Mines by geologist Dr. J. E. Gilbert.

The volume was prepared to meet a popular demand for information on this region that has been drawing world-wide attention. It is a compilation of the knowledge built-up over a period of years by several workers in the vast territory of more than 300,000 square miles that, under the name of New Quebec or Ungava, extends east of Hudson bay and northward from Eastmain river to Hudson stralt and Ungava bay.

A brief and easily readable description is given of the geographic features, climate, rock formations and known mineral deposits of a country that, until recently, was peopled by only a few Indians, Eskimos and fur-traders. Of value is a list of more than 50 of the leading articles, reports and volumes that, over the years, have been written about the region or parts of it.

Adding to the interest of the report are 56 photographs showing the landscape in different parts of the region, some potential water-power sites, trading-posts, and some of the people. A map of the known geological features and another showing the locations of mining exploration and development accompany the volume.

Copies of this report may be obtained from the Department of Mines, Parliament Building,s Quebec, P.Q., or from any of its offices in other parts of the province.

Rooms Require Focal Points

Decorators call them focal points. Every room needs one. A fireplace is a focal point; so is a picture window. Yours might be a bookcase or a highboy. It is some detail that takes the eye above the usual low line of chair or sofa backs and table tops.

Since most furniture is necessarily low, we are left with several feet of upper wall space that cries for some structural or decorative interest. The eye must have relief from horizontal lines if the room is to look its best. Not all rooms are blessed with focal points, you can inexpensively produce one without buying new furniture or making structural changes.

Pictures are usually the finishing touch in a room, the frosting, the trim, but these artfully planned arrangements serve a very practical purpose.

If your room lacks interest you might try a grouping. It is not necessary to have all your prints framed alike, nor is it necessary to limit your arrangement to prints.

Other accessories may be used if they are harmonious in scale and in style.

Canadian Production Of Grain Corn Grows

Canadian consumption of corn has averaged about 19,000,000 bushels a year for the past 15 years, about one-third used for feed without processing and two-thirds for various manufactured products, according to a study of the marketing of Ontario grain corn, made by M. Rachlis of the economics division, department of agriculture in Ottawa.

Only 40 to 60 per cent of the total consumer was produced in Canada, the remainder imported from the United States, Argentina and the Union of South Africa. For the past 10 years proportion grown in Canada, while varying from year to year, has been increasing and has rarely been less than 60 per cent.

Principal manufactured products for which corn is used are flour, starch, glucose, corn oil, prepared animal feeds, alcohol and breakfast foods, of which starch is the major product.

An appreciable improvement in the moisture content of Canadian corn, as shown by inspections, has taken place in recent years. In the five-year period, 1946-50, about half the inspected corn contained less than 17.6 per cent moisture and only 10 per cent more than 25 per cent moisture. In the previous five years only 29 per cent of the inspected corn contained less than 17.6 per cent while nearly one-fifth of the corn contained above 23 per cent.

Records of corn inspections, 1941 to 1950, revealed that Canadian corn is ordinarily of good quality, but is often marketed early in the fall when the moisture content is high. Under the Canadian grading system, moisture content does not influence the grade but is shown only by the descriptive words, extra dry, tough, damp, moist, and wet, according to the percentage of moisture it contains. If United States' grading standards had been used (in which moisture content is a factor in the grade) 71 per cent of all the Canadian corn inspected between 1941 and 1945, and 50 per cent of all inspections between 1946 and 1950, would have been placed below United States grade No. 3. Under the Canadian grading system only 5.6 and 5.5 per cent, respectively, was placed below No. 3.

As the marketing season progressed, the moisture content of inspected Canadian corn declined. About 50 per cent of the corn was inspected between October and January when 73 per cent of the inspections contained more than 17.5 per cent of moisture. However, farmers sold about 30 per cent of their market corn in the months of October, November and December, when the moisture content was high and the price was from 13 to 20 per cent below the annual average.

Canadian corn production is increasing. The Bureau of Statistics gives the 1950 corn crop as 13,839,000 bushels; 1951 as 15,990,000 and estimates the 1952 crop at 19,722,000, highest recorded for any year in the period covered by Mr. Rachlis' study. Better drying facilities to reduce the moisture content would save transportation and marketing costs and further reduce the percentage of imported corn needed to meet industrial requirements.

School Days - 1809 - 1953
(contributed)

Reports in a recent Gleaner of the beginning of classes for the 1953-54 School year, from Huntingdon, Ormstown and Howick, all stress the large enrolment this year. Various improvements in the classrooms are noted, and new members of the teaching staffs are introduced to us, at least by name. The need for additional space for junior classes is stressed in one report, and all accounts point towards a busy scholastic year.

Reading these brought to mind references to early schools in this district in the well known book, 'History of Huntingdon, Chateauguay and Beauharnois', by Robert Sellar. A comparison of conditions of today, with those of 140 years ago, makes one realize how fortunate both pupils and teachers are in this modern era. The few teachers of the early days carried out their endeavours under the most adverse conditions, and quite often without any remuneration whatever in a financial manner. Those mentioned in Sellar's book vary in occupation from clergymen, army sergeants, to, in Sellar's own words, '... men too lazy or too weak to wield an axe.' While most deserve the greatest praise for even attempting to impart some learning to the children of early settlers, it seems that some sought school teaching as an easy living, and undertook this task, though ill-fitted to do so. Among some, the greatest qualification seemed to be the ability to enforce discipline, largely by the cruelest possible means.

The earliest school we find mention of, is, I think, one in 1809 at Franklin. This was under the supervision of an American doctor, by the name of Buck. It appears that early residents in the area were both healthy and poor, and Dr. Buck, finding that his practice neither took all his time, nor gained him much financial return, undertook to fill his hours and supplement his income by teaching school.

Another reference tells of a school at Havelock, in 1812, held in a barn. No details are given here about conditions, or who conducted classes.

A man named Haldane acted as schoolmaster at a school near the mouth of the English River, presumably in what is now the Howick area. No definite date is given with this reference, though, gathering from the preceding text, it could have been earlier than the Franklin school, perhaps 1802 - 04. The only data Mr. Sellar gives us on this school, ohwever, is that the above mentioned school master, Haldane, was very adept with the strap.

Early settlers of the Scotch settlement appear to have been rather more fortunate than other areas, or perhaps were conscientious in assuring adequate schooling for their families. At any rate, the residents of Williamstown, (in the St. Remi area) had a regular school master in the form of one Norman McLeod, whose salary, some £60 yearly, was paid by the Royal Institution in Great Britain.

An Army Sergeant, seeing the children of the settlers along the Chateauguay growing up in ignorance, organized a school during one winter, and from him many young settlers received their only schooling. Later, a few settlers made a journey to Montreal to bid him farewell and express their appreciation for his efforts when he left for England. This would seem like high praise, when one considers what was entailed in a journey to Montreal in those days. No Provincial Transport whisked one into the city along paved highways!

In 1823, or thereabouts, the first school at Georgetown came into being. Responsible for setting up the school, and serving as its first teacher, Rev. Alex. McWattie was followed in a year or two by a more capable man, Robert Robertson, who took over the school and soon established it on a sound footing. The government then offered a grant of $40 towards constructing a school building, and here find early reference to what has been a perennial problem ever since. Apparently the school board (if such it can be called) could not agree on a location, and the grant was divided and two schools were erected. How much this reminds one of present day problems!

The first school west of Allan's Corners was that of Stoney Creek. Classes had been held in a settler's shanty, and in 1826 a special school building was built. Supposed to be warm, (the ceiling was two layers of slabs with a turf covering. No glass blocks in those days!) the school was too drafty for the first teacher, who complained that his heels had been frozen. A rapid succession of teachers leads us to believe that there must have been some truth in his complaint. At any rate, three teachers followed him in a short time.

The next reference to a school we find concerns one at Kensington. The school master here was noted for his artistic ability, and as prizes he awarded his top scholars drawing by his own pencil; much coveted, it seems, by fortunate winners.

In a general description of early schools later in his book, Sellar gives us a brief but comprehensive glance at the difficulties of both scholar and teacher. Schoolbooks were virtually unknown, and pupils shared what readers there were. Copies were made to help make up the deficiency in these readers, and even these were scarce, for the only pens were the quills surrendered by unwary geese, and ink often had to be made by boiling the bark of soft maple.

Schoolhouses in early days were unbelievably crude. Often without flooring, and only a turf or slab roof, they gave only the most meagre shelter to pupils. Fuel consisted of logs, which had to be chopped up each morning to provide wood for the day. Probably the boys who were detailed to perform this task were the warmest members of the school, by reason of their efforts. Children had to walk miles through the snow, and seldom had what we would consider an adequate meal at noon. At times, the difficulties must have been so great as to discourage all but the keenest of scholars, and as Sellar wrote "such pursuit of knowledge could only have been possible to the hardy children of a hardy race."

Some idea of the primitive nature of the schoolhouses can be gathered by the description we are given of one where the thrifty schoolmaster kept hens in the loft above the school room. When the hens scratched about, we are told, a shower of chaff descended on the heads of scholars below. A far cry from modern, pastel-tinted classrooms with indirect lighting, etc.

We are given a few statistics which serve to show what a desperate struggle it was to gain an education of any kind. In 1829 a law came into force allowing schools a grant of about $40. Subsequent acts increased this, but never were teachers' salaries adequate, or even regularly paid. Seldom did any teacher get much over $100, and no regular system of taxation was in effect to supply funds. Only through the zealous efforts of a few more conscientious settlers were sufficient funds raised to enable the schools to continue at all.

In 1828 only 6 school operated in the district (presumably Huntingdon, Chateauguay, Beauharnois). In 1831, 41 schools, with an attendance of 1300 pupils, but only one-fourth of whom could pay fees.

Our forefathers would, no doubt, be amazed with conditions prevalent in local schools today. How much fuller an education is offered to all those who will take it, and how vastly improved are our modern conditions!

Handwork Marks Indian Textiles Of Great Beauty

In spite of the phenomenal growth of the Indian textile industry, there are still 2.5 million hand-looms in the country, employing 10 million weavers and providing a third of India's population with clothing, the colourful designs of which vary from region to region.

Many of these textiles have a rich local colour which is irreproducible elsewhere and which, therefore, enhances their unique quality. The famous chintz of Sanganer, a village eight miles from Jaipur, is for example, washed in the river Saraswati whose waters give it a light rosy shade. Dipping in a coloured solution is repeated as many as fifteen times and the printing ink is a typically indigenous preparation, certain flowers, turmeric and the dust of rusty iron being some of the constituents.

Another elaborate process is the hand-painting of Tanjore saris. The dyers use Kalamdar, an instrument composed of a series of fine, soft steel wires fastened brush-like at the end of a pencil. Heated beeswax acts as ink to this brush. The textile is spread evenly and the painter inscribes the pattern in wax. Then it is dipped in red colour and washed in hot water to remove the wax. The process is repeated several times to get a complex pattern in various colours.

Claim Wheel Chair No Bar to Success

VANCOUVER (CP) Two Vancouver business women have set out to prove that confinement to a wheel chair is no bar to success.

Katharine Cook, Limited, has been organized to provide businessmen with efficient part-time stenographers. Miss Cook, 26, is president and 21-year-old Beverly Thomas, is managing director. They do all their work from wheel chairs.

The firm specializes in dispatching stenographers to business firms who are without full-time secretaries or need extra help. The office is equipped with the most modern electric typewriters and duplicating machines.

