Plaza begins to show results

After months of hard, dirty work, the West End Plaza is beginning to show signs of structure.

The months of digging through rock and clay are almost over and the concrete supports have been laid. In this huge hole, which takes up the best part of the whole block, if you look down into it from the buildings on the south side of St. Catherine street, you are able to see the shape of the bases which will support the Plaza's massive columns.

"The dirty work is almost finished," said Plaza's Bernard Kogan, "and even though we have worked very hard for months and no real results are visible from the surface, we will begin to erect steel forms and the public will be more satisfied to see something finally taking shape."

Those months of hard work he spoke of, were the actual digging of the hole and the laying of the some 60 support columns in 50 foot holes beneath the bottom of the main excavation.

Steel work has already begun in one part of the massive complex. At the corner of Western avenue and Atwater avenue, you can see a small cone shaped hut. In there, several men are working with long sheets of paper. The paper, indicates where every piece of steel is to go. As the large steel transport trucks deliver the metal, it is unloaded at the bottom of the hole and each piece comes with a tag on it. The tag shows where it is to go and how it fits. The men in the hut cross off every piece as it comes in and is put up.

The whole job has been divided into eight different sections. There are eight different gangs of men and sets of equipment.

In the section where the steel is now being erected, there is a huge tower crane which stands 120 feet tall.

Each of the eight sections will have one of these cranes.

Hopes are, that by the end of the year, all the ground work will be completed and the building will begin to rise from all sides.

TAKING SHAPE: Work is beginning to take shape at The West End Plaza as workers battle cool weather and muddy conditions. In the upper left hand corner of the picture you can see where the steel work is beginning. Huge trucks are bringing in the steel every hour and each piece is labeled as to where it goes and how it fits. Elsewhere on the site, all concrete has been laid and most of the foundation work has been completed.

Contest deadline nears

Less than 30 days remain in The Examiner "Centennial Contest".

The contest, which was launched in mid-November, called on Examiner readers to send in their ideas for Westmount's Centennial project. These suggestions would be published and then forwarded to the Westmount Municipal Association. There, the best idea would be selected and that person would receive $100 from The Examiner.

Thus far, several letters have been received and have been printed in the last two editions of this paper.

This week two more letters may be seen under the "You Say" heading on page 4.

ELSEWHERE

In different parts of the country, Centennial projects, large and small, are beginning to take shape.

To date, 1,119 municipalities have received approval for a variety of projects totalling $39,500,000. The federal Centennial contribution to these projects amounts to $7,800,000.

While many of the approved projects are in the nature of museums, libraries, Centennial parks and recreation centres, some municipalities have shown that little extra bit of imagination in doing that "something special". For example: A Japanese garden and teahouse in Lethbridge, Alberta - An 18-foot, three level Centennial fountain in Penticton, B.C. - A large open book carved out of granite featuring local history and Indian art in Longlac, Ont.

YOUR IDEAS

If you are a regular Examiner reader and feel that your idea on a Centennial project for Westmount can be put to work, write it down and mail it to us. The address is:

Mariasine to leave Unity

It was announced at this week's annual "Father and Son" Banquet at the Unity Boys' Club that Director Maurice Mariasine will be leaving at the end of the year.

Maurice, who began as director of the club some 14 years ago has won the hearts of hundreds of children in Westmount and St. Henry.

His new position will take him to the Montreal Boys' Club a branch of the Red Feather.

During the month of December, The Examiner will carry a history of Maurice Mariasine and his Unity Boys' Club.

WMA credits Tucker for co-operation hike

The special committee on Inter-Municipal Affairs set up by the Westmount Municipal Association has been keeping a close watch on matters relating to the Blier Report as it concerns Westmount.

It is encouraging to see a greater spirit of co-operation developing between the municipalities and the Committee points out that considerable credit can be given to Mayor Tucker who initiated a policy of closer co-operation and financial sharing with Montreal in the spring.

The membership of the Association has reached an all time high exceeding 2,000 paid-up members. The membership committee is continuing its effort to increase the membership further and points out that all residents of Westmount are welcome and that individual support can add considerable strength to the voice of the Association.

The Association was represented at the October 20th meeting of citizens in the Selby Street area who are affected by the plans of the Trans Canada Highway. As a result of the activities of this Selby Street group an extension of the moving deadline was granted by the Provincial Government thus giving those affected more opportunity to find suitable alternate living accommodation, and the City of Westmount time to study the overall problem.

At the semi-annual meeting of the Association on Dec. 14, Alderman P. M. McEntyre, Commissioner of Finance for the City of Westmount, will address the meeting.

He will speak on property valuation tax and the reasons for its increase this year.

Next week's weather

December 4 to 11, 1965

By Eric Neal

Cloudy, windy and cold in the north, with sunny periods. Mild in the south to start the week, with morning mists or fog, more like November than December conditions.

Squally windstorms follow with rain, soft snow or freezing drizzle, then powder snow and gale winds with 25 to 30 MPH gusts. Tree damage probable. Deep drifts and icy roads will interfere with traffic.

Improving and very cold everywhere from the middle to the end of the week, with wind-driven powder snow, 3 to 6". Sunshine this week, 20 hours.

Temperature range this week: in the south, 20 and 40 to 45°F. Laurentians and the north, 10 - 35°F. Gulf, zero and 35°F. Automobiles should check their anti-freeze - a cold spell is arriving.

"The French fact" topic at Rotary

English-language companies established in Quebec should realize that it is in their own interest to promote bilingualism and to seek to become part of community life, a tobacco company executive said Wednesday.

Pierre Roberge, assistant secretary of Imperial Tobacco Company of Canada, was addressing the Westmount Rotary Club at its weekly luncheon at Victoria Hall.

