SURE FEELS LIKE WINTER—Yesterday's snowfall may be an early warning for a long, cold winter. The chilly wind had the all too familiar touch from last year and blew with great gusts at times. The field above displayed the white stuff in contrast to the half-cut crop of silage corn. The photo was taken just outside the Lennoxville town limits.

Protestant boards to contest Bill 22

By MICHAEL ISAACS
Record Reporter

SHERBROOKE—The Quebec Association of Protestant School Boards (QAPSB) voted overwhelmingly this weekend to test the constitutionality of Bill 22.

The QAPSB, grouping 34 regional and sector Protestant school boards which dispensed education to nearly 130,000 students during the 1973-74 school year, made the decision at its annual general membership meeting in Longueuil. The vote was 46 for, four against, two abstentions — ballots are weighed in accordance with school board size so that the Protestant School Board of Greater Montreal, for instance, has eight votes.

Voting delegates for the Eastern Townships Regional School Board, the Lennoxville District School Board and the St. Francis Protestant School Board supported the resolution.

According to Lorne Eastman, QAPSB director representing the ETRSB, the legal test of the bill may take five years and $250,000-$500,000 before it has finally worked its way through lower courts and to the Supreme Court of Canada. "The association's legal counsellors have recommended that we move for declaratory judgment under Article 43 of the Code of Civil Procedure of Quebec," Eastman asserted, "because of public statements by Prime Minister Trudeau in which he indicated he would not be favorable to a request for disallowance of the bill by the Governor-General in Council."

QAPSB counsel — T.P. Howard, Jean Martineau, Peter M. Laing and Frank R. Scott — also rejected the possibility of petitioning for a reference case before the Supreme Court because the federal cabinet would have to prepare the questions for submission to the court, Eastman noted. "They did remark, however, that a request for disallowance would give us nationwide publicity and would enable us to put forward our concerns about the legislation," he added.

QAPSB constituent boards have until November 20 to indicate, by resolution, to the association whether they are willing to be named as plaintiffs in possible civil actions. Actions would have to be brought by individual boards since the QAPSB, as a corporate body, is not permitted to do so, Eastman declared. He reported that QAPSB counsel has recommended that several actions, hitting at different clauses of the recently adopted language legislation, be brought simultaneously by different boards.

"The general meeting adopted the resolution that any challenges by school boards would be limited to matters of educational concern and of employer-employee relations," Eastman said.

Financing of the undertaking will be managed by QAPSB administrators. Eastman observed that the association has received a grant of $50,000 from the Pan-Canada Foundation, a non-profit organization incorporated under federal charter with a view to the protection of minority rights within Canada and with a special interest in educational welfare.

He claimed several organizations, including the Canadian School Trustees Association, have offered moral and financial assistance. A consortium, comprising the following groups, has been formed to collect public subscriptions: the Quebec Federation of Home and School Associations, Canadian Jewish Congress, Federation of Italian Associations; a representative of the Greek community; a representative from other minority ethnic groups; the group of McGill lawyers; QAPSB; the Quebec Association of School Administrators; the Provincial Association of Protestant Teachers; the Quebec Association of Catholic Administrators; the Association of Directors of English Schools; the Committee for coordination of Anglophone Catholic Education; the Provincial Association of Catholic Teachers; the Verdun Anglophone Committee; and the Canadian Polish Congress.

QAPSB will maintain control of the consortium, and will direct it into such areas as public relations, legal considerations, and preparation of proposals for reforming the bill, Eastman observed. Noting that all subscribers are presently from Montreal, he claimed: "People just don't know about it in the rural areas, but we have been thinking that there should be participation from the Eastern Townships. You know, if parents across Quebec would contribute $1 per family we could have the $500,000 easily."

The association has been actively involved in the consideration of whether to proceed with a legal battle for several months, and Eastman affirmed the work actually began when Bill 63 was brought into effect. Two opinions have been prepared by QAPSB since the introduction of Bill 22, upon first reading and after royal assent had been granted to the legislation's final form.

During the most recent period of analysis, the association sought opinions from experts in the fields of politics, managerial economics, sociology and education, Eastman remarked. According to the report of the QAPSB steering committee which prepared the information and sought legal advice for presentation at the weekend general meeting, the political commentator saw the clauses regarding education as "window-dressing" and claimed: "The sources of the education-related clauses were the teachers' unions' intent on securing jobs for their members."

The analyst also argued the government may use allocation of grants as a tool to "manipulate" educational institutions into conforming to government direction.

The managerial economics analyst claimed, according to the report, that many companies would have moved their head offices if there were not a significant cost involved. "The large companies accurately appraise the costs attributable to implementing the legislation and the cost of moving and make their decisions on basis of comparative cost," the report continued.

The commentator also predicted 100,000 jobs will be affected by the exodus caused by the legislation, if it is uncontested, and argued that 500,000 persons will move out of the province. "If Quebec were to separate," he continued, "its economy could not support a city of 2.5 million. Montreal could be expected to shrink to 0.5 million."

