GOVERNMENT FORCES CLAIM FALL OF IMPORTANT FASCIST POSITION

Authoritative Sources Declare "Hospital Clinico," Chief Rebel Stronghold in University City Area of Madrid, Was Captured After All-Morning Battle—Establishment of Third Autonomous Sectional Government in Valencia Expected as Parliament Meets at Emergency Capital—Fascists Resume Airplane Bombardment.

Madrid, December 1.—Capture of the strategic "Hospital Clinico" from insurgents in an all-morning battle in University City was announced today by a reliable Government source.

A violent Government attack on the modern building, one of the major Fascist strongholds in northwestern Madrid during the long siege of the city, began with heavy cannonading.

Then a great blast from Government mines tore at the structure. Reports said it was half destroyed. Government infantrymen swarmed at the ruins and, in desperate fighting, officers said what remained of the building was wrenched from the defending insurgents.

At the same time there were reports of a heavy engagement in the model prison area. It followed heavy insurgent gun and airplane bombardment of Government lines in the Rosales and Cuatro Caminos districts of northwestern Madrid.

Socialist commanders described the attack as "the heaviest since the beginning of the war."

Fascist troops followed behind the barrage of bombs and shells falling on Government positions which blocked the way of the insurgents into the capital proper.

Government artillery replied to the bombardment and Socialist reinforcements were rushed into the trenches on the outskirts.

Earlier, the Government's barricades around Pozuelo de Alarcón, seven miles west of the capital, halted the Fascists' renewed drives on the El Escorial highway, commanders claimed.

(Dispatches from the Fascist lines reported capture of Humera, four miles from Madrid, by General Franco's forces.)

Socialist defence officials described the insurgent attacks as "violent assaults" in the hope of broadening the battle front to take in the entire northern sector.

The insurgents again attacked the outlying districts from the air, the bombardment being concentrated on Socialist fortifications around the model prison.

Government columns in the far north, meanwhile, were reported engaged in fresh fighting with Fascist troops near Vitoria, in the Bilbao sector.

Some sources declared the Socialist soldiers had occupied positions on two miles from Vitoria, an insurgent stronghold. Fascists were forced to abandon Villa Real, military reports to the defence junta asserted.

Heavy bombardment of Fascist headquarters, near Grado, in Oviedo province, was reported by Government artillery in the Asturias sector.

Renewed firing was heard in the model prison area during the early morning hours, but members of the Scottish ambulance brigade declared neither side gained any ground.

Military authorities said the battle in the capital's outskirts had taken on the aspect of a trench warfare, with both Fascists and Socialists securely dug in.

Evacuation of civilians and non-combatants continued, although facilities of obtaining sufficient transportation limited the number leaving daily to between 2,000 and 3,000.

The defence junta ordered all physicians and druggists to be prepared for military service. All medical supplies were placed under the control of the junta sanitary committee.

In Valencia, present seat of the Socialist Government, members of Parliament assembled for sessions which may approve establishment of a third autonomous sectional government in the nation.

FAMOUS RELIC OF VICTORIAN ERA DESTROYED

London's World-Famous Crystal Palace Is Today a Mass of Ruin and Molten Glass Following Fire which Swept Through Giant Structure.

London, Dec. 1.—London's world-famous Crystal Palace, relic of the Victorian era, was a smoking ruin of tangled steel and molten glass today following a fire which swept through the giant structure.

Sir Henry Buckland, managing director of the palace, its various exhibits and numerous auditoriums, declared that in his opinion the fire started from a gas explosion. He based his opinion on the rapid spread of the flames.

The great dome, built entirely of metal and glass, crashed in a blazing inferno shortly after the fire was discovered throwing sparks and flames six hundred feet high. Firefighters strove to prevent the conflagration from spreading to neighboring buildings and homes.

The flames threw a luminous pall over the entire capital and were visible for almost fifty miles. London's millions gathered on rooftops and vantage points throughout the metropolis to view the spectacular blaze.

An orchestra rehearsing in the Handel auditorium of the palace narrowly escaped with their lives when the fire was discovered shortly after eight p.m., so quickly did it eat its way into the great central auditorium. The big organ, one of the largest in England, was destroyed.

The research laboratory of Baird Television, Ltd., installed in the tower of the palace, was also destroyed.

Four firemen suffered minor injuries from smoke and flying glass. Damages have not been estimated.

The building was partly covered by insurance, but this was based on its original cost of approximately $8,750,000 in 1854. Sir Henry said the palace could not be duplicated today for less than $10,000,000.

DUKE OF KENT AMONG THE VOLUNTARY FIREMEN

London, Dec. 1.—The Duke of Kent, youngest brother of King Edward, was just a voluntary fireman when flames destroyed the famous Crystal Palace last night.

Returning to his residence from a banquet, the Duke arrived at his home in evening clothes. But immediately he donned a fireman's helmet, hipboots and raincoat and joined the front line of firefighters. He remained several hours amid the drenching column of spray from the hoses.

TWO MEN WERE OVERCOME BY MONOXIDE GAS

Wilfrid Brichon and Emile Paradis, of Plessisville, Removed to Local Hospital Early Today—Local Man Seriously Hurt When Struck by Car.

Carbon monoxide poisoning and a motor mishap sent three men to local hospitals today, one in a critical condition.

The alertness of Constable Roy, of the municipal police force, undoubtedly saved the lives of Wilfrid Brichon and Emile Paradis, both of Plessisville.

Constable Roy was patrolling his beat on Wellington street south at 4:25 o'clock this morning when he noted two men apparently sleeping in the driver's compartment of a motor truck that was parked at the curb.

The police officer noted that the vehicle's engine was running and that the heater of the car was operating. He opened the door of the truck and shook the two men, but they failed to awaken, the constable believed them to be under the influence of liquor and sent for the patrol wagon.

Brichon and Paradis were taken to police headquarters on Marquette street and the car was towed to the office of Lacharite and he sent for a doctor.

The doctor's examination revealed that the men were suffering from carbon monoxide poisoning and they were rushed by ambulance to the St. Vincent de Paul Hospital. Their condition was reported as satisfactory today.

Joseph Roberge, eighty-four years old, 14 St. Thomas street, was seriously injured last evening when struck by an automobile that was unable to stop owing to the slippery condition of the street. The accident occurred at the corner of Galt and Wellington street south at 7:05 o'clock last evening. The car was driven by G. O'Boyle, of this city.

O'Boyle, police said today, applied his brakes, but the car skidded on the ice-covered pavement, struck the elderly man and knocked him down. Roberge suffered a fractured left arm and left leg and injuries to the head. He was removed to the Sherbrooke Hospital.

GRAIN TRADE OPENS TODAY COMMISSION INQUIRY INTO
Winnipeg, Dec. 1.—Mr. Justice W. F. A. Turgeon, of Regina, today began hearing evidence in a Royal Commission inquiry into all phases of the Canadian grain trade.

Appointed by the Federal Government after a parliamentary committee last spring made a brief inquiry, the one-man Commission will sit in Winnipeg for at least the next two weeks.

EIGHT BELOW WAS RECORDED DURING NIGHT

Local Citizens Experienced Coldest Spell of Season, but Were Not Caught Unprepared, for Icy Wave Had Been in Offing for Several Days.

Local citizens today experienced the coldest spell of the season when the thermometer dipped to eight below zero.

This wave of cold weather had been in the offing for several days and it did not catch Mr. Citizen unprepared. He had already bundled into his winter garments and felt grateful this morning that he had.

The Lennoxville Experimental Farm reported yesterday's temperatures as maximum ten and minimum six and that on the same day last year maximum twenty-five and minimum twenty-two. During the night the mercury dropped to eight below, and had advanced one degree at seven o'clock this morning.

Comparatively little snow has fallen to date this season, and local highways are still open to motor traffic. The roads are in a slippery condition, however, and motoring is hazardous. The same situation prevails in the city, and numerous accidents during the past few days have been attributed to ice-covered pavements.

EASTERN U. S. IN GRIP OF FREEZING TEMPERATURES

New York, Dec. 1.—A Canadian-born cold wave, which advanced across the Great Lakes, moved into the eastern United States today, bringing below freezing temperatures.

The streets of New York were swept by winds with the temperature twelve degrees above zero.

Lovell, Mass., experienced the coldest December 1 in forty-seven years when the thermometer fell to eight above zero.

Canal traffic in the eastern inland waterways was impeded by the intense cold as sludge ice started to solidify.

Special difficulties were suffered in the Erie barge canal, running from Lake Erie to the Hudson River, near Albany, canal officials feared several barges would be unable to break through and would be forced to winter in the ice.

A flame thrower was used to clear the ice from lock 17, the highest lift of the waterway.

PRESIDENT'S PERSONAL BODY-GUARD DIES

Buenos Aires, Dec. 1.—August (Gus) Gencher, President Roosevelt's personal bodyguard, died today of a heart attack while dancing in a Buenos Aires restaurant.

MUTUAL DEFENSE ACCORD BETWEEN GREAT BRITAIN AND FRANCE NEAR

Agreement Between Two Countries Provides for Concerted Action in Case of Unprovoked Campaign of Aggression Against Either Signatory—Premier Blum Warns Communists They Must Accept Policy of Non-Intervention in Spanish Civil War or Cause Collapse of Popular Front Government.

Paris, Dec. 1.—Conclusion of an Anglo-French defensive accord, by which Great Britain and France agree to assist each other in case of an unprovoked attack, was reported by reliable sources today.

Charles Corbin, French Ambassador to London, personally communicated the French pledge to the British Foreign Office in response to a similar guarantee from Great Britain on November 20th, it was declared.

(Anthony Eden, the British Foreign Secretary, at that time declared France could count on British aid if she were attacked without provocation by another European nation. Last week he made a similar pledge to Belgium.)

The end of the military assistance negotiations came after members of Premier Leon Blum's cabinet met for what an authoritative source said was a study of "certain problems of defence posed by present events."

The Government meanwhile served notice to Communists their party must accept non-intervention in the Spanish civil war or cause the collapse of the "Popular Front" administration.

"The Communists must take their responsibilities," Premier Blum's Socialist newspaper, Le Populaire, declared.

"The Communist group, by voting against the Government, will determine its immediate resignation regardless of the total result of the vote."

Communist officials, however, asserted they would not relent in demands that France assist the Spanish Socialist Government.

