

Return that form! commission urges

Annual census takers for the Westmount School Commission have stressed that not only are they interested in who has children: they want to know who hasn't!

The purpose of the school census form, currently being distributed to all residents is to ascertain the number of school children in the area, as well as other details concerning them.

"If those who do not have children neglect to return the form, so stating, we cannot arrive at an accurate total," stated a spokesman for the Westmount School Commissioners. In such cases the commission is faced with the problem of sending census-takers to obtain the necessary information.

He also pointed out that failure to return the form is actually punishable under law by fines up to $25.

Questions asked on the form include name, address, religion, number of children between the ages of five and 17, sex, and details of school attendance and evening courses.

Westmounter is selected for Harvard

BOSTON — Sam Mann, 4898 Westmount avenue, has been selected as one of 150 participants in the Advanced Management Program at the Harvard Business School, Dean Stanley F. Teele announced recently. The program began on Wednesday, and ends December 11. Mr. Mann is controller and secretary-treasurer of The Bowater Corporation of North America Ltd., Montreal.

The Advanced Management Program, one of the oldest senior management development courses conducted by a University, was started in 1943 and has been in continuous operation ever since. It offers a concentrated course of study in six major areas, of prime interest to today's top management, and uses the case method of instruction.

It is designed for men between the ages of 36 and 50 years of age who are now in top-management positions or who are likely to be there in the near future. There are no specific prerequisites for admission to the Program in the way of formal education or background, though all participants must have demonstrated the qualities of ability, leadership and adaptability in their careers. All candidates must be nominated and sponsored by their companies or organizations.

ROTARY SCHOLARSHIP AWARDS: Mr. A. W. Callard, second from right chairman of the Westmount Rotary Club scholarship committee, had the pleasant task Wednesday of awarding two $400 scholarships to Bruce Budd, 18 (left) of 4542 St. Catherine street west, and Cluny Maher, 17, 431 Metcalfe avenue. Bruce, a West-

mount High graduate, plans to study forestry at the University of New Brunswick. Cluny, who attended St. Leo's Academy, will enter Loyola College. Looking on (right) is Mr. Frank Sharpe, president of the Westmount Rotary Club. —Tedd Church Photo

Hope is renewed for Lee Soon Ae

A tiny Korean girl is being given a new lease on life by Mrs. Julian Evans, 336 Wood avenue, who has "adopted" her through the Foster Parents' Plan. The "adoption" holds no legal obligation — Foster Parents' Plan Inc. is an effort to rescue the forgotten children of the world's recent disasters from oblivion; to care for them materially and mentally.

Mrs. Evans has, in this sense, adopted Lee Soon Ae, now nearing her fifth birthday in far-away Korea. Until now she was merely a number, K4501. Foster Parents' Plan Inc. gives her pathetic history as follows:

"Soon Ae's parents eagerly awaited her birth. A child was what they needed to complete their great happiness. Soon Ae's father, a farmer, adored his wife and he could not do enough for her in that happy time before Soon Ae arrived. He also cared for his aged mother.

"In the cool days of October, 1954, the child was born and for seven days the family circle was complete. Of course, during those seven days, the father worried — his wife was not regaining her strength. Perhaps her extreme exhaustion was normal, he reasoned — after all it was a difficult birth. Perhaps . . . but then all of his fears were justified for on the seventh day, his wife died. The father was dazed with shock. His baby daughter's dimpled face became hateful to him and the whole house was only the terrible place where his wife had died. Finally in his grief he went mad — he rushed from the house and disappeared. No one knows what became of him.

"The grandmother, left with the care of the little girl, was helpless. She was too old to work and so she started to beg for food. She wandered over the countryside with the baby strapped to her back but finally, the child became too much of a burden — so with great reluctance she brought her to an orphanage. The authorities have seen

"Soon Ae is too young to know what she wants from life. At present all she needs is food and clothing and security. She seems, however, clever and probably she will be a good, diligent student. PLAN aid would assure her of an

A few sunny days with hoar or rime frosts, but generally pleasant. Coastal storms could bring us some wind and widely scattered thunder showers with hail. Temperature range 30-60°F in the south and 25-50°F in the north and east, with 45 sunny hours.

Windy but relatively mild and clear mid-week, with morning frosts or fog and scattered evening thundershowers in the south, sleet and flurries in the north. Some ice along the shores of northern lakes, but good hunting weather. Counselling vital in activity picture

By MAURICE MARIASINE

Counselling has always been an important part of the work carried on by the Unity Boys' Club. Each year it becomes a larger part of the overall picture, with the youngsters and their parents turning for advice and guidance in training of young mind and body, in ways that will benefit them and their community.

Often the boys themselves turn up for man-to-man sessions where problems are thrashed out and some solutions worked out. Whether its personal home problems or a summer job to be found, the Club's full-time staff is ready to hear out the story and think hard about an answer.

They have found that its the little things that make the difference, that the youngsters get into trouble only when they have nothing better to do, and that providing something better beforehand is infinitely more important than trying to repair the damage afterwards.

With the return of boys and girls from their summer vacations, a definite increase in attendance has been noted at the Club. It doesn't seem so long ago, that this column carried a note that with the schools closed, the summer program was in full swing. Now it is time to note that schools have reopened and once again club activities are being adjusted accordingly.

Before we leave the summer program entirely for this year, I would like to congratulate our summer-time staff, program supervisor Robert Parker, girls work supervisor Crystal Cunningham and athletic director John McDonough, for the excellent program provided during the summer months. According to Mr. Parker, it is now possible to look back in the correct perspective with an honest evaluation and feel justified that the program was good and very successful.

Throughout the two months, the group was happy and contented — justifying the considerable thought and planning put into the arrangements made last June. Each aspect of the program, and particularly the craft work, seemed to be what was required. In his report, Mr. Parker made special reference to the appreciative attitude shown by several members of the summer group denoting exemplary loyalty to their Club — they are: Susan Warren, Linda Henson, Susan Fein, Nora Witham, Gary Blakeney, Harold Witham and Billy Raso.

This week and next, instructional sessions in arts and crafts for volunteer workers will be conducted under the direction of Robert Parker. It is expected that some 25 volunteer workers will attend the sessions. More volunteer workers are needed to round out the 1959-60 program season. Applications may be made at Club headquarters, 1090 Greene avenue. For further information, please call WE. 2-5506.

Although many details are yet to be worked out, a major project for the 1959-60 season has been launched and initial organization of committees, staff and responsibilities established. The aim of this newly-formed group is to install and equip a small platen printing machine to allow the Club to produce and publish their own monthly magazine. The size of the group is expected to be approximately 35 members who will carry out the following functions: Reporting, editorial, machinists, production, circulation and finance.

The magazine will accept advertisements to help defray costs and a small charge will be made for publication. Additionally, the machine will be capable of producing various types of cards, letter-heads and pamphlets. As at present visualized, this major project is well within the capabilities of the selective group. The part the group will play in unifying much of the Club life and stimulating interest is not predictable but already there is a strong and sincere enthusiasm spreading. The Printing and Magazine Group has as its chief advisor, Unity's Program Supervisor, Mr. Robert Parker. Rehearsals and auditions com-

Individuals and groups known as "Foster Parents" contribute $180.00 a year or $15.00 per month for at least a year toward the support of a particular child. This "adoption" is not a legal obligation. The Foster Parent receives the case history and photograph of the child. The child is informed at once about his or her Foster Parent. The Foster Parent receives monthly letters from "his child." Correspondence is translated both ways by Plan. Relationship with the child is on a most personal level. Since Plan does no mass relief every child receives individual care according to his or her own particular needs.

Each child receives a monthly cash grant of $8.00 (53.3% of the Foster Parents' contribution), plus supplies of food, and new clothing, and blankets, as well as medical care and education. Supplies of food and clothing are purchased here at wholesale prices. The monthly contribution also covers the cost of periodic investigations of the children's current status, social services, translations of letters to and from the Foster Parents, postage, distribution of monthly cash grants and packages of food and clothing, etc.

Westmouter scores literary success

'Brothers Three' hailed by critics

Westmouter Ross Malcolm has surprised his friends, but mostly, he says, himself, by writing what promises to be one of the most rollicking yet historically interesting stories yet to appear of life in Canada at the turn of the century.

In the autobiographical "Brothers Three", serialized in "The Family Herald" (circulation over 440,000), Mr. Malcolm has recorded the escapades of himself and his brothers as young boys in the Maritimes, as his father pioneered railroad building through the forests of New Brunswick.

Mr. Malcolm has been jotting down humorous and interesting reminiscences of his childhood days for many years, but the serious intention of incorporating them in a continuous story was not realized until some months ago.

The initial effort — sitting down before a blank piece of paper and writing that first page — was perhaps one of the most difficult phases of the undertaking, he recalls. But soon he was writing into the small hours of the morning unable to put down his pen as ideas came crowding to mind.

"As the saying goes," comments Mrs. Malcolm, "I was his greatest admirer but severest critic — especially at 3 a.m. My husband has a system all his own, and only he knows how it works."

Critic though Mrs. Malcolm dubs herself, she was a willing helper too, copying the 870 pages of manuscript in longhand before they were forwarded to a typist for final recopying.

"I was hesitant at first, writing about people and places I had known," says Mr. Malcolm, "and attempted to disguise names and locations. Later it was pointed out to me that this lessened the authentic flavor of the story. I have used the second names of my brothers and myself."

The narrative of "Brothers Three" begins in Edmunston, N.B., where Mr. Malcolm was born and moves with the racing development of the railroad in that area.

A considerable bit of old Montreal is taken in: Mr. Malcolm's father used to make Christmas shopping expeditions with the whole family staying at the Windsor Hotel, and visiting Henry Morgan's, where old Mr. Morgan would stand at the entrance, personally greeting his customers.

Life at the Windsor Hotel was a whirl of excitement for the young Malcolms, and for the staff too, who as often as not would find the boys racing their bikes up and down the hall and through sedate Peacock Alley.

