11 die in U.S. storms

NEW YORK (AP) — The remnants of a killer storm, short of snow and freezing rain but strong in battering winds and inundating tides, continued to lash the northeastern United States today.

The storm, by far the area's worst of a waning winter, hurled up the eastern seaboard Tuesday, piling up to three feet of snow in some inland centres and flooding vast coastal areas.

At least 11 deaths were attributed to the storm. At least that many more were missing and hundreds had been evacuated. Damage was expected to run into the millions of dollars.

Wind-pushed waves running three to five feet above normal today promised little relief for the coastal areas flooded at the height of the storm. It was these tides that accounted for a lion's share of the deaths.

CHILDREN DROWN

At Dover, Del., five children—members of the John A. Waters family—were drowned as they started to flee the flooded shoreline of Delaware Bay. A sixth child was missing and presumed drowned.

Two New Jersey couples were washed away and declared missing last night when a Coast Guard amphibious vessel evacuating them was smothered by a 10-foot wave near Beach Haven Inlet. Three other evacuees and two coast guardsmen managed to hang on.

There were other known storm dead in New Jersey, Maryland, New York and North Carolina—through drownings, electrocutions from fallen wires, highway accidents and heart failures.

Schools were closed in many places, and thousands of homes were without power for hours.

Atlantic City, N.J., and Ocean City, Md., two famed shore resorts, were completely cut off from the mainland at the height of the storm when winds reached 75 m.p.h. and 20-foot waves poured ashore.

Part of the famed steel pier at Atlantic City was torn away and 2,000 feet of boardwalk was destroyed at New Jersey's Asbury Park.

Monmouth County, N.J., was declared a disaster area.

The 40-foot yacht Guinevere out of New York was missing in stormy seas off the South Carolina Coast with three persons aboard. Off the New Jersey Coast, a destroyer in tow with no one aboard broke loose and ran aground.

QUEBEC (CP) — Quebec's Liberal government Tuesday repeated its demands for new federal-provincial tax sharing agreements as Premier Lesage tabled budget estimates for the coming fiscal year.

The estimates total $952,958,775 for the 1962-63 fiscal year, compared with $823,461,594 for the current year which ends March 31.

The figure for the current year, however, does not include $36,822,225 in supplementary estimates approved last month.

The estimates for next year, as given by the government, are up $129,197,181. But with the addition of the latest supplementary estimates for the current year, the total increase is $92,374,956.

An explanatory note accompanying the estimates said the increases are due to higher social welfare and education costs.

"The obligation of the government of the Province of Quebec to aid the growth of education, improvement of health, increase the level of the well-being of the population as well as its economic development, lead it to spend considerably more each year," said the notes.

"A similar phenomenon" was occurring in other provinces. "It would seem nothing more is needed to prove the existence of the primary needs of the provinces and to demonstrate the necessity for them to obtain more abundant sources of revenue."

"The outcome is that considerable sums of money are being spent on the same thing."

Byelections Sept. 10

General election call would cancel two votes

OTTAWA (CP) — Federal by-elections in two ridings in Ontario and Quebec have been called for Sept. 10—though a general election call could wash them out.

Prime Minister Diefenbaker announced the date in the Commons Tuesday for voting in Waterloo South and Nicolet-Yamaska, both formerly held by Progressive Conservatives.

His choice of Sept. 10 caught a lot of Parliament Hill observers flat-footed. They had been speculating that Mr. Diefenbaker would set a June by-election date in these ridings to test the political climate in the two vital provinces with an eye to a general election in the fall.

The latest twist left some of them wondering if the prime minister may be eyeing Monday, Sept. 10 for the big vote.

The two by-elections will be held only if the 24th Parliament is not dissolved before then.

DIED IN OFFICE

They would fill vacancies left by the death of William Anderson, member for Ontario's Waterloo South, in his Commons office last June 6 and the resignation of Mines Minister Paul Comtois following his appointment as lieutenant-governor of Quebec Oct. 6.

The two ridings are mainly rural and agricultural. Nicolet-Yamaska is about 50 miles northeast of Montreal.

Waterloo South lies just south of the industrial centre of Kitchener in southwestern Ontario.

The by-elections would fill two of the three vacant seats in the Commons. The third is Mackenzie River which was held by Liberal Mervyn Hardie before his death last Oct. 18.

Mr. Diefenbaker told the Commons Tuesday that there will be no by-election in Mackenzie River until Parliament decides on a private member's bill now before it which would add 4,000 voters in Keewatin and Franklin districts to the sub-Arctic riding.

Liberal party sources look upon the by-election contests as real tests of strength. Waterloo South is a traditionally Conservative seat, won only once since 1900 by a Liberal.

Nicolet-Yamaska has a predominantly Liberal record but was won in 1958 by Mr. Comtois with 11,880 votes to his Liberal opponent's 7,219.

Prime Minister Diefenbaker himself has the final decision on fixing the general election date, and has given no public indication of the timing he has in mind.

Present standing in the 65-seat House is Progressive Conservatives 203; Liberals 51; CCF-New Democratic Party 8; vacant 3.

Actions of Powers are vindicated

WASHINGTON (CP)—U-2 spy pilot Francis Gary Powers is free to choose his own life with the aid of some $50,000 in back pay after being vindicated and described by senators as courageous.

The final chapter of Powers' high-flying drama over Russia—which led to the collapse of a summit conference—unfolded before the Senate armed services committee Tuesday.

Powers told the hearing he didn't know precisely what caused his plane to crack up at 68,000 feet near Sverdlovsk, in the heart of Russia.

He had heard a "whump" and could remember "feeling, hearing and just sensing an explosion." There was a slight forward movement to the plane and looking up from his instruments he could see an orange color everywhere.

"... I had never seen anything like this before... I felt that the explosion was external to the aircraft."

Contrary to Soviet charges, Powers, 32, who freely admitted he was and still is an employee of the U.S. Central Intelligence Agency—said he had not been ordered to commit suicide through use of a poisoned needle if caught by the Russians on that fateful May 1, 1960.

Instructions given him were that if captured, he was to surrender without resistance and if necessary tell the truth about his mission. The needle was to be used at his discretion in case of torture or other reason.

Documents cover French regime

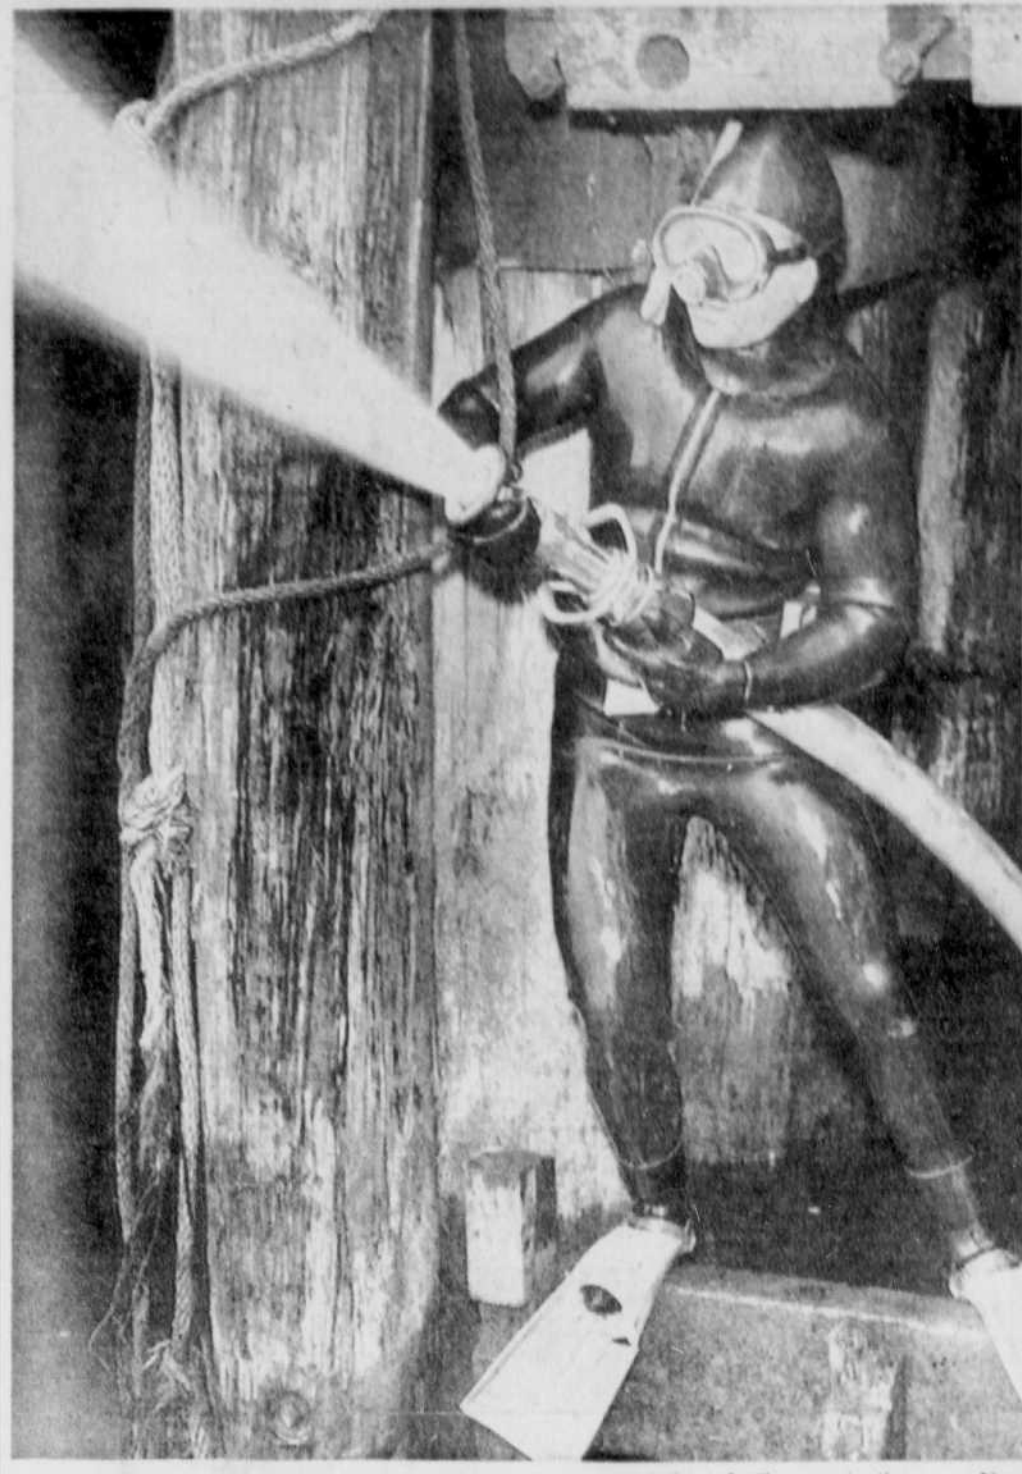

NEW YORK (CP)—A collection of 18th century French historical papers, some dealing with Canada, were sold Tuesday night for $56,655 at an auction at the Parke-Bernet Galleries here.