Eastman himself remarked on the inequality implied in the law. "We have known that French-speaking people have gotten jobs in the past when it has been a matter of equally-qualified persons applying for them," he observed, "but we have never before felt it was the law."

Storm snarls Maritimes

HALIFAX (CP)—Reports of shattered buildings, homeless families, grounded fishing vessels, tangled power lines and severe damage were trickling in from eastern Nova Scotia and Cape Breton, battered by a savage storm Sunday.

Although the rest of Nova Scotia and the southern half of New Brunswick was covered with a heavy blanket of wet snow, wind and high seas seem to have caused the damage in the eastern Nova Scotia-Cape Breton area.

No deaths or serious injuries have been reported. The snow and winds were a surprise for Maritimers, most of whom basked in sunny weather during the Thanksgiving holiday last weekend, after what many people considered a short summer.

In the Sydney area of Cape Breton, winds with gusts to 80 miles an hour tore roofs off houses and businesses, uprooted hundreds of trees, felled poles and tangled power lines in the industrial area of Cape Breton.

WORST IN MEMORY
One Sydney resident called the storm "easily the worst in memory."

A ship near the entrance to the Bras d'Or Lakes reported a gust to 98 miles an hour, and gusts of similar strength were recorded on Sable Island about 120 miles east of Halifax.

A small power station at Coxheath, on the outskirts of Sydney, was knocked over and a fire broke out in the woods.

Many shops had windows blown in or smashed by flying tree limbs.

The storm may have delivered the coup de grace to the Booth Fisheries Ltd. plant in Petit de Grat, scheduled to be closed by the company next month. The subject of citizen attempts to find ways of keeping it going, the plant was reported severely damaged by high winds.

Several trailer homes in the Canso area of Eastern Nova Scotia were overturned.

The Ile Madame area in southeastern Cape Breton suffered severe damage and several fishing boats were beached by hurricane strength winds. Homes were shorn of their roofs, mobile homes tipped and roads blocked by debris.

One store was reported blown down at Arichat, its walls apparently caving in after the roof was blown off.

The city of Sydney was without electricity as was the town of Amherst near the New Brunswick border, several Halifax-area suburbs and communities throughout central and northern Nova Scotia.

In New Brunswick and mainland Nova Scotia, snow was the damaging element. Halifax International Airport had 11 inches while both Halifax and Moncton, N.B., reported six. Moncton is forecast to get six more. Tree limbs, still heavily leafed, broke under the weight of snow and sleet and crashed down on power, telephone and telegraph lines.

Scores of downed poles and uprooted trees blocked many roads in the Amherst area including the Trans-Canada Highway for a time. The loss of electricity came with temperatures in the low 30s and high 20s.

COULD TAKE DAYS
Nova Scotia Power Commission linemen in the Amherst area estimated it might take two or three days before services to more remote rural areas are restored.

Most vehicles were not equipped with proper tires to meet the snow so early, and skidding vehicles caused some traffic tieups.

High winds forced Canadian National to suspend ferry service to and from Prince Edward Island for most of the day.

Both the east-and west-bound sections of CN's Montreal Halifax passenger train, the Ocean Limited, were being held near Amherst because of downed telegraph lines and trees on the mainline between Truro, N.S. and Moncton.

Heavy to moderate snow was forecast to continue in P.E.I. and eastern New Brunswick overnight with snowflurries in other areas. Winds will diminish as the storm moves into Labrador.

Police in most areas issued pleas to motorists to leave cars at home. Works department crews did hurry-up jobs in attaching snowplows to summer equipment still in use on road grading projects in some areas.

Air Canada reported at least six flight cancellations to and from the Maritimes with several others delayed. But, undaunted by the snow, five students from Rothesay Collegiate at Rothesay, N.B., ended a 75-mile fund-raising, bed-pushing jaunt in Fredericton at 2:30 p.m. Sunday, about 32 hours after they had started.

20,000 demonstrate against Bill 22

QUEBEC (CP)—Despite a few incidents, organizers expressed satisfaction with the outcome of a demonstration Saturday night by 7,000 people against the Quebec government's controversial language legislation.

Francois-Albert Angers, president of the French Quebec Movement (FQM), which organized the march, told a news conference that "20,000 persons had participated in the march," 5,000 more than expected. Quebec Provincial Police estimated the crowd at 7,000.

Mr. Angers said he was pleased that people from all four corners of Quebec had taken part in what he described as a "cannon shot" announcing the beginning of the fight against the legislation making French the province's official language.

The only incidents occurred when some marchers began shouting insults at 2,000 Liberal party supporters and their guests as they arrived at the Grand Theatre to take part in a $50-a-plate Liberal party benefit dinner.

However, most of the Liberal guests, some escorted by the QPP, escaped with a few insults as they arrived to take part in an evening of entertainment by singers Jean Lapointe and Rene Simard.

CAUGHT AN EGG
One Liberal guest was not so lucky and caught an egg on the top of his shoulder. As his wife denounced the "vulgarity" of today's young people, he entered the theatre holding his coat away from him as the egg dripped off.

A few marchers burned their placards to warm themselves against the freezing temperatures and winds.

