Idlers cannot even find time to be idle, or the industrious to be at leisure. We must always be doing something or be suffering if we are too live at all.

Fruit Growers Ask For Inauguration National Apple Week in Canada

President Urges An Advertising Campaign Honorary Officer, Three Directors Chairman, From District

A resolution asking the Canadian Horticultural Council to organize a "National Apple Week" in Canada, to synchronize with a similar event in the United States, was passed as the 43rd annual meeting of the Pomological and Fruit Growing Society of the Province of Quebec came to a close in the Queen's Hotel, Montreal, on Thursday. A number of other resolutions were given approval, officers were elected, reports adopted and papers of interest to the industry read during the day.

The motion regarding apple week pointed out that in the United States "excellent results" have come from the annual event, and believed such an innovation in this country would bring similar benefits by way of increased consumption of the fruit.

Réné Trépanier, Oka, was re-elected president of the society, with Fred S. Browne, Lennoxville, vice-president; J. E. Duchesne, French-language secretary and W. J. Tawse, secretary-treasurer. Hon. Bona Dussault, Quebec Minister of Agriculture, was named patron; J. F. Desmarais, Iberville, honorary president, and P. E. Smith, Hemmingford, honorary vice-president.

Directors re-elected were: Indell Waddell, Hemmingford; Réné Primeau, Chateauguay; P. O. Roy, Frelighsburg; Boswell Thomson, Abbotsford; Floyd Stevenson, Franklin Centre; and Urban Standish, Rougemont. The following were named to the board of directors for the first time: C. A. Pinsonault, Mount St. Hilaire; Ovide Lafleche, St. Joseph du Lac; Adrien Côté, Rougemont.

Committee chairmen were named as follows: Markets, C. P. Newman; nominations, Arthur Laberge, Chateauguay; resolutions, Prof. George Maheux, Quebec City.

Other resolutions passed included one asking the Quebec Government to provide funds for publication of the annual proceedings, because the report "constitutes a most valuable reference to the many changes in cultural practices," and because it is exchanged with similar groups in other countries. A request was made to the meteorological service to supply to the Spray Service during the blossom period news of any approaching frosts, so the growers in each district might be notified. A change in crates was also asked of the Fruit Commission.

Thursday morning Dr. J. E. Lattimer of Macdonald College, spoke on the difference between farm wages and the union wages of the urban worker. Dr. R. R. McKibbin, secretary, soil survey, Waterloo, Que. spoke on the soil survey of Quebec orchards. In the afternoon there was a joint session of the French and English-speaking sections, at which a number of varieties of apples were tested.

Failure to advertise has been one of the obvious reasons for the decline in the consumption of apples, Réné Trépanier, Oka, told members of the Pomological and Fruit Growing Society of the Province of Quebec in his presidential address as the society opened its two-day convention Wednesday. The decline comes in the face of increased consumption of other fruits, Mr. Trépanier told the gathering.

Divided into French and English-speaking sections, the members heard a variety of technical addresses on the industry during the day. Wednesday evening at the annual dinner Hon. Bona Dussault, Quebec Minister of Agriculture, was guest speaker. The sessions continued Thursday with a market trip to the fruit terminal, addresses, and a joint luncheon with members of the Canadian Fruit and Vegetable Jobbers' Association, in the Windsor Hotel.

Mr. Trépanier, in his address, pointed to a sharp increase in the consumption of citrus fruits, and reminded the society the citrus growers had spent huge sums on advertising during the past year.

"We have noted the steady increase in the sale of imported grapes, and the consumption of greatly increased quantities of pears. The largest increase has taken place in the citrus fruit field, where consumption has risen from 32 pounds to 48 pounds per capita. This 48 pounds is made up, on an average, of 33 pounds of oranges, 10 pounds of grapefruit and five pounds of lemons. Apples have taken a serious drop, declining from 6 pounds to 59 pounds sold per capita in the period 1931-35.

"There are many reasons for this decline, but one of the most obvious has been the lack of advertising on the part of all but a few of the apple growers. This is being met by the growers in many parts of the United States organizing to feature the varieties in their individual states, and then all joining through the American Pomological Society and the International Apple Shippers' Association to make National

Municipal Contest Next Monday For One Council Seat

Current talk this past week would have given Huntingdon something real exciting by way of municipal elections. There was promise of a three-cornered mayoralty fight, and of contests for most of the aldermanic seats. It was understood from the start that a number of former aldermen would not stand for re-election. Active campaigns were prepared over the week-end for candidates who were supposed to have stiff opposition after nomination Monday. However, when two o'clock arrived that afternoon the Mayor and five of the aldermen were declared elected by acclamation. Mayor Faubert was unopposed for the mayoralty, and thus starts his third as chief magistrate of the town. Those elected by acclamation were James E. Barrett, W. E. S. McNair, Ernest Cunningham, Lucien Baillargeon, N.P., and R. E. McWhinnie, for aldermanic seats 2 to 6 respectively. Former Alderman Charles Lalonde and Patrick Montpetit will contest seat number 1. Voting will take place on Monday.

Police Chief Gives Annual Report City

Valleyfield Looks For New Technical School and Industries

The annual report presented to Valleyfield City authorities at their last meeting by Chief of Police Ovila Claude, on behalf of his department, reveals some very interesting information.

The general calls responded to during the year totalled 1869; of that number there were arrests in 297 cases. Automobile accidents numbered 55, and four others. Of the arrests made, 234 persons were brought before the Court. Traffic rule infractions numbered 67; there were also 148 other persons fined for violation of signal lights.

With this report was also given that of the Fire Department which showed that 104 calls had been received and answered. Of that number 61 were chimney fires, 6 field fires, and false alarms totalled 5.

Valleyfield's new Industrial Committee had a very interesting meeting on Tuesday when Mayor Billette explained the possibilities of the establishment of new industries, among which were silk, clothing, milk products, and machinery manufacturers. The Committee is continuing negotiations in the hopes of establishing one or more of these industries.

The Committee also discussed recommendations made by the National Housing Scheme officials as to the formation of a Committee for supervision of this work in the district. Léopold Laplante was chosen chairman of this group. Other members are the Presidents of the Chamber of Commerce, the Proprietors' League, the Workman's Association, a representative each from Le Progrès and La Gazette de Valleyfield, and the secretary of the Chamber of Commerce.

Upon foundations thrown by Father Paul Grondin, and Ernest Berthiaume, establishment of a technical school in Valleyfield is now under consideration by the Provincial Government. Early last Fall these two men made representations to the Government with this idea in view. The director of the Provincial School was directed by the Provincial Secretary to make a report upon this request.

The report states that a convenient place could be secured in the Knights of Columbus building. The annual operation of the school was estimated at $5500, with an initial cost of from $3000 to $5000 for equipment. An annual grant of $3000 could be expected from the School Commission and the City, and they are asking the remainder of $2500 from Quebec.

Benedict Found Guilty Threats Against Wife Bound to Keep Peace

Convictions in St. Regis and Theft Cases Also in Four Charges Brought by Royal Mounted Police

Joe Benedict, 26, of the St. Regis Indian Reservation, facing a charge of threat to do bodily harm, was freed in Valleyfield Court Thursday by Magistrate Lemay upon presentation of bonds to keep the peace. One theft and three liquor cases were also disposed of by the Court.

The first case before the Magistrate was that of Montreal Cottons vs. Aurélien Emond — a charge of theft of goods to the value of $200. Emond pleaded guilty. Since the stolen goods had been returned, Lawyer J. P. Cossette, for the prosecution, suggested that a fine be given instead of imprisonment, so that the accused would not lose his present position. The Magistrate agreed and fined Emond $100 and costs or three months.

The Royal Canadian Mounted Police, Huntingdon, had six cases before the Court, and, in four of these, they secured convictions. Constables Cahill and Dawson appeared for the R.C.M.P.

George Langlois, charged with having been in possession of illicit alcohol at Ste-Barbe on December 21st, pleaded guilty, and was fined $100 and costs or 3 months in jail.

Frank Carrière, Jr., on the same charge and same date, was also fined $100 and costs or 3 months.

Omer Deschambault, charged with possession of United States goods under the value of $200, cigarettes, pleaded guilty and was fined $50 and costs or 1 month in jail.

Facing a charge of having in his possession a bottle of illict alcohol, the same Omer Deschambault admitted possession, but stated that he had bought it in good faith as genuine spirits. The Court stated it could not excuse the accused for such a reason. He was found guilty and fined $100 and costs or 3 months.

Théodore Soucy , of Valleyfield, charged with possession and sale of illicit alcohol, pleaded not guilty. Trial was set for February 4th.

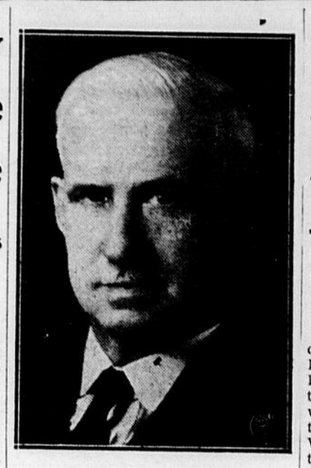

Roland Boulianne appeared before the Court on a charge of stealing goods to the value of $1000 from the home of Louis Cappiello, Huntingdon. The accused pleaded not guilty. He chose trial before a Magistrate, which will take place either tomorrow or next Thursday.

Gerard Côté, now serving a sentence in the St. Vincent de Paul Penitentiary, appeared on the same charge during the afternoon. The accused stated that he believed that this charge had been included in a number of charges upon which he was convicted in Montreal by Judge Monet some time ago. The case was postponed to January 28th.

The charge of attempted murder laid by Provincial Police against Joe Benedict, of St. Regis, was reduced to threat to bodily harm. Five witnesses were called. Laurendeau and Cossette appeared for the Crown. There was no defence counsel. The charge was laid by Detective Henri Tousignant. Interpreters were Paul Thomas and Peter Johnson, of the St. Regis Reservation. Benedict pleaded not guilty to the charge and trial proceeded immediately. The first witness was the wife of the accused, Mrs. Louise Benedict, who related the incident which happened on New Year's night. She stated that she had gone to visit her mother, that her husband came there to get her, and that he threatened to injure her. Cross-examined, the witness stated that her husband had been drinking, and that there had been trouble between her family and that of her husband. She told how Benedict had followed she and her uncle home, had taken a gun from the woodshed, shells from a cupboard, and had followed her upstairs. She had jumped through an upper window and with her mother had gone to the R.C.M.P. office. Shots were fired, she said, when they were in the Mountie's office.

Constable Smith, R.C.M.P., corroborated most of the evidence given by the wife of the accused, added details of the bullet whizzing by his head, and of his arrest of Benedict. Benedict, said Constable Smith, gave himself up. When questioned by the Mounties as to where the gun was, Benedict replied that he

Aubrey Wins In Consolation Jubilee Play

Eliminated in Main Event But Impressive in Consolations

G. E. Baird of Ormstown representing the Ormstown-Huntingdon centre in the Jubilee Trophy play at Montreal Thursday was eliminated in the preliminary round of the tournament by C. P. MacDonald of Granby 17-10.

In the consolation event he was beaten by D. R. Wilson of Shawinigan Falls, 10-13.

Ray Reddick's Aurey rink, was also eliminated in the first round of the second stage play at Montreal by E. E. Rattray 13-15 but went on to defeat J. W. MacKimmie's Lachute rink in the consolation series by a 13-6 score. After disposing of MacKimmie, Reddick won a close victory over Baird's conqueror, D. R. Wilson, 9-7, in the semi-finals. In the finals the Aubrey quartette had a distinct edge in play and humbled C. O. Baptist's four from Three Rivers under a 22-6 score to win the consolation crown.

In his struggle to represent this district Baird defeated Dr. Mills at the Ormstown rink Wednesday night 17-9 and then went on to take D. L. Kelly's measurement in the finals 13-8. Kelly had beaten Fred Soucy's four 11-9 to gain the final bracket.

The Kelly-Baird final was a close affair all the way. Baird took a 5 shot lead during the first four ends but Kelly came back to win the next four ends and go into a one point lead. Baird evened the score on the ninth end and Kelly took the lead again on the tenth. Baird made it all even on the 11th end by scoring 2, but Kelly gained a one point margin on the 12th.

The thirteenth end was the one that told the story when Baird posted a four on the scoreboard to take a commanding lead. He added another on the final end to gain a five point advantage.

The Howick Men's Curling Club entertained a number of prominent Montreal curlers from Montreal on Monday night to an oyster supper in the club rooms. After enjoying the banquet provided, Mr. T. T. Gebbie, president of the Howick club, called on Dr. Berwick, president of the Granite Association.

After a congratulatory address, Dr. Berwick introduced the following Montreal curlers: T. Howard Stewart, Ormiston Roy, first president of the Granite Association, Af-Peter Lyall, Bruce Stewart, Willie Brown, Secretary of the Granite Association, John Roy, treasurer, Robert Paul, president of the Caledonia Curling Club, A. Jones, Edwin Maw, Dr. Hutchison. After each was presented, T. Howard Stewart was called on to make the various presentations. He did so in a very humorous and interesting speech.

The Howick rink led by Stanley Gebbie, received gold medals and sterling silver plates. The rink was as follows: John Holmes, Arch.

Position Quebec Milk Producers Is Believed Best In All Canada

Three of Principal Speakers at Annual Meeting in City, Two Directors Elected, From District

A provincial board of milk producers' associations has been established through the efforts of the local group, members of the Montreal Milk Producers' Association were told at the luncheon featuring their annual general meeting in the Windsor Hotel Saturday. Besides the Montreal organization, similar bodies at Quebec, Three Rivers and Sherbrooke will be members.

