On Monday morning the ministers of all the various denominations of Shawville district organized themselves into the Clarendon Ministerial Association in a meeting held with ten present at the parsonage of the Shawville United Church.

The association set as its object, the mutual fellowship and inspiration of the ministers, and the studying of the problems of religion and morals in the community, that are of common interest to all churches.

The chairman elected was Rev. K. C. Bolton, of St. Paul's Anglican Church, and the secretary was Rev. N. T. Holmes, of Yarm United church. It was decided to meet on the third morning of each month, the membership consisting of all the pastors of the churches of Clarendon and Shawville.

Plans were made to present the views of the association to the various authorities of the district, and increase the loyalty and attendance of all in the community to their various church services.

Large Attendance at Shawville's 87th Fair

Livestock Exhibit Very Creditable

Shawville's 87th annual exhibition and 5th Wartime Fair, functioned on Thursday, Friday and Saturday of last week, and considering the retarded harvesting season, shortage of farm help and other derogatory and abnormal circumstances, the show was very successful.

Although Friday—School day—was very chilly, a large crowd entered the grounds at an early hour. The children were rather disappointed that all of the midway, supplied by Daniel's Greater Shows, had not all been assembled at this time, due to delayed train service, and it was not until the evening show that all the rides, bingo games, etc. got operating.

Despite increasingly cold weather—real frost—the night show on Friday drew the largest attendance since its inception ten years ago, and proves that this feature of the Fair is gaining recognition throughout the district.

Ideal weather prevailed for Saturday's show, when attendance was almost as large as last year's all-time record.

As was generally expected, the exhibit in every department was much short of other years. However, in the horse and cattle sections the showings appeared much the same.

On account of the shortage of help, many of the local Holstein breeders, were unable to bring their animals out. The competition in Ayrshires was keen and the general exhibit was larger than last year. Jersey and Durham herds numbered about the same as last year. Light horse classes were well filled, but the showing of Agricultural horses, particularly young animals, was much below previous years. There was a particularly fine showing of Agricultural teams, hitched, and in this section showmanship appeared much improved.

Industrial exhibits in the main Hall, dwindled down to displays of feeds by the Shawville Milling Co., and the Ottawa Valley Grain Products, Renfrew.

A fairly large entry in roots and vegetables was written up, but owing to the rainy weather prior to days of the Fair, there was a small display on the stands.

Entries in the dairy department were scanty in comparison with other years.

Upstairs in the hall interesting displays by the local Junior Red Cross, Schools of Bristol and Osgoode were found, as well as showing of model airplanes by students of Shawville High School. Exhibits in needle work were almost as heavy as last year, but the falling off in the showings of plants and flowers was pitiful.

The County Women's Institutes displayed child's clothing and canning in the five compartments in their section of the building, and here also was found an excellent display of handicrafts by Circle de Firmier, Calumet Island.

Exhibits in poultry, sheep and swine were much below last year, but good quality was maintained in all sections.

At Friday night's show three silver cups were presented. On behalf of Shawville Creamery, Mr. A. G. Brough, the manager, presented two cups for the best dairy herds—Ayrshire and Holstein. The Ayrshire Cup, won by Geo. T. Dagg & Son, was accepted by Arthur Dagg, while the Holstein Cup, won by Jos. B. Kilgour & Son, was accepted by Arthur Kilgour.

Mr. L. A. Smart presented his Silver Cup for the best draft or Agricultural team, hitched, owned and exhibited by a bonified Pontiac farmer. The cup, originally donated by James A. Millar, Barrister, of Hull, became the property of Mr. Smart at last year's show, after winning it three successive years with his fine team of Percherons. Mr. Edwin Pirie, of Maryland, was the new winner with his trim span of Clydesdales.

Trials of speed on the main race track each day drew the attention of a large portion of the crowd, and these were the only sports events on the two day program. Three horses contested the 218 event on Friday, and four horses in each of a 227 and Free-for-all on Saturday (results will be found elsewhere in this issue.)

Capt. McCullough, of the Regiment de Hull, was in charge of a recruiting centre on the grounds for both days and delivered stirring appeals over the public address system at different intervals. On Saturday afternoon his efforts were augmented by the arrival of the Regiment de Hull Brass Band, which played lively military selections in front of the Grand Stand.

Dances in up-town halls were operated both evenings, and one in Wilson's Hall was under the auspices of Clarendon Women's Institute to raise funds for soldiers' Christmas boxes.

I FOUND A "BETTER WAY" TO CORRECT MY CONSTIPATION!

War means harder work for most of us. It's certainly no time to be handicapped by that common type of constipation caused by lack of "bulk" in the diet. If you have that trouble, here's a simple, enjoyable method that so many people use to correct the cause—they eat ALL-BRAN regularly instead of resorting to harsh purgatives that give only temporary relief.

This delicious cereal—it's grand tasting in muffins, too—keeps thousands regular, naturally... stops their trouble "before it starts". Try this pleasant plan. Eat KELLOGG'S ALL-BRAN every day... drink plenty of water... and see why it's called a "better way". Your favorite grocer has ALL-BRAN in two convenient sizes. Made by Kellogg's in London, Canada.

THE HUMAN COMEDY

"That's exactly the kind of voice we want for our singing telegrams," Spangler said.

CHAPTER I

Fleecy clouds floated over the little town of Ithaca, California. Above them, hovered the spirit of Matthew Macauley who, two years before, had departed on the mysterious journey of death.

As the clouds parted Matthew could see his homeland, vineyards, orchards, the church, little houses, all in scattered fragments, like life itself. He noted his tiny five-year-old son, Ulysses, staring at a gopher which had pushed up the dirt in the backyard. There, too, was sixteen-year-old Homer, living in a world of youth's creation, groping for the design of understanding, of faith and courage in life. Far off in an army camp was his eldest son, Marcus, proud of the uniform he wore, tenderly writing home to the folks. At home, under the lamp-light, he saw his dear wife, Katey, remembering him in her thoughts. In the songs she sang, in the Bible chapter she read each night to the family.

It was this protective, gentle spirit that filled young Homer, this day, as he hurried to the telegraph office after school. He had a job as a messenger boy. It had started yesterday. Now he was going to make good and help support the family. It was a proud and awesome thought for a young fellow to have.

Tom Spangler, manager of the office, watched him gravely as he tore in to report for duty. "Homer, how do you like being a messenger?"

Homer's blue eyes snapped. "I think it's great Mr. Spangler. You sure get to see a lot of different people and go to different places."

Spangler nodded. This kid had stuff. Honor. Ambition. And the capacity to be hurt. He'd be a fine, grown-up citizen one day. "Yeah. You're starting out all right. But don't kill yourself. Get there swiftly but not too fast. Be polite to everybody. Take off your cap in the elevators. Above all, never lose a telegram. If there's anything you don't understand come to me."

Homer shifted from one foot to the other. "Yes, sir. But about these singing telegrams..."

"Well? You've got a pretty good voice, haven't you?"

"They used to let me sing at the First Presbyterian Sunday School."

"That's fine," Spangler clapped him on the back. Over at the desk, Willie Grogan, the grey haired telegrapher, winked approval too. Spangler went on heartily: "That's exactly the kind of voice we want for our singing telegrams. Rich, full and kind. You see..."

He broke off. A young fellow, thin and shabby, was shuffling in. He silently handed Spangler a telegram, already written out. Spangler checked it. The boy was sending a message to his mother, asking for enough money to get home on.

Spangler tapped it thoughtfully. "It'll be about one in the morning when this arrives. Do you want them to wake your mother up at that hour?"

The boy coughed painfully. His eyes were scared. "I thought I could get the money tonight maybe. Even if it's late."

After about ten seconds Spangler nodded. "I'll rush it right through." He brought out some paper bills. "Here. Guess you're broke. You can pay me when your mother sends the money."

The boy gasped. Numbly, he took the money. Then he mumbled his thanks and rushed out.

Spangler stared after him. He had a momentary cynicism. Tough world. There was this lad, far from home, hungry, sick. And up on the hill lived lovely Diana Steed whose parents were rolling in dough. It was the only thing he had against her. But it was plenty. How could you know what made a girl tick when she'd been living like an orchid all her life? He sighed. "Guess I need a drink. I'll be over at Corbett's Bar if you want me."

Homer had been digesting the proceedings. Gosh! What a big heart that Mr. Spangler had. Imagine giving a lend of money just like that to a perfect stranger. It was like being Santa Claus or God or something.