He said bilingualism and the integration of industry into the community are more important in Canada than in most other countries because of "the French fact" - the existence of some 5,000,000 French-speaking Canadians who want to retain their own language and culture.

English-language industries have a variety of ways of promoting such integration, he said. Among them were the choice of a bilingual corporate name, the appointment of a certain number of bilingual persons to management posts and the establishment of language courses within the company.

One of the most effective ways to improve community relations, would be for companies to increase their business dealings with French-Canadian firms. They should also welcome representation on local associations and groups and set aside an adequate budget to support local charities, organized sport and other recreational activity.

Mr. Roberge said there is no golden rule for companies to follow, since conditions vary from one industry to another and even from one plant to another in the same industry. But efforts toward increased bilingualism would pay dividends both in business and in increased efficiency within the company.

Imperial Tobacco, for example, had discovered it would make a substantial saving in cost by using bilingual packaging for its products all across Canada, rather than only in Quebec.

The Prime Minister of Quebec, The Honourable Jean Lesage, officiated at the opening of the $2½ Million building of the Mackay School for Deaf and Crippled Children. The school, a merger of the Mackay School for the Deaf, founded in 1869, and the School for Crippled Children incorporated in 1919, offers education and rehabilitation to deaf and crippled children regardless of race, color and creed.

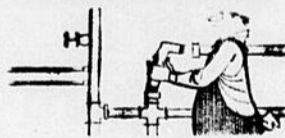

The Mackay Center's new building has ample sized classrooms, allowing smaller numbers in each class; special rooms for the physio, speech and occupational therapists; a sound-proofed room; offices for a social service worker, a guidance officer, psychologist and teacher-parent interviews; an auditorium-gymnasium; a medical clinic; a sleep room; an arts and crafts room; domestic arts room; music room; and a workshop. It also includes a residence to house children from outside Montreal.

In his introductory remarks, the President of the Center, Mr. A. H. Marden, referred to the wonderful financial support which the community at large had given to the construction of the new building. He referred to the high cost of educating exceptional children and expressed the hope that in the near future public finance would be made available to carry on the work of the Center. He pointed out the urgent need for continued private support to the Center so that the operations can

Injured fireman honoured here

The Westmount Fire Fighters Association, local 981 I.A.F.F., sponsored their first dance for the purpose of a fund raising campaign for the Muscular Dystrophy Association of Canada on Nov. 13.

During the course of the evening there was a farewell presentation for ex-Fireman Barry Walch.

Walch, whom some of you will remember, suffered serious injuries in 1962 when the aerial ladder which he was working from collapsed.

Walch returned to the department, but unfortunately was unable to perform his regular duties as a fireman.

The members of the Association congratulated Walch and forwarded their best wishes for a successful future in his new career.

He will become a fire inspector with the Canadian Pacific Railroad.

Director Harper and Deputy Fire Chief Hovenden paid tribute to Walch's retirement by making him an Honorary Member of the Association and presenting him with an inscribed plaque.

Golf school

Westmount golfers, who have in the past, had to seek advice and equipment out of their city, will be pleased to know that a golf school has been opened here.

Located at 4100 St. Catherine the new school is under the direction of four pros, Jack Archer, Bobby McCunn, Luc Brien and Andre Burns.

Another dance will be held at St. Leo's gym on Dec 4th. The Social Committee has worked out something special this time. The dances are usually predominately English, so this time there will be two bands. An English one and also a French group will do the entertaining. The "Cellar-Dwellers" will be the English supply entertainment which the French band has not yet been disclosed. Refreshments will be served and records will be supplied by the Eaton's Junior Council. The dress will be semi-formal and the admission is 75¢ stag and $1 drag.

BASKETBALL

Bantam Team — The basketball season opens shortly and a team that will be prepared both mentally and physically is the bantam team from St. Leo's.

When the opening training season began with Mr. Serge Bousquet the instructor, there were 32 eager boys. Boys who lacked in ability were there to improve and those that were experienced came to sharpen their skills.

To improve all concerned practiced the fundamental drills. During the first months of practices 60 different drills were run through, and the fellows got the taste of basketball from all points.

Now with all that practice under their belts the team was cut down to a mere 10 players. The team is fast, shifty and has tremendous spirit and desire. Mr. Bousquet is pleased with the attentiveness with which the boys execute the tricks and fundamentals he has taught them and he remarked especially the way they always are eager to learn.

WE SAY

Liquor law here two decades old

Liquor is a forbidding word.

Yet to forbid liquor is, paradoxically, to encourage it and worse problems.

So civilized societies constantly tinker with curbs upon it.

Westmount has not been immune.

Last tinkering here was with a provincial Scott Act referendum in 1946.

Thus the status quo, in effect nearly two decades, is that Westmount publicly limits itself to six grocers licensed to sell beer and does not unreasonably disallow banquet permits for wine and spirits. Total prohibition obtained here from 1921.

This image of public "morality" contrasts sharply with attitudes and practices concerning alcohol in countless private homes of this same community.

And perhaps this is just the way it should be.

However, neighboring Verdun has just come through a Scott Act referendum — in itself a creaky piece of democratic machinery — and to its collective surprise ended a long-standing total ban. Verdun now may have licensed grocers, eating establishments where one may also drink, and even one of more QLB stores — virtually everything Montreal has except taverns.

Which brings up Westmount's state of mind concerning beverages.

Beverage alcohol is no better and no worse than it was 20 years ago.

But have Westmount's attitudes changed?

Why just six beer-licensed stores? There are at least four other grocers in our City.

More and better restaurants in Westmount are unlikely unless, as elsewhere in the Metropolitan, they can offer wines and spirits.

And residents must leave our borders to buy their bottles for their homes. Westmounters, per capita, probably outstrip Montrealers generally in such purchases, because of greater where-withall as well as entertainment demands.