Dewittville

DEWITTVILLE — Mr. and Mrs. D. S. McColm and children, Grace and Hugh, and Mr. and Mrs. Clifford Gallie of Howick, Que., recently enjoyed a week's vacation in New Richmond, Que., and other points. Mr. McColm and Mrs. Gallie visited their mother, Mrs. McColm Sr., in New Richmond.

Mr. and Mrs. Wm. Graham were guests of Mr. and Mrs. Bert Griffiths in Montreal over the week-end.

Visitors last week-end of Mr. and Mrs. Clarence Saumier and family were Mr. and Mrs. Wilfrid Doncause of Albany, N.Y.

Mr. and Mrs. Gordon Smiles accompanied their son and daughter-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. Staley Lawrenson to Toronto last week. En route, they called on Mrs. Smiles' brother, Mr. Gordon Edwards in Kingston. They report having had a fine trip — attending the Toronto Exhibition several times and taking in different points of interest, also hearing the "Happy Gang" in person. Mr. and Mrs. Lawrenson and daughter Renee brought them home by motor and remained for a few hours.

Trout River

Mrs. Harry Dear of Trout River spent two weeks recently at Shrub Oak, New York with her daughter and son-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. Howard Olmstead and family. She returned home on Sunday, Sept 13th by plane. Mr. and Mrs. Lloyd Allen, Gary and Diane went to Dorval to meet her.

In Memoriam

BRYSON — In loving memory of my dear mother, Christena A. Bryson, who passed away Sept. 26, 1951:
"You left behind an aching heart
That loved you most sincere;
I never did, nor never will Forget you, Mother dear."
Her daughter Eileen.

BRYSON — In loving memory of our dear sister Christena A. Bryson, who passed away Sept. 26, 1951 —
"Memories of you are always with us".
Lovingly remembered by
Cora, Helen and Andrew.

BRYSON — In loving memory of a dear wife and mother, Christena Macfariane, who passed away Sept. 26th, 1951 —
"The month of September again is here,
To us the saddest of the year,
The blow was hard, the shock severe,
To part with one we loved so dear".
Ever remembered by
George and family.

GORDON — In loving memory of a dear wife and mother, Mrs. Ira Gordon, who passed away on Sept. 22nd, 1952 —
"Thoughts drift back to bygone days,
Life goes on but memories stay".

"At eventide the Master came
And walked among His flowers,
He gently touched them one by one
And picked this one of ours.
She sleeps in God's beautiful garden,
Sheltered from sorrow and pain,
And when life's journey is ended
We shall meet our loved one again".
Sadly missed by her loving sister Lillie May.

Wedding

McGIBBON-SUTTON

Miss Dorothea Idella Sutton, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Jerry Marlow of Whippleville, N.Y., became the bride of Mr. Robert Walter McGibbon, son of Mr. and Mrs. Walter McGibbon of Westville, N.Y., at the Centenary Methodist Church, Malone, N.Y., on Saturday, September 19. Rev. Harold H. Barnard officiated at the double-ring ceremony. Miss Harriet Sibley, soloist, sang "Because" and "I Love You Truly," with Mr. Warren Wood accompanying her as pianist.

The bride, given in marriage by her stepfather, wore a fitted gown of Chantilly lace with long sleeves ending in points over her hands, and a nylon net yoke with tiny lace collar, the nylon net over faille skirt falling in a cathedral train. Her veil of nylon net and Chantilly lace was held in place by a lace halo embroidered with pearls. Her only jewellery was a double strand of pearls, the gift of the groom. She carried a cascade bouquet of white gladioli, and white roses.

Mrs. Carl Tacy, sister of the bride, as matron of honour, wore a gown of mint green Chantilly lace over taffeta, matching mitts and halo. Her bouquet was of yellow roses and white pompoms.

Bridesmaids were Miss Joyce Gerham, who was gowned in pink lace and net over taffeta, with matching mitts and hat, and Miss Janet McGibbon, who wore blue lace and net over taffeta with matching mitts and hat. They both carried colonial bouquets.

Master Gary Allen, son of Mr. and Mrs. Lloyd Allen, as ring-bearer, wore white flannel pants and navy blazer. The flower girl, Miss Susie McGibbon, niece of the groom, was gowned in gold printed pink organdie and mitts to match, with gold autumn leaves in her hair. She carried a blue basket of the season's flowers and roses which she scattered before the bride. The train bearer, Miss Joyce Wood, cousin of the bride, wore a gown of gold printed green organdie and matching mitts, and gold autumn leaves in her hair.

Mr. Carl Tacy of Malone, N.Y., acted as best man. Ushers were Mr. Chester Sutton and Mr. Arthur McGibbon.

Mrs. Marlow, mother of the bride, wore a street-length dress of black lace with a hat of blue feathers and matching gloves. Her corsage was of yellow roses.

Mrs. McGibbon, mother of the groom, wore a gown of smoky blue faille with navy blue accessories and a corsage of red roses.

Following the religious ceremony, a reception was held at the Malone Golf and Country Club. Mrs. Russell MacDonald cut and served the wedding cake. Mrs. Chester Sutton and Mrs. Thomas Brooks served punch. Miss Helen Dear took care of the gifts. Miss Emily Bannon registered the guests. Mrs. Nellie Stowe was receptionist.

Later, the couple left for a motor trip to Hartford, Conn., through the New England States. For travelling, the bride wore a dress of navy blue taffeta with red velvet accessories and a white stole, and a corsage of white roses.

On their return, a reception will be held for the bride and groom at the Westville Grange Hall, Westville, N.Y., on Friday, September 25.

John Cunningham

transferred from the pauper's grave to Chicago for re-burial there.

Mrs. O. Delisle of St. Chrysostome, Que., told police officials that she was a cousin of the dead man and had last seen him about three months ago. She also said that Cunningham's nephew, Lester, would be coming from Chicago to claim the body.

Dr. A. B. Clement, City Coroner, said he knew nothing about the transfer to Chicago and he knew nothing of a nephew coming to ask that the body be removed.

Further reports say that the 70-year-old deceased, had an estate valued at $100,000. This is said to be made up of about $80,000 in banks at Montreal and property in Chicago. Police said the man had lived alone in a small west-end apartment for the past 20 years. They reported finding $800 in cash in the apartment, but no clues as to the man's background.

Huntingdon Locals

United Church Evening Auxiliary

The Evening Auxiliary of the W.M.S. met on September 17th, with Frances Rennie presiding. Mrs. F. Braithwaite outlined the program for the Sectional Meeting to be held in Huntingdon on September 24th. Luncheon will be served at noon at a cost of 60c, and tea will be served at the close of the afternoon session. Ruth Miller Stark, Vera Fennell and Lynn Cunningham were appointed to the refreshment committee.

Dorothy Currie read a list of the articles sent to the Supply Secretary in the last bale. These included two complete layettes, one for a boy and one for a girl, 23 scrap books, 50 articles to be used as Christmas gifts for children, 8 afghans, numerous knitted articles, a double bed quilt and 4 crib quilts.

Elva Moore conducted the devotional period and the Scripture was read by Una Blachford. Elva outlined the ways in which the world can identify W.M.S. members: by their faithfulness, activeness, ideas, team-work and humanity. She drew the conclusion that these qualities add up to faith in W.M.S. work.

Refreshments were served at the close of the meeting by Beula Murray, Frances Rennie and Keitha MacIntosh.

The next meeting will take the form of a Thank-offering on October 15th, when the Evening and Senior Auxiliaries will unite and a guest speaker will be heard.

Rumors Are NYC May Take Over Fort Run

A story appears in the "Fort Covington Sun" which speculates that the New York Central Railroad may take over the Fort Covington run of the C.N.R. It was announced several weeks ago that on September 27th, this run would be discontinued at Huntingdon and after that date the run would be between Montreal and Huntingdon only.

The speculations in the story printed by The Sun are based on rumors and rumors are not facts says that newspaper. Sometimes rumors do have some truth and according to the above mentioned story there seems possibilities. This is as the Sun has it:

"The rumor that the New York Central may take over the local line is supported somewhat by the understanding that the assistant manager of the NYC from New York City, accompanied by the division superintendent tour of the Fort line and inspection tour of the Fort ine and yards a couple of weeks ago.

"For months now there have also been rumors that the local roadbed, or at least the culverts and bridges, would be additionally supported to carry heavy trainloads of ore. This ore reportedly is coming from Labrador and would be consigned to Pennsylvania steel mills. It would be brought as far as Sorel, Que., by boat. Near the tracks opposite the local depot are piles of huge timbers which it is said are to be used for re-inforcing the trestles.

"The New York Central has a line from Huntingdon to Montreal via Beauharnois which runs to Malone and thence downstate through the Adirondacks. The NYC uses diesel locomotives and it is claimed these do not work well for various reasons through the mountains. It would be far more advantageous to the NYC to roll their freight trains this way through comparatively level country and all they need is the connecting link between Massena and Huntingdon.

"There is considerable thru-freight moving over this line at the present time — including several carloads of aluminum from Massena nightly which is kept moving to Howick and thence picked up there by another freight and carried on to Chicago without delay.

"At any rate there is considerable shake-up in the affairs of the local railroad situation and whether in the over-all picture it augurs good for Fort Covington, Bombay and other towns along the line, probably only time will tell. It is possible it has some relation to the planned St. Lawrence river development which it is expected will cause this whole area to boom in an industrial expansion undreamed of."

Huntingdon Shooting Club Winds Up First Season

The Huntingdon Shooting Club Inc. sponsored the wind-up trap shooting contest of the season on Sunday, September 20, at the Charles Foisy residence on the Plank Road, Huntingdon. This final successful event was exclusively a membership shoot. Mr. Noel Foisy acted as Master of Ceremonies for the occasion. Trophies and prizes were presented to the winners. Winner in Class "A" was Rod Quesnel, who received the trophy donated by Pres. A. Dumouchel and E. E. Bisson. Winner in Class "B" was Jos. Bisson (Bisson winning his own trophy). Other winners in Class "A" were the following: Alcide Debellefeuille, 2nd prize; R. Tobin, 3rd prize; Emile Leduc, 4th prize; Medard Larocque, 5th prize; Class "B" Eugene Legault, Denis Tessier, Jos. Bisson, Jos. Lajeunesse, A. Fortier, John Brooks, Armand Dumouchel, Mrs. Emile Leduc, Mrs. R. Fortier, Eugene Gendron, Raymond Legault, William Daoust.

The team competition was won by the following team composed of Alcide Debellefeuille, D. Tobin, Rod Quesnel, Henri Rolland, and Rosario Rochefort, who scored 106 points.

Malone Couples Enjoy Trip West

Two Malone couples, Mr. and Mrs. Frank LaBarge and Mr. and Mrs. John McCracken have returned home after an extensive trip to mid-western Canada and the United States. Mrs. McCracken is a daughter of Mrs. J. Antoine, Huntingdon.

The trip west ended at Ernfold, Sask., where Mr. LaBerge and his brother, Wilber met for the first time in 34 years. The Malone people left their home on August 29 and returned on September 10, and in that time travelled 4,796 miles.

Besides visiting the LaBarge family in Ernfold, the couples visited many places of interest en route west and back, taking in the Canadian points on their way out and those in the States on their way home.

They also visited Mr. and Mrs. McCracken's son, Melvin and family at Strasburg, Penn., on their return trip east. Melvin is supervisor in the Lancaster district of the IGA stores.

They reported that they travelled along fine highways, enjoyed the beautiful scenery, and encountered no mishaps while away.

