Pelican Club is out for members

By Larry McInnis

Monitor reporter, Bob Stall, has a cute little "ditty" for us. He was standing at the Snowdon intersection of Decarie and Queen Mary recently, experiencing that familiar "morning after the night before feeling" and philosophizing on the plight of untold motorists ensnared in a typical Montreal traffic jam. In other words, he was doing absolutely nothing when he noticed an airplane nonchalantly taxiing across the busy intersection.

Since Bob and I rarely take each other seriously, I found this rather incredulous. Nevertheless, as he insisted on ambling, I listened.

It seemed that the aircraft is one of two belonging to a newly-formed flying organization called the Pelican Flying Club. One of its members had offered the use of his film studio to paint and overhaul the recently acquired airplane. Since the club is a non-profit, co-operative ownership organization, the members decided to maintain their aircraft themselves.

Thus it is perfectly logical to observe a group of Pelicans conveying an airplane through the streets of Montreal, disassembling the entire apparatus on a sidewalk, and ramming the remains through the rear entrance of a motion picture studio.

Bob was invited to attend one of their regular meetings and was impressed by the general program — an extensive program with definite appeal to all pilots in the Montreal area.

The club, owned by a handful of members, has two aircraft: a Cessna 181 and an Aeronca Champion. Flying is not taught nor do they rent planes; one must become a share-holder in the club in order to make use of the Pelican's aircraft.

Aside from flying, they program interesting, topical seminars and group projects such as their planned "fly-in" to Lac Macaza, slated for June 24.

They are now open for additional members. If you hold a valid pilot's license or are interesting in flying, I suggest that you attend the next meeting of the Pelican Flying Club — eight p.m., June 20, at 5271 Western avenue. Everyone is welcome.

Hailstone publishes magazine

Pat Hailstone, 36, 549 Lansdowne avenue, announced his entry into the publication field, Canada Month, as a Time sized news interpretative magazine slanted toward Canadians.

The neophyte publisher expects to start with his first regular issue in October. A forerunner will come out this month. At first a monthly, the magazine will eventually be a weekly and more news-oriented.

Hailstone has lived in Westmount for the past three years, since his return from New York where he worked for several years as associate editor of House and Home put out by Time/Life. Educated as an architect in England, Hailstone came to Canada in 1951 and worked for the Wallace Publish-

F. J. MACNAB

Frederick J. Macnab, 76, 235 Melville avenue, who, during his 47-year career with the Bell Telephone Company of Canada, influenced the planning of almost every building constructed by that company during the first half of the century, died yesterday in Ayr, Scotland.

Mr. Macnab was born in Dundee, Scotland. Coming to Canada in 1906 he immediately joined the Bell company as a draughtsman, in Montreal. Gaining experience in a number of posts, he was transferred to Toronto in 1922, and in 1924 was made an assistant architect.

He was appointed architect for the company in Toronto in 1927. Returning to Montreal the following year, he continued in that position until his retirement in 1953.

An Honorary Fellow of the Royal Architectural Institute of Canada, and a life member of the Telephone Pioneers of America, Mr. Macnab who was pre-deceased by his wife, the former Ethel Luckwell, is survived by Miss Eileen Cooney, a niece, whom he was visiting at the time of his death.

CNR promotes Cote

Lionel Cote, Q.C., 4453 Western avenue, was recently appointed general counsel of Canadian National Railways at system headquarters.

Mr. Cote joined the CNR in 1931 following his admission to the Quebec Bar. He became counsel with responsibility for all legal matters involving the railway in Quebec in 1944 and assistant general solicitor of the system in 1949.

ing Company as architectural journalist. It was then he got the bug to publish a Time-type magazine and decided to go to New York to find out the techniques used by Time/Life.

This week in Westmount

By VALENTINA RAHR

Last Monday evening a woman resident of Westmount was struck and injured by a car on St. Catherine street west. This particular stretch which is about 100 feet long, from the east to the west corner of Park Place, has been the scene of three accidents since last August. Litters from residents to the City of Westmount requesting traffic lights to slow down the speeding cars which travel from the Glen along St. Catherine street have brought no results.

Last Monday's incident sparked off more than indignation from local citizens who use this dangerous stretch for crossing to get to Westmount Park and the Westmount Skating Rink. Last Monday's incident resulted in the preparation of a petition by irate citizens to the Mayor of Westmount for action at this intersection, before a fatality occurs. The petition will contain names of parents and number of children per family, names of adults and retired citizens in the area directly affected and will be presented as soon as the list is completed.

Once again Westmount's Summer Fun Club is getting ready for a busy season with trips, picnics and tours, and handicraft classes and games on the agenda.

CAMILLE PERKS, Sherbrooke street west, has just returned from a vacation in the Laurentians, and is moving out of Westmount after residing here for more than 25 years.

Now that summer vacations are nearer reality and not just in the planning stages anymore, residents of Westmount would do well to remember the practical advice given every year by the Westmount Police Department: DO stop your newspaper delivery. DO stop your milk delivery. DO have your mail picked up by a neighbour while

Unity kids to learn to swim this summer

By MAURICE MARIASINE

Registration for the Unity Boys' Club 1961 Summer Program Season will officially start on Monday, June 26th. However, registration for the Granby Zoo trip has already begun and over 70 boys and girls have indicated that they will go along. Two busses will be available at 9 a.m. Friday, June 30, for both the parents and the children. Due to the limited seating capacity, it is essential that reservations be made as soon as possible.

We are grateful to the Ladies Auxiliary of the Unity Boys' Club and the Montreal Police Juvenile Clubs for providing the busses.

SUMMER HIGHLIGHTS

One of the highlights of the Summer Program Season will be the Learn to Swim Project conducted by the Montreal Parks and Playgrounds at the YWCA. Here is an opportunity for beginners to learn how to swim. The course starts on Thursday, July 13, and the medicals for all those taking part in the Learn to Swim will be held at the Club on Wednesday, July 5, in the morning. Other special activities include: ballet for girls, twice weekly visits to the Trampoline Centre, periodic sessions at Laurentian Laues, a weekly visit to the Chateaugay Recreation Centre and a weekly visit to St. Helen's Island; a tour at the Macdonald College Experimental Farm. There's a possibility of a tour of a Canadian Pacific Ocean Liner and picnics and hikes to Beaver Lake and Lafontaine Park. In addition, the youngsters will participate in sports and handicrafts, track and field, cycle outings, tennis, Penny Carnivals and other visits to places of interest in and around Montreal.

LITTLE LEAGUERS WIN

Unity's Little Leaguers "The Indians" are leading the Kewanis West Little League having won six straight games and are undefeated to date. They edged the Red Sox 5-4 in their last encounter. Coach Manny Baroff has two pitching stars going great guns for him. They are Billy Holden and Dalton Baroff with three victories apiece.

The Indians play two games next week. On June 19th, they meet the Orioles at Valliant Park and on June 21st, they play the Red Sox at the same locale.

SOCCER

The Unity Boys' Club has entered two soccer teams in the Montreal League and play their home games at Westmount Park. Both teams are sporting new outfits through the courtesy of the Canadian Legion, Quebec Branch No. 14 RMR Association.

JUNE PARTICIPATION HEAVY

An expected decrease in participation failed to materialize this month as more and more youngsters have been using the facilities at the Club. The daily average since June 1 has been near the 200 mark. This is probably due to the fact that the program continues to be attractive and varied. Chuck Tyler, Douglas Terryberry and John "Bugs" McDonough are responsible for this increase — the pre-summer program which is going at the present time is indicative of what is in store for the members during July and August.

ROTARY CARNIVAL TIME

It's Carnival Time for the Westmount Rotary Club. Members of the Unity Boys' Club and their families are reminded that the Rotary Club of Westmount built the Unity Boys' Club filling a need in the Community and which for the last number of years have been paying high dividends for the membership. A wife beater gets off easy

Police took a dim view of it when a woman who charged her common-law husband with assault wanted to withdraw charges.

Said Inspector Arsenault, "This is not the first time the police received complaints by this woman against her common-law husband. This man's conduct has caused a great deal of trouble, expense and loss of time to the police".

The grey haired woman with a shiner around her right eye explained, "Your honor, when he isn't drinking, he is very good to me. Also, my daughter, who is working, asked me please not to press charges."

The man with a beautiful face like a battered saint pleaded guilty, told the judge how good "my common law wife is to me." He mumbled something about moving and that he worked yesterday and then just stood there hanging his head.

Acting Municipal Court Judge Stalker ordered him to serve two days in jail, with credit for the two days already served, and to pay the costs. He gave him a week to pay the costs and told him to wait for the inspector downstairs at the police counter.

