LYNCHING FOLLOWS DAY OF RIOTING

Doors of Jail Battered Down and Victim Dragged From His Cell.

Newark, O., July 8—Carl Etherington, 22 years old, employed Thursday night by the State Anti-Saloon League as a blind tiger raider, was lynched here at 10.35 to-night, following a day of almost continuous rioting. The heavy doors of the Licking county jail were battered down and Etherington was dragged from his cell. He was shot, kicked and bruised before the street was reached and the finish followed quickly. Etherington, early in the evening, confessed he killed Wm. Howard, proprietor of the "Last Chance" restaurant and former chief of police, in a raid of alleged "speak easies" during the scuffle at 1.30 this afternoon and narrowly escaped lynching at that time. When the news from the hospital that Howard had died passed over the city to-night, the fury of the mob took definite form. Large batering rams were directed upon the doors of the Licking county jail and the deputies were powerless. The doors fell after nearly an hour's attack.

Crying piteously, Etherington, a curly-headed Kentuckian, who had been serving as a strike-breaker since he was released from service three months ago, was dragged forth. "I didn't mean to do it," he wailed, but his cries fell upon deaf ears. Fearing that the mob spirit would not be satisfied with one victim, Sheriff Lincke asked Adjutant-Generaly Weybrecht for troops to protect six other "dry" raiders held at the city prison, in another section of the town. A hurried guard was thrown out in their defense. The mob, after the first taste of blood, seemed to quiet, but it is feared that the rioters will storm the city prison before the night is finished.

Etherington's last moments, while he heard the mob battering down the doors, were spent in praying and writing a note to his parents, farmers, residing near Willisburg, Ky. "What will mother say when she hears of this"? he kept moaning to the jailer.

While the mob were battering down the doors, Etherington, in his cell, made an attempt to commit suicide. He smothered his head in his coat and set fire to it but was caught in time. In the melee as the mob was leaving the jail, eight prisoners, held for petty offences, escaped. One refused to leave. As Etherington mounted the block ready for the swing he was asked to make a speech. "I want to warn all young fellows not to try to make a living the way I have done—by strike-breaking and taking jobs like this," he declared. "I had better have worked."

SOLDIERS TRIED TO AVENGE COMRADE

Private Had Been Slashed with Razor by a Negro in a Row.

Washington, July 8—Determined to avenge the probable fatal injury to one of their fellow soldiers, Private Scott, of Battery D, Third Artillery, U.S.A., between 40 and 50 United States white troopers and artillery men from Fort Myer, Va., early to-day made an attempt to storm the Alexandria County jail on Fort Myer heights, to lynch Robert Jackson, a negro. A clever subterfuge of Jailer Harry Crack, in inducing the soldiers to believe that Jackson was not within the jail, was the only thing that saved the negro from lynching.

Private Scott was slashed across the abdomen with a razor during a fight between a crowd of negroes and a number of soldiers on a trolley car bound for Fort Myer the night of the Jeffries-Johnson prize fight. The soldiers learned that Scott, who had been removed to a hospital, had developed peritonitis, and that death might be expected at any hour. Col. Gerrard, commanding the garrison at Fort Myer, has ordered investigation into what he [illegible] cident savoring too strongly of Brownsville affair."

BILLY ALLEN WAS CLEVEREST BOXER.

Ottawa, July 8.—Billy Allen, of Ottawa, and Kid Julien, of Utica, fought ten rounds to a draw on the Hull side of the river to-night, the bout being for the featherweight championship of Canada, now held by Allen. Julien showed more steam in his punches, but Allen was the cleverer and landed oftener. There were 2,000 people present and there was no interference from the police.

FEMALE AVIATOR BADLY MANGLED

Barones sDe Larvelle Lost Her Nerve and Fell From a Great Height.

Bethany Plain, Rheims, July 8.—The second distressing accident of the aviation meet now in progress here occurred to-day, when the Baroness De Laroche, driving a Voisin biplane, lost her nerve when at a height of 50 metres, shut off the power and fell with her machine to the ground. Her legs and arms were broken and she also suffered severe contusions, but the doctors who are treating her hope for her ultimate recovery. At first it was believed that the Baroness had sustained a fractured skull, but this proved not to have been the case.

At a height of eighty metres the Baroness had flown once around the field. The spectators in the grandstand were applauding her vociferously. Suddenly she appeared frightened by the approach of two other aeroplanes, one of which, a Sommer, driven by M. Lindpainter, passed directly over her. The Baroness, in a period of consciousness, said that the rush of air from the motor overhead threw her into consternation and that she cut off the ignition and lost control of her biplane. At first the machine glided on an even keel, but suddenly it turned over and fell to the ground and was wrecked.

The crowds rushed out on the field and tenderly extricated the mangled and bloody form of the woman from the debris, and she was conveyed hurriedly in an ambulance to a nearby hospital. Meanwhile Lindpainter had descended, and the crowd, believing him responsible for the accident, threatened to lynch him. Gendarmes, however, threw a cordon about the aviator and dispersed the excited spectators. An inquiry afterward by the judges' committee into the accident showed that Lindpainter was in no way responsible for it. The first accident of the meeting occurred last Sunday, the opening day, when Chas. Wachter's monoplane collapsed at a height of 500 feet and dropped like a stone, instantly killing Wachter.

GENERAL FRENCH LEAVES FOR HOME

By Allan Steamer Virginian. Many Military Men See Him Off.

The distinguished British cavalry officer, General Sir John French, accompanied by Brigadier General Henderson and Major Watts, left for England yesterday afternoon by the Allan R.M.S. Virginian. At half-past 2 o'clock the gallant general reached the Allan wharf, where a guard of honor from the R.C.R. and the Band of the R.C.G.A. were drawn up to receive him. As General French stepped from his carriage the guard of honor presented arms, the band playing an appropriate air. When the general went on board the steamer the guard and band were dismissed from further attendance and marched back to their quarters. Among the military men on the dock to see General French off were General Lake, Lieutenant Colonel Oscar Pelletier, D.O.C., Major Hevard, Major Houliston, etc. Captain Papineau and Lieutenant Garon were the officers in command of the guard of honor. General French while in Canada has had a most busy time and has gone over a considerable portion of the country, inspecting the military camps and city corps, etc. He has become quite a favorite in both military and civil circles.

AT THE RIFLE RANGES.

T[illegible] promises to be a busy time at the Levis ranges this afternoon, when the Eighth R. R. Marksmen will shoot their third Canadian Rifle League match. The Macpherson match for green shots will also be fired. There is expected to be a big attendance of marksmen, who will avail themselves of the opportunity of practice for the annual matches of the regiment, which take place on the 23d, as well as to uphold the sporting supremacy of the corps.

Marksmen should take notice that 75 Ross rifles have been sent in for distribution, and these may be obtained at the Drill Hall on order signed by captains of companies.

QUEBEC MAY SEE FIGHT PICTURES

Gruesome Discovery of Remains of a Child—Woman Run Over by Patrol.

Ottawa, July 8.—If the moving pictures of the Jeffries-Johnson fight come east at all, it is pretty safe betting that Quebec Province will be in on them. While Ontario is prohibiting the exhibition, no such restriction is anticipated in the sister province, and, consequently, the views are expected to be shown in Hull. It is understood that the Quebec authorities do not contemplate any move against them.

The belief of the police is that Philip K. Low, the alleged absconding cashier of Hamilton Hotel, Hiawatha Park, escaped over the border into the United States. The local police were notified by telephone this morning that a horse and buggy answering to the description of the turnout stolen from the local livery man, had been seen at Morrisburg. The whip and buggy cushion are said to have been found floating in the St. Lawrence River by fishermen this morning.

A gruesome discovery was made yesterday at Notre Dame de la Salette by Coroner Lyster and High Constable Groulx, on their arrival from Hull to conduct an inquest on the body of a child which was discovered lying on the shores of a creek. On reaching the spot where the body had been left by Mr. Norman Smith, who made the discovery, they found that wolves or dogs had been at work, and all that was left was the skull and two small pieces of bones.

Mrs. Louis Garsnault, of Hull, was knocked down and seriously injured about the head to-day by being run over by the police patrol. As the galloping horses swung around the turn at Rea's store, the woman was struck by one of them and dashed to the ground. Besides being trampled upon, two wheels at of the heavy conveyance passed over her body.

Some strong man who missed his vocation as a freak in a dime museum walked off with a large stone, valued at about $20 and weighing over 500 pounds, from the street in front of W. H. Kelly's residence, 29 Levis street, a few days ago. The present location of the stone is known to the police, who say that should the thief come up in court the stolen property will not be produced as evidence.

WILL TRY TO CROSS THE OCEAN

Walter Wellman and Other Aeronauts Ready to Make a Daring Attempt.

New York, July 8—Walter Wellman and Melville Vanigan, will atempt this fall to cross the Atlantic ocean in the dirigible balloon America, which was built for the Wellman polar expedition and has twice been tested in voyages over the Arctic ocean, north of Spitzenbergen. The attempt will be made solely on the responsibility of the aeronauts, but the New York Times, the Chicago Record Herald and the London Daily Telegraph have arranged to buy the news of the exhibition, which will be transmitted by wireless from the airship.

The America will be housed at Atlantic City during her preliminary trials. On her voyage she will carry a crew of six including the wireless oiperator and sixteen hundred gallons of gasolene. Equipped for a day's run she could carry seventeen passengers besides her crew. In size she ranks next to the latest Zeppelin airship.

PRIESTS BATTLED WITH BURGLARS

Caught Them Robbing Church Safe and Put Them to Flight.

New York, July 8—Three masked burglars, intent on cracking a safe and getting $500 in cash and other valuables belonging to the church, were caught at work in the rectory of St. Leonard's Roman Cathollic church in Brooklyn to-day. Three priests bravely sprung to the defense of the church's treasures and attacked the robbers. Thugs and churchmen battled for more than a quarter of a hour before the issue was decided in favor of the priests. The burglars fled. As a result of the encounter Fathers Konig and Oxpel are suffering from severe bruises on their heads and arms, and Father Sanders has a long knife wound in the hand, received in a final grapple with the marauders when one of the masked men held the pursuers at bay near a window while his two pals fled.

WANTED, MOUSTACHES FOR QUEEN'S OWN

Toronto Regiment Ready for Voyage With Exception of Upper Lips.

Colonel Sir Henry Pellatt, of the Queen's Own, Toronto, has now announced that all arrangements for the coming visit of that regiment to England, where they will encamp at Aldershot, are now ready. Even the camp menu for each meal, which they will eat throughout the whole trip is prepared. Some great general (may he rest in peace!) has said that a man's military value depends on his stomach, and even the immortal bard of Avon puts no trust in "the man that hath no stomach for the fight," so this foresight on the part of the commisariat department seems a triumph in strategy. However, the best laid plans of mice and men are liable to the same uncertain vicissitudes of fortune, which are usually supposed to occur in the most model domestic establishments, so it is to be hoped that the regiment will not be disappointed if it has to swallow bully beef on the truffles day, or vice versa. It certainly requires genius to forecast the bills of fare over so extended a period and, although some boarding houses can predict a long way ahead what they are likely to produce on the table at a certan date, yet the case is not a parallel. The regiment was paraded this week and numbered 620. Sir Henry had originally intended to take only 600, and now does not know how he can cut down the number. At the same time he is delighted with the splendid response, and looks upon it as an indication of the magnanimous spirit of tht business firms of Toronto. The men were fitted out with the regulation military boots the other night. They are handsome shoes of the best leather and the men have been instructed to wear them in civilian dress so as to thoroughly break them in for future use. They are asked also to walk at least five miles a day for practice, as well as to cultivate a moustache if they cannot already boast of such. The regiment will parade every Wednesday night until August 13th, when they will leave Toronto for Montreal, where the 65th regiment will entertain them. Thence they proceed to Quebec, where, after a seven days' camp, they will sail for England. There is a possibility, however, that the regiment may participate in the reception to be given at Halifax to the new battleship Niobe.

Perhaps the men will have time to develop these hirsute facial adornment before reaching Quebec, but there will probably be some cases where forcing tactics will be required to produce results in any way tangible, and anxious scrutiny of their superior labials from day to day. Those moustaches will be something to look out for.

WOMAN STRUCK BY HORSE.

Madame Charles Bouchard, of Beauport, had a narrow escape from death on St. Joseph street yesterday morning. While crossing the thoroughfare she was run down by a rig which was passing. It was at first thought that the unfortunate woman had been killed, but it was found that beyond some painful injuries she had escaped fatal results.

AT LAKE ST. JOSEPH.

Lake St. Joseph, one of the most beautiful summer resorts open to the residents of Quebec, seems to be in for one of the most successful seasons which it has ever enjoyed. More families than ever will occupy the delightful cottages on the shores of the lake, and among those who have already taken up their residence there are the families of Messrs. Cook, Nesbitt, Slade, Crosby, Charlebois, Joseph, Roy, McLimont, Glass, Lamothe, Tessier, Boswell, Dobell, Petrie, while those who are at the Lake View House are Messrs. Billingsley, Barrow, Pigot, and others.

A new ball-room, with a splendid floor, has been provided at the Lake View House, and it will be inaugurated this evening with a dance, at which Charbonneau's orchestra will provide the music. The dance promises to be a most enjoyable one, and a number of summer debutantes will enjoy the pleasure of the evening. Several new motor and sail boats will be seen on the lake this season, and by all accounts Lake St. Joseph should have one of its most enjoyable seasons.

QUEBEC, JULY 9, 1910.

THE OBSEQUIES OF MGR. LAFLAMME.

Quebec has lost one of her most intellectual citizens. Thousands of Laval graduates will mourn the removal of one who, as Rector of Laval University, was friend and fatherly counsellor to them during their college course and after. Monsignor Lafiamme's life has been one full of good deeds. His scientific research made a name for him in every part of Canada, and no one who has had the precious chance of making his acquaintance at the meetings of the Royal Society or at the religious or scientific assemblages where his presence was ever prized, is likely to forget the kindly, modest manner of the man and the sincerity of his attitude on questions of public import. Quebec owes much to those of her citizens who love her as did Father Laflamme. Though not born in Quebec, he was virtually a son of the Ancient Capital, with a judiciously applied filial affection towards her and every public movement in her behalf. The institution over which he was finally called to preside, will carry with it for years and years to come, the impress of his genius, with a pride in the honor conferred upon it by having such a man to rank among its most brilliant Rectors. It will, no doubt, take care of his memory—a care in which it will certainly have the co-operation of every citizen. In the personality of Professor Laflamme there was ever a meeting place for the good and the intellectual.

IT LOOKS AS IF WE WOULD GET THERE IN TIME.

There are indications that Quebec's "Programme of Progress" is on the way of being inaugurated, with the proposals of the Railway Commission now ready for signature and with the assurance of Mr. William Mackenzie and others associated with him in the Canadian Northern Railway before us, that it is only a question of time when Quebec will become the eastern terminus of that railway system. With the prospect of Quebec becoming the eastern terminus of three transcontinental lines, there has been brought home to us all the necessity of the city itself moving a little faster towards implementing the consummation on its side; and Mr. Mackenzie has pertinently pointed out that efforts must be made right off to create an export trade in the first place, and to see to the erection of grain elevators in the second place. As a preliminary step, the harbor conveniences of course must first be attended to, and we are all convinced that something like a new stock-lock-and-barrel arrangement must take the place of our present Harbor Commission. On this matter the Chronicle has puts its views on record, as has also the Board of Trade. And, when the reorganization has come to be a settled matter, the minor details must be taken up seriatim, by our three most important corporate bodies, working to one another's hands, with the city's commercial advantage uppermost in their deliberations.

We are also pleased to notice that the authorities are in the way of improving the Terrace and the Esplanade. The stand which the Mayor has taken on the "gas question" is a premonition of what he, backed up by the whole city, will have to do in the case of the Battlefields Commission, whose silence has again become solid enough to cut with a knife. The time is drawing near when a report will be in order from the "Committee of Five," as to what they propose to do to have our city looking its best when the tide of commerce is being brought our way. The habit of delaying for the sake of delaying seems at last to be giving way, though precautions will have to be in evidence for many a day yet to obviate a relapse.

The building of a line somewhat shorter than the present railway to the Montmorency Falls will be a convenience to those who would prefer to reach the grounds of the Kent House other than by the elevator. The most of our cities have amusement suburban parks, and now Quebec will have the most accessible park as a supplement to its magnificent promenade, the Dufferin Terrace. We are now all wondering when the St. Cyrille street car service is going to be ready, though with no growling as yet in the wondering.

The grumbling over the all but prohibitory rates of the Lake St. John Railway to summer residents has received something of a quietus by the action of the Public Utilities Commission. Its first decision is only premonitory, it is to be hoped, of a better service and a return to the former reasonable passenger fares. The reduction of the number of summer residents at Lorette in itself is evidence that the company might as well have got back to the old tariff without the help of the Utilities Commission. Besides, a lesson might have been given to other of our corporate bodies to take action of themselves, when a public demand is in question.

The meeting to be held at Beauport, with Mr. F. D. Monk as principal speaker, will have an important bearing on the political situation in the province of Quebec. From what will be said at it, the constituencies of Quebec will, no doubt, learn as to what line of action is going to be pursued to bring them in touch with the public affairs of the country, whatever their leanings may have been in the past towards one political party or the other. One thing is certain that the whole province must lift itself above and beyond the suspicion that it is content to being looked upon as a mere "pocket borough" of Sir Wilfrid Laurier. As events are shaping, it is evident that the present heads of the Public Departments at Ottawa are a source of weakness to the Liberal administration. Indeed, the signs of the times point to an approaching interruption to the canvasses of former days. There is something new in the air which the Beauport meeting will, no doubt, make plain to all of us.

ROSS RIFLE IS VINDICATED.