FLAMES CAST RED GLOW OVER VALLEY OF THE MOON

Sonoma, Calif., Dec. 1.—Flames cast a red glow over the Valley of the Moon as five ranch homes were destroyed by a bush fire which raged towards the village of Glen Ellen early today.

The valley is noted as the home of the late Jack London, author. The Sonoma State Home and Mont La Salle novitiate, a Christian brothers' Catholic school, were feared to be in danger.

KEEN SPECULATION OVER CANADA'S FUTURE STAND ON WESTERN PEACE

Prime Minister Hints that Dominion Might Join in Many Unions that Make for Good Relations Between Nations, Although Unlikely to Enter Into Military Alliance—No Announcement of Results of Any Possible Conference to Be Made Before Opening of Parliament—Inter-American Conference Opened Today.

Ottawa, Dec. 1.—Political observers today were left speculating on how far Canada might go in any move for inter-American cooperation designed to strengthen the bonds of peace in the Western Hemisphere.

The reason was Prime Minister Mackenzie King's statement yesterday to newspapermen when he reminded them Canada has not been invited to join any "Western League of Nations."

It was impossible, he declared, to say what the future would indicate as the proper course to pursue, but it might be that Canada would join many unions that make for good relations between nations, although it was unlikely this country would join any military alliance.

The Prime Minister was asked to comment on speculative reports regarding Canada's possible participation in any league arising from the Inter-American Peace Conference which President Roosevelt will open in Buenos Aires today.

He recalled that a chair had been held vacant at Washington in the Pan-American Union, but reminded his hearers that previous governments had withheld from participation in that body's activities.

However, he said, some conference might be held before Parliament meets on the waterways treaty involving possible development of an international deep-sea route from the St. Lawrence to the lake head.

(Possibilities of a deeper water inland route from Montreal to New York were examined last week by the International Joint Commission which held hearings in upstate New York, Vermont and Montreal.)

In any event, the Prime Minister said, no announcement resulting from possible conference on the subject would be made before the opening of Parliament.

PROPOSED NEUTRALITY PACT FEATURES PARLEY

Buenos Aires, Dec. 1.—Delegates from twenty-one American nations, looking forward to President Roosevelt's opening address, hailed the Inter-American Peace Conference today as being the "whole-hearted support of citizens of all western world republics."

They gave full credit for the conference proposal to the United States President, who first suggested the meeting last February.

Mr. Roosevelt was to open the session at six p.m. (4 p.m. E.S.T.) and the delegates were called to order by Carlos Saavedra Lamas, Argentine Foreign Minister.

Actual discussions at the international assembly will not begin until Thursday after organization details have been completed under the supervision of a steering committee composed of the heads of the twenty-one delegations.

Among the prominent speakers at later sessions will be Cordell Hull, United States Secretary of State, and Dr. Saavedra Lamas.

Outstanding among the projects to be considered is Secretary Hull's proposed neutrality treaty to bind the American nations in strict agree-

THOUSANDS OF REICH VOLUNTEERS REINFORCE SPANISH INSURGENTS

Spain Rapidly Becoming Cockpit of Europe with Arrival of Five Thousand Germans at Seville Within Past Forty-Eight Hours—Russian and French Volunteers Reported in Government Ranks—British Nationals, Despite Government Warnings, Are Fighting on Both Sides—Great Britain Plans No Early Representations.

London, December 1.—Spain is becoming the cockpit of Europe. The British Government today received information that approximately six thousand Germans arrived at Seville within the past forty-eight hours to reinforce the insurgent troops of General Francisco Franco. It is assumed that they were landed from two boats at Cadiz.

The information received does not show that they are a military formation or equipped for service.

"But," it was authoritatively stated today, "if they are shown to be a military formation armed and equipped by the German Government, the British Government would deplore it."

As the Germans did not proceed to Spain through any British territory, the British Government, it is understood, does not feel called upon to make representations. That is the business of the Spanish Government. The non-intervention agreement, it is pointed out, does not affect volunteers. It is confined to the supply of armaments. If the Germans were armed, however, whether they are volunteers or not, their armaments would be a breach of the agreement.

From the opposite side, Russia is sending help to the Madrid Government. It was learned that a General with more than one hundred Russian officers arrived at Malaga to take command of Spanish forces there. Twenty tri-colored Russian planes also are at Malaga.

French volunteers are moving across the frontier to help Catalonia. Four thousand are reported at Barcelona.

British nationals, despite Government warnings, are fighting on both sides. General Eoin O'Duffy and forty volunteers from the Irish Free State arrived at Burgos for service under General Franco. British volunteers—their number not accurately known—are fighting with the International Brigade helping to defend Madrid.

So again Spain casts her shadow over Europe. Great Britain will be represented at the special meeting of the League of Nations Council on December 10th when the Spanish Government submits its complaint regarding recognition of the insurgents by Italy and Germany.

ANOTHER OF ABERHART'S SIDE ISSUES COLLAPSES

British Columbia Social Credit Union Has Closed Its Office and Is Preparing to Withdraw from Political Field.

Vancouver, Dec. 1.—The British Columbia Social Credit Union, said to have been organized at the instigation of Premier Aberhart, prepared today to close its office here and to withdraw from the political field in this province.

Announcement secretary John Loveseath, executive secretary, had resigned and the office would be closed was made yesterday.

The British Columbia Social Credit League, a separate organization not following leadership of any particular person, announced last Friday it had selected eleven candidates for the next provincial election and would contest all forty-eight seats.

The Union statement said Premier Aberhart had asked Mr. Loveseath last September to form the organization in British Columbia to "endeavor to co-ordinate the social credit forces in British Columbia into one unified body that would act under Premier Aberhart's direction and leadership."

A NEW SINGING CAREER IS PLANNED BY GALLI-CURCI

Noted Diva Dismissed with a Laugh What Critics Said about Her Chicago "Re-debut" in "La Boheme."

Minneapolis, Dec. 1.—Madame Amelita Galli-Curci, dismissed with a laugh today what the critics said about her Chicago "re-debut" in "La Boheme"—and shaped plans for a new singing career as a lyric soprano.

The forty-seven year old diva acknowledged, in an interview, that she had been a coloratura ever since she bowed to her first European audience twenty-nine years ago.

"But coloratura singing is for the young, lyric is for the matured," she said. "I have always felt that something was missing. That something I have captured in my lyric singing."

Doctors operated on Mme. Galli-Curci's throat a year ago to remove a growth. She made her comeback appearance with the Chicago City Opera Company last Tuesday. Critics were dubious. They said she "backed away" from climaxes.

But yesterday Eugene Stinson, music critic of the Chicago Daily News, was willing to write it off as "a gigantic case of nerves." He had just heard the microphone recordings. He said they "attest the amazing fitness of her vocalism."

ment not to assist belligerent nations in time of war.

The proposal would establish a permanent consultative committee made up of the Foreign Ministers of the western countries who would conduct their discussions by radio-telephone and cable to assure rapid action to prevent the outbreak of war involving any American nation

SHERBROOKE HOBO ENJOYED HEARTY MEAL: "Clyde the Bum" stopped off at Fort Erie, Ont., and asked for a bit of work in return for a bite to eat yesterday, according to a news despatch.

Then he ate six fried eggs, a tremendous helping of oatmeal, half a loaf of bread, four cups of coffee, a sauceman of beans, eight boiled potatoes, a large slab of salt pork, and sundry items.

The self-styled "bum" revealed he is Clyde Campbell, forty-two, from Sherbrooke, Quebec. He is over six feet tall and weighs more than 200 pounds.

STUDENTS HELP COLLEGE STAFF TO FIGHT FIRE: Blaze in Attic of Home Occupied by Professors F. G. Vial and E. Owen and Families Extinguished by Bishop's University Collegians and Firefighting Staff.

Firefighting is not a subject on any college curriculum, but this morning students of Bishop's University picked up a few practical hints on how to extinguish a blaze when they helped the college brigade to stamp out the flames which threatened to destroy the residence shared by Professor F. G. Vial and Professor Elvion Owen and their families.

The blaze was first noticed about nine-thirty o'clock when smoke was seen coming out of the attic of the building situated a short distance from the University campus. Workmen were defrosting a pipe in the cellar and it is believed that the flames made their way through the walls up to the top storey.

In a few minutes a large number of volunteer firefighters were on the scene to assist the college staff. They carried Professor Vial, who has been confined to his bed for some time, to safety before attempting to save the furniture.

abe, thirty-six years old, to the police. Watanabe, arrested with dynamite, a razor-edged spearhead and petitions to five cabinet ministers in his possession, told police he had bought a chance for three days to kill Premier Hirota.

He said he had about 150 yen ($43) when he arrived in Tokyo from Fukushima prefecture, and had planned to spend part of it to bribe Hirota's chauffeur in order to get him close enough to Hirota to attack him.

But when he stopped to buy a bottle of milk, he told police, his pockets were picked clean. Penniless, he sat on a park bench to think over the situation.

The milk, apparently, was contaminated. Watanabe soon became violently ill. A passing policeman offered to massage his stomach.

While performing this service, the patrolman discovered the dynamite and petitions concealed in Watanabe's clothing. He immediately took Watanabe to the police station where, officials said, he confessed.

SENIORS TOOK LOCAL HOUSE LEAGUE TITLE

Freshmen's Victory Failed to Prevent Seniors from Annexing Championship of Y. M. C. A. House Basketball League—Sophomores Ruined Grads' Title Hopes.

Victories for the Freshmen and the Sophomores concluded the regular Y.M.C.A. House Basketball League season and handed the 1936 championship to the Seniors. The new title holders lost the initial contest of the final double-header programme to the Freshmen and left the Grads with a chance of creating a deadlock for first place.

The place Sophomores stepped into the picture, however, and defeated the Grads to dispose of a play-off for premier honors. These results left the Seniors in the top berth with the Freshmen and the Grads sharing the runner-up position ahead of the Sophomores.

The sharp-shooting of Harry Gray and Stan Lohrop brought about the downfall of the Seniors by a score of thirty-six to twenty-four. Lohrop was the major factor in the first half of the game, being responsible for eleven of the nineteen points which provided the Freshmen with a three-point lead at halftime.