The collection, from the archives of the Comte de Maurepas, a powerful figure in the court of Louis XV, contains a unique record of the decline of French power in Canada. This set of papers was purchased by the University of Rochester for $2,400.

The papers contain references to the decline of French power in the New World, and plans to retake Acadia and Newfoundland from Britain.

The auction was on behalf of a private European owner.

An anonymous buyer purchased collections worth of $37,900 for Cornell University, one of them a record of French plans for a shipbuilding industry in Canada which was auctioned for $750.

Final negotiations underway

But SAO continues terror acts

EVIAN, France—Algerian insurgents today began final negotiations with France on a cease-fire to end the 7½-year Algerian war.

The insurgent delegation joined French negotiators at a resort hotel here where the talks are taking place.

To protect both delegations from possible action by right-wing extremists opposed to an independent Algeria, armored and anti-aircraft units in the area were put on alert.

Despite widespread expectations that a peace agreement would be reached soon, violence and bloodshed continued in Algeria. Tuesday's toll there was 24 killed and 32 wounded as the rightist European secret army, bent on keeping French control of the territory, continued terror raids and the Muslims responded in kind.

The two negotiating teams—led by Louis Joxe, French minister for Algerian affairs, and rebel Vice-Premier Belkacem Krim—met in the Hotel du Parc overlooking the lake front in this Alpine summer resort.

SEE HAPPY SOLUTION

Krim predicted "a lasting, satisfactory and happy solution" as he arrived in nearby Geneva.

Both sides voiced hope that disputed points could be settled within a few days.

Carrying on from recent secret negotiations, the two sides will try to fill the gaps in their tentative accord. They have already agreed on general principles.

CP from Reuters-AP

visions calling for Algerian self-determination and eventual independence for Algeria's 10,000,000 people—90 per cent of them North Africans.

If these details can be worked out, the final agreement is expected to be followed quickly by proclamation of a cease-fire to end the nationalist rebellion.

A cease-fire proclamation may end the war between the rebels and the French Army. But the peace agreement is expected to intensify the terrorist campaign by European settlers who bitterly oppose an independent Algeria which the Moslem majority will control.

ACCUSE OFFICERS

Algerian spokesmen have complained that President de Gaulle's government and the French Army have not been as energetic as they could be in combatting the terrorists. They charge that many French officers sympathize with the secret army and some officers are actual accomplices.

One point still to be settled in the Evian talks is the future role of the French Army in checking terrorism and preventing an uprising by the European population of Algeria.

In Algeria, meanwhile, workmen succeeded in repairing the Sahara-Tunisia oil pipeline that was blasted by the secret army Tuesday.

In another development, Nicolas Caracciolo, the last Italian reporter to remain in Algeria after a secret army death threat Saturday, left Tuesday for Paris "with a heavy heart."

Caracciolo, 30, a nobleman who works as a reporter for the Milan paper Il Giornale, went into hiding but decided finally to leave because "I'm no longer able to do my job. The threat of death hangs over me like a sword."

In France, police were pressing a roundup throughout the country against secret army terrorists and were reported to have warrants for the arrest of more than 200 suspects.

The secret army Tuesday for the first time carried out threats against loyal army officers by machine-gunning a staff car containing two officers attached to the French Army staff. The two officers were wounded in the arms.

Offer jobs

BERLIN (Reuters) — Canadian students attending the conference of the International Association of Students of Economics and Commerce here brought with them the offer of 125 summer jobs in Canada in exchange for foreign jobs for Canadian students.

Renewed sabotage

Thousands idle as blasts wreck BC power lines

NELSON, B. C. (CP) — Three charges of explosives pitched a 300-ton steel tower into Kootenay Lake Tuesday night, creating an area-wide power failure which has left 500 to 1,000 men out of work for weeks, possibly months.

The blast was described by owner of the tower as "a major act of industrial sabotage." It occurred in the south-central area of British Columbia, where bombings have been blamed on the radical Sons of Freedom Doukhobor sect. No one was injured.

The tower, nearly 400 feet high, supported two miles of power transmission cables that formed part of an 87-mile link to one of east Kootenay's most important mining developments.

The line across the lake, 30 miles northeast of here, was known as the longest in the western world. Three giant cables, the tower supported weighed 45 tons.

LIGHTS SNAP OFF

When the detonations came lights snapped off along the entire power system of the Consolidated Mining and Smelting Company. Some Cominco installations at Kimberley ground to a halt.

The villages of Riondel and Creston and several nearby communities were blacked out. Cominco officials said the pig-iron and chemical fertilizer plants at Kimberley and the Bluebell Mine at Riondel had closed, leaving between 500 and 1,000 men out of work. The huge Cominco smelter at Trail was also affected, with its supply of ore concentrates cut.

A Cominco statement released at Trail said work on replacing the power link across the lake will start immediately, "but officials expect the project will take possibly several months."

The incident followed the pattern of dozens of other bombings in the Kootenay valley, although it far surpassed in size anything before it.

There is no choice, although the voter has a theoretical right to cross out the name of any candidate he does not like.

BALLOTS ARE SECRET

The elections are to be conducted by secret ballot, although only an insignificant minority ever make use of the curtained voting booths set up at polling stations.

Statistics say the returns always show a turnout of only a fraction less than 100 per cent.

At the last elections in 1958, 99.37 per cent of eligible voters went to the polls set up where ever there are Soviet citizens, in every city and village, Eskimo settlement in the frozen north, embassies in foreign countries, in the Antarctic and even on ships on the high seas.

Ottawa garbage workers strike

OTTAWA (CP) — Piles of garbage cans and cartons lined the capital's main thoroughfares this morning as 127 garbage collectors went on strike for higher pay.

Ottawa's Sanitation Services Limited, which took over the service from a city department in 1960, said it will maintain service and called for non-union truck drivers and loaders.

Local 814 of the National Union of Public Employees (NUPE), charged the city with "strike-breaking tactics" and threw a picket line around the company's east-end headquarters.

Company solicitor Hyman Soloway said Tuesday night the strike was illegal, since the company had implemented recommendations of a conciliation board. This was denied by union spokesman Ben Koffey.

Claims sales tax Sask. business

Business in Saskatchewan towns close to the Manitoba border has dropped as much as 50 per cent since last December, a Liberal backbencher told the Saskatchewan legislature Tuesday.

Bernard Gallagher (L-Yorkton) blamed the drop on the increase in Saskatchewan's sales tax to five from three per cent Jan. 1. Manitoba has no sales tax.

The increase in Saskatchewan's tax was designed to help pay the cost of the province's medical care insurance program, which goes into effect July 1.

In Alberta, only other province without a tax on sales, a member of the governing Social Credit party, called for a plebiscite on a medical care plan similar to Saskatchewan's.

Charles Johnston (SC—Calgary-Bowman) said the plan could be operated in the same way as Alberta's hospital insurance plan. He felt 80 per cent of the voters would favor it.

About Television

By CYNTHIA LOWRY

NEW YORK (AP)—A couple of the route followed by Jesus of Nazareth, NBC producer Lou Hazam, has produced a television program, "The Way of the Cross," which is a beautiful, reverent and unusual television program. Among the side-products of the show was the opening of a new, fresh approach to the documentary for Hazam. It is a long way between Way of the Cross in Jerusalem to U.S. Route 1, but the producer is applying the lessons learned in the first to the latter. The result will be the biography of a highway, a special program to be shown March 29.

Instead of concentrating on a person, the program will star the 2,500 miles of road that starts at Fort Kent, Me., just south of the Canadian border, and ends at Key West, Fla. With the camera following its meandering course down the eastern seacoast, Hazam has an opportunity to dip into U.S. history — the revolution in New England, the civil war south of Washington.

It will also show the difference in architecture—old clapboard houses with widows' type plantation mansions; regional accents from the flat,

Then it was Hope's turn, and he was ready.

"This is a very emotional evening... the last time I got an award from the motion picture industry was when I went on TV... This is the first time producers have given an actor anything curable... it's a handsome award; I just wish it didn't have that wreath on it... I'd like to be humble, but I'd rather be myself."

Show Business

By BOB THOMAS

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — The banquet season is in full swing here, and that means speeches, soup and fish, speeches, mottobal mink, roast beef rare, and speeches.

The Screen Producers Guild dinner was one of the season's better outings, largely because it was relatively brief and because it honored everybody's favorite, Bob Hope. Nobody questioned the logic of giving Bob the Milestone Award that had previously gone to pioneer producers; that's how popular Bob is.

Frank Sinatra, a fledgling producer, was enlisted as master of ceremonies. He started off with a sure laugh: "Could I interest anyone in a hot engagement ring?"

Sinatra introduced Natalie Wood when he should have introduced Lucille Ball, but otherwise carried off his duties okay.

HOPE'S TAKEN ABACK

The curtains parted to reveal a communication centre that put Hope in contact with far-off defence bases. He was somewhat taken aback by the distant messages of cheer, but managed to wisecrack ("you calling collect?") When one of the calls failed to come through, Hope said: "This is our communications? I may sell my bonds tomorrow."

The final message was also a tough act to follow: J. F. K. "A hearty well-done," said the president.

Jack Benny followed, saying he also got a phone message—"long distance from my uncle in Haiti, who wants $100."

Benny was bright but also bitter. He cited show business as building a loyalty that lasts and lasts, adding: "Isn't that right, Bing?"

No answer.