Almost every fresh contest in rifle shooting brings some new triumph for the Ross rifle, which is becoming a general favorite with the crack marksmen. It is almost needless to take up the defense of this arm, which is itself its best defense, the results achieved by those who are using it being beyond all dispute. One of the highest tributes paid to it so far lies in the fact that the English riflemen preferred it before their own, and have used it with marked success in winning the Kolapore Cup with a score of 798, Canada being only two points behind.

Then again our own men have won the Mackinnon Cup with it, and the individual members of the team have carried off some of the highest honors in the matches, Sergeant Morris having put on a possible at 800 yards, a feat which was unequalled by any of the other hundred or so competitors. Sergeant Freeborn, of Hamilton, also excelled all his rivals by making a total of 146 out of 150.

These results speak for themselves, and we fancy that the Montreal Star and others, who have been pursuing a campaign of vilification against the Ross rifle, will be hard put to explain them away.

FREIGHT DISCRIMINATION.

It is encouraging to find that three of our corporate bodies—the Board of Trade, the Grocers' Exchange and the Harbor Commission—are united on so important a matter as the finding of a remedy for the present discrimination in freight rates against Quebec. It is obvious that the high rate which at present exists is one of the chief stumbling blocks in the way of Quebec's development as a port, and should therefore deserve the attention of those who are most interested in that development. As a matter of fact, it is of importance to every family, although we are slow to realize it, since it affects the price of all commodities of which we stand in need. As we pointed out in our report yesterday, Quebec importers have to pay an additional charge of two shillings and sixpence a ton over and above what is paid by Montreal merchants. When we consider this handicap, we can easily credit the fact that the distributing trade of Quebec has decreased yearly and is still on the downward road. Montreal can therefore supply goods at our very doors and undersell us, since she saves on ocean freight, not even the charge for haulage mounting as high as is the extra money which we pay. With the purchaser it is a case of business, not of sentiment. It seems to us that, considering the fact that these goods have in many cases to go up to Montreal and back before distribution, Quebec should have not only equal but even lower rates.

We understand that there will be another meeting of these bodies and the Civic Promotion Committee to discuss the question this week, and to urge the steamship companies to remove this obstacle which is hampering the trade of Quebec. It seems that the Harbor Commission can do much to help the public in this affair, and Quebec in general has been glad to learn that they have expressed their willingness to do so. While we have no desire to dictate to them upon the subject, it is our firm conviction that they would do well to remedy this, if it be in their power, even if they had to make several minor concessions. It may be that the steamship companies impose this tax as a set-off against wharfage, moorage and various other charges, which are perhaps more bothersome than costly, but which are numerous enough to mount up in the aggregate. If certain of these were abolished, the companies might do away with the charge of 2s 6d per ton. It may be advanced that shed rentals in Quebec are not so high in our port as in Montreal, but that is not the way to look at it. One has to consider the use which is made of the space rented. One may pay less here but have the space unoccupied for part of the time, and only do a twentieth or fortieth part of the business done by Montreal. Where more freight is handled, there will be more profit in proportion to the volume of traffic. Even though the Harbor Commission had to revise their whole scale of charges and their receipts showed a falling off for the first year or so, it is more than probable that they would soon be amply recouped if this extra charge was abolished. And, so far as we can see, such a measure could not fail to prove a factor in the betterment of Quebec, and would prove more of an advantage to all of us than we are aware. It is to be hoped that the meeting will have some practical result.

"I BELIEVE PE-RU-NA SAVED MY LIFE."

Mrs. Charles Anspaugh

Mrs. Charles Anspaugh, of Cromwell, Ind., says:

"Peruna has been a godsend to me. I can feel safe in saying that it saved my life, as I was all run down and was just miserable when I commenced taking your Peruna, but am on the road to recovery now. I cannot thank you too much."

NERVOUS SYSTEMS

Always Follows a Run Down Condition of the Blood.

It is an old story now that nervous people tell of how the blood becomes poor and thin, and then the nervous symptoms followed. How many really know that the thin blood was responsible for the nervous disorders? The nerves get all their nourishment from the blood, and as thin blood is deficient in nerve-building material, the nerves become starved and pain and nervous breakdown is the result. Dr. Williams' Pink Pills are a tonic for the blood that supply it with the necessary elements to nourish and tone up the nerves and, the cause benig removed, nature does the rest and health is fully restored. Mrs. Harry Patterson, Dauphin, Man., tells how she was cured of nervousness and general debility through the use of Dr. Williams' Pink Pills. She says: A few years ago I was all run down, and my nervous system apparently all broken up. I was weak, tired and nervous all the time. When I got up n the morning I seemed to be more tired than when I went to bed. I could not walk up an ordinary flight of stairs without sitting down panting for breath, and my nerves trembled like a leaf. I got so that it was almost impossible to do any housework, and so nervous that I wanted to cry about everything I did. I took several different medicines without the least benefit; then I read of Dr. Wlliams' Pink Pills and decided to try them. After taking two boxes I felt a little better and I got a further supply which I continued taking for about a month when I was as well as ever; could do all my housework without difficulty, and could walk for a long distance without being tired out. In view of the wonders Dr. Williams' Pink Pills have done for me I sincerely recommend them to all weak, nervous, run-down people."

Sold by all medicine dealers or by mail at 50 cents a box or six boxes for $2.50 from The Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

THE CIRCULATION MANAGERS' CONVENTION.

And Impressions of Canada.

Realizing the importance of organization and the resultant advantage of comparison of ideas and methods in newspaper circulation departments, Bruce Halderman, of the Courier-Journal; W. H. Gillespie, of the Detroit Free Press, and half a dozen other publishers and circulation managers met in Detroit in November, 1898, and organized the Nationall Association Managers of Newspaper Circulation. Possibly eight papers were represented at this first gathering.

Since the organization, thirteen years ago, twelve annual meetings have been held—at Chicago, New York, Buffalo, Detroit, Boston, St. Louis, Toronto, Louisville, Milwaukee, Philadelphia, Cleveland, and last, but far from least, at Montreal. June 15, 16 and 17, 1910.

The membership has grown from the little coterie of eight or ten that met in Detroit to nearly 300, and it embraces circulation managers of papers in Australia, Mexico and Canada, besides the United States. In fact, so far-reaching is the membership that it was decided at the Montreal meeting that the somewhat cumbersome name of the organization did not yet cover the wide field, so this name was changed to International Circulation Managers' Association.

Nearly 100 members were in attendance at Montreal, coming from as far as Texas on the southwest to Quebec on the northeast. G. E. Johnson, of the Courier-Journal, and H. V. Bomar, of the Louisville Times, traveled somethnig over 2,200 miles to attend the gathering and take part in the discussions.

Nineteen papers were read, covering almost every phase of circulation work, from how to satisfy the subscriber who fails to get his paper to the best plan of collecting from the subscriber who fails to realize that a newspaper should be paid for. Discussions and debates followed each paper, and there was an exchange of ideas of value to all.

Revelation to Southerners.

To the members of the association from the South—at least those who had never visited Canada before—the trip was a revelation. From Port Huron to Quebec, something like 600 miles, was found a prosperous people, a land splendidly cultivated, and a climate at this time in the year ideal. In fact, to the Kentuckians at least, there was a homelike feeling and look, intensified somewhat by small fields of tobacco, which by the way, is grown in Canada with profit, and the industry is increasing rapidly. The "night rider" has not yet put in his appearance there.

"What of the independence for Canada?" was asked a prominent editor and publisher of Montreal.

"Independence? That is something we are not worrying about at all, my boy. With all due respect to your great United States, we believe we are to-day more independent than you are and we are perfectly content to remain as we are. We have no political worries as you have, and we have no Teddy Roosevelt or Big Sticks to turn us upside down just when we think we are getting along the best way. No, independence is not worrying Canada. We are too busy with our own prosperous business affairs."

"Good Night" As Greeting.

There were some things that seemed amusing. An acquaintance turned up after dinner, with the hearty greeting, "Good night." As all in the party had just met, some embarrassment was felt until it was explained that it was simply a form of greeting, as correct as to say "Good morning" on meeting a friend before lunch.

An odd sign on the window of what looked like to be a rather questionable restaurant informed one that "a beautiful lunch may be had inside."

One or two negro conductors on trains seemed out of place, especially as their methods were somewhat like those of conductors on jerk-water roads in the South a dozen years ago.

Broad fields, acres in extent, fenced with neat rows of tree-stumps pulled up and neatly trimmed, was an evidence of thrift.

The women, dressed almost universally in black, suggested that there must be a great number of windows in Montreal and Quebec, until a loyal subject politely suggested that his royal highness had passed away recently.

An Indian regiment, wearing British uniform in camp at London, Ontario, atracted much attention from the "provincials from across the line."

A pilgrimage of over 1,000 orphan children from a point a hundred miles away, come to the shrine at St. Anne de Beaupre, near Quebec, seeking forgiveness of sins, was an impressive sight.

Everyone Was Hospitable.

Too much cannot be said in praise of the entertainment provided not only by the associations entertainment committee, but by the citizens as well. At Montreal His Worship, the Mayor, returned only a day before from London, atending the funeral of the King, spent half a day with the association and entertained the members at a luncheon on Mount Royal, 2,000 feet above Montreal. The Mayor and citizens' committee of Quebec insisted on a visit to that ancient city, and a special boat was provided to take the members there from Montreal, an all-night ride on the St. Lawrence River. Breakfast, luncheon and dinner were thrown in, with trolly rides and special trains to points of interest in and near the city. These included a visit to the Basilica of Ste. Anne de Beaupre, a famous shrine twelve miles from Quebec, and a visit to Montmorency Falls and Kent House, the estate of theDuke of Kent, father of Queen Victoria.

Many Courtesies Extended.

The large attendance at a point so apparently inaccessable by members of the association in the South and West was made through courtesies extended by W. S. Cookson, general pasenger agent of the Grand Trunk Railway System; H. D. Paterson, passenger agent of the Richelieu and Ontario Navigation Company, and C. E. A. Carr, general manager of the Quebec Light and Power Company.

These count ies through their representatives named, did everything possible to make things pleasant, and extended transportation courtesies whenever possible without violation of commerce laws.

G. E. Johnson and H. V. Bomar returned yesterday morning from the association meeting, well pleased with the trip. They traveled three days going and four returning.

MERRY MGR. DUCHESNE.

Successor to Cardinal Mathieu in the French Academy.

Mgr. Duchesne, director of the French School in Rome, whom the Academie has designated as successor to Cardinal Mathieu, is one of the most gifted French prelates. He is at once a distinguished erudite and a faultless writer—a rare combination. Besides he has a pretty wit, of the sparkling, dazzling kind. Altogether his merits and charms and talents are decidedly unusual.

People have sometimes called him too clever. When he had come to Paris to pay his "visits to the Immortals one of his admirers advised him to go back as soon as possible.

"Believe me, Monsignor, you must return to Rome."

"Why?"

"You are making a mistake"—

"Am I so unprepossessing?"

'You are too delicious."

There are candidates who might allege other notions for not showing themselves.

Mgr. Duchesne's wit is famous. And his friends are afraid that it seems—what shall I say? too spiritual for a priest. But one soon comes to see how delightful and how legitimate are the sallies that at first seemed alarming.

We must admit that certain laymen and various unbelievers are extremely severe in all that concerns religion—the religion, that is, of others; and they are especially strict in their requirements regarding the behavior of priests. They are right if they think of the clergy as exercising a vicarious sanctity and, by a great effort, completing the sum total of piety the world requires. They are wrong when they conceive of religion as something necessarily gloomy.

As a teller of funny stories Mgr. Duchesne is incomparable. He has a sense of the picturesque, and—mirabile dictu—never makes too much of it. He picks up an amusing incident and dramatizes it with due respect for form. He comes to the point by a fine crescendo. If they improve upon fact it is in this way particularly. And then the style—even when the facts appear to afford no opportunity for style.—Translated from Le Figaro, in the Boston Transcript.

The Most Gigantic Purchase of Midsummer Whitewear Ever Made in Quebec Will Go On Sale Saturday Morning

WE have just consummated the greatest special purchase of Midsummer Whitewear this store has ever been fortunate enough to secure. The amount involved runs into many thousands of dollars, and the values will surpass anything heretofore offered in our history. This is, beyond question, the most important Whitewear event ever known in Quebec, and we can promise you such bargains as you never saw before. These goods are all new and fresh from the manufacturer. The qualities are the finest to be had at the regular prices mentioned. Thousands and thousands of dainty pieces of Midsummer Whitewear will be placed on sale Saturday morning at 8 o'clock sharp. Special arrangements have been made to accommodate the people who will throng the Whitewear Department at opening time, and we can assure you of prompt service and absolute satisfaction. Every lady who has a liking for Dainty Undermuslins, and who knows the value of true economy, should make it a point to get here on the stroke of eight, if possible. Plenty for everybody—plenty of clerks, too—but there is always a certain satisfaction in getting an early choice during a sale of this kind. Read the particulars.

HOW THE MONGOOSE KILLED THE PUFF ADDER.

Tarlton, by the way, told me an interesting anecdote of a white tailed mongoose and a snake. One day they brought in a rather small puff adder, less than two feet long, put it on the floor, and showed it to the mongoose. Instantly the latter sprang toward the snake, every hair in its body and tail on end, and halted five feet away, while the snake lay in curves like the thong of a whip, its head turned toward the mongoose. Both were motionless for a moment. Then, suddenly, the mongoose seemed to lose all its excitement; its hair smoothed down, and it trotted quietly up to the snake, seized it by the middle of the back—it always devoured its food with savage voracity—and settled comfortably down to its meal. Like lightning the snake's head whipped round. It drove its fangs deeply into the snout or lip of the mongoose, hung on for a moment and then repeated the blow. The mongoose paid not the least attention but went on munching the snake's body, severed its backbone at once, and then ate it all up, head, fangs, poison, and everything; and it never showed a sign of having received any danger in the encounter. I had always understood that the mongoose owed its safety to its agility in avoiding the snake's stroke, and I can offer no explanation of this particular incident.— From "African Game Trails," by Theodore Roosevelt, in the July Scribner.

CORONER HAS BEEN VERY BUSY

A Number of Inquests Held. Downed Body Is Recovered.

The Coroner has been busy for a couple of days past, having been called upon to hold inquests on a number of bodies. A verdict of accidental drowning was returned in the case of Victor Latulippe, who was drowned at St. Catharine's last spring, and whose body was recovered a day or two ago.

Death from syncope of the heart was returned in the case of Madame Lucie Michaud, wife of George Barbeau, who was found dead in her bed at Beauport on Thursday.

Delphise Dupuis, of Methot's Mills, who drank several bottles of medicine supposed to be for pain relief, was seized with convulsions and died. The verdict rendered at the inquest was in accordance with the facts of the case.

HOWE'S GREAT LONDON SHOWS.

Unstinted Applause Follows Performance From Critical Atlanta Audiences.

The general concensus of opinion of the five or six thousand Atlanta people who attended the afternoon and night performances given by Howe's Great London Shows is that not a cleaner, cleverer circus ever raised its canvas in Atlanta, and every person atending the afternoon or evening performance will be a walking, talking advertisement for this show should "the circus" come this way again.

All the horses, all the animals of the menagerie, looked trim, well fed and cared for; the waggons, the cages, seemed more than mere gold leaf and tinsel decorations. From the ticket sellers and takers to the ushers, and even the canvas men, the circus attaches appeared neat and courteous. But, best of all, there wasn't a "grafter" with the show. For each dime or dollar spent by the amusement seekers, either in or about the show, an equivalent to the full was given of entertainment.

There have been large shows in Atlanta in past years, circuses that spread larger tents, needed more cars for transporting paraphernalia and exhibits, shows that made more pretense and blew louder blasts of publicity, but never one that gave patrons more for their money or made a better impression of cleanliness and decency. To praise in detail all that should be praised would be to consume columns of space, so it can only be said that every Howe attraction was better than represented, every ring artist first-class, every detail of the circus wholly satisfying.

This great Circus will visit us on Monday, July 18. The performances will take place on Walsh's Field.

FUNERAL OF MGR. LAFLAMME

Will Take Place at Seminary Chapel To-day at 9 O'Clock.

The funeral of Mgr. Laflamme will take place at the Seminary Chapel at nine o'clock, and will be attended by a large number of the clergy of this diocese who arrived here yesterday. Among those who will be present are Judge Girouard, of the Superior Court, Ottawa, administrator of the Dominion in the absence of Earl Grey, and Lieut.-Governor Pelletier, while Hon. Rodolphe Lemieux, Postmaster-General, who arrived in town last evening, will represent the Federal Government.

Yesterday afternoon the remains of the learned deceased were transferred to the Seminary Chapel, where the office for the dead was recited by the priests of the Seminary.

Mgr. Begin will officiate at the funeral service this morning.

MEETING AT BEAUPORT.

The meeting at Beauport to-morrow afternoon promises to be a most interesting one, and there will no doubt be a large attendance. Mr. F. D. Monk and other speakers will address the meeting.

MILITARY INSPECTION.

The annual inspection of the 6th Regiment, R.C.A., of Levis, took place at the Drill Hall last evening, and was a very successful one. The regiment presented a fine appearance and were much admired by the large crowd of spectators. After the inspection the regiment marched down to the Levis ferry headed by its excellent band.

SHACKLETON'S GIFT.

Since his return to England Sir Ernest Shackleton has done much to advertise Canada, and speaks warmly of the kindness shown him everywhere he went. One instance of a gift, which was given him by Canadian children, is well worth reading. Since his return to London he has received a quaint leter from some children at Buckingham, Quebec, enclosing over $25 towards the funds of the Antarctic expedition, in aid of which his Canadian lectures were given. It runs:—"Dear Sir,—The Royal Stock and Investor Company is only a children's company, but we heard you lecture last April in Ottawa, and decided to use our funds and what money we could earn to help you pay off your South Pole debt. Our rival company, the Greenwood Stock Farm, is helping us. We are sorry we have not more to send you, but when we heard you were returning to England we decided to send this much now." The letter is signed by a little girl as "President," a postscript explaining that "The Secretary-Treasurer has the measles."