An extra squad of QPP anti-riot police was added to the contingent already at the scene shortly before Premier Robert Bourassa's arrival at the theatre.

In addition to police, the FQM had its own 600-man peacekeeping force on hand to keep marchers in line.

Premier Bourassa arrived in his limousine without incident and by 8:30 p.m. the marchers left the theatre for the Coleseum, where a variety show was to get under way.

Premier Bourassa said the march organizers sought to place their partisan interests above those of the majority and tried in vain to get children to demonstrate.

"The Liberal government has made French the official language in the province," he said. "They have no reason to protest such a historical gesture as that."

Bomb destroys transformer

MONTREAL (CP)—A bomb, which police said was made from nitroglycerine, destroyed a Canadian National Railways transformer and shattered about 60 windows in a nearby Quebec Liquor Board warehouse when it exploded Saturday night.

There were no injuries. Police said the bomb exploded at about 10:30 p.m., shortly after an anonymous telephone call warning them a bomb, placed beside a CN transformer, would explode in two minutes.

Earlier this week police dismantled what they described as a crude nitroglycerine bomb hidden in a CN signal box in Point St. Charles district.

"We know of no pending labor trouble," a CN spokesman said, "nor do we have any clue that would indicate a motive."

Police also said they have no indication of a motive for the bombs.

Bellemare gets mandate

By ALEX RADMANOVICH
MONTREAL (CP)—The Union Nationale's national council Sunday extended interim party leader Maurice Bellemare's mandate until a leadership convention is held, probably in spring, 1975.

Delegates from across Quebec voted to amend the party's constitution giving Mr. Bellemare powers normally exercised by the party leader.

Mr. Bellemare and the party president were also authorized to name a committee to prepare a future leadership convention at which Mr. Bellemare may be candidate.

Mr. Bellemare responded by delivering an emotional speech, or "moral report," to about 400 supporters aimed at reviving confidence in the UN, which failed to win a seat in the October, 1973, provincial election.

Elected to the national assembly in a byelection in August, he said his victory in Johnson riding was a turning point.

He said the UN has come a long way from the "desperate" situation it was in when he was named interim leader in March following the resignation of Gabriel Loubier.

HALT WASTE
Changes to the party constitution permit the interim leader and the party president to form a finance committee and choose its members. Mr. Bellemare explained it was necessary "to put a halt to the waste of thousands of dollars in party funds" over the last few years.

First Canadian Retirement Savings Plan

First Canadian Retirement Savings Plan helps you plan for your leisure years.

Retirement can be the time of your life. But you have to plan for it now, while your earning power—and probably your expenses—are high. You can start by reading about First Canadian Retirement Savings Plan, and how it can make your leisure years, as well as your saving years, much, much easier.

Reduce your income tax while you save for your retirement.

By investing in First Canadian Retirement Savings Plan any time during and up to 60 days after a taxation year, you may reduce your taxable income by the amount of your investment, up to the lesser of: 20% of your earned income, $4000 if you have no pension plan, $2500 if you are a non-contributing member of a pension plan, or $2500 less the amount of your contributions to a company pension plan. Your tax reduction is not affected by payment into the Canada or Quebec Pension Plans. To find out exactly how much money you'll save, ask for R.R.S.P. specialist R.W. Wakefield's booklet, "Registered Retirement Savings Plans". Income tax will have to be paid on your savings eventually—either when used as retirement income or if you withdraw your savings prior to retirement—but probably at a lower rate than during your peak earning years.

Choose from two options.

At present there are two options available. Both are eligible for registration with the tax authorities so that you can reduce your annual income tax.

Option I—First Canadian Mortgage Fund. In today's financial market, investment in a quality mortgage fund is considered a good bet to produce a relatively secure high yield over the long term. At the same time, investors may realize an increase in value of their units in this Fund depending on prevailing mortgage interest rates. There is no load on the purchase or redemption of these units.

Option II—Firstbank Special Retirement Account. Your deposits in this special bank account will earn interest at the Bank's Five-Year-Term Deposit Receipt rate. This rate of interest will be fixed every January 1st and July 1st at the rate prevailing that day—and remain in effect for six months.

Interest is calculated and payable on your minimum monthly balance and credited semi-annually.

Over the long term, the yield will vary but always be tied to the upper end of the scale of bank interest rates.

Option I and Option II. If you wish, you may buy into both First Canadian Mortgage

Fund and Firstbank Special Retirement Account. In fact, over the long term and as economic conditions fluctuate, one option may become more profitable and appropriate than the other. You may switch your savings contributions from one option to another without penalty or charge.

The cost of this plan is minimal.

Inviting Inflation

In defence of his performance in the grainhandlers' dispute, federal Labor Minister John Munro had this to say Monday to Parliament and the public: "If we had to do it all over again, I honestly do not see how we could take any different measures that would be more effective and democratic." The House is now debating, as a matter of belated urgency, a bill providing for the resumption of operations on the basis of the Perry report.

