Gallantry not dead:

Sam Godinsky resigns PSBGM for Mrs. Kaplan

With a gesture of gallantry not often seen in public office, Samuel Godinsky, QC, with 3½ years of his five-year appointment to the Protestant School Board of Greater Montreal yet to run, has resigned to make it possible Tuesday for his next-door neighbor, Westmount School Commissioner Mrs. Sam Kaplan, to take her PSBGM seat without ado.

Mr. Godinsky, was chairman of the PSBGM's financial and legislation committee and, earlier, had been directly involved in the steps leading to the provincial government adding five Jewish members to the 20-member Protestant central board, and himself was one of the five appointed by Quebec.

Mrs. Kaplan was elected by her fellow members of the Westmount School Board on Jan. 10 to replace A. Reid Tilley as West-mount's statutory representative on the PSBGM. Mr. Tilley had not stood for local re-election earlier this month and thus automatically left the central board, of which he was chairman.

Quota filled

The fact that Mrs. Kaplan was Jewish did not enter into the picture when she was named Jan. 10, but a problem immediately was posed by the fact that the legal quota of five Jewish PSBGM members already was filled. A Jewish opening would not have occurred until June, the end of the PSBGM's and most other school boards' year. Westmount's terms expire with the calendar, a difference of six months.

Last week, Mr. Godinsky told The Examiner that he believed that "democracy should prevail"—alluding to the fact that Mrs. Kaplan was an elected commissioner whereas the five existing Jewish PSBGM members were government-appointed. He predicted that one of the five would vacate his seat in favor of Mrs. Kaplan, but did not suggest that the one would be he.

He said that the fact that he, too, was a Westmount resident

Taxi's skid snaps tree

A taxi skidded on The Boulevard at Mount Pleasant avenue on Tuesday about 7:45 am, smashed into a traffic sign and a small tree, breaking the latter in two.

The taxi driver, a Mr. Slezak, 47, of Montreal, was not injured.

He was heading west on The Boulevard in a 1968 Ford when he attempted to turn south down Mount Pleasant and lost control of the car.

Dawson: $4,600 theft

About $4,600 worth of electrical equipment was stolen from Dawson College, 350 Selby street sometime Monday.

The equipment consisted of three electric calculator key boards and one power pack booster (brain).

Many students frequented the classroom during the day.

The security guard checked the classroom in the evening and discovered it secured and locked.

Haute theft at the Plaza during night

Over $1,000 was stolen from the Maxime Patrick Haute Coiffure in Alexis Nihon Plaza sometime between midnight and 12:55 am Thursday.

The plaza security guard checked the salon just before midnight and again at 12:55 am, when he discovered the front door open. The thieves had broken the lock on the front door to gain entry. Drawers were opened and their contents thrown over the floor.

The stolen money was kept in a strong box in the manager's office. The box was forced open. The thieves missed $30 in an envelope on the manager's desk.

Woman, 66 is dragged under auto

A 66-year-old Outremont woman was badly injured yesterday at 3:45 pm on Sherbrooke street when she fell and was dragged for a short distance under a 1969 Buick.

Miss Edith Finlayson was taken to the Montreal General Hospital by ambulance suffering from multiple fractures to both legs. The hospital reports she is doing well.

The accident occurred at Elm avenue where Miss Finlayson fell while walking east to west on the south crosswalk. The Buick, driven by Mrs. Fernand Corbeil of Westmount Square had been heading north on Elm, had stopped at Sherbrooke, then turned right and headed east.

Mrs. Corbeil reported that she felt a bump and thought she had a flat tire. Then she heard horns honking and brought the car to a stop.

A tow truck was called to lift the car from Miss Finlayson.

December transfers:

Real estate keeps up, prices down

Property transfers continued to flourish for the second month in a row with 40 transfers in December listed compared to 40 in November and 26 in December of 1970.

The office building at 4141 Sherbrooke street, valued by the city at $2,128,900, was transferred twice, both times for $1 and considerations.

4141 Sherbrooke street west

It was transferred from Murray Lapin, Jack Wiseman, Joseph Rapoport, Angelo Favretto and Irving Backler to Sherbrooke Holdings Ltd. and then from Sherbrooke Holdings to Alberto Crecco.

Sale prices of the 18 fully listed properties were 12.1 percent below their city valuation. The properties sold for $1,418,797. They are valued at $1,613,500.

In November, sales prices of the 22 fully listed properties were 10.1 percent greater than the city's valuation of them and in December 1970, the sales prices were four percent greater than the city's valuation of the 11 fully listed properties.