10 Points For Sound Farming

After studying the changing farm picture throughout the world, a group of agricultural economists recently outlined a 10-point program for more efficient farming which should be a useful guide to farmers. These points are:

1. Make the farm an efficient operating unit by careful planning for the best use of land, labor, machinery, cash and credit.
2. Use more lime, fertilizer, good seed and modern methods of efficient production to obtain highest returns per acre and per man.
3. Continue sound management of grasslands to support the growing livesotck and poultry industry. Make use of soil, water and labor resources with an eye towards their conservation.
4. Produce meat, milk, eggs and other livestock products needed to feed the growing population. Practice closer culling, improved breeding, better feeding and efficient management to increase production and income per animal and per man.
5. Use approved methods and materials to fight crop and livestock insects, diseases and parasites, household insects, rodents, weeds and other pests.
6. Give farm woodlots better management and fire protection. Do a better job of marketing the timber crop. Reforest lands best suited to trees.
7. Provide and use more processing and storage facilities for farm products. Study consumer demands and produce and prepare products to meet them. Market products through most efficient channels.
8. Build a good family life with attractive homes having adequate storage space and modern conveniences efficiently used. Keep family healthy and happy by providing opportunities for education, religious training and social life.
9. Train rural youth in improved methods of farming, health, citizenship and leadership.
10. Keep informed on agricultural policies and programs, and actively support local and national farmers' organizations.

Miss Monique Germain left recently to attend the Napierville Convent.

Mr. Gerard Lacasse, Noranda, Que., is visiting his parents, Mr. and Mrs. O. Lacasse.

Mesdames V. Ellerton, H. Rutherford, R. McCanse, L. Sample, F. Richard, M. Williams and W. McKay attended the funeral of the late James Bradley at Mooers, N.Y., on Friday.

Mr. Ivers Rutherford, Boston, Mass., visited Mrs. Rutherford, Mrs. McCanse and Mrs. Ellerton, before returning to his home.

Mrs. Herbert McNaughton is a patient in the Royal Victoria Hospital, where she underwent an operation. Her many friends wish her a speedy recovery.

Puzzled Parents

VICTORIA, (CP) — Parents who have complained that they cannot understand British Columbia school report cards have been promised that interpretation will accompany the cards in future.

Education Minister Tilly Rolston said notes with the cards will tell parents how to unscramble the "hieroglyphics" and to learn how their children are doing.

"Present report cards are confusing", she said. Education officials have shied away from giving set marks for grades because they do not believe in pinning labels—such as "dumb"—on children. The present system grades a child's progress according to his native ability and environment.

Mrs. Rolston said that in the next year she hopes to revise the curriculum committee to strike a balance between liberal and practical education in the province.

Russell Wins Championship Baseball League

For the second year in a row, Russell, N.Y., won the St. Lawrence Valley Baseball League Championship by defeating the Huntingdon Merchants 5-3 on Sunday, in a game played at Norwood, N.Y. This win gave Russell a clean sweep of the best-of-three series. Russell started the scoring in Sunday's game in the third inning when Whealan led off with a walk, Fletcher was safe on a bunt single, Duprey bunted and Whelan scored from third, Duprey being safe on first with a fielders' choice. Fletcher scored from third on Matecjik's fly to left, to give Russell a 2-0 lead at the end of the third. Russell added three more runs in the seventh inning to take a 5-0 lead. Fletcher led off with an infield hit, Duprey laid down a bunt single. Matecjik then bunted and Lacompte's throw hit the runner, Fletcher scoring on the play. Sleeman popped out to short-stop Monique. Lamonda was safe when the ball careened off third baseman Proudfoot's leg. Hurley then singled to score Duprey. Ferero (who played for Huntingdon fifteen years ago) popped up to first baseman Bernhardt to make two out. Matecjik then stole home for Russell's third run of the inning. Johnson hit a grounder to McCallum for the third out. Huntingdon scored all its runs of the ball game in the ninth inning. Roger Cyr came in to pitch for Walt McCallum and singled to center field, Proudfoot walked, and Senecal hit a slow roller that went through the Russell second baseman with Cyr scoring second on the play, Proudfoot going to third and Senecal ending up on second. Ozzie Watson came through with a single to right to score Proudfoot and Senecal, Hannah and Monique both went out to end the game.

Sleeman, the Russell pitcher, once more came up with a fine pitching performance allowing six hits and striking out seven Huntingdon batters. The Russell team used the bunt to great advantage getting five of their eight hits in this fashion. Bernhardt, McCallum and Senecal came up with fine catches for Huntingdon. Whealan and Ferero did likewise for Russell. Fletcher and Matecjik led the Russell hitters, Proudfoot with 2 for 3 and Watson with 2 for 4 led the Huntingdon attack.

A large number of local fans made the long trip to Norwood for this game. The players on the club felt right at home with all the hometown fans in the stands to cheer them on.

Old-time Harvester Yields to Progress

SWIFT CURRENT, Sask., (CP)— The days when farmers threshed crops with old-time threshing machines and 10-man crews ended in this southwestern Saskatchewan district this summer when Nelson Gowan pulled into a field of grain with a new combine.

Gowan, owner of the Circle Dot Bar ranch, was the last man in the area to give up on the old-time threshing machine.

One of the reasons he gave up on threshing and horse-power was the lack of teamsters in the country. In the previous years, he had men on his threshing outfit who came all the way from Nova Scotia, Vancouver and Texas. When his own crop was harvested, he did custon threshing for other farmers.

Thinking about a TV Set—think about a G-E Television Set with a Stratopower chassis because it has:—

1. TRIPLE CASCADE TUNER giving better sensitivity in fringe areas like Huntingdon.
2. SOUND-NOISE ELIMINATOR CIRCUIT to screen out foreign noises for better sound reception.
3. AUTOMATIC GAIN CONTROL: Adjusts tuning when signals grow weaker or stronger and maintains constant brightness.
4. ULTRA HIGH VOLTAGE allows sets safely to use up to 17,000 volts to assure maximum brightness of pictures.

Howick High School Notes

Industrial Arts Classes

Much to everyone's satisfaction here arrangements have been made for Mr. Murray Templeton to come to school on Tuesdays and Thursdays to give instruction in Industrial Arts. Mr. Templeton is a graduate of Macdonald College, (B. Sc. in Agr.), and was in charge of Agriculture and Woodworking at Lachute High School a few years ago. Mr. Templeton can spare time from his own work on the farm only enough to give courses to Grades 6, 7, 8 and 9, but the work is particularly appreciated in those grades and we are very pleased that it has not been necessary to close our Industrial Arts shop.

Executive of Student Council

During the past week the Executive of the Student Council was elected as follows: President: Brodie Templeton; Vice President: John Logan; Treasurer: Evelyn Kerr; Secretary: Violet Tovey. Class representatives and Committees will be selected this week.

Yukon Best For Good Living

MONTREAL — (CP) — Montreal may be fine for shopping — but nothing beats the Yukon for living.

That's the opinion of 27-year-old Mrs. Michael Mazurkewich, formerly Carol Robinson, who was born here but has lived for 2 1/2 years in the Yukon.

She and her husband went north on their honeymoon trip and learned to like the place so much they settled down in Elso, 300 miles north of Whitehorse, where Michael found work.

There were few modern conveniences in Elso, said Carol, and when they moved to Whitehorse a year ago the ringing of her telephone startled her for a while.

Here to visit her parents, Mrs. Mazurkewich made it clear she is returning to the Yukon as soon as she had stocked up on clothes and shoes.

Costly Food, Clothing

In the north, she said, the only women's shoes available were in "C" width. And clothes for herself and her 14-months-old son are expensive there, as are certain types of food.

Fresh vegetables have to be flown in if they are to remain fresh and the air freight adds to costs. The Mazurkewichs live mainly on canned foods, which they buy by the carload.

"We lay in a year's supply at a time," Carol said, "and we buy more than we expect to use." She admits that balancing the food budget is quite a chore.

The snow did not bother her, she said, because there never was as much as the Yukon is popularly supposed to have.

She was, and still is, awed by strangeness of the midnight sun in summer, and the noonday moon in winter. It was queer, she said, to look out of a window at midnight and see gardens bathed in an afternoon light.

Women in the north were as style-conscious as women everywhere. They did not walk around in shapeless parkas and baggy sweaters but in the same smart clothes their southern sisters wore.

"We don't like the new short skirt-lengths," Mrs. Mazurkewich said, "and we hope they just won't take."

She found it hard to imagine a Yukon woman wearing a short skirt.

Beauharnois

Social and Personal

Mr. and Mrs. A. Kokko have returned from a motor trip to New York where they were guests of Mr. and Mrs. V. Paalma, Helsinki, Finland. Mrs. Kokko was reunited with her sister after a period of thirty years.

Mr. and Mrs. J. O. Parker left early Sunday en route to their new home at L'Abberville, Quebec.

Miss Kathleen Graham left Wednesday afternoon by plant for St. George, Barbados and Port of Spain, Trinidad. Miss Graham will be the guest of Mr. and Mrs. C. MacKenzie while in St. George.

Mission Band

BROOKLET — The regular meeting of the Busy Beaver's Mission Band was held on September 11, at the home of Mrs. George Erskine. The President, Jean McCracken, was in charge of the meeting, after which, a delicious lunch was served by the hostess, Mrs. Erskine.

SHOOTING STARS

Any clear night now till the end of August will be good for seeing "shooting stars."

Billions of tiny articles of cosmic dirt daily bombard the earth's atmosphere, and many of them flash into our view as brief streaks of light, or shooting stars, then disappear.

The number of these meteor trails visible — about one per minute — is greater during the Perseid shower in August than at any other time of the year.

Astronomers have found that, although the reason is not yet clear, about twice as many meteors can be seen during the last six months of the year as during the January-June period.

One of the best shooting star shows is the Perseid shower, which reaches its height Aug. 12. An unusually large number of meteors can be seen, however, during the following two weeks. The Perseid shower is so named because the meteors appear to originate in the constellation of Perseus.

The best time for viewing a meteor's brief flame is in the early morning hours.

Sometimes the moon is so bright that its light makes it difficult to spot meteor showers. This year, however, the moon was new on the ninth of August, so it did not interfere with spectacular display of shooting stars.

A meteor gives no warning of its dash into our atmosphere — where it came from and what it is made of must be discovered in the very brief time it can be spied on, either visually or by radar.

An amateur can, with luck, get camera in a fixed position. Use a fast, blue-sensitive film. With an f4 focal ratio, a two-hour exposure is needed; with f2.5, one hour; and with f1, ten minutes should be sufficient. Try off and on all night to get a photograph. The result might well be a winner in the Shawinigan companies' forthcoming photographic contest.

All known meteor showers are related to comets, Tuttle's comet, last seen in 1862, is the parent of the millions of particles of cosmic dust that the earth meets in August. They broke from the comet some 40,000 years ago.

Most astronomers believe that at first meteor particles are close to, or part of, the parent comet. The cosmic dust then gradually strays behind or ahead of the comet, but keeps pretty close to the same path. Over a long period of time the particles become evenly distributed around the orbit, as is the case with the Perseids.

Past records show that the Leonid shower has been seen in October or November for over 1,000 years, and the Lyrids have been spotted in April for over 2,500 years. The associated comets were not, however, observed until the nineteenth century.

Especially bright meteors, those emitting sufficient light to cast shadows, are called fireballs. The few meteors that enter our atmosphere and penetrate to the ground are known as meteorites. Meteorites that have been spotted and picked up immediately after falling have not yet been identified with a meteor shower, and probably are from sporadic meteors.

As the tiny meteor particle rushes into the earth's atmosphere, it collides with air molecules. The impact is very violent because of the particle's great speed, and the atoms on the surface of the pinhead-sized particle are vaporized and spread out until the original material is entirely used up.

