Nominations close today

Nominations in 43 federal ridings close today and indications are that more than 1,000 candidates will be in the running for the July 8 federal election.

Whether the total number seeking the 264 seats in Parliament will surpass the record 1,117 set in the 1972 campaign will not be known until after the deadline—2 p.m. local standard time.

A week ago 74 filed their papers in 21 distant ridings scattered across the northern part of Canada. Nominations there closed early to provide the extra week needed to carry election material into those remote areas.

By the weekend, at least 1,029 candidates had been selected at party conventions or had otherwise made known their intention to run. But if 1972 is any indication, a rash of last-minute entries may increase the total.

SLATE FULL
Six days ago the Liberals completed their full slate of 264 but by the weekend the Progressive Conservatives had still to announce the nomination of a handful in Quebec province.

At the same time, the New Democratic Party was about 30 short of a full slate—the NDP had 251 in 1972. Social Credit, which had 166 in the field two years ago, had announced fewer than 90 candidates.

But early indications were that the number running as independents or under the banners of the smaller parties such as the Communist Party of Canada or the Marxist-Leninists would surpass the total of 173 nominated in 1972.

By the weekend, at least 186 independents or representatives of the smaller groups, mostly in Ontario and Quebec, had declared their intention to run.

SEEK THIRD MANDATE
The current campaign sees the Liberals seeking their third mandate under the leadership of Prime Minister Trudeau. Robert Stanfield, as leader of the Progressive Conservatives, is also making his third bid since 1968 to bring his party to power.

David Lewis is in his second federal election campaign as NDP leader and it is also the second major bid for Real Caouette as head of the Social Credit party which took in Mr. Caouette's Creditistes before the 1972 election.

Party standings in the Commons at dissolution of Parliament May 9 was: Liberals 109; Progressive Conservatives 106; NDP 31; Social Credit 15; Independent 1; and vacant 2.

OPEN HOUSE — Open House was held under sunny skies Saturday at the Dixville Home. This gave visitors a chance to take guided tours of the home or just sit outside and soak up all the wonderful sunshine. For more pictures, see page 8. (Record photo: James Bruce)

Five in Sherbrooke

SHERBROOKE (CC) — There will be at least five candidates running in the July 8 federal election in Sherbrooke riding and there could be even more.

The official candidates of the four major parties along with one independent have already officially registered with Sherbrooke riding election president Roch Guertin. Other candidates have until 2 p.m. this afternoon to present their official candidate forms to the election president at the King street office.

Candidates already assured of a spot on the ballot are incumbent Liberal MP Irene Pelletier, Progressive Conservative hopeful Dr. Alexandre Kindy, New Democratic Party representative Hubert Wallot, Social Credit nominee Andre Breton and independent Charles Lamarre.

The surprise running of Mr. Lamarre could have an effect on the Progressive Conservative chances in Sherbrooke. Mr. Lamarre, well known for his work with such persons as Maurice Duplessis, wanted to run as an independent Progressive Conservative but election rules do not allow such a designation on the ballot. He is, however, well liked by many persons in the Sherbrooke region and will have Mrs. Jacqueline Pelletier as his official agent. Mrs. Pelletier was a defeated Union Nationale candidate in the Richmond county provincial elections last year.

Dr. Kindy, a local psychiatrist, will be seeking election for the third time. During the last federal election he lost his deposit with only 6,700 votes.

Irene Pelletier faces the voters for a second time. During his first election in 1972 he captured 20,569 votes — much more than Social Credit candidate Maurice Couture who received 16,072.

This time around the Social Credit have Mr. Breton as their choice. The well-known host of a morning radio program on CHLT-am radio station claims to have patched up all the problems which have split his party in Sherbrooke. In a written statement Friday Mr. Breton claimed that "unity reigns" once more in the party. "I am pleased to say that all members are working harder than ever to support me in my efforts to become your voice in Ottawa," he contended. The party has planned extensive door-to-door action during the three weeks leading up to the crucial vote.

Dr. Wallot officially presented his candidate form to Mr. Guertin Friday. He plans to campaign on the question of rising prices. Jerry O'Neil is his official agent.

During the 1972 election the NDP parachuted a candidate from Montreal, Rebecca Augenfield, into the riding. The party still managed to capture 1,743 votes.

During that federal election there were also three independent candidates in the running. They were consumer advocate Gerald Gosselin, with 1,423 votes; Jean Simoneau, of the Rhinoceros party with 911 votes and J. Johnny Teasdale with 259 votes.

Election headquarters in Sherbrooke is a beehive of activity this week. Voting list revisions are scheduled Wednesday, Thursday and Friday of this week.

By next Tuesday the total number of eligible voters should be known although already Mr. Guertin is predicting 5,000 more voters this time around.

In the last federal election 76 per cent of the eligible voters in Sherbrooke took advantage of their right to vote. A total of 49,560 ballots were cast out of a possible 64,853. There were 1,913 rejected ballots.

An attempt to cut down on the number of rejected ballots Mr. Guertin has ordered some changes. The major one is that the circle used to mark the X beside the candidate of the voter's choice will be larger.

Biltrite workers reject bid

SHERBROOKE (CC) — Company officials at American Biltrite Canada Ltd. are waiting to see what happens today before commenting further on the conflict at the Bank street plant.

The 400 employees of the company narrowly rejected a company offer to end the conflict at a heated meeting held in a church hall Saturday.

The employees want adequate increases to cover recent jumps in the cost of living index. Their contract was to have been in force until September 1975.

The company had agreed to bring forward a $0.24 an hour increase which was scheduled to be implemented under the terms of the collective agreement September 16. The increase would be retroactive to May 6 and was ironed out during an eight hour meeting between union and management last week.

Other provisions were included if the cost of living index jumped higher than original raises under the contract.

"As far as we know the men will show up for work Monday," Michael Weight, general manager of the plant said Sunday night. "We will know better what will happen then."

Media workers vote to strike

SHERBROOKE (CC) — A strike by the 105 employees of Telemedia in Sherbrooke could come at any time.

The 105 employees of CKTS, CHLT-am and CHLT-fm radio stations as well as CHLT-TV voted 93 per cent in favor of strike action at a special meeting held Friday afternoon.

The employees, who held their second study session in three days Friday, decided to allow their union executive to choose when to start strike action.

The study session by the employees who are affiliated with the National Association of Broadcasting Employees and Technicians (NABET) shut down the radio and television stations throughout most of the day.

Informed sources within management said over the weekend there is a possibility that negotiations between the two parties could be re-opened shortly.

The employees are seeking a two year pact with salary increases of 35 and 30 per cent while management is allegedly offering a three year contract with raises of 10, 11 and 13 per cent. The union is also seeking a cost of living index adjustment clause while the company is unwilling to give one.

Masked thieves get away with $21,000

INVERNESS (CC) — Police are continuing their investigation into the armed robbery here Friday which netted two masked thieves approximately $21,000.

A spokesman for the Thetford Mines detachment of the Quebec Police Force said late Sunday night that no arrests had been made.

The two men walked into the Caisse Populaire at Inverness shortly after 10:30 a.m. Friday when only two persons, manager Mrs. Celine Mercier and teller Miss Lizette Vachon were present.

After forcing them to turn over the money the two men fled in a stolen car which was found minutes later abandoned one mile from the village. A massive police net, set up shortly afterwards, failed to lead to the capture of the two men. No shots were fired and no one was injured in the robbery.

It was the second robbery within five months in this tiny hamlet located approximately 11 miles from Thetford Mines.

Five months ago, in January, two armed and masked men fled on a snowmobile after robbing the Royal Bank branch here of $11,800. The two men were later captured and have received a two year and a 14-year sentence.

Governor general is steadily improving

SHERBROOKE, Que. (CP) — Governor-General Jules Leger, eight days after his admission to hospital following a stroke, is recovering to the satisfaction of his doctors.

An aide said Sunday the Governor-General "had passed a good night and doctors are pleased with his progress."

Mr. Leger spends his days sitting in a chair although he takes walks in his room and in the corridor accompanied by a nurse.

In recent days he has been feeding himself and is not on a restricted diet.

An aide said Mr. Leger's "progress remains encouraging and favorable," although his left hand remains paralysed.

The Governor-General is also suffering from a speech problem but has shown improvement and has "communicated orally" with Mme. Leger and daughter Helene during their daily visits.

Mr. Leger is at University of Sherbrooke Medical Centre in this community, 90 miles east of Montreal.

JERUSALEM (AP) — Saying that the "impossible dream" of Middle East peace came true, President Nixon arrived here Sunday only hours after restoring diplomatic relations with Syria, one of Israel's bitterest of enemies.

The first United States president ever to visit Israel, Nixon was greeted by 100,000 cheering Israelis before he moved quickly into a round of talks with Premier Yitzhak Rabin's new government, pressing ahead with his peace mission after five days of meetings with Arab leaders.

Responding to a 21-gun salute and "a very warm shalom" from President Ephraim Katzir, Nixon said on his arrival from Damascus that Arab-Israeli peace, "once an impossible dream... is a possible dream now. What we want to do is make that possible dream come true."

"It is not an easy goal to achieve," Nixon added, but "we believe the goal can be achieved."

From the airport outside Tel Aviv, Nixon drove with Katzir and Rabin to this ancient city for talks and a state dinner.

Chants and cheers of welcome sounded as Nixon's limousine passed. Most of the time the president remained seated in the open-topped bulletproof car flown from the U.S.

WILL HELP EGYPT
Earlier, Nixon promised help to Egypt for the development of nuclear power for agricultural and industrial purposes.

Moshe Dayan, the former Israeli defence minister, told reporters Nixon's Middle East tour "will be a historically fatal mistake" if its only contribution is the sale of nuclear reactors to the Egyptians.

Moving to counter such reaction, White House spokesman Ronald Ziegler called a news briefing to disclose that State Secretary Henry Kissinger assured Israeli leaders Sunday "that the purpose was exclusively" to help develop Egypt's economy and "thereby provide for the peaceful evolution of the area."

In addition to Nixon's new contracts with Arab leaders, the talks here are covering prospects for the Geneva peace conference, general Middle East relations involving the U.S., and military aid for Israel.

The administration's foreign-aid bill for the coming fiscal year asks for $350 million to help Israel strengthen its military capacity.

SKIRTS FIGHT ZONE
En route to Israel, Nixon's jet flew over the Mediterranean after learning Damascus, skirting the Golan Heights which was a battleground until Kissinger helped negotiate a ceasefire and disengagement a few weeks ago.

The Israelis mounted their heaviest security precautions for Nixon's 25-hour visit. Six hours before his arrival a false alarm of a terrorist attack in northern Israel sent security forces into operation along the Lebanese border.

The size of the airport crowd was restricted by security measures. The airport was sealed off by troops with submachine-guns. All traffic was halted an hour before his arrival.

Information Minister Aharon Yariv has warned of possible Palestinian guerrilla attacks during Nixon's stay.

The welcome was far smaller than the frantic reception Nixon received in Egypt—where the number of people in Cairo alone is double Israel's entire three million population—but it was enthusiastic. A few American immigrants were refused police permission to demonstrate in favor of Nixon's impeachment, but other youngsters at the airport waved a placard saying, "Americans in Israeli welcome the President."

NOTES FRIENDSHIP
Squinting into the sun during his airport

speech, Nixon several times referred to Israel and the United States as traditional friends, and spoke of his "respect and admiration for the people of this nation."

President Katzir said Nixon's visit "epitomizes the mission of peace in our area which the American administration—under your guidance and leadership—is pursuing."

Nothing Israel's ability to defend itself in the face of great odds, Nixon said a Middle East peace was the goal of both Israelis and Americans.

Restoration of U.S.-Syrian diplomatic relations had been expected since Kissinger helped bring about the end of the Golan Heights fighting.

President Hafez Assad of Syria announced the move at the end of Nixon's visit to Damascus earlier Sunday, and Nixon said the U.S. and Syria will exchange ambassadors within two weeks.