This is one of those citizens' rights, to decide for themselves — for more liberality, or less.

The trouble is those who merely would like to find out are labelled sots by others who get called prigs.

Who wants to find such trouble in Westmount when it can be had, by bottle and glass, in Montreal — and even Verdun?

YOU SAY

Centennial Contest replies

Sir: In your issue of The Westmount Examiner, (Nov. 19, 1965), you and Mr. C. Aspler, Pres. WMA, ask for citizens' suggestions or ideas, for Westmount's share in the Great Canadian Centennial Celebration in 1967.

My idea is that we strive to erect in our wealthy and famed city a Westmount Regional Art and Culture Centre. The partnership there would be for Art, History, a Civic Hall of Fame, and a democratic Civics School, with allied subjects and objectives, to be combined educationally and harmoniously.

Furthermore, my idea is that the approximate cost of this handsome and timely project ought to be shared and contributed by, let us say, by: The City of Westmount, $100,000; the Canada Council $100,000; the Canadian Centennial Celebration Commission (Drury-Lamontagne - Fisher) $200,000 the Montreal Regional Fine Arts Tax Collection Fund $50,000 (Lortie-Drapeau-Saulnier); by the Public, Foundation Funds, and big Corporations $300,000; by the Protestant and Catholic School Commissioners of Greater Montreal, $100,000. This total of the sum of

Lindsay is inducted

New Pastor: Reverend Sydenham B. Lindsay was inducted as rector of the Church of the Advent last evening. The ceremony was presided over by Right Reverend Arthur Carlisle, Bishop of Montreal, assisted by Ven. A. P. Gower-Reese, Archdeacon. The preacher was Rev. C. E. Combe, rector of St. Jude's.

Brodén retires: Capt. James Brodén, whose retirement from the Westmount Police Force will become effective April 1, 1941, was presented with a desk by the officers and men of the department at No. 1 Station Monday night. The presentation was made by Alderman W. B. Scott, Commissioner of Police and Fire.

Prior to his retirement, Capt. Brodén commenced four months leave of absence on Sunday.

New Instructress: Miss Helma Karik has been appointed instructress of the City of Westmount Figure Skating Club, and will be available for lessons daily.

Miss Karik needs no introduction to local school children or their parents, as she has given lessons in the Westmount Athletic Grounds previously for several years.

Last winter Miss Karik was teaching the Montreal Figure Skating Club and during the past summer, she attended the summer Skating School in Kitchener, Ont., sponsored by the Toronto Skating Club.

Swing 'n' Sway: Another successful dance was held at the Westmount YMCA last Saturday evening when over 100 young people turned out in the newly decorated gym to swing and sway to the music of the 'Masters.'

YEAR OF THE TIGER — ALMOST

No, we aren't referring to that poor belaboured tiger used today in the advertising industry for every conceivable product.

'Red' China is this sinister tiger, peeking out from behind a bamboo curtain; gazing over a quarter of the world. Wherever she goes, she charts a precarious course for herself and her neighbours.

There is an almost annual debate in the United Nations concerning China's admission. The votes in favour have steadily grown: corresponding to her ever-increasing influence, and forcing a tie this year. The next time the issue arises, it may well be decided by a simple majority vote, rather than a 2/3 referendum. In this case, her admission would be inevitable.

Before any such rash action is taken, China should fulfill certain prerequisites:

1) The prompt signing of the 1963 Test-Ban Treaty. For man and his food's, future, Atmospheric Pollution must be ceased.

2) All foreign aggression, and support of such aggression, must immediately be halted. Though Peking is not formally committed in Viet Nam. Its regulars and arms are there. The cessation of these hostilities would be a further indication of mutual good faith.

3) An agreement should be concluded so that China would occupy no seat on the Security Council. The Security Council holds vast powers of veto, and the Reds could stymie it, as the U.S.S.R. did previously. After sufficient demonstration of good faith, responsible behaviour, and cooperation, she might be further trusted.

4) Formosa must remain in the U.N., even if China is admitted. This problem has always been a main factor influencing Canada's negative vote. To disenfranchise one country because another, with equal privileges desires it, is against morality and U.N. principles. One does not join a club on the condition that a certain member is expelled.

Again, this question is a major one, requiring a 2/3 majority. To call it a minor issue, for reasons of political expediency, is very wrong.

One should remember that China has never formally applied for admission to the United Nations. If the world bows down, humbly offering her a seat, it will be regarded by them as nothing more than appeasement.

On the other hand, China is a very large part of the earth, and should have a definite say. Nearly a billion people cannot be ignored because of a disagreement in political philosophy.

Canada's position, due to the lack of any clear-cut policy, is somewhat cloudy. We have always voted No, but there was apparently a good deal of indecision this time. Paul Martin's strong appeal to the delegates was apparently the one factor that made the theme "toe the line." At this rate, it is quite possible that Canada will vote Yes next time, and, possibly, provide the vote needed for admission: no strings attached.

How tragic this would be: a Nation which has always championed freedom, allowing peace, the ultimate aim, to be infinitely hampered in one "Yes, Mr. President."

When Soviet China comes to its senses and fulfills the above, and other conditions, let us immediately give it an honoured place in the U.N. Until then, she is to be regarded as a dangerous tiger-seemingly sleeping in long grass; actually ready to pounce at any move we make.

A cookie sale was held by the YCS — Career Club last Nov. 23. The deal included soft drinks as well as cookies and brownies in all shapes and sizes. Response was so great that they were emptied out in a few minutes and had to continue next day to fill the demand. I can personally vouch for the deliciousness of the food. Receipts went to the club treasury for future projects.

Our first basketball game will be Dec. 10 at St. Paul's against Marymount. Naturally we will win and would like a large turnout to watch us dazzle the foe.

