Quebec tax cut 'political trickery'

OTTAWA (CP) — The Quebec government was accused of political trickery Thursday and told it will not receive the full amount of federal subsidy payments offered in Monday's federal budget for reducing provincial sales taxes.

Prime Minister Trudeau, angry about Quebec's counterproposal made Wednesday to selectively eliminate sales taxes for some items, said it is a tactic by the separatist Quebec government to show that agreements with Ottawa are impossible.

All the other provinces with sales taxes reduced them across the board by two or three percentage points, most for a six-to-nine-month period. Quebec's proposal is to permanently eliminate its eight per cent sales tax on hotel accommodation, clothing, furniture, textiles and shoes, but keep it on all other items. STILL WANTS MONEY Monday night's budget offered $226 million to Quebec for a temporary sales tax reduction, about two-thirds of the expected tax loss. The province still wants the money, even though it is restricting the items on which it will cut taxes. Finance Minister Jean Chretien said Thursday Quebec may receive as little as $37 million in federal subsidy payments on sales of the selected items, $183 million less than if it met Ottawa's conditions. Both Chretien and Trudeau, at his regular weekly press conference, said there will be more federal payments if Quebec extends sales tax reductions to more items.

Trudeau said the deal for provinces to lower their sales taxes—the main feature of Chretien's budget—was intended to benefit small businessmen by stimulating demand. There are a lot of small businessmen in Quebec who are in other business than textiles and shoes that are not going to get the added sales, Trudeau said. Quebec is trying to protect its own industries at the expense of other provinces, Trudeau said. If it wants to help such key industries as textiles, then Ottawa supports the move but it is up to Quebec to use its own tax money to do so.

until two days after the Monday budget to make his counter proposal. Western premiers meeting in Yorkton, Sask., also had harsh words for the federal move to convince provinces to lower their sales taxes. The four premiers issued a statement saying they did not object to introducing sales tax cuts as a fiscal measure, but were "sharply critical of the unilateral and intrusive way in which it had been put forward" by federal authorities. Trudeau maintained that the separatist Parti Quebecois government was

Spring streams

If the snow-rain-sunshine pattern of the last few weeks continues, streams, creeks and rivers in the Townships will see higher than normal water levels and water falls will be more spectacular and faster than ever. This morning's snow put a damper on yesterday's spring warmth, but take heart, the forecast for the weekend looks good.

Dief delays bill, election stalled

OTTAWA (CP) — Prospects for a June 12 federal election virtually vanished Thursday and it appeared the Commons would debate the government's budget into next week.

June 19 was being mentioned as a possible election date in Parliament Hill speculation as legislation considered essential prior to an election call moved closer to becoming law.

The government had until today to dissolve Parliament in time for a June 12 election date.

But the possibility took a nosedive Thursday when former prime minister John Diefenbaker refused the required unanimous consent to speed consideration of a bill that would outlaw a national postal strike during an election.

Elections are always held on Mondays and at least 60 days after they are called. A June 19 election must be called by next Friday.

That would be two days after the scheduled end of the budget debate. Prime Minister Trudeau told his weekly news conference Thursday he is prepared to allow the debate to go on at least a few more days—to give the opposition "another chance."

He said last week he would call an election if the opposition picketed during the debate.

HOPES WILL LAST The prime minister told the news conference he hopes to introduce constitutional reform proposals in the Commons and he hopes Parliament "will last a few more days or weeks to give us time to do that."

The post office anti-strike bill, introduced Tuesday, is considered the major piece of legislation still before the Commons which the government wants before calling an election. Diefenbaker's decision means that under House rules the government cannot bring it back to the Commons for debate before Monday. Meanwhile, three bills that have cleared the Commons hurdle and are regarded as essential to the government edged closer to final approval in the Senate.

A bill paving the way to begin phasing out wage and price controls went through final phases of consideration just in time.

Hostility evident in Morin debate

WASHINGTON (CP) — Claude Morin, Quebec inter-governmental affairs minister, faced tough, critical questioning about Parti Quebecois aims and tactics Thursday from a generally hostile group of university students, including some Canadians. In a spirited 1½-hour debate, students at the John Hopkins University school of advanced international studies grilled the minister on subjects ranging from his interpretation of history to the economic philosophy of the PQ. While neither side managed to change the other's minds during the often-esoteric discussion, Morin, a former university professor, clearly enjoyed his return to the classroom. He jokingly accused the students of being indoctrinated by Robert Bourassa, former Liberal premier of Quebec, who now is working as a temporary guest professor at the school.

Morin said in an interview afterwards that Bourassa has warned him the students would be tough. Morin, who was a civil servant in Quebec from 1961 to 1971, met briefly with his former boss and political adversary after arriving here late Wednesday.

