Communists put Laotian neutrals out of a key area

VIENTIANE, Laos — Laotian neutralist forces have been driven out of the key town of Xieng Khouang on the Plain of Jars by the pro-Communist Pathet Lao and are appealing for reinforcements, it was reported today.

Reliable sources said the skirmishing on the Plain had grown into fierce fighting with 5,000 neutralist troops battling about 10,000 Pathet Lao.

Reports of the loss of Xieng Khouang, former neutralist headquarters in central Laos, came as Avtar Singh, Indian chairman to the three-nation control commission supervising Laotian neutrality, said the situation on the Plain was "grave."

Shotgun shells found

By MALCOLM REID
(Record Staff Reporter)

The civilian fireman at the Williams Street Armory in Sherbrooke has found five 12-gauge shotgun shells in the coal bin of the building over the seven-day period from March 29 to April 4, it was revealed today.

The Quebec Command of the Army confirmed the discovery in the wake of bomb scares at various military installations in the province, many signed by the Front de Liberation Quebecois, a terrorist separatist group.

The Sherbrooke incident broke Wednesday, when an anonymous telephone call warned municipal police of a bomb planted in the two city armories.

The Army reports this morning that the fire in the armory furnace has been kept burning, and there has been no explosion.

Neither the Army nor Sherbrooke police reported anything to connect the incident with the FLQ.

No similar incident was reported at the Belvedere Street Armory, headquarters of the Fusiliers de Sherbrooke. The Williams Street Armory houses the Sherbrooke Regiment.

The fireman's discoveries of the shells were made as he shovelled coal for the furnace. The Army could not confirm report that the shells had been painted black to make them difficult to see amid coal.

No shells have been found since April 4, last Thursday. Municipal police are continuing their investigation.

Two firefighters killed

Off-duty woman doctor is hero of fatal weekend Montreal fire

MONTREAL (CP)—Two firemen were rescued in a nerve-racking eight-hour operation Saturday after two floors of a burned-out building collapsed, killing two of their companions. A young woman doctor buried through the danger-laden debris to treat the injured firemen as they awaited rescue.

Patrick McManus, 37, and Marcel Remillard, 36, were crushed to death in the sudden avalanche after firemen had the blaze in the annex building of the large downtown Woodhouse furniture store under control.

A refrigerator sliding down the slope of the collapsed second floor ceiling knocked fireman Gilles Menard from the second floor to the sidewalk and knocked debris on top of him. He suffered a broken back.

Thirty minutes after the collapse, fireman Adrien Gingras, 29, was located, pinned down by a beam. Another fireman, Robert Leggett, 34, was heard yelling from a tangle of pipes, wires and other debris.

ADMINISTERS MORPHINE

The young doctor, Genevieve de Groot, on duty at Notre Dame Hospital, entered the building and crawled on her stomach through the rubble to administer morphine to the firemen.

She remained on the scene until the last body was brought out 12 hours later.

A civic funeral for the victims has been tentatively scheduled for Wednesday.

Fine weather favors heavy turnout

Townships voters go to polls

Record turnout forecast

By BEN WARD
Canadian Press Staff Writer

Canadians voted today in a federal general election billed by political leaders as one of the most crucial in the nation's history. A record turnout was expected.

Good weather was forecast for most of the country.

The burning questions: Could Prime Minister Diefenbaker's Progressive Conservatives hold off the Liberals led by Lester B. Pearson?

Would a majority government be put in charge of national affairs or would the voter indecision of last June be continued?

The answers rested with a record 9,875,473 eligible voters electing the 265 members for the House of Commons in the 26th Parliament from among 1,023 candidates—another record. Polls were open for 11 hours, from 8 a.m. to 7 p.m. local standard time.

The government elected in this fourth federal election in less than six years and the 26th since Confederation in 1867, may be the nation's centennial administration.

AWAIT RETURNS

Mr. Diefenbaker awaited election returns in his home riding of Prince Albert in central Saskatchewan. Mr. Pearson was in Ottawa, Social Credit Leader Thompson in Red Deer, Alta., and New Democratic Party Leader T. C. Douglas in his Vancouver-area riding of Burnaby-Coquitlam.

The campaign fell to a whisper during the weekend as the four party leaders put the final touches on their election drives.

Probably the most intriguing question in today's vote was whether Mr. Diefenbaker could hold power in the new Parliament.

He came to power in June of 1957, heading a minority government which ended a 22-year-old Liberal reign. He called another election for March, 1958, and swept 208 seats for the biggest majority in Canadian history.

Last June the government was knocked back into a minority situation, winning 116 seats while the Liberals doubled their strength to 100.

Electoral officer's son supervises BCS 'election'

By SANDRA PICKFORD
(Record staff reporter)

Two of the busiest people in today's federal election will be the chief electoral officer of Canada, Nelson Castonguay, — and his 15-year-old son Peter.

Following in his father's footsteps and his grandfather's before him, Peter, a fifth form (grade ten) student at Bishop's College School, Lennoxville, is the chief electoral officer for a mock election today for the "constituency of BCS".

Plans for the mock election were suggested by Peter to fellow members of the B.C.S. 5A-1 Club (a club formed to promote activities at the school) two months ago.

After the school had consented to the election Peter wrote his father who put the school on the mailing list to receive all necessary papers actually used in the federal election.

Peter and his 5A-1 club members have followed the authentic election procedure throughout the campaign.

Party conventions were held to choose four candidates from the student body to represent Canada's major political parties and proper nomination papers were filed with the electoral officer by each candidate's agent.

Standard bearer for the Liberals is George Wanklyn, 17, of Montreal; Conservative, Ronald Graham, 15, Montreal; NDP, Piers Gray, 16, Halifax, and Social Credit, Wolfgang Demisch, 17, of Toronto.

Enumeration of the student body was carried out February 27, 28 and 29 by two students, Victor Drury, 15, of Westmount and Aylesworth Macnaughton, 16, of Montreal. Victor's father, businessman Charles Mills Drury, is Liberal candidate for St. Antoine-Westmount and Aylesworth's father, lawyer Alan Macnaughton is Liberal candidate for the Town of Mount Royal.

One hundred and ninety-seven of the 240-member student body are eligible to vote today between 3:15 and 6 p.m. An advance poll was held at noon.

Since the minimum voting age is 14 years—19 years maximum—the BCS Preparatory School has been excluded from participation in the election.

Campaigning by the candidates and their committee members has been hard and active. Although most activities have been held at the school, campaigning also moved to the school houses.

Political pamphlets have been scattered on the students' beds. Huge banners drape across the walls and

Lawrence, Mocking Bird vying for Oscars

HOLLYWOOD (AP)—Will this be the year of Lawrence or will Oscar listen to the Mockingbird?

That appears to be the major issue as post time approaches for tonight's Motion Picture Academy awards, the 35th to be given in Hollywood.

Last-minute speculation centred around the possible sweep of awards. The annual pageant has taken on the aspect of a landslide in recent years, with films such as West Side Story, Ben-Hur and Gigi taking a major share of the gilded statuettes.

If the same voting trend preails this year, experts see Lawrence of Arabia as the leader. But To Kill a Mockingbird has attracted a lot of support as a piece of Americana and as a movie produced without a huge budget. Less likely candidates for best-picture honors are The Longest Day, Music Man and Mutiny on the Bounty.

The award ceremonies at the Santa Monica Civic Auditorium will feature the largest assemblage of past Oscar winners and the smallest turnout of current contenders for the top acting prize.

Only Gregory Peck (Mockingbird) and Jack Lemmon (Days of Wine and Roses) will be present of the starring actor nominees. Peter O'Toole (Lawrence) could not get away from his London play. Marcello Mastroianni (Divorce—Italian style) at last word, was in Italy. Burt Lancaster (Bird Man of Alcatraz) is in bed with hepatitis.

Bette Davis (What Ever Happened to Baby Jane?) and Lee Remick (Days of Wine and Roses) are the only actress stars slated to attend. Among the missing are Anne Bancroft (The Miracle Worker) and Geraldine Page (Sweet Bird of Youth), both in Broadway plays.

Bright sunny skies with temperatures that promised to go over the 50 degree mark by early afternoon favored electors in eight Eastern Townships ridings as they went to the polls to elect their representatives in the 26th Parliament of Canada.

The near-perfect election day weather strengthened the belief previously expressed by officials that the vote this year would create a new record and that the 80 per cent mark, established for the first time in the June, 1962 general election would be topped.

A somewhat higher registration this year and the expected jump in the voting ratio indicated that the vote in Sherbrooke County might be in the vicinity of 35,000 as compared with the 32,051 accepted ballots polled last June.

Another factor that might boost the local vote slightly is the presence of five candidates in the field as compared with four last year.

Similarly, in six of the seven other ET ridings, four candidates are seeking the endorsement of the electorate today. Last June all ridings with the exception of Sherbrooke saw three men in the field — Progressive Conservative, Liberal and Social Credit. Sherbrooke also had a New Democratic Party entry.

In today's election, the New Democrats are contesting all district constituencies with the exception of Stanstead, where the only three-way fight is in progress. In Sherbrooke, an Independent, Philippe Brousseau, brings the list of candidates to five.

WOMAN CANDIDATE

For the first time in ET elections history, a woman is seeking election to the House of Commons, Mrs. Estelle Gobeil, of La Patrie, running on the PC ticket in Compton-Frontenac.

Thirteen of the 32 entries in the Eastern Townships have had previous campaign experience. All eight Members of the last Parliament — six Social Credits and two PCs — are seeking re-election today, while a former PC member, Florent Dubois, is contesting Richmond Wolfe.

The Sherbrooke Independent, L. P. Brousseau, served for two years as Liberal MLA for this county.

Social Credit candidates in Stanstead and Brome-Missisquoi, defeated in 1962, are making another bid for election as is Gus Steenland, NDP candidate in Sherbrooke.

QUIET CAMPAIGN

Although campaigning across Canada generally is reported to have been unusually active, pre-election activity in most ET constituencies has been below average. Greatest activity has been displayed by the Social Credit forces seeking to repeat their 1962 sweep, when they took six of the eight seats.

Real Caouette, leader of the Quebec wing of the party, has made several visits to districts addressing regional rallies while his candidates have held many local meetings.

Progressive Conservative and Liberal candidates have confined themselves to one or two local meetings per county while

Townships police on alert

All available men have been placed on duty by the Quebec Police throughout the Eastern Townships for the period that the polls will be open today.

Sergeant Ralph Allan, officer in charge of this section, said today that QPP constables will be making regular patrols, and that "naturally they will be passing by the polls, and naturally they will be keeping their eyes open."

He said that QPP personnel normally work three shifts. Today, he said, men from the night shifts are to work from 8 a.m. to 7 p.m., when the polls close.

Captain Armand Genest of the Sherbrooke Municipal Police said that the normal daytime force has been more than doubled for the day. About 20 men have been drawn from the night shifts to reinforce the 17 or 18 men normally on daytime patrol. "This procedure," he said, "is the same as it has been for every election in the past 25 years. There is nothing unusual about it."

The extra men, he said, would patrol between the 226 polls in the city.

Urge strike

LONDON (Reuters) — British railroad workers at meetings in Manchester, Glasgow and Aberdeen Sunday urged a national strike to protest government plans for a drastic revision of the state-owned rail system.