18 fully listed

Of last month's 40 property transfers, 18 were fully listed, 11 sold for $1 and considerations, four were declarations, four were donations, one was a correction, one a judgement and one a dation en paiement.

Least expensive sale of the month was 4945 de Maisonneuve which sold for $19,500. It was valued at $17,600. Mrs. Ronald Somers sold the property to Mrs. Asaf Sadikovic.

The details:

4333 St. Catherine: from Combined Mortgage Corp. to Morgan Developments Inc., sale price $1 and considerations (city valuation $1,500,500);

Too portable

A portable 12-inch TV, valued at $100, was stolen from 131 Clandeboye avenue sometime between 6:30 pm Tuesday and 8:15 am Wednesday. The front door was left unlocked at that time and there was no sign of forced entry.

4945 de Maisonneuve

Erratic thief

The erratic driving of a 25-year-old Spaniard caused Westmount Police to pull him over to the side at Sherbrooke street and Grosvenor avenue Sunday at 3:49 am. He was found to be driving a car listed as stolen. He was turned over to Montreal Police. The car had been taken in Montreal.

Next Week's Weather

By ERIC NEAL

January 29 to February 5

We may always expect bright, very cold days from the third day before the full Moon until four days after. This eighth week before Easter is often the coldest of the winter. 40 degrees below zero in northern and Gulf counties, 30 below nights in the Laurentians, 25 below in the Townships. Temperature range for the Montreal region, minus 20 nights and some days as mild as 35 degrees F. Zero Fahrenheit is the freezing point of salt water.

Despite the bitter cold, this is always a good winter holiday period. Ski slopes in excellent condition with a good cover of new snow.

A report on the night life of Westmount High

3:30 pm. The bell sounds followed by the thunder of 1,100 pairs of feet, as "the masses" stampede toward the exits, much as racehorses break from the starting gate. Then the corridors of Westmount High fall silent. . . .

Hardly! Westmount High is only one of a number of high schools in the Montreal area acting as home base for a wide assortment of night-time activities. The two ladies in charge of our beloved Westmount High School following the 3:30 release bell are Mrs. M. Andrews, secretary-treasurer of the Westmount Board, and Mrs. M. Shaw, a secretary to the Westmount Board. It is Mrs. Andrews' job to deal with the technical aspects such as attending board meetings, where she takes the minutes, and dealing with school commissioner, while, Mrs. Shaw's job involves the renting of facilities of the three schools in Westmount.

Not surprisingly one of the more prominent activities is the "Adult Services," under the direction of Mr. H.S. Purdie (co-ordinator). "Adult Services" consist of a number of practical as well as interest courses, ranging from oil painting to business organization and management to "Life as a Couple." Most classes are held one or two nights a week for two to three hours per night.

Only the beginning

But "Adult Services" is only the beginning. The auditorium, library and two gyms are also rented out to various organizations for plays, meetings, games and the like. The individual groups contact Mrs. Shaw who, in turn, checks the schedule and reserves the necessary facilities. A small fee is charged to cover the cost of maintenance, but it is very small and contrary to popular belief, Westmount High, a strictly non-profit organization, is not a bottomless pit designed to wring blood from the Westmount populace. There is no rental charge, however, for activities connected with the school board, such as "Adult Services."

As Westmount High is primarily an "institute (or if you prefer, an institution, depending on your point of view) of learning," outside activities are dealt with solely after school hours, but there is generally something going on every night of the week, except Sunday.

Night-time activities are not

At Melville, St. Catherine:

Crossing guard Green dies; two-war veteran

Bill Green who ushered thousands of Westmount children across the city streets, taught them sports in his spare time and spent much of his life working in the city's schools, is dead at 72.

Known and loved by generations of Westmount children, Mr. Green taught children at the schools football, soccer and lacrosse. He spent almost all his life working in the city as a policeman, a janitor or a crossing guard.

He also had a long military career. Born in 1900 in England, he served in the British Army in the First World War, serving in France, Ireland and Malta from 1917 to 1921. He emigrated to Canada in 1921.

He joined the Canadian Army during the Second World War and served as a company sergeant-major. He served from 1940 to 1946.

A policeman from 1924 to 1929, he left the force for employment with the Westmount School Board and worked in Queen's and West-mount High schools here as well as Kensington School. After he retired in 1965 he did crossing duty on St. Catherine street at Melville avenue until recently.

He belonged to the Royal Montreal Regiment Legion Branch and was at one time custodian of the Westmount High School Alouette majorettes.

