

TO SLAY THE FATAL GERM.

American Doctors Praise Canadian 'Quarantine.'

A GREAT DAY AT GROSSE ISLE WITH REPRESENTATIVE PHYSICIANS.

DR. MONTIZAMBERT'S LITTLE ISLAND KINGDOM BELOW QUEBEC—FORTY BUILDINGS AND FORTY MEN—THE PRESIDENT OF THE HEALTH ASSOCIATION SAYS HE WOULDN'T MIND BEING DETAINED HIMSELF—WICKED LITTLE GERMS ON VIEW, BUT NOT AT LARGE.

It is seldom that the lower St. Lawrence can be seen in the end of September in weather sufficiently warm to render the trip enjoyable. Such, however, was the good fortune of the American Public Health Association's excursion to Grosse Isle. 'If we had ordered the weather,' said Mayor Villeneuve, who was on board, 'we couldn't have had it any better.'

commissioned to carry the visitors to Grosse Isle that they might see 'Quarantine.' The departure took place on Friday afternoon, with about three hundred and fifty people as passengers. Many of these were ladies, and all were bent on having a good time. Mayor Villeneuve and Aldermen Stevenson and Savignac were there, and did their best by precept and example to make everyone happy. The other gentlemen on board were nearly all doctors, many having more than one set of mystic initials following their names.

The sail down the St. Lawrence was superb.

EVERYONE WAS ON DECK until late at night. Some passengers got off at Quebec in the morning, but the majority stayed on board. Grosse Isle is two hours' sail from Quebec. The day was bright and warm, and a fine breeze was blowing. To many of those on board this was the first trip on our mighty river, and they declared that it surpassed all the accounts they had heard of it. Grosse Isle was the object of a great deal of interest and attention from the moment it came into sight. Dr. Montizambert, who has become very popular among those attending the convention, personally conducted the visitors over the island. The island is several miles long. Its shores are rugged, but beautiful woods come down close to the rocks.

NOTHING GRIM OR UNINVITING. Many were agreeably surprised. Two hours and a half were spent in rambling about the island. The officials were obliging in the extreme, and Dr. Montizambert received many congratulations on the equipment and discipline of his little domain.

The quarantine station consists of forty buildings. A staff of men is constantly employed. It includes the crews of the two outside steamers and the police force of the island. The force, by the way, consists of a sergeant and four men. No complaints are ever lodged as to their inactivity or stupidity, so this force may be said to eclipse a system which is much better known.

The first building visited was the one in which the passengers' baggage is disinfected. This was perhaps the most interesting at the station. Each passenger of a suspected ship is allotted in which must be placed all the luggage and clothing except that upon the person of the owner. When packed, these trunks are put on small cars which are run into a disinfecting chamber. There are three of these chambers, each holding two cars. The cars hold twenty-four trunks each, so that a hundred and forty-four parcels of baggage may be disinfected at once. The chambers are twenty-six feet long and eight feet six inches in width and height. Both doors and sides are steam-jacketed, and outside of the jackets are mattresses made of asbestos. When the baggage is in the chamber and the doors closed, the temperature inside is raised to boiling point by means of the steam jacket. The air is then pumped out and steam is admitted. The steam being at boiling point, it does not, of course, wet the goods. When a thermometer, packed in the centre of the baggage, registers 212 degrees an automatic bell is caused to ring in the adjoining engine-room. The time is then taken, and for thirty minutes the baggage experiences a heat varying from 210 to 230 degrees. The cholera germ that could give after such a roasting would be a new wonder of the world. The steam is drawn from the chamber by a suction pump, and the cars are taken out at the other end of the building. While the baggage is being thus disinfected the passengers go upstairs to receive their share. Each enters a small room adjoining a shower bath. The clothes are left in this room to be fumigated, while the passengers step into the bath.

'When you get into one of those baths,' said Dr. Montizambert, 'you must get washed; there is no escaping it.' The water comes from all directions. It is sometimes medicated with different substances, according to the disease suspected.

THE HEALTHY QUARTERS.

After a glance at the engine-room, which contained indicators and registers that could never be described in anything but technical terms, the visitors went over 'the healthy quarters.' These are scattered at short distances over the most beautiful part of this picturesque island. There is accommodation for a hundred and twenty-five cabin passengers in a new building overlooking the river.

Dr. Bailey, president of the Health Association, looked about this building, and remarked, 'Well, I wouldn't mind being detained here myself for a few weeks.' The place was more like a summer resort than a quarantine station. The sleeping rooms are fitted with all modern conveniences. There are comfortable sitting and dining rooms, with open fire-places for chilly weather. The intermediate passengers can be accommodated to the number of two hundred. Their quarters are not quite so luxurious as those of the first class passengers, but are thoroughly comfortable. Fifteen hundred steerage passengers can be lodged and fed on the island. Six plain wooden buildings, each containing two hundred and forty galvanized iron beds, are used for that purpose. These beds are in two layers, as may be seen from the artist's snapshot.

PROVISIONS FOR THE DETAINED.

The food is kept and prepared in separate buildings. The washing facilities are so convenient and plentiful in all cases as to ensure cleanliness. While the healthy passengers are detained here, the ship is being fumigated and sprayed with mercuric chloride solution. The sick passengers are removed to the hospitals, situated at another part of the island about a mile distant,—two buildings, accommodating altogether two hundred patients. The laboratory is a small building containing a number of delicate instruments with which the doctors can detect the wicked little germs and seal them up in bottles, where their ghastly mummies may be gazed upon by the curious visitor without fear of contamination.

All ships coming from Russia, Poland, Belgium, Portugal, Holland and some parts of France and Germany have been quarantined this season.

AS MANY AS EIGHTEEN HUNDRED

passengers have been detained on the island at one time. The water supply up to the present time has been pumped up from the river, but a well is now being prepared which is 1,125 feet deep and six inches in diameter.

On a point of land surrounded by fine woods is a monument which marks the burial place of 5,424 people who died from typhus fever in 1847. Five doctors died with them, sacrificing their lives among the victims of that dreadful plague. Col. Stevenson and Dr. Bailey spent some time examining the monument, and afterwards 'stood for their photographs,' with a few of the other excursionists.

On leaving the island the steamer 'Canada' was escorted and saluted by the Quarantine steamer 'Challenger.' Quebec came into sight just after the dinner hour, and the afternoon was spent in driving about the Ancient Capital.

Many of the doctors returned to the city in the 'Canada,' and will spend a few more days here. The sole opinion of all the visitors was that Canada's quarantine arrangements are perfect.

THE PROVINCIAL TREASURERSHIP.

