Inspector Gives Good Report School Staff And Operation

The Huntingdon High School Board of Commissioners met in the Library of the school, on Thursday evening, with a full board present. After hearing the minutes and passing a number of accounts for payment, the regular business was discussed.

A report from Mr. Brady, School Inspector was read and he appeared to be satisfied with all the conditions prevailing at the school, except the present overcrowding, which he stated would be rectified when the new addition is made. He stated that the staff seemed to be working well and the direction was good, with many items added to the curriculum which helped in the efficiency of the school in general.

Resignations were received from two of the teachers i.e. Mr. D. Carroll and Mrs. Lillith Rennie. A petition was read from a number of the other teachers asking that the salary scale be raised one year above that proposed by the Board.

The resignations were accepted and it was decided to advertise for teachers for Grades 1, 3, 5 and 6. It is also necessary to advertise for a Woodworking Teacher, due to the fact that Mr. Laurie is working on a permit and regulations demand that this position be advertised on that account. However, in this instance the Board hopes to have Mr. Laurie for another school year and Mr. Laurie is acquainted with his position in this connection.

There will probably be no other changes in the staff than the two teachers who have resigned, except for any unforeseen circumstances. However, the public may wonder at the advertising for four teachers. Two of these of course will be replacements for those who have resigned. The other two will be required because extra teachers will be needed to take over the grades that will have to be divided in the next school year.

Considerable discussion ensued with regard to the teachers who had petitioned for the extra year in the salary scale. The Board felt that they had already raised the scale in accordance with the decision reached at a previous meeting. However, it was decided to grant an increase on the condition that these teachers take the improved summer course at least once in every five years.

Through Dr. Willis, the School Board was asked if they would be willing to contribute a sum of money to the Home and School Association fund for helping students who intend to take up the teaching profession. It was stated that a change had been made in the first plan of giving a bursary each year. Instead, the plan will be that the money in the fund will be given out in the form of a loan repayable after the teacher is employed. In this way, more persons will be able to take advantage of the money available and be encouraged to take the course. The Board felt that this would be a good investment and might encourage more students to enter the teaching profession, which is in need of recruits. They decided to give the sum of $100 toward the project.

Lengthy discussion took place upon an action of discipline. The Board passed a resolution on the course to be taken in the event that such may be needed.

It was assumed from the discussion of the Principal Dr. Willis and some of the Board members that they feel the new addition will prove adequate for the requirements of the school, when this addition has been completed.

Refreshments were served to the members of the Board at the conclusion of the meeting, by the Household Science teachers, Mrs. Greig and Mrs. Dahm, which was greatly appreciated by the members.

Red Cross Campaign Now On

The Red Cross Annual Campaign in Huntingdon district is now on and the canvassers will be calling on all citizens in the very near future. The objective has been set at $2,000, but this is only a minimum. Those in charge of the campaign hope that this sum will be reached and passed before the books are closed for this year.

Messrs George Thompson, Manager of the Bank of Montreal and Roland Emond of the Shawinigan Water & Power Co., are co-chairmen for the campaign. Mr. Gray Houle, Accountant at The Bank of Montreal, is the Secretary-Treasurer. Other officers are: Marcel Benoit, Huntingdon (East); Mrs. Gisèle McCaffrey, Huntingdon (Centre); Lorne Fennell, Huntingdon (West); Lucien Perron, St. Anicet; Lucien Loiselle, Godmanchester; Eric Salter, Elgin; Leslie Rennie, Hinchinbrook; Adrian P. O'Reilly, Dundee and Jacques Girouard, Ste. Barbe.

Some canvassers have reported that the people they have called upon are giving very generously indeed and it is hoped that this trend will keep up all throughout the territory. The disastrous fire at Valleyfield this winter, has no doubt done much to prove that the Red Cross is really on the job when the need requires it. We never know when the need may arise, but it is just as well to be prepared and one way to do this is to support the present Red Cross campaign as far as possible. If we see that they have the funds for the time being, then we will feel that we have at least helped in some way. When disaster strikes, it is not always money that is required, it is having clothing, food and conveyances ready at hand to rush to the scene and relieve the suffering and want that arises. The Red Cross turns the money we give today into the supplies that they need when called upon in time of disaster. This is only one phase of the work that the Red Cross does. There are many others and all cost money despite the fact that nearly all Red Cross workers donate their services.

Let us all work together and see that the objective set for this district is reached in record time and if possible let it be passed. Besides giving the canvasser your donation, donations can be mailed, or given to the Secretary-Treasurer, Mr. Houle, The Bank of Montreal, Huntingdon.

Blood Donor Clinic To Be Held Tuesday, March 19th

Once each year, the Mobile Blood Donor Clinic operated by the Canadian Red Cross Society, travels to Huntingdon to set up a Clinic for the purpose of receiving blood from volunteer donors. This is an essential and necessary in order to replenish the supply of blood and plasma which is furnished free of charge to any hospital listed under their Blood Transfusion Service. At the present time, there are 45 hospitals, sanitariums, or infirmaries in the city of Montreal, and another 50 or so, within a radius of 100 miles of Montreal, which receive blood in this way.

It is, perhaps, of greater interest to the people of Huntingdon and surrounding districts that the age of the Huntingdon County Hospital has been receiving blood from the Red Cross since 1950, just one year after the Blood Transfusion Service was inaugurated. It is through the cooperation and generosity of the donors that this service may be continued and maintained. One thing is certain: THE NEED IS GREAT. The knowledge that we have met and fulfilled that need to the best of our ability will prove self-rewarding.

If you have not as yet been canvassed, and would like to be a donor at the Clinic on Tuesday, March 19, a phone call to Mrs. E. C. Martin, Co 4-5476, will put your name on the list.

N. B. Correction — Mr. Willard Caldwell is the canvasser for Clyde's Corners to Lee's Corners and not Mr. Willard Campbell, as printed in last week's Gleaner.

Library Fund Still Short Of Objective

To March 2nd, the sum of $408.00 out of an objective of $500.00 had been received in contributions. This still leaves an amount of $92.00 required to reach the objective. This balance would be a hard one to raise if you have not already contributed to this fund, please do so now.

Suggested Rules For School Bus Safety Guidance

During the past few weeks, we have noticed that several drivers are flagging and ignoring the regulations with regard to meeting and passing school buses. Some cars have passed the School Buses while they have been discharging passengers. This is very dangerous as youngsters do have a tendency to run in front of stationary buses without looking in either direction for oncoming traffic.

Recently, the Quebec Association of Protestant School Boards drew up a list of 16 rules entitled School Bus Safety. These rules are really suggestions and no School Board is bound in any way to follow them. It was suggested by the Q.A.P.S.B. that if the rules are helpful and reasonable, that they should be posted on bulletin boards, read in the classroom to the pupils and a copy be posted on each bus.