The minister's meeting with the students contrasted sharply with his activities during the rest of what he described as a "short, informal visit."

After a morning news conference at the National Press Club, Morin dropped in on the Quebec tourist office which opened here earlier this year.

He also made a brief visit to the French ambassador to the United States, whom Morin described as "an old friend of mine."

Rouse, another state department official and Canadian Ambassador Peter Towe engaged in further informal talks during a lunch meeting with Morin. Officials would not say what was discussed.

Crime inquiry probes insurance deal

SOREL, QUE. (CP) — The Quebec organized crime inquiry heard testimony Thursday about fraudulent car insurance claims involving Marcel Salvail.

A Montreal taxi driver and a former truck driver told the inquiry they had each been paid $100 for staging separate accidents with a Cadillac owned by Ealvail, described by police as the local organized crime boss.

Howard Ninnie, a 36-year-old Montreal taxi driver, testified he was approached by the operator of a local car wash, Jacques Morin, in early 1971 and was asked "to have an accident" with another car identified as Salvail's Cadillac.

Finnie said he agreed and on Jan. 11, 1971, he and Cote staged an accident on an east-end Montreal thoroughway. But they had to repeat the accident because "the first wasn't very big and may not have been satisfactory for insurance purposes."

Documents deposited with the inquiry showed Salvail received $1,200 insurance money for the accident.

But taking the stand later in the afternoon, Morin emphatically denied he had anything to do with the staging of the accident and said he never paid anyone for it.

Morin said he only helped sell Salvail's car that year. The inquiry turned down a request by his lawyer to issue a ban on publicizing his name.

Judge Dionne told Morin the inquiry would take his statement into account when it makes its report to the Quebec justice department.

Henry Kockertiz, a former Montreal truck driver now residing in the Northwest Territories, told the inquiry he had been paid $100 to drive his truck into Salvail's Cadillac on March 26, 1971.

Western premiers: Stiff criticism of Ottawa

YORKTON, Sask. (CP) — The premiers of the four western provinces emerged from a discussion of the economy Thursday with some stiff criticism of the federal government and suggestions for future federal-provincial relations.

In a communique issued after the closed meeting, the premiers expressed dismay at Monday's federal budget which included temporary reductions in provincial sales taxes, with about two-thirds of the lost revenue to be covered by Ottawa and the rest by the provinces.

The premiers objected not to the lowering of the taxes, but to Ottawa's failure to discuss the measure at February's first-ministers' conference.

Had they known of the plan, they could have better adapted their provincial budgets, the premiers said.

Premiers Allan Blakeney of Saskatchewan and Sterling Lyon of Manitoba agreed at a news conference that the provinces had little choice but to accept the plan despite the loss of provincial revenues and resulting disruption of their budgets.

Alberta Premier Peter Lougheed made it clear he would have a different response to any similar federal move in the future. Lougheed was especially annoyed that to keep the federal budget confidential, he could not fully consult other provinces before the announcement.

British Columbia Premier Bill Bennett said a western proposal for regular first-ministers' conferences on national policy, coupled with an ongoing liaison committee of representatives from all 11 governments, might prevent a recurrence of the situation.

He said if the committee were following up on decisions taken at the conferences and preparing agenda items for the next meeting, there might be a more structured provincial contribution in forming national policy.

The premiers issued a position paper urging world trade negotiators to seek removal or lowering of tariffs and other trade barriers. The premiers said the Canadian tariff cost Western Canadian consumers $1 billion in 1974, which translated into more than $500 for every household in Western Canada.

"The West has not developed behind tariff walls," the paper says, adding that western producers are already competing in international markets and would welcome greater market access.

Lougheed was asked if freer trade would mean more unemployment for Eastern Canada. He said it must be realized that changes in tariff policies would be gradual and those working in industries rendered uncompetitive would be relocated and retrained as part of the adjustment.

Bennett was critical of Canadian economic policy, "or the lack of it," in the early 1970s, which he said led to the falling value of the Canadian dollar. In an economic paper, Bennett suggested the dollar had slipped in value far enough.

Blakeney said such things as large federal deficits had contributed to the situation, which he said was a case of the world taking action in the absence of corrective action by Canada.

Still on the agenda for today's final session was a report on constitutional trends, a proposal for regional energy co-operation and a proposal for co-operation in research.

Royal Trust: House prices falling

OTTAWA (CP) — House prices fell in several major cities in Quebec, Ontario and British Columbia in the last part of 1977, the latest national survey by Royal Trust shows.

The survey in 85 cities found prices dropped or remained the same in 42 areas between June, 1977, and February, 1978. Prices increased in 43 locations but increases were less than the inflation rate in all but 12.