Another large turnout would be appreciated for our Social Committee's dance on Dec. 4 at St. Leo's from 8 til 12:30 p.m. It's going to be really fantastic so don't forget! You'll miss a lot.

A worthy project now going at school is the fund raising scheme for the Christophers. Dime folders have been left in all the classes for donations; all money collected goes to finance trips to poverty-stricken areas in the United States and Mexico for the six from St. Paul's hoping to go. While there the girls work in various ways to help the people. It is a very worthwhile cause and deserves our whole-hearted support.

Rent hikes force club to move

After 32 years, Westmount no longer has a Stamp Club. The longtime Westmount club, the first on the Island of Montreal, was forced to move due to increasing rents at Victoria Hall.

The members of the club were, "accepted with open arms by the N.D.G. Community Centre," said past president Dave Mayerovitch, "and we are now called the Montreal Stamp Club".

"We were sorry to go," he continued, "but we had no choice. We met with city officials in an effort to maintain our quarters at the Hall, but all attempts failed.

We were paying $600 a year for the use of the Hall and having some 100 members, with fess at $5 a year, we just managed to get together enough to pay the rent. There was nothing left to spend on improving the club.

So, when the city wanted to raise the rents again this year, we just had to pack up."

The Stamp Club made an effort to stay in Westmount, by going to several other public meeting places, but again were unable to handle the required rent.

The N.D.G. Community Centre has rented them a small gym which has been done over, as a weekly meeting place.

Hopes in the Club are high that someday it may return to Westmount. "If we can get a few more members," said Myerovitch, "we may be able to get back into Westmount."

33 YEARS OLD

The club, which was the largest local organization in Canada, was one of the best known in North America. Its members have won prizes in Exhibitions around the world. Some have gone on to design stamps for Canada.

The club was formed by seven members in 1933, with R. H. Falls as president.

In the '30's the club met in the club house of the Westmount Athletic Grounds under the auspices of the Park and Playgrounds Department.

During the '40's, despite the war, membership continues to grow. There were special campaigns held to aid Red Cross war work.

In 1949, The Westmount Stamp Club played host to the annual convention of the Canadian Philatelic Society and the Canadian Stamp Dealers Association.

At that time, Mayor J. S. Cameron of Westmount, spoke in tribute of the years the club had served the community as ambassadors of good will.

The club reached peak membership in the mid-fifties with over 200 juniors and 350 seniors.

THE THOUGHTS here expressed are those of a very-near Westmounter who resides at 4900 Upper Roslyn avenue and describes himself as "an ordinary English-speaking Canadian, originally of Ontario," who has been for nearly 38 years a citizen of Quebec. Of those years, 36 were spent working with both French and English Canadians in The Shawinigan Water and Power Company, of which he was president when the electric utility was nationalized by the Quebec government in 1963. "Partners or Partisans?" was written toward the end of 1964 and has been published in booklet form, in French and English, by Mr. Mainguy. Since then events in Canada and further discussions with fellow Canadians of both languages have strengthened his conviction that the need is urgent for Canadians to face up to the country's major problem, and to do all they can to help toward its solution "before it is too late." Mr. Mainguy hopes that his article "may contribute in some small measure to a non-partisan dialogue — a necessary prelude to better understanding."

Partners or Partisans?

I — Partners or Partisans?

Can we in Canada, English and French speaking alike, replace ignorance with facts, prejudice with understanding, intolerance with tolerance, before it is too late? Will we become partners or remain partisans — will there be partnership or partition?

As a longtime English-Canadian citizen of Quebec, formerly of Ontario, I have tried to clarify my own thinking by setting down some thoughts on what I believe is Canada's most serious problem — a problem in which I have been interested ever since coming to Quebec many years ago. Some of my thoughts may be unpalatable to English Canadians — others equally so to French Canadians. At least I hope that this may contribute in some small measure to a non-partisan "dialogue" — a necessary prelude to better understanding.

To begin with, there are three things of which I am convinced.

First, that Canada's most fundamental, most important and most urgent problem — is the need for understanding, respect, and confidence between its French speaking and English speaking peoples.

Second, that if there is not tangible evidence, reasonably soon, that this problem is going to be solved, than the future for all Canadians is uncertain indeed.

Third, that if we can solve this problem, then the outlook for Canada, despite many other difficulties, is now the brightest in its ninety-seven years' history.

Why do we not have understanding, respect, and confidence between French speaking and English speaking peoples in Canada?

II — Prejudice and Misunderstanding

Our problem is deeply rooted in the attitudes of English speaking and French speaking Canadians towards each other.

These attitudes are based upon incredible ignorance and misunderstanding, and therefore are full of prejudice. Prejudice starts a vicious circle — its preconceived opinions, often distorted or false, soon become firmly held beliefs. These lead to unjust actions, retaliations, and so to still greater prejudice.

There are natural and inevitable differences between two peoples of widely differing racial backgrounds. Many Canadians are so preoccupied with these differences that they forget that both peoples have exactly the same basic human feelings — love of family, sadness in loss, pride in accomplishment, hope for the future, desire for respect and friendship — which are not French or English but are common to us all.

The only prevention or cure for prejudices is first hand knowledge and understanding of each other. If you really get to know your neighbour, your prejudice or imagined idea of him is replaced by knowledge of his qualities, both good and bad.

Then the only question is whether you are tolerant enough to overlook what doesn't appeal to you, and appreciate his good qualities. Geography makes this more difficult for us in Canada, but Canadians will have to use every means in their power to better know and therefore to better understand each other — to base their judgment on the facts of today, not on the myth of yesterday. Our failure to do this, and to occasionally put ourselves in the other fellow's shoes, has been the basic difficulty from the beginning.