SCHOOL BUS SAFETY

1. Special Consideration for School Buses requires special consideration of the highway using public by those operating school buses.
2. The stops on any school bus route should be carefully worked out by competent school authorities.
3. There are no more stops than are absolutely necessary.
4. That whenever possible, stops occur where the bus does not have to stop on curves, or blind hills.
5. Changes in bus stops may be permitted only with the consent of competent authorities.
6. Every effort should be made to avoid overcrowding of school buses which, in addition to the inconvenience of the passengers, could, in case of accident, place the Board in a very unenviable position.
7. The speed limit for school buses when carrying children, shall be 30 miles an hour except in towns where it must be reduced to 20 miles an hour.
8. A school bus must be brought to a standstill at railroad crossings and the front door opened for visibility and safety.
9. A school bus driver should be over 25 years of age, hold a commercial chauffeur's license and have a reputation locally for careful driving. The driver should have similar qualifications and must be approved by the school board.
10. Drivers of school buses are not permitted to accept passengers apart from the pupils, with these exceptions: school officials, school employees, parents or guardians when engaged on school business or such others as may be specifically designated by the Board.
11. The SAFETY of children who are getting on or off a school bus should be a matter of major concern to the driver who will be expected to take every reasonable precaution.
12. When a bus comes to a stop, to allow children to get off, the driver should not open the door until he is sure that there is no danger from traffic in either direction. Children who have disembarked and are ready to cross the road should be required to cross IN FRONT OF THE BUS ONLY.
13. In villages or towns, after disembarking, children should remain on the sidewalk until the school bus has driven on, then cross the street after carefully observing that there is no traffic in either direction.
14. It is undesirable for any school bus to be parked on a highway at any time when not performing its normal operation.
15. Drivers of school buses are instructed to refuse permission to any pupil to leave the bus until it arrives at the school.
16. A school bus should not be driven IN REVERSE on school grounds unless an adult observer, outside the vehicle, is supervising.
17. Reasonable behaviour by the children should be expected when they are using the bus. Unsatisfactory conduct should be reported to the Principal.
18. Drivers are expected to adhere strictly to time schedules, insofar as this is reasonably possible, but on no account should the adherence to a time schedule take precedence over maximum safety.
19. Each bus driver is required to see that his vehicle is in good mechanical condition and that it is kept clean inside and out.
20. School boards shall make it a requirement that all conveyances used for the transportation of school children shall be subject to adequate periodic inspection.
21. Commercial buses when carrying school children, should be required to have a suitable sign on both front and rear of the bus.

Published by the Quebec Association of Protestant School Boards.

More Help Still Needed For Scouts

The Huntingdon Boy Scouts Association needs approximately $500 to cover its expenses and dues for the current year and it is hoped that citizens will be generous enough to make contributions towards this.

The Scouts are doing a good work among the boys of this community as will be seen by reading the weekly reports of their activities in this newspaper. The boys do raise a large amount of the money needed for their activities, but they cannot raise all that is required without additional assistance. Therefore an annual appeal is made to the general public. As of March 2nd, the amount raised was given at $263.50 which shows that $236.50 is still required for the objective.

Following is a list of contributions received since the last report in this newspaper:

$10.00—Huntingdon Chateau.
$5.00—Maple Leaf Grange, R. McArthur, Dr. F. G. McCrimmon, Raymond Rowat, J. M. Smelle, Mr. and Mrs. D. Stephen.
$3.00—Dr. K. G. Cameron, F. Cleyn.
$2.00—V. E. Johnson, C. J. Kyle, A. Martin, J. McCann, D. McGerrigle, $1.00—Janet Arthur, Wm. Baird, H. G. Bickford, Charles Boyce, J. C. Brown, D. A. Carroll, Robert Chambers, Mrs. C. R. Cosgrove, Harold Daniel, Wayne Daniel, B. D. Douglas, Mrs. Gladys Duhamel, L. W. Fennell, Arthur Goodfellow, Ir. Gordon, J. R. Holgate, Chester Hughes, Allan Hunter, Albert Laberge, E. McCann, Mrs. E. McCann, D. E. McNair, Donald Moore, J. R. Muir, Gerald Murphy, B. A. Rankin, Raymond Rennie, Nils Stark, J. A. Warden, William Wattie.

Ormstown Wins D. E. Black Hockey Trophy In Finals

Ormstown Braves wrapped up the Donald E. Black Hockey trophy Friday night, when they defeated Huntingdon-Clyde 6-3, winning the best of five final series three games to none. The other games were won by 7-3 and 7-2 scores.

Ormstown's big line of Parent and Saube brothers accounted for most of their goals, and the team as a whole played a well passing, back-checking and solid defensive game. On their general play of the series Ormstown deserved this win.

With the score tied 1-1 and one minute left in the first period, Clyde's goalie Bob Primeau, was hit over the eyes with a glancing puck. He was taken to the Barrie Memorial Hospital and 12 stitches were required to close the wound.

Earl Elder substituted for Primeau and did a very commendable job for the rest of the game. This was rather out of the line, as ordinarily he plays defence.

All games were very clean and a minimum of penalties were handed out in all three. This no doubt was due to the efficient officiating of Rene Senecal and Doug Glover, who never let the players get out of hand. This in turn seemed to create interest and attendance increased at each game until the last, when a record turnout was on hand.

The hockey players appreciate the courtesy shown them by officials of the Ormstown Arena and take this opportunity to thank them; Mr. Merrill Barrington, president of the league; and the general public for loyal support.

Developing a P-B Herd

Part 2. "Developing a Purebred Herd" by J. M. ("Jack") Fraser, as condensed from Holstein-Friesian World; in turn, the transcription of an address to New York Breeders' Institute meetings.

Family Unit

With further reference to the method of starting as a family unit mentioned by Jack Fraser in his preliminary remarks. He said:

"The first mentioned method of starting, as a family unit, is probably the way most small breeding establishments start, and then sometimes grow into a large, well managed unit in the next generation. (That is if you are fortunate enough to have a couple of sons stay with you on the farm, or a couple of daughters who marry good farm boys)."

Mr. Fraser then went on to say in brief, that at Spring Farm they grow everything the cows will eat with the exception of concentrates. That he would say, that the first and most important crop grown there is grass and hay—with lots of legumes like alfalfa, red clover or ladino.

This produces, he claimed, feed high in protein, thus cutting down on the necessity for concentrate buying. They also put more fertility into the soil than any other hay or pasture crop. No commercial fertilizer is used at Spring Farm on hay or pasture crops. In the latter respect he said: "I would rather have a nice even crop standing up than a heavy tangled mass. I think you will have more quality in your hay if it is not too big and coarse."

Grass Mixtures

At Spring Farm" said Mr. Fraser: "we sow a mixture of about 10 pounds of alfalfa; 3 pounds of timothy and about 3 pounds of bromegrass. We cut this crop for hay for about two years. This gets rid of most of the annual weeds. We will then pasture this field for a year and then plow it up and grow corn for silage, or sow to oats or possibly wheat."

