GET THOSE DANCING BOOTS OUT — The Sherbrooke Firemen's Social Committee is busy organizing a dance to raise funds which will help them finance the many community-spirited activities they sponsor each year. The tickets are only $2 for the dance which will be held in October. From left to right are Paul Roy, who co-ordinated the committees eyeglass campaign, Gerald Boudreau, committee secretary-treasurer and Eddy Dumas. For story, see p.3.

Trouble with skylab

Emergency craft readied while mission continues

HOUSTON, Tex. (AP) — While launch crews at the Kennedy Space Centre in Florida worked around the clock to prepare a rocket for a possible emergency rescue, the Skylab 2 astronauts continued working today in their orbiting laboratory, hopeful of completing a full 59-day mission.

The first attempt to rescue a crew in space might have to be made if there is further deterioration in the Apollo command ship intended to ferry the astronauts back to earth Sept. 25.

The Apollo lost half its rocket steering power Thursday and alarmed officials at first considered bringing Alan Bean, Dr. Owen Garriott and Jack Lousma home today in the crippled ship, docked to the space station.

But they decided the crew could remain aboard after analysis showed the Apollo should retain its capability to bring them home safely at the scheduled end of the mission.

But as a precaution, launch crews at Cape Canaveral were directed to prepare the Skylab 3 rocket and Apollo spaceship for a possible rescue mission if further trouble developed.

In Florida, Kennedy Space Centre director Walter Kapryan reported more than 1,000 men have swung into a 24-hour-a-day seven-day-a-week operation to get the vehicles ready in case the rescue mission is necessary.

DIRECTOR CONFIDENT "We are very confident we can do this thing and be ready to launch by Sept. 5 if needed," Kapryan said. That would be more than two months before the planned Nov. 9 launch of the Skylab 3 crew.

The astronauts resumed medical and scientific experiments and looking after a few minor problems in the space station, orbiting 271 miles high.

They planned today to fire up their earth-resources sensors for the first time. A space walk scheduled Saturday by Garriott and Lousma to change telescope film and to erect a new protective sun shade was postponed again, for the fourth time, until new procedures are worked out for undocking the Apollo ship in case of an emergency during the outside excursion.

The new procedures are necessary because of the trouble with Apollo's rocket thrusters. Instead of three operating thrusters, it now only has two.

Three earlier plans for the space walk were scrubbed because of now-cured motion sickness suffered by all three astronauts.

The problem causing the concern is in two of four rocket-propulsion systems called quads which steer the Apollo ferry ship while it is flying up to the space station and carrying the Astronauts home.

LEAK DETECTED One began leaking oxidizer fluid shortly after the launching Saturday. It was shut off. The flight continued because the spacecraft can operate on only one of the rocket systems, but with some difficulty.

Early Thursday, the astronauts were awakened by a master alarm buzzer. A check disclosed that a second engine system had begun leaking and it too was shut off, making two of the quads inoperative.

Watergate burglar paid by CIA

WASHINGTON (AP) — Richard Helms, former director of the Central Intelligence Agency, disclosed Thursday that one of the men arrested in the Watergate break-in was being paid a $100 monthly retainer at the time.

And Helms' one-time deputy told the Senate Watergate committee that John D. Ehrlichman denied to him that he had sent E. Howard Hunt to get CIA assistance for a White House "plumbers" assignment. Hunt later pleaded guilty to his involvement in the Watergate break-in.

General Robert E. Cushman, a four-star general who now is commandant of the United States Marine Corps, said Ehrlichman's denial "shook up my recollection," but that a transcript of his tape-recorded meeting with Hunt confirmed it.

"There is no question in your mind as you appear before this committee?" asked Senator Lowell Weicker (Dem. Conn.). "No sir," said Cushman.

The committee, driving to finish the current phase of the hearings and go on vacation by the end of next week, polished off its questioning of Helms and Cushman in a day. Not since the third week of the hearings now in their ninth week, have two witnesses come and gone in the same day.

"The agency had no involvement in the break-in, no involvement whatever," said Helms in the only emotional moment of an otherwise amiable session. He pounded his palm against the table as he said it.

Helms, now ambassador to Iran, said he resisted White House feelers to get the CIA involved in the Watergate coverup, saying: "I want to lean heavily on the fact that I was trying to keep the agency clean and that I did not succumb, as long as I kept it clean I felt I was doing my job."

RECORDED TALK Cushman, who appeared in uniform with rows of ribbons on his chest, said that when Hunt came to see him July 22, 1971, he tape-recorded the conversation because Hunt requested they meet alone in his office.

The transcript of that conversation, given to the committee, showed Hunt saying "I've been charged with a highly sensitive mission by the White House to visit and elicit information from an individual whose ideology we aren't entirely sure of."

Hunt asked for "flash alias documentation" and "some degree of physical disguise" and Cushman ordered it done. Hunt was given "notional pocket litter documentation," which included false identification cards, as well as a wig, a voice altering device and a camera hidden in a tobacco pouch.

The key point of the transcript however, was a partial quotation from Hunt that began "well, Ehrlichman said..." and Cushman's reply, "Yes, he called me."

Cushman said that on last Dec. 13, almost a year after he became marine commandant, he was told by CIA official William Colby that the agency needed to prepare a summary of its contacts with Hunt.

"He refreshed my memory on the (Ehrlichman) phone call. I couldn't remember in December who phoned me from the White House. I thought it was Ehrlichman but I wasn't sure."

Cushman said he dictated a memo Jan. 8, but because he wasn't certain enough about the source, he wrote that it was either Ehrlichman, Charles Colson or John Dean.

Cushman said he then rewrote the memorandum, leaving out all names. Then, when he got the transcript of the tape, he went back to his original thought that the call came from Ehrlichman, he said.

"Is it your testimony Ehrlichman put no pressure at all on you to have his name removed," Cushman was asked.

"No, sir... he didn't ask me to tear it up."

Both Cushman and Helms testified Hunt's demands mounted to the point where they cut off CIA help.

Cushman said he learned of the 1971 break-in of the office of Daniel Ellsberg's psychiatrist in May, while he was in Europe and long after he had left the CIA.

Two previously secret CIA memoranda written in August, 1971—a month before the psychiatrist burglary—show that Hunt was escalating his demands on the agency.

One was a request for the services of a "specific individual"—a secretary working in the Paris station of the CIA.

A week later, another memo reported Hunt asked for a courier to meet him at the airport to receive exposed film and arrange for its development. That was done, Cushman said, but other requests for a driver's license, credit cards and a New York office were refused.

TESTIFIES EASILY Relaxed, laughing often, but chain-smoking, Helms said his preoccupation in the months following the June 17, 1972, break-in of Democratic party headquarters "was to keep the agency at a distance from all these problems."

Six of the seven men convicted of conspiracy, wiretapping and burglary in the Watergate break-in had former ties to the CIA—the United States' spying organization in other countries.

Helms said one of the men, Eugenio Martinez, had been on a retainer.

Martinez's job, Helms said, was "to report on individuals who came in from Cuba as to whether they would be worth interrogating or interviewing or not in Florida and he had been on that retainer of about $100 a month on the understanding he would report in from time to time."

"When I found out that he was still on that—had this connection with the agency at the time of this break-in—he was cut off."

Helms took the blame for agreeing, at the request of one of the White House plumbers' bosses—David Young—to have the CIA prepare a "psychological profile" on Ellsberg.

TURNUED DOWN Young rejected a first profile, a second was prepared, and also turned down, he said. The Fielding office burglary followed.

Asked why he agreed to have the profile prepared, Helms said: "Well, it was a high-level White House official asking for this help and it didn't seem like it would do any harm."

Spotlight turns to Philip

OTTAWA (CP) — With Queen Elizabeth holding private audiences for visiting heads of delegations to the Commonwealth conference, the public spotlight fell on Prince Philip Thursday.

He toured the Royal Canadian Mint and a youth hostel in the morning before his luncheon address earned a standing ovation from about 750 Canadian Club members.

In his speech he defended the Commonwealth in strong terms, then was whisked off to Parliament Hill where he presented the Third Battalion, Royal Canadian Regiment with a new set of colors.

That regiment is almost his private bailiwick, as he is its colonel-in-chief.

Wherever he went, crowds quickly gathered, waiting for a brief glimpse of the guest.

When he appeared, scattered, almost embarrassed applause would ripple through the throng.

A brief wave, a flashing smile and, under the watchful eyes of the ever-present security, he would be gone.

AWE REMAINS Behind him, the awe-stricken comments:

"Did you see him?"

"He waved at me."

"He was right over there..."

The Queen, however, did find time to confer a number of awards for bravery and service at a Government House ceremony.

Later in the day she undertook a more personal duty. She went to the Rockcliffe training centre of the RCMP to select a new mount to replace her aging favorite, Burness.

Her final choice was a three-year-old gelding known as Jerry, whose official name is Centennial.

The tall, black horse, a great-grandson of Man O'War, is the RCMP gift to the Queen in celebration of the force's centennial.

Then, it was back to Government House, where the royal couple played host to the leaders of Commonwealth delegations, as well as members of the cabinet and the opposition, at a formal dinner.

Before moving in to dinner, the Queen and Prince Philip formally greeted the visiting leaders.