As the recommendations of Dr. Perry have loomed so large in this protracted controversy, his text is of obvious importance. If the labor minister and his colleagues have acted impartially, as they claim, it is strange that in their public argument they have gone well beyond Dr. Perry. Over and over again they have insisted that an equitable settlement means parity (or something close to it) on the docks. In Mr. Munro's words: "Guys working side by side should earn the same money." The prime minister made the same point when he intervened personally in mid-August, warning the companies to settle quickly or face a legislated settlement. He mentioned the "unique aspects" of the grainhandlers' demands, which included the question of wage parity with longshoremen performing similar waterfront tasks.

The Perry argument is compressed into a preamble, explaining the difficulties encountered in negotiation. Two are given special prominence — the desire of the union to regain lost purchasing power and apprehension about the value of long-term contracts in an inflationary situation. Dr. Perry then mentions "other considerations" such as the absence of an industry-wide pension plan, "quite apart from the always-to-be-found examples of higher wage schedules in closely-related enterprises." That wording is interesting and significant. So impartial was the minister and the government that the "always-to-be-found" was presented to the country as the unique justification for setting aside all other considerations and, incredibly, for permitting the dispute to drag on to the serious detriment of Western Canada.

The government, especially in times such as these, has much larger responsibilities than an appointed conciliator. Mr. Munro's view of his duties is disturbing for clearly he subordinates these wider responsibilities to what he regards as the imperatives of his office. It is doubtless reasonable to say that the government should give "credence and weight" to the findings of an outside adjudicator such as Dr. Perry. But a commissioner can always please one party by conceding most of its demands. What if the implications of a proposed settlement are highly inflationary, as they were in the famous Seaway case? Recommendations, according to Mr. Munro, do not rule out further bargaining but "subsequent discussions have to take place within the new parameters of the conciliator's report." Then comes this significant passage: "Now no union in this day and age is likely to accept less than a conciliation report recommends. And no democratic government, prevailed upon to enforce a settlement, would think of imposing terms lower than those advocated by a neutral expert."

Such a defence is an open signal to the unions. The government is boxed in with its own logic. Once a conciliation report is in, whatever the probable consequences for the economy, further negotiations must be within its parameters, that is to say must be confined to details. No union, Mr. Munro says, would accept less and no democratic government would even think of imposing less generous terms. Obviously, then, the grainhandlers' unions had no incentive to negotiate once the government had openly threatened intervention. If anything Justice Minister Otto Lang is even more explicit than his colleague. In his view, the critics "have decided to campaign against inflation on the backs of the workers."

WASHINGTON (CP) — Even his most severe critics agree when President Ford describes his fellow Americans as the world's wildest wasters of energy and food.

Where they dissent, is over his proposals for combatting the twin problems of conservation and inflation.

It won't be done, they say, by promoting red-and-white "WIN" buttons and flags and unrealistic conservation proposals.

The "WIN" buttons, one Capitol Hill reporter describes as smacking of "a high-school election for president of the senior class"—a left-handed reference to the fact that Ford lost just such an election in his youth.

The buttons—standing for

"Whip Inflation Now"—are designed to foster a spirit of saving and "conservation" among Americans.

The flags have been likened to the "E" for "efficient," flags that once flew over wartime shipyards or to the "Elmer the Safety Elephant" flags that adorn schools with a creditable traffic safety program.

PROPOSALS CAUTIOUS Ford's proposals, generally, have been cautious, unconvincing admonitions—balance the family budget, shop for bargains, plant a vegetable garden, turn down the thermostat, drive less and try not to become ill because illness cuts productivity and strains the family budget.

Also, the presidential proposals come at a time when 10 utilities have just postponed construction of 15 nuclear plants because of financing difficulties. In addition, critical questions remain unanswered concerning the safety of nuclear plants because of breakdowns and defects.

Knowledgeable industry officials go so far as to say his conversion plans just won't work. A recent Environmental Protection Agency statement notes that the 65 million barrels of oil a year the president says can be saved by conversion is the equivalent of 90 million tons of coal.

And that figure, they say, is impossible until new mines are opened up in 1978 or later.

such proposals as a call to bite the marshmallow rather than the bullet, Ford says that Congress has shown little appetite even for that diet and warns that he could be back with "some tough turkey" if things don't improve.

Even some of his hard, specific proposals are under fire—for instance, his call for the saving of large amounts of oil by converting oil-fired power plants to potentially dirtier coal or replacing them with nuclear power.

Environmentalists are worried over what form his promised amendments to the U.S. Clean Air Act may take.

Letters

On Thanksgiving Monday, I should not have been carried out casually strolled through in public, especially on a Howardene Park on Ontario Thanksgiving weekend. This past Street. Although the day was cold and wet, one could not help but feel that they were in a paradise of colors. To add to this glitter of autumn colors, there were some dozen or so ducks swimming with charm on the pond's surface.

Much to my dismay, as I stood there watching the ducks, a man carefully slipped his canoe into the water. Amazed, I watched, only to be horrified at the purpose of his journey on the pond.

In a slow pursuit, the man chased the ducks to within range of his friend's double gauge shotgun. His friend was waiting patiently for his targets (ducks) to come within range.

Our hunters repeated the case many times, for the rifleman would only get two ducks at a time with one load.