"Homer." Willie Grogan was beckoning. On his desk there was a beautiful chocolate cream pie. He cut a slice each for Homer and himself. "Here my friend," he said heartily, "your very good health."

"Yes, sir. Your good health." Homer returned with a shy blush. They touched the edges of their pie in solemn toast.

Willie smiled like a cherub. "Homer, there are several things you should know. I shall on occasion ask you to run an errand for me. Or join me in song. And here's a delicate matter. In the event of drunkenness—mine, not yours—I shall ask of you a depth of understanding one may expect only from children."

Homer said uncertainly, "I've got a good understanding."

"That's fine," Grogan beamed and gulped a bit of pie. "Every night in this office I shall count on you to help me perform my duties. A splash of cold water on the face if I do not respond when touched, this to be followed by a cup of hot, black coffee from Corbetts..."

"Yes, sir," Homer memorized it aloud. "Splash of cold water... hot coffee from Corbetts..."

The telegraph box was rattling. Grogan's face became troubled as he took down the message from Washington, D. C. Softly, he hummed "Rock of Ages." He showed the message to Homer. It was for Mrs. Rose Sandoval on G. Street. "The Department of War regrets to inform you that your son, Juan Domingo Sandoval, has been killed in action in defense of Manila..."

Homer's eyes were wide and strained as he started off with the message of sorrow.

A half hour later he was bicycling his way back. Beads of sweat were on his forehead. As long as he lived he'd never forget Mrs. Sandoval's face as she read that telegram. She hadn't believed it at first. She had sat in a rocking chair and rooned and cradled an imaginary baby in her arms... her dead Juan Domingo. At last she had cried and only then did Homer know she would be all right.

His face was twisted with the suffering of that woman as he came into the office again. Then he stopped short. Grogan was in his chair, his head back, his mouth open. He was quite drunk. The telegraph box began to rattle.

Homer remembered his instructions. First, he threw a paper cupful of water in Grogan's face. Grogan began to revive. He was muttering, "That's right. Thank you boy..." as Homer dashed out for the coffee.

A few minutes later, with the coffee inside him, Grogan was almost himself again as he took another telegram off the wire. When he had completed the job he swung around in his swivel chair. "You did that remarkably well son. I congratulate you."

Homer gestured at the message. "Yes, sir. Thank you. Is that an important telegram?"

Grogan fingered it. "Business. The accumulating of money. Most unimportant. But important for me to receive it. They've been trying to retire me for ten years now." He pounded the desk unexpectedly. "But I've worked all my life and I'm not going to stop now. I'd die if I did."

Homer stared in wonder. "Why shouldn't you go on working? If a fellow wants to work nobody should stop him."

"Hah!" Grogan snorted. "I wish you'd explain that to the head office. Why I was the fastest telegrapher in the business and no mistakes either, mind you. Ah, sing me a song, boy. Protect me from the murder of age and time. Protect me with your songs and your dreams. Sing, boy!"

So Homer sang to him of the church in the wildwood, the church in the vale. But he was deeply troubled. He thought of that sick boy without money. Of Mrs. Sandoval and her dead son. Of poor old Grogan here who would die if he couldn't work.

It was very confusing. The world was full of good things and bad. The good things were human beings. But bad things happened to them. Then did that make the human beings bad?

(Without knowing it Homer is growing up. There is much in store for him that he cannot foresee. Be sure to read the next exciting chapter in which Homer comes to grips with a big problem.)

A CHAT ON PICKLES

The homemaker and the good provider of the family has always considered late August and September as the time when she makes a final inventory of the fruit storage and mentally or otherwise jots down her final list for her family's requirements.

We hear every day, "What about the sugar?" especially as the subject of pickles is mentioned. Do not be discouraged. Many pickle ventures are successful with little or no sugar and maybe you might make some of them your special favorites until our supply of sugar is once again back to normal.

This recipe has been tried and not found wanting, so I am passing it on to you.

Mixed Pickle (Using Saccharine)

- 1/2 cup salt
- 1 teaspoon powdered saccharine
- 2 tablespoons white mustard seed
- 2 tablespoons dry tumeric
- 1/4 teaspoon cayenne
- 1 teaspoon curry powder
- 1 cup corn syrup
- 8 cups cold vinegar (if strong, diluted)
- 8 good-sized cucumbers,
- 10 small green tomatoes
- 6 small onions
- 1 cup chopped celery

Combine dry ingredients very thoroughly. Mix to a smooth paste with one cup of vinegar. Add the corn syrup and rest of the vinegar. Place this dressing in large crock.

Wash the cucumbers and tomatoes (not peeled) and peel the onions. Cut all into small cubes. If you have not the celery add a teaspoon of celery salt to seasonings. Add prepared vegetables to the dressing in the crock and combine well. Cover crock in a cool place and stir twice a day for two weeks.

Fruit Relish

- 6 cups finely chopped celery
- 4 cups chopped apple
- 6 green peppers
- 6 sweet red peppers
- 1 tablespoon salt
- 1/2 lb. seedless raisins
- 2 cups corn syrup
- 2 cups cider vinegar (diluted)
- 1/2 cup water
- 2 sticks of cinnamon
- 6 cloves

Wash celery thoroughly, and chop fine. Combine with the apples which have been pared and cored, then put through the chopper, (medium knife). Combine celery, apples and peppers. Mix well and then mix in the salt.

Add the washed raisins, corn syrup, vinegar, and broken cinnamon sticks (in a cloth). Simmer uncovered for 15 minutes. Remove the cinnamon and simmer another 20 minutes. Pour into hot sterile jars and seal.

The departmental announcement emphasized that existing tire regulations have not been relaxed, and that the synthetic tires will be available only to essential users eligible to buy new tires.

Rubber Controller Alan H. Williamson said tests so far have shown that synthetic rubber is not as tough as natural rubber for tire manufacture, and that the new synthetic tires therefore, must be driven "at low speed and with great care."

Cars equipped with the new tires should not be driven at more than 35 miles an hour, and overloading must be avoided, Mr. Williamson added. Inflation pressures should be checked at least once weekly.

The making of reclaim tires the announcement said, now will be discontinued. Only limited quantities of synthetic tires will be manufactured, and they will be sold by tire ration permit.

By January, 1943, 1,491 Maltese had been killed and more than 1,500 seriously injured in air raids.

Synthetic Tires For Sale In Canada

The Munitions Department announced last week that under tire-rationing regulations passenger car tires made of synthetic rubber imported from the United States will be released for sale immediately, and that manufacture of the synthetic tires has already begun in Canada.

FOR YEAR'S FINAL PICNIC

Take to the backyard or the nearest picnic grounds for a final fling at open air sunshine, nature—and food that's fun! The old standbys are the best drawing cards, salads, pickles, hardboiled eggs, pie or layer cake.

But with your sandwiches why not include something new—delicious, freshly made, crunchy All-Bran Rolls? The rich, nut-like taste of bran enhances the flavor of any spread you choose; puts something new in hamburgers. So simple to make, too. Here's the recipe!

- 1/2 cup shortening
- 1 cup boiling water
- 1/4 cup sugar
- 2 eggs
- 2 cups All-Bran
- 2 cakes compressed yeast
- 2 teaspoons salt
- 1 cup lukewarm water

Put shortening, sugar, All-Bran and salt in large mixing bowl; add boiling water and stir until shortening is melted. Let stand until mixture is lukewarm. Add well-beaten eggs and yeast softened in lukewarm water. Add half the flour and beat until smooth; add remaining flour, mix well. Let rise until double in bulk; punch down. Form balls of dough to fill greased muffin pans about half full. Let rise in a warm place about two hours or until double in bulk. Bake in a moderately hot oven (425° F.) about 15 minutes. Yield: 4 dozen rolls (2 1/2-inch diameter).

Note—After flour is added this dough may be stored in the refrigerator, and rolls formed, allowed to rise and baked as needed.

A FARM WIFE CHATS TO WOMEN

By Gwendoline P. Clarke

Have you ever tried putting a few hundred sparrows to bed? No? Well, that's what I've been doing; and it's quite a job. You see it happened this way. Along one wall by our front door we have a vigorous growth of Virginia creeper. I was yearning to get a root well established and I longed so much to see it creeping up the wall. And at last the creeper grew, and has continued growing for the last three or four years. But alas, its dense growth has proved to be a regular haven for all the sparrows in the neighborhood. One has only to step outside our front door and the birds fly out by the hundred. Yes, I actually mean that—to say by the dozen, or the score, wouldn't describe the situation at all. And, oh dear, you never saw anything like the mess—the steps, the window-sills and the creeper are absolutely plastered. I am cured for all time of any desire to have Virginia creeper growing over any wall of our house!