Nothing can be gained by vainly trying to decide who is most to blame. I believe that we are both at fault in keeping to our own solitudes and prejudices. We, English speaking Canadians, should accept our substantial part of the blame and our French speaking compatriots should accept their. Having done that, however, it is essential and it is urgent that we turn our thoughts and our energies from questions of blame towards solving, together, the many practical problems now before us.

Some people have said to me, in effect, that is one thing to see that there are both right and wrong on each side of the French-English question, but that at some point you have to decide which side you are on. My answer is this. We are debating vital and controversial questions, but we are not at war, nor have most Canadians yet conceded that there must be separation. If we are honestly trying to be objective, the question of which side one is on should not even arise, unless or until every hope of reaching understanding has been abandoned. In such eventuality, race being what it is, the question of "which side" would be pretty clear for anyone, but God forbid that we ever wreck our country by descending to such stupidity.

While the time available is probably much too short (possibly only a couple of years) to to completely change the old attitudes of two peoples, perhaps if we recognize what the root of the trouble is, we can at least take the more immediate practical steps towards unity which must be taken soon if there is going to be partnership not partition.

III — Language, and Understanding

If there is one factor in the problem of French-English relations which is more important and more difficult than any it is language. There is more misunderstanding and prejudice in regard to this question than any other. Yet language is vital to communication is absolutely necessary to understanding.

Language is not just a vocabulary, a dictionary full of words, each of which can be translated — every language has its own way of expressing thoughts, ideas, and feelings. If you understand another's language, you have a much better chance of understanding him. If he always has to talk to you in your language, there are some things you will never understand about him.

Despite the foregoing, I am not making the plea that there should be complete bilingualism of language was not observed either in spirit or in fact. They cite countless examples as proof of this, and I am afraid that English Canada is in no position to say that usually they are not right. There is recent evidence of progress towards real bilingualism in the federal service, but it will be a fait accompli by French Canadian insults to English Canada, and I have been angered and ashamed when English Canadians have been guilty of the same inexcusable stupidity to French Canada. Despite this, I have never, personally, had anything but friendliness and consideration from these people whose language just happens to be different to mine. They have cheerfully put up with and even encouraged my inadequate French. It has been a pleasure and a privilege to learn to know them and I sincerely believe I would have missed much if I had not had the opportunity to do so. I am sure that there must be many English speaking Canadians who can say the same.

IV — The Quiet Revolution in Quebec

The great changes in Quebec, which became most apparent from 1959-60 on, were caused, we believe, by the converging and breaking through of social, economic, and political forces which had been growing, some of them for a long time, and all of them at an accelerating rate in recent years in a decidedly repressive climate. The growth of these forces was greatly stimulated by Quebec's evolution from an agricultural to an industrial economy, and by fundamental social and economic changes taking place not only in Quebec but in the rest of Canada and the world.

The years 1959-60 were significant in that they marked the end of a political regime and the beginning of a very different one. The leaders of the new regime deserve much credit for the many constructive things they have done and are doing, but the powerful forces which they are striving to control and direct into constructive channels, would have broken through somehow, sooner or later. It is indeed fortunate for Quebec and for Canada that when the breakthrough did occur, it found strong, progressive and if sometimes radical, never extremist, direction.

We shall consider here, three principle and concurrent aspects of the Quiet Revolution. First, "The Great Awakening". Second, "Revolt Against The Old Order". Third, "Revolt Against Confederation". Distinction between the second and third is most important. Many English speaking Canadians seem unaware of a real internal revolt against the old order in Quebec — some French speaking Canadians appear to ignore this aspect, consciously or unconsciously and place the responsibility for all difficulties upon Confederation.

The Great Awakening

The awakening in Quebec was a long-delayed realization of the tremendous potential of French Canada and of the lag that existed because of failure in Canada. Let's look at the problem a little more closely.

The British North American Act, (Section 133), simply provided that the English and French languages would have equal status in the Federal and Quebec parliaments, and that any person could use either language in any Federal or Quebec court of law.

It has been contended, on the one hand, that it was the mention of the Fathers of Confederation, in uniting the French and English peoples, that they would have equal rights in every respect. Sir John A. Macdonald has been quoted as saying at the time of adoption of the B.N.A. Act that "the delegates of all provinces agreed that the use of the French language was one of the principles upon which Confederation was founded".

On the other hand, many English speaking Canadians seem to have believed, and some apparently still believe, that it was not the intent of Confederation to go beyond what was legally spelled out in the Act. At various times between 1871 and 1912 several of the English speaking provinces, exercising the exclusive jurisdiction over education given them in the B.N.A. Act, either banned or restricted the teaching of the French language.

The struggles and frustrations of French Canadians in trying to retain their language in provinces other than Quebec, has been one of the principal causes of misunderstandings between the two peoples. This can be settled only by granting to French speaking minorities in the other provinces, the same educational rights as enjoyed by the English speaking minority in Quebec.

Another major language difficulty is that even in the field of Federal Government Service where French was given equal status by the terms of the B.N.A. Act, French Canadians have felt and still feel, this equal status only when there is unreserved acceptance of the idea of partnership and equality.

The right to the official use of a language can be legislated, but bilingualism cannot — it has to be wanted by people for cultural or for economic reasons or for both. I do not believe that all Canadians can or ever will be bilingual, but there can be a great increase in bilingualism, to the lasting benefit of Canada. Both English and French speaking Canadians will first have to convince themselves that learning the other language is of benefit to them individually and collectively as Canadians — that is a key to understanding — that it is something worthwhile and to be proud of — not something imposed on them by someone else. There are signs that this slowly taking place, but there is still a long way to go.