Few Forest Fires In Scandinavia

The determination of the Scandinavian people to conserve and develop their forest wealth is a revelation to the Canadian visitor, Ivar F. Fogh, Chief Logging Engineer of the Canadian International Paper Company Montreal said today on his return from four months' investigation in Sweden, Norway and Finland.

"Forestry practice in Scandinavia today," Mr. Fogh said, "aims at growing the largest possible volume of wood per year on every acre of forest land. The foresters of the northern countries are approaching this goal by taking full advantage of the most modern developments within the science of plant genetics and by following the age-old logical rule that 'Nature knows best."

"The Scandinavian forests present a picture of vigorous tree growth to which their foresters point with justifiable pride. The Canadian visitor is impressed with the complete absence of extensive fire-damaged areas and, in trying to determine the reasons for the virtual freedom from the curse of fire, he concludes that these are closely connected with the inherent natural and economic conditions within these northern countries. Climate is no doubt the most important of the contributing factors. The fairly even distribution of precipitation over the summer months prevents the building up of extreme fire hazards. Other factors are the complete absence of logging slash because of intensive utilization and deliberately-controlled burning, together with the extensive and close stands of conifers which preserve the ground mixture even in dry periods.

"Finally, the line of demarcation between forest land and farm land has been established for centuries; there is no colonization and, consequently, no hazard from the burning of debris on recently cleared lands. Beyond question, the people of the Scandinavian countries are imbued with a sense of responsibility toward their forest endowment."

Tatehurst

TATEHURST — Mr. and Mrs. P. Lahaye of Augusta, Maine, were guests on Wednesday of Mr. and Mrs. Preston Hooker.

Mr. and Mrs. Carson Wallace, Isobel and John of Roxham spent Sunday with Mr. and Mrs. Allan Cavers and family.

Mr. and Mrs. Alan Greer of Montreal spent the week-end with Mr. and Mrs. John Greer.

Mr. and Mrs. Russell Ovans, Judy, Ted and Patricia, of Hamilton, Ont., have spent a holiday with Mr. and Mrs. Clarence Ovans and other friends. Mr. Ovans returned home this week, Mrs. Ovans and family remained for another week.

Miss Clarine Ovans, of Montreal, spent last week with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Clarence Ovans.

Shower for Bride Elect

On Friday evening Mrs. Horace Paxton, Mrs. Russell Ovans and Miss Clarine Ovans were joint hostesses at a miscellaneous shower given in honor of a bride-elect, Miss Barbara Brown. The home of Miss Clarine Ovans was tastefully arranged for the occasion in a color scheme of pink and white.

On her arrival at the Ovans home, Barbara was escorted to the place of honor and a wagon load of varied gifts was drawn before her. The gifts were opened and admired and the bride-elect graciously thanked all present.

Several games, under the direction of the hostesses, were enjoyed, when the contest winners were — Mrs. Wallace Orr, Mrs. Glen Ovans, Mrs. Bert Peddie and Mrs. Stewart Duncan. The serving of dainty refreshments brought a happy evening to a close.

Robson

ROBSON — Mr. and Mrs. Frank Perras and family have moved to Hemmingford as they have sold their place here to Mr. and Mrs. Fleet of Mackayville. Mr. and Mrs. Fleet and daughter, Madeleine, have taken possession.

Mr. John Barnes of Northern Ontario spent ten days here with his sister, Mrs. Lawrence, and his grandmother, Mrs. Stratton.

All offer sympathy to Mr. Paul Sagala whose father passed away the past week.

The Tate family of Tatehurst visited Mr. and Mrs. Wilmer Sample on Sunday.

Ladies' Aid Meeting

The regular monthly meeting of the Wesley-Knox Ladies' Aid was held at the home of Mrs. Charles Edwards on Wednesday afternoon, September 9. The afternoon was spent in getting articles ready for the bazaar for the Fair. There were eleven members and one visitor present. The hostess served a dainty lunch — the next meeting is to be held at the home of Mrs. Colin Edwards, on October 14th. Article for the Bazaar, a towel.

Mr. Patton, of Connecticut, U.S.A., visited Mr. and Mrs. Albert Robert the past week and called on Mr. F. A. Sweet. Mr. Patton's grandfather used to live here a number of years ago.

Rockburn

Mr. and Mrs. Ernest Pringle and Osborne were Sunday dinner guests of their son and daughter-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. Ernest Pringle.

RABIES PROTECTION

CALGARY, (CP) — Alberta doctors are taking no chances against rabies. They have advised a Pasteur inoculation to more than 50 persons bitten by animals which might be infected.

Use Canuck Planes In Central Africa

MONTREAL — (CP) — Capt. Reginald A. Bourlay is convinced that even a Canadian bush pilot would be ruffled if he landed and found himself faced by an angry elephant.

The tall, well-set bush pilot from Central Africa has had this happen to him. Not too often, mind you, but he still recalls seeing an elephant charging at his aircraft from not more than 60 feet.

Capt. Bourlay is operations manager of Central African Airways Corporation and is in Canada to study Canadian air operations. He will visit Sault Ste. Marie, headquarters of the famed Ontario Provincial Air Services which operates fleets of Beaver aircraft in Ontario.

Capt. Bourlay bought several Beavers last time he was in Canada and thinks they are wonderful aircraft.

"They have been designed for the Canadian North, but they operate perfectly in Africa too," he said. "The Beaver is the most amazing plane I have ever seen."

Central African Airways serves Southern Rhodesia, Northern Rhodesia and Nyasaland. In parts of that area, where surface transportation is not too good, it is a vital link between interior towns and civilization, much as bush airlines are in Canada.

Before he leaves Canada for a tour of the United States, Capt. Bourlay will observe operations of Trans-Canada Airlines since his own airline is expanding and is in the market for four-engined aircraft.

Quebec Legislature Will Convene November 18th

Provincial Revenue Shows Surplus of $28,887,819.10 For 1952-53 Fiscal Year

QUEBEC, (CP) — Quebec's 24th legislature will meet for its second session Nov. 18, Premier Duplessis announced last week.

Among government bills which will be introduced at the opening of the session, he said, will be one providing for an expert study of the province's needs for convalescent hospitals.

Now that a basic hospital system has been established, he told his regular press conference, it will become necessary to study closely the need for convalescent homes.

These homes would render special services and help improve crowded hospital conditions he added.

The session, opened by the customary reading of the speech from the throne by Lieutenant-governor Gaspard Fauteux, will be adjourned for the Christmas and New Year's holidays, and resumed in mid-January.

For the first time since 1949 the leader of the Quebec Liberal party will sit in the legislative assembly. Georges Lapalme, chosen Liberal chief in 1950, was elected in a by-election in Montreal Outremont last July 9. He was defeated in the general election in 1952.

Since former Liberal Premier Godbout was defeated in 1948, George Marler, liberal member for Westmount-St. George, acted as house leader. He now will become the opposition's chief critic of government financial policy.

Two new members of the assembly, elected at by-elections during the summer will move and second adoption of the speech from the throne. They are Clovis Gagnon, Union Nationale member for Matapedia, and Rosaire Chalifour, Union Nationale member for Portneuf.

Mr. Duplessis said all intended government measures will be introduced at the opening of the session. He urged sponsors of private bills to announce their intentions as soon as possible.

Present standing in the assembly is: Union Nationale, 68; Liberals, 23; Independent, one; vacant, none; Total, 92.

Provincial revenues reached the record total of $283,617,541.43 for the 1952-53 fiscal year ended March 31 for a surplus over ordinary expenditure of $28,887,819.10.

Final figures for the 1952-53 term, published in the Quebec Official Gazette, showed the trend of increased revenues is continuing.

Ordinary expenditures for the year totalled $254,729,722 against $183,130,620 for 1951-52 and capital expenditures were $67,007,015, compared with $60,262,344 the previous term.

Over-all expenditures for the year ended reached the unprecedented total of $321,736,737.77, compared with $275,672,790 the previous year.

Corporation, motor-vehicles and gasoline taxes continued to be the main supplier of revenue to the Provincial treasury. Corporation tax on profits was slightly down while corporation tax on capital was slightly up. Corporation taxes provide roughly 25 per cent of revenues, gasoline and motor vehicles taxes, roughly 20 per cent.

Sales tax yield was $38,782,812 against $29,224,747 in 1952. Out of this $19,281,595 went into the education fund which, with another $6,018,381 from stumpage dues and hydraulic resources, and other miscellaneous revenues reached $26,376,079.

Ordinary expenditures were generally up. Exceptions were agriculture down to $12,940,386 from $13,729,278, the provincial secretary's department from $4,225,277 to $4,179,666 and public debt charges from $11,675,313 to $11,411,024.

Main capital expenditures were for roads with a total of $47,102,900, not including colonization and mines roads. The figure compared with $44,209,189 in 1952.

Canada Reports Second Highest Oil Output Gains

For the first five months of this year the daily average free world production of crude oil is estimated at 11,689,500 barrels, an increase of slightly more than five per cent over the like period of 1952, it is pointed out by Financial Counsel.

Of the 10 leading free world producers, six showed increases. The average daily production in Iraq led the field in the gainers, with output doubled over 1952 to reach a total of 555,000 barrels.

Canada was second among those showing an increase, with average daily output for the first five months almost 177,000 barrels, compared to about 134,000 last year, an increase of over 32 per cent.

Largest producer was the United States, where the daily average for the five-months 1953 period was 6,101,000 barrels, an increase over the like 1952 period of 5.6 per cent.

Venezuela, second largest oil producer, showed a decrease for the period under review, output dropping to 1,742,000 barrels per day from 1,826,000 a drop of approximately 4.6 per cent.

Saudi Arabia, another big producer, was down to 825,000 barrels from 851,000.

Estimates for Russia place production for the first five months of this year at 1,025,000 barrels a day, a gain of more than 13 per cent over the 906,000 barrels for the 1952 period.

Obituary

THE LATE MRS. THOMAS S. STEWART

Mrs. Thomas Stewart, of Howick, died at the Barrie Memorial Hospital on Friday, Sept. 4, after a long illness. Mrs. Stewart was 60 years old at the time of her death. She was born at Riverfield, Que., on December 5, 1893, the daughter of Robert Kerr and Martha Grace Stewart.

In 1914 she married Thomas S. Stewart of Howick, who died March 20, 1938.

The private funeral was held on Sunday afternoon from McGerrigle's Funeral Parlour, Ormstown, Rev. Brown of Beauharnois conducted the service.

The pallbearers were Merrill Kerr, Wallace Kerr, Russell Kerr, William Peddie, Leonard Baillie and Brodie MacFarlane.

The deceased leaves to mourn her loss, her son, Alan of Howick and daughter, Mrs. Robert McNeil of Ormstown. Interment at Riverfield Cemetery.

Eskimos Concoct Own Ice Cream

Would you like a bit of Eskimo "ice cream?" A. E. Porsild gives the latest recipe in the current issue of "Arctic" as "a mixture of cloudberries, seal oil, and caribou tallow, beaten to the consistency of whipped cream."

Somehow or other, the suggestion made several years ago by the late Prof. M. L. Fernald at Harvard seems more attractive. "Put sugar and cream on cloudberrie and they are delicious," he told his classes.

One might think that plant life in the Arctic would be entirely too sparse and poorly developed to make much of a contribution to the food supply there, but Mr. Porsild, chief botanist at the National Museum of Canada, says all plants, no matter where they grow in the north, have some food value, green ones especially.