He then went on to say that at Spring Farm they grow about 30 acres of wheat each year for a cash crop, which goes a long way towards growing concentrates, also supplies plenty of straw. "I know different districts need to be treated differently, and the crops that do best for us might not suit your district," he added.

Prefers Corn

"We have tried grass silage" said Mr. Fraser, "but do not like it as well as corn. The cattle do not like the grass silage as well as they do corn, and we can grow more corn per acre. I also think you have a better balanced feed with corn silage and a good hay mixture with plenty of legumes. We grow all of our oats, and feed this with a little concentrate on top."

Practical Dairy Breeding

"I realize that this is a Breeders' Institute and not a Farmers' Improvement Association, but I have been trying to point out where the profit comes from in dairying. Isn't that what we are most interested in?" said Mr. Fraser.

"You may already have a purebred herd, or you may just be starting to get some purebreds. Just how you go about it must depend on your finances. I think the old saying that your bull is half your herd does not mean so much now as it did at one time, but he does have an influence on your entire herd. A cow doesn't have as many offspring. But if I were just starting I would want to have a cow or two (or more if possible) from the best cow families I could afford to buy."

"I would rather have an ordinary cow from a good family than a top cow from an ordinary family. The farther back your good family goes without a break, the better chance you have for good breeding. I would then breed my entire herd from the family or families that I liked best."

Mr. Fraser then went on to cite an incident that occurred when he was a boy at home with his father. He had picked up a cow for $75.00; a cow of wonderful type and with great promise of production.

"We had never shown at a major show, but people told us we should show this cow at the Royal Winter Fair," said Mr. Fraser. "My father said to go ahead and that when I was showing one I might as well show a couple of calves too. We brought these calves from the pasture. They weren't bad, but we knew nothing about showing, and he clipped them all over. They looked like a couple of sheared rabbits. We won nothing on the calves but the cow came in third. We had many chances to sell her, but I thought that every calf that cow would have would be a show winner. We were offered $600.00, but kept her. She produced well, because I milked her four times a day, and she made 33 lbs. of butter in a week. The fact I wish to point out is that this cow, although she was good type herself, did not reproduce that way. We never got a decent animal from her. It is better to buy where good blood lines are. I am sure they will breed better."

"I do not believe you have to have the highest record cow, either. A cow that will produce from 12,000 to 15,000 lbs. in a good farmer's herd is as good as one that produced 20,000 lbs. in expert hands. The cow that goes on producing and reproducing every year is better than the one that makes a high record once in a while."

Avoid Extremes
"I would advise always to avoid extremes—the extreme dairy cow, the extreme thick cow, the extreme high tester. They do not usually breed as true as the more in-betweens do."

Bull Section
"I would also advise against buying from a famous bull just because he is famous. True, if the animal you purchase is from a great bull and a great cow family, that is ideal. But many times one just starting buys an animal bred by a famous bull, and because he does not feel that he can afford the offspring of a famous cow family he takes one from an ordinary cow family and the results are usually disastrous. This applies to foundation females, and especially to bulls."

"Many times also we over-rate bulls from high record cows that have been pushed. These same cows would probably be ordinary producers in a farmer herd, and we wonder why his offspring do not live up to our hopes."

Better to Buy Cows
"I believe in making additions to your herd, or when starting a herd, cows are the best buy, or possibly heifers right up to calving and showing much evidence of type and production," said Mr. Fraser. "We breeders always think that every calf or heifer we have is going to be a record breaker, or a grand champion, and we price them accordingly. We find that after they calve, half of them are priced for less and the rest of them about the same as when they were calves. Buyers of calves are great gamblers, and this is interesting. A hog breeder once told me that at his sales you could bring out a sow with eight pigs four weeks old and she would sell for $100.00, but bring one out that had not farrowed and she would sell for $125.00 because the buyer thought that she would raise 12 pigs. Yet we all know that the average number of pigs raised per litter is eight or less."

"The same holds true for buying calves or heifers. The average that turns out well does not equal buying a cow. You know what she is like, and she will have a calf or two before the other freshens and will have produced milk as well." (To be continued.)

Brucellosis
At most of the recent National Breed Association annual meetings there has been considerable discussion with reference to the new Health of Animals Division, Canada Department of Agriculture "Brucellosis Control" plan, which, we understand, will be worked in conjunction with the Veterinary Departments of the various provinces. So far we have not been able to obtain a copy of the said "Brucellosis" etc. plan, but we understand that it is one which may be of far-reaching importance to the livestock industry.

Breed Improvement Canvass
Apropos of the above we may say that a recent Holstein-Friesian Association report says, in part: "Because Oxford (County) has the highest concentration of Holstein breeders in Canada, it has been selected for an experimental breed improvement canvass. This is being jointly sponsored by the local Oxford Breeders' Association and the Ontario Branch of the Holstein-Friesian Association of Canada."

The canvass has three major objectives. First, to acquaint breeders with the situation regarding Brucellosis control in Canada, and its possible effects on our export markets. One in four of all purebred Canadian Holsteins are sold for export, and any failure of Canadian breeders to maintain top health standards could cripple this trade resulting in annual losses of several million dollars.

Second, to draw to the attention of the breeders, the advantages that will accrue to them from an economic standpoint by having their cattle officially classified for type in Selective Registration.

Third, to point out the benefits that may be derived by any breeder from having his cattle officially tested for production. The Record of Performance system of production testing sponsored by the Dominion Department of Agriculture, is universally recognized as one of the finest in the world.

Albert Cornwell, Norwich, President of the Oxford Holstein Breeders' Association points out that production testing and Selective Registration, (classification for type) are the two basic tools available for breed improvement, yet in Canada only about 20 per cent of the pure bred Holstein breeders take advantage of them. "Greater use of R.O.P. and Selective Registration will mean greater improvement in our cattle, more economical production at home, and better export markets," said Mr. Cornwell.

Editorial Notes...

Should The Government Make A Profit

ALTHOUGH in this day and age, many governments are in business in one way and another, we ask the question, should a government make a profit? In some types of operations perhaps making a profit from an enterprise would be legitimate in order to provide a reserve. However, at this time we are concerned with the Post Office Dept.

According to figures issued by Postmaster General Lapointe, every Canadian letter mailed by first-class postage yields the Post Office Department a two-cent profit. These figures were given in the Commons on Thursday, March 7th. On each item of domestic airmail it made .67 of a cent and each item of foreign mail .36 of a cent profit. Thus every time a Canadian citizen puts a postage stamp onto a letter for first class mail he is paying two cents more than the cost of transporting and handling that letter.