The husband of Olive Collier, Mr. Green died at the Queen Mary Veterans' Hospital on Jan. 15. He is survived by his daughters, Joan (Mrs. J. Piscitello) of New York, Dorothy (Mrs. D. Ross), Olive (Mrs. Russ Dufort) and son William. He has nine grandchildren.

Funeral was from Tees Memorial Chapel on Jan. 18. Interment was in Pointe Claire.

Hillside housing OK waited

Although city officials expected a reply from Quebec on the city's passing of the controversial public housing by-law by Dec. 31, 1971, no reply as been received as yet.

Chances of the by-law being quashed in Quebec are not likely and the probability is that it is going through necessary channels.

The Montreal office of the Quebec Housing Corporation was involved in the planning of the project which, if all goes according to plan, will be constructed on Hillside avenue.

The housing by-law was passed at the Dec. 6 meeting of city council. All aldermen present voted for the by-law with the exception of Ald. William Wood, who voted against it and abstained from voting on related by-laws.

Tenders received

Tenders for the project previously had been called for with La Societe de Construction Brandon Inc. winning with the lowest bid of $14,411 per unit, or $922,282 for the first 64 units.

The first phase, to be known as Hillside Place, consists of these units in seven buildings with a total of 133 bedrooms and an average of 2.07 bedrooms per dwelling unit. Forty more units are projected for a later date if required.

The city has applied to Quebec to establish a corporation—The Westmount Municipal Housing Bureau—to construct, maintain and operate the project.

Estimated cost of the first phase of the project is $1,379,600. Average cost of per unit of the 64 dwellings, which includes cost of land, construction, landscaping, other improvements and municipal services, is $21,556. The organizational costs and the costs of temporary financing are estimated at $121,420.

Ninety-five percent of cost, up to $18,000 per unit, will be provided for by a loan from the Quebec Housing Corporation using as security the property of the Westmount Municipal Housing Bureau. The loan is to be paid off over 50 years at an interest rate of 8 1/4 percent. Five percent of the cost of the units up to $18,000 per unit and all costs over $18,000 per unit will be met by loans made by the City of Westmount.

The units will be rented to eligible persons with the first priority going to persons displaced by expropriations carried out by public bodies in Westmount and second priority going to persons in Westmount not now suitably housed.

Annual operational costs are estimated at $210,000 while annual revenue is calculated at $101,440. This will result in an annual deficit put at $108,560.

City officials estimate the net cost of the project to the city will be $56,140 per year while the approximate total cost to the Quebec Housing Corporation is put at $81,420 per year.

We Say

'Democracy must prevail'

Appoint less, elect more

TO Westmount, even with its not inconsiderable Jewish population, the issue resolved temporarily a couple of years ago by which Jews were provided with seats—in fact, a "quota" of five—on the Protestant School Board of Greater Montreal was largely academic.

Locally there never seems to have been strong feelings about the matter. The Westmount school board is uniquely constituted as the public school board of the municipality, alongside of which any other board or commission such as the now defunct Westmount Roman Catholic school commission was in effect the dissident body.

Thus a number of years ago Dr. Soloman, as a Westmount school commissioner, took office quite naturally and without fuss, even though he was the first Jew in Quebec to sit on a so-called "Protestant" school board. It is safe to say the religious background of local board members long since has ceased to be a Westmount preoccupation.

The PSBGM was a different situation. Being so much a creature of special provincial legislation, and more appointive than elective in its makeup, giving recognition for the rights of the Jewish population to a voice in the education of their children required concerted pressure of the Jewish community at large before the injustice was corrected.

When the government finally acted, it did so with a firm and fair yet rigid and unforeseeing edict: five Jewish seats were added to the existing 20 "Protestant" ones. The new board was almost exactly in proportion to the number of Jewish and non-Jewish students in the PSBGM system. Furthermore, the new members were appointed by the government from recommendations of a body broadly representative of the Jewish community, namely the Canadian Jewish Congress.

Be it noted that by government appointments the Jewish community was assured of its new representation. This, however, was not particularly virtuous of the government: it already was and still is appointing the majority of the PSBGM members.

The biggest single area of spending of public funds, which is on education, in the Montreal area is not by democratic suffrage. It is not the people of the region, Protestant or Jewish or Roman Catholic, who have the final say in how much and in what ways moneys will be spent on education. School taxes are levied on whatever scale appointees and bureaucrats see fit and the taxpayer, be he disgruntled or grunted, has no real or direct voice in the matter.

THAT is all background which should be borne in mind when reviewing the strange situation which emerged a fortnight ago when the Westmount board elected one of its duly elected number to represent them on the PSBGM. Mrs. Kaplan happened to be Jewish.