The luncheon was addressed by Hon. Bona Dussault, Minister of Agriculture at Quebec, who promised continued co-operation with the producers. During the day a number of discussions were held on matters of importance to the industry, annual reports were adopted and the board of directors elected. Officers will be named by the seven directors at a meeting this week.

A petition by the milk shippers in reference to payments by milk dealers had been approved last summer by Hon. Adélard Godbout and the Commission. However, the Dairy Act will have to be amended before authorization can be secured to adopt the recommendations made.

The financial affairs of the Association are in a satisfactory state, the report showing a surplus of more than $3,000.

The plant run by the Association showed a small operating surplus. All receipts were returned to the shipper after deducting expenses. Since its opening last year 1,823,000 pounds milk have been handled. The average price paid was 30.34c per pound butterfat.

Mr. Dussault praised the group for being one of the few bodies of its kind which is not continually asking favors or help from his department. Only when a problem is too difficult for the producers to solve is the help of Quebec sought. In these cases, his department is only too willing to give every assistance possible, as instanced by Quebec's action in raising the price paid the milk producers last fall. The association, he continued, was a good example to the rest of the province of what co-operation could accomplish.

Formation of a provincial association of milk producers with Montreal, Quebec, Sherbrooke and Three Rivers as members was announced at the same luncheon by P. D. McArthur, of Howick, retiring president of the milk producers' association, and now a member of the Quebec Dairy Commission. While making the announcement Mr. McArthur stated that the organization of the new provincial association puts the Quebec producers in the best position in Canada.

Speaking of the alleged menace to the local dairy industry by the increasing importation of fats, Gilbert McMillan said that the members of his National Dairy Council received a real surprise when they faced the powerful opposition of their "supposed friends," the packers, before the Tariff Board. The opposition, he said, wanted continued free importation of the fats. He declared that even if those fats could be used more economically and better in domestic use here than the products of the local dairies their importation was a real threat to the dairy industry here and should not be allowed.

Enraged Bull Attacks Man Breaks Ribs

On Entering Stable, Young Sherrington Farmer Charged Upon

Lionel Lamarre, 35, farmer of Sherrington, was seriously injured early Monday morning when a large four-year-old Holstein bull attacked him as he entered the stable.

The animal had broken loose from its stall during the night and was wandering about the stable when Lamarre entered. Before he had time to escape the bull charged and pinned him against a wall where he held him helpless with his head. With five broken ribs and the breath knocked out of him, Lamarre was unable to call for help. It was the timely arrival of his neighbour and the fact that the bull had no horns that saved his life.

Dr. A. Lauzon, of St. Rémi, was summoned to give medical treatment. He stated Lamarre's condition serious, although he did not believe there was any internal injury. Credit is given Mr. Lamarre's neighbour, Louis Major, for tackling the enraged bull single-handed, with only a pitch fork to defend himself.

Fire Fighters Check Blaze At Ormstown

First Game Hockey Played This Season Gives Mocos Win

On Friday night fire broke out in Alcide Soucy's pool room on Main St., Ormstown. The alarm was given about 10.15 and help was soon at the scene, as the hockey match just being finished the crowd rushed to the fire and with willing hands helped to extinguish the flames and save the contents of the building.

Earlier in the day there had been a chimney fire and it is thought that the fire smouldered there all day before breaking out in the ceiling. The interior of the building was considerably damaged with smoke and water, but the main part of the building was saved.

On Friday night, January 22nd, Valleyfield Mocos defeated Ormstown Seniors 3-2 in a fast, clean exhibition hockey game, the first on local ice this year.

Valleyfield showed the benefit of several games, and had a sound defensive and offensive style of play that was too strong for the home club, who were rather tired after their league game on Thursday.

The home club made some speedy rushes in the first period and John Campbell, Boyle and Smith sailed through on several occasions to have Kirby make some fine saves to prevent a score.

In the second period Ormstown made two fine rushes and on the third attempt John Campbell drove a hard shot from deep left wing, to beat Kirby cleanly. Mocos then put on the pressure and evened the score before the close of the period, when Scherf took Dick Green's pass in front of the local net to score and make it one goal each.

The third period opened with Valleyfield carrying the play deep into the Ormstown zone and Howarth put Mocos one up when he picked up a loose puck and gave Jules Cartier no chance to save. Shortly after Smith and John Campbell broke away from their checks and went in to score, Campbell picking up Smith's rebound to make the score 2 all. Valleyfield began to force the play and just before the final bell Scherf backhanded the puck above the lights

Valleyfield Loses Home Hockey Game

Defeat Sunday Puts Team To Third Position In League

The Valleyfield team lost possession of second place in the Northern Section of the Provincial League when they were defeated by Granby at the Valleyfield Arena, Sunday. Joliette defeating St-François on the same day gave them a one point lead from Valleyfield and four points behind the leaders, St-Jérôme.

The home team went down fighting from the very first minutes of play till the gong sounded the end of the game. Both teams began the period attacking constantly and the goalers were called to make some nice saves. The ice was in perfect condition and the players supplied the 1800 fans present with an exceptionally good exhibition. The score at the end of the third period was 4-2.

The first goal of the game was scored by Demers when he took the puck on his defense, stickhandled his way through the Valleyfield defence and shot the puck at Laplante who was unable to save. McNichol and Boyer came close to scoring a few minutes later but McLeod made a nice save of the latter's pass. However, Larivière of Valleyfield picking up a loose puck at his own defense, and before reaching the defense, he shot and the puck entered the corner of the net. McLeod's vision apparently was obstructed by one of his teammates. Granby protested this goal because they claimed it had struck the goal post and not the bottom of the net. The referee, however, after consulting the goal-judge, allowed the goal. In this same period Lilly and Larivière together tallied the second and last goal for Valleyfield. With four men on the attack, Valleyfield shot the puck in the Granby territory and Larose picking it up behind the nets passed it to Lilly who scored against McLeod.

In the second period both teams attempted to add to their respective scores but Laplante and McLeod were almost unbeatable and their clearing was perfect, leaving very little chances to the forwards to pick up any loose pucks. Shore, Demers and Lafontaine were penalized in this second period.

Denault, playing center on the visiting team's first string began the period attacking in the Valleyfield zone. His efforts were successful; after approximately six minutes of play had elapsed he gave his team a lead when he stickhandled his way through the whole Valleyfield team and scored the third goal of the game. This was one of the nicest goals to be made in Valleyfield this year. Boyd added another goal to Granby's total late in this final frame.

In an attempt to even the count, Valleyfield put five forwards on the

Tatehurst Friends Honour Young Lady With Shower

Misses Isabel Rember and Viola Gruer were hostesses on Saturday afternoon at the latter's home, at a kitchen shower given in honour of Miss Dorothy Scobel, whose marriage takes place this week. The bride-to-be was led to a chair tastefully decorated in pink and white, to the strains of "Here Comes the Bride" played by Mrs. Walter Scott. She was then presented with a huge basket of pink and white packages, which when opened, were very useful gifts. The guest of honor graciously thanked her frfends while they in return heartily sang "For She's a Jolly Good Fellow." Cards and games were enjoyed, then the eighteen guests present were invited to the dining room where a delicious supper awaited them.

Recent guests at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Robert Gruer were Mr. and Mrs. John Graham, Lyall and Muriel, Miss Muriel McCaig and Mr. Low.

Miss Marjorie Greer had the misfortune to fall last week and cut her knee quite severely. it was necessary for the doctor to put several stitches in the wound.

The Home Helpers of the Presbyterian Church were entertained last Thursday at the home of Mrs. Preston Hooker. Eleven members were present. Mrs. Harold Paxton took charge of the devotional exercises. The ladies sewed on children's garments and did some knitting during the afternoon. The hostess served dainty refreshments at the close of the meeting. Mrs. Campbell kindly offered her home for the February meeting.

Miss Celia Greer and her friend, Miss McIntosh of Montreal spent the week-end at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Jonn Greer.

Mr. and Mrs. Nelson Hooker entertained a number of friends last Tuesday evening at a Euchre stag party. Euchre was played at five tables. The prizes were won by Eloysius Forget for highest score and in a drawing between Wesley Marshall and Romeo Forget the consolation prize was awarded R. Forget. The newly formed hockey league was the main topic of the evening. Members of the former Concession team combined with members from the River team of previous years, to form a team considered as Ormstown West and played their first game on Wednesday against Ormstown East, score being a tie 1-1. Mrs. Hooker served delicious refreshments to the guest at the close of the evening.

The Week at Ottawa

Larger Appropriation for Defence and Old Age Pensions is Voted by Parliament Work of Session Rushed

By Wilfrid Eggleston

The session started out like a house afire, with a minimum of oratory and a maximum of results. By Monday night of the first week-end the debate on the Speech from the Throne was over, and without a recorded vote. This is in such sharp contrast to the days when the Address was good for two or three weeks of eulogy, criticism, campaign eloquence, economics, philosophy and just plain garden variety of talk. The aim, apparently, is to get finished in time to go to the Coronation, which means the end of the session by May 1st. If as little time is devoted to speechifying during the rest of the session as in the first two or three days, the objective may well be reached. Perhaps it is significant that Mr. Bennet has been invited to join the government representatives at London. The official Opposition, which usually decides when sessions end, will not want to drag things into midsummer either.

The abrupt collapse of the debate on the Address gave the government time to table its Main Estimates, which showed a stiff increase over the figures for last year. The upward trend can be traced to two main facts: one is that an additional $14,000,000 or so is to be spent in improving Canada's defences; the other is that Old Age Pensions will cost the treasury much more now that Quebec has adopted this social legislation. The current year's appropriation for Old Age Pensions was $17,500,000; this coming year it will be $10,000,000 more.

The spending of larger sums on defence measures had been forecast at some length by commentators, and, as expected, the stress was laid upon aircraft, coastal defence batteries, anti-aircraft guns, harbor equipment against submarines. Canada has no thought of an aggressive war; she is only disposed to put herself in a position to "enforce her own neutrality," to employ Mr. Bennett's phrase. About a hundred modern aeroplanes will be purchased and added to the 185—the latter largely obsolete and little used except for training—now possessed by the R.C.A.F.

Four modern minesweepers are to be added to Canada's modest navy. Aside from some new equipment, no increase in the land forces is provided for. Several hundred additional officers and men will be taken on to the Air Force and the Naval Force. Stores of ammunition, torpedoes and other military munitions will be laid up against an evil —and let us hope, purely hypothetical—day.

During the first four weeks of the session the private members have their fling, and government business on set days of the week takes second place. This gives opportunity for discussion of matters which are not yet, perhaps, ripe for legislation, but which private members feel should be aired in the interest of the community which they serve or Canada as a whole. Debates these days seem to run to economics, provision of greater purchasing power, provision of new social security legislation, slum clearance and similar matters. Last week saw the first of these debates on money and purchasing power. It was launched by John Blackmore, the leader of the 17 Social Credit members in the House, and called upon the state to begin to issue purchasing power "and to use that purchasing power for the improvement of the economic condition of the Canadian people."

Mr. Blackmore, who represents Lethbridge in the House, advanced the argument that money was needed for a hundred and one things, but that no money was available. Consequently he urged that the state should issue money, based on the resources of the country.

This is a controversial subject these days, and it is difficult even to report such debates without being regarded as partisan on the Social Credit side or on the other. Besides the sceptics, and the informed critics, of monetary theory, there are a great many people who do not feel that they understand the mystery of money, and in the meantime are inclined not to say very much.

Last year the Social Credit members were not answered to any extent, either because members were too indifferent or because they were incapable, of answering. There are signs that this year it will be different. In the very first debate R. J. Duncan, Liberal economist threw down the gauntlet by observing that while Houdini could draw rabbits out of hats, he was never able to make a living selling the rabbits.

The Address on the Speech from the Throne, though so brief, produced some interesting sentiments. A fair cross-section of it can be gleaned by reading the following characteristic extracts:

"There is ample evidence on all sides today that we are emerging from the forest of depression. It would be unfair to suggest that the pathway is not obstructed by some entangling underbrush, but at least we have left the forest behind us."

- - - Norman F. McLarty, East Essex, who moved the Address.

"I do contend - - - that is no getting away from this psychological fact—that today, with the dole in existence, you cannot get the ordinary man, the labourer, to look for work, let alone do an honest day's work, so long as he knows that the dole dangles in front of his nose, so long as he can get that sus-

A motion of thanks was extended to Lord Atholstan for his generous donation of $600 which was to be used for repair work around the fair grounds. About $300 of this amount is still unspent, but will be used for roofing repairs this coming year. The society decided to bonus the same stallions as last year. Added receipts from a two day fair amounted to $290 while the added expense was only $30. It was thus decided to have a two day show and the dates set were September 9th and 10th.

Speculation or Gambling?

(Contributed)

SECURITIES have been rising for the past four years. This tendency as usual was not paid much attention to by the non-professional speculator (the public) until prices had advanced considerably; but during the past two years we have heard of occasional fortunes amassed from fairly modest stakes in both mining and industrial ventures. Rises of 100% to 1000% being fairly common, with an occasional spectacular advance of 2000% to 3000%; these latter in the field of gold mining.

With these almost incredible, but nevertheless alluring facts seeping into the mind of Mr. Average Man with some capital, is it any wonder that his acquisitive and imaginative faculties are very highly stimulated?