As we understand it, the Post Office Dept. is supposed to make only enough to pay its expenses. Under the circumstances related to it, it would seem that there should be a reduction in postage rates and that the increase from three cents to four and then from four to five cents, was unjustified. This is one way in which the government could reduce costs to a large number of firms doing business as well as to the general public. Money received by the Post Office should not be used to pay off other accounts. This being the case, this Department must be piling up quite a surplus.

According to figures published as to the revenue of the various Post Offices in this area, The Gleaner has contributed almost one tenth of the revenue of the Huntingdon Office in postage paid. It is easy to see that with the reduction which should be received, that this one business alone would have a considerable sum to return to the business if so desired. This can, of course, be multiplied many times by the businesses involved. Reductions in the cost of doing business, means reduction in the prices charged the consumer, or eases the strain on the company involved. The Government is not in business to make a profit and any excess over cost should be returned to the people of the country.

85% Signers Wanted by Council For Consideration

WHEN the delegates chosen at the Huntingdon Merchants' Association meeting, appeared at the Town Council Meeting, they were told that a percentage of 85 would be required to be considered regarding the closing of stores in town on Saturday nights. It was felt that this was rather high, but it was accepted without too much comment. The persons working on the project are certain they can get the required amount of signers, but they are not too certain of council action.

Many on the council felt that the merchants themselves should decide to close and not bring the matter to council. They seem to have lost sight of the fact that there is already a by-law in effect regarding the closing of stores and the hours for each day. If the merchants were to decide and put a new plan into effect they would be contravening the present by-law. In approaching the council at this time, the delegates were only asking what percentage would be required to change the present by-law and institute an amendment. They were not asking the council to change the by-law at that meeting. But they did ask that if the change is made, that council enforce the amendment and make the law effective for all stores. Certain pressure was brought to bear on some stores when the previous closing law was brought into effect and a number of them complied. However, there were some who refused to comply and the council has tolerated them being open after hours. This time the merchants want everyone under the by-law and the council to see that punishment is handed out to offenders.

It is this clause that is so upsetting to some of the aldermen, as they do not want to force the small stores to close. If the required number of signers is obtained, it will be interesting to see what further consideration will be given to this matter. It would seem that there are only two courses of action — to accept, or to turn it down. There is a duty to perform, no matter how repugnant it may seem to be.

A Bold Proposal

MR. CHARLES GEDDES is one of the most respected and senior of British trade union leaders. He heads the Union of Post Office Workers, and he is a past president and influential member of the executive council of the Trade Union Congress.

All of which establishes him as a man who has the interests of organized labor at heart, and one who can be suspected of no bias on behalf of employers. It is for this reason, and because rising prices are a terrific threat to our prosperity, that New Brunswickers, and all Canadians might look with more than passing interest at what is becoming widely known in Britain as the Geddes Plan.

The Geddes Plan is a bold proposal which departs radically from traditional trade union policy, and it has been intensely discussed on all sides, not the least by trade unionists themselves.

Briefly, it calls on the unions to take the lead in counter-attacking inflation — by negotiating in future not for wage increases but for price cuts. There would be co-ordinated action to ensure that increased productivity in an industry was followed by some reduction in prices.

Thus, railwaymen and bus operators would press for lower fares; industrial workers seek a cut in the price at which their products were sold; miners would argue for cheaper coal. And so it would go on — to the great joy of consumers everywhere who would find their dollars buying more instead of less.

Advocates of the Geddes Plan contend that, since wages and raw materials are the major cost factors in production, it is as easy to get prices down as it is to send them up. They say that if the basic industries alone were to initiate such action the effect would be a reduction in the cost of many commodities. Inflation, with its attendant evils, would be dealt a real body-blow. Savings would get a big boost and there would be real incentive to add to them.

Among the first to feel the benefits of such a policy, if it was carried far enough, would be the long-suffering pensioners and others on fixed incomes. But we are all consumers. None of us can live without buying the products of industries other than our own.

The Geddes Plan is, to put it mildly, replete with interesting possibilities. Whether it will come to anything remains to be seen, but once put into effect, even on an experimental basis, by any country in the world we too would have to take immediate notice.

Would it work in Canada? The answer to that question would seem to be that there is a good chance of working in any country which is resolved to overcome objections, most of which are in the final analysis psychological.

Certainly Canada, in the field of exports no less than in the domestic market, is in urgent need of a policy which will not merely prevent prices rising any further but actually get them down. On these grounds alone, the Geddes Plan would seem to merit serious examination, not just a derisive snort. — Kings County Record

U. N. Takes Over in Gaza Strip

IF it could not be seen before, it should be very easy now, why Israeli was not anxious to pull out of the Gaza Strip and Aqaba until guarantees were obtained. Egypt has announced that she will not allow Israeli the use of the Suez Canal and only those nations who pay full dues to Egypt will be allowed to do so.

Israeli should have the use of the Suez just as much as any other nation. She has complied with the U. N. demand to pull her forces out of Egypt and she should be assured that there will be no more border incidents to bother her people. But she is still not sure of what will happen. Already there have been incidents in the Strip and the U. N. force has had to cope with the situation. It is hinted that Red propaganda is behind the demonstrations. The United Nations had promised that the Suez would be open to all users and that none would be barred. It will therefore be another matter for discussion by the U. N. to see that Israeli is allowed the use of the Suez.

Israeli had her doubts as to the fulfillment of any promises by Egypt and stood out for ironclad guarantees that there would be no incidents or interference if she complied with the orders given. The United States has practically given such guarantees. It is evident from recent moves that Egypt will treat such assurances very lightly and it is very probable that there will be trouble for the U. N. forces to cope with from time to time. What will happen if this trouble persists, can only be imagined at this point. It is fairly certain however, that if Israeli is bothered, it won't be long before she again moves in her troops, or the United States will have to move in hers. It is a show down now and there can be no more pussyfooting around if the United States is to keep her face.

Egypt shows no signs of co-operating with the present measures, but turns to Russia for approval of the steps she takes. She is of the opinion that just as soon as all invading forces have been withdrawn