Though dwellers above the Arctic Circle have lived almost entirely by hunting, Mr. Porsild has been able to draw up a considerable list of fruits and berries, potherbs, roots, tubers, and beverages plants that are commonly used. Crowberries, bilberries, mountain cranberries, bearbearries, northern red currants, fernweed, sorrel, Eskimo rhubarb, northern sweet coltsfoot, dandelion, Eskimo potato, Labrador and spruce tea are among the Arctic edibles whose relatives are eaten in temperate climates.

Most of these things are available for only a short time each year and are gathered mostly by the women and children. Out of local willows and other flowering plants they made a kind of "sauerkraut," sometimes adding blubber and root tubers. Mushrooms, puffballs, scurvy grass, and lichens called "rock tripe" have been eaten by Arctic expeditions, but they were seldom touched by the aboriginal tribes.

Of Many Things

By Ambrose Hills

I heard three ladies talking in a restaurant. They were a funny trio. They dressed well, looked wealthy, and judging from their conversations, they had husbands who had risen pretty high in the world. But they weren't happy.

When they had finished talking over the Kinsey Report, they started on their allergies. They each tried to out-do the other; and I think they all succeeded. They seemed to be allergic to almost everything on the menu.

Listening to them, I recalled that J. A. Hadfield, of Kings College, London, used to say that the shepherd's wife may find full expression for all her instincts in the cottage, with her husband, home, and children, and therefore may live an infinitely full and happy life. On the other hand, a lady surrounded with luxury may have all that life has to offer, except an incentive to live.

It seems to me that some business men make a grave mistake by giving their wives too much security. Women are happier when they have work to do and responsibilities to share. The three women in the restaurant would have been happier if they'd had some real problems to discuss instead of chewing over the Kinsey Report and assorted tomfool allergies.

Governments these days seem to think they can make us all happy by offering us security. This is foolish on two counts. First—they can't do it. Second, they would deprive us of incentive if we honestly believed them.

Happiness often comes from useful goals earnestly strived for. It seldom can be had without the expenditure of effort which makes use of all our instincts and abilities. Happiness comes from being good—and no government can bestow that blessing upon us. It is a goal each man must seek for himself.

SQUASH

Everywhere about this time of year there is a family reunion on vegetable markets. It is quite a big family too when they get together. Some botanists call certain members of this family pumpkins, but generally they go by the name of squash. The family is divided into two branches, summer and winter squash. You have probably already used summer squash as vegetable marrow, etc., for summer squash ripens early in July and August, but the winter varieties do not ripen until later in the Fall. Among the winter squash are the Acorn squash or Table Queen as they are often called. As the name implies, it is shaped very much like an acorn and is small and deeply ribbed. The Acorn squash weighs about one and one half pounds to two pounds and is around six inches in length. It is usually the first type of winter squash to appear on the market. Then there is the Buttercup squash, sometimes called the Turban squash because of its shape. It has a thick orange flesh and aa nutty flavour. Probably the most popular type of winter squash is the Hubbard. It is a large, heavy squash with a warty skin. The skin may be a variety of colours, dark green, bluish green or even bright orange.

The home economists of the Consumers often overlook squash when of Agriculture mention that consumers often ovelook squash when shopping, in spite of the bright colours that beckon them. The home economists feel that all homemakers should become acquainted with squash and when they go to pick one out, they should look for squash that is heavy for its size and that has a hard shell and firm flesh which is free from bruises and blemishes. Hubbard squash will keep well during the winter, provided that it is kept in a cool, dry place, preferably at a temperature of about 50 degrees.

Squash may be cooked by any of the standard methods for cooking vegetables, but baking is the easiest and most popular method. To bake squash, simply cut the squash in serving-size pieces and remove stringy portions and seeds. Place the pieces of squash cut-side down on a greased baking sheet and bake in a moderate 375°F., oven until tender, about 45 minutes. When nearly done, turn cut-side up, sprinkle with brown sugar, salt and pepper, dot with butter and finish baking.

Another way to cook squash is to steam or boil it until it is tender. To boil it takes around 35 minutes, to steam squash, it takes longer, about one hour.

There are many other ways of serving squash. For instance, the home economists of the Consumer Section, Canada Department of Agriculture say it is awfully good if the pieces of squash are filled with creamed ham and served as a luncheon dish. If you like steamed or boiled squash, here is a good way to serve it: put the cooked squash through a sieve or ricer, season with salt and pepper and place in a greased casserole. Cover the squash with strips of bacon and bake in a hot oven until the squash is thoroughly heated through. If you prefer squash to have a slightly sweet flavour, sprinkle a little brown sugar on top before you place the bacon on the squash.

Squash and Pepper Casserole

3 cups peeled sliced squash
1 cup sliced green pepper (about 2 peppers)
¼ cup sliced onion
½ cup fine dry bread crumbs
2 tablespoons butter

Arrange vegetables in layers in a greased casserole, sprinkle each layer with salt, pepper. Top with bread crumbs, dot with butter, cover and bake in a moderate oven, 350°F., about 35 minutes. Remove cover and continue baking about 10 minutes longer or until crumbs are brown and vegetables tender.

Squash Fricasee

Peel squash and cut into ½" cubes, let dry for a few hours (2-10 hours) depending on the moisture content or degree of ripeness.

3 tablespoons fat
½ cup diced onion
¾ cup diced celery
3 cups squash
1 cup fresh or canned tomatoes
1 teaspoon salt
3 tablespoons chopped parsley

Brown onion lightly in hot fat. Add celery and cook until transparent. Add squash, tomatoes, and salt; cover and cook slowly until vegetables are tender. Since some sauce must be left when the "fricassee" is cooked, extra tomatoes may be needed during the cooking. Serve hot, garnished with chopped fresh or dry parsley. Yield: six servings.

Chicken-Squash Bake

3 cups diced yellow squash
2 tablespoons butter
1 10-oz. can cream of chicken soup
½ cup diced celery
2 tablespoons diced green pepper
½ cup buttered crumbs

In a greased 6-cup casserole arrange alternate layers of squash, pieces of butter, soup, celery and green pepper. Top with buttered crumbs and bake in a moderately hot oven, 375°F., 50 minutes or until squash is done. Yield: 6 to 8 servings.

Clean Hands — Basic Rule of Beauty

It's such a basic beauty rule, that we must scrub our hands often and thoroughly. But still one sees hands in which soil seems ground in. These hands never look clean. Often, a girl is aware of this but doesn't know how to wash her hands for best beauty results.

If you haven't a nail brush, we'd advise that you get one. For a good scrubbing, don't depend on running water. Fill up a clean basin. Take your soap and brush and build up a good lather. Go to work on arms, wrists, nails and knuckles as well as the backs and palms of your hands. Rinse thoroughly. Dry well with a clean towel.

Since beauty and health go together, we might mention a few words to the wise about good, clean hand practices. A wise girl never prepares food or sets the table without first washing her hands well.

When she takes out dishes and other eating utensils, she doesn't touch the sections that come in contact with mouth or food. She doesn't take out or touch napkins, dish towels, hand towels, or bath towels without first washing her hands.

Natural Gas Found in Nova Scotia

At Antigonish, Nova Scotia, where kilted dancers kick and whirl in annual highland games each summer, geologists have discovered natural gas.

It was an "exploratory" well that blew in recently, bringing with it immediate speculation that oil may be found, too. The experts are inclined to think this unlikely. Nevertheless, the strike is a real achievement for Canada's Atlantic headland province, hitherto untapped territory on the world oil and gas map.

Local excitement, however, will have little effect on the rest of Canada or the United States, for current oil and gas boom centres are farther west — in the prairie provinces of Alberta and Saskatchewan and in the derrick-dotted states of the United States South and Southwest. Nevertheless, the national Geographic Society points out that while most people look upon Nova Scotia as a fishing and farming province, there are extensive industries as well to point the way for any new industrial advances possible through local oil or gas deposits. Blast furnaces are fed by thick deposits of iron, coal, and limestone, and pulpwood mills turn out tons of paper.

Old Dwellings Are Easy to Insulate

An easy way to refinish and at the same time insulate a room in an old house—no matter how badly the plaster may be cracked—is to apply a reflective vapor barrier, furring strips and pine paneling.

If there are no holes in the walls a thorough coating of aluminum pain can be applied to the walls. Or paper the room with metal foil.

Locate studs — usually spaced 16 inches in centres — by tapping for solid sounds. Securely nail thin furring strips horizontally around the room to provide nailing bases for vertical pine boards. Tongue and groove lumber, with or without decorative edges, can then be nailed to the furring. Thin trimming strips can frame windows and form a new baseboard. Quarter-round moulding or cornice strips can trim the wall and ceiling joints.

The paneling can be finished natural, stained or painted. And you can count on the room being warm.

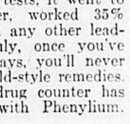
Barbara Brent's BUYS AND WHYS
A WEEKLY INFORMATION SERVICE

MONTREAL—Soon your family will be enjoying the pickles you've so carefully put up. I hope it's not too late to tell you about the thriftiest way I know to buy your favourite pickling vinegar. Buy HEINZ WHITE VINEGAR in the gallon jug. It saves you 2½c on every cup as compared with smaller containers. You get real economy . . . and more. You get the full-bodied flavour and uniform strength so necessary for preserving the crisp texture and fresh taste of your pickles. So order Heinz White Vinegar by the gallon jug—and if it doesn't have the free recipe booklet, "Pickling Success", attached—write to me for it—Barbara Brent, 1411 Crescent St., Montreal, P.Q.

Just Look At Those Tomatoes! . . . so red and ripe . . . and rich in vitamins! Make the most of them, say I, and serve them in a dozen different ways — scooped out, and filled with tender corn, sliced right off the cob!—with left-over vegetables—with cole slaw. And make the most of whatever way you use them . . . by blending the filling with MIRACLE WHIP Salad Dressing . . . and top each one with a spoonful of this unmatched Salad Dressing . . . unmatched because only Kraft knows its secret formula. And oh!—that creamy texture . . . another delight of Miracle Whip.

Would You Give Anything to get rid of painful corns and calluses? Well, you don't have to! The inexpensive answer is Phenylium, the new wonder-working medication in BLUE-JAY Corn Plasters. It gets under your corn and helps push it out from underneath . . . the first really new medication for corns and calluses in over seventy years! In actual tests, it went to work 33% faster, worked 35% more surely than any other leading remedy. Truly, once you've used new Blue-Jays, you'll never go back to the old-style remedies. Your favourite drug counter has new Blue-Jays with Phenylium. Get some today.



At Last, modern science has given me the perfect answer to the "Problem of the Yellow Wash"! Scientists have proved that true whiteness is made up of all the seven colours of the rainbow and if blue is missing, white turns to dingy yellow. Ordinary washing can make clothes clean, but even a washing machine can't make them really white. That is the special property of Blue. That's why washing needs that last rinse with Blue to replace the missing blue rays and restore sparkling whiteness. What's more, Blue is kind to the finest fabrics. It won't harm them in the least—and it costs just a few pennies a month to use. So keep your white things truly white with Blue!

Yes, for the whitest wash, use KEEN'S BLUE.

This Is The Very Special Recipe Which I've Used For Years! It's particularly attractive too, with the pale green of tomatoes and cucumbers mixed with the white of onions, celery and cauliflower—in the mustard dressing. I always use KEEN'S DRY MUSTARD, WINDSOR COARSE PICKLING SALT, HEINZ WHITE PICKLING VINEGAR—and to seal the bottles—PAROWAX for safe year 'round protection.