There was a time long ago, (to be somewhat exact) 1929-32, when Mr. Average Man repeated to himself and others, the distantly familiar words, "Never Again!" This phrase is also the common property of the followers of Omar K. widowers, and widows, etc., and is subject to change without notice.

When Mr. Average Man started in to nibble again, presumably one or two years ago, he bought for example, 100 shares of stocks and paid for them. No more margin for him! This is an investment. But somehow his hundred shares has increased to 300, and his stock is no longer in his deposit box, but is doing collateral service in a broker's margined account. He reads that a high banking official says that there is more danger of a boom than a depression in the offing. He really can't see how prices can drop. (He couldn't see either, how they could fall in 1929.)

So you will find him, spending much time scanning stock quotations, and brokers' circulars. He has an ear cocked for rumors. He is not altogether happy, but he has high hopes for the future. He is often excited, and there is at times an exalted look in his eyes — he has just received some inside information.

And so he travels on his destined course, a course charted by history to end up,— well one millionaire, to 1000 amateur N. S. F. speculators.

The hazards are numerous, the odds against him considerable, but he intends to get out before the crash (this time). So do not pity him, or even laugh (not yet) and above all, do not offend him with the term gambler. He believes he is destined to be the one speculator in a thousand. Why doubt it?

Roosevelt's Popularity

FRANKLIN DELANO ROOSEVELT took the oath for his second term as President of the United States one week ago today, and pledged his New Deal administration to further reform to aid the under-privileged. The ceremony of the inauguration attracted hundreds of thousands of persons to Washington. Those who could not assist in person had the pleasure of listening to the full program over an international radio network. President Roosevelt is very popular in Canada. He is the most popular President on this side of the border the United States has ever had, and he merits every fraction of it. No President has more exemplified "the good neighbour" than has Roosevelt. We were very pleased when he was re-elected to office in November, and we listened with attention and read with keen interest of the inaugural ceremonies last Wednesday.

President Roosevelt is assuredly the most influential figure of world democracy. After four years' administration, the most trying in the nation's history, he is more popular now than the first day he took office. Few statesmen have ever been able to boast of such a situation. His inaugural address last week showed further indication of his democratic art of governing peoples. If the Americans like Roosevelt it is because he embodies, better than any other public man in the United States an attitude too little known outside the bounds of that country,— American idealism: sympathy for the weak, for the under-dog. It was this general sentiment which he so often expressed in his public utterances about "The Forgotten Man." That expression was lacking from his second inaugural address but the symbolic citizen was everywhere evident. Therein lies the democratic power of President Roosevelt. Therein lies the secret of his dominion over the crowds.

The President is proud of the success that his administration has enjoyed during the past four years; but it is a humble pride, for he asks: "Have we reached the goal of our vision of that fourth day of March, 1933? Have we found our Happy Valley?" The answer which any citizen can give is that there has been success, but they accept his subtle challenge to go on to even better things. He reviews the laboring, farming, educational and recreational situations, and in painting his picture of hope he makes this momentous declaration, the epitome of his inaugural address: "The test of our progress is not whether we add more to the abundance of those who have much; it is whether we provide enough for those who have too little."

The United States witnesses the inaugural of a new President when economic conditions are on a definite up-trend. But the adverse is true of world peace. Our neighbour is a great factor in the establishment and maintenance of world peace. The lead that Roosevelt has so far given in that direction is ample proof of his peace-espousal programme, and we trust the country will continue to support him in such measures. Under Roosevelt we see continued and new prosperity for the United States. We rejoice, because "their joys are our joys."

Communism-Fascism

COMMUNISM, the word in itself, means the common ownership of property; the abolition of private property, and state control of labor, religion, social relations, etc. That is the definition of the word as given by the Funk and Wagnalls dictionary. This definition is given at the request of one of our good friends from across the border, an official of the U.S. Immigration Office at Trout River. Facts Encyclopaedia tells us that Communism, in its widest sense means the common ownership of property, as in some primaeval societies. The Shaker communities founded in the United States in 1787 were communistic in principle; also 19th-century communities under leadership of Owen, Cabet, Noyes, and others, but this latter collapsed after three to forty years. Modern Communism dates from the publication of the Communist Manifesto in 1848. Since the Great War, Communism has broken away from more orthodox forms of socialism and aims at world revolution for overthrow of capitalism, followed by dictatorship of the proletariat, as in Russia. Another reader, from Malone, asks for a comparison between Fascism and Communism. Since both requests as to Fascism and Communism are from the U.S. we will endeavour to make the comparison from a democratic point of view.

Fascism and Communism are often said to be "alike as two peas." Both of them violate international comity by endeavouring to influence other nations towards the adoption of their respective creeds. Both continue to imperil the peace of Europe by a violent exchange of minatory denunciations.

Nations which have retained the democratic faith look on in bewilderment and dismay. Their fears are not lessened by the fact that they are beginning to realize that the situation is not merely one of two antagonistic powers, but of two antagonistic philosophies; that a position where two nations are forever snarling at each other can only end in war and catastrophe; and that whichever of the two philosophies triumph as the result of a clash of arms there will be no peace for the world, no bright prospect for civilization. By what at first seems a strange paradox, the basis of these two warring philosophies is the same — worship of the State. In each of them the individual citizen counts for nothing. His liberty of action is rigidly circumscribed; not only is he not allowed that sort of action which in democratic countries is called "constitutional," and of which we recently had a marked example in Great Britain; in Fascistic and Communistic countries one would not have dared to criticize. For each of the two philosophies, efficiency, rather than human happiness is the goal in each case, but it is an efficiency which is obtained at a terrible price; an efficiency which is fundamentally materialistic, reckoning little of the things of the spirit.

There are underlying differences between the two philosophies. One aims at a world State in which there will be no racial barriers and visualizes a civilization in which all human values will be on the same dead level. The other fosters a narrow racialism and takes an arrogant pride in purity of blood and origin. But both have, as essentials, personal rule by dictators and the subordination of all individual rights to the claims of the State. It is important to remember that both Communism and Fascism are — the one directly, the other indirectly — vomitings-up of a great war and not systems of government arrived at through the ordered thought of centuries or the gradual development of political institutions. Both were born of violence and both use violence as the sole arbiter of right. They rest, ultimately, not on authority derived from the people, but on power seized in a moment of crisis and maintained in the hands of a small group by ruthless and despotic methods. Their appeal is not to the sanity and intelligence of the people but to a mass hysteria which they seek to inflame on every possible occasion. They profess scorn for the democratic ideals of personal liberty and equal citizenship and for the Christian ideals of peace and brotherhood.

It is not a little strange that there should be found in countries which enjoy the blessings of democratic rule some persons who display a hankering after such creeds as these. What, one is impelled to ask, do they find in them that renders them so curiously attractive? Is human life any easier or are the masses any happier in the totalitarian States? Such a question needs no answer. Under democratic government there is more personal liberty, the tempo of life is easier, and human values, considered individually, count for something. There is more give and take, a truer realization of the ends of government, and a more just relation of the prosperity of the individual to the prosperity of the State. The whole atmosphere is less tense and there is a national stability which can never exist under a single-figure dictatorship.

Our comparison, strengthened by others' views, is somewhat of a condemnation of both philosophies. Having such adverse convictions to the theories they preach we could not prevent ourselves from an attempt to strengthen the ideal of democratic government.

Truck-Rail Issues

THE annual meeting of the Pomological and Fruit Growing Society of the Province of Quebec was held in Montreal last week, when a number of our district apple growers were in attendance, and others lectured before the meeting. Among chief business items decided upon was a resolution asking the Canadian Horticultural Council to organize a "National Apple Week." The outgoing President of the Society urged an advertising campaign, and said that he believed the failure to advertise had been one of the obvious reasons for the decline in the consumption of apples. The delegates also attended a meeting of a kindred association also in convention when they heard an important address by S. W. Fairweather of the Canadian National Railways on the motor truck and railway problem in which he stated that the problem requires some further treatment than the half-hearted attempts at rate regulation and the issuance of certificates of public convenience and necessity by which the problem has so far inadequately been dealt with.

The problem, said the speaker, lies in adjusting rail and highway services and conditions and rates so that the interplay of commerce will allocate to each facility the portion of the nation's transport which it is most fitted to perform. There must be recognition of the nature of the problem and a willingness to deal with it constructively. Some things are apparent such as provision for adequate and equitable taxation, safety regulations adequately policed, and a type of rate regulation common to both agencies, but not necessarily the same rates for each.

FORTUNE AIDS ELOPERS

The elopement of two Brooklyn high school students did not end in the usual way with pleas of forgiveness to papas and mammas on their return. After their marriage in Denver, William and Florence Mogelin went to a movie where one of their raffle tickets won first prize, a $25,000 house. They put a $5,000 mortgage on the house and with this money returned to Brooklyn and rented an apartment in which they are keeping house. Their Denver house is on the market and when sold, will provide the youthful newlyweds with a good nest egg for future use.

WIRES THANKS YEARLY

In one of the bloodiest battles near Verdun in November, 1918, Harry D. Parkin, now living in Los Angeles, and Robert S. MacCormack, Brooklyn, N. Y., were in a shallow trench when a charge of German troops rushed over them. Parkin was wounded twice in his right leg and could not move to save himself. MacCormack got him on his back and although it seemed a miracle for anyone to live in that storm of machine gun bullets and bursting shells, he carried the wounded man out to safety. Every year, on the anniversary of this battle, Parkin has sent a telegram to MacCormack thanking him over again for saving his life at the risk of his own.

SANTA CLAUS ALL YEAR

An Indianapolis mercantile establishment owned by Robert M. Bowes has a unique way of maintaining loyalty among its 47 employees. Every little while Bowes slips an extra $10 bill into pay envelopes with a note requesting only that those who accept these gifts spend the money in Indianapolis and return the sales slips to him. So far most of this gift money has been spent for clothing. Bowes declares the money he hands out in this way is more than repaid by "dividends in loyalty" from his employees.

FREEZE MUD BANKS

Building footings for the gigantic Grand Coulee dam in Washington state called for the pouring of concrete down on bedrock, 175 feet below the level of the Columbia river, whose waters are to be impounded by the dam. Mud oozing down on the bedrock made it impossible to pour the concrete, as it would slide in as fast as it could be removed. Engineers wrestled with this problem for several months, when one of them got the idea the freezing of this mud in some way would hold it back. Altificial refrigeration, the engineers decided, might be worth trying. What they did was to install a mammoth refrigeration plant consisting of hundreds of pipes driven into the ground, a few inches apart, which carry ammonia. The system is much the same as that used in meat markets only on a much larger scale. If utilized for ice-making, this huge plant would utilize 100 tons a day. Now the mud is frozen all around the pipes, making a barrier, and concrete is being poured without further trouble.

HUNT FOR SKETCH

London City Corporation will reward anyone who can help them to find a tablecloth lost for 60 years. The reason is this: When the idea for Tower Bridge was first considered in 1877, Sir Horace Jones, the city architect, sketched his scheme on a blotting pad. This relic—the first design for the famous bridge—is in the Guildhall. At a banquet the same evening, Sir Horace elaborated his ideas by a sketch on a tablecloth. This tablecloth is also known to have been preserved, but it cannot be traced.

ELECTED TO NO JOB

Up in Nebraska voters played a rather cruel joke on Leo Swanson, who was re-elected state land commissioner. While re-electing him, they also voted for a constitutional amendment abolishing the office. Swanson contends the amendment will not go into effect until the next state election. The attorney-general declares it was put in force on election day. Court will have to decide.

DOG 26 YEARS OLD

Bluey, a Queensland heeler, belonging to Les Hall, of Rochester, Victoria, is claimed to be the oldest dog in the world. Although the animal has passed its 26th birthday, it is still in sound condition and very active, although a trifle deaf. That dog was obtained as a pup in 1910 by the father of its present owner, and was worked among cattle and sheep for nearly 20 years. Proof of its age has been furnished by the local dog inspector and residents of repute. The Queensland heeler is an Australian type of cattle dog with remarkable intelligence. It is fearless and very faithful.

FINDERS KEEPERS

After J. A. Blummer, Sheridan, Wyo., lost his gun case, he put an ad. in the local paper asking the finder to return it to him. The next day he received the following letter:

Dear Sir,—Seeing your ad. in the paper for a gun case you lost on Dry Fork, I wish to tell you I found the gun case up there and it is just what I have been looking for, so I guess I will keep it. Thanking you, yours respectfully, B. C.

CARS CRASH HOME

Near West Plains, Mo., C. S. Hartman lives on one of the through highways at a point where it makes a sharp curve. Within the last few weeks, five cars whose drivers failed to negotiate the turn came rolling over into his front yard. Last of the five was a heavy truck which demolished Hartman's front porch. Except for the fact he never knows when a car may come bouncing over into his yard, Hartman enjoys his home. Now he is thinking of moving off that curve.

BERLIN FOOD POOR

Early every morning anxious Berlin housewives cluster round the markets waiting for them to open so they can pounce on the limited supplies of beef, pork, butter, eggs, fats and various delicacies. The government keeps prices fixed, but the hausfrau grumbles as she picks her way through her list of requirements, finding this scarce and that poor in quality. The German housewife shops with one eye carefully scrutinizing the quality of the goods offered and the other glued to the fixed price charts, prominently displayed in every shop. Eggs, generally out of cold storage, are becoming scarce. Cheese is of poorer quality since a decree was issued compelling a 20 per cent fat content, compared with 40 per cent hitherto.