We understand that the Hon. John S. Hall has formally tendered his resignation as Treasurer of the Province of Quebec, and that he will resume the active practice of his profession, retaining his seat in the Legislature as a private member. The retirement from the government of Mr. Hall cannot fail to be a source of regret not only to his personal friends, but to the supporters of the ministry in the Assembly and to the Conservative party in the province. A gentleman of sterling integrity, of ability, of popular parts, with a considerable amount of experience in public life, possessing the confidence not alone of his party, but of the public generally, his selection as Treasurer under the administration of the De Boucherville-Tailion administration in December, 1891, was regarded as an eminently wise choice and as affording evidence of the sincere desire of the Conservative leaders to repair the havoc to the finances wrought by Mercier's rule. Since his acceptance as office Mr. Hall has devoted himself assiduously to his work. He has had a formidable task to discharge and in many respects his work has been as thankless as it must have been unpleasant.

The condition in which he found the provincial finances, no alternative to the government other than the imposition of new taxation. Three years ago the province was literally face to face with bankruptcy unless new sources of revenue were speedily availed of. Public credit was at a low ebb. Loans could be made only at ruinously high rates of interest. The annual deficit reached many hundred thousand dollars, approximating a million and three-quarters in the fiscal year of 1890-91. The application of economies must necessarily be somewhat slow. Many of the most formidable items of expenditure were of a fixed character, not subject to reduction, for example the repayment of railway deposits. Yet despite the discouraging nature of the situation, the government with the hearty co-operation and aid of the Hon. Mr. Hall, set about the work of retrenchment and repair with vigor, and after nearly a year's administration the government has the satisfaction of knowing that substantial economies have been effected, that no new obligations on capital account have been incurred, that the breath of scandal has not tainted their conduct of public affairs and that the period is within measurable distance in which a remission of taxation may be effected.

It is, therefore, regrettable that the Hon. Mr. Hall does not remain in the government to carry his policy to a successful conclusion, but that the fruition of the work begun by his late colleagues and himself will fall to the lot of his successor. The reason of Mr. Hall's retirement is understood to be a difference with his colleagues respecting the manner of repaying the loan of $4,000,000 which falls due in Paris in December next. We have already alluded somewhat to this subject. The loan was made by the Mercier government in 1890, being for 21,277,000 francs, part of an issue of 510,000,000 francs authorized by the legislature. It fell due in 1893, and was at that time further renewed by the Hon. Mr. Hall, who had failed to obtain satisfactory offers for a permanent loan he proposed making to retire the Paris liability. The arrangement which the government is said to have agreed to, is the sale of three percent sixty year bonds at 78, less one percent commission to the Bank of Paris and the Credit Lyonnais, the proceeds to be employed in payment of the debt maturing in December. The operation involves, in a word, the substitution of 27,632,467 francs, or $5,338,066 of three percent bonds for 21,277,000 francs, or $4,106,461 of four percent bonds. Now, as to the propriety of this transaction there are, obviously, differences of opinion. In favor of the policy, it may be said that it effects a reduction in the annual interest charge, as one can readily ascertain upon calculation. The loan now outstanding imposes a yearly cost of $184,258 for interest, while the yearly cost of the proposed loan, despite the larger amount of principal, will be $158,992, or $4,266 less than its now paid. If this saving is compounded for sixty years, the duration of the issue, at four percent, which is the value of the money to the province, it will produce a sum nearly equivalent to the difference in the principal of the two loans. Then, as respects the cost of the money, 77 net for three percents is as good as 99 for four percents, a rate five percent higher than the price was able to borrow at last March, a permanent loan having been made then at 94 for four percents. On the other hand, and this is the view we understand to be held by the Hon. Mr. Hall, it may be objected that the sale has been made without competition, and that the price is available to the government to discharge the Paris liability, without recourse, at any rate, to so large a loan as is contemplated. It is a safe rule to observe that no sale of public securities should be made without competition. Sometimes tenders are asked for privately, rather than by public advertisement, and the same result is attained, but when the credit of a province or country at all warrants the proceeding, the principle of inviting tenders, with or without a fixed minimum, ought to be adhered to. INDIVIDUAL COMMUNION CUPS.

New York, Sept. 29.—The Rev. Dr. J. H. Gunning, pastor of the Bedford Avenue Baptist Church, Brooklyn, has decided to introduce individual communion to his church. He believes they should be used in all churches. His action is the result of an investigation by a committee. Dr. Gunning believes in the individual cups purely from a sanitary standpoint, and he sees no ecclesiastical reason why they should not be used. The cups to be used in his church will contain a dram of fermented wine. They will be of silver, gold lined, with a weighted bottom. There will be twenty-five of these, which will be carried on an oblong tray by the deacon serving the sacrament. It is believed the Bedford Avenue Baptist Church is the first to adopt the individual cup system.

A CASE IN WHICH JUDGES DIFFER.

The Court of Appeal rendered judgment, on Saturday, in the case of the Hereford Railway Company and Pinkham. By this action, the respondent Pinkham claimed damages on account of injuries received from a horse alleged to have been frightened by an engine of the company appellant. The first court dismissed the action, and the Court of Review reversed the judgment. Judge Tait dissenting. In appeal, the majority of the Court reversed the judgment of the Court of Review and restored the original judgment, Judges Blanchet and Wurtel dissenting.

GENEROUS GIFTS.

At the morning service in Trinity Church yesterday, Canon Mills announced that until the mortgage debt of $15,000 now on the church is wiped out; or so long as he remains rector, he will devote his salary of $1,800 and $200 additional,—making $2,000 a year, to the liquidation of the debt. At the evening service it was announced that Mr. Charles Garth, the people's warden would give $3,500 for the same purpose.

A MEXICAN RAILWAY SOLD.

New York, Oct. 1.—A 'Recorder' special from Durango, Mex., says: 'The railway running from Atlanta, on the Pacific coast, to Culiacan, has been purchased by a syndicate of New York capitalists. It will be immediately extended to this city, where connection will be made with the Mexican International Railway. Mr. C. P. Huntington, of the Mexican International and Southern Pacific Companies, is said to be at the head of the new enterprise.'

MONDAY, OCTOBER 1, 1894.

The French papers of Quebec are unanimous in demanding efficient action on the part of the city police, or, failing them, of the government in putting down the religious riots which are disgracing their city.

An English Roman Catholic paper, the 'Daily Telegraph,' while it deprecates the riots and demands their prevention, assumes to believe that they originate with a group of professional agitators whose occupation would be gone if there were no more fights between French and English, and who live by subscriptions derived from that condition of things.

So much the worse for the incompetency of the Quebec police. Could the police only lay hands on these wicked and presumably Protestant inciters of anti-Protestant tumult how delighted would they be, how delighted would the 'Telegraph' be! Let the police trot them out!