Discusses Canadian culture

Sherbrooke High School student wins Rotary Club's public-speaking contest

Although there may be a cultural difference between the two countries, this does not necessarily mean that there exists a Canadian culture, a 15-year-old Sherbrooke High School grade 10 student said Tuesday.

Douglas Whitley whose topic was "Is There a Canadian Culture?", took top honors in the regional Rotary Club public-speaking preliminary contest held Tuesday night at the Sherbrooke Rotary Club.

Chosen unanimously as first place speaker, Douglas said, "A play produced in Manitoba, or a novel written in Gaspe can not always be deemed a product of Canadian culture. In fact, do we have anything which can be called a truly Canadian culture?"

Douglas quoted an article in the February issue of U.S. News and World Report which states: "Canadians possess no national identity and their culture can be best described as a minor contemporary of Americanism."

"Barry Mather, a Canadian writer has defined a typical Canadian as a man who lives in a California type house; drives a Detroit made car; shaves with U.S. steel and owns a Boston Terrier," he said lightly.

"It is true that our civilization owes much to the Americans," he admitted, "Usually much money," Douglas added.

Canadians accept the so-called "cultural exchange" with the United States as being unavoidable, yet they realize it is a one-way street, Douglas pointed out.

Canadian author Hugh MacLennan writes: "Canada is drifting into the state of being an American cultural satellite."

he said.

He said Canada's problem is that she may have been drifting toward full-fledged Americanism for so long that she needs to be shocked out of it by action of her own people.

"We can, with a little effort, communicate our ideas from east to west, despite the pull from the south," he pointed out.

"It appears then," said Douglas, "that distinct Canadianism does not exist, and it falls to us as citizens, to decide what it should be and to plan its development."

A true Canadian culture, he said, should be a bi-cultural, fused from the French and English ways of life, thinks Douglas, "or as Prime Minister Diefenbaker has called it, 'Unhyphenated Canadianism.'"

The final and absolute acceptance of the dualism of the Canadian nation must be a combine with practical measures to make it a reality, he said.

Douglas' suggestions toward this goal included that every Canadian should become bilingual, read his fellow citizen's literature and attempt to understand his thoughts and give more support to bilingual publishing houses.

"Our struggle for the elusive Canadian experience may prove to be our struggle for survival," the speaker stressed.

As an example, Douglas mentioned a recent article in an American news magazine in which an Ottawa businessman predicted a union between Canada and the United States within 15 years.

"He added that the factor that would make the merger more palatable to the average Canadian is that this country possess no national identity on which to build independence."

Douglas remarked "do Canadians earnestly want a refinement that is unique to our country?"

"A genuine Canadian dual culture would be an example to the world and its prosperous existence beside the United States would be the best possible test," he concluded.

Other contestants and their topics Tuesday night were: Michael Reichmann, 17, St. Andrew's College, (Is There a Canadian Culture); Michael placed second in the competition. The four finalists will receive scholarship awards to the university of their choice.

Smoking linked to cancer

LONDON (Reuters)—Smoking is a major cause of lung cancer, a Royal College of Physicians and Surgeons committee concluded in a long-awaited report issued here today.

The nine-member committee, set up in April, 1959, was headed by college president Sir Robert Platt.

"Smoking is a cause of lung cancer, though there are other causes, such as air pollution and substances met in a few occupations," the report said.

"None of these is of general importance as smoking."

It said heavy cigarette smokers might have 30 times the death rate of non-smokers. Cigarette smokers, it said are much more affected than pipe or cigar smokers.

"Some means of persuading cigarette smokers to stub out their cigarettes before the second half was burned would almost certainly reduce the risk," it added.

The committee was charged with inquiring into the relation between lung cancer and other ailments and smoking.

CAUSES OTHER AILMENTS

It said smoking could cause bronchitis, might help develop tuberculosis, especially in the aged, and appeared to play a role in causing arterial disorders other than high blood pressure.

Coronary heart conditions are a more frequent cause of death in smokers, mainly cigarette smokers, than non-smokers, it said.

Smoking also delayed healing of gastric and duodenal ulcers.

The report painted this picture on life expectancy for cigarette smokers:

1. The chance of dying in the next 10 years for a man of 35 who smokes heavily is one in 23; the risk of a non-smoker is one in 90.
2. The risk of dying of lung cancer for a smoker of 25 or more cigarettes daily is one in 14 between ages 35 and 74 and one in nine between 35 and 84.

The report noted that not all the difference in life expectancy can be attributed to smoking.

Court Clerk Gregoire's annual report

Increase in court complaints during 1961 traced to strict enforcement of road laws

By PIERRE SAUVE
(Special to The Record)

Stricter enforcement of the highway laws accounted for an increase in the number of complaints filed in the Judicial District of St. Francis during 1961, Court Clerk Jean-Marie Gregoire revealed in his annual report released Tuesday.

The report reveals that in civil and criminal matters, as well as in the total receipts of the Magistrate's Court and the Peace and Crown Officers, a substantial increase was reflected in all matters pertaining to the administration of justice in the District of St. Francis for the year 1961.

3 nabbed by police for theft

Magog municipal police, working in co-operation with the Sherbrooke municipal force, in connection with a car theft on Tuesday arrested three men in King Street West in Sherbrooke.

The stolen car was reported by the owner, not disclosed by police, to the Sherbrooke force at 2:51 p.m.

He told police that he had parked the car on King Street six minutes before. Police immediately contacted all surrounding forces. At 3:30 Magog police, spotted a car answering the description and arrested three men inside.

Two constables from the Sherbrooke force picked up the men early last night and they are still being held today.

A total of 1,848 complaints were filed with the Court Clerk's office, representing an increase of 589 in comparison with 1960. Of this number, 327 were arrest warrants while 324 accused were arrested during the commission of a crime.

These criminal complaints were taken in virtue of the Criminal Code, 683 cases, federal laws, 114 cases, liquor law, 46 cases, other provincial laws, 958 cases, while one complaint was taken in virtue of a municipal by-law and 46 in connection with other laws.

It can be noted that 958 complaints were filed in connection with provincial laws. This is a substantial increase over 1960 which had 389 cases. Court Clerk Gregoire explained that this increase is due in large part to the fact that a number of arrests and actions were taken in connection with the highway code of which a more stringent and severe application has been requested by a number of bodies.

A total of 21 persons were sent to the penitentiary while 153 were jailed in the local prison, and 63 were ordered to pay a fine following an offence of which they were found guilty or pleaded guilty.

JEAN MARIE GREGOIRE

More than 150 accused were released on suspended sentences, either on a summary matter, a speedy trial, or finally on a summary conviction.

Court Clerk Gregoire stated however that even though an increase in criminal complaints was noted, following a stricter application of the highway code, the criminal outlook in the District for 1961 was somewhat similar to the preceding year.

However, a decrease in civil matters was quite notable representing in connection with Writs of Assignment a drop of 400 as to 1960.

A total of 3,798 such writs were handed out by the court. These writs may be issued for a number of reasons. One of these particular writs, the summons, was given 3,685 times during the past year. In 1960, similar writs had totalled 4,141.

Court Clerk Gregoire expressed the view that such a drop was brought about by the fact that merchants and the public in general, when dealing in civil transactions, are more cautious than they used to be and are not easily lured by an insolvent debtor.

The fact that a number of public organizations and bodies are keeping the public on their toes results in less litigations being filed before the courts," said Court Clerk Gregoire.

A total of 1,632 writs of execution were issued as to 1,976 in 1960 while 2,164 judgments were rendered in comparison to 2,365 the preceding year.

Following is a financial breakdown of different departments in the St. Francis District Court House with a comparative outline in connection with the financial picture of the preceding year, 1961 — Magistrate's Court, $19,407.40; 1960, $20,996.45; 1961, Peace and Crown Office, $102,042.51; 1960, $95,634.89; 1961, wage seizures, $28,813.13; 1960, $24,703.14; 1961, Lacombe Law, depositors, $93,441.93; 1960, $90,914.16.

Totals are 1961 — $245,704.97; 1960, $232,248.64.

Amounts paid to creditors having filed claims: garnishment after judgment, 1961, $30,043.43; 1960, $22,296.78; Lacombe Law, 1961, $108,606.00; 1960, $81,782.33. Totals are 1961, $138,729.43; 1960, $104,079.11.

Judge gives youths suspended sentences

Three Sherbrooke youths were given suspended sentences in Sherbrooke District Court Tuesday morning in connection with several thefts of car hub caps they had committed last week.

Jean-Claude Labrecque, 23, Andre Lessard, 22, and Philbert Carrier, 22, had admitted stealing four hub caps from a parked car. Passing of sentence had been remanded by Judge Redmond Hayes.

The youths appeared early Tuesday morning, but spent several hours in jail following their arraignment when they refused to divulge the name of the instigator of the thefts. However, they relented and appeared once again before Judge Hayes late Tuesday afternoon. They told the court that Labrecque had planned the thefts.

Judge Hayes, however, imposed the suspended sentence as the three accused had no previous criminal record.

Two other charges were laid against Whipple following his arrest Sunday morning. He admitted driving the stolen car while under the influence of alcohol, and driving it in a dangerous manner.

Crown Attorney Benoit Turmel asked the Court to impose a three-month sentence saying that the youth admitted his guilt in connection with the four offences of which two were indictable.

Judge Redmond Hayes however remanded passing of sentence for one month, but ordered that the accused remain behind bars pending his further appearance.

Reducing excess milk production

If the federal government feels compelled to continue subsidizing the Canadian dairy industry, it might give close study to some plan for limiting the scope of the assistance payments.

The existing practice under which butter and powdered milk are purchased by the government at support prices only aggravates the situation as it tends to encourage milk production at a level far in excess of demands. This has resulted in the accumulation of huge stocks of butter and concentrated milk in government-subsidized warehouses.

One scheme that might be studied closely is that applied to deficiency payments on pork, with the government assistance being restricted to the payment of a set maximum for each farm. The per farm payment would be based on the total consumption of milk and its derivatives. The amount of the subsidy could be determined by deducting the average price received on a free market with a pre-determined cost level.

This system would aid the survival of the family farm by assuring a modest profit on a restricted output while it would tend to reduce production. Farmers would be discouraged from expanding output because the low price received for excess milk. Certain adjustments could be provided for higher costs connected with winter operations.