But yet I don't want to destroy it altogether—at least not yet—so I thought I would see what thinning out the foliage would do. I clipped away at what I could reach and then got Partner's help for the high spots.

That same evening I worked out in the garden in order to watch the birds' bedtime manoeuvres. They came back all right, but not in such large numbers. And then I fixed them. I armed myself with a clothes prop and beat the creeper with it each time the birds came back to roost. As long as I stayed near the steps all they did was sit on the eaves-trough and watch for an opportunity to fly to their hiding place. But if I no more than disappeared around the corner of the house they were back again in full force. But I stayed around and finally the birds decided to spend the night in some nearby trees. So you see I really did put the sparrows to bed.

Isn't it strange that so frequently what we have longed for proves such a disappointment when we get it? Haven't you often found it so? We build up for years on something we want to get, or to do, and when our dream comes true we find it doesn't measure up at all to our expectations. For instance, we all know people so obsessed with the idea of saving up for the future that they get no pleasure from living at all. In such cases one of two things always happens—either the person dies while still working, or else he retires, only to find that hard work has become so much a part of his daily life that the time and ability for enjoying his hard-won leisure has long since passed. He has forgotten how to relax. The pity of it! One can imagine Puck looking on and chuckling to himself—"Lord, what fools these mortals be!"

Of course I do not mean that we should not save for the future—and at present there is no better way than to invest what we can save in Victory Bonds—but we should beware of getting so far into the woods that we cannot see the trees. There is a happy medium in saving just as there is in spending. To deny ourselves a little pleasure for the sake of a mythical future is false economy—and it is not so hard to find as might be supposed. A weary farm-wife takes a day off to visit her new grandchild and comes back with a new zest for life; friend husband takes in a nearby auction sale and, in hob-nobbing with his neighbors, realizes that his is not the only poor crop in the district. As for the homes where there are still small children, it takes so little to make them happy, the dear wee souls. A little extra attention from Mother—a new dress for a doll; a bright coat of paint on the wee boy's wagon and their world is bubbling over with joy and laughter. And then we have the radio for entertainment. No, it is not all "hot" music—there are programs there to inspire, amuse and delight all those who take the time and trouble to find them. Of course we also want the latest war news but don't let us clutter our minds by listening to every news broadcast there is—for that way madness lies.

Kidnaps Queen Bee From R.A.F. Bomber

It happened on an airfield in Britain. Working on a giant Halifax bomber at its dispersal point, the ground crew suddenly heard a strange buzzing noise, and saw a great procession of bees entering, and leaving a small hole in the tail of the plane.

The Halifax was due to bomb Germany that night, bees or no bees. A frantic search throughout the district ensued until a local clergyman was discovered who said he could handle the unwelcome passengers. Gingerly the ground crew stripped part of the fabric off the tail, and the clergyman, wearing gloves, found the queen bee—whom he bore off, followed by the rest of the colony.

The ground crew patched up the fabric and a few hours later the bomber took off for Cologne.

ABIDING VALUES FROM ISRAEL'S HISTORY
Deuteronomy 1-3, 11
PRINTED TEXT, Deuteronomy 11:13-25

GOLDEN TEXT—Righteousness exalteth a nation; but sin is a reproach to any people. Proverbs 14:34.

Memory Verse: He hath made everything beautiful in its time. Ecclesiastes 3:11.

THE LESSON IN ITS SETTING
Time.—1406-5 B.C.

Place.—That part of the Jordan Valley which was immediately north of the Red Sea and below the Dead Sea.

Obedience To God

"And it shall come to pass, if ye shall hearken diligently unto my commandments which I command you this day, to love Jehovah your God, and to serve him with all your heart and with all your soul, that I will give the rain of your land in its season, the former rain and the latter rain, that thou mayest gather in thy grain, and thy new wine, and thine oil. And I will give grass in thy fields for thy cattle, and thou shalt eat and be full."

God is concerned with the physical welfare, the material prosperity, of His people. God does not desire His own chosen people to live in constant hardship, nor any nation that follows Him to have to suffer long years of poverty or famine. What God first wants is the heart to be yielded to Him, and then all the things that man can desire will God lovingly bestow.