The man crossed past the woman, whispering as he went by, "I'll meet you downstairs."

Con artist mulcts wouldbe TV viewers

Three people complained to Police and Fire Chief Ed Harper this week of being taken for sums of cash ranging from $8 to $20 as down payments on hookups to a cable supplying American television. The con artist, a young man, claimed to represent a company which is non-existent to the best of the knowledge of City officials.

City Hall stressed that there is no company presently in a position to sell hookups to a television cable to Westmount customers due to the power poles being under ground.

Said a spokesman, "We are presently negotiating with the Bell telephone company and other utilities with power poles in Westmount to see if among us we can come up with a spare conduit for use by a television cable company. We do not want any wires above ground."

"Actually, Bell is doing the organizing. We are merely cooperating as we see no reason why those of our citizens who wish to watch more than just the local stations should not be able to do so".

"Something should be worked out within the next six months. When there is cable television available in Westmount a public announcement will be made by reputable sources."

"In the meantime, we suggest that anyone who has any doubts about anyone selling cable television, or anything else for that matter, from door to door for cash or check call the Better Business Bureau."

Flares burn barricades

Motorists knocked over five flares on Academy road on as many different occasions this week and set fire to the barricades with the ignited fuel oil.

The Fire Department reports the conflagrations under control immediately upon their arrival.

Loads of wash cause smoke

Overloaded washing machines resulted in two separate calls to the Fire Department this week.

Frightened housewives became alarmed at the smoke from the over-heated electric motors.

Drivers see green light

A difference of opinion on who had the green light highlighted an accident May 31 at 6:34 p.m. at the intersection of Claremont and Western avenues with St. Catherine street. The front right side of the vehicle driven by taxi driver, Bernard Simard, 3451 St. Andre street, was demolished in an accident which dented the right rear door and fender of the car of James Moore, 141 Irving avenue. According to police reports, Mr. Simard said, "I was proceeding south on Claremont avenue. When I approached Western avenue intersection the light was green. As I entered the intersection, an automobile cut in front of me. I applied my brakes but could not avoid hitting him."

James Moore presented this version, according to police reports, I was going north on St. Catherine street. When I approached the intersection of Western avenue the traffic

Rent control end good step forward

THE Examiner congratulates City Council on its recent move to end rental controls in Westmount. With the numerous To Let signs up all over the island and termination of the wartime emergency which gave rise to the need for the controls, the onus should now be placed upon the Province to decide upon their continuation.

Only three island municipalities thus far have applied for removal of controls, Hampstead, Mount Royal and Ville St. Michel. Only the application of Ville St. Michel was refused. Numerous other Quebec municipalities no longer have rent controls though not every application for their removal has been granted.

This history shows that removal of rent controls is not a cut and dried matter. The tenants will receive consideration as in the past. Where removal of controls has been granted, effective dates are customarily set at the next succeeding April 30.

It is not known how many of the approximately 3,500 rental units in Westmount fall under controls. Many of those built before 1951 and therefore originally under the act have been removed from controls by since falling within one or more of the numerous exceptions to the law.

The number is probably relatively small. Indicative of this perhaps is the closing of the Westmount Rental Controls Office last month and transferral of its functions to the Montreal office. Also, announcement of the City's application for removal of controls resulted in only one phone call to the general manager inquiring when controls would be removed.

The lack of even a particularly vociferous minority in favor of retention of control

Pensioner landlord applauds Council

Sir:—In last week's edition of The Examiner you reported the move by the City Council to end rent control.

Further, you published two letters from tenants in the area opposing such a move on the grounds that this would leave the way open for landlords to 'exploit' people.

I, Sir, own property in Westmount.

I am a pensioner, forced to rely on the rent I collect from my tenants to live.

Many people, your correspondents included, seem to think that the landlord's lot is finished as soon as the rent is in.

Many believe that it goes straight into his or her pocket. They never take into consideration the fact that he or she must pay for all repairs, including many that arise purely through misuse over a period of time by the tenant.

On many properties, one of my own included, the annual outlay often exceeds the rent we collect.

This popular conception of the landlord as an opulent cigar smoking fiend—waiting to 'rook' the poor defenceless tenant, who after all need not take a place if he feels that the rent is too high—is a complete misconception.

Surely it is obvious, even to the most feeble mind, that the landlord needs the tenant in order to do any business at all.

Why, then, should he foul his own line?

As a landlord long opposed to rental control, I applaud this act by the City Council, despite the selfish groans of your correspondents, and many others like them.

Exploiting Landlord

"THEY tell me," said the hostess to the tiny little millionaire, "that you are one of the giants of industry." "I wouldn't say that, exactly," replied the little fellow with a self-conscious blush. "Nor would I," said the hostess rather rudely. "No need to be personal," said her guest sharply. "Very well," sneered the hostess, "let us compromise. I will admit that you are the tallest dwarf in industry."

points toward its being a dead issue in Westmount deserving only an early and decent burial.

McAdam of Weredale House sure living in Westmount helps boys

By JANE HENDERSHOTT

"Mrs. Craig and I are no different from most parents who move to Westmount. We wanted to give our boys the advantages that go with living in a nice neighborhood." Thus Vernon F. McAdam, secretary manager of the Weredale House, home for boys, explained the decision to move from Mountain street out to 6 Weredale Park back in 1929.

Born in St. George, New Brunswick to the former Ellen Johnston, daughter of a square rigger captain, and David McAdam on July 31, 1899, Vernon's earliest memories are of Hillsboro, New Brunswick, a little town near Moncton, where his father was in business as a granite cutter — "mostly tombstones". The family moved from Hillsboro to Amherst, Nova Scotia, a larger community where it was hoped there would be a greater demand for tombstones.

Said McAdam, "I will never forget the first day we moved to Amherst as that is the day I met the man who got me interested in working with boys. I was 12 years old. When we arrived I wandered over to the school playground. An athletic field meet was going on."

"I had never lived where there were any competitive sports and I saw kids doing things I had never done before or seen done. Anyone could enter and I did."

"I got top honors for the day. As a result, I was introduced to the community recreation director, John Bradford. Later on, Mr. Bradford became community secretary of the YMCA for Montreal."

"Anyway, I became friendly with Mr. and Mrs. Bradford. It was they who inspired me to want to work with boys. Of course, it wasn't right that very first day that I made up my mind, but it couldn't have been long after."

I know that when I was 14 or 15 an uncle of mine asked me what my ambitions were as to a future career and I told him I wanted to do youth work. I have never wanted to do anything else."

"In those days the only way to train for this field was to study for the ministry. I never got a chance to do that."

"My father and my brother both became ill when I was 16 and I had to quit school at the end of the tenth grade to help out. My father never recovered."

"My first job was in a piano factory. I was a piano chipper and tuner for three or four months. That was in Amherst."

"Then I got a chance to join the professional scouting staff in Halifax. When I was 15 I had taken the scoutmaster training course there. Also, I am sure it helped that I could play a cornet as the man in charge of scouting for the province, Reverence J. J. Sidey, was also in charge of a band touring the province in the interest of scouting at the time."

"The first two months on the professional scouting staff I spent on tour with the band playing the cornet. Then I continued on as a scoutmaster for about nine months working out of Halifax."

"One of the biggest difficulties in getting Scout troops started, particularly in outlying areas is the shortage of persons qualified to serve as scoutmasters. That is what I would do. I would go out and conduct meetings and get Scout troops started."

"The scheme was the Reverend Sidey's and I think his ideas were too advanced for conditions then. Anyway, I could see the handwriting on the wall."

"I wrote to Bradford in Montreal asking him if he knew of any openings in youth work in Montreal. He wired back asking me if I would accept an opening as assistant superintendent in a boys' home. I accepted and landed here at the Boys Home of Montreal, May 1, 1917. It was on Mountain street then."

"Being here in Montreal gave me the chance to take further training. There was a course just being organized jointly by the YMCA and the theological colleges, which was the forerunner to the present McGill School of Social Work. I had time to take courses for three years until I got to be secretary-manager on January 20, 1920."

"Yes, I know I was young but we had Mrs. Craig, that's Myra Craig. She came here in 1918 as a volunteer nurse to help during the flu epidemic. She nursed the boys all day and I nursed them all night. We didn't lose a single boy. Mrs. Craig has been the one who has made this place what it is. What boys need is a mother and that is what she has been to them."

"When her husband came back from overseas I persuaded Mrs. Craig to come in as lady superintendent. She has done most of the work on the inside. I have worked on the outside. You know she used to be a professional singer in Scotland."

"She took the McGill School of Social Work course during the 20s. Her 18-year-old son died of diphtheria a month before she came here, right after her husband got back from overseas. I think that tragedy helped her make up her mind to come here permanently. The boys here needed her and she needed them."