This leaves Iraq as the only Arab country that still has not restored diplomatic relations broken with the U.S. during the 1967 Middle East war. The others that have renewed ties broken then are Egypt, Sudan, Algeria and North Yemen.

Toronto crucial election battleground

Three of the four major party leaders blitzed Toronto Sunday, looking for support in a political battleground seen as crucial to the outcome of the July 8 federal election.

Progressive Conservative Leader Robert Stanfield, the most active campaigner, stumped through four Metro ridings as he ended a week-long Ontario tour that took him through 31 constituencies. His message, similar everywhere, was: "Work, work, work." No Conservative victory would come by chance.

Prime Minister Trudeau, fulfilling a speaking engagement made before the election, addressed a cheering audience of Canadian Jewish Congress members. He focused primarily on the danger of nuclear weapons but took time out to laud the Liberal government's external affairs record and praise External Affairs Minister Mitchell Sharp.

David Lewis took the New Democratic Party campaign to the airwaves, fielding questions from listeners on a national CBC open-line radio program and explaining NDP policies and proposals during a television interview in Toronto.

Social Credit Leader Real Caouette, meanwhile, began his second campaign trip outside Quebec with a visit to Moncton, N.B., where Mayor Leonard Jones was rejected as a Conservative candidate because of his opposition to the Official Languages Act.

QUESTIONED QUICKLY
The controversy generated by the mayor, now running as an independent, was one of the first subjects raised during Mr. Caouette's visit.

"What about Mayor Jones?" asked a reporter.

"Well, I don't know," the French-Canadian leader replied.

"Is he a Social Crediter?" Mr. Caouette refused to involve himself in the controversy but did say the mayor has a right "to be what he is if we live in a democracy."

Mr. Trudeau, leaving the campaign out of much of his speech, slapped India and France for conducting nuclear tests. No country should waste money and technology on nuclear weapons, he said.

As he spoke, news services were carrying their first reports of another French atmospheric test at Mururoa atoll in the Pacific. Canada has protested French tests before with no apparent effect on French nuclear policies.

The prime minister, while not naming either country, appeared to direct his remarks primarily at India. The Indian government used technology from a Canadian-built nuclear reactor to make and explode its first nuclear bomb earlier this year.

BLAST DENOUNCED
The explosion was denounced by Ottawa and the government subsequently cut off all aid to India, except food and agricultural assistance.

India has said that the explosion was for peaceful purposes. Mr. Trudeau, who had a prepared text distributed in advance, left out one portion that said:

"We should not permit ourselves to be lulled into the fantasy that there is some distinction between a nuclear explosive device capable of peaceful uses and one for non-peaceful uses."

Mr. Stanfield, who toured the Toronto ridings of York East, Scarborough West, Eglinton and Etobicoke Sunday, urged party supporters to pull out all campaign stops.

"I ask you to get just as excited as you can."

"Even with my great qualities as a leader," he joked with one audience of several hundred, "we will have to work hard."

On Saturday, he drove to Peterborough where he gave support to former Manitoba premier Duff Roblin, parachuted into the riding as the Conservative candidate.

In response to criticism of Mr. Roblin as an outsider, Mr. Stanfield said governments, political parties and leaders do a great disservice to their country by dividing people—"by trying to make a stranger, for example, of an outstanding Canadian like Duff Roblin."

Mr. Lewis, who resumed his attack on both the Liberals and Conservatives, reiterated his stand against the transportation policy outlined last week.

Haskell Opera House celebrates 70th anniversary

BOUNDARY - The famous International Opera House, in observance of its 70th anniversary, celebrated with a magnificent concert on Friday evening, June 7, just 70 years from the date of the first concert.

The beautiful interior, grown a little more mature since June 7, 1904, resounded to the "Sound of Music" from Bach to Broadway at the opening concert of the North Country Concert Association Inc.

This birthday party was attended by approximately 400 persons from near and far who heard the beautiful voice of Rutha Jessup, a dramatic soprano from Chicago as she presented a notable program comprising well known classical vocal selections, to the modern smash hit musicals of today.

Selections were also presented by the North Country Chorus, directed by Mary Rowe, and some were accompanied by Miss Jessup.

The North Country Chorus sang "The Heavens Resound" by Beethoven; Lacrymosa from Requiem, by Mozart; and Omnipotence, by Schubert. Miss Jessup was soloist.

Miss Jessup sang Ritorno Vinci Tor from Aida by Verdi; Doretta's Aria from Rondine and Un Bel Di from Butterfly, both by Puccini.

The North Country Chorus presented Fauna Canzone and Italian Madrigal by Vecchi; Sweet Day (An Elizabethan Sonnet) by Vaughn Williams; The May Day Carol, by Deems Taylor; and Charlotown, an American folk song.

with Miss Jessup as soloist presented Ah, Sweet Mystery of Life, by Victor Herbert; Only a Rose, and I Could Have Danced All Night, from My Fair Lady.

The lovely Rodgers and Hammerstein Medley from the Sound of Music was sung. The Hills are Alive and Climb Every Mountain were sung to thrill the listeners.

Gershwin's Summertime from Porgy and Bess; I've Got Plenty of Nothing and Victor Herbert's Italian Street Song were also sung.

The accompanist for the choral singers was Katrina Munn, accompanist member, American Guild of Organists, American Association of piano teachers; and for Miss Jessup, concert pianist Mrs. Stuart (Sara) Robinson.

Edwin Earle, President of the North Country Concert Association in his opening remarks first thanked the Haskell Building trustees for use of the building to bring to the community and surrounding points a series of four summer concerts, and to the Vermont Council of Arts for funding the concerts.

Mr. Earle introduced Clarence C. Copp of Derby Line, who when the building was constructed was time keeper for his grandfather, the late Nate Beach, who supervised the building of this beautiful Haskell Opera House. Mr. Copp was probably the only one attending the June 4, 1974, concert that had attended the opening concert on June 4, 1904.

Stuart Robinson, vice-president and executive director, also spoke and gave complimentary remarks about the team captains for the ticket campaign and recognition to Joseph Maheu who had with the librarian, Mrs. Adelaide Prangley, arranged a collection of early day photographs in the Library reading room. These photographs included one that showed the laying of the cornerstone for Haskell Building.

Mr. Robinson noted letters of congratulations and good wishes had been received from the General Manager of Metropolitan Opera House in New York; Senator George Akin and Governor Salmon of Vermont, and Georges Vaillancourt, Minister of Municipal Affairs in Quebec.

Mrs. Simone DuBois, a team captain and a noted musician, had this to say about the concert. "Rutha Jessup's very personalized style permeated her warm individualistic interpretation of each number, her phrasing a blessing to all composers and song writers, her voice soaring above all technical difficulties, mesmerized her audience on 'Wings of Song' throughout the whole delightful concert."

And of the North Country director, Mary Rowe, Mrs. DuBois said, "in the rendition of their numbers, accompanied by the late Nate Beach, who supervised the building of this beautiful Haskell Opera House. Mr. Copp was probably the only one attending the June 4, 1974, concert that had attended the opening concert on June 4, 1904. Stuart Robinson, vice-president and executive director, also spoke and gave complimentary remarks about talented musician and concert music fan, said "So man attending were delighted with the concert, the chorus was marvelous, the people thrilled to the magnificent voice of Miss Jessup and her relaxed and charming manner. Many comments were made that her concert pianist accompanist, Mrs. Sara Robinson, a person of great talent, resides in this area. The audience enjoyed every minute of the concert," she said.

And evidently they did for the artists were given several curtain calls and applause, so much that the Italian Street Song was repeated as an encore. After the concert the people, all 400, assembled in the library rooms for the party. The Cadettes of Troop 248, Derby Line Girl Scouts, cut and served the large birthday cake and served punch. The cake was made and decorated by Mrs. Benoit Blais in white with blue roses and a book raised on a pedestal in the center bearing the inscription on the "pages" June 7, 1904-June 4, 1974.

The cake was a gift of Edwin Earle. Kenneth Baldwin, Chairman of the Haskell Board of Trustees, spoke briefly and expressed the pleasure of the Board that the Opera House is again being used for the summer concerts. Miss Jessup led for the singing of the Birthday Song while Kenneth Baldwin, Mrs. Adelaide Prangley and Clarence Copp made the initial cut in the cake.

The second concert will be held on Friday, June 28. This will be presented by the Preatts Ensemble for piano and strings.

Derby Line Elementary School Band presents concert

SCHOOL BAND - Above is the Derby Line Elementary School Band with the director, Mr. B. Matthews, in the foreground.

DERBY LINE - Friday afternoon, June 7, a delightful concert of music was presented to an audience of parents, friends and members of the School Board in the art room of the Derby Line Elementary School, Derby Line.

This concert was presented by the pupils of Bernard Matthews they presented Michael Row

Your Boat Ashore, The Saints, Mary Anne, Beautiful Spring, The Merry-Go-Round, Aura Lee, Join the Parade, Soldier Boy and Crusaders. The musicians were Julie Rhodes and Maura Dowd, flutes; Jeff Soulliere and Donny Flood, drums; David Gardyne and Lisa Erwin, saxophones; Kristan Veburst, Lisa Houghton, Cindi Eaton, Pam Jenne, Patty Place and Greg Gosselin, clarinets; and Randy Burns, Chris Dowd, Brent Gosselin, Brian Irish, Cheryl Messier and Jean Labrecque, the trumpets.

About midway through the concert, Randy Burns presented Mr. Matthews with gifts of twin pens and Vermont maple sugar products in appreciation of his time spent with them. These boys and girls are students in grades of the school and form the nucleus for high school bands.

After the concert, Mr. Matthews and the pupils received many compliments on their achievement this first year in their new school.

Weekend takes heavy toll

At least 63 persons, including seven killed Saturday night in a two-car collision in Sault Ste. Marie, Ont., died in accidents across Canada during the weekend.

A survey by The Canadian Press from 6 p.m. local times Friday to midnight Sunday night showed that 48 died in traffic, 12 drowned, a child was electrocuted and two died when their dune buggy rolled over in a gravel pit.

Quebec reported 25 accidental deaths—20 in traffic and five drownings. Ontario had 12 traffic deaths and a drowning. Alberta had two traffic deaths, two drownings and the electrocution and British Columbia reported three traffic deaths, two drownings and the dunebuggy deaths.

Nova Scotia had four traffic deaths. New Brunswick had two deaths on the road and a drowning and Prince Edward Island had one traffic fatality and one drowning. Manitoba and Saskatchewan each recorded two traffic deaths. Newfoundland had no weekend accidental deaths.

The 48 traffic deaths, coupled with 28 from Monday to Friday last week, bring the unofficial total for the year across Canada to 1,515.

The survey does not include industrial deaths, slayings or known suicides.

Construction workers still off their jobs

MONTREAL (CP) — About 80 per cent of Quebec's construction industry work force remained off the job this week-end in a bid to force employers to reopen their contract to provide for cost-of-living increase allowances.

Provincial mediator Yvon Dansereau met representatives of the workers Friday in an attempt to solve the dispute, which has tied up an estimated $10 billion in construction projects.

Andre Desjardins, president of the Provincial Council of Building Trades, which represents about 80,000 of the 90,000 workers, told Mr. Dansereau the council wants the construction industry decree, in effect until April, 1976, reopened to negotiate cost-of-living adjustments for the workers.

A spokesman for four building contractor associations said no management official has yet met Mr. Dansereau, but added there was nothing that could be done until the contract expires in 1976.

"We shall not reverse our position and the appointment of a mediator cannot solve the problem," Omer Rousseau, general manager of the Provincial Association of Quebec Home Builders, said.

Mr. Dansereau was appointed mediator last Thursday following the walkout of most of the province's construction force earlier in the week.

Projects tied up by the dispute include work at the 1976 Olympic Games site, the new international airport at Ste. Scholastique, north of Montreal, and an extension of the Montreal subway system.