Annual Report Reflects Improving Conditions

In addressing the Annual Meeting of Shareholders and Policyholders on Jan. 21, Mr. Leighton McCarthy, K.C., President, said in part:

"Canada has during the last few years been steadily climbing the somewhat steep ascent leading out of the Depression which enveloped her and other parts of the world. Now she appears to have successfully reached a point from which can be viewed, as in panorama, the foundation for such faith, hope, courage and confidence as is evidenced by this and other Annual Reports of Financial and Industrial Institutions which have been recently presented to various bodies of Shareholders.

We are thus — unless overindulgence creates another attack of indigestion, which God forbid! — led to believe that Canada is entering upon another era of prosperity."

Mr. A. N. Mitchell, Vice-President and General Manager, who also addressed the Meeting, stated:

"No country is more richly endowed with natural resources than Canada. Each year shows new records in their development. These resources were not lost during the depression. Their development may have been momentarily retarded but the ability to create new vast wealth from agriculture, fisheries, forests and mines is still as great as ever. . .

". . . Our predecessors and ancestors in this country fought the forces of nature to produce for us an opportunity such as has been given to few people in the history of the world. If we have inherited the characteristics of our forefathers — and I believe we have — our present problems will not be solved by evading them. They will be solved by using the resources bequeathed to us in such abundance and by using the brains, brawn and courage also bequeathed us to develop them. Our salvation will not be found through arbitrarily destructive laws. It will be found in progressive thinking and a determination to build a better and greater Canada — or in other words, in the individual initiative and courage of our citizens.

"The difficulties need not be minimized. I believe our people, both debtors and creditors, if properly led, have the courage to approach them as problems to be solved through the application of that common sense and common honesty which produces a true co-operation.

"Sectional prejudices have no place in such a common sense co-operation. Certain sections of our country are facing difficulties not felt by other parts and true advancement can only be made when all parts of the country are working together to eliminate these difficulties. It would seem essential, therefore, that some means should be set up at an early date to properly analyze these difficulties and to attempt to find some means by which all could co-operate in a common sense solution of the troubles.

"It seems evident that such an answer should be sought by some properly appointed body representing the country as a whole and which will have the backing of public confidence because of its personnel. If there are injustices in our methods of taxation, or distribution of taxes, or in our allocation of governmental powers, these injustices should be wiped out. If the statement being made that these injustices exist is incorrect, then some authoritative method should be found of correcting the misapprehension. Now that we have in many parts of the country evidence of growing prosperity the questions could be more easily faced, and any sacrifices required more readily absorbed."

During its 90 years of service, the Canada Life has been privileged to act as the medium through which hundreds of thousands of policyholders in all walks of life have co-operated to build up a fund mostly out of small savings, to be returned later as benefits to themselves or their beneficiaries.

Assets accumulated in this way crossed the $250,000,000 mark in 1936. This large sum is necessary in order to meet the requirements of the $814,000,000 of life insurance now in force, which includes over $57,000,000 of new paid life insurance entrusted by clients to the care of this Company during the past year.

In Canada and the United States an increase of over 20% in new paid ordinary life insurance was effected as compared with 1935.

The effect of these co-operative efforts through the years since 1847 is best evidenced by the fact that the Canada Life has paid to policyholders, annuitants and beneficiaries, or has accumulated on their behalf more than $600,000,000, a sum which exceeds the total premiums received during the Company's existence by more than $50,000,000.

In 1936 alone, the Company paid the very large amount of over $26,000,000 to its policyholders, annuitants and beneficiaries. These payments amounted to an average of $2,202,877 every month, or $505,578 every week. Living policyholders and annuitants received $18,900,000, or 72% of the total paid.

Such payments have brought a measure of comfort and security into hundreds of thousands of homes — have been the means to a happy retirement for thousands of policyholders themselves.

The January meeting of the Woman's Association was held Wednesday afternoon, January 20th at the home of Mrs. John Wood. The meeting opened by singing hymn, "Take the Name of Jesus with you", followed by Mrs. E. A. McHardy reading the first fifteen verses from the 3rd chapter of John. Minutes were read of the December meeting and 11 members responded to roll call, there also being a number of visitors present. A letter was read from Miss Agnes McFarland in receipt of Christmas boxes, and other letters were read in connection with Christmas gifts. A $5.00 donation was received from Mrs. Maud Gillis of Montreal, a former member of the Association. Mrs. McHardy gave the reading for the day, a very lovely poem entitled "Love thyself Last." The meeting closed with the hymn, "A better day is coming," and repeating the Lord's Prayer in unison. A hot supper was served by the ladies on the committe. Proceeds amounted to $4.45.

Mrs. Jas. Ross, the Misses Christina Ross and Hattie Shearer, Mrs. Wm. Platt and Messrs. Arthur Taylor, Jas. Wallace and John Ross spent Saturday in Montreal.

We are sorry to report that Mrs. John Boucher is in poor health. Her daughter, Miss Phoebe Boucher of Montreal is with her for a few days.

The community was sorry to hear of the death of Miss Albertine Legros. Miss Legros had been in poor health for some time but her condition seemed improved and she was able to be out among her friends, and everyone had hopes that she might be well again, when she was suddenly taken by a severe heart attack and pased away about 9 o'clock Tuesday evening, January 19th. The funeral services were held Thursday morning at the R.C. Church at Herdman. This was the first funeral service in the new church there, which was just completed a few weeks ago.

Mr. and Mrs. Melvin Myatt of Burke, N.Y. were Sunday guests of Mr. and Mrs. Amos Myatt.

WOMAN TALK TEST

Forty women hurled torrents of words at dazed competition judges at Cleveland, Ohio, to see who could talk fastest. It was the semi-final of the "fastest talking woman" contest arranged by a business college in co-operation with the Great Lakes exposition. The idea was to promote finer enunciation and swifter reading, sponsors explain.

A PILGRIM'S RETURN

The Canadian Parliament in Session at Ottawa has passed an Act ratifying the succession of George VI. Mr. Woodsworth, Leader of the C.C.F. Group, alone voiced questions as to alleged "connivance" between Premiers King and Baldwin in forcing King Edward's abdication. Premier King is quoted as telling Parliament that a message was sent by the Government that the people of Canada would not approve of Edward's marriage to Mrs. Simpson under any circumstances. The King was solemnly advised, therefore to place "his duty to the Throne above any personal considerations." They could have gone even further and deliberately passed the buck to Baldwin by insisting, also, that under no circumstances would Canadians approve of Abdication!

Hon. R. B. Bennett, Leader of the Opposition, returned from his travels in time to voice his hearty agreement with Mr. King's action. Had he, said Mr. Bennett, been in the position of Prime Minister he would have felt in duty bound to do exactly as Mr. King had done in the circumstances.

And this should make it pretty unanimous. But when the lion and the lamb lie down together . . .

There is a suggestion of malignant humor in a scene where King and Bennett both pride themselves on opposing the marriage of a still more famous bachelor! They are both well aware of the advantages to be gained by placing "duty above any personal considerations." But without first hand knowledge on the subject of matrimony, what right have they to be supreme judges in the matter? Us "wimmin" should gang up on 'em. Or have we?

I recall the rumor of a grave constitutional crisis in Ottawa a few years ago when a Premier was reported to be making several visits weekly to the mansion of a Quebec lady. The alarm was unnecessary, as nothing seems to have come of that affair.

"Methinks the gent doth protest too much." Perhaps from a guilty conscience, as Mr. Woodsworth suspects is the case of the Premier in connection with the Abdication.

Mr. Bennett called upon Shakespeare to throw light upon the recent drama by quoting from "Othelo": He gave the following as possibly the attitude of the ex-King:

"I have done the State some service, and they know't;—
No more of that,—I pray you, in your letters,
When you shall these unlucky deeds relate.
Speak of me as I am; nothing extentuate,
Or set down aught in malice; then must you speak
Of one that lov'd not wisely, but too well."

It is said that there was a rush on the Library of Parliament for copies of Shakespeare. I bought a splendid copy of the Complete Works of William Shakespeare, with separate volume of Essays on "How to Read Shakespeare", for $1.00 in a Montreal Department Store recently. It is published by Oldhams Press, Ltd., London, Eng. Every home could afford a copy at this price.

"A Pilgrim's Way" by Kipling, is more expressive of the manner of the Bonny King Eddie, in my opinion:

"I do not look for holy saints to guide me on my way,
Or male or female devilkins to lead my feet astray.
If these are added, I rejoice—if not, I shall not mind,
So long as I have leave and choice to meet my fellow-kind.
For as we come and as we go (and deadly soon go we!)
The people, Lord, Thy people, are good enough for me!"

On the same day in Parliament the Address in Reply to the Speech from the Throne was moved by N. A. McLarty (Lib. Essex West). Of Norman McLarty I can truthfully say I knew him when—he was a law student in Toronto. A Rhodes Scholar with a fondness for rhetoric in the Macaulay style, he worked along with T. C. Robinette, a brilliant criminal lawyer. McLarty and myself were chosen from his staff by Mr. Robinette to go with him to North York when he was a Liberal candidate in 1911. It was an affair similar to the Scott election. The wise guys from Toronto were going to get their man into Parliament in a safe country constituency, as Robinette had been defeated three times in Toronto. But in North York he was again defeated by a local lawyer, previously unknown. Curiously enough, both Robinette and his successful opponent met with mysterious and untimely deaths.

But these facts have not apparently interfered with McLarty's ambition. I know nothing about his recent history, but no doubt he profited from the experiences gained in North York and played his cards more expertly than the late T. C. Robinette, whose eloquence never did echo through the Galleries of Parliament.

It would be well, therefore, to keep an eye on Norman L. McLarty. He has ability and is young enough to be going places yet. Realizing that classical quotations were in order, in his Maiden Speech he had the wit to pay a tribute to the travelling ex-Premier Rt. Hon. R. B. Bennett, in these terms:

"Much have I seen and known; cities of men,
Manners, climates, councils, governments;
Myself not least, but honored of them all."

The croquignole party under the auspices of the Y.W.A. held in Kensington Hall on Friday evening, despite counter attraction, was well attended, many friends responding to the invitation extended them by the Society. The prize-winners were: gentlemen, D. C. Elder, and ladies, Mrs. D. Smellie, Dundee. Partners for supper were chosen by ladies paying forfeits, which created much merriment. Dainty refreshments were served at the close of the evening. Receipts $1.30.

"ALL-BRAN KEEPS ME IN SHAPE EVERY DAY"

"When I had eaten a heavy breakfast, I would feel logy. After a couple of days of this, I would have to take a laxative.

"One morning I had a dish of ALL-BRAN. Believe me, it beats any laxative, as it keeps me in shape every day."—Wm. C. Billings (address on request).

Why put up with half-sick days, when a delicious cereal will make you feel so good? Because ALL-BRAN has "bulk" which absorbs moisture within the body. Then gently sponges out your system, wipes away the listlessness, the "blues," the headaches.

Scientific tests prove this natural food is both safe and effective—worlds better than taking patent medicines. ALL-BRAN is guaranteed. Take it a week. If not satisfactory, your money will be refunded by the Kellogg Company.

Serve as a cereal or use in cooking. ALL-BRAN also supplies vitamin B and iron. At all grocers. Made by Kellogg in London.

tenance by the mere extending of his hand. If our governing bodies expect to pull out of this morass of unemployment, our only hope lies in getting people back to work-consciousness, compelling them to give some personal return for the assistance they receive, by cutting out this panhandling, this racketeering, this subsidizing of idleness, this sponging on the public treasury, on which so many persons have existed dishonestly for the past five or six years."—Dr. C. J. Veniot, Gloucester, N. S., who seconded it.

"So far as we are concerned, as regards any measures which the government may submit to this house for parliamentary sanction and approval, and which have for their end the improvement and strengthening of democracy—anything which will assist in the accomplishment of that end—and I speak for those, few in number but representing nearly as many voters as the great numbers of the government yonder—we will do gladly and proudly."

- - - Rt. Hon. R. B. Bennet, leader of the Opposition.

"At this stage we cannot submit more than an interim report—work in progress and ahead of us is more important that the work yet accomplished. Nevertheless, in insisting on the vital necessity for Canada of attaining our final objectives we must not underestimate the record of positive achievement during the past fifteen months to which I have briefly referred. In that period, Canada can invite comparison with any other country in the world in the number and magnitude of tariff reductions. Our contribution to the collective responsibility of the nations for restoring freedom of world trade is being fully and honourably met."

ice when two Granby men were penalized in succession. McNichol and Lilly shot repeatedly at the goaler but could not beat the lad. Desautels, at one interval, had only the goaler to beat when he struck his pads. Leblond was slightly injured when he collided with a Granby player in the dying minutes of the game.

Valleyfield presently has two defensemen on the sick list which is a very tough handicap, at this point of the schedule, and when they have a good chance of taking first place in their division as they are trailing the leaders, St-Jérôme, by only six points.

Valleyfield: Goal, Laplante; defense, Shore and Larivière; center, Guilbault; wings, Desautels and Lilly; subs: Robineau, Boyer, Leblond, and McNichol.

Granby: Goal, McLeod; defense, Demers and Larose; centre, Denault; wings, St-Onge and Depelteau; subs: Ritchot, Lafontaine, Marchildon, MacDonald, Lee, Boyd, Brosseau and Forand.

Pierre Huguet, a member of the Knights of Columbus Hockey team in Valleyfield for a number of years, and now with St-Jérôme in the Provincial loop made headlines for himself on Sunday when he scored seven goals and was credited with two assists as his team defeated Verdun 19-1 in St-Jérôme.