Lower prices would expand consumption, which coupled with decreased production would tend to adjust supply with demand and stabilize prices. The cost to the taxpayer would be substantially below that of the present price support program.

The expression "have another" results in a lot of "yes" men.

Short-cutting divorce legislation

Proposals that the Senate be made the final authority in the granting of divorce for residents of Quebec and Newfoundland might appear an easy way out of the present dilemma in which the Canadian Parliament finds itself replacing the courts.

According to the plan proposed in Ottawa, the House of Commons would divest itself of responsibility for studying divorce bills, by simply passing a resolution that such bills need only the approval of the Upper House.

But the plan has important weaknesses.

First it fails to deal with the basic problem, the need of residents of these provinces seeking divorce by Act of Parliament rather than by a decision of the courts.

Second: It seriously undermines the basic principles of democracy, in that a large number of bills receive Royal Assent after receiving approval only by the non-elective body.

The desire of the Commons to get rid of the unsavory task of reviewing hundreds of divorce measures is understandable, but it does not justify them from shirking their duties.

If you're looking for a note of harmony that will settle family disputes, it's dough.

Playing Cupid on a gigantic scale

A former Second World War fighter is all set to put Winnipeg on the map in a way which the residents of the Prairie metropolis may find rather bizarre.

He plans to hold the first Canadian International Festival of Romance in the city during the last week of June. The idea is to mix, match or mate the unwed of North America.

It may sound like a way out idea, but the intrepid Cupid of the West is sure the festival will be a huge success. Last year, his plan received some publicity in the newspapers in the small town of Stonewall where the match-maker lives.

"We had requests for blocks of rooms that would have swamped the place," the festival planner is quoted as saying, "and a thing like this would probably draw 50,000 people or more."

As a stirring climax to the week-long romance fest, the planner intends to hold a mass wedding in Winnipeg on July 4, the largest in the history of North America.

This may not strike all participants as the happiest ending to a romantic binge.

Other papers say:

Welensky is his own worst enemy

Sir Roy Welensky is his own worst enemy. For he makes the events in Central Africa seem a drama played as on television between heroes and villains. And threatening to use force "if necessary" to keep together the federation of which he is Prime Minister, he casts himself in the eyes of the world in the role that opposes the one he actually seeks to play. Sir Roy is identified now by others as the tough white monopolist of power in an essentially Negro Africa. Yet he sees himself quite genuinely as "a moderate."

In point of fact, of course, there is even now no white monopoly of power in the federation of the Rhodesias and Nyasaland. Each component part has the beginnings of a developing multiracial constitution. Nyasaland, where there are fewest whites, has already an African legislative majority of 23 out of a total of 33 seats. Northern Rhodesia now is offered a new constitution which, although it suffers from the serious disadvantage of baffling complexity, could, if accepted, immediately produce an African majority.

In Southern Rhodesia the Africans, who previously had no representation in the Legislature at all, are at least to control 15 seats out of 65 and be able to effect the selection of candidates for the other 50. The declared aim of the federation meanwhile is to produce an economically viable society which is genuinely multiracial. It is accepted now that in all the territories, in the end, the voting majority will be African.

So that the real questions now should concern the speed at which this end of African voting control is accomplished and whether the federal concept can be used to smooth the path to it.

Sir Roy is convinced that the federation is essential to the viability of the Central African economy; that it would fall apart in poverty without it. Yet for the maintenance of the federation in which he believes so strongly, the first essential is the consent of the governed—and in Africa still "the governed" and "the electorate" are not yet synonymous. Consent, however, can not be obtained by force. The every threat of that could doom the federation in advance.

Literary disunity limits the church

It has been said that the Christian Church triumphed in apostolic times because — among other qualities — it out-thought the pagan world. Will it be said of the twentieth century that it still out-thought both the materialists and the modern mystery religionists, but failed because it could not or would not outcommunicate them? The Christian response to the literary explosion has so far been small. But it has been estimated that the Soviet Government spends about $500 million a year on propagandist literature for overseas. Even from Western sources, horror comics or Jehovah's Witnesses tracts are more likely to meet the eye of new literates in Asia and Africa than anything published by any member of the World Council of Churches.

Two years ago the Society for Promoting Christian Knowledge published a notable survey and five-year plan to meet the immediate literature needs of the African continent overseas. If the minimum cost of $1 million were to be met, the SPCK would have to command five times its present income, and its education officer, Mr. John Williams, has now expounded the plan for popular consumption in "Hungry World" (SPCK 2s 6d). For work in 120 languages, from Runyankore to Sea-Dayak, and for highly complex tasks of planning, production, and distribution, the sum estimated seems modest.

Much of this work is already done on an inter-denominational basis — one of the Anglican communion's most promising ventures, a Christian newspaper in Uganda, is edited by a Congregationalist. But elsewhere, literature is only one of the many fields where the disunity of the Church limits the effectiveness of its mission and teaching ministry. (Manchester Guardian)

A welter of speculation

Liberals hope the Argue switch means more power in Prairies

By HARRY HALLIWELL

ONE OF THE BY-PRODUCTS of Hazen Argue's defection from the New Democratic Party is a welter of speculation about what it means in terms of shifting political forces on the Prairies.

While NDP is trying to downgrade the Argue switch by keeping silent about it — after the first outburst of pain and outrage — the Liberals are openly gleeful.

They are hoping for no less than 10 seats in Saskatchewan in the next federal election.

Liberal representation from Saskatchewan in the House of Commons has reached double figures only once since 1940.

That WAS IN 1949, when the "Uncle Louis" image of Mr. St. Laurent swept the country, for the biggest majority in the House held by any Canadian government to that time. Saskatchewan then had 20 Commons seats compared with the present 17.

Any new image of Liberalism that the team of Hazen Argue and Saskatchewan Liberal leader Ross Thatcher can conjure up will certainly have an impact on the patchwork quilt of Prairie politics.

Also to contend with, however, is the new image of Conservatism, created in 1956 by Prime Minister Diefenbaker's elevation to the Progressive Conservative leadership.

WHAT THE PM DID was to transfer his own highly favorable image to the party. It wasn't easy. It produced only 14 Tory seats in the three provinces out of 48 in 1957. But with the aid of the big swing, it captured 47 out of 48 in 1958.

Until the Diefenbaker ascendancy, the Tory party was the living embodiment of almost everything the Prairie farmer regarded as an enemy — the railways, the bankers, the eastern financiers, the protectionists.

Few Conservatives had broken through the barriers for long-term service in Parliament, and then usually on a highly personal basis.

blame was attached to the Bennett tariff of 1930 than to the devastation of drought and world-wide depression.

IMAGE

Neither Robert Manion, nor the old Manitoba Progressive, John Bracken, could break down the harsh image of Conservatism on the Prairies after Bennett, however unfair that image was.

It is possible to make a good case that political images are mainly the product of salesmanship.

HOW ELSE to explain why the Liberals on the Prairies were able to picture a small city lawyer from Ontario, George Drew, as an ogre of Eastern finance and a successful corporation lawyer from Montreal as "Uncle Louis"?

Part of the answer is that in 1949 the Prairies hit the peak of postwar prosperity and in 1953 some of the momentum carried over.

Meanwhile, from his entry into public life at the national level in 1940, the PM enjoyed personal prestige that left his party far behind.

When he was finally able to transfer some of it to the party in 1956, the results began to show almost immediately.

His reputation as a reformer and champion of the underdog — sort of a Tory New-Dealer — was a big factor in Conservative gains in 1957 and the near shut-out of opposition parties on the Prairies in 1958.

ACTION

Since then the image of the Tory "reform" party has been strengthened by the success of the Progressive Conservatives in Manitoba under Premier Duff Roblin and by the emergence of Agriculture Minister Alvin Hamilton as a powerful political force on the Prairies.

IN REAL TERMS, the new image has manifested itself in huge sales and giveaways to cut the wheat surplus, in farm credit, in basic farm price supports, in quick action last summer to save carefully built up prairie livestock herds from the drought. On the Prairies, these things count.

Fierce debate in India

Astrology a science or fraud

By RUKMINI DEVI
Canadian Press Correspondent

stormed The Press Press Bulletin, Bombay's leading evening daily.

Many leading astrologers say the fact the predicted tragedies did not develop does not mean astrology is not a science. "It only shows how effective our prayers have been," said one.

All over the country some 10,000 "yagnas" or congregational prayers were organized to ward off the calamities. Nehru has described the spending of vast amounts of money on the yagnas as "a national waste." Most papers have backed his statement that exploitation of public gullibility should not be permitted.

Some politicians do not agree with Nehru that astrology is misleading the people. Many are known to consult astrologers frequently. Finance Minister Morarji Desai, a devout Hindu, does not embark on any major step without knowing what his astrologer thinks of it.

Newspapers reported the cabinet of Kerala State postponed some orders recently because of "planetary indications."

But Nehru and most of the younger politicians and intellectual leaders feel the preoccupation with astrologers not only gives the country a bad name outside but hampers constructive work.

"In this age when man is circling the earth in spaceships and may land on the moon in the near future it is ridiculous that some people here continue to think that praying with folded hands will usher in national prosperity," Nehru said.

Pandit Ram Kishan, a Punjab astrologer, thinks Nehru should be "neutral" in the controversy. "If a powerful man like our beloved prime minister condemns astrologers what will the ordinary people think of our profession?" He asked in a letter to a New Delhi paper.

Report from

LATIN AMERICA

By COPLEY NEWS SERVICE

Communist say President Kennedy is trying to keep things as they are in Latin America. His non-Communist critics insist that the President is undermining the social and economic systems in the 20 other American republics.

Alexei Adzhubei, newsman and son-in-law of Nikita Khrushchev, summed up the Communist line by writing that Kennedy wants the Soviet Union to "leave the world as it was."

Adzhubei interviewed Kennedy not long ago and then went on to tour parts of Latin America.

Yet, from one end of Latin America to the other, Latins were saying quite the opposite of Adzhubei.

In fact, there is a growing feeling that the Alliance for Progress, Kennedy's plan for the elimination of poverty in Latin America, is raising the hopes of the Latin masses too high, too fast.

In Central America, for example, many newspapers have editorially criticized the United States for its insistence on tax and agrarian reform as a prerequisite for Alliance for Progress aid.