Looking Back Along the Trail

THE FIRST MINISTER OF THE DISTRICT.
Gleaner of April 30, 1968

The first Georgetown church was plain in design and poorly finished. It was simply a good-sized barn, 40 by 60 feet, with windows. As the settlement was still small, there were not many to attend services, and half the space was sufficient. There were no pews, planks laid on blocks answering for seats. Lacking a foundation, the floor let in the cold, so did the walls, for instead of plaster they were sheathed with boards. Humble and uncomfortable as the church was, the settlers were proud of it, and they had, indeed, accomplished, considering their means, no small undertaking. On the 14th December, 1823, it was opened; McWattie conducting the service. A considerable portion of the hearers were unfavorable to re-engaging him, and one of the notices of that day was a congregational meeting to consider what was to be done. The meeting took place on the afternoon of the 23rd December and the decision of the majority was that McWattie's services as schoolteacher and minister be discontinued at the close of his year, on the 28th January, 1824. Before discharging a servant, he must be paid what is due him, and on making up the account, it was found, of the petty sums subscribed towards paying McWattie for teaching school and services as minister, a few had been paid and active canvass of the delinquents failed to collect them. McWattie, who had urgent need of his money, stood on his legal rights; he would not relinquish unless he received what was due. On his coming he had taken up a lot. He had been paid some money towards clearing it. He now applied himself steadily to that work. He was of active habit, not a lazy bone in his body, and also unused to hard manual labor, and clearing land was entirely new to him. He persevered and held his own with his neighbors. On the seignior conceding the glebe he began work on it and between the two places raised enough to keep himself and wife, for, after this, he got little from the people who had formed his congregation. As no move was made to get another minister he was suffered to use the church on Sunday, also few attended. He extended his field by walking to the English river and to that near the spring where he had some services, which were better attended. It was at the former place where, in reading the 11th chapter of Second Corinthians, he made the commentary, "Ay, ay, my brethren, doubtless Paul's sufferings were great, but he received in so good a country as Canada, nor had he to chop down trees." Many bore with his drinking, which grew worse as he grew older, from sympathy for his wife, whom he abused while drunk. In the spring of 1830 death relieved her of a life that had lost its savor. After that, he continued to live alone in the church, but not undisturbed. About four years after his dissolution there was an earnest movement to find a minister, and as a preliminary the manager receiving wanted McWattie out of church and grieve. To their demand he replied he would go when they paid him for the improvements he had made, which he valued at $5 per acre, 90c per acre for fencing, and 85c per acre for ditching. A stable and root-house he valued at $30.50. He had cleared and had under crop 12 acres. Three managers, Henry Craig, Peter McArthur, Jas. Harkness, were deputed to visit him and view the ground. They offered $4.50 per acre and the fencing, etc., to be valued and paid for at his leaving. The offer was accepted, and the managers went round with a subscription-list to raise the sum required. They had a poor reception, only $45 being promised. Eight months later it was reported only a few had paid what they had signed for, when it was agreed to take payment in produce. Eight weeks afterwards, Peter McArthur reported he had called upon the settlers in his quarter who had not paid their subscriptions, but had received no money or produce: no one did altogether refuse to make payment but put it off to a more convenient time. Alex. Graham had the same report to make. David Wilson and John Stewart had not gone their rounds, but promised they would do so at once. Further trial in collecting so disgusted the managers that they resigned in a body, and at the beginning of 1832 a new body was chosen, composed of Robert Brodie, William Ogilvie, James Hunter, Henry Wright, James Craig, Wm. Brown, Arthur Ritchie, and Wm. Greig, with Robert Robertson as clerk. The new board resolved that a notary be engaged to notify McWattie to vacate glebe and church on 1st May, which was done by Hs. Narault, N.P., of Beauharnois, and the glebe was let to Wm. Gardner on shares. Robert Brodie and Hry. Wright were named to see McWattie and arrange for his going. A painful negotiation ensued in which McWattie showed well; he was the reverse of greedy and his conciliatory spirit and patient desire to meet the views of the congregation were manifest. He wanted payment for his improvements; the committee had only one pound, four shillings, and three pence ($4.85) to pay him. A resolution was adopted forbidding him to sow, and a committee man saw him do so. He was to begin and sow alongside of him. Despite this, Mr. Brodie reported on the 24th April he had gone to McWattie with 3 witnesses to forbid him sowing, when he replied he had already put in some grain, because the land was in good order and his horses were standing idle: at the worst he knew he could only lose his seed and labor. The upshot was that it was decided to let the poor man remain on the glebe until the fall and he, on his part, agreed to compound his just claim against the congregation if they would pay him $24. A subscription-list was circulated in September, when the amount was raised, and McWattie gave a quittance of all his claims on receiving wanted McWattie out of church

The Week At Ottawa

OTTAWA (CP) — The federal and Ontario governments have come to terms on federal aid to hospital insurance, leaving the central administration looking for the sixth province needed to launch the proposed national program.

Federal sharing of up to one-half the cost of the hospital insurance scheme is based on entry of a least six provinces representing at least half the nation's population. Five provinces — Ontario, British Columbia, Alberta, Saskatchewan and Newfoundland — have expressed willingness to join.

Agreement with Ontario was reached after four hours of talks between Health Minister Martin and an Ontario delegation headed by Provincial Treasurer Dana Porter. A joint statement issued after the talks said they reached an understanding on the "essential terms" to be embodied in a formal agreement establishing hospital insurance in Ontario.

Ontario is proceeding with legislation, aiming at introducing a provincial scheme by Jan. 1, 1959. But Ontario authorities have made it clear there will be no provincial scheme without federal aid, and Mr. Martin had made it equally clear there will be no federal aid until the plan is launched in the required minimum of six provinces.

Star on Legislation
Federal authorities expected either Nova Scotia or New Brunswick would indicate willingness to join, completing the required minimum. The government has started Parliamentary machinery rolling to get enabling legislation passed before a general election.

The day following the signing, opposition from the Ontario medical profession attacked the Ontario plan at a public panel discussion in the capital, saying it includes compulsion and is not aimed primarily at helping the needy.

Dr. Glen Sawyer of Toronto, secretary of the Ontario Medical Association, said he was "against compulsion" and that he didn't like the plan because it was aimed primarily at covering persons already covered by existing plans. "The first duty of the government is to look after people who cannot afford large bills," he commented.

Dr. M. O. Klotz of Ottawa, the association's immediate past president, expressed fear that the diagnostic service provided for by the scheme could lead to nationalized medicine.

Also on the panel were Mr. Martin and George Gathercole, deputy provincial economics minister.

estimates came under scrutiny in the Commons, Postmaster-General Lapointe gave a rundown on profit-and-loss figures for various classes of postage.

But he gave small comfort to members who have been urging restoration of twice-daily mail deliveries. Instead, he sided with other members who have said the first concern should be country dwellers not yet receiving even once-daily delivery. There was merit in requests for twice-daily urban deliveries, he said, "but I believe the present service should be extended... to as many of the population as possible."

He said the department averages 2.08 cents profit on first-class letters, for which rates for the first ounce are four cents local and five cents out-of-town delivery. This includes both air and surface transport.

On airmailed letters the department averaged .67 cent profit, the rate being seven cents for the first ounce and 200,000 in interest due for 1956, and allow Britain to make seven postpayments of annual repayments of $37,700,000, including interest and principal, during the remaining 45 years of the loan.

The changes, however, can be carried out only if the United States congress approves a similar revision of the agreement covering a U.S. loan of $3,750,000,000 to Britain. Both Canadian and U.S. loans were made in 1946.

The Speaker's Eye

By LEWIS MILLIGAN

In the House of Commons at Ottawa the other day Mr. Speaker Beaudoin is reported to have "finalized" the debate on the bill that outspoken New Brunswick Conservative had attempted to renew his attack on Labor Minister Gregg, VC. The Speaker told the Commons that he would simply ignore Mr. Van Horne in future. He reminded members that without the Speaker's nod no M. P. can ask a question or speak in the House. He must first catch the Speaker's eye.