"But that was later. In 1918, the year after I got here, we established the first camp for underprivileged boys in Canada. I was sent up to develop the camp. It was at St. Margaret's and was called Camp Boy. Yes, that was a very good name."

"Just then we were trying to interest Rotary in boys' work. After we gave Camp Boy to the Montreal Boys' Association in 1934 we found we still needed a camp for just our boys alone. With the help of the Rotary Club of Westmount we established Camp Lewis, named after a recently deceased prominent member of Westmount Rotary, at Lac L'Achigan, 50 miles from Montreal, in 1934." Yes, I am active in Rotary. I joined the Montreal Rotary in 1924. I was president in 1958-59.

"When I first came here to Weredale House we operated boys clubs work too. The Board of Governors in 1907 mortgaged the boys home for homeless but not delinquent boys to building the Boys Farm and Training School at Shawbridge for delinquent boys. This nearly bankrupt the boys' home."

"This was originally a working boys' home. Then the boys went to war. When I took over the home was $20,000 in debt. I interested the Rotary in wiping out the overdraft. In 1929 they raised the money to build Weredale House where we are now."

"It is interesting to realize that the concept of Rotary as a service club came about through Rotarians becoming interested in boys' work. C. J. Atkinson, executive director of the Boys Clubs of America, interested the New York Rotary in boys work. They branched out from that and other clubs followed suit. He coined the word, 'underprivileged.'

"I have continued my interest in boys' clubs. I am executive director of the Boys Clubs of Canada and founded the boys' club movement here in Canada.

"Our connection with the boys' clubs in 1920 inspired me, when I became secretary-manager in 1920, to participate in Boys Clubs International conventions."

"In 1924 I was asked to become secretary for Canada which gave me an opportunity to establish boys clubs anywhere in Canada."

"Boys Club International became Boys Clubs of America in 1929. Things international were not too popular in the United States just at that time. Then too we organized the Boys Clubs Federation of Canada. This was at the same time Boys Clubs of Great Britain came into being."

"You can see that I have had two or three jobs ever since 1920. In 1947 we got the Boys Clubs of Canada established on a firm basis with proper finances and offices. Before that I had carried the work at my own expense. Now, we have 84 boys clubs in 43 Canadian communities from coast to coast."

"The national office is in the new section of Weredale House at the other end of the building. We have regional offices in Toronto and Vancouver."

"When I said I have had two or three jobs ever since 1920 the third job I was thinking of was as executive director of the boys farm and training school at Shawbridge during World War II. Their director was overseas with the armed forces so I took it on as a parttime job from 1942-1946."

"I raised and spent $400,000 modernizing their facilities, both their buildings and their program. I wrote the administrative policy for the farm which they are using now. They had 230 boys in residence there. Between the three jobs I almost killed myself from overwork."

"I never could have done all the extra work without assistants who stay with me a long time. My assistant, George Brugman, has been with me for 25 years."

"My former camp assistant, W. O. Searle, came in as a physical director and was camp director for 22 years."

These six weeks will be followed by two weeks (August 14-25th) of swimming program ONLY. There will also be a swim program (after school) from June 26th to 30th for all those youngsters who are registered (and paid in full) for the full eight weeks of program.

These special swims will take place on Monday, Tuesday, Wednesday and Thursday from 4:30 to 5:30 p.m.

According to Ron Watt, campers who attend "should have a wonderful time this summer because the 'Y' believes that the best learning takes place when the campers' feeling of responsibility and the campers' interests are high."

"The campers are guided in their groups, to plan some of their own program. They are able to learn more about their city, its places of interest and some of its cultural heritage."

"They are also able to acquire new skills in swimming, sports, games, etc. Thus, the individual learns to make wise decisions based on principles, rather than on self-interest alone."

For further information, contact Ron Watt, Westmount YMCA — WE. 7-3916. The Summer Fun Club is for boys and girls 9 to 13 years of age. Register today, and don't miss out on all the fun.

One man's word is good

An irate resident who harangued Acting Municipal Court Judge Alex McT. Stalker last week and again this past Wednesday on his desire for justice in the matter of a parking ticket received by his daughter June 1 failed to produce any witnesses who could contradict the testimony of the prosecution and paid $4 plus costs.

Both Wednesdays he told the judge, "I want justice. It is not just the few dollars involved but justice. I have lived in Westmount 23 years and I want justice."

Parking Inspector Harry Richards testified, "I had turned off Sherbrooke street on Metcalfe avenue and was on my way back to the police station when I noticed this car parked in an area marked No Parking At Any Time. I looked around and didn't see anybody. I waited five minutes and no one showed up so I put the ticket on the car. I got there at 3:45 p.m. and put the ticket on at 3:50 p.m."

The man who sought justice did not bring his daughter or his wife, whom he swore could testify his daughter was away from the car not more than two minutes while she ran into the house to get her coat.

He said, "My word is better than that of the inspector."

He admitted he was not home at the time the ticket was posted on the automobile.

Small fires are attended by FD

Residents reported only two minor fires to Westmount Fire Department this week. Damage was confined by the Fire Department to the immediate areas of the conflagrations.

A clothes cupboard at 645 Grosvenor avenue caught fire June 10 when a maid used matches to try to find something in the closet.

For as yet an unknown reason the box spring on a bed at 3200 The Boulevard caught fire June 8.

Firemen on the spot to prevent bad fire

Firemen on in-service inspection this week discovered a fire just before it happened on the ground floor of a four-storey building of flats at 135 Selby street.

Association in which we listed those in attendance.

Authorization of a $320,000 public works program, made possible by floating of a 40 year loan.

We editorialized: On the need for intelligent exercise of the franchise to vote.

We advertised: Sports hats made to order $2 and up.

Summer camp for boys $150 for season, $80 for half season, which charges included transportation to and from Montreal and laundry.

The two firemen on duty were inspecting the electrical entry into the building, the switch and fuse box. One fireman told the other, "You can turn your flashlight off now."

The other responded, "I don't have it on."

It was then discovered that what the first fireman thought was a lighted flashlight was a red hot wire arcing fire.

The Fire Department explained that the fuse box had a bad or loose connection in the back, not the fault of anyone, which could have resulted in a very serious fire.

WMA checks on air pollution

The shortest (50 minutes) and most sparsely attended (21) Westmount Municipal Association executive committee meeting within the memory of newly elected J. Murray Savage voted an investigation of air pollution in Westmount Tuesday night. The health and welfare subcommittee was instructed to report back to the executive meeting in September.

Mr. Savage assigned new members Mrs. M. A. Peterson to the publicity committee and assignments of other new members would be by mail.

A report back from City Hall on trees damaged in February's storm stated the city has at least two teams still working.

Savage commented on parking at Westmount station, stating it is completely perennial in that the problem comes up every year.

The executive adopted a motion that the membership committee contact James Adams, correspondent in last week's Examiner who protested abolition of rent controls.

Mrs. T. R. Meighen took under advisement a request that she serve as education and library subcommittee chairman in the possible absence of Crosby Lewis.

Savage read letters received by the Association and his answers dealing with such diverse matters as parking meters on Wood avenue for non-residents only set at 25c an hour, a possible violation of the requirement that apartment buildings have two exits, the end of cricket in Westmount, the swimming pool, limitation of beer licen-

Parking behind milkman unwise

Parking behind a milk delivery truck proved unwise for Edgar Etienne, 29 Tampico avenue, Pointe Claire, Monday morning.

According to Mr. Etienne, he was cruising along Gladstone avenue looking for a parking space. He saw a spot behind a milk truck and parked. Before he got out of his car the truck backed up and hit his automobile.

Willie Boulet, 6221 Desengois, D'Anjou, the milkman, told police when he got back to his truck he found a car parked in front of him. He checked the rear, found it clear, got into the truck, started it up and backed up until he heard a crash.

There are six Bland reports and the dog by-law.

The possibility of a Quebec Liquor Commission outlet was discussed. The conclusion was diffuse, that it was a reasonable idea, Grey avenue is not too far, no Westmounter lacks liquor, no harm and convenient and the only possible way to get one would be by a petition with a very large number of signatures attached.

C. Aspler submitted a synopsis on the contents of the Bland report and suggested the committee invite Professor Bland to address the WMA and explain his report.

With that, the WMA executive adjourned until September 12.

Hit-run case remanded so man can get lawyer

A Lachine man, Albert Nicholson, 3440 Broadway, charged with hit and run and turning left across traffic from the right hand lane at St. Catherine street and Lansdowne avenue intersection May 27, pleaded not guilty May 31. His case was remanded until he could secure counsel. Westmount police brought Nicholson from Glen road to police headquarters to be charged, according to the police report.