SOAK THE RICH
They feel that, in effect, the United States is encouraging their governments to soak the rich in an effort to improve the lot of the poor. As they see it, that could well inspire their wealthy people, the businessmen and the industrialists to transfer their funds outside of Latin America, to safer investments in U.S. stocks and bonds or to banks in Switzerland.

Sources in Mexico estimate that Mexican capitalists switched some $200 million from investments or deposits in that country in the month of February alone.

Immediate pretext for that flight of capital was Mexico's abstention in the voting at the inter-American foreign ministers conference to oust Communist-dominated Cuba from the Organization of American States.

Wealthy Mexicans criticized their government's failure to take a strong stand against Communist infiltration in the Americas, although Mexico was the first of the nations at the conference to spell out the incompatibility of Communism with the principles of the inter-American system.

The fact that Mexico also is in the process of revising its agrarian and tax programs, in line with the goals of the Alliance for Progress, has perturbed many wealthy Mexicans.

MEXICAN MONEY
They insist that, no matter what official Mexican propagandists may say about the relative importance of governmental and private investment in the Mexican economic picture, nine out of every ten dollars invested in Mexico come out of Mexican pockets.

Foreign money, from the United States and European sources, provides the rest. Neither President Kennedy nor the Alliance for Progress can be blamed for recent disturbing developments in Latin America.

In Brazil, Gov. Leonel Brizola announced that he was following up expropriation of a U.S.-owned telephone company with plans for seizure of a U.S.-owned electric power company.

Brizola, brother-in-law of President Joao Goulart, appeared not at all worried about adverse publicity. He told a press conference that he thinks all foreign-owned businesses in his country should be nationalized.

Why is the ocean salty? The salts in the ocean are one result of over 2,000,000,000 years of disintegration of the igneous rocks of the earth's crust. The soluble materials remain in the ocean; the insoluble precipitates have formed sedimentary rocks and ocean floor.

School built to ease problems of overcrowding for students

After considerable research by progressive citizens of Magog, the Princess Elizabeth High School was built in 1952, to alleviate the problems of overcrowding and to unite the various outlying schools into one improved centre of learning, for the present and future students of our community.

The building itself contains approximately fifteen to twenty classrooms from grades one to eleven. The rooms themselves are very modern with their pastel colour schemes, large windows, and other features which create a most pleasant atmosphere for intellectual concentration and study.

Included in our facilities is a very fine gymnasium equipped for many athletic endeavours such as basketball, volleyball, calisthenics, etc. This gymnasium with its large stage and elaborate curtains, is also used for dramatic activities.

Our library is stocked with books covering almost every phase of human activity and interests.

The laboratory used for physics, chemistry, and biology contains excellent equipment ranging from animals ready to be dissected to highly explosive acids and poisonous gases.

The course of study in the senior grades consists of four compulsory subjects, the rest being optional. The compulsory subjects are English Literature, English Composition, Oral French, and Written French. The optional subjects are North American Literature, Geography, Physics,

In order to obtain a High School Leaving Certificate, it is necessary that a student pass in at least eight subjects, but for a Junior Matriculation, a student requires ten papers. This is also the minimum requirement for college entrance. This curriculum enables a successful student to enter college and continue his studies or provides a good basic training for those who wish to directly enter other fields.

As a student of P.E.H.S., I feel that the curriculum could be possibly improved by the addition of a commercial course. During the past four to five years, statistics show that the majority of girls and many boys have chosen some branch of the business world as their vocation.

Our school has an excellent teaching staff of qualified and competent teachers from all over the world dedicated to their profession. As a student I am proud of my association with a school of this calibre and feel a student whose efforts are sincere.

half the government's spending increase—was in the Youth department whose estimates rose $62,390,752, mainly as a result of increased grants and other aids to education.

The notes pointed out that the government will spend this year. This was because $35, about $1,200,000,000 in the 000,000 in construction grants to universities were dealt with by law, and because Quebec expects to obtain $225,000,000 in federal government payments.

The health department's estimates rose by $35,307,600, mainly due to increase in hospital insurance costs. The cost of the service, entering its second full fiscal year, was estimated at $167,784,700, of which Quebec will pay $84,532,800. Cost of the current year's services was $129,900,000, of which Quebec paid $57,420,000.

The estimates of the family and social welfare department rose to $132,598,175 from $124,468,159, mainly as a result of more payments to blind, aged and invalids.

Guest speaker Lt. Col. Jim Barnett padre of Quebec Command was introduced by Stogie Stover.

Padre Barnett received his degree from Bishop's University. He was taken prisoner by the Japanese at Hong Kong and at present time is minister of a church in Sorel.

Carnival winds up at Quebec

By GERRY McNEIL
QUEBEC (CP) — A weeping queen and thousands of wet-eyed subjects sang goodbye Tuesday night to Bonhomme Carnaval.

The emotional adieu ended three weeks of winter carnival, the annual festival that warms the coldest February days here.

Bonhomme's disappearance at the moment Lent begins signifies the climax of the festival. The build-up to his departure creates the gayest Mardi Gras north of New Orleans.

Thousands packed d'Youville Square Tuesday night, twisting and snake-dancing before the imaginative ice palace.

Others dressed up for a masquerade ball.

But at 11 p.m., everybody followed Bonhomme—a grinning snowman who plays a Santa Claus role in the carnival—to the Levis ferry dock in a centuries-old section of the city.

Richmond area history recounted at meeting held by W. I. committee

RICHMOND — The historical committee of the Women's Institute sponsored a recent gathering of interested friends at St. Francis High School, when a program of talks on subjects of historical interest was presented.

W. J. Denison read the history of Denison's Mills and Mrs. J. S. MacNaughton had compiled this history was most complete and revealed Denison's Mills, even in those early days, as a progressive community because of the adventurous spirit, perseverance, courage and ambition of its pioneer settlers, the first of whom gave his name to the settlement.

A most entertaining talk was given by Dr. C. R. Boast on Life in Our Early Settlements. Dr. Boast in a lively description touched on customs, foods, crops, crafts, ingenious methods of accomplishing necessary work and the building and opening of roads, spicing his remarks with many amusing anecdotes.

K. H. Annett, supervisor of the Richmond-Drummond-Arthabaska school district, gave an interesting account of the growth of schools and education in the area, tracing the development from the first school, taught by Miss Kimball in Ship-ton in 1801, to the present high schools.

JACOBY On Bridge

DELAYED BID AIDS OPPONENTS

East had two correct ways to bid his diamond bust. One would have been to jump to four diamonds at his first turn and force South to decide what to do at the four level.

The other would be to pass steadily and hope for the best.

With either campaign North and South might have reached seven spades or they might have stopped at six or even missed the slam entirely.

Of course, when you look at all the cards you can see that any two fair players should work their way up to seven with those nice North-South cards but my experience has been that any time a partnership holds only 27 points in high cards it is not likely to reach a grand slam.

Instead of adopting either proper campaign, East worked out a bid that helped North and South as much as possible.

He passed the first time because as he pointed out, "All I had was that long diamond suit." This gave South a chance to show his tremendous spade support and North to invite a slam by his quiet four-heart bid. So far so good, but now East decided to act and he stuck in a five-diamond bid. This would have allowed South to double with a somewhat different hand, but in this case it gave South a real opportunity with his actual holding.

South simply bid six diamonds to show his void. This made it a real clinch for North to go to seven spades.

CARD SENSE

Q—The bidding has been:
East South West North
1 Spade 2 Spades Pass 3 Clubs
Pass

You, South, hold:
Spades 2, Hearts A-K-Q-J-5, Diamonds A-K-Q-3-2, Clubs 2.
What do you do?

A—Bid four hearts. Your heart suit is solid and if your partner has an ace he will probably make some move toward a slam.

TODAY'S QUESTION

Instead of bidding three clubs your partner has bid three hearts in response to your two spade bid. What do you do now?

Russia to try and deprive winner in World Hockey Tournament of world recognition owing to boycott

COLORADO SPRINGS, Colo. (CP)—Russia sought today to turn the politically harassed 1962 world hockey championships into a competition where the winner would be deprived of world recognition because of a Communist boycott. A spokesman for the West predicted that such a move would fail.

Canada is a heavy favorite to retain the world title it won for the 19th time in 29 championships last year in Switzerland.

The Russians announced that they would bring the question of world recognition at a meeting of the directors of the International Ice Hockey Federation, called late Tuesday night to certify that the visas of the competing teams are in order and to deal with last-minute details of the 12-day tournament.

But a delay in the arrival of a chartered aircraft carrying five teams delegates forced adjournment of the meeting until late this morning.

Vasily Napanikov, the Soviet member of the IIHF said Tuesday that he would table a motion to strip the tournament of its championship label.

But the Western spokesman said that Napanikov lacked sufficient support to get such a motion approved. Tom Lockhart, president of the Amateur Hockey Association of the United States and a long-time member of the directorate, said "I'm sure we have the votes to beat the Russian move."

Robert Lebel of Chambly, Que., president of the IIHF, also thought the Soviet action was sure to be defeated.

The preliminary phase of the tournament began today in Broadmoor World Arena here with the regular competition scheduled to start Thursday in two Colorado arenas 50 miles apart—Broadmoor and the Denver Coliseum.

Switzerland and Austria, consolation round competitors in the 1961 championships, meet in the only preliminary game of the tournament. The winner qualifies for the Group A championship round-robin, made up of eight countries.

Canada, Britain, the United States, Sweden, Finland, Norway and West Germany are the other countries in the championship bracket.

Five countries and the loser of the preliminary match meet in Group B, a consolation round-robin. The five are the Netherlands, France, Japan, Australia and Denmark.

TO SEE ACTION

Six of the eight countries in the championship group see action Thursday.

Colorado Springs—Britain vs. Austria or Switzerland; United States vs. Norway.

Denver—Canada vs. Finland.

This year's Canadian representatives are the 1961 Allan Cup champions, Galt Terriers. A power-packed club with such former pros as Ted Sloan and Jack McLeod, Galt boasts four smooth-functioning lines and a rugged defence.

After Finland, Canada meets West Germany, Switzerland or Austria, Sweden, Norway, Britain and the United States in that order. The tournament winds up Sunday, March 18, with the Canada-U.S. game to be televised by the Columbia Broadcasting System starting at 3:30 p.m. (4:30 p.m. AST).