Mr. Malcolm and his brothers had a penchant for getting into large-sized scrapes, leaving his mother breathless in anticipation of what would happen next, and his father wrathful but placated by the fact that they were still in one piece.

One of the most typical and hair-raising of these episodes occurred while the youngsters were playing on a railroad car stationed in a New Brunswick CPR yard.

"We somehow got it going, and away it went, down a steep grade, clear through a sawmill at the end of the track, and into the river. We would have been killed but for the fact that we jumped off into a pile of sawdust seconds before the crash." Mr. Malcolm went on to say how his father had fumed when he heard of the incident, and how his mother, whom he describes as "one of the most beautiful women in New Brunswick, saved the day by pointing out how luck they were to have any sons left at all.

"There are so many interesting and historical figures who come

Westmouter named in Bowdoin list

Among the 131 students named to the Bowdoin College Dean's list by Dean Nathaniel C. Kendrick for the fall semester is John E. Craig, a member of the sophomore class, of 344 Metcalfe avenue, the son of Mr. and Mrs. Carleton Craig.

THE AUTHOR AND HIS WIFE: Mr. and Mrs. Ross Malcolm look thoughtfully at this sign nailed to a tree, designating one of the shortest streets in the city, and one where, until recently, Westmount mountain was preserved in all its natural beauty. When the Malcolm's into the book," interpolated Mrs. Malcolm at this point. "Wilfrid Laurier, for instance, visited their home, and patted the boys on the head, telling them that they would be great railway men like their father someday. This was Canada when it was coming into its own—becoming less a colony and more a country."

Mr. Malcolm described his father as 'a gentle and kindly man, but out on the job, firm and respected by the men, who would do anything for him.' Standing six feet five inches high, Mr. Malcolm senior was an imposing figure, "a big, straight man, who weighed 250 pounds and had not an ounce of overweight flesh."

"I didn't write the story specifically as a tribute to my father, and as yet I have not dedicated it," explains Mr. Malcolm. "Nevertheless, I think it has turned out to be a tribute to him, the type of man he was, and the things he stood for."

Mr. Malcolm's literary efforts remained a family secret for some months, and his daughter Ann and son Anthony (known as "Tram") remained somewhat dubious in their criticism. Nevertheless he worked on confidently, and when the work was half-finished decided composition was herself a member of the Abdy family. Turner's "Fountain of Indolence" had hung in New York's Metropolitan Museum for a number of years through the courtesy of a prominent New York family.

Lord Beaverbrook is said to have paid the former owners more than $50,000 for this picture.

The gallery on the right of the building is devoted to contemporary British painting. Nearly all the artists repre-

A departure from the immediate field of painting but one bearing out the cultural atmosphere of the gallery will be found in the Lucille Room.

Variety

Here, in a small tastefully arranged gallery, is a rare collection of china portraying the development over the centuries of the potter's art in Britain. Included is the famous miniature of Queen Elizabeth by Hillyard.

LORD BEAVERBROOK

sented belong to the twentieth century.

The outstanding collection here embraces a representative group of the works of Sir Winston Churchill. Of the four pieces, three were given to Lord Beaverbrook by Sir Winston; the fourth was purchased from the estate of Earl Lloyd George.

No other public gallery can exhibit a collection of this kind. Professional and amateur artists alike will pay attention to an entire wall devoted to the works of Graham Sutherland. Included are two large portraits of Mme Helene Rubinstein, one bought for the gallery and one loaned by her.

Rollicking

Some imaginative works complete the Sutherland collection, together with all the artist's original sketches preceding his highly controversial portrait of Sir Winston Churchill.

Sir Winston himself dislikes the finished work and will not allow it to be exhibited or photographed.

Three Sickert portraits presented by Lady Dunn include one of the Duke of Windsor when he was King, one of Lord Castlerosse and one of the late Sir James Dunn.

Several other paintings in the British Room have their own peculiar attraction. One is Allen's "The Penny Wedding," a rollicking scene from Scotland. It illustrates the ancient custom of levying each guest apenny to defray the cost of the festivities.

Lord Beaverbrook's mirthful turn of mind is reflected in some of the exhibits to be shown in the Exhibition Room. There is a Mercier depicting a drinking party at Norwich in the seventeenth century. In similar vein is William Hogarth's famous "Midnight Modern Conversation," which was bought by Lord Beaverbrook in London and has just reached Canada.

The Exhibition Room is a spacious chamber on a level below the main galleries, equipped with an extensive air-conditioning installation and a special lighting system.

It shows a collection of work of wide variety.

Some examples are brilliant, some less than that. Lord Beaverbrook's order was "Out with all we have." The show in the Exhibition Room is the result.

Fireproof

In a spacious, fireproof, sound-proof, moisture-proof, and temperature-controlled vault are over 1,000 lithographs, drawings, and sketches, nearly all from the eighteenth and nineteenth centuries.

These will be circulated by vans to the schools of New Brunswick. Among more modern drawings are many by Orpen, Sutherland, and other British artists.

The Beaverbrook Gallery was opened by Dr. W. G. Constable, who has been Curator of the Courtauld Institute in London and of the Museum of Fine

WE SAY YOU SAY

Yes, another safety note!

NOT another editorial on safety?

This was the amazed query of a confrere as he looked over our shoulder when we started this item.

The answer is yes, another safety note!

And here's why: because three of the top stories in last week's edition concerned children injured in accidents.

We've written reams about traffic safety. We've stressed the need for care on the streets, now that school is open, and we're going to go right on stressing it as long as children are being injured.

The children are to blame, you say. In some cases, yes, and that is exactly why you have to do their safety thinking for them.

So, here's another safety note — drive carefully, all the way, all the time — and keep the streets safe for our children.

Nip delinquency right in the bud

SEVERAL local churches are opening their Sunday School sessions this time of the year, and are short of teachers.

Here is an excellent opportunity for men and women to take up a really worth while service.

Few boys and girls who went to Sunday School regularly ever got into very serious trouble.

Interested teachers are the one thing that will keep young people going to Sunday School, enjoying it, and as a result absorbing the teachings that add up to character in later life.

'Reprint article' suggests reader

Sir:

May I say that the article on "Education and Tradition" contributed by The Venerable R. Kenneth Naylor, DD, recently to The Westmount Examiner, was in all respects the best brief statement on the subject that I have ever had the good fortune to read.

It was so entirely complete that it was, in truth, worth being taken to heart by all good citizens, young and old, as well as by our educational and governmental authorities and experts. If I may make a suggestion, it would be that reprints be made of this most remarkable expression on education and that it be distributed throughout Canada.

Unfair practice extends to grave

Dear Sir:

A certain non-denominational cemetery association of considerable interest to many Westmount folks, offers mourners as one of its many considerable conveniences, a memorial bronze plaque service. Upon my own personal enquiry, I recently found that the same people are also apparently quite broad-minded in the matter of not forcing their own product upon the sorrowing mourners. But there does seem to be a catch, no?

My own personal opinion right now is that, by possibly perfectly "legal" means, they are still, in effect, forcing their own product upon folks, many of whom would prefer to make their own independent arrangements with regard to a memorial plaque for their beloved departed, all of course measuring up to the commendable dignity imposed by the association's clearly defined in this regard.

The association still has to prove to me the quality of their own plaque is equal to, or better than, the independent product I have seen, and I must say that I, for one, find their prices way out of line with those of one splendid independent product I have had the opportunity to inspect.

The cemetery association in question, commendably enough, insists upon having the plaque installed to its own rigid standards by its own men — and herein lies what I personally deem a very obvious "catch" in the arrangement.

The opening of the Beaverbrook Art Gallery in Fredericton this week is one of the major social and cultural events of the year and indicates once again the beneficence of Lord Beaverbrook, financier, politician and journalist, for his home town in New Brunswick.

The principal gallery, to the left of the front entrance, is dedicated to Canadian art. The greatest single collection here is the collection of Kriehoffs, centred by the large and famous 'Hurrying' which has been exhibited extensively in Britain.

Largest

Most of the 25 Kriehoffs in the collection have been presented to the gallery by Dr. M. J. Boylen of Toronto, and New Brunswick. The group now held by the Beaverbrook Gallery will be the largest collection of Kriehoff canvases on public display anywhere.

Another focal point in the Canadian Room will be four canvases of James Wilson Morrice. The painter was a son of David Morrice, a Montreal merchant who was the first to establish the manufacture of cotton fabrics in Canada.

One of the Morrises was presented by Miss Olive Hosmer and another by Mrs. Howard Pillow — both of St. Andrews. The others were bought for the gallery by Lord Beaverbrook.

Clarence Gagnon is represented by a large picture, "Scene at Deauville." Five additional Gagnons have been donated by Mrs. Allen Aitken, of Montreal.

Practically every Canadian artist of note is represented in the Canadian Gallery.

The Centre Gallery opens directly from the main entrance, running through the centre of the building to a large window affording an expansive view of the beautiful St. John River.

It is devoted to the Masters. Dominating the right wall of the Centre Gallery is the noted "Santiago" by Salvador Dali, a gift of Lady Dunn.

Lord Beaverbrook's own favorite will have a permanent place in the gallery named for him. It is Gainsborough's "Peasant Girl Gathering Faggots" — purchased by him from the Abdy family several years ago.

Canadian authors meet in Arundel

By VALENTINA RAHR

MISS UNA WARDLEWORTH, Cote St. Antoine road, drove a group of members of the Canadian Authors' Association to Arundel, Quebec, to spend the day at the home of Rev. Phillips and Mrs. Bluebell Phillips, new president of the CAA. Another car, driven by Rev. Fred Wilkes, joined them there.

Among the guests: Mrs. H. Meinert, Columbia avenue; Mrs. Alex S. Keiller, Cote St. Antoine road; Miss Helen Howes; Mr. Wilfred Werry. This marks the first executive meeting of the CAA for the 1959-60 season. Nicholas Rahr (Westmount Junior High) and Christina Rahr (King's School) had much pleasure in making the acquaintance of Bluebell Phillips' grandchildren, Geoffrey and Phillip.