Gray was the spearhead of the Fresh offensive after the intermission, producing ten points as his team outpointed the Seniors by seventeen to eight. The final reckoning revealed that Gray had achieved individual honors with nine field baskets. Lohrop placed second with fifteen points and Bill Hammond, of the Seniors, placed third with six field goals.

The line-ups and individual point-getters were: Freshmen: Lohrop 11-4; Gray 8-10; Hall 6-1; Simpson, Cooper, D. Cochran and T. Stevens 0-2. Total, 19-17-36.

Seniors: B. Jowett 0-4; Varney 0-2; Hammond 10-2; Tomlinson, C. Stocks, Standish, Munkittrick and Taylor. Total, 16-8-24.

Twenty-four points were chalked up in the Sophomore-Grads encounter and of these 22 Sophomores were credited with fourteen. The tail-enders established an eight to nothing lead before intermission and were outscored by the Grads to the tune of ten to six in the latter stages of the game.

Bill Cochran, of the Sophomores, and Syd Ball, of the Grads, shared point-getting laurels with four field baskets each.

The teams and individual scores follow: Sophomores: D. Cochran 4-4; Reid, Whitley 2-0; Bryce 2-0; Lowe 2-2 and Whittle, Total, 10-14. Grads: A. Wootton, D. Wootton 0-0; Ball 0-8; Wutcher, A. Stocks and Pettigrew. Total 0-10-10.

The final standing is: P. W. L. F. A. P. Seniors 6 4 2 214 179 8; Freshmen 6 3 3 189 161 6; Grads 6 3 3 142 163 6; Sophomores 6 2 4 150 182 4.

POCKET PICKER SAVED LIFE OF JAP'S PREMIER: Would-Be Assassin, Robbed of Money by Pickpocket, Was Unable to Bribe Premier's Chauffeur to Get Near Enough Hirota to Attack Him.

Tokyo, Dec. 1.—A pickpocket unwittingly frustrated a plan to assassinate Premier Koki Hirota, authorities disclosed today.

The pickpocket was one link in a chain of extraordinary circumstances which delivered Ko Watanabe, thirty-six years old, to the police.

Watanabe, arrested with dynamite, a razor-edged spearhead and petitions to five cabinet ministers in his possession, told police he had bought a chance for three days to kill Premier Hirota.

He said he had about 150 yen ($43) when he arrived in Tokyo from Fukushima prefecture, and had planned to spend part of it to bribe Hirota's chauffeur in order to get him close enough to Hirota to attack him.

But when he stopped to buy a bottle of milk, he told police, his pockets were picked clean. Penniless, he sat on a park bench to think over the situation.

The milk, apparently, was contaminated. Watanabe soon became violently ill. A passing policeman offered to massage his stomach.

UNEXPECTED TRIUMPH WAS SCORED BY PEPSICS: The march of the Newsies towards the top of the standing and the parade of the Musketeers in the opposite direction have co-featured the activities of the Monday night Mixed Bowling League during the past few weeks.

The Musketeers swallowed their bitterest pill of the season to date last night when they were blanked by the downtrodden Pepsics. Victorious in only four of twenty-seven strings before last evening, the tail-enders turned the tables in unexpected style and dragged the Musketeers down to a spot four strings behind the deadlocked leaders.

A low man was the high man for the Schmees in two of their three strings against the Newsies. The Schmees were handicapped by the absence of a sixth player but succeeded in winning the third string after the Newsies had won the first two contests handsly.

PRISONER MAKES MONEY APPEAR FROM THIN AIR

Man Held in Kentucky Jail for Mental Observation Shows Unusual Ability to Produce Five and Ten-Dollar Bills from Apparently Empty Pockets.

Newport, Ky., Dec. 1.—Newport police and jail attendants sat "on edge" today, waiting for Sam Malusch, a seventy-five year old prisoner, to conjure up more money, possibly as much as $300 to $500.

True, said Sgt. W. J. Ulrich, a whole twenty-four hours had passed since Malusch was found reclining on his cell cot, idly flipping a fifty cent piece into the air, his foot beating time to a lustily-whistled tune.

Before that, even periodic searches failed to lessen his ability to produce five and ten dollar bills—each time with a request "for cigarettes."

Came Alex Malusch, a brother residing in nearby Cold Springs, Ky., to visit him. Mystified patrolmen told their story.

"Shucks," he told Chief Leo Livingston, "Sam should have between $300 and $500. Officers gulped. They recalled when he was first admitted for mental observation at the request of relatives, they had searched his pockets, had found nothing, and were not surprised. Even a change of cells failed to halt the "flood."

"Well," commented Ulrich, "either there's more to come—or maybe he's spent the rest. Who knows?"

McKENNEY ON BRIDGE FIGURES OPPOSITION FIRST

Player Selects Most Favorable Defense Division, and Hand Is In for Grand Slam Contract.

By Wm. E. McKenney Secretary, American Bridge League. Dr. Louis Mark, who not only has attained eminence in his profession, but is one of the outstanding bridge players of Columbus, O., is making an effort to take the next fall tournament of the American Bridge League to his own home town.

It's a laudable ambition, but if the league officers yield to the doctor's pleas, the experts both east and west will find plenty of good opposition right on the home grounds, as it were.

In today's hand, which Dr. Mark, sitting in the South, played at seven spades, there are a number of interesting questions, in both bidding and play.

The explanation of the bidding, the doctor stated that his partner used the Culbertson System, "with all its frills," which perhaps is a compliment to that method.

AYER'S CLIFF TALENT STAGED A FINE COMEDY

Entertaining Three-Act Comedy, "Mrs. Tubbs of Shanty Town," Was Presented Under Auspices of Young People's Society.

Ayer's Cliff, December 1.—Local talent presented an entertaining three-act comedy, "Mrs. Tubbs of Shanty Town," under the auspices of the Young People's Society Friday evening, November 20th.

The cast, under the efficient direction of Mrs. J. F. McVeay, was: Mrs. Mollie Tubbs, the sunshine of Shanty Town, Miss Doris Gibson; Miss Clingie Vine, her genteel lady boarder, Miss Victoria McVeay; Mrs. Ellen Hickey, a neighbor who hated to gossip, Miss Helene Davis; Maydelle Campbell, the pretty young school teacher, Miss Edith Belyea; Simon Rubbels, the corner grocery man looking for a wife, Jack Gibson; Tom Kirdan, a young census taker, Raymond McVeay; Queenie Sheba, Melchusalen (Schuyfles) and Billy Blossom Tubbs, the three Tubbs children, Rachel Whipple, Ronald Bell and Arnold Whipple; Elmira Hickey and Sarah Jane, May Pierce and Doreen Bell.

The simple story expressed everyday life of a lady of unconquerable optimism who lived in Shanty Town. She had three children with her, but her heart went out to the boy who went away. A false report caused her to make a trip to Kansas to find her lost son, and she returned with the news that it was another lad of the same name.

The corner grocer decided that the thrifty Mrs. Tubbs would make an excellent spouse, and goes to visit her with matrimonial intentions. Miss Vine, whose mother was a Virginia Hampe, thinks she is the object of the amorous grocer's attentions and is heartbroken when she learns his true opinion of old maids in general and herself in particular.

Today's Contract Problem

South is playing the contract at six spades. He can count six spades, two diamonds, and one club, with two more hearts certain after giving up a heart trick. But where does he find the trick necessary to make his contract?

When dummy hand came down, the doctor relates, "I almost fell out of my chair." But study showed him that in any one of three ways the contract might be made—if the queen and jack of clubs were doubled, if the king of hearts was in the west hand, or if the diamonds lay four and two, and the adversary held trumps were evenly divided.

The doctor decided to play for the last setup, and won the diamond lead with the king. He then lay down the ace of hearts, and trumped another heart. Another diamond to the ace permitted a second heart ruff, and the ace of clubs in dummy furnished another entry to trump dummy's last heart.

The king of spades then was overtaken with the ace, and the trumps dropped three and three, upon which the doctor discarded two small clubs. Two more diamond tricks and the club king accounted for the last three tricks.

Want and sorrow are the wages that folly earns for itself, and they are generally paid.—Schubert.

Canada Again To The Fore.

Once again the wheat fields of northwestern Canada have proved their superiority as sources of supply for the world's bread basket with the dual triumph by Herman Trelle, of the Peace River country of Alberta, who again carried off the wheat and oats titles at the International Grain and Hay Show at Chicago. Trelle has had an unusual record at the Chicago show, scoring two double wins and winning sixteen grand championships since he took part in the competition.

Thus, despite drought and other vicissitudes of nature, the Canadian West has proved its stuff, and it is on the record of such men as Herman Trelle that the prairies base their hope for a come-back when nature smiles on them again.

Canada And The Empire.

Apparently the United Farmers of Ontario desire, imperially, to have their cake and eat it too, judging from a resolution passed at their convention in Toronto calling upon Premier King to declare at the next Imperial Conference that Canada will not follow the other members of the Empire into war. In plain English they want Canada to "run her own show" regardless of what Britain, Australia, New Zealand or other parts of the Empire may do. But Canada cannot proclaim complete political independence and still retain her place in the Commonwealth of Nations.

Should she break away from the Empire, Canada would lose the military and naval protection of Britain which she has enjoyed in the past without a cent of expenditure and which protection is vitally necessary until Canada becomes much larger and stronger than she is now.

Another thing that the Ontario farmers apparently overlook is that Great Britain provides Canada's most important export market, especially for the products of Ontario's farms, and this market has been gained largely on account of Canadian membership in the Commonwealth. If the Dominion hopes to retain this market, it must accept some responsibility. It cannot receive everything and give nothing, a fact these United Farmers apparently do not understand.

Miss Macphail Yaps Again.

Miss Agnes Macphail, first woman member of the Canadian Parliament, has the rather unhappy faculty of speaking out of turn and on subjects of which she knows little or nothing. Her latest yaps was delivered in Washington when she declared that Canadians were becoming restive over the United States rearmament programme.

Miss Macphail is a person who sees a war bogey in the least sign of military preparedness. She has for years protested that Canada's very modest militia expenditures are a menace to the peace of the world, and it was largely through her objections that the valuable cadet training was suspended in Canadian schools. As long as Miss Macphail confined her attacks on armaments to Canada she was more or less on safe ground, as nobody takes her very seriously, but when she appoints herself as Canada's spokesman abroad the situation is materially altered.