The reason why I am writing this letter is that such a task

Who really benefits from contributions?

Americans gave a whopping $24.5 billion to charities last year. Unfortunately, only part of this huge sum actually went to the needy.

According to "Everybody's Money," a quarterly publication of the Credit Union National Assn., large percentages of the monies collected by professional fundraisers and organizations go for fees and program costs rather than benevolent services, at the expense of an unknowing public.

For example, a fundraising organization hired by the Police Chiefs of America to raise money for the survivors of police killed in the line of duty produced $400,000 but subtracted $376,000 for expenses, leaving only $24,000 for the actual fund.

By contrast, Easter Seals collected more than $52.8 million in 1972, of which 62 per cent went to program services. Likewise, 69 per cent of the $84.1 million given to the American Cancer Society in 1972 went to research and public education.

The public's right to know where its charity money really goes is being championed by Rep. Lionel Van Deerlin (D-Calif.) in a bill now before Congress. The bill, H.R. 11911, would, among other things, require charities to disclose full financial information upon request.

The bill wouldn't be a cure-all, however. Religious organizations would be exempt and last year, 41 per cent of all charitable donations went to such groups.

Don't think that charities aren't interested in your small contributions. More than 80 per cent of the almost $25 billion given last year came from individual donors. Those $1 or $5 or $10 gifts add up.

Those working for charity reform have no desire to dry up this well. "We don't want to stop people from giving," says Marilyn Kolb of the Council of Better Business Bureaus' Philanthropic Advisory Dept. "But we want to see the money go to the right place for the right reason."

Turning the battle's tide

As the saying has it, "You've come a long way, baby." Just how far women have come, and where they are going is suggested by the findings of the Third Virginia Slims American Women's Opinion Poll.

In this year's poll, conducted by the Roper organization, 3,000 women (and also 1,000 men) aged 18 on up were asked their views on marriage, divorce, child rearing, male and female roles and the changing values and morals of society. Some of the findings:

- Women are leaning toward bonafide partnerships in marriage where husband and wife share the responsibilities of household and family. Over 50 per cent favor combining marriage, children AND careers.

- But marriage in either the old or new style remains the preferred way of life for more than nine out of ten women and men. Given a choice, only a handful of women (2 per cent) would pursue a career rather than marriage and having children.

- Divorce as a solution to a bad marriage is favored by three out of five women. Furthermore, a majority oppose alimony when the woman can earn a reasonable income.

- Nearly half of women today think having two children is ideal, compared to only one in four who thought so in 1952 and 1941. Most cite the high cost of living and overpopulation as the reasons.

- Women are still trying to come to grips with the so-called new sexual freedom prevalent among unmarrieds in society today. About two out of five see it as a change for the worse and nearly an equal number express mixed feelings.

- For the first time, a clear majority of American women — 57 per cent — say they are in favor of efforts to strengthen women's position in society. Yet men continue to show greater enthusiasm for this goal than women themselves; 63 per cent of the men interviewed were for improving women's status.

low 8.5 per cent interest, far less than they would be charged by a commercial bank even if such a huge loan were available.

Trueblood, who contributed $150 to Bellmon's current Senate campaign, sees nothing wrong with his approving the loan. It got the final approval, he pointed out, of the parent bank in Wichita.

Hitch, who contributed $4,000 to Bellmon's campaign, said Bellmon had little, if anything, to do with his appointment as a land bank director. In any case, Hitch insisted he never knew Bellmon's loan had gone through the land bank. It is the nature of bank employees, of course, to give favorable decisions on loans for the friends of directors.

The senator insisted there was "no connection" between the loan and his friendships. "That's as clean a loan as you can find," he said.

The Kojak Caper: Top federal drug officials are in an absolute tizzy over a recent episode of the popular "Kojak" TV series.

Kojak is a tough New York cop, played by actor Telly Savalas. In the September 29 episode, entitled "A Very Deadly Game," he was in hot pursuit of a police killer and narcotics dealer.

He wanted to move in on the police killer, but the federal drug agents wanted the killer to lead them to the narcotics kingpin.

The plot, according to discomfited drug officials, showed federal narcotics agents in a bad light. The New York cops shared their information with the "teddie-weddies," as Kojak called them, but the feds wouldn't cooperate with Kojak.

Kojak got his man by locking the head fed in a room while he arrested the pusher-killer. In the process, the feds were made to look petty and ineffective.

Two days before the show was aired across the nation, the Drug Enforcement Administration's public information chief, Vince Promuto, was tipped off that the episode would be "detrimental" to the agency's image.

He was told that an ex-narcotics agent served as an adviser on the show. Promuto made several inquiries, discovered no adviser existed and dropped the matter. "They have a right to put on whatever they want," he told us.

The show's top writer, Gene Carney, explained that the plot "was invented" to give the show a solid "antagonist situation." The story was not based on "any specific incident" and "was not intended" to harm the reputation of the federal agents, he said.

Pork Project: Sen. James Buckley, C-R-N.Y., once amazed fellow senators in a closed-door meeting by hawking them on the money they waste on pork barrel projects. Buckley was slapped down by his seniors, but refused to give up.