CHOPPED MUSTARD PICKLE

1 quart chopped cucumbers and 1 quart chopped green peppers 2 pounds chopped onions
1 head chopped cauliflower 2 heads chopped celery

Sprinkle with Windsor Coarse Pickling Salt, and stand overnight. In the morning drain through a colander. Cover with Heinz White Pickling Vinegar. Add 1 pound brown sugar. Cook well in vinegar. At the last, add 3 tablespoons of Keen's Dry Mustard, 2 large tablespoons flour, 1 teaspoon turmeric. Cook a few moments. Fill jars to overflowing and seal with Parowax.

Immunization Week Starts September 27

Canada's 11th annual National Immunization Week will be observed this year from Sept. 27 to Oct. 3, under the leadership of the Health League of Canada. This is a nation-wide educational campaign to bring to the attention of all parents the protection against diphtheria, whooping cough, lockjaw and small pox which is available to their children wherever they may live.

Dr. F. O. Wishart, professor of hygiene and preventive medicine, University of Toronto, and chairman of the Health League's National Immunization Committee, in announcing this date stressed the dangers lying in wait for any population that neglects to keep up its practice of immunization.

"One seldom hears of smallpox, for example, in Canada today, and our medical students graduate without seeing a case," Dr. Wishart said. "However, this very freedom is a hazard in that vaccination becomes easily forgotten and neglected. This constitutes a real risk as was shown by the great Montreal outbreak of 1885, the Windsor disaster of 1924, and the reappearance of the disease in Vancouver in 1932 and 1936. Such epidemics need never occur; but it takes continual effort to overcome the indiffrence and complacency that threaten us.

"It is the purpose of National Immunization Week to keep the public alert to the dangers of failing to have their children immunized."

Control of Moths And Carpet Beetles

Investigation seems to indicate that carpet beetles may be just as injurious in Canadian homes as clothes moths. Fortunately similar control methods apply to both, says entomologist C. Graham MacNay, department of agriculture, Ottawa.

Although various chemicals are now available to assist the housewife in her fight against these pests, it should not be overlooked that good housekeeping, including the regular use of a vacuum cleaner on rugs, upholstered furniture and cracks in flooring, is an important measure in the protection of woollens. Long-lasting, residual insecticides, several of which have been developed in recent years, are very effective in the control of fabric pests, providing protection for several months. A thorough spraying, at least once a year, using a residual insecticide such as 5 per cent DDT, preferably in a refined kerosene base, is highly recommended. Residual insecticides should be applied as rather coarse sprays or by means of a paint brush, thoroughly wetting surfaces on which adult moths are likely to occur. Such surfaces include the walls and shelving of clothes closets, the interiors of dresser drawers, chests, trunks and other places of storage.

Breeding areas where the larvae of clothes moths and carpet beetles are likely to be located should also be thoroughly and forcefully sprayed in order to penetrate accumulations of lint, dust and other material. These areas include cracks and crevices in flooring and around baseboards throughout the house, particularly in clothes closets; also cold air ducts in the heating system which should first be vacuumed to remove accumulations of dust and lint. The under-surfaces of rugs, carpets and scatter mats should be well sprayed.

Upholstered furniture, if infested, should be lightly sprayed, particularly between cushions, or should be treated with a moth-proofing material. Sodium fluosilicate (silicofluoride) dissolved in hot water at the rate of two ounces per gallon and applied when cool to fabrics until they are thoroughly wet, provides protection for many months. Infested blankets and other woollens may be lightly sprayed or exposed to either sub-zero temperatures in winter or strong sunlight in summer. Woollen garments not in use should be dry-cleaned before storing; they are then much less attractive to fabric pests.

The felts in pianos should be treated with a residual insecticide, preferably DDT as it remains effective for a long period. The regular 5 per cent DDT household spray having a kerosene base is suitable. Emulsions of water-base sprays should not be used as they may cause rusting of piano strings and other metal parts.

Mothballs, naphthalene flake and paradichlorobenzene (Dichloricide) are effective only when confined with woollens in a tightly enclosed, practically airtight space that will retain their vapors. They afford practically no protection in the ordinary clothes closet as they are not repellents as is commonly believed, and the average clothes closet will not retain their vapors sufficiently to permit the build-up of a lethal concentration. Boxes, paper bundles, garment bags, and storage chests, in which these materials are used for the protection of woollens, should be sealed with strips of adhesive paper or other material to ensure the destruction of any insects present.

Mr. MacNay cautions that DDT is poisonous to humans and pets, as well as to insects. It should not, therefore, be permitted to come in contact with food materials, dishes and cooking utensils. If the insecticide is spilled on the skin, it should be washed off with soap and water.

GIANT HAILSTONES

SASKATOON, (CP) — After a hailstorm, district farmer Jim Busby reported hail stones the size of pigeon eggs were piled a foot deep against his farm fences.

Physiotherapy Vital in Fight With Arthritis

Since its formation just four years ago the Canadian Arthritis and Rheumatism Society has developed a co-ordinated plan of attack upon arthritis and the other rheumatic diseases now being pushed forward vigorously by the Society's Divisions in eight provinces—all except Prince Edward Island and Newfoundland.

This program now costs nearly $500,000 per year, although in the opinion of officials of the Canadian Arthritis and Rheumatism Society at least twice this sum is required annually to fight arthritis and rheumatism effectively. These diseases totally or partially disable 100,000 Canadians of whom 15,000 are regularly confined to bed or wheelchair. Canadian business loses 9½ million working days and Canadian workers lost $70 millions in wages alone as a result of these diseases. The causes of the most serious forms of arthritis and rheumatism remain unknown, and it is for this reason that the Society supports an extensive program of medical research in which 12 Canadian universities now take part. Yet the officials of the Society stress that the more widespread application of existing knowledge about diagnosis and treatment could prevent or correct serious disabilities in a great majority of cases. Therefore, the Society has conducted an extensive program of professional education through which many well-qualified Canadian physicians have received extensive special training in rheumatic diseases in leading centres in the United States, United Kingdom and Canada. Largely as a result of this program most main regional and teaching hospitals in Canada have or soon will have at least one member on their staff with special training in these diseases.

3,400 Yearly Here

"The lowest tuberculosis death rate in our history," has come to be the expected annual comment on statistics concerning tuberculosis in Canada observes the Canadian Tuberculosis Association. Naturally this sustained success against such a death-dealing disease gives deep satisfaction. It is a satisfaction which is justified — as long as it does not blind the public to the fact that there were still more than 3,400 deaths from tuberculosis last year, which is more than the toll from all other communicable diseases combined.

It would be unfortunate also if the falling death rate masked the fact that TB keeps at least 30,000 Canadians too ill to work, at any given time, with all the unhappiness, inconvenience and loss of wages accompanying enforced idleness of a year, perhaps two years or even longer. Of these more than 18,000 are in sanatoria during any year. Not only these patients but their families are affected by the length of the illness, for absence and restricted income put a strain on family life.

School Radio Audience Still Growing

Figures just released on the part being played by radio in the Canadian school curriculum show that CBC school broadcasts are continuing to grow in popularity with both teachers and students.

Of the 21,650 English-language schools in Canada, no less than 55 per cent are equipped with radios. This adds up to a classroom audience alone of about one million students. Not taken into account are numerous shut-in students in hospitals and other institutions across the country and many adults who tune in to hear such productions as Shakespeare's Julius Caesar and Macbeth.

The great growth in the CBC's school broadcast classroom audience is reflected by figures showing that more than 12,000 English-language schools in Canada are now equipped with radios, an increase of more than seven thousand over 1949.

CBC school broadcasts are now in their 11th year and the programs are planned by the CBC and the National Advisory Council on School Broadcasting. The council includes representatives of the provincial departments of education and teachers' organizations.

The CBC produces more than 1,200 school broadcasts each year, with the content of the programs generally related to some phase of the school course or some aspect of life in Canada. The success of the broadcasts is striking evidence of the high degree of co-operation between the departments of education, the teachers, the CBC and privately-owned affiliated stations, and the parents of Canada.

Hopeful Heirs Seek Imaginary Millions

Auckland, N.Z., (CP) — An aged Italian died in Auckland 35 years ago leaving $900. He had no relatives in New Zealand and the estate lay unclaimed.

Recently the lawyers executing his will made an effort to clear up the estate by asking the Italian legation in Wellington if it could trace the heirs in Italy.

But in the process the estate swelled to fabulous proportions. The story spread in Italy that the estate included three gold mines, several factories and sugar plantations near Wellington. (No sugar is grown in New Zealand).

Eventually the Italian press published stories that the old man left $850,000,000 mostly in unmined gold. The accounts said the New Zealand Goverment would confiscate it unless it was claimed by 1968.

Now the man's distant relatives are fighting for the estate. They include a man serving a sentence for murder who claims the man who died in Auckland was his uncle.

The Italian legation has been deluged with letters from hopeful claimants. It is writing to tell them that the money available is still $900.

Marked Increase in Manufacture of Autos in Canada

TORONTO — Canadian automobile manufacturers produced over 52,000 more motor vehicles in the first six months of 1953 than in the comparable period of 1952. This was an increase of 22% over 1952 production. Although passenger car production increased by over 41%, motor truck production decreased approximately 10%.

The demand of the home market accounted mainly for the increase in passenger cars as export vehicles dropped for both cars and trucks and was the chief reason for the drop in truck production.

Passenger car production for sale in Canada totalled 185,819 units as against 123,177 for the first six months last year. Trucks for sale in Canada were 67,331 compared with 62,468 in the first six months last year.

There were over 40,000 workers in the Canadian automobile factories as of the end of June in comparison to 36,240 in January this year and 36,200 in June 1952.

The payroll for these employees was up over $10 million to $76,619,600 as compared with $66,402,500 for the same six month period in 1952.

Total excise and sales taxes of $93,388,000 collected by the manufacturers and remitted to the federal government for the first six months exceeded by more than $21,480,000 the taxes remitted for the same period last year. This figure also exceeds by over $16,700,000 the total wages and salaries paid out by the manufacturers for the same period.

Available for the first time are figures on registrations for 1952. Passenger cars soared to 2,290,800, an increase of 20% over 1951 registrations of 1,910,100. Motor truck registrations of 768,000 were over 24% above the 1951 figure of 617,200.

Quebec Power Profit Higher

Net profit of Quebec Power Company for the first six months of 1953, as disclosed by the interim statement of revenue and expenses issued Friday by J. A. Fuller, President, amounted to 72c per common share as compared with 60c for the first half of 1952.

Gross revenue of the Electricity Division totalled $4,069,691 as compared with $3,657,921 last year, an increase of 11¼%, while Gas Sales were practically unchanged at $283,704. Expenses, including depreciation, increased from $3,089,032 to $3,417,580 or 10.6%. The amount provided for Depreciation was increased from $437,100 to $450,000 and the provision for Income and Profit Taxes totalled $308,404 as against $281,429 for the first six months of 1952.

Dividends on the Common Shares, at the rate of $1.20 per year, totalled $331,919 as compared with $276,599 for the six months of 1952 which was at the rate of $1.00 per year.

After payment of these dividends, surplus for the period was $71,252 as compared with $58,970 for the first half of last year.

Power Output Up in May 8% Over 1952 Total; 5-months' Gains Is 9%

Canadian output of electric energy by central electric stations in May rose eight per cent to 5,764,651,000 kilowatt hours as compared with 5,334,918,000 in the corresponding month last year. This brought the cumulative total for the first five months of 1953 to 28,203,795,000 kilowatt hours, nine per cent above last year's 25,821,606,000 kilowatt hours.

Consumption of primary power — production less net exports and secondary power — rose in the month to 4,961,711,000 kilowatt hours as compared with 4,595,893,000 a year earlier. For the January-May period the total was 24,778,974,000 kilowatt hours compared with 23,057,475,000 at the same time last year.