The Parnellites are using the subscriptions of Mr. Gladstone and Lord Tweedmouth to the parliamentary fund of the McCarthys and Mr. Healy's protest against them for all they are worth, and for a great deal more.

Here is the sort of grandiloquent bombast with which they are seeking to break up the political solidarity of the Irish people on the question of home rule. In a manifesto issued by the Parnellite party it is declared that the Irish people will not remain attached to a party which has succeeded only in hiring to strangers those services which were solemnly pledged to Ireland.

And again: 'They, the McCarthys, are too demoralized and divided by deadly internal strife to be useful even to their British paymasters.' There is more harping on the same string. They have certainly hit on the very note which will prove most discordant, and they have only, it would seem, to play upon it long enough and acrimoniously enough to smash the present home rule movement. Only an election will show whether they are able to accomplish this.

RICHELIEU COMPANY WINS.

THE TOTAL AMOUNT OF INSURANCE ON THE 'CORINTHIAN' AWARDED.

The Court of Appeal rendered an important judgment on Saturday in the case of the Richelieu & Ontario Navigation Company vs. the Commercial Union Assurance Company et al. This was a claim for the loss of the steamer 'Corinthian,' assured for $40,000 in fifteen different companies. Arbitrators and mediators having been appointed by the parties, the result was an award of $20,000 by two of the three arbitrators named. The Richelieu company not being satisfied with this award took out an action to have it set aside, but the Superior Court dismissed the action. Hence the present appeal. In rendering judgment the Court of Appeal held that the award was null by reason of illegality, and consequently the judgment of the court below must be reversed. The court further held that the company applicant was entitled to recover the full amount of $40,000, less $2,500 realized by the sale of the wreck, each of the companies defendant being liable for one-fifth of the sum.

THE QUEBEC MINISTERIAL CRISIS.

When a government crisis arrives the inspired utterances of the acknowledged organs of that government assume some importance. The task of the French organs in the matter of Mr. Hall's resignation is easy enough. Argument or reason is not needed with their readers. Mr. Hall resigns because he objected to a loan negotiated in France. Mr. Hall is an English crank, and has to give way to a less fanatical man. The 'Gazette's' task, that of defending both Mr. Hall, with whom it naturally assumes its readers are likely to sympathize, and the government which has forced through a loan without tenders, in spite of Mr. Hall, is a more delicate one.

After pointing out the goodness of Mr. Hall's administration, the 'Gazette' shows that he retires because the government has taken his duties out of his hands and wrongfully made a loan with the Bank of Paris and Credit Lyonnais. The wrong pointed out by the 'Gazette' is that tenders for the loan were not publicly advertised for, as Mr. Hall, the minister specially responsible for the act, thought right and demanded. The arrangement is the sale of three percent sixty-year bonds at seventy-eight, less one percent commission. This is to cover a loan effected by the Mercier Government in 1890, being for 21,277,000 francs, part of an issue of $10,000,000 authorized by the legislature. Having explained these facts, having shown very clearly that Mr. Hall cannot with any respect for himself remain with the government, the 'Gazette' regrets that he has to leave 'the fruition of the work begun by himself and his late colleagues' to his successor. The 'Gazette' does not attempt to show how any successor to Mr. Hall can be defended in adopting the act which has caused Mr. Hall's resignation. The character of the prime minister has generally been counted irreproachable and spotless. Mr. Taillon will, however, we presume, be the first to acknowledge that only a very spotless reputation all round will bear a ministry through such a proceeding as placing a loan, however good, without tenders without scathe or suggestion of pour boire. This loan, by which five and a third millions of dollars is paid for a four-million dollar debt, has no such element of brilliancy about it as to disarm criticism.

NEW ERSKINE CHURCH.

DEDICATION SERVICES AT THE BEAUTIFUL BUILDING ON SHERBROOKE STREET.

The first temple was only walled and roofed by the trees of Eden when God talked with man in the cool of the day. From that earthly paradise we look on to the New Jerusalem, where also shall be no temple made with hands; but between the two there is a long vista of sacred buildings. The world is dotted with temples. The cathedral spires of Europe pierce the skies, as if to emphasize the fact that man below looks up to God above.

It was with these words that the Rev. J. S. Black began his sermon at the dedication services of the new Erskine Church on Sherbrooke street, yesterday. Mr. Black was once the minister of that church. The beautiful building was erected with the congregation and friends and many pillars of Presbyterianism were present. The Rev. A. J. Mowatt, the present pastor, conducted the opening services. Mr. Black's text was Rev. xli, 22. 'And I saw no temple therein, for the Lord God Almighty and the Lamb are the light of it.'

'The temple of temples, which was Solomon's, had God's approval. Strength and beauty were in that sanctuary, and God was pleased therewith. God has made us with this sense of the beautiful and love for it.'

ONE THING NOT IN HEAVEN.

'If we have music here, we shall have surpassing music in heaven, from the golden harps of the angels. If we have blessed companionship here, how much more companionship there. The present is but a fulfillment and perfection in the land beyond. But one thing we have here that is not there; the temple building.'

'Why should the church be beautiful and pleasing to look upon? It has been the desire of all ages to give God the very best, as fair a house as man himself has and fabric if he be able. We all feel that it is meet that out of our collective feeling and out of our collective means we make a sanctuary of strength and beauty for our God. Nature has her domes and arches, but man must make with his own hands his place of worship. Services in houses, in the open air, in concert halls that might be all very well, but a religious life needs a religious home.'

DIFFERENCES IN HEAVEN.

'We spend our lives in doing many things that we shall not do in heaven. We spend much time in the earning of money, in stores, factories, and banks. If it were not so we could not have built this church or made our offering this morning. But we all feel that there will be no cotton mills in heaven. It is necessary, it may even be Christ-like here, but we will not seek money in heaven.'

'We spend much time in the acquisition of knowledge. We have our schools and colleges, and are never done learning. But in heaven we shall have all the knowledge we need without seeking it.'

'We spend much time in the pursuit of pleasure, in gorgeous halls, and places of amusement. We seek for pleasures worthy of all praise or of all condemnation. But there will be no need to seek them in heaven.'

'We spend much time in active worship, and we need a temple for our prayer and praise, but in heaven we need depend on no earthly temple.'

SIMILARITIES IN HEAVEN.

'But we have many things on earth that they have in heaven too. In my Father's house there are many mansions—homes—and I am glad to think that the love of our church homes and fellowship, the more we shall be fitted for our heavenly homes. There will be adoration there, and those who have adored most here will adore most there. There will be gifts in heaven. Gifts? What need of them in the fullness of glory and joy? They will be gifts to the King of kings, for the saints will joyfully take their golden crowns and cast them down at the feet of Jesus. And the more of the giving spirit we have here, the more we shall have there.'