This incident reminded me of an evening I spent some years ago with John Pearson, M.P., of the then new Parliament Building in Ottawa. He was describing some of the sculptural features in the corridors of the building, one of which was a grotesque of Mr. Speaker Rhodes, and another of the Duke of Devonshire who was Governor General at that time. Mr. Rhodes was depicted with one eye shut tight. "I got the idea," said Mr. Pearson, "from a comedian who used to sing comic songs around Devonshire when I was a boy. One of his songs was 'The Duke of Devonshire' and he had never made his maiden speech because he never caught the Speaker's eye.' Every time the comedian repeated this refrain he winked at the audience."

The grotesque of the Duke of Devonshire was not very flattering in its caricature of the Duke's melancholy countenance. The Duke had heard of this travesty of his features, and one day when Mr. Pearson was showing him around the interior of the building, accompanied in the rear by two young English aides, His Grace kept on insisting, "Where is this grotesque of me, Pearson?" Finally arriving at the spot, the Duke took one glance at his portrait, at which I broke into tears and granted and passed on. The two aides, curious to know what had attracted the Duke's attention, stopped to examine the exhibit and broke into ill-suppressed amusement, at which the Duke glanced backward. The aides immediately straightened up and loitered discreetly well into the rear.

That incident, however, did not affect Mr. Pearson's intimate friendship with the Duke for they were both Devonshire boys, although there was a great class distinction between them. They had each acquired a confirmed taste for Devonshire cream and particularly for the strong cider of that county, and under its influence they used to exchange reminiscences of their boyhood. During one of the exchanges Mr. Pearson turned to the Duke and said, "Your Grace, do you know that you owe me half-a-crown?" "I owe you half-a-crown," said the Duke. Mr. Pearson went on to tell the following story of his youth:

"One Bank Holiday my mother gave me a half-a-crown and told me to go to the fair and enjoy myself. Instead of going to the fair I decided to go fishing—tinkling trout on your estate. I had caught three good-sized fish, one of which I tied suspended inside the leg of my pants which were an old pair of my father's cut down. I was about to hide the other two fish in the other leg when a gamekeeper suddenly appeared and arrested me for poaching. He picked up the two exposed fish and the police station. I pleaded with him to let me go this time and I would never do it again. He ignored my appeal and said I must go to jail. Duke took one glance at his portrait, at which I broke into tears and from her territory, that she may in turn ask for the withdrawal of the U.N. Emergency Force. The contention is that this force is as guests in the country and once the job has been completed, there is no further need of it. It would seem that others have a different view of this and that the conflicting views will lead to further trouble at a later date. The mistake has been made of all the demands made on the countries which took part in the invasion, as if they had been the defeated side. Very little has been taken into account of Egypt's part in the events leading up to the situation. Some demands should be made on Egypt that she will endeavor to keep that side of the bargain. If she will live unto herself and stop interfering in all matters outside her jurisdiction, then the incidents will stop. It is quite easy to see that she cannot stop, she is being prodded by Russia at every move, because she has played into the hands of Russia by accepting certain aid. Russia is not going to lose its implement now, it would weaken the hold she was getting on the Middle East as well as her prestige there. Further, Egypt has a debt to pay Russia for all the equipment that has been sent into that country and also lost. The dark shadow of the Russian Bear hovers over Egypt in menacing fashion.

The U. N. has taken over, but how firm its grip will be determined in the days to come.

SICKROOM NEEDS

There are not nearly enough hospital beds in Canada to take care of every illness that demands rest and bed care. But, it is often less expensive when it is possible for those who must stay in bed, to do so in their own homes.

There are many ways that home bed care can be made easier on both the patient and those doing the nursing. One is to see your local Pharmacist for the necessary sick-room equipment and supplies. Don't rely on makeshift measures. And, when it comes to securing prescribed medications, there is, of course, no substitute for the years of training and experience that lie behind your Pharmacist's diploma. He is your doctor's right hand as the supplier of exactly the prescription ordered for relief and cure.

Childhood diseases are probably the source of the greatest number of home patients. If you have a child in bed with some infection, contact your pharmacist and rely on his advice for all your sick room needs. He has the supplies so necessary to aid in the quick recovery of your patient.

A Question Of Enforcement

At a recent meeting of Rosemere Chamber of Commerce, when plans for a "Shop in Rosemere" week were discussed, there was also discussion of the use of trading stamps and premium coupons. One local merchant intimated that he had been practically forced into the premium field by the fact that a large food chain store organization had come into the local picture, giving its representative the advantage of lower costs through bulk purchases. This merchant also said that he hoped to stop offering premium stamps before long.

The legality of the trading stamp business was mentioned. In this regard, it is interesting to know that the Canadian Association of Consumers, which represents home makers all across Canada, continues its fight against this practice. The January issue of the C.A.C. Bulletin states the women's viewpoint as follows:

All CAC members should give careful thought to this practice. It has been reliably reported that the cost to the stores which issue these stamps is between 2 and 3 cents in every dollar. At first, when only a few stores issued stamps, some of this cost was offset by increased sales. But when practically all stores in a town issue stamps, how much of the cost can be offset by more sales? Obviously very little—so who pays?—the consumer of course.

Have you calculated the cost to you? Take a rough example. At one store you get, in exchange for 6 1/2 books of coupons, a camera outfit of a recognized brand sold in camera stores for about $15.95. What have you paid to get this outfit? To collect 6 1/2 books of coupons you must have bought at least $95.00 worth of groceries—and if you are honest—all at one store. To cover the cost of the stamps, and the labour cost of issuing them, and the premiums offered, the store has had to raise its prices—extra cents in each dollar on these purchases. This means you have paid approximately $19.00 more in higher prices for your food (2% of $95.00) to get a camera which you could buy at any store for about $15.95. This is your so-called free gift—limiting your food purchases to one store—for wasting time while the clerk issued your stamps—for paying higher prices for your purchases at that store—and for buying an article without the usual benefits of direct purchases. CAC will continue to press for the amendment of the Criminal Code to stop this practice. There is no doubt that the intention of the law is to prevent this practice in Canada. The law states:

1—Everyone who, by himself or his employee or agent, directly or indirectly issues, gives, sells or otherwise disposes of, or offers to issue, give, sell or otherwise dispose of trading stamps to a merchant or dealer in goods for use in his business is guilty of an offence punishable on summary conviction.

2—Every one who, being a merchant or dealer in goods, by himself or his employee or agent, directly or indirectly gives or in any way disposes of, or offers to give or in any way dispose of, trading stamps to a person who purchases goods from him is guilty of an offence punishable on summary conviction.