Wearing a diamond tiara, which set off her silver-shot green and pink silk dress, the Queen had a smile and a word or two for each guest.

Among the Canadian group were Prime Minister and Mrs. Trudeau, Conservative Opposition leader and Mrs. Stanfield and New Democratic Party leader and Mrs. David Lewis.

Prime Minister and Mrs. Lynden Pindling of the Bahamas moved past the royal hosts and were congratulated by Prince Philip on their nation's recently achieved independence.

Prime Minister Sir Kamisese Mara of Fiji and his wife Lady Lala Mara disdained the usual bow and curtsy in favor of a deep kneeling genuflection with three hand claps—a traditional Fijian mark of respect.

PICTURE TAKEN

Later, the Queen and the leaders moved off for the formal conference portrait.

The dinner menu featured cold fennel and tomato soup and lobster with parsley-and-cream sauce as appetizers.

The main course was supreme de poulet Massena—partially deboned chicken in a cream sauce—with pommes Dauphine.

The dessert was a bombe à la framboise—a hemisphere of strawberry ice cream filled with a whipped cream filling.

Today, the Queen continues her private audiences and holds a Government House reception for members of the delegations.

Prince Philip is scheduled to fly to Toronto for the opening of three-days of equestrian trials. He is to return here later in the day.

PARTIES SPLIT

The unions, which represent employees such as telegraph operators, passenger clerks and sleeping and dining-car porters, have asked for wage increases of 10.8 per cent a year in a two year contract.

The companies have responded with offers of seven per cent the first year and 6.5 per cent plus shift differentials in the second. Pension improvements are also included in the package.

Union members now make an average of $3.54 an hour.

The unions decided on rotating strikes to avoid being forced back to work by the federal government.

Mr. Munro has repeatedly refused requests for direct intervention in the dispute and has denied reports that back-to-work legislation is being prepared.

Resort fire claims 37

DOUGLAS, Isle of Man (Reuters) — At least 37 persons, many of them children, were feared dead today after fire swept through a packed entertainment centre on this British vacation island.

Several hours after the blaze police said 30 bodies had been carried from the smouldering ruins. But later a rescue worker at the scene said 37 bodies had been recovered.

"We don't know what we'll find when we go back in there," he said.

Police said the blaze may have been caused by a child playing with matches on an outside balcony where there was a miniature golf course.

Nearly 100 persons were taken to hospital, several of them seriously injured.

Eyewitnesses said there was a loud explosion before a sheet of flame swept through the summer entertainment centre which was one of the major attractions on this island between England and Ireland.

The evening entertainment had just begun.

About 4,000 persons were dancing in the discotheque, enjoying the amusement arcade or lounging in the sauna baths.

Some fled with their clothes on fire.

DASHED FOR EXIT

William Padgett, who was dancing with his wife in one of the lounges when the alarm was given, said:

"There were about 200 other people in there. Suddenly we heard someone shout that there was a fire, and we made a dash for the exit. The whole of the exterior wall was blazing."

"It would be a miracle if all of those people managed to get out."

Many people were hurt as they were trampled in the mad rush for the emergency exits. People outside sobbed and screamed that their relatives were still trapped inside.

More than 100 firemen and every firefighting unit on the island were brought into play. They had little effect on the flames.

Landers

Dear Ann Landers: I felt a strong kinship with the woman who wrote that she blushed all day and couldn't face her boss because of the dreams she was having about him. Your advice, "Get another job," was sound. I hope she takes it.

I was in the same spot ten years ago and where I got the strength to walk out of that office is more than I will ever know. Today I have a fine husband and family and my wonderful ex-boss's family is intact. It might not have been had I stayed around.

It's easy to fall in love with a man you see every day, especially if he is attractive and successful. A secretary can make herself "indispensable." She can also be more interesting to a man than his wife. A secretary and boss have so much to talk about that has nothing to do with problems — children, in-laws, repair bills and other troublesome and boring topics.

I hope the secretaries out there who find their bosses dangerously appealing will take this letter seriously. The minute you feel yourself falling, girls, clean out your desk and leave. —Glad I Did

Dear Glad: How right you are. Preventive medicine is infinitely less expensive and less painful than a cure. Thanks for telling it like it is.

Dear Ann Landers: What is real friendship? The longer I live, the less I'm sure. We lived in a Midwestern city for 20 years. Six couples in our circle were very close.

Eight years ago we moved East. We have invited every one of these couples to visit us. Not one has. We've written dozens of letters and made countless long-distance phone calls. A handful have acknowledged the letters. No one has ever phoned us.

We wouldn't know they were alive if it weren't for the Christmas cards and periodic rash of "invitations" to birthday celebrations, anniversary parties, the graduation announcements.

weddings of their children, and now the christenings of their grandchildren. This week I received six.

Both my husband and I feel that our old friends have given no indication they really care about us. We've decided to ignore all the mailing pieces. Are we wrong? —Even Up

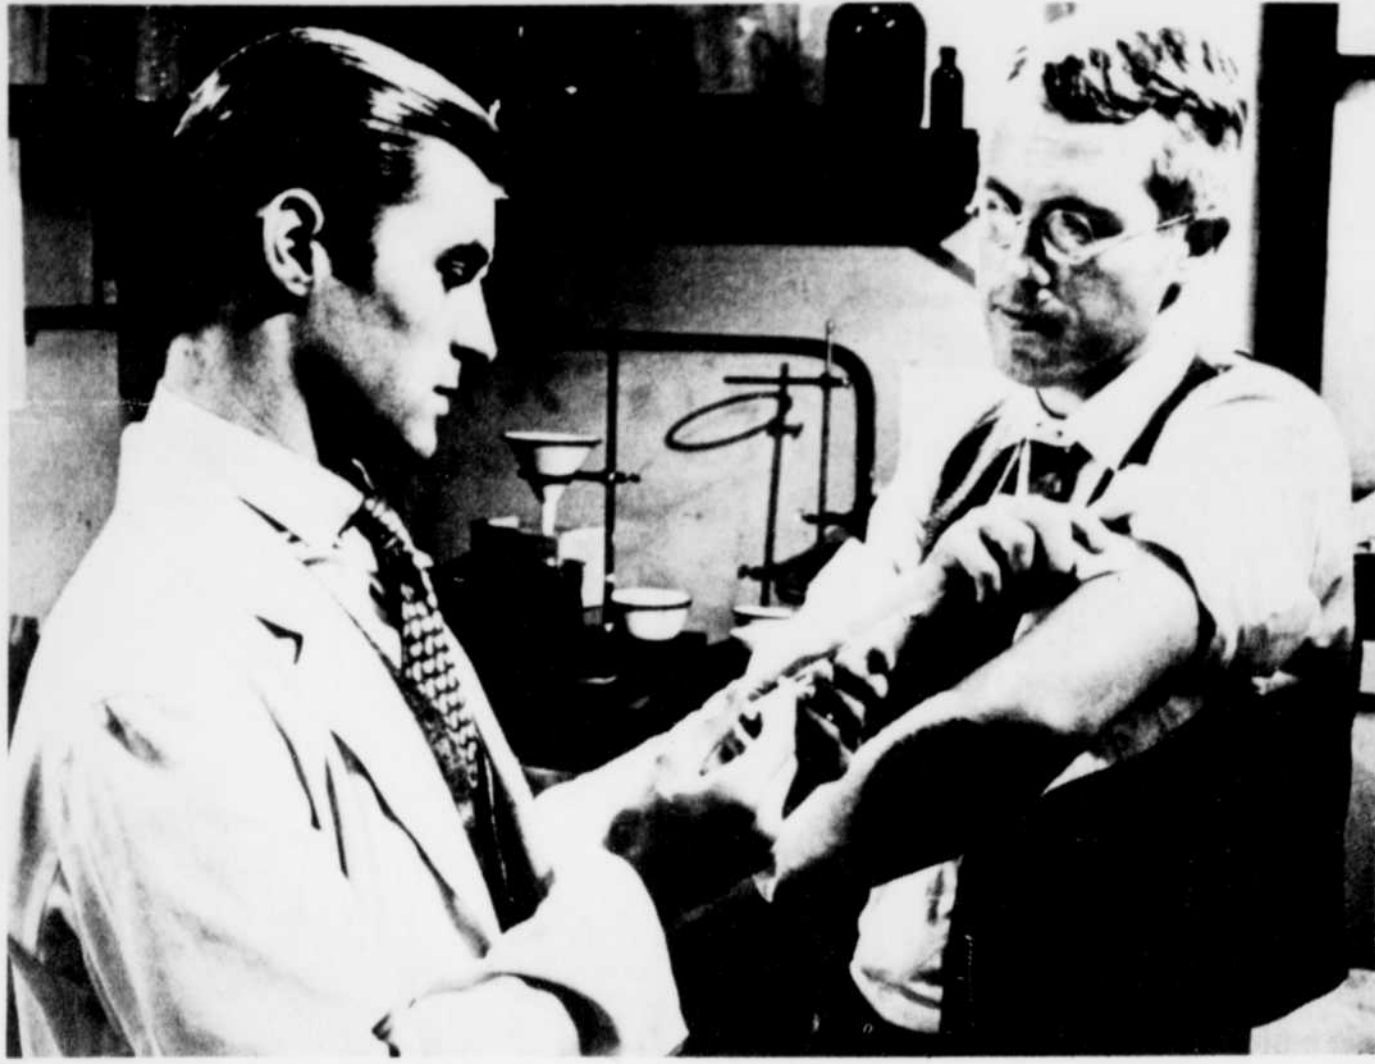

Dear Up: Neither distance nor time diminishes true friendship. I suspect the quality of the relationships was not as genuine as you thought.