Sir Ernest has hoped to accompany the Governor-General on his journey to the Hudson Bay region next month, but he is now afraid he will not be able to do so on account of other engagements. His projected expedition into unexplored regions of the Mackenzie river district is also postponed for a time at least.

MAC'S LUCK.

The Young Woman Reporter's Story.

The following food tale written by a clever young newspaper woman is a true story that came under personal observation:

"I have been with the———(a paper in a Calif. town) for nine years and Mac. has been with us all that time and I do not know how much longer.

"Last winter and the winter before Mac. probably from constant night work and improper food, got badly run down, could not eat much, what little he did eat did not do him much good and he always complained he could not keep warm.

"I missed him for awhile until yesterday I overtook him on the street going toward the office, and hardly knew the man, had it not been for the familiar walk I should surely have passed without recognzing him. He was stout, his face was round and ruddy and his eyes bright as I had never seen them before.

"I said, 'Mac, I hardly knew you, what on earth have you been doing to get so fat?' He replied, 'Grape-Nuts, nothing else. I started in on Grape-Nuts food three months ago when I weighed 126 and was feeling miserable, but now I weigh 160 and feel better than I ever felt in my life I quit my old diet and went on Grape-Nuts and that's the whole story.'"

Exercise is necessary but there's no nourishment in it and proper food alone can supply that. Grape-Nuts for 10 days is a pleasant trial and proves big things.

"There's a Reason."

Look in pkgs. for the famous little book, "The road to Wellville."

Ever read the above letter? A new one appears from time to time. They are genuine, true, and full of human interest. Canadian trade supplied by Canadian Postum Cereal Co., Ltd., Windsor, Ont.

INSTALLATION OF I.O.O.F. OFFICERS

Albion Lodge Had a Very Interesting Meeting Last Evening.

The installation of officers of Albion Lodge, No. 2 I.O.O.F., took place last evening in its lodge room in the Masonic Building, there being a large attendance of members present. The reports for the year showed that the mother lodge of the order in Quebec was in a flourishing condition, its financial standing being most satisfactory. The installation was performed by Bro. S. J. Lower, D.D.G.M., who was assisted by Bro. J. S. Burford, P.G., Grand Marshal, Bro. E. H. Walling, P.G.M., Grand Warden, E. H. Lower, P.G., Grand Recording Secretary, W. ## WINNING HORSES ARRIVE HOME

Allan Steamship Company's Lake Erie Brought Murray's Fine Strng.

The Allan Steamship Company's chartered steamer Lake Erie brought back to Canada yesterday a shipment of horses which have made a big hit at the Olympic horse show held in London recently. The horsese were the property of Mr. Murray of Toronto, and many of them won prizes at the show. Some of his prize-winners were purchased on the other side, as high as $5,000 being paid for a single animal.

QUEBEC YACHT CLUB SAILING RACE

Challenge Sent in for Club Cup. Motor Boat Race This Afternoon.

The veteran yachtsman, Dr. S. Lavoie, has sent in a challenge for the Q.Y.C. Challenge Cup, and the race will take place Saturday afternoon, July 23, over the triangular course in the harbor, starting from red buoy at the mouth of the St. Charles River, around buoy at St. Joseph, then down and around red buoy at Montmorency Falls, and back to starting point, two rounds to complete course. First prize will be a marine barometer, donated by Major T. Hetherington, and challenge cup; second prize, musical clock, donated by Mr. E. G. Joly de Lotbiniere. This race is for second class boats only. Entry list is now open at the clubroom. Matters are booming with the Quebec Yacht Club, under the able management of Commodore Dr. S. Gaudreau and other members of the club, who are helping greatly by donating prizes, etc., no less than six events being on the programme for this season. The club has two of the fastest boats ever on the St. Lawrence, the sailing yacht Jamboree, Judge Simard, and the motor boat Jean, owned by Honorary Commodore William Price, M.P.

The new motor boats of the Q.Y.C. will be tested by a speed trial at 2 p.m. this afternoon, one turn over the triangular course from red buoy off St. Charles River to buoy off Cap Blanc, then down and around buoy at St. Joseph de Levis and back to buoy at mouth of river St. Charles. This will complete the necessary handicaps to be given for the motor boat race Saturday afternoon, July 16, as the handicaps for the boats who competed last year will be taken from the race in which they took part. Entries for these boats will be open until Friday, July 15, twenty-four hours before the race. There will be three prizes given for the race on the 16th, donated by Commodore Dr. S. Gaudreau, Captain James Smith and Ely. Anger.

Take steamers North and South from Chouinard's wharf, Quebec, to make connection with railway trains at Levis. Steamers meet all trains arriving at Levis, day or night, from Couture's wharf, west side of station. Passengers are requested to follow their baggage to avoid delays.

THE GOLD SEEKERS.

In a story of the California gold fields there is an intense thrill from beginning to end, together with a sympathetic touch seldom found in stories of this nature. The young miner, with his wife and little boy, is seeking his fortune in the hills of California. He eventually strikes it rich, but is almost cheated out of his claim by a couple of scoundrels, who have seen him stake the claim, and try to reach the agent before the miner's wife, who, accompanied by the boy, goes to file it. Their purpose, however, is thwarted by the little boy. This story is beautifully played and worked out by the favorite Biograph Co., and is to be seen at the Nickel. "Ready in a Minute," is a roaringly funny comedy that will be appreciated by all, while "The Miner and Camille" is a delicious comedy drama by Edison. "A Son's Forgiveness," is a great pathetic story that will find its way to any heart. The song to be sung by Miss O'Connell entitled "Baby Blue" and "You and I and the Moon Dear," by G. Lamont are both noted song successes and doubtless will be successful here. Amateur Night promises to be the best of any Amateur Night, as there are some very good amateurs to be seen this evening. The hall being the coolest place in town and the programme not to be surpassed, is doubtless responsible for such good crowds at this favorable amusement resort. Next Tuesday night will be ladies and gentlemen's Souvenir Night. A handsome nickel plated automatic ink pencil and combination linen marker will be given away free.

With the London hall-mark of 1580, an Elizabethan silver gilt cup and saucer sold for £1,750 at Christie's sale of Mrs. Milligan's, Caldwell Hall, collection, and £1,550 was paid for an Edward VI. silver gilt chalice.

A hoard of George III. sovereigns was discovered by workmen engaged in cleaning the Great Western Canal between Crickhowell and Brecon. They had been placed in a jug, which in turn had been placed n a bag.

Mr. Bertram Mackennal, A.R.A., who has been appointed to design and model the Coronation medal and the coinage for the new reign, is an Australian, who was born in Melbourne in 1863. He has won great distinction as a sculptor.

In reply to an inquiry as to whether there were highly-paid officials in the Malta Customs Department who were not rendering their country an hour's work, Colonel Seely announced that the organization of the department had been reminded with a probable net saving of £7,000.

Mr. Buxton, President of the Board of Trade, at a meeting of the International Congress of Chambers of Commerce advocated fixing Easter late because the fish rose then better for anglers. It was resolved to invite the Powers to reform the calendar and fix Easter.

Workmen have discovered at Colchester a stone with an inscription, the translation of which reads: — "Macrinus . . . Roman civil servant, lived twenty years. Valeria Frontina, his wife, and Florus Cogitatus and Florus Fidelis erected this monument.

Sir Thomas Barret-Lennard laid the foundation-stone of the lunatic asylum which is being erected at a cost of over £248,000, near Colchester. The asylum will accommodate 2,000 patients and will include a large reception hall with stage and proscenium.

It has been discovered that a row of five cottages and two houses in King Edward-street, Grimsby, with a house in Burgess-street, should have reverted to the Corporation eleven years ago, the leases having expired. These properties yield a rental of nearly £100 per annum.

Yarmouth Corporation has made a deficit on the last year's working of the municipal undertakings. The electricity department made a profit of £879 and the tramways a profit of £69; but on the municipal pier, skating rink, and gardens there was a loss involving a call upon the rates of £1,175.

During the recent Yeomanry exercises at Ludgershall, Major Winston Churchill was invited to box with an officer of the Bucks Hussars. He accepted, and after a few minutes' sparring his opponent landed a hard blow straight from the shoulders on the Home Secretary's jaw. Mr. Churchill fell and was counted out.

Fifty-two schools under the control of the London County Council are to be cleaned or repainted during the summer holidays at a cost of something like £25,000.

At the age of eighty-four a woman named Brown, who is an inmate of Grimsby Workhouse, has received a legacy of 12s. a week. Being in constant pain, she has arranged to stay on at the workhouse, the guardians taking 10s. a week and leaving her the remainder for little luxuries.

Haverfordwest Guardians have decided to grant relief to David Lewis, aged seventy, who, finding himself unable to pay rates and taxes some years ago, converted a fishing boat on the beach at Fishguard into a home, and has since lived on crabs, mussels, and other shellfish.

A fierce fight in midstream between two dog otters for the possession of their lady love, who spurred on the rival lovers by a continued whistling noise, was seen by an angler who was fishing at night for sea trout at Marron Foot, on the Cumberland Derwent.

Lieut.-Colonel Gallwey, Governor of St. Helena, Speaking at the Constitutional Club, said that the inhabitants hoped to mtke a living out of the fibre industry, the spinning of the New Zealand flax, the lace industry, and a third industry, mackerel curing, which had been introduced by Mr. Alfred Mosley.

At the annual meeting of the National Poultry Organization Society Viscount Helmsley, M.P., said now was the time for the home producer. In Yorkshire the total consumption of eggs was about £2,000,000 worth annually, but of this total consumption they only produce about £400,000 worth.

Acomia

Many Men Have It and Most of Them Worry About It.

ACOMIA—it's a magic word—what does it mean? Simply absence of hair.

A baldheaded man has ACOMIA—absence of hair.

A million more men will have ACOMIA a year from now if they do not get rid of disgusting dandruff.

Dandruff is caused by a germ. This germ is a persistent sort of germ. He works while you sleep and when you awake. He breakfasts, dines and sups on the vitality stored in the hair roots, and the longer you tolerate his presence the surer you are of displaying a shine headpiece later on.

Kill the dandruff germs; that's the only way to keep from growing bald. Any capable doctor will tell you so.

How can you be sure that you are killing the dandruff germs? Simply by using daily for two weeks Parisian Sage, the most pleasant tonic for the hair the world has ever known.

Parisian Sage is the most pleasant and invigorating hair dressing in the world. It is not sticky or greasy. It will make women's hair soft, silky and luxuriant in a few days. The girl with the Auburn hair is on every bottle. Fifty cents a large bottle at druggists everywhere and at Henry Willis' 4 St. John street, who guarantees it. Mail orders filled, all charges prepaid, by the Canadian makers, Giroux Mfg. Co., Fort Erie, Ont.

When going to Montreal, why not travel by the steamers "Quebec" or "Montreal," where a refreshing night's rest can be had? Steamer leaves every evening at 6 o'clock.

CALIFORNIA HAS MANY RESEMBLANCES TO ITALY

Who that knows the Mediterranean country could fail to note the tie that binds the Latin lands to the hill-slopes facing the channel of Santa Barbara?

The soft breeze, fanning the face like a caress; the limpid air—the cielo sereno dear to every Italian heart—the scent of the orange blossoms wafted from the terraces; the shimmering olives backed by dark oaks; the suave lines of the coast reaching from the headlands of Miramar and Montecito down toward the bluffs of Ventura; the lazy blue sea sending its subdued rumble to the ear; the islands floating like mirages upon its bosom, evoke the noble panoramas of Camaldoli, of Positano, of Nervi, of Bordighera. Even the laborers, ploughing between the lemon trees, chatter the liquid note of Italy's language, and toward evening, when nature is stilled in the hush which comes with twilight, from the cottage behind our house, come the soft notes of the romanzas of Posilippo sung by the gardeners and their families.

Such for the general impression. And even when you look more closely, the comparison holds in the gardens where the gorgeous hybiscus blooms beside the agapanthus, the heliotrope and hedges of strawberry guava; the bougainville transforms prosaic cottages into Sicilian villas, and row upon row of pink amaryllis balance their shapely heads along the pathways, their lily-like flowers undefiled by any leaf.

The finely drawn mountains, with infinitely broken surfaces, fold on fold along the sea, ashen in the white light of mid-day, rosy in the flush of evening, clothe their lower slopes with pungent thickets of southernwood and wild lilac where canaries nest and bluebirds whose azure wings flash in the sunlight, and the canon-wren whose song at daybreak awakens one with a thrill of pleasure.

The choicer homes, too, affect the Latin type, and, when not frankly Spanish, are built to recall the villas of Capri or Sorrento.—From "Italy in California," by Ernest Peixotto in the July Scribner.

MONDAY WILL TELL STORY

Fight in Manitoba Is Bitter, as Usual—No Surface Indications of a Change.

(Toronto News.)

Winnipeg, July 7.—On Monday next, July 11, the electors of Manitoba will decide whether they want four more years of the Roblin Administration. It has been the usual bitter Manitoba fight, with the air thick with charges and counter charges, and with affidavits and counter affidavits issued ad infinitum. Writs have been scatered by the wholesale while there will be libel suits enough to fatten the lawyers' purses for several years. It is a strenuous affair a Manitoba election, and this year's contest has been no exception to the rule. It has been sho.t, but as hot as the weather the Province has been experiencing.

At Best Only Guesswork.

Electon predictions at best are only guesses, and Manitoba elections are notoriously uncertain, so that it is hardly safe to dogmatize, but there is little doubt expresed in Manitoba as to the result. The only question is as to the majority of the Government. It would be no surprise if the p.esent Opposition of thirteen were cut in two and there are optimists who predict that the Liberals will be as completely annihilated as they were in British Columbia.

No Signs of Change.

There are none of the signs of a change of Government, and the general feeling throughout the Province is a return to the Administration. The Liberal party to start with lacks good generals. T. C. Norris, the leader, is not proving himself a heaven sent Moses for the party. The Liberal organization also is a great deal weaker than the Conservatives, for the Roblin Government keeps its organization continually in good shape. In several constituencies there is so much schism that the Liberals have practically presented seats they already hold to the Conservatives. In Dauphin, represented in the last House by J. A. Campbell, Liberal, there is internal trouble. Campbell lost the convention, but later the successful candidate was persuaded much against his will to withdraw and Campbell is in the field, but without the support of his rival. In Gimli, the Icelandic constituency, there is also trouble and two Liberal candidates are running. In Assiniboia there is an independent running, who is being given the official Liberal support, while there is in addition a Liberal who was nominated at a convention which has been unrecognized. In Centre Winnipeg the Liberals did not put a man in the field and are supporting the Labor candidate.

Spectacular Fights.

The two most spectacular fights are in Dufferin, the home constituency of Premier Roblin, which he has represented for nearly thirty years, and West Winnipeg, where a dead set is being made on T. H. Johnson, one of the Liberal leaders. Premier Roblin has as his opponent Professor Osborne, formerly of Wesley College, who recently resigned to study law and to enter politics. Professor Osborne is the orator of the Liberal party, and as Premier Roblin is something of an orator himself, there has been a continual display of pyrotechnics. T. H. Johnson, who represented West Winnipeg for the Liberals in the last house, has had an interesting career. He was born in Iceland and came to Manitoba, in the early seventies with his parent as a boy. He sold papers on the streets of Winnipeg, and with the dogged perseverance of his race fought his way up the ladder. His opponent is A. J. Andrews, a brilliant lawyer and popular ex-Mayor of Winnipeg. There is a large Icelandic vote in the constituency and this may save Johnson.

Government Progressive.

Whatever the criticism of the Government it is generally recognized in Manitoba that the Roblin Administration has been exceedingly progresive. It has set the pace for not only the West, but all of Canada, in forward and advanced legislation. The telephone policy of the Government is particularly popular through the Province. The system has been extended through rural Manitoba so that there are few farming districts that cannot have the convenience of the phone. In two years the number of subscribers has actually doubled, while thousands of miles of long distance lines have been built. The growth has been remarkable. With the farmers the Government's policy of a Government owned grain elevator system is popular, while the Government has in addition strengthened itself with the rural Manitoba by its recent announcement that it will build a Government controlled public abattoir and stock yards in St. Boniface.

But what strengthens the Government more than anything else is the persistent refusal of Sir Wilfred to extend the boundaries of Manitoba. If the Liberals of Manitoba are annihilated on Monday they can thank Si. Wilfred Laurier. The boundary question is a considerable factor in the elections, although not the factor the Conservatives would have to believe.

Opposition's Charge.

The opposition has played as its strongest card its charges against Premier Roblin that he used his position to secure the guarantee of bonds for a C. N. R. line to a gravel pit in which he was interested. The Government claim that the road was built for colonization purposes and that the P.emier had as much right to ship gravel over the line as wheat from hs Caiman farm. The Opposition charges have been off-set by even stronger charges against the Liberals. There is the sensational charge against Horace C. Chevrier, Liberal candidate in Carillon, that he atempted to sell a judgeship for $10,000. T. H. Johnson, as National Transcontinental solicitor, is accused of e orbitant fees. D. A. Ross, candidate in Springfield, is accused of grafting while a member of the Winnipeg school board, and so down the line.

Monday will tell the tale, but it would be hard to get a bettor in Manitoba who would not be willing to back his money on the return of the Roblin Government for the fourth time.

Compare Your Razor With the New Carbo Edge

Don't be satisfied with the razor you are using because you merely think it is the best.

Get the Carbo-Magnetic. It will last longer—it will give you a quicker, smoother shave.

Try it for 30 days at our expense—then you will know which is the best—for the sure test of value is comparison.

"Right tempering" is the secret of Carbo-Magnetic Superiority. The "Carbo edge" is secured by an even electric heat of 2,500 degrees Fahrenheit—a process of carbonization similar to that by which diamonds have been produced. The result is the hardest cutting edge known to science—a blade that you never have to hone or grind.

Don't take our word for it—the razor proves itself—come in today and get one on 30 days' trial—free.