Now, it appears he will win a battle to get a three-man board appointed to review pork barrel deals before they get into the hands of the Army Corps of Engineers. His bill would open up the pork barrel and, perhaps, even save a few hundred millions of dollars.

Fish and politicians smell after awhile

By Tom Tiede

WASHINGTON — (NEA) — British critic Malcolm Muggeridge says that he has cast only one political vote in his life — for a candidate who, having recently been released from a mental institution, had a document attesting to his sanity. This November, American voters will likely have no such luck judging the suitability of office seekers, for there will be at least one kind of documentation to consider: each candidate will be classified as incumbent or no and perhaps this should weigh in a voter's decision.

A Washington group called The New American Revolution believes that except in rare cases, voters should reject incumbents this year, specifically those who've held their office for two terms or more. Hugo Buehring, Revolution coordinator, says election day should be rejection day for officials who've grown old in their jobs.

The idea, Buehring adds, is not just to throw the old rascals out, but to return public office to that which it was originally intended to be, an ever-changing repository for fresh ideas and activity unencumbered by political self interest. The Revolution group currently is trying to fire interest for the idea by public appeal, eventually it hopes to lobby for a Constitutional amendment which would do what voters are reluctant to do, limit the terms of all elected.

The packages were opened by the guest of honor assisted by her mother, Mrs. Donald Dezan and the mother of the prospective groom, Mrs. Frances Malloy.

Many lovely and useful items for a new home in Perth, Ont., were revealed, including linens, glass and cookware, as well as many other items necessary for starting a home.

An amusing game was played, with several prizes being awarded.

Ann Landers

Is husband bisexual?

Dear Ann Landers: I can't possibly talk to anyone about this problem and when I tell you what it is you will understand why.

I am 27 and was divorced in 1972. My husband was an older man and I discovered too late he was an alcoholic. He refused to get help. I confess I married him because I had an out-of-wedlock son who needed a father, and this man appeared to like the boy.

In January I married a charmer, 35, movie-star handsome, who had never been married. Ed and I went together only a few months but I was sure he would be the perfect husband and father.

Now I need to know how a woman can tell if her husband is bisexual. Before we were married Ed was a very good lover, but these past five months he has barely touched me. I've asked him to discuss his declining interest in sex and he says he still loves me but he just doesn't feel like it.

Four nights last week Ed was out with "the boys." He works in a field I won't name, but most of them are homosexuals.

How can I tell for sure? Is this grounds for divorce? — Alone Alot

Dear Alone: It's unlikely you'll be able to tell for sure, but from your letter I suspect your hunch is correct.

These days, in most states, divorces are granted for "incompatibility" and "irreconcilable differences." I'd say you have both.

Dear Ann Landers: I was divorced a few months ago and my ex-husband is driving me nuts. He has the key to the house and gives me only part of my alimony and child support because he says I am not competent to handle that much money.

The man walks in on us whenever he feels like it. He rummages around in my closets and drawers looking for telephone messages, letters — whatever. He makes a general search and questions the children as to what's going on.

What burns me up is that he is always making vulgar passes and obscene remarks. He thinks that because he pays alimony he is entitled to the privileges of a husband. The last time he tried to drag me into the bedroom I gave him a black eye.

The court granted him visiting privileges (to see the children) on Saturdays and Sundays, but he spends those two days harassing me and paying no attention to them.

I've told him I don't want him around but it does no good. Will you please tell me what to do about this pest so I can lead a normal life? — A Married Divorcee

Dear M: Go to your lawyer and follow his instructions. There are several things you can do. First, you can have the locks on your doors changed. Second, deliver the kids to HIM and make it clear that he is not to set foot in your home. The law will protect you on this one. If he shows up, he is in violation and you can call the police.

The lawyer can demand that he give you the child support and alimony, in total. If he fails to do so, he is again in trouble with the law.

You have the right to be left alone, and if you put up with any more of his shenanigans, you subconsciously enjoy it.

It's not always easy to recognize love, especially the first time around. Acquaint yourself with the guidelines. Read Ann Landers' booklet, "Love or Sex and How to Tell the Difference." For a copy, mail 35 cents in coin and a long, stamped, self-addressed envelope with your request to Ann Landers, P.O. Box 3346, Chicago, Illinois 60654.

Bridal shower

HATLEY — On Monday evening, October 7 the members of the United Church Women held a miscellaneous shower for Miss Elizabeth Miller, in the Vestry, which was decorated for the occasion in yellow and white.

The bride-elect was met at the door by Mrs. Keith Morse who pinned a corsage on her and escorted her to the seat of honour as Mrs. Madeline McClary played Here Comes the Bride on the piano.

A poem entitled The Good Ship Matrimony composed by Mrs. Fred Wright was read by Mrs. Morse and a contest was held.

Elizabeth opened the many lovely gifts which were placed on a table in front of her, assisted by her mother, Mrs. Dale Miller and grandmother, Mrs. May Scott and sisters, Evelyn and Lois.

The gifts consisted of linens, dishes, cooking utensils and currency which were passed for all to see. Elizabeth graciously thanked everyone for the gifts and the U.C.W. for giving her the shower.