It is possible to feel warmly about people you haven't seen for many years, but friendships must be tended like gardens and people take care of the things they really care about.

THE DISCOVERERS — The story of the discovery of insulin by Drs. Banting and Best is dramatized on CBC TV's Sunday at Nine, Aug. 5 (repeat). In this scene Richard McKenna as Best is seen preparing an injection for Michael J. Reynolds who plays Banting.

The work of Banting and Best was carried out in a borrowed laboratory in Toronto in the early 1920's, and their discovery earned Banting a Nobel Prize and a Knighthood.

"THAT MAN!"

TORONTO (CP) — "I will never dance with that man again," the Russian-born classical ballerina intoned with heavy accent, "never."

Natalia Makarova commented on her performance in Paris Saturday with ballet superstar Rudolf Nureyev, after she arrived here Monday for performances with the Pennsylvania Ballet.

"I am used to ballet that is refined and a partner must be refined, flexible, sensitive... I will not be dancing with Rudolf Nureyev ever again."

Miss Makarova, a stateless person since she defected from the Soviet Union in 1970, has often been linked professionally with her compatriot who defected in 1963. For her appearance at the O'Keefe Centre here, she is billed as "Nureyev's electrifying dancing partner."

She said her final break with Nureyev came after Saturday's performance of the Paris Opera Ballet's production of Swan Lake and her final comment on their relationship was a blunt "That man!"

Today she will begin her Toronto appearance with excerpts from the same ballet with the company from Philadelphia, which she said, is "very young, but it has a lot of potential."

In an interview at the end of two days of air travel that brought her from Paris to Philadelphia to Toronto, Miss Makarova said she could be very frightened if she had to dance now for audiences in her native land.

"They all know me in Leningrad. They know how I danced three years ago and they know what I have done. I would have to be a better dancer, a much better dancer, to prove to everyone that what I have done was the right thing."

Single at 33, the dark blonde dancer says she keeps in touch with her mother and stepfather in Leningrad and sends them money.

Her affection for the Kirov ballet in the Russian city is as strong as ever, she said.

"For purely classical ballet, Leningrad is the only right way. The atmosphere and the traditions, the good teaching—they are the best in Leningrad for classical ballet. After that, in London with the Royal Ballet."

NO GLASSES NEEDED. — Sherbrooke officials didn't need glasses yesterday when Veracon Ltd., a local manufacturer of contact lenses, officially announced it is building a new plant in Sherbrooke's industrial park. It became the second industry within two days to announce construction in the industrial park. Carlan Plastics turned sod Wednesday. On hand to sign the

Another industry in park

Veracon contacts Sherbrooke

SHERBROOKE (CC) — Veracon Ltd., became the second industry within two days to officially announce that owners are constructing a new plant in Sherbrooke's industrial park — situated just off Portland street.

production in the new plant starts.

FOUR SECTIONS

The new building, which will be about 10,000 square feet in size, will be divided into four sections.

One section will be for the manufacturing of hard plastic lenses. The second section and the one in which Veracon Ltd. bases most of its future, will be for the manufacturing of the modern malleable, soft plastic lenses which mould to the eye when dampened by the water in the eye. The process to manufacture the malleable lens was developed by company president Blanchard.

A third section will be office space and the fourth section, approximately one-third of the building, will be used to establish a research and education centre for the development of contact lenses.

Mr. Blanchard yesterday lamented the lack of qualified technicians who know how to make contact lenses. Most employees engaged by the firm have to be trained by the company for at least four months.

The president hoped that a

CEGEP or technical school would introduce a program to train contact lens technicians. "If you could bring me 10 qualified technicians I would hire them right away," he said.

CONTACT LENSES

The new company manufactures contact lenses which are sold to eye specialists for fitting. It does not service consumers but sells to optometrists.

More companies are expected to announce they will be building in the park shortly. The city is on the verge of signing a company which would create between 350 and 400 jobs. The name of the company was not released.

Another company, which is presently constructing in the park, Santana Shoes Ltd., was awarded a $109,000 grant this week by the Department of Regional Economic Expansion.

Santana Shoes is the company formed by Pete Sauer following the closing of the Prospect Division of Kaufman Shoes in Sherbrooke earlier this year. The grant is based on a five per cent rate of the approved capital costs, estimated at $320,000, and $500 for each new job created. A total of 187 jobs are expected to be created.

Sherbrooke firemen: It's more than just extinguishing flames

By CROSBIE COTTON
Record Reporter

SHERBROOKE — Turning heads quickly spot the blurr of speeding firetrucks — siren screaming and light flashing — as Sherbrooke firemen head towards another blaze.

People hurry after them to see the firemen at work, the firemen often placing their lives in danger to prevent the flames from spreading. The general consensus is that Sherbrooke has a good fire department.

Everyone knows that firemen are paid to put out fires. When there are flames to be battled local firemen are in the public's eye.

However, not many of the local population know what about the behind-the-scenes work. The firemen are not a service organization but the local fire-fighters are always busy trying to help those most in need of help.

Among the activities undertaken yearly by the Sherbrooke firemen's social committee is the annual Christmas toy campaign. Each year firemen collect old and often-broken toys and repair them to give to needy families during the festive season.

"It takes paint and tools and often pieces to repair the toys," committee secretary-treasurer Gerald Boudreau said earlier this week. "We give out toys to more than 400 needy families each year. More than 8,000 toys are presented and we have to buy at least half of them."

REPAIR TOYS

The firemen repair the toys in their spare time. Soon they will be going though the city to pick up old toys in preparation for another Christmas. But it takes money to repair and buy new toys.

So once again, local firemen are going to the public to secure funds which will allow them to continue the toy projects and many of the other fine activities they undertake each year.

They need money but the firemen won't just ask for it. Each year, to raise the funds they need, the firemen organize a dance.

This year, the 13th consecutive dance will be October 28 at Salle O Grand R in Ascot Corner. Four bands will provide the music for the evening.

Tickets are now on sale for only $2 from chairman Sylvio Provencher. "It is the only project which the firemen organize to raise funds."

More than 2,000 people attended the dance last year and the firemen were able to raise the funds they needed. They hope the same success can be realized this year. Two televisions will be given away.

MORE THAN TOYS

But the firemen do more than repair toys.

The social committee also sponsors a team, the Expos, in the Sher-Lenn little league.

The firemen also provide glasses to needy children in the city. "Most of the pairs of glasses are given to school-age children whose parents can't afford to buy them," Paul Roy, who looks after the program, said.

In 10 years the firemen have presented underprivileged children with more than 500 pairs of eye glasses. Using a $1,000 budget, the firemen's social committee works in collaboration with school administrators.

From there the firemen send the child to an optometrist for an eye examination and then the spectacles are made.

"Just the other day I had a call from a man on welfare," Mr. Roy said. "He had no money and his glasses hurt his eyes. We don't usually help adults but he got a pair."

HELP FIRE VICTIMS

The firemen's social committee also undertakes other community projects. It offers aid to victims of fire.

"If someone is thrown out on the street because of a fire we can get him or his family a hotel room for a few days if it is needed," Lieutenant Boudreau said. "We can pay the costs of meals and in some cases we supply some clothing."

"But we have a lot of help from hotel owners and merchants," Boudreau continued. Doug Jones coordinates the program.

The firemen also make donations to charitable organizations. Donations to the Red Cross, the Cancer Society, etc., are made by the firemen's social committee.

In addition they deliver and pick-up the little donation boxes for the Cerebral Palsy Society. The boxes are found in most Sherbrooke businesses.

"We were able to collect more than $1,500 for the society last year," Boudreau said. Sherbrooke firemen do more than fight fires.

Celanese to expand

MONTREAL — W.R. Clerihue, president and chief executive officer of Celanese Canada Limited, announced today a polyester fibre expansion program for Millhaven Fibres Limited, an affiliate of Celanese Canada.

Mr. Clerihue explained that the initial phase of the expansion program would increase Millhaven's polyester textile filament yarn capacity by 40 per cent per annum with complementing increases in textured yarn capacity. He said that this phase would be completed by mid-1974 and would create 60 new jobs.

Millhaven Fibres is Canada's largest producer of polyester fibres used in knitted wear, woven fabrics, tire cord and industrial fabrics.

"This program is part of the company's long-range plan to increase total polyester production capacity in response to a rapidly expanding market for Canadian production," he said.

Move to silence Knapp?

Board decides to record meetings

By Michael Isaacs
Record Reporter

LENNOXVILLE — Wednesday night's meeting of the Lennoxville District School Board (LDSB) was both marred and made brilliant by themes of accountability in democratic process.

The motivation was perhaps not ideal. Marguerite Knapp, former chairman of the LDSB and seemingly irate about the board's decision to appoint Garth Fields chairman for 1973-74, displayed a hostility towards her colleagues that appeared to alienate her from them.