HALE AND HEARTY AT NINETY-SIX

Remarkable Scotsman Recalls Incidents of Varied Career in Many Countries.

London, July 7.—"Is life worth living? I should just think it is. I have seen ninety-six years of it in all weathers, and I'm glad enough that, if all goes well, my doctor promises me twenty years more. Come what will, it is good to be between earth and sky, and I for one mean to get all I can out of it, to the last gleam of sunshine and breath of sweet air."

This is the philosophy of experience—the experience of a remarkable old Scotsman. He is remarkable, not only for his actual age, but for having had one of the most adventurous and varied careers that any man could hope to survive.

His name is John Smeaton He comes of an ancient Fifeshire family, and was born on December 31, 1813, in Dunfermline.

A typical Scot, with the spreading, reddish beard only just tinged with white, a keen, bright, brown eye and strong, masterful features—no one who talks with Mr. Smeaton would take him for a day over seventy.

His memory is amazing. He does not, of course, actually remember Waterloo, but he remembers vividly the aftermath, and the arrival of the news of Napoleon's death.

After taking his degree at Edinburgh University, Mr. Smeaton was duly ordained to the ministry, but soon tired of that and joined the Sutherlandshire Highlanders, the grand old 93rd. With them he served in Canada, coming home in the Belle Isle—the last vessel taken from the French, an old wooden three-decker.

"This was, of course," he say, "some years before the Crimea, and life in the Army was rough enough, but I had a glorious time. Throughout the Army generally, flogging was fearfully frequent in those days, but not so much in the Scotch regiments, where there was a more republican spirit, and officers and men were on better terms than elsewhere.

"While in Canada, I had some splendid moose hunting, and I remember nearly getting drown at an ice carnival at Quebec, but I had left the regiment before the Crimea broke out.

"To tell the truth, after leaving the Army I was for seven years in prison—not, happily, as a compulsory inmate, but as the deputy governor of Perth Penitentiary. It was there that I had one of the narrowest squeaks of my life, in a struggle with a convict who was trying to escape one night. He was a desperate customer, was in for life, and had already escaped from several other prisons.

"We had put him to weaving, as that was his trade, and he had made a sort of pole ladder out of bits of the loom. I managed to get him down off this just as he was climbing a wall by its means—and we rolled into the ditch together. I was absolutely unarmed, and only in my pants and vest—in which I used to sleep then in case of alarm. As we struggled together alone—the warders being scattered all over the place—the man managed to whip out a knife he had fashioned from some weaver's shears. He would certainly have done for me if my dog Hector hadn't come up just at that moment and gone for him in such ugly fashion that I was able to get free almost at my leisure.

"Calling Hector off—he was half retriever and half St. Bernard, and almost as big as a pony—I just told the man that I would set the dog on him again if he didn't go straight back to his cell. Sure enough, he went like a lamb, and we walked back in procession—convict, dog and myself. I really believe the fear of the dog was more effective than any loaded gun would have been.

"With my experience in prisons, I was, of course, immensely interested when Charles Reade's 'Never Too Late to Mend' came out, and I see that there is another movement now towards make life pleasanter in gaol. Well, I don't want to be hard, but I admit that I am a believer in the old-fashioned idea that punishment is a necessary thing, and that it has got to be punishment. I don't believe in a grand piano and a sing-song as a reward for crime, and even as it is I have often thought of committing a felony just to get a week at the old place.

"After my seven years at Perth Penitentiary I had an even more ticklish time as superintendent of a criminal lunatic asylum, and I could tell you some stories about that which would make your blood run cold, but they would be too horrible to print.

"Then I went with a friend to India—spending money this time, not making it—and we had some tiger hunting in the Punjaub. See that scar"—and Mr. Smeaton bared a right arm that could still give a serviceable blow—"that was the result of a maul from a tiger close to Lahore well over sixty years ago.

"As I was greatly used by that time to knocking about the world, I joined in the gold rush to Australia, but I did not find any fortune there. As a matter of fact, the condition of things at the diggings was so bad that I decided it wasn't worth staying there for all the money in the world. What with the absence of good food and of water, and the large criminal percentage, you can have no conception of the state of the place in the first days of the gold. I have seen the bodies of diggers rotting by the wayside like dead sheep. There might have been no law there either of God or man, and the number of brutal murders that were never even noticed must have been enourmous.

"Even then my travelling days were not over, and in various capacities I have been almost everywhere, from the northern snows to Terra Del Fuego, but for the last forty years I have been more or less settled in London."

It may be added that, in spite of his age, Mr. Smeaton can still get up at four in the morning and go a good walk before breakfast. His sight and hearing are hardly at all impaired, he smokes and enjoys his "drappie," and curiously enough, his teeth are still four in the morning and go a good

UNPAID CANADIAN EMIGRATION AGENTS.

The dwindling minority which emits an occasional sneer at Canada and its "population little more than of Greater London"—attributed the increasing emigration of labour and capital to the Dominion to the energetic "advertising" campaign waged by its official representatives in the United Kingdom—needs an occasional reminder of the potentialities of the Granary of the Empire such as has been given by Sir Ernest Shackleton on the eve of his departure from Canada. Those who are jealous of the loss of the muscle and money which are being attracted to Canada would do well to remember that the movement is, in the main, due to the favorable report of the land sent home in the letters of successful settlers or brought back by men like Earl Grey, Lord Milner, Sir Ernest Shackleton, and the directors and managers of the many great financial institutions who now make constant tours from the Atlantic to the Pacific coast. The records of the official registry offices in the Dominion show the extent of the land owned by men of this camp in the country. The Stock Exchange tells its tale of liquid capital flowing there in ever-increasing volume. "What has struck me most hasbeen the note of justifiable optimism that seemed to permeate everybody, and I must say it seems well established and well founded." "The land under wheat in Canada this says the famous Antartic explorer. Is this to be wondered at when on the day these remarks were made we received the official statement that year amounts to 9,295,000 acres, being an increase of 1,504,400 acres over last year"? It is, however, with the mineral resources and industrial opportunities that Sir Ernest Shackleton seems to have been most impressed. He returns to England this week to join the growing band of voluntary emigration agents who are building up the Dominion and backing their opinion as to the magnificent future which lies before it.

THESE STURDY LIFE--PARTNERS

ATTRIBUTE THEIR GOOD HEALTH TO "FRUIT-A-TIVES"

Everyone for miles around Grande Ligne, P.Q., knows Mr. N. Joubert. He was born and raised in St. Johns Co., went in business for himself, prospered, and then retired to enjoy the fruits of his industry. Mr. Joubert and his esteemed wife have the respect of a wide circle of friends and acquaintances. Although Mr. Joubert is now 80 years old and Mrs. Joubert is 75 years, they are enjoying the best of health. This is due to the marvellous power of "Fruit-a-tives."

Grand Ligne, Que., Jan. 2nd, 1910.

"I heartily recommend 'Fruit-a-tives' to all who suffer from Constipation and the painful consequences—Piles. I am now over 80 years of age and suffered for over 20 years with Constipation and Piles. I tried all kinds of remedies, saw the doctors and took their medicines, but nothing cured me. About four years ago, I received a sample of 'Fruit-a-tives.' After taking a few doses, I really felt that 'Fruit-a-tives' were doing me good. As 'Fruit-a-tives' were not sold here I wrote to Ottawa for several boxes. My previous opinion of the value of 'Fruit-a-tives' was more than confirmed by the wonderful good they did me. After taking four boxes, I felt well—my bowels were regular—and the Piles had disappeared.

"My wife was troubled for three years with Asthma and Eczema of the hands, which made her hands almost useless. The doctor gave her several ointments to use, none of which had any effect. He also advised her to use rubber gloves (she wore out three pairs). I persuaded her, as a last resort, to try 'Fruit-a-tives.' The effect was marvellous. Her hands are cured and the Asthma has also left her. We both attribute our present good health to 'Fruit-a-tives.'

N. JOUBERT."

It does seem wonderful to think of one remedy curing four such diseases as Constipation, Piles, Eczema and Asthma. Yet when you think of it, all four troubles are caused by one thing—poisoned blood. Old age brings a certain weakness. The liver becomes clogged and does not give up enough bile to move the bowels regularly, causing Eczema and Asthma. "Fruit-a-tives" cures all such diseases because it contains, in tablet form, the most wonderful blood purifying elements ever discovered. "Fruit-a-tives" is not made by a drug trust—nor some chemist who knows nothing about disease. No. "Fruit-a-tives" is the discovery of one of Canada's most eminent physicians, who devoted many years to searching for the medicinal elements in fresh fruit. This physician found that by combining certain fruit juices in a certain way, he formed a new compound which was many times more valuble in curing disease than anything known to medical science.

This discovery is "Fruit-a-tives," now known and praised in every part of Canada. The case of Mr. and Mrs. Joubert shows the remarkable powers of "Fruit-a-tives" in curing disease when all else has failed. If you are a sufferer, try "Fruit-a-tives." 50c a box, 6 for $2.50, or trial size 25c. At all dealers or from Fruit-a-tives, Limited, Ottawa.

German Southwest Africa Inaccessible and Wild—Found in Handfuls.

Nineteen days by the Deutsche Ost-Afrika Line from Southampton brings one to the land of Monte Cristo, where the diamonds in all truth can be gathered in handfuls—viz., German Southwest Africa. Its history is one more of English neglects, of a land that was developed by British pluck and British endurance, of native requests for protection, and of the calm weighing of the pros and cons by Downing street, assisted by the then ministry at the Cape (of which the present Prime Minister, Mr. Merriman, was a member), and the decision that it was not worth it and that the responsibility could not be undertaken, says a Swakopmund correspondent of the London Standard.

Instead, a wretched strip of land, 35 miles by 12, around the port or harbor of Walfisch Bay, was taken, and the rest left for him who wished. Walfisch Bay—a collection of tin shanties—even the magistrate's house is a disgrace—which to-day costs the Cape Government $25,000 per annum, and until a few years ago nearly $50,000—is composed of about six officials and 200 Hottentots. To-day, did Damaraland belong to Great Britain, at Luderitz Bay there would be a population as large as Cape Town; and throughout the northern portion there would be thousands of prospectors seeking the minerals that hardly need finding, for within the first 44 miles of the coast the whole primary earth's surface is disclosed.

A German Colony.

The first diamonds were spoken of years ago, but intercourse with the country was difficult, the hardships were great, and the further objection of its being a German colony kept matters back until eighteen months ago, when some of the Cape "boys" who were working on the railway from Luderitz Bay to Keetmanshoep brought in some of the sand with clear-colored stones among it, and said, "Baas, diamonds." Places were looked for and found and pickle bottles full of diamonds were brought into Luderitz Bay from about a radius asked to give some cash and goods for asked to give some cash and gods for them. Misbelief was still there, and no one ventured. Even after the claims had been pegged off (one claim being then one kilometer—two-thirds of a mile—radius) and the Government license paid, viz., $15, these claims were offered in Luderitz Bay and Swakopmun for $18 or $20, and refused.

At last news was received and specimens of these stones were seen by some one from Cape Town, who at once understood the value, quickly got together a number of fields, and presto—a diamond company which has paid the last year 55 per cent. on a capital of $750,000 without any efficient machinery, or any of the conveniences which now can be had, and mainly with pick, shovel and sieve. Now it is a large industry, and miles and miles of fields have been proved to contain diamonds. All land from the Orange river up to the twenty-sixth degree was afterwards closed by the Government to prospectors, and reserved by the Colonial Gesellschaft Company, a kind of chartered company of German Southwest Africa.

As soon as the south was closed to them the prospectors went north—first to Spencer Bay, which had had proved of little or no value, then to Conception Bay, Oyster Cliffs, and Franciscus Bay, and, last of all to Hollams Bird, all of which places have fields where diamonds have been found, and the question is now of the quantity and size of the stones. That there are diamonds is more than proved, as some thousands of stones have been registered, but eight, ten, twelve stones to the carat, sometimes as few as six to the carat, are of little value, and it is very doubtful if these fields will ever pay to work. There are great difficulties of water, and landing is sometimes not possible for 14 days at Cenception Bay. The death roll during the prospecting period will never be known, as no record could possibly be kept. People stream into Luderitz Bay from the Cape, from all parts.

A Melancholy Find.

Some prospectors at a place between Oyster Cliffs and Franciscus Bay (these are names only) found two bodies, one in a good state of preservation, with the hair on the head and flesh still on the bones, but the clothes rotted away. The second body, which was not covered by the sand, which is ever shifting, was not so well preserved. At the same spot several coins were found, marked O. I. V., 1749—old Dutch East India Company money, the relics of some calamity of some shipwrecked crew on these inhospitable shores.

One of the small steamers employed to run up and down the coast landing stores and water for expeditions at various depots, when it can, saw three men on the beach at a place many miles from nowhere. They waved and the good old skipper, thinking they needed a lift, put a boat off for them, but they would not leave the shore; they were still seeking the little stones which would mean so much to them. They said they knew they were only 100 miles from Spencer Bay, where there was a depot, and they could do it. Boots gone, clothes in rags, a litle water in bottles, and four biscuits between them to do the journey on. Whether they ever reached the depot, no one will ever know.

Every now and again a riderless camel or horse arrives at Walfisch Bay or one of the southern depots, which tells its own tale—some one left to die of thirst or hunger in the ever-shifting, waterless sand dunes. Although the worst is past, still people even now take their lives in their hands. In many places the only road is along the beach, which can be passed only at low tide—with the ever shifting sand dunes to climb, which is impossible, as they rise in such places like a cliff over the sea, and, the treacherous tide rushing in on the other side, a little delay or an accident and all is finished.

NO CRIME TO KILL CHRISTIANS.

That is Mohammedan Law in the Land of Egypt.

The case of Wardani, the fanatic condemned to death by the Egyptian Criminal Court for the murder of the late Prime Minister Boutros Pasha, was last week referred to the Grand Mufti for confirmation. The Grand Mufti, we may remind our readers, is a functionary who can be best described as the chief ecclesiastical lawyer of the Mohammedan community in Egypt. On Saturday last the Daily Telegraph published an account of the grounds on which he refused his sanction to the sentence of death. In the first place, he pointed out that the Prophet has said nothing in the Koran about the use of revolvers. Therefore apparently he who kills a man with a revolver is not guilty of any crime known to the sacred law. Next the victim was a Christian, and the life of a true believer can never be taken merely on the ground that he has killed a Christian. Thirdly Boutros Pasha's relatives had not themselves appeared as prosecutors.

This decision of the final interpreter of the Mohammedan law will sound to most Englishmen like some sort of ghastly opera boffe, but it would be most unwise to treat it altogether in such a spirit. Undoubtedly th Grand Mufti's decision will seem not only good law but good morals and good religion to a very considerable portion of the Egyptian population. It is one of the great difficulties against which Mohammedan states struggle that the sacred law cannot be altered by a hair's breadth by orthodox Mohammedans, even though that law commits the true believer to such appalling paradoxes as those propounded by the Grand Mufti Curiously enough, however, this fact helps to make many Mohammedans acquiesce contentedly if not gladly in British rule. A good Mohammedan may always yield to superior force, and if othe. people will take the responsibility of transgressing the Mohammedan law he need not excite himself about it, but may acquiesce in the social convenience produced by such transgression.

We believe we are right in saying that according to the orthodox interpretation of the Mohammedan law it is absolutely impossible to abolish slavery in a Moslem country. Yet many Mohammedans are very glad to acquiesce in its abolition. The practical harm done by the Grand Mufti's decision has to be considered. We must face the fact that when Werdani goes to be executed—the Grand Mufti's opinion will of course be ignored—a great many Mohammedans all overEgypt who care nothing about the nationalism will be inclined to the belief that he died a martyr to the true faith. That being so, something will have to be done to strengthen the law in regard to the killing of Christians.—London Chronicle.

Hearing that an oil spring had been struck in a backyard at Leigh, Lancashire, a London firm sent down an expert, who was amused to find that the oil was refined, and the flow was due to a leakage from an oilman's shop in the vicinity. The fluid had found its way through a forgotten conduit.

Take Off the Fat Where It Shows

Most women suffer much humiliation because of great quantities of fat, so located, that no matter how they dress, everybody sees that they are abnormal. This is the day of the slender figer, and fat women are simply not tolerated either in business or social affairs. Women may not know it, but men when they see a fat woman pass them on the street make all manner of sympathetic remarks about her. They do not mean to be unkind or to seem unmanly, but it is natural for a man to dislike fat on a woman. Where fat shows the most there is where it must be removed, and as quickly as possible. The hot weather dresses seem to be made for the fat woman's misery and the slender woman's delight. They expose all the charms of woman and her ugliness as well. Exercise and her ugliness well. Exercise and diet will not remove fat. This has been proved. The famous Marmola prescription which has met with such phenomenal success and has so many of our society women as its sponsors, is now being sold in tablet form to meet the demand of the public for this style of treatment. These little tablets go into your system just like food. They stop the stomach and digestive apparatus from producing fat and reduce the fat upon the body at the rate of from 12 to 15 ounces a day. They are harmless and can be carried in your purse and taken even after you have indulged in a hearty meal away from home. They are sold at all drug stores at 75 cents a case, or if you prefer you may write the Marmola Company, 854 Farmer Bldg., Detroit, Mich.

Think of Last Summer--

You can remember days when the heat inside your kitchen was so great you could hardly bear it. With the right stove you would have made a better hostess. Save your health. Don't put up with the drudgery of a coal range. You can have a clean, cool, pleasant kitchen. The does away with all drudgery of cooking. Why should you be a slave to a coal range when you can have an Oil Cook-Stove that is cheaper than coal, cleaner than coal, doesn't "smell," doesn't smoke, lights instantly, can be put out instantly, leaves no ashes, and doesn't heat the kitchen. With one of these stoves you can boil, bake or roast the most elaborate dinner. You can change from a slow to a quick fire, or the other way about, by simply turning a wick. Apply a match, and instantly the heat from an intense blue flame shoots upward through the turquoise-blue enamel chimneys to the bottom of pot, kettle or oven—but nowhere else. The stove has every convenience that can be thought of: Cabinet Top with shelf for keeping food and dishes hot, drop shelves to hold coffee or teapots, towel rack; in fact every convenience possible.