Electricity—The Modern Servant

Of all the commodities that enter into the daily life of the Canadian family, electricity gives the greatest return for every dollar that it costs. There is nothing we can purchase that will give us so much in comfort, convenience, health, and happiness as the electric service that is ours to command at the press of a button or turn of a switch. Electric service has become so firmly woven into our daily lives that we are apt to take it too much for granted and to fail to visualize the discomforts and disadvantages that would be ours if we had to do without it. On many farms, through the progress of rural electrification programs being carried on, families are enjoying for the first time the wonderful blessings which electric service bestows upon humanity. These people know and appreciate its value, but too many of us have been so long accustomed to have it at our finger tips that we fail to appraise it at its true valuation. Particularly, do we fail to realize how essentially cheap it is compared with the other items that enter into the average family budget.

Company's Assets Over $250,000,000

Mark Crossed During 1936, Canada Life Reports at Annual Meeting

At its 90th annual meeting Thursday Canada Life reported its total assets, representing monies held on behalf of policyholders had, for the first time, crossed the $250,000,000 mark, and at the end of the year showed a total of over $252,000,000. The magnitude of the increase in the business entrusted to the company in recent years was evident when it was pointed out that at the end of 1923 these funds were still less than $100,000,000—an increase in the last thirteen years of over $150,000,000.

A. N. Mitchell, vice-president and general manager, reported that the total income of the Canada Life from all sources during 1936 was over $39,000,000. The sum of over $26,000,000 was paid to policyholders, annuitants or beneficiaries. Living policyholders and annuitants received approximately $19,000,000 of this amount. During the past ten years the Canada Life has paid to policyholders, annuitants and beneficiaries over $236,000,000.

The surplus funds and special reserves total $9,104,192 and include $2,000,000 provision for special contingencies, and $1,260,000 for policy dividends payable during the balance of the company's dividend year ending June 30th, 1937. After providing $1,340,000 reserve for other dividends to policyholders, including policy dividends for the last six months of 1937, there remains an unassigned surplus of $4,504,192, the latter being an increase of $492,902. The company's position was further strengthened by the writing down of securities by $773,133.

The total assurance in force amounts to $814,131,452. The largest and most important proportion of this comprises the company's own direct written business, that is, business written by its own representatives and not business received from other companies by way of re-insurance. This direct written business in force showed an increase of more than $6,000,000 compared with 1935.

The company's already large holdings of high grade securities, viz.: government, government guaranteed and municipal bonds of Canada, the United States and Great Britain, were increased from a total of $92,195,388 to $103,200,095.

The new paid-for assurances, including revivals and increased policies by excluding dividend additions and annuities totalled $57,036,407, representing a substantial increase over 1935. First year premiums on annual premium ordinary insurance also showed a substantial gain.

The reserves, which the company holds to meet the liabilities under policies now in force, amount to $226,582,324. These have been computed on the same strong and conservative basis of valuation the company has used for many years.

Local Boys Play In New Motion Picture

Two former Huntingdon boys, well-known in this district, have small parts in the sensational new 20th Century Fox picture "One in a Million" which is playing at Schine's Malone Theatre soon. The picture stars Sonja Henie, world's figure skating champion ten times and Olympic champion three times.

The boys, Lindsay Chambers and Donald Maxwell are both cast in skating scenes with the star of the show. Lindsay and Donald have been in California for several years attending University and playing hockey. They donned their first pair of skates here and learnt most of their hockey in Huntingdon. Both were star players on Huntingdon Academy teams.

I learned from the Gleaner's files of forty years ago, that the Ladies' Aid was in existence then. Well, that's about as far back as my recollection goes. I cannot just recall who conceived the idea of the Ladies' Aid and when it was was first organized. It has rolled on like a mighty wave until it has found a welcome place in nearly every church congregation and has become a worthy asset to the church.

The Aid is somewhat like it was in days gone by when the good woman of the house had the produce of the poultry department for her pin money, yet when money was short and ills pressing and it was a difficult matter to make ends meet on the farm, she would solve the problem by giving her egg money and tiding things over for the time at least.

The Aid does somewhat similar, for often when the church congregation finances are low and they are in rather strait circumstances, they appeal to the generosity of the Aid, and the ladies rally to the rescue (God bless them.)

I will admit that a little gossip occasionally creeps in, but it only adds to the variety, for the most of us relish a little inkling in the other fellow's persona laffairs.

The Aid also is practical for it caters to the inner man or rather inner woman, for they always serve a delicious lunch at the close of their meetings, which gives a pleasantness to the afternoon gathering.

I might say that circumstances over which I have no control prevent me from becoming a member of that august band of faithful church workers. But I can bid them God-speed.

SOLOMON BAFFLED

Two women claimed a six-month-old child at the court in the Peloponnesus Isles, and the perplexed magistrate thought he'd try Solomon's dodge. He sent for a knife and declared he was going to cut the child in half. The two women cried simultaneously: "Oh, don't do that; rather keep it yourself." and with that fled from the court, leaving the embarrassed judge with the baby, which, as collector of lost property, he must keep until claimed!

had not been shooting at Smith but at screech owls.

Frank Porke and Mrs. Peter L. Garrow, uncle, and mother of Mrs. Louise Benedict, gave similar evidence to that of Smith and the accused's wife.

Mrs. Dave Benedict testified that she was in the Benedict home at the time of the supposed threat but would not swear that she had seen Benedict with a gun in his hand. She also stated that in answering questions to the Provincial Detective she may have made misstatements in that she did not clearly understand English.

Benedict admitted shooting but that it was not with intention to injure anyone. He denied threats against his wife.

The Magistrate found Benedict guilty of threats, and he was held to keep the peace, to be released upon furnishing two bonds of $500 each. If bonds are not furnished by January 28th, another decision will be made in the case.

Could Not Lift Arms Above Head
Owing to Painful Rheumatism
This woman suffered rheumatism in her back, arms and legs. For two months, she endured this painful condition, then, like many another sufferer, she decided to try Kruschen Salts. Read her letter:—
"About fifteen months ago I had rheumatism in my arms, back and legs. The pains in my arms and legs after getting warm in bed were almost unbearable. I was like that for two months, and could not reach above my head. I read so much about Kruschen Salts that I thought I would try them. I am so glad to say that for more than a year I have not had the slightest return of my rheumatism."—(Mrs.) H.E.
The pains and stiffness of rheumatism are frequently due to deposits of uric acid in the muscles and joints. Kruschen Salts assist in stimulating the internal organs to healthy, regular activity, and help them to get rid of this excess uric acid.

Fruit Growers Ask For Inauguration....

Apple Week a feature throughout the United States.

"The California Fruit Growers' Exchange alone spent the huge sum of $1,478,085 on advertising this past year, bringing a return to the shippers of $84,864,322, an increase of 15 per cent over 1935. This represented an investment of five cents a box on oranges, 10 cents on lemons and three cents on grapefruit," said the president.

Mr. Trépanier reviewed the progress of the industry during the past year, and stressed that many apple growers are continuing to lose their older trees. The question of nursery supplies to replace the trees lost is a most difficult one, he said, because supplies are very short, due to the lack of rootstocks from the French growers on one hand and the very dry growing conditions in the Niagara district for the past three years on the other.

"We owe a vote of thanks to our Minister of Agriculture and those members who aided us in securing a grant towards the purchase of trees for delivery this coming spring. We have ordered 5,000 Hibernals budded in the nursery."

The disastrous frost on the night of May 15 last, which destroyed much of the crop, orchard heating and hail insurance were also mentioned by the president. The English apple crop was much larger last year, and supplied a greater share of the home market, he reported. He also pointed to the rapid development of a pear and apple industry in southern Argentina, whence 1,200,000 boxes of apples and pears were shipped last year.

During the day the following addresses were heard: Rootstock problems, Donald Blair, horticulture division, Ottawa; thin wood pruning, Prof. G. L. Ricks, Lansing, Mich.; comparison of English and Canadian methods of growing apples, T. N. Hoblyn, East Malling Research Station, England; orchard heating in case of frost, Gordon Mann; physiological disorders of apples, Malcolm B. Davis, Dominion Horticulturist, Ottawa; breeding parasites to control the corn-borer, C. E. Petch, Dominion Entomological Laboratory, Hemmingford, Que.; relation between wages paid laborers in cities and agricultural workers, M. A. Gosselin, division of agricultural economics, Ottawa; controlling the height of trees by eliminating small branches, J. E. Duschesne; control of insects which cause damage by means of parasites, M. J. B. Maltais, entomologist, Hemmingford. Summaries of the addresses by C. E. Petch and Jean Maltais appear with this report. Complete copies of of other addresses will appear in future issues.

The co-operation shown between the various groups of the society, especially between the French and English-speaking sections, was an example which could be followed by all who had the interests of the province and the Dominion at heart, Hon. Mr. Dussault told the annual dinner Thursday. The full support of his Department of Agriculture, recognized as one of the most important in the Government, was behind the fruit growers, the speaker continued.

Talk by J. B. Maltais

"The Control of Injurious Insects by Means of Parasites," was the subject of an address by Jean B. Maltais, M. Sc., of Hemmingford. Following is a summary:

"As much as all other groups of animals, the insects are submitted to the law of the struggle for existence. In order that the equilibrium among the species of living animals be maintained, it is necessary that the natural factors such as climate, vegetation, diseases and the war among the different species of animals follow their normal course; otherwise, the animal kingdom would be limited to a few powerful and prolific species.

"Each animal species is susceptible to be attacked by one or several enemies, and the means of defense and resistance among the attacked species are usually proportioned to the means of attack by the offensive groups.

"The insect enemies are divided into two distinct classes, namely, the predators and the parasites.

"The predators constitute an important class of carnivorous insects which live exclusively on the product of their hunts. They are very beneficial to agriculture and help a great deal in the control of injurious insects such as caterpillars, plant-lice, scale insects, etc.

"The parasites are also carnivorous insects which live exclusively at the expense of other insects. The parasites do not seize their prey to devour it, as do the predators, but they proceed in a slower manner by laying eggs on or within the bodies of their victims. The young larvae which hatch from those eggs feed and complete their development within the bodies of their hosts.

"The Dominion Entomological Branch maintains at Belleville, Ont. a modern laboratory especially equipped for the importation, the rearing and the study of parasitic insects in Canada. Since the establishment of this laboratory, upwards of forty million parasites have been produced and liberated for the economic control of several species of insects injurious to farm crops and the forest."

Insect Parasites and Predators

Following is a summary of an illustrated talk by C. E. Petch, of the Entomological Laboratory at Hemmingford. Films were also shown with this talk.

"It has been said by a wit that 'Entomology is the science that gives to insects long names, short lives and a pin through the back.' However, I hope to prove to you that there is a great deal more to the subject than this humorist would have you believe.

"The general conception about insects is that they are held in check by their parasites under ordinary conditions. The usual formula proposed is, that when an insect is abundant its parasites increase enormously and bring about control, after which enormous mortality results to the parasites on account of the scarcity of the proper source of food and that after a period of years the latter increases again and damage results. The above summation is based upon the biological fact, that the food supply of any organism is one of the major determining factor in its survival.

"A parasite is an organism that lives at the expense of another. An organism may be any living thing from the largest animal to the smallest plant. However, this paper concerns itself with insect parasites and predators.

"A parasite may be considered an insect receiving its nourishment from some portion of another insect without causing death directly, although the patient may die after the parasite has quit the body. A predator, on the other hand, violently assaults and immediately devours the weaker forms of life.

"Insect structure is peculiarly favorable to the presence of true internal parasites. An insect larva is a voracious feeder and there is usually a mass of reserve foodstuff in its body. This rich broth encourages a wide variety of parasites.

"The practical significance of a study of the parasitic species of insects is becoming increasingly important each year. We have all seen instances of severe outbreaks of insects suddenly disappear and usually when man would be powerless to interfere. For example, the outbreaks of the larch sawfly in 1910 and the tent caterpillars in 1914. Many others are present in Canada now among which might be mentioned the European corn borer, grasshoppers, and the wheat steam sawfly. Our present methods of combatting insects are comparatively inadequate because they are only practicable where the areas attacked are small and where the crops involved makes the expense justifiable.

"The work depicted in the films shown was carried out at the Parasite Laboratory, Belleville. However, some parasite work is undertaken at several of the other laboratories in Canada. For example, at Hemmingford, we have worked with several species of parasites of white grubs. In 1932, we shipped 4500 of these parasites to Queensland, Australia, for use against grass grubs attacking sugar cane. After a trip of some 12,000 miles, 63 per cent of the grubs were alive."

SAVED BY SLAPS

Eight hours of slapping, scolding and shaking have saved the life of an 11-year-old boy, Cecil Schultz, at Wondai hospital, Queensland. He was suffering from snake bite. From 7 p.m. until 3 a.m. relays of nurses, servants and convalescent patients kept the child from sinking into a sleep which would have meant certain death. While returning home from school, Cecil had been bitten on the foot by a snake. He ran half a mile to a house for help. Slaps and shakings were administered as the only possible way of keeping the boy from lapsing into a coma. He is now out of danger.

Ormstown Humbled By Canadiens

Locals Conquer Strong Foes 5-3 on Soft Ice Sheet Here Thursday

Canadiens took everything Ormstown had to offer in the second game of the Ormstown-Huntingdon hockey league here Thursday night and still had enough of what it takes left to register a 5-3 win over their powerful opponents.

The soft ice took all the steam out of both teams and made the game slow and sloppy at times. The aggressive brand of hockey played would have been a treat to watch on hard ice.