In an attack upon the minutes from the previous meeting, she devoted so much time to questioning their accuracy that she provoked comments that she was "nit-picking" from both chairman and vice-chairman, and finally caused secretary-general Robert Simonic to tape-record the meeting.

Under "new business" she pressed for and received a resolution from the board which will cause the names and votes of all members to be inscribed into the minutes beside all motions which have not been decided unanimously.

The results of Mrs. Knapp's pressures are that the LDSB will find itself far more strapped into exactness, accuracy and responsibility. With the meeting on tape, there will be no opportunity for after-the-fact deviation in either the minutes as presented or as approved.

Further, with all members' manner of voting recorded, pressure will be greater upon individuals to vote with awareness of the responsibility which has been invested in them through the representative process.

Because all meetings are open and minutes are available to the public upon request, voting records indicating consistency and philosophy of board members will be available to each constituency when time for re-election arrives.

The LDSB has made an important advance in terms of making itself accountable to the public and to making the democratic process work in a time when there is serious cause to question the feasibility of attaining democratic ideals at all.

Although persons in this area have been presented images of authoritarian tendencies in the recent past, it is gratifying to see that there are, in some segments of the population, the feeling that representatives are indeed accountable to those who elected them.

Also passed Wednesday night was a motion which will make the board responsible for collecting its own taxes in Lennoxville rather than leaving the collection to the local authorities.

According to Simonic, municipality collection has slowed LDSB cash flow.

Meeting to be held in Richmond town hall

RICHMOND (CC) — The English-speaking population in the Richmond-Danville-Asbestos region should take note.

The Eastern Townships Social Action Group (ETSAG) will be holding an open meeting on August 9 in the new Richmond town hall. The English-speaking population in the region is invited to participate in the meeting which is scheduled to begin at 8 p.m.

Everyone is invited to discuss the situation in the community.

As one of the animators — not researchers as most people tend to believe — said yesterday: "We try to talk to as many people as possible but we can't talk to everyone."

"The meeting will allow the English population in the region the opportunity to talk to us."

The long look

The Canadian government can be properly criticized on many other counts but not for taking plenty of time to frame a national energy policy. If the study released recently is only a study, and commits the government to no clear policy, nothing more could be expected, or desired, at this point. The government lacks much vital information and the same is true of all governments the world over, but Canada's situation is peculiar for two reasons.

It apparently possesses abundant energy sources for its short-term needs but, as a federal state, it cannot devise a long-term policy without agreement between the federal and ten provincial governments. Its problem, therefore, is physical, constitutional and political. A problem so complicated will not be solved by sudden inspiration and would certainly be worsened by any attempt to solve it through some vote-winning stratagem of politics.

What Canadians should realize, above all, is that in the area of energy, unlike most areas of government, the nation must make decisions as permanent as anything can be in this world. There are only so many more rivers that can be dammed to produce electricity. The oil, gas, coal and uranium taken from the earth cannot be replaced. The commitment of these resources, made in the present generation, will affect all future generations. That is why a Mackenzie River pipeline, for example, apart from its huge financial requirements and ecological results, is a project quite different from the construction of the original Canadian Pacific Railway, which involved no similar risks and cost much less money. With precious resources of limited though unknown dimensions, Canada is playing for keeps.

The energy report, a document which few Canadians will read and fewer will fully understand, accepts certain broad assumptions, among them that Canada has enough energy sources of all sorts to supply its anticipated needs until the middle of the next century. If this seems a wide margin of security it is, in fact, only a single lifetime. But even the tentative figures could be too optimistic or too pessimistic. Most figures accepted in North America until the last year or two were proved wrong on the side of optimism. No one can possibly know the future requirements of an economic system in constant technological change and, on the other hand, what new sources exploration will discover or science will invent.

Besides, Canada presently depends on foreign and uncontrollable sources for much of its oil and these sources, especially in the Middle East, are at the mercy of political or military events beyond prediction. Finally, Canada, with all its natural wealth, cannot divorce itself from the world and the continental economy or refuse to export its surplus energy, if there is a surplus, to its needy neighbors and essential customers.

The question immediately before the government is thus well summed up by the deputy minister of energy, John Austin: "The energy situation needs a long and cool look both at domestic and international sources of supply to see what is available, where it is available, for how long it will be available and at what price it will be available." Wisely the government (and doubtless the Conservative opposition) is now taking such a long look before it leaps into a policy which must be irrevocable.

Opinion from the French press

This is a selection of editorials on current topics, translated from the French-language press of Canada.

Quebec Le Soleil: On the whole, complaints to the federal government by the western provinces lie mainly in two sectors, wheat and transportation.

In the first instance, the Prairie provinces are asking for greater stability in farmers' incomes.

This is not a demand that would be impossible to satisfy, particularly in view of the world-wide food shortage.

The demand for wheat is high and there is no longer any need for the Prairies to reduce their harvests, but rather to respond to the world's needs.

Transport is another crucial economic problem for the West and it is partially, but less and less, linked to wheat.

It was the construction of the railways which gave birth to the West and permitted the East to sell its manufactured goods there in return for the wheat sent to eastern ports.

The West, primarily the Prairie provinces, thus developed an almost exclusively agricultural economy while the two central provinces applied themselves to development of their industrial structures.

This specialization in production by regions has resulted in inevitable friction and the West is always complaining that it is short-changed when compared with the benefits gained by the two central provinces. In the field of transport, for example, the West claims unmanufactured products imported from the East are subject to higher tariffs than western agricultural products imported by the East.

Because of their agricultural economy, the Prairie provinces might demand a "special status" in Canada. British Columbia at the extreme western point and cut off by the Rockies, might do the same.

But then, why not the Maritime provinces as well because of their distinct historical past and Quebec because of its cultural character?

In this case, Ontario would be the only province truly integrated into the country. Thus, one can see that to accord a particular status to a province or a region would be to risk setting off a chain reaction across the nation.

It is only at the national level that varying, but not necessarily different, interests can be reconciled. Attention to regional diversities should not mean regional division.

This would be fatal for a country such as ours which is resisting, with difficulty, the strong attraction of our neighbor to the south.—Gilles Boyer, (July 31).

Ottawa Le Droit: When a premier such as Robert Bourassa says it is inevitable that organized crime contributes to the election funds of political parties, it is high time the taxpayers question the democratic value of an election and the financing of electoral campaigns.

Everyone knows that elections, be they federal or provincial, require astronomical expenses which only a party with sufficient funds can support.

But as all candidates and party chiefs are not exactly bursting with riches and the revenue sources of political organizations are always more or less obscure, it becomes inevitable that big companies or organized crime magnates contribute heavily to election campaigns.

In an attempt to break those links which political parties can have with "the business world," the Quebec legislature... has suggested that the state finance political parties.

However, electoral campaigns are very expensive. It is therefore the electoral process, the style itself of election campaigns that must be questioned.

In the old days, a political party depended, above all, on the candidate in the constituency, whereas today it is a leader, a program, a slogan that the organizers try to sell to the electorate.

The new language of communication is used and audio-visual effects, publicity on television, on radio and in newspapers cancel out 80 per cent of the political party budgets during the weeks of the campaign.

To eliminate all contributions which could link the party in power with "suppliers of electoral funds," the organizations must face elections with state financing as the only resource at their command.

First of all, in order to do this, the election campaign period must be shortened, thanks to a permanent list of electors. Secondly, the parties must be allowed to use radio and television free of charge to transmit their message to the people.

Expenses would also be reduced if party organizers would rely on political strength and cease to regard their leader or party program as a package of soap that must be sold to the public.

At the same time, the accent during the election campaign should rest primarily on the candidates in the constituencies and the elector would then have a chance to elect a good government without having been tricked by all the "gadgets" of an over-organized campaign.—Philippe Gagnon, (July 28).

Sherbrooke La Tribune: When a man, famous or not, passes on the statements of sympathy and eulogies are generally unanimous, decency preventing criticism of the actions of the person who has just died.

However, when the man is Louis St. Laurent, former prime minister of Canada, the demonstrations of sympathy are sincere and not just the politicians' attempt at a final reconciliation with an adversary they fought with disdain during his lifetime.

While already far into retirement, Mr. St. Laurent received ample proof that his political career had not gained him any enemies and, on the contrary, had made him popular throughout Canada and even on the international scene.

Louis St. Laurent probably was one of the most prestigious prime ministers Canada has ever had and did not attain these heights just by his political ability.

It was because he was always a conscientious man, because he always held to his human convictions, that M^r. St. Laurent projected the image of a wise and prudent politician.

It is not through constitutional arrangements that Canada will be revitalized; it is through men like Louis St. Laurent, willing to put all their energies not only towards defending a cause or their own viewpoints but also towards assuring each citizen that his rights will be recognized.

To say of a man who has passed away that he was a great man, a great Canadian, doesn't change anything. To try to assimilate the qualities that he himself assumed, to espouse the same faith in his country and in man, that is what will constitute a sincere testimony that Canada has need of today.—Jean Vigneault, (July 27).

Montreal Le Devoir: By his refusal to obey subpoenas from the Ervin commission and prosecutor Archibald Cox, President Nixon has opened a constitutional crisis without precedent in the whole history of the United States.