The nickel finish, with the bright blue of the chimneys, makes the stove ornamental and attractive.

Cautionary Note: Be sure you get this stove—see that the name-plate reads "New Perfection."

Made with 1, 2 and 3 burners; the 2 and 3-burner stoves can be had with or without Cabinet.

ENGLANDS' BEST PEOPLE EMIGRATE

Agriculture Wanes, and With It the National Stamina—Crowding the Cties.

On the face of it, says the Manchester Guardian, it may not be well when a nation sends thousands of its sons acros the sea. It depends entirely on the sort of sons it sends.

Emigration is rather like blood-letting. The letting of bad blood and of unwholesome humors oftimes relieves the patient, and even restores him to health; the letting of good blood, on the other hand, leads always to weakness, and, if prolonged, to death itself.

There are quite a lot of people who could be spared from England—our idlers, to wit, our wastrels, our detrimentals, moral and physical.

In the last census, more than six h ndred thousand adults wrote themselves down as of "no occupation."

But these are not the people whom the emigrant ships bear off towards the setting sun. On the whole, our country is a pleasant sort of place for parasites, and, anyhow, the parasite is a clinging animal; the wastrel is an unenterprsing one.

Close Fighters and Workers.

Those of our fellow-countrymen whom we are losing just now are, if not the best, at least of the best, that we have among us; those, at any rate, who can least happily be spared. England wants workers; England may want fighters, and England is parting with both . . . in many thousands.

If the phenomenon be a phenomenon of evil some slight comfort may be derived from the reflection that it is not a new phenomenon. It is constant and ever recurring. For a good many centuries there has been an outflow, a human outflow, from these islands. The very fact of the existance of the United States of America, with their eighty millions or so of population talking English, speaks loudly of the emigration of the past.

Emigration Made Empire.

Emigration, moreover, is the reason why so large a portion of the world's map is painted red. So many of our kin go to Canada now because so many of our kin went to Canada in days gone by. Had it not been for emigration there would be no Canada for our kin to go to; there would be only a waste land, o ra strange foreign land speaking a strange foreign tongue.

A writer in a contemporary, much alarmed by the continutd emigration, makes the statement that our population no longer increases. The census figures disprove this. In twenty years our population increased between six and seven million. The next census will no doubt show a further increase of three and a half million in the past decade.

Plenty of a Kind of People.

So that we can spare a few hundred thousand emigrants, and still be strong in numbers. England is not, as the writer above referred states, "being turned into a desert."

What, in point of fact we are turning England into is a number of densely-packed industrial centres. In the last eight years London has increased its population by 300,000, Manchester by 100,000, Sheffield by 90,000, and so on through the list of all our great cities and towns—the cities and towns in which men work, in which they make things.

Thse people are fed to a great and to an ever-increasing extent by the labor of men who have emigrated in days gone by, and their children will be fed by the labor of men who are emigrating to-day. Speaking broadly, to export a laborer is sooner or later to import food, especially if that laborer happens to be landed at a Canadian port.

Strong Navy, Full Bread Box.

So long as we continue to worry about our navy we need not worry about our food supply. Canadian producers will put it fast enough and in sufficient quantity upon the corn ships if only our cruisers and battleships see to it that it gets here.

No, it is not the supply of agricultural produce that needs greatly to trouble our thoughts. It is the supply of agricultural men. If history teaches one great leson more surely than another, it s that no civilization can be based, or can for long be sustained upon anght but agriculture, and the reason is that only the men bred in agricultural districts are trained by agricultural pursuits can hold a civilization against foes from without.

Yoemen the Real Thing.

We should do well to remind ourselves from time to time that it was a few thousand agriculturists, not a few thousand factory hands, or bankers' clerks, or even profesional footballers, who for three years or thereabouts kept a British army at bay in South Africa.

England is losing her agriculture and she is losing it from many and multifarious causes, the first and most important of which is that the agricultural laborer has learned to dislike his job and learned to escape from it—to Canada and other places.

SMUGGLING IS A PROFESSION THERE

Honorable and Legitimate in the Tiny Mountain RePublic of Andorra.

Sant Julia de Loria, the rival of Andorra-la-Villa, is the great trade and smuggling centre. It has about 600 inhabitants only, but can boast several large shops and warehouses full of contraband commodities, openly displayed. As a matter of fact, the whole nation are more or less smugglers—on principle. They have neither import nor export duties themselves, and they are fully persuaded of the benefits of free trades for everybody. France makes commodities wanted in Spain; Spain grows articles required in France—and Andorra lies between these two natiops. What more natural, therefore, than she should give aid to both her neighbors—for a consideration, of course? But smuggling in Andorra is not looked upon as a fraudulent business. On the contrary, it is considered an honorable and legitimate profession—almost an art—and one that, in its higher branches, requires many aptitudes—business capacity, astuteness, diplomacy, a thorough knowledge of the art of bribery, and a military method for directing one's forces and commanding one's subordinates. For instance, a wealthy Andorran goes over the border into Spain and buys up, cheaply thousands of sheep, which he pays for in Spanish money they are driven home to his mountain pastures, where they are marked with his head man, he strolls casually across to the French frontier—every inch of which he and his underlings know by heart-and drops into the hut of the commandant of the douaniers for a chat. Before leaving, the commandant naturally offers him a petit verre—and bank notes of greater or less value are left lying on the table. Nothing definite is said; nobody's conscience or dignity is compromised. A few days later thousands of Andorran sheep are sold in the markets of France and paid for in French money. How did they get them across the frontier? Ah, that's just the point! The mere fact of buying with Spanish money and selling for French means from 20 to 30 per cent profit, without counting the difference in the prices of the animals. In addition to sheep, hides, tobacco, matches, olive oil, superior qualities of wines, salt, sugar, and ultramarine are the principal commodities smuggled into France. The articles that go into Spain are mostly glass and china fancy articles, bric-a-brac, paper and cutlery, also a large number of mules. The latter are bought in a wretched state for almost a song in France, turned out to grass on the splendid Andorran pastures for a few months, and sold in Spain at the end of the season for a high figure.—July Wide World.

THE FIERY CROSS IN CHINA.

The swift conversion of China into a modern nation is one of the seven or eight wonders of the age. This process of remarking an empire is now being watched by Professor Edward A. Ross, whose brilliant and sound views on modern life in such books as "Sin and Society" are favorably known. Professor Ross is making an informal and leisurely tour of China. One purpose of the visit is to see whether this sudden modernization of a medievadl country is due to economic pressure from without, or is generated by the brain of the people themselves.

With Arnald the American Consul in Amoy, Professor Ross is proceeding to the westernmost railway point of the realm. Thence they will walk a little over a thousand miles to the Thibetan frontier, then by river go 1,800 miles to the north of the Yangtse.

A letter to our editors has come from Professor Ross, telling of conditions. He says:

"You doubtless know that the Imperial Governmentof China is following a program of constitutional development which leads up to and culminates in the convening of a National Parliament in 1917. According to this program (promulgated more than two years ago by the Empress Dowager), Provincial Assemblies should be chosen and meet in all the eighteen provinces in 1909. Last October, therefore, these assemblies, chosen by a very restricted electorate (selected on the basis of learning and wealth), met in their respective province and proceeded to consider the state of the count.y. They reached the conclusion—and I am bound to say that things are going to the bad, and that, in order to get thoroughly governmental reforms adopted in the face of the ignorance and corruption and greed of the ruling Manchus, it is necessary that the representatives of the Chinese people be convinced in a National Parliament at once instead of waiting till the programed date of 1917. Representatives of the Provincial Assemblies met in Shanghai in January and selected a delegation to go to Peking and petition the Imperial Prince Regent for the immediate convoking of a National Parliament. The answer was unfavorable.

"Now it befell that a certain man of the Province of Kiang Su, a scholar, feeling with great bitterness the evil state into which the Empire was falling, on the secondof last February cut off his left arm and with the blood wrote the message on the enclosed facsimili. The meaning is:

"'A National Asembly even if blood be ght. Shall we have a parliament? Polltiel Associationsl Blood! But cuting my arm I write this.'

"Two letters were then written, one in the forenoon, the other in the afternoon of the same day, both addressed to the delegates of the Provincial Assemblies urging them to petition Peking to shorten the term before the calling of a National Assembly and not to take No for an answer. One phase runs:

"'Tears will not buy a National Parliament. Oonly blood will do it.' A veiled threat showing how dead in earnest some of the reformers are becoming.

"Of late, facsimilies of this reformer's blood-written message and letters have been sent about like a fiery cross, and six days ago in the provincial capital, Foo Chow, where I happened to be staying, an orderly election was held of the representatives of the Province of Fuhkien in the National Parliament—a characteristically Chinese way of bringing pressure to bear on Peking. The opinion is that the Changsha riots of last month will be duplicated this summer in many parts of the Empire if something is not done to claim the people."—Colliers.

THE GAIT OF SOME AFRICAN ANIMALS.

An elephant moves at a walk or rather rack; a giraffe has a very peculiar leisurely looking gallop,—both hind legs coming forward at the same time, outside the forelegs; rhino andbuffalo trot and run. Eland, when alarmed bound with astonishing agility for such large beasts—a trait not shown by other large antelope, like oryx—and then gallop for a short distance; but the big bulls speedily begin to trot, and the cows and younger bulls gradually also drop back into the trot. In fact, their gaits are in essence those of the wapiti, which also prefer the trot, although wapiti never make the bounds that eland do at the start.—From "African Game Trails."

COMING CONFLICT BETWEEN LORDS AND COMMONS TO BE BITTER

SHOWS VALUE OF HOUSE OF LORDS

Writer in Ladies' Field Points Out Good Services It Has Rendered.

LOWER HOUSE'S DEBT

Commons' Present Independence Due to the Lords' Own Initiative.

[SPECIAL DESPATCH.]
LONDON, Saturday.

WHILE the air is filled with the outpourings of suggestions for conferences and rumors of "reforming the House of Lords" by compromise methods, instead of permitting the radical sections of the liberal party to start the work with "sledge-hammer" tactics to its various ends, there is much pessimistic talk heard that to maintain political peace during the early period of King George's reign may be unavailing.

If a compromise council enters upon the problem it is needless to say that the formal conference may be very considerably prolonged. The questions to be dealt with are not only of a constitutional importance hardly exampled since the famous Parliamentary settlement of 1688, but they are complex and interdependent. In the noted transactions of 1884 upon reform and redistribution there were repeated and formidable hitches. The negotiations then took over four months to complete. Current talk in Ministerial circles is that in case a formal conference fails to find a compromise basis, a general election may take place next winter.

The so-called problem of "the peers and the people" is not one to be settled—provided it is settled right—in a hurry. Even if compromise wins and conferences between committeemen designated by unionists and liberals take up the question, there are likely to be many adjournments and extended discussions. History shows that both the houses now in conflict, the Lords and the Commons, have rendered equally good and equally bad service to Great Britain at various times.

There was but one house, the Commons, when Oliver Cromwell was the political boss of England, and yet it was Cromwell himself who, after its four years' independent sway, pronounced that lower and only body "the horridest arbitrariness that ever was in the world." And, readers of history will admit, Cromwell was a fairly good judge of "arbitrariness."

GREAT BATTLE TO COME.

It seems likely, therefore, that whatever the tactics which may be adopted the coming months are likely to be made notable by a formal attack on the House of Lords such as has not been delivered for 50 years, unless the political weather vane should suddenly shift to other than anticipated positions. Just what the relations of the "peers and the people" have been has been set forth in a special article in the Ladies' Field, which is probably more briefly put than could be done by one who has studied this historical chart step by step.

How little that House of Commons of 1649, existing supreme for the moment, really represented the people's voice of that day has been shown. It had attained its position when during those unheeding weeks Englishmen, after beheading their King, proceeded to vote the House of Lords "a useless and dangerous" body. That vote was recorded on February 6, 1649, and with its passage the very body which had so often defended popular rights against the encroachments of the Crown was temporarily dispersed by the so-called representatives of the people. Then came Cromwell's denunciation of the Commons, which he had aided in creating. A few more chaotic years, and England, tired of experiments with a broken constitution, returned to its well tried government by King, Lords and Commons, and the "useless and dangerous" body again came into its own, to the great profit of the democracy.

"In the far off days of King John," asserts the article referred to, "the houses of Parliament as we know them did not, of course, exist. But representatives of the people are known to have attended the National Assembly, or Council, held at St. Albans in 1213.

Dealing with more recent history many other instances are found where the peers successfully contended for civil liberties and proceeded to remove the occupant of the throne when such liberties were threatened.

CONVICTION OF BACON.

"In 1621," continues the article, "the great Francis Bacon, then Lord High Chancellor of England, was impeached by the Commons and found guilty by the Lords of receiving bribes from the suitors. Bacon fully confessed the twenty-three articles of corruption laid to his charge. Three years later, also on the impeachment of the Commons, the Lords convicted another member of their own House, the Earl of Middlesex, Lord Treasurer of England, for bribery and other misdemeanors."

The confirmation of the revolution of 1688—entitled an "Act declaring the Rights and Liberties of the Subject, and setleing the Succession of the Crowne"—was passed by the Lords in October, 1689, the peers thus confirming, by this Bill of Rights, "the third great charter of English liberty and the coping stone of the constitutional building." In the same year the peers introduced a bill for establishing triennial Parliaments. This reform later led, again on the initiative of the peers, to the bill for septennial Parliaments. This measure, though introduced in the upper House, was fought by the tories, but ultimately became law, forming, it was said, "the era of emancipation of the British House of Commons from its former dependence on the Crown and the House of Lords."

So it is argued, the Commons owe their own independence to the initiative of the Lords exercised in their behalf more than a couple of centuries ago.

New Monarch Signs Charter Book of Organization Founded by Charles II.

WERE FORMAL AFFAIRS IN PREVIOUS REIGNS

[SPECIAL DESPATCH.]
LONDON, Saturday.

KING GEORGE V. is busy holding courts for the reception of councils, associations and these corporate bodies which from time immemorial have been honored with royal patronage. These are all brilliant functions, many of the quaint in the Old World ceremony which makes them so interesting and impressive.

Perhaps the most interesting court held so far was that of the Royal Society, which is the oldest society that has the privilege of "direct access" to the sovereign, having been founded by Charles II. "for the improvement of natural knowledge." The last occasion on which the society was received at St. James' Palace was in 1901, when the late King Edward, on his accession, signed his name in the society's charter book as patron.

Evelyn records in his diary, under date August 23, 1662:—"The Council and Fellows of the Royal Society went in a body to Whitehall to acknowledge His Majesty's royal grace in granting our charter and vouchsafing to be our founder. Our president made an eloquent speech, to which His Majesty gave a gracious reply, and we all kissed his hand."

SCIENTISTS ARE HOPEFUL.

There is not the least doubt that men of science in every part of King George's dominions look with the utmost confidence to that personal encouragement of their aims and methods which His Majesty's prolonged technical training and career as a naval officer seem to warrant. They remember his speech when he performed the opening ceremony of the National Physical Laboratory.

"This ceremony," he said, "is not merely a meeting with the object of taking over a new theatre of investigation and research. Is it not more than this? Does it not show in a very practical way that the nation is beginning to recognize that if her commercial supremacy is to be maintained greater facilities must be given for furthering the application of science to commerce and manufacture? In the profession to which I am proud to belong there are, perhaps, special opportunities of gaining a certain insight into the general trade and commerce of the world and of comparing the commercial vitality of the different countries."

UNIQUE HONOR ROLL.

The charter book, in which the King inscribed his name as patron on a specially illuminated page, is of unique interest as a roll of honor. It dates from the year 1664, and its leaves are of the finest vellum. Bound in crimson velvet, it has gold clasps and corners, having on one side a gold plate showing the crest, an eagle holding a shield. The arms of England, superbly emblazoned, adorn the first page, and those of the society appear on the next.

The first page of the autograph portion exhibits, within an ornamental scroll border introducing the rose and pink, the signature of "Charles R., Founder," written in a bold hand, and evidently with a finely pointed pen. On the next page, beneath the obligation which heads each leaf, are the signatures of the early worthies of the new experimental learning, crowded together with scarcely a blank for an additional name. On following leaves are to be seen the autographs of fellows, all distinguished men, down to the present year. A special page was opened for the reign of Edward VII., in 1901, and the same course was adopted for the reign of George V.

TWO COURTS FOR WOMEN.

There will, however, be a curtailment, owing to the mourning for the late King, of those courts to which society women come to pay their homage to the King and Queen and to present their débutante daughters. Only two, it is said, will be held this year, and these of a diplomatic and very exclusive nature only. Indeed, during King Edward's reign they were few and exclusive enough, as compared with the "drawing rooms" of earlier reigns.

The drawing rooms of a hundred years ago must have presented a very different scene from those of 1787. The Reynolds and Gainsborough beauties who graced St. James' Palace in earlier days had vanished with the exquisite clothes of the late eighteenth century. Queen Charlotte and the princesses embroidered their own dresses for the drawing room, and very decorous and hideous the royal garments were. It is recorded that in January, 1807, Queen Charlotte's dress, "as usual on her birthday, was extremely neat. It was brown velvet, beautifully embroidered in scarlet and white silk and trimmed with rich point lace tied up with silk cords and tassels; the mantle to correspond."

When the Princess Charlotte of Wales made her formal entry into society at the age of eighteen at her grandmother's drawing room her progress to the palace is thus described:—"The Princess started for the first time as 'the Daughter of England,'" and went in more than Cinderella state in an elegant state carriage—all her own—with splendid hammercloth of scarlet and gold, with the royal arms and the union wreath richly embroidered in the centre on white satin, new harness of black leather and raised brass, three footmen and a brand new coachman, all in brand new liveries."

ENTERTAINMENT LACKING.