Refreshments were served by the U.C.W. members, and included the shower cake made and decorated by Mrs. Madeline McClary.

All departed, wishing Elizabeth much happiness in her new home in the Canadian West.

Elizabeth and Dann McCallum were married on Saturday, Oct. 12 in the Hatley United Church.

A very pretty double-ring wedding ceremony took place Saturday June 15, 1974 at 2:30 p.m. at the United Pentecostal Church, Mississauga, Ontario, when Miss Sharon Dianne Collins, second daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Lloyd Collins of Chicago, Illinois, formerly of Don Mills, Ontario became the bride of Mr. Edgar Walter Dobb, eldest son of Mrs. Marjorie T. Dobb of South Durham, Quebec and Mr. Walter R. Dobb of Mississauga, Ontario. Rev. Sharon officiated.

Standards of white and yellow glads were placed at the pulpit. Guest pews were marked with white satin ribbons centred with yellow and white shasta daisies.

The bride was given in marriage by her parents.

The bride made her own wedding dress of white polyester satin trimmed with white flowered lace sewn with pearls and crystal sequins to match a crystal and pearl tiara. The chapel-length train was trimmed with embroidery to match the front.

Her bridal bouquet was ivy and white with yellow shasta daisies.

During the wedding ceremony, the bride sang a song dedicated to her husband, titled "Hand in hand."

Sister Shalm was the pianist. Brother and Sister Shalm sang a duet during the signing of the register.

Miss Marilyn Collins of York University was maid of honor for her sister.

Miss Adora MacLean of Wingham, Ontario and Miss June Dobb of Mississauga, Ont. were bridesmaids. Miss Brenda Dobb of Mississauga, Ont. was junior bridesmaid.

The attendants' dresses were all of figured blue chiffon with short puffed sleeves. They carried bouquets of yellow and white daisies with baby's breath.

The gentlemen of the wedding party were dressed in royal blue tuxedos with navy blue velvet-trimmed jackets, white ruffled light blue trimmed shirts and navy blue velvet bow ties. They all wore yellow rose bud boutonnieres.

Mr. Robert Dobb of South Durham, Quebec was best man for his brother, Edgar.

Mr. Robert Collins of Chicago, Illinois, brother of the bride, and Mr. Jim Dobb of Mississauga were ushers.

Mr. Allan MacDonald of Mississauga, cousin, was junior usher.

Mrs. Lloyd Collins, mother of the bride wore a floor-length dress of ice blue-figured lace voile with white accessories and a corsage of seven white rose buds, fern and white ribbon.

Mrs. Marjorie T. Dobb, mother of the groom wore a floor-length, navy blue flowered dress of sharkskin material. Her accessories were a white picture hat, gloves, shoes and purse to match, a corsage of seven white rose buds, fern and white ribbon.

Mrs. Walter R. Dobb of Mississauga, wore a floor length navy blue fruit figured dress of silk with white accessories, a corsage of white rose buds, fern and white ribbon.

After the wedding ceremony, the bride and groom were driven by the best man, Mr. Robert Dobb in a limousine leading the wedding party, and a few close friends, to James Gardens, Willowdale, Ont. Photographs were taken among the beautiful flowers and trees and on wooden bridges.

They then went to Sherway Inn where the guests were received by the bridal party and parents. A beautiful buffet was served.

The three-tiered wedding cake, made and decorated by the groom's mother, was a gift to the bride and groom.

The wedding cake was cut and passed by the bride and groom. It was also the bride's 21st birthday on June 15th, 1974, her wedding day.

150 guests attended the wedding from Illinois, New York, Wingham, London, Toronto, Mississauga, and Quebec.

The couple spent a two-week honeymoon in the Pocono Mts., Pennsylvania, U.S.A. They reside in Port Credit, Ont.

Congratulations

Congratulations to Mr. and Mrs. F. Burton Shonyo of 521 MacDonald St., Mago, who will be celebrating their 55th wedding anniversary on October 23rd, 1974.

IODE Stanstead Chapter

STANSTEAD - There were 21 members of Stanstead Chapter IODE attending the meeting on Monday afternoon, Oct. 7 at Le Baron Hall reception room at Stanstead College. They and three guests, Mrs. H. Collins, Mrs. Barbara Jackson and Mrs. Joan MacDonald, were welcomed by the Regent, Mrs. Agnes Myers.

Mrs. Myers and Mrs. Simone DuBois, the latter, convener with Mrs. Ruby Greer as assistant, voiced appreciation to everyone who had worked so diligently and donated to the very successful bazaar held on Oct. 5 at Sunny side school.

Mrs. Myers also read an inspiring Thanksgiving poem, after which reports were heard.

That of the treasurer, Mrs. Kenneth Baldwin, noted to date a net of some $1,500 realized from the bazaar with more to come in, also a few more bills to be accounted for. She will give a more detailed report at another meeting.

The education secretary, Mrs. George Carruthers, read a note of appreciation from Susan McLaughlin of Magog, the recipient of the student scholarship given annually. It was also approved to give a scholarship for a local boy at Stanstead College, this to be further discussed by Mrs. Carruthers with the headmaster, Thomas Russell.