Mr. Godinsky, one of the Jewish provincial appointees to the PSBGM, instantly recognized a principle which neither the law governing the PSBGM nor conventional thinking in Quebec City embraces with regard to government at echelons lower than itself. Mr. Godinsky expressed it in an old-fashioned but succinct phrase to The Examiner last week: "Democracy should prevail." Sounds hackneyed; but never did it require more repetition with regard to the public affairs of

The Jalna series

I recall writing an article for this column last April which was motivated more by a sharp feeling of frustration than by an inspired impulse of creativity. In it, I lamented the absence of a "Canadian Saga" to complement the highly successful CBC series depicting certain famous (The Churchill's, Henry VIII) and fictitious (The Forsyte's) families.

As it turns out, the CBC already had purchased the television rights and had begun filming the first episodes of the Jalna series by the time the above column appeared. Since I cannot claim any of the credit for the idea, I will bestow full marks on the CBC for bringing so much pleasure to the Canadian viewing audience.

Opening night

I am sure that everyone who watched the first episode last Sunday night, which felt more like attending an opening night performance on stage than a mere first-run of a new television series, will agree with me that the novels from which the series has been adapted brought to their author, Miss Mazo De La Roche, international fame. The very first Whiteoak book, written in 1927, titled "Jalna", won the coveted Atlantic Award. After that came 15 more novels which, although not always in sequence, filled in the fabric of the Whiteoak saga from "The Building of Jalna" in 1854 to "Centenary at Jalna" in 1954. In all, the books have been translated into 13 languages and have sold over 12 million copies in hardcover and paperback editions.

I expect that the adaptation of the Jalna series to television will generate a lot of excitement and momentum in several quarters: It will provide additional proof to the CRTC that their decision to promote "Canadian Content" production was the right one; hopefully, they will broaden and possibly accelerate this policy.

Encouragement

The Jalna series ought also to encourage Canadian writers, directors and producers who the people of the Province of Quebec.

More than passing note should be taken of the action of Mr. Godinsky in giving effect to his words. He graciously resigned his seat on the PSBGM in favor of Mrs. Kaplan. And we have reason to believe this was not so much to save the PSBGM, or the Jewish community, or the provincial government from embarrassment; it was because he felt Mrs. Kaplan, elected to office, should be there before someone who was appointed.

It is not merely a Jewish matter; it is not a question of qualifications; it is not an issue of personalities; it is not a fine point in a faulty law.

It is a matter of fundamental democracy.

IT IS our hope that in saving Quebec, in one respect, from a bit of embarrassment that Mr. Godinsky will have caused the provincial government a good deal of soul-searching on a very broad issue.

Certainly, Quebec should move to provide for the very real possibility of another constituent board sending a Jewish commissioner to the PSBGM, without the necessity for a game of Jewish-Protestant musical chairs. That should be a relatively easy matter of legislative amendment, or eventual passage of Bill 28 or its successor which would do away with the problem of confessionality altogether.

More important, this incident should profoundly disturb back-bencher and cabinet minister alike in Quebec.

It is our hope that they will do some serious thinking about the whole philosophy which has grown in the Ancient Capital of appointing rather than causing people to be elected to both traditional and newly proliferating boards, councils, commissions, regies, committees, panels, corporations, tribunals—controlling more and more so many facets of our daily lives.

One wonders at the thrust of the thinking of our elected government people, who themselves draw their mandates from the citizen-electorate. Are we, who elect them, so incompetent that we cannot be entrusted with also electing those who administer the more detailed, closer-to-home aspects of our public affairs?

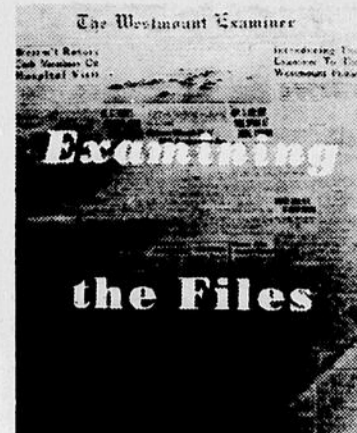

Must Quebec constantly reorganize older institutions, such as school boards and municipalities, each time injecting new measures of control by uniform regulation and appointment, and create new bodies mostly devoid of any responsibility to those they serve, save to their masters, the provincial government?

The proposed restructuring of education on the Island of Montreal, with all its government appointees; the impotency of the Montreal Urban Community council, as witness the recent MUC budget adoption without consent; and the structure of the new MUC security council which effectively smothers local say in future police matters—these are but very obvious and glaring examples.