When the Criminal Code was recently revised, trading stamp companies urged the deletion of these sections. The Government refused to delete them. Why then does it permit stores to continue issuing trading stamps? Is there a legal loop hole which allows retailers to mislead consumers while the Government stands by and takes no notice? If there is, action must be taken to alter the law.

What can consumers do? The first thing to do is check prices carefully. Compare the prices in stores issuing coupons with those not issuing coupons. Secondly—if you have coupons, be sure and get your premium. Trading stamp companies will make an even greater profit, at your expense, if you neglect to do this. Thirdly—write to your Provincial Member of Parliament. Ask him why his Attorney General is not taking action to protect consumers. The Provincial Government administers the Criminal Code which has been passed by the Federal Government. Fourthly—if you belong to any other organization get them to support CAC in its fight against the issue of trading stamps.

Letters Mailed 1st Class Yield 2-Cent Profit

OTTAWA (CP)—Every Canadian letter mailed by first-class postage yields the Post Office Department a two-cent profit, figures given to the Commons showed.

The figures issued by Postmaster-General Lapointe showed that on first-class mail the Post Office makes a 2.08-cent profit on each piece. On each item of domestic airmail it made .87 of a cent profit and on each item of foreign mail .36 of a cent profit.

William Hamilton (PC—Montreal-Notre-Dame-de-Grace) said he is glad that the Post Office has established "that every time a Canadian citizen puts a postage stamp onto a letter he is paying two cents more than the cost of transporting and handling that letter."

The Human Brain Is Not Obsolete

Most of us are only just starting to view automation as being outside the "isn't science wonderful" variety of fiction story. Others, carried away by enthusiasm for the extraordinary machines we use and invent, predict the near approach of a time when robots and "giant brains" will do all the work while human beings recline in cushioned seats. Still others profess to see automation as an agent of doom, trampling upon human intelligence and degrading the human spirit.

All these are unrealistic ways of receiving a reality. Automation is here, and there is no use blinking the fact. It is still in its infancy, as the automobile was in the 1890's, but after a few years of growing pains it will progress rapidly.

There is no denying that a number of thorny questions are raised by the transition, but when we clear away the utopian speculation and the emotional fearfulness, we find that the "push-button" world does not appear very different from the one we have been living in. The danger is not in having push-button machines, but in being content with a push-button type of thinking.

Automation is a step in technological progress. From earliest days we have dreamed up ways to improve our productive skills, tools and machines. What is automation, but a continuation of Aristotle's forecast 300 years B.C. of a time when every tool when summoned, or even of its own accord, could do the work that befits it?

The human brain When we refer to the human brain we mean more than the pink-grey jelly that fills our skulls. No machine has the imagination that is to be found in even the least-developed human brain. The machine does not have emotions and sentiments, volitions, hopes, aspirations and ideals. The machine does not experiment, or take inventive excursions.

No machine has the human brain's versatility, sensitivity, or power of discrimination. No machine is a self-motivated as the human brain is. And no machine has the power to collect and store bits of incidental information from which to fabricate something new, such as a sonnet, a code of laws, or a new machine.

Mental efficiency has been and is and will be (so far as we know) the foundation of every other kind of efficiency. It was the brain that turned the savage into a king, and the workman into a captain of industry.

Our brain is the most complex organ of all creation; the most complicated structural apparatus known to science. It has about ten thousand million nerve cells. Most of us likely have millions of cells that we don't use. Our output of information may be only one part in a million of our input. Our creative flights are only a small fraction of what they could be.

Why is this so? We may go to an ancient philosopher for a poetic answer: "O unhappy man, of all things alone neglected and untended." We develop our muscles by exercise, and nourish our bodies with food, but too often we feed our brains only on the pastime of "yes" and "no" method. There was one built by Charles Babbage, a professor of mathematics at Cambridge University, in 1822. An investigator reported on it to Sir Isaac Newton. He said in his understatement: "I cannot but admit the possibility, may the probability, that important consequences may be ultimately derived from Mr. Babbage's principle."

Automatic machines have certain advantages over the human body and over machines that must have human attention. Some of them do jobs that men could not do at all, or could not do so effectively. For example, take steering a ship or manipulating an atomic pile, or directing a rocket missile, or controlling rapid chemical reactions.

In a number of industries, automatic controls do not merely cut costs but make possible production processes that otherwise could not be attempted. Automation has contributed to the creation of new products and new industries. Colour television tubes require hundreds of thousands of operations precisely the same job that no human being could do.

Automatic sensing devices can operate under conditions deadly to man: in intense heat, in poisonous gases, in a radioactive area. Electronic computing machines surpass human information-handling capabilities. While relieving the worker of brain-fagging details, they have created new skills and given them value.

What are some of the limitations of automation? In machines, we are dealing with two things: matter and energy. This limitation is quite significant. The machine is merely an electro-mechanical contrivance, no matter how greatly it excels the living brain in speed of calculation or manipulation. You might as well look for a ripple pattern on the surface of the stormy Atlantic as for a point-of-sale advertising brain wave amid the whirling electrons.

Chateauguay (Continued from Page 5) Chateauguay Village is being conducted in the Parish Hall by Miss Hadeleine Rivest, of the Quebec Department of Domestic Affairs.

The manager in a business where automation prevails will have to be highly educated in the sense of being able to handle systematic knowledge, though he may have no college degree. He needs to have a broader-than-ever-before understanding of all phases of production, and the wisdom to forecast with some clarity and confidence the direction of events in the future.

Given an executive who is sensitive to the fact that a new era in business is already here (or perhaps in his particular line, just over the horizon) what can he do? He needs to ask questions, to conduct research, to obtain more exhaustive knowledge of the environment of his business, and then apply his knowledge to many taken-for-granted policies and plans. Are they true? Are they headed in the right direction? Is the sales plan adequate? Is the pricing policy realistic? Are personnel relations satisfactory? Has he set up a fool-proof plan by which he will be informed continuously about changes in all these factors?

It is no disgrace even to the wise to learn and lend an ear to reason. Automation will separate the men from the boys, for example in decision making. Facts will be more quickly available than they are now, and the advantage in business will go to the executive who has assured himself of getting them completely and who has acquired the ability to analyze them logically and to act upon them speedily.

The age of automation Far from being puffed up about our present attainments, we have plenty of reason for being modest about what we have discovered and made, because every discovery and invention leads to new horizons over which lie the unknown.

A well-known Scottish writer on evolution, A. G. S. Whyte, said something that should encourage us as humans to remain proud of our own intelligence. He said: "The dog no matter how our machinery develops, when we consider how early man was handicapped in the struggle for existence among beasts so much larger and fiercer and more heavily armed than himself, the wonder is that he manages to survive. The secret of his ultimate success lay in his larger and more complex and capable cerebral hemispheres: at this stage in evolution brain won over brute force."