Civil servants increase costly to government

QUEBEC (CP) — Quebec Premier Robert Bourassa said this weekend that raises and cost-of-living payments for provincial civil servants will cost $200 million more than originally expected.

"With the increases of six per cent written into the contracts and the cost-of-living increases, the government will spend $350 million instead of the expected $150 million," he said on the French-language television network Telemele.

Payments will be made to all civil servants at the beginning of July, the premier said.

Inflation will cost the province $400 million, not increase revenue by $75 million or $80 million as predicted by the Parti Quebecois, Mr. Bourassa said.

He said Quebec will have to find "$320 million out of its own pockets to provide for cost-of-living increases, for family allowance cost-of-living increases and collective agreements."

The premier also said "it is totally reasonable that the government can exercise a certain amount of discretion" in new conflict-of-interest directives.

Mr. Bourassa issued the directives following debate in the Quebec national assembly about government contracts given to a company in which the premier's wife and brother-in-law, a cabinet minister, hold shares.

PM unhappy over nuclear testing

TORONTO (CP) — Prime Minister Trudeau slapped at India and France Sunday for testing nuclear explosives.

"We hold the view that there is no need for any country to develop a (nuclear) explosive competence," he said in a speech to the Canadian Jewish Congress.

"None need divert resources from other needs any more than they need to reinvent dynamite."

In a largely non-political speech delivered in the midst of his campaign for the July 8 federal election, Mr. Trudeau said: "We are fearful that any expansion of the nuclear explosives club represents a severe setback for the efforts of mankind to control the spread of this wasteful, destructive, terrifying technology."

He was speaking from a prepared text. It contained several paragraphs that he did not deliver when he spoke, including: "We must not permit ourselves to be lulled into the fantasy that nuclear explosions are simply larger bangs, or that there is some distinction between a nuclear explosive device capable of peaceful uses, and one for non-peaceful uses."

Whild Mr. Trudeau mentioned no countries by name, it was clear that he was referring to a recent nuclear underground explosion in India—the result of know-how acquired from Canada—and forthcoming atmospheric nuclear tests by France in the South Pacific.

AIMED AT INDIA

His remarks appeared directed more at India, which the government feels has violated a bilateral understanding that led to the establishment of a Canadian-style nuclear power system on the sub-continent. France has paid little attention to past anti-nuclear protests from Canada.

Ivan Head, a prime ministerial assistant who has travelled the world on behalf of Mr. Trudeau, said the speech is a reflection in part of the Canadian attitude toward the NATO meeting that starts in Ottawa Tuesday.

Two die on motorbikes

SHERBROOKE (CC) — Two young men died in motorcycle accidents and a farmer was crushed to death under his tractor in the Eastern Townships over the weekend.

Leandre Belgrade, 40, died in the farming accident which took place Saturday afternoon on his farm located at St. Praxede in Wolfe County. The accident was covered by the Weedon detachment of the Quebec Police Force.

Alain Cliche, 22, of St. Pierre Baptiste in Lotbiniere County, died in a head on collision between his motorcycle and a car which took place at 1:15 a.m. Sunday. The accident, which occurred on Route 265 near St. Ferdinand in Frontenac County, was handled by the Thetford Mines detachment of the QPF.

Richard Labrecque, 21, of Lambton, died in a motorcycle accident Friday. Labrecque, allegedly, lost control of his bike on Route 28 near St. Evariste and rammed into a house. Lac Megantic detachment of the QPF was on the scene of the accident.

Ayer's Cliff man to face charges

SHERBROOKE (CC) — An Ayer's Cliff man was officially charged with the statutory rape of an eight year old girl in Sessions Court here Friday.

Chester Hartwell, 53, was remanded to cells until his trial scheduled during the Fall term of the Assizes, following preliminary hearing Friday.

The bald-headed taxi driver allegedly indulged in sexual relations with the girl, the name of which can not be divulged, in his taxi on a secondary road June 7.

The preliminary hearing was held behind closed doors and the girl was not called to testify. Maximum sentence for the crime is life imprisonment.

Judge Benoit Turmel accepted the testimony presented by prosecutor Jacques Page before deciding to refuse bail. Hartwell is being represented by Claude Leblond and Louis Gauthier.

RRHS GRADUATION EXERCISES

J.D. Jeffers, former professor at Bishop's University, will be graduation speaker at Richmond Regional High School on Friday, June 21. The exercise will mark the third successive year during which Dr. Jeffers has been invited to speak at the high school by the graduating class.

BCS FOUNDATION DRIVE

The Bishop's College School Foundation has embarked on a fund-raising drive with an objective of $7 million. The money is to be allocated in the following manner: construction of an athletic complex and of residences, $4 million; bursaries and scholarships, $2 million; salaries, $500,000; annual capital expenditures for renovations, $500,000.

CSRE EXECUTIVE CRITICIZES MEDIA

Gaston Theriault, chairman of the executive committee of the Commission Scolaire Regionale de l'Estrie, has criticized news media for the lack of interest shown by the general population regarding school board matters.

Referring to the recent school board elections, Mr. Theriault asserted: "Because the news media of the region, especially in Sherbrooke, did not interest themselves in commissioners who had expiring mandates and persons who were running for office, they may have hindered valuable candidates from running for offices which were open."

SHERBROOKE UNIVERSITY WIND STUDIES

A group of professors at the University of Sherbrooke have dedicated their efforts to studying the feasibility of harnessing energy released by wind.

The instructors, attached to the university's mechanical engineering department, have three types of project underway: study of machines capable of capturing the wind's energy; analysis of the methods of converting such energy to heat or electricity; construction of prototype machines.

RRHS PURLIN TEST FAVORABLE

According to Jack Hawkins, assistant secretary-general of the Eastern Townships Regional School Board, Eastern Forest Products Laboratories have tested and found satisfactory the purlin removed from Richmond Regional High School.

Earlier this year the purlin was removed and sent to the Ottawa laboratory for testing because the ETRSB feared the school's laminated beams had deteriorated significantly in quality since their installation.

ETRSB STUDYING TRANSPORTATION

The Eastern Townships Regional School Board is currently studying the feasibility of making its transportation service more efficient and economical.

Although the school board has not received governmental authorization about the specific number of buses it will be permitted to utilize during the 1974-75 academic year, it is proceeding on the assumption that it will be granted use of 103 buses. At present, some 117 school buses are included in the ETRSB transportation service operation.

Champlain College pares its budget

LENNOXVILLE (MI) — Champlain Regional College is to receive $125,100 of some $212,300 it requested from the government as special grants to cover 1973-74 operating expenses, the CEGEP's board of governors learned at a meeting held at the Lennoxville campus Friday.

Phil Wood, comptroller for the college, told board members the college had been allocated $50,000 of a $73,400 request in administrative services; $11,000 of a requested $34,650 in library, audio-visual, and research and development services; and $17,000 of $25,000 in data processing. These three categories, accounting for some $55,650 of the total $87,200 discrepancy between request and authorization, involved most significant implications, he advised the board.

Discussing the general implications of the governmental grant, Mr. Wood said he had not anticipated a situation to arise in which the college would receive substantially more than one-half its requests. "Present projections are that, by the June 30th year-end, through budget reductions and tight controls, expenditures will just barely stay within our overall revised budget," he declared.

Mr. Wood also informed the board that, in preliminary discussions, the education department had indicated that it once again expected the college to operate within the bounds established by the government's regular provisions of norms.

"Although minor concessions were made in laboratories by virtue of special grants totalling $25,000 and in data processing with grants amounting to $20,000, in other areas we are being faced with making budget downward revisions to arrive within the authorization," he asserted.

The total reduction in the proposed $5.4 million operating budget amounts to at least $200,000. From the comptroller's point of view, the most serious concern focuses on administrative services where, he contended, a minimum additional grant amounting to $30,000 is necessary for the college to break even during the upcoming academic year.

The ministry's response to the Champlain request has forced the CEGEP to reallocate the $20,000 received to offset inflationary costs for maintenance operations. Of this sum, $162,000, more than double the original proposal, has been provided for administrative services.

Allocations to the instructional program have been diminished from $12,000 to $7,700; to library, audio-visual, and research and development services from $30,300 to $23,400; to student services from $24,700 to $7,700. Two other sectors, with previously-allocated amounts totalling $10,000, will receive no money from this fund.

Mr. Wood predicted the $77,300 norm will cover approximately 80 per cent of the general needs of the college in the tools and equipment sector. Of the college's proposed special requests in this area, the Lennoxville campus will receive about 50 per cent of its requests, the St. Lambert campus about 85 per cent and the Quebec City campus about 90 per cent.

Special grants totalling $20,000 for Lennoxville, $25,000 for St. Lambert and $15,000 for Quebec City were authorized for purchase of library books.

Rene terms Bill 22 "a macabre thing"

MONTREAL (CP) — Rene Levesque, Parti Quebecois leader, said Sunday the Quebec government's proposed language legislation, Bill 22, may result in the polarization of English and French extremists.

Mr. Levesque defined the two extremist groups as the arrogant English who mouth promotion of French but fail to budge an inch, and the French extremists who react by advocating a policy of unilingualism.

Wrapping up the two-day convention of the party's Montreal North and West Regional Congress, Mr. Levesque said: "We can only hope that if this bill cannot be stopped completely it can be held back until the autumn."

Opposition will be stronger then, he said, to legislation the premier has tried to "sneak by during these summer months."

Proposed legislation, introduced May 21 in the national assembly, would make French the sole official language in the province.

"For 200 years we have been losing our culture and language and now this Bill 22 is a macabre thing done by the bureaucrats who would further assimilation," he told 250 party supporters.

"It must be fought," he said, adding that the Parti Quebecois has never been in a stronger position to do so.

Mr. Levesque reiterated his party's pledge to spoil ballots in the July 8 federal election.

"Trudeau once said that Quebec would be ready for independence when people stopped voting federally," he said, "and maybe he's right."

Resolutions passed at the convention included a requirement that a French-language proficiency test be taken by professionals and service people during these summer months.

Supporters also decided that a referendum on Quebec's independence would not be necessary if the Parti Quebecois wins an election.

Erratum

An incorrect statement appeared in the Friday, June 14 edition of the Record in a story about the Lennoxville Policemen's Brotherhood on page three. The third paragraph said that the replacement for a Nicolet trainee would be dismissed. In fact, the new officer will attend Nicolet when the policeman there now returns.

Rise and fall of land-management in the States

WASHINGTON (CP) — The rise and fall of land-management legislation is shaping up as a classic example of how politics work in the United States.

Approved in the Senate but defeated in the House of Representatives was a bill calling for $800 million in federal grants to the states.

The money would have helped the states draw up plans leading toward the regulation of land use. Ultimately, the program would encourage growth patterns that would no longer infringe on floodplains, wetlands, rare and valuable ecosystems and scientific, scenic and historic areas.

The bill contained no imperatives—each state would have retained the right to accept or reject its provisions.

President Nixon's administration once called such legislation its No. 1 environmental priority.

LAND DISAPPEARS

Representative Morris Udall (Dem. Ariz.), in guiding the bill through three years of hearings, said each year over three million acres is irretrievably swallowed up by urban sprawl, parking lots and innumerable other uses. He described land as the most precious resource.

Interior Secretary Rogers Morton spoke out in favor of it.

So how did it die?

Udall blames in part the U.S. Chamber of Commerce as well as the John Birch Society and other right-wing, conservative groups for charges that the bill would give federal and state governments authority to confiscate private property without compensation.

Other Democrats are blaming "impeachment politics." Since many of the congressmen who expect to support Nixon in any impeachment hearings are also opponents of the land bill, charges have been made that the administration diluted its support on the promise of anti-impeachment votes.

Morton also backed away, despite a follow-up statement regretting that the House rejected the bill without debate.

Some observers speculate that Morton's position was dictated by the president.

Many farmers had supported the proposal to prevent more arable land being swallowed up, which they said would raise the cost of food.