'I had a dream,' concluded Mr. Black, impressively, 'in which I saw a lot of church members—men and women—well, I dreamed that I heard them talking among themselves. They were congratulating themselves on having got into heaven so cheaply. Finally, the meekest man of the lot opened his mouth to tell how little he had had to give, but he got no further. Christ passed that way. His tender look made that man weep. 'And I saw,' said Mr. Black, pointedly, 'that there might also be sorrow and shame even in heaven.'

INTERPRETATION OF A CONTRACT.

The Court of Appeal has confirmed the judgment of the Superior Court in the case of Baker et al. vs. McLelland et al. This case rested on the interpretation of a contract. A. McLelland sold to one Wilkins the phosphate mining rights of a lot in the township of Hull. One clause of the contract read that in case while working the said mines, Wilkins should find some other minerals, he would have the privilege of buying the same from McLelland for his representatives, by paying the price set by two arbitrators. The property subsequently changed hands several times, after Wilkins had worked the mine for about five years, finding mica, but not exercising his privilege of completing the purchase of the rights of such new minerals. The property having eventually come into the hands of Baker and others, they claimed the privilege of purchasing the mica rights, and the question to decide was whether the privilege only existed for Wilkins while he was actually working the mine. Both the Superior Court, and the Court of Appeal held that the meaning of the clause was that Wilkins would be entitled to buy the right to any other mineral he might find only while actually working the phosphate mine.

A WIDOW GETS HER INDEMNITY.

The Court of Appeal has confirmed the judgment of the Superior Court granting $1,230 damages to the widow of the late P. Tague, who was killed by an engine of the Canadian Pacific Railway Co., at a crossing near the village of Plaisance, Ottawa county.

THE ANCIENT CAPITAL.

APPLICATION FOR DIVORCE.

Quebec, Sept. 29.—Mr. L. S. Odell, leather merchant, of this city, gives the usual notice in the local papers this evening that he will apply at the next session of the Dominion Parliament for a divorce from his wife, Marie Louise Laurentine Odell, on the ground of adultery. This is the painful sequel of the judgment recently rendered by Sir L. N. Casault in the case of Odell vs. Gregory.

WOLFE'S SWORD.

The bottom is completely knocked out of the contention that the sword purchased by the Militia Minister, Mr. Patterson, and lately shown at the provincial exhibition here is General Wolfe's, by a letter just published by Mr. Wurtelle, librarian of the Quebec Literary and Historical Society. In this letter, Mr. Wurtelle says:—

Among the numerous historical enquiries made to the Literary and Historical Society of Quebec, was one recently received from a gentleman in London, England, who is writing the 'Memoirs of General Wolfe,' for Macmillan's excellent biographical series 'Englishmen of Action,' asking for all the publications of the society relating to the siege of Quebec in 1759, and they were promptly forwarded to him. As the 'Dunn' sword was then under discussion in the Canadian press, the subject was mentioned in replying to his letter, and this week some interesting details were received. This gentleman, in his researches, had communicated to all General Wolfe's correspondence in possession of Col. Warde, and relates that:—

'The sword which Wolfe wore when he fell was, together with his other effects, sent home and taken charge of by Colonel George Warde (afterwards General) his executor and life-long friend, and now in the possession of the Hon. J. G. Ross, at Westmorland, Kent. The Warde family in 1836, or to be precise, Mr. Geo. Warde, son of the General, presented the sword to the museum of the Royal United Service Institution, on the condition that, should this institution ever be broken up, the Wolfe-Quebec sword should be given back to the family. The present Colonel Warde, of Squerreyes, who was last down there showed me the correspondence between his uncle, the owner of the sword, and the War Office, and the formal receipt and agreement relating to the same. The sword is now in a case at the United Service Museum, and I held it in my hand yesterday. Wolfe's effects were very carefully collected after his death, and there is a good deal of correspondence relating to his smaller affairs preserved with the large collection of his own letters at Squerreyes. When Col. Warde heard that a sword of Wolfe's was for sale some time ago, he assumed as a matter of course that it might or might not be some other sword of Wolfe's used on a former occasion, and that it is the sword carried by Wolfe on the Plains of Abraham is a manifest impossibility when that sword passed in the ordinary course to Wolfe's heirs, was duly accounted for and now lies in its case not three hundred yards from where I am writing. I may add that apart from the fact of the irrefragable evidence possessed by the Warde family as to the history of this sword, the Royal United Service Institution would not dream of exhibiting and labelling as Wolfe's Quebec sword, a weapon that was not officially proven to be the actual one, and in this case the sword has come through its natural channel.'

A NICE POINT OF LAW.

The Court of Appeal rendered a very interesting judgment on Saturday, in the case of Turner and Mulholland. This was an action by which the daughter-in-law of the late Mrs. Crausby sought to get from her estate the amount of an alimentary allowance established by a judgment. The point at issue was whether the creditor of such an allowance was entitled to enforce payment of same against the estate of the debtor after the latter's death. The Superior Court held the affirmative, but the Court of Appeal was unanimously of opinion that the obligation was not a transmissible one, and consequently the judgment was dismissed the action.

MUST PAY THE LOSS.

The Court of Appeal on Saturday affirmed the judgment of the Superior Court granting the plaintiff $50,000 in a case of Gendreau vs. the Montreal Paper Company. This action was on account of the destruction of the plaintiff's buildings, by the explosion of a fire, by a fire caused by sparks which escaped from the smoke stack of the plaintiff's mill.

A WILL SET ASIDE.

The Court of Appeal has rendered a judgment reversing the decision of the Superior Court in the case of Currie vs. Currie. This was an action to set aside the last will of the late John Currie. The action was dismissed in the court below, but maintained in the Court of Appeal.

SHERBROOKE NEWS.

Sherbrooke, Oct. 1.

At a regular meeting of the district of Saint Francis Medical Association, held at the Continental Hotel in this city a few days ago, the following officers were duly elected for the coming year: President, R. A. O. King, M.D.; Secretary, Dr. J. G. Ross, M.D.; Treasurer, Dr. A. N. Worthington, M.D.; Librarian, Dr. J. G. Ross, M.D.; and Secretary, Dr. J. G. Ross, M.D.

The inauguration of the new building of the Quebec Central Hospital, which will take place on Oct. 1, with inaugurating ceremony, will be held at the new building, which will be officially opened on the new line. Cardinal Taschereau's coadjutor, Archbishop Meloan, will solemnly bless it and bring the other notabilities invited to be present on that occasion. The general managers, J. B. Blanchet, a former member for Beauport, the Hon. P. Gauthier, Sir William Van Horne, and Mr. S. G. Gagnon, general manager of the Grand Trunk Railway.