Police records indicate Nicholson told police, "I was proceeding west on Hillside avenue. At about Civic number 41 I stopped and let a taxi pass. I then proceeded west. I did not hit any other car".

William Ross, 12172 Taylor boulevard, Ahuntsic, told police, according to their records, "I was parked in front of 41 Hillside at about 7:15 p.m. When I returned at about 3:30 a.m., I learned I had been involved in an accident".

Police records give the time of the alleged hit and run as 11:45 p.m. and state that at the time of the accident Hillside was parked solid with cars, lessening the width of the road to a single lane.

According to the police accident report, Nicholson's car had one continuous crease from front to rear on the right side causing two dents on the right front fender, scratches on the right door and the right rear fender dented at the rear and pushed in front of the wheel. Also, according to the same report, Ross's car was scratched on the left front fender and bumper.

Gas leak repaired

Repair of a badly leaking gas pipe opposite 410 Victoria avenue, reported June 9 at 10:25 p.m. to the Fire Department, was completed by the Quebec Natural Gas Corporation less than 26 hours later.

A citizen reported a strong odor of gas in the neighborhood to the Fire Department. The Fire Department immediately contacted the gas company and stayed with the job until it was done to its complete satisfaction.

City Hall Beat

with Jane Hendershott

Following the retirement of Parks Superintendent George Cooper last week, physical functions of the Parks Department were transferred to the Public Works Department. Recreational functions were passed to the Recreation Department. The reorganization involved no change in operation or personnel.

City gardeners have finished the floral crest on City Hall lawn and should finish installation of the floral clock in front of Victoria Hall by the time you read this.

Westmount was refunded $182,669.99 by Quebec for its contribution to the Metropolitan Boulevard construction and operation costs following incorporation of the expressway into the Quebec highway system. The Council will decide what distribution of the money will result in the greatest benefit to the taxpayer, according to City Hall. Inspector Lowson says his reaction to dogs at this point is hyphenated. Not all gardeners love dogs that much and tickets are being given out to those who let their dogs run loose.

Bicycles stolen last month number 13, recovered five. Police have racked away about 70 bicycles recovered during the past three years. If not claimed within three years of the date of recovery, bicycles are turned over to the curator of Montreal for sale. There are also tricycles, wagons, toboggans, sleds, a high chair and a brief case. There are a lot of $80 and $90 bikes in the lot.

It is hard to pick the favorite law violation of the week. Not stopping at stop signs, turning from the wrong lane, and backing up with out due caution are all popular. They are all rude too.

Speeders predominated in Court on Wednesday

Moving offenses predominated in Westmount Municipal Court Wednesday and Acting Municipal Court Judge Alex McT. Stalker patiently listened mostly to pleas of guilty with explanations.

Leading off was a plea of guilty to entering on a red light at the intersection of Cote St. Antoine road and Victoria avenue June 6 at 7:25 a.m. The explanation was that the defendant was going east to west toward Decarie boulevard along Cote St. Antoine road, he had been working all night and the sun was in his eyes. He said he could not see if the light was red or green and as the traffic on Victoria avenue was stopped on both sides, he went ahead. $5 and costs.

A chap charged with parking 75 feet of an intersection on St. Catherine street June 8 explained, "I saw the old white line painted for 75 feet from the intersection but there was a new white line which stopped 25 feet from the corner. I thought there was a new regulation so I parked beyond the end of the new white line."

"The officer told me he saw my point and explained the City had started to paint the white line and hadn't time to finish painting it when I came along."

Sympathized the judge, $4. Going 50 miles per hour in a 30 mile an hour zone on Cote St. Antoine road June 8 at 2:45 a.m. proved expensive to a man who sells traffic safety lights. He was talking business to a chap and didn't notice his speed. $20 and costs plus a mark on his driver's license.

Another speeder in a school and playground area June 7 at 12:05 p.m. got off with costs because his speedometer broke the night before and he hadn't been able to get it fixed yet and he wasn't going very fast anyway.

An eloquent taxi driver who earnestly told the judge he was really an electrician and a victim of unemployment and hard times in Montreal and all over Canada, for that matter, just the force of circumstances got off with $5 and costs on a charge of exceeding 30 miles per hour. He was going 45 miles per hour. He told the judge, "I was rushing back to the garage June 6 at 4:58 a.m. to turn my cab over to my relief. I thought he would be waiting for me at 5 a.m. He wasn't so all my rushing was in vain. Anyway, judge, I hope you'll take into consideration I am a family man trying to make a living."

Bill Green feted farewell by WSHS

Bill Green, 442 Argyle avenue, caretaker in Westmount schools for the past 32 years, said his official goodbys at a party given for him Monday by the principal and teachers of Westmount senior high school. Mr. Green goes from Westmount to Kensington elementary school in Notre Dame de Grace to spend his last three years before retirement in July when Selwyn House Day School for Boys takes over the senior high school building.

Students presented the long-time caretaker with a check for $250. Teachers and principal gifted him with a pewter mug to, as he says, "to keep his beer cold" and his wife with six cups and saucers.

Bill Green has worked in Westmount since he arrived in Canada in 1925, having spent four years on the Westmount Police Force prior to joining the Westmount school system. He started at Roslyn school in October of 1929. In 1930 he moved over to Queen's school. The World War I veteran of the British army took time off from 1939 to 1946 to serve with the Royal Canadian Regiment Army Service Corps. He then came back to Westmount to the senior high school where he has worked ever since.

light was red. I stopped and waited for it to change.

"After the light changed to green, I waited for the traffic that was proceeding south on St. Catherine street to clear the intersection. I noticed a car approximately 500 feet north on Western avenue and as I started to turn west on Western avenue, I noticed the other auto start to speed and he struck my car."

Tractor shovel hits car trunk

A tractor shovel and a car collided June 7 at Brooke avenue and St. Antoine street.

Renaud Bourdage, 5300 Fabre street, told Westmount police, according to their reports, "I did not notice hitting any auto. I was notified by my foreman while turning the shovel at the rear of the tractor struck an auto".

Mrs. Marie Paul Choinieres, 3899 Evelyn avenue, Verdun, told police according to the accident report, "I was going south on Brooke avenue. I turned on St. Antoine street and noticed that the street was under construction. I stopped and started to back across the intersection. I noticed a tractor backing north in the intersection."

"I stopped. The tractor stopped and turned left on St. Antoine street and as it did so, the shovel at the rear of the tractor hit the trunk door of my car."

FOREMOST IN HIS LINE

Last Thursday evening, I left what I was doing to turn on the television at 10.30 for "Let's Face It" because I wanted to hear what avenues of psychiatry were going to be delved into. The subject was "Man and His Mind" and three of the many world famous delegates to the Third World Congress of Psychiatry (held last week in the Queen Elizabeth Hotel) were interviewed by three different people.

Of the trio of distinguished gentlemen, one impressed me very much, Dr. Joshua Bierer (interviewed by Jim Beveridge) Dr. David Stafford-Clark was also very interesting.

The learned Dr. Bierer said there was a lack of discipline in the home and men were losing their identity as the head of the household. Unfortunately everybody feels that they must do the same as the next fellow, whether they think along those lines or not. Isn't it true that there are many parents who give in to their children's wishes just because the neighbours do? They lack the courage to say no when the child is in the formative stage and therefore lose parental authority when they should be making the decisions.

Most music teachers (and school teachers in their line) will tell you that it is more difficult to get children to practice than a few years back. Why? A combination of reasons: too much television . . . too many parties . . . leaving little time for school home lessons thus cutting off practice time and in these cases parents not seeing to it that they do their assignments.

The world renowned Dr. Bierer was such a penetrating personality that I thought I would look him up in my book of "Who's Who" (A tremendous volume of 3267 pages) Lo and behold, this famous man is listed with 44 lines (Arthur Rubinstein has only 17). Born July 1, 1901, he is the son of a famous X-ray specialist and was educated at Vienna University then studied privately with Professor Alfred Adler and Dr. A. Neuner in Vienna. He did post graduate work in many places. Now head of Marlborough Hospital in London, England, he is the originator of Therapeutic Social Clubs and of Day Hospitals.

Too lengthy to put all the important details about this great man in such a significant field in this short article, it is enough to say that he has been a lecturer in Berlin and Tel-Aviv, has done research in three famous hospitals, in Vienna and Essex, England . . . is a visiting psycho-therapist at various hospitals and has written articles in countless publications as well as books of his own. He has had many honors.