In the Victorian era a drawing room was considered more or less as the mere act of homage of a privileged class to the sovereign. It was devoid of every semblance of entertainment. No refreshments of any kind were offered, and it was held in the afternoon. Etiquette decreed that all ladies of the foreign embassies and legations should stand at right angles with the royal dais during the whole of the ceremony.

On one of these occasions, which was on a bleak, snowy February afternoon, an illustrious member of the British aristocracy, whose duty it was to stand at the head of this body of women, informed one of them that in order to mitigate the effect of fatigue and cold she had donned two pairs of stockings and an easy pair of elastic sided boots without heels! As they stood immovable for nearly three hours, it was a wise precaution.

Some of the younger ladies in the background were standing in the embrasures of a window overlooking the courtyard of the palace, where the snow was falling heavily, and in defiance of etiquette they sheltered their shoulders with the heavy folds of their trains.

Now the drawing rooms, or courts, are held at night in the congenial blaze of electric light and are social functions. The women of the various embassies and legations, who are the first to pass before the royalties, are allotted seats and proceed with the royal party to the supper room at the termination of the function.

TRINITY MASTER FOE TO SNOBBERY

The Duke of Connaught, Recently Chosen, Provides Abundance of Material for the Anecdotist.

[SPECIAL DESPATCH.]
LONDON, Saturday.

THE Duke of Connaught, who has just been elected unanimously to be master of Trinity House in place of his nephew, King George, and who is to open the Federated Parliament of South Africa, has provided plenty of material for the anecdotist. Here is one which shows how the Duke, like his brother, the late King Edward, and the present King, hated anything that savored of snobbery.

The Duke was conducting army manoeuvres on the east coast, and some fifty or sixty newspaper correspondents from London were instructed by their respective editors to attend the proceedings and not to lose sight of the royal commander. Toward evening the party reached a small village and the rumor went round that the Duke intended to put up there for the night. This caused great consternation among the assembled correspondents, for it meant that fifty men would be obliged to put up with hopelessly inadequate accommodations.

The correspondents held an impromptu meeting and one man was deputed to ascertain the Duke's intentions. He found his Royal Highness, accompanied by an equerry, watching a number of fatigue parties erecting tents.

"Can you tell me if the Duke of Connaught intends to stay here to-night?" the correspondent asked of the equerry, apologizing for the intrusion.

The equerry turned upon him like a released whirlwind. "How on earth do I know?" he snapped. "Do you think I am the Duke's press agent?"

The Duke of Connaught, who had overheard his equerry's reply, turned. "What's that? What's that?" he asked, looking at the correspondent with an inquiring eye.

"I was asking your Royal Highness's equerry whether you intended staying here to-night," answered the correspondent. "If so, it will mean that fifty or sixty men will have to find accommodation."

AN EQUERRY REBUKED.

"Since you are interested, I'll tell you with pleasure," said the Duke. "I am not staying here." Then, with knitted brows and angry eye, he turned upon his equerry. "And there's no reason why that question should not have been answered civilly. Please report yourself to me immediately on reaching Chatham."

Here is another told in this week's "M. A. P.":—The Duke's unostentatious entry to the dining saloon on board a P. and O. liner, on which he had just embarked at Port Said was responsible for a curious though not unnatural mistake on the part of the chief steward, who was accosted by a gentleman who inquired when dinner would be served, adding he was very hungry.

"We'll be later than usual this evening, sir," said the steward, "for the Duke of Connaught is behind time in coming aboard, and we've been ordered not to serve dinner until he is quite ready."

"Serve it right away, then," said the gentleman, "because I'm quite ready." And the steward realized that he was talking to the royal passenger.

FIGHT KEEN FOR CANADA'S MAIL

[SPECIAL DESPATCH.]
LONDON, Saturday.

A KEEN fight for the Canadian mail contract is evidently to be made by all the steamship companies in the North Atlantic trade. The advent of the Canadian Northern Railway Company's steamships Royal Edward and Royal George, the first of which has already broken two speed records, has made the other companies take quick action to retain their supremacy, and several orders for new vessels capable of high speed have been announced.

Success seems to have come to the new company immediately from the despatch of the first of its vessels, which are recognized as the fastest plying in the Canadian trade. The Royal Edward holds the blue ribbon for this route by making a run from Bristol (Avonmouth) to Quebec in 5 days 17½ hours. Her previous best time, which she made on her maiden voyage, was also a record for the Southern route.

Her sister vessel, the Royal George, has just inaugurated a fortnightly mail service given to the company by the Federal government. This puts the Canadian Northern in a strong position, and will probably have some bearing when the present mail contract expires.

The Allan line, holder of the contract, has ordered a twenty-two knot vessel, and hopes thereby to retain the whole of the contract. At present, by an understanding between the two companies, it is shared with the Canadian Pacific Railway Company.

The latter company is also expected to enter the lists, as it has long been considering an extension of its fleets. Report also has it that the White Star-Dominion combination has ordered two express boats in this connection, but no confirmation is at present forthcoming.

MR. SHAW RAPS LONDON CRITICS

Cannot Tell Tragedy from Farce, Says Author of "Misalliance."

HIGH ART UNPOPULAR

Asserts Mr. Frohman's Experience with Repertory Theatre Shows Public's Lack of Appreciation.

[SPECIAL DESPATCH.]
LONDON, Saturday.

THE season at the Repertory Theatre, taken all in all, has not been a glitteringly popular success. This was due largely to new plays by Mr. G. B. Shaw and Mr. Granville Barker, which did not suit the public taste, and so the public kept away. The real successes of the season were two—a revival of "Trelawney of the Wells" and a new short play by Mr. J. M. Barrie, called "The Twelve Pound Look." Ten plays were produced or revived. Eighteen other plays, long and short, were promised by Mr. Frohman, but not given.

Of course it is easy enough to understand why they were not given and why the season closed earlier than was intended. The national mourning put a positive stop to Mr. Frohman's praiseworthy enterprise. It would have been nonsense to continue the season longer than he did. He is not discouraged, however, and announces that he will start the Repertory Theatre again next winter at the Duke of York's after "Peter Pan" has had its annual fling.

PROMISES MANY PLAYS.

"I shall then produce plays," said Mr. Frohman, "by Messrs. J. M. Barrie, Somerset Maugham, Henry Arthur Jones, Alfred Sutro, Haddon Chambers and Henry James."

As this list does not contain the names of Mr. Shaw or Mr. Barker the former, as was to be expected, has something to say.

"If anybody supposes," said Mr. Shaw, "that the higher drama—you apply that term to my plays—will pay at the rate of from 50 to 100 per cent per night they little know the condition of public taste in this country. As long as such profits are possible plays which require nursing through a period of public indifference and violent press hostility will be regarded as failures.

"The first rule of modern commercial management is to cut your failures, meaning pieces which do not fill the houses to the doors. Cut them promptly, no matter how much they have cost; scrapping failure after failure until you hit on a success. You must never argue with the public or the press. Take your defeat like a man and forget all about it. But on this method you can have no higher drama at all, for both press and public regard the higher drama as so much nasty medicine. Even when people like it they have to be told so before they recognize the fact.

LAUGHED BUT WROTE BITTERLY.

"The London critics laughed heartily at my play 'Misalliance,' yet the next morning they informed the public they had suffered the weariest agonies of boredom, simply because that is the customary thing to write about such plays. They write it just as they wear two inch collars. As to noticing their own sensations or forming an independent opinion, they are too shy, too sheepish, to do anything of the sort."

"If your play was really a good one why did Mr. Frohman withdraw it after a few performances?" I asked.

"Nobody can reasonably ask him to undertake a campaign for the education of the public and the living down of the wild vituperation of the press. When he found what he was up against he had to drop the play like a hot potato. The catastrophe was a perfectly friendly one. I foretold it. I urged Mr. Frohman to look into the figures of past enterprises. You might as well offer figures to Don Quixote. American buoyancy is proof against figures. What an American wants is adventure with huge risks and wild possibilities, not the sober, modest certainties of classic art. Well, he did his best, but he was knocked out in a week."

WILL CONTINUE SCHEME.

"But he is going on with the scheme next year."

"Yes, with the most popular playwrights. If the plays are successful they will have to be played simultaneously at different theatres. The scheme is impossible, only Mr. Frohman doesn't know when he's beaten."

"Are you out of play production then?"

"No, Mr. Barker and I will presently break out in a new place. London and its press may kick against the pricks as hard as they like, but they have got to come along."

"Why do you call your plays conversations?"

"To find out if the London critics could tell the difference between a farce and a tragedy or a melodrama and a comedy unless the author told them. I found they couldn't. 'Misalliance' was an example of pure comedy. The poor critics went about bleating that it was not a play, only a conversation. They really are blazing duffers. They walk into my traps every time."

Miss Marie Lohr has already made an enviable reputation as an actress of dainty and sweet girl parts. She is soon to be promoted a step higher and become a star. Mr. Charles Frohman has signed a contract with her to come under his banner and be a full fledged star when the run of "Tantalizing Tommy" is finished and her engagement with Mr. Maude ends.

ENGLAND'S QUEEN PARTIAL TO FURS

[SPECIAL DESPATCH.]
LONDON, Saturday.

QUEEN MARY, as every one knows, has a great affection, in common with not a few more of His Majesty's subjects, for furs. Simple as she is in her tastes in the matter of dress, nice furs are a sort of hobby, so much so that she possesses one of the most wonderful collections of furs in the world.

Included in her collection, according to "M. A. P.," is a magnificent set of Russian sables which was presented to her a few years ago upon the occasion of her birthday by the Tsar and Tsarina. She is often chaffed by members of her family regarding her preference for furs and fur trimmed garments, and a short time ago His Majesty, the present King, was asked what he thought she would wear upon the occasion of a yachting trip in the Solent.

"Well, I am not quite sure," he replied with a humorous twinkle in his eye, "but I rather imagine it will be something with fur on it."

But, strangely enough, despite this partiality for fur, Her Majesty does not care for ermine, and some time ago she suggested that the robes of peers and peeresses would look far more imposing if they were trimmed with dark fur.

The automobiling coat that the Queen usually wears is a marvellous specimen of the furrier's art and is made up of some thousands of tails, all so perfectly matched and joined that it looks like one large piece of fur, even when subjected to the closest scrutiny.

URGE PROHIBITION TO STOP SALE OF EGRET PLUMES

Cruel Methods of Obtaining Feathers Popular for Millinery Purposes and Wanton Destruction of Birds Lead to Call for Government Action.

[SPECIAL DESPATCH.]
LONDON, Saturday.

A SECTION of society has evidently forgotten or ignores the oft-expressed dislike of the Queen Mother to the use of egret plumes in millinery. The show of egret plumed hats at Ascot has made the Royal Society for the Protection of Wild Birds very indignant, and bird lovers are urging the government to legislate for the protection of these wild birds.

The records of the society are full of the cruel practices adopted in order to get the plumes. The nesting and breeding season begins in August, and from July until November the wholesale slaughter of the birds continues. The feathers which are desired are common to both sexes of the egret. To obtain them the birds must be killed when they are about to pair, are pairing, or are breeding. The egret is shot, the few coveted feathers are torn from its back, the body is left to rot on the ground, and the young ones starve.

COMMITTEE IS FORMED.

At the suggestion of Lord Crewe, the Colonial Secretary, a committee has been formed of representatives of the Colonial Office and the natural history branch of the British Museum to devise means for the prevention of the slaughter of plumage birds.

"I am very glad to hear it," said Mr. W. M. Webb, general secretary of the Selborne Society, in commenting on the news. "I only hope it is a foreshadowing of the international action recommended by the International Ornithological Congress, representing the ornithological science of all countries, in Berlin.

"Lord Avebury and Mr. Buckland, two of our members, were asked by the Congress to bring the matter before the English government, and we hope that something may be done to stop what is undoubtedly an evil.

WOULD PROHIBIT SALE.

"The remedy? Total prohibition of the sale of egret and similar plumes for millinery purposes and the infliction of fines for wearing them."

"The attempt to revive the fashion in these feathers," says an influential member of the Royal Society, of which the Queen Mother is an interested patron, "will be rigorously fought by us all. I may mention that in order to supply the market in 1909 on one day more than four thousand ounces of egret plumes were offered for sale. This represented, on an estimate accepted by the trade, the breeding plumes of over twenty thousand parent birds."

KING REPEALS AN AUTOMOBILE RULE

[SPECIAL DESPATCH.]
LONDON, Saturday.

THE new reign has swept away one somewhat ridiculous regulation governing automobile traffic in Hyde Park. For some years, owing to the snobbish conduct of a certain class of automobilists, who were more in evidence during the pioneer days of automobiles than now, all automobiles, other than electrically driven, were excluded from Hyde Park between the hours of four and seven in the evening. Even the electric motors had to be specially approved, and, following approval, were given a yellow star, without which they found entrances to the park sacred during society hours.

The decree, though published over the name of the First Commissioner of Works, came from Buckingham Palace, for the late King Edward had ever a detestation of the snob, and he manifested an eagerness to discover the names of those snobs who, despite requests to drive slowly, used to delight in scorching through the park, covering pedestrians, horsemen and children with dust.

That the order has now been withdrawn does not mean that King George is less considerate for the comfort of the people than his father was, for His Majesty is just as great an enemy to snobbery as was the late King.

There is one class of sport, however, which will not find any royal countenance in the new reign. That is the shooting of live pigeons from traps. "His Majesty," his equerry declares, "has never shot at a live pigeon in his life, or indeed, any other bird from a trap."

SCHOOL TEACHERS OFF TO ENGLAND

One Hundred and Sixty Leave by Allan Liner Viginian.

Progress of Arctic.

The Allan R.M.S. Virginian, Captain Gambell, arrived from Montreal at 12.30 p.m. yesterday, mooring at the company's wharf. She left for Liverpool at 3.00 p.m. with 135 first, 300 second and 150 third-class passengers, besides a general cargo. Among her passengers are 160 Manitoba school teachers, who are being sent to England by the Manitoba Government to enable them to study the school system in the Old Country, and to apply all its good points, if necessary, to the schools in the province.

The following notes of the trip from Winnipeg to Quebec was furnished the Chronicle by one of the party:—

The Allan Liner Virginian arrived at Quebec at noon on Friday, July 8. The party arrived safely at Montreal at 11.30 p.m. on Thursday, after a most pleasant and successful journey from Winnipeg. At the station transfer buses were in waiting to convey the teachers to the steamer. Here the greatest of enthusiasm was shown, the majority of the teachers seeing an Atlantic greyhound for the first time. Within a brief space the whole of the party were satisfactorily accommodated in their allotted cabins, and here again the greatest unanimity of opinion was shown, all being highly pleased with the arrangements made by the Allan Line for them. Mr. Brown, the assistant general Western agent, Winnipeg, accompanies the party as far as Rimouski, and sufficient cannot be said of his untiring efforts on behalf of the party. The trip down the St. Lawrence was immensely enjoyed and proved a pleasant prelude to the actual ocean voyage, a voyage which is absolutely new and novel to at least 90 per cent. of the teachers. The scenery at historical Quebec is magnificent and well worth the journey to behold. All arrangements so far have proved very satisfactory, and if the same spirit is shown on the other side the tour cannot fail to be a most successful one and memorable to the West.

ALLAN LINE.

Steamer Tunisian, Captain Fairfull from Liverpool, arrived in port at 4.30 a.m. yesterday, mooring at the Breakwater. After landing passengers and Quebec cargo she left for Montreal at 9 a.m. The Tunisian brought out 34 first, 280 second and 826 third class passengers and a general cargo.

Steamer Lake Erie, Captain Carey, having landed passengers and Quebec cargo, left for Montreal at 7.30 a.m. yesterday.

R.M.S. Victorian, Captain Outram, left Liverpool yesterday afternoon for Quebec, with a large number of passengers, the mails and a general cargo.

C.N.R. LINE.

R.M.S. Empress of Britain, Captain Murray, from Quebec, arrived at Liverpool yesterday morning.

Steamer Montreal, Captain McNeill, left London for Quebec via Antwerp on Thursday.

Steamer Lake Manitoba, Captain Evans, left Liverpool on Thursday for Quebec with passengers and general cargo.

MANCHESTER LINE.

Steamer Manchester Importer, Captain Haworth, left port at 5 p.m. yesterday for Montreal to complete cargo.

CANADA LINE.

Steamer Willehad passed Fame Point at 8 a.m. yesterday, and is due in port about noon to-day. She has 166 steerage passengers to land.

QUEBEC STEAMSHIP CO.

Steamer Trinidad sailed from New York via the Saguenay, Charlottetown and Halifax at 5 p.m. yesterday.

Steamer Bermudian arrived from New York at 6.30 a.m. yesterday.

R. & O. COMPANY.

The steamer Three Rivers has been entirely rebuilt from her hull (which is of steel), with a view to making her convenient for excursion business. Her old superstructure has been entirely removed down to the main deck, and a new and modern type of cabin has been erected in its place. Her arrangement is as follows:—The forward part of the main deck will be open as is usual in this type of boat, but the after part will be arranged in accordance with modern ideas. Entering by the rear gangway the entrance hall is reached and back of this will be a large open room, which will be suitable for dancing. There will also be a lunch buffet on this deck. Going upstairs from the entrance hall the promenade deck is reached. This, instead of being filled with staterooms as formerly, will have fifteen staterooms on each side, while the forward and after ends of the saloon are open and surrounded by windows, which enable excursionists to see out at all times. The forward and after decks are unusually roomy and capacious with a view of giving excursionists as much room as possible to move about in comfort. Altogether, the Three Rivers will mark a new epoch in the excursion business.

THOMSON LINE.

Steamer Jacona, Captain Grund, having completed cargo, left port for Leith at 3 a.m. yesterday.

Steamer Hurona, from Quebec, arrived at London on Thursday.

WHITE STAR DOMINION LINE.

R.M.S. Laurentic, for Liverpool, with passengers and mails, is due to arrive from Montreal at 1 p.m. today, and will moor at the Breakwater wharf and sail from there at 7 o'clock this evening.

