After Fifteen Minutes' Conference the Coal Presidents and Mr. Mitchell Adjourned Till 3

President Roosevelt Calls Not for Discussion of Claims But for an Immediate Resumption of Mining.

THE RAILROAD MEN LEFT TO LOOK FOR QUIET PLACE TO TALK IT OVER

And Mr. Mitchell and His Party Left the White House Soon After Them—No Announcement Has Transpired Beyond the President's Speech.

Washington, October 3.—The second step in the President's efforts to effect a settlement between the anthracite coal magnates and the miners was taken to-day. At 11.10 o'clock every person who had been invited to participate, except President Olyphant, of the Delaware & Hudson Road, who sent as his personal representative David Wilcox, vice-president and general counsel of the road, and President Cassatt of the Pennsylvania Road, was present in the room of the temporary Executive Mansion, where President Roosevelt, since his return from Indianapolis, has transacted such necessary public business as could not be postponed. The President, during the conference, was seated in a large invalid chair, his left leg resting upon a cushion. The President most cordially greeted each of his guests as he appeared. When all were assembled he stated to them in a brief preliminary way his object in calling them together. Fully realizing the importance of the communication that he was to make, the President had prepared a carefully-worded paper setting forth in detail his position on the controversy. The President said:

"I wish to call your attention to the fact that there are three parties affected by the situation in the anthracite trade—the operators, the miners and the general public.

PRESIDENT SPEAKS FOR THE PUBLIC ALONE.

"I speak for neither the operators nor the miners, but for the general public. The questions at issue which led to the situation affect immediately the parties concerned—the operators and the miners, but the situation itself vitally affects the public. As long as there seemed to be a reasonable hope that these matters could be adjusted between the parties, it did not seem proper to me to intervene in any way. I disclaim any right or duty to intervene in this way upon legal grounds or upon any official relation that I bear to the situation; but the urgency and the terrible nature of the catastrophe impending over a large portion of our people in the shape of a winter fuel famine impel me after much anxious thought to believe that my duty requires me to use whatever influence I personally can to bring to an end a situation which has become literally intolerable. I wish to emphasize the character of the situation, and to say that its gravity is such that I am constrained urgently to insist that each one of you realize the heavy burden of responsibility upon him.

"We are upon the threshold of winter with an already existing coal famine the future terrors of which we can hardly yet appreciate. The evil possibilities are so far-reaching, so appalling, that it seems to me that you are not only justified in sinking, but required to sink for the time being any tenacity as to your respective claims in the matter of issue between you.

"In my judgment the situation imperatively requires that you meet upon the common plane of the necessities of the public. With all the earnestness there is in me, I ask that there be an immediate resumption of operations in the coal mines in some such way as will without a day's unnecessary delay meet the crying needs of the people.

"I do not invite a discussion of your respective claims and positions. I appeal to your patriotism, to the spirit that sinks personal considerations and makes individual sacrifices for the general good."

Long before the hour fixed for the conference a large crowd had assembled outside the temporary White House. The first official caller was Hon. Carroll D. Wright, Commissioner of Labor. He has made an investigation of the strike situation, and the President desired to obtain from him what he considered important features of the controversy between the operators and the miners.

THE ARRIVAL OF THE PRINCIPAL CONTESTING PARTIES.

President Mitchell and his party were the first of the principals in the controversy to arrive at the White House.

Just after eleven o'clock Presidents George F. Baer, of the Reading; E. B. Thomas, of the Erie, and W. H. Truesdale, of the Lackawanna, arrived in a carriage. They were soon followed by President E. B. Fowler, of the Ontario & Western, John Markle, of the firm of G. B. Markle & Company, independent coal operators, and David Wilcox, vice-president of the Delaware & Hudson, representing President Olyphant of that road.

President A. J. Cassatt, of the Pennsylvania, who had been invited, did not come. He sent a telegram to President Roosevelt explaining his inability to be present.

The two delegations were escorted upstairs about eleven o'clock. Attorney-General Knox and Commissioner Wright remained with the President.

PRESIDENT ASKED ADJOURNMENT AFTER SPEAKING.

When the President had concluded the reading of his statement, he said that he did not expect that either party would be ready to submit propositions at the time, but he asked them to take into consideration what he had said and to return at three o'clock. He said that he hoped that some proposition might be presented at that time which would furnish the basis of an adjustment.

The first conference then broke up. It had lasted less than fifteen minutes. The representatives of the railroads went to their carriages. They refused to say anything, except that they would meet again at three o'clock. They would not even say where they were going to make their headquarters. When asked where they could be seen, President Baer remarked to the newspaper men:—

"Gentlemen, what we want is to get some place where you can't find us, and where we will not be interrupted."

They then drove away.

President Mitchell and his party followed soon after, refusing to say anything. A little later Attorney-General Knox left the White House.

It was understood that each party to the conference would formulate some proposition during the interim, based on what the President had said, or that each would be prepared with a reply to present to the President when the conference was resumed at three o'clock.

AN EMPHATIC PROPHESY OF SUCCESS.

Washington, October 3.—At 12.30 o'clock Secretary Root terminated nearly an hour's private conference with the President. The Secretary was in an optimistic mood when he left the White House. He said he could not communicate anything further than that already given to the press, but he did not hesitate to express his individual opinion that the prospects were bright for some satisfactory outcome to the negotiations instituted to-day.

JOHN SWAN IS FAR FROM HOPEFUL.

Toronto, October 3.—(Special.)—John A. Ewan, the special Globe correspondent in the coal fields, says his observations and inquiries lead him to conclude that if the strike ends before January it will be because the mine owners have receded from the extreme position they occupy.

OTTAWA READY TO WELCOME PREMIER

The Mayor and Citizens and the Town Band-Waggon Will Meet Him at Station.

(Special to The Montreal Herald.)

Ottawa, Oct. 3.—The Laurier reception committee of the City Council is making the necessary arrangements to give a grand welcome to the Premier here. He will be received at the depot by the Mayor, aldermen and prominent citizens with a band and escorted to the City Hall, where an address will be presented to him.

SHUT-OFF VALVES IN THE FACTORIES

Chief Benoit is preparing a report for submission to the Fire Committee in which he will point out that a radical change is necessary in the location of the shut-off valves connected with the emergency sprinklers provided to protect large commercial establishments from the ravages of fire.

It will be remembered that not long since a fire occurred in a building at the corner of St. Catherine and St. Lawrence Main streets, which was supplied with some of these attachments.

The fire was a very small one, but, as soon as the flames ignited, the sprinkler got in its fine work.

When the brigade reached the spot, the firemen strove to locate the shut-off valve, but a half hour was lost in a vain endeavor.

In the meantime the building from top to bottom had been deluged with water, and much valuable property was ruined.

The underwriters, of course, in looking over the premises, saw that very little damage had been done by fire and a great deal by water.

Consequently a protest was forwarded to the Fire Committee, in which it was hinted that the brigade had been handled in an incompetent fashion.

Sub-Chief Jackson, who was in charge at the time, explained that the delay in stemming the tide of water was occasioned by the difficulty in locating the shut-off valve connected with the sprinkling system.

An enquiry has since been instituted, and Chief Benoit is informed that in all the buildings supplied with these appliances—possibly thirty in number—the shut-off valves are either in the basement or near the roof; in any event, in some out of the way corner not readily accessible.

The chief will, as a result, report that the shut-off valves should, in every instance, be removed to a point near the main entrance, in order to provide uniformity and to preclude any delay on the part of the firemen in stopping the water should any large volume prove unnecessary.

HON. MR. TARTE AT BOARD OF TRADE

The Hon. Mr. Tarte is going to address the members of the Montreal Board of Trade on Tuesday, Oct. 14th. This is the day of the quarterly meeting of the board, and Mr. Tarte's presence will be the result of an old arrangement.

Some months ago Mr. Tarte was invited to speak before the members on transportation matters, and the Minister of Public Works has agreed to fulfill his engagement on the 14th.

MENTIONED FOR YUKON GOVERNOR.

CANADIAN CORPS OF S.A. CONSTABULARY

Will Be Kept Exclusively for Men of Dominion and Will Be Model Corps.

(Special to The Montreal Herald.)

Kingston, October 3.—A Canadian officer attached to the South African constabulary, writing to a friend in this city, states that there are over five hundred applications on file for commissions in the Canadian regiment of the constabulary, but that none but Canadians need apply, as it is intended to keep the corps a purely Canadian one and a model regiment. It is intended that deserving non-coms. may be able to attain commissions.

MR. J. B. DEGANNE DIES SUDDENLY

Mr. J. Bte. Deganne, the well known undertaker, of 1735 Notre Dame Street, died very suddenly last evening at his late residence, 72 Parc Lafontaine. The deceased, Mr. Jean Baptiste Deganne, was born 49 years ago in Plattsburg, N.Y., and had resided here since boyhood. He opened business as a hairdresser and barber 20 years ago, and very soon became popular among the business men and brokers, who were his chief customers. He was a man of amazing good nature and skilled in his business.

For several years he suffered from hip trouble and on Wednesday went home feeling rather worse. Last evening he was quite cheerful in the early part, but became weak towards midnight and passed away almost before his friends realized it. He leaves a widow.

Mr. Deganne was a member of St. Joseph's and St. Patrick's Benevolent Societies, La Societe des Artizans Canadiens, Francais and Court Balmoral Independent Order of Foresters.

COLD WEATHER IS COMING BUT NO COAL IS IN SIGHT

There are many anxious minds astray for the settlement of the great coal strike, which in many quarters is more dreaded. The coming cold is not to be laughed at, but beyond, the discomfort cannot be joked over with hopes of almost immediate relief. So when the heroes of settlements and the mighty of earth are compelled to see the suffering of the nations without power to relieve it, the tragedy of the struggle in the distant coal fields will appeal to everybody.

To add to the gravity of the present situation, the early arrival of very cold weather in Montreal can be expected, with a fall of snow during the past week, and a temperature ranging yesterday from the minus 4 of Cape Breton, and the American cities to the south, the signs of a hard coal famine, but unless relief arrives very soon, the winter will be a dark one for many thousands.

There appears to be enough soft coal on hand to provide any possibility of a scarcity in this city. Mr. Abner Kingman, of Kingman & Co., agents for the Dominion Coal Company, yesterday from the mines of Cape Breton, had made the following statement:

"If the necessity arises the people of Montreal can be supplied with as much soft coal as they require so that there need be no fear of a famine of this class of coal.

"We have large quantities of coal in the St. Lawrence on the way to Montreal, but we have not contracts already made, and we are not making new contracts. I regard the situation as being more hopeful and look for an early settlement of the trouble in the anthracite regions.

"When the strike is settled there will be both freight and consumers will content themselves with receiving a month's supply and not demanding their whole winter order.

"It may well happen that the difficulty is not settled, we can move coal in Cape Breton coal ships to Portland, from which place it can be carried to Montreal by rail, so that no one need be obliged during the winter months."

Deep negotiations were given yesterday of a new strike which, it is claimed, can almost start in such a manner as the present strike will burn anthracite. It appears to be a success, and the experiments were witnessed by many people.

A Grand Trunk official, discussing the coal situation to-day, remarked that a week or ten days ago he suggested to a gentleman who has great influence with President Roosevelt the desirability of just such action as he has now taken—the calling of the presidents on both sides together—but he is unable to say whether the President's decision is the outcome of that suggestion or not. It is an idea that would no doubt occur to many people. The Grand Trunk are sufficiently interested, with their thousand-odd locomotives, to say nothing of their other things to provide for, to wish that the strike was well over.

A suggestion was thrown out in railway circles to-day that practical steps might be taken, in the event of a probable famine here, to bring down anthracite coal from British Columbia. The British Columbia anthracite is said to be very much like the Welsh coal which is now being brought over from Cardiff, and it is thought to be even a little better. The freight charges would no doubt be heavy from British Columbia, still, if the worst came to the worst, Canada would be able to stand upon her own feet as regards a coal supply. The coal is plentiful, and there is no trouble among the miners, and facilities could no doubt be provided for bringing the coal east.

NEITHER OF GREAT RAILWAYS FEAR A SHORTAGE OF COAL

Those two great coal-consuming corporations—the Grand Trunk and the Canadian Pacific Railway Companies—are looking forward with equanimity to the conflict in the mining regions of Pennsylvania.

Of the two, the Canadian Pacific would seem to be the best provided for the winter. To begin with, their consumption is a good deal less than the Grand Trunk, who are by far the largest consumers in Canada.

The Canadian Pacific has the splendid advantage of being able to provide for its needs from coal fields at both extremeties of its long system—Nova Scotia and British Columbia.

The Grand Trunk consumes about a million and a half tons of coal hard and soft, bituminous and anthracite, and for both it is dependent upon the Pennsylvania mines. Its contracts cover most of its supply, the Herald learned from the management to-day, but there is a fear of the coal companies not being able to fulfil their contracts, so the company are buying where they can, and in the west they have to pay a high price.

Mr. MacTier, the general fuel agent of the Canadian Pacific, stated to-day that the public need have no apprehension as to their being able to travel comfortably on all their trains. The company have coal in their yards sufficient for their requirements in all parts of the system during the coming winter.

For the heating of the general offices soft coal is used, and there is not the least fear of the hot water pipes being allowed to get cold on account of coal shortage.

CHURCH CONGREGATIONS WILL FEEL THE EFFECTS OF SHORTAGE OF COAL

Few Churches Have Winter Supplies Now On Hand.

MANY CONTRACTS WHICH CANNOT BE FILLED

Boards Are Considering What Must Be Done if the Famine Continues.

Although it is not likely that any of the congregations of the city will be frozen out this winter for want of fuel, a continuance of the coal strike is going to mean that it will cost the managements of the various churches considerably more to extend a warm welcome to those who attend divine service than it has done hitherto.

So far as can be learned, not a single one of the larger churches of the city has more than a two months' supply in its cellars, and Christ Church Cathedral is the only one that has that much, many of the others having none at all. In almost every case orders were placed and accepted by the dealers last spring, but when the strike commenced in May, most of the dealers, thinking that it was only a temporary disturbance of the market, kept putting off the delivery, until now they are utterly unable to fill their contracts, and if the strike continues the churches will just have to take what substitutes they can get, at the best price obtainable.

The following is a list of a number of the principal Protestant churches of the city with the position in which they are placed:—

St. Paul's Presbyterian Church—No coal on hand; order placed last spring.

Crescent Street Presbyterian Church—No arrangement made, but enough on hand to go on.

Erskine Presbyterian Church—Supply contracted for, but not delivered.

Christ Church Cathedral — Two months' supply of soft coal in cellar.

St. George's Church—Supply contracted for early in the year; enough now on hand to go on with.

Church of St. James the Apostle—Contract made which cannot be filled, and a little soft coal to keep things going.

St. James Methodist Church—Twenty-five tons of hard coal, soft coal and coke, which will be used mixed until the strike is over.

Dominion Square Methodist Church—Supply ordered early, but not delivered; committee appointed last night to meet the emergency in best way possible.

Emmanuel Congregational Church—Contract made in May at normal price, but not delivered:

First Baptist Church—Order placed early with dealer, but not delivered.

Mr. Henry Miles, one of the wardens of the Church of St. James the Apostle, in discussing the coal situation this morning, stated that what he was most afraid of was that, even when the strike is settled, the United States Government may prohibit the exportation of coal until the wants of its own country are supplied.

WHAT THE STRIKE HAS COST.

(Special to The Montreal Herald).

INDIANAPOLIS, Ind., Oct. 3.—Officials at the headquarters of the United Mine Workers say that the loss to all concerned caused by the anthracite coal strike was rapidly nearing the $200,000,000 mark.

This is an approximate estimate based on figures obtained at the headquarters. The strike had run for almost 21 weeks. The average weekly output of the mines is 1,250,000 tons. Had the strike not occurred there would have been 25,000,000 tons on the market.

Under normal conditions the operators receive $4.50 a ton. The total value of the production would have been $112,500,000.

Officials estimate the cost of producing coal at $1.50, or $37,500,000 for the entire production. This would leave the operators $75,000,000 for the coal ready to market; or, deducting freight, a possible profit of $50,000,000.

At the average wages of $7 a week, the approximate loss to the 147,000 striking miners is $20,58 000.

The business men in the anthracite district have lost about $15,000,000, as it is estimated that the miners spend with them two-thirds of their wages.

The damage to the mines is estimated at $10,000,000, and policing the mines cost nearly $2,000,000. The State of Pennsylvania has also spent much in maintaining troops.

Business men outside the district are also heavy losers. In addition to this, the advance of prices of all kinds of coal to the consumers will reach a sum of almost fabulous proportions.

The miners' organizations have contributed a strike fund of almost $4,000,000, and yet the end of the strike is not in sight.

TOOK CYANIDE OF POTASS. BY PAILS

Central Park's Trick Elephant Becomes Dangerous and is Done to Death.

New York, October 3.—"Tom," the fractious trick elephant at the Central Park Zoo, was killed to-day. Several days ago he became so unruly that it was dangerous for his keepers to go near him. It took 28 minutes to kill the big animal, 600 grains of cyanide of potassium being administered to him in two pails of bran mush. After taking the first pailful "Tom" fell to his knees in spasms, which denoted death. Only Park officials and keepers witnessed the killing.

MR. TARTE'S PLANS.

Is Going to British Columbia, and Will Return to Teach Quebec About Protection.

Quebec, October 3. The Chronicle says that Hon. J. I. Tarte, Minister of Dominion Public Works, is preparing to invade British Columbia and further the propagation of his high protective doctrine, and on his return will visit the city of Quebec to inspect the boot and shoe industries. He has already given the boot and shoe industry a study and wants to point out to the Quebec manufacturing interests the benefits they will derive from a high tariff.

INSURANCE CO. GOES TO RICHMOND

Original Ulverton Headquarters Abandoned—Mr. Mackenzie's Aid in Stanstead.

(Special to The Montreal Herald.)

Richmond, Oct. 3.—The headquarters of the Richmond, Drummond and Yamaska Fire Insurance Company have been removed from Ulverton, where it originated, to Richmond. It was considered by the policy holders in session at their annual meeting yesterday that Richmond would be more central and more convenient for the head office and would bring them more in touch with the insuring public.

D. S. G. Mackenzie, M.L.A., advocate of Richmond, has been in Stanstead county this week promoting the interests of the Liberal candidate, Mr. T. B. Rider.

PRESENTATION TO THE G. T. R. DESPATCHER.

The big pier of the bridge is about completed, with the exception of one day's work. The remainder of the masonry of the bridge is nearly finished, the contractor expects the entire work to be done by the 15th instant.

THE HON. PROF. PERRIN has the cast iron nerve to break in and predict a snowstorm. That settles it. Mr. Perrin can consider himself discharged.

Barometric disturbance
Is what our Perrin sees,
And if he's any guesser,
It's up to us to freeze.

Low pressure, it exists,
With snow, and sleet, and rain, and storms,
And also fog and mists.

A bas Professor Perrin!

MORE PASSENGERS, TRAVELLED FURTHER

Grand Trunk's Annual Returns Show a Satisfactory Increase.

Ottawa, Oct. 3.—(Special.)—The returns of the Grand Trunk Railway for the year ending June 30th, 1902, received at the Railway Department show that during the year 9,303,394 passengers were carried, compared with 9,097,872 in 1901. The receipts from passengers were $8,661,644, compared with $7,692,190 the previous year. The freight returns show 12,985,958 tons carried, compared with 11,746,696 last year. The receipts from freight were $19,039,188, or an average of 81.58 per ton, compared with $18,965,244 last year.

The total number of passengers carried by the Canada Atlantic Railway for the year was 368,571, and the total tons of freight carried 1,545,240. The complete returns of the C.A.R. have not yet been forwarded to the department.

C.A.R. ALSO PROGRESSIVE.

The annual returns of the Canada Atlantic Railway just completed show an increase in the passenger traffic over the previous year. In the past year the road has carried 368,571 passengers, producing a revenue of $316,080.89, compared with 339,640 passengers carried last year with a revenue of $283,658.22.

The number of tons of freight carried during 1902 was 1,545,240, producing a revenue of $1,404,842.68, compared with 1,592,987 tons carried in 1901 and a revenue of $1,390,197.10. That the revenue from freight has increased by $14,645.58, while the tonnage of freight has decreased by 47,747, is due to the increased rates which have prevailed during the past year on certain classes of freight.

LONDON OBSERVES THAT ENGLISH ARE EXCLUDED

From Best Places in Morgan Combine—Enthusiasm Over the Cunard Deal is Swiftly Subsiding and Shares Go Down Again.

(Special to The Montreal Herald.)

London, October 3.—The publication of the details of the Atlantic Shipping Combine has caused no little surprise here. It has been generally expected that Mr. Morgan would have been in the list of directors, and the absence of his name provokes much comment. It is also noticed that America has a majority on the supreme executive and Englishmen are rigidly excluded from the executive and finance committees. Moreover, Sir Clinton Dawkins, chairman of the British Committee, is a partner in the London house of Morgan & Co.

Many people of influence in shipping circles are veering round to the opinion that the Cunard deal will not seriously affect Mr. Morgan's plans. If the two new Cunard Ships cost £1,000,000 each, the Cunard Company will have to pay to the British Government at 2 3-4 per cent., an annual interest charge of £55,000, so that the subsidy will really amount to only £25,000 per annum. This amount is not considered excessive, and yesterday the Cunard Company's shares fell back to the price at which they stood before the announcement of the new agreement with the Government.

MINNEAPOLIS MAN CALLS FOR FREE CANADIAN GRAIN

Important Paper at the National Grain Dealers' Convenation of U.S.

Peoria, Ill., Oct. 3.—The second day of the National Grain Dealers Convention was more liberally attended than the preceding day. But little business was attempted in convention, and the day was devoted principally to speech-making. Among the papers read was one by J. T. McCall, of Minneapolis, on the "Repeal of duty on Canadian grain," which strongly advocated the measure.

Consideration of amendments to the constitution will come up to-morrow, as will the selection of next year's meeting place. Milwaukee and St. Louis are prominent candidates.

HON. JOHN DRYDEN ALSO AT OSHAWA

Where Mr. Tarte Denied That He Wanted to Wreck the Government.

(Special to The Montreal Herald.)

Oshawa, Oct. 3.—Hon. J. I. Tarte at a banquet here last night said he was prepared to advocate the expenditure of many additional millions to equip our waterways. He had not receded one iota on his tariff position, he said, and he would never remain silent when Canadian interests were at stake to please Jim Hill and his friends.

Mr. Tarte said certain men had written to Sir Wilfrid Laurier that he (Tarte) was wrecking the Government. He had no desire to do that, he said.

Hon. John Dryden, though he had always been a free trader, subscribed to all Mr. Tarte had said regarding the policy of Canada for Canadians.

NOT ALWAYS INCREASE SAYS MR. CAMPBELL.

Toronto, Oct. 3.—(Special.)—Mr. Archie Campbell, M.P., addressing the North Toronto Liberals last night, said he believed the time had come to revise the tariff, which might, however, not always mean an increase. He had the utmost confidence in the Premier and his colleagues in such tariff action as they might take.

SIR WILFRID IS AGAIN IN LONDON

Reticent About French Negotiations and the Atlantic Line Prospects.

(Special to The Montreal Herald.)

London, October 3.—Sir Wilfrid Laurier has returned to London, but he is reticent respecting the results of his negotiations with the French Government and the possibilities of joint action of the British and Canadian Governments on the steamship subsidies. He will start to-morrow for Scotland, after a final visit to the Colonial Office, and after spending Sunday with Lord Strathcona, will sail for Canada on Tuesday. Mr. Fielding is again in London for a few days.

NEW GARRISON AT HALIFAX

How the Fifth Royal Garrison Regiment Was Formed—Reviewed Before Sailing.

Previous to embarking for Halifax, the 5th Royal Garrison Regiment was inspected at Talavera Barracks, Aldershot, by Major-General C. W. Douglas, commanding the third infantry brigade. After the inspection the general called to the front the officers and sergeants of the battalion and expressed to them the pleasure it gave him to inspect such a soldierly body of men, and dwelt on the large number of war medals in the possession of the regiment. He complimented the officers on having the command of such a splendid lot of men. He also stated that he had paid particular attention to the organization of the battalion from its commencement to the day of inspection, and expressed himself as thoroughly satisfied with the business-like manner in which all ranks had acted during that time. He concluded with a few words of advice to the sergeants as to the responsibility of their position, and the manner in which they should carry out their duties in maintaining the efficiency of the battalion.

The battalion is different from any other ever stationed in Halifax by reason of the fact that it is composed of non-commissioned officers and men who formerly served in various other corps of the Empire—English, Irish and Scotch being represented. There are five battalions of the Royal Garrison Regiment, one in Gibraltar and three in Malta, with three more to be formed.

The officers of the regiment are: Lieut.-Colonel H. M. Hatchell, D.S.O., O.C., Majors F. M. Aitken, H. Bannerman-Phillips, FitzHenry, Flanagan, Captain and Adjutant H. C. Franks, Captains J. W. Brooke, C. G. Cox, Lieutenants J. C. Mack, R. W. Fullarton, Lieutenant and Quartermaster A. S. Field, Second Lieutenants H. C. Dixon, W. A. C. Duke, R. T. K. Hodge, R. E. H. Knox, Leland, G. G. Stevens, F. O. Bowen, R. H. Evans, C. Grindle, E. Mears, C. W. Woods.

FIRST MEETING OF ST. JAMES SOCIETY

At the first meeting of the season of the St. James Literary Club last night, Mr. W. C. Wonham read the annual address in which he gave a brief resume of the club's aims and objects and its progress so far. Speaking of confidence in public speakings to encourage which is one of the objects of the club, Mr. Wonham said that there was a lack of good speakers in spite of the fact that there was a constant demand for them. Deep thinkers and oftentimes good writers were poor speakers, owing to lack of confidence.

"Business men are generally nervous speakers," said Mr. Wonham. "Declamation does not seem to have been a part of their education; therefore, we, who are business men, are here to try to overcome our failings in this regard. Confidence in one's self means much to a business man a nervous man in business is at times his own enemy, frequently misunderstood and prone to miss golden opportunities for want of nerve and quick and sound judgment."

Reading was touched upon and it was suggested that those who wish to shine as speakers should be good readers. Mr. Wonham concluded his address by outlining the work to be done by the club during the season.

"The Incarnation in Relation to Modern Thought," was the subject of a lecture by the Rev. Prof. Scrimger at the opening of the Presbyterian College last night. Dr. Scrimger said that he considered the present a most opportune time to discuss this subject, inasmuch as of recent years the battle ground between faith and unbelief had greatly changed from the Resurrection to the Incarnation.