Bureaucracy thus becomes more than ever institutionalized. The notion of democracy, in even the most minute areas of our affairs, thus becomes ever more remote and abstract.

We must thank Mr. Godinsky, not simply for an act of gallantry to his neighbor Mrs. Kaplan, but for his clear reminder backed by his own action:

Democracy must prevail.

"Arrangements between the City of Westmount and promoters of the projected mammoth apartment building to be erected on the site of the 'Grey Nuns' farm, opposite the Westmount Athletic Grounds, are still in the 'talk' stage, according to information received by The Examiner yesterday. Several proposals have been advanced by the promoters, it is understood, but so far these have not been thoroughly satisfactory. "Existing plans call for four building blocks to enclose a central park-playground court. The first block is to be 10 storeys in height, with space provided underneath for 500 automobiles."

"A new X-ray department and a new nurses' residence are now in the process of completion at the Herbert Reddy Memorial Hospital, 4039 Tupper street. The X-ray rooms are partly in the old hospital, and partly in an extension which is strong enough to carry four more storeys. "Formerly known as the Woman's Hospital, the Herbert Reddy Memorial Hospital is preparing for an increase in its training school for nurses, according to Miss Dorothy MacRae, superintendent of nurses. The new residence has accommodation for 44 nurses."

"Health Week, with its accent on the virtues of fluoridation of water, is a reminder that the City of Montreal intends in the near future to fluoridate the drinking water in its systems and Westmount and other suburban municipalities that take water from Montreal will receive the treated fluid.

"The Westmount Municipal Association decided last year to support the plan, and objections of a handful of citizens were subsequently aired. Most serious of these appeared to be on grounds of freedom of choice rather than on any health stand."

Five years Ago

"Westmount officials met last week with officials of other municipalities on the island to study the traffic problems which, it is expected, will arise when Expo opens. Directors of both the Provincial Police and the City of Montreal Police Force were present at the meeting and voiced their opinions.

"Westmount does not plan to hire additional police for the period, though it is felt that all members of the force will be putting in a lot of over-time during the Expo period and there is the possibility that the city may hire certain security force men."

Hillside housing a 'Great Put-on'

Sir: Your current article (letter, Jan. 23) on the Hillside (Selby) development has been the subject of hundreds of letters opposing this project which have been sent to Montreal leading newspapers and which have been promptly destroyed.

This project is just another facet of the Era of the Great Put-on, whereby judicious means of propaganda society's riff-raff, layabouts, pseudo-intellectuals, Mao-Marxists and allied assorted frauds have duped the freight-paying public into supporting them in a life of beach-lolling ease.

The former residents of Selby street do not themselves all fall into this category, but the modus operandi of gaining public support for benefits at the expense of others is the same. For instance the original Selby street most vocal dissidents were outsiders.

Originally the Selby street people were, in the main, a respectable group of working class people, who by circumstance in every-day living, found themselves with quite reasonably good housing within a very good community at a very reasonable cost. In fact, the Selby street people were much better off than their next door neighbours within a five mile radius to the south. In addition many families were fortunate enough to have several wage earners living together, thus adding to the benefits of living in this back-water district.

Thus, when after years of relatively good living they became faced with the shock of expropriation. The natural reaction was one of a token protest. Their discomfort was not helped by the mis-timing of construction by provincial authorities. However, in view of hundreds of thousands of similar expropriations all over the world, the Selby street people were no different than perhaps millions of other people who have had to move for one reason or another loosely allied to progress.

The exception in the Selby case, was that these people had comparatively a good thing going for them, plus the wonderful propaganda gimmick that a multi-millionaire district like Westmount was going to shaft a group of almost destitute slum dwellers, and cast them heartlessly into the streets, or worse.

So effective was this campaign that the independent survey which proved indisputably that most Selby street people were not paupers, and far from it, was most efficiently suppressed. The present Hillside project is still based on this false premise: that the community is charitably making amends for dispossessing slum dwellers, for whom it must then assume Christian responsibility to provide adequate housing.

What is actually more near the truth is that Westmount will be supplying modern housing for many people at low rates, when they are capable of obtaining and paying for living quarters on their own initiatives.

Certainly in comparison with their immediate neighbors around Hillside, these project tenants will be a favoured few — parasites on the community. Now, the real crux of the matter is, if Westmount must supply low priced housing to a privileged few, where does one draw the line in a democracy in supplying identical service to others in the community.

Westmount is not occupied by 40,000 multi-millionaire plus a few dozen Selby street paupers, so what is sauce for the goose must be sauce for the gander, and why should not other residents of Westmount demand the same treatment by democratic society guarantee?

despair of the flagging interest in stories either by or about Canadians and Canada. Perhaps with this incentive, Canada can retain the talents of its native artists by developing a sophisticated working environment for them.