Mrs. Diane Scott, Columbia avenue, assistant to the minister of the Church of the Messiah, has announced that a clothing drive for babies is currently being held, known as the Unitarian Service "Layette Lift". Any baby things, used or new, will be welcome.

At the request of the United Nations, and to promote World Refugee Year, this Layette Lift has the wholehearted endorsement of the Canadian Government, and they hope to collect 25,000 basic layettes for Arab refugees babies in the Middle East.

Nearest address for any baby clothes in Montreal is 3415 Simpson street. A basic layette consists of: four diapers, two nightgowns, two shirts, two jackets, one towel, one cake of soap, and four safety pins. It is not necessary to send in a complete basic layette; even part of one will be welcome. The United Nations are covering ocean transportation costs.

Tobie Steinhouse, Springfield avenue, has just recently returned from a prolonged vacation in the Laurentians at St. Donat.

Herbert Steinhouse, of the Canadian Broadcasting Corporation, has completed a program on the Fall of Quebec, and its historic reverberations through the centuries, up to the present time. One interesting note: conflicting accounts are given of this important event in Canadian textbooks!

Norman Farrow - Canada to U.S.

Canadian Assets - Third of a Series

By FRANCES GOLTMAN

THE NOTED BACH SINGER, Norman Farrow, born in London, Ontario, who has sung in Montreal with the Montreal Festivals several times, lives in New York City but keeps his Canadian citizenship. I met Norman Farrow in Vancouver at the International Music Festival this year but having heard him locally, I already knew of his fine ability. Not unlike the Metropolitan basso, Jerome Hines, in stature, Mr. Farrow is a most impressive personality. He told me many interesting facts about himself and his family and he would (like most Canadians in other lands) rather be living in his native country but opportunities that were more attractive beckoned, hence the reason that he lives presently in the United States.

EDUCATED IN CANADA, Mr. Farrow finished college with a Master's degree in history at the University of Western Ontario. Discovering that he wanted music to be his life-work, the young bass-baritone studied singing seriously at Juilliard and told me his teacher was the same great instructor that Eileen Farrell chose, Eleanor McLellan. She guided him well and he soon became launched on a successful career that has made him better known in New York City and the United States than in his native Canada.

NORMAN FARROW said that Canadians are doing well in the United States and cited the careers of Jan Rubes (Toronto) . . . Maureen Forrester, (Montreal) . . . Lois Marshall (Toronto) . . . Zara Nelsova (Winnipeg) . . . Pierrette Alaire (Montreal) . . . Joseph Simoneau (Montreal) . . . Ilona Kombrink (Toronto) . . . Louis Quilicot (Quebec) and Betty-Jean Hagen (Edmonton). All of these have made big names for themselves everywhere they appear in solo or orchestral concerts. He added that there were very few Canadians engaged by the Metropolitan, The City Centre and American Opera Companies or the New York Philharmonic or Symphony of the Air.

THIS EXCELLENT CANADIAN singer, who is under contract with the Friedberg Management and makes RCA Victor recordings, is best known for his singing of Bach and has been heard in over forty Bach concerts in New York City alone and last year sang twice with the New York Philharmonic Orchestra.

WE WON'T SEE MUCH OF THIS FOR A WHILE: All summer long it was running, tumbling, and having a barrel of fun for Mike Quinn and Alan Greeny, caught here in a heated moment as they neared the finish line in a three-legged race at a YMCA summer track meet. Now back in school they have only fading sunburns and a few memories like this to remind them of the carefree days of a boy's summer.

MARRIED TO DOROTHEA BEHM, a well known pianiste, who was his accompanist, they have two young children. Mrs. Farrow studied in California with the late great Josef Lhevinne. Is it not a pity that such outstanding talent must reside south of the border because success is greater there than in one's native land? We will look forward to hearing Norman Farrow soon again in Canada.

SAYING OF THE WEEK: He who would acquire fame must not show himself afraid of censure. The dread of censure is the death of genius.

Trouble that looks like a mountain from a distance, usually is only a hill when you get to it.

The Westmount Examiner, 5 Friday, Sept. 18, 1959 Automobile Club to hold dance

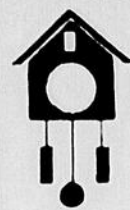

The Canadian Automobile Club of Canada plans a Welcome Dance Saturday evening, 9 p.m., at the Capri Hotel, to which members and friends are invited.

Committee director G. Hahn has stated that the Hagen Quartet will provide entertainment, with an admission charge of $1.50.

At a recent monthly committee meeting of the CACC, it was suggested that a by-law be introduced requiring cars five or more years old to be safety-checked at least four times yearly.

A spokesman for the club stated that it would lend its keen support to more stringent measures required for drunken drivers and habitual offenders of traffic laws.

To reheat muffins or rolls, place them in a brown paper bag; close the bag by folding over or twisting the top. Place the bag in a moderate oven preheated to three hundred and fifty degrees. When the bag browns a little the muffins or rolls will be hot.

The Rt. Hon., the Lord Cohen of Birkenhead, distinguished physician, author, educator and orator, will be guest speaker at the 25th Anniversary Banquet of the Jewish General Hospital, on Monday, September 21, in the Grand Salon of the Queen Elizabeth Hotel.

Born in England in 1900, Lord Cohen received his M.D. degree from University of Liverpool. In 1934 he was appointed Professor of medicine by the same university — a position which he still holds. He is Senior Physician, Royal Infirmary, Liverpool.

He is Chairman of Central Health Services Council, and of the Standing Medical Advisory Committee in the British Ministry of Health. Since 1957 he has held the post of president, Royal Society of Health.

Lord Cohen became first Baron Cohen of Birkenhead in 1956. He is a past president of the British Medical Association; Royal Society of Medicine; Heberden Society; First World Conference on Medical Education, and of the Liverpool Medical Institute.

Lord Cohen has lectured extensively in his own country and abroad, and he has served as visiting professor to many universities.

He is editor-in-chief, British Encyclopaedia of Medical Practice and has made valuable contributions to medical literature.

Although greatly occupied with professional work, Lord Cohen devotes time and energy to communal activities. He is Honorary President of King David School and The Home of Aged Jews, and is also Chairman, Board of Directors, Liverpool Repertory Theatre and Liverpool Playhouse Trust.

The renowned physician has been honored by many professional groups, and holds honorary degrees from four British universities. He is an honorary member of the Harveian Society and of the York Medical Society.

Reception marks 50th anniversary

A gala reception dinner and dance to open the 50th anniversary of the 1,000-member Advertising and Sales Executives Club of Montreal is planned for Friday, Sept. 18 in the Imperial Suite of the Windsor Hotel.

Marking the celebration of half a century of advertising and selling in the community, the "Golden Evening of Entertainment", and will feature a reception and dance in the Versailles ballroom, and dinner in the Windsor Hall, with a special buffet in Peacock Alley.

J. A. Lyone Heppner, president, and host of the evening with Mrs. Heppner, said: "The Advertising and Sales Executive Club of Montreal has a proud heritage and lists among its many accomplishments, in addition to major contributions in the educational aspects of marketing, the formation of the Montreal Better Business Bureau.

"One of the major aims of the club during its 50th anniversary year is to acquaint the community generally with the important part played by Advertising and Selling in our day-to-day economy."

A feature of the evening will be the appearance of popular television star, Juliette, who will sing highlights of the past 50 years in her inimitable style.

Also featured will be the many prizes on display depicting products developed and distributed during the past five decades. During the evening these will be given away to the guests.

After dinner there will be dancing to the music of Nat Raiders' orchestra and Bill Moodie's trio.

Chairman of the evening is Michael McGaul. Committee members are: John Loranger, Norman K. Smith, Gerry Pecknold, Roland Beaudoin, Mrs. Hedy Popper, Mrs. Kay Brown, Miss Isabelle Sauberli, John Hare and E. Walker.

Light statistics released by city

The city light department report showed a maximum kilowatt demand of 28,550. The report showed also a 1,650 KW increase over the same three-month period last year. The total of kilowatt-hours purchased at the same time last year, showed a 1959 total increase of 688,000 KWH.

Net earnings for the three-month period showed $66,743 in May, $76,713 in June, and $55,748 in July. The net expenditures showed $64,729, $62,133 and $64,747 respectively.

The surplus for the seven months ending July showed $60,205, a decrease of $10,528 compared to the same period in 1958. The report explained that the summer months mark that period of a year when power cost is essentially constant while revenue drops as a result of decreased energy consumption.

$100,000 diamond robbery

An import jeweller was beaten and robbed of $100,000 in diamonds Tuesday evening on Dorchester street near Dominion Square.

The victim, Maurice Kuropatwa, 3465 Ridgewood avenue, manager of the Premier Diamond Company, Stanley street, was admitted to Montreal General Hospital with a broken nose and possible skull fracture. Hospital officials describe his condition as "good".

Police report that Mr. Kuropatwa left his office about 7 p.m. with a briefcase containing the diamonds on his way to Windsor Station where he was to board a train for Quebec City. As he passed the rear of the Laurentien Hotel just below Dorchester street he was attacked from behind by two youths wielding blunt instruments. He was slugged on the back of the head and fell to the pavement heavily hitting his face.

The youths, who are believed to be about 18, made their get-away on foot down an alley between the Laurentien Hotel and St. George's Church.

Kuropatwa is a Polish immigrant who came to Canada in 1948.

JGH to hold 'open house'

An invitation to all Montrealeers to visit "Open House" at the Jewish General Hospital this weekend, has been issued by Allan Bronfman and Philip Garfinkle, co-chairmen of the hospital's 25th Anniversary planning committee.

The public program will consist of tours and medical and art exhibitions. Tours will be conducted on Sunday, September 20, from 10 a.m. to 1 p.m.; Monday, September 21, from 2 to 4 p.m., and Tuesday, September 22, from 1 to 5 p.m.