One lumber manufacturer, however, expressed fear the legislation would force up timber prices by cutting down on forest use.

An example of the ambivalence surrounding the question of land management came from the national governors' conference which told Udall:

"Our policy statement in favor of land use planning in no way implies endorsement of your bill or any other specific legislation."

If the bill is dead for now, there are already signs that it may be reborn.

Senator Henry Jackson (Dem. Wash.), head of the Senate interior committee and one of the more powerful in-fighters on Capitol Hill, says he is looking for "a must bill."

Such a bill is one which the president feels is vital. Even though the chosen bill may have nothing to do with the use of land, Jackson plans to tack land management onto it.

Then, if the president wants the main body of the "must bill," he will have to take the land-use provisions along with it.

Project Independence: Will-o-the-wisp?

(Second of Two Related Columns)

By Bruce Biossat

WASHINGTON (NEA)

One major U.S. oil company has drilled 27 successive offshore holes in the continental shelf adjoining the Atlantic coast without finding a drop of new oil. The cost for each such undertaking runs between $2 million and $3 million.

This string of failures is not only an obvious discouragement to the exploring firm, but strongly underscores experts' concern that estimates of offshore oil reserves around America's coasts and possibly in some shelf areas elsewhere in the world may have been substantially overstated.

When I first undertook to survey estimated reserves, as well as proven supplies (oil known from test bores to be in place), veteran analysts placed U.S. offshore crude oil reserves at from 190 billion to 200 billion barrels.

Recently that figure has been revised downward dramatically. A report of the U.S. Geological Survey puts a new top guess on possible offshore reserves at 150 billion barrels, but suggests darkly they may in fact be no more than 80 billion.

The dry-hole results reported at the outset of this report make these new estimates seem painfully realistic. Estimates are, of course, based on a variety of factors, including proximity of proven fields, continental or under-ocean rock surface configuration conforming to known deposit areas, character of the rock, etc.

Even if the offshore estimates are presently to be accepted as plausible in their revised state, 80 billion barrels is a lot of oil. But it should never be forgotten that the cost of extracting such oil, should it be discovered, is very high — and the whole offshore process slow.

It must go forward, nevertheless, because our need is so great. And naturally it will. Government officials at national and state levels are issuing permits at a considerable pace.

This is so, notwithstanding the steady efforts of environmentalists to either slow or halt offshore explorations. This potent force is freshly armed with a report from the President's Council on Environmental Quality on the potential dangers it believes are associated with drilling in the Atlantic and another newly active zone the broad Gulf of Alaska in the North Pacific.

The summary of all the new factors bearing upon offshore oil development simply deepens the gloom gathering in recent weeks over America's hopes of quickly getting at some new oil sources to help tide it over until the longer range projects (like making synthetic crude from oil shale, coal, and tar sands) could come heavily into play.

If all that's been said here is not depressing enough, consider a couple of final items of poor news:

Experts who have felt for five years that configuration of Alaska's North Slope indicates reserves there might be 10 times the 10 billion barrels of crude believed there, now seem less hopeful today. Nobody is saying 10 billion is the limit, but 100 billion is seen now as dreamy.

I've already noted the high cost factor involved in new offshore exploration and development. The more advanced (so-called tertiary) methods of getting more oil from existing wells are also expensive. So too are all the projects for getting synthetic crude oil or alternative energy sources into volume output by the mid-1980s.

In a special report, New York's Chase Manhattan Bank suggests that to fill rising needs between now and 1985, the United States alone — through just its oil industry's private outlays — will need almost half a trillion dollars.

President Nixon, talking of oil, fixed our goal as Project (U.S.) Independence by 1980. That vessel sank in the harbor as soon as it slid down the ways.

'Milk deal' exceeds routine dirty politics

By Don Oakley

It may very well be that when the book is closed on the presidency of Richard M. Nixon, the worst stain on its pages will not be the Watergate break-in and subsequent cover-up but what has come to be called "the milk deal."

Watergate may conceivably be dismissed, as many Americans seem willing to dismiss it, as nothing more than dirty politics as usual — well, perhaps a little dirtier than usual, but not substantially different from other things that have happened in the past.

However, President Nixon's decision to raise milk price supports in 1972 was something that very directly affected every American, of whose interests the President is supposed to be the chief guardian.

A lengthy draft report prepared by the staff of the Senate Watergate committee after a year's investigation charges that when the President ordered the increase he was aware that the milk producers had pledged a $2-million contribution to his re-election campaign and that moreover he "ignored the opinion of every agricultural expert in his administration."

His decision, the report says, "cost the government and the consumer hundreds of million of dollars."

John Connally, then secretary of the Treasury, has also been implicated in the affair, allegedly receiving $15,000 from the milk producers to use his influence with the administration.

The report rebuts President Nixon's "white paper" of last year in which he defended his action on the grounds that a Democratic Congress was holding "a gun to his head" in the form of threatened legislation that would have allowed an even higher price ceiling.

There was not that much pressure on Capitol Hill, contends the report, and in any event, the administration-ordered increase was higher than anything proposed in Congress.

At best, it was a lame excuse from a President who at the time had an 11-2 record of having his vetoes upheld by Congress.

By all rights, the very suggestion that the milk producers were prepared to contribute lavishly to his campaign fund ought to have queered their request in the President's eyes from the start. This is something that a man concerned about his image, let alone the welfare of the people, should not have wanted to touch with a 10-foot pole.

No one has charged the President with crudely accepting an outright bribe from the milk industry. This is an exceedingly gray area, and such a charge would seem to be more difficult to prove even than his involvement in the Watergate cover-up.

Again, it appears to have been a case of the President, and his advisors, believing that the re-election of Richard Nixon was the paramount concern, overriding all other considerations. A contribution of $2 million was not to be rejected out of hand, and if it could be rationalized as serving the long-range welfare of the country by preserving the President in office, then an increase in the price of milk was little enough for the country to pay.

And again, unfortunately, the White House is withholding tapes and other documents that might help clarify the matter.

Dog bites taxpayer

Dog bites are costing the American taxpayer some $400,000 a year and maybe more, says an "urban ecologist."

According to Alan M. Beck of Washington University at St. Louis and author of a study entitled "Ecology of Stray Dogs," an estimated 10,000 persons are bitten each year by dogs. Government investigation of each case costs between $40 and $70.

Why the government should be investigating dog bites, he didn't say.

Postal sabotage

The zeal of high officials for the new postal codes has not as yet ignited comparable enthusiasm among the citizens who are urged to use them. Many people have difficulty in recalling the scrambles of letters and numerals now required to identify their own homes and have shown some resistance to a system which requires them to maintain lists of codes assigned to their correspondents. But if anything could ensure a more cooperative attitude on the part of the general public, it is the pressure campaign now being mounted by the Canadian Union of Postal Workers in its interminable feud with the post office.

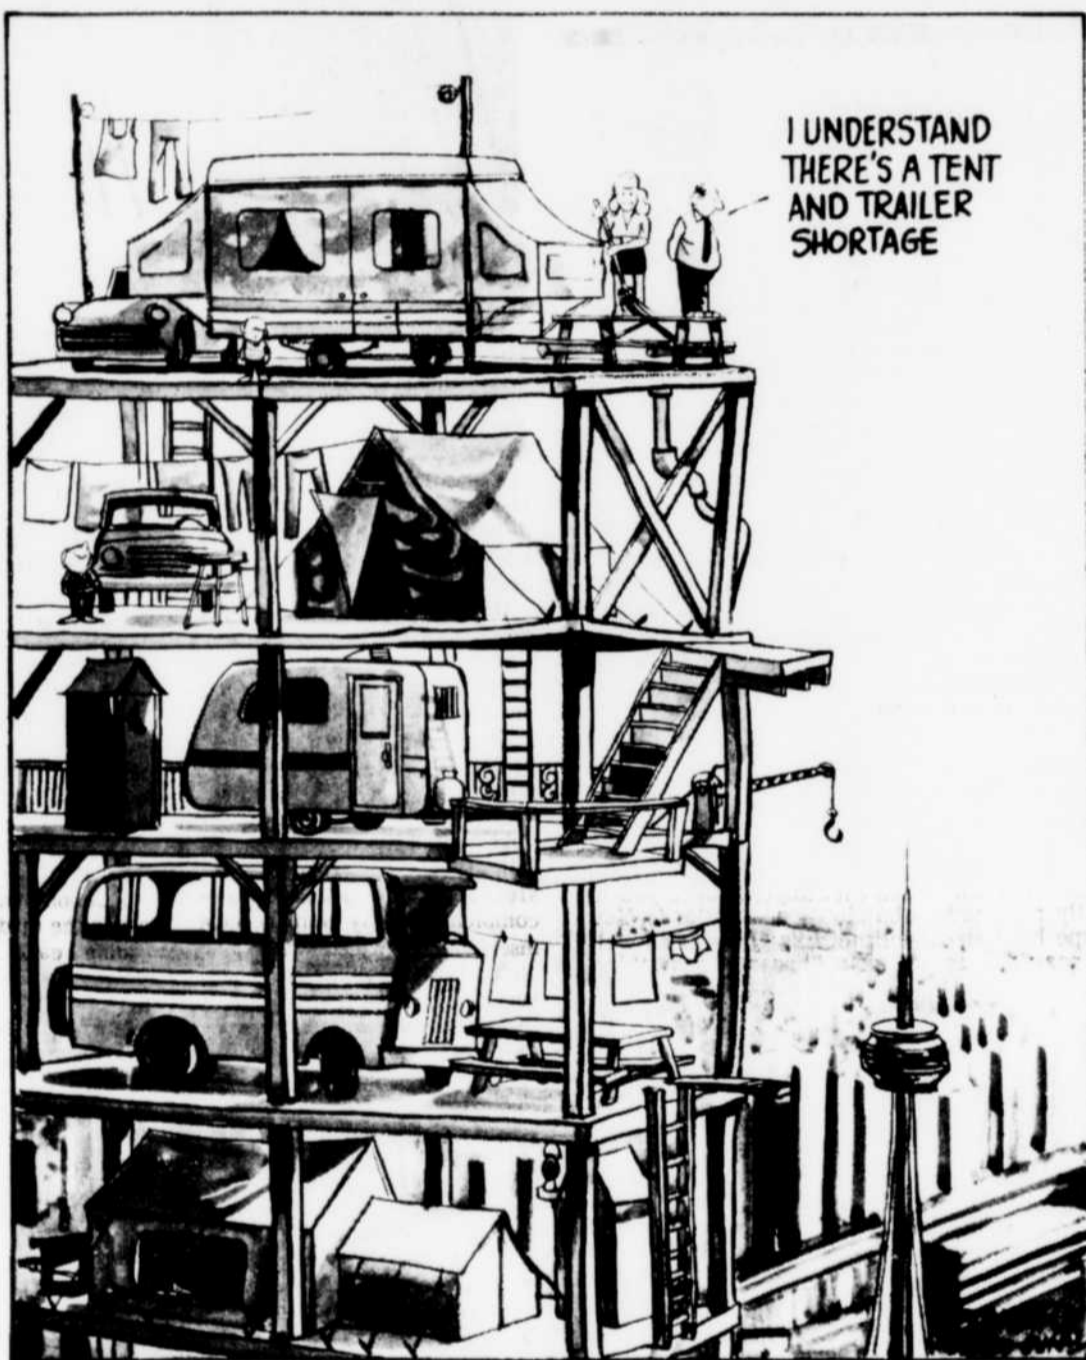

CUPW has a grievance relating to job classifications made necessary by automation. This led to the illegal strike, originating with the Montreal local, which disrupted the mails earlier this year. A mediator's report has yet to be received and considered. But another report by Jacob Finkelman on amendments to the Public Service Staff Relations Act makes proposals for the adjustment of grievances while ruling that it is not feasible to make classification standards bargainable at this time.