The president's attitude questions the relationships between the executive power and the two other powers in a dramatic and completely unusual manner. Above all, it lays such serious suspicion on the president that his moral authority risks being irreparably compromised.

Mr. Nixon... was faced with a subpoena from the special prosecutor in charge of a judicial inquiry into this affair. Watergate in which all evidence points to serious crimes having been committed inside the White House itself.

One wonders in the name of what sacred right the president of the United States can avoid, in such a situation, fulfilling a duty required of all American citizens, all the more since he is vested with the highest executive office.

If the president is not required to co-operate to aid the smooth functioning of justice in such a case, then what right does he have to exhort his people to fulfill their duties?

What is repugnant in Mr. Nixon's attitude is his refusal to submit to the judgment of a third party that evidence on which he bases his own judgment in an affair where criminal acts have been attributed to his immediate staff.

We doubt the founders of the American republic intended to give the president such great powers.—Claude Ryan, (July 27).

Legally speaking

By GEORGE KITCHEN

NEW YORK (CP) — One of the fascinating sidelights emerging from the United States Senate inquiry into the Watergate scandals is the number of lawyers involved or named in the attempted cover-up, some as active participants and others on the fringes.

The development has disturbed the public, the legal community and the Senate committee itself. Four of the seven committee members are themselves in the legal profession.

Various bar associations in the country, painfully aware of the harm the Washington disclosures have done to the legal community's public position, have been looking for ways to repair the damage. Eventual disbarment of some of those involved is considered possible.

One of the principal lawyer-figures whose name turns up daily in the committee hearings is Richard M. Nixon, who practised law in California before he entered Congress in the late 1940s and again in New York in the mid-1960s before the won the presidency in 1968.

The committee is trying to find out how much the president knew about White House involvement in attempts to cover-up facets of the break-in into the opposition Democratic party headquarters last summer.

Another major figure accused of involvement by some witnesses is John Mitchell, former chief of the re-election committee and as U.S. attorney-general, the highest ranking law officer in the land. Mitchell, called as a witness, denied any wrong-doing.

A third is G. Gordon Liddy, former White House aide and counsel to the re-election committee, who has been convicted and sent to prison for involvement in the break-in. Liddy was a member of the plumbers squad, the secret group set up by the White House to investigate and plug leaks of confidential government documents.

Key witnesses—all lawyers—have been John Dean, former counsel to the president; John Ehrlichman, former presidential adviser; Herb Kalmbach, Nixon's former personal lawyer; Robert Mardian, former counsel to the re-election committee; and Richard Moore, counsel to the president. All but Moore have been accused by various witnesses of involvement in the cover-up and several have admitted some degree of participation that could lead to their indictment for obstruction of justice.

The two leading lawyers on the senate committee are Sam Ervin, 76, the crusty Democratic chairman who is a former justice of the North Carolina Supreme Court, and Senator Howard Baker, whose searching interrogation of witnesses already has pushed him to prominence as a possible Republican presidential candidate in 1976.

The National Bar Association recently passed a rule making instruction in professional ethics mandatory and announced it would set up a permanent group to handle lawyer discipline.

Orville Schell, head of the 10,000-member Association of the Bar of New York City, commented that the actions of some of those involved were, if not illegal, "at least certainly very curious."

"Good Lord, That's MY Voice!"

Midsummer notes; Mexico

The plane was late taking off from Mexico City, so the latest edition of the paper was on board. The headline stretching across eight columns read: "LOS ANGELES BOUND JET CRASHES, ALL KILLED." It occurred to me on reading it that I was at that moment on a Los Angeles-bound jet and thus far unharmed, though I suffered from a Mexican stomach (Lomotil, two immediately, then one every four hours).

The crash, it transpired, was off Tahiti, and when a few hours later the captain intoned over the loudspeaker that there would be no delay in landing in Los Angeles, my son, mimicking the voice from the cockpit, added "because of diminished traffic coming in from Tahiti." I reminded him that the tragedies aside, plane travel still gets safer and safer every year, and he said yeah, so do the moon shots.

It had been a long day, beginning with the stomach seizure at three a.m. at Guadalajara, whose Autonomous University is a great venture in non-radical education, where they occasionally mount guards with machine guns at the gates to discourage marauding bands from the neighborhood university and, while they are at it, to regulate the length of the students' hair, which is Regulation 1950's. The occasion was a convention of journalists

the right

and educators to ruminate on the theme of "educative journalism."

I began my lecture with a jocular reference to my father's having been exiled from Mexico in the early 1920's for having "involved" himself in Mexican affairs. Accordingly, I had been raised in the tradition of non-involvement. But I said, ho, ho, non-involvement can be overcome. For instance, there was the professor in Czechoslovakia last summer who said that Czechoslovakia is the most non-involved country in the world. "We don't even involve ourselves in Czechoslovakian affairs," I broke up. Unfortunately, nobody else did.

The rumor went about that I was sicker than I really looked. I asked my son how did I sound on the simultaneous translation earphones they were mostly wearing. "Like Donald Duck," he said. I comforted myself by recalling that someone said that Walt Disney has been the best instrument of inter-American understanding in this century.

We rushed to catch the plane, Guadalajara to Mexico City, so as to catch the plane from Mexico City to Los Angeles. At the airport I focused on the geography, and realized that it was like rushing to catch a plane from Washington to Boston so as to catch the plane from Boston to Miami. Nobody had told me you could fly from Guadalajara to Los Angeles.

The plane was late. Why—why?—don't they give you the reason? More and more the American airlines do. But I do not think it has ever occurred to Aeroméxico to do so—though it would be more appropriate in their case to apologize for punctuality, than for lateness. I was in one of those moods, so I actually asked the ticket clerk why was the plane late?

I know now the expression on the Beadle's face when Oliver Twist approached him and asked for more. Stupefaction, graduating to hostility, graduating to a resolve to seek revenge. I tried giving him a helpful hint, a sort of verbal multiple-choice, check one. Had they run out of gas? Was the plane hijacked? Had the pilot forgotten to put his watch on Daylight Saving Time? The clerk retaliated by painstakingly scrutinizing my ticket, as though it might somehow betray my imposture, or contain in the fine print something about the plane's being late.

Mexico is flourishing. It is a melancholy commentary that this seems to be the case wherever there is political stability. Melancholy because wherever there is political stability in Latin America there is usually a one-party state. Mexico is wonderfully skilled at giving the illusion of democracy.

The cynics call it "la democracia dirigida," a programmed democracy. But every five years they conduct elections as though they were the real thing, and the opposition is permitted not the handful of votes they go in for behind the Iron Curtain, but ten or eleven per cent, and the press makes it sound like a hair-breadth victory. It is a fascinating country, and I shall continue to visit it often, and I promise never to involve myself in its domestic affairs.

Inverness

C.W. McVetty

453-2266

The sympathy of the entire community is tendered to all those bereaved by the death of Mrs. Ivan McCrea who passed away suddenly at the home of her daughter, Mrs. Francis Campbell, in Ste. Agathe de Lotbiniere on July 18. Mrs. McCrea will be long remembered as a wonderful person, endowed richly with all the characteristics of a perfect friend and neighbor.

Congratulations are extended to Mr. and Mrs. Amadee Gagne, who, with a host of relatives and friends, celebrated their 50th wedding anniversary on July 7 in the Jean XXIII School in Inverness. Mr. and Mrs. Gagne returned home in 1926 from Detroit where he had been employed and took up farming on the ninth range of Inverness until they retired from active work by taking up residence in Inverness Village.

This was no ordinary 50th wedding anniversary, because Mr. and Mrs. Gagne are the parents of sixteen children, one of whom died while quite young, but their fifteen children and forty-four grandchildren were present at the festivities. Their eldest daughter, Margaret, celebrated, at the same time, the 25th anniversary of taking the vows of a nun.

What is considered as one of the most serious accidents to occur around here for many years happened in the evening hours of July 25 on the Gosford Road, opposite the farm home of Mr. Fernand Methot, less than a mile from Inverness Village, when a speeding car, in which two young men from Plessisville, Messrs. Pierre Michaud and Martin Pare failed to make the curve on the road rolled over in the ditch and caught on fire, becoming the funeral pyre of the two unfortunate passengers.

Ambulances, and the Inverness Fire Brigade were at the scene of the accident within minutes, and the gruesome task of removing the victims began. The sympathy of the whole area is felt for those who suffered in this tragic accident.

It is hoped that the serious consequences of this accident, with the daily occurrence of such mishaps from coast to coast, will cause those in authority to take adequate steps to limit the speed of cars to a sensible level by the use of sealed governors on the engines which would not permit the speed of a car to exceed say sixty, or sixty-five, miles per hour. As long as unreasonably powerful car engines are manufactured we will have those who will use this power and become a menace to the travelling public.

Mr. and Mrs. Harry Little, Lennoxville, Mr. and Mrs. Lawrence Dezan, of Ayer's Cliff, were dinner guests of Mr. and Mrs. Allan Little.

We regret to learn that Mrs. John Goggin of Agincourt, Ont., has passed on recently. The late Mrs. Goggin, the former Miss Hilda Cammings, was born in this immediate neighborhood, the daughter of the late Mr. and Mrs. Henry Canning of the eighth range of Inverness. Her many friends desire to express their sympathy to the other members of the family.