I am told that the 13 episodes currently being filmed and broadcast comprise the initial series, which leaves the possibility of other segments of the family's story coming alive on television at a later date. The educational effect of this cannot be minimized.

Keep up the good work, CBC.

Federated Appeal Agency, has just a few days ago opened a two-year-old nursery school class, and we are in sad lack of really comfy chairs, in which our staff can cradle, rock and play with our very young.

These children come from homes where their mothers are forced to work and, as such, we wish to make the effort and give them as much loving and caring for as we possibly can, because they are so very young, and through no choice of their own, have to be separated from their families.

May I take this opportunity also of wishing you and your staff a very happy and healthy New Year.

On behalf of the board of directors, the staff and myself, we wish to thank you, and your many readers, for the kind interest you have shown toward the Montreal Day Nursery.

had not been a factor in his decision. Mr. Godinsky resides at 731 Upper Belmont; Mrs. Kaplan lives next door at No. 735. Another one of the five is Judge Harold Lande, 698 Grosvenor avenue. Mr. Godinsky said yesterday that his decision to resign was entirely personal, light-heartedly remarking that "the age of chivalry is not dead" and "in any case, it will give me more time for other things!"

It is expected that the PSBGM may yet make representations to Quebec for an amendment to the law to avoid a possible repetition of the problem under the Jewish "quota" situation.

Meanwhile, it remains for the government under the existing rules to fill by appointment the vacancy remaining between the Tilley and Godinsky seats, only one of which now is filled by Mrs. Kaplan.

On Tuesday the chairmanship vacated by Mr. Tilley was filled by the board who elected the vice-chairman, Dr. Laurence P. P. Patterson. Dr. Patterson came here from Nova Scotia in 1930 and until 1950 taught at Westmount High School. He resides in N.D.G.

Tributes to Tilley

Mr. Tilley, former chairman of the Protestant School Board of Greater Montreal and a 15-year member of the Westmount School Board, was praised and applauded at the Dec. 21 meeting of the PSBGM.

Vice-Chairman Patterson complimented Mr. Tilley on his skillful and resolute leadership, specially during the past two years.

LEADERS' LEISURE

by Mike Gutwillig

RIGHT NOW, those Canadian business leaders who've mastered both our official languages enjoy a decided edge in the expanding European Common Market. Others, less gifted, have often made a sincere effort to learn French. But they may have been turned off by a punishing and confining classroom routine.

Trouble is, as one corporate head puts it, "We're doers, not spectators. Once you've been directing a workforce for a number of years, it's unreal to leave a deskful of problems at 5 o'clock and lock yourself away in a classroom."

Despite this, surveys continue to show the overwhelming majority of senior English-speaking Canadian business leaders would like to master both languages. Whether it's to converse at a trade show like the Mechanical Engineering Exhibition in Paris or to cope with labour and the public at home, the yearning for French is genuine.

HAPPILY, THERE'S A more appealing language package now on the market for the business chief who seeks to combine personal growth with corporate growth. It's called Europe Service Compris.

ESC's revolutionary approach may help you shed a few old mental hang-ups. In fact, your wife or secretary (who know you can't bear the word "relax", or tolerate the goof-off resort-and-beach type of leisure for more than a day or two) may even see in it a cure for your "workaholic" addiction they fear is heading you towards a heart attack.

Picture this: You're whisked away via Air France to the Valley of the Loire, where French Kings once retreated from their workloads. In this "jardin de France" of storybook chateaux, your Europe Service Compris hostess-instructress presides over a magic transformation that blows your mind open to an adventure with French.

For two, three or more weeks (you determine the duration), you're immersed in the best that is French: The purest language, in a region devoid of dialect but rich in accommodation, gastronomy, medieval and renaissance architecture, pastoral scenery, gentle climate and, best of all, the congeniality of Touraine's people.

AT TOURS, FRANCE, your day starts at 8 a.m. with petit déjeuner in your first-class hotel, le Relais des Trois Rivières. Then, from 8.30 to 12.30, when your mind's most receptive, your ESC hostess eases you into a question-and-answer session that allows you to converse in French as naturally as you would in your mother tongue. From short, easy sentences, you move to longer ones. From the familiar to the less familiar. With no more than 3 to 6 in your group, there's no classroom crunch, no embarrassment over your language limitation.

At 1 p.m., you're ready for a gastronomic lunch. Then, after lunch, your hostess pulls a significant switch from what you'd expect in an immersion course: She'll guide you on a four-hour personalized excursion of the historic chateaux, museums and villages along La Loire.