Galt will carry 17 players but will be able to dress only 15 under tournament rules. Team manager Len Gaudette and coach Lloyd Rouhll predict a Canadian sweep of all seven games.

Bishop's girls edge LHS 19-11 in cage tilt

Bishop's University girls basketball squad posted a low 19-11 victory over Lennoxville High School girls Tuesday afternoon at LHS in an exhibition fixture.

Bishop's led the game 14-4 at halftime—outplaying the High School girls due to superior height, and experience. During the final frame of the tilt, a resurgent Lennoxville group managed to outpoint their visitors 6-5 however, the University took the game 19-11.

Ann Fitzgerald led the victors with six points while Marnie MacCullough was second with five and Judy Dando third with four. For Lennoxville, Gail Cameron sparked play with nine of her team's points, Cathy Maurice picking up two to complete LHS' 11 total.

Braves dump Paper Makers, Jets blank Miners 5-0

M. Sawyer paces Braves to 6-2 win in opening tilt of series in rough battle, meet Friday evening at 9.00

WINDSOR — (Staff) — Richmond Braves dumped the Windsor Paper Makers 6-2 here last night to take a 1-0 lead in the best-of-seven semi-final series "B" of the St-Francis Intermediate Hockey League.

It marked the fourth consecutive playoff win for the Braves. They just completed a three game sweep of the Magog Aces in the league's quarter finals.

M. Sawyer was clearly the best man on the ice last night sniping two goals and picking up an assist. The husky forward played fine play-off hockey and was the organizer of most of the Braves' dangerous attacks.

The game was marred by penalties with about every infraction in the book being called. Seventeen were handed out with twelve of them going to the visiting Richmond team.

In opening minutes of the game, the Paper Makers missed at least three fine opportunities. Dubois and Lapierre both had the goaler at their mercy but could not control the bouncing puck. At 15:27, the Braves surged ahead on a goal by J. Boivin following a classy passing display with Desrosiers. The period ended with the visitors sporting a 1-0 lead.

"Jasper" Houghton tied the game when the second period was but 54 seconds old. His goal came on a partially screened blue line shot. Richmond went ahead once again at the five minute mark. J. St-Laurent, the Windsor goaler, put

Bishop's Seconds post 52-43 win over Lennoxville Grads in first playoff tilt for Mitchell Trophy

Bishop's Seconds posted a 52-43 victory over Lennoxville Grads Monday night in the first game of the ETABA Semi-finals in the playoffs for the J. S. Mitchell Trophy.

The series consists of a two-game, total-point affair and sees the Seconds holding a nine-point hold over the Grads. Molson's Independents and St. Pat's start their semi-final play-off Friday, March 9 at St. Pat's, gametime 8:15 p.m.

Thanks to a first-half lead, the University squad racked up their 52-43 win Monday in a fast-paced tilt contested at Lennoxville High School.

The visiting Bishop's squad outplayed their hosts in the first frame and led by a 26-17 margin at the halfway mark of the struggle.

In the final stanza, Lennoxville came back with much better playing than they showed in the first frame, the result being that both teams sank 26 points. The advantage piled up by the Seconds in the first half gave them the win however.

Joe Louis tried to get Cleroux for Clay bout

SAN FRANCISCO (AP)—Joe Louis tried Tuesday to line up Robert Cleroux, Canadian heavyweight champion, for a fight with himself.

The former heavyweight champion didn't have the right fighter or enough money to interest manager Al Bachman of Montreal in a Los Angeles fight for his Canadian titleholder.

Louis offered Cassius Clay, 1960 olympic champion and now the ninth ranking professional heavyweight, as an opponent for Cleroux. Cleroux ranks seventh.

Bachman wanted Eddie Machen, No. 2, Zora Folley, No. 3, or "lots and lots of money."

Louis offered none of them.

The fruitless negotiations were conducted the day after the Montreal boxer racked up his 25th knockout, stopping outclassed George Logan of Boise, Idaho, in the seventh round of their San Francisco fight Monday night.

Outplay Montreal to post first win, Real Vaillancourt sets pace with two goals, meet in Montreal

DRUMMONDVILLE — Real Vaillancourt, a rangy young forward, set the pace for the Drummondville Rockets here last night when he potted two goals as the Poliquin squad outplayed the Montreal Olympics to post a 6-0 victory. The second game of the E. T. Intermediate Hockey League finals will be played Thursday evening at the Maurice Richard Arena in Montreal.

A sell-out crowd of 2,000 was on hand as the Rockets left no doubt as to the outcome of the tilt. Maurice Vachon, Maurice Boivin, Bantam Paquin and Fern Lemay were the other marksmen.

Binette, the Olympics' net-minder, had one of the busiest evenings of the season as the Rockets held the upper hand and drove a total of 56 shots at him. Claude Groulx had only 22 to handle as his mates kept the pressure at the other end of the ice for the better part of the game.

Maurice Vachon put the Rockets out in front when he potted the first goal just before the frame ended. Play was wide-open as both teams were getting out. Binette had 17 shots to stop while Groulx had only half the number which shows how the play was going.

In the middle session the teams battled all out but the Olympics were having trouble in getting organized as the Rockets kept them bottled up. Labrosse and Michelin were tagged with majors for fighting but nothing happened.

Soucy went off but the Montreal team managed to keep their zone clear. In the closing minutes of the frame Maurice Boivin made it 2-0 for Drummondville when Noel Picard was sitting out an infraction.

The third period started off with a bang as Paul Emile Michelin was tagged with a major and misconduct while Picard drew a major for staging a little bout of their own. This proved costly to the Montreal squad as Bantam Paquin put the Rockets further ahead when he beat Binette on a breakaway.

The Rockets kept the pressure on Fern Lemay made it 4-0 for the home club. At this stage the Olympics were completely outclassed and couldn't do anything right.

Real Vaillancourt stepped into the breach at this point and put the decision out of reach of the Montreal club. He got his first marker at 16:16. Twenty seconds later he finished the scoring of the evening.

With less than four minutes left in the tilt the Rockets played it smart and held onto their big lead. The outstanding man for the Olympics was Binette and although he let six goals get by him he was still the best. Groulx turned in his usual steady performance.

Following tomorrow's night game in Montreal the teams will move back to Drummondville for a Sunday afternoon fixture.

Al "Junior" Langlois tallies big one as Rangers edge Red Wings 5-4, notch three-goals in third period

Al Langlois, a six-foot, 198-pound defenceman, never had much luck scoring goals when he played with Montreal Canadiens.

The win brightened New York's chances of catching a Stanley Cup playoff berth for the first time since the 1957-58 season.

Rangers now hold a three-point lead over the Red Wings in the two teams' struggle for the fourth and last playoff spot. The Red Wings, however, have three games in hand, having nine more games to play before schedule ends March 25 to New York's six.

Langlois scored at 12:00 of the third period after Larry Cahoon's second goal of the season and Camille Henry's 21st had erased a 4-2 Detroit lead.

For Langlois, who came to Rangers in a trade for John Hanna last summer, it was his second game-winning goal this season. On another occasion he scored a goal that earned Rangers a tie.

In 155 schedule and playoff games with Canadiens, he counted only twice.

Johnny Wilson and Andy Hebenton were New York's other goal-getters. Hebenton also drew two assists, including one on Langlois' tally.

Gordie Howe and Alex Delvecchio were the key men in Detroit's attack.

Howe scored his 30th goal of the season and 499th of his brilliant career and also collected two assists. Delvecchio had three assists.

Howe's goal gave the Wings a 3-2 lead late in the second period and Marc Boileau's goal made it 4-2 at 8:33 of the third. Then the Rangers launched their rally.

Warren Godfrey and Vic Stasiuk were the other Detroit scorers.

The Wings went all out in the final minute in an effort to salvage a tie, pulling out goalie Hank Bassen for a sixth at tacker. But the Rangers out fought them and even missed three shots at the open net.

Aces dropped by Barons 4-1

Quebec Aces, straining to reach the American Hockey League playoffs for the first time since they entered the league two years ago, will have to do better on the road if they expect to make it.

The Aces, who have piled up more than two-thirds of their 60 points at home, blew a chance to bolster their hold on third place in the Eastern Division by dropping a 4-1 decision to Cleveland Barons.

The Aces have only two home games remaining of their last nine regular - season matches. Both will be against the toughest club in the league, Springfield Indians.

Providence Reds, only two points behind Quebec in the battle for the third and last playoff berth, play six of their nine remaining games at home. In that stretch, Quebec and Providence meet only once.

Prince Albert laboratory directs satellite

PRINCE ALBERT, Sask. (CP)—The Prince Albert Radar Laboratory tells the Injun satellite when to chirp.

The Injun, designed to study particle activity in the radiation belts surrounding the earth and to clarify relations between auroral activity and the particles in the belts, was launched June 29, 1961, by the United States.

The satellite contains a transmitter which relays information to various ground stations. The transmitter signal sounds like a number of birds chirping. The Prince Albert Radar Laboratory uses a radio signal to start the transmission of information from the satellite. The data is picked up by telemetry stations around the world.

400 TRIPS RECORDED
The radar station is favorably located to control the Injun. It can be tracked from Prince Albert over most of the region where its orbit passes through the northern auroral zone. During a typical satellite pass, the laboratory will command the satellite to begin transmitting data when it crosses over the Bering Strait in the vicinity of Nome, Alaska.

Data continues to be received here as the satellite passes over

Aklavik, northern Hudson Bay and out across the Gaspé Peninsula. Track is lost after it passes over Nova Scotia. The trip from Nome to Halifax takes 15 minutes. An impressive amount of data has been obtained here. Some 400 passes have been recorded on 175 reels of magnetic tape. This represents nearly 250,000 feet of tape. The data is sent to the University of Iowa where the results are de-coded in a computer.

The Prince Albert Injun program is directed by John McAlpine and a staff of seven.

Federal engineer says

Winter navigation into and out of Montreal will be feasible some day

MONTREAL (CP)—Winter navigation into and out of Montreal by ocean vessels will be feasible some day, says federal engineer Guy Choquet.

Mr. Choquet, engineer in charge of ice-breaking on the Montreal - Quebec City stretch of the St. Lawrence River, said in an interview: "the project is perhaps not profitable today, economically, but sooner or later it will be a reality, because you can't stop progress."