The average Canadian, probably ninety-nine per cent. of the population, has not the slightest concern in the world over the United States rearmament programme. In fact does not care whether a cannon is stored in every U. S. farmer's barn. For a hundred years or more the two nations have lived peacefully side by side and through revolving periods of armament and disarmament have not experienced the slightest trouble. Canadians appreciate United States rearmament for just what it is intended to be—a defensive force—and in many ways it is an added measure of security for the Dominion.

Encourage These Young Canadians.

Once again the members of the Boy Scout organization in Sherbrooke and vicinity, in common with their fellow scouts throughout the land, are undertaking their annual toy shop, by which they hope to provide toys and other gifts for those children who would otherwise be forgotten by Santa Claus at the festive season.

This is a movement which has received well-merited support from Sherbrooke citizens in the past, old and damaged toys having been received in large numbers, while cash donations have amounted to substantial sums. This year the officials again seek the whole-hearted co-operation of the citizens.

Nothing is too old, for the manner in which the Scouts repair the toys is truly remarkable. Articles battered and worn almost beyond recognition are repaired and repainted until in many cases they are as good as new.

Important as these toyshops are in bringing joy into the world at Christmastide, they have another side equally as important, as in the words of the poet:

"The quality of mercy is not strained,
It is twice-blessed;
It blesseth him that gives and him that takes."

In these toy shops the boys, the Canadian citizens of the future, are taught that they have a certain responsibility to their less-fortunate neighbors and learn that greatest of all real joys—the joy of giving.

Nobel Peace Prize And Hitler Revenge.

The award of the Nobel peace prize to Carl von Ossietzky, who has spent the past three years in a German concentration camp, shows Nazi Germany what the outside world thinks of Reichsfuehrer Hitler's little ways. And the official Nazi reaction to the award ought to show the outside world that the world's attitude is correct.

Understandably enough, the Nazis are furious. A Government spokesman made a rather sinister remark about the case: "If disruptive elements wish to rally behind the name of Von Ossietzky, we shall have to reconsider our position in regard to him."

Consider the facts for a moment. Von Ossietzky spent three years in prison and came out with his health ruined. He is now struggling to recover in a Berlin hospital. But, say the all-powerful German leaders, if the outside world is going to make too much fuss about him, we shall get even. We shall throw him right back into prison!

It is an appalling thing to see a government of a major nation actuated by the motives of a school-yard bully.

What Editors Say

PREMIER KING'S LONG RECORD.

The stability of the Canadian political system—as contrasted with systems elsewhere—is illustrated by the Hon. J. C. Elliott's remark at an Ottawa gathering to the effect that Mr. King has been leader of the Liberal party for more than seventeen years. In no other country, the Postmaster-General pointed out, has anyone held a party leadership so long in a period of such troublous times.

With events so interesting and time passing so rapidly, it is hard to appreciate that Mr. King has carried the responsibility of the Liberal leadership seventeen years. Yet it was in 1919 that he was chosen to succeed the Rt. Hon. Sir Wilfrid Laurier. And he has had a large measure of success, having spent considerably more than half of the seventeen years as head of the Government and having led the party through no less than five election campaigns. His greatest reverse came in 1930; his chief triumph was in 1935 when he was returned to power with the largest majority ever given a party leader in the whole history of the nation.

His opponents have sometimes styled Mr. King as Canada's "luckiest politician," and, at the same time, called his old opponent, Mr. Meighen, "the unluckiest." Be this as it may no one can question the abilities of the present Prime Minister. He is a clever man who, in his early youth, is said to have determined to become head of the Canadian Government and to have shaped his educational career with that in mind. Few men aim so high and of those who so aim, few indeed reach the goal.

SELLING CHARACTER.

Seeing how propagandists sell war to nations, how politicians seem to be able to sell any sort of quack nostrum to a gullible citizenry, a local business man asks: Why not sell character to youth by modern advertising methods?

If the same enthusiasm could be put into a campaign to impress youngsters that character really counts and that lack of it is the road to disaster, it would bring dividends. If the same brains and energy were used to sell character that are employed to sell real estate, automobiles or cigarettes, we might have a smaller population in St. Quentin. Youngsters might come to know the elements of character as they know cars.

A few Neon signs on character might catch the eye of a generation that is out to get all that is coming to it. Putting more business into character would result in more character in business.

COMMUNISM'S NEW CHARTER

L'Action Catholique, Quebec.
Communism will be just the same after the adoption of the new charter prepared by Stalin. We must bear in mind that Communism is founded upon a philosophy that denies God, the immortality of the soul, the right of ownership and the legitimacy of the family. The "Red" leaders may very well make some concessions to succeed in remaining in power, facilitate the spread of their subversive propaganda, enter the parliament and make inroads into the associations of workmen and peasants. But we must never forget that these concessions are made in order that the Reds may better establish the principles of their inhuman philosophy.

QUEBEC'S MINERAL WEALTH

L'Information, Montreal.
It must be admitted that until recently the mineral wealth of Quebec has been considerably neglected. It was well known that there were in the northwest of Quebec important mineral deposits. The discovery of Noranda a few years ago had clearly revealed that fact. But for one reason or another our business men were not interested, or very little, in these latent riches. Others concerned themselves in them sometimes, but not we. At the outset, mining finance was too long left in the hands of irresponsible people whose sole objective was to get rich quickly. Hundreds of thousands of dollars were thus lost in mining adventures. It goes without saying that with the dollars confidence was likewise lost. In spite of everything, progress was made, but our business men of Montreal remained blind or pretended not to see. Toronto, on the other hand, opened its eyes, with the result that the development of our mining domain, in the course of later years, has been much more profitable to Ontario than to Quebec.

MARRIAGE WILL NOT END CAREER OF OPERA SINGER

Rosa Ponselle Admits She Is Going to Marry Carl A. Jackson, the Beau-Ideal She Met in Quiet and Cultured Baltimore, but that She Is Not Going to Forsake Grand Opera.

Baltimore, Dec. 1.—Romance like a page from a story book has come to lead beautiful Rosa Ponselle to the altar, but not away from grand opera.

Soon—just how soon she cannot say yet—she will wed tall and handsome Carl A. Jackson, the beau-ideal she found in quiet and cultured Baltimore. But her singing will go on.

That much they made clear as Miss Ponselle entertained her husband-to-be yesterday at the Green Spring Valley mansion where she is staying. Said the star of the Metropolitan Opera Company: "As long as my voice responds as it does—and I hope that will be for many years—Carl intends to let me go on singing."
"Aye, captain," said Jackson, serious-minded, young polo-playing business man.

Impressions of Europe

LIFE IN BRUSSELS.

Brussels seems to spread out in all directions. It is a city of great squares and broad, lovely boulevards, side by side with narrow, ugly and evil-smelling streets. Never have I seen so many statues in a place before. Every hero in the history of Brussels, from a statue of Geoffrey de Bouillon before the Bank of Brussels to a statue of Leopold II, in the Royal Park. One gets the impression of a big city built in the heroic fashion. The houses in Brussels are huge. Great halls and immense rooms are to be found in all the residences. Some apartment houses are now being built, but it is only very recently that this step has been taken.

The "Grand Place" is the pride of Brussels, and is a magnificent sight. On one side is the city hall, of which an interesting tale is told. This building was erected about 1670, and is a gem of Gothic architecture. However, when it was completed the great tower of the building was found to be slightly more to the right than it should have been. As a result of the criticism the architect mounted the highest point of the great tower and threw himself into the square below. Opposite the City Hall and on either side of it are great buildings of equal age, and in the centre is the great cobbled square. It gives an impression of great age, and somehow of mystery and decay which is not found at home. Brussels is undoubtedly beautiful and a city of contrasts, with the huge mansions built in a style of years ago and the office buildings following the most modern of building trends. Lovely boulevards, fine roads and, in the lower town, evil-smelling and crooked narrow streets—such is Brussels.

Sports

The chief sports in Brussels are field hockey and soccer. Soccer is the Belgian national game and field hockey is widely played.

But now a craze of ice hockey is sweeping the country. Due to the energetic efforts of Van Schelle, a member of the Belgian Olympic bobsledding team, and for years the Belgian national swimming champion, ice hockey is being widely advertised, and the Belgians are eagerly taking up the game. Monsieur Van Schelle has built two artificial rinks in Brussels and controls about ten hockey teams. Harry Griffith, well known to Eastern Townships sporting circles, is Van Schelle's chief mainstay. Together with Tim Clement, "Pinky" Downs and Bert Shaw, of Stratford, Ont., he has produced a team which is the best in Belgium. Crowds of five and six thousand flock to the matches, and the four Canadians are at present the toast of Brussels.

Squash racquets has just been started in Belgium. Heretofore, the Belgian national tennis champion, has organized a club and I saw the first two rounds of their initial tournament yesterday. The chief hindrance to proficiency in sports in this country is that men do not begin athletics until they reach the university. In short they do not begin early enough.

People

The people of the city give one the impression of being somewhat anaemic. On inquiring the reason for this I was told that it was due to the great lack of proper food during the war years. Men who were children in the war years were deprived of sufficient milk, eggs and other dairy products, and today they still show the results of this lack of food.

Generally speaking, the Belgian women are not attractive. They use a tremendous amount of make-up, and not very skillfully.

Politics

There is still a tremendous feeling against the Germans. They tell me that they will never forget the horrors of the war.

The Belgians lean less towards France and more towards England. They hope to remain neutral in case of war, looking to England to uphold that neutrality.

Internally their politics are enlivened by the feeling between the "Wallons" and the "Flemish." Everything is published in both French and Flemish, and to hold a government post it is necessary to speak both languages.

Louis Degrulle, the leader of the much publicized "Rexist" party, is losing a great deal of his former popularity.

I am going to have an interview with him, and will write more of him later.

Social Life

It seems that every unemployed female in Brussels is a chaperone! The young ladies have nothing like the freedom which Canadian girls enjoy. They are not allowed to go to the movies or to dances until they are engaged. A young lady of nineteen or twenty who is not engaged would never think of going anywhere alone with a man. In Belgium the parents are the law, but this has certain advantages. For instance, when a young couple wish to get married, and if the match is suitable, then the parents of both the boy and girl supply them with enough income, which, added to the husband's salary, permits them to live in comfort. This arrangement might be advantageously carried out in countries where it is impossible for the youth, due to financial reasons, to marry.