Visitors will gather in the main entrance lobby at 3755 Cote St. Catherine road, from where they will be taken through such interesting areas as the Cobalt Bomb Room, Cardiology Department, Medical Day Center and the Research Laboratories.

Throughout the weekend visitors will have the opportunity of seeing interesting medical exhibits which have been arranged in the laboratory area of the West Wing. The exhibits review significant strides made by medicine over the past 25 years and the role played by the Hospital in this development.

In addition, an exhibition of paintings, sculpture and metal craft by members of the hospital staff, will be on view to the public throughout the weekend. All are invited to cast ballots for the most popular work.

"These tours and exhibits should prove an unusual opportunity to get a behind-the-scenes view of the daily operations in a large city hospital," declared co-chairman Philip Garfinkle. "It is also an excellent time to see the physical changes in the hospital which have been brought about as a result of our recent expansion and renovation program, which has greatly increased patient care and research facilities and which has brought bed capacity to the 400 mark."

The Anniversary celebration gets under way this afternoon with a staff reception. Tomorrow, members of the Internes' Alumni from Montreal as well as from centers throughout Canada and United States, will register for a series of reunion events. Highlight of the medical program will take place Monday, at a day-long session of scientific presentations.

Other events are: a nurses' program and reception of dedications and choral singing; a service on Saturday morning at the Shaar Hashomayim Synagogue, and a reception for some 600 Women's Auxiliary and volunteer members on Sunday afternoon. Festivities will end Monday evening at the 25th Anniversary Banquet in the Queen Elizabeth Hotel, where more than 1000 persons are expected to hear the famous British physician, Lord Cohen of Birkenhead, deliver the highlight address.

Theme of the entire program, according to co-chairman Allan Bronfman, is re-dedication of the hospital to welfare of the sick through modern medical science in the next quarter-century.

Westmount gives 759 polio shots from May to July

The recently released City of Westmount Health Department report showed 494 polio inoculations for the month of May, 170 for June, and 95 for July. The number of contagious disease cases was very small for this period, the report stated.

There were a total of nine doctor's clinics held during the three-month period, 14 nurses clinics; and a total clinic attendance of 179.

Some 360 families are now registered in the Child Health Clinic. An average of 13 smallpox vaccinations and 32 triple toxoid inoculations were given. As a service to residents, an average of 24 re-vaccinations per month was made. During May and June a total of 22 defects requiring immediate attention were found in school children.

J. McK Limerick to see Russia on pulp and paper industry tour

This fall, while political leaders of East and West exchange visits in an endeavor to understand and assess one another, a delegation from Canada, far removed from, and unconcerned with the political sphere, will visit the U.S.S.R.

J. McK. Limerick, 201 Metcalfe avenue, will be among top-level representatives of the Canadian pulp and paper industry to tour Russia in the last three weeks of October, in a group exchange visit sponsored by the "Pulp and Paper Magazine of Canada," with the official backing and co-operation of the Canadian Pulp and Paper Association.

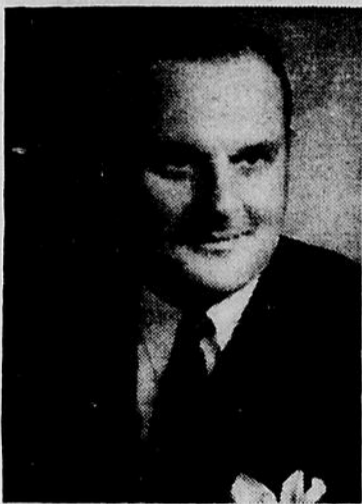

Mr. Limerick, chairman of the technical section of the Canadian Pulp and Paper Association, and research director of Bathurst Power and Paper Company, described the forthcoming visit as a "first" in this field.

"The odd person concerned with the pulp and paper industry has visited the U.S.S.R., usually under private auspices," he pointed out, "but this is the first time an officially-backed group tour — and let me emphasize that it is on an exchange basis — has been arranged."

A return visit of a similar nature will be made by executives and technical representatives of the Soviet pulp and paper industry to Canada in the spring of 1960.

Seated in an office of the Saint Laurent plant at Bathurst Containers Ltd., Mr. Limerick described the delegation for the coming visit as "approximately half highly trained technicians, and half executive level members of the industry."

"At the moment, we know we'll be visiting a number of mills and research institutes, all within the

J. McK. LIMERICK

European area of the USSR. We also hope to visit the planning department — an institution peculiar to the Soviet, which includes long range planning of the industry."

Although Mr. Limerick would make no guesses as to the results of the forthcoming tour, it is known that Russian technical knowledge in the pulp and paper field is sound, and of a high calibre. While production there may not be up to Canadian standards, possibly because priority is at the moment being given to heavy industry development, one American observer has stated that "they are well aware of this, and have when authority to do so is given."

The same authority states that "Soviet text books, in general, appear to be much more up-to-date than in the U.S. . . . are more frequently revised . . . and available on a very wide range of subjects."

"We know that women are active in the field of pulp and paper," Mr. Limerick added, "and that they hold top engineering jobs, as well as working manually, or acting as foremen or superintendents."

A native of Fredericton, N.B., Mr. Limerick attended the University of New Brunswick, and received his master's degree in chemistry from McGill University. He joined the Bathurst Power and Paper Company as chief chemist in 1937, and in 1944 became head of the company's newly established research and development department.

In 1953, he was honored with a Fellowship in the Canadian Institute of Chemistry for outstanding contributions in that field. His past travels have taken him to Stockholm, where he lectured at the Royal Technical Institute, and to pulp and paper conferences throughout Canada and the U.S.

Annual Hunt races set for Sept. 20

Amongst the out of town contenders for Sunday's Races, comes top-notch competition from the Genesee Valley Hunt, New York with Joe Chandler's mount which has done so well on the circuit in the United States.

Dr. O'Dea's entry from Avon, New York, promises to be a contender in the Open Race. Gayland Stables' entry, "Nocturnal" from Toronto with Gordon Cummings on board stands a very good chance of taking the money in the Heavyweight Race.

Tom Moore (Ottawa), will undoubtedly put up a good show in the Open Race on his "Mayo." It will be remembered that Tom Moore took no small share of the loot last year back to Ottawa with him.

Arts in Boston, Massachusetts. Dr. Constable arrived in Fredericton on September 14 and from that day distinguished visitors — about 200 in all — arrived from the United States, Central Canada and Great Britain.

Who's Who in the gallery:—

KRIEGHOFF Travelled in Europe, where he was born, as a strolling musician and artist before going to America when he was 25, in 1837. He fought the Red Indians for three years. His paintings of Canadian pioneer life are illuminating records of the period.

CONSTABLE Known as "the handsome miller" when he followed that trade in East Bergholt, Suffolk. Of his 19th-century English countryside paintings has been written: "Others have made us see Nature at a distance. He alone has planted our feet in her midst."

GAINSBOROUGH A superlative English portrait painter, famous everywhere for his "Blue Boy". He once successfully forged his father's signature to a school note saying, "Give Tom a holiday," then went off sketching. Said father, when he saw the forgery: "The boy will one day be hanged." Gainsborough died peacefully in 1788.

TURNER His father wanted Joseph to be, like himself, a barber, but after seeing how some of his drawings sold in the shop at a shilling and more apiece, agreed that he should become an artist. When he was only 24, in 1799, he was made an Associate of the Royal Academy.

REYNOLDS The great portraitist of the English aristocracy of the 18th century. Between 1753 and 1760 he painted three members of the Royal Family, at least twelve dukes, several of their duchesses, innumerable lesser peers and peeresses, and two famous courtesans, Kitty Fisher and Nelly O'Brien.

SUTHERLAND One of Britain's most famous contemporary painters, with three reputations—for his fierce war landscapes, his imaginative portraits and, lately, his design for the tapestry to be hung in Coventry Cathedral.

Suburbs are lauded in 6-months report

Real estate sales figures for the first six months of the current year have been tabulated — and among the suburban municipalities Saint Laurent is away out in front with a grand total of $18,505,684.

The June total for Saint Laurent, $5,067,620 helped materially to put the enterprising municipality in the forefront of the realty sales race.

Six west end municipalities, and the two west end wards of the city, Notre Dame de Grace and Mount Royal came up with a grand total of $85,772,931 for the six-month period.

This is more than 25% of the grand total for the 35 city divisions and 33 suburban areas of $317,047,117.

In the six-month totals other west end municipalities figures were: Town of Mount Royal $14,462,330; Westmount $6,741,825; Cote St. Luc $7,980,767; Montreal West $2,504,711; Hampstead $1,497,259.

June totals for local municipalities and city divisions of the west end were: Mount Royal $5,957,334; St. Laurent $5,067,620; Westmount $1,472,732; Cote St. Luc $1,669,988; Hampstead $142,689; Montreal West $522,204; Notre Dame de Grace $3,804,660 and Mount Royal ward $1,547,812.

Throughout the entire first half of the year real estate sales in the west end have shown sharp increases over the previous year.

In June alone the west end totals were more than $4,000,000 over the same period of a year ago, the figures reveal.

In releasing the city-wide figures the Montreal Real Estate Board has the following to say about the realty sales position.

Mr. Couper was born in St. Lambert and joined the railway's staff record bureau in 1939. He served in the Canadian Army from 1942 until 1947 and then joined the Canadian Freight Association, returning to the CNR in 1951. He has since held various positions. Mr. Couper lives at 5457 O'Brien avenue, N.D.G.

Increased demand for service forces record $$$$ objective

Greatly increased demands for service have caused Red Feather to set a record objective for this year's campaign and to ask the public to increase their donations, special speaker Gordon Mines said on Sunday at the Church of the Good Shepherd, Cartierville.

Speaking on behalf of the annual Red Feather Campaign, Mr. Mines asked the congregation to be as generous as possible in their contributions. The sum of $1,925,000, the campaign objective, is the minimum amount that will provide the 31 health and welfare agencies with operating funds for 1960, he noted.