There were no price decreases in any of the nine Atlantic province areas surveyed and no decreases in the 15 areas surveyed in the Prairies.

In Quebec, prices fluctuated. There were large drops in some English-dominated areas of Montreal and increases in the Quebec City region and in Sherbrooke.

In Ontario, prices dropped in Ottawa, Hamilton, Sarnia, Sudbury and Peterborough and remained unchanged in parts of Toronto, Thunder Bay, Brampton, Oakville, Burlington, Guelph, Sault Ste Marie and Belleville.

There were no price increases in any of the seven areas surveyed in British Columbia. Prices dropped in North Vancouver, Victoria, Surrey and Kelowna and remained unchanged in Kerrisdale, West Vancouver and Richmond.

"It means a buyers' market will continue," said a realtor in Oshawa Ont., Wednesday, where the price of an average bungalow increased less than one per cent in the period to $56,500.

Canada (HUDAC) says there are about 60,000 unsold dwelling units on the market, an unusually high stock.

The Royal Trust survey, which compares the price of a similar house with comparable amenities in different localities showed the best buys for the housing dollar continued to be in Quebec and the Atlantic provinces.

Recent increases in mortgage rates after increases in the lending rate by the Bank of Canada could also reduce demand for houses. Prices are not expected to increase much in most of the country, real estate experts say.

The idea of generating your own electricity will be the focus of the wind power workshop.

The many methods of pest control sprays, predators, companion planting etc. will be discussed at the preventive pest control workshop.

The effective balance of mineral needs to the soil and the transitional use of artificial fertilizers will be the center of the soil amendments conference.

An intensive workshop for beginning gardeners, the vegetable gardening talks will feature a complete discussion of all the practices necessary to grow a good garden.

The basics of raising fowl for eggs or meat will be discussed at the fowl raising workshop.

A step-by-step explanation with illustrations on how to make cheese for your family will be presented at the cheese making workshop.

In our climatic conditions, silage-making is a necessary skill, which will be discussed at the silage workshop.

The problems of dairy farming in Quebec are well known. The dairy workshop will examine some of the realities of quotas, government subsidies, and high production costs.

Is there a family cow in your future? Beginning homesteaders will be presented with the facts about caring for a cow at the family cow workshop.

Your section of forest can provide firewood, maple syrup and building materials. The woodlot management workshop will focus on the management decisions necessary in forest utilization.

Lamb and wool could be two agricultural products with a future. The sheep farming workshop will explore the practical realities of sheep farming in the Eastern Townships.

There will be two workshop slots before lunch and two before supper on Saturday. In the evening there will be a keynote address by a bilingual biological farmer followed by informal chats with the resource people.

Sunday morning will consist of two workshop slots followed by various panel discussions after lunch.

This year's conference is limited to 300 people. The cost at the door, including three meals, is $20.

Goyer ordered to pay

OTTAWA (CP) — The Ontario Supreme Court ordered on Thursday that federal cabinet minister Jean-Pierre Goyer pay $10,000 in libel damages to a senior public servant.

The court, in a 39-page decision said Goyer, supply and services minister, libelled Lawrence Stopforth in statements made outside the Commons.

Stopforth was deputy manager in charge of financing the purchase of 18 Lockheed Orion long-range patrol aircraft in 1976. The deal began to sour, the government lost millions of dollars and Goyer fired Stopforth.

Goyer said in the Commons that Stopforth had misinformed him about the Orion deal. Remarks made in the Commons are protected privileged but Goyer made other statements about Stopforth outside the House.

Sports conference ends

MONTREAL (CP) — The first federal-provincial conference of ministers responsible for sport, fitness and recreation ended Thursday with each side offering some concessions but standing firm on other issues.

The federal side was stated by Iona Campagnolo, minister of state for fitness and amateur sport, while the 10 provinces were represented by ministers responsible for sport and in some cases health and welfare.

The provincial ministers had held a session of their own Wednesday in order to present a solid front to the federal government.

Quebec won't pay...

MONTREAL (CP) — Sports Minister Claude Charron says the provincial government will not pay a $43-million tax bill it received from the City of Montreal for property and school taxes on Olympic installations.

"This budgetary manoeuvre by Mayor Jean Drapeau is a vulgar power play," Charron told The Canadian Press Thursday.

Taking time out from a federal-provincial conference of sports ministers here, Charron said the cabinet decided this week it would not pay the bill, recently presented to provincial authorities by Drapeau.

CRTC hears Bassett

MONTREAL (CP) — John Bassett said Thursday national unity will gain a boost if his Toronto-based company, Baton Broadcasting Inc., gets approval for the takeover of a controlling interest in a Montreal television-radio company.