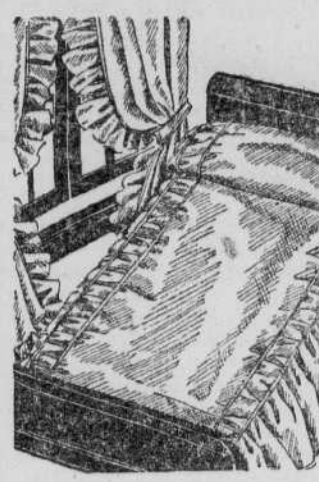

And this in brief is a review of the life in Brussels. The people lead a more quiet and sheltered life than we are used to. But, on the other hand, the fine freedom and companionship which we have at home between boy and girl is lacking here.

A FINE COMEDY STAGED BY ST. AGNES' GUILD

Experiences of Dreamy Archaeologist in Field of Modern Civic Politics Vividly Portrayed by Church of the Advent Group in "Presenting Polly."

"Presenting Polly," a charming, up-to-date comedy in three acts, proved a delightful entertainment as staged by local talents under the direction of Rev. E. K. Moffatt in the Church of the Advent hall last evening.

The scenes are laid in the attractive living room, which was decorated with lovely flowers given by Mr. H. Woollerton, of Mrs. Burton's home, where this dignified and aristocratic lady awaits the arrival of her nephew, Amos Burton, a famous young archaeologist who has just returned from Egypt. Great excitement prevails in the heretofore well regulated household, even the stoic butler, Teagle, becoming mildly inquisitive about the "mummies" the professor is supposed to be bringing home. The news spreads quickly and Jimmy Prosser, a bright young reporter, is the first arrival. Miss Sue Lowell, a pretty flapper who is just "crazy" to see the "dummies" is the next on the scene, and finally Miss Polly Rogers, formerly engaged to Amos, enters. Mrs. Burton, who is almost overcome by the heterogeneous crowd of people assembled in her drawing room, is too amazed for words when two "impossible" looking individuals, Mr. and Mrs. William Maguire, who have raised Amos since he was twelve years old, enter without him. After the thunder of applause which greeted this inimitable pair, Amos himself entered, this nervous and seemingly absent minded young man being warmly welcomed by his aunt, who chides him about his silly quarrel with "Polly" and rather insists that they are still engaged. At this stage the villain of the plot enters with Robert Lake, a political aspirant, who has as his accomplice Miss Vivian Elmwood, a sophisticated siren whom he engages to compromise Amos. They inveigle Amos to run as mayor, stressing the point that his father occupied the office for twenty-four years and that it is his duty to free the town of the "crooks" now running it.

The play by between Cynthia Norris, the maid, and Teagle, the delight of Nora Maguire at the thought of her Amos being mayor, the political intrigues of Lake, who uses the ambitious Jimmy Prosser for his own ends, and the continual pitfalls into which poor hapless Amos goes blindly from the basis of the clever plot which is so humorously and attractively unfolded in the several acts. The "course of true love never did run smooth" and Amos and Polly undergo many uneasy hours during the stormy days of the mayoralty elections until the duplicity of Lake and his lovely accomplice is revealed by this successful young lady, and when Amos actually wakes up and kicks him out her joy and happiness is quite complete.

The cast included, Cynthia Norris, Mrs. Burton's maid, Miss Doris Robinson; Teagle, the butler, Albert Perry; Mrs. Burton, Amos Burton's aunt, Mrs. Howard Price; Jimmy Prosser, a reporter, Harold Knapp; Sue Lowell, a pretty flapper, Miss Evelyn Kinder; Nora Maguire, who "raised" Amos, and the character role of the play, Mrs. James Wark; William Maguire, her husband, who followed her every order, Sidney Davies; Amos Burton, the youthful archaeologist, Roy Berry; Polly

ANOTHER SWING UPWARD IN CITY BUILDING WORK

Permit Values for November Totalled $44,850 Compared with $16,100 in Corresponding Month Last Year—Increase in Dominion-Wide Construction.

Another upward swing was recorded in the local building industry during November, permit values totalling $44,850 compared with $16,100 in the corresponding month last year, an increase of $28,750. Construction figures for the eleven months of 1936 are placed at $279,100 as against $179,350 in the same period of 1935, being an increase of $99,750.

The value of all contracts awarded throughout Canada for eleven months amounts to $156,469,200, as compared with $155,940,100 for the same period of 1935. While this increase is negligible, it must be borne in mind that in 1935 nearly 40 millions was spent by the Government on public works.

Contracts awarded for the month of November totalled $13,840,400, as compared with $14,957,200 for October, and $8,290,500 for November, 1935, an increase in the latter case of 66.9 per cent. The November total was made up as follows: Quebec, $7,512,400; Ontario, $4,893,300; British Columbia, $470,400; Nova Scotia, $417,700; Alberta, $187,300; Manitoba, $136,600; New Brunswick, $132,200; Saskatchewan, $46,200; and Prince Edward Island, $24,500.

Contemplated work, reported for the first time in 1936 now amounts to $245,131,700 as against $215,469,000 for 1935, or an increase of 13.7 per cent.

The value of the building permits issued in Sherbrooke during the past eleven months, compared with last year, follows:

	1936	1935
January	$9,500	$9,550
February	$4,900	$6,600
March	$16,100	$10,700
April	$28,175	$34,650
May	$14,650	$30,900
June	$26,225	$20,150
July	$49,200	$19,900
August	$17,300	$5,500
September	$31,700	$16,300
October	$44,200	$15,000
November	$44,850	$16,100
Total	$279,100	$179,350

Rogers, a resourceful, and attractive young lady, Miss Doris Price; Robert Lake, the villain and a political aspirant, Howard Woollerton; and Vivian Elmwood, a sophisticated siren, already twice married, Miss Blanche Woodgate.

Miss Eva Cann was in charge of the beauty parlour behind the scenes and Kenneth Downs acted most efficiently as stage manager. To the Dixie Boys Orchestra the thanks of all are due, for their bright selections between acts completed the enjoyment of the large and enthusiastic audience which greeted the premier performance of "Presenting Polly."

Members of St. Agnes Guild already have won a high reputation for their clever amateur performances, and last evening's delightful play won them additional laurels which will no doubt attract another capacity house when they repeat their comedy this evening.

"And what brought you to prison, my man?"

"Competition."

"Competition? I don't understand you."

"Yes, sir, competition. I made the same sort of half-dollars as the Government."

SUCCESSFUL RALLY HELD HERE BY BAPTIST Y.P.U. Under the chairmanship of Rev. W. D. Ross, of Sutton, a highly successful rally of the Baptist Young People's Union throughout the Eastern Townships was held last evening in the Baptist Church hall on Portland avenue. The opening sing song, under the direction of the chairman, most effectively "broke the ice" and introduced the sixty or more members to one another much more quickly than any other form or ordinary conversation could have done. A cheery address of welcome by Miss Margaret Miller completed this happy mode of introduction, following which Mrs. Morris, of Driville, read the Scripture lesson and Rev. W. H. Wallace, of Contrecoque, led in prayer.

At the close of the devotional period, the Misses Phyllis McVie and Phyllis Mayhew, accompanied by Miss Ruby Baldwin, delighted every one by singing a lovely vocal duet. An interesting and helpful talk by Miss Ruby Woodard, of Sutton, in which she stressed the advantages of the Baptist Young People's Union in giving young people a right start in life, was followed by a brilliant piano solo played by Miss Thelma Sanders. To Rev. A. J. Milligan, pastor of the Baptist Church in Sherbrooke, fell the pleasant task of conducting the evening's programme with votes of thanks and appreciation to the large number who had rallied to attend the B. Y. P. U. session, he specially mentioning the guests from out-of-town.

Mr. Milligan then gave a brief and inspiring address on "Preparation." During the pleasant social hour which followed, delicious refreshments were served by the Sherbrooke branch of the B. Y. P. U., bringing to a close one of the most enjoyable and successful gatherings of this active band of young people.

On their part, the plaintiffs claim

FINAL EVIDENCE PRESENTED IN BROMPTON CASE

Arguments of Counsel in Million-Dollar Action Against Directors of Paper Firm and Holding Company to Be Heard on December 14.

Montreal, Que., Dec. 1.—Hearing argument in a case in which three Sherbrooke shareholders of Brompton Pulp and Paper Company, on behalf of themselves and other shareholders of the Brompton Company and holders of St. Lawrence Corporation Class "A" stock, are suing for the return to the Brompton Company of $1,026,895, will take place on December 14th before Mr. Justice Charles Casgrain in Superior Court, the taking of evidence having been concluded yesterday.

The shareholders, Terence G. Walsh, Frederick J. Southwood and Mrs. C. B. Howard, charge that through control exercised by interlocking directorates and through a holding company, Brompton directors acted in a manner detrimental to the company in the sum stated.

The suit is directed against Geo. R. Cottrelle, Arthur F. White, H. A. Clark, Robert W. Steele, R. O. Sweeney, John I. Rankin, Noth A. Timmons, Ernest Rossiter and St. Lawrence Corporation. The Brompton Company appears as miscellaneous.

The St. Lawrence Corporation is listed as a holding company and the plaintiffs set forth in their declaration of claim that the defendants, Cottrelle et al, were directors of both the St. Lawrence and of Brompton, with Steele, Sweeney, Timmons and Rossiter being directors of Lake St. John Power and Paper Co., Ltd., and, with the addition of Rankin and the exception of Sweeney, were also directors of St. Lawrence Paper Mills, Ltd. Under a plan issued by Dominion Securities, St. Lawrence Corporation acquired control of Brompton, St. Lawrence Paper Mills Co., Ltd., and Lake St. John Power and Paper Co., Ltd.

A series of acts of administration and purchases are declared by the plaintiffs to have been contrary to the best interests of the Brompton company, and the court is asked that the defendants be jointly and severally and personally ordered to pay to the Brompton company $1,200,000 representing the purchase price of Windsor Hotel 2 1/2 per cent bonds; to pay the further sum of $385,618, representing loss and damage for the illegal and improper transfer of tonnage in 1931 to St. Lawrence Paper Mills Company, Ltd.; to pay the further sum of $27,000, representing loss and damage for the illegal and improper transfers of tonnage in 1931 to the Great Lakes Pulp and Paper Co., Ltd.; and to pay $494,191 for alleged transfers of tonnage to St. Lawrence Paper Mills, Ltd., James McLaren Co., Ltd., Lake St. John Power and Paper Co., Ltd., and Beaver Wood Fibre Co., Ltd.