If such a man says that there is lack of discipline on the part of parents these days, it is time to heed his words and try to correct these faults for all concerned. It was a splendid half hour and the CBC should give it as a repeat some time so that all who missed it would have the opportunity of hearing the views of authorities. Thanks to the kind folks who telephoned to say they enjoyed last week's article. F.G.

Shore boy hit by car

Jack Shore, 4, 345 Grosvenor avenue, got off with a sore left leg when knocked to the pavement June 9 by a car driven by Andre Angers, 1778 Boulevard Edouard Laurin, St. Laurent, according to police reports. The boy was taken to Montreal Children's Hospital by patrol car, treated and released.

Said Mr. Angers, according to police reports, "I was proceeding north on Grosvenor avenue. When I arrived approximately in front of Civic No. 327, a child ran from the east sidewalk into the path of my car. I applied my brakes and skidded, hitting the child and knocking him to the pavement."

He explained he did not have a license with him when he was arrested but that he had one at home. When Inspector Arsenault noted that his license was dated April 6, he said he had been sick for a month and couldn't get one. He owned up he did not need to take an examination, just to send in the money by mail and hadn't.

The judge saved him from admitting he couldn't find a stamp by fining him $5 and costs on the speeding charge and $10 and costs on not having a license.

Clues to Cashword Explained

ACROSS:

1. CONVERGED is best. Things may have become noisy in a public place when two groups CONVERGED, for they may continue to carry on independent conversations, thus more than one voice would be heard at a time. If two groups CONVERSED, or spoke with each other it is more likely that only one person would speak at a time while the rest listened. CONVERTED is remote.

7. MIMER, yes. A MIMER, as an actor, is not likely to deviate from a set pattern, as the rehearsed action, for it would confuse the others on stage. A MILER may have to be guided by the pace set by others in a race. A MITER, or MITER joint, could come out all wrong in the hands of an unskilled carpenter. MINER and MISER are vague. MIXER is remote.

9. LESSEN is comprehensive. Parents may feel that a stern teacher can LESSEN their son's impertinence, whether because he will be willing to LESSON, or reprove him, or use some more drastic form of punishment.

13. TOOL is better. It is not likely that one can build anything without a TOOL of some kind, if nothing more than a hammer to drive nails. TOIL depends on the situation; a hobbyist might consider it fun rather than work. TOLL is vague.

16. SORT is preferred. Most people would find a bad SORT, or an evil type of person, disturbing, for few feel capable of dealing with such an individual. Everyone may find a bad SORE, or bruise, disturbing because of the pain involved. SORA and SORB are remote.

19. ACE, to be sure. One might expect an ACE to take precedence, for in a deck of cards the ACE is the highest rank. This is not necessarily true of AGE, as when all in a group are elderly. AYE, as an affirmative vote, may be outnumbered by the noes. ALE, APE, AWE and AXE are remote.

23. NUTATION is favored. A band of conspirators may consider it wise to avoid NUTATION, as nodding or drooping, for their safety may depend on alertness. NOTATION may be determined by necessity rather than wisdom, as when something must be put in writing. NATATION is vague.

20. FLOOD is chosen. A FLOOD, like any disaster, may bring disparate people together, for at such times all are motivated by one desire, regardless of stations in life or temperament, and that is to reach a place of safety. BLOOD, as kinship, has little to do with it if no affection or feeling of a bond exists.

33. TREADED is wanted. A boy may be afraid to complain if he is badly TREADED by his guardian, for such repression can create a state of fear that could stifle any complaint. If he is badly TREATED, he might react with anger and complain loudly.

DOWN:

1. COLLISION is selected. A COLLISION, as of vehicular traffic, may affect many more than those directly involved, for their families will be affected. COLLUSION need not affect more than one other person who may be the victim of the fraud.

2. VASE is preferred. A man and his wife may debate the wisdom of borrowing a VASE from the people in the next house, for this could be a fragile vessel, easily broken. Few people have a complete set or tools, and lending or borrowing a VISE is ordinary procedure among neighbors.

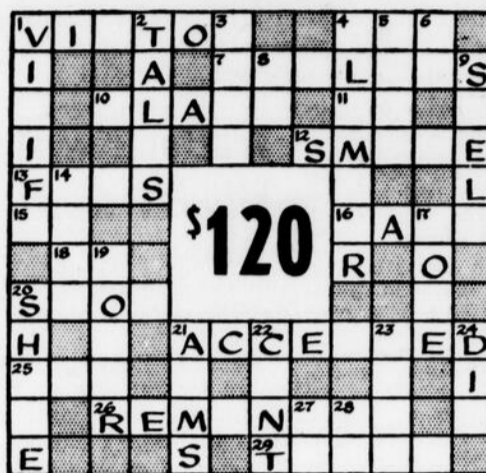

3. RUNT is the word. In a bad year a RUNT may be a cause of anxiety on a farm, for a farmer may have depended on whatever money he could have gotten for a healthy, normal animal. Mortgage is more likely to apply to a farm than RENT.

5. DIPLOMAS is specific. Political science majors in a university class are likely to be interested in DIPLOMAS, or they wouldn't be there. Their interest in a DIPLOMAT would be determined by whether he has anything to say that relates to their studies.

6. DESERTED is better. People are not likely to envy a man who DESERTED a position of responsibility, for they may expect him to be sorry for his rashness in throwing up a good career. Human nature being what it is, many may envy a man who attained a position of responsibility, whether he DESERVED it or not.

10. SHARK is the favored word. Other employees may resent it when credit is given to a SHARK, as one who excels, for they may feel they work as hard but just do not have his knack. They are likely to resent a SHIRK, whether he gets any credit or not.

20. SAPOR over VAPOR. SAPOR may be hard to describe, for unless one can say that a flavor resembles something else, it can only be described in general terms that convey no accurate idea. VA-

POR can be described with reference to its solid or liquid form and its density so that a perfect word picture can be conveyed.

22. OPIUM is likely. OPIUM might make a person lethargic, for it is a narcotic. ODIUM depends on the individual involved; an aggressive person might fight to remove the stigma from his name.

Sex offenders

Criminals or sick people?

This was to have been an article about sex deviates in Montreal.

In the past few weeks, Canada's sex laws have come in for some pretty heavy criticism from many quarters.

At the recent Canadian Congress of Corrections at the University of Toronto they were called down continuously.

"Archaic and stupid", said one speaker.

"Characterized by ignorance," said another.

"Weak and ineffective", and "confusing to say the least" were other rebuttals hurled.

Professor John Spencer of Toronto's School of Social Work is down on record as having said that Canada's legislation in regard to sex offences, "shows the weakness of attempts to control sex deviation by law".

Back in 1958, the Report of

By JIM ROPER

the Royal Commission on sex offenders, under Ontario Supreme Court Chief Justice J. C. McRuer, opened with an attack on the laws.

"The fundamental criticism of Canadian law as it relates to the sex offenders," it said, "is that it has not proved to be effective."

Closed shop

In this article, it was hoped to put before you, the reader, a true picture of sex crimes in Montreal, and our own area in particular.

The article was not meant to be an attack, or a defence of the sex laws.

Nor was it meant to rival articles published in magazines of dubious nature, far better equipped to deal with sex in a public media.

To collect facts and figures for the article, the City police were approached.

Their replies were strictly 'closed shop'.

Detective Captain Russell Trempanier, head of the Delinquency Division, told me, "we do not want to publish any figures on sex offences, as we find that such publicity only serves to increase the crimes described."

"After goofballs were given publicity," he went on, "We had big outbreaks all over in goofball use."

"Besides," he added, "we have instructions not to give any statistics to anyone for any reason."

Commenting on a newspaper report that 264 sex offenders had been arrested in Toronto since the beginning of the year, he said that he thought it might be the same gang who used to operate here on the mountain.

If this were so, they had better not come back," he added, "because we'll throw them in jail."

Virginal city

Detective Sergeant Plouffe, sex expert on the City police Morality Squad, was the next person approached for information.

"In my opinion," he said,

"this is a subject that has been overstressed."

"Montreal is better in this regard than most other cities," he affirmed.

Detective Sergeant Plouffe has done a lot of travelling, in the U.S. and Europe, as well as this country, and feels that Montreal can be regarded as a "virginal city" after such places as Baltimore, with its navy influx, and Washington, "where every time you get into a taxi, the driver asks you if you want a 'good time'".

"I don't think it is good to play up the sex angle," he went on. "It is a very deep subject, which takes many hours of study to master."

"For instance," he told me, "it takes me a whole evening to give an elementary lecture introducing our policemen to the subject. I start at 7:30, and they are usually still asking questions at 12:30."

"If you write the article," he went on, "many parents will take your paper away from their children to stop them reading it."