The council, meanwhile, has announced a course of militant action. It proposes simply to sabotage the policy of the post office department, and it hopes to persuade the public to assist in the sabotage. Coded mail is supposed to receive priority but the union proposes to give more rapid service to those who attach stickers to their mail or mark them "Boycott the postal code." In other words, a grievance is to be pressed not by legitimate means but by a campaign of mass disobedience at the expense of citizens generally who must rely on the mails.

These arrogant tactics will be resented, and rightly. The codes, whatever their faults, are not peculiar to Canada. Similar systems are in use in Britain and the United States which had also moved to automation (in which incidentally, afflicted Canadian taxpayers now have a considerable investment). Boycott is emphatically not to the general advantage. But there is a wider consideration. If mass disobedience is proper for one group on the public payroll — and drawing their pay — it must be equally proper for other groups. It is bad enough that essential services should be disrupted from time to time by strikes, legal or otherwise. What is now being asserted, however, is a right, in the absence of a strike, to reverse public policy. If such a lead was followed, say in the department of the environment, we might have government employees promoting pollution or, in national revenue, exempting favored citizens from tax payments required by law. Such examples may appear (fortunately) far-fetched but they would not differ in principle from the usurpation of authority proposed by the postal union.

The sensible public response to sabotage of this character is obvious. It is to boycott the boycott. Whether we like the codes or not, now is the time to use them. With so much money committed to the system, we will obviously have to live with it and citizen cooperation is obviously essential if it is to be made to work.

By its effrontery CUPW has at least provided an additional stimulus to effort which should be effective.

HOUSING 1984?

Agnew's commerce contact

WASHINGTON — In his fall from power, Spiro Agnew left behind a valuable contact who is now helping him find business deals.

The former Vice President during his glory days arranged a job for one of his supporters, Tilton H. Dobbin, as Assistant Commerce Secretary in charge of domestic and international business. This has put Dobbin in touch with some of the world's most powerful businessmen. Inside sources say he has used his position to open doors for the deposed Agnew.

A forlorn figure, Agnew has lost his political career. He has been disbarred from practicing law. The Internal Revenue Service is squeezing him for back taxes. The Justice Department is considering a suit to recover the bribe money allegedly paid him while he was a government official. Some firebrands at Justice even want to sue to recover his vice-presidential salary.

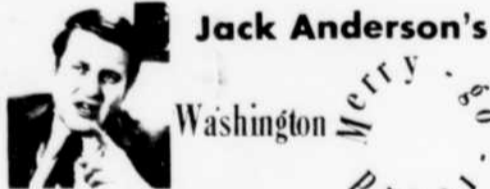

Agnew tried to raise money by writing a novel. But after the reviews appeared, this no longer seemed a promising career. Almost in desperation, he turned to wheeling and dealing.

He has just returned from a swing through the Middle East in search of deals. He visited his Greek homeland, Amman and Beirut, and then hit the petroleum capitals, Tehran and Kuwait.

The former Vice President still had enough political glamor to gain audiences with the Crown Prince in Jordan and the shah in Iran. But Agnew's main stop, in Saudi Arabia, had to be cancelled because his wife became ill.

On the business side, according to our sources, Dobbin helped pave the way. He admitted to us that he does financial favors for his former mentor. Agnew has called on him, Dobbin said, to "get a rundown on a person or a company, or to do a bank or credit check."

But Dobbin denied that he arranged business contacts for Agnew on his latest odyssey. "I didn't even know he was going until I read about it.

Cutting Corners: Under pressure from House Speaker Carl Albert, Small Business Administrator Tom Kleppe violated regulations to bail out an electronics firm from Albert's home state of Oklahoma.

The struggling company, Oklahoma Aerotronics, didn't qualify for a minority-business government contract. The firm also had money problems, not the least of which was a negative worth of $900,000.

"To place contracts with Oklahoma Aerotronics under existing conditions," Kleppe notified the Speaker on August 17, 1971, "we would have to violate Federal Regulations and our National Directive."

Nevertheless, Albert called Kleppe up to Capitol Hill for a personal meeting and repeated his hope that Kleppe "could find some way" to provide the electronics firm with minority-business help.

Despite the federal regulations, Kleppe caved in. He dispatched an aide to Oklahoma with orders to make the company fit the requirements, cosmetically if not legally.

Not long afterwards, Oklahoma Aerotronics got its minority-business approval and landed a whopping $4 million worth of contracts.

Footnote: Albert told us he had relied upon an aide who had handled the Oklahoma Aerotronics case for him. The Speaker said he didn't intentionally seek to run roughshod over federal regulations. An SBA spokesman said that the company became qualified in October of 1971 when a majority control was transferred to an employee trust.

Military Spending: The idea that boosting military spending creates jobs and is good for the economy, according to an unreleased report, is a myth.

On the contrary, for every billion dollars spent by the Pentagon, the nation actually loses 20,000 jobs. This is the finding of a four-month study by the Public Interest Research Group in Michigan, a Ralph Nader offshoot headquartered in Lansing.

The researchers, directed by Marion Anderson, used the government's own figures and found that the Pentagon generates fewer jobs per billion dollars than any other form of private or government spending with the single exception of the space program.

Translating these statistics into jobs, the researchers discovered there is a net loss in employment when money is spent for military purposes, as compared with civilian spending or spending by state and local governments.

The average Pentagon budget of $80 billion, the study alleges, results in the loss of at least 1,600,000 jobs each year across the nation.

The logical conclusion, therefore, is that the economy would benefit from a slash in the military budget. "It would make no difference," the study states, "whether the cut was all in defense contracts going to civilian industry or military personnel going to state and local governments, the trade-off would still mean a net increase of jobs for the economy."

Footnote: A Pentagon economist acknowledged that the "arithmetic" used by the research group was good but argued that the statistics didn't support the conclusions. "About the only thing you can conclude from these figures," he said, "is that employees of state and local governments and in the civilian economy earn smaller salaries than do defense workers." The figures don't "realistically reflect" what would happen, he said, if highly skilled defense workers were let off as a result of the budget slash.

Fournier-Westover united

MR. AND MRS. GILLES FOURNIER

STANBRIDGE EAST — Miss Debra Norma Westover, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Norman Westover of Stanbridge East, was united in marriage to Mr. Gilles Fournier, son of Mrs. Therese Fournier and the late Honore Fournier of Notre Dame de Stanbridge on May 18, 1974 at St. Jeanne d'Arc Church, Stanbridge East.

Rev. Father Courtemanche, assisted by Canon S. Willis of St. James' Anglican Church performed the double ring ceremony at 11 o'clock a.m.

The bride, given in marriage by her father, was attired in a gown of white organza designed on colonial lines with ruffled yoke outline, the skirt at back falling into a long train. The sleeves and bodice were complemented by Guipure lace insertions entwined with pale blue velvet ribbon. Her shoulder-length veil of tulle illusion was scalloped and gathered by a headpiece of flowers. She carried a colonial bouquet of blue miniature carnations.

West's queen of diamonds held the first trick. South won the continuation; drew trumps with three leads; ruffed dummy's last diamond; played out all the clubs, making sure to win the last one in dummy; led a spade, stuck in his nine spot and showed his hand.

ducked East could lead a spade. West could win; play any other suit, and wait for two more spade tricks.

South's best play would be to go right up with his ace, draw the trumps and lead a second diamond from dummy.

Here is where the real alertness would be required. East would have to go right up with his 10 spot so as to be able to win the trick and lead a spade before South had had a chance to strip the hand.

DR. LAWRENCE E. LAMB

Problem of unsightly hair

By Lawrence E. Lamb, M.D.

DEAR DR. LAMB — Could you please discuss this problem in your newspaper column? Women's swim suits are getting more brief every year. Can you recommend an effective and convenient method of removing pubic hair that would otherwise "hang out?"

Dr. Lamb

I have tried shaving which is awkward and which leaves red bumps, dipilatories which are messy and irritating and hot wax which is painful and not completely effective. If the red bumps left by shaving could be avoided I guess it would be the preferred method, unless you have another idea.

I'm getting to the point where I'd just as soon let it "hang out" as put up with this "jazz."

DEAR READER — I can imagine the hot wax wouldn't be too much fun. Of course, you could have electrolysis and electrically destroy the hair follicle. Or, you could pull it out by the roots, but it would grow back. As you know, that is essentially what you are doing with the hot wax treatment.

It is probably too much to suggest, but have you ever considered wearing a larger swim suit? Clothes do have other purposes besides just keeping the body warm. They also cover what you don't want other people to see. Many an overweight person is grateful for this.

Finally, considering your "hot wax" solution to "brief" swim suits, I can't help wondering what your solution would be to streaking, if you should take up that fad.

DEAR DR. LAMB — My husband is having premature ejaculations and is unable to satisfy me. We are hoping that you will tell us what to do about this. He said he would see a doctor if you will let us know what kind of a doctor he needs to see.

DEAR READER — This is not an uncommon problem. There are many ideas about what causes it. In general, sexual responses are learned or conditioned reflex responses. Some men simply have a very rapid reflex action. Most of them can be trained to have a slower response.

These men often have to learn to relax in the sexual situation. To do this, the couple should learn to be intimate with each other without having any sexual activity. The method used in most sex clinics is to have the couple spend some time together for two or three days petting and stroking each other while they are in the nude, but specifically agreeing ahead of time that there will be no sexual contact or touching of the genitals. This helps couples with the premature ejaculation problem and couples where the woman has trouble reaching a climax.

One method of slowing the

The first two fingers are placed on the opposite side of the head, and the head is squeezed firmly but gently. This maneuver usually slows or stops the mounting sexual tension. The man should then allow the sexual tension to subside and the procedure can be repeated again. By doing this repeatedly the man will soon be able to reach a fairly high level of sexual excitement without ejaculation. In doing this procedure, the wife can apply the squeeze method.

Still another approach is for the wife to manually stimulate the male until he is well excited, then the stimulation is stopped. The man is allowed to cool off, and the procedure is repeated. The whole idea in both of these techniques is to bring the man close to peak sexual tension, and then allow the tension to subside. By repeated efforts of this type his hair-trigger reflex reaction is slowed.

Once he can control the reflex then he can try penetration without any movement. This will condition him to insertion without ejaculation. As time progresses he can begin thrusting and then develop a normal coital activity.

I would suggest that you try these techniques first. Then, if you are unsuccessful, your husband might benefit from psychiatric counseling, or you could both arrange to go to one of the sex clinics, but I would do this only on referral of your doctor. There are outstanding ones, but there are also a number operated by opportunists.

DEAR DR. LAMB — Please help me. I need your help. I feel I can trust you. I have read several interesting stories in your column. I'm 16 and already have a serious problem.

My boyfriend says he is going to break off with me if I don't straighten up. He wants me to become something I don't want to be. I'm a virgin and want to stay that way. In a case like this, what would you suggest? Please help me as I really love him so much, too much to let him go. I'd kill myself if he ever left me.

DEAR READER — Ah, youth. Believe it or not the world is full of boys. Some of them might be even more wonderful than the guy you are now going with, once you get to know them. I realize you are not interested in that point just now, but breaking up with a boyfriend is not the end of the world.

Every girl has to make her own decision about her own standard of behavior. If it is important to you to remain a virgin until you get married, don't let anyone force you to abandon your standards. You will not like yourself as well if you "become" something you don't want to be.

There are a lot of good reasons for not starting an active sex life at age 16. And, keep in mind, once you start having sexual relations you will want to continue. The urge will be much stronger than it is now. Also, you have no real guarantee that your boyfriend will stay with you once you have consented to his demands. It is probably not wise to have sexual relations just to try to keep a boy. It is almost always the girl who gets hurt in this situation.

Send your questions to Dr. Lamb, in care of this newspaper, P.O. Box 1551, Radio City Station, New York, N.Y. 10019. For a copy of Dr. Lamb's booklet on impotence, send 50 cents to the same address and ask for "impotence" booklet.

Guides enrollment ceremony

SCOTSTOWN — The 1st Scotstown Company of Guides held an enrollment ceremony on Saturday afternoon June 8 in the United Church Hall.