Eastertide pilgrims flocking to Rome

ROME (AP) — Thousands of tourists moved about Rome today, attracted by the Holy Week ceremonies that usher in Easter. The vanguard flocked in during the weekend as Palm Sunday opened Christendom's most solemn week.

Government officials said they expect a bigger crowd than last year's 150,000 tourists. Hotels reported bookings filled.

As usual, the pre-Easter arrivals are predominantly from Germany, Austria, Scandinavia, France and The Netherlands.

Pope John blessed palms Sunday in St. Peter's Basilica. He gave his blessing at noon from his apartment window to 50,000 persons—double the usual Sunday crowd — in St. Peter's Square.

Palms were distributed at masses in Roman Catholic churches throughout the world. In Italy, the palms of Palm Sunday actually are olive branches, more plentiful and more traditional. The branches blessed in St. Peter's were both pale yellow palm and dark green olive.

Pope John will issue a major new encyclical letter Pacem in Terris (peace on earth) Wednesday.

Holy Thursday, he will offer

COUNT MAKES FINESSE SURE

"Win at Bridge" is my first bridge book in more than 20 years. It outlines the simple method of bidding and play that I have found most effective after 35 years of play from the White House to a tent in Korea.

Here is a hand that illustrates how declarer may occasionally be just as sure of where a key card is as if he were looking right in the opponents' hands.

I'm going to get some C-I-L CILTONE SATIN LATEX and do a GOOD job!

Last year I made a mess of the hall and bathroom. This year I'm going to play it smart and get some Ciltone. I was talking with my cousin Harry, he's a painting contractor, and says he only uses C-I-L Products because of their dependability and quality. If it's good enough for Harry, it's good enough for me.

Should get cheque within five weeks

'First in first out' is policy of federal income tax office

ADVICE — An inquiring taxpayer gets advice from Richard Couture, assessor with the income tax division at its office in the Sherbrooke federal building atop King Hill. About 150 such inquiries on people's income tax returns are answered across the desk in a week, says District Taxation Director J. M. Laverdure. (Record photo by Gerry Lemay)

"First in first out" is the policy at the federal income tax division.

"It's not alphabetical as many people think," says J. M. Laverdure, director of taxation for the district of Sherbrooke, who urges taxpayers to file returns early if they have refunds coming.

"If a man files a correct return, depending on the machinery, he should get a cheque within five weeks," Mr. Laverdure says.

His department has issued 7,000 refunds already, and tax deadline is not until April 30.

Interviewed by The Record in his Federal Building office, the tax director had four-step advice on how to make sure a federal income tax return is correct — and hence will be answered promptly.

First of all, the taxpayer should read all instructions and answer all questions on his return form.

He should attach his T4 form, a summary by his employer of his year's income, or collect all his T4s and attach them, if he has worked for more than one employer during the year.

The third step is something not to do — don't send the federal tax department provincial tax forms, or TP4s. "We get quite a few, but we have to send them back," says Mr. Laverdure.

By MALCOLM REID
(Record staff reporter)

Finally, he should attach his receipts for tax-exempt medical expenses and donations. The return is then ready to send in.

If his return is not as simple as all that, however, a taxpayer may consult the assessors at the desk in the department's Couture Street office on the puzzling points.

ET residents are awarded fellowships

Three Eastern Townships residents have been awarded medical research fellowships for 1963-64.

Given by the Medical Research Council of Canada, they are for graduate training in specified fields of research.

A fellowship worth $4,600 has been granted to Jacques Lamoureux of Sherbrooke, who received his doctorate at Laval. He will study endocrinology at Notre Dame Hospital.

Jules Brodeur of Garthby, who holds a doctorate from the University of Montreal, was awarded $5,400 to study pharmacology in Chicago.

Pierre Biron of Waterloo, another University of Montreal doctorate holder, was granted $5,000 to study enzymology at the Hospital des Enfants Malades, Paris.

And there is a box in the lobby in which returns can be dropped at any hour.

"The great majority of taxpayers are honest," Mr. Laverdure declares. He has on his staff inspectors who travel through the district checking the returns of corporations on the spot, and the odd case of fraud is uncovered, but short of this there are disputed claims to be settled.

These can go before the Income Tax Appeals Board, a touring tribunal (its judges sit in Sherbrooke last November). A $15 deposit is required to present your case to it, an appeal can go to the Exchequer and even the Supreme Court.

Most often disputed are business improvements which the taxpayer considers expenses but the tax authorities see as investments.

Another institution, non-official this time, which won the praise of Mr. Laverdure was the Canadian Tax Foundation, made up of lawyers and accountants who study income and other levies and advise the government on tax legislation amendments.

But if taxpayers are in the majority honest, many do tend to be a bit neglectful about getting returns in. Mr. Laverdure urges them to file early (already a month before deadline the office had processed 50,000 returns) and to file even if they owe nothing, for the completeness of their records.

World's Fair

Favors committee to plan for tourists

By JAMES DAVIES
(Record staff reporter)

Extensive commercial developments are planned for Sherbrooke to accommodate an expected influx of visitors during the 1967 World's Fair, Mayor Armand Nadeau said this weekend in an interview with The Record.

Although Mayor Armand Nadeau did not specify the nature of these projects, he did note that adequate measures would be taken to accommodate additional visitors.

So that the city of Sherbrooke will be able to draw its share of tourists from the Montreal area during the World's Fair, Mayor Nadeau said that he will suggest the formation of a special local committee at today's council meeting.

Members of the Fair body will in all probability be sent to Brussels, Belgium, he said to find out "how a world fair ticks."

Adding that he is one of eight members of a special world fair committee charged with making recommendations in the interests of the province, he hoped that the local committee could act as a sub-division of this one.

All recommendations could be processed through this body, he said.

The mayor also noted that there were several groups at present planning specific projects for the area for 1967 and mentioned that the body that he proposed could coordinate their activities.

No mention was made by Mayor Nadeau of the possible make-up of the committee.

Civil officials have not yet planned special projects other than a new city hall which the mayor repeated "would be the monument of the city."

The mayor did not discount the possibility of drawing up other plans.

Ex-Sherbrooke printer dies at Toronto

TORONTO (CP) — Harry Strand Browning, 81, who joined the silver rush to Cobalt, Ont., in 1907 and founded Northern Ontario's first daily newspaper, died suddenly Friday at his home here.

Born in Ashford, Kent, in England, he moved with his parents a year after his birth, first to Lennoxville, Que., then to Sherbrooke. He was apprenticed to the printing trade at the age of 14 on the weekly Sherbrooke Examiner, later joining the Sherbrooke Daily Record shortly after its establishment in 1897.

Mr. Browning went to Cobalt when its rich mining fields were attracting wide attention and joined the staff of the Silver City News, published in adjacent Haliburton. In 1908, with the late W. G. Ferguson of Smiths Falls, Ont., he bought the weekly Cobalt Nugget and installed Cobalt's first printing plant.

With Mr. Browning as owner, Nugget became a daily in 1909. By then Cobalt's population had expanded to 6,500 and it was the biggest and most prosperous mining town in Northern Ontario.

He was one of the original members of The Canadian Press, the cooperative news-gathering agency founded in 1917, and the Cobalt Nugget was the first newspaper in Northern Ontario to offer its readers a daily telegraphic news service.

Survivors include his wife, the former Mary B. McCrea of Pembroke, Ont., sons Gordon of Sudbury and Richard of Los Angeles, and daughters Mrs. Barbara Bell and Joan Browning of Toronto.

The body is at Turner and Porter Funeral Home, Toronto. Funeral services will be private.

Vimy Street firm

No action taken on summons charging zoning violation

No action has been taken to date on a summons issued last year alleging that a North Ward resident is operating a business in violation of city zoning regulations.

Zepherin Moreau of Moreau Manufacturer Inc. at 422 Vimy Street, was served with a summons October 17, 1962 and has yet to appear in municipal court to answer the charge, according to court clerk Robert Aube.

The charge, according to Mr. Aube reads as follows: "a place which uses illegally a building and the land situated in a D-4 zone for ends other than those permitted in the said location in contravention to articles 212 and 229 of rule number 1071 of the City of Sherbrooke."

"I know that a city official asked Mr. Rivard to have the case postponed," he noted.

"What has happened," said Mr. Aube, "is that Mr. Rivard (city attorney) has been arranging again and again postponement of the action ever since the day that this summons was issued."

"Officially," added Mr. Aube, "the case is still on the books, but it has been postponed every 15 days since October 17 of last year."

"Before such court action can be postponed," noted Mr. Aube, "the city attorney must notify the judge (in this case Pierre Beaudry)."

"He does not have to appear in court," he added, "a telephone call from Rivard to Mr. Beaudry will suffice to stall the action."

From the Moreau premises are sold, according to Mrs. Marcelle Moreau, such products as garage doors, window frames, aluminum doors, and venetian blinds.

The summons was issued, after Sherbrooke council decided that Mr. Moreau was operating a business in a residential area, said Mr. Aube.

Building Inspector Aime Gagnon said Friday that the business was still in operation.

Said Mr. Gagnon "the matter is in the hands of the city lawyer, Mr. Rivard."

Neither the court clerk, nor Mr. Gagnon could give reasons for delay on the part of the city to take action.

Judge Pierre Beaudry had no comment to make.

This year is the golden anniversary of the 4H Club work in Canada. Research has shown that the first 4H Clubs were organized in Roland, Manitoba in 1913. At that time, these clubs were known as Boys and Girls Club. They were organized through the schools. Eggs for hatching, seed potatoes, grain and vegetable seed were distributed through the schools. In the autumn the chicks and produce were exhibited at an achievement day. Similar achievement days known as school fairs were organized in Quebec in 1914.

These clubs soon afterwards were expanded to include livestock, home economics, etc. In this province, livestock clubs started in 1921. The first calf club to be sponsored by the federal and provincial departments of agriculture was organized in 1921 at Compton Village. In that year 30 boys and girls joined the club. The calf club held its achievement day at Compton Village on the farm of Mr. Audet. The calves were judged by the late J. A. McClary superintendent of the Lennoxville Experimental Farm. The prize money was donated by the Dominion Livestock Branch.

The club was organized by J. A. Sie, Marie who at that time was livestock promoter for the Dominion Livestock Branch and by herself, as representative of the provincial department of Agriculture. Several members of this early club are still farming, to name two Chester Sylvester, Waterville, and Stewart Cairns, Compton.

The story of the development of 4H Clubs in Canada, known originally as boys and girls club, is in itself a unique drama of growth of success, achievement and unrelenting growth akin only to the growth and evolution of Canadian agriculture itself.

4H is a pledge of head, heart, hands and health to a worthwhile life. About 72,000 young people across Canada are engaged in this pursuit. They bring to farming greater scientific and practical knowledge and to our communities their pledge of clearer thinking, greater loyalty, larger service and better living. Since its inception at Roland, Manitoba in 1913, the Canadian 4H Club movement has grown and prospered, becoming a recognized part of rural extension, education programmes and an important function of community activity.

4H Club work is specially designed for rural young people. It is a program that places personal responsibility upon each boy or girl taking part. It is compulsory for each member to raise, manage or complete at least one project each year. This project is centered at the member's home. The project is the means by which the member is taught to use the best material available to him, and to follow the most efficient methods in the project undertaken. The project may be in agriculture or home economics. In either case "Learning to do by doing" is the basic principle involved.