From 6 to 7 p.m., on your return, you're engaged in a "Table ronde" discussion on your experiences of the afternoon. Miraculously, you discover your French facility holding up through dinner (7.30 to 8.30) with your ESC hostess. After 8.30, you're free for the evening.

ESC's Pierre Faure

PIERRE FAURE, vice-president of ESC, who came to Montreal from Lyon in 1963, personally trained the "hostesses-enseignantes" in Tours. Before he became respectively Assistant Manager in Montreal and Director of the Ottawa office for Berlitz, Pierre helped pioneer the French immersion courses in Morin Heights.

The inherent limitation of current methods on this side of the Atlantic despite excellent language schools, Pierre Faure points out, are "first, it's not reasonable to keep a businessman locked in a room for twelve hours a day." Moreover, he says, besides the pull of office proximity, it's often too easy to find someone who'll break into English to accommodate you.

In contrast, the ESC approach is designed to inspire you to look ahead to the next day's French adventure — whether it's a tour of a Chateau or a trip to a trade show — for the rest of your life.

Weredale boys would welcome disused skis

The Weredale House ski program was under way last week at Murray Hill (King George Park) with 15 boys participating. Only the lack of ski equipment kept another 25 boys at home.

Perhaps there is some spare ski equipment lying in basements around Westmount. A call to 935-7417 will bring an eager volunteer driver to pick it up.

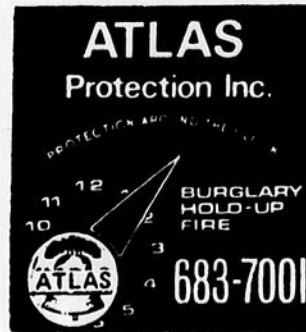

Evening programs in the House are popular activities these dark evenings. Alex Everitt, the volunteer in charge of copper enamelling, has an enthusiastic group meeting once a week. Angus Currie is teaching leatherwork to a dozen boys who have been making watch bands and money pouches. Andrea Kneeland and Geoff. Nayman are just starting a Drama Club.

Marielle Green, a volunteer from the lakeshore who comes in to Weredale one evening a week, still attracts a large group to "bachelor survival" classes. This week they are to learn the fine art of preparing spaghetti.

Two of the boys, Wade Buchan and Richard Baumier, are taking judo at Dawson College.

Bad news: the Senior Floor Hockey Team was defeated by Tyndale House.

Ice Safety

Here's a quick word of advice for all ice sports fans. Don't walk on ice less than 4 inches thick—it's dangerous. Remember that ice is at its thinnest at the beginning and end of the winter season.

If you're going out ice skating in the country, don't walk on ice at any of the following places:
over flowing water, on tidal rivers, near open water, on windswept lakes or on salt water.
Ice is not safe unless it's 4 inches thick.

Rooming house operator claims city harassment

A Westmount rooming house operator has claimed "harassment and discrimination" by city hall inspectors and has threatened to take legal action if he has more problems.

George Leisser, 488 Elm avenue, owner of a rooming house at 425 Mount Pleasant avenue, claims city hall inspectors have been rude and inconsiderate and have forced him at great expense to obey all the city's by-laws while being more lenient with others.

Mr. Leisser brought up his complaints at last week's city council meeting and in a later interview with The Examiner expanded on the points he made at the meeting.

He said he has lost tenants because of the behavior of city inspectors.

Entitled to privacy

"The inspectors think just because it's a rooming house, they don't have to treat people with the same respect as they do others in private houses," he said, "but my roomers are entitled to as much privacy as anyone else."

He said at times the inspectors had walked into his rooming house, without his permission, and went from room to room banging on doors, waking people up and telling them that they were going to inspect their rooms.

But that kind of behavior has diminished, he said, since he had complained about it.

His main complaint centres around the stringent by-laws which he is required to obey, he complains, while others are not.

He spent, he says, $6 - 7,000 to bring 425 Mount Pleasant up to the standards required by the city. He bought the property in 1963. He also evicted long-time tenants from the basement because the basement ceiling was not high enough to meet city regulations.

"But I later found out there are basements rented out all over the city which have ceilings below regulation requirements," he said.

Seventeen stoves

He was particularly upset about a nearby rooming house which, he says, last time he visited it had 17 stoves in rooms, contrary to regulations. He added that although he had brought it to the attention of inspectors in 1967, the building only recently had a fire escape installed.

"Why do some people get favors? he asked. "Everybody should be treated equally. There should be no discrimination."