Magee, Nicholson and O'Donnell are solicitors for the plaintiffs, with MacDougall, Macfarlane, Scott and Hugessen acting for the defendants, other than St. Lawrence Corporation, Limited, Aime Geoffrin, K.C., Ralston, Kearney and Duquet are representing the St. Lawrence Corporation, Limited, with George A. Campbell, K.C.

Denial of any irregularity is pleaded by the defendant directors and it is submitted transfers or diversion of Brompton tonnage met with approval. Mills were grouped, the court is told, "for the purposes of co-operation and mutual advantage."

The purchase of the Windsor Hotel bonds, defendant contended, "was a purchase of high class securities on reasonable terms; if there has been any apparent loss on the transaction, such apparent loss is based upon market values quoted from day to day, duly depreciated owing to general conditions affecting all classes of securities."

The court is told further that Brompton, St. Lawrence Paper Mills and Lake St. John Power and Paper were all members of the Newspaper Association of Canada, formed for the purpose of stabilizing the newspaper industry. Under the rules of the institute, of which the companies named were members, "all subscribers were obliged to share ratably and according to the specified rated capacity of the various mills." Transfers of tonnage were done in accordance with the rules of the institute, it is said, and in the interest of the Brompton company.

Not only were the transfers in the interest of the company, but the court is told that the measures adopted were "then generally taken by manufacturers of newspaper in Canada to prevent the demonization of the industry and to bring about a stabilization both as to production and as to price."

"During the 1930, 1931 and 1932," says the defence, "conditions were extremely difficult and uncertain, and all members of the Newspaper Association and in fact all producers of newspaper in Canada were obliged to co-operate for the purpose of controlling production and distribution which, during the whole of the said period, was seriously in excess of market requirements."

In a separate defence, it is pointed out by the St. Lawrence Corporation Ltd., that all transactions in question received the approval of boards of directors of all the companies concerned and have or would have received the approbation of the vast majority of shareholders. The plaintiffs say the company hold one-tenth of one per cent of Brompton shares, acquired long after the matters complained of were effected, and "are not entitled to enforce their views as to the management of the said companies against the wish of the majority and of the boards of directors."

On their part, the plaintiffs claim that the action was taken following a series of meetings held in Sherbrooke by the holders of the original Brompton stock, Class A shares of the St. Lawrence Corporation for which this stock was exchanged and citizens of the Eastern Townships generally, the latter class being interested in the maintenance of an industry that was giving considerable employment in the district.

The sponsors of the action declare that as a result of the operations of the holding company, the mills of the Brompton Company at Bromptonville and East Angus were virtually closed for more than a year because valuable contracts held by the Brompton company were transferred to other concerns in which the directors were interested. By this action, they assert, large numbers of people in these two communities and many hundred more engaged in the supplying of pulpwood and other materials were robbed of employment, while the Brompton Company was deprived of the revenues to pay dividends on its common stock, the sole obligation outstanding, which in turn would have provided the dividend payments on the St. Lawrence Corporation Class A shares.

The plaintiffs and their associates claim that in entering this action they are not only seeking to maintain their own interests as shareholders, but are seeking to improve the economic condition of the district, which was threatened by the actions of the directors of the holding company.

FORMER UTILITY PRESIDENT IS SUEED Chicago, Dec. 1.—Harley L. Clarke was sued for $3,000,000 yesterday by the Utilities Power and Light Corporation—huge holding company he once headed and which controls several Canadian and British utility companies.

The bill filed in Federal Court contended Clarke misappropriated approximately $1,000,000 of the concern's funds about June, 1930, and approximately $2,000,000 on May 14, 1931, and asked an accounting.

It charged he "devised schemes and artifices to defraud" the corporation through "colorable transactions between certain subsidiaries" and by making "excessive or fictitious" charges for expenditures and accused him of making false entries on his books.

Clarke resigned as president but remained as a director of the Utilities Corporation last October 29 after the Atlas Corporation—investing company headed by Floyd B. Odium, of New York, had attained a dominating position through its stock holdings.

Scotstown, December 1. — The regular meeting of the Women's Christian Temperance Union was held at the home of Mrs. J. W. Taylor on Friday afternoon, the president, Mrs. Robert Scott, presiding. The theme of the devotional period was "Peace" and was in charge of Mrs. R. A. Scott, who read an article entitled, "The God of Peace." ALL MEMBERS OF CREW OF LOST VESSEL REACH LAND

Last Boat Containing Three of Nine Members of Crew of Sydney Collier Reach Little Miquelon After All-Night Journey.

St. Pierre, Miquelon, Dec. 1. — Captain Emerson Croft, of the ill-fated Sydney collier Watco, counted his crew of nine all safe ashore today after three men, missing for hours following the foundering of the coal carrier, pushed through rough seas in a dory to reach here early this morning.

Through the night a tug despatched by authorities at this French colony had searched for the men off Pointe Platte, western tip of Little Miquelon, where the 342-ton vessel sprang a leak and went to the bottom.

Six of the crew pulled out immediately and had little difficulty in reaching St. Pierre to report loss of their vessel but they were anxious about three comrades who set out just before the Watco took the final plunge.

"Darling, you were cheated when you bought my engagement ring." "Oh, no, I wasn't. I know my own diamonds." "Perhaps, dearest, but you don't know your carats."

BEATRICE FABER

CHAPTER I.

It was an artistic age, a decadent age, a romantic age and Bohemianism held sway throughout all Paris. Louis Philippe, King of France by the grace of God and the will of the people, sat the shaky throne of the Constitutional Monarchy. Political unrest hovered over the country like a threatening storm, the shadow of Louis Napoleon looming ever larger, limned in the glory of his forebear, that other Bonaparte. Young Louis Pasteur was working privately on scientific experiments, Charles Baudelaire perfecting the style that was to reach its apex in the Fleur de Mal and Francois Guizot, honored as historian and statesman, arrogantly declaring that the Frenchman was the only civilized creature on earth.

But in the Capitol, pleasure was the prime decree. Painted women roamed the boulevards with effete paramours, gaming rooms were filled from sunset to cockcrow, while Bacchus and Eros cavorted madly and merrily with their multitude of worshippers.

It was such an age as to produce a Marguerite Gautier, fairest lily in all the fields of Paris; a lily who toiled not, neither did she spin; whose extravagances were the scandal of the city whose beauty the flame that drew the moth; whose passion for waxen-petaled blossoms drawled, "I could tell you all sorts of things about her."

Something like a physical pain stabbed at Armand. His lips thinned. I should refuse to believe one of them."

At this very moment on the balcony, Prudence was drawing Marguerite aside and nudging her excitedly. "There. There's the Baron de Varville. You see?" Her gaze was fixed on a tall, distinguished gentleman in a long cape, loitering in the promenade.

"Where?"

"Over there, looking at you." And then, by some peculiar quirk of circumstances, Marguerite's eyes fastened on Armand Duval. She took a deep, astonished breath and a stinging warmth, like fine champagne, bubbled through her. "So he really is young and handsome?"

Prudence chuckled. "Didn't I tell you so? Come, we'll send him a note and have him visit your box."

With another backward look Marguerite scattered after her, oblivious to Prudence's sharp, businesslike arrangements with the usher to deliver the note, untouched by the buzz of comments as she moved past, enchantingly graceful and willow.

She walked like a woman in a dream, yet was keenly alive to the gaiety about her and the oddly thrilling promise of the coming meeting. She had always been

UNITED STATES BUYING MORE EXPENSIVE GIFTS

Commerce Department Reports Unprecedented Distribution of Corporation Funds Through Bonuses and Extra Dividends Most Stimulating Factor in Christmas Buying.

Washington, Dec. 1. — United States Secretary of Commerce Roper said today that reports to the Commerce Department from all sections of the country "clearly show that people are buying this Christmas more expensive types of gifts than for any season since 1929."

At the same time, Roper made the first comment from an administration source on recent heavy dividend declarations. He said "The unprecedented distribution of corporation funds through bonuses and extra dividends is a most stimulating factor" in the Christmas buying surge.

"Progress reports" on Christmas business, the Secretary said, support previous predictions department store sales this season "will be at least fifteen per cent. greater than in 1935 and will closely approach the volume attained in the 1929 season."

"Our reports give evidence of the fact that people throughout the country are in a much more prosperous condition now than has been the case for the last seven years," he continued.

"The general uptrend of business, more widespread employment and better prices obtained by farmers have been major factors in stimulating this holiday trade to the highest levels in several years."

what you had up your sleeve." She waved her fan slyly. "Thank you so much dear Prudence for arranging it. But having done so much you must really let me see him alone."

How tremendously transparent she is, Marguerite thought. "Unfortunately I like him too," she said with ironic sweetness. "Because his eyes have made love to me all evening."

"That's a lie! He barely glanced at you. I never took my glasses from his face except for an instant to let him see mine."

"Perhaps that was the instant he smiled at me," Marguerite said dully. Then, of a sudden, she wearied of the bickering. "Come, Prudence, the Baron must look for me elsewhere."

Out in the promenade Prudence spoke to her, crimson with vexation. "That one! That vulgar! You go on ahead. I'll try to get another message to him. But if you run into him, just try for once in your life not to be such a lady. Grab him."

"Sometimes you have very good ideas, Marguerite." Slowly, Marguerite moved ahead. Then, from the corner of her eyes, she caught a glimpse of Armand, just behind her. Her pulse quickened but with no outward sign, she continued on her way. But she was brought up short.

"Do you mind?" she said gently, tugging at her gown. His foot was planted squarely on the satin train.

He colored and hurriedly stooped to brush away the marks of his shoe. "Oh good heavens! I'm so sorry. Please forgive me. I'm a lout! Is anything torn?"

"No, no, don't worry. It often happens." Words, polite questions and answers, while so much was happening. He had straightened up. Involuntarily, he reached out and touched her fingers. Their eyes met. There was a lovely, fragile instant of poetry unspoken, of music, unsung, of the whole world standing still.

Marguerite said, ever so softly, "Were you following me?"

(Marguerite and Armand have finally met. But she thinks him the Baron de Varville. Will she lose interest when she discovers his real identity? Or has a great love been born this night at the theatre? See tomorrow's romantic installment.)