Captain Stephanie Wells, Lieut. Germaine MacAulay, Lieut. Mary Lou Irving and Past Captain Madeline Irving were present and some mothers and friends of the Guides.

Before the ceremony started the Guides welcomed the guests by shaking their hands.

Captain Wells was assisted in the ceremony by Lieut. Irving.

The Guides took their places and started with a march. Then four Guides were enrolled, each was presented to Mrs. Wells, who enrolled each one, who were Joelle Gaudreau, Lise Gagnon, Wendy Irving and Naureen Gallagher.

Lieut. Irving handed the Guide pins to Mrs. Wells who pinned them on each Guide.

There were Challenge badges given to Wendy and Linda Irving and Liette Blais. Naureen Gallagher received a Needlework Badge and Linda Irving the Baker Badge.

Past Captain Madeline Irving, taking the place of Brown Owl who was absent, conducted the Flying up of two Brownies to Guides, and presented Shelley MacKenzie with a Golden Hand and her Brownie Wings.

Dawn Irving was presented with a Golden Bar, Golden Hand and Brownie Wings. The two Brownies flew up and were received by Captain Wells, Lieut. Irving and the Guides.

The two new Guides gave each other a flower and Shelley and Dawn presented the rest of their flowers and each Guide added their flowers, to Miss Heather MacAulay for all she had done during the years in helping the Guides and Brownies; all are sorry that Miss MacAulay will be leaving town after her marriage in September. Miss MacAulay thanked the girls and said she enjoyed helping them in their work.

Shelley and Dawn Irving then gave the Brownie Owl and two games were played, one by the Guides and the other by all present.

Lieut. MacAulay, Mrs. Irving and the Guides served refreshments.

UCW meetings

LENNOXVILLE - Unit one of the Lennoxville United Church met in the ladies lounge for their June meeting.

Mrs. Garland Page presided and extended a welcome to all and asked for a tribute of silence in memory of Mrs. Rufus Dunn, a valued member who passed away recently.

The U.C.W. purpose was repeated in unison and Mrs. Blanch Hyatt had a program of devotions, opening with a hymn with Mrs. Donald MacRae at the piano. A scripture reading and a meditation entitled Valuable Friends followed by prayer.

Mrs. Albert Parsons read the minutes and the roll call was answered by 21 making 10 visits. Mrs. A.C. Bailey was welcomed as a new member. A sunshine basket was planned for a member who had moved to Trenholm recently.

Following the financial report, the sum of $75.00 was voted to the U.C.W. general fund. Mrs. Bertha Bell and Mrs. Ayrer will represent this unit for the July 1st visit to the Grace Christian Home.

A decision was made that an offering will be given and dedicated at the meetings to replace the tea money in the future.

Correspondence included letters of thanks and a donation from Mrs. E.A. Todd of Beamsville, Ont.

Mrs. William J. Lane gave a humorous reading entitled, just for today and a gift was presented to Mrs. A.B. Lovelace in appreciation of help given to the unit.

Mrs. Donald MacRae and Mrs. Blanch Hyatt were named as program convenors and birthday greetings were sung to Mrs. Matheson, Mrs. Parsons and Mrs. Richardson.

Information was distributed regarding Summer Event to be held at Riviere des Prairies, an Annual project of the Montreal-Ottawa Conference U.C.W.

The farewell for Dr. and Mrs. Lovelace on June 23 at 8 p.m. was outlined.

Following the Mizpah, a social hour was enjoyed.

Mrs. Albert Parsons and Mrs. Wentworth S. Richardson were hostesses with Mrs. George Leech doing the honors at the tea table centered with an arrangement of lilacs and tulips.

The treasurer was given permission to pay all bills during the summer recess.

Mrs. H.J. Stubbs expressed her gracious thanks for the remembrances she received on the occasion of her 85th birthday.

The flower committee was given permission to purchase needed supplies.

September 11th meeting to be held in the church when a pot-luck supper will be served at 5:30 p.m.

Phone and Menu Committees were appointed with members agreeing to give assistance if needed.

A play, "An Evening Out," put on by the Women's Institute in County competition was presented. The parts were well taken by Mrs. Elizabeth Miller, Mrs. Clarence Nutbrown and Mrs. Agnes Myers.

To terminate a busy and pleasant evening, hostesses Mrs. R. Carter and Mrs. Dorcas Pocock served light refreshments.

BIRCHTON - On June 5, some fourteen ladies gathered at the home of Mrs. Oscar Desruisseaux for their regular meeting which opened with the Purpose being repeated in unison.

Then Mrs. Gilbert Nutbrown led the Worship Period, its theme being Serenity of the Soul.

Mrs. George Judge provided the Scripture reading, followed by an impressive skit by Mrs. Howard Picard, Mrs. Audrey Waterman, and Mrs. Murdo MacKinnon supporting the theme Serenity.

The Treasurer, Mrs. N. Turchny, reported the M & S allocation paid; Mrs. Robert Kirky, for friendship & social visiting, five Get-Well cards sent, a birthday card, one bud vase and one sympathy card.

Mrs. Albert Halsall reported the sale of some cards.

After discussion on the findings of a qualified electrician, to wit "that a new entrance box was not needed for the Hall, the problem being low voltage and that Quebec Hydro should be contacted to improve the situation", (The transformer near the Church and Hall now served twelve families.) A motion was made and carried to approach Quebec Hydro on this matter.

A letter from the Association for the Mentally Retarded was read, and discussed, resulting in the donation of fifty dollars to help with this work among mentally retarded folk.

It was decided that the group will pay the fee for anyone who attends the summer event in Montreal on August 9-11th.

June 11 was set aside for the Hall cleaning.

Three hundred dollars was voted toward the work of the Board of Stewards.

Mrs. Howard Picard agreed to replace Mrs. John Brazel as programme convenor, Mrs. Brazel having moved from the Community.

The question of more activity being put into the Cancer Cupboard work was discussed, and it was decided to leave this for a September project, meetings being closed for July and August.

The September meeting will be at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Rogers.

After the usual closing, a social period, with refreshments served by Mrs. Desruisseaux and Mrs. Albert Halsall, was enjoyed.

WATERLOO - The Waterloo-Warden WI was fortunate in visiting the Waterloo dairy on June 4. The tour was organized by Mrs. May George, our agriculture convenor.

The members met at the home of Miss Alice Ashton, then proceeded to the dairy at 9:30 a.m.

It was interesting to see how our milk is processed and handled, we also saw how chocolate milk and ice cream are made and were told how orange and grape juice were processed. Many thanks go to Miss Dupont and Mr. Frechette for being so kind in explaining everything. At the close of the tour a question period was held, we were then treated to ice cream.

We returned to Miss Ashton's home where we held our regular meeting. Eleven members and one visitor answered the roll call. Repeat a saying or proverb containing the name of a farm animal or product.

Thank you letters were read for birthday wishes and a donation was received.

Bills were presented for two members who attended the convention at Macdonald College. The two delegates were the president, Mrs. Lou Bowker and Mrs. Bessie Smith.

Pennies for friendship were collected and the CARE package donated by Mrs. W. Ramsay was won by Mrs. Mary Sicard.

Mrs. Mary Emmett donated a baby set to be raffled at a card party in October. Mrs. Mary Sicard embroidered a pair of pillow cases which were donated to the branch.

The president Mrs. Lou Bowker gave a report of the convention. Federated News were handed out.

The president reported that Mrs. May George had received 4th prize on a knit doily and Mrs. Mary Sicard 5th prize and Mrs. Glenna Maynes 2nd prize on a crocheted cape.

Mrs. May Copping read an article on Indians in Alberta. Miss Alice Ashton read about two historical sites named by the Minister of Cultural Affairs, namely the Denison flour mill in Richmond County and the Frelighsburg flour mill.

CITY OF SHERBROOKE CALL FOR TENDERS

FOR CONSTRUCTION OF WATERWORKS, SEWERS AND FOUNDATIONS - PEPIN STREET AND INDUSTRIAL PARK

The City of Sherbrooke is receiving tenders for the construction of waterworks and sewers as well as foundations on Pepin Street and in the Industrial Park. The work consists of laying of water pipes, drain and sanitary sewers, the landscaping, the construction of drains and the placing of foundations.

The tenders will be received at the office of the City Clerk, City Hall, 145 Wellington St. N., Sherbrooke until exactly three o'clock (3:00 p.m.) D.S.T., July 2, 1974.

Tenders must be accompanied by a certified cheque or a bid bond equal to not less than ten per cent (10 per cent) of the total amount of the bid. They must also be accompanied by a certificate from an insurance company guaranteeing completion of the job as well as a bond for salaries and materials for an amount equal to fifty per cent (50 per cent) of the contract.

Documents may be obtained at the office of Technical Services at 1300 Galt West, Sherbrooke, with a deposit of fifty dollars ($50.00); this deposit will be reimbursed to the unsuccessful bidders upon the return of the tender documents in good condition.

The City does not agree to accept either the lowest or any of the tenders.

Robert L. Belisle, City Clerk

Oliver, Follmer finish 1-2 in Canadian-American race

MOSPORT, Ont. (CP) — Despite a showing match before the race, the UOP Shadow team of Jackie Oliver and George Follmer finished one-two Sunday in the Canadian-American challenge auto race.

In winning the first race of the Labatt's Can-Am series, Oliver of England finished 1.9 seconds ahead of Follmer, the early leader until a punctured tire forced him back to second place.

Follmer did not appear on the victory stand after the race. "Why yes, we had a bit of a punch-up in the garage" before the race, Oliver said. "I just ducked and George started throwing punches and I ran. I'm not the physical type." Follmer of Arcadia, Calif., said only that he and Oliver "had a problem. I think it is solved now."

Oliver said the two had agreed he would win the race and Follmer the next race in the series in Gainesville, Ga., July 7. Oliver, whose last win was at Monza, Italy, three years ago, averaged 112 miles an hour over the 125-mile course for prize money of more than $10,000.

FOLLMER LOST TIME
 On the 27th lap, Follmer went into the pits with the punctured tire, losing 1 1/4 minutes. Part of the delay was attributed to a nut being cross-threaded on the tire. Scooter Patrick of Los Angeles, driving a McLaren-Chevrolet, was third, one lap behind the Shadows.

Fourth in the 18-car field was Bob Nagel of Bethel Park, Pa., in a Lola-Chevrolet, followed by Lothar Motschenbacher of Beverly Hills, Calif.

Eppie Wietzes of Toronto, a two-time Canadian champion, ran into trouble when his fuel tanks proved too small and his pit crew did not have approved refuelling facilities.

Although he was fifth with 15 laps remaining, his Ferrari came to a halt before the estimated 100,000 fans and he was placed 11th.

David Hobbs of England won the Formula 5000 auto race championship Sunday while driving a Lola-Chevrolet for Carl Hogan's team from the United States.

TAKES LATE LEAD
 Hobbs took the lead on the 26th lap when early-leader Mario Andretti slowed down because of engine trouble on his Lola-Chevrolet Viceroy special. Andretti finished fourth.

Wietzes, driving another Lola-Chevrolet, was second followed by U.S. driver Brett Lunger from the Dan Gurney team driving a Jorgensen Eagle-Chevrolet.

Hobbs, who collected $16,850 in prize money, averaged 112.28 m.p.h. in the 100-mile race around the 2.459-mile track.

Twenty cars started the race before the estimated crowd of 30,000 but only 11 were running at the end.

The win for Hobbs was his first since taking the Edmonton Formula 5000 in 1972.

Brian Redman of England, who won the first race of seven in the Formula 5000 series in Ohio earlier this month, escaped injury when he was run off the road by a slower car and crashed.

Raul Lambke, formerly of Cambridge, Ont., won his third consecutive sedan series championship Saturday, finishing ahead of Peter Schwartzott of Niagara Falls, N.Y.