Warning About Idolatry

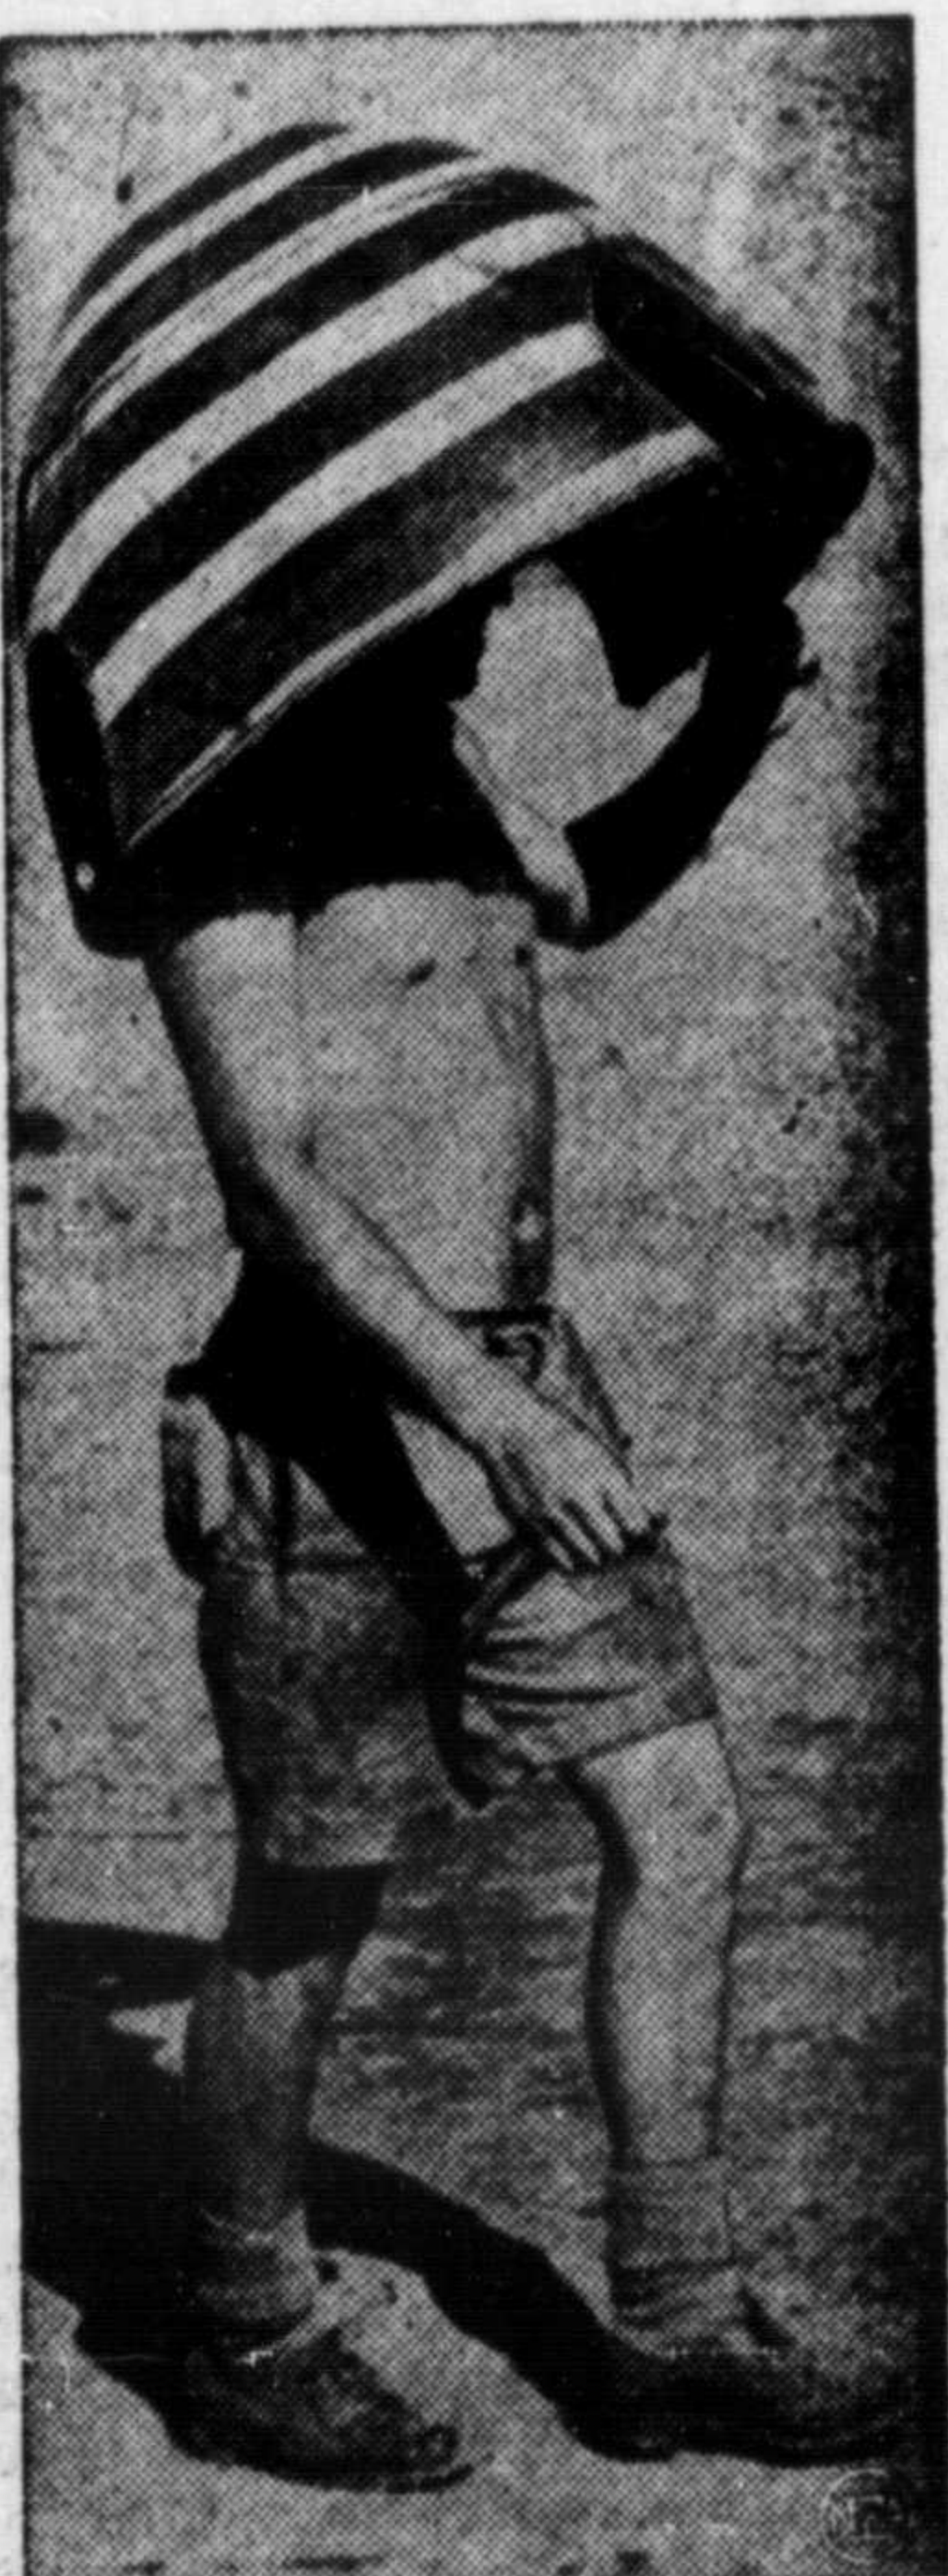

"Take heed to yourselves, lest your heart be deceived, and ye turn aside, and serve other gods, and worship them; and the anger of Jehovah be kindled against you and he shut up the heavens, so that there shall be no rain, and the land shall not yield its fruit; and ye perish quickly from off the good land which Jehovah giveth you."

The heart is the citadel of the whole moral being, and so long as it is kept for the Lord, the enemy can gain no advantage; but when once it is surrendered, all is really gone—there is the turning aside—other gods are served and worshipped.

"Teach Thy Children"

"Therefore shall ye lay up these my words in your heart and in your soul; and ye shall bind them for a sign upon your hand, and they shall be for frontlets between your eyes. And ye shall

SPINNER SUNSHADE

Striped spinner which once graced the nose of a German Messerschmitt is good only for a sunshade now, as R.A.F. armorer carries the broken plane part across an airfield in Sicily.

WARRIOR OF DIEPPE AND KISKA

Under a hail of steel and fire, on the beaches of Dieppe, Lieut.-Col. Dollard Menard, D.S.O., officer commanding Les Fusiliers Mont-Royal, fought gallantly, was wounded five times in as many hours, covered the re-embarkation of his men and fainted as he was carried back on a landing barge. Regain consciousness he organized the anti-aircraft defense of the barge, lying flat on his back. In the recent invasion of Kiska by Canadian and American troops Col. Menard commanded the Hull Regiment of Quebec. This drawing by Hubert Rogers, depicting the scenes of Dieppe appears on the latest poster in the National Film Board's "Men of Valor" series.

teach them your children, talking of them, when thou sittest in thy house, and upon thy gates; that your days may be multiplied, and the days of your children, in the land which Jehovah swore unto your fathers to give them, as the days of the heavens above the earth."

Obedience to the law of God does not come naturally to fallen man. Man's tendency is downward, not upward; away from God, not toward God. Man must be continually reminded of the laws and commandments and will of God, or else he will forget them and live in disobedience to them. Therefore the Israelites are told that they should first lay up the words of the law of God in their heart and in their soul, and then bind them upon their hand and on their forehead between their eyes. The Jews have literally fulfilled this, by binding in little boxes, on their arms and foreheads, written portions of the book of the law. What really is meant here is that whatever one does, and whatever one thinks, should be controlled by the law of God. It is not so important for us to have little pieces of paper nailed up on the doorpost, on which the law is inscribed, as it is for us to have a home recognized by those who enter it as belonging to the Lord. It is the home that is to be sanctified.

Assurance Of Victory

For if ye shall diligently keep all this commandment which I command you, to do it, to love Jehovah your God, to walk in all his ways, and to cleave unto him; then will Jehovah drive out all these nations from before you, and ye shall dispossess nations greater and mightier than yourselves. Every place whereon the sole of your foot shall tread shall be yours: from the wilderness, and Lebanon, from the river, the river Euphrates, even unto the hinder sea shall be your border. There shall no man be able to stand before you: Jehovah your God shall lay the fear of you and the dread of you upon all the land that ye shall tread upon, as he hath spoken unto you." Here is a definite promise that no matter how powerful the inhabitants of Canaan should be at the time of Israel's entrance into the promised land, God would give the Israelites a sweeping victory over all of them if they would but continue to walk in His commandments. When Israel was in obedience to God her victories were assured and continuous; when she disobeyed God, either as a people or as individuals, defeat overtook her. There is no greater illustration than this, that the tragedy that occurred to Israel in her early days of advance into Palestine was because of the sin of Achan (Josh. 7), and the glorious victory that came to her against the very same city which had defeated her when this sin was put away (Josh. 8).

The commercial fish harvest of the United States in 1941 was 4,850,000,000 pounds.

Nazis See Red White and Blue

Nazis in Norway are seeing red (and white and blue), says an Oslo report. Thirty thousand shoes were to be made, the factory was ready, and officials had approved the samples. Suddenly production was ordered stopped. The Nazis had discovered that the paper for the shoes was colored red, white, and blue, and was a form of anti-Nazi demonstration.

Shawville Council

September 13th, 1943

The regular Meeting of the Council which should have been held on the 7th of September, 1943, did not take place owing to lack of a quorum, only one Councillor being present. The Secretary gave special notice to the Council that the regular meeting for September would be held on Monday, the 13th of September, at 8.00 p.m. at Hynes' Hall.

The Regular Meeting was then held at Hynes' Hall on the above date.

Present—Mayor G. G. McDowell in the chair, and Crs. Caldwell, Cotie, Prendergast, Smith, Rennick and Schwartz.

The Minutes of the last Meeting were read and adopted on motion of Crs. Rennick and Caldwell.

The following accounts were presented to Council for approval:

Gatineau Power Co. $ 51 00
Gatineau Power Co., lamps . . . 31 83
Gatineau Power Co., fuses . . . 5 31
Gatineau Power, waterworks . . 60 93
Canadian Pacific Railway . . . 1 00

Moved by Cr. Cotie, seconded by Cr. Smith, that the above bills be paid—Carried.