In tendering a vote of thanks to the lecturer, Rev. Principal MacVicar said that out of the fifty-three students last session ten graduated in the spring, and that this session twenty new students had been enrolled, also two ministers, who are desirous of pursuing post-graduate studies.

CHAMBLY FAIR A GREAT SUCCESS

Notwithstanding the downpour of rain, which lasted most of the day on Wednesday, the county of Chambly's annual exhibition, held at St. Hubert that day, was a great success, both as regards exhibits and attendance. There were fine displays of vegetables, fruits, grains, fancy work, horse clothing, shawls, honey and butter, sheep, cattle, horses and poultry and agricultural implements, as well as flowers. Towards the close of the day the arrival upon the grounds of the Canadian Hunt Club, with their hounds in "full cry," seemed to revive the flagging spirits of the 2,000 odd people present from all parts of the country. Among the notables present we noticed Hon. Mr. Turgeon, Provincial Minister of Agriculture, who was presented with an address by the Agricultural Society, and a banquet by Miss Amanda Baillargean, to both of which he made happy replies. He was accompanied by Mons. J. R. A. Leo Leymaire, of the University of Paris, France; Messrs. A. Geoffrion, M.P.; Maurice Perrault, M.L.A., Chambly; Beauchame, M.L.A., Vercheres; D. Pariseau, ex-M.L.A., Chambly; Mayors St. Marie, St. Hubert; Trudeau, St. Basile; Delarge, St. Bruno; Brunelle, Chambly; and Councillor Dr. DeSaulniers, representing the Mayor of St. Lambert; also Messrs. the Cures Rev. Payette, Longueuil; Latortune, Boucherville, and Baillarge, St. Hubert. The Chambly, Boucherville, and Longueuil bands discoursed music during the day.

THE BANQUET.

In the evening the annual banquet was held in the large hall of Charon's Hotel, to which upwards of 300 must have sat down. The president of the Agricultural Society of the county of Chambly, Mr. E. Bernard, presided at the table of honor, and had on his right Mayor St. Marie, St Hubert; and Mr. Perrault, M.L.A.; and on his left, Mr. Geoffrion, N.P., and D. Parisean, ex-M.L.A. The others at this table were the officers of the Association, the various Mayors and Dr. DeSaulniers. The other guests were placed at three long tables the length of the immense hall. After the cloth had been removed Mayor St. Marie made a few remarks, welcoming those present, after which the chairman gave the toast, to "His Majesty the King," which was most loyally drank and "God Save the King" was sung, led by Mr. Chas. Avery, of Longueuil. Mayor St. Marie then proposed "Success to the Agricultural Society of the County of Chambly," to which Mr. Fabien Huet, of St. Bruno, vice-president, replied. The next toast was that of "The Federal Parliament," coupled with the name of Mr. Geoffrion, M.P. for the county, who on rising to respond was received with great cheering, which lasted, for several minutes, when little Miss Rogue came forward and made an extemporary address of welcome and admiration, and presented the worthy member with a most magnificent bouquet. Mr. Geoffrion commenced with thanking the young lady who had so graciously addressed him, and for her present of so beautiful a bouquet, and then complimented the Agricultural Society upon the grand exhibition just closed, which was a credit to the county and as fine a one as any to be found in the province. The Governments both Federal and Provincial were doing all they possibly could for the agricultural class, and he considered the agricultural class ahead of all other classes. He would never demand economy in anything relating to agriculture, for when there was prosperity in agriculture, there was prosperity in all other classes and things. He then outlined the situation of the county of Chambly in such close proximity to several rivers and canals, which made it such a fine farming county, and concluded a very interesting address and resumed his seat amidst great applaus.

Mr. Perrault, M.L.A., proposed "The Parish of St. Hubert," to which Mayor St. Marie replied. The next toast was the "Provincial Parliament," to which Mr. Perrault, M.L.A., rose to reply to, when Miss Yvone Charden came forward and made a neat little address and presented the local member with a lovely bouquet. Mr. Perrault then made a most eloquent address, both to the young lady's address, as well as for the Provincial House. The chairman then called upon Mr. D. Parisean, ex-M.L.A., to say a few words. He did so in a lengthy speech, which contained nothing but abuse of the system in vogue at the Provincial Agricultural colleges, at the conclusion of which Mayor St. Marie proposed the "Ladies," to which Dr. DeSaulniers was called upon to reply and made a very good and witty speech, after which the people dispersed for their homes. Mr. Geoffrion and many others taking the 9.30 C.P.R. train into the city, and thus ended as fine a county fair as we ever saw.

MYSTIC NOT DAMAGED.

Diver Examined Hull Yesterday and Reported Everything All Right.

The damage to the Black Diamond steamship Mystic is not very serious. A diver examined her hull yesterday, and reported it to be but nominally injured. The cause of her grounding at Longueuil is said to have been a misunderstanding between the pilot and helmsman. The steamship sails to-day for Sydney to load coal for the Dominion Coal Company.

COLLECTOR GOES WITH TURN KEY

Ald. L. A. Lapointe was at the City Hall yesterday morning to complain about the peremptory manner in which the officials of the Water Department have been in the habit of cutting off the water.

Very frequently, Ald. Lapointe says, this is done without the knowledge of a tenant, who, if approached beforehand, would offer the money rather than go without water.

The alderman felt that the department should warn the public at least a day beforehand.

In order to meet this criticism, City Treasurer Robb, with the consent of Alds. Ekers, has arranged to have a collector accompany each turnkey, so that receipts may be given in proper order for any moneys obtained.

WOULD RAISE PRICE ON ROAD COMMITTEE

It is now unlikely that the permanent pavement in front of the Grand Trunk Railway Company's new offices will be laid this fall.

Arrangements had been made to have the work proceed immediately, but these have fallen through.

The Road Committee originally made a report to the City Council favoring asphalt blocks at $1.85 apiece, delivered in the city.

That report will now be withdrawn, at the instance of Ald. Valliéres.

At the meeting of the Roads Committee yesterday afternoon, the chairman explained the reasons for this line of conduct.

It appears he said a New York firm had offered to supply asphalt blocks at the figure mentioned in the report.

A few days ago, however, a letter was received withdrawing the offer previously submitted, and referring the city to a Montreal firm which acts apparently as agents.

The prices are $2.20 for the same asphalt.

The cost of laying these asphalt blocks with the additional cost of concrete, would be $3.20 a yard, while the ordinary asphalt as supplied by the Sicily Asphalt Company can be supplied for $3.04.

Ald. Gallery favored according the contract to the local firm in order that no further delay might take place in the laying of the pavement.

But the committee thought that the season had already advanced too far to ensure a good job.

MAYOR SAYS THERE WILL BE NO COMBINE

Assures Delegation From Trades and Labor Council of the Good Faith of the Coal Dealers.

A deputation from the Federated Trades and Labor Council waited on Mayor Cochrane at noon to-day to enforce the representations made yesterday by the Chamber of Commerce in regard to the problem presented by the continuance of the coal strike.

The delegation felt that the citizens—and especialry the poorer element—would, during the approaching winter, be face to face either with a shortage of fuel, or, provided the strike were settled immediately, would be made the victims of a combine among the local dealers until the supply was sufficient to meet all demands.

Those who presented these views were Messrs. A. Verville, president of the Plumbers' and Steamfitters Union; L. A. Dupont, Montreal Garment Workers' Union; J. A. Rodier, president of the Jacques Cartier Typographical Union; E. Berthiaume, business agent of the Association of Carpenters and Joiners, and J. B. Mack, vice-president of the Trades and Labor Congress of Canada.

Mayor Cochrane replied that he had taken steps to see that a sufficient supply of fuel was made accessible to the poor at a reasonable price. It had been reported that a settlement of the strike might be expected to-day, but, even were this not so, he had every reason to believe, after conferences with many of the leading coal dealers, that nothing would be done to take advantage of the public in this emergency. One thing was certain, that there would be no combine among local dealers to stiffen up the prices. What the labor leaders wanted to do was to see that public excitement was allayed. There was no reason for any class to get excited; no one would go cold during the winter because of any lack in the available quantity of fuel.

APPLIED SCIENCE AS HEARD ON THE CARS

"Another beastly day; most extraordinary weather this," has been the burden of the average business man's matutinal greeting to his fellow-passenger on the street car for so long now that it has almost become a habit.

Not in the memory of anyone apparently has there been such a succession of sunless mornings in Montreal at this season of the year.

The weather was as usual the coal famine's closest rival in the conversation this morning on an open car that still lingers on the Windsor and St. Lawrence route.

"It's all very well to talk of troubles never coming singly," remarked a man who had crowded himself into the farthest corner to escape the uphill breezes. "But I tell you this weather is a good deal more than a coincidence."

"How do you make that out?" queried his neighbor from behind the upturned collar of a new fall overcoat.

"Well," explained the man in the corner, "its like this, though I'm not sure whether I can make it plain, since my scientific education was neglected in my youths. But I've a boy going to McGill." He's taking the science course and I think he'll make some of those scientists up there look pretty cheap one of these days. Well, as I said, he's studying sciences, and chemistry is one of the things he's learning all——"

"Yes, I know but the weather," interrupted the man in the new coat.

"I was coming to that. You see, that boy is studying chemistry, and he talks chemical formulae—I think that's the word—in his sleep. Last night he explained the course of this bad weather to me.

"As he explained it to me, people are burning more of this soft coal now than has been burned for a long time. Consequently there's been a great deal of smoke. Now smoke, he tells me, is simply the visible exhalation vapor or substance that escapes or is expelled from a burning body. Of course, you know that. But when soft coal is burned he tells me hydro carbon gases are given off, and when these are raised to a red heat, without enough air to produce complete combustion, the natural carbon is disengaged in fine particles. This is called smoke.

"Now, these particles are diffused into the air—he called it the aeriform fluid surrounding the earth. They float about there and form a resting place for whatever moisture may be in this aeriform fluid, and this, you see, causes the fog or mist and rain that has been so disagreeable these past few mornings.

"Very simple explanation, isn't it? He's a bright lad, that boy of mine."

"Very," remarked the man in the new coat, as he got off the car. "But you forgot to tell us—was he talking in his sleep?"

MONTREAL LADY GOLFERS DEFEAT QUEBEC VISITORS

To-day in golfing circles interest is centred on the match between Quebec and Montreal, which was carried on this morning with much spirit.

Besides the players a number of interested members of the club went out to Dixie to admire the play of the visitors and the home team. The Quebec ladies, who are staying with various friends in town and will go to Toronto with the Montrealers for the championship matches are Mrs. Meredith, Miss Meredith, Mrs. Foy, Mrs. Dobell, Miss Turner, Miss Sewell, Miss Casault, Miss Bowen, and Miss Scott.

The Montreal players to-day are Mrs. D. B. Macpherson, Mrs. Fayette Brown, Miss Young, Miss Linton, Miss Greene, Miss Marler, Miss Bond, Miss M. Bond, and Miss Nora Dawes.

The players went out to Dixie on the 9.30 train and after the match were entertained at a charming luncheon in the quaint club house.

The Montreal ladies won, 20 up.

SOME MORE UNFOUNDED RUMORS ABOUT THE G.T.R.

Notwithstanding the circumstantial and emphatic repudiations by the Grand Trunk management, certain Cleveland financiers continue to give currency to the rumor that the Grand Trunk have acquired the Detroit & Toledo Shore Line, the latest addendum to the story being that $200,000 had been deposited by the Grand Trunk to bind the bargain.

Even the western newspapers appear to think that some confirmation is lacking and that an unusual official silence prevails over the bargain. They appear to be unwilling to abandon a story which has been so often asseverated, and they now hint that the Cincinnati, Hamilton & Dayton is about to pass under the dominion of the Grand Trunk. This is something like the story about the Grand Trunk controlling the Clover Leaf, and the Grand Trunk and Wabash uniting to restrain Vanderbilt and Pennsylvania aggression.

The Grand Trunk policy is to cooperate with all systems that can exchange traffic, and not to form aggressive and exclusive alliances or to invade states which are not embraced within the territory of their present system. Development, not extension, is the keynote of their policy.

TRY TO FLOAT WORTHLESS SCHEMES IN GREAT BRITAIN

"Canadian investments are greatly harmed in England by the fact that so many attempts are made to float utterly worthless schemes that would never get a cent of backing on this continent, but which the promoters hope to thrust upon confiding English investors, who know nothing of the country," said a leather manufacturer of London, England, at the Queen's last night.

He was referring more particularly to an effort made to get English financial backing for a proposed Canadian railway that upon investigation he had found to be more or less of a "wild-cat" project.

"There are millions of pounds waiting in England for good investment, and people are learning more every day of the possibilities of the Dominion. But so long as a certain class of promoters throw impossible schemes before them so glaringly, investors will be cautious about letting their money go."

Continuing, he referred to the English leather market, and said that out of about £80,000,000 of leather importations a year, the United States supplied about half. English leather manufacturers were now looking to Canada to step into the field, and if a preferential tariff of 10 per cent. were put on by the English Government, it would enable the Dominion to oust the American leather from the market.

"I think, myself that this preferential tariff is coming, and coming soon, though there are serious difficulties that will first have to be overcome," he concluded.

DOMINION GOVERNMENT WILL NOT LACK FOR COAL

Ottawa, October 3.—(Special.) — The Government and departmental buildings will not likely suffer from shortage of coal. During the season they burn about 6,000 tons of hard coal. At present they have about 1,400 tons in stock, which will see them well into the winter. The officials in charge of this matter state that they do not anticipate any hardships whatever. They can in a pinch use soft coal for the furnaces, and of this they have a considerable stock.

BELANGER CASE IS QUITE EXCITING

The Charge of Tampering With Witnesses Fails—Sherbrooke Wants Its Courthouse.

Sherbrooke, Oct. 3.—(Special.)—The Court of King's Bench resumed yesterday afternoon at two o'clock, His Lordship Mr. Justice Lemieux presiding, and the prisoner, Arthur Lambert, was placed on trial. The prisoner is charged with stealing the sum of $40 from the bedroom of Nap. Charest, of Capelton, on the 10th of August last, while the complainant was out of the house. The prisoner pleaded not guilty. He was defended by Mr. C. C. Cabana, while the Crown was represented by Mr. J. S. Broderick and Mr. E. Rioux.

The following jury was sworn: C. E. Kezar, L. Durocher, J. O. Huldoon, Chas. Gendron, M. Proulx, J. J. McKay, Henry Merrill, I. Bourque, C. Bourget, L. Bachelor, C. C. Hovey and O. Dion.

Nap. Charest, the complainant, and his father Francois Charest, gave evidence in support of the charge. It was borne out in evidence that the accused who was a boarder, was left alone in the house for some time on the 10th day of August, but was seen in the bedroom of the complainant where the sum of $80 was hidden between the mattress and spring of the bed. Later on in the day the accused left the house and left some of his wearing apparel behind. After hearing the two witnesses the case was adjourned until to-morrow morning, the grand jury having reported that they were finished with the cases before them.

The grand jury, through their foreman, Mr. L. A. Bayley, handed in their presentment, as follows:

J. Vallier, attempting to obstruct justice, no true bill.

J. D. Kennedy, fraudulent taking, no true bill.

Eugene Larcix, (two cases) theft, true bill.

Arthur Martel, theft, true bill.

L. C. Belanger, conspiracy to defraud, true bill.

L. C. Belanger, perjury, no true bill.

Donatien Roy, rape, no true bill.

Mr. L. A. Bayley for self and fellow jurors, then presented the following report, in which it was stated:

"We have visited the jail of the district and have found it kept scrupulously clean, and everything in first class shape and order.

"As residents of this district we do not quite understand the cause of delay brought to the erection of the so long promised new court house. Our district is one of the most important in this Province, by its large area and by the large amount of legal business therein transacted. We are aware that time and again representations have been made to our Provincial Government to the effect that the present court house is totally unfit for the proper administration of justice; we are also aware that our representations and requests have been completely ignored up to this day. We, therefore, think it our duty on this occasion to again call the attention of the executive of the Province to the representations already made on that subject, and we hope that at the next sitting of the Court of King's bench the grand jurors will have the opportunity of witnessing the work, or the erection in progress of a court house, which will meet the requirements and needs of the district."

Before discharging the grand jury His Lordship, Mr. Justice Lemieux, said that the court wished to tender its most sincere thanks for the good and valuable services rendered by the grand jury. They had given a great deal of consideration to the cases that had been laid before them and had gone about their work with despatch. He would see that their recommendation in regard to the court house would be placed before the proper authorities.

A. Martel and E. Lacroix were then arraigned and both pleaded not guilty. Their cases will be proceeded with to-day.

The court then adjourned until Friday morning.

The most important case before the court now is that of the charge of conspiracy to defraud, against Mr. L. C. Belanger, K.C. Mr. Lane, K.C., of Quebec, will represent the defence, with Mr. L. E. Panneton in this case.

It was reported around town last evening that an attempt had been made to tamper with one of the witnesses for the prosecution in the above case, and one J. Vallier was arrested on a charge of attempting to obstruct the ends of justice but the grand jury did not return a true bill and the charge was consequently dropped. There is a considerable amount of interest centred in the Belanger case, and a big fight will be put up by the defence.

SUES ST. HENRI FOR $8,191 DAMAGES

Messrs. Stephens, Hutchins and Margolese, acting for the Hon. G. W. Stephens, have issued a writ against the city of St. Henri for $8,191 damages for breach of contract in failing to open up St. Ambroise Street. Mr. Stephens claims that some time ago the corporation entered into an agreement with him that in return for certain considerations received from him, they would extend St. Ambroise Street. This they have failed to do, and Mr. Stephens claims that as a result he has sustained injury to the extent of $8,191, in connection with property which he owns in the neighborhood, and he brings the present action to recover this amount.

MACEDONIANS DIVIDED.

Sarafoff, Former President of Revolutionary Committee, is Trying to Foil Plans of Successor.

Constantinople, October 3.—The insurrectionary movement in Macedonia does not appear to have spread to any serious extent, although it is feared in some quarters that the Turkish measures for its suppression may exasperate the villagers and cause neutrals to join the revolutionists.

The Macedonian committee's efforts to support the plans of its president, General Tzontcheff, for a general revolt, are handicapped by the hostility of the adherents of Sarafoff, the former president, who refuse all assistance to the new leader.

According to news from Bulgarian sources upwards of 500 Bulgarians were recently imprisoned in the Monastir district.

Numerous arrests of Albanians were made at Constantinople, as a precaution, during the visit of Grand Duke Nicholas of Russia.

MR. FIFE APPOINTED.

Montreal Man Gets the Important Post of Special Inspector of Weights and Measures.

Ottawa, Oct. 3.—At the Cabinet council held yesterday the Treasury Board report was adopted. It includes the appointment of Mr. James Fife, of Montreal, to a position in the weights and measures branch of the Inland Revenue Department. After council Sir Richard Cartwright left for Kingston.

TO INSPECT MARITIME CUSTOM OFFICES.

Ottawa, Oct. 3.—(Special.)—The Minister of Customs, accompanied by his private secretary, left this morning for the Maritime Provinces, his intention being to visit the principal customs offices for inspection purposes, and to afford an opportunity to merchants and others who may wish to discuss business matters with him.

LARGER GAS MAINS ARE BEING LAID

Since first complaint was heard regarding the pressure of gas supplied consumers, conditions have not improved materially in many parts of the city. The gas service is still weak and inadequate for proper lighting or store use. The Gas Company says the cause of the insufficient service is not a reduction in the pressure from the works, as nearly three times the pressure usually required is being put on. The cause would be that everybody, owing to the absence of other fuel, is now using gas in cooking meals. The Gas Company says it is doing this year three times the business it did last year. To meet this extraordinary demand the company is reinforcing several of the mains by laying pipes of larger size. This was done some days ago at the corner of Sherbrooke and Aylmer Streets.

The report of the company's superintendent to the president says that in the north end of the city the service has been improved along the north of Prince Arthur Street and along Roy and Duluth Streets. On Mitcheson Avenue and other small residential streets this improvement is not noticeable. On the contrary, the service is said to be exceedingly poor. Both sides of St. Denis Street, north of Roy, have a poor service. Recently a four-inch pipe was laid on City Hall Avenue from Sherbrooke Street to Duluth Street. A twelve-inch main is now being laid on St. Denis Street north of Pine Avenue.

With these and other reinforcements it is expected the consumers will shortly enjoy the strong pressure of former days, even despite the company's increasing operations.

ICE-COLD FISH.

Dr. Gilbert, of the United States Fish Commission steamer Albatross, has been doing some fishing that beats anything on record in Hawaiian waters.

Recently off the coast of Kauai he was angling for fish that live at a depth of 6000 feet. One specimen brought up was a species of the chimaera four feet in length. It was the first ever caught in Hawaiian waters. When taken from the water the fish was ice cold.

Fifteen species of fish that have never been caught before in any part of the world were secured during this trip.

The dredge brought up three new varieties of snipe eels—very small eels which are unable to close their jaws and secure their food by cruising around and allowing the smaller specimens of sea life to float into them.

The big chimaera that Dr. Gilbert secured is a peculiar fish. It is neer found at any point except at a depth of about a thousand fathoms. Its body has a hook-like tail, and its fins are large and shaped like fans. Its teeth are welded into a sort of large plate on each jaw and are exceedingly sharp. Like most other deep water fish, it is lighter on the upper portion of its body than on the lower.

At a depth of 1,350 fathoms two large fish were taken. Another sea monster caught was a fish which had two feelers on each side of its body, which were as long as the body and projected in front of it as a sort of a guard when the fish was travelling about.

GOOD MATERIAL.

A large number of applicants for positions on the police force were examined by the sub-committee of the Police Committee this morning. They were a fine looking set of men.

CIGAR FACTORY INTERESTING PLACE

How the Leaves Are Cured in an Up-to-Date Manufactory.

Probably no establishment whose products are intended for man's comfort and pleasure furnishes the visitor, unused to the trade, with a more interesting hour than does a visit to a large, up-to-date cigar factory. How many persons to whom a good cigar is a balm for weary hours have any adequate idea of the various processes the tobacco leaf passes through before it is ready for the market? If the aroma of a favorite brand be pleasing to the smoker, and the draught be free and easy, that is all that is required; the making of the article probably never gives him a thought. But it is a long way from the tobacco field to the cigar box!

A representative of The Herald had occasion yesterday to call upon Mr. Joseph Tasse, president of the Joseph Tasse Cigar Company, Limited, whose large factory is located at 29 St. Peter Street. The reporter intimated a desire to go through the establishment, and Mr. Tasse courteously assented to the request.

The building occupied by the company is four storeys and basement, and every available foot of space is required in the manufacture and shipping of several popular and well-known brands for which there is a very large and rapidly-growing demand. Mr. Tasse showed the reporter large orders from many cities between Halifax and Vancouver, as well as an unusually large order from Dawson City.

The first thing probably that impresses the visitor is the cleanliness of the whole place. Down in the basement, where the raw material is stored, there was not a taint in the atmosphere. The hundreds of large shipment boxes, recently from the plantations of Cuba and other famous tobacco producing districts, are piled one upon the other, and the utmost care is taken to provide proper ventilation for the curing of the leaf.

On the first floor is the president's office, splendidly furnished, and across the hall in another apartment Treasurer Lefebvre has his desk. The counting and shipping rooms, commodious quarters, are just beyond. Thousands of sealed boxes of cigars daily pass through this department to customers. The services of three men are required to attend to the forwarding of the goods.

On the second floor a large staff was busy sorting and marking the cigars. They must match in color, in size and in every other particular. These differences denote strength principally.

But the third and fourth floors were probably the most interesting to the visitor. Engaged in these two storeys are about eighty cigarmakers, every one of them a skilled workman of long experience. The tables upon which the tobacco was being prepared to roll and mould were in keeping with the whole building, perfectly free from refuse of any kind.

Mr. Tasse was asked if he employed any girls or apprentices; none were in sight, and it is generally the rule for large factories to have a number of both on their pay-roll.

"No," replied the president of the company; "I have been manufacturing cigars for more than twenty years, and never yet employed an apprentice. My men are all artists. And I have never made use of a machine, such as is now being employed in many factories. No machine can do the work so well as the trained hand—the hand that is sensitive to every fault in the moulding of a cigar.

It is worthy of note, too, that the Tasse Cigar Manufacturing Co. employs only union men, and during the twenty years of the firm's existence there has never been the slightest difference between employer and employe. When battles were being waged elsewhere peace and harmony existed at the Tasse factory.

The directors of the company are: Joseph Tasse, president; Hon. G. A. Nantel, vice-president; Walter Lefebvre, treasurer; J. A. Michaud, secretary, and Alfred Leblanc, superintendent. The firm is capitalized at $50,000. The greater portion of the tobacco used is imported direct from Havana, and some of the well-known brands that are smoked throughout Canada and far into the frozen north are the Flor de Montero, Florida, Bahama, Frisco, Roosevelt and the Earl of Minto. All the best hotels, restaurants and cigar stores sell them.

DEFENDANT PAYS COSTS.

In the Superior Court yesterday Mr. Justice Doherty rendered judgment in the case of R. C. Wilkins vs. R. N. Scott, condemning the defendant to pay the costs of the action.

The plaintiff, who was the tenant of premises belonging to the defendant, on McGill street, claimed that according to the lease, the defendant, Scott, was obliged to heat the premises, and brought action for damages against him for failure to do so.

The court found that no such obligation existed, and dismissed the plaintiff's action for damages, but awarded him the costs of the action against the defendant.

A meeting of the Royal St. Lawrence Yacht Club committee will be held tonight to select the challenger for the Seawanhaka Cup.

BLAMES ALDERMEN FOR THE BAD ROADS

Mr. Barlow Says Macadam is Only a Temporary Expedient Where the Traffic is Heavy.

Not a few of the big manufacturing concerns, notably those in St. Ann's Ward, have complained to Mayor Cochrane that the streets in the vicinity of their factories are in poor shape.

His Worship was this morning in receipt of a letter from a firm in King Street, who say that note alone is the thoroughfare almost impassable for heavy vehicles, but is also in an unsanitary condition.

Small streets—lanes is what the letter terms them—in the east end, it is further represented, are paved with asphalt, while the wealthiest ward in the city has to go reeking in mud.

"That such a condition of affairs exists," said City Surveyor Barlow, who had also received a similar epistle, "is due entirely to the aldermen.

"The manager of this firm need not think he is supplying me with information. I know just what streets are in need of repair.

"But the difficulty is not one of a few months' standig. King Street—and many other thoroughfares like it—should have been permanently paved with granite blocks many years ago.

"Ald. Gallery has frequently attempted to get enough money to put all the streets in good condition. Sometimes he has beeen successful; sometime not.