The visitors opened the scoring in the first minute of play when Boyle took a passout from Johnny Campbell and slapped it into an open net. Varin evened the count on a lone effort just before the bell rang to end the period.

Jules Dupuy, Canadien's new left winger, put his team one up at the start of the second period on a high looping blue line shot that hit the ice in front of Cartier and jumped over his stick into the net. Smith erased Canadien's lead two minutes later when he came in fast to snare Murphy's rebound.

Jack Kerby gave the locals a margin once again by stick-handling through alone and fooling Cartier on a low shot to the corner. He repeated his performance in the last period to give Canadiens a two goal lead, and Varin added the last goal at 18.00 of the same session.

The game was clean but the soft ice made puck carrying almost impossible. At times the players reverted to a combination golf and baseball shot to move the puck at all. There were only two penalties given—one to each team.

Jackie Kerby, a race horse on skates, was dangerous at all times for Canadiens, but was held back by the poor ice. Ormstown didn't reveal the power that enabled them to win 10-3, over Leach Textiles in their first game here. The Ormstown squad are a fast-ice team, and found it hard going on the soggy surface.

The visitors protested after Kerby had secured his second goal. Eddie Cappiello had been sitting on the puck in the corner and had shoved it ahead to Kerby who made a clean getaway. They claimed that the play should have been brought back.

Bertrand, Canadien defenceman, found the soft ice a big handicap. He is a former St. Francois Xavier player and comes from Montreal.

The line-up:

Canadiens: Goal, Lefebvre, def., Cappiello, Bertrand, forwards, J. Lefebvre, Kerby, Dupuy, Leduc, Varin, Beaudin, A. Lefebvre, C. Laberge, Bayard.

Ormstown: goal, J. Cartier, def., Murphy, R. Cartier, R. Campbell, McAdam, forwards, Smith, Boyle, J. Campbell, McGerrigle, McCartney, McKeegan.

First Period: Ormstown—Boyle (J. Campbell) 1.00. Huntingdon: Varin, 19.00. Penalties: Boyle, (charging).

Second period: Huntingdon—Dupuy, 2.00. Ormstown—Smith (Murphy) 4.47. Huntingdon—Kerby, 17.00 Penalties, Leduc, (tripping).

WINS BET, LOSES LIFE

A countryman bet a shilling that he would eat a herring quicker than another man. He won his bet—but lost his life. The wager was made in a village tavern in Upper Silesia, where the men had been drinking. One man was well ahead of the other when the herring caught in his windpipe. He was choked to death before medical assistance could be summoned.

Covey Hill

He was simply grand, was young Thomas Lamont, formerly of Ballymona, Ireland, now first year theology student in the Montreal Presbyterian College, as he discoursed on the parable of The Prodigal Son, on Sunday, Jan. 17th.

Unlike his namesake, Rev. Thos. J. Watson, whom he heard preaching in the Old Country, Mr. Lamont is of rather small stature. He has two advantages in pulpit work, he is a born preacher, and he has had considerable evangelistic experience in his homeland. His reading illumined the page and his gifts in prayer and song are more than average.

One easily imagined dramatic artistry such as his on the stage moving a spellbound audience to tears or laughter at will, or swaying a nation's fate in legislative halls, but one rejoiced that he was instead a compelling exponent of gospel mercy.

You felt that previous interpretations of this parable had been but the dry bones of analysis, but here was the marrow of the Master's meaning, to be ranked with things unforgettable.

The speaker told of an old lady in Belfast who, on being asked for a Bible by a clergyman who called on her, replied that she had never owned one. He repeated from memory the story of the prodigal. With tears streaming down her face, she asked if that really was in the Scriptures. Mr. Lamont said that, rather than feel shocked at this ignorance, we should ask ourselves if we, who had known this passage from chilrhood, understood its lessons.

During his stay of three years in the Maritimes he had come across this parable in a school-book, with a foot-note which said that it was considered the finest short story in all literature.

A friend of the speaker's, a New York lawyer, criticized the parable on two heads, first because he considered that the elder son had not got a fair deal, and again because it was not true to life as returned ne'er-do-weels seldom were welcomed back. But we had to remember that Christ used the elder son to signify the haughty and unmerciful religious leaders of His day.

Sir Hall Cain's novel, "The Prodigal," which has been filmed as well as dramatized, depicts the returning wanderer being turned away and refused a welcome. But the Bible story shows a better way.

Mr. Lamont carried his listeners back to old Jerusalem to see the unforgiving, self-righteous Pharisees quail under the chiding of Him who "spake as never man spake": he carried the prodigal forward on the down-grade trail to the far country of twentieth century depression and unemployment. Disillusioned, he learned three lessons, which the depression has taught many in our own time. He learned the comparative worthlessness of material things. He also learned to criticize himself, not others. If a man sets up in business, and thinks he cannot learn anything from the man across the street who has been running the same kind of business for twenty years, that man is hopeless. Finally, he learned that there were old things worth returning to. In our modern world of new ideas, new methods, new sciences, the Ancient of Days and His promises are worthy of our trust.

Brown, the latter's was the only one to register a win. Mrs. Brown's rink defeated Mrs. W. S. McLaren's Ormstown four by a 9-13 score and returned to Howick this morning to continue in the play downs.

Mrs. McGill lost to an Aubrey rink skipped by Mrs. J. Gruer, 11-12 while Mrs. Philps was defeated in her first game 9-5 by Mrs. J. Angell of Aubrey, and dropped her second match to Mrs. W. E. Logan of Howick, 14-7.

Mrs. J. Wilson, lead, Mrs. W. J. Goundrey, Mrs. E. I. Thomas, Mrs. E. Brown.

Quebec Minority Representation At Coronation

Premier Maurice Duplessis has intimated that he intends to attend the Coronation of King George VI. Only pressure of legislative business at Quebec will prevent his attending. The Quebec Government, it is generally understood, will be represented by at least one French speaking minister and perhaps by one of the Montreal District cabinet members.

Montreal has two English speaking ministers without portfolio, but we would all like to see our member the Hon. Martin B. Fisher, the Provincial Treasurer and Mrs. Fisher representing the English speaking minority of Quebec Province at the Coronation.

HEADSMAN TIRED OUT

Since the French revolution a Deibler has been the official executioner of France. This job has been handed down from father to son, the present headsman being Anatole Diebler, 68, who recently beheaded his 260th victim during his term of office of 36 years. He is tired of his profession and would like to give it up, but none of his sons or any other relative will have it. The French government is faced with establishing a new "dynasty" of executioners.

JAIL PREFERRED

Most of the last 20 years of his life, Nick John has spent in the county prison at Buffalo, N.Y. During this time, he has worked up to head baker in the prison bakery. He was released recently, after finishing his term, but a few days afterward returned and asked to be given his old place. The warden took his case up with Judge Clifford Chipman who, after hearing John's story, gave him a six-month sentence admonishing him to try to "adjust" himself so he could live outside of jail after that.

Position Quebec Milk Producers Is Believed Best in All Canada

Other speakers were: H. C. Bois, chairman of the Quebec Dairy Commission, and H. Lafresniere, Dairy Commissioner. Besides the speakers those at the head table were: A. D. McDougall, Maxville, Ont.; Leon Barre; W. Poulin, Marieville; W. L. Carr, Huntingdon; W. W. Moore, secretary of the association; Marc Hudon, secretary, Quebec Dairy Commission; David Black, Lachute; Joseph P. Beauchemin, Vercheres, and R. P. Charbonneau, regional agronomist, Montreal.

Directors of the milk producers' association for the coming year are: H. W. Goodenough, Richmond; David Black, Lachute; J. P. Beauchemin, Vercheres; W. Poulin, Marieville; A. D. McDougall, Maxville, Ont.; John K. Dickson, Ormstown; and W. L. Carr, Huntingdon.

Along Canada Mining Highway

The Larder Lake Mining Camp in Ontario close to the Quebec boundary is developing rapidly.

January has provided a market sensation with the Kerr Addison property of Larder Lake. Beginning the month the shares of this company were quoted at 45c and have since advanced rapidly until at present they are quoted at $1.80.

Kerr Addison is located at the north end of the East arm of Larder Lake with Martin Bird located at the south end of the arm.

Omega is to the West, in the west central section of the Lake.

Kerr Addison was originally the Dr. Reddick property discovered 30 years ago. Previous underground operations seemingly missed the new ore bodies now being discovered.

Martin Bird is driving underground for the ore zones discovered by diamond drilling.

Omega is gradually stepping up milling output preparatory to highly profitable production.

All signs indicate that the Larder Lake District now serviced with excellent transportation facilities by the Kirkland Lake-Noranda Highway, and the Nipissing Central Railway, is to become an important mining camp.

The buying up of property in the district is proceeding apace with values rising rapidly.

Farther east in the Pelletier Lake section of Quebec in which Stadacona and Astoria are reporting highly favourable results, there is much favourable comment. (Advt.)

Midnight and Percy Jones

Chapter 10

'And are keeping still about the arrest?" Blackwood shook his head. "I don't think so, Miss Gray. It's possible—but I doubt it. I'll find out, of course." He asked a question with some sharpness. "Is that what you are principally afraid of? That he committed this crime?"

"I don't know." The answer came slowly. 'It—crossed my mind—of course. But I don't believe it. I can't believe it. He may be dead. I've tortured myself with everything it was possible to think."

"Did he ever mention this Wingfield girl to you?"

"Never."

"Do the police know that you exist?"

"I can't imagine how. Do you mean—did I call them up? I didn't."

"Why did you come to me?"

'Your name was in the paper. I heard him—Percy—speak of you. Your interest in... crime."

"Not flatteringly, I should imagine," smiled Riley Blackwood. "We faintly... er... despised each other, I'm afraid." He began to pace the room. The ghost of the "Habanera" was on his puckered lips; but no sound of that bright melody was heard. He paused in front of her. "Who are you, Miss Gray?" he asked. "I mean... what do you do? How did you meet Percy? And so on?"

"I am a student—at the Art Institute. But my home is in Indiana. I live at a hotel, here—the Wyoming. I write a little, too. I wanted to do some work for the radio, if I could. So I wrote a letter to Percy—to Mr. Jones—and he invited me to meet him at the studio, one evening. That was how it happened."

"Do they know you at the studio?"

"Probably not," she said. 'I have never been there since. Apparently Percy thought it would be just as well if..."

'Quite so," said Blackwood.

Well, well, what a low-down this Percy was! And here he was endeavoring to clear the fellow. His old dislike of the announcer came back to him with redoubled vigor.

He shrugged. "It's quite possible that the police have found your letters to Percy—if you wrote any. And I suppose you did. They've found somebody's, anyway." It had been his notion that they were Rita's. "I suppose you ought to go to see them—the police, I mean. However, there's no rush about it! I'm—er—slightly looking into things myself. And, after all, you may hear from Percy before long. More likely you than anyone else."

"Mr. Blackwood," she cried. "where is he? Where can he be?"

Mr. Blackwood endeavored to organize his thought. His ideas, he realized, were somewhat raddled. "I don't know," he confessed. "If you hear from him you must let me know at once. You've given me a number of things to think about. I've never believed that he committed the murder, if it's any comfort to you."

As he looked at her now, the light was shining in her upturned face and striking with lambent radiance upon her brow. Mr. Blackwood experienced an ugly shock.

"Um—er—Miss Gray!" he finally said, "is it possible that you have red hair?"

She seemed surprised and troubled, and her hand pushed upward to touch the tawny masses under her ridiculous hat.

"Why," she replied, "I suppose I have, Mr. Blackwood—if you can call it red. But it isn't so very red, you know. And what difference does it make?"

Mr. Blackwood was dismayed. He took himself in hand with earnest discipline. "Forgive me!" he begged. "I have an appalling sense of humor. It is simply that I adore red hair. Be quite certain that I am as eager to find Percy Jones as you are. And thank you very much for coming to me."

But he knew that she was suspicious of him when she went away. No more suspicious, however, than he was of her. Did she know that also? If she were not as innocent as she appeared to be, there was no doubt whatever that she did.

As for Percy, he reflected, he would find him if it were the last thing he did on earth.

He dined with Widdowson, his friend who was the proprietor of the large Hotel Granada, in the Loop, and entertained that tavernkeeper with a hilarious account of the entire adventure.

"One of these days," said Widdowson, "you'll let in somebody just a little smarter than yourself; and I'll be carrying the north-east corner of your coffin." He helped himself to celery. "What do you think of the young lady's suggestion that Percy may be in the lake?"

"If she's the redhead who drove off with him in her car, I'm willing to admit she may have private information. If she isn't she's simply frightened."

"Percy may even have jumped in the lake! That wasn't what she meant, of course, but..."

"He may," admitted Blackwood, "but it strikes me as slightly unlikely. Percy is not the sort to take his own life—in any circumstances. He values it too highly. One thing seems fairly certain, though. Either Percy's guilty or he's being framed. I don't believe those matches were an accident—without bearing on the murder. And considering all the circumstances, including this last one, his disappearance is fairly well established."

"He may have been kidnaped," Widdowson suggested.

"He may," agreed Blackwood. 'But he may also be keeping out of sight, and doing it deliberately. He didn't commit the murder, but he's involved by it—somehow! He's been framed; and he knows it." Blackwood shrugged. "Anyway, Tony, as usual, I want something. You're a hotel man. I want you to look into a hotel for me."

"Yes?"

"The Wyoming. Will you do it?"

"Oh yes," said Widdowson, "I'll do it. But I wish you'd leave these matters alone, Riley, when they don't concern you. For the love uv Mike, what do you care what's happened to Percy Jones?"