Lady Customer: He's a darling, but I'm afraid I can't buy him—my husband doesn't like dogs.

Dealer: You buy 'im, lady. You can easily get another 'usband, but you won't find another dog like 'im.

BUSY SESSION OF INSTITUTE HELD AT MILBY

Preliminary Plans for Annual School Fair Made at Regular Session of Milby Women's Institute — Financial Reports Submitted.

Milby, Dec. 1. — The November meeting of the Milby Women's Institute was conducted by the president, Mrs. E. A. Orr. The work committee appointed last month brought quilt blocks for inspection, and it was decided to make a couple of quilts during the winter months from the materials they had secured. It was decided to meet the following Thursday to arrange about holding a singing class during the winter months with Professor Harvard, of Sherbrooke, as instructor. If organized a sum of fifteen dollars was voted to be given by the institute towards its support.

The treasurer, Mrs. Wallace, reported social and financial benefits from the recent masquerade dance in the hall and a motion was unanimously sanctioned that a vote of thanks be extended to those furnishing music, to the ladies whose untiring efforts in decorating the hall and in providing and serving refreshments contributed to success of the evening and to the Sherbrooke Record for advertising and to all who in any way contributed to the success of the evening. A report was also given to the meeting in regards the mission box to be sent to the Salvation Army in Sherbrooke.

The report of the committee on prize lists for the schools was given by Mrs. Howard Hills, convener of education and better schools. It has been decided to have a school fair next May, with the co-operation of the teachers of the three schools, Milby, Ives Hill and Huntingville. Prizes will be given in arts, handicrafts, knitting, sewing and cooking.

The report of the recent county meeting at Sherbrooke was read by Mrs. Roy Saitor and supplemented by others who had attended the meeting.

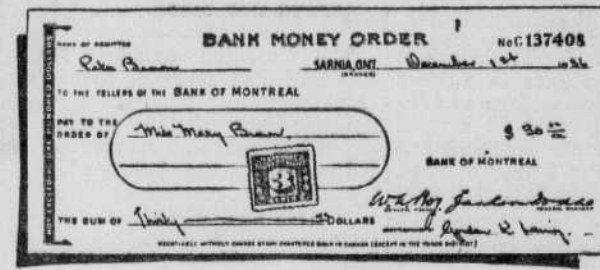

In consideration of Armistice Day the president gave a talk, which included part of a recent address delivered by Professor Elton Scott, of Bishop's College, Lennoxville at the Young People's Society, descriptive of the Vimy Pilgrimage and the unveiling of the memorial. The roll call, which was "Quotations from Bobby Burns," included a sketch of the life of the famous Scottish poet and many numbers of verse and witty sayings from his writings. This was responded to by nearly all members present and others unable to be present sent in their contributions. The meeting closed with refreshments served picnic style.

had inspired the sobriquet, "The Lady of the Camellias."

On an autumnal evening in 1846, this very Marguerite was lolling against the velvet cushions of her brougham en route to the theatre.

The smart clap-clap of the horses' hooves were an accompaniment to her companion's tongue.

Madame Prudence Duvernoy eyed her reproachfully, her small agate eyes nearly popping out of their bags. "Now my dear, let me talk to you like a mother. You've just been ill, you're in debt, there's no limit to your extravagance. Hundreds of francs just for flowers! The hats and dresses you order from me of course, are an investment. But you know you won't be young forever and it's high time you looked to your future."

A faint smile touched Marguerite's lips. In the pale of the evening her narrow face held a quiet, exquisite beauty, as if it were a piece lovingly wrought by a sculptor's hand. "Prudence speaks of my future," she thought mistily. "Have I one? Or is my life to be but an unfinished symphony of discords, without a past and with an aborted present? Ah me. Well, let her talk. She means well."

"And," Prudence hurried on, "I know just the man for you, the Baron de Varville, the richest, the most elegant gentleman in Paris."

Marguerite tilted a slim, white shoulder, revealed by her thrown back cloak. There was a gleam in her luminous gray eyes. "But with one foot in the grave I suppose, and a wig on his head."

"Not at all, not at all. On the contrary, he's young and handsome. And I heard that he'll be at the theatre tonight—what? Here already?"

Glancing about with languid interest, Marguerite descended from the brougham and trailed into the brilliantly lit foyer, Prudence puffing at her heels.

All the world, his wife and his mistress were here tonight, defined against the red velvet drapes. Standing near the door was the darkly tragic Rachel, conversing with Gustave Flaubert. Jean Corot, seldom seen at festive gatherings, was also present. Absently, Marguerite bowed—then her heart skipped a beat.

There, on the opposite side of the wide, divided staircase was a tall, lithe young man, his eyes, under sweeping black brows, almost devouring her. For one fleeting second, she tingled under his gaze, had the monumental sense of the heavens parting.

Then someone spoke to her and she was swallowed up in a group of acquaintances.

Armand Duval continued to stare after her, his blood pumping madly through his veins. Lovely, unknown lady of his heart! The first time he had seen her, she was in an open carriage dressed all in white. She had worn an embroidered shawl, a single bracelet and a heavy gold chain. The next time was at the Opera Comique. Then again on the Boulevard and now...

"That lady there," he said breathlessly to his companion, Charles, "the one with the camellias. Who is she?"

Charles looked and cocked a cynical eyebrow. "Lady? Well, hardly. That's Marguerite Gautier."

Gaston Rioux, on his left, smiled. "If you've a million in your pocket, it's easy to meet her."

"As a matter of fact," Charles aware of this strange sense, this ability to divide herself, to be both the partaker of pleasure and the aloof spectator as well. Then she shivered faintly. A ghost at her own feast she asked herself.

But morbid speculation was cut short as she and Prudence reached their box. Olympe — gay, exotic Olympe, who professed to be her friend—was in full possession of the compartment.

For a space Marguerite stood by in amused silence as the two women argued and jabbered shrilly over ownership of Box A.

"Oh come, Olympe," she finally interposed, "Prudence has her heart set on my sitting here."

Suspicion hardened the other's features. "Yes. And that's what I can't understand. Why?" Suddenly she raised her glasses. "My dear, do you see that gentleman standing up? In the second row, on the aisle?"

Marguerite adjusted her own glasses. And fate again played pranks on her vision, for it focused on Armand, who had risen and was bowing to her. "Yes. Do you know him?" A tense expectancy.

"I know who he is," Olympe returned with patent excitement. She watched the man Prudence had earlier pointed out to Marguerite. "He's the fabulously rich de Varville, Baron de Varville. Look! He's going out! He's looking at us. He's coming to our box!" She flung down her glasses. "Well my friends, I'm not going to move. I intend to stay and meet him."

Marguerite smiled. "But he's coming to meet me. Prudence invited him to join us here."

Olympe's eyes flashed. "So that's

They Live By The INDUSTRIES of CANADA

For Instance, take Our Own Industry

The plants of the automobile manufacturers employ about 14,000 men and women engaged in the building of cars and trucks; an impressive figure, but merely the start of a chain of jobs.

The plants of the Parts Manufacturers employ many thousands more, and those engaged in the rubber, textile, paint, glass, chemical and steel industries add yet other thousands to the total, dependent in part or in whole, on the production of Canadian-built cars.

To this impressive total must also be added the employees of firms dealing in raw materials, food, clothing and other living necessities, and employees of the railways who live by traffic.

All these people are vitally interested in a sound and well-supported Canadian Automobile Industry.

For statistical and further information about this industry, write to Automotive Industries, 1006 Lumsden Building, Toronto.

Jobs are vital to Canadian homes and families. No matter what the job may be; in a factory, office or store, in a mine or in the woods, on the farm or on the railway, it is affected, directly or indirectly, by the industries of Canada. Thriving industries mean more and better jobs all around; hampered industries mean fewer and poorer jobs.

Industry provides a home market for our natural resources; for the produce of the farm, the output of the mine, the cut of the forest and the catch of the fishing fleet. Each industrial unit buys the manufactured product of many other units. All buy raw materials from every domestic source. The employees of each of these units constitute groups of consumers whose mass purchases of food, clothing, housing and amusement, spread prosperity over industry and the country as a whole.

The interests of industry and of the individual, be he business man, mechanic, laborer, clerk, farmer, fisherman, miner, railroader or lumberman, are identical. What hurts one hurts the other. What helps one helps the other.

HEAVY TRADING PREDICTED ON BASEBALL MART

Rumors of Many Deals Heard as Baseball Magnates Gather in Montreal for Annual Meeting of Major and Minor Leagues—Foremost on Agenda is Bob Fuller Case.

Montreal, Dec. 1.—Trade winds began to stir a gale of rumors and guesses today as major and minor league baseball nabobs arrived here for their annual shopping and swapping tour.

"We all want to swap a lookpick for a turkey dinner, and why not?" asked Bob Quinn, head of the Boston Bees and one of the slickest traders in the game.

Foremost in the minds of the nabobs, naturally, is interest in the Bob Fuller case.

Commissioner Kenesaw Landis to declare the sensational schoolboy pitcher property of the Cleveland Indians but they don't want to be caught short of cash in case the Commissioner rules Fuller a free agent and throws him on the open market.

Such a ruling unquestionably would result in the liveliest open auction in all baseball history.

No one knows for sure what merchandise the magnates will pick up this week, but, briefly, this is what they are after:

New York Yankees—The world champions are sitting on top of the world with fine farm hands coming up but they are after another pitcher and a good second base prospect.

Detroit Tigers—The Bengals are on a big man hunt. They may swap First Baseman Rudy York, good looking farm hand from Milwaukee, to the White Sox for Pitcher John Whitehead, who eats too much to suit Jimmy Dykes.

Chicago—First Baseman Zeke Bonura, long range hitter but no ballet dancer around the first sack, is on the market along with Whitehead for a good infielder.

Cleveland Indians are worrying about Feller. They may use Roy Hughes as bait for a third baseman.

Boston Red Sox—Owner Tom Yawkey says the rubber band is on his bank roll this time but he's easily tempted. He may swap three or four players, including Wesley Ferrell.

St. Louis Browns—With a new owner, Rogers Hornsby, a pretty slick guy, may pull some fast deals. The Browns need everything except neckties.