"Any improvement, however, so long as macadam is the material utilized will only be temporary. Macadam will not, and can not, bear the heavy traffic to which a majority of the streets in St. Ann's Ward are subjected."

IMMIGRATION TO CANADA GROWS BY LEAPS AND BOUNDS

(Special to The Montreal Herald.)

Ottawa, Oct. 3.—The immigration returns of the Dominion for the year ending June 30 last have just been completed. They show that the arrivals were 67,235, an increase of 18,081 over last year. COMPANY GRANTS SITE FOR CHURCH

(Special to The Montreal Herald.)

Toronto, October 3.—Arrangements are being made by the Crow's Nest Coal Company to provide sites for all the principal churches in the towns on their lands as they are opened up. In Fernie at present the Methodist, Presbyterian and English churches have churches, the sites of which have been given by the company. At Michel, Morrissey and Coal Creek the company have not yet laid out the town site or sold any lots, for the reason, as stated by Mr. Elias Rogers to-day, that the company wish to keep control as far as possible of demoralizing influences among the miners.

"As soon as any lots are sold," said Mr. Rogers, "there are immediately a large number of saloons opened, with the result that after pay day a number of days are lost time with a considerable portion of the company's men."

DID NOT HEED WHISTLE.

Robert Stewart, Pork Buyer, of Brockville, Run Over by a Train Near That Place.

(Special to The Montreal Herald.)

Brockville, Oct. 3.—Robert Stewart, buyer for the Matthems Company, pork packers, Hull, was killed on the Brockville & Ottawa C.P.R. track near Jasper, last night. Stewart left Brockville on the mixed train yesterday evening and got off at Jasper. Nothing is known of his movements during the evening.

When the express train due here at 10 p.m. was about two miles north of Jasper the engineer noticed a man walking on the side of the track. He whistled, but no attention was paid to it. He then applied the air brakes, but as the train was going at thirty miles an hour it could not be stopped before it struck the man. When picked up it was found that both legs were broken and the back of the head was crushed in. Death had been instantaneous.

He was recognized by the train hands as Stewart. The body was left in charge of a brakeman. Coroner Jackson was notified on reaching Brockville, and he went out this morning. Deceased, who was about fifty years of age, came here from Peterboro about two years ago, and leaves a widow and three children.

THE HOUSE TAX TRIBUNAL.

London, Oct. 3.—A despatch from Tokio to the Times says the house tax arbitration protocol states that the tribunal is to consist of two members of The Hague permanent court, one nominated by Japan and the other by Germany, France and Great Britain. These two arbitrators will choose an umpire. If they fail to agree on a choice the King of Sweden and Norway is to be asked to appoint the umpire.

The parties are to be allowed eight months in which to prepare their cases, and thereafter six months in which to prepare counter-cases.

Meanwhile the Japanese Government voluntarily announces its intention to defer further levies of the tax (and engages that all sums hitherto paid without distraint be in no wise prejudiced.

BEFORE THE RECORDER.

Before Recorder Weir to-day Joseph Laverdue was fined $9 and [illegible] 45 days in jail on charges of being drunk, interfering with the police, wearing a false badge and committing an aggravated assault on a Syrian named Evariste Baushy.

Arthur Boyer was drunk and assaulted the police, he was remanded until Tuesday. Philas Leduc was drunk and drove too fast. He was fined $2. Amable Brunet was drunk and disorderly. Fine $2 on each charge. Eliza Miller, a plain drunk, was fined $3 or 15 days in jail, and John Giblin went up for two weeks on a like charge. Joseph Racicot absented himself from his cab and was fined $3. For assaulting Mrs. Brisson Cloyis Fortier was fined $6.

EIGHT MEN FELL.

London, October 3.—The breaking of a rope attached to a car which was ascending the shaft of a coal mine at Pontypool, Wales, precipitated the car, which contained eight men, three hundred yards to the bottom. They were all instantly killed, their bodies being terribly mangled.

SCOTCH ELECTRIC CONTRACTS GO TO U.S.

London, Oct. 3.—A contract to the value of £2,500,000 has been awarded to an American company for the equipment of two generating stations in the Clyde Valley, intended to supply electrical power for industrial purposes over an area of 755 square miles.

PLUG TOBACCO ALSO GOES UP

As if the coal prices were not high enough to break people, the price of plug tobacco has taken a flight upward.

It appears that there was a shortage in the tobacco crop of the Virginias and Carolinas this year, and the companies using this leaf have had to make it up out of their customers.

Locally, only one company is affected. The Macdonald plug tobacco is now three cents dearer, for they use the Virginia leaf exclusively. The other tobacco companies use what is known as the combination leaf, a large percentage of Canadian tobacco from Kent and Essex, and a small quantity of the southern leaf. They are consequently scarcely affected, and have not put up their price.

It is said that before the gathering of another crop the price may go still higher.

TO-DAY'S ACCIDENTS.

Mrs. Barrette, an aged woman living at 197 Ropery Street, fell from a car at the corner of McCord and Notre Dame streets. Her head was cut slightly. The wound was dressed at Notre Dame Hospital.

Charles Rogerson, of 66 Papineau Avenue, got into a fight at Craig and Bleury streets, and received a blow which temporarily demented him. He was taken to the General Hospital, but not without a struggle.

An unknown man was seized with a fit at the Dominion Coal Company's wharf at Hochelaga at noon. He fell into the river and was rescued in a half drowned condition. He was taken to the General Hospital for treatment.

ELECTION VERY QUIET.

Mistake of Returning Officers May Lead to Throwing Out of Two Poles in Stanstead.

(Special to The Montreal Herald.)

Magog, Oct. 3.—The Stanstead election for the Quebec Legislature is proceeding very smoothly. Up to noon the vote was the lightest and the election the quietest ever known here.

Two polls are likely to be thrown out, the returning officer for Kateville having opened his poll in another locality and vice versa. Prospects for Mr. T. B. Rider's election are considered excellent.

ARCHBISHOP KAINE.

St. Louis, October 3.—Archbishop John J. Kaine, who has been in poor health for the past six months, has experienced a marked change for the worse in the last two days. The Archbishop's ailment is closely akin to paralysis, and while his physicians do not think there is immediate danger, it is known from the nature of his disease that the end is likely to come at any time.

BINDER TWINE.

Ottawa, Oct. 3.—(Special.)—The report that the Government binder twine at Kingston has been closed down for good is not correct. It is merely temporarily closed after having filled all the orders on hand. It will again start up when the prices of the raw material drop.

TWO MEN DISCHARGED.

AN INDEPENDENT PRESS.

Because the Ottawa Free Press supports Mr. Tarte in his protectionist campaign, the Hamilton Herald is led to remark: "It is natural to suppose that the Liberal organ at the Capital would not be likely to take a stand hostile to that taken by a majority of the Cabinet ministers."

This remark is on a par with others made by some Conservative journals during the past month regarding the utterances of Liberal papers on the attitude of Mr. Tarte. These journals have calmly assumed that every remark in opposition to the course of the minister was not the honest opinion of the paper, but had been inspired by some outsider. For instance, the opinions of the Halifax Chronicle have been persistently credited to Mr. Fielding; The Herald has been honored by being told that it was the mouthpiece of Mr. Fisher; the Toronto Star cannot speak on the subject without being accused of being merely the echo of Sir William Mulock's opinions; the Winnipeg Free Press has no views of its own—it is simply Mr. Sifton thinking out loud.

From what we know of the editor of the Hamilton Herald, and of the editors of the Conservative papers who have followed a similar course in pretending that the Liberal journals of the country have in a twinkling lost that individuality, that independence, which is to every honest newspaper man as the very apple of his eye—from what we know of these gentlemen we have no hesitation in saying that they do not mean their words to be taken at their face value. They have written hastily, and in the heat of argument the temptation to hit a political opponent has been irresistible. Canadian newspapers, almost without exception, are free from control other than that of the responsible owners or editors, and to insinuate otherwise as regards a large number of Liberal journals is to asperse the character of all. We are prepared to vouch for the essential independence of the Conservative, as well as of the Liberal, press of Canada. A somewhat wide knowledge of the personnel of the staffs of the leading papers of the Dominion warrants the assertion that the measure of the freedom from outside control and the actual independence of each paper is much greater and more complete than is commonly supposed. Where there is apparent servility to party, it is not wise to assume that politicians are bending the paper to their own ends. More likely is it that editors or managers are simply refraining from adverse criticism through anxiety not to add to the perplexities of the party with which they are connected. Mistaken their course may be, but it is not the mistake of writing, or of refraining from writing, at some outsider's dictation.

The editors of the majority of Canadian papers are public-spirited, independent-minded men, quite capable of guiding their journals along the thorny path, and quick to resent interference. They appreciate the fact that success and influence come to them and to their enterprises largely in proportion as their readers have confidence in the independence of their utterances. This knowledge has a bearing on the relation of journalists to their political friends as well as to their readers. Canadian journalists, as a rule, say what they think to-day, and are very glad if they find to-morrow that the politicians agree with them. If the politicians don't—well, the journalists are sorry, but they must do their duty as they see it, and perhaps the politicians will change their views later on.

THE PRESIDENT'S TASK.

There are two good reasons for expecting coal to be mined before many days. First, President Roosevelt has kept out of the controversy long enough to give the opposing parties every opportunity to reach a settlement if they wished to do so, and until the failure of the parties to end the matter has brought about conditions which the people have the right to demand shall be remedied. The President, moreover, is doubly strong for having waited till public anxiety reached an acute stage, and until the failure of the operators to fulfil their moral obligation to the people by supplying them with coal had become so complete as not to admit of question. Secondly, the state elections are at hand, and the Republican party has much to lose in Pennsylvania and New York if the coal supply stops, and much to gain if a Republican President can both start the works and secure some advantages for the men. Mr. Roosevelt himself has the strongest of motives to impel him to the course he has seen fit to take. If by any accident the state election in New York were to go against his party and against his friend, Governor Odell, it would be a heavy blow at his own prestige, and would injure his prospect of obtaining the Republican nomination for President two years hence. Mr. Coler, the Democratic candidate for Governor of New York, does not now look like a winner, but he is the kind of man very likely to lead a successful campaign if he had a chance, and very likely to profit by the discontent of coal users if that discontent continues. Mr. Roosevelt faces a very serious problem, nevertheless, for it may turn out that he will have to fill Pennsylvania with militia to get coal mined in case the miners prove refractory. And then the railway organizations would have to be dealt with, for they might, and probably would, refuse to move the coal. Altogether the situation is full of difficulties, and it can only be hoped that before calling in the disputants the President had assured himself of a probably favorable outcome.

MR. BALFOUR'S TROUBLES.

The Balfour ministry seems to be in trouble everywhere. The current has been against him ever since Mr. Balfour became Prime Minister. The Education Bill has made such a hubbub that one day there is talk of its being withdrawn and the next day a somewhat too emphatic declaration that it will not be withdrawn. The Nonconformists are organizing thoroughly, and their propaganda goes on even in the tents of Mr. Chamberlain's legions. Liberal-Unionists have held a meeting of protest, and while Mr. Chamberlain affirms that only a couple of hundred attended, there is every probability that other hundreds who stayed away are of the same mind, on the merits of the case, as those who went. Nonconformist leaders whose reputation extends even beyond Great Britain have served notice that they will refuse, like Hampden, to pay their taxes, in the expectation of being sent to jail for their political obstinacy, and Sir Michael Hicks-Beach has bluntly assured them that if they refuse to conform to the law they will go to jail. This time next year, therefore, the situation in England may resemble the situation in Ireland, where the leaders of a political organization are already being sent to jail because of the too strenuous methods of the tenants' league. A humorous feature of the situation is that the Education Bill, which is to land Englishmen in jail, has so far been, and is likely still to be, dependent upon Irish votes for safe majorities. Neither, it seems, has Mr. Balfour been more happy with his subsidy policy. Sir Michael Hicks-Beach's first public utterance since he left the Cabinet was in denunciation of subsidies to that British industry which has prospered and increased more than any other. Sir Michael may be supposed to be very indignant over the new arrangement by which the Cunard line secures the British Government for a silent paying partner. The ex-Chancellor's criticism of the War Office is not more encouraging to his former colleagues. The everlasting Irish question becomes more insistent daily, for the Irish Secretary, Mr. Wyndham, who has conceded that the land question ought to be settled, gets no peace from the Irish tenants, who claim that he should provide the settlement, and is hammered from the other side by the Times and the Dublin Castle officials who blame him for yielding too much and demand that he make way for a stronger man with an aggressive policy of repression. South Africa, as yet at all events, gives little or no trouble. But there is unquestionably the making of trouble in the new taxes on the mines and the proposal to make the Transvaal assume a debt of a hundred million pounds as part payment of the war, a sum considerably in excess of the public debt of peaceful and prosperous Canada. The wind blows from a bad quarter for Mr. Balfour. It is well for him his temperament is such that he can go outdoors and play golf instead of staying indoors watching the barometer.

NOTE AND COMMENT.

"Looking to Washington" is not considered so objectionable in Canada to-day as it was some years ago.

The Balfour Government, having gone into a silent partnership with the Cunard line, is likely to be offered quite a number of tempting propositions along the same line by people who have no prejudice against combining patriotism with business when there is a subsidy in it.

The immigration returns show that 67,235 people came to the country from abroad last year, of whom 26,312 were from the States, 17,257 from the British Isles, and 23,659 from Europe. Since June 15,365 more have come in, of whom 6,726 were from the States and 3,329 from Great Britain. Things are on the move. The Canadian market is growing. Queer time to talk of going back to the old stagnation days in which the old high tariff that went by favor landed the country.

The Huntingdon Gleaner says the recent statement of losses emanating from the Dominion and Merchants' Cotton Companies, and attributed to the tariff rather than to bad management, amount to a demand for leave to tax the people an additional $400,000 a year. That is a very unimaginative way of translating the motto, "Canada for the Canadians." N.B.—The Gleaner will not be so popular with our Tory friends if it goes on this way as it was before the last election.

Roosevelt and the Motorman.
(Boston Herald.)

Perhaps it is just as well that President Roosevelt's wish to have another conversation with that Pittsfield motorman is not likely to be gratified. The language which the President used at the time of the collision to express his opinion of that functionary was said by those who were in the immediate vicinity at the time to have been something seething, not to say unpresidential, and it is not likely that the twinges of pain which the President has since endured have had an effect to soothe his temper to any great extent. It is obviously better that the President and the motorman should never meet again.

Reciprocity With Canada.
(St. Paul, Minn., Globe.)

The Globe has taken occasion freely and frequently to urge the need of reciprocity in trade with Canada. The progress of western Canada within the past year has given decisive point to our urgency in this regard. The cities of St. Paul, Minneapolis and Duluth are the three largest centres of population on this side of the border whose people have an active, living, substantial interest in the early adoption of freer trade relations with the Canadian Northwest. Until the people of those cities shall speak as with a single tongue in demanding the destruction of the barriers which exist against the commerce of the two peoples, there is little reason for the belief that the issue will ever find a distinct and permanent place in the political controversies of to-day.

Rivers of Ink; Mines of Graphite

The office material used in the executive departments of the United States at Washington is sufficient to keep thousands of operatives busy the year round and foots up surprising aggregates. Rivers of ink, forests of cedar and mines of graphite are reasonably mild exaggerations when applied to the total of clerical supplies for the Governmental service.

The War Department annually uses 861,408 pens, 32,500 pencils, 1,927 quarts of mucilage, 4,634 quarts of black ink, 3,167 bottles of red ink and 7,000 gross of rubber bands of different sizes.

There are used annually by the Post-Office Department 8,250 pounds of rubber bands, 300,000,000 facing slips, 3,500 dozen indelible pencils, 240,000 black and colored pencils and 13,225 gross of pens. There are 300,000 penholders used annually. Each of these is inscribed "property of the United States Post-Office Department." The headquarters of the postal service uses each year 12,000 quarts of black ink, 1,300,000 pounds of small jute twine, put up in half-pound balls, 9,500 steel erasers and more than 2,228,000 black carbon sheets.

The Interior Department uses annually 146,000 lead pencils, 6,925 gross of steel pens, 5,000 quarts of black ink and 2,500 quarts of mucilage.

Unestimated millions of pins and uncomputed reams of paper, with millions of envelopes, are used each year in the Governmental service. The Treasury Department and other branches of the public service use supplies in proportion to the figures given for the War, Post-Office and Interior Departments.

"ON THE OLD TRAIL."

(London Spectator.)

Long and long we rode behind you,
Comrade, on the open trail;
By the canyon, by the mesa,
Hearts of our caught up your hail.

Where the golden poppies flicker
On the foothills' slope to-day,
Where the burnt breath of the sage brush
Lingers faintly by the way.

How the hurrying hoofbeats clattered
In those keener hours of old;
Frolic death and grimmest living
Playing out their game for gold.

Card and pistol lie together,
Lightly dropped as life to dust;
Lonely by the ravished river
Sinks the pick to idle rust.

Quenched the lights of camp and village
And the hearts that quickened there,
When men laughed and starved together
With a gambler's jest for prayer.

All has passed and you must follow
From the far Sierran line,
From the redwoods' builded shadow,
Wanderer of the "Forty-nine."

Since none turns or slackens bridle
On that trail where you are bound;
Rest be yours and comrades' welcome
At the last, long camping ground.

ROOSEVELT MAKES A PRECEDENT.

(London Advertiser.)

For the first time in history, a President of the United States, at Detroit, reviewed a body of British soldiers—the Essex Fusiliers. The redcoats were singled out for special attention by the President, and were given an ovation by the populace, with not a thought of the little incident of 1812. The Detroit Free Press says:

"Perhaps the day will come when the boys on the upper and the boys on the nether side of the line will march together, all clad in blue, and all keeping step under the glorious old Stars and Stripes; but whether that time ever comes or not, the next best thing is a relationship of which the presence of the Fusiliers was an excellent exemplification. It was good to see them, and it is good to believe that Canada and the United States are being drawn closer and closer together in sympathy and in spirit. That is where they belong. No fictitious line can keep apart two peoples whose common language, common customs, and common laws make it impossible that they should ever be foreigners, the one to the other."

Our cousins will have to be content with "the next best thing," but otherwise our contemporary's sentiments are admirable.

Peculiar Epitaphs in England

Although collections of epitaphs—quaint, curious, and otherwise—have been published from time to time, still we venture to think that those included in the following lines, taken from the churchyards of England, are not generally known outside their immediate local neighborhoods, yet which deserve, on account of their peculiarity, a greater publicity. There is an undercurrent of cynicism and joy in the following, which is taken from the little churchyard of Hadleigh, in Essex:

To free me from domestic strife
Death called at my house, but he spake with my wife.

The poorer half of this good lady had a certain amount of grim maliciousness in his composition, while, to judge from the tombstone inscription, he had evidently, probably through long and bitter matrimonial practice, learned the art of saying much in little. The following somewhat lengthy inscription, giving an account of the life and untimely death of one Bridget Applewhaite, is to be seen in Brainfield Church:

Here lies the body of Bridgett Applewhaite, once Bridgett Nelson.
After the Fatigues of a Married Life,
Born by her with incredible Patience
For four years and three-quarters, bating three weeks,
And after the enjoyment of the Glorious
Freedom of an easy and unblemist
Widowhood for four years and upwards,
She resolved to run the risk of a second Marriage,
But Death forbade the Banns,
Having with an apoplectick Dart,
The same instrument with which he had Formerly dispatch her mother,
Touched the most vital part of her Brain.

After a struggle for above sixty hours
With that Grand enemy to Life,
But the certain and merciful Friend to Old Age,
In Terrible Convulsions, Plaintive Groans,
Or Stupefying Sleep,
She Dyed on the 12 day of Sept.,
In ye year of our Lord 1757, and her own age 41.

In the old parish church of Eastbourne are the appended curious and pathetic lines:

Underneath lieth ye body
Of Mary Lushington,
Daughter of ye late Roger Altham, D.D.,
Archdeacon of Middlesex, &c., &c.,
And
Wife of Henry Lushington, D.D.,
Vicar of this Parish, &c., &c.,
If ye esteem, ye love, ye tears, ye supplications of all we knew her,
Of Husband, Children, Friends, and Neighbours, of Rich and Poor,
Could have disarmed Death of ye Power to Kill, She had not Died.
But alas! in vain was their united Force,
It being appointed unto man once to die,
The fatal stroke was given
On ye 21 day of July,
In ye year of our Lord 1775
And
Of her age ye Sixty Sixth.

In the churchyard of Bangor the following can be seen:

Poor Martha Snell, her's gone away.
Her would if her could, but her couldn't stay;
Her had two bad legs and a hadish cough,
But her legs it was that carried her off.

In a graveyard in Cornwall can be read this:

In this here grave you see before'ee
Lies herried up in dismal story,
A young maid-sar were crossed in love,
And took on to the realms above;
But he that crossed her, I should say,
Deserves to go the t'other way.

This latter was probably written by the young lady's mother, while the country colloquialisms in both will be noticed. In Hackney churchyard can be found the following combined pun and epitaph:

As Still Death poor Peter lies,
And Stiller when alive was he;
Still not without a hope to rise,
Though stiller than he still will be.

It is very probable that Peter Stiller composed his own epitaph. Narrow headstones and lengthy lines of inscription have ever been a source of trouble to the monumental mason, but the following, from Folkestone churchyard, will be difficult to equal or beat. It runs:

A virtuous woman is 5s. to her husband.

It should have been, "A virtuous woman is a crown to her husband," but the stonecutter, not having room, substituted "5s." for "a crown" to get the words into one line. In Mathern churchyard, Monmouthshire, is to be seen this curious epitaph:

John Lee is dead, that good old man,
We ne'er shall see him more;
He used to wear an old drab coat,
All buttoned down before.
Age 101.

In the churchyard of Bury, Suffolk, can be read these lines on a punster:

Beneath the gravel and these stones
Lies poor Jack Tiffey's skin and bones.
His flesh, I oft have heard him say,
He hoped in time would make good hay.
Quoth I, "How can that come to pass?"
And he replied, "All flesh is grass!"

In the same God's acre we are informed that:

Here lies Jane Kitchen, who, when her glass was spent,
Kick'd up her heels and away she went.

In Wrexham Church, North Wales, is to be read this epitaph:

Here lie interred beneath these stones
The hair, the beard, and eke the bones
Of Wrexham clerk, old Daniel Jones.

In Malham, Parish Church is to be found an epitaph on a tailor, which refers to the difficulty tailors have in getting their bills paid. It runs thus:

All ye who pay not what ye owe
To her, his wife, who lies below,
How can ye ask for sins forgiven
And when ye die and wish for Heaven?

In a graveyard near Nottingham three tailors are buried, and their epitaphs run as follows:

These bones are a tailor's, who never did fail
In making good garments or in drinking good ale;
So well did he both that till now none hath guessed
In which of two callings he shone at his best.

The second inscription runs thus:

A man of stitches was Ross Hyde,
In his work lay all his pride;
And even when this tailor died

The third is as follows:

'Twas with a stitch in his right side,
Here lies a tailor so careful and proud,
That in his last illness he sewed his own shroud;
"I shall soon lie in it," were the last words he said,
Death came as he finished, and cut off his thread.

It is reputed locally that these epitaphs were written by a well-known wit, who owed each of the tailors a considerable amount at their death, to get quit of his debt. With these our selection must close.—Pall Mall Gazette.

Music and the Drama

The point of a magnificent production, the intensity of a great play, and the brilliancy of a famous actor—really there is little wonder that "The Cardinal" surpasses in popularity any of the other plays Willard is producing this year. It appeals to every class of theatre-goers and to almost every emotion of each class. Montrealers should take a particular interest in it because its first production on any stage was made here last year, when Mr. Willard carried it to success in spite of difficulties which would have daunted any other actor and ruined any other production. Since that time Mr. Willard's Cardinal has been developed in those minor points which make a perfect, consistent performance until it is fit to rank with his Cyrus Blenkarn as a dramatic creation.

Aside from Mr. Willard, the chief interest of the audience centred in the work of Miss Maud Fealy, youngest and most beautiful of leading women seen here for many a year. Unfortunately it has been impossible to separate immaturity from youth, and in the great scene in the third act Miss Fealy was lamentably below the dramatic pitch set by Willard. The Beppo of Mr. J. G. Taylor was worthy of special notice, but aside from him none of the company seemed particularly strong.

One incident occurred during the performance which was probably without precedent either at the Academy or at any other theatre during the performance of such as play as "The Cardinal" by such a company as Mr. Willard's. It resulted in a turmoil, a bedlam of noise, cat-calls and whistles for which the gallery was primarily responsible, but which was taken up by many people sitting in other parts of the house. The leader of the orchestra and the Academy audiences have long, it has been noticed, held different views as to what was the proper kind of music for entr'actes. Last night this difference of opinion culminated in what sounded like a riot, but which resulted in nothing more serious than the throwing of a few darts and paper balls at the orchestra. The restlessness and uneasiness was manifested first while the orchestra was laboring with some involved composition after the second act. The musicians did not seem enthusiastic over it, and the audience began to grow restive. Fortunately the curtain fell before anything else happened.

After the third act, however, the orchestra again started to elevate Montreal's musical understanding by playing something even more depressing, more intricate and less to the liking of the audience than before. This precipitated the trouble. Within two minutes the gallery was jeering the leader, flouting the ability of the musicians, trying to drown the sound of the instruments by clapping, whistling and cheering, and generally conducting itself as no self-respecting gallery should at a Willard production. The leader, however, was not to be deterred. He grimly played ahead, while his men, lacking either his courage or his enthusiasm, gradually relaxed their efforts to make themselves heard above the din until the composition came to a subdued end. Then the curtain rose, but it was some minutes before the audience could get back again to the Willard atmosphere.

A recital of sacred music will be given by the choir of St. James Methodist Church to-morrow afternoon. Solo numbers will be sung by Miss Baker and Miss Galbraith, Mrs. Landry and Messrs. Landry and Ouellete.

Mr. Henry I. MacMahon, for years connected with the theatrical departments of New York papers, is in the city in the interests of Mrs. LeMoyne. Mr. MacMahon is at present on the editorial staff of the Morning Telegraph.

Allen Lowe, who is the author of "The Defender," the musical extravaganza at the Academy of Music next week, is particularly well known in Montreal, having for some years been identified with the local newspaper fraternity. Mr. Lowe was born in Ireland and is a graduate of the Dublin University. He came to Canada about seventeen years ago and for two years made his home in Toronto, being employed in the sporting department of one of the newspapers in that city. Mr. Lowe came to Montreal from Toronto and spent about three years here, taking keen interest in all sporting events, his writings being quoted as an unquestionable authority by all sporting men. At one time he held the amateur fencing championship of Canada.