Mr. Mines suggested that givers consider pledging their gifts. Experience in other cities shows that, when givers pledge their contribution, they are able to give more with less inconvenience to themselves.

North outlet for Victoria by Christmas

THE Victoria avenue underpass which will extend that street from MacKenzie to de Namur under the CPR railway tracks — previously providing a dead-end for motorists and forcing all traffic onto Decarie at Barclay avenue — is expected ready for use by late fall or Christmastime.

To be completed at a cost of $750,000 after a seven-year stagnation period, the new roadway will contain two one-way thoroughfares separated by a central mall. The roads will be each 28 feet wide, separated by a central mall six feet wide and bearing centre pillars. Six and a half foot wide sidewalks will be a feature on either side. Thoroughfares at the normal street level 34 feet wide will be built at either side of the tunnel stopping at the tracks.

SOUTH-EYE VIEW: The photographer has captured in this photo the "sinking" of Victoria avenue from normal street level in the underpass approach to the railway tracks. The underpass will make Victoria one of the most important north-south traffic arteries in the city. The new road will contain two one-way thoroughfares. —Tedd Church Photo

Junk is valuable in museum exhibit

Junk — but highly valuable junk creatively used — will be featured in an exhibition at The Montreal Museum of Fine Arts beginning tomorrow.

The show, officially called Art and the Found Object, consists of unchanged natural objects and abandoned man-made articles as well as works by artists who incorporate objets trouvés in their creations.

Evan H. Turner, director of the Museum, said the show will be a revelation to most viewers.

"This form of art is relatively unknown in Canada," he declared. "It is perhaps the first time, in fact, that such a collection has been shown in Montreal."

"It proves, among other things, that humor can be a valid form of art."

One of the items to be shown, the life-size "Picador" by the artist Jose de Creeft, is made up of stove pipes, cans and similar articles. Its value: $10,000.

Total weight of the exhibition is about 2,000 pounds.

The show, organized by the American Federation of Arts, is being circulated to museums throughout the United States and Canada until January, 1960.

Several pieces owned by Montreal collectors will be part of the exhibition.

The collection was first seen in the Time-Life Building, Rockefeller Plaza, New York.

Early experiments and contemporary works illustrate theories introduced in the first decades of this century by the Cubists and Dadaists stressing the significance of everyday objects. Their work helped to change the concept of sculpture which had been based for centuries on the Greek ideal.

ARTISTS

Artists represented in the collection include Cornell, Duchamp, Ernst, Nevelson, Schwitters, Stankiewicz and others.

The Dada movement, shaped by the European turmoil and despair which followed the First World War, was in part a revolt against academic dogmatism which affected all the arts. It took place almost simultaneously, though in different forms, in several major cities, among them Paris, Berlin and Zurich.

Talented poets, writers and artists, through a variety of bizarre means, "pursued the ugly," and the lowest accepted aesthetic values were proposed as the highest. While it followed on one hand a course of defiance and destruction of past forms and ideals, Dada felt a parallel need for creative expression. The art of Dada gained wide influence and included the work of many top painters and sculptors, some of them represented in Art and Found Object.

Ready-mades are what the name implies — complete objects which are at hand and which by reason of the artist's selectivity are considered to belong in the realm of his creativity. A bottle dryer is an example.

Details added to stimulate various responses caused other objects to be referred to as "ready-mades-assisted." A flat-iron to which tacks have been affixed or a metronome adorned with a photograph of an eye are samples.

Such works as "Hindenberg Merz" are delicately collated from haphazard scraps including cigar wrappers, tin, burlap, wood and other discards.

The show closes Oct. 18.

Add a teaspoon of instant coffee to half a cup of chilled sour cream. It makes a delicious topping for apple brown betty, peach cobbler or berry tarts. Try it on pumpkin or mince pies too.

A HOME FOR PAULA

When she was three years' old, Paula's parents were both killed in an automobile accident. She was left orphaned and desolate, with a badly torn leg that required nearly a year of treatment, in and out of hospital.

Paula had no relatives, but the Red Feather's "Children's Service Centre" was able to find her a permanent home with a suitable couple who wanted children, and loved Paula on sight.

Paula, we are sure, will have a happy family life, but there are hundreds of other Montreal children in desperate need. Every year, for one reason or another, we must find them adoption homes or foster parents.

The "Children's Service Centre" is only one of the Red Feather's 31 different services. When you help one you help them all. And they need $1,925,000 to carry on in 1960. Make YOUR pledge to give something now . . . something later.

If, like most people, you budget your finances, you may find it easier to give to the Red Feather bit by bit, rather than give the sum you want to give all at once. If this is so, we will be more than happy to accept your pledge to pay by instalment.

The work of the 31 agencies in the Red Feather group goes on day-in, day-out throughout the year . . . aiding the sick, the desolate, the homeless and the handicapped. The money that helps us do this work is welcome any time. So don't hesitate to stretch your giving. Something now . . . something later!

A new regime

By
The Venerable

R. Kenneth Naylor, D.D.,
Rector, Trinity Memorial Church

We offer our congratulations to the Honorable Paul Sauvé, Premier of Quebec. He comes of a politically experienced family, and he has enjoyed the broadening experience of Army service abroad. Without any doubt he will guard the individuality of Quebec culture, but he will be in a position to set that culture in its whole context of Canadianism.

The new Premier will inherit a long tradition of Quebec governmental ways; but I hope that like other men in authority he will examine the tradition to see where it agrees with and when it departs from the best ways of modern government. In particular I hope he will take a hard look at a very old Quebec tradition which puts even special taxes into a consolidated fund and draws upon them for any purpose.

I am thinking especially of the tax on restaurant meals. That tax was set for the help of the hospitals of the Province. But as far as I know no accounting has ever been made of the income from that tax. It would have been reasonable to expect that it would have been set aside for hospitals and allotted to them on some prorate, equitable basis. But for many years it has been entirely under Government control and has been allotted to the hospitals according to the will of the Government, with the suspicion that it is according to the subservience of the institution. It is simply not true to say that the Government has built hospitals. It is the people who have built them, but the Government has doled out the money.

The same is true of the Universities. Certain taxes have been raised for education, but the moneys have been granted at the pleasure of the Government and the independence of the Universities has been seriously affected — so seriously, in fact, that very seldom have they dared to complain.

Again the same is true of the gasoline tax, which is supposed to be allotted to road building; yet the grants for roads have been made in such a way that the country which votes right gets roads and the other county fails to get them, with the result that the public in general suffers.

Weekend of rededication highlights Israeli scholar

Congregation Shaar Hashomayim will be honored by the presence of a distinguished scholar, educator and thinker, in the person of Professor Ernst Simon of the University of Jerusalem who will grace our institution on Friday and Saturday, September 25 and 26.

Those who had the experience of listening to Prof. Simon last year at the Shaar Hashomayim, will recall the profound impression he left on the community at large.

Dr. Simon received his Doctorate of Philosophy from the University of Heidelberg in 1923. Since 1928 he has been associated with the growth of educational institutions in Israel and is now Professor of Education at the Hebrew University. Professor Simon has functioned in the intellectual circles which have received their inspiration from men such as Franz Rosenzweig and Martin Buber and brings a vital and timely message to our generation.

In a series of three talks, he will discuss the ideals and values inspiring Jewish life and character. His first lecture on "Ideal Types in Jewish Education" will be an Oneg Shabbat on Friday, September 25 at 8:30 p.m. in the community hall. His second lecture on "How Can We Pray?" will take place on Saturday, September 26 at 9:30 p.m. Following Prof. Simon's lecture on Prayer, a "Welcome-back Reception" will take place under the auspices of the Sisterhood and Men's Association of Shaar Hashomayim at 11 p.m.

In the mood of Elul characteristic of the prelude to the High Holy Days, a Selichos Service will take place in the Main Synagogue at midnight, with the participation of Hazzan Nathan Mendelson and the Congregational Choir under the direction of Prof. Jacob Rosemarin.

Red Feather Sunday

100 churches to participate

Close to 100 Protestant and Orthodox churches in Greater Montreal will take part in activities this coming Sunday centred around the Red Feather Campaign for $1,925,000.

September 20 has been declared Red Feather Sunday by the Red Feather Church Liaison Committee headed by Canon Ralph R. Latimer, Rector of St. James the Apostle.

Congregations will hear speakers on Red Feather and many ministers will make a special plea for members to give full support to the 31 agencies whose welfare and health services benefit nearly every community on the Island of Montreal.

A special message signed by all members of the Church Liaison Committee, as official representatives of their denominations, has been sent to every Protestant and Orthodox Church. The message states in part that "The most careful budgeting makes this objective the minimum required for the year's needs. The work of the Red Feather agencies, covering the fields of family welfare, child care, health and recreation, both in Greater Montreal and in the surrounding suburbs, is performed by experienced, devoted, efficient workers who are qualified to make the best use of the money given. In this appeal they, in effect are saying to us: 'Give us the resources and we will do the job'. That job affects the well-being of nearly 100,000 people."

Members of the Church Liaison Committee and their denominations are:

Rev. Canon Ralph R. Latimer, (Chairman) Anglican Church of Canada; Rev. Dr. M. F. McCutcheon, Eastern Association of Baptist Churches; Very Rev. Dean Nicholas Salamis, Greek Orthodox Church; Rev. Dean Karl Raudsepp, Lutheran Min-

Activities are in full swing at Westmount Baptist Church after the vacation period. The church school meets at 11 a.m. concurrent with the church service under Dr. W. S. Weaver.

Dr. David Thomson, Dean of Graduate Studies at McGill University, will address the Men's Fellowship at a supper meeting on Tuesday, 6:30 p.m., in the church hall.

Now is the time to plant EVERGREENS...

The demand for Evergreens has increased tremendously during the past few years and rightly so. They have a richness and charm that is unobtainable in any other material. With the many varieties and types available, a suitable selection can be made for foundation planting, whether the house is modern or traditional, for hedges, windbreaks or lawn specimens. A well arranged planting of Evergreens adds to the value of any home, far more than the original cost of the material.