Mr. James S. Mitchell has purchased the interest of the late Col. Lucke in the firm of Lucke & Mitchell, and will continue the business alone. Mr. J. S. Mitchell has been for eighteen years connected with the late firm, of which he was the active member, and is justly regarded as a shrewd, capable business man.

SNOW IN MINNESOTA.

Duluth, Minn., Oct. 1.—Three inches of snow is reported at Motley, with a fall also at Brainerd and along the Northern Pacific Railway.

SPORTS AND PASTIMES.

TWO INTERMEDIATE RUGBY MATCHES—RUGBY OVER THE BORDER.

YOUNG SHAMROCKS AND MONTREALS—EMERALDS AND CLIFTONS—GARNETS AND IVY LEAFS.

The Rugby season was inaugurated in Montreal on Saturday by a match between two intermediate teams of the Montreal and St. Lawrence Clubs on the McGill College grounds. Mr. R. J. Dyer acted as referee, and the game was rough, and was frequently interrupted by the spectators, who kept encroaching on the field. The teams were as follows: Montreal—Oswald, back; McDougall, forward; Hamilton, half backs; Jack, quarter back; White and Lewis, scrum; McPherson, Mowat, Lyman, Godwin, Macpherson, Barry, and Anderson, wings. St. Lawrence—Ayer, back; Barclay, Gordon and Howell, half-backs; Rennie, quarter; Macpherson, Mowat, Lyman, Godwin, Macpherson, Barry, and Anderson, wings.

LENOXVILLE VS. QUEBEC.

The season opened in Quebec with a match in the intermediate series, between Quebec and Lennoxville. The game was a steady, exciting game, and great scoring was made. The teams were: Lennoxville—Abbott, back; Mr. Auden, forward; Macpherson, Mowat, Lyman, Godwin, Macpherson, Barry, and Anderson, wings. Quebec—Ayer, back; Barclay, Gordon and Howell, half-backs; Rennie, quarter; Macpherson, Mowat, Lyman, Godwin, Macpherson, Barry, and Anderson, wings.

THE CROPS IN IRELAND.

New York, Sept. 30.—Mr. Harold Frederick cables from London to the "Times": "I have been making a tour of all round the west of Ireland. The harvest all round is the best for a decade. Even in the poorest and thinnest soils potatoes escaped any signs of discoloration or blight, and their yield is plentiful. Other root crops and general cereal crops almost uniformly tell the same welcome story. Recent legislation has done a good deal towards securing the benefits of this to the people who have done the work. The altered tone of the relations between the constabulary and the people is very noticeable, and with here and there an evil exception, like the Marquis of Sligo, there is less friction of the agrarian sort than I have known in Ireland since 1834.

RELIGIOUS INTOLERANCE IN SPAIN.

Madrid, Sept. 29.—Cardinal Monescillo Visoza, archbishop of Toledo, is about to issue a pastoral letter strongly protesting against the recent consecration of the Protestant bishop of Madrid on the ground that it infringes the constitution, is an aggression on the rights of episcopate and clergy, and is likely to lead to religious conflict. The subject of the consecration will be raised in the Senate and Chamber of Deputies, and probably also in the Roman Catholic congress, which meets in Tarragona in October.

ROYAL MILITARY COLLEGE SPORTS.

Kingston, Ont., Oct. 1.—The sports at the Royal Military College occurred on Saturday before a large audience. The weather was perfect and the campus in fine condition. Nineteen events were put in, jumping, running, putting the shot and caber, etc. For the first time in the history of the college the champion was a recruit. Cadet Kingsmill of Toronto, who secured twenty-six points. He joined the college about three weeks ago. Cadet Armstrong was second with twenty-two points. Mr. E. H. Smythe, Q.C., M.P.P., presented the prizes. The Queen's College sports will occur on Oct. 16.

LAWN TENNIS TOURNAMENT.

Kingston, Ont., Oct. 1.—The mixed doubles were finished on Friday afternoon. It was only after a long and hard fight that Miss Drury and R. M. Irving defeated Miss L. Norton-Taylor and J. Gage, score, 3-6, 16-14, 6-2. This finishes the tennis for the year. Mr. Drury won both ladies' and gentlemen's doubles, while R. M. Irving won everything—men's singles, men's doubles and mixed doubles.

LIVE STOCK MARKET.—Oct. 1.

There were about 450 head of butchers' cattle, 50 calves and 400 sheep and lambs offered for sale at the East End Abattoir to-day. The butchers were present in considerable numbers and there was a good demand for the best cattle, but the rough and inferior beasts were not very salable and prices continue about the same as on last Thursday. Mr. George Nicholson sold eleven of the best cattle on the market at 3 1/2c per lb. and Mr. T. Lamb bought three more at the same rate. Pretty good stock sold at from 3c to 3 1/2c per lb. A lot of moderately good Manitoba cattle were sold at 2 1/2c to 2 3/4c per lb. There was a good demand for calves and a lot of nice superior calves which would weigh from 300 to nearly 500 lbs. each, were sold for $100 for the lot. Common calves sold at from $3 to $6 each. Sheepers are buying less for sheep than 15 cents held for them in Toronto, or about 2 1/2c per lb. The other sheep sell at from $2 to $3.25 each and lambs sell at from $1.50 to $3 each. Fat hogs are lower in price or from 2c to 5 1/2c per lb.

NOTES AND NOTICES.

Investigation blazes the way for human progress. Rule 15, which prevented the admission of patent medicines at the World's Fair, caused an investigation of all the blood purifiers presented for exhibition purposes. The result of this examination by scientific men, proved that Ayer's Sarsaparilla was the only remedy of the kind entitled to the confidence of the committee, and worthy of their endorsement. NOTES AND NOTICES.

Investigation blazes the way for human progress. Rule 15, which prevented the admission of patent medicines at the World's Fair, caused an investigation of all the blood purifiers presented for exhibition purposes. The result of this examination by scientific men, proved that Ayer's Sarsaparilla was the only remedy of the kind entitled to the confidence of the committee, and worthy of their endorsement. SIR DONALD'S NEW ESTATE.

A Valley With a History Passes Into His Possession.

THE SCENE OF THE MASSACRE OF GLENCOE.

As stated in our telegraphic despatches the other day, Sir Donald Smith has purchased the great Highland estate of Glencoe. The purchase was made at auction, and the price was £15,900, or about $80,000. The 'Illustrated London News,' from which our pictures are taken, furnishes the following interesting history of this estate:—

Near the southern shore of Loch Leven, which divides Argyllshire from Inverness-shire on the west coast of Scotland, lies this gloomy valley between rocky hills where Macdonald of Glencoe, called Mac Ian, once ruled over his tribal dependents.