The entire program is devised to enable the 4H Club member to increase his physical, mental and spiritual growth. Thus trained he or she will ultimately be aided to take his or her place as a more responsible Canadian citizen.

4H Club members receive other benefits beside those of technical skill and knowledge. Through 4H Club work they receive a well balanced training in citizenship. They learn the proper manner to conduct meetings. They learn how to express themselves by taking part in discussions, debates, demonstrations and public speaking programs. The keeping of records on production costs develop their keen business sense. The clubs undertake many community projects. There are now more than 50 countries around the world with 4H programs. This is an indication that the appeal of 4H Club work and its ideals is a universal one. Also that the youth in every land has a common heritage.

By W. G. MACDOUGALL
(County Agriculturist)

The Canadian Council on 4H Clubs is the agency through which the 4H Programs in Canada is correlated. The council was incorporated in 1933, with the head office in Ottawa.

The council includes among its members, federal and all provincial departments of agriculture as well as representatives of the various Canadian Agricultural Associations and many industrial organizations interested in rural young people, and their welfare. The council was established to develop and direct 4H Club work nationally. Its major functions are:

1. To serve as a medium of exchange of information and ideas on 4H Club Work.

2. To foster the development of 4H Club work on a sound and constructive basis.

To arrange annually National 4H Club Week, at which time a certain number of 4H Club members from each province are guests of the National Council on 4H Club Work. This occasion is arranged at the time of the Royal Winter Fair in Toronto.

The maintenance of the head office, National 4H Club Week are made possible through contributions of the various agencies who are members of the Council.

Each Province is responsible for the planning, direction and supervision of the 4H program. In all provinces, the Canadian Department of Agriculture cooperates in the support of the 4H Club work. On the local front, clubs are supervised by the district representative of the agricultural extension service.

This year the national council in addition to arranging National 4H Club Week, are planning to celebrate the 50th anniversary of Club Work in Canada on May 12, when a special cairn will be unveiled in Roland, Manitoba, by government and business officials to mark the founding of the first 4H Club in Canada. This event will take place in conjunction with the annual meeting of the organization in Winnipeg May 12th-15th.

The council arranges each year to send 10 delegates one from each province to the American 4H Club Week in Washington.

The council is arranging two other projects in connection with the 50th anniversary. First the Interprovincial 4H Exchange from July 9 to July 23rd. A total of ninety 4H members, nine from each of the ten provinces, will be visiting a province other than his own. The Royal Bank of Canada, a long term member of the council, will assume the cost of travel.

Second, the 4H in the World Freedom from Hunger Organization. Each club will be given an opportunity of contributing to the world wide campaign. Each club will be asked to participate in the Share-A-Loaf Coin Card Collections.

Therefore from this brief outline it is readily seen that 4H is a real live youth organization throughout the world. Hence the aim is clearly defined in the symbolic four "H's". As they are embodied into the 4H Pledge and repeated wherever members meet in dutiful assembly. It reads "I pledge my head to clearer thinking; my heart to greater loyalty; my hands to larger service; my Health to better living for my Club, my Community and my Country."

NOW THE NEWS: Each year 4H Clubs have to raise money for their various projects and achievement day. The following events are being arranged for this purpose.

Lesage provides a poor alternative

No matter who wins the election today, there is no doubt now that Ottawa is going to have a particularly tough time in the next year with Quebec and Jean Lesage.

In his budget speech on Friday, the premier served notice that the federal government must hand over more of its direct taxing powers to Quebec, or else he would impose double taxation on this province's residents, and blame the federal government for having to do so.

At the same time, he showed that he is willing to give Ottawa at least a little time to come up with something. For this year, only the tax on gasoline and diesel fuel has been increased. All others remain the same. This in spite of a record $146,000,000 deficit forecast for the next fiscal year.

Obviously, Mr. Lesage is using this budget as an example to Ottawa of the province's financial needs.

There is no need to question why spending should be so high in Quebec this year. The Lesage record speaks for itself. Nearly every project his government has undertaken (and there have been many) has required the outlay of large sums of money. Mr. Lesage has argued that these expenditures are necessary to bring Quebec up to the level of Ontario.

His opponents have been accusing him of doing too much too fast without regard for the economic consequences.

Quebec does not have the means to pay for the Liberal program in so short a time, they argue. In a way, Mr. Lesage's budget speech admits the validity of these arguments. But, he has announced, he intends to find new means; means which according to the strict letter of Confederation agreements, should have been Quebec's all along.

If Mr. Lesage can find these means, then all will be well and good. But the sea upon which he is embarking is a rough and stormy one, strewn with the wrecks of provincial governments and royal commissions that foundered on the reefs of federal-provincial fiscal relations. There is more than Quebec involved in the problems; the other nine provinces are concerned, too. If we are to take Mr. Lesage at his word, then the alternative to success on this voyage will be crippling double taxation.

We say "crippling" because nothing can deflate a buoyant economy faster or turn ambitious sour more effectively than initiative-destroying, industry-discouraging excessive taxation.

It is a poor alternative to absolute victory over Ottawa.

Library is valuable community asset

In the days before mass-production printing, a man with a library of a dozen books was a rare person. He had to be wealthy to accumulate this collection which would be judged pitifully small by modern standards. The volumes were laboriously written by hand and sometimes took years to produce. They were expensive and few in number.

A private library was also a sign of a man's learning. It usually meant he was a scholar, a person given the privilege of being able to learn to read and write, and like the volumes they perused, these people were just as few in number.

There were, of course, libraries connected to various institutions but these were jealously protected, and were not comparable to today's public libraries, those market places of ideas where, for a nominal fee, the heritage of ages is at everybody's disposal.

Since the invention of printing, the number of books and publications is so great that it would take a king's treasure to acquire part of them. And this is why a public library is an valuable asset to every community.

A library card has been likened to a key, a key not only to endless pleasure in reading from the oldest books of mankind to the latest best sellers, but to funds of information covering a range of subjects from business, hobbies to succeeding in marriage.

During Canadian Library Week which began Saturday and runs until April 13, the services offered by public libraries are being emphasized. The library system has grown so fast that the supply of librarians cannot keep up with its growth.

For young people who have not made their choice of an occupation they should consider librarianship, a challenging profession demanding a great deal of personality and skills.

No contributions are being solicited during Canadian Library Week. All that is asked is that you join your local library and visit it regularly. The person it will help most is yourself.

Haydn S. Pearson's COUNTRY FLAVOR

The old farm shop was a sanctuary

In the days when a man did chores by the light of a lantern and he could be sure of cream o'tartar biscuits for supper, the farm shop was a sanctuary in stormy weather.

Modern farms have shops with power-driven machines, welding equipment and complicated tools; but in the 1910 era a shop was different. An old rusty stove threw comfortable heat, and when April's irritable mood was dominating the weather a man didn't object if the shop reached a mellow 75 degrees.

The floor was covered with chips, sawdust and debris. Along one side, the tool bench was a clutter of tools and pieces of boards. On nails above the bench were tools, short pieces of rope and leather and small coils of wire. A shelf or two held glass jars filled with nails and screws, bolts and washers. Beneath the bench was a pile of short boards and dimension stuff, good concealment for a few bottles of heartening spring tonic from the mail order house.

There were old horse blankets and pieces of harness hanging from pegs and hooks; crowbars, axes and sledge hammers stood in the corners. There were half-filled bags of phosphate and potash, and old rakes and hoes that needed teeth or handles. Of course, a man did some work. There were always repair jobs on the farm.

A farm shop on a rainy spring day is more than a work place. One can sit in an old wicker rocking chair and go through the farm journals and seed catalogs. He can make plans for the coming season. A farmer knows that the rush period is ahead; the weather will break and then the land calls. But on a day when cold rain plays tick-tack on the windows, it is good to putter along in the comfortable shop and relax while April gets the cantankerousness from its system.

Camera limitations in espionage

A question that has arisen concerning Cuba is how thorough is aerial reconnaissance. Despite amateur skepticism, the evidence appears strong that such aerial spying is amazingly effective under suitable conditions. The aerial camera records great detail, even from high altitude. Photo interpreters have developed superb techniques for analyzing the pictures. But reporters looking back on the Cuban crisis of 1962

St Thomas Times - Journal note that while the camera counted 42 offensive missiles outboard from Cuba, it never saw more than 30 on the ground at the sites earlier. Notwithstanding assurances from U.S. defence officials that there was no "photo gap" in the weeks just before the big reconnaissance find of Oct. 14, it is also a fact that very little has been shown to indicate how the big missiles and supporting systems got across Cuba to the developing sites. To the extent they were not found until at site and that some were never seen by flying cameras, aerial reconnaissance may be judged to have fallen short of total reliability. The Russians may have moved the weapons largely at night, using ground cover to hide them by day. From time to time they may also have Increased immigration is posing problem for South Africa future

By WARD CANNEL

JOHANNESBURG, South Africa — (NEA) — The nervous young man insisted again that his name and photo be withheld. It was an enormous step, he kept explaining, to give up your U.S. citizenship. And while he was pretty sure he would go through with it — well, there was still an outside possibility that . . .

Of the 21,000 immigrants who have come into South Africa in response to this nation's first year of a crash program to lure skilled whites, 216 are American.

"There's just no room in the U.S. anymore for a person to be an individual," he explained. "Everything is regimented, regulated, confined."

"Here, on the other hand, is a land for pioneers where you can be free. I've got the pioneer spirit. That's why I'm here. And these people have the right idea: if you build a life for yourself, no colored person should have the right to take it away from you."

"Of course it was very hard to make the decision to come out here. It's probably going to be hardest on mother back home. After all, we shared an apartment for 32 years . . ."

It would be misleading to say that South Africa's new stream of immigrants is made up of missionaries like this young American pioneer. But P. W. Weideman, South Africa's Undersecretary for Immigration, says:

"We get an awful lot of mail from the U.S.—especially from your South—congratulating us on our policy of racial separation and complaining that America is ruining everything with integration."

James Stewart, chief of mission here for the Inter-governmental Committee for European Migration, points out that while South Africa's total immigration is not large, it is a matter of significance for the first time, in several years, immigration is decisively ahead of emigration.

Statistically, over half of South Africa's boom in immigration are not carefully screened migrants at all, but "refugees"—settlers from other African nations who are moving south for one reason or another.

Cornelius Jooste, for example, has come from Kenya, fearful that the current situation, as black nationalism approaches there, will be dangerous.

Stephanus Hitchcock, on the other hand, has come from Tanganyika, a country that has been governed by Africans for more than a year. "I would have stayed," Hitchcock says, "but my kids are still in school and the education system is a little shaky up there."

Among South Africa's new residents are also a number of people coming home. D. T. deJong, for example, is a builder who went back to his native Holland after 35 years of residence in South Africa. "We figured we should go," he said. "But when we got there we found it a different world, so crowded and with all the young people criticizing South Africa for our racial policies."

"So, we turned around and came back. And you'll see, pretty soon the young people of this world will be coming to us here to ask how we solved this problem."

Curiously, many of the returnees are coming back not to South Africa but to the continent. Denys Strike, for example, is an auto salesman from Kenya who decided to go back to England "until Kenya decides where she's going."