Atonal music is pioneered

Mr. Karl Steiner, the N.D.G. piano teacher and pianist, has just successfully finished his 10th season of teaching in this area. During this period, and particularly in the last few years, Mr. Steiner has pioneered the introduction of twelve-tone music, the idiom of numerous most important contemporary composers, in the teaching of all grades, even beginners. He has also induced important composers to write easy pieces in this idiom to produce more music for this important new line of teaching. Mr. Julius Schloss, who wrote a series of twelve-tone pieces for beginners, following this incentive, has just announced that completion of another similar series is imminent.

CONGRATULATIONS: A hearty commendation was given Mme. Ludmilla Chiriaeff, artistic director of Les Grands Ballets Canadiens, by Ted Shawn, founder and director of the Jacob's Pillow Dance Festival, following the ballet company's successful American debut there.

Les Grands Ballets Canadiens wins acclaim of U.S. critics

By VALENTINA RAHR

Les Grands Ballets Canadiens won unanimous acclaim from United States critics and audiences at Jacob's Pillow, Lee, Mass., on their American debut recently.

Ted Shawn, founder and director of the Jacob's Pillow Dance Festival, said U.S. reaction to the new Canadian company "richly corroborated" his own view that Les Grands Ballets "speak for Canada and say what Canadians are."

"I have rarely seen such enthusiastic audiences. There were bravos, cheers, long drawn out ovations, and bows and bows," he added later. "The patrons were glowing and thanked me for bringing Les Grands Ballets to the United States."

The minute I saw the company for the first time I fell in love with it. I made a gamble bringing it to Jacob's Pillow. Now, all of Canada can be proud of the way the United States received Canada's newest ballet company in its American debut." He said French Canadians had enriched the culture of Canada tremendously.

Mme Ludmilla Chiriaeff, Harvard avenue artistic director and founder of Les Grands Ballets Canadiens, presented outstanding programs at the four performances which made up the debut of her company at the Ballet Festival. The soloists singled out for special acclaim were Eva von Gencsy, Eric Hyrst, Margaret Mercier, Milenka Niderlova and Brydon Paige. Included in the numbers given was an original Canadian ballet, "Sea Gallows," the first truly Canadian ballet to be presented at Jacob's Pillow.

While preparing for the debut at Jacob's Pillow, classes went on for eight to nine hours daily, and six ballets were finally presented. Watching a small group of dancers through a rehearsal at a time, at Mme Chiriaeff's ballet studio in Montreal, one sensed that ballet dancers were cooperative and understanding of each other's problems.

During rest periods, they chat of ballet here and in Europe. At the clap of Mme Chiriaeff's hands, everything changes. Each dancer is in his or her right place, opposite the correct partner, and at the sound of a rhythmic hum or beat and count, they go through their appointed controlled movements. Time and again the rehearsal is interrupted, suggestions made, clap-beat-repeat. Then a final run through from the beginning, and a light applause in appreciation of progress made.

In this way the artistic director has been able to watch her ballet company grow from a small TV performing group, to a position of prominence since 1952. Latvian born, Mme Chiriaeff was a soloist at one time with the Berlin ballet, and later premier danseuse with Lausanne's Theatre Municipale.

Rave notices were in American newspapers everywhere following the Jacob's Pillow success. "This company reflects the verve, the chic, the dash and the vitality of Canada"; "It expresses Canada through one of the great art forms." "a great success"; "a superb company"; "Les Grands Ballets Canadiens are marked by an attractive quality of intimacy and informality. It is distinguished by the freshness and enthusiasm of its youthful ensemble."

First concert on October 9

The first in a series of twelve concerts to be given this season by the Montreal String Quartet under the auspices of the Canada Council will take place on Friday, October 9 at the Hermitage, it was announced today. Programs for the series, at the request of the Canada Council, have been planned to present to the listener a comprehensive history of works written for the string quartet. The first in the series will include the music of Schubert, Haydon and Mendelssohn.

Special feature of the concerts, six of which will take place in 1959 and six in 1960, is the special low entrance charge, made possible because of the Council grant. Priced at $6.00 for six concerts, the series will provide the opportunity for Montrealers to share the benefits of the grant. Tickets for individual concerts will also be available.

To take place on Friday evenings during October and November, the first series of the Quartet's concerts will also feature the works of several Canadian composers.

Of special interest to the city's music lovers is the fact that the Quartet will perform all the Beethoven late quartets, from Opus 127 to 135 in the concert series.

The Quartet comprises four Montreal musicians: Hyman Bress, first violinist; Mildred Goodman, second violinist; Walter Joachim, cellist; and Otto Joachim violist.

what the association itself CHOOSES to charge for its own wares, regardless of relative merit or the free choice of the bereaved.

I am not setting myself up as a judge and I will gladly abide by whatever the laws of the land (Provincial or Federal) rule should the matter ever reach our courts.

This is my way of bringing the matter into the open for whatever action may be deemed fair in the minds of the powers that be. Until such time, or possibly even beyond, the association must be deemed free to carry on as it sees fit.

If the Association has another side of this story, these same pages are wide open to carry their message to those most "gravely" concerned, I'm waiting.

Eventide Home outing planned to Scout camp

Residents of the Eventide Home plan a day's outing September 29, to the Boy Scout Camp near Rigeaud, on the invitation of the Montreal Boy Scouts' Association. Buses for the outing, which is sponsored by the Westmount Rotary Club, leave the Eventide Home at 10 a.m., returning at approximately 4.30 p.m.

ments. While any landscaping contractor would undoubtedly jump at a deal of around $5 for the simple installation, plus perhaps an additional $10 for perpetual maintenance, the fee this association charges in the matter of plaques purchased independently is in the neighborhood of $75. Unofficially I understand the fee for similar services elsewhere runs about $20. This (in my opinion) exorbitant installation and maintenance figure of approximately $75 has the possibly desired effect of knocking off the competition most effectively, the combined purchase price and installation fee for the independent product coming ever so conveniently higher than to put to the uncompromising test of being judged by a professional.

"One evening," he said, "Leslie Roberts, who has written 48 books, dropped by, and I gave him the manuscript, asking him to read it and give me his true opinion. His actual words to me were, 'You know I'll throw it right back at you if it's no good.' Imagine my surprise when, late that evening, he phoned to say that he hadn't been able to put the manuscript down, and offered me the warmest encouragement. His confidence was wonderfully inspiring to an amateur like myself, and my thanks and appreciation go to him for it."

Leslie Roberts later reviewed Mr. Malcolm's work as "one of the best pieces of Canadiana he had read."

"When I had finished, I thought of Walter O'Hearn of the Montreal Star. He liked it so much that he asked me if I would leave it with him. I was stunned," he admits.

The story shortly appeared in serialized form in "The Family Herald," and negotiations are now underway to publish it in book form. Illustrations for the serialized form were done by Adrian Dingle of Toronto, one of Canada's foremost illustrators, who Mr. Malcolm believes, has caught the spirit of the story admirably.

On its appearance in print, Maritime newspapers heralded "Brothers Three" with headlines and enthusiastic reviews, terming it as describing "a day and age only a few Canadians have the good fortune to remember," and alternately "a rollicking story of the boisterous, carefree life a boy was entitled to live before there were any truant officers or home and school clubs."

Mr. Malcolm, who built the Scottish baronial-type house at No. 1, Malcolm road in 1923, and has been a resident of Westmount ever since, returns each summer with his family to Youghall Beach on the Baie de Chaleur, near Bathurst, proving the adage that a Maritimer born must always return.

The day that he writes about—when the railway was booming and leaving the stagecoach and boat, until then almost the only means of transportation in New Brunswick, far behind—is gone. Mr. Malcolm, now a stock broker, worked with his father until the railroads were absorbed by the Canadian National Railways. Following the death of his father, and his return from overseas service in World War I, he came to Montreal, married, and is now the proud grandfather of Andrew, one and a half years, and Jennifer, three and a half.

"I didn't tell my brothers about the story until it was finished," he states. "I think it was rather a shock."

But the success of Mr. Malcolm's endeavor leaves no room for criticism. The brothers three have a written memorial to their lively history, to the days when their father lent them a train coach to take the entire hockey team to a neighboring town, and of more heroic events such as the famous Campbellton fire, which gutted the town and burned their home, and of how old Mr. Malcolm turned over railroad cars, crewmen's tents, and any other available shelter for the use of the homeless townspeople.

As to future writing, Mr. Malcolm concluded: "I'm in the habit now. I carry a little book with me always in which I jot down notes, and have a couple of books in mind at the present time."

No breed of cattle is native to the Western Hemisphere, according to the Encyclopedia Britannica.

Organ concerts start October 5

The Quebec Organ Concerts Society begins its 1959-60 season October 5 at Notre Dame Church with the celebrated French organist, Antoine Reboulot, titular at the St-Germain des Pres in Paris.

Mr. Reboulot, known as an outstanding composer for organ, piano, string quartets and wind instruments, studied at the National Institute for the Blind with Andre Marchal and later went to the Paris Conservatory where he was awarded many first prizes under such teachers as Marcel Dupre, Georges Caussade, Simon Ple and Henri Busser.

His recitals have been heard in Belgium, France and Switzerland; and he has recently completed summer courses on composition and organ that he has given to the faculty of Music at Laval University in Quebec City. Many of Mr. Reboulot's pupils are Canadians studying abroad.

Following is a list of recitals planned by the Organ Concerts Society:

Canadians reading more says optometrist

Young Canadians of to-day read approximately three times as much as those of a few years ago, according to D. L. Francis, of Edmonton, President of the Canadian Association of Optometrists.

Dr. Francis, inaugurating the Association's "Better Vision Week," which will begin to-day with local programs throughout Canada, warned that Canadian children "must take greater care of their eyes in order to meet atomic age requirements of schools."