Gross exports to the United States in May were down to 236,036,000 kilowatt hours as compared with 268,639,000 a year ago, bringing the January-May total to 1,101,869,000 kilowatt hours as compared with 1,165,493,000 a year ago.

Preoccupied With Health

This is a century of striving for better health, a national state of mind that is helping to wipe out many of the contagious diseases once considered a child's inevitable fate. Not so many years ago, a mother expected her child to go through measles, mumps, scarlet fever, chickenpox, whooping cough and diphtheria. When the youngsters had had their quota, there was distinct relief that they had been "lucky" enough to come through. To-day's mother knows that there are ways of preventing diphtheria, whooping cough and smallpox. Immunization is every child's protection against these three serious diseases and no youngster should have to take his chance of avoiding what may be a killing or disabling disease.

Smoking and Health

By DR. W. H. CRUICKSHANK, Medical Director

There is a tradition that credits the Chinese with using tobacco long before the discovery of America. Tobacco, however, was introduced into Europe from America where Columbus learned of its use from the Indians. Sir Walter Raleigh was the first man of rank to smoke tobacco in England.

Tobacco was originally used almost entirely as a pipe smoke. The Spanish of the West Indies then introduced the cigar, whereas the large-scale production of cigarettes was promoted originally in the United States shortly before the turn of the century.

The health implications of smoking have from time to time received a good deal of attention, but the evidence against the use of tobacco in any form has in the past never been sufficient to interfere with the continuous increase in the production and consumption of pipe tobacco, cigars and particularly cigarettes.

Smoking is an adult custom and it may be fair to assume that most young people start to smoke in order to provide tangible evidence to their friends of their increasing independence and maturity. The habit is continued and enforced by the actual effects of smoking on the body.

Nicotine from tobacco smoke that is inhaled acts as a stimulant. It produces a temporary rise in the blood pressure, increases the pulse, reduces the flow of blood to the limbs by constricting the blood vessels and liberates some extra sugar into the blood stream. These stimulating effects, plus the enjoyable social implications of smoking, tend to fix the habit in many—probably most of those who smoke for any length of time.

In the Medical Department we are frequently asked "What are the effects of smoking on health?" The common effects on health may be summarized as follows:

(1) Any smoke is an irritant. Heavy smoking does irritate the mouth, nose, throat and upper part of the respiratory tract. This produces symptoms such as the familiar "smoker's cough."

(2) Smoke is produced by combustion. The combustion in smoking is usually incomplete. When any combustion is incomplete, carbon monoxide is formed. Heavy smoking, therefore, often produces headache which may be due to the carbon monoxide which the body absorbs while smoking. This is purely a temporary effect which is cured simply by exposure to fresh air.

(3) Nicotine produces in ordinary people a temporary increase in blood pressure. The increase is not marked and possibly is of little significance to health. Some individuals on the other hand appear to be sensitive or allergic to tobacco smoke, and have rather marked and prolonged pulse and blood pressure changes when they smoke or are exposed to tobacco smoke in any concentration.

(4) Nicotine tends to reduce the blood flow to the limbs and may make the hands and feet somewhat cold and sometimes moist. In the healthy individual this is probably of no particular concern. Certain diseases of the blood vessels may be greatly aggravated by smoking of any type and individuals with such diseases must eliminate smoking completely.

(5) Smoking reduces the appetite. For those who are underweight this is not good. Many people who tend to eat to excess find that if they smoke they have less craving for food.

(6) We have all heard a great deal about "tobacco heart." There is no very direct evidence that smoking adversely affects the normal heart. It is true that excessive smoking, just like excesive use of coffee, sometimes produces irregularities of the heart which may be temporarily alarming but which produce no actual heart damage.

(7) Tobacco when in contact with the skin will produce skin eruption in sensitive individuals.

(8) Smoking and cancer. In the last 25 years in many parts of the world the incidence of lung cancer has increased rather sharply. It is now an important cause of death. In this connection the following facts are significant:

(a) Lung cancer occurs very seldom in a male patient who has not been at least a moderately heavy smoker for many years.

(b) The distribution of lung cancer in male and female patients—it is more common in men—roughly corresponds to the ratio of long-term smoking habits of the two sexes.

(c) There has been a rough parallel between the increase in this form of cancer and the tremendous increase in the sale of cigarettes.

(d) Non-smokers rarely develop lung cancer.

Although these statistical studies are as yet inconclusive in some respects, it would now appear to be quite safe to conclude that smoking is an important factor in the production of lung cancer.

(9) There is increasing evidence which suggests that heavy smoking tends to reduce the life span.

Most of the adverse effects mentioned can be attributed only to heavy smoking and heavy smoking may be roughly defined as the equivalent of 20 cigarettes or more per day. Occasional smoking and light smoking, i.e., less than the equivalent of 10 cigarettes a day, may have an adverse effect only on the health of those who are particularly susceptible to the harmful effects of tobacco.

Those of us, and I include myself, who have enjoyed much pleasure from smoking over the years use from smoking over the years review this new evidence.—"The Blue Bell," Montreal.

Woman's Association

The W.A. of St. Paul's United Church held a vesper service in MacDougal Hall on Sunday evening, September 20. An attendance of some eighty persons was noted. Mrs. Stewart Osmond, who was in charge of the service, opened the program with selections from the Duncan-Reid Orchestra:— Gordon Duncan — piano, Ronald Duncan — alto-saxophone, Gerald Duncan — baritone, and Howard Reid — violin. A warm welcome was extended by Mrs. Osmond, after which Mrs. A. A. McCormick conducted the Worship service. The scripture reading was based on the theme, "Guidance." The Duncan trio again favoured with musical numbers, and Howard Reid and Mrs. P. Osmond with violin and piano selections. A male quartette: the Osmond brothers, Howard Reid and Herman Tavenir contributed two pleasing numbers. Community singing of favourite hymns was entered into most heartily. A social hour and the serving of refreshments rounded out this get-together evening of fellowship and praise.

Dundee

DUNDEE—Mr. and Mrs. Kenneth Fraser and two daughters, Kathleen and Sheila, left last Saturday morning for a motor trip to Mervin, Sask., the home of Mrs. Fraser's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Thomas McNinch. Mervin is 60 miles from Battleford. Mrs. Fraser's brother, John, is being married on Wednesday, Sept. 23, so she and her husband plan to arrive at their destination in time to be present at the ceremony. The Frasers with their two children made the trip last year.

A number of small boys from the community attended a birthday party for their little friend, Master David Fraser, son of Mr. and Mrs. A. H. Fraser at their home last Wednesday afternoon. David is three years old and he and the other guests had a wonderful time playing on the lawn and enjoying the lunch and birthday cake afterward. David was a second prize winner at the baby show held at the Fort Covington Methodist Church recently.

Harvesting and threshing of the oat crop is now all finished locally. On the whole, the yield was just fair. Too dry weather at the wrong time in the growing season seems to be the general reason for the low crop return. A few farmers have some buckwheat to thresh yet and this too was damaged by the hot weather. One fair sized field only yielded 22 bushels and this to two farmers who had the crop on shares.

Train Service Discontinued

With the announcement that passenger train service on the C.N.R. from Huntingdon West to Fort Covington would cease as of Sept. 27 next, quite a number of rumors are afloat at the present in regard to the future operation of this section of railroad line.

There is some speculation regarding the possibility of this line being taken over by the N.Y. Central Company, being rebuilt and operated as a heavy duty freight line and powered entirely by Diesel Locomotives.

The New York Central could use this line from Montreal to Massena to much better advantage than the route via Malone and the Adirondacks due to the steep grades encountered on the latter route, a difficulty not found on the Massena run which is over nearly flat country. If this comes about, the much needed iron ore from the Labrador mines may be rolling via this line to the Pennsylvania Steel mills.. Should this happen, the stimulus of the extra freight and passenger service traffic would help business conditions all along the new route. For the present, however, all one can do is to keep one's fingers crossed and adopt a wait and see attitude. Train service on the Grand Trunk was inaugurated to Fort Covington in the 1880's and up to 20 years ago, two trains were running each way, each day. This service was reduced to two trains a day in the 1930's and now is to be discontinued altogether unless some new set up takes place.

Cigarette Smuggling Now A Major Racket

A craving for American cigarettes, plus prohibitive excise taxes, has led to a major smuggling racket in Italy, France, Spain and Canada. This year some $30,000,000 worth of cigarettes will be smuggled into Europe, says the Reader's Digest.

This business, centering around the "Smugglers' Triangle" between the ports of Tangier, Genoa and Marseilles, has all the trappings of adventure fiction—murder and gun battles on the high seas.

Smuggling captains include former USN petty officers, ex-GIs, deported American gangsters and former members of the Royal Navy. In a typical operation, "fishing boats" meet the smuggler's craft off the Italian 12-mile territorial limit and transport the contraband to a beach near Rome. There it is transferred to farm carts or autos and taken to secret warehouses—caves, abandoned houses or barns. Thence small lots are brought into Rome and distributed to the final retailers who are barbers, barmen, hotel porters and others.

Smuggling cigarettes has become a major business in some parts of Canada too, claims this article. Canadians are smoking more than a billion smuggled American cigarettes a year. RCMP patrols are doing a tremendous job of prevention against highly-organized gangs. Without the Mounties the Canadian market would be swamped.

Hottest area of all and the scene of many a wild night chase is the southern strip of Quebec province. Here hundreds of roads and lanes criscross the border. Pilot cars with souped-up motors roll ahead of the cigarette trucks probing for weak spots. Farmers in league with the smugglers wink barnyard lights to betray police ambushes. All the tricks and some of the violence of U.S. prohibition days have been revived—only now the traffic moves north. And last year the RCMP seized 13,514,000 U.S. cigarettes, four times the number taken in 1951.

TRACTOR SAFETY

MONTREAL, (CP)-Safety measures in driving farm tractors will be illustrated at Macdonald College's Farm Day to be held June 20. The Quebec Farm Forum associations from various districts will also enter competitive events.

Shooting Season

The shooting season for pheasants got off to a good start last Saturday and quite a few hunters were in evidence in the woods. The Huntingdon Shooting Club recently released 36 pheasants of flying age in the Fraser Point district, so with a season of 15 days, the boys will no doubt do their best to get themselves a bird.

It was noted that members of the Audobon Society are on the alert in Western Canada just now for any news of the observed migration of Canada's largest waterfowl, the nearly extinct whooping crane. This is the season when these great white birds, whose wing-spread is seven feet and who stand two feet tall, commence their annual flight from the nesting grounds in the North West Territories to their winter habitat on the Texas Gulf Coast. On their way down the flyway, they are said to stop for a rest along the River Platte in Nebraska. Ornithologists say that but 21 of this rare species are still remaining and unless care is taken against illegal shooting they may go out of existence entirely. It is said that in pioneer days there were as many as 1500 whooping cranes and they darkened the skies in their flight from the Arctic to Texas. Half a century of effort has been spent by ornithologists in trying to locate their breeding grounds and establish the cause of their diminishing numbers.

About a year ago two scientists discovered in the wilderness North of Great Slave Lake the cranes' nesting places and now it is intended to send out an expedition to the area to try to find the cranes' enemies that are preventing an increase in its numbers.

According to a recent article on "Ducks Unlimited" a project started quite a number of years ago in Western Canada the scheme has paid off so well that coupled with several rainy seasons the last few years the quackers have become so numerous that they are a menace to the grain crops. Whole droves of them fly and waddle out of the sloughs and in next to no time a promising field of grain can be ruined. Govt. officials are issuing permits to farmers allowing them to shoot the depradators if they are causing damage to the farmer's crop.