"But I couldn't stand it there. So crowded. So cold. So dirty. I got out as fast as I could. And let me tell you, that if Kenya goes over to an African government without too much trouble, I'm going back. I don't care who runs the country if they do a good, sincere job."

Fewer than half of the immigrants into South Africa are new residents to the country—and most of them come from England. About 10 per cent of these go back to Britain. One recent British resident explained.

"It's a great country, and I could make a lot of money here I'm sure. But I'm not going to stay because there's trouble coming — and plenty of it."

"You can't keep 10 million people in separation. You're surrounding yourself and just asking for trouble."

Whether or not he is right, Johannesburg today is a scaffold of building as apartment houses rise in the middle-class, white residential areas.

Immigration officials discount largely the effect that South Africa's politics might have on prospective settlers.

"Most of the people coming here," Undersecretary Weideman says, "are simple British and German people who are not concerned with politics but rather with a chance to start a new life."

Regional Immigration Representative Richard Van Belkum adds:

"Besides, they know the problems that can arise in a multi-racial situation. Look at the trouble England is having with her West Indians."

But old-timers in immigration in South Africa see in the campaign to bring in warm, white bodies a different and more far-reaching problem. The vote to turn the British Commonwealth Union of South Africa into a Republic was won by the slim majority of about 75,000 votes in 1960, with the voting lines drawn largely according to background: Boer or British, as South Africa is governed by an alliance unswerving even now, 60 years after the Boer War.

Today, the National Party government of Dr. H. F. Verwoerd holds its office and its strict racial program by an electorate that is split along the same ethnic lines.

"With the gates down and so damn many British coming in," an immigration critic says, "we'll be back in the same old boat again."

"You let those British in and the first thing they do is open an exclusive club, to keep everybody but themselves out. And the next thing they do is vote against you."

Re-examine their methods

Ban-the-bombers analyze selves

LONDON (CP) — Ban-the-bombers in Britain seem to have decided that disturbing the civil peace may not be the best way to prevent nuclear war.

As the anti-nuclear movement undergoes a period of critical self-analysis, angry placards and pavement sitdowns are giving way to more elevated forms of protest — pamphlets, newspaper articles and public lectures.

These changes in the Campaign for Nuclear Disarmament spring from subtle alterations in leadership and policies. The once-soft centre of muddled pacifists, united only in their hatred of the bomb, is being hardened by young university intellectuals with a tough neo-Marxist program of action.

At the same time the Committee of 100, the CND splinter group believing in civil disobedience, is reluctantly concluding that the methods of Mahatma Gandhi won't always work in the face of an organized and generally enlightened police force. It is four years since the committee first sallied forth to snarl the city streets and strategic airfields of England with en masse demonstrations of passive resistance. The tactics were based on collective responsibility; if one was arrested, 100 would be.

The sitdowns and arrests quickly developed into a ritual, peculiarly English in style. It was like watching a game of human checkers played with cricket-ground rules and only occasionally marred by displays of bad taste or violence.

The ranks of the movement swelled. Followers were inspired in different ways by the lofty sincerity of philosopher Bertrand Russell, the dramatic urgency of playwrights John Osborne and Arnold Wesker, the life-loving charm of actress Vanessa Redgrave.

The climax came with the Berlin Wall crisis in the autumn of 1961. An estimated 12,000 ban-the-bombers and onlookers packed Trafalgar Square; 5,000 Bobbies fought to maintain control; the Public Order Act was invoked; and Russell, Robert Bolt and Wesker landed in jail.

RUSSELL RESIGNS
A year later, with the Cuban showdown, only a few confused teen-agers picketed the American embassy; two prominent female disarmers fled ignominiously to Ireland and Russell's home in craggy north Wales became a sort of central sorting office for a constant stream of telegrams to Moscow and Washington.

Russell, who had resigned from the Committee of 100, blamed America and claimed some of the credit for saving the world. But for many unilateralists the harsh clarity of the Kennedy-Khrushchev clash was a revelation. Idealistic illusions about the Soviet Union's good intentions were swept away.

Later Miss Redgrave also resigned, saying she could see no point in launching demonstra-

'Italy's Gandhi' dislikes title

By TOM A. CULLEN

LONDON — (NEA) — Danilo Dolci dislikes being called "the Italian Gandhi" or being compared to a saint. The 38-year-old Italian social worker is opposed to personality cults of any sort.

"Everything which is not true and simple does harm sooner or later," he explained, pointing to a pile of press clippings. Most of them used either "Gandhi" or "saint" in announcing Dolci's arrival in London on a lecture tour.

Yet Dolci, a round-faced six-footer who wears rimless glasses, is regarded as a saint by the poor peasants of Sicily and southern Italy. And his methods of non-violent resistance are strikingly similar to Gandhi's.

The only people who hate him apparently are the Mafia which rules Sicily through a combination of banditry and terror.

Ten years ago Dolci was a successful architect in Milan. Then he visited the fishing village of Trappeto, not far from Palermo in Sicily, and discovered his life work.

One of the first things he saw in Trappeto was the death of a child from starvation. "Not knowing what to do I decided to lie on the bed where the child had died. I thought how is it possible that people should have babies in such conditions?"

"Only a few miles away there were motor cars, cinemas, shop windows, an abundance of life. So on Oct. 14, 1952, I stopped eating."

This was the first of Dolci's famous hunger strikes. The last, in September 1962, was in protest against government delays in building an irrigation dam.

Dolci stayed in Sicily. He married a fisherman's widow, whose husband had been killed by the police, and whose only dowry was five children. The Dolcis now have three children of their own and have adopted four more.

Dolci has been twice sentenced to prison, served 50 days in jail in 1955 for putting some peasants to work mending a road. The police said he was "trespassing on government property."

But he has also founded schools to wipe out Sicily's appalling illiteracy (only one child in 10 can sign his name at the age of 12). He has persuaded the government to pull down slums and build new houses in Palermo. And he has opened four pilot centers manned by social workers and agricultural experts to help Sicily's down-trodden peasants.

But of all these schemes tion after demonstration and suggesting the committee should dissolve itself.

In all 104 people went to prison in the cause of nuclear disarmament and served a total of 5,000 days. The early martyrs now are emerging, pale and dispirited. At "coming out" parties the question they are asking over corned beef sandwiches and tea is: "Was it all in vain?"

HEAVY SENTENCES
Desmond Lock, a CND man who spent six months in prison, says the authorities broke the backbone of the civil disobedience movement by selecting a few non-famous demonstrators and giving them long sentences. Martyrdom began to lose its point, even to men of principle.

Another factor is that the world situation has changed since Cuba and the Nassau pact. Britain seems on the verge of abandoning her independent deterrent in all but name while the need for NATO has been reinforced.

posters of candidates (one of Liberal leader Pearson with a blue-ink moustache) decorate the hallways.

Campaign activities reached their height last night as each candidate presented his party's platform and views on questions ranging from nuclear arms, unemployment and bilingualism to recognition of Communist China and government aid to education.

"The purpose of the election," explained Peter, "is to teach the student proper election procedure and to help spark a greater interest in Canada's political scene."

Peter, has had some experience in mock elections before. He said a mock election was held at Rockcliffe Park Public School where he was a student in 1958.

Peter says he has no definite plans for his future.

"I'm interested in politics," he said, "but I am not positive if this is my field." Peter's father has been chief electoral officer of Canada since 1949. Mr. Castonguay's father, Jules, held the post before him.

Peter wouldn't venture a guess as to the outcome of the BCS mock election, but some of the other members and BCS students had their own ideas.

Said Victor, "It's hard to tell, but I think it will go Liberal."

Said Keith Billings, 18, of Three Rivers, "The PCs will receive a larger majority. They have put much more work behind their campaign and their policies are better known to the students."

Results to the mock election will be posted at 7 p.m. tonight.

There is $2,750 being offered as prizes which is divided as follows: $700 for the standing crop competition, $1,250 for the regional contest, $100 for the seed cleaning plant operators and $700 for the provincial contest.

Them maximum amount that one individual farmer could win is $585.00. The rules and regulations may be obtained from any agricultural office or from any cooperative feed store. The application must be in the agronomist's office before June 1st, 1963.

MONTREAL (CP)—The terrorist Front de Liberation Quebec struck again during the weekend, but police neutralized a bundle of 24 sticks of dynamite before it could knock out a vital communications tower atop Mount Royal.

Splashes of red paint at the foot of the 364-foot tower spelled out "liberte" and "FLQ"—insignia of the terrorist group whose "suicide commandos" have pledged themselves to achieve Quebec independence by violence.

Deplores series of killings

PARIS (Reuters)—U.S. State Secretary Dean Rusk told the opening session of the Southeast Asia Treaty Organization today a tragic and deplorable series of assassinations had increased tensions in Laos.

He assured the conference the United States fully supports the objectives of last year's Geneva agreement aimed at making and keeping Laos neutral, and declared "we have strictly complied with their terms."

"We are not satisfied, however, that the other side has done so, particularly the requirement that all foreign military forces be withdrawn."

The eight-nation SEATO conference met against a background of rising tension in Laos, where the assassination of neutralist Foreign Minister Pholsena last week has led to skirmishes between Communist and neutralists.

British Foreign Secretary Lord Home said there had been an increase in subversion in the SEATO area. He said this question must occupy much of the council's time and "we must take it seriously."

Lord Home reminded the conference that no member nation of either SEATO or of NATO has been the target of Communist aggression since the alliances were formed. He contrasted this with countries that chose non-alignment and became victims of Red attack.

"This most flagrant example of this has been the invasion of India by Communist China," Home said.

GEORGETOWN (Reuters)—The ruling People's Progressive party charged today that politicians and labor leaders hostile to Premier Cheddi Jagan's government "seemed determined" to have Britain delay the granting of British Guiana's independence.

In a statement on rioting and looting here Friday in which one man was killed and two dozen more injured, the party said government opponents were trying to stall economic expansion by frightening off investors, reducing government expenditure and increasing unemployment.

MIAMI, Fla. (AP)—Cuban rebel sources admitted Sunday that a British crackdown on bases in the Bahamas Islands has severely crippled their operations against Fidel Castro. Informants said the raiders lost at least four bases in the last two weeks, including an airstrip on a tiny island where small planes belonging to Cuba's Agrarian Reform Institute picked up supplies and flew them to anti-Castro guerrillas in Cuba.

BIRMINGHAM, Ala. (AP)—Negro leaders urged renewed desegregation efforts in this deep-south city where police dogs were used to end violence during demonstrations Sunday.

At least 29 Negroes were arrested as police halted a prayer march led by Rev. A. D. King, brother of integration leader Dr. Martin Luther King Jr.

MOUNT PLEASANT, Mich. (AP)—Three college students were killed Sunday when an explosion ripped through a burning building and hurled a cornice stone into a crowd of spectators near the Central Michigan University campus.

Twelve persons watching the fire across the street from the campus were injured.

LA JOLLA, Calif. (AP)—Smog, the bane of cities, and cigarette smoke, the pleasure of millions, play havoc with human lung cells growing in test tubes, a California scientist finds.

Irritants in the smog make the lung cells grow and multiply about as fast as a known cancer-causing chemical does, says Dr. Charles M. Pomeroy of the Pasadena Foundation for Medical Research.