Philadelphia—Connie Mack always pulls a deal or two but this time he says he hasn't anything to offer—that his '37 A's will stay in the cellar.

Washington—Clark Griffith, the old fox, says he's in Montreal just to look around but he'll swing at least one deal.

New York Giants—Bill Terry is ready to swap his whole club. Outfielder Hank Leibner, who refused to stop playing football at Phoenix, Ariz., this fall as Boss Bill's ultimatum, is sure to be traded.

Chicago—Owner Phil K. Wrigley wants a "egg house gang" at Wrigley Field. He already has sent Lonnie Warneke to the Cards for Jim "Ripper" Collins and Bud Parmelee and would like to get Lieber from the Giants and Third Baseman Lew Riggs from Cincinnati.

St. Louis Cardinals—The Cards want pitchers. They claim to have Dizzy Dean on the market but want a whole ball club for him. They may make one of the biggest deals in history.

Cincinnati Reds—Manager Chuck Dressen, who predicts the Reds will finish ahead of the Giants next year, probably will swap a pitcher to the Pittsburgh Pirates for an outfielder who can hit, maybe Paul Warner.

Pittsburgh—The Pirates, like everyone else, want Van Lingle Mungo from Brooklyn and the word is out they'd gladly swap Paul Wiener and Infielder Cookie Lavagetto for the Dodger fire ball ace.

Boston Bees—"Don't expect to buy even a bag of peanuts," says President Quinn.

Brooklyn—The Dodgers will try anything once. They need everything but a playing field.

Philadelphia—The Phillies, like the Dodgers, are ready to shoot the works, on the theory they cannot do worse than last season.

MAROONS AND LEAFS CLASH IN LONE N.H.L. CONTEST

BREAK BETWEEN SPORTS BODIES VERY PROBABLE

Canadian Amateur Hockey Association Is Seriously Considering Move to Break Away from Amateur Athletic Union of Canada—Announcement Expected this Week.

The Canadian Amateur Hockey Association is seriously considering breaking away from the Amateur Athletic Union of Canada but no decision has yet been reached.

Final judgment on the intimated break will likely be reached in the course of a week and, when it is, an official statement will be issued, Cecil Duncan, president of the C.A.H.A., has intimated.

Dr. W. G. Hardy, vice-president of the Canadian hockey organization, has declared that Duncan had assured him over the telephone that, if the move would be, so far as he, Duncan, was concerned, "no recession on the four points even if it meant severing of affiliation between the C.A.H.A. and the Amateur Union."

The four points for amateur code relaxation were presented by the C.A.H.A. at the Amateur Union's annual meeting in Regina two weeks ago and all but one minor point were rejected.

In the face of rejection by the A.A.U. of C. and concerted argument by P. J. Mulqueen, chairman of the Ontario Athletic Commission, and by W. A. Fry, past president of the Amateur Union, the Ontario Hockey Association stood squarely in favor of widening the amateur definition in Canada.

At its annual meeting here over the week-end, the Ontario Hockey Association voiced an almost unanimous vote of endorsement of the work of the retiring president, George S. Dudley, in campaigning for broader amateur legislation.

Dudley, as an executive member of the C.A.H.A., was one of those who took part at the recent meeting of the A.A.U. of C. in an endeavor to pass legislation that would enable professionals in one sport to play with amateurs in another, athletes to use their playing ability to obtain legitimate employment and to receive pay for "broken time."

Mulqueen and Fry warned delegates of possible international complications if Canada should alter her amateur stand.

Dudley contended that the same warning had been broadcast when it was first proposed to reinstate professionals to amateur ranks in Canada. Yet, he said, the practice of reinstating pros had been going on for several years "and there's never been any suggestion that we'd be kicked out."

Canada should "take the lead" in "bringing over present ideas on amateurism," he said.

"I think it's the commonsense idea to go ahead. I think from what we have learned from those who were at the Olympics we can rest assured that conditions in continental countries are far worse than in Canada," he concluded.

The Montreal Senior Group is also involved in the latest controversy. The question of all amateur hockey players in the Dominion being allowed to compete without amateur cards arose in Ottawa when Dr. J. J. Clement, convenor of the Senior Group, questioned Duncan regarding reports that George Brown, leading scorer of the Group last season with the Verdun Maple Leafs would be seen in action with one of the Group teams shortly.

Brown turned professional last spring with the Montreal Canadiens of the National League, but had a toe amputated last month after being injured in training for his debut and has yet to play a game.

"Brown will not need an amateur card," was Duncan's statement which was translated as an indirect announcement that the C.A.H.A. will no longer come under the banner of the A.A.U. of C.

It is possible that the proposed C.A.H.A. move will mean that Canada will be forced out of Olympic hockey competition and that hockey players will be barred from competing with amateur athletes in other sports.

standing, two points behind the idle Montreal Canadiens. A tie would leave them still linked at the bottom of the heap.

HOTELMEN GAIN SMALL EDGE IN DUCKPIN GROUP

Three-String Triumph Over King George Placed New Wellington Half a String Ahead of Dominion Textile in City Duckpin Bowling League Standing.

The rivalry for the championship of the City Duckpin Bowling League became more clearly defined as a two-team affair last evening. At the present time, with nine weeks of the schedule completed, the odds favor New Wellington and Dominion Textile. It is a case of take your pick in regard to these two principal contenders whose only fear is that some of the other six teams will catch them napping some night and jeopardize their title hopes.

The loss of a single string is regarded as of utmost importance to these two entries who realize how harmful to their aspirations even a single slip could be.

The Textilemen's bid to retain their theoretical hold on the leadership suffered a slight setback last evening when they dropped the opening string of their fixture with the Francies. The Francies struck their stride sooner than their opponents, who came back strong to easily outclass their foes.

The loss of a string, however, did not prevent the Textile squad from increasing their lead in the pinfall column.

New Wellington blanked King George to gain a half-string advantage over Joseph Dufresne and his mates. This three-string triumph placed the Hotelmen in the position that they cannot be knocked out of first place no matter how the roll-off between themselves and the Francies turns out.

Victory in this play-off would place the New Wellington boys one string ahead of the field while defeat would leave them tied with the Textile entry.

The Carling Red Caps and Julius Kayser improved their chances of annexing third position. The Red Caps scored a two to one victory over Shercoff while the Kayserites blanked Westward. These results left Carling's half a string behind the Francies with the Kayser entry two strings further behind.

Individual honors were shared by R. Rousseau, of Shercoff, with a single-string total of 198 and J. O. Dufresne, of the Textiles, with a three-string mark of 478. Others over four hundred for the evening were B. Rousseau with 493, T. Rousseau with 442, J. Mathieu with 431, J. O. Gagne with 426, R. Fortier with 411, and E. Harton and C. Kadotits with 402.

The scores were:

GETLIFFE AND PORTLAND HEADING FOR STARDOM

Boston, Dec. 1.—Hockey Smith, today one of the main cogs in the powerful Boston Bruin machine, thinks two of the best prospects for stardom in the National Hockey League are Ray Gettiffe and Jack Portland.

The Bruins have been undefeated in five games and Smith attributes much of their success to the great work of this pair who have filled in so well while defencemen Eddie Shore and Joe Jerwa were on the sidelines with injuries.

Smith had this to say of Gettiffe: "Gettiffe reminds me of 'Punch' Broadbent, big strong and a deadly shot. He has already proved he has the stamina to take it and dish it out in the big time and soon he will be, I believe, the idol of Boston fans."

SCHMELING NOT CONTENT WITH PRESENT PLANS

German Boxer Journeying to New York from Berlin to Personally Push His Claim for First Crack at Braddock's Heavyweight Championship Crown.

New York, Dec. 1.—Max Schmeling, who apparently trusts nobody in the United States, is coming here personally to see that they do not give him what is known as the "old run around" in the matter of a title shot with heavyweight champion James J. Braddock.

From Berlin the German cabled the New York State Athletic Commission that he would be on hand on December 11 when contracts for his promised June fight with Braddock are scheduled to be filed.

When his September bout with Braddock was postponed because the champion was temporarily kayoed by an arthritis attack, Schmeling sailed for Germany with the promise of both Braddock and the New York State Athletic Commission that he would be first to get a chance to take the title from the erstwhile New Jersey longshoreman.

Since then Schmeling heard with considerable alarm reports that they are planning to match Braddock with Joe Louis in a non-decision go in Atlantic City in February.

The New York Commission, pledged to see that Schmeling gets the first crack at the championship, has been trying for weeks to have Braddock post a $5,000 guarantee that he will go through with his agreement to meet Schmeling in June.

Last week the New York fistie fathers ordered Madison Square Garden and the 20th Century Sporting Club, co-promoters of the June bout, to file contracts for same on December 11.

Schmeling was asked to be present in person, or be represented by some one with power of attorney. Schmeling's terse reply was that there was no one here he could authorize a power of attorney, not even his manager, Joe Jacobs, but that he would appear in person to plead his case.

This cable is expected to bring about a showdown between the German and his manager. For some time it has been apparent that all was not well between the two.

While all this was going on, reports spread along the boxing riot that there has been a noticeable cooling off in the early enthusiasm for the Atlantic City venture.

WIFE WAS MAJOR REASON FOR PERRY LEAVING ENGLAND

Beverly Hills, Calif., Dec. 1.—Fred Perry, the British tennis star who turned professional, enumerated three reasons today while he decried England for California.

With emphasis on the first, he stated:

- 1—His wife, pretty Helen Vinson, actress.
2—A newly bought house and garden.
3—Ownership and partnership of the $100,000 reorganized Beverly Hills Tennis club.

YOUTHFUL GRIDIRON STAR IN CRITICAL CONDITION

Lindsay, Ont., Dec. 1.—His spleen ruptured in a rugby game last Saturday, young Bud Kuntz was still in a critical condition today, but surgeons who operated on the former Regina boy last night said his condition was not hopeless and that he showed signs of recovery.

The twenty-two year old snaphack of the Toronto Westsides intermediate team was injured when he tackled Ford Loucks, of Lindsay, in scrimmage during the Ontario Rugby Football Union play-off game here. The Westsides won the game by nine to two, largely through Kuntz' touchdown earlier in the game.

Premier sextette whittling sixty-six pins off the margin established by their Granada opponents. The Premier representatives captured both strings last night and outpointed their rivals by 1,596 to 1,328. This result reduced the Granada's lead to 237 pins.