"It's a question of time, trial and money—plenty of money."

Commercial winter navigation in and out of Quebec City began in January, 1958, with the arrival of the Helga Dan, a Danish cargo vessel built to travel through ice. It has continued since then on a limited scale.

This winter, several ships have gone as far upstream as Trois-Rivières, about half way between Quebec City and Montreal, to take on newsprint.

NATURE STILL WINS
Mr. Choquet said it is still not possible, however, to guarantee an open channel through river ice all the way up to Montreal.

"Even if we had more icebreakers in operation," he said, "Mother Nature would still be too strong for us."

One of the most difficult obstacles in the path of St. Lawrence icebreakers is Lake St. Peter, a widening of the river between Trois-Rivières and Sorel, 40 miles downstream from Montreal.

Through the lake, 20 miles long and eight miles wide, icebreakers try to keep open a channel 550 feet in width. Frequently during the winter, however, large blocks of shore ice break loose and clog the channel. Sometimes these blocks are two or three square miles in area.

The current is weak in the lake and the wind is usually blowing the wrong way. The icebreakers thus can count on little help from nature.

TRY NEW PLAN
Department of transport engineers tried a new scheme in Lake St. Peter this winter. They drove four groups of wood pilings into the lake-bed along the two sides of the navigation channel in an attempt to restrain loose shore ice.

It didn't work. The pilings were swept away by the ice and disappeared. The only tried and true system is to keep an icebreaker on patrol near Trois-Rivières and move it into the lake when ever the channel is blocked.

Ice also piles up in the Laprairie basin just above Montreal and, as it breaks up, gets pushed along by more ice sweeping through the Lachine rapids, it drifts into the port area. Ice blocks that touch bottom, 35 feet below the water's surface, and stretch 10 to 15 feet above the surface are not uncommon in Montreal harbor.

That is another obstacle to be surmounted if Montreal is ever to have winter navigation, Mr. Choquet said.

Proposals have been advanced to construct a dam between the Laprairie basin and Montreal harbor.

"A dam would be a big help in preventing the accumulation of ice in the port," Mr. Choquet said, "but it would be bold to say that this would be the solution to the problem of winter navigation in Montreal."

Pastor for deaf preaches sermon with his hands

EDMONTON (CP)—In Rev. R. A. Bauer's work, the hands are more important than the voice.

Mr. Bauer is pastor for the deaf in Alberta and Saskatchewan. He is affiliated with the Lutheran Church, Missouri synod.

The Edmonton native became interested in the work through a friend who was a teacher to the deaf.

"I saw a greater need for pastors in that field than elsewhere," Mr. Bauer says.

There was a great need for such pastors in the United States and Canada. Only three centres in Western Canada had pastors for the deaf — Edmonton, Winnipeg and Vancouver.

Mr. Bauer took special training in teaching the deaf at St. Louis Seminary in Missouri, where he also took his theology degree.

Mr. Bauer said he can preach a sermon to the deaf as rapidly in sign language as a minister who speaks to his congregation. The sign language deals with concepts rather than language. One sign creates a whole meaning which might take a few sentences to explain to the non-deaf.

Knowlton IODE reports tidy bank balance

KNOWLTON — The regular meeting of the Sir John Fisher Chapter, I.O.D.E., took place in St. Paul's Church Hall. In the absence of Mrs. Leroy Shaw, the meeting was presided over by the vice-regent, Mrs. H. L. Parkes, who also gave the treasurer's report, showing a balance of $145.73.

The vice-regent reported that because of the fact that Mrs. George Robb had been indisposed for several days, the Chapter cancelled plans for celebrating her birthday, but flowers and cards were sent her. Mrs. Robb celebrated her 93rd birthday on Feb. 27.

A quilt was tied by several of the members during the afternoon.

Mrs. L. A. Call, educational secretary, was authorized to purchase 70 calendars for 1963; and the Echoes secretary, Mrs. J. W. Yearsley, read an informative letter from headquarters.

Mrs. Leon George, secretary for Services at Home and Abroad, stated that $366.80 had been spent in that department in 1961. She also reported that a shipment valued at $68.25 had been forwarded to headquarters last month and that used clothing was also sent, as well as babies' clothing being provided for a local family.

It was unanimously decided that a former member, Mrs. D. H. Mapes Jr., at present residing in Montreal, be made honorary vice-regent in recognition of her interest and support throughout the years.

A minute's silence was observed in tribute to Miss Mary R. Knowlton, who had served as vice-regent for many years and was honorary vice-regent at the time of her death.

Mrs. M. Balls, secretary of Empire and World Affairs, read a most interesting article dealing with UNICEF.

Two new members were initiated into the order and another member who has recently moved here was welcomed to the Chapter.

After the meeting refreshments were served by Mrs. Nellie d'Artois and Mrs. Elton Bockus.

POURING IN THE SAP — Jean-Paul Blais pours sap into one of the containers in the tank like vehicle which transports the sap to the sugar house in Rolland Boudreau's 11,000 tree bush near Ascot Corner.

Little tradition in this operation

Space age maple syrup industry: all mechanized and modernized

Gathering sap and boiling it down to maple syrup is no longer a matter of tapping a few trees and lighting a fire under a kettle.

At least not as far as Rolland Boudreau of Ascot Corner, one of Quebec's biggest maple syrup producers, is concerned.

Mr. Boudreau starts work next Monday and with the help of eight men will tap 1000 trees a day until the entire sugar bush consisting of 11,010 trees is in operation.

No picturesque horse and sleigh collects the syrup in this sugar bush.

Mr. Boudreau has a tank-like vehicle with rubber treads which will go anywhere in the woods in any weather. The vehicle has a tank in each side and they hold a total of 430 gallons. The men who work out in the bush collect the sap in buckets and pour it into the tanks.

After about an hour in the sugar bush the sap-gathering vehicle and its driver came back to Mr. Boudreau's mechanized sugar house.

He still uses cream to keep the syrup from boiling over, but this is one of the few traditional devices to be found in the building.

The sap is piped right from the vehicle into a reservoir and then into the evaporators. The evaporators stand on a concrete foundation which contains gas jets which provide the heat. Wood fires play no part in this process. The building is kept spotless and all the steam is channelled out through three chimneys.

As Mr. Boudreau stands stirring the syrup with a wooden paddle he recalls the days when his father, Emile Boudreau, started work in the sugar bush.

"He had" one horse then," his son recalls with a smile "and we thought it was quite a big business." His father, now 80, sits nearby watching the sap boiling. He nods approvingly.

When the sap is running well, Mr. Boudreau figures that he will take in enough to make over 1000 gallons of syrup. This will be the most he has produced in one season.

By ALISON SCHOENFELD (Record Staff Reporter)

However, not all those gallons will remain as syrup. Down in the basement of the Boudreau home, Mrs. Boudreau is hard at work making maple sugar and maple butter. She even shapes some of the sugar into little animals. All this activity lasts for about two months then the Boudreaux relax and enjoy a more tranquil existence as farmers.

FORGING THROUGH THE WOODS — Gerard Cote guides his unique sap gathering vehicle through the 11,000 tree sugar bush near Ascot Corner belonging to Rolland Boudreau.

Discuss changing educational needs at Farnham Home-School meeting

FARNHAM — The program for the regular meeting of the Home and School Association, featured a panel discussion on changing educational needs for full employment of the rising generation.

Panelists were Dr. Henry Hall, principal of Sir George Williams University, Maurice Barriere, assistant director-general of Specialized Studies for the Department of Youth, and Ronald Clark and Gerald Hawke of the local Association.

The discussion revealed that the demand for unskilled labor is rapidly decreasing to the point where a large percentage of the unskilled are permanently unemployed. While university enrolments are rising sharply, only a small fraction of students completing high school go on to university. A large number of young people do not finish high school. For those who do not reach university some form of vocational training is necessary, before they can assume a productive role in the nation's economy.

The panel presented information on costs of courses in the trades and technical schools, nursing schools, business schools, military colleges and universities. Data on financial aids in the form of scholarships, bursaries and student loans showed them to be quite effective in removing former barriers to higher education.

Tuition fees have been entirely eliminated in the trades and technical schools operated by the Department of Youth, and classes in the English language are offered wherever the student is setting up a class. Students are numerous enough to

The program committee of the Home and School is keeping on file, for the convenience of students and parents, all the information compiled for this discussion.

Mrs. Helen Webb, vice-president, presided in the absence of the president, Mrs. Ronald Clark.

A nominating committee, Mrs. Stanley Jones, Miss Louise Hall and Mrs. Webb, was appointed to prepare a slate of officers.

BIRCHTON —

Mr. and Mrs. Paul Taylor and family, of Tamworth, N.H., were guests during the weekend of Mr. Taylor's parents, Mr. and Mrs. S. J. Taylor.

Mrs. Murdoch MacKinnon and Mr. James MacKinnon, of Coaticook, were weekend guests of Mr. and Mrs. Howard Picard and family. Mr. MacKinnon was also an overnight guest at the Murray home.

Mrs. J. A. Murray has been spending several days in Sherbrooke to be near her sister-in-law, Mrs. Albert Murray, of Scotstown, who underwent major surgery in the Sherbrooke Hospital.

Friends of Rev. and Mrs. A. H. Plowright are pleased to hear they are enjoying their holiday in California, and expect to be back on or about March 18.

How magic of marriage transforms 'little woman'

Did you see the cartoon of the bride and groom driving away from the church with the groom saying in plaintive astonishment: "Up to a half-hour ago I was a thrilling driver. Now, already I'm reckless?"

That's just one of the changes a man can expect marriage to make in his wife's attitudes.

Before marriage she will go along with his talk of adventure — but after marriage her big dream will suddenly be revealed as a split-level house in the suburbs.

Before marriage she will listen wide-eyed to all of his opinions, and not until after marriage will he have to start listening to hers.

Before marriage she will tell him and everyone else how wonderful he is, but after marriage she will not only begin to notice his faults but will start calling attention to them, both in private and in public.

Before marriage she will say "You decide" and "whatever you want to do is all right with me" when they are making plans, but after marriage she will begin to say "I think such-and-such" and have her arguments all lined up in case he doesn't agree.