After leaving Montreal, Mr. Lowe settled in Boston, and for many years was the sporting editor of the Boston Globe. In that capacity he gave particular attention to horse racing events, and his articles pertaining to matters of the turf were always cleverly and forcibly written, and were widely copied throughout the States. A few years ago Mr. Lowe resigned his position on the Globe to accept the management of the Park Theatre in Boston, and he acted in that capacity until the production of "The Defender."

Mr. Lowe's book treats in a satirical manner of the last international yachting event. The story is said to have been written in a happy vein and in it are found some very humorous situations and dialogue, accounted for undoubtedly by Mr. Lowe's nativity. At the present time he is engaged upon the completion of the libretto of two musical comedies which are to have early New York productions.

NO DEMANDS.

(Halifax Chronicle.)

Mr. Tarte is hasty when he says that the papers which he names are "demanding a reduction of the tariff." The Chronicle has made no such demand, and we have not heard any such demand from the Globe, The Herald or the Free Press. We have all said that if there is to be any material change in the tariff it must be in the direction of reduction rather than of increase. But we have made no demands in the matter. It was Mr. J. I. Tarte and "the manufacturers" who made the demands. We have merely resisted their demands and intimated to them what they might anticipate if those demands were persisted in.

This country will stand no general increase in the tariff. The opinion of the people, regardless of party, is that the manufacturers have had and still have quite enough. Nothing could have been made clearer than this by the way in which the resolutions of the manufacturers, Mr. Tarte's speeches and Mr. Borden's pitiful "protection" platitudes have been received. The "movement" has fallen absolutely flat on the country. A man could not be elected pound-keeper in the strongest Tory "hive" in the country on a "high protection" or "broad Canadian tariff" platform.

If, as we have repeatedly said, there are individual industries which can demonstrate clearly that the country at large would be benefited by according them increased protection, they will, as a matter of course, receive such protection from the present Government, under whose administration our industries have prospered as never before in their history. But there will be no general increase in the tariff. On the contrary, the continued tendency will be towards reduction, in accordance with Liberal pledges, Liberal wishes and the requirements of the country.

London Hotel Excludes Gates

John W. Gates, the American millionaire, is angry. The affront caused him by the management of Claridge's Hotel, London, the most exclusive caravansary in the world, has aroused his wrath and completely destroyed his ordinarily jocund nature.

Gates was denied the high privilege of becoming a guest of Claridge's because, it is said, he uses profanity, and is not careful where he expectorates.

Outraged and shamed by the treatment accorded him by the management of this home of noblemen and millionaires, Gates has found abode at the Carlton. When seen shortly after the incident at Claridge's, he looked peevish and nervous, and was gruff in manner.

The rejection of Gates at Claridge's has proved engrossing news for London. The register at Claridge's never lacks the names of princes, dukes, rajahs and representatives of prominent American families. Gates, while in London last, occupied an extensive suite at Claridge's, and was astonished when informed that he could not re-engage it.

"Sorry, Mr. Gates," he was told, "but we cannot let you have your former suite. In fact we cannot furnish you with accommodations."

"Why?" asked Gates, half puzzled and half angry.

"I refer you to the management," was the only satisfaction the American millionaire got, and he left in a rage, going to the Carlton, where he obtained rooms.

The manager of Claridge's had nothing to conceal regarding Gates' rejection. He said:

"Yes, we declined to entertain Mr. Gates for reasons which we deemed good and sufficient. A few weeks ago we were shown an editorial article printed in a Chicago newspaper describing Mr. Gates as the most vulgar of American millionaires. The writer must have overheard the remark in our hotel, for that was the name Mr. Gates earned for himself here.

"After a few months' experience of his style of living we were compelled to intimate to him that profane language and reckless expectoration in an English hotel frequented by well-bred persons were intolerable even in a man able to write checks for eight figures and lose a fortune daily in stocks, horses and cards.

"Gates' presence was really more objectionable to his fellow-countrymen than to anyone else. Several Americans declared their unwillingness to stay under the same roof with him."

WHY WOMEN STUDY LAW.

(Mrs. Theodore Sutro in Success.)

The study of law is to a woman a means of culture, linking all the special training of her education and experience, and teaching her to see unsuspected and beautiful relation and harmony in the most alien phases of mental, spiritual and material life.

This understanding only comes after her course in law is completed, and is seldom a conscious reason for undertaking her work. However, I believe that a blind intuition of all this is at the back of the impulse to know jurisprudence. It is difficult, therefore, to make this great value comprehensible to a layman, and to inspire him, a priori, with an understanding which, by its very nature, comes only from experience in the actual field.

Still, a woman who has, as a personal possession, skill in any art or science, will see what this value is of which I write. For the woman who plays a musical instrument, or paints, or writes, knows that the end and aim of her work and its truest value to her are not playing or painting or writing; she knows that the meaning of her art to her is that it opens the door to great truth and beauty, and enables her better to understand how to live.

This is quite the same in law, excepting that it is broader and deeper in its significance than in any of the three examples I have chosen, for law, in its broadest sense, is the basis of all three, and indeed of every art and science and of life itself.

MONUMENT KILLS BIRDS.

(Washington Times.)

The Washington monument, in addition to its fame as the tallest one-story building in the National Capital, is daily gaining a reputation as a bird killer. "For several mornings past from 25 to 50 dead birds have been found lying at the foot of the tall shaft. Then the number was increased to 75. The birds are yellow and black throated warblers and small thrushes. While migrating during the night they strike against the monument, killing themselves or becoming so disabled as to fall to the ground."

Dr. Temple a Great Primate

Although the venerable Dr. Temple, now Archbishop of Canterbury, was 76 years old when he succeeded to the highest dignity in the Church of England, he speedily proved himself one of the ablest administrators ever raised to such a position of trust. By one element in the Episcopal communion, that element which characterized his promotion from the headmastership of Rugby to the bishopric of Exeter as "the darkest crime which had ever been perpetrated in the English Church," he has been hated with the same amount of reservation that led a Rugby schoolboy to write of him as "a beast, but a just beast." On the other hand he has earned the unqualified admiration of leaders of church thought like Archbishop Benson and Dean Stanley and of that enormous middle class in English society represented on a notable occasion by those 1,200 old Rugbeians who solemnly declared their loyalty to him "as long as he lived."

"The secret of his hold upon churchmen, Nonconformists and workingmen," says an English writer, "is due to a general recognition of the position he has consistently and persistently taken up on behalf of all that dignifies life, strengthens character, and must count for the best in the pages of history. He is on the side of all who hold that life is greater than literature, common Christianity more important than dividing creeds, men more needful than measures in the building up of a great nation, self-mastery the prelude to success in every effort, and education but a means to an end. No man of eminence in our midst has withstood more opposition than he, 'done without' more, or led a simpler life."

Dr. Temple has always been a careful liver and a hard worker. A total abstainer from wine or spirits, he has always denied himself indulgence in the luxuries of cooking, frequently explaining that he was not desirous of "digging his grave with his teeth." As to his fondness for hard work, it is related that he was once approached by a friend who had been warned by his physician that if he did so he would not live more than two years.

"Well," said Dr. Temple, "what does it matter what happens in two years, provided you do your duty now?"

And above all his other admirable characteristics, Dr. Temple cultivates a charming optimism which enables him to see the possibilities of good in even the most unpromising conditions. He is not one of those who believe that the evil of the times overbalances the scales. "Will you kindly inform me what you consider the greatest danger of the age?" wrote a newspaper man who wanted to make "copy" out of Dr. Temple. "I haven't the least idea," replied the Archbishop in a pleasant autograph note.

AN EMBARRASSING ISSUE.

(Toronto Telegram.)

Britain will have herself to blame for any attachment, commercial or political, which Newfoundland may form for the United States.

There is no annexation excitement on the island, according to the most responsible authorities. Fear of the awakening of an annexation sentiment is based wholly on the supposition that a commercial treaty will show Newfoundland the advantage of closer union with the republic.

Slight as may be the chances of the fulfilment of these pessimistic prophecies, Britain should remove as expeditiously as possible every obstacle that stands in the way of union between Canada and the Island of Newfoundland. But for the French shore difficulty, it is all but certain that Newfoundland would already be a province of the Dominion. The French shore question is an issue which neither party in Canada can afford to deal with. The British policy of temporizing not only antagonizes loyal island sentiment. It defers the day of union with Canada and Newfoundland negotiates with the United States for a commercial treaty. This should impress Britain with the necessity of effecting a definite arrangement concerning French rights on Newfoundland shores.

BOER FARMERS WILL LOOK FOR CHANCE TO EMIGRATE

Desire to Pick Up Information for South Africa Not Their Sole Reason for Visiting Canada.

(Special to The Montreal Herald.)

Quebec, October 2.—The SS. Lake Champlain, which arrived last evening, had amongst its saloon passengers three Boer delegates, named Messrs. W. L. Jooster, F. Lane and Mr. Rood. The two former are accompanied by their wives, while the latter, Mr. Rood, the youngest of the party, is unmarried. The delegates, through the recommendation of the High Commissioner in South Africa, Lord Milner, have been sent to Canada at the expense of the Imperial Government, and are accompanied by Captain Kirkpatrick, of the South African Constabulary, who is acting as the Government representative in charge of the delegates. During their stay in Canada, Messrs. Jooster, Lane and Rood will be the guests of the Dominion Government, and on the arrival of the Lake Champlain, Mr George F. O'Halloran, deputy minister of the Dominion Department of Agriculture, was on the Louise Embankment to receive them and extend to them a hearty welcome.

Messrs. Jooster and Lane were officers in the Cronje commando, were taken prisoners at Paardeberg, and sent to St. Helena, where they remained until peace was proclaimed. Mr. Rood fought all through the war to its close. He and Mr. Jooster are typical Dutch Boers, while Mr. Lane is an Irishman by birth who settled in South Africa when quite a young man thirty years ago, and in a short time won the confidence of the residents of the Transvaal, when he became intimately identified with them. Consequently at the outbreak of the hostilities he was one of the first to take the field, and soon rose to a position of trust in the army councils of the Boers. He is a tall, well-built man, and though approaching his sixtieth year, looks considerably younger.

TO CONSIDER EMIGRATION.

Speaking of their mission in Canada, the delegates state that there is an intense desire at present on the part of the Boer residents of the Transvaal to emigrate from South Africa, and by the courtesy of the British Government the delegates have come to Canada to study the country with the view of informing their countrymen at home as to the general conditions in Canada and the advisability of emigrating to this country as a desirable future home.

Referring to the present condition of South Africa, and the temper of the people, the delegates were very reticent, though they said that the country was desolate and the Boers very much cast down at the turn of affairs. They, however, asserted that they are ready to assist the British in rebuilding up the country, which will take many years, especially as thousands of the Boer farmers and their families were determined on emigrating. No unchristian bitterness exists amongst the Boers against the English. The horrors of the war were terrible, and the suffering indescribable, but the kindness and sympathy of the British to the Boers in their distress has greatly assisted to heal the elements of strife.

Referring to the prisoners of war on the Island of St. Helena, the delegates remarked that they were humanely and kindly treated. The greatest agony and hardship that they suffered was their imprisonment and their powerlessness to assist their countrymen in the struggle. However, the end had come, and they were striving now to forget the past and brighten the future.

The delegates, Captain Kirkpatrick, and the ladies of the party were taken in charge by Mr. O'Halloran, deputy-minister of agriculture, as the representative of the Dominion Government. He left with them for Montreal last night, and on their arrival in that city will entrust them to the care of Mr. Moore, also of the Agricultural Department, who will escort them through Western Canada and across the continent.

Before leaving Quebec last night they took carriages and drove all around the city.

It was very difficult to get much information from the delegates, as they were diplomatic enough to do very little talking.

LAND OF GOLDEN GRAIN THROUGH BRITISH EYES

The Impressions of Mr. Le Sage, of the London Daily Telegraph—Flogging the Dead Horse.

The letters of the British journalists, who recently visited the Dominion, continue to appear in the principal English newspapers. There are the impressions of Mr. Le Sage, the special correspondent of the London Daily Telegraph. It will be seen that he devotes a considerable amount of space to flogging that dead horse, the Canadian winter.

Canadians, individually and collectively, have a certain grievance against their brethren of the British Isles, which is not altogether without justification. The Canadian maintains that the Englishman regards his country as a land of snow and ice, and, taking his own experience as a parallel one, consequently of more or less continuous gloom. This is neither right nor true. The winter certainly is cold—very cold, according to our insular notions. Once the snow has fallen towards the close of the year it remains for months, frozen hard. Then the never-ending stretch of country nestles under its whitened covering, but life is not stilled, work never ceases. Away over the prairies, out in the back settlements, even within short distance of the cities, the smooth, firm surface of the snow-clad roads is a blessing. Young Canada is in such a hurry that in the haste to settle and start a career much, hastily begun, must be leisurely completed. When once the more sedate civilization of the Eastern provinces is exchanged for rougher, but possibly more up-to-date, methods of the West, ways and modes of life become ruder, or, let us say less polished. Even in the great cities—and therefore how much more so in the country—the roads are woefully indifferent, and to English eyes terribly bad. Out West they are often mere tracks, full of unsuspected curves that toss and bump the traveller and cause the springs to groan with anguish. When glorious summer, and more beautiful weather than I am at present experiencing could not be desired, when for long round months the sun shines out supreme from an unflecked sky, when the rainstorms come sharp and sudden, but have done their duty disperse once more, then these paths, dry and dusty, can fulfil their mission. But imagine their condition if subjected to the inclement vagaries of a British climate—trade and business, communication between township and township and farm and farm would be paralyzed and bring partial ruin to the country people. But the cold winter is their salvation in this respect. Over the hard glistening surface of snow the farmer and his men can easily drive their sleighs loaded with timber, grain, and whatever produce they may wish to transport. And it is this cold side of nature which lingers more readily in the mind of the Englishman.

AMAZING IGNORANCE.

It is indeed strange what a profound, amazing ignorance exists at home about the other segments of the Great Empire. People know little of Australia, of Canada, and even of South Africa, although that land has, unfortunately, been so much in mind the last three years. Even among the more intellectual and thoughtful classes Canada is a book of which only a few have turned over more than a page or two and yet Canada is crying to be known, to be better appreciated and understood. Indeed, the stage has at length been reached when the Dominion Government is taking steps to bring the country more prominently and intelligently to the notice of the British people. In carrying out these measures the Government is acting on the belief that the interest of both countries is being served. In the first instance, their action is, and very rightly so, selfish. There at their back is an immense land of vast wealth and productive power, which many consider the fairest territory of the whole earth; here is an almost limitless region of forest, water and plain, practically unpopulated a good deal of it, but little known, that wants capital and population to open it up. The present people of Canada bluntly say, through their administrative offices, We want money and settlers, but above all we want settlers. If the new-comer has a little money, a few hundred pounds, even a few hundred dollars, so much the better. But even if he has no money, it will not matter if the man is willing to work. You can come to us, says the Immigration Bureau attached to the Department of the Interior, and even if you have no money, we can give you a chance to become a prosperous man in a few years' time. Only you must work. Indeed, the loafer or the shirker is a social nuisance in any country, and in a young one, which is just wakening, which is anxious to take a place in the world's affairs, and which believes most profoundly in its great future, he is wanted least of all. But if a young and vigorous—and he need not necessarily be very young—man is willing, he will be helped. This paternal Government offers him 160 acres of good virgin land free. It will transport him to the district, and give every advice and assistance, and at the end of three years the property becomes his own if he has fulfilled certain obligations. He must, for instance, in the first year, build himself a habitable house not less than sixteen by twenty feet to live in; so many acres of land must be cleared and put under cultivation, and in each succeeding year so many additional acres of ground must be opened up, while he is required to reside on his land for—at least six months in each year. But these are small obligations to carry out in return for the chance of becoming an owner of property, of living under free and healthy conditions, with every prospect for the industrious man to become a person of substance, and, if he seizes his opportunity, of wealth.

CITIES AND HOMES.

It seems like renewing old acquaintances to visit Canada if one knows the United States. Living, as the two peoples do, intermingling in trade and socially, they must necessarily have much in common and be influenced by similar motives. I must confess that I did not expect to meet with such common ideas nor—apart from the extreme Eastern provinces, where the language and customs of old France are still in the ascendant—to find the external mode of life based on lines which are to us so especially American. Quebec is unique in its way, from its superb position on the bluff overlooking the St. Lawrence, from its great historical associations, the Old World courtesy of its inhabitants, and its exceptional standpoint as a commercial centre. But Quebec is not Canadian life as it will be found further West. Toronto and, in a slightly less degree, Montreal are essentially American cities in outward appearance—that is to say, they are quite up to date as ideas are regarded over here. Hotels and street cars are run on the same lines, shops and stores decorated and arranged as they might be in New York or Chicago, the same system of broad, rectangular streets, laced overhead from side to side with electric telegraph and telephone wires, the same peculiarities of expression in language, everything, indeed, to remind you that you are no longer in the Old Country, but in the New World. The residents of Toronto enjoy the privilege of living amidst the most agreeable conditions of city life that the heart can desire. They reside in broad, noble avenues lined with the shade of many beautiful trees, well paved, and with fresh, green grass to give access to neat, stylish homes, all spick and span, standing open to the world, in plots of this same fresh green turf. The Canadian, like the American, does not inclose himself in hedges, brick walls, or iron palings. His welcome and hospitality, if they do not exceed the Englishman's in cordiality, at least seem franker. There is nothing to indicate a cold reserve. These open grass plots round the house, fringed perhaps by a low edging of ornamental rails, these fine houses, with their open verandahs, where the members of the family may sit or swing gently in a hammock, suggest a freer, a less conventional life, and, indeed, even the lower and poorer districts of these cities enjoy a healthier life than is found at home. The children that run about the streets are sturdy, bright-eyed, full-cheeked; they wear no pinched expression, they carry no shrivelled forms. They, too, should grow into a fine manhood. They have not the rosy cheeks of our English boys and girls, nor their boisterous, childish energy; they quit their childhood sooner, and accept matters more seriously, as well they should. They, too, have a vast inheritance.

A question of much importance affecting Canadian interests, and as yet unsolved, is that of the fast steamship service between this country and Liverpool. It has been before the British public for some months now, but, so far as this country is concerned, it is one which cannot be quickly or easily settled. At first sight it seems natural that the St. Lawrence River should be solely utilized. Quebec claims to have the finer harbor, and for another twenty miles up stream there is a sufficient depth of water to float the biggest ship in the British navy, and there is a fine graving dock. But Montreal says: "We are spending millions of dollars on our harbor works, the largest steamer which has yet touched at Quebec can come to us, we are dredging the channel to a uniform depth of thirty feet, and we are so situated that we can tap every railway centre to the West and to the States in all directions." Quebec acknowledges that with regard to the latter point she is outdone, but at a point some six miles above the city an immense bridge is being constructed over the St. Lawrence. It will have the longest single span of any bridge in the world, and will when completed give direct access to Nova Scotia, Halifax, Portland, Boston and the Atlantic seaboard generally. But it will take two years yet to complete, and in the meanwhile the question of a fast service will be settled.

METROPOLITAN LIFE DINNER

Annual Convention of Montreal Division Held Here Yesterday.

The seventh annual convention of the Montreal division of the Metropolitan Life Insurance Company of New York, was held yesterday at St. Lawrence Hall. In the afternoon the superintendent and agents in charge of the districts in and about Montreal, to the number of about 170, sat down to a banquet in which they were joined by the following gentlemen from the home office:—

Messrs. Haley Fiske, vice-president; George B. Woodward, third vice-president; A. S. Knight, M.D., medical director; Frank O. Ayres, assistant manager, ordinary department, and manager intermediate branch; Major B. R. Corwin, manager of agencies, ordinary department; H. A. Young, superintendent of agencies.

There were also present, Mayor Cochrane, Senator Dandurand, Mr. R. Wilson-Smith, Mr. Richard White, Mr. Claxton, Colonel Tilton, and Col. Bittinger, United States consul-general.

The chair was occupied by Mr. Haley Fiske, who in presenting the toast list, addressed the gathering in regard to the company and its prospects. He claimed that the business now done by the Metropolitan in Canada is larger than that of any other company, English, American or Canadian. He gave figures, showing the strength of the company, and urged in eloquent terms upon its agents to keep up the record in Canada they had won in the last few years. He pointed out the advantages by the great strength of the company, with over $80,000,000 of assets, more than $1,000,000 being deposited in Canada for the benefit of its Canadian policyholders.

Brief speeches were made by a number of the other gentlemen present, and Mr. Richard White referred in feeling terms to the sad illness of Mr. Henry Hogan, who is confined to his bed and seriously ill.

THE KILLING OF FINLAND.

New Ordinances Promulgated at Helsingfors and an Independent Nation Ceases to Exist.

St. Petersburg, Oct. 3.—The new Finnish ordinances have been promulgated at Helsingfors, Finland.

The ordinances referred to set forth that officials are placed beyond judicial prosecution without the consent of their superiors, and that officials and judges are removable by the Senate of the Government of Finland nominated by the Crown. The Governor-General or his assistant is to appoint a court of chancery. Senate officials are to preside at the open sessions of the economical department, which will henceforth appoint the judges, and the censorship is widened.

The London Times of September 23, commenting on the new ordinances, said they would "completely destroy all the Finnish liberties and will strike Finland off the roll of the European nations."

TWELVE MEN DEAD IN A WASHINGTON MINE

Black Diamond, Wash., Oct. 3.—An explosion of fire damp occurred last night in the south end of the fourth level in the Lawson mine, badly wrecking the mine and killing twelve miners. Fortunately no fire was started. Three bodies have been taken out; nine other bodies are in the mine. Three men were injured, one severely.

The Pacific Coast Company is the owner of the mine. Everything possible is being done to recover the bodies.

The fourth level is 1,600 feet below the surface. The fans are now working in the mine and the deadly air is being cleared out.

ABOUT FALL FASHIONS.

A PEASANT'S MIGRATION.

Over Two Million Russians Go South Every Year and Often Strike Famine Districts.

St. Petersburg, Oct. 3.—The annual migration of Russian-Polish laborers to Prussia is well known. Attention is directed by the St. Petersburg Vedomosti to a similar movement on a grander scale within the borders of European Russia. It is calculated that 2,137,000 peasants, insufficiently provided with arable land, leave their homes in the central and northern provinces every year to seek work in the south. Most of them start with only about a dollar in their pockets, borrowed from a usurer generally, and it is the exception when they know where work is to be found. Owing to the great variation in the yield, many arrive in famine-stricken districts. The writer proposes the organization of an information bureau to communicate to the migrators the Government crop reports. The peasants still largely form a separate world, and few know that such things as crop reports exist.

DIOCESAN THEOLOGIANS FAVOR PRODUCTION OF PURE PLAYS

Question Discussed at Length at the Meeting of the Association Last Night—Those Who Took Part.

Pure plays as educators of the people were generally favored by the Montreal Diocesan Theological College Association at a meeting yesterday afternoon, when the "Attitude of the Church to the Theatre" was the subject of discussion. Though all the speakers condemned the unclean stage productions, it was almost unanimously agreed that by assuming a different attitude toward the theatre to what it had in the past, the Church could do a great deal towards purifying and uplifting the dramatic world.

There were some speakers, however, who, while agreeing that pure plays might be educators, thought that clergymen should abstain from attending the theatre at all because of the fact that people might excuse themselves from attending plays of an objectionable sort by the fact that they had seen clergymen at the theatre.

REV. MR. BELL OPENS SUBJECT.

Rev. J. H. Bell introduced the subject in a paper in which he referred to the early drama and the religious plays of the Middle Ages, and said that there was no condemnation of the drama by the Church until the Reformation, adding that it was doubtful if the Reformers objected to the drama itself; but they did object to the character of the plays. It would have been a great blessing for the world if the Church had retained her control of the drama, purifying it of that which was objectionable. What the Church needed was to come out honestly and recognize the legitimacy of the drama.

Having touched on the benefit of pure amusement, Rev. Mr. Bell went on to point out that the stage had a distinct educational function, and to speak of the mighty stimulus which Shakespeare had been to the minds of men. The stage was a moral educator; not by direct moral exhortation. The stage taught by the indirect method. Instead of exhorting, it suggested. Just because the stage did not teach morality, it might be all the more powerful as a teacher of morality, as a man, seeing what he was, might endeavor to become what he ought to be.

Rev. Mr. Bell strongly condemned the low theatre, but he held that it would be unjust to condemn all because of the delinquencies of some. The members of the dramatic profession would be found up to the average men and women whom we met every day.

TIME TO DROP PREJUDICE.

It was time that the old prejudices against them were gone, he added, and that the Church recognized the most important functions of the theatre, and by so doing encourage the men and women who appeared upon the stage to recognize the high ideals of their vocation, and so help to bring about the purification and uplifting of the dramatic world.

"The Sign of the Cross" and "Ben Hur" were cited by Rev. Frank Charters as having been educators, and he thoroughly agreed with Mr. Bell's views. Of course, there were theatres and plays which could not be approved of, but the action of the Church was that it absolutely condemned the stage if it absolutely condemned the stage, it was an impertinence on the part of the Church to say what ought or ought not to be represented.

Unquestionably the theatre was here to stay, and it was having an ever-increasing influence all the time. The Church might direct that influence to a certain extent. She might place herself in a position where she could say certain kinds of plays had no right to be represented; but so long as the Church gathered her cloak about her and would have nothing to do with it she prevented her own influence with the stage, and so prevented an influence which might be for good.

The establishment of a theatre in connection with the church had been advocated by some clergymen of the Church of England in England, said Rev. F. A. Pratt, and expressed the belief that the attitude of the church toward the theatre was not the wisest one. She stood on one side and had no influence over the stage. It was very injudicious, very unsafe and very wrong to condemn all actors and all theatres.

Ven. Archdeacon Ker was another who practically agreed with what Rev. Mr. Bell had stated, and said that if the church was to have any influence over the theatre in time to come, she must assume a different attitude toward it to what she had done in the past. He had twice seen "The Sign of the Cross." It was an educator, and he had recommended from the pulpit that any one who wished to gain some idea of what the early Christians had to face should go and see it.

BAD ONE ON MONTREAL.

Rev. H. T. S. Boyle thought in the City of Montreal it was best for clergymen to stay away from the theatre. If they were seen in a theatre, they would be setting an example to others who did not, like themselves, discriminate between plays that were good and plays that were bad. If they went to one, which might be a good play, it might be thought that they also went to those which were bad. A clergyman might go to a respectable theatre and see a good play, and people would go to a theatre of less repute to see some of those abominable plays that were produced, and they would excuse themselves on the ground that they had seen a clergyman at the other theatre.