Mr. and Mrs. Robert Wood, of Aubrey, Que., spent the weekend with Mrs. Wood's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Minnaugh. Other guests at the same home were Mrs. Hilda Stevenson, Mr. Leonard Montgomery, and Mr. A.D. McCammon, of Thetford Mines. Mrs. Eddie Quinn, of Montreal, Mr. Jeff Bennett, of Rock Forest.

The monthly meeting of the Ladies Auxiliary of St. Andrew's Church met at the home of Mrs. Lorne Kelso, where routine business was disposed of satisfactorily.

Mr. Percy Ross, of Moncton, N.B., was hurriedly called home to attend the funeral of his aunt, the late Mrs. Ivan McCrea.

Brookbury

Mrs. Lionel Allison
872-3341

Mr. and Mrs. Austin Buttemer and children, Paul and Anita, Mrs. Buttemer's mother and brother, David all of Toronto, Ont., spent a recent weekend at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Ralph Coleman and family.

Mrs. Ralph Coleman and Miss Hope Coleman have returned from a two week tour of the Maritime Provinces. While in Charlottetown, P.E.I., they were fortunate enough to see Her Majesty, Queen Elizabeth, and His Royal Highness, Prince Philip on three occasions.

Rev. Richard Blyth of Quebec City was an afternoon visitor at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Ralph Coleman.

Mr. and Mrs. Lionel Allison were shocked to receive the sad news of the very sudden passing of Mr. Alex Fowler, of Lennoxville, their brother-in-law. Mr. Fowler, who had always been in good health, succumbed in his sleep on July 11th of an acute heart attack.

Friends and relatives in this community extend their sympathy to Mrs. Alex Fowler and Bruce in their great loss.

Mr. and Mrs. Lorne Pease, of Valcartier Village were callers at the home of Mr. and Mrs. L.A. Allison while in the vicinity called here by the death of Mr. Alex Fowler, of Lennoxville.

Mr. and Mrs. John Thompson accompanied by Mr. and Mrs. Sydney Coates of Eaton Corner, visited the cemetery at Rectory Hill, near Inverness, where many of Mrs. Thompson's relatives are buried on Saturday, July 14. They also attended the Orangemen's Picnic at Kinneair's Mills while in that vicinity.

Summer visitors at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Bob Harper are the latter's niece and nephew, Kathy and Jeffery Gibson of Montreal.

Miss Jo Harper is spending the summer at her home here and taking the Refresher Course at C.E.G.E.P. in Lennoxville.

Mr. and Mrs. Lawrence Hodge and family of Lithia, Mass., spent a week with Mrs. Hodge's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Sterling Batley last week while on their vacation.

Mrs. S. Batley, Susan and Carol (Mrs. L. Hodge) and children spent an afternoon with Mrs. Stella Coates at the Wales Home. They were also dinner guests of Mr. and Mrs. Aubrey Batley at Bishopston.

Mr. and Mrs. Douglas Judge and family of Sawyerville were callers at the Sterling Batley Home on Sunday.

Mr. Cecil Martin, of Walpole, N.H., called at the home of Mr. and Mrs. S. Batley while in Bury to attend the funeral of his aunt, Mrs. Belle Lavalliere.

Mr. and Mrs. Everett Boynton and son Philip were evening guests of Mr. and Mrs. L.A. Allison on Monday. Mr. and Mrs. Aubrey Batley of Bishopston were also callers at the same home.

Holiday visitors at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Reg. Lebourveau, Mr. and Mrs. Francis McCain, Mr. and Mrs. Richard McCain and family of Connecticut, U.S.A. Due to the unexpected illness of Mr. Francis McCain they were obliged to return home before their vacation was finished.

Mr. and Mrs. Pierre Goyette of Cookshire were evening guests at the Lebourveau home. Congratulations are extended to Mr. and Mrs. Emelien Lecours of Brookbury in the birth of a son.

ASTRO-GUIDE

By Ceean

Saturday, August 4

The Day Under Your Sign

ARIES (Born March 21 to April 19): A productive weekend. Make your home more attractive—inside and out. Spend time with children also.

TAURUS (April 20 to May 20): As you advance in know-how, you'll acquire self-confidence. Success strongly denoted in Taurus charts.

GEMINI (May 21 to June 20): Careful analysis and research will bring you some facts of which you may not have been previously aware.

CANCER (June 21 to July 20): Handle all mechanical equipment with extra care, especially in the home. Safety negatively aspected.

LEO (July 21 to Aug. 21): Ideal day to enjoy recreation with compatible group. Spend time out of doors if you are inside most of the week.

VIRGO (Aug. 22 to Sept. 22): Visit relatives you haven't seen for a long time. You may have to draw straws to decide which ones.

©1973 by The Chicago Tribune. World Rights Reserved

LIBRA (Sept. 23 to Oct. 22):

Involve friends to drop over, especially those with whom you've been out of touch for some time.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23 to Nov. 21): People tend to exploit you, so don't be naive. Be more discriminating in your choice of friends.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22 to Dec. 21): You are inspired today as an artist or creative endeavor—particularly in communication fields.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 to Jan. 20): An enjoyable day with friends. A short journey would prove pleasurable. Share expenses so no one is "stuck."

AQUARIUS (Jan. 21 to Feb. 19): You are especially astute under current configurations and can clear up a puzzling situation in a hurry.

PISCES (Feb. 20 to March 20): You may have trouble extracting yourself from an increasing situation. Just grin and bear it.

The Day Under Your Sign

ARIES (Born March 21 to April 19): Talk things over with someone not directly related with your career if you want a more objective opinion.

TAURUS (April 20 to May 20): Adjust to moods of those with whom you live. Keep the peace at any cost at this particular time.

GEMINI (May 21 to June 20): You may have the opportunity to be instrumental in helping someone get a new start in life.

CANCER (June 21 to July 20): Boost morale wherever you get a chance. Your own depression will vanish and spirits will soar.

LEO (July 21 to Aug. 21): If someone tries to foist some odd ideas on you, don't get into a hassle—just laugh it off.

VIRGO (Aug. 22 to Sept. 22): A rather routine day—have you catch up with odds and ends around the house—after church.

LIBRA (Sept. 23 to Oct. 22): Be wary of overly zealous person who tries to interest you in questionable proposition on the job.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23 to Nov. 21): Although the future become somewhat stable, patience is still an important factor.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22 to Dec. 21): Side-step arguments over financial matters, particularly with friends and/or relatives. You can't win.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 to Jan. 20): Neighborly chats brighten the day. Make new members of the community feel welcome by your friendliness.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 21 to Feb. 19): Pleasant experience brightens the day, but do not expect permanent relationship to develop.

PISCES (Feb. 20 to March 20): Take time out to evaluate the need for spiritual guidance in your domestic relationships. Attend church.

The Day Under Your Sign

ARIES (Born March 21 to April 19): Show sympathy and understanding to one who is carrying a personal burden, but avoid giving advice.

TAURUS (April 20 to May 20): Transits give support for reconsidering some trend in your particular business field. Read the papers.

GEMINI (May 21 to June 20): It would be prudent to delay action for the time being on project involving large financial investment.

CANCER (June 21 to July 20): Be wary of emotional attachment based solely on physical compatibility. Try to "cool it."

LEO (July 21 to Aug. 21): If your objections are reasonable, state them calmly. Consider also that it might be wise to keep mum.

VIRGO (Aug. 22 to Sept. 22): Your idea must be better organized before you get down to actual business organizational setup.

LIBRA (Sept. 23 to Oct. 22): Money may be your biggest concern for the moment, but situation is temporary in most cases.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23 to Nov. 21): On the home front, it may be necessary to work out a new budget due to inflated living costs.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22 to Dec. 21): Guard against accidents, particularly in the home, as outlook is negative in that area for next few days.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 to Jan. 20): Seek the ear of some bigwig who can give you the advice and guidance you need. He'll be flattered to be asked.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 21 to Feb. 19): You may be stuck with extra work because others "go off" on the job. Lack of cooperation is a factor, too.

PISCES (Feb. 20 to March 20): It is hard to find people to do favors for you now, so find ways and means to get the job done yourself.

Card of Thanks

WHEELER — My most sincere thanks to all my relatives and friends for flowers, cards, letters, gifts and visits while I was a patient in the Sherbrooke Hospital and since my return home. A special thank you to Dr. Paulette, Dr. Ross and Dr. Wells, the staff of I.C.U. and nurses on fourth floor for their excellent care and to Rev. Graham Barr for his many visits. These acts of kindness will long be remembered. God bless you all.
MRS. ARNOLD (MILDRED) WHEELER

WOODS — Our sincere thanks to relatives and friends for their sympathy extended to us at the time of the death of our sister and aunt, Mrs. Dora Woods, Lancaster, N.H.
MRS. NORA BUTLER (sister)
LAWRENCE WESTON (brother)
BOB AND DON BUTLER (nephews)

In Memoriam

BAKER — Dear Ethel, if we could see beyond today
As God can see
And the shadows flee
Our present griefs we'd soon forget
For many joys are waiting yet
For you and me
LEONARD BAKER (husband)

MCKENZIE — In loving memory of Elwin Lloyd McKenzie (Mac) who passed away Aug. 4, 1963.
Precious memories remain with us always Remembered by HIS FAMILY

THOMPSON — In loving memory of a dear husband, father and grandfather, Michael J. Thompson, who passed away August 2, 1972.
Just when your days seemed brightest,
Just when your hopes seemed best,
God called you from amongst us
To your eternal rest.
You wished no one a last farewell.
You could not say good-bye.
You were gone before we knew it
And only God knows why.
It is lonely here without you.
We miss you more each day.
For life is not the same to us,
Since you were called away.
If we could have one lifetime wish,
One dream that could come true,
We'd pray to God with all our heart's
For yesterday and you
Sadly missed

Just when your days seemed brightest,
Just when your hopes seemed best,
God called you from amongst us
To your eternal rest.
You wished no one a last farewell.
You could not say good-bye.
You were gone before we knew it
And only God knows why.
It is lonely here without you.
We miss you more each day.
For life is not the same to us,
Since you were called away.
If we could have one lifetime wish,
One dream that could come true,
We'd pray to God with all our heart's
For yesterday and you
Sadly missed

CIVIL TECHNOLOGY

DAWSON COLLEGE (C.E.G.E.P.)