Cr. Cotie gave notice that at the next regular meeting of Council to be held in October, 1943, he would introduce the By-law to fix the tax rate for the year 1943.

Moved by Cr. Rennick, seconded by Cr. Caldwell, that the Agricultural Society, C.P.A.S. No. 1, be given a grant of One hundred dollars for the year 1943—Carried.

A Petition of a number of citizens representing various businesses in Shawville was read to the Council asking that certain businesses be closed every Wednesday afternoon at 12.30 p.m. except during the weeks in which there is a regularly recognized holiday. After discussion it was moved by Cr. Prendergast, seconded by Cr. Rennick that the petition be left in abeyance until the powers of the Council to pass a By-law to give effect to such petition be ascertained through proper channels—Carried.

A petition was presented to Council by certain ratepayers requesting that King Street be opened from the Creamery to Clarendon Street.

The Council took the petition into consideration and thoroughly discussed all aspects of the question. The Council were of the opinion that the land required for the proposed street was private property and that it would be necessary to ascertain the attitude of the proprietor on the subject.

It was therefore moved by Cr. Smith, seconded by Cr. Cotie, that before any decision be made by Council, the Petition be left for further study and that the matter be further investigated as to its cost and utility as well as the possibility of obtaining the necessary ground from the proprietor—Carried.

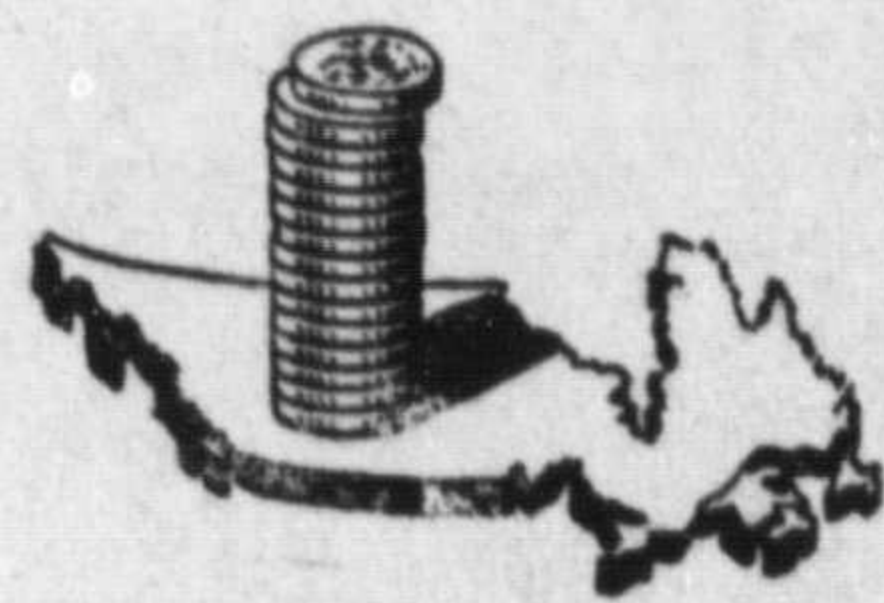

Moved by Cr. Smith, seconded by Cr. Prendergast that the meeting adjourn—Carried.

Clean Water in Boiler

It pays to be sure that the water in a steam heating boiler is clean, says the Plumbing and Heating Industries bureau. There is a definite relation between the condition of the water in a steam heating boiler and the general over-all operating efficiency of the plant, the bureau points out. A boiler with clean water has a faster heating pickup, uses less fuel, and facilitates the dependable operation of safety devices. Water in a boiler may become dirty from a number of causes such as organic matter in water, rust and scale, dissolved solids caused by intermittent boiling, and oil which finds its way into the water.

QUANTITY OF MONEY and volume of credit are matters of high national monetary policy.

Canada's Chartered Banks exist to perform two main services:

1. They receive the savings and other funds of the public, who thus build up bank balances in the form of savings and current accounts.
2. They advance money to communities, enterprises and persons to serve their legitimate needs.

Along with these main functions the banks, through more than 3,000 branches and sub-agencies, render a large number of other important services related to local and national needs—services which have greatly increased as a result of the war.

But the quantity of money in existence in the country at any given time, and the volume of credit, are matters of high national monetary policy. The nation's own central bank, the Bank of Canada, determines them. The Bank of Canada makes extensive use of the Chartered Banks' facilities in giving effect to these policies.

The Chartered Banks' responsibility, clearly established and regulated by the Bank Act, is in the realm of commercial banking—that is, to receive deposits and to serve the needs of trade and industry.

Rock Salt Works Under

Ice, Keeps Highways Safe

Faced with the necessity of keeping defense traffic moving despite snow and ice storms, and handicapped by a severe shortage of manpower to clear streets and roads quickly, street and highway officials are up against their hardest problem in years.

As a result, there has been an unprecedented demand for rock salt for snow and ice removal. Many tons of rock salt were purchased by the larger cities.

The use of rock salt for this purpose is a relatively new development. Once used in small quantities to keep cinder piles from freezing, it is now supplanting cinders in ice control work.

When first spread on snow or ice it acts as an abrasive, then by auger action it works beneath the surface, where it forms a brine and loosens the bond between ice and pavement. Passing traffic breaks up the loosened ice or snow so that snow plows can remove it readily without repeated scraping.

In most cities rock salt is used as a preventive at the first sign of snow. It is spread particularly on hills and at intersections so that ice cannot form at all. Usually only one application is required, an economy for street maintenance men, and it has the added advantage of leaving no residue to clean up afterwards or to clog sewers.

McLean House

In 1891 Capt. M. E. Dunlap of Niagara Falls, N. Y., purchased the McLean house at Appomattox Court House, Va., in which Generals Lee and Grant met to arrange the terms of surrender for Lee's army. He intended to remove it to the Chicago World's fair but changed his plans and contracted with a local builder to raze the house for recreation in the District of Columbia as a war museum. The building was torn down in February, 1893, but Dunlap's plans never materialized and the brick and wood were left in a pile by a roadside. Plans of the McLean house, prepared in 1893, have been acquired by the department of the interior, and the National Park service, after the war, will reconstruct this historic building on its original site as disclosed by archeological investigation.

Citations for Volunteers

Citations for volunteer service in recreation have been worked out by Daniel E. Wagner, superintendent of the Municipal bureau of recreation of Dayton, Ohio. In order to earn a certificate entitling the volunteer to wear an OCD badge, it is necessary to complete 25 hours of service. Time must be devoted in either leadership capacities or maintenance duties, such as care of equipment and facilities. In order to continue wearing the award, the volunteers must continue activities after the citation has been made. About 125 awards were made throughout the past summer with an average of 20 hours per week for each volunteer.

Djibouti Busy Port

Far removed from the present African hotbed in Tunisia, French Somaliland is a tiny parcel the size of New Jersey on Africa's northeast coast. The colony is largely sun-baked sand, producing meager yields of cotton, coffee, hides and salt for 30,000 Somalis and Danakils who try to eke out a living by it. French Somaliland's lively trade normally centers in the other 20,000 of its population who reside in the port city of Djibouti. The Franco-Ethiopian railroad, climbing 8,100 feet up in its 486-mile stretch inland to Addis Ababa, brings the wealth of Ethiopia's hills to the world through Djibouti, despite Italian efforts to develop highway and rail routes from Ethiopia to Massaua on Eritrea's coast.

Buy War Bonds

The U. S. department of agriculture reports that the 100 farmer-members of the LaForge Co-operative association, a 6,705-acre Farm Security administration project for low-income farm families near New Madrid, Mo., bought three $500 war bonds out of the 1941-42 profits of their co-operative enterprises. This was in preference to distributing the profits. "We are proud and happy we could contribute to the war effort by buying these bonds as well as by increasing production of Food-for-Freedom crops and livestock," said Carl Puckett, the association president. LaForge farmers operate a retail store, cotton gin, blacksmith shop, tire service, certified seed enterprise, and marketing service.

Grandstand in Solomons

The southern mountain slopes of Santa Isabel island made a good grandstand from which a few thousand natives could view recent action between American and Japanese fighting ships. Santa Isabel is one of the largest of the Solomons, says the National Geographic society, 110 miles long, and at places as much as 25 miles in width. The whole is covered from end to end by mountains densely covered with tropical forests and lush ground vegetation. Mount Marescot, near the southeastern end, rises 3,900 feet high. The island is a central link in the northern half of the 900-mile double chain of Solomon Islands. One of the wildest and least populated of the Solomons, Santa Isabel has native settlements only at the two ends of the island.