If people could be made to discriminate between the good and the bad theatre, the latter would be gradually weeded out, and the stage would become what it ought to be—an influence for good.

AN OPPOSITE VIEW.

Rev. N. A. F. Bourne had never heard of the Anglican Church denouncing the theatre, but he had heard of other denominations doing so. Why on earth, then, should they ask her to go out of the way and say that the stage was all right. As regarded any church undertaking to run a theatre, he thought that it would be a very great mistake.

The church was not in the world, he said, to provide amusement for the people. There was too much sin and sorrow in the world, and the church's work was to find "the balm in Gilead." The Anglican Church had left the theatre to the individual consciences of the people, as she had left some other things. While Shakespeare was a liberal education, there was mighty little Shakespeare to be seen in Montreal. One or two places might be very wholesome, but there were a very great number that were unwholesome, and the tendency of the theatre, in his humble estimation, was that it pulled down, and did not lift up.

The theatre was to-day a money-making institution, whatever it may have been in the days gone by, said Very Rev. Dean Evans, and there would be put upon the stage and exhibited to the public anything which would draw the crowd, which meant drawing dollars. Of course, there were certain limitations as to what went upon the stage, but to his mind they were not stringent enough. The limitations with regard to posters were supposed to be stringent, but the sense of this city had been time and again outraged by what the people had been compelled to look upon; the scrutiny kept over them was very lax and not nearly so stringent as it ought to be. There might be theatres where only elevating or educational plays were given, but there were others where this was not the case, and just so long as anything so infamous as some of the plays he knew of was produced, just so long did that condemn the whole thing from beginning to end, so far as the attitude of the clergy was concerned. It was a matter of sad fact that the places which drew the most tremendous crowds were those which were the least desirable; and as long as that fact remained, just so long was the attitude of God's Church, which stood for purity of life, and heart, and thought, and soul, clearly defined, and the clergy ought to have nothing to do with these things. Those whose lot was cast in the city knew that awful ruin was the result in many instances of attending the theatres as they are now. He had heard that "The Sign of the Cross" was an uplifting play, but it could not be disassociated from those which were infamous and terrible, and as long as the latter were put upon the stage, clergymen had only one line of action, and that was to set their faces steadfastly against the theatre.

The Past, Present and Future of Work Among the French-Canadians in the Province of Quebec," was the subject of a paper by Rev. Principal Lariviere, in which he said that, in spite of all opposition, there were not wanting signs of encouragement in the work of French evangelization. He referred to some of these signs, and then touched on the hindrances to the work, and afterward went on to show that the Presbyterians and the Baptists had outstripped the Anglicans in this work.

Rev. H. E. Benoit spoke on the same subject, and mentioned some of the reasons why he believed the work was not more successful.

At the morning session Rev. W. A. Fyles read a paper on "Regeneration and Conversion," explaining that they were quite different things. He was inclined to regard conversion as the result of a gradual change for the better in the spiritual condition of the individual.

"Reconciliation Between the Conservative and Radical Interpretations of Christian Doctrine," was the topic discussed in a paper by Rev. H. E. Horsey. He pointed out that Christ was the centre of all Christian thought and activity, and that in His person a reconciliation between the different schools of doctrine in the church was possible.

The subject of Sabbath observance was also taken up in an able paper by Rural Dean Carmichael.

FINANCIAL REPORT OF THE CATHOLIC COMMISSIONERS

Nnmber of Pupils and Cost of the Various Schools of the District.

The financial report of the Montreal Catholic School Commissioners for the school year 1901-1902 was issued yesterday. In its opening paragraph the report refers to the deaths of two of the commissioners' most esteemed members, Rev. John Quinlivan and Mr. Frank J. Hart, and the appointment of the Rev. Martin Callaghan and Mr. John Henry Semple, whose devotion to the cause of public education is well known.

The report continues: The commission has also acquired St. Bridget's School, taught by the friars of the Christian schools, at a cost of $57,-161.17, payable in forty-seven instalments of $3,036.13 per year.

One remarks in the average daily attendance of certain schools a falling off as compared with last year. This is due in part to the epidemic of smallpox or varioloid which prevailed among children last winter. But looking at the large number of children admitted into the other schools, the total attendance this year is greater than that of past years.

The ordinary expenses during last year have been $241,693.30, while the ordinary receipts have attained but the amount of $238,794.42, leaving a deficit of $2,898.97, which has been filled by the accumulated balances of past years, and leaving to the credit of the commission, on the 30th of June, a sum of $12,458.45 to meet any unexpected demands next year. The balance of $31,454.59 remaining in the permanent fund last year on the sale of debentures of the eighth issue has been absorbed by the construction and completion of new schools and by the payment of part of the sum due on the ground for Montcalm School, leaving a difference of $8,232.12, due to revenue by capital.

SUICIDE'S WISH; DO NOT MARRY THE OTHER GIRL

London Maid of Seventeen Takes Laudanum Because Lover Looked Elsewhere.

(Special to The Montreal Herald.)

London, Ont., Oct. 3.—As a result of a disagreement with her lover, Minnie Gundy, aged 17 years, committed suicide yesterday by drinking laudanum and carbolic acid. For three years she had kept company with Richard Howard, a young cigarmaker, who lives at 197 Queens Avenue. Of late it appears she had been displeased with him because of some attentions which she accused him of paying to another girl. In a letter which she left for her lover she asked him not to marry the other girl, and expressed the hope that she would meet him in heaven. She also expressed a wish that he act as pallbearer at her funeral. She asked that no postmortem be made upon her body.

(Special to The Montreal Herald.)

Sherbrooke, Oct. 3.—At an adjourned meeting of the Sherbrooke Board of Trade last evening the question of extending an invitation to Hon. Mr. Tarte, Minister of Public Works, was discussed. Only some thirteen members were present, but there was a good deal of discussion. A proposition was made that Mr. Tarte be invited and an amendment that he be not invited. On a vote being taken, the motion was carried by 8 to 3.

There is a good deal of feeling over this question, as it is stated by some of the members that such action would give a political complexion to the board. The matter will come before the council of the board at a meeting to-day.

NO ROOM FOR JAPS IN U.S. CITIZENSHIP

They Are "Surely Mongolians," and That Settles Their Position.

Chicago, October 3.—After vainly searching for some legal precedent that would justify a different decision, Judge Carter has refused to grant naturalization papers to Lee Guy Dean, a Japanese, who made application with a view to becoming a citizen of the United States.

"The statute on naturalization," said Judge Carter, "reads that any free white man, or any native of Africa, or any alien of African descent, may be naturalized, but that does not apply to Mongolians, and a Japanese is surely a Mongolian."

The only decision bearing directly on the case which Judge Carter could find was one made by a Massachusetts court, and that was to the effect that an application from such source could not be granted.

SAYS BROWN INSURED HIS STEP-FATHER ON THE QUIET

Mother of the Collingwood Prisoner Makes Some Important Statements.

(Special to The Montreal Herald.)

Collingwood, Ont., October 3. — Mrs. Brown, mother of W. H. Brown, who is held here on the charge of conspiring to murder her, stated to Detective Green yesterday that after her return from Toronto Rose called on her.

She told him she thought he had treated her very badly in Toronto. He apologized and said he was not his own boss, and could not help leaving her. He then offered, she said, to take her for a drive. She wanted Mrs. Edwards, the old lady with whom she lives, to go too. Rose made the excuse that Mrs. Brown was too stout to permit of three in the buggy but offered to get another one for Mrs. Edwards. Mrs. Brown then declined the proffered favor, saying she did not want any of his drives.

"I didn't know what he wanted to do with me," she concluded.

Then regarding the insurance which she stated yesterday the prisoner had on his stepfather's life when he died, she said she had not been told of her husband's illness until after his death. He was living with his stepson at the time, and another son, a half brother of the prisoner, inferrred from seeing Mr. Dougall McLeod, an insurance agent, in conference with his half brother, that there was insurance on his father's life. He told his mother, and she made inquiry first of the agent, who, she said, would tell her nothing, but gave her his book, from which she ascertained the name of the company. She then wrote to the company and received an answer, so she told the detective, stating that her son had a policy of $2,000 on his step-father's life. After the funeral she went to the waterworks one day and complained to the prisoner that he had not told her about the insurance on her husband. He got angry, she said, spoke to her abusively and sent her home. Next morning he came to where she was living, Mrs. Brown stated, sorry for speaking to her in the way he had done, and told her not to say anything about the insurance and he would give her $200 when he got the money. Mrs. Brown declared he never gave her a dollar.

JOINED U.S. ARMY AFTER LEAVING HALIFAX GARRISON

Party of 150 Former Members of the R.C.R., Will Fight in Philippines.

Men who have served in the British army are welcomed these days with open arms at recruiting stations in the United States. A proof of this is offered by the eagerness with which about 150 men of the Royal Canadian Regiment recently disbanded at Halifax were accepted by recruiting officers across the line this week.

When the Royal Canadian Regiment was disbanded several hundred men were left practically without employment or resources. Of these many trekked direct to the West in search of civil employment. Many, however, who had the soldiering habit badly, could not bring themselves to become "civvies" and longed for their regimental number again. It was a party of these that crossed the line and applied in a body for enlistment in the U. S. regulars, there being no regular British regiment in Canada into which they could re-enlist.

No difficulties were in the way of their admission to the U. S. army, and the erstwhile "Tommies" took the oath of allegiance with a light heart.

The question of getting recruits for the U. S. regular army is becoming a matter of serious discussion by military men on the other side of the line. There is a distinct lack of enthusiasm regarding the army which is attributed to the dreary monotony of campaigning in the Philippines and the generally joyless existence of a regular soldier. When the British troops were disbanding in South Africa at the end of the war it was stated that agents were active both in England and South Africa in trying to secure volunteers for the Philippines. In Canada, too, it is known that among the returning contingents U. S. army emissaries found many men who were glad to change over on the chance of seeing a little service.

PARALYZED FOR STOCK CARS.

Scanty Feed Supply in the West Leads to a New Kind of Railway Congestion at Denver.

Denver, Colo., October 3.—The News to-day says:—The tremendous demand for stock cars with which to move live stock from the present scanty ranges of the west to points at which feed can be had for the winter, has created a condition in the live stock markets of the west never before known, and one that is causing great loss and inconvenience to stock owners. In Denver the market has been almost paralyzed because of the inability of the railroads to supply cars to take care of the business done, and prices have been steadily declining, principally for the same reason.

MANCHESTER PAPER ANNOUNCES OUR FAST SERVICE AS ARRANGED

But the Telegram's Man Yesterday Was Very Pessimistic About It.

Toronto, October 3.—An Evening Telegram's special London cable says:—"The Imperial Government's arrangement with the Cunard line is a decisive blow to the fast Atlantic Canadian line receiving financial aid from that quarter; at least such is the opinion in interested circles in this city to-day. The Government, they say, has given away what money it has for an Atlantic service, so that the promotion of the Canadian fast line project will only have the Canadian subsidy to depend upon. The fast line idea must be abandoned for the less ambitious scheme of a combined passenger and freight service."

A MANCHESTER STORY.

Manchester, Eng., October 3. — The Daily Despatch this morning asserts that the terms of a British syndicate for a fast service of steamships between Montreal and Liverpool, Bristol and London, have been accepted. The steamers are to receive a joint subsidy from the Imperial and Canadian Governments.

MODERN FABLES BY GEORGE ADE

HOW AN HUMBLE BEGINNER MOVED FROM ONE PINNACLE TO ANOTHER AND PLAYED THE ENTIRE CIRCUIT.

A team of Proud Parents had a Son named James Henry Guff. On the Day of his Birth the Wind changed and blew in another Direction. Apples fell off the Trees, Chickens went to Roost at Mid-Day. All Nature seemed to have been given a Jolt by the Portentous Event. For James Henry Guff was born to know all the Brands of Human Greatness. Destiny had put a Green Tag on him and nothing could stop him.

When he was only 18 years of age he was elected Captain of a Volunteer Fire Department, which was a valuable Organization, only when there was a Fire no one could find the Key to the House in which they kept the Hand-Pump. But the Papers began to speak of him as Captain Guff. His Intimates called him Cap. After the Hose Company disbanded his Title cung to him and it was generally believed that he had been with Grant at Appomattox.

Not satisfied with a resounding Title for which those in the Regular Army have to struggle for years, Captain Guff began to give Lessons on the Flute at 50 cents an hour, and the first thing he knew he was a real Professor just the same as if he had gone up in a Balloon or had some trained Horses. Now over at Harvard, where they grow the English Accent, a Student must grind through a long Course, and a Fellowship and an Instructorship before he blossoms into a Simon-pure Professor. Which only goes to show that the Real Boy can gain by one stroke of Genius the Renown for which the ordinary Skates must go forth and Rustle.

James Henry Guff at the age of 30 was both a Captain and a Professor, but his insatiable Ambition spurred him to go out and gather other Laurels. So he ran for Justice of the Peace and was elected the third time he ran because the other Candidate pulled out. As Magistrate he became custodian of a Law-Book, a Checker-Board, and a stack of Blank Affidavits. Once every three months or so somebody would levy on a Cow or threaten to Assault, and then the Judge would get a chance to operate his Craft. But he didn't care so much about the Income, so long as he could be addressed as Judge. He allowed his Hair to grow into a long, graceful Cow-Lick that kept falling into his Eyes and he looked at the Sidewalk meditatively as he went over to the Grocery to get his Fine-Cut. Sometimes, when he was far enough from Home those who met him and heard him called Judge thought that he was on the Supreme Bench.

In the course of Time he began to crave a Political Job so he began to stump around in the Interests of the Machine. He drove out to District School-Houses, with the American Eagle seated on the Dash-Board of his Buggy, and when he got on the Platform he waved Old Glory until both Arms gave out. All of which went to prove that the Machine should be kept in Power. After he had been spell-binding for a couple of Seasons a Job Printer conferred upon him the Title of Honorable. Every time there was a Jim-Crow Speaking then the Hon. James Henry Guff showed up with his Voice in a Shawl-Strap and also a fine Assortment of Platitudes. When the Congressman wrote to him and asked him to get the Jimpson County Delegates into Line, he always addressed his letter to The Hon. James Henry Guff and in the Course of Time Guff began to believe.

But a prouder Distinction awaited him. In view of the fact that he had plugged for the Regular Organization and delivered the Goods at the State Convention, he was made a Colonel on the Governor's Staff. It is the Duty of a Colonel on the Governor's Staff to ride in a Pullman Car and take a Ball every time he is touched on the Back. Colonel Guff was a Dream when he got into his $275 Uniform with the Gold Braid rigged all over the Front. He wore a Chapeau similar to the one worn by Napoleon at Austerlitz, but he had on top of it seven Tail-Feathers of the Loo-Loo Bird, which rather laid over anything that Napoleon ever wore. And when Col. James Henry Guff in his magnificent Regalia and smoking a ten-cent Cigar leaned back in an Open Carriage drawn by White Horses and allowed the People to gaze at him, the Grandeur of the Spectacle made one forget the real Horrors of War.

Many of the Ardent Admirers of Prof. Guff and Capt. Guff, and Judge Guff, and Col. Guff believed that he had climbed to the Summit of Greatness when he appeared in his $42 Plume. Not so. One Year the State Militia was to have an Encampment and the Governor gave Col. James Henry Guff the Job of buying all the Beans, Fresh Beef and other Supplies, because there promised to be a slight rake-off. Officially he was known as the Commissary-General.

Thus it came about that after Years of Endeavor, James Henry Guff who left the Post a poor and unknown Boy, went under the wire a real General.

When his Daughters went away to Boarding School and were introduced as the Offspring of Gen. James H. Guff, they assumed a social Leadership. Gen. Guff led the Grand March at a great many Military Balls. At a Banquet costing $8 per Plate he sat at the Right of the Chairman wearing Medals which had been presented to him by the 4th Ward Marching Club. In his Address he always defended the Soldier against unwarranted Attacks and protested against hauling down the Flag at any Time or Place.

If the Government adopted a new Machine Gun, all the Reporters went over and interviewed Gen. James Henry Guff about it. He wrote a Magazine Article on the Mistakes of the British in South Africa and likewise got rid of a few ponderous Opinions on our Policy in the Philippines.

When he died, the Funeral Procession was two miles long. The Family had to erect two Marble Shafts, so as to find Room for all of his Titles.

MORAL: True Democracy scorns a Title unless it has a real Significance with the Reverse English.

ATE CHINA DOLLS IN PIECE OF PIE

(Newark, N.J., News.)

John Le Brange, of this city, is a patient at the City Hospital, and his case is one of grave concern for the members of the medical and surgical staff of that institution. Le Brange's plight would be a subject for humor were it not that it is fraught with painful sensations and may result in a serious complication.

Le Brange owes his presence in the hospital to the friendship of a young woman who possesses some skill as a pastry cook, and who selected him as a subject in an effort to emulate the cook of the kind in the nursery tale who concealed a lot of live blackbirds in the pie with which the monarch was served as a dessert for his dinner one fine day.

The Newark young woman was evidently short on blackbirds, but she was resourceful, and when she decided to bake a pie for her friend Le Brange to feast upon she concealed somewhere in the interior a number of tiny china dolls. The pastry was so cleverly arranged and prepared that when Le Brange partook of the pie which had been sent to him at his home he found it such smooth eating that he swallowed the first few bites without employing his functions of mastication.

The avidity with which Le Brange sampled the culinary skill of his friend was the cause of his undoing, and the explanation for his becoming a hospital patient. He learned, when too late, while in the act of swallowing one mouthful, that something that was not, strictly speaking, pie, was going down. He thought at first that he had swallowed the pits of two plums or some other kernelled fruit, but on investigating the interior of what remained of the pie, he discovered several of the tiny doll babies nestling there. It was then that the horrible truth dawned upon him that he had taken into his stomach two members of the doll family.

It developed that the dolls did not find Le Brange's interior any more to their liking than he found them agreeable to his internal organism. The result was disorder and warfare, with the suffering all on the part of Le Brange. The occupants of his interior developed a penchant for roaming around, and they seemed to have indulged that habit despite the injury they wrought to their domicile and the dismay they caused in their environment.

How to rid himself of his unwelcome charges was a problem that was too much for Le Brange, so yesterday he appealed to the doctors of the City Hospital to relieve him. But the learned men of medicine are in as sad a quandary as the unfortunate victim of his friend's pie. They have tried various methods without avail, and there is a growing conviction among them that if Le Brange is to be relieved of his burden at all they will have to use their knives and cut him open somewhere about amidships.

HARVEST SLUMBER SONG.

Sleep, little baby, sleep, sleep, sleep,
Red is the moon in the night's still deep,
White are the stars with their silver wings
Folded in dreamings of beautiful things,
And over their cradle the night wind sings;
Sleep, little baby, sleep, sleep, sleep.

Soft in the lap of the mother night
The wee baby-stars, all glowing and bright,
Flutter their silver wings and crow
To the watchful winds that kiss as they blow,
Round the air-cradle that swings so low,
Down in the lap of the mother night.

Sleep, little baby, sleep, sleep, sleep.
Red is the moon in the night's still deep,
And the wee baby stars are all folded and kissed,
In a luminous cradle of silver mist;
And if ever they waken, the winds cry whist!
Sleep, little baby, sleep, sleep, sleep.

—William Wilfred Campbell.

As Seen by Her.

This is a woman's page. Not that men are not welcome, whether as readers, seekers after knowledge or critics, but it is intended chiefly to please women. What will please one woman may not be especially interesting to another, but it is hoped that by turns all women who read this page will find their particular tastes catered to. The Household, Cooking, Philanthropy, Art and Literature, Society, Fashion, Women's Sports and Pastimes, all things with which women are connected, will be touched upon in these columns.

Women readers are invited to look upon this page as their own, to make suggestions, exchange ideas which may prove useful to others, tell what they think would improve the page, send in notices of meetings or social events in which they are interested—only please make these short and use one side of the paper—and in every way look upon the page as their special property in which they have a genuine interest.

Only by knowing what is really wanted can the editor satisfy her readers.

All letters addressed to The Memsahib, Herald Office, Craig Street, Montreal, will be promptly acknowledged and dealt with.

Next time you want to know something, write to The Herald.

Next time you have a good idea for housekeeping, etc., pass it on to be of use to woman in her work.

SOME AMUSING ERRORS.

The transposition of a preposition by a telegraphist or compositor is probably responsible for the amusing statement, in the New York Tribune's London letter, that "the Prince of Wales, or the Duke of Connaught, will attend the coronation in Durbar, India." It is strange that this sentence was passed by the proofreader, whose suspicions might have been aroused if he had tried to find "Durbar" on the map. This slip is worth setting by the side of J. M. Barrie's story of the [illegible] who gave a telegraphic despatch the heading "[illegible] of Umbrage by the Boers."

SHORT-SKIRTED GIRLS.

It must be confessed by the most sensible person that the short-skirted woman can be [illegible]. The short skirt has the advantage of youth and [illegible] [illegible] to be approved by [illegible] [illegible]. [illegible] between woman and her attire. The golf links is responsible for the short skirt's adoption. The [illegible] tried it, on and [illegible] fastened it to woman kind forever. We [illegible] golf has [illegible] into the ground. As an excuse for general wear, it serves. The desire of women for a rainy day costume has also led to popularize the golf skirt, but any girl will tell you that when she wears her "rainy daisy" in the storm her ankles are always wet. The reason is evident; the short skirt is not short. Should woman appear in one abbreviated to the extent of immunity from splashing and curbstones, she would look yet more absurd and doubtless be invited by the police to go home. The day may come when there will be no difference in the apparel of the sexes, but it is a long way off, according to modern opinion, and meantime she must make the best of having been born a woman. It is a tremendous penalty to pay for what is not her fault and the worst of it is the pay is on the instalment plan. She continues to pay to the last chapter.

ALL-BLACK TAFFETAS.

Nothing replaces the all-black taffetas dress for the innumerable occasions at which it can be suitably worn, says the Delineator. It is as before trimmed with tucks of itself or with graded widths of black velvet ribbon. A more dressy gown, but one both useful and distinguished, is made with a skirt of white chiffon three flounces deep. The lowest flounce is trimmed with flowers of black chantilly lace, and the whole waist, which is a long coat coming well over the skirt at the back and sides, is in this same lace.

SHOES AS NERVE RESTORERS.

Eastern travellers say the reason there are no nervous women in China is because they wear soft shoes. There is no doubt that the hard-soled shoes of the Western world are the cause of much nerve-breaking and mental and physical wear and tear.

After a hard day much relief can be found in the slipping on a pair of soft-soled shoes.

Tired feet and tired nerves will find much comfort in a warm foot bath with a handful of sea salt in it. Paddle about in this till the water cools, dry the feet carefully with a rough towel and don fresh stockings. If one could take time in the middle of the day to change stockings for a fresh pair it would be easier to keep the feet warm and to ward off rheumatism.

Tender feet may be strengthened by bathing and then rubbing them with methylated spirits before retiring for the night, and another excellent plan is to swathe them with a bandage dipped in alum water.

HOUSEWIFE NOTES.

When a can rusts through where the sides join the bottom it is not necessary to throw it away, as the holes may be effectually stopped by covering them inside with a small piece of linen dipped in copal varnish, the tin being previously thoroughly dried. When the varnish hardens by drying the can will be perfectly water-tight.

Clear boiling water will remove tea stains. Pour the water through the stain, and thus prevent it spreading over the fabric.

The water for the toilet must be soft; if possible use distilled water. A little borax or a few drops of ammonia will soften hard water. But habitual use of either is not advisable, too dry a skin being the result. A water softener is better.

Writing rendered illegible by age may be restored by moistening it by means of a feather with an infusion of galls, or a solution of prussiate of potash slightly acidulated with muriatic acid, observing to so apply the liquid as to prevent the ink from spreading.

A curious china water pitcher represents a gray tabby cat sitting in an upright position. In the act of meowing its mouth is half opened and is the spout through which the water pours.

WINDOW GARDENS FOR THE KITCHEN

Housewives may well take a lesson from the foreign colonies in our cities. A walk through one of those colonies in summer shows many window sills and fire-escapes dotted with growing herbs. Even in winter the green things peep and peer against the panes. Sometimes the herb-pot is an old tin can or cracked pitcher. Oftener it is a box of handy size, and somehow the box herbs always seem the most luxuriant. Dill is there, and mint, and fennel, balm, sweet basil, sweet marjoram, thyme, indeed, all the flavorous tribe. Parsley may be bought fresh the year round from the corner grocer, so it is seldom seen in the boxes.

A cook worth the name knows that green herbs are infinitely better for seasoning than dry ones. First-class marketmen also recognize the fact by offering along with costly spring lamb, pots of tender growing mint to sauce the roast. One of these mint pots, properly tended, will grow for years, and supply an ordinary kitchen. Mint grows rapidly, and the better for frequent plucking. Stalks should not be allowed to grow more than six inches high. If they are not needed, nip them off, and dry in a shady place, against the time when more mint may be needed than the pot can furnish. This applies also to other herbs. Aim in plucking to keep them bunchy and stocky, so as to furnish many leaves with the smallest modicum of stems.

Kitchen air is commonly both warm and moist—hence things grow in it almost tropically. Give the herbs the sunniest window. If a box can be set the whole window length, all the better. One strong clump of each herb is better than several weak ones. If seeds are sown, let it be in a smaller box, from which the strongest plants can be set in the window box, which should be a foot wide and ten inches deep inside. Fill within an inch of the top with very rich dirt, and give the plants a liberal watering with liquid manure. If that is out of the question, soap suds, the dirtier the better, should be given weekly. Pour the suds around the roots. Keep the green tops clean by sprinkling with fresh water at least every other day.

From such a garden one can gather bouquets of herbs every day in the year, of rich, yet superlatively delicate flavor. Nor is that all the profit—sauces, extracts, delicious drinks, may come from it, not to mention the delights of watching and tending a mass of thrifty growth.

MRS. HOODLESS RESIGNED POSITION

Mrs. Hoodless, of Hamilton, Ont., well known for her keen interest in the domestic training of girls, has just resigned her position as president of the Hamilton Young Women's Christian Association, which she has held for twelve years. Mrs. Hoodless announced that she would not be eligible again for that office, not on account of a lack of interest in the work, but because of a lack of time. Although she would be unable to give so much time to the work, yet her interest would be as keen as ever, and she would do all in her power to further it as much as possible. The domestic science cause at present needed all her time and attention.