FINE WEATHER FAVORS

Prime Minister Diefenbaker and Liberal Leader Pearson only paid one official visit each to the area.

For the most part the candidates limited themselves to direct appeals to the voters, with visits to industrial plants in urban areas and house-to-house canvasses in the rural sections.

Even cabinet ministers were conspicuous by their absence, with the exception of Brome-Missisquoi where several Quebec cabinet representatives appeared in support of Heward Graffley, Parliamentary Assistant to the Finance Minister in the last parliament.

CAOUETTE AT WINDSOR
The largest meeting over the weekend as the campaign entered its final stage was at Windsor Saturday night where Mr. Caouette spoke in support of the Social Credit candidate in the Ontario election.

Mr. Caouette charged that United States financiers forced Premier Lesage to support the federal Liberals in the 1963 campaign.

He said he learned from a reliable source the financiers made support for the federal Liberals a condition of a $300,000,000 loan the province obtained in the US market to expropriate the private power companies.

The deal, he said, was made at a meeting in Montreal between the Premier and the financiers.

"It was a meeting of hotshots and it was the US financiers, whose capital is choking Canada, who forced Jean to step into the struggle," he declared.

He said the devalued Canadian dollar means that Quebec only gets $272,500,000 but will be paying interest on $300,000,000.

A crowd estimated at 1,000 attended the rally.

NO TROUBLE EXPECTED
Provincial and Sherbrooke municipal police indicate that little or no trouble is expected today but that they have made special plans for dealing with any incipient trouble before it gains major proportions.

Polls opened at eight o'clock this morning and will close at seven this evening.

Deputy returning officers at some polling stations reported that voters were waiting to cast their ballots when the polls opened. These were mostly office workers who wished to complete their duties before going to work.

Once these minor rushes were disposed of, voting slackened off. However, greater activity was expected at the noon hour with heavy voting starting at 4 p.m., when most industrial plants close.

New provisions governing the counting of votes at advance polls may delay final results in the event of a close race.

In former years the counting of advance poll ballots started as soon as the regular polls closed. With barely a dozen voters using these polls in former years, the advance poll was generally the first to report.

This year, however, advance poll ballot boxes cannot be opened until two hours after the regular polls close. Wielding of advance voting qualification makes the number of ballots cast larger, with more than 400 visiting the seven advance polls in Sherbrooke County alone.

In all 226 polls have been established in Sherbrooke, 201 urban polls, 18 rural polls and seven advance.

Crisp fabrics star in new sportswear

Wiltproof cotton seersucker is an unerring choice for the immaculate look in sportswear. Gaytown of Toronto used it to design an interchangeable set that makes a stylish wardrobe for the weekend. Note the pullover influence of the sleeveless V-neck blouse and the careful tailoring in the buttoned jacket. The fabric is easy care and very cool to wear.

The sportswear look this summer is trimly tailored, with crisp and textured fabrics to the fore. Favorite with Canadian designers are wilt-proof blends in cool weaves of gingham, denim, seersucker, sharkskin and poplin.

The shirt look is predominant. It is seen in neat cuffs and tailored collars. Pocket accents are important, and range from slits and tabs, to flapped patches in the Safari or Norfolk jacket style.

Shorts and slims are functional and flattering. Front or back zipper is preferred for smoother fit under waist-skimming blouses, which may just touch the waistline, or rest on hips.

Cool summer fabrics enhance the uncluttered look of '63 sportswear. Their unwilling properties insure freshness when participating in vigorous sports and add poise to 'spectating.' Clean fashion lines are never marred by sags or wrinkles.

The fabrics are permanently crisp but smooth to the touch. Colors sparkle clearly.

Playclothes in these fabrics pack without fuss. And, of course, they wash easily to make a quick change wardrobe with minimum chores.

The crisp and tailored look for sportswear is shown in this cotton gingham check by Sun Valley of Toronto. The skirt of the two piece shirtwaist has A-line shape and deep front pleat. The trim Oliver blouse can be worn with matching shorts. The cool fabric washes easily.

CARRY-ON CLUB

The April business meeting of the Carry-on Club was held on Thursday evening, April 4 at the Sherbrooke Hospital.

The president, Mrs. D. Armistage, opened the meeting with the Lord's Prayer which was followed by the minutes of the previous meeting. The treasurer reported a favorable bank balance.

The forthcoming Spring Tea to be held April 25, was discussed and plans finalized.

Several items of business came before the meeting and it was decided to purchase pediatric equipment which has been requested by the hospital staff.

A combined business and social meeting will be held at the home of Mrs. L. Pettigrew, Jacques Cartier Blvd., on April 18.

On arrival the guest of honor was escorted to a decorated chair and presented with a corsage. The decorations were of pink and white.

Miss Wells was assisted in opening the many useful gifts by her mother, Mrs. R. Wells and grandmother, Mrs. Blanche Hyatt.

After the gifts were opened and admired, the bride-to-be expressed her thanks.

Refreshments were served by the hostesses, Miss M. Provis and Mrs. W. Provis, asisted by Mrs. C. Winslow.

Home economics class for boys works very well

VANCOUVER (CP)—They have a home economics class for boys at Prince of Wales secondary school, and except for occasional goofing off it seems to work well.

Mrs. Margaret Murphy has 28 boys in her class; boys who appear more adept at slopping around on a muddy field than in a mixing bowl.

Among the budding culinary artists—they make fancy casseroles, pastry, rolls and crepes suzette—are at least eight rugby players and two straight A students.

Mrs. Murphy said others are anxious to join the lads in the kitchen and next year three similar classes could easily be filled.

The boys are described as good cooks, much prouder than girls of the finished product and better than girls at cleaning up the mess.

Keith Corry, 18, said he "certainly" wasn't a sissy. The course is popular, he said, because "I guess a lot of us are going to be bachelors."

At one class students made coffee cake, raisin and oatmeal cookies, bran muffins and fruit rolls.

Polly's pointers

DEAR POLLY—Here is an idea for the mothers of "little mamas" who dress and undress their dolls repeatedly. Any little girl can keep her doll's hair neat if mother takes a discarded nylon stocking and cuts out a section large enough to cover the doll's head. Knot one end securely at the top and cut along the back seam for three or four inches. Put the knotted end at the top of the doll's head and bring down over her face and tie snugly around the hair with the ends at the back. Doll clothes then slip over easily.—Mrs. B. J. S.

DEAR POLLY—There will be no more scrambled eggs on the kitchen floor if you will just remember to moisten your finger tips before removing eggs from the carton.—M. M.

DEAR POLLY—There is always a pen by my telephone. When I look up a number in the telephone book, I underline the name and number in ink. Nine times out of 10, you will need the same number again and as you open the book to the correct page, the inked name and number jump right into focus.—GRACE.

DEAR POLLY—When fruit cake begins to show its age, I pierce the top in several places with a sharp pointed instrument and drop frozen orange juice into the holes. It permeates the whole cake, adding moisture and a delightful flavor.—MRS. T. I. B.

GIRLS — If you have ever added liquid to the glazed top of a fruit cake and had it run right off, you will appreciate this hint. As the orange juice melts it will trickle into the cake. Being raised in a Kentucky town where fruit cake was always treated to frequent "moisture" baths, I was amazed that the idea of inserting holes for it to trickle through had never reached my always open ears. Holes could be made in the bottom and, after the liquid absorbed, the cake turned back over so the pretty top is not full of holes.—POLLY.

DEAR POLLY—I have discovered how easily upholstery or thumbtacks can be removed with spring-type clothespins. The tapered edge loosened, lift it with the other end of the clothespin. No more chipped nails.—Mrs. M. I. M.

Cupcakes ideal for young bakers

Young people are good cooks and good home bakers, a fact proved by the results of recipe, baking and cooking contests in which a surprising number participate every year and carry off sizeable prizes.

Much of their success stems from their having gradually built up confidence by trying our comparatively simple recipes and seeing them turn out perfect.

The recipe for Peanut Butter Cupcakes, for instance, is quite straightforward and includes many basic cooking terms such as creaming, blending, preheating the oven, etc. Yet because of their use of rich peanut butter, these cupcakes are different enough to be both interesting to bake and delicious to eat.

Novice cooks might be interested in the following tips: Read the whole recipe before starting. Get out the necessary ingredients, then the utensils. Sift the flour onto a large sheet of wax paper.

For cupcakes let ingredients reach room temperature while assembling the utensils and sifting the flour. Take the recipe as gospel—things like preheating the oven and cooling the cupcakes thoroughly before icing them are important.

This is a perfect recipe to bake for a younger brother or sister's birthday—or to take along on a new baby-sitting assignment, and these cupcakes may well become a favorite treat for the family.

PEANUT BUTTER CUPCAKES

(Yield—2 dozen cupcakes)
2 cups once-sifted all-purpose flour or 2 1/4 cups once-sifted pastry flour, 1/2 teaspoon salt, 3 1/2 teaspoons baking powder, 1/3 cup shortening, 1/2 cup peanut butter, 1 1/4 cups lightly-packed brown sugar, 2 eggs, 1 cup milk, 1 teaspoon vanilla.
Grease 24 muffin cups or line pans with paper liners. Preheat oven to 350 deg. F. (moderate). Sift the all-purpose or pastry flour, salt and baking powder together twice.

Cream shortening and peanut butter together; gradually blend in brown sugar and beat until light and fluffy.

Beat eggs well and add to creamed mixture, part at a time, combining well after each addition.

Combine milk and vanilla. Add sifted dry ingredients food coloring—keep colors delicate and cakes will be prettier. Spread cupcakes with icing and decorate with peanuts, cherries, etc.

BUTTER-TYPE ICING

4 tablespoons butter or margarine, Few grains salt, 2 cups sifted icing sugar, 2 tablespoons (about) hot cream, 1/2 teaspoon vanilla. Cream butter or margarine until light and fluffy; add salt. Gradually blend in icing sugar along with hot cream—use just enough cream to make an icing of spreading consistency. Beat in vanilla.

Good basics for junior bakers, these cupcakes get their rich flavor from that perennial favorite, peanut butter. Whatever the occasion, whether it's party time for the children, afternoon tea for the girls or mealtime for the family, they offer plenty of eating pleasure.

to creamed mixture, alternately with flavored milk, combining lightly after each addition. Spoon batter into prepared muffin pans, two-thirds filling each cup. Bake in preheated oven about 20 minutes. Remove from pans immediately and cool on cake racks. Frost with the following Butter-type Icing and decorate, if desired.

To frost cupcakes in a variety of colors, spoon icing into three or four small bowls. Tint each portion of icing a different shade with

In the Bag

The paper bag has many uses around the house. It makes a good container, for example, when you want to clean your artificial flowers and fruit. Put either a half cup salt, sugar or sand in a bag with the items to be cleaned. Hold the flowers in the bag upside down, grasp the top of the bag tightly and shake well.

Banish homemaking blues

Bored with housekeeping? Most housewives do occasionally get bogged down in the three - meals - a - day, keep - the - house - and - clothes - clean, take - care - of - the - children "daily"ness" of it all.