THE SECRETARY MADE ALL WELCOME. The secretary, Sir John Dalrymple, who was with the Earls of Breadalbane and Argyll, then in London. Those three powerful Scotchmen, Breadalbane and Argyll being certainly actuated by motives of private vengeance, concerted a plan for the destruction of the people of Glencoe.

hospitality of the unsuspecting people. When the appointed time came they attacked the Macdonalds, dragging them from their houses and cottages, binding them hand and foot, slaughtered more than thirty men and boys, including Mac Ian, and some women, mostly by shooting them, and drove the remainder away, so that many infirm old persons and young children perished among the rocks and in the snows. The deserted dwellings were burnt, and the cattle, sheep, goats and ponies became the spoil of the Campbells. It was several weeks before anything was known of this hideous transaction in Edinburgh or in London, while King William was in the Netherlands, fully occupied with diplomatic and about two hundred people, in several little hamlets. They were a branch of the Macdonald clan, locally separated from all their kindred, almost surrounded by the hostile race of Campbell; and this hereditary feud was more embittered in the seventeenth century by the Macdonalds being of the Roman Catholic religion. In 1689, of all the Highland insurgents who joined Graham of Claverhouse, entitled, by the fallen King James, Viscount Dundee, in the revolt against King William and Queen Mary, the Macdonalds were particularly fierce. They continued, in many districts, to carry on a predatory warfare until 1692; but their immediate foes were the great Campbell chiefs, the Earl of Argyll and the Earl of Breadalbane. Private war, indeed, accompanied with robbery of cattle and of farm-houses, was the habitual pursuit of many Highland-

Representing to King William, who was totally unacquainted with Scotland, that this tribe was a mere gang of banditti, they got his signature to a paper instructing the military commander-in-chief that it would be proper to extirpate that set of thieves, if they can be well distinguished from the other Highlanders. There is not the slightest reason to suppose that William III. meant any persons to be put to death except such as might be proved guilty of ordinarily capital crimes, and he added this clause, 'for the vindication of public justice.' On March 6 the King left England, certainly quite ignorant of the use which Sir John Dalrymple had determined to make of the instructions that had been given. William was in England for a hasty visit of three months. The massacre of Glencoe was already perpetrated, on Feb. 13, but the news of it military preparations for continuing his war against France. Three years later there was a royal commission of enquiry, and a debate in the Scottish parliament. Sir John Dalrymple was deprived of his offices. Hamilton, Campbell and others were ordered to be prosecuted. Their further punishment was, however, excluded by a general amnesty.

AN IMPORTANT RULING.

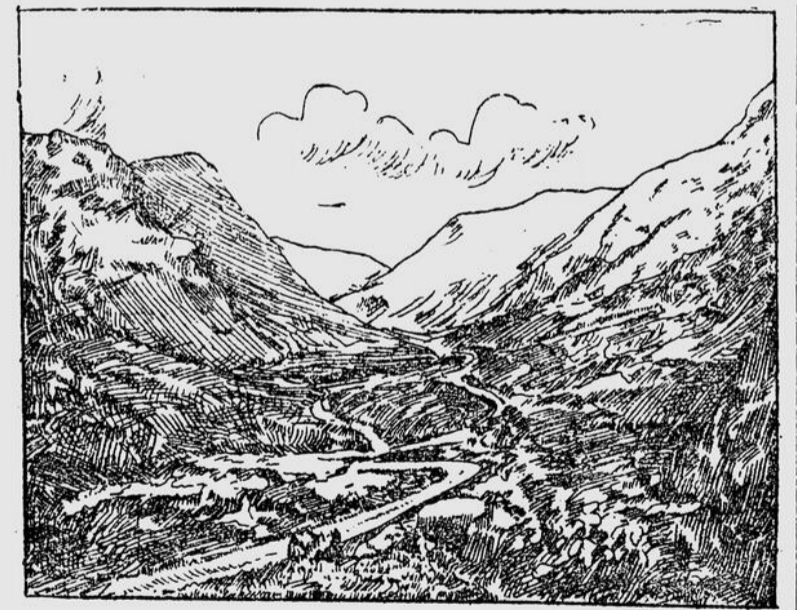

LABOR DAY DOES NOT EFFECT OUR CIVIL COURTS. Judge Delorimier rendered judgment this morning on a very important point raised in a case of Alph. Richer vs. Theop. Gervais and Galpepaut tiers saisi. The point was whether a seizure made returnable on Sept. 3 last, Labor Day, was good and valid. The Court held that it was, inasmuch as by virtue of section 92 of the act of British North America the administration of justice in the civil courts is entirely within the jurisdiction of the provinces and cannot be affected by a federal statute. Another objection was raised in connection with the same case, owing to the proclamation of the Lieutenant-Governor, of Aug. 30, fixing Sept. 3 as a legal holiday. On this point, the Court held that supposing the Lieutenant-Governor had the right to fix such a legal holiday, the proclamation could not in any case have a retroactive effect. For all these reasons the exception to the form must be dismissed.

'WE NEVER PAY FULL FARE.'

A BOAST MADE BY A CERTAIN CLASS OF TRAVELLERS—THE GRAND TRUNK ARRESTS. A great sensation has been produced in Grand Trunk circles by the arrest of the two conductors, whose case was referred to in Saturday's 'Witness.' It was stated to-day on good authority that more arrests were to follow. The action of the company in seeking the intervention of the Attorney-General, instead of going on the record as private prosecutors, is variously commented on. It is said that the reason for this action lay in the possibility of acquittal, in which case the company would not be liable for a counter action for damages for false arrest. It is the habit of the Grand Trunk to keep a conductor on the same route for many years. The public thus get to know the man by sight and name, and it is contended that this latter is unfriendly to honesty. If the system were such as it is in England, where the guard is changed during the journey, and no one knows what man will be put on the conductor would be less exposed to temptation. The conductor, it is said, should not know his train till the latter was ready to start. This would prevent any man being approached by the class of men who still make a boast that they never pay full fare on the Grand Trunk.

THE VISITING GOVERNORS FOR THE PRESENT WEEK.

The visiting governors for the present week to the Protestant House of Industry and Refuge is which is in England, where the guard is changed during the journey, and no one knows what man will be put on the conductor would be less exposed to temptation. The conductor, it is said, should not know his train till the latter was ready to start. This would prevent any man being approached by the class of men who still make a boast that they never pay full fare on the Grand Trunk.