W.C.T.U. CONVENTION MEETING IN THURSO

The nineteenth annual convention of the Provincial Woman's Christian Temperance Union met in Middleton Memorial Hall, Thurso, on Tuesday. The first session was devoted to a consecration and memorial service, eighteen members having been called away during the year. The evening meeting was well attended. Mrs. Metcalf and Mrs. Gardner, on behalf of Thurso local and Ottawa County unions, welcomed the delegates. Mayor Thompson, for the town, and Rev. Mr. Telford, for the churches, gave warm greetings to the convention. Mrs. Warren and Mrs. Foster responded on behalf of the delegates. Excellent music was rendered by Mrs. Walker, of England, and local talent. On Wednesday morning the corresponding secretary's report was read, showing no increase in W.C.T.U. membership, a decrease in Band of Hope and a marked increase in White Ribbon Army membership. The report on Woman's Journal was given. Mrs. Leet (Montreal) gave the treasurer's statement, reporting a good balance. Mrs. R. W. McLachlan, corresponding secretary, was made a life member of the World's W.C.T.U. The president's annual address contained much valuable information and suggestions to be embodied in the plan of work and resolutions on reports. The report of temperance work in Sunday schools was read. The Flower Mission report was not complete, because items are not reported to the superintendent. It seems advisable that for encouragement the items should be reported.

TO BRING GOOD LUCK TO BABY.

In Spain the infant's face is swept with a pine bough to bring it good luck.

In Ireland a belt of woman's hair is placed about a child to keep harm away.

Garlic, salt, bread and steak are put into the cradle of a new-born baby in Holland.

The Grecian mother, before putting her child in the cradle, turns three times around before the fire, while singing her favorite song to ward off evil spirits.

The Turkish mother loads her child with amulets as soon as it is born.

For the Cook.

Cereals With Fruit.

Mix strained fruit juice with some water, in which the cereal is to be cooked, or cook in water, and before serving add seedless raisins or dates cut in pieces.

Nut Sandwiches.

Use English walnuts, hickory nuts or peanuts for these. Chop the meats very fine and mix with enough cream cheese to make a nice moist paste; season with salt and cayenne or salt and a little sugar; spread on very thin slices of white bread that has been lightly buttered.

Smothered Potatoes.

Put two tablespoonfuls of butter or dripping in a pan; add one-fourth cup of onion and celery chopped and mixed; when beginning to brown add one pint of cold boiled potatoes cut in cubes or slices; sprinkle with salt and pepper, and add half a cup of meat gravy or tomato sauce; cover till well steamed through; uncover and let cook until liquor boils down; serve hot.

Ham and Eggs.

Mix equal quantities of chopped cooked ham and bread crumbs, moistening with one-fourth cupful of milk and one beaten egg for each cupful of the mixture; season with salt, pepper and mustard; line buttered cups with this mixture; drop a raw egg from the shell into each; cover with the paste and bake or steam until the eggs are firm; turn out and serve hot.

Apple Fritters.

To make apple fritters pare and core the apples, and cut in slices about one-third of an inch thick, dip in batter made of one pint of flour, a half pint of milk, one tablespoonful of salt, two eggs. Beat the eggs light and add the milk and salt to them; pour half of this mixture on the flour, and when beaten light and smooth add the remainder and the oil. Fry six minutes in boiling fat.

Brown Betty.

To make Brown Betty, put a layer of bread crumbs into a deep pudding dish. Then put in a layer of good apples (peeled and thinly sliced), next some brown sugar, with a few cloves, and dot with bits of butter. Repeat this until the dish is full, then cover with thin slices of bread and butter, having first poured into the dish a cupful of water. Bake the pudding slowly, and serve with brown sugar.

Corn Cake.

Scald one cupful of corn meal with one cupful of boiling water; spread one tablespoonful of butter over the top and let it stand over night; then mix with one-fourth cup of sugar, one beaten egg, one cupful of thick sour milk and salt in one cup of flour, with one-half teaspoonful of salt and one-half teaspoonful of soda; fill buttered muffin pans two-thirds full and bake in a quick oven thirty minutes.

Apple Dumplings.

For apple dumplings, measure four cupfuls of flour, put in two teaspoonfuls of cream tartar and two of soda; sift two or three times, and then rub in a lump of butter the size of a walnut. Then stir in two cupfuls of sour milk and turn out on the board and work into a smooth dough. Roll out to half an inch in thickness. Cut in three or four inch squares; put some sliced apples in the middle of each one, bring the corners together, [illegible] at the openings, and either boil, bake or steam for about half an hour. Serve with cream and sugar if baked, and with a boiled sauce if steamed or boiled.

NEEDLESS WORRIES OF YOUNG WIVES

To say that young wives do much unnecessary worrying is to use a sentiment not enough to be classed as a gag, says an exchange. But it's true. The men are easy marks. Women can't keep secrets. Sure! The men can't, not guilty ones. Yet the last way in the world for a woman to get anything out of a man is to ask him about it, especially if he is the woman's husband. So, when George comes home with a cloudy brow, and you know he has something on his mind, and your heart is full of anxiety, the best thing to do is to pretend it isn't. Men are not in the habit of concealing their feelings. That was a chief charm of George when he was courting you and would make love in the most dreadfully reckless way, just anywhere. We women, on the other hand, are used from babyhood to pretending we are well when we aren't, to making believe things we don't, to being cheerful for the sake of others when we feel like many acres of tombstones. All this, when the one relief was to tell somebody about our miseries. Naturally, then, wifey wants to supply to George this comfort, but he doesn't want it. He has always kept his trouble to himself; and he thinks it would be a low thing to bother his wife with them, although he isn't able to keep his wife from guessing that something is up. As it would be lots better for him and would make her feel far more secure if he would only "confide" in her, and she should take him right.

So let her be as cheery as can be, and just give him chances. Lead up to the question, talk around it, come at it and away again. A man will never know what you are doing till, presently, out it comes. Suppose the "pink note" that makes so much trouble in plays and books is what is the matter in this case. Don't break your heart, say nothing, and think all those awful things that in the play result in estrangement for three acts. Just say:

"George, dear, you dropped a pretty pink note out of your pocket this morning, and it's pinned onto your pincushion. Just suppose I had read it!"

Ten to one he will laugh and tell you to read it now—or maybe he will pretend to be frightened. Then you can keep up the joke, being careful not to act as if you expected to see the missive. He is almost sure to tell you all about it. If you make it very early quite clear that you don't believe there really is anything that he is trying to keep from you, but that you are a sensible woman, and if there is—though, of course, there isn't—you are a heap more anxious not to discover it than he is to keep it from you, you will find the domestic atmosphere made wonderfully clear. George will tell you lots of things he probably had thought he wouldn't be able to tell you, and you will be astonished to find how harmless lots of things are that some wives worry themselves and their husbands to death about. Besides, if there is something dreadful, why just put it down that George maybe needs a little time to get used to being as nice a married man as he means to be. Anyhow, worrying on her part doesn't help."

SYNOPSIS OF PRECEDING CHAPTERS.

Betty Temple and her younger sister Mabel are orphans in London, and in great poverty. Chance, however, brings them the acquaintance of the Ladies Constance and Gladys Burghley, the daughters of the Earl of Redmayne, and Lord Orme, the heir to the Earldom, remarks on their beauty, and particularly that of the elder, whom he wishes to sit to him for a portrait. With Lady Constance's approval, Betty Temple accordingly sits to the aristocratic painter, who, on her sixth visit, gives her a sealed packet, which proves to contain a gold bracelet with a message which could only be interpreted as a declaration of love. The same evening, while Betty is at the theatre with her newly-found friends, a mysterious stranger places a note in her hands. It was a request for an interview outside a shop in Bond street. Betty meets the writer, who is a man of fine bearing and well-dressed, though with a suggestion of having come down in the world. Addressing her by name, and professing an interest in her on account of her resemblance to someone he had known, the stranger, who gives the name of Treherne, strongly warns Betty against Lord Orme, as a man of infamous character, and obtains her promise not, at all events, to engage herself to him before the lapse of a month. Later, at the Burghleys' house, Betty learns that Treherne is really a brother of Lord Orme, that he had been years before suspected of the murder of her half-sister, both brothers being in love with her, and that he had since been reported dead.

CHAPTER IX.—Continued.

Would Betty trust an old friend's wisdom and refrain from mentioning her name to Lady Constance Burghley, or any other member of the family in Brook Street? Her reason for asking this she could not give on paper, but she might perhaps confide it to Betty later on, though she would not promise to do so until the time and season were quite fitting.

The expediency of introducing this clause into the letter of invitation had been the subject of several long and intimate conversations between Treherne and his cousin, and at last they decided that though it might shake Betty's faith in both of them, yet the urging her to silence was imperative. As the shadows flitted over her face Treherne saw that the warning scarcely favored the acceptance of Miss Castleton's invitation, especially when Betty, having finished the perusal of the missive from Hurstley, laid it in her lap and said, petulantly:

"I wish I had never become acquainted with the Burghleys or anyone. To think that my mother's old friend should be mixed up with them and you. It is too worrying."

He did not reply to this remark except quite indirectly by asking: "Have you seen the Burghleys or Orme since we last met?"

"I have not," she answered, testily. "Lady Constance is ill."

"Ah, I am sorry."

And as he looked grave and sad she believed him, and once more became mollified.

"Yes," she went on, "and Lady Gladys told me not to come till I was sent for."

"And Orme?"

He was sorry about Lady Constance, she thought, but he seemed to be much more interested about Orme.

"I found a letter from him when I returned that day I met you. I answered it and—"

"Well?"

"I said what I promised. But I wonder what right you have to ask all this?" said Betty, becoming excited.

"Perhaps you will know some day. Perhaps old Cousin Mildred will tell you. If only you can be persuaded to trust us both. When you come to Hurstley a good deal that is now dark will perchance become light."

"When I come to Hurstley. Will you be there?"

"If I can get away from my office. But newspaper work doesn't yield many holidays. However, I hope at least to get a few hours on Christmas Day."

There was something very like a yearn at Betty's heart.

It would be pleasant, even desirable, to meet this man and learn something more about the mystery that enveloped him, but she did not mean to say so or to give in too quickly.

"It was most appropriate that we should all get acquainted in a fog," she said, laughing, "for in a fog we seem to dwell."

"All?" he asked, in some surprise. "Do you mean you only became acquainted with them that same afternoon?"

Betty told him the story of her introduction to Brook Street. For the moment she had forgotten that he did not know it or she certainly would not have given herself away.

"Strange," he said. "The vicissitudes of life are most strange and complex."

He looked very grave and thoughtful, so thoughtful that Betty felt more and more perplexed with every fresh move in the game. Nor was her perplexity removed when he muttered, seemingly speaking to himself:

"It is the likeness; the wonderful likeness."

And as he spoke his eyes were fixed on Betty with an intensity of passionate longing that made every nerve in her body vibrate, while at the same time it rendered her most uncomfortable, even frightened.

She was by no means sorry to hear Mabel's voice on the stairs.

"Where are you, Betty? Where are you all this time? I hate being left up there quite alone."

Another second and she had come into the parlor and thus interrupted a tete-a-tete, the conditions of which were becoming just a little strained.

"Gracious!" she cried, when she realized who it was sitting with her sister, "I am glad to see you. Though she wouldn't let me have the cake, it was nice of you to want to give it to me."

There was never any arriere pensee about Mabel. When she had an opinion or a sentiment in her mind, she was not backward in mentioning it.

Treherne laughed, and as he looked at the bright face of the child he put on one side the old memories that had been oppressing him.

The two sisters were totally dissimilar in character and lineaments; there was nothing in Mabel to awaken recollection.

"You shall have a cake from me some other time," he said. "I do not think that your sister will object now that she knows me better."

"Hurrah! And I hope you will come and see us very often, for I believe you are a very nice man."

"Mabel," interrupted Betty, trying to look dignified, "you will shock Mr. Treherne. He is not accustomed to so much gush."

"Treherne. Is that your name? I like it. I have seen it somewhere in a book," exclaimed the precocious child, by no means repressed by her sister's manner.

Mr. Treherne was delighted with her. He at once saw in her an ally. He forthwith proceeded to tell her of the invitation that he had brought from an old friend of their mother. Betty was not a little discomfited that he should do this, as she never knew what use Mabel would make of any information she obtained, and if the visit and the acquaintance of Miss Castleton were to be kept secret from the Burghleys, it was a pity that Mabel should know aught about them till they were about to start—that is, if they ever did start, which Betty had by no means made up her mind to do.

It was this visible indecision on her part that influenced Mr. Treherne when he committed the rash act of communicating the invitation to Mabel.

"How jolly!" she cried. "Now, Betty, you will have to get me a new frock. I can't go in rags to see an old friend of mother's."

"Hush, hush, Mabel! I don't know that we shall be able to go. I have a great deal of work."

"Bosh! You can take your work with you. Fancy staying in this fusty old lodging for Christmas, when we can go and have a high time in the country! Don't be a kill-joy, Betty."

"No, don't be a kill-joy, Miss Betty," echoed Ernest Treherne, who seemed for so grave a man to derive a great deal of amusement from this pert child. "Mabel and I mean to enjoy ourselves," he went on. "I am sure you will not be the one to try and thwart us."

"For Mabel's sake, I suppose——"

Betty murmured the sentence in a low tone and then she stopped.

"For Mabel's sake, it was perhaps right that she should not refuse to renew the acquaintance of Miss Castleton," was the thought that passed swiftly through her mind, to be immediately succeeded by the recollection of what an amount of trouble, perchance of unhappiness, to herself future relations with this mysterious Mr. Treherne might entail.

That she would get rid of him by refusing Miss Castleton's invitation was, however, very doubtful, and this probably she instinctively felt; but before she had time to give a decision either way, exuberant Mabel had thrown herself on the top of her, and was smothering her with kisses.

"You will go, Betty—of course, you will go. To please me—little Mab, who loves you so."

"My dear child——"

"Oh, don't say 'dear child.' That's the way you always begin a good lecture; say, 'Mab, darling, we will go into the country and have a happy Christmas.'"

"Well, Mab darling——"

"That's all right!" cried Mab, joyously, jumping off her sisters' lap. "She has said 'Mab darling'—so she means to go. Thank you very much, Mr. Treherne, for bringing a very nice invitation, and you and I will enjoy ourselves, if no one else does so," and she made Mr. Treherne a curtsey as if she were some demoiselle of the reign of Louis XIV., and he a cavalier of the Court.

BROWN, ACCUSED OF PLOTTING MOTHER'S DEATH, EXPLAINS

The Collingwood Insurance Story Takes Another Aspect—An Extraordinary Tale.

(Special to The Montreal Herald.)

Collingwood, Oct. 2.—W. H. Brown was arrested yesterday on the charge of conspiracy to murder his mother. He subsequently made the following statement:

"Four years ago Rose asked me to take some insurance. I told him I had all I could carry. We got talking about the rest of the family, and I told him if it was agreeable I would pay for an insurance policy on my mother's life. He went to see her and it was arranged. I asked her if she had any objections, and she said she hadn't. The policy was a twenty-year paid up life, and I paid three years on it, $93 a year. Then my mother sent me a lawyer's letter saying if I did not support her she would have the insurance transferred. I asked my wife about it, and she advised me to drop it, and I did.

"Last August Rose came to me at the water works, and after chatting a while he asked me how my mother was. I told him I had not seen her in fifteen months. He asked me if I was keeping up her policy, and I said it had not run out yet.

"Oh," he said, "why don't you give her a slug."

"I thought it was a joke, and said, 'You can do that.'

"Another time he came and asked how much I would take for it. I said a thousand dollars. He said he would see. After that he came and wanted me to lend him $10, saying he had not any money for expenses. I said I hadn't it with me, but would send it to him by mail, thinking he needed some to get through the sale of the policy I thought he was working on. I sent him $10 and don't know whether he got it or not. I never asked him. Some time after he asked for another $10, and I borrowed that for him from Mr. Hilburn. On Wednesday of the first week of the exhibition he came to me and said my mother was going to Toronto on Tuesday and he wanted me to go to the station and see her off. I told him I could not because I had to work. I don't know whether she went or not. Last Thursday he came to me and said he had a lawyer's letter from a man he was dealing with in Toronto, who stated if he did not get some more money he would put it in his lawyer's hands. I told him he would get no more money from me, and he went away."

The prisoner denied having made any agreement to support his mother in consideration of policy.

ROSE DID NOT GO TO AUTHORITIES.

Rose did not, it is said, make voluntary statement to the Toronto authorities, but it was through his talkativeness here that the affair leaked out, and was brought to the attention of the authorities. It appears that Rose told the plot to a lawyer named Bond, who regarded the whole thing as so preposterous, he thought it was a joke or that Rose was crazy. But Bond's client, who had introduced Rose, came next. Rose had been talking to him. He and Bond thought that whether it was a joke or not, in the public interest the matter should be laid before the magistrate. They submitted the facts to Magistrate John Nettleton, and Chief of Police Maiden investigated the matter and concluded there was nothing in it. Bond's client, who is a shareholder in the Continental Life Insurance Company, wrote to the Toronto manager and it was by him that Rose was called on to explain.

In an interview the prisoner's mother stated positively that when the insurance on he rlife was taken out her son agreed to support her, and had not given her one dollar. She said her second husband, prisoner's stepfather, had died four years ago. He was working for his stepson at the time. She found out afterwards that prisoner had insured his stepfather's life for $2,000. When she spoke to him about it, he had promised to give her $200 when he got it, but he had not given her anything. About her Toronto trip, she said Rose had given her $2.50 to pay her fare. He met her at the Union station, Toronto, and took her to his niece, he said. He took her up a narrow stair to her room without introducing her to anyone, and after tea she saw nothing of him. Next morning she went to visit a friend, Mrs. Levy, on Edward Street, and after a week returned home without seeing Rose.

Brown's wife denies any knowledge of the affair, and testifies to his good qualities.

IF YOU DON'T KNOW
ASK THE COAL MAN

Coal dealers in the city conceive that they have all the trouble they are looking for in the effort to provide the little coal that is going these days, but on top of the paucity in this respect comes the perpetual interrogation point, who keeps the telephone wire hot asking questions regarding the situation.

Following is a verbatim report of one side of a conversation held with one of the most prominent dealers in the city yesterday:

"Well, have you nothing but the Scotch?"

"When do you expect the Welsh?"

"What will it be?"

"No chance of hard coal at all?"

"I do not know what to do."

"If you get any of that Scotch coal, what will you charge me?"

"Well, I will take a load of it."

"I suppose we should be very glad to get a load of anything and say nothing."

"Are you going to have hard coal in later on?"

"What shape is the Scotch coal?"

"If it in large chunks?"

"Do you screen it here?"

"What are you asking for that? Is it good?"

"This Welsh coal—what about it?"

"Do you think it would be wise to take it now?"

"As we say at home, we are burning gold dust just now."

"What is the anthracite like?

"Is it something like a soft hard coal?"

"Have you any diamonds to sell?"

"That coal looks as though it had been varnished.

"Well, I will try the Welsh as a first experiment, then I will go on with the rest."

"What about coal?"

"Am I not going to get any?"

"But this coal, don't it smoke the house terribly?"

"Will it burn in the furnaces the same as the hard?"

"Should I take a ton now, or wait for a few days?"

"Coal is so dear I do not know what to do."

"Do you break it up, that Scotch coal?"

"Have you any No. 2 chestnut?"

TOO GREAT EXPENSE.

Not the Reason.

It is not because Pyramid Pile Cure is so expensive that many people decline to give it a trial, but because they find it too great a tax on their credulity to believe that the published letters bearing testimony to the merit of this remedy are genuine and bona fide, especially to those who have realized the suffering incident to piles is it incredible that anyone who has been afflicted twenty-five and thirty years with the worst forms of protruding and bleeding piles should be cured by the application of a simple remedy, when their physician has assured them that the only relief is in a surgical operation. This is rightfully viewed with dread by all those afflicted, as it means at the least a great shock to the nervous system, with more than a possibility of utter collapse and death; in the majority of cases, too, there is a return of the complaint, owing to the fact that the cause is not removed.

The proprietors of Pyramid Pile Cure agree to forfeit one thousand dollars to anyone who will show a single published testimonial to be not genuine and unsolicited; this latter feature is most gratifying, inasmuch as these letters are written solely out of gratitude, and with the hope that those who are afflicted as the writers have been may learn that relief is at hand, at a comparatively trifling expense. Pyramid Pile Cure is for sale by druggists at fifty cents a package, or will be mailed by the makers to any address upon receipt of price.

Mr. Wm. Lichtenwalter, head of the largest printing house in Canton, Ohio, says: "It is with the utmost pleasure and satisfaction that I can say I believe I am cured of protruding and bleeding piles, after suffering more than twenty-five years. I have been in bed for two weeks at a time. I have not suffered in the least for over a year, and I used only three fifty-cent boxes of Pyramid Pile Cure. I advise every person suffering with this distressing and painful complaint to give this remedy a trial. I have every confidence in it." Write the Pyramid Drug Co., Marshall, Mich., for their book on the causes and cure of piles.

TRUE BILL WAS BROUGHT AGAINST CLAUDE HOVEY

(Special to The Montreal Herald.)

Sherbrooke, October 3.—The Court of King's Bench resumed at four o'clock Wednesday afternoon, when the Grand Jury reported on two cases. A true bill was found against Claude Hovey, of Barnston, who is charged with having on the 15th January, 1895, forged a cheque for $100, on the E. T. Bank, and purporting to be signed by Mrs Aulis. The accused disappeared shortly after the cheque was presented to the bank, and two years later was reported as having died in Manchester, N.H. He was arrested last June while on a visit to his home in Barnston. On being arraigned the accused pleaded not guilty.

The Grand Jury also found a true bill against Arthur Lambert, who is charged with the theft of $40 from a house in Ascot, some weeks ago. He also pleaded not guilty.

The jury then retired to consider the other cases on the docket, and the court adjourned until this morning at ten o'clock.

8,000,000 GALLONS WENT DOWN CITY STREET.

Weedon, October 3. —(Special.)—About noon, near the Delaware River, broke this morning and about 8,000,000 gallons of water escaped and flowed down 27th street, flooding the cellars of many houses and doing other damage. The reservoir is 344 feet long by 180 feet wide and is 21 feet deep. A watchman whose duty it is to open a valve when the water reaches a certain height neglected to do so, and the water flowed over the embankment, washing away the earth to such an extent that the break followed. It will cost the city $25,000 to repair the damage.

SIX HUNDRED MILES OF QUEBEC TIMBER SOLD.

Sherbrooke, October 3.—On Saturday last Mr. Theo. P. Burgess, President and General Manager of the Burgess Sulphite Pulp Company, of Berlin Falls, N.H., closed a deal with the Department of Lands, Forests and Fisheries, for the purchase of six hundred square miles of timber limits on the upper St. Maurice River. The sale is an exceptionally good one for the Province of Quebec. Not only will the Government be richer by several hundreds of thousands of dollars, but as the purchasers intend to start lumbering immediately, it will afford work to a large number of men. The Burgess Company intend bringing their pulp wood down the St. Maurice to the St. Lawrence, opposite Three Rivers, where they have secured two miles of deep water beach, and will ship to their mills in Berlin over the Grand Trunk Railway.

SHAMROCKS RECOVER CONDITION AND DEFEAT NEW WESTMINSTERS

Outplayed the Westminsters All Over the Field.

Score Was 8 to 4—Currie and Hoobin Were the Stars.

(Special to The Montreal Herald.)

New Westminster, B.C., October 3.—Shamrocks retrieved themselves yesterday by defeating the local team by 8 goals to 4, and doing it with a dash and style that makes Tuesday's defeat look like a mere lack of condition after a long journey by rail. The Shamrock home was in much better shape, and played a beautiful game. Their passing and shooting was the feature of the day's play. Their defence, too, was much more in evidence. They played with more spirit and checked with a good deal more energy than on Tuesday. They succeeded in holding the New Westminster home down to pretty nearly nothing.

One noticeable feature of the match to-day was that New Westminsters seemed used up by Tuesday's play, while the Shamrocks seemed all the better for it, just as if it had been a final practice.

SHAMROCK CHANGES.

There were a couple of changes on the visiting team. Martin, who played in the poles on Tuesday, gave way to McIlwaine on the team. Kavanagh went into the poles; Howard took Kavanagh's place at first defence, and McIlwaine filled the cover-point position. These changes seemed to strengthen the team. Kavanagh was much superior to Martin in front of the net, and did excellent work behind as well. McIlwaine put up an effective and steady game at cover-point.

HOW MATCH WAS WON.

The Shamrocks won on a general improvement all over the team. It was neither the defence, nor the home, nor the field. It was all of them. On Tuesday the defence played without life, and the local men scored; the home passing was poor, and they couldn't score. Yesterday all was changed. From goal to inside home all played with a vim which proved a surprise to the locals, who were confident of defeating the Easterners.

CURRIE AND HOOBIN.

While all played well, special praise is due to little Johnnie Currie, who was the life of the field, and figured in nearly every scoring play. He and Turnbull had a hard battle of it, but the little fellow came off with the honors. Turnbull had too little support, and he had practically all the fielding to do.

On the home Hoobin was the star. He was off color on Tuesday, but yesterday he more than made up for it. He is the speediest, most skilful and most gentlemanly player that has been seen here. He kept Bob Cheyne in trouble all the time.

Paddy Brennan showed himself a peerless inside home. Clever and speedy, he is afraid of nothing, and took desperate chances with good results for his team.

Finlayson was very effective in the field.

THE LOCAL TEAM.

Westminster's defence did not put up their usual game, and Shamrocks home got inside them. Barlow and Galbraith put up a good steady game, and got good support from Rennie, but at times Tom Gifford did not play up to his usual standard. Cheyne made many fine stops, and Bob got his share of cheers. Gray did not play as well as on Tuesday, and Sandy Cowan was not as quick in passing and dodging, and made several poor passes. Westminster's field would take the rubber into their home, but the latter generally lost to the defence. Harry Latham fielded well, although working far out. His hand bothered him in passing. Biscuits Peele and Charlie Latham played well, and Stan. Peele played very well, his leg bothering him but very little. No deliberate rough play was indulged in by either team, with the exception of a couple of times, when honors were about even.

A CROWD OF 15,000.

The attendance was about fifteen thousand, the largest crowd ever witnessed at any sport in British Columbia, and every point of vantage to see the game was taken long before the hour to line up. About seven thousand came over from Vancouver, and a great many of these were Shamrock supporters and saw that the green shirts had plenty of cheering.

Much money changed hands. After the Shamrock defeat on Tuesday New Westminster became the favorites and many who had bet on Shamrocks on Tuesday backed Westminster to-day and lost for the second time.

Charley Cullen, of Victoria, refereed again.

FINAL GAME SATURDAY.