"Any way," he said, "it would not be a good time psychologically for such an article. The hot weather always brings out more sex crimes," he explained.

Detective Sergeant Plouffe elaborated this by saying that a psychopath reading the story would be excited, and would almost certainly commit a crime within the next week or two.

"A journalist might write an interesting and seemingly inoffensive article, and not realise the harm that he had caused," he concluded.

Unable to get facts and figures about the problem as it affects us in Montreal, I began to wonder, as you are probably doing right now, what sort of person the average sex offender is. What do we know about this person who is paid so much attention by lawyer, doctor, and social worker alike?

Recent statistics show him to be a young man (there are 221 male offenders to every female offender), between his teens and 40 (as 93 per cent are), from any walk of life or profession. Once caught, it is unlikely that he will offend again, only 14 per cent do.

Sex offenders make up three per cent of Canada's law breakers. The offender is usually referred to as a deviate, "one whose sexual drive, the object of his desire, or way of expressing his desire is considered by his social group to be abnormal".

There are three main types of sex deviate, the homosexual, the pedophile (attracted to children), and the exhibitionist.

Other deviations — such as voyeurism (peeping tom), fetishism (gaining stimulation from such objects as fur or silk), sadism (inflicting pain for satisfaction), masochism (enduring pain for satisfaction), and bestiality — occur less frequently.

Women, usually the submissive partner in the sex role, are seldom guilty of criminal sexual aggression, and, apart from prostitutes, rarely come into contact with the law for sex offences.

Most are unhappy

Sex offenders, male or female are usually people unable to account for their own faults. Most are unhappy, and reluctant to accept the pattern of their own behaviour.

Whereas the homosexual is able to get along with the rest of society quite well, other deviates often develop into dangerous, and mentally sick citizens.

The average sex deviate is usually immature, and in many ways incapable of performing a regular way of life.

$20 to repair a broken neck

Want to know the cost of mending a broken neck? Well, it depends on the size.

"This one will cost me from $20 to $25," self-employed photographer Denis Diniacopoulos, 3591 Northcliffe avenue, told Constable E. W. Kerr last week.

Diniacopoulos was driving south along Victoria one lunch hour, on his way to the Ars Classica Art Gallery, 1454 Sherbrooke street west, when the neck in question was broken.

He was taking things very quietly in the traffic, making sure he didn't upset the occupant of the front passenger seat, when he was rammed in the tail at a traffic hold up.

"The force of the blow threw her onto the floor," he said, "knocking her head right off her shoulders."

"She's been damaged once before, but I got her fixed," he went on.

"They are expensive things to have seen to. This one will cost me from $20 to $25 for repair."

"The worst of it is," he went on, "this particular figurine is a genuine antique. It's worth $200."

Miss Ann M. Kennedy, 574 Victoria avenue, driver of the second car, explained to police later that her brakes, recently installed, had failed to pull her up in time to avoid Diniacopoulos, and his figurine.

How do I save?

When it comes to saving here's a trick worth knowing. Avoid writing cheques against your Savings Account. Impossible? Not at all! Just open a Personal Chequing Account at the "Royal" and use it for paying bills.

Then you can keep your Savings Account strictly for saving. The bank calls this the 2-Account Plan — a sure-fire way to save. It makes sense. It's business-like. And it's easy... Why don't you give it a try?

$1,000 awards to Tee towards PhD

Richard C. Tees, 33 Renfrew avenue, has just been awarded a $1,000 scholarship for 2 years of graduate study in psychology by the Theta Delta Chi Educational Foundation.

Tees, a June graduate of McGill University, will enroll in the Graduate School of Psychology at the University of Chicago in the Fall to work toward a doctorate. He hopes to do further research at Cambridge and then to engage in university teaching and research.

He has been research assistant and a participant in the psychology honors program at McGill under Profs. D. O. Hebb and Roy M. Pritchard. His thesis, written during his fourth year on perceptual learning and associated neural activity by means of the stabilized image approach, is expected to be published in the Canadian Journal of Psychology this year.

McAdam of Weredale House . . .

"The present camp director, Norman J. Kneeland, started at 17 as a camp counselor when he was 17. He has been on the staff since 1934."

"The National Boys Club office manager, Mrs. Dorothy Aspell, joined the staff in 1947."

"These people are typical. Our sewing woman has been here about 15 years. The lady in the dining room has been here for 22 years."

"Continuity of staff is important. The youngsters need stability and they find it where there is continuity of staff. The youngsters fit in more easily where that is true."

"The people who work here, except the night teachers, live here. That is the only way it is going to work. There are 36 staff members and we all live in."

"Our fundamental purpose in life is to see that our youngsters get a chance. Our work requires people who have no divided interests. If you do this kind of work you have to live it."

"That is why I have never married. I have been too busy raising other people's children. If I had it to do over I would do the same thing. I have never regretted it. I haven't gotten rich but I have had a lot of satisfactions."

"Mrs. Craig and I are constantly at weddings, christenings and funerals. In fact, she went to buy things for five babies during this last week. I meet our boys all around the world." We have had over 3,000 boys. I started out with 30 to 40 in 1920. Now we have accommodations for 170 boys."

"Just recently at the meeting of the Boys Club convention in Los Angeles I found a message slipped under my hotel room door from one of our old boys. He is doing very well with the Hilton Carte Blanche office there."

"Then when I was giving a speech at the annual Boys Club banquet in Vancouver I spotted an old boy in the audience. Before I finished speaking I spotted five more. We had quite a reunion that evening."

"I have demanded from the staff only what Mrs. Craig and I demand from ourselves, that they look on this as not just a job. If people are not prepared to dedicate themselves they have no business doing social work."

"When you do work like this, you can't plan social life. This becomes your social life. Mrs. Craig and I each have season tickets to the hockey games at the Forum which we can share with the boys. We have no parties, no bridge games, no golfing. But we do have fun."

"Mr. and Mrs. Brugman enjoy picnics, barbecues and that sort of thing which the boys enjoy too."

"People asked us why we wanted to bring little homeless waifs into such a nice neighborhood when we moved out here to Westmount. We told them we wanted to take our boys out of their old poor environments and give them the atmosphere of a nice home."

"We felt the same as any other parents about the neighborhood in which we raised our boys."

"Mrs. Craig and I try to give them the best we can in the way of surrounding within our means. Mrs. Craig puts up nice curtains. Our camp is in a beautiful setting so that the youngsters get the atmosphere of something better."

"If you aren't going to show the youngsters something better than what he already has, why bother? I think it is this attitude of ours that accounts for why so many of our boys grow up to be doctors, lawyers, missionaries, accountants and other honorable occupations."

"Our boys don't go out of here as problems. We fail to adjust only about 3% of the boys who come to us. The ones who just can't adjust we send to Shawbridge where they can get more specialized treatment."

"We look back now and many of the boys we didn't think at the time that we were particularly successful with, have turned out to be very successful citizens. They are very few who don't adjust. Our plan is to make it easy for them to adjust."

"The boys who come here are not only from broken homes. They are problem boys, in some instances as a result of broken homes. There is a heavy penalty paid by youngsters for the breakup of the family beyond their control."

"No, we are not connected with the Children's Service Center. Many of our boys come through them, however, and we maintain a very close liaison with them. We gave them the land on which they built."

"I am a charter member of the Canadian Association of Social Workers."

"Our camp up at Lac L'Achigan opens June 30. On that day we take 150 boys to stay in camp for 10 weeks. Of course, we will still keep Weredale House open all summer. There are 20 to 22 working boys who will come up to camp as they get their holidays. Most of the boys who work go to school at night, here or at Sir George Williams."

"There is no hard and fast rule as to how long a boy can stay here. We do not require boys to go to school at night that work during the day though we do encourage all of the boys to get as much education as they can manage. A boy can stay here until he can manage well on his own. When that is depends upon the individual boy and the circumstances. Sometimes, a boy wants to go out on his own too soon and we try to discourage him, persuade him to wait until he has been working a few months and has a little money put by, is accustomed to handling money, knows what his expenses are going to be."

"We were operating a Boy's Club when I first came here. We separated the Boy's Club from the Boy's Home though I was still connected with both of them. The Boy's Club became the Boy's Welfare As-

TIMES ARE CHANGING
I have just returned from a week in New York, during which time I met with many prominent dealers. As I mentioned in my chat last week, there has been a distinct change in the attitude of most dealers towards stamps of the British Empire. One large firm who used to handle stamps of almost every country, is now specializing in British Empire. I naturally asked what had made them change so drastically and I was told that they had come to regard British Empire issues as something solid and something that could not be turned into a racket. There are of course, dealers who seize upon a new issue of some foreign country or another and by intense advertising run prices up for a while at the expense usually, of the young collector. This is impossible with the British Empire issues — the quantity available is just not there. But there are a great many good dealers in the United States.