Mrs. Howard Aikman read a communication from Mrs. M. Sanderson, Provincial Services secretary, in regards to needs and made suggestions. Mrs. Aikman noted Mrs. W. H. Rudd and Mrs. Ruth Bliss had made and donated 19 crib quilt covers and Miss Pearl Dorman had made a number of lovely scrapbooks, all of which is greatly appreciated by the Chapter.

Mrs. Frances Finlayson, Echoes secretary, read a couple of items from the Echoes and brought attention for home reading about the Lt.-Gov. of Canada.

The membership secretary, Mrs. Ruby Greer, related the news that Mrs. C.R. MacLean is convalescing nicely after surgery and is now at home.

The secretary, Mrs. DuBois, announced that the semi annual meeting of Provincial IODE will be held this month at Valleyfield.

Mrs. Myers, who will attend as delegate, expressed the hope of others attending with her.

Mrs. Myers also noted that in observance of the 75th anniversary of the Founding of IODE in Canada, the project is the sale of the IODE rose. Further, each Province had accepted a project to commemorate this great occasion. In Quebec, the project is Silence to Sound, the provision of hearing aids for deaf children. The communication noted over 5000 rose bushes already ordered from across Canada and it is hoped many more will be sold.

February 13, the anniversary luncheon will be held at the Windsor hotel in Montreal as a Oswald: "South looks over dummy and counts eight top winners. The potential for a ninth trick is right there in each major suit and maybe a second club trick will develop. In any event, South lets West hold the first trick. West continues with the queen. East discards and since there is no point ducking again South wins the trick."

Jim: "South can run off five diamond tricks and decide what to do about the major suits next. That might be good tactics in duplicate bridge where overtricks are so important, but an alert South should find a sure way to make his game in rubber bridge."

Oswald: "It isn't too difficult. South just develops an early end play against West. All he has to do is to cash enough diamonds to exhaust West's holding in that suit and then throw West in with a club."

Jim: "West will be able to cash three more club tricks to give him a total of four, but then he will have to lead one of the major suits. Whichever one he leads will give South his ninth trick, game, rubber and a satisfied feeling."

Dr. Lamb
for kidney disease

By Lawrence E. Lamb, M.D.

DEAR DR. LAMB — I am a middle-aged woman and have bilateral polycystic renal disease. I am being treated by a very competent nephrologist. I have had several side effects, such as anemia, gout, diabetic symptoms, swelling of the feet, itchy skin, leg cramps and nausea with vomiting. I might say this is an inherited condition as several in my family have had the same complaint.

At the present time I am on a salt-free diet and taking, among other things, four sodium bicarbonate tablets daily. Zyliprim to control the gout, plus iron and liver for my blood.

Over a period of time I have lost over 80 pounds (from over 200 pounds down to about 120 pounds). I am getting along quite well at the moment, but can you explain to me why the salt-free diet and limited potassium and protein and the sodium bicarbonate?

DEAR READER — For the benefit of our other readers, polycystic kidney disease is a defect that a person is born with. There are many (poly) cysts formed in the kidney causing it to be enlarged, and sometimes affecting its function. How much of the normal kidney tissue is replaced with cysts determines how well the kidneys function.

Three main complications of polycystic kidney disease are bleeding, high blood pressure and kidney failure. Most of your treatment is directed toward the latter. Since your kidneys are not working in an optimal fashion your doctor is wisely helping them.

When the kidneys are damaged they may not be able to eliminate salt normally. In that case salt has to be eliminated from the diet to prevent the accumulation of salt in the body which would cause accumulation of water and lead to many severe problems.

The same applies to potassium. The kidneys normally eliminate any potassium your body doesn't need. When they are unable to do this, the excess accumulation of potassium can upset the body chemistry and even affect the heart. So, I am not surprised that your potassium and the foods rich in potassium are limited. Individuals taking water pills have the opposite problems. The flushing out of too much potassium which can be bad also.

One of the main functions of the kidneys is to eliminate urea, hence the name urea. Urea is formed from the ammonia or nitrogen-containing part of amino acids. Protein consists of combinations of amino acids. If you eat a lot of excess protein, your kidneys have to eliminate more urea. When your kidneys are not "up-to-snuff" you need to eliminate this problem to prevent the accumulation of urea in the blood. In large amounts it can lead to "uremic poisoning."

The kidneys also play a role in balancing the chemistry of your body, between being too acid or too alkaline. This is very important for normal function. I presume that the sodium bicarbonate is part of this general picture in your particular case.

So, all that is being done for you is quite logical and necessary. Keep in mind that if you reach a point where kidney function is completely unsatisfactory you can get help from artificial kidney devices, and finally, in proper circumstances, kidney transplants have proved to be rather successful.

Send your questions to Dr.

Lamb, in care of this newspaper, P.O. Box 1551, Radio City Station, New York, N.Y. 10019. For a copy of Dr. Lamb's booklet on hiatal hernia, send 50 cents to the same address and ask for the "Hiatal Hernia" booklet.