Mayor Keary issued the following statement last evening:—"I am authorized by the manager of the Shamrock Lacrosse Club to state that the third game will be played on Saturday, October 4, and that the team will leave for Montreal on Sunday, and positively no other games will be played in British Columbia."

Each team has now one match to its credit. But yesterday's play settled the series in many minds. The Shamrocks are confident, and Barney Dunphy says they are sure to win.

The teams lined up as follows at 3.15:

Shamrocks — Kavanagh, McIlwaine, O'Reilly, Howard, Finlayson, Smith, Currie, Robinson, Hoobin, McKeown, J. Brennan, P. Brennan.

Westminster — Cheyne, Gray, Galbraith, Rennie, T. Gifford, C. D. Peele, Turnbull, H. Latham, W. Gifford, Cowan, C. Latham, S. Peele.

When the teams came on the field both were received with loud cheers, and Turnbull, who came on alone a few minutes later, received quite an ovation from his admirers.

The Shamrocks got the ball from the face, and carried it down the field, but did not pass the defence. Westminster carried it down field with a rush, but the Shamrock defence sent it back. Hoobin made a quick shot, but Cheyne made a better stop. The ball was then close in on the net when McKeown slipped it in, amid thunderous cheering. Time, 10 minutes.

The second game did not last long. It was a rush this way and that way when Billy Gifford got an opening and scored for Westminster, and the local supporters took a turn at the cheering. Time, 2 min. 23 secs.

Turnbull scored Westminster's second goal 2 1-2 minutes later on a long shot, which fooled both point and goal man.

McKeown evened the score by making the fourth goal in six minutes.

Finlayson had been awarded a free throw for a foul, passed to Brennan; and then to McKeown, who got in a quick shot, the fifth game going to Shamrock in two minutes. There was quick combination from start to finish, and the Shamrocks did some magnificent work, Paddy Brennan scoring.

The sixth game lasted eight minutes seventeen seconds. The ball was up and down the field. Both defences worked hard and kept the ball out in the field. Howard went to the fence for tripping Cowan. Gifford and Turnbull carried the ball close to the flags, and by well known combination Gifford passed to Latham, who made a throw over the heads of point and cover into the top of the net. This made the score at half-time stand three all, and the excitement was very high.

The Shamrocks started off again with a rush and Robinson scored. Time, 2 1-2 minutes.

The Shamrocks took the eighth game on a long shot by Hoobin, in 15 1-2 minutes. H. Latham was on the fence for giving the knee to his check.

The ninth game was the shortest of all, actual play being only forty seconds. Official time, 1.40. Turnbull took the ball from the draw and it was quickly rushed and all was over. S. Peel scored.

The Shamrocks took the tenth, eleventh and twelfth games in quick succession. The rubber was close on Shamrock net, when Currie got it and like a shot the little centre-fielder was going down the field and passed to Hoobin, who landed in the net. Time, 5 minutes.

The next game was a little longer. Howard was off again for cross-checking H. Latham. Latham's head was cut, but he still played. Biscuits Peele was off for tripping, Gray for cross-checking, and later on T. Gifford, for the second time, for cross-checking. Hoobin scored the eleventh game in seven minutes, and J. Brennan the twelfth and last, in 2 minutes, both on long bounding shots.

The distance between the flags was lengthened 25 feet to-day, and this helped the Shamrocks.

CANADIAN WILL NOT SUCCEED MGR. FALCONI

Agitation for a Local Ablegate Will, it Is Predicted, Fail.

Mgr. Falconio's successor in Canada is still a matter of vague speculation in Roman Catholic circles. There has been some little talk recently of the possibility of some dignitary of the Roman Catholic Church in Canada being appointed. It is held that a Canadian thoroughly conversant with the intricacies of religious questions in the Dominion would be in better position to deal with questions of importance to the Church than a comparative stranger. The possibility of a Canadian bishop being appointed is, however, in the opinion of Montreal Churchmen, very remote. The Vatican it is held would never favor the appointment of a Canadian for obvious reasons. One of the principal duties with which the papal delegate is entrusted is the smoothing over of difficulties and differences of opinion between the clergy and the laity, and even upon occasion the bridging of schisms in the ranks of the clergy. Questions often arise which require absolute impartiality and freedom from prejudice to cope with successfully, and which a Canadian invested with the authority of the papal delegate's office, and, swayed perhaps to some degree by personal or party opinion, would scarcely be qualified to deal with satisfactorily. While nothing whatever is yet known definitely in Montreal regarding Mgr. Falconio's successor, it is believed by those whose opinion must be regarded as authoritative that whatever agitation is carried on for the appointment of a Canadian, if is doomed to failure.

LE JOURNAL CALLS CONTROVERSY ENDED

For some weeks past La Presse and Le Journal have been in the throes of a heated controversy. Le Journal claimed to be the Conservative organ; La Presse said it was the mouthpiece of Hon. R. J. Forget. Le Journal charged La Presse with having deviated from the path of rectitude by supporting Sir Wilfrid Laurier in the election of 1900; La Presse replied that it had always been the protector of the people's interest, that in view of the cut-throat tendencies of the principal organizers of the Conservative party in 1900 it had been forced to support the man who had helped to make the country prosperous. Le Journal said La Presse had sold its services to the Liberals; La Presse said it had maintained its independence.

Le Journal then made a personal attack upon Mr. Arthur Dansereau, editor-in-chief of La Presse. It respected neither the sincerity of his motives nor his private life. Random charges were made concerning Mr. Dansereau's entire political career, principally during his long friendship for Sir J. A. Chapleau. Mr. Dansereau replied over his own signature.

He personally attacked Hon. Senator Forget. The controversy was then carried on regarding certain business relations between the two men. It was marked with particularly bitter violence on both sides.

Last night Mr. Dansereau again pressed his charges.

This morning Le Journal announces that the controversy is called off.

TO TRY ANOTHER PLOW COMBINE.

Chicago, October 3—Another attempt is to be made to combine the principal plow manufacturers of the country into one organization, two previous efforts in that line having failed. Charles H. Deere, of Moline, will be the leading factor in the new movement, according to the Tribune. Copying the plans of last year's organization, the new combine probably will be capitalized at $75,000,000, of which one half will be in seven per cent. cumulative, the other half in common stock, of a par value of $100 per share. There is said to be a good prospect that the project will be accomplished before the end of the year.

CRESCEUS AND DAN PATCH.

They Went Half a Mile Together. Cresceus Failed to Break Record.

Cincinnati, Oct. 2.—Cresceus, George B. Ketcham's champion trotter, made an attempt to lower the world's record at the opening of the Grand Circuit meeting in this city, but failed on account of a bad track. He covered the mile in 2.08, which is the fastest ever hung out on the Oakley track, where the races were held.

Before Cresceus was sent his exhibition mile, he was brought on the track alongside of Dan Patch, the king of pacers, and the two went a half mile together amid wild cheering from the spectators. This is the first time that the champion pacer and champion trotter have ever appeared together on a race track in an exhibition, and the crowd appreciated the treat.

In his exhibition to-day Cresceus was driven by his owner, George H. Ketcham, of Toledo.

The first quarter was made in .32¼ the half in 1.04½, the three-quarters in 1.38¼ and the mile in 2.08.

WOODBINE TRACK RECORD.

Tremar Equalled Best Six-Furlong Time, Doing it in 1.15.

Toronto, Oct. 2.—To-day the Woodbine track was faster than at any time during the meeting, and that it is in pretty good shape was evidenced by the time made by Tremar in the fourth, when she ran the six furlongs in 1.15, and finished two lengths to the good after leading all the way. This equals the track record. The sixth race was split, making seven on the card. Results:

CLOTHIER IS CHAMPION.

Defeated Leonard in the Intercollegiate Finals Yesterday.

Philadelphia, Oct. 3.—W. J. Clothier, of Harvard, and Pennsylvania tennis champion, yesterday won the intercollegiate tennis championship on the grounds of the Merion Cricket Club, at Haverford. Clothier and his college mate, E. W. Leonard, defeated I. J. Wright and E. P. Larned, of Princeton, for the inter-collegiate championship in doubles. In the semi-finals of the doubles, Wright and Larned beat R. King and H. J. Rendall, of Princeton, and in the semi-finals of the singles, Clothier beat W. S. Warland, of Harvard, and Leonard beat R. Bishop, of Harvard. In the final doubles Clothier fell and slightly sprained his ankle, and was unable to do himself justice. He at first hesitated to play Leonard in the single championship match on account of his injury, but after a brief rest he pluckily contested and won the tennis premiership of of the college world in three straight sets, after losing the first set. The summaries:

Individual championship, semi-finals—W. J. Clothier, Harvard, beat W. S. Warland, Harvard, 6—2, 7—5; E. W Leonard, Harvard, beat R. Bishop, Harvard, 9—7, 3—6, 6—1.

Final — W. J. Clothier, Harvard, beat E. W. Leonard, Harvard, 5—7, 6—2, 6—2.

Doubles, semi-final — I. J. Wright and E. P. Larned, Princeton, beat R. King and H. J. Randall, Princeton, 6—2, 7—5.

Final — W. J. Clothier and E. W Leonard, Harvard, beat I. J. Wright and E. P. Larned, Princeton, 6—0, 6—3, 3—6, 7—5.

The Herald Hunters.

The Herald hunters have returned, and not empty-handed either, for a young bull moose, 900 lbs. in weight, was one of their "kills."

On arrival in Montreal they had a very regrettable duty to perform. The youth who wielded the sporting pen during the past week, and who had such an hilarious time writing despatches from the woods, had to be attended to. Before the heavy hunting boots were removed, this duty was well performed, and the festive youth is now an inmate of the General, where he is surrounded by sorrowing friends.

Requiescat in pace.

MONTREAL HUNT STEEPLECHASES

Several Events of Great Interest At Petite Cote To-morrow Afternoon.

The Montreal Hunt steeplechases which will be held to-morrow, October 4th, over the Drummond farm at Petite Cote, promise to be the best in many years. The ground is a little heavy, but this cannot be looked upon as a disadvantage, as, if the pace be a shade slow, the going will be safer. In some of the races a great deal of rivalry exists, and this is especially noticeable in the competition for the "Allan cup," the conditions regulating this contest being that the trophy has to be won three times by the same owner before it finally becomes his property, as two of the principal contestants, Dr. Chas. McEachran and Mr. Colin Campbell have both scored two successes for it the final outcome of to-morrow's trial will be watched with keen interest.

The "Hunt Cup" is also certain to be productive of much speculation as to who will be the successful competitor for what is usually the most interesting event of these autumn meetings. Some of the entries and riders are veterans in cup competition, and this feature will add materially to the keenness of the contest.

The course which is laid over the Drummond farm, and the same as that of last year, is perhaps the best and most sportsmanlike steeplechase course that has been available to the club for many years. It can be reached by carriage, as it is within twenty minutes drive of the post office, or by street cars running up to the head of Papineau Road, which will take passengers to within a short walk of the course.

With fine weather there undoubtedly should be a large gathering of patrons and lovers of the sport.

Lacrosse

This is Cornwall's Idea.

Cornwall, Oct. 3.—Cornwall has suffered more than any other club from referees' decisions, but many prominent lacrosse men are not in favor of the proposed small board of paid referees as a preventive of rough play and unfair decisions. The idea may be all right, but it is more likely to be all wrong. This season has developed several good referees, D. H Reynolds, of Ottawa, James Murphy and P. J. Lally, of Cornwall, for example. This trio has insisted on clean lacrosse and succeeded (in the most difficult matches) in satisfying both teams. Had a board of six referees been appointed last spring these gentlemen would probably not have been heard of as referees. Six official referees is too small a selection. The present system is much better. It is only right that referees should receive a decent sum for their services, but after all to fix a salary is getting pretty far away from the ethics of true sport. After all N.A.L.U. referees receive more remuneration than in the C.L.A. Where they get $5 and five cents mileage one way.

THE OUTREMONT CLUB.

Organization Meeting Was Held Last Evening.—J. Try Davies is President.

The Outremont Golf Club was formally organized at a well-attended meeting held last evening in the Windsor Hotel. It was announced that the farm belonging to the estate Pratt had been leased on favorable terms. Over eighty acres of excellent turf, with fine natural bunkers and hazards, are available for play, and a course of nine holes is to be staked out without delay. The old Bellingham residence, which immediately faces the new links, has been secured as a club house. A constitution and by-laws having been adopted, the following office-bearers were elected:

Hon. president, Hon. Senator Drummond; president, J. Try Davies; vice-president, Mr. Recorder Weir; committee, Henry Brophy, Dr. F. C. L. Lockhart, J. T. McCall, D. A. Dunlop, W. B. Blackader, Cecil T. Gordon, A. F. Dunlop; hon. secretary, H. J. Elliott; hon. treasurer, Henry Fry.

GOVERNOR-GENERAL'S CAMPING TRIP WOULD SHOCK ENGLAND

He Is Up at Batouche in October and Enjoying It Immensely.

Winnipeg, Oct. 3.—Their Excellencies the Governor-General and Countess Minto, with three daughters, arrived at Qu'Appelle on Saturday by the Pacific express, to which their private cars were attached. They were loud in their praises of the luxury of travelling on a transcontinental C.P.R. express. Major Maude, military secretary, and Captains Hughes and Bell were in attendance.

The gubernatorial party are under canvas for a fortnight's hunting, and will rough it generally in real western style. The camp is pitched quite near the battlefield of Batouche, at which engagement Earl Minto was present then as Lord Melgund and aide-de-camp to Gen. Middleton. Ducks and prairie chickens are fat and plentiful this year, and big bags are expected.

The vice-regal couple when they passed Winnipeg looked the picture of good health, and waxed enthusiastic over the beauties, the climate and the prospects of Canada. No one would think of tenting in October in England, but on the prairie such a life was not only manna to the soul of the sportsman, but was delightfully invigorating to man and woman alike.

A FITTING EULOGY.

Both Lord and Lady Minto agreed that since living in the Dominion they and their children as well had all improved in health. His Lordship added: "It's the most health producing climate and the greatest wheat producing country in the world. In the years to come these magnificent prairies will not only produce the food for the Empire, but the men to defend it, if needed. I like the breezy, bracing west, and I admire the strong, robust characters of the men and women who are building up this great portion of the King's dominions. They are building better than they know. I have no doubt about the glorious future of Canada, and I am proud to be numbered among the Canadians."

The Earl and Countess return to Rideau Hall about Nov. 1. They do not expect to leave the Dominion until the appointment of a new Governor-General, which will probably be in November of next year; and then they will say good-bye to Canada with keen regret, and will carry away only pleasant memories.

A LESSON FOR ENGLAND.

If it were known in the Motherland that the Governor and his wife, and daughters, too, forsooth, were living in tents in October, millions of pairs of hands would shoot upwards in holy shivering horror at the thought, and there would be visions of snow, ice and polar bears. It is a fortunate thing that the Dominion has got a Governor who delights in doing as Canadians do, and who, on his return to the United Kingdom will, like the Prince of Wales, help to sweep away the snow and ice myth that sticks in the average English mind like London fog in a colonial's throat.

GOSSIP OF THE "STREET"

Dullness Ahead.

Said a Montreal broker this morning: "I must say I do not look for much activity for the rest of this year. Of course something may turn up and the money situation will be greatly improved, but I am not hopeful of that, and I do not think that any of the bankers are.

"I see no reason why any of our local stocks should suffer any further great depression in value, and under ordinary circumstances I scarcely think we will see much liquidation, but the public cannot figure on the buying side while money keeps as tight as it is now.

"This tight money is inclined to make people pessimistic. That is a mistake. Things are as bright as ever. In almost all departments of commerce we find men down at their desks burning the 'midnight oil,' and I don't believe Canada has ever been as prosperous as it is at this very minute. Stocks would be flying at record-breaking prices now had not this money business cropped up."

$ $ $

It will be some days before the Lake of the Woods Milling Co.'s shares will be put on the market. They will probably be started around 140 or 150, in fact the latter figure has already been freely bid.

$ $ $

Sales of all stocks on the Montreal Exchange, for the 9 months of the year, amount to 2,224,000 shares. This is away ahead of last year, while there has been an increase of nearly $5,000,000 in sales of bonds.

$ $ $

Canadian Pacific.

Canadian Pacific earnings for August beat out emphatically the statements made by traffic officials during that month. The increase of 15 per cent. in gross is due to the belated movement of last year's crops in part, but is even more due to increased prosperity in the Northwest, bringing with it an increase of miscellaneous freight and a great advance in passenger receipts. The tourist traffic over the western division this year surpassed anything in the history of the road, the Imperial Limited service, which was operated throughout the summer, having been overtaxed from the middle of July to the end of August. The question of making the 90-hour service daily was dismissed by the management this year only because the rolling stock was not available.

In expenses, the road is appropriating a great deal more to operating than was the case last year, although last year showed considerable advance over 1900. Apparently the effort to show large net returns has given place to a policy more akin to that of the American Pacific lines. Taking the report of the two months' operations, it may be stated that all indications point to most prosperous conditions on Canadian Pacific.

Coal Earnings.

The net earnings of Dominion Coal for six months ended August 21 were $1,069,000. Dividend requirements under lease of Coal Co. and Dominion Steel Co. are $800,000, leaving a surplus of $269,000.

Money in Wall Street.

A carfeul student of the money market sends us a tabulation of average call money rates in each of the last five years which is not uninteresting. The rates have been as follows:

	First half.	Second half.	Year.
1897	1.62	2.03	1.88
1898	2.13	2.27	2.20
1899	3.59	6.26	4.93
1900	2.90	3.01	2.95
1901	3.88	4.28	4.08
1902	4.33	*5.37	....

*To September 30.

This table shows a continuous advance in call money rates in the last five years. In 1899, the panic in December, materially affected rates causing an abnormally high average for that year. Had this been eliminated, the probability is that the average would have been about 3½ per cent. There was some reaction in 1900, but last year the rate again rose, and in the current year it is clear that the highest average of the six years will be recorded. Of course, this movement in call money rates is entirely consistent with what has taken place in the stock market during the period:—Wall St. Journal.

EYES OF THE FINANCIAL WORLD CENTRED ON THE COAL SITUATION

Both Richelieu and Dominion Coal Were Higher To-day.

Pending some definite news regarding the coal strike, peace and quiet reign in the stock markets.

Up to noon hour only 281,000 shares were traded in in Wall Street, and there was very little done locally.

Things are going pretty much as expected.

Everybody looked for dulness to follow the recent excitement, and the past few days have witnessed a gradual shrinkage in the volume of trading both here and in Wall Street.

$ $ $

Local brokers are not inclined to look for any activity here. A boom in milling shares is not unlikely, however. With the other stocks falling steadily last week, it was noticed that no Ogilvie stock came out, and the few sales that were made were on the same basis, the price showing absolutely no decline.

The Lake of the Woods stock will be on the market in a little while, and big things are predicted for it.

$ $ $

Local stocks were firm to-day, with some pretty strong bidding up around the close, particularly in Richelieu, which opened at 103 3-4 and sold up to 105. There was only scattered trading in the rest of the list, with firm prices. Detroit sold at 90 again, Power at 99, Canadian Pacific at 138 3-4, while Dominion Coal also took a start and kept company with Richelieu by advancing to 135. Montreal Street Railway was firm at 280.

$ $ $

Wall Street seems to be rather optimistic on the strike situation. A wire to W. H. Weir to-day said:—"The street believes that the strike will be settled inside of seven days, that the President arranged the conference with full knowledge that his intervention will be successful, and that the Secretary of the Treasury came to the aid of the banks on the distinct understanding that such pressure would be brought to bear by the large interests in the Street on the operators as to induce them to make some concessions to the miners. This belief caused a strong opening, but the buyers were mostly traders, and commission houses did very little.

The motion to adjourn the Exchange to-morrow was defeated.

FEATURES OF THE MORNING.

All Montreal brokers agree that there is nothing but dullness in sight for some little time.
Wall Street expects to see a speedy settlement of the coal strike.
Markets very dull, but prices are on the firm side.
Money in Wall Street to-day ranged from 7 to 8 per cent.
Sales to noon in Wall Street were 281,000 shares.
Richelieu and Dominion Coal were features of the day locally. Both advanced.
Canadian railroad earnings have begun to show big increases.

Grand Trunk earnings for the week ending September 30th show the handsome increase of $106,543.

$ $ $

L. J. Forget & Co.'s London cable quoted Grand Trunk first at 109 3-4, second at 97 5-8, third at 43 5-8, Canadian Pacific at 142 1-8, Anaconda at 5 1-4, Hudson Bay at 33 1-2.

Mr. C. D. Monk's messages said:—Americans in London weak, 1-4 to 1 per cent. below parity. President confers with hard coal interests to-day. Government cotton report due to-day. 91 per cent. of Eastern Illinois deposited with St. Louis and San Francisco for conversion. Seaboard will insist upon full consideration in L. & N. deal. Wabash concentrating its efforts on completing of Pittsburg entry. Merger rumors in connection with car companies are authoritatively denied. 52 roads third week September earnings increase 14.16 per cent. Generally understood Norfolk will go on 3 per cent. basis this fall. Dear money in Canada checking pool operations in Canadian Pacific. Shortness of fuel becoming serious for New York gas companies. Anthracite production increasing again. Appeal of Osgood in C. F. & I. against Judge Caldwell's decision is denied. Said Reading annual report is ready; will probably be considered at directors' meeting next week. So. Pac. Ry. sued by Government to recover excess over purchase price received from sale of land.

Sub-treasury gained $1,341,000 from banks yesterday; since Friday gained $927,000.

Hocking Valley fourth week September increase $5,924; month increase $36,-682; July 1st to September 30th increase $212,297. Norfolk & Western August gross increase $275,892; net increase $91,463; surplus $72,244. Chicago & Alton August net increase $22,916. Wabash ordered 38 engines for delivery in 1903. Sun says President Roosevelt is determined to end strike either by winning concessions from both sides or by the methods of law.

$ $ $

Robert Meredith & Co. received the following over their private wire from Zimmermann & Forshay, New York:—The market opened with only moderate activity, and the first prices were irregular, half showing losses and the other half gains. St. Paul advanced instantly from the opening, selling up over one per cent. Manahattan was a distinctly strong item, scoring again a gain of nearly two per cent. Pressed Steel rose nearly one point, and the preferred over one. A hopeful feeling exists with regard to the outcome of the conference in Washington. The strike conference was in session twenty minutes this morning, when it was adjourned until 3 p.m., and a statement is shortly expected. It is generally understood that Norfolk & Western will go on a three per cent. basis this fall. American stocks in London this morning were weak and lower fractionally. The conference adjourned after the President had read a statement appealing to both sides to settle the strike. He disclaimed any official authority in the matter, but said that as representing the people in view of the coal famine he urged the casting aside of any claims that either side might set forth and to have them come to some agreement to open the mines and furnish the public with coal. Sales to noon were 281,200 shares. Canadian Pacific in London market closed at 142.

MAYOR WILL EXPOSTULATE WITH PROVINCIAL GOVERNMENT

Wants it to Pay Its Share in Maintaining Wards of the Public.

Not long since Mayor Cochrane had placed before him a list of 140 children at the Montfort Institute whom it was thought desirable should be recommitted for a longer period of tuition than they had already experienced.

But His Worship refused to sign the necessary documents until a minute examination had been made of each case to see whether the parents could not be located.

The clerk of the Recorder's Court has just submitted his report. Out of the total, 105 are absolute orphans, neither of their parents being discoverable. Of the balance the parents have either decamped to parts unknown or are incapable of supporting their children.

Mayor Cochrane now has twenty-four new applications on the waiting list, but none of these, he says, will be committed until they have been subjected to a similar searching enquiry.

Already, he pointed out, the parents of six had been discovered, and these had been forced to support their children, either at home or pay the fee at the institute.

The Mayor anticipates that in the end the city will only have to foster about two.

For the maintenance of each child sent to Montfort the city pays $72 annually, or on the batch of 140 mentioned, $10,080.

Besides this amount the corporation subscribes $40,000 to various other orphans' homes for similar services.

Formerly the Provincial Government used to meet one-half of this expense, but for the past three years it has subscribed nothing.

The Mayor is going to see why this change has taken place, and will insist that the Provincial Government does its share in sustaining these wards of the public.

COMBINE WILL NOT RAISE CABIN RATES

(Special to The Montreal Herald.)

New York, Oct. 3.—Gustav Schwab, agent of the North German Lloyd line, said yesterday: "We are now arranging our sailings for next year, and any economies to be effected as a result of our agreement with the shipping combination are a private part of our business and do not concern the public. Our attitude toward the travelling public will in no wise be changed even when the ships of the combination are carrying passengers under their new management. We will continue to run fast ships.

"As an interested party, I cannot give any of the details that are known to me. One thing I can say positively, our rates will not be advanced for first cabin passengers. Any change that may be made will be in winter rates. I don't say they will be changed."

Because of the fact that the Harland & Wolff Shipbuilding Company of Belfast acquired in February last a large number of shares of the Holland-America line stock, it is believed that that company may be counted in as practically a part of the combination, at least in so far as sailings and rates are concerned. The company was authorized in February last to increase its capital stock from 8,000,000 to 20,000,000 guilders, but only 4,000,000 guilders of the new stock was issued. All or a large part of this stock was taken up by the Harland & Wolff Company.

MUNICIPALITIES MAY TAKE WOOD FROM ONTARIO LANDS

(Special to The Montreal Herald.)

Toronto, Oct. 3.—A deputation of citizens waited on Premier Ross and the Cabinet to-day with a view to getting assistance to tide the people through the fuel famine.

Mr. Ross agreed to allow the various municipalities in the Province, where distress might exist, to take wood from the Crown Lands upon payment of stumpage dues.

FELL AND BROKE HIS BACK.

James McEwan, of Galt, Was Shingling His Own Roof, But Slipped.

Galt, Oct. 3.—James McEwan, North Water Street, was shingling a house on Beverley Street, and while carrying a package of shingles on the slippery roof fell over the edge, 30 feet. Mr. R. L. Murray, who lives in the adjoining house on Beverley Street, heard a groan and then the words, "Come, quick." He hastened into the yard and found Mr. McEwan lying helpless.

"Don't touch me," gasped the injured man; "I am dying; my back is broken."

"Can't you move your legs?" Murray asked.

"No," was the response. "They are dead."

Mr. McEwan was taken to Galt hospital, and examination showed his back to be broken. His body is paralyzed, but he is perfectly conscious. Mr. McEwan is a widower with two children.

CHAMPION BEAT MISS GORHAM.

Ideal Weather for the First Time in the Women's National Golf Tournament.

Brookline, Mass., October 3.—For the first time since play began in the Women's National Golf Tournament at the Country Club, the sun rose bright, so that the four players left in the contest came out this morning to find almost ideal golfing conditions.