Perhaps what you need is just a momentary lift. Here's how some of my readers say they make the job of homemaker a bit more challenging:

"Plan a new living room as carefully as though you were a decorator. Put the plan on paper: furniture, swatches of fabric, accessories — everything. Then, holding to your perfect plan, get one thing at a time until you have the room as nearly like your plan as possible. (This can keep a homemaker working creatively for a long time. And when one room is finished, there's always another room to start on.)"

"Make cooking a challenge instead of a chore. Borrow some library books on foreign cooking and do more than read them. Try one new dish a day. This is much more satisfying than wandering through a supermarket trying to get an idea of something to have for dinner."

"Do something you never tried to do before. If you've never sewed, buy some material and a simple pattern and make yourself a dress. Tackle a slip cover for a shabby chair. Refinish or paint an old piece of furniture. Take a night school course in millinery or upholstery and learn a useful new skill."

Perhaps none of these ideas appeals to you. If not, get busy thinking up some idea that does offer a challenge. Then get busy at it. Chances are, before you are finished you'll be lifted out of the doldrums. And you have another project dreamed up to tackle as soon as you are finished with the first one.

Jim Atto's rink cops Salls-Mooney Trophy downing Grant Mitchell as George Mulvagh wins consolation

Jim Atto skipped his rink to a close 11-7 victory over Grant Mitchell to win Salls-Mooney Trophy, while George Mulvagh, defeated Dr. J. A. Dion 12-6 to win the consolation bracket.

In the semi-final of the main event, Skip Atto made a perfect raise in the eight end to win over Harold Mooney after a very close match, while Grant Mitchell's foursome eliminated Ron Marwood.

In the consolation semi-final, George Mulvagh's team curled very well to defeat Bart Holtham's rink, and Dr. J. A. Dion came through with a close win over Len Keeler's foursome.

The finals between Atto and Mitchell was an exciting game from the beginning to the end with the lead changing several times during the game. At the end of the eight end, Grant Mitchell made a lovely shot to go 1 up. In the ten end, Mitchell was a little light on his draw shot and Jim Atto made no mistake in drawing in to count four to win the match to the score of 11-7.

George Mulvagh's rink got away to an early start against Dr. Dion and were leading 7 to 0 at the end of the third. Dr. Dion's team then settled down to close the gap in the next few ends, and caused much concern to the Mulvagh's rink before dropping the game to George Mulvagh to a score of 12 to 6.

Mrs. J. A. Dion, president of the Ladies' Curling Club, extended a welcome to the large crowd watching the finals of this popular mixed event, that closes the mixed curling each year.

Mrs. Dion called on Harold Mooney to present the Salls-Mooney Memorial Trophy, to the winning rink assisted by Mrs. R. Gosselin. Mr. Mooney presented the prizes to the finalists of the main event and consolation bracket.

ADS Senior girls and boys cop RDA Badminton Tournament, amass total of 20 points to win

Asbestos - Danville - Shipton Senior girls and boys captured the annual RDA Badminton Tournament over the weekend, piling up a team total of 20 points.

Schools participating in the event were last year's champs, Richmond, and Drummondville. SFHS of Richmond was second in the meet with 10 points while Drummondville notched six.

The tourney was divided into two sections, senior girls and senior boys with 15 point games being played in the boys and doubles sections and 11-point games in the girls division.

Members of the victorious ADS girls' team were Kathy Barnard, Sheila Dennis, Norma Smith and Leona MacDonald. On the boys squad from Danville were Yvon Breault, Brian Gagnon, John Gagnon and Roger Arpin.

Points were awarded on the basis of one tally per game for the victors. Each person played two games while each pair played in two doubles matches.

One of the closest games in the boys section was played between Peter Dunn of Richmond and Yvon Breault of ADS. The two opponents were tied 13-13 and had to play an extra five points in order to determine the winner. Dunn finally won the match outscoring Breault 5-4.

ADS captured the RDA Trophy after losing it to Richmond last year. Previous to that, Asbestos - Danville - Shipton had retained the Trophy for a number of years.

Werner, Walton take U.S. ski tournament

MOUNT ALYESKA, Alaska (AP)—Wallace (Buddy) Werner of Steamboat Springs, Colo., and blonde Starr Walton of Sacramento, Calif., won the U.S. alpine ski championships in three days of competition here.

Although neither placed first in any of the meet's three events, they led all their American rivals when points were tallied Sunday.

Will Marolt, a fellow-student at the University of Colorado, edged Werner for the national downhill title. Joos Minsch, of Switzerland, beat Werner in the giant slalom and Chuck Ferries of Aspen, Colo., bested him by 1.1 seconds in Saturday's slalom, the final event. Werner, however, gained the U.S. giant slalom, the final event. Werner, eligible for the U.S. crown.

Arbi Henneberger of West Germany was the women's leader in combined point standings but also was ineligible for the U.S. titles. She won the downhill and slalom and finished second to Jean Saubert of Lakeview, Ore., in the giant slalom.

Minsch and Miss Henneberger won Aurora Cups, donated by local sponsors, for their victories here.

In Saturday's women's slalom Sandra Shellworth of Boise, Idaho, finished second to Miss Henneberger. Linda Crutchfield of Shawinggan, Que., had fifth best time but was disqualified by a gate judge.

Jack Nicklaus wins Masters with 286

AUGUSTA, Ga. (AP)—Young Jack Nicklaus seems intent on reducing golf's "Big Three" to the "Big One."

With his victory in the 27th Masters tournament Sunday, the powerful 23-year-old sophomore professional continued his domination of other members of golf's ruling trio — Arnold Palmer and Gary Player — in most of their major meetings, starting with the U.S. open last year.

He beat Palmer in a playoff for that title, later whipped both Palmer and Player in the inaugural "world series" of golf, where the trio met head-to-head in a 36-hole match, and now has taken a Masters crown from the two former Masters champions.

Shouldering ever-increasing pressure as first one, then another competitor made a bid in Sunday's final round, Nicklaus showed the determination it takes to make a great champion.

After one-over-par scores on the eighth and 12th holes knocked him out of the lead, he rallied with a pair of birdies and sank a clutch three-foot putt on the 18th to win by one shot from Tony Lema and beat Julius Boros and faltering Sam Snead by two strokes. Nicklaus carded a par 72 and a 286 total.

Lema closed with a two-under-par 70 for 287. Boros, playing with Nicklaus, also had a 72 for 288 and Snead fired a 71 for 288.

Morissette outstanding as Moncton wins 3-2

WINDSOR (CP) — Moncton Hawks will go into tonight's second game of the Eastern Canada Allan Cup final with their fingers crossed in the hope that their tiny goalkeeper, Jean Guy Morissette, stays hot.

Morissette was the whole story here Sunday as the Maritimes champions dumped Windsor Bulldogs 3-2 in overtime to capture the opening game of the best-of-seven series.

The five-foot-five, 150-pound Morissette kicked out 56 of 58 shots fired at him by the Ontario champion Bulldogs in such wonderful fashion that he had 3,336 highly partisan Windsorites roaring approval.

Leftwinger Doug Howatt shared the hero's mantle with Morissette. He stole the puck from Windsor defenceman Jacques Begin with his team short-handed 63 seconds from the end of a 10-minute overtime period and scored the winning goal while falling on his face.

Oscar Gaudet, the 21-year-old winger recently signed to a Chicago Black Hawks tryout form, also starred. His two goals early in the third period gave Moncton the lead for the first time. They were his 79th and 80th markers of the season, including playoffs.

Jack Costello and Bill Mitchell were the Windsor marksmen.

TOPIC: JEAN GUY
 Morissette's name was on almost everyone's lips in both dressing rooms after the game.

Said Hawk playing coach Doug McPhee: "He was just marvellous. He made the difference. But he's been playing like this for our last two series against Sherbrooke and Prescott-Kemptville, too. Today, though, he had much more work and came through brilliantly."

Windsor coach Harry Watson could do little more than shake his head in disbelief.

"How many saves did that guy make—56? Nobody should stop that many," he snorted. "We've seen some good goal-tending this year but this fellow's performance today topped them all."

In contrast, Windsor's Wayne Rutledge was credited with only 18 saves.

Costello opened the scoring at 1:45 of the second period. Standing outside the crease, he tipped Begin's screened 50-footer from the left point.

Gaudet tied it at the 2:20 mark of the last period after a perfect pass by Phil Doiron put him in the clear. The shifty winger moved to the crease and drew Rutledge out neatly to slip in a backhander.

Four minutes later, Hawk captain Red Mullins ripped a long shot from just inside the blueline. Rutledge stopped it but Gaudet swooped in to cash in the rebound.

That's when Morissette showed his best stuff as Bulldogs swarmed all over the Moncton zone in search of the equalizer. He kept them at bay until 17:22, when Mitchell, with his team a man short, out-raced Lou Kiley for Joe Klukay's pass and beat Morissette with a 15-footer.

In overtime, the Bulldogs had a 12-3 edge in shots but couldn't find the payoff window. When Moncton's Georges Roy was penalized at 7:56, Windsor turned it on but instead Hawks got the goal on Howatt's bit of larceny.

Morissette's good fortune stayed with him to the end. With 20 seconds remaining, Costello had an open net to shoot at but fired the puck over the top.

All games will be played at Windsor Arena with the winner meeting either Winnipeg or Saskatoon for the Allan Cup. The third game is scheduled for Wednesday night and the fourth on Saturday.

First period: No scoring. Penalties—Kiley 0:51, Bendo 5:57, Kiley 9:45, Costello 10:43, Hillman 15:30, Bendo minor misconduct 18:29, Kiley 19:08.

Second period: 1. Windsor, Costello Begin, Serviss 1:45. Penalties—Hillman 3:55, Doiron 4:22, Chevrefils 10:53, Micallef 12:29, Kiley 15:01.

Third period: 2. Moncton, O. Gaudet Doiron 2:20; 3. Moncton, O. Gaudet Mullins 6:28; 4. Windsor, Mitchell Klukay, Hillman 17:22.

Penalties — Roy 7:41, Howatt 8:44, Begin 12:36, Kiley 13:30, Micallef 17:06.

Overtime period: 5. Moncton, Howatt 8:57.

Penalty — Roy 7:56

Jack Nicklaus wins Masters with 286

Nicklaus became the youngest man ever to win the Masters. Although some of his fellow golfers call him "Bib-Bob" or "Baby Dimples," he packs far more muscle than blubber on his 200-pound, five-foot, 11-inch frame.

Palmer, the defending champion, never was able to get one of his amazing comeback drives really rolling and closed with a 71 for 291 and a tie with Don January for ninth place.

Player, who twice during the final round was tied with Snead and Nicklaus for top spot, finished with a 70 and 289, putting him in a tie for fifth with Ed Furgol and Dow Finsterwald.

Bo Winger closed with a 72 for 290 and eighth spot.

LEMA A SURPRISE
 Lema, playing in his first Masters, and Snead and Furgol must be regarded as the three biggest surprises of the tournament.

Lema, 29, from San Leandro, Calif., one of the hottest golfers on the pro tour at present, made perhaps the finest showing ever by a freshman in the Masters. Husky and confident, Lema said he felt after a few practice rounds on the Augusta National course that his game was such that he had a chance to win.

Snead, who soon will be 51, actually was leading briefly on two occasions. But he went one-over on two of the last three holes and lost his chances for a fourth Masters crown.