In the meantime, if only the climate could improve, so that there would be no risk of a French Canadian who asks a question in French, in English Canada, being told to "speak English, that's what we speak here", and equally, no risk of an English speaking Canadian being met with "speak French, this is Quebec". If only, in either case, the answer could at least always be a polite one, even if not in the other's tongue.

A prominent French Canadian politician, in speaking to a Quebec audience some months ago, made this profound observation: "There is no eternal life for nations, and there is nothing to indicate that God speaks French". If we simply replace the word "French" by the word "English", the observation is equally true and to the point. We would be better Canadians if we kept this always in mind.

In the problem of language, we come back to the thought that there must be understanding — not just understanding of the other fellow's language, but even more importantly, of his feelings. Surely, if the shoe were on the other foot, we English speaking Canadians would do everything in our power to keep our mother tongue. If, to this, some reply that the shoe is not on the other foot, then I say all right if you must be cynical, at least be realistic — do you want to settle this problem and keep Confederation or don't you?

For nearly forty years, I have lived in the Province of Quebec and have known and worked with many French Canadians. I have disagreed with and strongly opposed some of Quebec's views and some of its actions. I have been angered

Local man gives gift to museum

Trans-Atlantic detective work has resulted in The Montreal Museum of Fine Arts' acquisition of a late 11th century Romanesque crucifix which is the only one of its kind in Canadian collections it was announced today.

Said to have come from a church in Sienna, Italy, the carved wood crucifix was found in a storeroom at Sotheby's, London, by Museum Director David G. Carter on a tip from a friend abroad.

It was purchased by a London agent commissioned by the Museum after arrangements had been set by overseas cable and telephone and now has joined the Museum's permanent collection as a gift from David Y. Hodgson, 3246 Cedar Avenue.

The crucifix shows Christ with long hair parted in the middle and hanging down to his shoulders. His eyes are down cast and his beard is curled. The loin cloth is blue and red. The whole object, measuring 40 inches, bears traces of polychrome.

Lesage opens . . .

Morden paid special tribute to the Prime Minister, The Honourable Jean Lesage, and the support which the Provincial Government has so far given to the Center.

Mr. Lesage praised English-speaking Quebecers for their "pioneering spirit" in caring for the handicapped.

"I have been told that you have restored the foster home to a place of honor," the Premier said. "This is a form of child protection by the family which French-speaking Quebecers have tended to overlook."

He also mentioned pioneering work in trying out educational methods of bringing together children afflicted with different physical handicaps.

The Premier described increased efforts to help the handicapped as part of "our collective effort to develop our human capital."

"The investment which you are making in human values seems to me to open up very promising new vistas," he said.

Please note

In a story which The Examiner ran last week "Westmount, a City of Extremes," the story was credited to Ephraim F. Obrart.

It should be made clear that Mr. Obrart is not a member of The Examiner staff but he is Dr. Ephraim F. Obrart, Director-Research Department, The Montreal Council of Social Agencies.

The story which appeared was a report that Dr. Obrart prepared on the City of Westmount. It made very interesting reading and due to the number of calls received at the MCSA and The Examiner, we wish to, at this time, clear up this point.

The full report may be had at the MCSA, 1040 Atwater street for a small amount.

The funds are urgently required to bring existing hospital facilities into line with current requirements. The Hospital's cost for these renovations is $100,000, of which some $50,000 has already been received from previous campaigns. The present appeal objective represents the additional money needed to get the work underway.

The Julius Richardson Hospital, 5425 Bessborough Avenue, Montreal, plays an important part in meeting the city's hospital requirements by admitting patients for convalescent care from the active general hospitals. In this way, the active hospitals receive much need relief, with a consequent reduction in their operating costs.

In announcing the campaign, Dr. Little said that some improvements had been made recently, but the need for additional funds to increase facilities was still most urgent. The Quebec Hospital Insurance Service does not fully cover such costs.

He further explained that more than 96 per cent of funds raised in the campaign will go directly into hospital funds, with less than four per cent needed for appeal costs.

The hospital is devoted to a high standard of nursing and medical care, as well as fully qualified physio and occupational therapy service. The Hospital is regularly operating with every available bed occupied.

"The need is most urgent and all contributions to meet our requirements will be gratefully received," said Dr. Little.

Weston School graduates hold round-table forum

By WENDY SCOTT

"After School . . . What?" was the topic of a round-table forum held by graduates of Weston School, Inc., Tuesday night. The meeting took place in the school building, 18 Severn avenue.

Senior students heard graduates from 1965 to as far back as 1932 describe their careers after leaving Weston. Topics ranged from hospital training to film production.

Tanya Ballantyne, a 1960 graduate who went to Switzerland and then on to McGill, is now making films with the National Film Board. Interest in medicine combined with a talent for art has provided an unusual career for another graduate, who is making pictures for sick patients at the Children's Hospital.

Others described three different channels afforded their artistic abilities: one, a student at Beaux Arts, will decide between work in commercial or fine art after two years of study; another is teaching young children at a community centre, a third is working at a commercial studio.

Several are combining part-time training with raising families of their own; one in art education, another in pre-school nursery training offered by her local church, another studying Library Science.

For students planning on entering university in the fall, a second-year McGill coed admitted that she found life in a large, cosmopolitan university "hard at first" but "very rewarding and stimulating" soon after.

Another was enthusiastic about the intensive training program provided by a large corporation, and two are finding interesting careers in banking. One graduate noted the changes that have taken place in the field of retail merchandising; graduates who have left jobs to raise families noted that return to work often necessitates further training.

"There is a pressing need for the small, independent school today," emphasized Mrs. C. Curry, senior school teacher at Weston. "Many of our girls are finding satisfying, challenging careers, although not all of them have the interest or capacity for the rigid matriculation course which is a pre-requisite for our university training. What we stress is development of the individual according to her own capabilities, whether they be strictly academic, artistic or personal."