I was considerably impressed with the attitude of most dealers towards Canadian issues, and I can only repeat my advice to you, the stamp collector. If you have not already started to collect Canada, do so without delay and make it a mint collection. I also recommend the use of Showgard mounts which not only protect your stamps but greatly enhance their appearance.

Incidentally, the Showgard people have brought out a cutter for trimming the mounts. These will be available in Canada within a matter of days and the price will be $1.25 plus sales tax, $1.33 in all. If you want something more pretentious, invest in a photographic trimmer, available at almost all Camera stores at various prices.

Most of the dealers I visited in New York report a growing demand for stamps of United Nations and they feel that present prices cannot last much longer. A complete collection, right up to date, does not entail very much of an outlay and future issues can be purchased from the United Nations Postal Administration at face value. Here again you have very moderate issues and stamps which are quite attractive. The United Nations Postal Administration will supply you with an illustrated album at low cost, but in my opinion the album put out by the Minkus people is way ahead of anything else. For one thing, the paper is heavy and of fine quality and of course, the Minkus people can be relied upon for annual supplements. Price is about $5.50.

The Minkus album for Canadian stamps is another fine product. It contains illustrated pages for Canada, Newfoundland, and the other early Provinces. It sells for $6.50 and you will find it difficult to beat.

Some of you will soon be putting your stamps away for the summer but you should not neglect picking up some of the new issues as they come out. The next Canadian stamp will commemorate the Colombo Plan and will be issued on June 28th. The next United Nations issue will be on September 18th, and will consist of a 4c. and an 11c. stamp in honor of the economic Commission for Latin America.

A COURSE FOR FATHER'S DAY

The wind freshens . . . whitecaps form . . .
the canvas fills and you are under way.
You have charted the course, noted reefs and shoals, compensated for drift and current. The boy at the helm can steer a true course if you have chosen it well.
Any father must feel the magnitude of the task of guiding his son through life's uncertain waters.

What responsible man could feel any other way?
This is Fatherhood . . . the realization that nothing is so important as guiding your own son along a course that has maturity of outlook and responsibility as its destination.

Such guidance requires a delicate touch, the mature understanding of a man who has sailed these waters before. And nowhere is this understanding more important than in the practice of Moderation in all things. It is this thought which The House of Seagram wishes to leave with you on Father's Day, 1961.

Anglicans give to flood relief

The Anglican Church of Canada through its Primate's World Relief Fund, has donated $10,000 to aid in the New Brunswick flood relief program, it has been announced here. The money has been forwarded to the Diocese of Fredericton for allocation.

Flood damage has been most devastating in the Saint John, Nashwaak and Miramichi Valleys. Houses were tipped over, swept away or flattened, personal belongings, livestock and equipment destroyed. Thousands of acres of land were inundated and fertile farmlands already seeded are a total loss.

The Anglican Church itself suffered when St. Peter's at Durham Bridge was undermined by floods.

Highways and bridges were smashed and torn away and cords of pulpwood littered highways and riverbanks and spread inland to mark the peak of the floods.

It is estimated that between 10,000 and 12,000 acres of productive farmland were flooded. Personal losses will exceed $1,000,000.

Whither away, young man?

Part II by

The Venerable R. Kenneth Naylor, D.D.
Rector, Trinity Memorial Church

When I was teaching I used to set an examination and give it to the students at the last lecture and tell them to take it home, use any books they wanted, and bring back the answers in three weeks. They did not like it because it made them work too hard. Another way is to complete the course and then tell the students to set the exam. Students do not like that either; it calls for too much imagination.

I am going to ask the High School graduating class of this year a question like this. You have been critical of the course you have been given; how would you draw up a course of study so that it would do two things for you (1) Keep up your interest; (2) provide the knowledge and technique and general background which will enable you to be a good citizen? What would you leave out of your course? English? Well, if you leave out English you ignore the most important thing that comes to you out of the past and also the ability to write a report of your work. Would you leave out French? You rob yourself of the ability to converse with 45 per cent of your fellow citizens; further, you lose the opening to very important jobs.

Would you leave out History? If you do you will never learn how people have reacted in the past to certain circumstances and you will probably make their mistakes all over again. If you leave out History you will be like the Christmas tree planted on Trinity Memorial grounds last December. It was like a tree but it had no root, and in the Spring it dried up. Perhaps you would leave out Mathematics and Science, but you would have great trouble getting and holding a job in an office or a factory; you would not be able to hold your own in an argument.

If you are critical of the course of study what would you add to it? Music and Art? They have been added for the benefit of those who want them, and it would be well if everyone made use of the privilege. Would you add more basketball and football? It would be well if every student had his place in one sport for the development of co-ordinated muscles, and general fitness, but greater emphasis probably would not produce better citizenship.

Frankly I do not think our curriculum is far out of line. It has been carefully designed to meet the greatest need of the greatest number. If I were asked as a student for my criticism I should say that we need two things: a better course in English Grammar, and a better realization of the fact that this universe is not an accident but God's plan for us. In that way I should bring into the course a co-ordinating philosophy, and the means to express it.

Hospital waiting lists increase

The advent of Hospitalization Insurance January 1, 1961 is responsible for the mounting waiting lists of patients at the Jewish General Hospital, it was disclosed in executive director, Samuel S. Cohen's report at the 27th Annual Meeting of the Hospital.

"While we operated at close to capacity throughout the year, the demand was such that non-urgent and elective cases waited from two to three months for admission," commented Mr. Cohen.

The situation was "aggravated" by the establishment of the Hospitalization Insurance, he said, and for the first four months of 1961 patients remained an average of one day longer in hospital.

Admissions increased in 1960 by 20 percent and rose to 10,562 which represents an increase of 1,747 over the previous year. Patient days totalled 108,154 as compared with 93,218 for 1959.

Private admissions totalled 1,761, semi-private 6,209 and public 2,592. Religious distribution remained relatively the same with 67 percent Hebrew, 17 percent Roman Catholic, 12 percent Protestant, and 4 percent other religious.

Steele has been Acting Director during Mrs. Horn's absence.

Certificates of recognition for 25 years of service were awarded to Miss Elsa Martineau, Physiotherapist in chief, Fred Goldstein, administrative assistant and Samuel Melnick, carpenter.

Mr. Cohen paid tribute to Dr. I. Sedlezky, chairman of the medical board for his "constant co-operation" and to the members of the medical board for their continued interest.

"I am grateful for the close co-operation I received from Dr. W. R. Slatkoff, Medical Director, who continues to devote himself to his difficult duties with undiminished enthusiasm," the Executive Director said.

To the officers and members of the Woman's Auxiliary, and in particular to Mrs. J. J. Block, he extended his thanks.

He concluded his report with an expression of gratitude to the President, Philip Garfinkle for his "devotion and limitless expenditure of time and energy," on behalf of the hospital.

Christian Science

The superiority of divine law over the laws of matter will be emphasized at the services in all the Christian Science churches this Sunday, in the reading of the week's Lesson-Sermon on the subject "Is the Universe Including Man, Evolved by Atomic Force?" Pertinent Bible selections will include John's account of how Christ Jesus walked on the sea to join the disciples in their ship. Explanatory passages from "Science and Health with Key to the Scriptures" by Mary Baker Eddy will include: "God never ordained a material law to annul the spiritual law. If there were such a material law, it would oppose the supremacy of Spirit, God and impugn the wisdom of the creator. Jesus walked on the waves, fed the multitude, healed the sick, and raised the dead in direct opposition to material laws."

More infants born

There were 1,667 infants born in the hospital, an increase of 153 over the last year. Average daily occupancy rose to 296 from 255 for the previous year. The maximum census of patients on any one day was 344 and the minimum 221. Out-patient visits totalled 78,260 of which more than 40 percent were free.

The year 1960 was recorded as the most active in the hospital's history, Mr. Cohen noted.

The appointment of Archie Deskin to the position of administrative assistant was reported as well as the appointment of Max Shainblum to the post of personnel Officer. Miss Edith Stern was appointed senior dietitian, while Mrs. Dorothy Horn was granted a year's leave of absence to undertake studies in England. Mrs. Shirley

Cardinal Leger opens first Czech mission house in Canada here

By HILARY MUNRO

Archbishop Josef Beran of Czechoslovakia was honored last night on the anniversary of his fifty years in the Church at the dedication of the Archbishop Beran's Cultural Centre, held at the Czech Mission House located on West Broadway below Somerset in N.D.G. Performing the ceremony was his Eminence Paul-Emile Cardinal Leger, DD.