In a message to all parents, Dr. Francis, supported by Dr. Louis Vallieres, Quebec optometrist and national chairman of the Association's "Better Vision Week" campaign, warned that any child who can't learn to read well is severely handicapped and requires the advice of a competent vision examiner.

"The books that are required from first grade to the end of High School to-day would fill a shelf 18 feet long. No wonder that from 8% — 25% of all youngsters are retarded in reading, and from 50 — 70% of the retarded readers have vision problems," he said.

Dr. Francis expressed his concern about the careless attitude of those who sometimes overlook the first warnings of poor eyesight, such as bad report cards and low grades.

"If a child has trouble reading, it is time for a professional eye examination. Don't let poor vision blur a bright future!" Dr. Francis suggested.

The Association, during a recent survey, established that children of to-day must read fifteen times more in their school work than those of 1900.

"Unless the function of the eyes of these youngsters is carefully guarded, their ability to master the difficult problems facing them in the near future is handicapped."

To send, or not to send —that is the question

Should I send my child to nursery school? This is a question that parents often ask us, but it is one that each family has to decide for itself. Some children at the age of two are more able to benefit from short periods away from home than other children at the age of three. It depends not only on the individual personality of the child, but on how many opportunities he has been allowed to have to meet and know other people outside the home.

When a new baby has just arrived in the home, some children, if sent to a nursery school then for the first time, might feel that they are being banished in favor of the new arrival. Only parents themselves, with their intimate knowledge of their own children can make the decision. However, the vast experience of people who have worked with children in nursery schools points up the tremendous value of this experience for small children of three and four years of age.

A CHILD'S WORLD

Perhaps the most important aspect is that this first step outside home is into a world particularly built for the child: the tables and chairs are his size, the block and toys are all readily available, the hooks on which he hangs his clothes are within reach and the adults in charge have time to give him individual attention and really listen to him. He discovers that these adults are warm and understanding, they don't push him, they let him develop at his own rate, although opening many areas of fascinating interest to him. "Would you like to try painting with this big brush? Look what fun it is to make a great big stroke of red across this white paper," says the teacher.

The child realizes that he can trust this person, she accepts him and he can be himself with her. He thinks: "I can trust other adults besides Mummy and Daddy," and his liking for and his belief in people grows. He is particularly ready at this time to grow socially, to learn how to get along with other children.

Parents often ask "Why can't he learn the same thing with a group of neighborhood children." He could, if the group were expertly supervised, otherwise the physically strong, big child finds he can always get his own way by use of force and this might develop into a pattern of behaviour and reasoning. On the other hand, the shy child is apt to get pushed farther and farther back in the group. In a good nursery school setting the more aggressive child is not allowed to push other children around, he learns to wait, to take his turn and to be considerate of others, while the shy child is encouraged, but not pushed, into gradually en-

PATRICIA BLONDAL pauses for a moment while writing one of her stories. Mrs. Blondal, wife of Dr. H. Blondal, 5370 Bessborough avenue, has been writing since 1955. The first installment of her serial entitled 'Strangers to Love' is published in September Chatelaine magazine and a novel entitled 'A Candle to Light the Sun' awaits publication. —Tedd Church Photo

Patricia Blondal likes composing novels best

By JOAN MARTIN

A tall, blonde mother rushed toward the back door where her small son stood crying, attended to his scraped knee, soothed his ruffled feelings and went back to her typewriter. A few moments and several paragraphs later the phone rang. It was a wrong number. Then she decided to have another cup of coffee.

Patricia Blondal of 5370 Bessborough avenue has been writing in this casual but never confused atmosphere since 1955. Her routine has not varied much since then. Up at 7, feeding her husband, daughter and son, sending them off to work, school and the backyard respectively, tidying up the house and then writing.

Today, only four short years later, with the first installment of a serial entitled "Strangers to Love" in this month's Chatelaine magazine, a novel called "A Candle To Light The Sun" awaiting publication at Simon and Schuster's in New York, and another one in the making, she can well be proud of her accomplishments.

WRITING HER FORTE

Even as a little girl growing up in Manitoba and later as a student at the University there, writing was her consuming ambition. At various times in her career she has written for radio and newspapers and has done some public relations work but says that she likes writing novels best.

"Novels are wonderful", she acknowledges. "I love the bigness of scope that you have in this form of writing. It gives you time to bring things into focus and to say everything you want to say."

CREATING A PLOT

Mrs. Blondal says that formulating a plot often takes weeks — even months before it crystallizes. Before a word is written she makes copious notes from various ideas that pop into her head and spends a great deal of time acquainting herself with the characters until every facet of their personality is exhausted.

"I sometimes lie in bed at night and hear them talking, see them walking and reacting — laughing and crying", she declares. After getting to know them intimately it's easy. They handle the plot."

When Mrs. Blondal is ready to put the plot on paper she often spends 14 hours a day writing and rewriting. She drafts a novel as many as four times and never discusses its theme until the manuscript is safely in the hands of her agent.

Weekends are usually reserved for the family when she and her medical researcher husband take the children on an outing and a winter afternoon often finds the Blondals skating on Beaver Lake.

ACTIVE IN COMMUNITY

Mrs. Blondal also finds time to participate in community activities with the same intentness she evinces for her family and her writing as was evidenced by two telephone calls. One asking

Your School, Your Child and You

Scrawls and Scribbles

By E. George Cochrane, B.A., M.Ed.

That most adults in North American possess a lamentably low quality handwriting is obvious to anyone often confronted with the sometimes nearly impossible task to deciphering the scrawls and the scribbles that Canadians and Americans are guilty of. This sad state of affairs was discussed by Robert O'Brien in an article entitled (fittingly enough) "The Moving Finger Writes—but Who Can Read It?" The piece appeared in the July 18 edition of The Saturday Review and was republished in the September Reader's Digest.

Mr. O'Brien relates some of the bizarre and rather tragic things that have happened because one person's handwriting was completely illegible to someone else. And he makes very vividly the point that sloppy handwriting can make our own and others' lives a little more miserable than necessary. There was a time, though, says O'Brien, when "Americans used to be pretty good penmen." This I am inclined to doubt. I have had occasion to examine handwriting going back two centuries and I find that in general the handwriting being produced today is no better—and no worse — than that of the 1800's.

O'Brien blames the schools, at least in part, for the generally low level of penmanship prevalent in the United States today. He is, however, fair enough to point out that the pressures and tensions of high speed living, including the fevered note-taking of the college lecture hall, is at least partly to blame for the scrawls and scribbles.

Patronesses listed for Symphony Ball her to write press releases to help launch a local drive and the other to announce a PTA meeting at the Somerled School which her daughter attends.

Mrs. Blondal is able to maintain such a full schedule because of two basic philosophical principles. Simply: make the best of things and never waste a moment.

Thus, taking advantage of the momentary peace and quiet, Patricia Blondal turned back to her short story while the phone rested and son John — long since recovered — was happily engrossed in picture painting.

New hospital building to provide ample space

One group of doctors anxiously awaiting the completion of the Queen Elizabeth Hospital's current building program is the staff of the maternity department. The new hospital will provide space for continuation on an expanded scale of pre-natal clinics for parents awaiting the birth of their first child. The clinics which have been carried on by the hospital for some years, to the benefit of a large number of parents, have been temporarily discontinued during the construction period.

"These clinics are designed to help parents, both mother and father, understand the processes of a normal birth, and what to expect during the child's first stages of life", Dr. Neil H. Chapman, Associate Obstetrician and Gynaecologist at the hospital, explained.

"Normally held about every three months, the lectures bring together parents who are anticipating a first arrival. They are conducted in two stages. On the first evening a two-hour illustrated lecture by four doctors gives the full story of a normal childbirth in non-technical terms. There is also an opportunity for either parent to ask any questions, enabling them to look forward to the happy event with full knowledge and assurance. Other doctors participating in the lectures are Dr. George Morgan, chief of the department of obstetrics and gynaecology; Dr. P. H. Roberts, and Dr. R. B. Smith.

The second lecture, Dr. Chapman said, is carried on by the nurses who show the correct methods of caring for the infant at home, and what to expect from the baby during its first few months of activity.

"We feel that these lectures help

Miller-Channell wedding is held in Wesley Church

The marriage of Barbara Miller, of Claremont, Ont.; Mrs. H. Kastner and Mrs. R. A. Reid, of Stratford, Ont.; Miss Lorna Henderson, Mr. D. Gilchrist, Mr. and Mrs. E. Lawrence, and Mrs. D. Minner, of Ottawa, Ont.

The bride, who was given away by her father, was gowned in white poul de soie, with a fitted bodice appliqued with Bordeaux lace having a square neckline and long sleeves, and a bell-shaped skirt ending in a cathedral train. Her veil of tulle illusion was held by a bandeau of pleated poul de soie, and she carried a cascade bouquet of feathered baby chrysanthemums and English ivy.

Mrs. A. M. Channell, as matron of honor for her sister-in-law, and Mrs. David Latouche, sister of the bridegroom, Miss Jean Taylor, of Grand Falls, N.B., and Miss Judith Herder of St. John's, Newfoundland, as attendants, were in frocks of iridescent green Swiss silk taffeta, with draped bodices having short sleeves, and bell-shaped skirts. They wore bow bandeaux to match their frocks, and carried bouquets of shasta baby chrysanthemums and English ivy.

Mr. Robert Miller acted as best man for his brother, and the ushers were Mr. A. M. Channell, and Mr. D. P. Channell, brothers of the bride, Mr. E. C. Peirce, and Mr. John MacCallum.

Mrs. Channell, the bride's mother, wore a gown of iridescent midnight blue jersey with a blue feather hat and midnight blue accessories.

Mrs. Miller, mother of the bridegroom, was gowned in embroidered teal blue lace, and wore a megantic blue feather hat.

The reception was held at the Montreal Badminton and Squash Club, where brone shasta chrysanthemums and pompons were used as decorations.

Later, Mr. and Mrs. Miller left for Bermuda, the bride traveling in an ensemble of moss green winter cotton, and wearing a brown hat and accessories.