Air in Stratosphere

Fighting planes today fly the stratosphere, six or seven miles up, in air far too thin for human lungs. Super-charging or providing proper atmospheric pressure in the cabins creates many engineering problems, many of which are far from complete solution. Engineers are studying an ingenious system for the cabin supercharger drive. Obviously, the higher the plane goes the faster must the supercharger run. At low levels a speed of 2,500 rpm may be sufficient, whereas an elevation of 30,000 feet may require a speed of 10,000 rpm. The density of the air itself may provide an automatic control for the speed. The fan tends to run faster as the plane rises, with a consequent increase in operating current.

Seek More Fats
 Production of fats and oils from domestic materials in the 1942 crop is estimated at 11.7 billion pounds compared with 9.6 a year earlier. Goals for 1943 call for increased acreage of flaxseed and peanuts, and a soybean acreage only slightly less than the record acreage in 1942. The cotton goal has been reduced, however, to permit greater utilization of resources for more essential crops such as peanuts and feed grains. With normal yields, production of vegetable oils from domestic materials may total 4.3 billion pounds in the 1943 crop year, compared with 4.2 billion pounds this year. Weather was unusually favorable in 1942. The upward trend in lard, tallow, and grease production is expected to continue in 1943, but may be partly offset by reduced butter production.

Dry Cleaning Fluid Is Used for Smoke Screens

The movements of United Nations' forces are being concealed by chemical smoke screens made from a chlorinated compound popularly known as a non-flammable dry-cleaning fluid.

There has been less and less of this chlorinated compound available for the dry cleaning of clothes, because large quantities are needed to make smoke-screen chemicals for all the armed forces, and because its related compound is used to clean metals going into airplanes, tanks, trucks, guns, ships and other ordnance.

The dry-cleaning fluid is converted into another compound which reacts vigorously with fine metallic zinc to form zinc chloride. This reaction liberates a large quantity of heat, which instantly evaporates the zinc chloride and generates a dense cloud of white smoke.

Could you do this, with your present cream separator?

YOU WOULD BE PERFECTLY SAFE WITH A Renfrew

Of course, you wouldn't operate your separator in the best room of the house. This is just to impress you with the absolute cleanliness of a Renfrew. No splashing of oil—no greasy, insanitary, fly-attracting mixture of oil and milk, making a mess of both machine and floor. The oil necessary to the operation of a Renfrew goes in at the top and remains inside until it is time to change it.

This is only one outstanding feature of the Renfrew Separator. Others include the low supply tank, ease of operation, close skimming—and highest quality and performance at a reasonable price. You can buy your Renfrew from the man you know—Renfrew's own representative in your neighborhood. He is responsible to you and we stand behind him and all the Renfrew products he sells.

CANADA'S YOUNGEST HONORARY COLONEL

To four-year-old "Teddy" Cartwright life in Cobourg these days is pretty dull. And sad. Honorary colonel of a hospital unit stationed at Cobourg, he said his good-byes bravely when he inspected the unit for the last time. Arrival of the unit overseas has been announced. "Colonel" Cartwright is pictured above. With Col. C. F. Abbott, officer commanding the unit, he is seen at right making a final inspection of the unit. The best pals he ever had have now gone off to war and he has been left behind with nothing to console him but memories of the happiest days of his short life.

Teddy "joined" the Canadian Army several months ago when the unit took up headquarters in the Cobourg armories for the period of its mobilization and training. Living practically next door to the armories, Teddy began paying daily visits to all ranks and so popular did he become that the lads had a regulation battle dress made for him. In recognition of his then three years of life, Colonel C. F. Abbott, officer commanding the unit, made him a sergeant and gave him three service stripes for his sleeve.

Because he took his soldiering seriously and was on hand for parade every day, Teddy was later promoted to the rank of honorary lieutenant-colonel. He is undoubtedly the youngest person in all Canada to hold that rank.

OTTAWA REPORTS

That New Ration Order Will Effect a More Equitable Allocation of Jams, Syrups, etc.

The new ration allowances for jams, jellies, syrups, canned fruit and similar products, with the permission to obtain as an alternative one-half pound of sugar for each coupon, is really a big and important concession to the rural folk of Canada.

The news behind the news of that order is that the War-time Prices and Trade Board realized that inasmuch as rural folk for the most part do their own preserving of these tasty commodities and country stores are rarely stocked with them in any event, the old situation worked inequally.

The country people claimed that any more or less even distribution of sugar for home canning was unfair to them, and the new order was issued in recognition of that claim, and to effect a more nearly equitable allocation of sweetspreads in the light of real circumstances.

The new order means, in effect, sugar for the rural folk for their fall apple sauce and more particularly sugar with which to sweeten those preserves which they put down earlier without sugar. The new order means that when they open those jars of unsweetened fruits they will have ample sugar with which to sweeten them. At the same time the urban folk have their permission to use their coupons to obtain their jam rations at the city stores.

Two "D" coupons from the new ration book become good each month and for each coupon the purchaser has the choice of:

1. Six fluid ounces of jam, jelly, marmalade, extracted honey, apple butter, maple butter or honey butter, or;
 2. Ten fluid ounces of molasses or maple syrup, or;
 3. Ten fluid ounces of canned fruit, or;
 4. Twelve fluid ounces of corn syrup, cane syrup or any blended table syrup, or;
 5. One-half pound of maple sugar or comb honey in squares.
- As an alternative to any of these commodities the consumer may obtain for his "D" coupon one-half pound of sugar.

SCOUTING ...

A recent census of the Boy Scout Movement in Great Britain shows an average increase of 21 percent.

Hundreds of Canadian Boy Scouts will shortly be assisting in a nation wide drive for milkweed which is urgently needed for experimental work on synthetic rubber. Instructions will shortly go out to all Scout leaders in Canada on the method of collecting and drying the leaves.

Oldest delegate to attend the recent National Scout Conference in Ottawa was Chief Justice J. B. M. Baxter of New Brunswick. The Chief Justice is 75 years old and was billeted with other Scout leaders at Elmwood school where he made his own bed each morning. The Chief Justice has been for many years president of the

WISE INVESTORS PREFER STOCKS TO CASH

It is beginning to dawn on many investors, that hoarded capital and unproductive bank accounts are pretty poor aids in meeting increased taxes and the high cost of living. Particularly now, when it is possible to buy many sound common stocks, at bargain prices, which possess substantial market appreciation possibilities.

Nevertheless, this is no time to just buy stocks blindly. Most investors are in possession of such meagre information on security values, that it is purely a matter of luck if they happen to make any profits at all. Not only is it important to know what to BUY but that which is more important is to know when to HOLD or SELL.

PREDICTING THE TREND

In March of this year we went on record that a Bull market of major proportions was in the making, and we further predict that this powerful Bull market should carry through to the year end. Right now American buying of Canadian securities is at a new peak and "good buys" are becoming increasingly scarce. This is one of the many reasons why we are continuously on the lookout for low-priced issues that have unusual profit-making possibilities.

EVEN NOW WE ARE INVESTIGATING THE MERITS OF SEVERAL LOW-PRICED STOCKS, WHICH, IF THEY MEASURE UP TO OUR EXPECTATIONS, SHOULD OFFER OUTSTANDING SPECULATIVE INVESTMENT OPPORTUNITIES.

These recommendations will be sent to you without cost by the "special service department" of Clifford Reilly Investment Counsellor owned and operated by Clifford Reilly and Company. We feel that with a record breaking stock market in prospect we can offer you an intelligent, honest and efficient investment service, but we expect no business unless and until we can conclusively prove that you need our Investment Counsel.

CLIFFORD REILLY INVESTMENT COUNSELLOR, W.L.

Please send me the names of the stocks mentioned in your advertisement and which you believe will score substantial gains in the coming months. I understand that I am under no direct obligation.

THE WAR - WEEK — Commentary on Current Events

Record Of Four Years Of War Is Full Of German Mistakes

The Nazis seemed to have good reason to believe that the war, which is now about to enter its fifth year, could be brought to a conclusion satisfactory to them within perhaps the first twelve months. For more than twelve months, indeed, everything turned out even better than they had expected. In Poland the weather smiled on them and the roads and fields remained conveniently dry for their tanks. The French were more divided and even less well prepared than early reports had indicated. The British were unready, except at sea and in the little matter of fighting aircraft. In fact, the very weakness of Germany's enemies in 1940 was perhaps responsible for throwing the Nazi machine out of gear. With a determined effort the Nazis might have effected a landing in Britain in July or August, 1940. Unfortunately for them, the blueprints for this operation were not completed. The invasion was transferred to the air, and in the air Germany was repulsed.