Archbishop Beran was not present at the ceremonies. For the past 11 years his residence has been unknown, for he is a political prisoner in Czechoslovakia. In speaking of him, Cardinal Leger related that he believed himself to be the last bishop to have met Archbishop Beran before his imprisonment.

"It was in Rome in 1950. I asked him if he was returning to his country soon. He replied, 'I am not returning to my country: I am returning to Hell!' The Cardinal continued, 'He knew then what the leaders of that country would do to him, but he had to return for the sake of his people!'"

Speaking to an audience made up of many members of the Czech community, he warned them to keep their culture and to teach it to their children. He cautioned against becoming too materialistic and told them to stay close to their pastors. "Teach your children to keep something of the Czech spirit," he advised.

Examples of the Czech culture were given as the Czech Mixed Choir, conducted by Dr. Frank Stein, sang the rousing "Czech Song" by Bedrich Smetana. Several younger members of the community recited Czech poetry and sang Czech songs. Inthronisation, a poem by Czech poet Jan Zahrandnicek, was recited both in the original language and in a French translation.

With the close of the dedication ceremonies, the audience was

The 25th anniversary of ordination of the Rev. Wm. C. Nolting was observed at the Evangelical Lutheran Church of the Redeemer, Westmount, on Sunday, June 11.

At the morning service the Rev. A. Styker, pastor of the Norwegian Seamen's Church, delivered the sermon. Pastor John Peters brought the message at the evening service, assisted by Pastors A. A. Schweitzer, K. Raudsepp and H. Dahle. Other pastors present were the Reverends V. Beck, E. Bartsch and A. Voitkus.

Mr. A. Herbert, president of Redeemer Church Council, presented Pastor Nolting with a purse on behalf of the congregation; the Rev. J. Peters presented him with a pectoral cross on behalf of the Evangelical Lutheran Synod of Canada, and Pastor A. Schweitzer presented him with a Minister's Prayer Book on behalf of the Lutheran Ministerial Association of Montreal, of which Pastor Nolting is the president. Special music was rendered by the choir at both services.

In the afternoon the United Lutheran Church Women served tea to the many members and friends who came to extend their congratulations to the celebrant.

Prior to coming to Montreal six and a half years ago, Pastor Nolting served five parishes in the province of Ontario. His congregation proposes to build a new church and parish hall on the present site next year.

free to inspect the House. The site of the House was given a year ago to the day of the dedication, to the Czech Jesuit priests by the Jesuit fathers of Loyola University. Father Janicek, who is largely responsible for preparing the House, said that the establishment of it would make it possible for the Czech priests to be together. It will serve as a centre from which the priest will be sent out to points in Canada and the United States on missionary work. This is the first Czech Mission House in Canada.

The Mission House itself has room for 8 priests at a time. There are guest rooms for visiting priests, a chapel, kitchen, living and dining room facilities and offices.

The visitor has the feeling of spaciousness and light as he walks through the rooms. They are bright and airy and give the impression of being much larger than they really are.

The Cultural Centre is found in the basement of the House. There is a hall, kitchen facilities, a library and a reading room, which will be stocked with Czech newspapers written and printed in the United States. Father Janicek said that the Centre is "open to any group that wished to use it."

National president of CAC addresses annual meeting

The 13th annual meeting of the Quebec English Branch of the Canadian Association of Consumers held recently marked the beginning of a new era in the development of this fast-growing organization which in the few years since its inception has won recognition and respect at home and abroad.

Speaking to provincial delegates and representatives of participating organizations Mrs. A. F. W. Plumtree, National President, said her speech was entitled "CAC at the Crossroads". Her title was well chosen for she pointed out that the time had come for Canadian women to decide whether they could afford to stay at their present level of accomplishment or would they embark on a program of expansion which might entail testing of consumer goods, admittance of men to membership and the placing of CAC on a level where they speak as equals with government and big business. She asked all women and individual members of CAC in particular to make their wishes known on these questions of policy so that when the National Association convenes in September for the annual meeting in Toronto delegates will speak with the backing of the women of Canada.

Should it be the desire of the women to move forward into the areas mentioned they must be prepared to support the organization with money, time, higher membership fees and continuing interest. Already CAC has approached the Federal Government asking for a department of consumer affairs, pointing out that the President of The United States has recently appointed Dr. Persia Campbell head of a White House Committee on Consumer Affairs. While the request is now before the Department of Justice women must support CAC on all levels and press for implementation of their request.

A popular American consumers publication sells over 40,000 copies a month in Canada. Is this an indication that Canadians want testing of Canadian products? The Americans themselves say it is time a Canadian organization take on the testing of Canadian goods.

BRIEFS PRESENTED

At the present time CAC works primarily on three aspects, Protection, Representation and Education. In the interests of protection of consumer interests they have presented briefs to the Royal Commission on the Automotive Industry; Publications and Trading Stamps this past year. Results have been attained in securing promises from three automobile manufacturers that plans have been included for safety measures on their new models. The Canada Standard Size label for children's and women's clothes is available. Control of food additives is needed and women are urged to support the request of the Food and Drug Directorate for more inspectors. Letters to the Minister

A New World

We build a little world just for ourselves,
Surrounded by four walls and a small field,
We never think of highways unexplored,
Content, we garner in our little field.

Should we not shut all littleness away,
And build a larger world in which to live,
One all enclosing of our fellow-men,
And harbor blessings, which we then can give?

Mrs. F. Crawford elected president

A drive for new members and voluntary abstainers will continue. It was decided at the 75th Annual Convention of the Quebec Provincial Woman's Christian Temperance Union held June 7 and 8, when Mrs. F. R. Crawford, 5132 Macdonald avenue, N.D.G., was elected President.

Officers, superintendents and representatives from Unions throughout the province met at the YMCA with Provincial president, Mrs. J. B. Moore presiding.

Sessions were "optimistic and encouraging," it was reported by Mrs. J. P. Stanway, corresponding secretary residing at 4478 Melrose avenue. The group plans to continue "by education to help check the trend of social drinking, especially among younger people and teen-agers," Mrs. Stanway said.

Attending the convention were Mrs. W. S. Watson of Vancouver, B.C., National President for Canada and Mrs. I. H. Perigoe, National past president. Mrs. G. Clarke was speaker at the youth session, and Mrs. Shadgett, of the Salvation Army sang two solos, and provided piano accompaniment for her daughter's solo and son's cornet solo.

A memorial service was conducted by Mrs. W. D. Kirk and fifteen former associates in the work were remembered. Mrs. M. A. Reese sang a solo.

Jackie Kennedy might attract the male audiences in her travels, but we know some on the distaff side who practically flip each time television flashes a view of the handsome U.S. President.

Alan Mills presents his first play

Canadian actor and folk singer Alan Mills has added another string to his bow; now he's a playwright.

His first play, Ti-Jean and the Devil, will be presented Wednesday, June 21, at 3 p.m. EDT on CBC's Trans-Canada radio network.

Based on a French-Canadian folk tale, the play tells of a fiddler who cannot beat time with his foot to the tunes he plays. He makes a deal with the Devil to learn this skill.

Mills heard the story from Jean Carignan, a fiddler who often accompanies him in concerts of folk music.

"Some time ago," says Mills, "Jean and I were working on a new LP of folk songs for Folkways records and they asked me to include a folk legend.

"Jean told me about an old French-Canadian legend of a fiddler who made a bargain with the Devil. I added a bit to the story and decided to dramatize it. Once I started, all kinds of colorful characters I had known began pushing themselves into the story."

This summer, he will travel some 10,000 miles to appear in concerts and lecture recitals at folk festivals in California, Ontario and the Maritimes.

then we'll have this to talk about . . .

We received a short, short note from the public relations combination of Mary and Andy Cowans . . . Thanks, kiddies, we'll call . . .

Lou Miller, our advertising manager had a ball for himself with the visiting psychiatrists last week . . . Not, mind you, as a patient but as an observer!

We almost fell off our favorite rocking chair last week when Phil Silvers, as the celebrity guest star on the What's My Line television show, laughingly called dear Dorothy Kilgallen "Sneaky" when she uncovered his identity . . . Imagine that!

That's all, dear people. Drive carefully, please.

Loses golf ball

Golfer Charlie Bridger bashed his tee shot on the No. 6 hole at the Oakridge Country Club, but it landed he knows not where.

For just then he saw something in the shallow water of the lake which fronts the tee.

Into the water went Charlie and moments later he emerged with a three-pound rainbow trout.

Francois Godbout of Waterloo, Que., and John Swann of Toronto, members of Canada's 1961 Davis Cup team, are in Europe to participate in a series of international tennis tournaments.