R.M.S. Canada, from Liverpool, passed Belle Isle at 6.30 a.m. yesterday, and is due in port about noon to-morrow. She has 311 cabin and 550 steerage passengers to land.

STEAMER FLOATED.

Sarnia, Ont., July 8.—The steamer L. C. Hanna was released from Kettle Point yesterday afternoon after jettisoning about 4,000 tons of ore overboard. Captain C. H. Sinclair says her bottom is in bad shape. The wrecker Favorite placed two air compressors and one pump aboard to keep the vessel free from water, and she proceeded down to Lake Erie last evening under her own steam. The Hanna will be unloaded and placed in the dry dock.

FREIGHTS AND CHARTERS.

New York, July 8.—Freights for full cargo steam and sail vessels continued scarce and chartering was limited in all trades. Rates were steady for steamers and easy for sailors. Quotations to Liverpool, 1 1-4d; Glasgow, London and Antwerp, 1d; Hull, 1 1-2d; Bristol, 1 3-4d; Rotterdam, 2c to 2 1-2c; Hamburg and Bremen, 17 1-2 pfennigs; cotton to Liverpool, per 100 lbs., 17c.

Charters—Austrian steamer, 3,181 tons, general cargo, hence to River Plate ports, lump sum, July; British steamer, 2,828 tons, same, August; British steamer, 2,092 tons, same, berthed, August; British steamer, 2,411 tons, coal, Baltimore to Rio Janeiro, 14s 3d, August; Italian steamer, 1,724 tons, lumber, Gulf to the River Plate, 30s, July; British steamer, 1,704 tons, same, 34s, September-October; Norwegian bark, 6,000 barrels refined petroleum, hence to Ireland, 3s, July.

ARCTIC AT FATHER POINT.

(Special to the Chronicle.)

Father Point, July 8.—The Arctic arrived here at 5.30 p.m. and was boarded by the Eureka and Commander Bernier went on shore to receive his final instructions from Ottawa and take a few stores. Captain Bernier, interviewed by your representative, would not divulge the contents of his instructions, though it is surmised that they give him a very great latitude. The boat will leave to-night at 9 o'clock for the North. The last stoppage will be Chateau Bay.

NOTES.

Steamer Wegadesk, Captain Andreasen, from Sydney, with a cargo of coal, arrived in port yesterday and moored at Prince's pier.

Tug Spray arrived from Sorel yesterday, with a number of barges and canal boats in tow.

Tug Chieftain III. arrived from Garden Island yesterday with a raft for the Calvin Co. in tow.

M.A.A.-NATIONAL MATCH TODAY

Keen Excitement Is Being Exhibited and Record Crowd Will Be on Hand.

Percy Roberts, assisted by a Quebec man, not yet chosen, will be the officials to handle the big lacrosse game between the M.A.A. and National teams this afternoon on the Q.A.A. grounds. The team to represent the Nationals has been decided upon, and will be as follows :—

Goal—P. Moran.
Point—T. Langlois.
Cover-Point—A. DeBeaumont.
1st Defence—E. Alain.
2nd Defence—J. Belanger.
3rd Defence—P. Alain.
Centre—R. Bernard.
1st Home—Jeff Malone.
2nd Home—B. Fortier.
3rd Home—F. Demers.
Outside Home—J. Alain.
Inside Home—Leon Finet.
Captain—C. A. Nolan.

There is keen excitement over the match, and it is probable that a record crowd will be in attendance to witness it. It is rumored that many of the factories will close down at noon in order to permit their employes to be present. The Nationals are making a big bid for the championship this season, and should have the full encouragement of the Quebec public. They now stand in good position and are determined to pull off a victory to-day. M.A.A. is sending down a strong aggregation, and it will be remembered that when these two clubs met last in Montreal it took forty minutes overtime to settle matters. A great struggle may therefore confidently be expected.

Returns of all the senior matches will be received on the grounds.

The Nationals have decided to run a special train by C.P.R. to Montreal for the 23rd, when they meet the Nationals there. The senior Nationals and Torontos will be playng their return match on the same day.

FOOTBALL MATCH.

There will be a league football match this afternoon between the Ross Rifle football club and the Engineers of the Empress of Ireland. The game will be played on the Q.A.A grounds and is scheduled to begin at 6.15 p.m. Following is the Ross Rifle team :—Power, Suttie, Coss, Bergeron, Coss, McGee, Anderson, St. Claire, Spry, McMillan, Moore.

GUY FISHER WON FEATURE.

Empire City Race Track, N.Y., July 8—Guy Fisher, in winning the handicap at one mile and twenty yards here to-day, showed remarkable improvement over his recent race here when he finished third. Priscillian was the 9 to 20 favorite, but Guy Fisher won in a mild drive by a half a length.

CAPS DON'T EXPECT TO WIN

To Play a Defensive Game Against Nationals of Montreal.

Ottawa, July 8—Despite the early week announcements to the contrary it is likely that Johnny Powers will be in line with the Caps for Saturday's match against the Nationals at Montreal. Powers' knee is healing rapidly in accordance with the rest cure and he said to-day that he will in any event start out in the game. The Caps have no hope of beating the Nationals at Maisonneuve, but expect to give them a good hot tussle. Hutton, Marsh, Currie, Godwin, Pringle, and Seed will comprise the defence field, while Jack Shea will move up to centre. Joe Gorman, Butterworth, Tom Gorman, Powers, Gaul and Eastwood are available for the home in addition to Teddy Groulx, who will play his first game against his old team mates. Referees have not yet been agreed upon. Eastwood and Pringle are both suffering from injuries, but will be available. Capitals will play a defensive game and hope to give the Nationals their first beating when the French-Canadians play here the following week.

President Solmon, of the N. L. U., has made his debut at the difficult task of appointing officials when opposing clubs fail to agree. His choice to handle the National-Capital game is Jack Kearns, of Oshawa, assisted by Lawson Whitehead, of Toronto. Adolphe Lecours, President of the Nationals, thinks some one, who is better acquainted with the N. L. U. game, than men who live in C.L.A. surroundings, might have been appointed. Capitals wanted Ottawa men for the game, or failing these western officials. Nationals named a lot of eastern men,, including Tom Carlind, Desse Brown, Dr. Cameron, P. Brennan, Ald. O'Connell, Joe Lally, Johnny Brennan and Jim Kavanagh. Capitals would have none of them so an appeal to Solmon was necessary. Kearns and Whitehead have Ontario reputations as officials. None the less it ought to be possible to get competent officials in this district and save the clubs expense money.

Eddie St. Pierre is to handle the Shamrock-Tecumseh game in Toronto and it ought to be a good game to watch. Charlie Querrie will be back in line and there is little doubt but the Tecumsehs will come out ahead. Shamrocks, however, are taking a good team along, with several of the old guard to give the youngsters confidence and they promise to hold their opponents down far better than they have done against other teams this year. Billy McIntyre will be the j dge of play.

TENNIS MATCH TO-DAY.

The Grand Mere Tennis Club will pay a visit to Quebec to-day and will play a match with the local club this afternoon at 2.15 o'clock.

CRICKET MATCH.

There will be a practice match this afternoon on the Plains, when all cricketers are requested to turn up. The sides will be picked from the members of the club and the Empress players. The return match with Three Rivers will be played on Saturday week.

IRELAND FOREVER.

There is a coming athlete in Ireland by the name of Flaherty who may do to Johnson what Johnson did to Jeffries. The man is 26 years of age, stands six feet, six inches, weighs 280 pounds, is the sprinter of Ireland, the champion boxer of the British army and is ready to fight any and all comers. Johnson may not hold the championship long.—Kingston Standard.

JOHNSON ONLY NEGRO TO EVER HOLD TITLE

Molineux and ackson Were Handicapped by Having Color Line Drawn.

Jack Johnson, who defeated Jas. J. Jeffries in the ring at Reno Monday, is the first negro who ever held the title of champion heavyweight of the world under Marquis of Queensberry rules. This means that he is the first negro that ever pounded his way to victory for the title since the days of glove fighting began.

With the achievement it is not surprising that he should be considered one of the greatest men in the history of the sport of pugilism. When he won from Tommy Burns in Australia and became champion his importance in the world, and principally in the ranks of pugilism, became even greater than would have been the success of any white fighter. This was due to his color and the fact that no other colored man ever held the title.

If Johnson had been a white man when he fought Burns there would have been no "fight of the century," as the battle of July 4th is termed. This is simply because there are not enough men of caliber in the heavyweight ranks to make it interesting for him.

Going a little further back into history, there was another colored heavy weight, considered by many who knew him to have been far superior to Johnson. That was Peter Jackson, the Porto Rican, who landed in this country from Australia when John L. Sullivan was champion. Sullivan refused to fight him because of his color. But Jim Corbett did tackle Jackson and found out how wonderful this negro was before the battle had ended. The contest went 61 rounds to a d.aw. But Jackson never got a crack at the title and he aged and died. Undoubtedly he was a grand pugilist and capable of carrying the honors, in fact, perhaps better than the Johnson of to-day, but . e didn't have the chance to get it as easily as Johnson did.

Going back to the days of the bare knuckle fighters brings to light another negro, an American who went to England and fought many battles. This was Tom Molineaux, and some of his greatest fights were fought in Great Britain in 1810. That's a long time ago and has no great bearing on the present situation, but it does show that since the start of pugilism the black race has been identified with it, and sometimes most prominently, for Molineaux was a champion in his day.

But looking through the dope of pugilism in the heavyweight ranks, it is shown all too plainly that negroes capable of holding the title have been few and far between. Some of them have fought their way to positions near the top, but could not quite reach the goal.

DISCOVERY OF JACK JOHNSON

Leo Posner of Galveston Put the Negro on Before Club in the Texas City.

New York, July 8—John Arthur Johnson, son of a former plantation slave and a Southern mammy, first saw the light of day in a dingy little shack in the negro quarters of Galveston, Texas. He was born on March 31st, 1878. His boyhood days were spent playing around the streets of Galveston and on the levees along the gulf front.

An early picture of Johnson would have revealed the usual carefree Southern darky. Until he broke into the fight game he was content to do odd jobs along the levee for his "two bits." He had nothing but the shirt and overalls he wore and did not care to be burdened with more garments His toes stuck through the holes of his old shoes, great large shoes made especially for the negroes and called "gunboats."

It was just a specimen of a Southern darky, big and muscular that Leo Posner, one time moving spirit in the Galveston A. C., found outside the door of his office one morning in 1901, Charley Brooks, another negro, who served as a boxing teacher, had brought Johnson for Posner to look over and see if he would do to box at the next show of the Galveston Club. Johnson just had whipped another burly negro in a rough and tumble battle. When Posner met the tall, rawboned, smiling negro, Johnson said to him :

"How de do, Mr. Posner ? Brooks says you will give me some money if I fight him. Will you ?"

"Yes," replied Posner. "I'll put you on against Brooks at the next show. If you win you get the big end, and if you lose the small end."

"All right, I'll fight," was Johnson's agreement.

The sports at the next show of the Galveston A. C. expected to see Brooks "beat up the new nigger." Brooks generally managed to drop his man. Johnson, however, through his natural fighting ability, speed and strength, surprised the fight fans. Brooks,, with all his ring tactics, could not scare Johnson. The men did some light sparring and feel out in the first round. In the second Brooks decided it was about time to wade in and finish the novice. He rushed and was met by a pile-driving punch on the jaw that dropped him like a log. He was out for fully ten minutes.

That was the beginning of Johnson's fight career. Fighting is the only business the big negro ever engaged in, except his theatrical turns,

DOMINION RIFLE ASSOCIATION MEET

Programme for the Annual Matches Is a Very Interesting One.

The programme of the Dominion of Canada Rifle Association for 1910 has just been issued. The prize meeting will be held at the Rockcliffe Rifle Range, Ottawa, commencing on Monday, August 22, and ending Saturday, August 27. Entries will be received until August 17 and should be sent to Major E. D. Sutherland, I.S.O., with entrance and membership fees.

The programme embraces some 26 matches, including in addition to the regular target shooting a rapid firing competition at special targets, which will appear for 45 seconds, during which a competitor must fire seven shots; a battalion team competition in uniform; judging distance competition; skirmishing at unknown distances; snap shooting, a match for teams of four officers, revolver match, and running man competition.

A pleasing feature is the inducements held out to cadets to take a greater interest in rifle shooting. In the following matches cadets may compete without entrance fee: Tyro, Bankers, Macdougall Challenge Cup, School Cadets, the President's and the Harold L. Borden Memorial Match. In the cadet match $146 will be given in cash prizes, while in matches open to seniors, should the cadets not gain a place in the regular prize list, ten prizes of $3 each have been set aside exclusively for cadets.

The Canadian Rifle League will again defray the expenses of a number of cadets from different parts of Canada, and from the scores of those present and not over 16 years of age, the team to represent Canada in the Roberts Trophy match will be selected.

A radical change has been introduced for all shooting at 500 yards, when a new figure target will be used. This is six feet square, the lower half being green, the top drab. In the center is a dummy, representing a figure in the prone firing position, and colored brown. This target is being used at Bisley. Circles of the usual diameter drawn on the target will be used for the scoring values.

The meet promises to be the most successful ever held in Canada, and Quebec will likely be ably represented by a large contingent.

SHORT STORIES OF THE RINGSIDE

Reno Gave to Patriotism the Tribute of One Solitary Firecracker.

One lone, solitary firecracker sputtered importantly and exploded with a loud noise, then, apparently started and confused at its own audacity, subscribed in smouldering silence. This was the only attempt at patriotic celebration in the city of Reno.

Women were as enthusiastic as were the men. There were fully 1,500 of them in the arena occupying all sorts of seats, ranging from $10 to $50 each. They applauded when there was anything worth applauding, and when Johnson was leaving the ring they cheered as excitedly as any of the male followers of the big, ebony-hued scrapper.

Before the men entered the ring there was a series of long-winded introductions by Billy Jordan, the windy announcer. In the list were "Big Tim" Sullivan, "Tex Rickard, John L. Sullivan, Bob Fitzsimmons, Tom Sharkey, Tommy Burns, Frank Gotch and a lot of other more or less notable pugilists. They all lined up on one side of the ring, where they were moving-pictured and snapshotting to beat the band.

Billy Muldoon worked himself onto the platform and called for "three cheers for Nevada, the only free State in the Union." The cheers were given. Then he asked for a rising cheer for Governor Dickerson. The immense audience rose as if a unit and yelled "Hurrah" until everybody grew tired. The Governor, who was seated beside Tom Sharkey, puffed quietly on his cigar, apparently pleased with the crowd's approval of his course in allowing the fight to proceed.

Outside the arena the scene was a remarkable one. Autos that had come with parties from points as far away as San Francisco, Salt Lake City and Ogden were parked along the railroad tracks, where a score of special trains were lined. Rigs of all kinds and descriptions were hitched everywhere. It was impossible for their owners or riders to tie up. Women mounted on bronchos tore through the big throng as soon as the short and unsatisfactory bout was over and they were first to get back to the city, cutting in and out as they did through autos, cabs and buses.

Bedlam broke lose in town when the crowd got back. Faro banks, roulette layouts, klondike outfits, crap games and about everything else on which one may gamble started going with a rush and they all got heavy plays. The trains were besieged by the excited mobs, clamoring and pushing and pullng in the hope of getting home as fast as possible. There were fights and scraps and ugly words at every turn, but the policing arrangements were fairly good and little blood was spilled.

A belated sport from Pittsburg blew into town on the regular overland train this morning and dashed for the fight ticket office.

"Gimme a $50 seat in the second or third row," he demanded.

"Quit kidding yourself, bo," purred the red perspiring man in shirt sleeves who stood behind the big blue print plan of the arena. "Here's one for $30 in the twentieth row, and you're in luck to get it."

There was an explosion and some true Pittsburg smoke clouded the atmosphere.

"Well, if you've got a wife who's in Reno getting a divorce, you might run up to the bird's nest we've built for the ladies and look 'em over," said the imperturbable ticket scalper. "Maybe she'll let you sit on her lap if you're good."

The Pittsburger took his $30 seat and went out to grub for breakfast.

Right in the middle of the morning when the restless crowd had begun to shift itself and stream out along the dusty roads that lead to the arena there was the clang of a gong and Reno's only ambulance threaded its way through the gang on the way to the hospital. Here was a strange circumstance. A man from Terre Haute Ind., whose name hospital attendants gave as Franklin Seares, was griped with sudden pain early this morning in his room at the Continental hotel, and a physician who hurried to his bed, in answer to the urgent call of the hotel clerk gave Sears' trouble as appendicitis. He was removed to the hospital immediately and was operaton before the two fighters entered the ring.

There happened to be a surgeon from Seattle in town who knew Sears and at the sick man's request this surgeon agreed to perform the operation, though he had to give up seeing the fight to do so. Sears had a $50 ticket in his pocket and was one of the most enthusiastic backers of Jeffries on the street. "Pretty tough to come 2,000 miles only to have appendicitis," was the comment of the sports who heard of his sudden seizure.

When Jeffries stepped out of his clothes and stood revealed in lavender trunks a half sigh of admiration sounded through the packed tiers of seats. His flesh was a deep brown, in st.iking contrast to the vivid dye of the bit of cloth about his lions. The g.eat pectora muscles that stretched from armpit to armpit across his chest rippled and played with the movement of his lungs. His heavy thighs were planted wide apart and tapered into a sheath of muscles about the knee joints. He seemed to be the perfection of brute creation.

Over in his corner Johnson was standing while his seconds massaged the muscles of his calves. Johnson's black body seemed to glow with real health. He was of trimmer, slimmer build than the giant Jeffries. Though only a few pounds lighter, the negro's weight was more evenly distributed ; he did not have the superhuman girth of chest and thickness of shoulders. His legs were slim, as the legs of the negro race are. H showed a tapering waist and his arms were moulded with bunches of muscle as those of the white man. There was almost an impression of delicacy in the mould of the colored man's body. Perhaps it was his grace of movement and his lithe agility that robbed the mass of his body of seeming ponderousness.