The two, both driving Datsun 510s, changed positions through out the race. Ont., driving a Capri, finished fourth. Dave Johnson of Kitchener,

Women's Softball action

LENNOXVILLE (BP) — The Dauphin team in the Lennoxville Women's Softball league continued their winning streak last night with a 13-10 victory over Sawyerville, while the Lemay Auto Electric Gitanes defeated Legion No. 10 by a 9-6 margin.

Mureille Thibault was the winning pitcher, while Maureen Hallam was the loser for Legion. Lise Thibault had five hits for the Gitanes, while Latulippe, Quirion and M. Thibault made three hits each. Pam Nutbrown and Vicki Crook each had four hits, while Johanne Heatherington and Ann Smith hit three times each for the Legion.

Johanne Grenier took the win for the Dauphin squad, though she was replaced in the fourth inning by Lyne Lescaut. Denyse Villeneuve was the losing pitcher.

The Sherbrooke team took an early four point lead in the first inning, then added to that in the second to lead 7-0. Sawyerville came right back to tie it after two complete innings.

The Dauphins added three more runs in the third frame. They didn't add any more runs until the fifth inning when they made their last three points.

Sawyerville chalked up one more run in the fifth inning and two in the sixth, but couldn't come up from behind for the win.

Lynda Fabi powered the Dauphin attack with a triple and a three-run homer. She also made two other hits. Janine Grenon also had four hits. Manon Thibodeau, Lyne Lescaut and Monique Lapointe had three hits each for the Dauphins.

Celine Dodier and Chantal Bolduc each made three hits for Sawyerville, while Doris Perusse, Francine Vachon, Suzanne Braut, Ghislaine Bolduc and Denyse Villeneuve all had two hits.

Action tonight sees the Clark's Pharmacy team take on the Gitanes in Fleurimont, while Rand meets Begin and Dauphin faces Legion in Lennoxville at 6:45 and 8:45 respectively.

Irwin cops U.S. Open

MAMARONECK, N.Y. (AP) — Hale Irwin shot a four-over-par 73 Sunday to win the 74th United States Open golf championship by two strokes.

Irwin finished his four-day battle with the Winged Foot Golf Club course with a 287 total, seven over par.

It was the highest winning total since the 1963 National Open in Brookline, Mass., when Palmer, Julius Boros and Jacky Cupit tied for the top spot with windblown 293s, nine over par.

Irwin, 29, clinched the title with a crucial par on the 17th hole.

He held a two-stroke lead when he went to the tee on the 17th, and promptly drove his ball into the deep, clinging rough that lines the narrow fairways of this 6,961-yard monster of a course in suburban New York.

He had to chop it out of the hay, just getting back to the fairway. He put his third shot on the green, some 12 feet from the cup, then stroked it home.

FEZLER TAKES SECOND
 Forrest Fezler came out of the pack to take second at 289 with a final-round 70.

Veterans Bert Yancey and Lou Graham were next at 290. Graham managed to match par-70 and Yancey, in title contention until he took two strokes to get out of a deep bunker on the 13th hole, had a 72.

Tom Watson, who led Irwin by a stroke at the end of three rounds, faded back with a 79. He didn't make a birdie. He was tied with Arnold Palmer and Jim Colbert at 292.

The 44-year-old Palmer was only three shots out after three rounds but went to a 76 Sunday.

Gary Player, the Masters Champion, took a seven on the ninth hole on his way to 73 and 293.

Jack Nicklaus was never in contention. CHANGES PUTTER

He became so frustrated with the glass-slick, contoured, undulating greens that he changed his putter for the final round, the first time in six years he'd changed that club.

It worked. But his last-round 69, one of only eight sub-par rounds recorded in the tournament, was too late. He finished with a 294 total.

"There is nothing unfair about this course," he said. "It is a very severe test of golf, but it's a fair test."

"The fairways are wide enough. The rough is severe, but not too severe. The greens aren't too big."

Tom Weiskopf, current British Open champion who almost withdrew after a first-round 76, finished with a 75-296. Johnny Miller, the collector of five titles already this season, had a 77-302. Lee Trevino didn't qualify for the final two rounds.

George Knudson of Toronto had a final round 78 for 306. Irwin has been on the pro tour for seven years. His career has shown steady improvement, with increasing money-winnings every year.

He has had $100,000-plus seasons each of the last two years and, with the $35,000 he collected here has earned $131,000 so far this season. He had won only twice before, however, and both victories came in the Heritage tournament at Hilton Head Island, S.C., in 1971 and 1973.

Cecil Cooper's two-run single tied the game, then Carlton Fisk, who had hit his 10th homer in the third inning, untied it with a double to left. Charlie Sands smacked a two-run homer and Lee Stanton had a solo shot for the Angels.

Charlie Moore's tie-breaking single in the seventh inning and Don Money's run-scoring double in the eighth led Milwaukee past Texas, keeping the Rangers from moving into a first-place tie with Oakland in the West.

Jim Spencer hit two homers and Alex Johnson had one for Texas while Bob Coluccio homered for Milwaukee.

Ray Corbin and three Minnesota relievers limited Cleveland to six hits in the Twins' first-game triumph. Then Fritz Peterson pitched a seven-hitter on his own and John Lowenstein drove in two runs with a pair of singles to lead Cleveland to its victory and the twin-bill split.

General manager Chuck Tanner said Muser is "the kind of guy who can do a good job while going in and out of the lineup."

Kansas City manager Jack McKeon was glad to see the end of Aurelio Rodriguez after his club's meeting with Detroit.

Rodriguez clubbed a three-run homer with two-out in the ninth inning Saturday for the Detroit victory.

Sunday, Rodriguez singled home the winning run with two out in the 11th inning. MAKES COMEBACK

Boston went into the ninth trailing 4-1 but Dwight Evans walked and Rick Burleson singled, chasing California starter Dick Lange. Mario Guerrero's double off Barry Raziano scored Evans and Juan Beniquez' infield single loaded the bases.

Reed said the players will resume negotiations only when the owners' committee has "some meat on the table to negotiate with."

Sudakis rekindles North-Jackson feud

It took an almost blind man to get Bill North and Reggie Jackson together Sunday but it was a meeting Oakland Athletic's feuding sluggers could have done without.

Bill Sudakis, an infielder with New York Yankees of the American League, is legally blind with 20-400 vision in both eyes.

In the game against Oakland, Sudakis hit a pinch-double to right-centre field in the seventh inning and as Jackson and North both ran for the ball they collided. The hit drove in the tying run.

After doubles by Elliot Maddox and Bobby Murcer, Sudakis shoved home an insurance run with a sacrifice fly to assure New York's 5-3 victory.

Other league results were: Chicago White Sox 9, Baltimore Orioles 1; Detroit Tigers 3; Kansas City Royals 2 in 11 innings; Boston Red Sox 7, California Angels 4; and Milwaukee Brewers 4; Texas Rangers 3; Minnesota Twins downed Cleveland Indians 3-0 before the Indians rebounded for a 3-1 in the second game of their double-header.

Results Saturday were: Cleveland 5, Minnesota 1; Detroit 11, Kansas City 9; Oakland 9, New York 1; Baltimore 4, Chicago 3; Texas 5, Milwaukee 2; and Boston 5, California 3.

At Oakland, North was knocked unconscious in his collision with Jackson and had to leave the game.

"I understand they've been trying to keep those two guys apart," Sudakis cracked, referring to their recent clubhouse fistfight.

Oakland's team doctor said North was "probably unconscious only a few minutes after the collision. He remembered who the batter was but he couldn't remember the actual hit."

Forty-seven rookies turned out during the weekend as Toronto Argonauts opened their camp, but all veterans were missing.

British Columbia Lions veterans continued to practice on their own during the weekend and none were expected to turn out at today's camp.

Kimball said the two sides are close to agreement on most of the 63 demands put forward by the players' association for the two-year contract but are apart in such areas as payment for pre-season games, post-season games, the Grey Cup game and the pension plan.

No date has been set for renewing contract talks but a telephone conference of owners and presidents was scheduled for today.

OFFERS AN INCREASE
 Kimball said the CFL is prepared to give the players a 25-per-cent increase in the areas of contention in 1974 and a further 20-per-cent in the second year.

Included in the league offer is a training camp per diem of $17 this year and $18 in 1975 compared with $10 in 1973, increasing payments in post-season games by $200 a game and making the winners' share of the Grey Cup game $4,000 a man rather than the current $3,000.

Kimball said the player demands, if met, would cost the CFL $1,918,000.

Reed told a news conference the owners' committee has refused to discuss a proposed minimum wage of $11,000.

Other key demands include $6,000 to the Grey Cup winner this year and $7,500 in 1965 and the losers share $3,000 and $4,000; conference winners $1,500-$1,800; conference losers $1,200-$1,500; semi-final losers $1,000-$2,000.

Reed said the players will resume negotiations only when the owners' committee has "some meat on the table to negotiate with."

'Demands somewhat apart', CFL talks halt

TORONTO (CP) — Most veterans in the Canadian Football League resigned during the weekend as contract talks between the players and league came to a halt.

"It is quite clear that the demands of the players and the structure of the Canadian Football League to provide them are somewhat apart," Norm Kimball, general manager of the Edmonton Eskimos, said after the breakdown in talks Saturday.

Kimball, chairman of the CFL's players' relations committee, said commissioner Jake Gaubaur has received "retirement notices" from 256 veterans.

George Reed, president of the Canadian Football League Players' Association, said another 250 resignations have been submitted to general managers. There are 288 veterans in the CFL.

Kimball said that by retiring before midnight Saturday night, the players are in a legal position to withhold their services and still remain eligible to resume play later this season.

If they had waited past Saturday, they would have had to wait until next season to rejoin their clubs.

Most clubs have opened or are ready to start their training camps.

Murray, Dusseault win weekend pair for A's

SHERBROOKE (BP) — The Sherbrooke Athletics came up with two weekend victories against the Granby Orioles and the Trois-Rivieres Eagles in Quebec Junior Major Baseball League play. It was their third and fourth win since last Tuesday.

Mike Murray went the distance and one extra inning against the Granby club, allowing five hits, walking three batters and striking out 10 hitters in their 6-3 win. Steve Mitchell tied the game up in the sixth inning with a three-run homer for the A's.

With the score tied 3-3, Daniel Pollender and Pierre Begin drew walks to start off the top of the eighth inning. After Pierre Marchesseault flied out on the next play, the runners advanced. Mitchell was then walked, setting the stage for Denis Dusseault. The lanky batter hit a strong single, which turned into a double on an error. Three more Athletics runs crossed the plate on the play, giving the Sherbrooke team the winning margin.

Expos closer to first with weekend wins

MONTREAL (CP) — Ron Fairly says he has hit against San Diego left-hander Dave Tomlin only three times, and the third time was lucky Sunday for the Montreal Expos first baseman.

Fairly drilled a double to left-center field to score Ken Singleton from first with the winning run in the bottom of the ninth inning as the Expos defeated the Padres 9-8 in the rubber match of their National League weekend series.

The Padres won the opener 5-4 Friday night and the Expos took a 6-4 decision Saturday night with Jim Cox driving in three runs with a single and a double.

"He threw me a couple of tough pitches," said Fairly, a left-handed batter. "The pitch before the hit was nasty. I was fortunate to foul it off."

The Expos entered the ninth trailing 8-7 after the Padres struck for four runs in the eighth on two-run homers by Fred Kendall and Clarence Gaston.

Vicente Romo, who came on in the eighth inning and set the Expos down, retired the first man he faced in the bottom of the ninth as he got Larry Lintz to ground out.

with the aid of Roger Roy, to a narrow 2-1 edging of the Eagles. Denis gave up four Trois-Rivieres hits, and seven walks, while he struck out six hitters.

Sherbrooke got on the scoreboard in the fourth inning, but the Eagles followed immediately after in the top of the fifth. The score was tied until the bottom of the seventh, when Roy led off with a blooping single into left field. The next two batters went out, leaving the result of the game up to Pierre Begin Roy was at second base by this time and he scored the winning run on Pierre's single to right-center field to end the contest.