The Wisest Course

Yet the situation was still hopeful for the Nazis. If they could not invade Britain it was still less possible for Britain and her dominion allies to invade the Continent. At the beginning of 1941 any calculation of material war strength would have suggested that a Nazi victory was only a matter of time. On the basis of previous experience, it seemed unlikely that either Russia or the United States would enter the war unless attacked. Germany's wisest course, one would have thought, would have been to take North Africa, Suez and the Near East, with some assistance from the Italians, batter or starve Britain into submission, and then inquire of the United States and Russia what they proposed to do about it.

On The Defensive

But by this time the Nazis were either too confident or too apprehensive, it is hard to tell which. To forestall a two-front war they started one. They opened against Russia a "battle of annihilation." Then they added Japan to their active allies and the United States to their active enemies. They killed a great many people during 1941, but they ended the year with about 300,000,000 more antagonists than they had had at its beginning.

Every spring since 1941 it has been customary to say that if the Nazis did not win that summer they would not win. They failed of a conclusive victory in 1941 and again in 1942. This summer, except for a limited and futile offensive in the neighborhood of Kursk, they have not even tried for victory. They have been too busy staving off defeat.

Nazi Mistakes

The record of the four years is full of Nazi mistakes. Most of them were due to their inability to understand other people. To their savage cruelty in Norway, the Low Lands and France they added wholesale pilfering, alienating millions who might otherwise have become resigned to their rule. They were humorless and corrupt abroad as at home. They stirred up hatred and disgust among their own allies, notably in Italy but also, beyond doubt, in Rumania, Bulgaria, Hungary and Austria. They misjudged America's fighting qualities. They grossly underestimated Russia's strength.

Lesson For Axis

These things help to explain why Germany cannot now win. They also point the moral that no nation, however well prepared, however ruthless, can be master of the whole world. The enemies of such a nation increase faster than they can be disarmed or slain. Their courage, ingenuity and persistence are sharpened by peril. The aggressor nation stirs up forces against which it cannot stand, and which will be satiated with nothing less than its military destruction. Mankind simply will not endure Nazi rule, or any rule resembling it. This is a lesson for the Axis, and for any future aggressors.

Back To Burma

Appointment of Lord Louis Mountbatten to be supreme Allied commander in Southeast Asia puts all but the finishing touches on plans for a Burma campaign. Evidently Burma is to be the objective of operations designed to reconnect China with its Allies. Naturally the time for the attack is not announced, but the monsoons will last until October.

To reasons for the selection of Lord Mountbatten for this assignment are immediately obvious: (1) In that theater of war, the Allies need to wipe out memories of old defeats; a commander with the Mountbatten record will help to instill confidence where it is needed. (2) The character of the operations in Burma will call for exactly the type of experience Lord Mountbatten has had as head of the famed Commandos; the Allies must approach Burma in force in a combined sea, air and land operation.

The knowledge of these plans must have been heartening to China's foreign minister, T. V. Soong, who attended the Quebec conference. Their disclosure is heartening to all who have been wondering how long it would be before the United Nations could amass power enough to contemplate strategic as well as tactical offensives in the Far East.

Money Can Talk Too

It seems that Prime Minister Churchill taxied to one of his broadcasts and asked the taximan to wait.

"I'm sorry," said the cabby, "but I've got to get back to the cab stand. Mr. Churchill is going to speak and there's a radio there."

Churchill beamed all over. "Do you think highly of Churchill?" he asked.

"Oh, yes, sir," said the cabby. "I think he is the greatest man in the world today—in fact, I think he is one of the greatest men in history."

Churchill was so perked up by this he handed the driver a five-pound note. The taximan looked at the money; then back at the Prime Minister. He lowered his voice to a companionable whisper.

"Listen," he said. "To hell with Churchill—I'll wait for you!"

PASTORAL OF PEACE IN SICILY

Peace has come to Sicily. The peasants have come down out of the hills to repair their homes and till their fields with nothing to fear except an occasional Axis air raid and with the confidence that they are once again free peoples. In this peaceful setting a Sicilian farmer threshes wheat in the manner of his forefathers, pitching it in the path of a huge stone pulled over the beam of an oxen.

Modern Etiquette

By Roberta Lee

1. Is it all right for the bridegroom to give his bride something for the home as his wedding gift?
2. Is it obligatory for a guest at a christening to bring a gift for the baby?
3. Is the dessert at meals considered a separate course?
4. Should a woman refer to her husband as "Mr. Jones" when talking with an acquaintance?

5. In what way can one acquire the art of listening to another person's talking?
6. Should the fork or the spoon be used for eating peas?

Answers

1. No; even if he cannot afford to spend much, it must be something for her own personal adornment. 2. It is not obligatory, but is customary. 3. Yes. 4. It would be better to say "my husband" even when talking with a stranger. "Mr. Jones" can be reserved for the servants and employees. 5. The only way is to train one's self to concentrate closely on what the other person is saying. 6. The fork should be used.

Triple Launching First In Canada

Three 10,000-ton freighters, christened Fort Moose, Fort Covington and Fort Romaine, slipped down the greased runways at the United Shipyards, Montreal, in the first triple launching in Canada.

The Fort Romaine, last of the three to hit the water, set a record. It was sent on its way 38 days after the keel-laying, beating by eight days the previous Canadian record established recently at Vancouver.

Have You Heard?

As the man rushed frantically down the country lane, he came across a farm lad. "Quick!" he panted. "A man-eating tiger has escaped from the circus!" "Ee," said the countryman placidly, "which way be it going?" "You don't think I'm chasing it, do you?" exploded the runner with a gasp.

Stranger: "Can you give me a job, mate?"

Foreman: "A job is it? Wal, I've got a man here today that ain't come, an' if he don't turn up to-morrow, O'll send him away an' take you on."

New Missionary: "Did you know Mr. Browns?"

Cannibal King: "Oh, yes! He was the pride of our island."

New Missionary: "Why did he leave such a nice island?"

Cannibal King: "He didn't, sir. You see, times got so hard that we had to swallow our pride."

Barber—Shall I give you a shampoo, madam?

Mrs. Newlyrich—I should say not. I can afford the best. Give me a genuine Poo or nothing at all.

In court the other day a defendant appeared without an attorney:

Judge—Would you like a lawyer to defend you?

Defendant—I don't think so. But if you can find me a couple of good witnesses I'd sure appreciate it.

The Last Shot

Wars sometimes peter out in a very prosaic manner. It was so with the Franco-German war of 1870-1. One evening at supper Bismarck announced to his friends, "At twelve o'clock tonight our troops and the French will exchange their last shots, and I have agreed that the latter shall fire the last one."

Shortly before midnight the Chancellor and his guests went outside their hotel at Versailles and waited. Presently they heard a shot from the Germans, followed after a brief interval by the French reply. As the echo of the second shot died away the tower clock struck twelve and the Franco-German war was over.

Germans Flying U. S. Fortresses

German airmen are flying captured American Flying Fortresses alongside our formations over France and Germany but thus far have made no attempt to interfere with our operations, it was disclosed in Britain recently.

What the enemy's plan is has not emerged—perhaps he hopes to sneak one or more ships into the raiding squadrons and open the guns against all those about. The American system of identifying Fortresses among one another is being changed at irregular intervals, however, and the formations fly so closely together that there is little opportunity for a successful effort to sneak into them.

So far the German-flown captives have been kept a good distance away.

The .50-calibre ammunition of the type used by the Fortresses is not manufactured in Germany. If the enemy attempted to change the guns and mounts in the captured ships it would be a costly and doubtful business.

The death occurred suddenly at an Ottawa hospital on Saturday, Sept. 4th, 1943, of Gary Thomas Gregory, beloved son of Grenville Atkinson and his wife the late Velma Mary Tubman, at the age of seven months.

The remains rested until Monday in the funeral home of Hulse & Playfair, Ltd., when the funeral service was conducted by Canon Howard H. Clarke, of Christ Church Cathedral.

Burial was made in Campbell's Bay Anglican cemetery, with Rev. Radmore conducting the grave-side service.

He leaves to mourn his loss his father and sister, Claire; grand parents, Mr. and Mrs. Thomas J. Tubman, and several aunts, uncles and cousins.

The pall bearers were: Cyrus Atkinson, Cledas Tubman, Floyd and Keith Sparling.

A paper was read by Mrs. Barber entitled "Women on the Home Front." Wool was given out to be knitted for Christmas boxes for the soldiers overseas.