"Not a hoot," admitted Blackwood cheerily. "If he's been silenced, then he's the first of his tribe. And his silencer should receive a medal. 'Publico consilio pro re in camera gesta'—eh? By public acclaim for a deed accomplished in private! I hope you remember your Latin."

"Why not drop it then?" Widdowson ignored the persiflage.

"Just the old hound of justice on the trail again. The old puzzle-solver, Tony. I'm adding this case to my collection."

"And the redhead too, perhaps?"

"What a disreputable mind you have, Mr. Widdowson!"

"She may be the redhead at that, you know."

"You mean Miss Gray? I recognize that possibility, my dear man."

"What about Zelda Lansing?"

"Well, what about her? Are you suggesting that she too may be the readhead? It isn't possible. She was around at Janice Hume's party most of the time. She doesn't fit into the time schedule."

Widdowson looked at him over the rim of his cup. "Her appointment with the Hindu is surely very suspicious."

"Very, indeed!"

"She may very well have had a paper of Percy's matches," continued Widdowson, "and if she did..."

Blackwood interrupted with some violence. "Of course, Tony!" he exclaimed, "What an ass I've been! Of course she may. She may have furnished them for the purposes of the frame-up. I was so proud of my confounded deduction that the redhead got them in the car that I overlooked it."

Tony Widdowson was pleased with himself. "Any other little thing that you would like to have explained," he began, "just call on the old hotel man. In addition to my other duties, I may find time occasionally to instruct you a little in..." He put up an elbow in self-protection. "All right, all right! I'll see what I can find out for you. You want to know, of course, anything at all that I can discover about Miss Gray."

"That's it precisely. Where was she after seven o'clock last night? That's the important question. Even more important: where was she between eleven-thirty and one? Do you want to see a show tonight?"

"I do not," said Widdowson. He added, "Of course you realize that in only one possible circumstance can Percy have been the victim of a frame-up. That is, if the matches were placed there deliberately. There are a hundred other explanations of their presence, all perfectly innocent."

"A thousand, at least," amended Blackwood. "But the indications are that none of the circumstances surrounding this affair are innocent. For that matter, there is only one possible circumstance in which Percy can be believed guilty of the murder—that is, that after committing it he accidentally left the matches there himself. Yet it's precisely what the police believe."

In excellent spirits he took himself off to the studio and listened while some singularly obnoxious entertainment was dished up for a multitude of invisible citizens who, upon the whole, deserved no better.

Chapter 11

The studio manager was happy to see Riley Blackwood, although they were only slightly acquainted. "What can I do for you, old man?" he asked familiarly. "Like to take a turn on the air?"

"'This is the Oil of Wintergreen program, with Lotta Wintergreen,'" said Riley Blackwood. "'Mothers, here's a tip for you. Oil of Wintergreen can be had in fourteen assorted flavors including raspberry and orange, and is particularly recommended for dyeing curtains. It...'"

The studio manager smiled. "I know, I know," he interrupted sadly. "What do you know about Percy Jones?" asked Blackwood.

"He hasn't showed up yet." The executive spread his hands. "There's a detective waiting for him."

"I see!" Blackwood looked across the cluttered chamber to where a group of privileged spectators were seated. "Oh, it's Nethersole," he said.

He stared across the room until he caught the detective sergeant's eye, then motioned him outside. Nethersole obeyed the summons nervously.

"I'm almost scared to talk with you, Mr. Blackwood," grinned the big detective. "Dallas gave me hell for letting you in last night."

"He was courteous enough to me today," said Blackwood. "He'd found something at Percy's rooms that pleased him. He was feeling proud of himself. Some letters, I think."

"Yeah?"

Sergeant Nethersole was cautious. 'You don't know what they were?"

"Honest, I don't."

"Tell me one thing, Nethersole. He hasn't found Percy yet, has he?"

"Not that I know of. That's straight, Mr. Blackwood! I'd hardly be here, would I, if he had?"

"Perhaps not," admitted Blackwood. "Silly question—what? But you might be looking for a redhead."

"I'm not finding any," said Nethersole.

"None here last night?"

"Well, yes—a couple. Don't say I said so. They were on the program, though. This manager—Vardon—doesn't know anything about the audience. He didn't notice anybody leave with Percy. That's what he says, anyway."

Blackwood sighed. "Two more, eh?" he commented wearily. "Both professionals. Who are they Nethersole?"

"Ray Rood and Marta Wilson are their names." Nethersole spoke reluctantly, but he was fond of Blackwood and didn't like to turn him down.

"Hmph!" Mr. Blackwood made a regal gesture. "Well, you can have 'em, Nethersole. Life's too short to round up all the redheads."

There was little to be gained, he reflected, by hanging around the studio. With the police in charge, there was small hope of any individual triumph. And, anyway, he doubted that there was anything important being concealed at this point of the trail.

Besides, he had other fish to fry. There was still the matter of Zelda Lansing and the Hindu to look into. It promised better than anything the studio could offer.

He was grateful to his hotel proprietor friend, Tony Widdowson, for his suggestion about Zelda. The suspicion piling up against that young woman was considerable. Why, unless she were desperately afraid, had she dodged a meeting with him? Why had she suggested, or countenanced, the ridiculous falsehood at the Hindu's flat—the statement that he was alone, that nobody had been there.

How good was her own alibi, for that matter? There was Janice Hume's party, to be sure; but who could be certain she had not left it for ten minutes and descended to another apartment? Any one of them there might have vanished for a time and no one have been any the wiser.

He determined to ask Janice Hume some leading questions.

In a short time he was getting out of a cab again at the doors of the tall building at 1140 Lake Shore Drive.

He had dined late with Widdowson, and the subsequent visit to the studio had taken time. It was now close to ten o'clock. He glanced around for the doorman, but the man was not in view. A lot of protection those babies were to anybody!

A light burned in the lobby, lanterned behind red glass. The elevators were on either side. Beneath the light a door was smugly closed. It revealed no purpose on its panels, but was obviously an entrance to a passage leading to the rear. Blackwood tried it gently. The door was not locked...

The tunnel behind it was even darker than he had imagined.

On an impulse he entered into blackness and brought up safely before another door. It opened without difficulty, and he stepped out into a brick-paved courtyard.

As now viewed, the building was in two sections. Above him, as he looked upward—and separating the two halves of the building—soared the modernistic angles of the fire escape, climbing dizzily into murk and mystery. He recalled the housekeeper's window. It was a small point, yet not without its interest.

A number of lights were still burning; and one—he counted upward on the right—was almost certainly Janice's.

"One, two, three, four..." Yep, eleven!

He counted three floors downward; but the Wingfield windows were quite dark. No doubt the body had been removed. And the deaf housekeeper—what did happen to housekeepers, he wondered.

A whimsical desire seized him to climb the long diagonal ladders to the eleventh floor and burst upon the lovely widow with dramatic suddenness. But he put the feat from his mind as undignified, and probably impossible. He was no acrobat, and the last section of the escape was nearly a dozen feet above his head.

These men are guarding the talk tracks, "plugging-in" on threatened localities whenever sleet or snow or wind endanger—arranging alternate routes to maintain service under all conditions.

Like every telephone employee—linemen, installers, operators, supervisors, engineers, clerical forces—their watchword is—"The call must go through!"

Telephone employees appreciate the intimate quality of a telephone call . . . how vastly important it may be . . . the need for accuracy, speed, courtesy, helpfulness.

Their concern for the high character of telephone service accounts as much as anything else for the leadership of this Dominion in telephone usage. Telephone calls per capita in Canada exceed the usage of any other country.

Users are continually voicing their appreciation of the service of telephone workers. They tell us of lives saved, of disasters averted, of emergencies surmounted.

There is no service of which public appreciation is so freely expressed, so gratefully acknowledged. The long record of testimony is one of the prized rewards of an exacting occupation.

We pay this public tribute to our telephone workers of all ranks—everywhere.

NEWS from AROUND the WORLD

Swollen waters of the Ohio and Mississippi rivers roared across the southern United States throughout the week, leaving 700,00 homeless and killing 100. The flood is said to be one of the worst in the history of this flood ridden section of the country.

Damage is almost incalculable and fire, darkness, cold and disease have multiplied the terror of the raging waters.

Red Cross authorities who are making a frantic effort to give aid to the stricken area, said that the disaster was the worst the organization ever had to contend with. Typhoid and pneumonia epidemics are spreading, adding to the despair and misery of the people.

A $1,500,000 fire in Cincinnati added to the horror of the floods. Thirty-two buildings burned while flood waters rose and 1000 National Guardsmen had to be mobilized as a state of emergency was proclaimed. Flood waters had already done $5,000,000 worth of damage in the city.

Ten states were affected by the deluge and many sections of the country had to be put under martial law to cope with the situation. Twelve rioting convicts at Frankfort, Ky., were drowned in their flood swept prison.

The heart of Madrid was ripped and torn by high explosive rebel shells during the week in a renewed insurgent attack. The bombing lasted for eighty minutes without a stop, one of the most intensive of the campaign to date. Apart from this one attack of concentrated shelling the same old story of buildings blasted, people killed and wounded and more terror, more horror, and more bloody Spanish war, holds true. People in the city say that the rebels have expert Germans manning their guns as their marksmanship is getting better and more deadlier. There are so many shell holes in the streets that inhabitants of the city are unable to notice new ones readily unless they are especially conspicious.

17 men charged with plotting to overthrow Josef Stalin and his communistic government are on trial for their lives in Russia. Karl Radek, leader of the group has confessed his guilt on all the charges made against him and involved Japan and Germany in his confession. He said aid for the overthrow of the government was promised from these countries and Germany was to get the Ukraine and Japan the Sea States for compensation.

You can find out your friend's age or birthday or anything else you want to know with the following puzzle: If you want to find out his age, for instance, ask him to tell what columns the numbers appear in. All you have to do then is to add up the figures at the head of these columns and the total gives you the answer. If he is 22 you find that number in the 2nd, 3rd and the 5th columns. Following the above instructions you see that 16, 4, and 2 makes 22.

A FACT A DAY ABOUT CANADA

Armament Factories

There are no rifle or gun factories in Canada. The only rifle made entirely here with the exception of the stocks which are made from imported walnut are the .22 calibre rifles. The output of the single shot .22 far exceeds that of the repeater which is much more expensive. Gun production here is mostly an assembling business. The small market for firearms in this country hardly warrants the setting up of a plant for their manufacture.

Races in Canada

There are over 1,230,000 people of Irish origin in Canada and the males outnumber the females by 30,000. Irish people have one child one year old for every 62 grown ups, the English have one for every 61, the Scotch one for every 64 and the French one for every 40, while Canadians have one for every 51 adults. The Irish are not city dwellers. Decidedly more than half of the Irish settlers here are living on farms and in rural communities. The Hebrews and Italians are foremost among the foreigners who favor city homes and city work.

Canadian Languages

There are thirty languages spoken in the Dominion. English, of course is the language used most as it is the mother tongue of more than half the population. French comes next, spoken by nearly 2,800,000 and German is third with 360,000. The Ukrainian language is used by more than a quarter million people and Polish comes fifth with 118,000.

Farm Students Clever?

Farm boys who attend university are not cleverer than their city cousins it has been proved. For many years this was a very popular belief. There are twice as many city boys per capita attending school than there are country boys. This means that only the very smartest boys in the country are going to school. This percentage drops even further at College and there, there are only one third as many boys from the farm as there are from the city. Thus only the very brightest rural students are sent to get the university training. It is natural then that the total rural boy's percentage in college would be higher, but that doesn't necessarily mean that he is cleverer.

More Illiteracy Among Men

There is more illiteracy among the men and boys of Canada than there is among the girls and women. The women of Canada get nearly a half a year more education than the men. From the rural communities at least, a far higher proportion of girls go in for higher education. At the universities there are still about two or three men graduates to every woman, but more women are attending the places of higher learning every year.

A Dead Business

"Through all our lives we are surrounded by wood—from the cradle to the coffin," somebody once said. Sixty three thousand caskets, nine thousand coffins, and forty six thousand rough boxes are made in Canada every year, by 43 different factories with a total value of more than two and a half million dollars. The first wooden coffin was made from a hollowed tree trunk, and the Egyptians, Greeks and Romans used them. The Chinese bury their dead in junks while our American Indians use canoes. The Vickings sent their departed spirits on their last voyage in flaming ships.

Women in Business

Statistics show that women are shoving men out of the business world. Since pre war years the number of women and girls in money-making jobs has practically doubled, while the position of men in gainful occupations has increased by one half. The increase for youths between the ages of 15 and 25 has been about one fifth. Young men of these ages are one third more numerous than they were twenty years ago, but there are only one fifth more jobs for them. Girls between 15 and 25 are one half as numerous as in pre-war years yet jobs for them are four-fifths more plentiful.

STUCK ON ALL SIDES

Robert Vaughn, driving his taxi with two passengers on an unpaved street at Oklahoma City, Okla., became stuck in the mud. He turned and remarked: "Well, it looks like I'm stuck." "Yes," answered one, producing a gun, "you are." The fares then waded off with his $4.35, Vaughn complained to police.

The Flying Frenchmen are flying higher than ever and humbled the Hawks Saturday night to tighten their hold on first position in the Canadian section of the N. H. L. race. Canadiens now have an eight point margin over their arch enemies, Maroons, who are trailing along in second place.

Maroons tied, lost to Detroit over the week-end to gain one point and keep their slim margin over the up and coming Toronto Maple Leafs. Toronto whitewashed the Rangers in the Maple Leaf arena Saturday night but had to take a 4-2 loss in the second game at New York Sunday night.