Among the out-of-town guests were: Mrs. James Bray, Mr. and Mrs. George Davidson, and Miss Joan Davidson, of Sherbrooke, Que.; Mrs. Gordon Bolton and Mr. and Mrs. John McFarland, of Toronto; Mr. and Mrs. W. E. Griffin, Mrs. M. B. Morden, and Miss L. Newbury, of Hamilton; Lieut.-Col. and Mrs. A. G. Goldie, of Paris, Ont.; Mr. and Mrs. Allan Howland, of Rhode Island, N.Y.; Miss Barbara Giles, of Oakville, Ont.; Mrs. A. S. McKay, of Galt, Ont.; Mrs. Hugh

Approaching Marriage

The marriage of Barbara Edna, younger daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Arthur H. Allworth, of Hudson Heights, to Mr. Wesley Milton Good, son of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Good, is taking place on Saturday afternoon, in Dominion-Douglas Church Westmount. The bride will be attended by her sister, Mr. Douglas Leybourne, as matron of honor, and by Miss Helen Grosvalet, and Miss Cheryl Good, sister of the bridegroom, as bridesmaids. Mr. R. Kendall will act as best man for Mr. Good, and the ushers will be Mr. Douglas Leybourne and Mr. James Naftali.

Following the ceremony, the reception will be held at the Engineers Club.

parents to meet an entirely new experience with a degree of knowledge which will add to their happiness in welcoming their first-born," Dr. Chapman declared. "When we started them we expected a great interest among prospective mothers. One of the more gratifying aspects, however, has been the large attendance and keen interest of the fathers. We like it that way, for welcoming and caring for the new born is definitely a dual job," he said.

IT'S THIS WAY: "If the baby is a boy, the double fold is at the front," Joan Vissenga, RN, of Westmount, explains as she illustrates the correct technique of applying baby's first underwear. The demonstration depicts one phase of the Queen Elizabeth Hospital's pre-natal clinics for parents expecting their first baby. Standing in as the prospective father is G. J. Fudge who is actually an old hand at the bottle and diaper routine.

Sunday sermon to prepare for healing mission

On Sunday, at St. James United Church, Reverend Norman Rawson will be preaching at both services, and his subjects will be in preparation for the great healing mission to be conducted by Dr. Christopher Woodard, MA, MRCS, LRCP, of London, England, from Sunday, September 27, through October 4.

Mr. Rawson's subjects on Sunday will be: 11 a.m. "Do you find it hard to realize the presence of God?" and 7.30 p.m. "Faith Healing—How Did Jesus Heal People? Was He able to heal everyone?"

tering into the group activities thus developing a sense of self-confidence and achievement.

UNRESTRICTED PLAY

In many homes today there are few areas where a child can have real free play without having to be careful of the household furnishings. In nursery school he can build wonderful structures with all sizes of blocks, many of them large, testing his co-ordination, his balance and stimulating his creativeness. He can play house with a full equipment of small stoves, beds, tables, chairs and dishes. Many of the problems he is facing in real life are worked out in this way. The child with a new baby in the family is often seen continually bathing and feeding a doll, or the child from an overstrict home may act out a very punitive parent, spanking and scolding his doll-child. In this way many of his unmanageable feelings are released and he is more capable of dealing with his real life. Have you ever noticed that a child always wants to play the person of strength and authority in his games? He always wants to be the teacher, not the pupil, or the doctor, not the patient. By feeling he really is this person for a while he feels strong enough to cope with the family situation where he is always the smaller one being told what to do by other people.

In nursery school nobody scolds him if he spills water or paint, because the floor won't spoil; instead he is helped to get a rag or mop and cheerfully cleans it up. All kinds of materials are ready for his use. Paints and lots of big sheets of paper, scissors, paste, clay, colored paper, beads, etc., are only some of the things available to develop his creativeness, resourcefulness, artistic ability and his highly important sense of curiosity.

WAITING HIS TURN

He learns that it is fun to listen to music or to sing especially with other children; he hears stories about all kinds of wonderful people and when he asks questions about them the teacher always listens and answers. Just as important, however, is the fact that he also learns to listen to the other children and to wait his turn to speak; he knows the teacher will always remember and come back to him.

Very often a child who is feeling the superiority of an older sister or brother, or jealousy of a younger one gains a real feeling of self-worth as he develops in his ability to cope with the varied relationships in a nursery school. There he does not feel judged by what other children achieve, but rather by his own progress. "You are doing that so much better than you used to," says the teacher; or "What an interesting painting this is. I like that shade of blue." The child says to himself "I can cope with this world, I get along with the children here, I can do most of the things they do; some I do better and some not quite as well, but that is alright." Thus he can better cope with the competitiveness of his brothers and sisters at home.

MOTHERS PARTICIPATE

All this a child can receive from a good nursery school, but if it happens to be a co-operative one, the parents can gain immeasurably also. In most of these, a mother is expected to participate and assist several mornings a month. What an opportunity to see your child a little more objectively, to realize that he is a person with his own mind, his own rate of growth and his own dignity. A good nursery school is a laboratory of "human relations" where adults can really learn how children grow, the reasons behind their varied activities and some idea of what they are thinking. With this understanding we can better help children to grow to their full potential and develop into people who can, eventually, accept adult responsibilities. At any rate they will have learnt to an amazing degree how to get along with other people and be much better prepared to enter the even larger world of the crowded, bustling, impersonal public school.

IN THE MONTREAL ROYALS Junior Baseball league, the umpires were called by their umpire-in-chief and told not to report for Sunday night games. The reason, which seems very silly, is that the league, who are the teams when you get down to brass tacks, wanted only two umpires in their quarter-finals and the semis. The umpires wanted three to work the games, and thus was the reason why the officials did not turn up for duty. One game was played, that being in St. Henry, with Park Extension, but the two officials who worked this game came from an out-of-town tilt and could not be told of the latest move of those men who are supposed to have brains, hold a game in check and set an example to the players to play ball the right way.

We have known cases where umpires or other game officials have gone on strike for an increase of money, not because the teams wanted to pay two officials instead of three. The move was made for two officials because it saves expenses. You would think that these officials are handling major games instead of junior. We are not against any game official getting paid to work a game, for they can either make or break a game, depending if the official knows his work or not. The point that we can't see is that why they want so much, than go on strike because the teams wanted two officials.

For every game official whether it be hockey, football or baseball, there are at least five men of different clubs or leagues who are working a lot harder for the game. Where would the umpire be if there were no men, who work for nothing in the formation of these leagues, teams and what have you? They would be out in the cold.

Besides, a lot of money can be made in amateur refereeing circles and they don't pay any income tax. It does not seem fair, to the teams or league officials that grown up men, who call themselves umpires, who take hard earn money from these amateur clubs acted in such childlike way. No doubt they will have a good excuse, but this time it should not be accepted. They should have worked the game and settled their indifferences in the committee room.

JULES HUOT, Laval-sur-le-Lac pro, holds the O'Keefe Trophy, won by him in the final of the Quebec O'Keefe Match Play Championship. The tournament was held at LaSalle Golf & Country Club, where a record crowd watched the exciting final between the veteran Huot and Bob Dean, of Cornwall. In winning 5 and 4, Huot copped the $700 first prize, while Dean received $500. It was the last O'Keefe tournament of the season, and a total of $15,000 in prizes has been won.

LeRiche, Johnston early Old Caddies golf entries

Quebec junior golf champion Gordon LaRiche of Hampstead and pro Allan Johnston of Kanawaki will be shooting for top honors in the 11th annual Old Caddies Tournament at St. Dorothee Oct. 4.

LaRiche and Johnston were among the first to enter the event which will be limited to 180. Dead line for entries is set for Sept. 21.

Whenever you gather with the golfers, this time at the O'Keefe Match Play at LaSalle, the question comes up on the lack of course, high fees, too many members and what course will be the next sold. LaSalle has been reported a few times to have been offered a good price. This week, the story, which was supposed to come from the downtown stock circles, was that LaSalle had been sold for 4½ million bucks. Quite a sum of cash, but the course and land in the rear has seven million square feet.

Talking to a member of the family who own LaSalle Golf Course, he told us that it had NOT BEEN SOLD AS YET, but added that it was impossible to have such a piece of land and hold on to it as a golf club. About 15 years ago, the members of LaSalle could have bought the club for around $50,000, but that kind of money was hard to get. There was another report that the Town of LaSalle were interested and offered $35,000 which was turned down by the owners. Now, the same land is worth at least four million bucks.

It will be hard to lose another golf course, but they are being sold every year. Marlborough may go this fall, maybe in the 1961, but it will go. The members, so we are told, stand a chance of making $5,000 each or better in the deal. Summerlea is another course that has been talked about on the 19th tee, that it too will be a dead duck in not too long. Oh, to be in the real estate or be a member of a golf course and give up the game for life.

A total of seven trophies will be up for competition in this unique tournament that features a championship for pros, assistant pros, amateurs caddies, ladies, father and son, club president and caddy.

The two main trophies will be the Emile Collette Trophy for champion Assistant Pro and the Fern Shield for champion caddy.

Johnston a two time winner of the Collette Trophy in 1957-58, is not eligible for this event this year.

The winner receives an invitation to the Bing Crosby Clambake at Pebble Beach and a $500 cheque towards expenses.

The idea behind the competition is to give the Assistants more incentive and to provide the eventual winner with valuable experience, gained at the Crosby show and other events during the course of the winter months.

Johnston has become a full time professional and will be competing for the John Jay Hopkins Trophy won last year by Marcel Desjardins of Ottawa.

The Kanawaki pro attributes his successive trips to the Crosby event as playing a big part in smoothing out his game.

Johnston finished second in the Toronto Bursary competition and earned $1,500 towards expenses, while on the winter tour.

The Fern Shield will go to the champion caddy who will also receive $150 Molson Scholarship towards his education.

Two other $150 educational scholarships will be awarded the second