Roy also got another single in the game to lead the team in hits. With two men on in the seventh inning, Roger jumped high into the air to snatch the ball down and prevent the two base-runners from scoring on the third out.

The A's play the Cubs in Candiac Tuesday night and come back to Sherbrooke for a Wednesday evening exhibition match against the old-boys from the defunct Quebec Baseball League at 8:30 p.m.

May get more starts

Clay Carroll—reliever for a long time

Clay Carroll has finished a lot more games than he's started, but he may get a chance to close the gap.

"I have to give a lot of consideration to starting him," Cincinnati manager Sparky Anderson said Sunday after Carroll teamed with Pedro Borbon to pitch the Reds to a seven-hit 5-0 triumph over Philadelphia Phillies.

Other results were: Los Angeles Dodgers 7, New York Mets 1; St. Louis Cardinals 6, Atlanta Braves 3; Pittsburgh Pirates 4, San Francisco Giants 3; Montreal Expos 9, San Diego Padres 8; and Chicago Cubs 2, Houston Astros 1 in 10 innings.

Results Saturday were: Montreal 6, San Diego 4; Houston 8, Chicago 7; New York 4, Los Angeles 1; Philadelphia 5, Cincinnati 2; Pittsburgh 3, San Francisco 2; and Atlanta 7, St. Louis 1.

Carroll, 4-1, set a National League record of 37 saves in 1972 and was making only his 23rd start in 551 major league appearances. He pitched eight innings of six-hit ball before giving way to Borbon.

MUSCLES SORE
 "I had to take myself out after the eighth," Carroll said. "I guess I used some muscles I haven't used in a long time."

Dave Concepcion drove in two runs with a single, and Joe Morgan hit a home run to lead the Reds' attack.

Andy Messersmith pitched a five-hitter and Jimmy Wynn triggered a five-run uprising with a seventh-inning triple as the Dodgers sent Tom Seaver to his sixth loss in nine games.

Ted Sizemore drilled a tie-breaking single in the seventh inning and St. Louis added three decisive runs in the ninth on a bases-loaded walk to Ted Simmons and Joe Torre's two-run single. Darrell Evans had tied it for the Braves in the sixth on a solo homer off winner Lynn McGlothen.

PIRATES CLIMB
 Jim Rooker survived a three-run first inning and went on to pitch a five-hitter for the Pirates, helping the team to the victory which lifted the team out of the East Division cellar for the first time since April 25.

Expos' Willie Davis homered with one out in the ninth to tie the score and Ken Singleton walked and scored on Ron Fairly's double. Two-run homers by Fred Kendall and pinch-hitter Clarence Gaston in the eighth inning had powered the Padres into an 8-7 lead.

Rookie Barry Foote drove in three runs for Montreal with a single and a homer. Dave Winfield of the Padres also homered.

Chicago's Andre Thornton drew a bases-loaded walk following a pair of intentional passes in the 10th inning. Rick Monday hammered a one-out triple off reliever Ken Forsch and Matt Alexander was purposely passed, as pinch-hitter Vic Harris. Chris Ward was sent up to hit for Steve Swisher and Fred Scherman relieved Forsch. The Cubs switched to Thornton and he, too, walked.

Astros' Cesar Cedeño homered off Chicago's Rick Reuschel in the first inning and Billy Williams tied the score in the fifth with a homer off Larry Dierker.

Butterfield: Players salaries too inflated

Player salaries are so inflated that professional sports can't stand much more, says Jack Butterfield, president of the American Hockey League.

In the just-concluded season, eight of the 12 AHL clubs operated in the black or broke even, Butterfield said in an interview.

Hershey Bears have been the most successful club the last 15 years. The Bears won the Calder Cup in the playoffs. Each winning player got $4,000 from the $260,000 playoff pool.

But with the cost of doing business zooming, Butterfield is concerned about the league's future.

"You almost can't afford to operate a team in the AHL at today's inflated prices," he said.

The AHL is one of the oldest senior minor pro hockey leagues and the mainstay of player-development for the National Hockey League.

REVENUE IS SMALL

But it is expensive for the NHL to develop players. The AHL's purse also is tight because of limited arenas and ticket prices.

The average admission is $3 with a $5.50 top. Owners have to be "very, very lucky" to be able to add 50 cents to the price of a ticket. Arenas range from 5,200 capacity to 11,000.

Butterfield thinks the bubble is about to burst in all pro sports as far as salaries are concerned.

"They have to be near a peak because pro sports can't stand much more. I know that in the AHL we just can't stand to go much higher than now."

"We certainly can't add seats to the buildings. We can't increase prices—it's just a straight matter of economics."

But salaries still are going up in all sports. Agents for the top junior players drafted this week by the NHL are talking fatter contracts for their clients than ever before.

With the rival World Hockey Association in the wings ready with counter-offers, it is hard to see how NHL club owners will be able to turn down new demands.

MAJORS EXPANDING

Both the NHL and the WHA are expanding next season while the supply of top talent still is at a premium.

This bidding up of player salaries is hurting the minors economically, Butterfield said.

In the AHL, the average player salary has gone up to $16,000 from $10,000. Some players earn less but there are others who get "far in excess" of $16,000, Butterfield said.

But he said the NHL still needs the AHL "very, very badly" because the Western Hockey League is on the verge of collapse.

Three of the six WHL clubs have applied for franchises in the NHL. Unless something drastic happens, two of the WHL clubs will be picked in June as NHL expansion teams for the 1976-77 season.

"The WHL is going to have a very difficult time," Butterfield said.

"We feel that we have the nucleus of the best developing talent out of the NHL."

"We always contended that the NHL would have to agree with us because they put their best developing talent with us."

FEW AVOID IT

"The majority of the NHL players, outside the juniors who made it in one jump, played in the AHL."

"We have to feel very proud that we are developing talent. Take the Nova Scotia Voyageurs, for instance. Every year they have two or three players that go to the big club (Montreal Canadiens)."

The NHL has been trying to work out a different format for player development in the minors.

Next season only, the parent NHL club will not have to absorb the entire cost of its AHL farm team if it doesn't want to.

An NHL club can be either an operator or a supplier of players. Thus, two clubs will be able to share the salary costs of the farm team.

The only requirement for the NHL team is that it must have seven players in the farm team under 26 who are being developed for the NHL.

"This means salary costs can be split between two parent organizations," Butterfield said. "The NHL has opened the door for this to happen."

After a year, the NHL will have to decide how much talent has been developed and whether it's worth the money invested.

TWO FALTERED

The poor financial showing of two franchises hurt the AHL last season, Butterfield said.

"We're down 15 to 20 per cent over a year ago in dollar gross

Hockey epidemic: Eye injuries

EDMONTON (CP) — The president of the Canadian Ophthalmological Society says that if eye injuries in hockey were considered a disease, the country would be faced with an epidemic.

Dr. Page Harshman of Toronto said in an interview Sunday a society survey found 279 cases of eye injuries resulting from hockey mishaps. About one-fifth of the society's 600 members responded to the survey.

"These are only preliminary results, but there are enough injuries to eyes during the course of playing hockey to justify further investigation and co-operation with hockey officials and sports equipment manufacturers," Dr. Harshman said.

The types of injuries range from broken socket bones—which leads to poor eye support and vision problems—to nerve damage, hemorrhages, and tears and cuts to the eyeball from sticks and pucks.

Because most of the data from the study has yet to be compiled, firm recommendations have been proposed. Modifications to equipment, however, have been suggested.

Clear plastic masks attached to helmets would protect the eyes without distorting vision, but Dr. Harshman said there are problems with plastic fogging up.

A mask similar to a baseball catcher's, with slots smaller than the size of the puck, is another alternative, he said, adding that a slightly thicker puck also could mean less damage.

Dr. Harshman was in Edmonton for the ophthalmological society's 37th annual meeting.

'The damndest Open ever...'
Venturi remembers his Open with bitterness

By Ira Berkow
 NEW YORK — (NEA) — "The U.S. Open is the only championship that degrades its champions," said Ken Venturi. "It's the only tournament in the world that doesn't honor its old champions."

Venturi is one of those champions. As of this writing he is not scheduled to be in the Open field that tees off June 13 at the Wingfoot Golf Club in Mamaroneck, N.Y.

"I don't want to be sour grapes," he said recently, "but when I won they gave me a lifetime exemption to the tournament, just as all tournaments do for their winners."

"They took the exemption away, not just from me, but from all the winners of more than one year past."

The "they" is the U.S. Golf Association, which runs the Open. In 1965, the year after Venturi won the title at Congressional Hills Country Club, the U.S.G.A. executive committee decided to cut the exemptions to 10 years, and made it retroactive.

In 1970, the committee reduced the exemption to five years. Now it is one year.

"I don't want to use myself as an example," says Venturi. "But it rankles me that someone like a Ben Hogan, a four-time Open winner, is not exempt and would have to qualify for the Open with guys who have never won a tournament in their lives."

"I think that tradition in golf is important, especially so when it concerns the U.S. Open which I regard as the greatest title in the world. That's because our Open has the best playing personnel, is played on the best courses, and has the greatest set of records.

VENTURI was a happy man when he won the Open 10 years ago. Now he believes "the Open degrades its champions."

"And when you won't allow the old champions, guys who don't play that much anymore and don't have a chance to qualify naturally while on tour, then you do not honor either your own champions or tradition."

"Like in the British Open last year. Gene Sarazen played in it on the 50th anniversary of his first victory there. It was a beautiful thing, made even more spectacular by his hole in one. Everybody loved it. It recalled the old glorious days. It made the tournament that much more significant."

"But the Open crowds — and they aren't just local crowds — they come from all over the world to see this tournament — they would love to watch a Hogan, Julius Boros, a Palmer — if he didn't qualify on the tour. I looked it up recently. For the past 25 years, only six ex-champions would have to be added to the field because the other living ex-champs qualify from tour play."

The U.S.G.A.'s reason for the suspension of exemption is that they wish to have the strongest total field possible for the Open.

"But six, just six, former champions in the field would not hurt the caliber of play one bit," says Venturi.

Venturi plays only sparingly on the tour now. He is a California club pro for much of the year, and also does golf tournament color commentary for the Columbia Broadcasting Company.

Venturi hasn't played much or consistently well since his remarkable year of 1964. He has had three operations on his hands since 1965 because of blood circulation problems which produced a numbness.

"It's frustrating now, that I don't perform the way I used to," said Venturi. "My hands are only at about 75 per cent of the strength they were before my operations. My main problem is that I now try too hard to compensate. If I just pop along, it's okay. I'm not complaining, I'm happy to have the use of my hands at all."

He can still play in the 70s, and is still an important part of golf and of the Open tradition, for his victory was an incredible physical and mental achievement.

Nineteen sixty-four was the last year that the final day of the Open was played in 36 holes. The heat on that day was overwhelming. In the afternoon, the Washington, D.C., temperature was 112 degrees.

Venturi, sweating, in pain from exhaustion, hands hurting, wishing to quit, stumbled on.

"Even today," says Venturi, now 42 years old, "wherever I go in the world, people recall that day. Two years ago, in fact, I was voted the John F. Kennedy award for 'The Most Memorable Victory in the History of Golf.'"

"And I saw a program that will be sold at the Open. There is an article in it about my Open win entitled, 'The Damndest Open I Ever Saw.' It's my Open win anniversary, my ten-year anniversary, and I'm not even going to be there in the field."

"But again, I don't want this to sound bitter. I mean, if they said, okay, we'll give one special privilege, I'd say, 'Give it to Ben Hogan.' He is what the tradition of great golf is all about."

"A couple years ago I wrote the USGA about all this. I said: 'In 1964 when I got my Open check for $17,000, and my winner's trophy, I also got a lifetime exemption. You've taken away the exemption. Do you want the check and the trophy back, too?'"