Recently Mr. Howard Fraser returned home from Camp Lewis in the Laurentians where he spent a very pleasant and interesting summer working as a tribe director. Howard was also in charge of Chapel Services for the Protestant and Jewish boys in camp. This year, through the efforts of several of the boys, a new outdoor chapel was hewn out of the wooded mountainside on a high spot overlooking beautiful Lake St. Marie. A dedication service was held the last Sunday the boys were in Camp.

Mrs. D. A. Fraser and Howard have just returned from a trip to Philadelphia, Pennsylvania, where they visited an elderly aunt, Miss Victoria M. Carr. Miss Carr was formerly a resident of Elgin, Que., but has lived and worked for many years in Philadelphia. While there Mrs. Fraser and Howard visited many points of historic interest. They also spent some time in New York City. He and his mother are spending a few days at their home in Dundee before Howard returns to Sir George Williams College to continue his course in Arts. Howard occupied the pulpit of the St. Paul's Church in Ormstown on Sunday, Sept. 6, and this coming Sunday he will preach in Zion Church, Dundee.

Sunday guests of Mr. and Mrs. R. G. Steven were Miss Christena Wilson, Mr. and Mrs. Roy Dockstader and their son, Glen, and daughter, Audrey, all of Winchester, Ont. Miss Wilson was a former Superintendent of the Cornwall General Hospital and is now Superintendent of the new Winchester Memorial Hospital.

Mr. and Mrs. T. E. MacLeod and Mrs. MacLeod's mother, Mrs. Cook, left the first part of the week for St. John, N.B., after occupying the Manse during the summer months. Mrs. McLeod plans to remain in St. John during the winter while her husband continues his course at College in Montreal.

Mrs. Cassie MacDonald, Montreal, has been spending a couple of weeks at the home of Mr. and Mrs. N. D. McPhee.

A real estate transaction of considerable significance was completed recently when the home and farm property belonging to the Leslie family just east of St. Anicet was sold to the Brothers of the Order of the Sacred Heart whose headquarters are in Granby, Que. The reported price is near the $25,000.00 mark. The farm itself comprises 250 acres more or less and fronts beautiful Lake St. Francis.

According to reliable information, the Order are starting out to build on and improve the property immediately. They are planning to build a three storey structure on a hill on the south side of Highway No. 3, which will be 250 ft. x 100 ft. The ultimate use of the building will be College and residential facilities for the Brothers. Shovels and bulldozers are already on hand commencing the excavation and leveling work on the property. It is said that the Order are negotiating for the purchase of an adjacent farm owned by a Mr. Dupuis.

Mr. L. Levine and Committee Thanked For Most Successful Campaign

The Huntingdon Home and School Association held its first meeting of the season, in the High School auditorium on September 16, with an average attendance.

The president, Mr. Dahms, read the "Home and School Association Creed" and expressed the wish that this be their aim in creating better understanding among parents, teachers and school children.

Mr. Levine gave an excellent and full report on the recent campaign for "Library Fund." The total receipts of the campaign were $1,426.15, which includes promised payments of $200. Mr. Levine also expressed thanks to those who acted on the special names committee, out of town committee, zone chairmen canvassers and donors. On motion of Mr. Levine and Mrs. Gordon MacLean, this report was adopted as read.

Both Mr. MacLean and Mr. Oney congratulated Mr. Levine on his excellent report and expressed the thanks of the Association members for the competent manner in which this campaign was carried out. In his reply, Mr. Levine stated that he had derived a great deal of pleasure from the work and hoped the children would profit from it.

The following committee was appointed to choose books for the library: Miss Elsie MacFarlane, Dr. H. S. Cook, Mrs. Cecil Brown, Mrs. W. K. Philps, and Mrs. L. Levine.

It was moved by Mr. Geo. Boyce, seconded by Mr. Wilbur Arthur that the committee purchase books with the campaign funds and then approach the School Board regarding improvements they might make to library room. In this way the Home and School Association could assist.

It was moved by Mr. Levine, seconded by Mrs. Mack that the committee appointed select the books, hand the estimate to the Association for approval and present the bills to the treasurer to be paid out of the "Trust Fund."

It was moved by Mr. Oney, seconded by Mr. Geo. Boyce that the campaign funds be placed in the special "School Library Fund" and president and treasurer authorized to sign the cheques.

It was moved by Mr. Levine and seconded by Allan Mack that book plates and covers come out of the "Trust Fund" as part of the complete book.

The question of some special way of expressing appreciation to Miss MacFarlane was discussed and on motion of Rev. R. MacLean and Mrs. K. Ross, this matter was left in the hands of the president and the principal.

Several ideas were brought forth to increase the membership of the Association. Mrs. W. R. Wilson and Mrs. Gordon MacLean volunteered to act on a "Membership Committee." The "Programme Committee" was left in the hands of the executive.

Coming attractions are a "School Fair" early in October and a Fashion Show for children, under the direction of Mrs. Rosenschein in November.

Plan to Make Gold Radioactive Now Being Considered

Toronto — (BUP) — Atomic power may save Canada millions of dollars through a plan to have all gold produced in Ontario's 40 mines made radioactive so it can be easily identified if stolen.

The Ontario Mining Association, working with the gold squad of the Ontario provincial police, announced the plan now is being prepared.

Identification would be similar to branding herds of cattle.

Each mine would be registered for the amount of radiation its gold receives during refining.

Canada has lost millions of dollars in thefts even though some of the stolen gold later was located in other countries. The new branding would enable stolen gold to be identified anywhere in the world as the product of a particular mine.

The association said the amount of radiation, while positively marking the gold, would not be great enough to endanger the lives of handlers, even thieves.

What was believed to be an international smuggling ring got away with $92,000 in gold from Sudbury several years ago and police learned the ring moved the loot to the far east.

A year later a similar quantity of gold was discovered outside Singapore but Canada could not rightfully reclaim it without any positive means of identification.

Gold theft, or highgrading, is "big business" in Ontario and a few years ago gold thieves were averaging $1,000,000 in loot annually. The amount of gold bullion stolen in a year in Ontario often dwarfs bank robberies for the same period.

Gold pirates on the international level are so adroit much of their work defies detection. Officials said the new plan for a far-reaching peacetime use of atomic power would curb smugglers' activities considerably.

Canada Has Iroquois Name

The word "Canada" now is believed to have come from an Indian word meaning "village." At least that's the opinion of the Canadian board of geographical names at Ottawa. It says Jacques Cartier's report on his second voyage in 1535 contained a number of Iroquois words and among the list was "Canada" meaning a village, collection of tents or an encampment.

Early Spanish explorers are said to have described North America by the phrase "aca nada" meaning "nothing here." The word "Canada" means "strait" in 15th century Portuguese, and it may have been applied by explorers from that country.

More People Live in Trailers

TORONTO — More than 10,000 Canadians have taken a cue from the snail and the tortoise and found a happy way to beat the national housing shortage. When they take their homes with them — on wheels. The residential trailer coach, the palatial offspring of the pre-war vacation trailer, will become the permanent home of another 5,000 Canadians within the next 12 months.

Moveable Homes

Most of these trailers will house families of armed service men and construction and defence workers who find it difficult, if not impossible, to find adequate accommodation at a price they can afford to when they move from base to base or job to job.

Trailers are also popular with retired people, who have brought up their families, and no longer need large homes. They find their homes on wheels easy to keep, and convenient to transport behind the family car to vacation lands north and south.

Young couples find trailers a satisfactory answer to their peculiar problems. The downpayment on a trailer, completely furnished, is no more than the cost of furnishing a three-room apartment.

The elevation of the trailer from gypsy caravan or sportsman's plaything to permanent home is evident in the trend toward longer, roomier, more luxurious coaches.

Before the war, the typical trailer was a one-room cabin, probably built by an amateur carpenter. Today the average length has stretch to 30 feet, with 40 and 50 foot models more and more in demand.

The modern trailer home, built to please the lady of the house, has a living room with picture windows, custom foam-rubber furniture, rubber tile or wall to wall carpeting, and possible built-in-television.

Kitchen-Dinette

A compact kitchen-dinette boasts a four-burner gas range, electric refrigerator, double sink, hot and cold running water, automatic washing machine, and numerous space—and time-saving gadgets.

The tiled bathroom is complete with tub, shower, toilet and wash basin.

There'll be one or two bedrooms, with built-in- cupboards and drawers. The living-room davenport can be converted into a sleeping quarters, too.

The trailer is completely insulated, heated in winter by forced air, and finished in knotty pine or birch.

Families contemplating trailer life usually start with a second-hand, or small model, costing in the neighborhood of $2,500. Their monthly ground rent in a trailer park wll be from $15 to $25, including water and hydro. They will stay in one park for two or three months or two or three years.

Delux Block 67,000

Once they are "broken-in" to trailer living—and most new trailers are sold to experienced hands —they want a model home with all the comforts of a house on concrete foundations. Larger models cost $5,000, and deluxe jobs up to $7,000.

For most trailer families, a house is a thing of the past. Even if the housing shortage disappeared, they say they will continue to be like snail and tortoise, and take their homes with them.

Traffic's Annual Toll

Unlike the serious contagious diseases, traffic accidents are not on the wane. Every year the toll grows larger and more deadly. The man who drives when he is overtired, sick or emotionally up-set is a menace; the driver who takes his car out when he knows that his eyesight, hearing or other faculties are impaired is risking not only his own life but also those of others on the road. Motorists who suffer from heart trouble or diabetes, either of which may cause a "blackout," should never drive long distances alone.

Patrols Keep Tab On Gas Pipelines

EDMONTON (CP) — To ensure the smooth operation of Alberta's 1,100 miles of gas transmission pipelines, the province's gas companies employ crews of men known as "line-walkers".

Their job is to patrol the line on foot, following a carefully designed schedule. A linewalker averages 12 miles a day, using snowshoes or skis in the winter.

He examines closely all above-ground portions of the line. Where it crosses a river he looks for changes in the river and erosion of the banks.

Leaks in underground pipelines are rare, but if they occur, the highly-trained inspector detects them from such clues as discolored vegetation or swarms of flies.

Rockburn

ROCKBURN — Mr. and Mrs. Everett Lindsay and sons accompanied Mr. Orville Bazter to East Farnham recently where they spent the day with their cousins, Mr. and Mrs. James Beattie.

Mr. and Mrs. H. A. Oliver of Huntingdon and Mr. Rudolph Oliver of Miami, Fla., were visitors last week at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Trainer and Miss Cain.

Mr. B. H. Pennington, was able to return to his position in Montreal on Wednesday last, after being kept at home for six weeks, the result of illness.

Mr. Charles Paddock of Franklin Centre and his brother, Mr. C. A. Paddock of Boston, Mass., were guests Friday of Mrs. W. G. Gibson.

Because of the absence of Rev. MacMillan on Sunday, Mr. Eastman occupied the Rockburn pulpit, speaking on behalf of the "Gideons" and the excellent work done by them in the placing of thousands of Bibles where they will be seen and may be read by any and all. Service as usual was announced for next Sunday and an additional Evening service when Dr. Allana Reid will be Guest Speaker, the latter under the auspices of the W.M.S. Evening group.

Mr. and Mrs. S. Currie and children and Margaret Scally and Peter Webster, all of Montreal were week-end guests of Mrs. Walker, and Mr. and Mrs. Walker accompanied Mr. and Mrs. G. A. Goldie to Hemmingford to visit friends, Mr. and Mrs. W. Clark, on Sunday.

Mr. and Mrs. John Young and little daughter of Kylmar were with Mr. and Mrs. G. A. Goldie over the week-end.