Hostilities opened between the teams Saturday night broke into open flame when they met at New York Sunday and Conny Smythe, fiery Leaf boss, took a swing at the jaw of Art Coulter who plays defence for the American team.

Sweeny Schriner, American's smooth centre player, threatened Larry Aurie's hold on the scoring leadership of the league by picking up six points during the week and coming within one point of the sharp-shooting Detroit star. Schriner now has 28 points while Gagnon is holding second place with 26. Busher Jackson is occupying the third spot with 25.

THE PHILOSOPHER

I saw him sitting in his door,
Trembling as old men do;
His house was old, his barn was old,
And yet his eyes seemed new.

His eyes had seen three times my years,
And kept a twinkle still,
Though they had looked at birth and death
And three graves on a hill.

"I will sit down with you," I said,
"And you will make me wise;
Tell me how you have kept the joy
Still burning in your eyes."

Then, like an old time orator
Impressively he arose;
"I make the most of all that comes,
And the least of all that goes."

The jingling rhythm of his words
Echoed as old songs do;
Yet this had kept his eyes alight
Till he was ninety-two.

—Sara Teasdale.

Rabbit Maranville is losing no time in grooming the Montreal Royals also for the opening of the baseball season. The Rabbit has been busy rounding up all likely looking prospects and now has the embryo of a very good ball club. He figures he can put a winning team on the diamond.

Joe Louis, in perfect fighting trim and tipping the Fairbanks Morse at 202 is getting ready for his next bout against Bob Pastor in Madison Square Garden, New York this Friday night. Observers claim the Brown Bomber is in perfect shape and will drape the former sailor over the ropes before the third round. Louis is taking a lot of these fights in preparation for his big bout with the winner of the Jimmy Braddock-Max Schmeling fight next June.

Tony Manero is now the biggest money winner in the United States golf world. The Open Champion won $16,000 last year and is piling up the gold pieces at a faster rate than any golfer since the time of Gene Sarazen. His consistent winning form demonstrates that his defeat of Harry Cooper in a record breaking finish at Balustrol was no fluke.

Vines and Perry are all square at 5 sets apiece in the exhibition tennis tour which they are conducting throughout key cities in the United States and Canada. Perry has held the lead in games for the most part during the series but Vines defeated the bounding Briton at College Park, Maryland, recently, to bring the sets to five all.

Short Notes.....Grover Cleveland Alexander, one of the best pitchers baseball has ever seen, one time member of the "Cubs" pitching corps brought forth many interesting sidelights on his baseball career from a sick bed at Springfield, Ill .....Alexander says the greatest hitter he ever had to pitch to was Roger Hornsby.. Hornsby he says would stand several feet from the plate and when the ball was thrown would step up to it. His peculiar stance at the plate fooled the pitcher so that he never knew where to throw the ball.....Alexander thinks "Dizzy" Dean one of the greatest hurlers of modern times and claims that Dean's loud mouth is helping more than hindering him.

Silk Team in 1st Place in Standings

Defeat Canadiens Monday Night 5-1, to Take Over League Leadership

The high-stepping Windsor Silk team took Canadiens in their stride in a scheduled league fixture at the Huntingdon rink Monday night, handed their opponents a 5-1 drubbing and took undisputed possession of first place in the league standings.

McGill, in the Windsor nets, continuing the sensational form that saw him stop the Textilers on Saturday night had to call on all his goal-keeping wizardry to hold the hard working Canadiens off the score sheet. The lanky Windsor goaler made only one mistake all night. That was in the first period when J. C. Lefebvre scooped up a pass from Leduc in the shadow of the goal and drilled a hot shot to the narrow side of the net. After that he was invincible and his judgment in outguessing the Canadien sharpshooters was uncanny.

Howie Grant set the Canadiens back on their heels with his stick-handling magic. He scored in the first period unassisted, then flashed the light a few minutes later on a pass, and added a third counter in the second session after a clever piece of manoeuvering in front of the Canadien net. Numerous other times he laid tailor-made passes on team-mates' sticks but their shots were smothered by Ric Lefebvre.

The game was not as fast as the Saturday night affair, partly due to the softer ice. Bodychecks were handed around in good style and tempers flared several times. Reg. Daniels was all ready to mix it up with Beaudin in the final period but was held back by team-mates. He received a major penalty for his pugilistic tendencies.

With three minutes to go in the final period Leo Cappiello took Ric Lefebvre out of the nets and put six forwards on the ice in a desperate effort to tie the score. Windsor Silks crossed him up on this bit of strategy by scoring in an empty net on a shot from centre ice.

Jack Kerby, J. C. Lefebvre and Leduc led the Canadiens' attack and had McGill worried every time they came near the net. Eddie Cappiello on defence also played a hard game for the losers.

Jack Kerby suffered a bad cut over the eye from a high stick in the first period. The game was held up five minutes while he was receiving repairs.

Line up:

Canadiens: goal, R. Lefebvre; defence, L. Cappiello, Bertrand, Bolduc, Rodrigue; forwards, Kerby, A. Lefebvre, J. C. Lefebvre, Varin, Beaudin, Leduc, C. Laberge.

Windsor Silks: goal McGill; defence, Grant, Daniels, Hay, Cahill; forwards, J. Lasalle, Boyd, G. Lasalle, Tedstone, Kerby, Loiselle, MacPherson.

Because a London newspaper published a story telling how Mrs. Stockwell R. Albertini, wife of an American millionaire, spent $5,000 on a party, she sued the paper for libel. Justice Swift, who heard the case, ruled the party was a matter of public interest and therefore legitimate news.

DO THIS FOR A COLD

1 Take 2 "Aspirin" tablets with a full glass of water at first sign of a cold.

2 If throat is sore, gargle twice with 3 "Aspirin" tablets dissolved in ½ glass water.

Quick Relief with 2 "ASPIRIN" Tablets

The modern way to treat a cold is this: Two "Aspirin" tablets the moment you feel a cold coming on. Repeat, if necessary, in two hours. If you have a sore throat with the cold, dissolve 3 "Aspirin" tablets in ½ glass of water and gargle with this twice. The "Aspirin" you take internally will act to combat fever, aches, pains and the cold itself. The gargle will provide almost instant relief from soreness and rawness of your throat. Your doctor, we feel sure, will approve this modern way of treating a cold.

● "Aspirin" tablets are made in Canada by the Bayer Company, Limited, of Windsor, Ontario.

SCHOOL NOTES

The following is an excerpt from an address given at Stratford, Ont. Monday by Dr. H. A. Bruce, lieutenant-governor of the province, in which he condemns school examinations: "Ability, personality and character are far more important than ability at memorizing studies for written examinations," he says. He favors students being judged on the work of a term rather than being judged entirely on their written examinations.

Athelstan

The first "Thimble Tea" under the auspices of the Woman's Missionary Society was held Tuesday afternoon at the home of Mrs. Gardner. A pleasant time was spent and the hostess served dainty refreshments at the tea hour.

Several from this community took advantage of the excursion via N.Y.C. to Montreal last week-end.

On Tuesday evening the congregations of Powerscourt and Athelstan held their annual congregational meeting in Munro Hall. There was a good attendance and reports from the various organizations were very encouraging, showing splendid work done throughout the year and substantial balances to commence the present year. A vote of thanks was tendered Rev. J. H. Woodside, for his untiring and faithful services during the past year. Oysters were served at the close of the meeting and a sociable hour enjoyed.

Thursday afternoon the W.M.S. met at the home of Mrs. E. A. McHardy. The devotional theme "Jesus, the Friend of Women and Children" was most interesting, as was also the item from the Study book. Several members participated. The Temperance and Christian Stewardship papers read were very helpful. This organization again reached its allocation and the bales sent throughout the year were much appreciated by the Supply Secretary in Montreal. Delegates were appointed to Presbyterial in February. Other business was planned. At the close, the hostess served light refreshments.

League Hockey Gossip

The Windsor Silks have taken sole possession of first place in the standings with two victories and no defeats. The team that was expected to occupy the cellar spot in the league has been on the warpath ever since the series started. They took the Textilers and Canadiens into camp by wide margins and will be after the Ormstown scalps when the two teams meet tomorrow night.

The standing of the teams is as follows:

	P	W	L	F	A	P
Windsor Silks	2	2	0	11	4	4
Ormstown	2	1	1	12	8	2
Canadiens	2	1	1	6	7	2
Leach Textiles	2	0	2	6	16	0

Howie Grant of the Windsor Silks and Johnny Campbell of Ormstown still have comfortable leads in the race for individual scoring honours. Both have scored five goals and have two assists to their credit.

The rink directorate have been approached about arranging a contest in connection with the games played during the week of February 1st to 8th. Prizes for the players on the winning team will be passes to the Malone Theatre for the picture "One in a Million."

McGill has a good start in the race for goalkeeping honours. The Windsor Silk custodian has been scored on only four times while sixteen pucks have been fished out of the Textile nets.

Unfavourable weather conditions have been playing havoc with the schedule. Only four of the scheduled 12 games have been played and two of these were on soft ice. The ice was like butter for the Ormstown Canadien battle Thursday night and was soft for the Windsor Canadien game on Monday.

Tempers were at the boiling point in the Windsor-Canadien tussle. Daniel and Beaudin nearly came to blows while a scuffle between Faille, Leach Captain, and Walter Patterson, League Secretary, at the conclusion of the game, caused plenty of excitement.

Dave Ross, league goal judge, was in a dilemna at Thursday night's game. When the fire siren blew announcing the fire at the Derochie house he was torn between his devotion to duty and his passion for attending fires. Luckily the incident occurred at the end of the period so Dave was able to find all about the fire without neglecting his goal judging duties.

Red White played in Saturday night's game was a cracked rib, the result of a stiff bodycheck from Merle McWhinnie in last Wednesday practice session.

It is rumoured that Canadiens have secured a new defenceman for Monday night's game with Leach. The new man tips the scales at 180 and is a boxer of considerable note.

Leach Team Loses Second League Game

Defeated by Windsor Silks In Fast Game Here Saturday Night

In a regular hockey league game on Saturday night at the Huntingdon Arena, the Windsor Silk team led by Howie Grant, Boyd and LaSalle defeated the Leach Textile aggregation by the score of 6-3. The game was very fast throughout the whole three periods and provided much excitement. A good crowd was on hand to witness the contest.

In the first minutes of the game Boyd taking the puck at his own defense passed it to Grant in front of the Leach nets to score the first goal. A few minutes before the period ended MacPherson received a pass from LaSalle and scored the second goal for the Silk team. Cecil Tedstone was penalised in this period for tripping, but in his absence the Leach team was unable to score.

In the second period Leach attacked constantly in the Windsor territory and before the period was half over they had evened the count. On the other hand, Windsor with two minutes to go in the same period, scored twice to make the count 4-2 in their favor. These counters were made by MacPherson and Boyd individually. Brownrigg and Faille were penalized in this second stanza.

Faille scored for Leach after five minutes of play had elapsed in the last frame but Grant, leading two Windsor attacks gave his team a decided lead and assured his teammates a victory. Lasalle received an assist on Grant's first goal, while Grant and Lasalle made the play for MacPherson's final goal of the game. Lasalle and Faille were penalized for high sticks.

The Leach team attacked constantly in the last minutes of the game but McGill rose to great heights and robbed the Leach team, on three different occasions, of sure goals.

Faille, Fortune and Wilson played a good game for the losers and were dangerous at all times. C. Grant and Daniel handed out many bodychecks during the game.

Hunter, who was making his first appearance in four years as goaler, gave a good account of himself in spite of his lack of practise.

Apple Mincemeat

Apple or green mincemeat for pie is made as follows:—

2 cups chopped tart Canadian-grown apples
1½ quarts sliced green tomatoes
1 chopped orange
3 cups medium brown sugar
2 tablespoons mixed ground spice
1 pound raisins

Sprinkle tomatoes with salt and let stand overnight; then drain and chop fine. Add apples and orange; simmer two hours, then add remaining ingredients and simmer 1 hour. As the mincemeat will keep indefinitely if properly canned in sterile jars while boiling hot, a larger quantity can be made at one time.

A student writing an essay on Henry VIII comments: "At this time it was difficult for Henry to walk because he had an abess on his knee."

He: "Dear, I wish you could see the altar in our church."
She: "Please lead me to it."

NO TAIL LIGHT

While Geraldine Oldek, Yonkers, N.Y., was out horseback riding, Frank Goldblatt, in his car, bumped into her mount. Miss Oldek sued Goldblatt for $15,000 damages for sufferings to herself and horse. Goldblatt's defence was that the mishap ocurred at night, and if the horse had carried a headlight and tail light, as is required of all "vehicles" after nightfall, there would have been no collision. Goldblatt won his case.

DUMMY TALKS "RED"

A ventriloquist's dummy which could not resist the temptation to make communist speeches got its master into trouble at Poynan, Poland. Police discovered the wooden-jawed little gentleman sitting on another gentleman's lap was using only the usual line of comic talk to attract a crowd at country fairs. Once the audience was on hand, with no policemen about, the dummy would drop its joking and launch into a political harangue. Now the dummy has lost his "boice". The ventriloquist was sentenced to eight months' imprisonment.

The little hamlet of Cottardi, Wash., has seen its first automobile. Vern Hoskins, construction engineer, drove his car into the town over a road now under construction. In the past travel in and out of Cottardi, on the Lower Columbus river, has been possible only by boat.