The Department of Civil Technology of Dawson College is accepting applications from students for the 3 year program in Civil Technology.

The program offers a broad training in all phases of Civil Engineering including Surveying, Steel and Concrete Design, Road Layout and Planning courses, (Critical Path Method). Investigation into soils and foundations are studied as well as field projects in all these areas given by practicing engineers. The courses are offered in the day and evening division.

In the expanding construction industry, there are at the present time, approximately three job opportunities for each of our third year graduates.

The entrance requirements are:

- High School Leaving Certificate (Secondary V).
- Mature Student (20 years of age and/or out of high school for one year).</

Varying views

Two years ago when the Reds' Sparky Anderson managed the NL all-stars, the Expos' lone representative, Rusty Staub, got as far as the on-deck circle in his dream-game appearance. At the last all-star game, again with Anderson at the helm, Ron Fairly did slightly better — he was used as a defensive replacement at first base. But guess who was left in the on-deck circle in the ninth? You guessed it, our boy Ron. Three cheers for Sparky! ...

STREAK NEEDED

Attendance for pre-season Allouette games at the Autostade leads one to believe that Sam Berger and Co. still have a huge selling job to do. Whereas the three other Eastern Conference members normally played before a sellout crowd, the Als averaged a mere 13,000 in tune-up games. Again, it only goes to prove that the Allouettes image is so tattered it will take at least a modest regular-season winning streak to remove the bad taste....

YOUR CLUB, SIR

But you've always wondered how much golf caddies make on the pro tour? Well, according to one member of the fraternity, you can easily pick up an average of $150 a week, even if your boss doesn't come out a winner. With a winner, your chances are excellent that the take will be around $1,000. Then there's always that little extra if you caddy for Kermit Zarley. Deeply religious, Zarley gives each of his caddies a Bible....

STAN MAY FOLLOW

The chances of Stan Mikita following Pat Stapleton's footsteps to the cross-town WHA Chicago Cougars are better than average, and not only because Mikita is miffed at Black Hawk management and a good pal of the defecting defenceman. What might really seal the deal in Stan's case is the fact that he's at an age where long term security is foremost, a pact which he is more likely to receive from the Cougars rather than the Hawks. Look for another Hawk to flee the nest before September....

COWANSVILLE OUT-CLASSED

Best comment on the Sher-Lenn thumping of Cowansville's All-Star squad in tournament play recently came from a sideline observer. "Our boys simply don't face the pressures of real competition enough. Take this season for example. There are only two, maybe three teams in the Cowansville regular season league who are solid contenders, the rest can be whipped easily on any given night. So, for the major portion of the schedule, the boys are loafing and can't face a tough situation like tournament play against Sher-Lenn." ...

BAD MUSTARD-CUTTERS

On the basis of statistics CFL football is better than the NFL version south of the border, but in this case figures do lie. A better measuring-stick would undoubtedly be the number of Canadian stars who have failed to cut the mustard in the American game, a fate which has felled Pete Liske and Joe Zuger of late. Still, CFL fans, take heart — proposed expansion in the NFL will probably bring the two leagues that much closer to equality....

ARTIFICIAL ANKLES NEXT?

For what it's worth those severe ankle injuries suffered by the Reds' Dave Concepcion, and the Phillies' Larry Bowa in ball games against the Expos recently, both occurred on AstroTurf surfaces. This fact is brought up in light of the claim that artificial turf was introduced to cut down on injuries to the limbs and feet. In both cases, the players in question suffered the mishap when their spikes caught on the fake grass. Second-guess, anyone? ...

MAYBE A GAUNTLET?

Although nearly every sporting goods' store now carries left-handed golf clubs, just try to find right-handed golf gloves to go with them. "That's something you'll find very hard to find," admitted one dealer, who had nothing of the kind in stock. Sure enough, a check elsewhere turned up just one right-hander, a couple sizes too big, naturally....

SWEET 'N' EETENS UP

In slicing ex-Argo, Ivan MacMillan last week, the Allouettes have apparently indicated they're prepared to go with Don Sweet as their kicking specialist, a decision which could come back to haunt them later. For Sweet, it's the second time around, since he failed to survive an Als' cut during their Grey Cup year of 1970. Again, it was a case of looking sharp in training camp, only to turn into a bust after the regular season began. Keep that toe healthy, George Springate, wherever you are....

GOODBYE CHICAGO, HELLO HOG TOWN

Throw a new name into the ring as a Toronto Maple Leafs' coaching candidate in the person of Marcel Pronovost. With Pat Stapleton slated for player-coach duties with the WHA Cougars, Pronovost, the incumbent, is out of a job. Interestingly enough, Pronovost's preceding job was as Tulsa, as bench boss of the Leafs' farm club. Putting two and two together, it equals even odds on Pronovost as next pilot of the Leafs....

WILT'S STILTLED SALARY

Will escalating sports' salaries ever cease? Hardly likely, when one considers that Wilt Chamberlain, who's played out the final year of his contract with the Los Angeles Lakers is reportedly negotiating with the NBA San Diego franchise for a one year pact which would bring him $500,000. If that figure makes you drool, just think what it does to income tax department! ...

BOBBY'S THE BEST

The most complete player in major league baseball today just has to be the Giants' Bobby Bonds who meets the following major league criteria with a lot to spare: Hit for average; (Bonds is around the .300 mark) hit for power; (27 plus) speed on the basepaths; (25 plus) fielding; (headed for another Gold Glove award) and clutch hitting (11 as this was written). Yet, when it came time for the fans to vote in a National League all-star team there was Bonds in fourth place after the ballots had been tabulated....

WHERE HAVE ALL THE RUSHERS GONE?

Odd note as the CFL kicks off its 1973 season this week: The two top rushers last season will be conspicuous by their absence. Dave Buchanan, of the Ticats, has departed the scene because of "a deep religious commitment" (how's that again?), while the leading ground gainer out west, Mack Herron, left at the request of all CFL owners because of another "commitment." ...

83 AND OUT

So your gold game simply isn't up to snuff? Well, take a tip from touring pro, Chi Chi Rodriguez, who says: "The first time I played in the Masters I was so nervous I drank a bottle of rum before I teed off. I shot the happiest 83 of my life." ...

Shooting records broken

ASBESTOS — Previous club records were broken during the month of July at the Scotch Hill Shooting Club when Leonard Castonguay and Ray Hutchison, both of Asbestos, made perfect scores — 25 hits out of 25 targets. The record had been 24 out of 25 — a hard one to beat.

In the Expert Class Earl Blair of Windsor was the high scorer with 21 hits on 25. Dennis Castonguay, Asbestos, 20 out of 25, Don Nicholls, Danville, 20 of 25, Ray Hutchison, Asbestos, 20 of 25.

Intermediate Class scores were: Gilles Element, Wotton, 19 hits on 25; Bertrand Girard, Asbestos, 18 of 25; Jean Guy Element, Asbestos, 15 on 25.

In the Novice Class Denis Mercure, Richmond, scored 17 hits of 25; Wilbert Lester, Richmond, 13 of 25; Alain Durocher, Asbestos, 11 of 25. The running deer range now is in operation and high calibre rifles are available at the club for those who wish to practice this sport and do not have a rifle.

CALGARY (CP) — When Jim Elder of Saskatchewan Roughriders fumbled the opening kickoff Thursday, it was an indication of misuses to come in his team's 23-15 loss to Calgary Stampeders in a Western Football Conference game.

Nine interceptions and three fumbles later, Calgary had its first win of the season and Saskatchewan its first loss to tie them with Edmonton Eskimos atop the league.

Each team gave up the ball six times on mistakes but had help from hard-charging linemen and a wet field caused by rain before the game.

John Helton, Calgary's all-star lineman, harassed Saskatchewan quarterback Ron Lancaster through the night, forced quick passes and occasionally caught the signal-caller with the ball in his hands.

Peter Liske, who returned to Calgary after three years in the National Football League, had his pass-oriented attack hindered by similar treatment from Charlie Collins and Bill Baker.

Liske quickly scored Elder's fumble into six points as he moved Calgary inside the Roughriders' 10-yard line with a pass then sent fullback Bob Wyatt barging up the middle from three yards.