Before marriage she will talk as though money is a very, very unimportant matter, but after marriage she will soon decide that while money may not buy happiness, it buys an awful lot of other things she thinks are important.

Before marriage she will stick close to the telephone whenever she expects him to call, but after marriage if he wants to catch her at home during the day he may find it is quite a problem.

Before marriage she talks of a "little house" or "tiny apartment" as though there were something appealingly romantic about its very smallness. After marriage she will use "smallness" as the reason why they simply have to look for another place to live.

Before marriage she will think of marriage as a "little house" or "tiny apartment" as though there were something appealingly romantic about its very smallness. After marriage she will use "smallness" as the reason why they simply have to look for another place to live.

Rice pudding with a difference

A reader recently wrote that she was as interested as the next person in foreign cookery. She found many of the Italian and French dishes — and the Polynesian and Japanese — interesting and often useful to her needs.

However, she had a recollection that our American forefathers had a clever hand for cooking, too. Perhaps it would be well if, in our enthusiasm for the exotic, we didn't lose sight of a rich heritage in our own right.

Take a dish like rice pudding, for instance. This is a classic dessert. It is a pity, indeed, if a child misses the passing of a spoonful of rice pudding over his tongue because he's too busy being indoctrinated into Crepes Suzette. Or, worse, is gobbling a store-bought chocolate-covered ice cream pop as dinner dessert.

So, then, take this aromatic rice pudding. It is creamy. It is flavorful. It takes an hour or more to cook. But you don't have to stand there watching what is happening. Just know that the seasoning, the aromatic bitters, is doing its job. And the final touch is yours. The last-minute folding in of the whipped cream.

Talk on Freedom from Hunger

Excellent display at annual Seed and Forage Crop Fair

COOKSHIRE — Owing to the inclement weather and bad roads, the attendance at the eleventh annual Seed and Forage Crop Fair, held in Victoria Hall on Feb. 26, was not as large as usual. However, those who attended were well pleased with the excellent display of different grains, potatoes, root crops, clover, timothy, seed beans, baled hay, ensilage, etc., brought in by the interested farmers from the surrounding districts of Bishopston, East Angus, Sawyerville, Bulwer and Learned Plain.

The late Thomas Kirby, a descendant of one of the pioneer families in this district, inaugurated the fair, which has been well supported ever since. This year a large number of Cookshire High School pupils participated than usual in the senior and junior judging competitions.

Judging took place in the morning and afternoon, and in the evening, the doors were splendid showing, especially the opened to the public. The president of the Compton County Agriculture Society, A. Bennett, welcomed everyone. Others who participated were Walter Hodgman, secretary-treasurer; D. J. Macmillan, local agronomer; Wells Bishop, of the Farmers' Association; and W. S. Richardson, of the Lennoxville Experimental Farm.

VEGETABLES IMPROVED
Mr. Richardson stated that the quality of the vegetables was an improvement over last year, but the oats were not up to standard, due to the wet weather for last fall's harvesting. Although methods of farming are changing with the times, some of the older methods are not to be criticized, Mr. Richardson maintained.

Gerard Hudon, from the Quebec Department of Agriculture, congratulated the group on their exhibits of corn. He stated that we are living in an atomic age, when all developments must change, and that soils treated with chemicals produce better results.

Rene Scott paid tribute to the executive members who had worked so hard to ensure the success of this venture.

D. J. Macmillan suggested that better seed be used, thus better beef will be produced. Fertilizer grants from the government will be the same as last year, he stated.

FREEDOM FROM HUNGER
Mrs. Wells Coates, provincial Women's Institute convener for agriculture, gave an inspiring address, stating that the purpose of the seed fair was to promote the use of good seed, which leads to the production of better food. She then gave a few facts on the Freedom from Hunger Campaign, sponsored by the FAO, which was launched July 1, 1946, and will conclude at the end of 1965.

Mrs. Coates maintained that we must help the poor countries to help themselves by developing agriculture in their own countries, by growing more and better food. This is a long term project and sending surplus food to these countries is only a temporary measure.

Mrs. Coates gave a few examples of what has already been done in some countries to help themselves. In Libya, one big factor in improved flocks of sheep was the crossing of the imported Turkish barbary sheep with the native barbary sheep. The crossbred barbary was bigger than the original Libyan barbary, and retained the white body fleece of the Turkish barbary types, a distinct improvement on the body fleece of the Libyan sheep.

TECHNICAL HELP
An FAO technical expert helped the government of Cambodia set up a national improvement scheme in 1957, which has resulted in raising egg production in that country by 50 per cent, and by decreasing mortality of chickens by one third. Eggs are of particular value in tropical regions because their shells protect their contents against both deterioration and adulteration. The chickens themselves provide fresh meat, and flocks can be quickly raised without high capital investment.

El Salvador, with help from FAO and UNICEF put into development a dairy program, and now has 200,000 dairy cows, yielding about 2.4 litres of milk per cow per day, or some 480,000 litres for the population of 2,300,000.

High yielding Italian wheat varieties were introduced into Yugoslavia in 1957 through FAO. In two years, the production rose by 30 per cent; now Yugoslavia has become self-supporting in use dairy products.

Scotstown group reports success of Scotch concert

SCOTSTOWN — The Ladies Circle of St. Paul's Presbyterian Church held the February meeting at the home of Mrs. Alex MacDonald with Mrs. Wm. MacAskill as joint hostess, and a good attendance of members. The devotional period was conducted by the president.

The treasurer reported $57.00 realized from the Scotch concert. Two donations of money were gratefully accepted.

The secretary was instructed to write a letter of thanks to Philip Boy for making two new flag staffs for the church.

Some recipes were on sale and members were reminded to bring in copies of their favorite recipes to be sold. The committee reported two quilts to be quilted and one more order was received.

After the meeting, refreshments were served by the hostesses.

The March meeting will be held at the home of Mrs. George MacRitchie with Mrs. John N. MacKenzie, as joint hostess.

Stanbridge East school outing

STANBRIDGE EAST — The principal G. Corey, of the Intermediate School, with some of the senior pupils attended the Macdonald Royal at Ste. Anne de Bellevue. Attending were Gayle Short, Anatoli Wakulenko, John Guay, Ivan Trembley, Vera Boomhower, Randy Yates and Doreen Stote.

The pupils assembled at the school at 8 a.m. and crowded into Mr. Corey's car for the trip. Upon reaching Macdonald College at 10 a.m. the crowning of the queen was in session. Since seats were not available, Mr. Corey showed the group around the college grounds and buildings instead.

The physical education display was much enjoyed as well as the square dance.

At lunch time all assembled to join the cafeteria lunch line, and dine in the new dining hall. Films were enjoyed and the group visited the college coffee shop. Later displays added much interest to the program.

On the return trip, Mr. Corey took the pupils over to Dorval airport and showed them around the building. They also saw several airplanes land and take off. The group arrived back at 8 p.m.

General Note

Because of weather conditions and so much sickness in the community, the ham dinner held in the St. James Anglican Church Hall, for benefit of the Community Scholarship Fund, was not as successful as was hoped for but the net proceeds amounted to between $15 and $20.

Miss Irene Corey, who underwent surgery in the B.M.P. Hospital, Sweetsburg, is convalescing at a nursing home in Sweetsburg, being cared for by Mrs. Geraldine Elliott.

Mrs. Earl Bracey has returned to her duties in the post office, after her recent illness.

National productivity body

'Smarter' work dream of Council

OTTAWA (CP) — A national effort to "work smarter"—with workers and employers jointly planning details of increased efficiency in more than 6,000 factories — is the dream of the National Productivity Council.

But after a year of activity, the council still sees this goal well in the future.

Instead, its first task is to change old attitudes and overcome mutual suspicions at the top levels of industries and unions, and hope this will filter down to the working levels.

The chairman of the 25-member council, Michigan-born H. George De Young, put the problem bluntly in a recent speech.

"How do we get to realize that we are not natural enemies but natural teammates? How do we communicate?"

The first big effort at communication, at fostering a team spirit, will be made in mid-March at Kingston, Ont. Company and union presidents, 40 from each side, have been invited to a two-day seminar at Queen's University, including heads of some of the big industrial unions who have been strongly critical of the council.

They will talk frankly, it's hoped—behind closed doors. If the conference is successful, further such meetings will be held.

The council's executive director, 37-year-old John Dickinson, emphasizes that productivity changes in a factory affect people, especially the big changes involved in automation.

"The problem is one of how to accommodate these changes," he said in an interview.

Mr. De Young told an audience recently that labor has an attitude of "real fear" at the prospect of workers being displaced. But he emphasized that labor isn't the only reluctant party.

"In co-operation between management and labor, I find management as hard to convince as labor," he said.

The Productivity Council was set up Feb. 28 last year with five representatives from each of four groups: Industry and commerce, labor, primary industries including agriculture, and the general public. Mr. Dickinson and four senior civil servants are also council members.

Mr. De Young, president of Atlas Steels Limited, Welland, Ont., outlined productivity: "Work smarter."

"We must take our plants job by job, department by department, and ask... Why do we do that? What do we accomplish? Is it necessary? Why do it at all? Why there? Where else? When do we do it? Why then? Who does it? Why does he? Why not somebody else? Why not do it automatically?"

"And on through the plant, man by man, job by job, management. And here is a grand place to ask: Why do we have him? What does he do?" He emphasizes that the council is not an economic planning organization with executive or even advisory powers.

"We hope to be the promoters and stimulators, and we know the individual Canadian firms and people must be the doers."

Mr. De Young, who came to Canada 11 years ago and became a Canadian citizen in 1956, has been promoting and stimulating the productivity idea in nearly 20 major speeches in the last year.

He says the productivity effort must be based on in-plant committees where labor and management can get down on detailed cases.

The council has set its sights on 6,000 such committees across Canada. It is depending on provincial, regional and local organizations to foster their spread.

Mr. Dickinson said that as a starting point it is hoped to make use of more than 1,700 labor-management committees already in existence.

Almost all of these, he said, are limited to safety programs in the plant, while a few provide a forum for discussion of technological changes and job training.

The council has in the works a program of courses to train men in productivity and work study methods. A group of experts will make a cross-country tour in June to hold seminars in perhaps a dozen cities.

In his speeches Mr. De Young has repeatedly pointed to gains in productivity and competitive strength in the economies of other countries. National production per person in Canada