Miss Hecker, the present champion, won her match with Mrs. Gorham, of Philadelphia, four up and two to play.

Miss Wells, of the local club, won her match with Mrs. Fox, of Morristown, N. J., two up.

PAVEMENT WILL BE LAID.

Ald. Valliere announced this morning that, since the meeting of the Road Committee yesterday, it had been decided to lay the asphalt block pavement in front of the G. T. R. offices immediately. The city will pay the advanced price demanded by the New York concern.

STOCKS BROKE!

Stocks broke about 2 to 3 points all round at the close this afternoon, due to the fact that officials of the United States Treasury say Secretary Shaw's plan for the relief of the money market is illegal.

The market was very excited, but showed a slight disposition to recover after the lowest figures had been reached.

The Montreal market was lower all round, in line with New York.

FEATURES OF THE CATTLE BUSINESS

At the East End Abattoir market the offerings of live stock were 500 cattle, 500 sheep, 500 lambs, and 50 calves. An easier feeling prevailed in the market, and prices for the best beeves were fully 1-4c per lb. lower than on Monday, which reduction was to some extent due to the recent weakness in the Toronto market, and the fact that supplies here of late have been in excess of requirements. A feature of the market was the demand for feeders for shipment west, and quite a number of young steers weighing betweeen 900 to 1,000 lbs. were bought at 3c per lb. for this purpose. The demand for butchers was slow, as most of them made their purchases yesterday. Trade on the whole was slow, and at the close some were left over. The best beeves offered sold at 4 1-4c; fairly good at 3 1-2c to 4c; fair at 3c to 3 1-4c, and common at 2c to 3c per lb. There was a good demand for sheep and lambs from both local and export buyers, and as the supply was fairly large an active trade was done at steady prices. Sheep sold at 2 3-4c to 3 1-2c, and lambs at 3 1-4c to 3 3-4c per lb. Calves met with a fair sale at prices ranging from $3 to $12 each.

At the Montreal stock yards at Point St. Charles, the receipts of live hogs were fair and the tone of the market was weaker in sympathy with a recent decline in Toronto of 25c per 100 lbs. The demand was fair and sales of choice lots were made at 6 1-2c; lights and fats at 6 1-4c, and stores at 6c per lb.

SUGAR MARKET

The tone of the market is firm, and if prices of raw beet sugar improve still further it is more than probable that values for refined here will go higher. At the factory granulated is selling at $3.70, and yellows at $3.05 to $3.50 per 100 lbs., as to quality.

FEATURES OF THE MONTREAL MARKET

GRAIN.—There is a moderate demand for oats, and prices are pretty firm. No. 2 white oats on spot sold at 32 3-4c to 33c, and for prompt shipment at 32 1-2c, while round lots for October delivery were offered at 32c afloat. There was some enquiry for peas, and sales of a few car lots were made at 76 1-2c afloat. Rye has been weaker, and prices in consequence have been reduced 1c per bushel with offerings at 54 1-2c afloat, but even at this figure sellers find it difficult to effect sales. In buckwheat there is nothing doing on account of the small offerings and prices are nominally quoted at 54c to 54 1-2c afloat. Barley remains quiet with prices unchanged at 46c afloat for No. 3 and at 47c for No. 3x.

FLOUR.—There is a steady demand for all grades, and both millers and dealers report a fair amount of business passing at steady prices. Choice Manitoba spring wheat patents, $4; seconds, $3.70 to $3.80; strong bakers', $3.30; winter wheat patents, $3.75 to $4; straight rollers, $3.65 to $3.70; do., in bags, $1.70 to $1.80; extras, $1.60 to $1.65.

MEAL.—A somewhat easier feeling has developed in the market for rolled oats, in sympathy with the recent reduction in the price of oats. The demand is still limited and business quiet at $4.40 to $4.50 per barrel and at $2.10 to $2.15 per bag.

FEED.—In Manitoba feed the feeling is easy, and it is reported that prices for both bran and shorts have been cut 50c per ton, with sales of the former at $15.50 and the latter at $21.50 per ton. Manitoba bran, in bags, at $15.50 to $16; shorts, in bags, $21.50 to $22; Ontario bran, in bulk, $14.50 to $15; shorts, $22, in bulk; mouille, $23 to $30, according to quality.

HAY.—There was no change in the condition of the market for baled hay, which rules steady on account of small receipts and the good demand for the same from both local and export buyers. No. 1, $8.50; No. 2, $7.50 to $8; clover, $7 to $7.50 per ton, in car lots.

CHEESE.—A firm feeling is noticed in cheese, and prices were whooping in the country, where equal to over 11c was paid. Finest Ontario, 10 3-4c to 10 7-8c; finest Townships, 10 5-8c to 10 3-4c; finest Quebec, 10 1-2c to 10 5-8c; fine cheese, 10c to 10 1-8c.

BUTTER.—The butter market continued dull with lower prices accepted, as sales of finest Townships were made at 20 3-4c, and this was certainly the outside figure to-day. Fancy Townships creamery, 20 3-4c; finest Townships creamery, 20 3-8c to 20 1-2c; finest Quebec creamery, 20 1-4c to 20 3-8c; fine creamery, 19 3-4c to 20c; Ontario creamery, 19c; dairy butter, 15 1-2c to 16c; dairy seconds, 14c to 14 1-2c.

EGGS.—There is a pretty good demand for eggs, and prices are steady. Selected eggs are quoted at 19c to 19 1-2c; candled stock, 17c to 17 1-2c in a jobbing way; straight receipts at 16c to 16 1-2c; No. 2 at 14c to 14 1-2c in round lots.

BEANS.—There was no change in beans, for which the demand, in a jobbing way, is fair, and sales of primes were made at $1.25 to $1.30 per bushel.

MAPLE PRODUCT—The tone of the market for maple product was steady, but the demand is still limited for all lines. Syrup, in large tins, 70c to 80c; small tins, 50c to 60c; in wood, 5c to 5 1-2c per lb. Sugar, 7c to 8c per lb.

HONEY.—A fair supply of honey continues to come forward, for which the demand is steady, and prices are unchanged at 11c to 11 1-2c for white clover in comb, and at 7 1-2c to 8c for white strained per lb. Very little buckwheat honey has come forward up to the present.

POTATOES—Owing to increased receipts of potatoes an easier feeling has prevailed in the market, and prices have been reduced 5c per bag. The demand is good, and sales of car lots were made at 65c per bag, and in a jobbing way at 75c to 80c.

ASHES.—The market for ashes was quiet, and prices unchanged. We quote firsts $4.35 to $4.40; seconds, $3.60, and pearl, $6.25 per 100 lbs.

CHEESE BOOMS AT THE BOARDS

Brockville, Oct. 2.—There was a representative attendance of buyers and sellers at the regular meeting of the Brockville cheese board yesterday afternoon, with President Rath in the chair. The buyers present were: Messrs. McGregor, Howe, Virkler, Dickey, Bissell, Webster, Derbyshire and Earl. The total offerings were 3,438, of which 2,008 were colored and 1,430 white. Mr. Bissell opened the bidding at 10 1-4c, which was rapidly advanced, the first calls being made at 10 3-4c by Messrs. Howe and Vickler, which the salesmen refused. Mr. Virkler offered 10 7-8c, and Messrs. Howe, Bissell, Webster, Derbyshire and Dickey followed suit. The salesmen had an ideal of the market and it took a lot of persuasion to induce them to accept 10 7-8c. One by one they dropped into line, but nearly one-half refused on the hope of doing better on the curb. The total sales were 600 white, 1,248 colored, divided as follows: Bissell, 210 white, 208 colored; Webster, 140 white and 60 colored; Derbyshire, 250 white and 890 colored. After adjournment the board price prevailed, and the demand being keen every every box was disposed of, bringing the total sales to 6,400, divided as follows: Bissell, 1,800; Webster, 800; Dickey, 700; Earal, 500; Howe, 1,400; Derbyshire, 1,200.

Vankleek Hill, Oct. 2.—There were 853 boxes of cheese boarded here to-day, and all sold at 10 3-4c, except 70 boxes, which were not sold on the board. The buyers expected to get cheese for 10 1-2c to 10 5-8c, but the salesmen would not listen to this price. After repeated calls at 10 5-8c, Welsh bid 10 11-16c, but could not get a box. McRae then made 10 3-4c and got 526, Fraser 130, and Welsh 113. The make has fallen off a great deal during the past two weeks.

Tweed, Oct. 2.—Cheese board met here to-day; 670 cheese boarded. Watkins bought 200; Alexander bought 375, at 10 3-4c. Balance unsold.

Kingston, Oct. 2.—At the Frontenac cheese board to-day 806 boxes colored and 200 white were boarded. Sales, 460 boxes at 10 5-8c.

OCEAN FREIGHTS FROM MONTREAL

There has been no improvement in the demand for ocean grain room since this day week; in consequence the market is dull, but the undertone is steady and agents show little disposition to shade asking rates, which are considered high by exporters in comparison with those ruling for mother ports. This is one of the causes for the dullness which prevails in the market, as they claim that the bids received from abroad for grain will not permit them in paying the high rates asked; therefore, some of them have been obliged to turn their attention to other ports, where they obtained reasonable rates. Another cause has been the recent sharp advance in grain prices in the Chicago market which has checked business on western account considerable. All the room to some ports from here has been engaged for October, but to others there is still some offering while there has been nothing done for November shipment yet.

A CHANCE FOR BUTCHERS' CATTLE

The drovers in Montreal are pleased over the fact that a lot of cattle are being bought up and shipped as feeders. This gives a better chance to market good butchers' stock. Mr. Charles F. Mitchell, of Cobourg, has bought eighteen car loads in the last month on Montreal market. The animals ran from 900 to 1,200 lbs., and were shipped west to be fattened for export. Mr. Mitchell also has been buying in the Ottawa district. Mr. Albert Seeley, of Stirling, Ont., has also bought feeders here and shipped two carloads to Buffalo, N.Y., last week. This is the first shipment of the season to that point. Mr. Mitchell and Mr. Seeley both intend to continue buying such cattle.

BRIDES, WIVES AND WIDOWS.

One of the most sensible bridal customs prevails in France, where it is a rule for the bridesmaids, at the conclusion of the marriage ceremony, to make collections for the poor, which are then handed over to the priest for distribution.

In England—in the northern counties—it was formerly customary on a marriage to wind up with a race for a ribbon, which the bridegroom handed over on leaving the church. All the racers, winner and losers alike, were entitled to a glass of spirits each.

In Jewish weddings the ceremony is almost the same to-day as it has been for centuries. After the marriage has been completed and the ring placed on the bride's finger, both husband and wife take a sip of wine from a goblet held by the rabbi, after which the husband, taking the glass in his hands, purposely drops it and crushes it with his heel. The rabbi then says: "No more than this glass can be united again can this couple be separated."

One of the most curious customs respecting widows is the Corsican one of blindfolding. For one week after a Corsican lady becomes a widow she must wear a strip of thick, black woollen material tied over her eyes. During that period she must be fed and led about by the hands of her friends. All chairs in the room must be turned down; while windows and doors are made fast. The room is not touched for a week, neither may any fire be lighted in the widow's house.

ATTORNEY-GENERAL KNOX WILL ALSO BE PRESENT

He and Carroll D. Wright the Only Parties at the Conference Beside Roosevelt and Coal People.

Washington, October 3.—It has been decided that Attorney-General Knox shall attend the conference between the President, the coal operators and Mr. Mitchell, of the Miners' Union. He will be the only member of the Cabinet who will be present. Carroll D. Wright, commissioner of labor, who recently made an investigation of the strike situation, also will attend on the invitation of the President. While everyone connected with the administration is extremely reticent concerning the coming conference, there is a feeling of hope among those close to the President that it is going to result in the settlement of the strike. This hope is based on the acuteness of the situation and the necessity that exists for a settlement, along with the known determination of the President to bring about a settlement of the great labor controversy if such a thing is possible.

MITCHELL HAS HOPES.

Wilkesbarre, Pa., October 3.—President Mitchell, of the United Mine Workers, accompanied by District Presidents Nicholls, Duffy and Fahey, left here last evening for Washington via Philadelphia. Mr. Mitchell conferred with the district presidents during the day. It is not known what policy the executive board of the miners' union will pursue at the conference. Mr. Mitchell declined to express any opinion. All he would say was that he hoped for the best. General feeling is, however, that President Roosevelt will succeed in bringing both parties together.

CHARGE BY MITCHELL.

The following telegram was sent by President Mitchell to the three anthracite district secretaries:—

"There has been placed in my hands indisputable evidence of an attempt on the part of the operators to create discord among our non-English speaking members, through the circulation of pamphlets containing malicious and dastardly attacks upon the officers of the organization, and by an effort to arouse race prejudices. These circulars will be printed in all the foreign languages, and will be signed by a person designating himself "A friend." I will notify all district and local officers to be on their guard. It is especially important that our non-English speaking brothers be informed of this conspiracy. John Mitchell."

SCENE OF DISORDER.

Wilkesbarre, October 3.—The mining town of Plymouth which has been free from any disturbance since the strike began, was the scene of much disorder yesterday. Mobs surrounded the Sterling and North American washeries, and Sheriff Jacobs being unable to disperse them summoned the military. Col. Dougherty sent three companies of the Ninth Regiment to the scene, and they arrested eleven men charged with rioting. They were brought before Magistrate Pollock, of this city, who held them in $1,000 bail each for trial at court.

A strong guard was placed over the washeries at night. They are expected to resume operations to-day.

The washery at the Hollenbeck mine started up work yesterday. This was a surprise to the strikers. Despite the conference called to meet at Washington, the operators in the Wyoming Valley are very aggressive.

A GOOD SIGN.

Harrisburg, October 3.—The Philadelphia & Reading Railroad Company has notified its employes in Harrisburg who are heads of families that they will be supplied with one ton of anthracite coal each at $4.25 per ton in less than ten days.

APPLYING ANTI-TRUST LAW.

Albany, N.Y., October 2.—Attorney-General Davies announced to-day that he had granted the application of the New York American and Journal that the coal operators be summoned to appear before him and show cause why proceedings should not be instituted against them under the Donnelly anti-trust law. A hearing will be given in this city Wednesday, October 8, at 2 p.m.

ANOTHER STRIKE.

Birmingham, Ala., October 3.—Twenty-five hundred miners in the employ of the Tennessee Coal, Iron & Railroad Company stopped work yesterday on orders from the executive board of the United Mine Workers of America, district of Alabama. The suspension is due to the refusal of the operators to collect for the union the one dollar a week assessment made on all union miners for the benefit of the anthracite strikers in Pennsylvania. It is probable that the Blue Creek and Blockton mines of the Tennessee Company also will be involved if an adjustment is not soon reached.

About two weeks ago the Tennessee company declined to withhold the assessment money from certain miners at West Pratt, who objected to its payment, and 500 men at that mine were ordered out. To-day's suspension brings the total number now out up to 3,000. The miners of the Schloss-Sheffield Steel & Iron Company are holding a mass meeting at Cardiff to-day to determine what course they will pursue.

STRANGER THAN FICTION.

A Remedy Which Has Revolutionized the Treatment of Stomach Troubles.

The remedy is — heralded as a wonderful discovery nor yet a secret patent medicine, neither is it claimed to cure anything except dyspepsia, indigestion and stomach troubles with which nine out of ten suffer.

The remedy is in the form of pleasant tasting tablets or lozenges, containing vegetable and fruit, essences, pure aseptic pepsin (government test), golden seal and diastase. The tablets are sold by druggists under the name of Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets. Many interesting experiments to the digestive power of Stuart's tablets show that one grain of the active principle contained in them is sufficient to thoroughly digest 3,000 grains of raw meat, eggs and other wholesome food.

Stuart's Tablets do not act upon the bowels like after dinner pills and cheap cathartics, which simply irritate and inflame the intestines without having any effect whatever in digesting food or curing indigestion.

If the stomach can be rested and assisted in the work of digestion it will very soon recover its normal vigor, as no organ is so much abused and overworked as the stomach.

This is the secret, if there is any secret, of the remarkable success of Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets, a remedy practically unknown a few years ago and now the most widely known of any treatment for stomach weakness.

This success has been secured entirely upon its merits as a digestive pure and simple because there can be no stomach trouble if the food is promptly digested.

Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets act entirely on the food eaten, digesting it completely, so that it can be assimilated into blood, nerve and tissue. They cure dyspepsia, water brash, sour stomach, gas and bloating after meals, because they furnish the digestive power which weak stomachs lack, and unless that lack is supplied it is useless to attempt to cure by the use of "tonics," "pills" and cathartics which have absolutely no digestive power.

Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets can be found at all drug stores, and the regular use of one or two of them after meals will demonstrate their merit better than any other argument.

ROBB ENGINE COMPANY.

Halifax, Oct. 3.—The Robb Engine Company, of Amherst, are going to establish a business in the United States. The firm will be known as the Robb-Mumford Boiler Company, and will engage in the manufacture of marine boilers of the same type as now made at Amherst. On account of the protective tariff, the firm at present cannot compete with American firms. D. W. Robb is president of the new company, and associated with him is John F. Stairs and a number of other Nova Scotians. J. E. Mumford, of New York, will be the general superintendent of the works, which will be located in the State of New York. The new company was incorporated under the laws of New Jersey four weeks ago.

HAS CHINA COME OUT AHEAD AGAIN?

Shanghai, October 3.—The drought throughout China threatens to become serious.

Local discussion by merchants of the British commercial treaty negotiated by Sir James Mackay, the English commissioner, continues unfavorable. Recent signs show that China expects that the new destination-tax will equal in revenue the Likin which was abolished, and that she will have a new surtax in addition. This is regarded as a distinct triumph for Chinese diplomacy.

THE DIVORCE QUESTION AGITATES CAUGHNAWAGA

(Special to The Montreal Herald.)

Caughnawaga, October 3.—Dr. Angus Patton, Indian, and ex-chief councillor of this reserve, returned last Sunday from Chicago, where, it is stated, he was married to Mrs. Young, the wife of the dentist of that name of Montreal. Mrs. Young obtained a divorce in the United States from her husband on the ground of cruelty, so states a Chicago despatch. This is the first time among the Caughnawagas that a member of the tribe has married a divorced woman. Indians are much exercised as to whether such an innovation be allowed on the reserve.

Over fifty men left this week to pass the winter cutting timber in the lumber camps near Georgian Bay.

EXPLOSION IN A HARDWARE STORE

Unexplained Accident at Fredericton Nearly Costs a Life.

(Special to The Montreal Herald.)

Fredericton, N.B., October 2.—The hardware store of Jos. S. Neill was the scene of a serious gunpowder explosion this afternoon. J. Stewart Neill, son of the proprietor, was sweeping a room on the second floor, where a quantity of gunpowder was stored, and was seriously injured by the explosion, the flesh on his hands, arms and legs being quite badly lacerated. Some of the front windows were blown out, and the building inside was considerably shattered. The cause of the explosion is unknown. The room was quickly in flames, but these were extinguished before further damage was done.

DIDN'T-KNOW-IT-WAS-LOADED NEARLY CAUSES TRAGEDY.

What might have been a double tragedy occurred this afternoon at Nashwaaksis, a village two miles distant from this city. A married man named Willis, starting on a partridge hunt, playfully pointed his gun at his wife and a Mrs. Bailey, exclaiming, "I'll shoot you."

He pulled the trigger, and a portion of the charge struck the women, wounding them slightly. Fortunately as he discharged the weapon he elevated the muzzle, and the greater part of the charge passed over their heads. He did not know the gun was loaded.

NOT FOR CANADIANS.

"Sixteen Commissions" Dream About New Halifax Garrison Regiment is Rudely Dispelled.

(Special to The Montreal Herald.)

Ottawa, Oct. 3.—In regard to the report that sixteen commissions in the Imperial regiment, the 5th Garrison Regiment, that has come to Halifax are to be given to Canadians, the deputy-minister of militia says that there are only two or three vacancies in the regiment, but that sixteen of the disbanded Canadian regiment have applied for commissions, and their applications have been forwarded to the War Office. Some of them may get the commissions vacant in the Halifax regiment, and it may be that the others will get commissions in other imperial regiments.

Chicago, Oct. 3.—The annual convention of the National Republican League was called to order in the First Regiment armory here yesterday. About 400 delegates were present, representing the auxiliary leagues of the various states.

Before the convention opened to-day it was commonly admitted that the nomination of President Roosevelt in 1904 would be endorsed.

HEARST, OF JOURNAL TAMMANY DELEGATE

W. S. Devery Made a Speech Seconding His Nomination.

New York, October 3.—Conventions were held last night in the Congressional districts within the boroughs of Manhattan, the Bronx and Richmond. Interest in the nominations centred in that to be held in the 11th district by the Democrats, because the Tammany leaders had announced earlier in the day that William S. Devery and his delegates would not be allowed seats in the convention. Devery, on hearing this, sent an emissary to the hall. He threatened mandamus proceedings. Before the convention, Secretary Smith, of Tammany, announced that the leaders recognized the legality of the election of the Devery delegates, and that they would be given seats.

The nomination went by acclamation to William Randolph Hearst, editor and proprietor of the New York American. He was placed in nomination by former State Senator T. C. O'Sullivan, and William S. Devery made a speech, seconding the nomination.

THE ALBANIAN REVOLUTION.

Sophia, Bulgaria, October 3.—The revolutionists hold all the passes besides Monastir, a suburb of which town they have burned. The Bulgarian force have withdrawn and thrown up barricades. The Turkish troops have mounted sixty guns outside the town, and threaten to bombard it. It is reported that Albanians in Ochrida have massacred the Christian inhabitants. Strong revolutionary bands have marched south of Monastir, and sacked three villages inhabited by Turks. The railway from Solonica has been destroyed near the village of Krominitza.

NEWFOUNDLAND'S NAVAL RESERVES.

St. John's, Nfld., Oct. 3.—The British Admiralty is so satisfied with the success of the naval reserve movement among Newfoundland fishermen that it has decided to double the contingent which has enlisted for a six months' cruise this winter in the Caribbean Sea. The cruisers Charybdis and Ariadne, the latter the flag ship on the station, will each take fifty naval reserves. The Admiralty has agreed to station the naval reserve training ship Calypso at St. John's instead of Placentia Bay, because of the superior advantages for enrolling volunteers here.

NEW YORK COADJUTOR-BISHOP.

Utica, N.Y., October 3.—Charles Tyler Olmsted, until recently the vicar of St. Agnes Chapel, New York, was created bishop-coadjutor of the Episcopal Church in the diocese of Central New York, in Grace Church, this city, yesterday. The consecration service was a most imposing one. The venerable Bishop Huntington, of Syracuse, presided and the sermon was preached by Bishop Henry C. Potter, of New York. Over 300 prominent clergymen frm different sections of the country were in attendance.

NEWFOUNDLAND REVENUES.

St. John's, Nfld., Oct. 3.—The revenue of the colony for the quarter ended September reaches a total of $550,000, which is $20,000 more than the revenue for the corresponding quarter of last year. The revenue for this quarter of 1901 was the largest ever collected during any three months in the colony's fiscal history. The prosperity of Newfoundland is now greater than ever, and all branches of business are booming.

STANDS FIRM ON EDUCATION BILL

No Truth in the Rumor That Mr. Balfour's Obnoxious Measure Will be Withdrawn.

London, Oct. 3.—Replying last evening to an enquiry whether it was true that the Government intended to withdraw its education bill, Premier Balfour authorized the statement that "there is no foundation whatever for this rumor."

A similar denial was made by Colonial Secretary Chamberlain, who added with reference to the attitude of the Birmingham Liberal-Unionists, that "only two hundred persons attended the meeting of the opponents of the bill."

DEMAND FOR WITHDRAWAL.

The general body of the Presbyterian and Baptist independent ministers, at a special meeting last evening, adopted a resolution calling upon the Government to withdraw the education bill and declaring: "We will do everything in our power to defeat the reactionary, tyrannical proposals of the measure, which vast numbers of loyal subjects will be conscientiously compelled to resist to the utmost, even to refusing the payment of rates."

MADAME ZOLA SAW HUSBAND.

Heartrending Scene at the House of Deceased Author.—The Will is Found.

Paris, October 3.—Madame Zola was allowed to see the body of her husband yesterday. A large crowd assembled in front of the house, saluted her respectfully as she alighted from a carriage, assisted by two doctors. She was attired in deep mourning, and was evidently very weak. Zola's publishers and some of his intimate friends accompanied her to the mortuary chamber. When her husband's features were uncovered Madame Zola's anguish was heartrending. She finally swooned.

The will of Emile Zola was found, as indicated by Mme. Zola, in his bedroom, the seals of which were broken in order to obtain the document. The room was immediately sealed up again. The will was not opened until a late hour this evening, and its contents have not been made public. It is understood, however, that M. Zola left everything to his wife. He left no literary testament, and the will contains no directions as to M. Zola's funeral.

A. R. MacDonnell Got Them After All. Must do Sixty Miles Next Year.

The price will not be made known until the contract is signed. Mr. MacDonnell has had many years' experience; has built railways under Mackenzie and Mann, and has been identified with Mr. Hogan, of Ottawa, in contracts on the Canadian Pacific and in a contract for a dock and pier at Port Colborne for the Dominion Government. The present contract covers 11 miles. The commission will furnish rails, fast rings and superstructures for the Montreal River bridge. The first sixty miles are to be constructed by December 31, 1903.

FRENCH RELIGIOUS HOUSES TO SETTLE IN MANITOBA

Ottawa, Oct. 3.—(Special.)—The archbishops began to disperse yesterday after their annual gathering. Archbishop O'Connor and Bishop Decelles left in the morning. Archbishop Gauthier has gone to visit a sick relative at Alexandria. Archbishop Begin, of Quebec, paid a visit to the convent of the Grey Nuns yesterday, and celebrated the mass of the day. Archbishop Langevin, of St. Boniface, officiated yesterday at the ceremony of the closing of the annual retreat of the students of the University of Ottawa. He was assisted by a large number of clergy, and the ceremony, enhanced by pleasing music and illuminations of the chapel, was of a brilliant character. During his stay in Ottawa Archbishop O'Brien, of Halifax, is the guest of his brother-in-law, Mr. J. W. Hughes, Concession street.

Two of the religious communities expelled from France, by the law of associations, have applied to Archbishop Langevin for permission to settle in Manitoba. The Archbishop has granted his consent.

Mr. Nicholls is billed to address a series of mass meetings in Toronto next week, and the outcome of the challenge is awaited with interest. Mr. Nicholls is the prohibition speaker who debated with Sir Henri Joly de Lotbiniere, E. King Dodds and others in the Dominion plebiscite.