A city hall official said that no preferences were given and that if Mr. Leisser would give to city hall the addresses of the buildings which are not constructed to the city's regulations, then they would be looked into.

"A lot of people try to break the by-laws and some get away with it," he said; "others don't. We try to catch everybody."

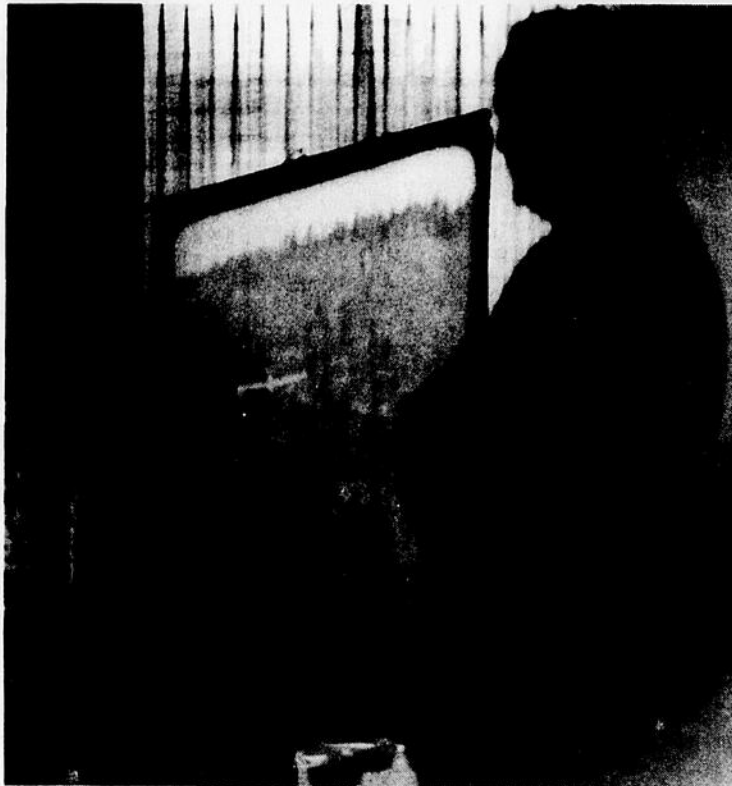

He added that the city did not have a great number of inspectors constantly checking up on buildings and that often regulations were only enforced after somebody brought it to the city's attention that laws were being broken.

Right to inspect

He added that he wasn't sure what rights the inspectors have to enter private property, but

THE WESTMOUNT Examiner

TELLS OF SOARING: The minister of St. Andrew's United Church who is an accomplished pilot yesterday told the Rotary Club of Westmount, at its weekly luncheon meeting in Victoria Hall, of the science and art of glider flying. Rev. E.A. Kirker is a prominent member of the biggest gliding club in Canada, based at Hawkesbury, Ont. A film was shown at the conclusion of his talk. Members were told by President Russell King that on Monday an anonymous woman donor appeared at the Rotary office on Greene avenue and, after inquiring about the charitable and welfare work of the club, left a gift of $500 to help further the club's work.

WHS-WHHS-Monklands school 'complex' urged

Quebec's department of education has responded to a letter from the Protestant School Board of Greater Montreal urging the development of Westmount High School, Monkland High School and West Hill High School into a complex or "group."

The PSBGM's plan which calls for the bussing of students from one school to another to take courses which are not offered at their own school, is to be studied soon by representatives from Quebec, the PSBGM and the Montreal Catholic School Commission.

that they do have a right to inspect for certain things and that if public safety was at stake, then some kind of right to inspect was necessary.

Mr. Leisser also complained that he had asked for the names of the other rooming house operators in a letter of July 17, 1971, to city hall with the intention of forming an organization to protect their rights.

He had received no reply, he said.

The official said he didn't see why there should be a problem in obtaining the names because the rooming house operators have to be licenced.

"It could be that the request was just lost in the shuffle," he said.

WHS group's report to go to others

The Protestant School Board of Greater Montreal intends to circulate the report for 1970-71 of the Westmount High School Committee to other high school committees, if Westmount's committee agrees.

The Westmount High School Committee was set up in anticipation of Quebec legislation which would call into being such committees in the city's high schools. Composed of teachers, parents and administrators, the committee may develop into an influential body.

31 bicycles bring $174

The sale of 31 bicycles on Wednesday, Jan. 19, at the corporation yards at The Glen and St. Catherine street brought $174.10 into the city treasury.

The bikes had fallen into the hands of the Westmount Police and not claimed. Between 50 and 75 persons attended the sale.