Furgol, the 46-year-old pro with the withered left arm, was in strong competition until midway in the final round when trouble on the 11th and 12th knocked him out of the running.

Nicklaus picked up $20,000 for his victory and that put him on top of the PGA money winning list at $36,715. He was third behind Player and Palmer until the Masters. Player dropped to second with 1963 winnings of $27,502. Lema climbed from fourth to third with $26,831 and Palmer fell to fourth with $25,025.

Best of the Canadians was Vancouver's Stan Leonard, who carded a three-over 75 for a 294 total, good enough for a 21st-place tie and $1,000. Alvie Thompson of Toronto received $750, finishing with a one-under 71 and a 297 total, tied for 28th.

Providence Reds spring back to drub Bisons 6-4

After a sound thumping Saturday night, Providence Reds roared back Sunday night to gain their first playoff win over Buffalo Bisons in the American Hockey League.

The Bisons drubbed the Reds 5-1 Saturday and the Reds replied with a 6-4 win Sunday. Buffalo leads their best-of-seven semi-final 2-1.

In other playoff action, Hershey Bears downed Baltimore Clippers 5-1 Saturday to win their best-of-three quarter-final 2-1.

Ed MacQueen scored twice for the Reds Sunday and other marksmen were Pierre Brillant, George Ranieri, Jimmy Bartlett and Zello Toppazzini. Scorers for Buffalo were Barry Culen, Gerry Melnyk, Cliff Schmautz and Johnny McKenzie.

Doug Robinson and McKenzie scored two goals apiece for the Bisons Saturday and Melnyk got the other one. Toppazzini was the lone Providence scorer.

Dick Meissner paced Hershey to its big win with two goals. Other Bear scorers were Yves Locas, Pete Conacher and Myron Stankiewicz. Ted Hampson was the lone Baltimore marksman.

Hershey now meets Cleveland Barons in a best-of-five semi-final starting at Hershey Wednesday. The winner meets the winner of the Providence-Buffalo series in the final.

Bobby Hull tallies three while Normie Ullman pots two in high scoring tilt, meet Leafs Tuesday

DETROIT (CP) — Sid Abel and Gordie Howe were on a big Detroit line in 1948 and 1949 when Toronto Maple Leafs cooled out the Red Wings in eight consecutive games to win back-to-back Stanley Cup titles.

Today, for the first time since, the Leafs and Wings are ready to square off in another final.

Coach Abel and player Howe recall those drought years after Detroit polished off Chicago Black Hawks 7-4 Sunday night to win their best-of-seven semi-final 4-2. Leafs disposed of Montreal Canadiens in five games and have been waiting since Thursday for their opponents to identify themselves.

The Wings did it in style. They beat the Hawks four straight after losing a pair of games on Chicago ice and Sunday night defied all playoff tradition by playing a loose, free-skating and sometimes weird contest to move the Hawks out of the picture.

Abel has blended some old pros and a bunch of puck happy young scooters who set up a 4-2 lead in the second period, watched it disappear as the Hawks scored twice in three minutes and then over-powered them with three goals in the last 20 minutes.

GOALIES LOOSE
 The goaltending wasn't impressive as Glenn Hall in the Chicago net and Detroit custodian Terry Sawchuk allowed some softies.

Left winger Bobby Hull, one of the great ones in the National Hockey League, figured in all Chicago goals but couldn't single-handedly beat the Wings. He scored three goals, set up Eric Nesterenko for the other and played his heart out in a losing cause.

Normie Ullman, fast reaching his peak after a 26-goal season with Detroit, scored twice and assisted on three others. "Arker MacDonald", Alex Fulkner, Larry Jeffrey, Alex Delvecchio and Bill Gadsby scored singles.

Howe, who came out of it with a bruised nose and three assists, moved to within striking range of the all-time playoff point-scorer, Maurice Richard, who had 126. Howe has 115, three better than Bernie Geoffrion of Canadiens, and at 35 the big right winger still has a few good years left.

A crowd of 13,884 was in a continual uproar in the game that saw sor blood-letting. Hall played the final 45 minutes with a 15-stitch cut after a blazing shot by Howe bounced off his chest and smacked his upper lip.

FIGHT DRAWS BLOOD
 The Wings' Bruce MacGregor was pummeled by tough Red Fleming in the second period and came out of it with a five-stitch eye cut. Fleming received three penalties—a minor for board-checking MacGregor, a five-minute major for fighting and a 10-minute misconduct.

Referee Vern Buffy called 17 penalties, bringing the series total to a cup record 97. The old mark of 87 was set in the six-game Toronto-Chicago final last spring.

Toronto manager-coach Punch Imlach was in the stands and probably the best intelligence he picked up was that the Wings can skate right alongside his Leafs and that Sawchuk apparently is a setup for long and high shots.

Hull's first goal was an ankle-high screamer from the blueline. His third goal, elbow high, was scored from almost the same spot. Nesterenko's goal, another high drive, came from about 15 feet out.

LUCKY ON 'MOTHER
 Sawchuk was beaten again on a high shot by Murray Balfour in the third period but the puck hit the post.

Coach Rudy Pilous of the Hawks said the Wings were "just too persistent." He thought they could give the league-champion Leafs "a real battle."

Abel said the Wings "deserve" to win "his series and I know they'll put out just as much, if not more, in the next series."

The second game will be played in Toronto Thursday night and the third and fourth back here next Sunday and Tuesday. If a fifth game is necessary, it will be played at Toronto Thursday, April 18. If the series goes beyond this, the sixth game will be played at Detroit Sunday, April 21, and the seventh at Toronto, Tuesday, April 23.

Rookie Faulkner, first Newfoundland to make the NHL as a regular, scored what proved to be the winning goal. He backhanded MacGregor's rebound over Hall while falling after taking a hard check from behind.

It was the second winning goal of the series for the Bishop's Falls native—he scored Wings' third goal the previous Sunday as they started their comeback with a 4-2 victory.

"Two winning goals," he enthused later in the dressing room. "It's a wonderful feeling—now I'm getting to feel that I belong for sure with hockey as my profession."

Scotland edges England 2-1 to win British Soccer championship, had only 10 players for event

LONDON (Reuters) — Scotland, playing only 10 men for 84 minutes of the match, beat England 2-1 at Wembley Stadium Saturday to take the British Soccer Championship and retain an unbeaten six-match record.

Scotland led 2-0 in the interval and had nearly all the play throughout, winning more easily than the score would indicate.

The Scots, winning their first victory at Wembley in 12 years, ran rings around the Englishmen and though a player short, were more than a match for their disjointed opponents.

Left half Jimmy Baxter scored twice for Scotland, and rightwing Bryan Douglas got England's only goal 10 minutes from the end.

CAPTAIN INJURED
 Scotland lost captain and left back Eric Caldow with an injured leg six minutes after the game began.

Leicester City, striving for the double of the English Football League Championship and the Football Association Cup, kept up their first division challenge to Tottenham Hotspur by beating Manchester City 2-0. Leicester, already in the semi-finals of the cup, now are tied on points with Tottenham 3-0 win at Portsmouth.

Everton, the star-studded Merseyside club, failed unexpectedly at home to Blackburn Rovers, and had to be content with a goalless draw to hold third place, three points behind Leicester and Spurs.

Fulham continued its revival by beating West Ham 2-0 with second-half goals from Maurice Cook and John Key.

Chelsea, which regained 12th lead of the second division in mid-week, lost it once more, losing 4-1 at Norwich.

Stoke City, prompted by the genius of Stan Matthews and the Jimmy Mollroy, went to the top of the table as a result of its tied on points with Tottenham 3-0 win at Portsmouth.

47,000 to attend baseball opener in Washington

President Kennedy to toss out first ball when Baltimore and Senators clash, Reds-Pirates open NL opener

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Kennedy and Chue' Hinton are the only survivors from opening day 1962 starting for Washington today as the Senators play Baltimore to open the 1963 American League baseball season.

The other eight starters were not even on the Washington squad when the President tossed out the first ball last year.

About 47,000 fans will fill D. C. Stadium to watch Kennedy, 45-year-old right-hander, try to improve his 1-1 record in Presidential openers. The weatherman has promised mostly sunshine with temperatures in the mid-60s.

Unless federal mediators can work out a last minute agreement the traditional hot dog will be missing, along with soft drinks, peanuts and popcorn. The vendors and D.C. Sports Services, Inc., which handles concessions at the stadium, are in a deadlock over wages.

Touch football player Kennedy will find a kindred soul in the Washington starting lineup, first baseman Tommy Brown. Until this spring, Brown was better known as a halfback for the University of Maryland.

FACES OLD PAL

Brown will be batting against an old buddy today, left-hander Steve Barber of the Orioles. They played together at Montgomery Blair High School in nearby Silver Spring, Md.

Don Rudolph, another left-hander, will start for Washington.

Following tradition, the rest of the American League will sit back and watch the opener in Washington. Kennedy is the ninth President to throw out the first ball in a tradition that extends back 50 years.

Carlos Ortiz looking past Lane following win over Vaillant on TKO in 13th, referee stops fight

SAN JUAN (AP) — Lightweight champion Carlos Ortiz, who turned back the challenge of Cuban Doug Vaillant with the greatest of ease Sunday night, looked to his next title defence today—and he looked right past No. 1 contender Kenny Lane.

Ortiz barely worked up a sweat before 18,000 home town fans as he disposed of Vaillant, who now fights out of Miami, Fla., on a technical knockout in 49 seconds of the 13th round.

It was his second defence of the 135-pound crown. Ortiz was guaranteed $50,000, Vaillant $6,500. The crowd paid about $110,000.

Bill Daly, Ortiz' adviser, flew into a dressing room rage when reminded after the fight that the World Boxing Association had given the champion until June 2 to defend against Lane, a southpaw from Muskegon, Mich.

Lane has long accused Ortiz of ducking him.

"We will fight the best fighter at the best price at the best time," Daly said, and then he made it clear that was almost certainly not going to be Lane.