THE PASS OF GLENCOE.

ers. The government of Scotland was entrusted to the Secretary of State, Sir John Dalrymple, Master of Stair, an eminent lawyer, who took counsel with the Earl of Breadalbane upon measures to suppress these disturbances. Most of the Jacobite chieftains were bought over, and pardon was assured to all rebels, or malefactors acting professedly as political insurgents, who would submit and swear to live peaceably, the last day of grace fixed being Dec. 31, 1691. The accredited agents of King James had formally renounced hostilities six months before. Mac Ian, or Mac-had not reached London. The military executioners sent in advance were a company of soldiers, mostly Campbells, of Argyll's regiment, commanded by Captain Campbell, of Glenlyon, with a Lieutenant Lindsay, acting under orders from Lieutenant-Colonel Hamilton, and joined by him, with four hundred more soldiers, early in the dark winter morning. It was a deed of the basest treachery as well as of atrocious cruelty; the officers with the first detachment, who had arrived twelve days before, pretending friendly intentions, and accepting the wanted

CANADA'S GREAT ATHLETIC CONTEST.

FOUR CANADIAN RECORDS BROKEN AND A WORLD'S RECORD EQUALLED—THE ASSOCIATION MEETS.

A large crowd of spectators witnessed the eleventh annual championship games of the Amateur Athletic Association of Canada on the M.A.A.A. grounds on Saturday. The competition was not what it was on some previous occasions, but it was amply gratifying. In four events, throwing the 56-lb. weight, the pole vaulting, the 880 yards run and the 220 yards run, the Canadian record was beaten. In the 220 yards run, T. I. Lee, of the New York Athletic Club, equalled the world's record. The following are the results:—

INDEPENDENT DEMOCRATS.
A TICKET TO BE NOMINATED IN NEW YORK.
New York, Sept. 29.—The Brooklyn
'Eagle' says: 'There will be an independent Democratic state ticket in the field. It is not only probable but it is virtually certain that it will be headed by the name of Mr. Charles S. Fairchild.
Nominations for lieutenant-governor and judge of the Court of Appeals will also be made. There will not only be a complete state ticket with a complete state committee of representatives of each congressional district, but there will be independent Democratic nominations for local offices in all the cities as well as like nominations for the Assembly in the various counties. It is too late under the law to hold a state convention in a formal sense. Time enough exists, however, for the assembling of a conference and for what is called a ticket by petition or application. The conference of independent and reform Democrats from all parts of the state will meet towards the last of next week or the first of the week following, either at Syracuse or in New York city, most probably in Syracuse. It is the intention to place the ticket upon a platform that will be vivid and vital in every line, a platform of unquestionable independence.'

New York, Sept. 29.—The 'Tribune' to-morrow will have the following: 'A letter was received by Judge Gaynor, in Brooklyn, yesterday (Saturday), in which the judge said he could not accept the Democratic nomination offered to him.'

CHILDREN'S CORNER.

AT GIBRALTAR.
(1779.)
BY MARY A. E. STANFORD.
This is the tale they tell
Of the brave sentinel,
When fleets of France and Spain
Thundered and flashed in vain
On the troop at Gibraltar,
Which, starving, would not yield.

Forth from his moonlit tent,
As the commander went—
Elliott, dauntless man!—
With his own eyes to scan Rampart and parapet,
Grim with guns seaward set,
He passed a lonely guard,
Standing in silent ward,
Who, with unlowered lance,
Let the great chief advance,
Short turning in his path,
He cried, in sudden wrath:

'Churl, does such carriage suit
Thy rank and mine?'
'Snot of my will I fail!'
Answered the soldier pale
Under his helmet's shade,
'With this right arm of mine
I stopped a Spanish gall!
Pardon, my General!

'Wounded, man, did you say?
'Why, then, this rash delay?
Quick to the hospital!'
'Pardon, my General!
Once more the accents clear
Smote on the questioner's ear:
'For honor of his land
Still must the soldier stand,
Though life and limb be lost,
I may not leave my post!

Glowed cheeks of Elliott,
With noble passion hot;
Forward he strode a pace,
Gazed in the boarder's face,
'Now, by my sword,' he said,
'Foe, we have none to dread!
Wet with such faithful blood,
From the bare rock must bud
Laurels of victory!
Comrade, salute I thee!
Give me thy musket true,
I take thy watch! Adieu!

'My General, but—'
'Nay
Yours only to obey!'
Marching home, empty-handed,
Think you the squire allowed?
Honor-cared on his breast?
What cared he for the rest?
Come what might, ever befall,
His own grand General!
(Thus fate could never alter)
Shared his watch at Gibraltar!
—The Independent.

RESCUED BY A PIG.
On an Arkansas farm lives a six months' old pig who deserves a share of the laurels usually accorded to faithful and intelligent dogs who save life. The owner of the farm has a young daughter who has always been delicate. He gave her the pig when it was hardly larger than his own hand, thinking it might amuse her.
She raised the little animal, became much attached to it, and the two played together every day that she was able to be out of doors.
The father tells the story: 'The other day about five o'clock in the evening, I heard the horn sound from the house. I knew something was wrong, and I dropped my work and ran. My wife said: "Oh, Nellie!
I can't find Nellie anywhere!" The last I remember seeing her she was playing under the big tree by the gate.' It was a whole minute before I could gather up my senses.
Then I went and let out the pig.
He ran around the yard and stopped to eat some crumbs which Nellie had left under the big tree. All at once away he went, with his nose to the ground, running so fast that I could not keep up with him. He plunged into the woods, and I plunged in after him. At last he turned suddenly to the left and went racing down the slope. My heart went down into my boots. At the bottom of the hill lay a marsh covered with a green growth, and I almost knew that poor little Nellie had walked into it and was drowned. I hurried down the hill, but at first I couldn't see anything of the pig. Around the bend in the marsh, what do you think I saw? On the bank, with his feet firmly braced, was the pig holding Nellie out of the water as best he could by her clothing. I thought at first that she was dead, and the did come very near slipping away from us, but we finally brought her around.—St. Joseph 'News.'

TWO CHILDREN OF SEVENTY-FIVE

(Eda M. Brady, in "The Independent.")

Abner Crandall drove into his yard, unharnessed and stabled his horse, and drove his wagon into the shed, and entered the kitchen where his wife was at work. He was a middle-aged man, straight and stern-looking. His wife was a frail, bent little body. She looked up from her ironing with a half-frightened, half-troubled expression as he entered and hung up his hat on a peg behind the kitchen door.

"How is she?" he asked, in a business-like tone. "Better—much better," said his wife. Then she cried out in a suppressed voice: "Oh, Abner! don't you think you've been too hasty? Can't you send word to the lawyer not to come? I'll just kill her to have you—"

But he answered her shortly: "I'm running this business, Nancy. Where is she?" "By the settin'-room window, makin' doll's clothes for Rosy." He went into the next room and closed the door behind him. He was in a large, square sitting-room, which contained four windows; but the light was very dim, so that at first he could hardly distinguish the objects it contained. The shutters were always kept closed in summer, so as to keep the flies out.