Yet in comparison with the gargantuan man of the white kin that opposed him the negro fighter seemed almost puny. He looked as if he ought to be overwhelmed by the sheer weight of his antagonist's bulk.

CANADIANS WON COLONIAL PRIZES.

Bisley, July 8—England won the Kolapore Cup to-day, with a score of 793. Canada was second.

Canada won the Colonial Prize, with a score of 796.

Not only did Canada win the Mackinnon Cup yesterday, but members of the team came to the front with two fine exhibitions of marksmanship. At the 200 yard range Sgt. Morris put on a possible, the only one scored during the moteh by the 96 men engaged. The chief honors, however, went to Col.-Sgt. Freeborn, of Hamilton, who had the top score of the match, a great 146, made up of a 49, a 48 and a 49.

MADAME MELBA'S CANADIAN TOUR.

London, July 8—Madame Melba is actively preparing her Canadian-American tour, which opens at Halifax on September 1st. Mr. Albert Quesnel, the French-Canadian tenor, who has won distinction in Europe, specially at the Paris Opera Comique, goes with her. Maurice Lafarge, the eminent French artist, will be her accompanist. It is already known that Madame Melba also brings with her to America, Mlle. Ada Sassoli, who is reputed to be the world's greatest harpist, and Mr. John Lemonne, the Australian flutist virtuoso. The increasing supremacy of Madame Melba is causing scenes of great enthusiasm at Covent Garden where on the days of her appearances, great crowds stand in a line from noon.

NEW YORK STOCK MARKET.

From McDonald, Lesperance & Co., Hochelaga Bank Building, over their private wire. Phone 1227.

New York, July 8—The day's news budget to-day contained several items of large importance from a financial standpoint. First was the Government grain crop report. The percentage of 61.6 for spring wheat seemed to disconcert speculative sentiment and there was an abrupt relapse in price. The northwestern grangers suffered most but the whole list was affected transforming earlier gains into general losses. All the high levels of the morning prices showed recoveries running to 7 to 9 points from the low prices touched early this week in the case of some of the leading active issues. The buoyancy early in the market was an extension of yesterday's development. The Atchison dividend was of considerable direct effect in strengthening stocks, following the St. Paul dividend action yesterday. The maintenance of those dividends at the previously existing rates confused the predictions of a party in the speculation which has been insistent that they were to come down. The price in the market especially in the case of Atchison, was taken to indicate a strong likelihood of dividend reduction. A demand from uncovered shorts with the disclosure of the intention to maintain the dividend was a logical result. The money market attracted but languid interest. The banks, however, received large sums from the interior as a partial effect to the payments to the sub-treasury on account of the corporation income tax. Foreign exchange held above the level of profit on further engagements of gold for import, but confidence is unimpaired that relief could be had in the event of any real requirement. Bonds were stronger. Total sales, par value, $1,818,000. U. S. bonds were unchanged on call.

CLOSING LETTER.

By private wire to Neuville Belleau & Co., 93 St. Peter street, Quebec. Phone 946:—

New York, July 8—There was a further rise in prices this morning and opening quotations in some instances showed gains of over a point. Reading was particularly vigorous, gaining one and one-half and St. Paul 1⅛, while Union Pacific increased 1¼. The declaration of the regular dividend on Atchison and five per cent on Virginia. Carolina Chemical helped along the beter feeling, and in the morning session prices recorded advances of two points or more over last night's closing. Steel sold as high as 71¾, but dropped ⅛ before the close in sympathy with the balance of the list which weakened on the publication of the Government crop report, giving spring wheat condition as 61.6 as compared with 81.8 last month. The rest of the report was about average for winter wheat and corn. President Ripley, of the Atchison, stated that the Atchison would probably show eight per cent. earned on the common for the year. The copper producers figures were somewhat better than anticipated owing to the large exports, but an increase in stocks of practically eight million pounds is not an argument in favor of higher prices, either for the metal or for the stocks. In the afternoon prices slid off easily, losing all the day's advance, and in the case of Amalgamated Copper one point in addition. The closing was very weak with sentiment radically different from what it was earlier in the day. Total transactions were 683,000 shares. We still feel conservative and should buy only on good breaks, limiting losses and accepting losses and accepting moderate profits.

NEW YORK CLOSING LETTER.

Received by McDougall & Cowan, Stock Brokers, 81 St. Peter street, Quebec; H. S. Thompson, Manager. Phone 946:—

New York, July 8—The market opened active and strong with good gains in evidence throughout the entire list. As there was no stock pressing for sale, prices rallied easily and the market retained its strength up to noon, with the short interest on the run as it had not been before in many weeks. Sentiment was cheerful and even bears were inclined to concede that the advance would go further, although they argue that it was intended to afford a better basis for liquidation and that selling of this nature would be resumed later on. In the early afternoon the market was dull but generally firm. It reacted slightly on realizing sales following the announcement of the Atchison dividend, but the volume of selling was small and was readily absorbed. Around 2.30, the Government crop report was published, showing poor conditions in wheat, and the market broke on this sharply and closed with a heavy selling movement in progress. Total sales, 683,000 shares.

MONTREAL CLOSING LETTER.

Received by McDougall & Cowan, Stock Brokers, 81 St. Peter street, Quebec; H. S. Thompson, Manager. Phone 946:—

Montreal, July 8 — The local market opened dull and fairly active. Sentiment was somewhat more cheerful and few stocks were for sale. Advances were made throughout the list during the morning session and were held early in the afternoon. After the U. S. Government crop report, which was considered very poor, was made known, a selling movement started and was in progress until the close. The market looks as if it would see lower prices to-morrow.

BRADSTREET'S REVIEW.

New York, July 8.—Bradstreet's state of trade in Canada to-morrow will say:—Seasonable lines of goods are in demand and wholesale houses report a fair volume of business for this part of the year. Retail trade runs from fair in the east to very satisfactory in the western section of the Dominion. Crop returns are most favorable and good rains have fallen in Manitoba. Wholesale grocers in Montreal report a large demand for sugar, this being due to heavier receipts of strawberries and other fruits. Flour millers advanced prices 20 cents per barrel, making a gain of 50 cents for the past fortnight. Pork products are easier owing to larger offerings of hogs. Money is firm. Toronto states groceries are moving freely and country trade is fairly brisk, while there are few complaints heard regarding collections. Reports from the center also indicate that crop returns are more optimistic and that an average yield is expected.

PROVISION MARKET.

New York, July 8—Flour quiet, awaiting the Government report. Receipts, 24,350 barrels; exports, 25,901 barrels. Rye flour, dull. Cornmeal, steady. Wheat spot firm. Options — Wheat was quiet with traders evening up for the Government report. The undertone was steady, however, owing to the absence of rain in the Northwest and firmness in the outside markets, closing ⅝ to ½ cent net higher. Receipts, 6,000 bushels; exports, 15,945 bushels. Corn, spot firm. Option market was without transactions, closing ⅝ cents lower to 1 cent higher. Receipts, 6,750 bushels; exports, 11,510 bushees. Oats, spot firm. Receipts, 19,815 busheis; exports, 1,430. Rosin, steady. Turpentine, firm. Molasses, quiet. Freights, quiet. Sugar, raw, firm; refined, steady.

GOVERNMENT CROP REPORT.

Washington, D.C., July 8—On the cereal crop average condition of the corn crop on July 1st was 85.4 against 89.3 on July 1st 1909; 82.8 on July 1st, 1908; and 80.2 on July 1st, 1907. Preliminary estimate of area corn planted is 114,083,000, increase 5,312,000. Condition of winter wheat when harvested was 81.5 against 80 last month, 82.4 at harvest 1909, 80.6 in 1908, and 78.3 in 1907. Amount of wheat remaining on farms estimated at about 38,739,000 bushels against 15,062,000 on July 1st, 1909. Spring wheat conditions on July 1st 61.6 as compared with 92.8 last month, 92.7 on July 1st, 1909, 89.4 on July 1st, 1908, and 87.2 on July 1st, 1907.

If going to Montreal during the hot weather, make the trip a pleasure by travelling by the steamers "Quebec" or "Montreal," leaving Quebec at 6 o'clock every evening.

POSLAM'S GREAT WORK IN CURING ECZEMA

Uniform Success of the Treatment of All Surface Skin Diseases.

The remarkable work which Poslam, he new skin remedy, is accomplishing in the eradication of eczema includes cases of many years' standing the trouble having affected all parts of the body.

"For fifteen years I have had eczema on my head," says Mr. E. C. Staton, Woodbridge, Va., "the scalp being nothing but blotches. I found that the first box of Poslam helped me, and now my scalp seems to be entirely cured, leaving it clear and perfectly white. I think it is the greatest remedy in the world for this disease." All-other skin diseases, including acne, tetter, shingles, barber's itch, piles, salt rheum, skin scale, etc, are relieved and cured by poslam in like manner, itching being stopped at once. The less serious troubles, such as pimples, red and inflamed noses, fever blisters, s nbu n, etc., respond so readily that results are seen after an overnight application.

Write to the emergency Laboratories 32 West 25th street, New York City, and they will send you by mail, free of charge, in plain wrapper, enough Poslam to cure a small affected surface, clear the complexion or remove pimples.

Poslam is sold by Henry Willis, 4 St. John St., and all druggists evrywhere in two sizes at 50 cents or $2.

Correspondence.

Point Levi, July 7, 1910.

To the Editor of The Chronicle:

Dear Sir,—In view of the recent judicial utterances on the ferry question, I would like to know by what legal right I am to be deprived of the cheapest mode of transportation, and why I should be compelled to pay almost three times the present fare by the Quebec & Levis Ferry Co. for the glorious privilege of travelling by a so-called New Ferry Co.? Why will the citizens of Quebec and Levis permit themselves to be muzzled in this manner and bulldozed into paying additional fare to a so-called New Ferry Co. that has no actual legal existence. Surely a company whose boats are not in any respect acording to the city by-laws, and have not even been accepted by the city as competent to carry human freight, let alone measuring up to the standard called for, cannot claim to have any legal right of existence as a company?

Yours truly,
A LEVITE.

To the Editor of The Chronicle:

Dear Sir,—I thank you in advance for the few lines you grant me in your columns.

I just want to call the attention of Messrs. the Harbor Commissioners to a certain danger which exists on the north side of the Louise Basin—the inner and outer one. It consists in that there was a wooden structure made to prevent the falling of the stonewall into the basin. But close to the cross wall there is a length of about 100 feet which remains as it was before. So this is where stands the danger for the people walking along the new wharf, especially at night time. With the least distraction of a footstep one may fall into the water.

Hoping we won't have to regret any accident before we see a little fence erected, which won't be any bother to navigation.

I remain,
A MARINER.

LOST CHECKS.

Twenty-three checks drawn on La Caisse d'Economie, St. Sauveur, were lost on Tuesday, the 5th instant, between the offices of La Banque Nationale, St. Roch, La Caisse d'Economie, St. Roch, and La Caisse d'Economie, St. Sauveur, passing by St. Joseph and St. Valier streets.

As these checks are payable to order they are of no utility for the one finding them, and, moreover, the Banks having received notice, will refuse to cash any of these checks, but they are, however, necessary to the messenger having lost them.

A reward will be given to the person remitting these checks to the banking houses hereinbefore mentioned.

POWER DEVELOPMENT AT ST. ALBAN, ON STE. ANNE RIVER.

(From the Canadian Electrical News.)

"A small but very interesting power development is under way at St. Alban, on the Ste. Anne river, for the Deschambault Electric Company. At the dam site the stream flows between two perpendicular limestone walls only 38 feet apart. In this narrow gorge a reinforced concrete dam will be built creating a reservoir 3 miles long from which a surplus of water may be drawn during the low water periods at the time of maximum load. The flow of Ste. Anne river with a normal head of fifty feet, will justify the development of 1,500 kilowatts divided between 3 units. For the present two units only will be installed. The power house, a stone construction will be situated close to the dam, the steel flumes from the forebay to the turbines being only about 25 feet long. The 3 phase 60 cycle current will be raised from 2,000 to 25,000 volts and distributed in seven or eight villages within a radius of 15 miles. The contract for the dam has just been awarded to R. C. Argall Company, of Montreal, for $31,300. Mr. J. F. Guay is consulting engineer-in-charge for the Deschambault Company."

In going to Montreal, the most luxurious way is by the steamers "Quebec" and "Montreal," leaving Quebec every evening at 6 o'clock.

ANOTHER BIG SHOW AT MONTMORENCY FALLS

The present amusement bill of fare at Montmorency Falls has demonstrated that quality rather than quantity is appreciated by local theatregoers. It is with this end in view that the management has selected the following high-class programme for the coming week. The principal feature will be the Four Flying Dordens, America's most sensational casting act. These gentlemen have no superiors and few equals on the horizontal bars, and the marvellous feats performed by them are nothing short of startling. Another acrobatic number, although on entirely different lines, will be presented by Willis and Lewis. They bill themselves as the two funny clowns, and if recent press clippings are any criterion, they should more than make good with Quebecers. De Alma and Mae, two experts on the banjo, and Monsieur Valleriere, the jovial French comedian, who needs no introduction to localites, completes a bill of excellence that should appeal even to the most hardened critic.

WOMAN WHO POSED AS A MAN

Twenty-Five Years' Masquerade in Order to Protect Girl's Honor.

London, July 7.—No novelist or dramatist ever imagined a more romantic story than that told at an inquest on a person who figured on the coroner's certificate as "Harry Lloyd," but who was really Marie Le Roy, daughter of a distinguished Belgian Army officer.

For twenty-five years all who knew the dead woman had looked upon her as a man. Even the young woman who was believed to be "his" daughter, looked upon "Harry Lloyd" as her father, and knew no different until deat hrevealed the secret of sex.

And what was the motive for this strange masequerade? The whole story may never be known, for the dead woman took her secret to the grave with her; but the evidence at the inquest and the result of independent inquiries leave little doubt that Marie Le Roy was a true heroine, who deliberately sank her own identity and sex for the sake of another woman. To save that woman's honour she posed as her husband and the father of her child.

Even when the child's mother died twenty years ago Marie Le Roy gave no hint that she was other than what she seemed. As "Harry Lloyd" she was known in the Enfield district, and she supported herself and the little girl by giving lessons in French and German, and trained little Elizabeth to become a school teacher. "Harry Lloyd," too, took a keen interest in politics, and religiously registered "his" vote at election times.

A few years before, "Eliza Lloyd, wife of Harry Lloyd, news agent," died at Ponder's End, Marie Le Roy was a friend of Mrs. Austin Holyoake, whose husband was the founder of the Old Hall of Science in Old-street, and was also Bradlaugh's publisher. Some time prior to the birth of Elizabeth Lloyd, Marie Le Roy disappeared, and "Harry Lloyd" came into the ken of men and women.

Marie Le Roy Disappears.

Mr. Holyoak's widow said that she was satisfied that "Harry Lloyd" and Marie Le Roy were identical. "It was, I suppose, in the early seventies when I became acquainted with Marie Le Roy," said Mrs. Holyoake. "At that time she was acting as French governess in a large West End house. She was a charming little lady—very dainty, very vivacious, and very lovable. I had not then been married very long and she became exceedingly attached to me.

"I introduced her to the Hall of Science circle, and she became a great help there, always taking an active part in the secretarial side of the work and in the management of the lectures. She was well known to all the circle, including Mr. Charles Bradlaugh and my late husband.

"Her French was so beautiful that eventually I engaged her to teach the language to my little children, and for that purpose she came to live with us. She lived in our house, I suppose, for about three years. During that time her devotion to me was quite remarkable. Though she was so tiny, I got to look upon her as a 'big brother.'

"The way she looked after me was the only thing about her really suggestive of masculinity. For the rest, she had a somewhat square face, and wore her hair short, but she appeared to me as a sweet little lady.

"While she was with us she had a serious illness, and I nursed her through it. Her mother came over from Brussels, where her home was, to see her. When Marie got better I accompanied them both back to Brussels.

"We began to drift apart about thirty years ago, soon after I remarried, and when I last saw her in 1880 she told me that she was living with a woman friend. She seemed to disappear quite suddenly, and I never heard anything of her from that time. I made many inquiries, but could not traee her, nor did any of the circle hear of her again to my knowledge."

The Doctor's Discovery.

No wonder, for Marie Le Roy was dead to the world. But in Hackney there arrived a Mr. and Mrs. Harry Lloyd with their little daughter. The trio moved from Hackney to Tottenham, then to Edmonton, and later to Ponder's End. There Mrs. Lloyd died, and the "widower" and little Elizabeth went to live at Enfield. In a tiny four roomed cottage, in Alma road, the couple lived, the "father" giving lessons in languages. "He" was a feminine looking "man," only 4 feet 10 inches in height, with small hands and feet, a soft voice, and hair usually reaching to the shoulders, but nobody seems to have suspected the truth.

So the years rolled on. "Harry Lloyd" gradually losing "his" teaching connection, and being glad to do any odd job, this, however, being counter-balanced by the fact that Miss Lloyd was able to earn enough to keep the little home going.

Three months ago "Old Harry Lloyd" was taken ill, but strenuously opposed the calling of a doctor. Then Dr. Foott, who lives near by, was called in, but it was too late.

The medical man knew "Harry Lloyd" well by isght, and had often spoken with "him" without suspecting the truth. But to his quick eye the dead face aroused suspicions that it had never done in life.

"I was called in to see a man. That is the face of a woman," he exclaimed.

"Oh, no," said Miss Lloyd, who stood in the room, "that is my father."

A few moments later Dr. Foott assured the grief-stricken young woman that the dead person was a woman, adding, "Surely this was your mother, not your father."

"But my mother died twenty years ago. If this is not my father, who is it, and who am I?" cried the bewildered woman.

Naturally the astounding news caused the greatest excitement in the district, where it formed practically the sole topic of conversation.