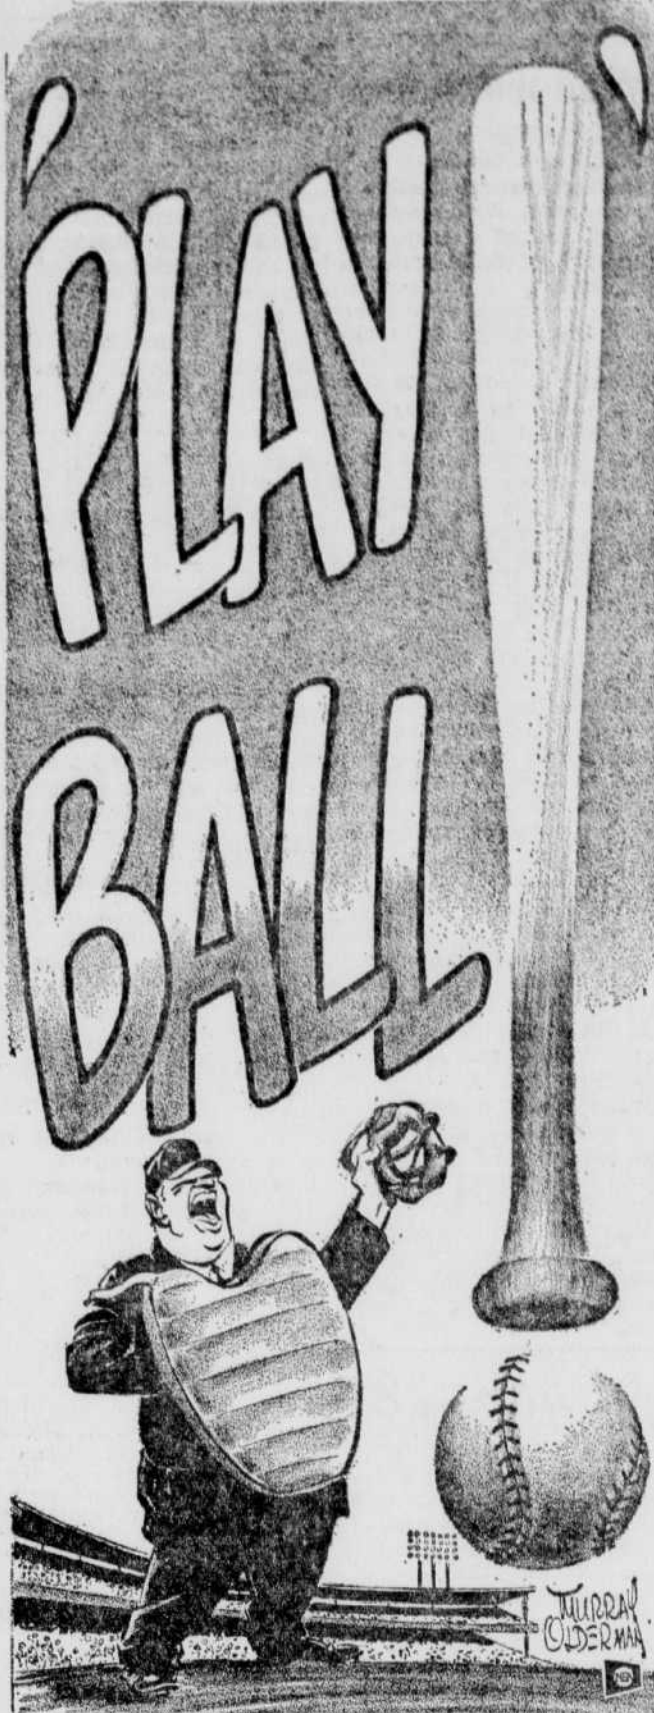

"We want no part of the WBA," Daly said. "It is a self-appointed body."

Daly said Lope Sarreal, manager of Flash Florde of the Philippines, the junior lightweight champion, had offered Ortiz $60,000 to defend against Florde in Manila in late May. "All we can get with Lane is $4,000," Daly said.

In the final round, Ortiz banged Vaillant to the canvas with a big right after 15 seconds. The Cuban struggled up at nine, and was promptly decked again.

Referee James J. Braddock, the former heavyweight champion, stopped the fight.

Yanks retain the Uber Cup

WILMINGTON, Del. (AP) — The United States retained the Uber Cup women's badminton title Saturday night, defeating an English challenger four matches to three.

Mrs. Judy Devlin Hashman of London, playing for the United States, and Mrs. Carlene Starkey, Los Angeles, defeated Mrs. Iris Rogers and Jennifer Pritchard, both of Surrey, England, in a hard-fought seventh match, 15-8, 8-15, 15-9 to decide the issue.

Verdun edges Richmond in overtime

RICHMOND — Verdun Red Wings copped the Provincial Junior Hockey title on a goal by Stan Zatylny in the second overtime period here Sunday afternoon.

About 500 fans watched the Richmond Flyers take a 1-0 lead in the first period then trail 2-1 in the first overtime period before tying the game with 17 seconds to go, forcing a sudden-death overtime stanza.

Zatylny tied the score in the third period and picked up one assist in the victory that brought Verdun the Provincial title. Great goaltending prevented the score being higher as Paul Bonhomme, the young Verdun goalie, made several hard saves to protect his lead.

Maroons outscore Rangers in 1928 NHL finals but lose series 3-2

What are the chances of a team winning the Stanley Cup while being outscored in the finals?

They're pretty slender judging from records dating back to 1927 when the National Hockey League inherited exclusive rights to the venerable trophy.

It's happened only once, in 1928, when Montreal Maroons outscored New York Rangers 8-5 and still lost the best-of-five final three games to two.

And in the 81 final series since the Stanley Cup was first only two other occasions when it happened. In 1918 Vancouver outscored Toronto Arenas 21-18 but lost three games to two. And in 1905 Kenora Thistles had a 15-12 edge over Ottawa Silver Seven but dropped the best-of-three series two games to one. Kenora winning the opener 9-3 and losing the next two 4-2 and 5-4.

A string of unusual incidents marked the 1928 final between Rangers and Maroons, including the celebrated feat of New York manager Lester Patrick who took an emergency turn in goal for his club in the second game.

Rangers had finished second in the American division of the NHL and had defeated Pittsburgh and Boston in the divisional playoffs. Maroons were runners-up in the Canadian division, eliminating Ottawa and Montreal Canadiens.

MAROONS FAVORED

The final was a battle between two relatively new clubs in the NHL, New York having joined in 1926 and Maroons in 1924. Montreal was regarded as a cinch to win because, as a newspaper report said, it was faster, had more class, was

Herb Score retires, Whitey Ford works out, arm seems OK, teams get set, ready for season openers

INDIANAPOLIS (AP) — Herb Score, once considered a million-dollar baseball property, called it a career at the age of 29 Sunday as the major league teams closed out their exhibition schedules.

Score, a left-hander, worked two scoreless innings in a 2-1 Chicago White Sox victory over Cincinnati Reds, but was informed after the game that he was being optioned to Indianapolis in the minors.

"I have talked it over with my wife," Score said, "and I have decided to quit the game."

Score was named American League rookie of the year with Cleveland in 1955. He had a 20-9 record and led the league in strikeouts in 1956. Boston Red Sox once offered $1,000,000 for him and it was turned down.

In 1957, Score was struck over the right eye by a line drive off the bat of Gil McDougald. Score recovered but never regained his winning form. He was in the minors most of last season.

FORD LOOKS GOOD

Another ailing pitcher, New York Yankees ace Whitey Ford, provided the only bright spot for the world champions as they closed the exhibition season with an 8-3 loss to Milwaukee Braves.

Ford, out with an aching arm recently, gave up only two hits and an unearned run in three innings.

Milwaukee's Mack Jones had three singles and drove in two runs on two errors by Yankee first baseman Joe Pepitone.

Frank Lary, Detroit Tigers' question-mark pitcher, worked five innings in the Tigers' 4-3 triumph over Minnesota Twins. He gave up three runs, six hits, walked three, made a wild pitch and hit a batter. Bubba Phillips had three hits for the Tigers and closed with a 4.25 spring batting average.

In other closing exhibition games, the Orioles edged New York Mets 3-1, Washington Senators dumped Pittsburgh Pirates 5-1, Orlando Cepeda's three-run homer brought San Francisco Giants a 5-2 decision over Cleveland Indians in 4½ innings. Houston Colts edged Kansas City Athletics 3-1 in 10 innings. Boston nipped Chicago Cubs 3-2, and the Angels blanked the Dodgers 3-0 and swept the two-game Los Angeles "city series."

In Sunday's other exhibition game, Ron Taylor, a right-hander from Leaside, Ont., a suburb of Toronto, continued his fine showing with St. Louis Cardinals. He picked up the pitching decision as the Cards outlasted Philadelphia Phillies 7-6. Taylor went to work in the fifth inning and retired batters in succession in four innings of work before Bobby Shantz finished up.

In Saturday's exhibitions, Chicago White Sox dumped Cincinnati 6-1, Milwaukee topped the Yankees 3-1, the Mets drubbed Baltimore 7-2, St. Louis edged Philadelphia 4-1, Washington downed Pittsburgh 9-7, the Angels took the Dodgers 4-3, the Cubs defeated Boston 8-5, and Kansas City swept a doubleheader from Houston, 3-1 and 5-3. San Francisco-Cleveland and Detroit-Minnesota contests were rained out.

Maroons whip Quakers 3-2

WINNIPEG (CP) — Chuck Lumsden's second, and the only goal of the third period, gave Winnipeg Maroons a 3-2 victory over Saskatoon Quakers Sunday in the third game of the best-of-seven western Allan cup final.

The win left Maroons one game behind Quakers who took the first two games on home ice 4-3 and 5-3.

Fourth game in the series will be played here Tuesday night. Lumsden opened the scoring early in the first period and Jim McKenzie gave Maroons a 2-0 lead going into the second period.

The Doctor Says

NEW STUDY RELATES CIGARETTES, LUNG CANCER

The fact that we can no longer ignore the hazards of cigarette smoking was pointed out by the recent ruling of the U.S. Air Force that free cigarettes would no longer be passed out to patients in Air Force hospitals or included in packaged lunches for personnel going on prolonged flights.

The relationship between smoking and the steady increase in lung cancer has been hotly argued and has not yet been completely settled. Those who say that the real cause of the increase in lung cancer is exhaust fumes from gasoline engines have suffered a real setback. It has been shown that the incidence of lung cancer has increased with the greater use of cigarettes in general parts of the world where there are few, if any automobiles.

The correlation between the number of cigarettes smoked per day and the number of years a person has been smoking with the increase in lung cancer is so close that any other explanation would be hard to imagine. No evidence has yet been produced to show that cigarette smoking is not a major contributing cause of lung cancer. But if this is not enough, let's consider the recent study by Auerbach and Stout.

These investigators made microscopic examinations of the lungs of 758 persons who died of diseases other than lung cancer. They proved beyond any doubt that cigarette smoking damaged the cells lining the respiratory tract. The hair-like cilia, that set up a current propelling mucus along with dust and other foreign matter from the lungs in the direction of the throat, were first weakened then completely destroyed in chronically heavy smokers.

In time this interferes with

SCOTSTOWN —

SUTTON JUNCTION

Mrs. M. Killen continued to her home with the flu. Mr. and Mrs. Cecil Bowen, Mr. and Mrs. Walter Stephenson and son, of Granby, were recent guests of Mr. and Mrs. Earl Mudd.

The lung's ability to supply oxygen to the blood and this adds to the burden on the heart which must then pump more blood to the tissues to bring them enough oxygen. Cigarette smokers not only had a higher rate of bronchitis than nonsmokers, but also a higher rate of tuberculosis and heart disease. Furthermore, they not only had a higher rate of lung cancer, but also that of cancer of the mouth, throat and gullet.

The fact that all these hazards were higher among cigarette smokers than among those who had quit smoking proves that it is never too late to stop. Much of the early work done on this subject was done in England 10 or 12 years ago and although there was at first much skepticism about the reported results, the acceptance of these results is growing.

In this country, too, more and more doctors are giving up cigarettes. They are doing this for two good reasons: first, to help safeguard their own health and, second, to let their patients know that they are ready to practice what they preach.

Based on the evidence at hand, I would strongly urge all those, especially those young people who do not smoke, never to start. Those who smoke cigarettes do so entirely from habit but this is not an addiction like the use of narcotics or the abuse of alcohol. All that is needed to stop is a real desire to stop and a strong will. There are none of the agonizing withdrawal symptoms felt by a narcotic addict.