We may allow automatic machines to take over the drudgery of routine and the back-breaking jobs, but we must conserve and train ourselves for operations requiring judgment and highly developed skills. The machine will not isolate us from the great problems of nature, but may plunge us more deeply into them. Automation points up the increased need to understand our human environment.

Automation is here, and no one with a sense of history and destiny would wish to arrest a movement that promises to increase the world's goods and reduce human drudgery. We can't get rid of a new day; the sun keeps climbing. But we can push back the frontiers of our understanding, so as to make this new human tool yield the greatest possible benefit.

Art Show The Heights Recreation Club A new departure for Chateauguay was the Art Exhibition held in the Heights Club on Sunday, March 10th, under the sponsorship of Mrs. J. Leahy, assisted by Mrs. D. Gahan and Mrs. R. Pritchard. The exhibits included ceramics, metal-work, oils, water colours and pencil sketches. To the visitors to the Exhibition, it was quite a surprise to find how much talent exists in the neighbourhood, and the voting for the best-liked pictures was taken very seriously. Much of the work was of almost professional standard and the voters many of whom were also artists, were very careful in their judgement. The first prize was won by Mr. W. Simms, with a portrait in oils; "The Pensioner" and the second prize went to Mrs. H. Bartram's.

On March 10th Mrs. Ivor Jones and Mrs. Lorne Fellows were hostesses at a tea and presentation. The guest of honour was Miss Judy Johnson, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. W. Johnson, who is shortly to be married at Potsdam, Que. Miss Johnson is well-known to residents of Chateauguay and before going to live in Potsdam was a popular member of St. Andrew's Church Choir.

The Ormstown Arena was the scene of the annual clash between the Ormstown High School Hockey teams and graduates of previous years.

At 8 p.m. the fast skating high school girls took on the hard checking and experienced graduates.

Time and again it appeared the High School girls had got the break, but each time they were cleverly checked by the graduates staunch defense and on the few occasions they did penetrate it, blonde Brienne Hooker made spectacular saves to rob them of a goal.

For almost three whole periods the battle swung back and forth until finally 25 seconds before the final bell, Trinkle Hooker got a break went around the defenseman and grove a hard shot past the startled goalie to end the game 1-0 for the High School girls, Darel Lang and Bill Elliot handled the game.

Below is the line up for the girls. Graduates: Goal—Brienne Hooker. Defense—Betty McCormick, Allison Hooker, Mariap Gruer, Dawn McMahon, Forwards—Dorothy McEwen, Norma Forrester, Rhoda Sheffer, Thee McKell, Marjorie Bryson.

High School: Goal—Judy Cavers. Defense—Jean McEwen, Gail Cavers, Anne McEwen, Bernice Marshall, Connie White, Dolores Merriam, Forwards—Grace Harkness, Karen McCartney, Trinkle Hooker, Dorothy Beattie, Joyce Begbie, Alanne Hooker, Susan Davidson.

Following the girls' game at 9 p.m. the High School boys took on the graduates. This game (Canadian Style) was a fast skating, high scoring affair with the High School boys showing a little more stamina than their out-of-practice rivals, who at times appeared rather too numerous. For the High School: Goal—Gerry Cavanagh. Defense—Billy Elliott, Malcolm Lawrence, Paul McMahon, Jimmy Barrington, Forwards—Don Ness, Rollie Ness, Fred Moore, Don McCormick, Bob Merriam, Don Gruer, Raymond Craig, Alton McEwen, Archie Borland and Camille Guérin.

pitiful $24. As the congregation had no use for the house-part of the church, he was permitted to occupy it. His end came with the close of 1832. He had returned to his lonely quarters from Howick, where he had a New Year carouse with boon companions. What followed, nobody knew. Next morning on a neighbor looking in, he found him on the floor, writing from the pain of burns on head and breast. He was unable to speak. The carefully tended he sank rapidly and died without being able to tell how he came by his injuries. The conjecture was, that in trying to light his pipe from the logs that burned in the capacious fire-place, his unsteady steps had faltered, and he had fallen forward on the blazing embers. The new year had scarce begun when he was buried beside his wife in Georgetown churchyard. His education, his ordination-vows, his capacity for conferring the greatest of all benefits on his fellow-men, had gone for nothing, all nullified by whiskey, and, in the prime of mature manhood, he filled an unmarked and un-honored grave.

The Presidents of the various Missionary Societies presided and were assisted by different members from each Group. The theme for this service being "Who Shall Separate Us".

The program was prepared by Mrs. Serena Vassady of Hungary, in such a way that it should voice the testimonies, yearnings and prayers of Christians who by the inscrutable will of God today are destined to live behind the so-called "Iron Curtain".

Mrs. Vassady at one time spent eight months behind the Iron Curtain in Europe. The special address was given by Mrs. Reese, Mrs. E. M. Wood was the soloist. pitiful $24. As the congregation had no use for the house-part of the church, he was permitted to occupy it. His end came with the close of 1832. He had returned to his lonely quarters from Howick, where he had a New Year carouse with boon companions. What followed, nobody knew. Next morning on a neighbor looking in, he found him on the floor, writing from the pain of burns on head and breast. He was unable to speak. The carefully tended he sank rapidly and died without being able to tell how he came by his injuries. The conjecture was, that in trying to light his pipe from the logs that burned in the capacious fire-place, his unsteady steps had faltered, and he had fallen forward on the blazing embers. The new year had scarce begun when he was buried beside his wife in Georgetown churchyard. His education, his ordination-vows, his capacity for conferring the greatest of all benefits on his fellow-men, had gone for nothing, all nullified by whiskey, and, in the prime of mature manhood, he filled an unmarked and un-honored grave.

CARS FIRE MV
Line
by Noel A. Foisy

A few weeks ago in a large eastern city a young woman was driving home along a narrow, busy street. Her wheels stuck in the street car tracks and plowed the car head first into the front of a heavy truck. It was a bad smash-up but the girl stepped out with only a few scrapes and bumps.

The police officer who investigated the accident wrote in his report: "In my opinion, she escaped more serious injury because of the safety belt in the car."

This was probably the first spontaneous and un-rehearsed accident in which a car safety belt proved its worth. Their advantage, of course, is that they hold the driver, and his passengers, tight in their seats when the car stops suddenly, keeping them away from the windshield, dash-board and steering wheel.

Many safety organizations have sung the praises of safety belts and some police departments have had them installed in their cruisers.

It's a gloomy subject, but one which should be considered sanely and frankly. My feeling has been that the safety belt in itself doesn't prevent accidents and may, in fact, cause more accidents. Any device which makes a cocksure driver more cocksure, which virtually assures a smart aleck that he can do anything he wants without fear of being hurt, is liable to put a new breed of menace on to the road.

For my money the best safety devices are those which actually prevent accidents, a responsive engine, reliable steering and good brakes.

These are the factors that get our closest attention when a car comes on to our lot for resale. It is part of our responsibility, we feel, to send cars onto the road that are as safe as the best mechanics can make them.