After a little pause he distinguished the outlines of the person he had come to seek. She was sitting in the further side of the room, near a window, of which the lower shutters were partly open to admit light enough for her to work by. Close by her side sat a little girl, eagerly watching her.

"How do you feel, Aunt Susan?" asked Abner. "Oh, I'm all right!" cheerfully returned the old lady. "Just as well as ever. 'Twas them cucumbers I eat for dinner yestiddy. I'd no business to touch 'em; I won't again."

He moved a chair up by her side and sat down on it, then said to the little girl: "Go away now, Rosy; I want to talk to Aunt Susan." The child reluctantly left the room. The old lady looked at her nephew wonderingly.

Abner Crandall hesitated for a moment, then, with a determined air, bent a little toward the old woman and said: "Now, Aunt Susan, and he spoke as kindly as it is in his nature to speak, to begin with, you must know that we all think a great deal of you, Nancy and me and Rosy, and we hope you will live with us a good many years to come. You are happy here with us, ain't you?"

"Of course!" "And we have done more for you than—any other of your relations, haven't we, more than—than Mary Bradford?"

her cheeks. She glanced furtively about to see if anyone was looking, then wiped them away. She tried to deceive herself into the belief that Abner had not hurt her. "I'm a big fool!" she cried, impatiently. "He done jest the right, sensible thing, of course. I should reely like to know what I'm feelin' this way fur."

She arose and sauntered slowly down the street. Rosy saw her from the house and ran after her. "Can I go with you, Aunt Susan?" she said, taking the old lady's hand. She had her big doll in her arms. "How near is the dress done, Aunt Susan?" asked Rosy. "You see Paulina has to keep covered up in my shawl."

"It's almost done, dearie." They walked on and on. The sun was getting well overhead, but the air was cool along the tree-bordered country roadside. They turned into another street. They stopped before a very old, unpainted, blindless house, with the grass grown up in the doorway paths. But there were neat curtains at all the windows, and old-fashioned roses and hollyhocks and sweet peas grew wildly yet luxuriantly in the little garden and along the sides of the paths. The large field outside the yard also belonged to the little farm, but that did not show signs of neglect, being cultivated with corn and potatoes.

The old woman and the child stepped inside the gate. "Be you going inside, Aunt Susan?" delightedly whispered the latter. For answer the old lady carefully extracted a very large, queerly-shaped key from her pocket, fitted it into the lock and opened the door, then led the way directly into the large kitchen, which was filled with the quaint, old-fashioned furnishings of her youth.

(To be continued.) There are thousands who will have no seat, or if a seat only an empty plate, at the millennial table, because in the seed-time and harvest-time of this life they folded their hands, locked their safes, and sat still in the house, leaving the whole work of gathering the world's harvest to a few overworked and unthanked laborers. Oh, ye first-class Christians moving in the best society, and enjoying the best table that the market affords, but knowing nothing of the self-sacrificing compassion for the multitudes going astray as sheep without a shepherd, remember that you are preparing for yourself a second-class heaven. We do not say that you will not be saved—for by grace are ye saved, and not of works—but though saved you will be unrewarded. No share in the Master's well-done there, because you have no part in His toilsome well-doing here.—Dr. A. J. Gordon.

Sick Headache CURED PERMANENTLY BY TAKING Ayer's Pills

"I was troubled a long time with sick headache. It was usually accompanied with severe pains in the temples, a sense of fullness and tenderness in one eye, a bad taste in my mouth, tongue coated, hands and feet cold, and sickness at the stomach. I tried a good many remedies recommended for this complaint; but it was not until I

READABLE PARAGRAPHS

SNOW NOT GREECE. A lady who has recently returned from a Mediterranean trip says that as the ship was leaving the harbor of Athens a well-dressed lady passenger approached the captain, who was pacing the deck, and, pointing to the distant hills covered with snow, asked, "What is the white stuff on the hills, captain?" "That is snow, madam," answered the captain. "Now, is it really?" remarked the lady. "I thought so, but a gentleman just told me it was Greece."

A TENDER HEART. A beautiful new doll had just been given Annie, and as she sat holding it and singing to it, her mother noticed that the old one was not in sight. "What have you done with Beatrice?" asked the mother. "I've put her away," answered the little girl. "If she saw me loving my new baby, it might hurt her feelings."

MALE AND FEMALE PACKING. Wife—"I am just dying to see the things you bought while you were away." Husband—"Eh? I didn't buy anything." "But you had only one small trunk when you left, and you have come back with two." "Oh! Yes, you packed my trunk for me, you know. When I came to start back, I had to borrow another trunk to get all the stuff in."—New York 'Weekly.'

A BOY'S PARADISE. Sammy Suburb—"Whoop! Pop has bought a new house on the bluff." "Neighbor's Boy—"Nice place?" "Sammy—"Just jolly. The lawn is so steep that all I'll have to do will be to start the lawn mower at the top and ride down on it."—Street & Smith's "Good News."

Shiloh's Cure, the great cough and consumption cure, promptly cures coughs, croup, sore throat, hoarseness, whooping cough and asthma. For consumption it has no rival. Has cured thousands, and will cure you if taken in time. Sold on a guarantee. B. E. McGee, agent, 2123 Notre Dame street.

NEW YORK'S PETTICOATS. A few days since a small child was traveling from Montreal to New York with her mother. After riding for some time she asked where they were now; were they near home. New York being her home. Her mother replied that they were on the "outskirts." On retiring she asked to be called early in the morning, when her mother promised to do. On being aroused she enquired, "Mamma, where are we now?" On being told she was in New York, she said, "Mamma, show me its petticoats."

Babies grow strong and hearty if fed on "Dyer's Improved Food for Infants." Strongly recommended by physicians. For sale by W. A. Dyer & Co., and all druggists.

NAVAL FIGHTS PAST AND PRESENT. Landsman—"From what you have observed or learned of the few naval engagements of late years, what, in your opinion, is the chief difference between modern battleships and the old kind—when it comes to actual fighting?" "Old Sailor—"So far as I have observed, the chief difference is this: The old kind, when hit, went down her-swash, and the new kind goes down ker-chug."—New York 'Weekly.'

A POSER. Johnny—"Pop, may I ask you a question in arithmetic?" "Happy Father (proud of his son's love for study)—"Certainly, my boy, certainly." Johnny—"How many times what makes seven?"—"Life."

The only place where a man freely expresses his feelings about everything is at home.—Aitchison "Globe."