Boxes have been sent to Elaine McDowell, Russell Judd, Raymond Lynch, J. Morrison, C. T. Tobin, Douglas Campbell, Bert Swartz, and Bruce Findlay.

The flower contest, arranged by Mrs. Neil Drummond, then took place. Six contestants exhibited bouquets. Mr. C. B. Dalton was the judge.

Delicious refreshments were served by the hostesses assisted by Mrs. Gordon Brownlee and Mrs. G. G. McDowell.

Mrs. Alexander Ross Dies in Her 85th Year

The funeral of the late Mrs. Alexander Ross was held on Sunday afternoon at St. Andrew's United Church, with Rev. H. S. Cooke conducting the service. Mrs. Ross died Friday after a short illness. She was the former Elizabeth Connelly, daughter of the late Mr. and Mrs. Robert Connelly, and was in her 85th year.

She was a member of St. Andrew's United Church. Her husband predeceased her by 35 years, and she is survived by one son, Lawrence Ross, of Beachburg. Pallbearers were Messrs Charles Griese, George Cotman, Alex Dunlop, Randolph Dunlop, Stephen McClelland and Samuel Young. Interment was made in Beachburg United Cemetery.

Friends from a distance attending the funeral were Mr. and Mrs. James P. Connelly, of Shawville; Mr. and Mrs. James Bennett, Miss Evelyn Bennett, Mr. Gilbert Armstrong, Mr. Blake Armstrong, Mr. and Mrs. Milton Anderson, Mr. Clifford Boniford and Mr. Wilbert Bonnah, of Fort Coulonge.

Many Attend Memorial Service

Exceptionally fine weather favoured the Annual Memorial Service in the Shawville Cemetery on Sunday afternoon, and a great many people, including some from distant points, were able to attend. The grounds were in their usual well-kept condition and the plots were brightened with many flowers.

In this beautiful and hallowed area, a service of quiet dignity and impressive solemnity was held. The Rev. A. F. Fokes was in charge of the service; the Rev. K. C. Bolton read a Scripture lesson and the Rev. R. P. Stote said the closing prayers.

The speaker was the Right Reverend John Dixon, M. A., D. D., D. C. L., Seventh Bishop of Montreal. His address was based on the hymn "Abide With Me," with particular reference to the lines "Change and decay in all around I see, O Thou who changest not, abide with me." He reminded his hearers that the things which we see are temporal, subject to change and decay; houses, factories, worldly wealth, can all be destroyed in a moment by the ravages of war or the ordinary passage of time; but the unseen things are eternal, such things as Love, Faith and Hope. He challenged the listeners to be bold and here, in surroundings that might make us think of death, boldly state that Life itself is one of the great things that abide. A greater tragedy than death of the body was the living body in which the soul was dead.

He who spoke and those who listened had known what it was to lose someone whom they loved, and yet the victory of our faith enables us to know, with certainty, that there is no real separation. Life, Love, Faith and Hope, which springs from Faith, these things abide and "This is the victory which overcometh the world, even our Faith."

Fittingly the last hymn was "Abide with Me." For this, as for the other hymns, Messrs. Gordon Paul and Glen Hodgins provided instrumental accompaniment.

The Cemetery Committee wishes to record its appreciation to all who helped with the service, and to the many donors, and would give particular thanks to the Bishop for his attendance and for his comforting address.

Jean Valjean, the Hero of Les Miserables

On Monday, October 4th, in the auditorium of the United Church a special treat is being offered the community when Rev. H. G. Clugston, of Ottawa, who has high talents as an elocutionist, will present the great story "Les Miserable" by Victor Hugo, with an outstanding character "Jean Valjean". This story is an entrancing classic to read; and when presented, as Mr. Clugston does, in his talented way, will give a delightful 1½ hour of program.

Special musical numbers are also adding to the enjoyment of the evening which is under the auspices of the Women's Association, and the charge is 25 and 15 cents.

Mr. Clugston has presented this story 130 times to delighted audiences all across Canada.

Of his presentation the Timmins Advance said:

On Monday evening at the United Church here, Rev. H. S. Clugston gave a story that was listened to most intently by the youngest as well as the oldest person present. He is a narrator of rare ability, and the story took on a new charm for those who already knew it, and held enthralled those who listened to it for the first time.

The minister of Marpole Presbyterian Church, Vancouver, B. C. wrote of it:

Allow me to thank you for the entertainment given not only to myself, but our people, in your rendering of Jean Valjean. I cannot speak too highly of its value, especially to young people. It is not only a source of entertainment, but it is a high moral uplift. My people speak highly of it and the fascinating way in which you presented it, and I hope that many other congregations may have the same privilege as has been ours.

Many Servings Can Be Obtained From Meat Cuts

The approximate number of servings a pound which a homemaker can obtain from different retail cuts of meat may vary from 1½ to 2 servings to 8 or 10, depending upon the cut.

For example, a pound of pork loin roast will yield three to four servings of meat weighing about five ounces apiece; small pork chops will average about four to the pound, while large pork chops run three to the pound. Breast, leg, loin chops, rib chops, shoulder and stew meat of lamb yield three servings to the pound with each serving weighing from four to six ounces. Of the veal cuts of meat, roast and stew tend to yield more servings than chops and cutlets on the pound basis. The former cuts yield from five to six or three to four servings, while chops and cutlets yield only three servings. Beef cuts of meat which yield four or more servings to the pound are tongue, round, meat loaf, liver, stew, ground beef, flank steak, cube steak, corned beef, chop suey, chipped beef and chili. Those cuts which offer at least three servings to the pound are chuck ribs, sirloin other than hipbone, rolled rib roasts, rump, shoulder round and possibly plate. Such retail cuts of beef as porterhouse, standing rib roast and club steaks offer only two servings to the pound.

Women Keep Secret!

There's a group of women in a certain village in the Thames valley who have managed to keep a secret from their husbands, families and friends for 2½ years now. To the questions of the 'uninitiated,' their answer has always been: "Our war work is rolling bandages." What those women never added was that the "bandages" they rolled in the big house up on the hill were in reality maps and compasses which they packed into small waterproof covers, just the size to fit into the pocket of a soldier's battle dress. Their work has only now been revealed. If anyone had known of it before the success not only of many Commando raids but even of the Tunisian expedition might have been endangered. So, although the parson's wife and the cobbler's wife knew weeks before that big things were afoot in North Africa, to the parson and the cobbler their wives were still just "rolling bandages."

Casablanca Modern Port

Casablanca, scene of the historic Roosevelt-Churchill conferences, is Morocco's principal port and was one of the chief North African invasion points of the United Nations last November. When France took it over 35 years ago, it was a small Moorish fishing village. Since, $65,000,000 has been poured into harbor improvements. The harbor and railroad connections were the leading factors in its development into a modern city of 175,000 population, nearly half European. Two long moles enclose the 350-acre harbor. In addition to huge warehouses and grain elevators along the harbor front, there is a battery of cranes, a floating dock, pipe line for oil fuel, and railway sidings over which pass more than half of Morocco's export trade, and 70 per cent of the imports. Special quays handle coal and phosphates.

Guadalcanal Named After Mining Town in Spain

One of the oddest names to American ears to crop up in the war news is Guadalcanal, large island of the Solomons seized from the Japanese by United States marines, and since then the center of savage land, air and sea battles. What does it mean? Is it descriptive of a strange, tropical setting? Not at all, says the National Geographic society. In 1568 it was named by a far-wandering Spanish adventurer for his home town—Guadalcanal—a silver-mining village 50 miles northwest of Seville, Spain. The village name, in turn, is believed to have come from the Moorish "wadi," meaning "stream," and the Spanish "canal," meaning "channel."

Personal Touch
When names like "Betsy," "Harry," "Mary," "Nancy," "Frank" are heard being called out across the rosin yards of southern naval store markets, it doesn't mean that human beings are being addressed, but simply that rosin is being graded by those appellations, says the U. S. department of commerce. This unique method of designating the grades of rosin has developed in the naval stores industry because of the confusion which sometimes resulted when just the letters by which the grades are officially known were yelled.

Prepare Cement for Paint
The Federal Housing administration cautions that cement which is to be painted with oil paint should be allowed to weather for several months before painting to allow for neutralization of the alkali in the cement by the carbon dioxide in the air. If it is not convenient to wait for this weathering period, the affected areas may be washed with a solution of two pounds of zinc sulfate in a gallon of water. After allowing this to dry thoroughly, the paint may be applied without the danger of the alkali burning through the film and ruining the paint film.