During the last part of the meeting, school principal Miss (Continued on page 14)

Les Grands Ballets Canadiens opening performance Dec. 17

The Firebird (L'Oiseau de Feu), Fernand Nault's new version of one of the great ballets of the grand tradition, will be a featured presentation in the 1965-66 season of Les Grands Ballets Canadiens, scheduled to open at La Place des Arts on Friday, December 17 when the Company, supported by the Montreal Symphony, begins the most ambitious season in its nine-year history.

In creating a new libretto for this spectacular ballet, Fernand Nault has gone back to the original Pushkin tales from which Fokine drew his inspiration in 1910 when he created the original version in close collaboration with a promising young composer by the name of Igor Stravinsky. From his consequent success with the music of The Firebird Stravinsky was to go on to become the greatest composer in Twentieth Century ballet history.

An attenuated version of The Firebird has occasionally appeared in the repertoire of various international ballet companies. Nault has chosen to disregard all these present-day stagings of The Firebird Suite, and, instead, has set out to capture the excitement, mystery and color of the story as it was first told.

In the bewitching garden of Kostchei, Prince of Darkness, there grows a tree bearing a Golden Apple, which has the power of granting wishes to that royal personage who may pluck it. Buried by the tree is an egg which contains the secret of Kostchei's immortality. Kostchei guards the tree jealously. When Princess Tsarevna discovers the Golden Apple, she is captured by Kostchei.

Meanwhile in the same enchanted garden, Prince Ivan Tsarevitch has been hunting the radiant Firebird, whose song enchants all who hear it. When he captures it, he is so taken by its beauty that he forfeits the fame that would be his in its capture and releases it. In return the Firebird promises to come to his aid in time of need.

The Princess realizes that escape for herself and her retinue lies with the Golden Apple. When she plucks it, she discovers Ivan, and the couple falls in love. But, before they can make their escape, Kostchei, his wife Kikimora, and their followers discover them, and Kikimora turns the legs of Ivan to stone for plucking the Golden Apple. His final fate seems certain until Ivan calls upon the Firebird for aid. The Firebird enchants Kostchei with its song and reveals to Ivan the source of Kostchei's immortality. With his death the courts of Ivan and the Princess join in a wedding ceremony as the Firebird brings the Golden Apple with its remaining two wishes.

The role of The Firebird will be danced by Irene Apinee.

Pooh Bear a classic

The Pooh Story Book, by A. A. Milne, McClelland & Stewart Limited. 79 pp. $3.95.

This book contains three separate stories of Pooh Bear and his little friends, Piglet, Eeyore and Tigger. It tells of Pooh's visit to Piglet's home — how he entices Piglet to help him build a house for Eeyore on Pooh Corners — Piglet's dilemma when it rained for days and his little house was surrounded by water and Pooh comes to the rescue and lastly how Pooh invents a new game with fir-cones and calls it Poohsticks.

The Pooh Story Book, by A. A. Milne, a child's classic, has 18 new full color illustrations and 27 black and white line drawings by the original artist, Ernest H. Shephard.

These colorful little stories, fascinating to little children, will solve the Christmas gift solution for many little children.

There is a song in my heart

There is a song in my heart for the sunshine
Flowers, fragrance and dew,
For the fruits that fill our orchards,
Blossoms and roses that grew

There is a song in my heart for the tiller,
The planter in gardens and field,
The thrasher, binder and gleaner,
All who assist, heaven's yield.

There is a rift in my soul for the needy,
Lonely, forsaken, oppressed,
For those despondent and homeless,
Who seek a place where to rest.

There is a bliss on my lips for the donor,
Whose hands reach for the best,
Who finds pleasure in duty of giving,
And constantly gives till the last.

Hadassah-Wizo Convention planned for January 3-6

Toronto will be the scene of the 21st National Biennial Convention of the Hadassah-Wizo Organization of Canada, its National President, Mrs. Anne L. Eisenstat, announced recently. Some 1,000 Delegates will gather at the Royal York Hotel, January 3-6, 1966, having travelled from 70 cities and towns from Newfoundland to British Columbia.

Mrs. John Devor of Toronto, National Convention chairman, and Mrs. M. Sager, Montreal Convention vice-chairman, and their committees have been hard at work making arrangements for this important meeting, which has as its theme "Tomorrow is Now."

Many prominent personalities from Canada, U.S.A., South America, Europe and Israel will be guest speakers and special program panelists.

Canadian Hadassah, with a membership exceeding 15,000 women, is a Federation of the Women's International Zionist Organization, with branches in 50 countries of the free world. Its work is mainly concerned with rehabilitation and education for immigrant women and children in Israel. Special projects in Israel include agricultural and technical training schools, as well as nurseries for pre-school youngsters. In Canada, Hadassah has extensive and varied programs ranging from large national seminars to small local study groups, as well as courses in Hebrew Language and Leadership.

The Hadassah-Wizo Organization of Canada places great emphasis on the importance of strengthening Jewish values in this country, as a means of providing an inexhaustible source of material and spiritual strength for Israel and Judaism, while at the same time imbuing in its members a profound sense of pride and appreciation for their Canadian birthright.

One of the highlights of the Official Opening Ceremonies, January 3, 1966, is the National President's Report — a review of Canadian Hadassah-Wizo's achievements during the past two years. The evening of January 4 is designated WIZO Night and will feature as guest speaker Mrs. Raya Jaglom of Israel, chairman of the World WIZO Executive. In that capacity she recently visited the U.S.S.R. and many European centres, on a fact-finding mission.

The 21st National Biennial Convention will closely examine the many vital issues facing contemporary Jewish life, its organizational structure and its numerous and far-flung projects. It will too, provide much fine entertainment and a splendid atmosphere of gaiety, as women across this country converge on Toronto, for what it is hoped will be "The Greatest Hadassah Convention Ever."