An interception and a dazzling 52-yard return by Frank Andruski set the stage for Calgary's second touchdown early in the second half. Liske, who threw the only scoring pass of the game, hit Tom Forzani on the nine-yard line and the rookie hauled it into the end zone.

Larry Robinson, all-time league leader in converts and field goals, added the extra point after each touchdown and punched through field goals from 25, 36 and 37 yards in the second, third and final quarters.

Liske was replaced at quarterback late in the second quarter by Jim Lindsey for what coach Jim Dunca said was a chance to "observe the game from the outside."

COSTLY SUBSTITUTION
The observation was costly as Lindsey threw two interceptions in three tries. He completed the other pass.

A's now second

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS
Oakland A's fell out of the American League West lead Thursday for the first time in more than a month, but they say they aren't worried about it. "We've still got 54 games to go," outfielder Bill North said. "We'll win because we've got the best pitching."

If you're going to feed corn silage, start thinking about Urasil®

Urasil is the new, safer, liquid N.P.N. silage supplement that's really catching on with cost-conscious Beef and Dairy men.

Urasil is easy to apply; there are no foul smelling ammonia fumes. It cuts feeding costs by boosting protein at a remarkably low cost per ton. Feed conversion can be improved to give a better rate of gain and Urasil gives your animals a palatable sweet smelling silage.

BOB GREGSON uses it and here's what he says:

"We usually feed around 300-400 head, so a low-cost source of protein is a must. Dry Urea didn't appear to be the answer, because it's too risky and hard to mix. Handling is a factor too. We found the liquid 'Urasil' easy to apply and it wasn't smelly. The animals are showing real nice results with absolutely no rejection. With Soyabean Meal up so high, 'Urasil' answers our need for a safe, economical source of protein."

Balor's return a happy one for Expos

MONTREAL (CP) — Ron Hunt scored twice and Balor Moore, just returned from a two-week stint in the minors and sporting glasses, stifled St. Louis on four hits as Montreal Expos took a 2-0 National League win over the Cardinals Thursday night, preventing a series sweep.

RON HUNT
...Scores both Expos' runs

Hunt led off the Montreal first with a single, moved to second on Mike Jorgensen's first of three sacrifice bunts in the game, and scored on Ken Singleton's two-out single.

In the third inning, Hunt again greeted Cards-Tom Murphy with a lead-off hit, went to second on another bunt by Jorgensen and scored on a two-out base hit by Jim Lytle.

Moore, sent down July 16 to Peninsula Whips, Expos' International League farm team and recalled Tuesday, was helped by three Montreal double plays in the first four innings.

In the third, Luis Melendez lined deep to Singleton in right and Ted Simmons was caught off first.

One victory away

Sher-Lenn advance on shaky 1-0 win

DORVAL (CC) — The Sher-Lenn all-star squad moved to within one game of the Quebec little league championship last night but it wasn't easy. The Sher-Lenn team scored a freak run in the fourth inning but had to hang on for dear life to finally upend St. Jerome 1-0.

Sher-Lenn now moves to the championship tilt scheduled for Sunday afternoon at 2 p.m. in Dorval. St. Jerome will meet Dollard des Ormeaux Saturday with the victor moving along to face Sherbrooke Sunday.

Sher-Lenn was lucky to come away with the victory last night. Winning pitcher Jacques Morin overcame erratic pitching and poor catching when it really counted to post his third consecutive victory.

The only run scored in the game came on a combination of luck and head's up ball by the Sherbrooke batters. In the fourth inning after Mario Turcotte fled out, Pierre Terriault singled only to be forced out at second when Mario Carrier grounded into a fielder's choice.

Carrier went to second on a wild pitch by St. Jerome hurler Pierre Auger. With two out, first baseman Jean Grenier fled into short left field. But as Dorval shortstop Richard Landreville and left-fielder Daniel Lachance converged on the easy pop up the two collided and the ball sprang loose allowing Carrier to come around to tally Sher-Lenn's only run. Lachance was shaken up on the play.

ENDS INNING

Claude Landry grounded to short to end the inning. Sher-Lenn really didn't have many other chances to score in the game as Auger limited out local heroes to only five hits; two of them coming in the first inning. In the opening frame Pierre Moreau and Turcotte led off with singles but the threat was quenched quickly before the more than 300 local fans who had travelled to Dorval to see the game. Both runners were caught at third by excellent St. Jerome fielding.

The only other scoring chance Sherbrooke had came in the fifth frame when Jean Beaudoin, Sher-Lenn defensive captain at shortstop, tripled into right field with two outs but died on base as Moreau grounded easily to second base.

Even though Morin struck out nine batters he wasn't all that solid on the mound and often had to call on his defence to pull off great plays to haul him out of a jam.

It started going wrong for Morin in the third. Gilles Legault, St. Jerome's first man up, made it to first on a bunt, took second on a passed ball charged to Jean Boisse and advanced to third on Morin's first of three wild pitches he was to toss last night. But sharp defensive play saved the day for Sher-Lenn as Legault was caught napping at third base.

OUT AT THIRD

St. Jerome's next man up, Lachance, drew a walk but when

Boisse tossed the ball back to Morin the pitcher whirled and slammed the ball to Turcotte at third base who put the tag on Legault trying to scurry back to third but to no avail.

Lachance moved into scoring position on the play but died in that position as Morin buckled down to strike out his counterpart, Auger, and then forced Landreville to ground to second.

Morin wasn't out of the woods for the night.

In the fourth frame the lead-off batter Andre Perrault, singled but Morin buckled down to strike out the next two batters, Yves Depatry and Marc Ouellet, and then made a superb catch on Deharnais' grounder back to the left of the box to make the final out at first.

Morin's next jam came the following inning. Lead-off batter Andre Boyer singled and was replaced by pinch runner Francois McAbbe who took second on a passed ball. Boisse's second of the tilt, and Morin's second wild pitch of the game allowed McAbbe to move to third. Morin got Gilles Legault on a third strike call but then walked pinch-hitter Stephan Constanat who quickly stole second base to put both the tying run and the winning run in scoring position with only one out.

OUT AGAIN

But Morin bore down again striking out Auger for the second time. He then made Landreville slap the ball to shortstop Beaudoin who made a splendid catch deep in the hole and fired it to first for the third out to retire the side and pull Morin from the jaws of defeat.

But Morin was in trouble again in the sixth and final inning. Lead-off man Perreault bunted to get on first but then Depatry fled to third on a sacrifice bunt attempt. However, Marc Ouellet singled through the box to put runners on first and second with only one out.

Both runners moved up a base on Morin's wild pitch. But in true championship fashion Morin concentrated and brought fans to their feet striking out both Deharnais and Boyer to retire the side and preserve the victory.

Morin gave up only two free tickets and allowed five hits in the game.

Earlier this year he had led Sherbrooke to wins over Cowansville and Valleyfield.

Begin, Legion win

LENNOXVILLE (BP) — The quarter-final series of the Lennoxville Women's Softball League playoffs came to an abrupt close last night as both Begin Sports and Legion No. 10 took their second consecutive wins at the Optimist Park.

Begin pitcher Ginette Jacques allowed a mere two runs in their 15-2 victory over Denis Gas Bar, her second win in as many outings.

Legion picked up seven runs in the first half inning, just to have Rand counter with 10 of their own in the bottom of the first. The Legion team then picked up another two in the second, and gradually slipped by their opponents for the series clincher, with Vicki Crook taking the mound duties again in the 23-14 decision.

The all-important match between Clark's Pharmacy and Yves Fournier Sports to decide first place will be played Monday evening at 6:30 p.m.

The semi-finals begin on Wednesday, August 8, with Legion taking on the first place winner, while Begin Sports will battle the second place holder under the lights.

Eagles win only EL game

TROIS-RIVIERES (CP) — Trois-Rivieres Eagles defeated Reading Phillies 7-3 in the only game in Eastern League baseball action Thursday. All other games were postponed due to rain.

In the fourth inning Arturo De Freitas of Trois-Rivieres scored after two consecutive two-base hits by him and Bob Polaski. A single by Doug Flynn brought Polaski home.

In the fifth inning Tony Franklin's single was followed by an error by Rusty Klobas on a grounder by Rusty Ward. A single by De Freitas and then a grounder by Rusty Ward brought Tony Franklin home.

The bottom of the sixth started off with a single by Eric Boyd, a base on balls to Al Beal and then another single by Tom Spencer. On a grounder by Tony Franklin to Mark Crane, Beal scored for Trois-Rivieres. Then Ward was hit by a pitch and Arturo De Freitas followed with his second two-base hit of the game, to bring in Spencer and Franklin. On a single by Polaski, Ward crossed home plate for the seventh and last run for Trois-Rivieres.

Entering the seventh with a 7-0 score Reading got two runs. Rich Giallalla's two-base hit scored Tom Stearns and pinch hitter Ken Kniffin, both of whom singled.

In the ninth Reading scored the last run of the game. A single by Dane Iorg and a base on balls to Jim Essian preceded a single by pinch-hitter Tony Gonzalez. Iorg scored on a grounder by Nelli Garcia.

The Sherbrooke Pirates begin a weekend series in Waterbury tonight before returning home to meet the West Haven Yankees in a four-game series starting Monday.