Automatic warnings

A "front-seat driver" who automatically tells you if there's danger on the road ahead may be a built-in feature of the family car in the not-so-distant future says the Royal Automobile Club of Canada.

Already some radio roadside alert transmitters have been built which broadcast a taped warning over the car radio as you approach, even going so far as turning the radio on, if necessary. Their drawback, in their stage of development, is they're relatively expensive, can carry only a limited message, and require frequent maintenance.

The RACC stated that a major automobile manufacturer has come up with a slightly different experimental version of its own which it claims has few maintenance problems and possibly is cheaper to produce. It consists of a small transmitter and a looped memory tape stored in the car trunk which can carry as many as 40 separate messages relating to driving conditions.

A simplified roadside transmitter would send out a coded pulse 24 hours a day that would trigger the particular message applicable on the car's memory tape. This then would be automatically transmitted through the car radio, even turning it on.

The manufacturer claims the roadside transmitter could be operated with a low power source such as self-charging solar cells or batteries since it merely would send out a pulse and would be almost maintenance free. When road conditions changed, it would be necessary only to alter the pulse code to activate a different message in the car's tape.

Religious radio

Is physical healing a legitimate part of religious activity? Has Christian Science been wrong in healing physical ills by spiritual means for nearly 100 years? These questions will be discussed on the radio program "The Bible Speaks to You" over CKVL (dial 850) on Sunday morning at 9:45.

LOWER CANADA PRIZEWINNERS

McGill principal at Lower Canada College

'Establishment' warned university is serious, not a status symbol

McGill principal and vice-chancellor H. Roche Robertson told the annual speech night and prize giving at Lower Canada College last Friday night that parents shouldn't send their children to university because it is the "thing to do."

"Don't let fashion dictate your course," said Doctor Robertson as he told those present that it is folly to think that the only way to succeed in life is with a university degree. He said it is a mistake to believe that the only way to attain "prestige" and an interesting career is by going to university.

He also said he doubted the "day will come when all students must come to university".

The number of students who should go to university will increase though, he noted.

Make the distinction

Those who "should" have university because of their ability should receive a university education, but he warned parents not to send "poor scholars" and those who do not "want" to go.

In many instances, said the educator, students will succeed equally as well if they start working when they graduate from high school.

C. H. Drury, former mayor of Westmount, chaired the program. Remarks were made during the evening by Mr. Drury and Headmaster D. S. Penton.

Maimonides:

Boasts excellence in geriatric care

The new Maimonides Hospital and Home for the Aged, dedicated November 29, 1964, at a cost of almost five million dollars represents one of the most outstanding achievements of design and technique in care for the aged. Financed by the Jewish community and the federal and provincial governments at a 3:1 ratio, it stands today as a universal symbol of excellence in the geriatric field. Maimonides Hospital and Home for the Aged is a constituent member of the Allied Jewish Community Services of Montreal.

Samuel Moskowitz, Q.C., president, Q.C., president of the hospital, told reporters "that Maimonides represents a real breakthrough in the high mortality rate involved with hospitals and homes specializing in geriatric care. We have attained one of the lowest mortality rates in the world. It is so exceptional that the hospital has won international recognition as a pacesetter in the field, and has served as the model for other geriatric facilities now being constructed throughout North America and Europe. We are most gratified by the interest that has been expressed in Maimonides and hope that the increased awareness created by Maimonides' success will result in more adequate provision for the care of the geriatric patient elsewhere."

Maimonides was planned and conceived as the most modern facility of its kind. It is not only the most exceptional home for the aged in North America, but a hospital as well. The five storey building has 9,000 square feet of medical space which includes a minor surgery room, a fracture room, laboratories, a pharmacy, facilities and offices for internal medicine, urology, gynaecology, ophthalmology, cardiology, neuropsychiatry, otolaryngology, dentistry and chiropody, psychology and medical research. Facilities for oxygen therapy are available in each patient's ultra-modern room.

Another 9,000 square feet of space provides physical therapy, occupational therapy and speech therapy facilities for patients.

Each floor of Maimonides is organized to care for a specific category of patient. The second floor is for those acutely ill and whose medical condition is unstable. The third floor serves confused patients who require maximum nursing attention. The fourth floor is for mentally alert patients who need maximum nursing care. The fifth floor has two sections — one for patients who require moderate nursing care and medical observation, and one for the well aged. This individual classification has been singled out as a unique contribution to the field of geriatric welfare and has won wide recognition. Published articles, written by Louis J. Novick, executive director of Maimonides, have been used by the United States Department of Health, Education and Welfare, and by the American Hospital Association.

Since its opening the Hospital has instituted a nurses training program and a day care program. A lecture room and a professional library are available as well as bedrooms for medical residents.

Phil Cohen, first vice president of Maimonides, explained the admissions policy. "Admission to the hospital is based on the patient's needs. The first priority is whether or not the patient has anyone to turn to — friends, relatives or children. If completely destitute, then he is given top consideration for admission."

Everyone who applies for admission is interviewed by a social worker, and this is done on a first come, first served basis. The present waiting list for admission numbers some 450 applicants. Of these, 105 have been approved or will be in a very short while. This means that 345 people have not even begun the task of being interviewed by the already heavily burdened staff of social workers. However, a crash program has recently been started to guarantee that all applicants will be interviewed in the shortest time possible.

Montrealers can well be proud of this institution which has taken the initial step toward providing better care for geriatric patients. This is bound to be one of the major concerns of the future — for as medical research continues to probe and find more answers to the secret of life, human life will inevitably be prolonged and the challenge will be to provide life to those years after we have added years to life.