Bassett, chairman of Baton, told a hearing of the Canadian Radio-television Telecommunications Commission (CRTC) that his company's purchase of 54.5 per cent of the shares of Multiple Access Ltd. would aid the unity cause by renewing hope in Quebec.

Approval of the sale would give Baton ownership of the CTV network's stations in Toronto and Montreal.

Bassett told the CRTC that approval of the sale would encourage people to come to Quebec to invest and work.

St. Eustache families return

ST. EUSTACHE, Que. (CP) — Most of the families evacuated from their homes after an explosion blew the roof off a sewage pumping station here were allowed to return by noon Thursday.

All but 12 families were allowed to return home, although experts still are looking for the gasoline leak responsible for the explosion, said Guy Belisle, mayor of this community just north of Montreal.

The mayor said a crew worked all night to pump gasoline out of the city's sewage system and now the situation is under control.

Chretien reaffirms dollar stance

OTTAWA (CP) — Finance Minister Jean Chretien reaffirmed Thursday the government's stance that the dollar is a floating currency on world money markets.

He made the comment as opposition MPs questioned him on further declines in the dollar's value. It dropped through the 87-cent U.S. mark Thursday, another 45-year low.

Later, Prime Minister Trudeau said at a news conference he hopes the dollar will reach its just level in world money markets. The government believed in the floating dollar and was only intervening in trading to "stop jerks and spasms."

He had been asked if the government might bring in foreign exchange controls. "I don't like those kind of hypothetical questions," he said.

NIB withdraws from cabinet committee

OTTAWA (CP) — Starblanket said that in its eagerness to trample Quebec separation, the government refuses to recognize aboriginal rights.

Charging the federal government with purposefully eroding Indian rights, the National Indian Brotherhood (NIB) withdrew today from the joint cabinet committee on Indian affairs.

The committee, composed of cabinet ministers and brotherhood executives, was established in 1974 to try to find solutions to Indian problems. It was formed after an Indian demonstration on Parliament Hill turned into a riot in which several people were injured.

Brotherhood president Noel Starblanket said the cabinet has not made one major decision on problems discussed in 3 1/2 years of meetings.

"We've been cynically used by this government," he said. "The government has ducked criticisms over their lack of Indian policy by claiming to be involved in meaningful discussions with the NIB-cabinet committee. It's about time to explode that myth."

Starblanket added that the committee has been a pretense and that the government has been trying to implement its 1969 white paper that proposed to wipe out Indian special status.

Three years ago, the brotherhood had brought to the committee a proposed policy for giving Indians control of Indian education, but a decision had never been made.

Capital punishment referendum...

OTTAWA (CP) — Former prime minister John Diefenbaker caused a stir in the Commons Thursday when he urged the government to hold a national referendum on whether killers of police officers and prison guards should be hanged.

Diefenbaker, best known over the years as speaking against capital punishment, was applauded by about half the Conservatives in the Commons when he made his suggestion.

Labor Code changes expected

OTTAWA (CP) — Despite heavy pressure from the business community, the Senate moved a step closer Thursday to passing a government bill to make extensive revisions to the Canada Labor Code.

A Progressive Conservative motion to stall passage and refer the bill to a special Senate committee was defeated by a vote of 29 to 20 as Labor Minister John Munro and Joe Morris, retiring president of the Canadian Labor Congress (CLC), looked on from the public gallery.

A number of disgruntled Liberal senators joined the Progressive Conservative revolt, complaining that they were being pushed to pass the bill without adequate study to clear the decks for a federal general election.

Jamieson hints at Cuba deal

OTTAWA (CP) — External Affairs Minister Don Jamieson hinted Thursday the government may use aid to Cuba as a lever to force withdrawal of Cuban troops from Africa.

He said after a Commons external affairs committee meeting that Ottawa is continuing talks with Cuba about development aid.

"It is obvious it doesn't help our relationship to have this disagreement over Africa," he said. He did not elaborate.

Aid to Cuba from the Canadian International Development Agency (CIDA) expires this year.

Earlier, he told the committee he made clear to the Cuban ambassador last week that "it isn't conducive to good relations with this country" to continue Cuban military operations.

FARMING INCOME DROPS 54%

OTTAWA (CP) — Farm incomes have dropped 54 per cent since 1975 and return to farmers for labor, management and investment now is less than 20 cents of every dollar earned, the Canadian Federation of Agriculture (CFA) said this week.

In a brief to MPs, the CFA said net cash income to farmers in 1975, an exceptionally good year, was $3.395 billion. Expected returns this year, translated into 1975 dollars, would be $1.929 billion. Net cash income is income after deductions for operating expenses and depreciation.

The briefs are being presented by the CFA to caucus members of the four federal political parties during meetings in the next couple of days. The CFA is the major farm lobby group.

Grain and beef producers have been hardest hit by the income drop, the CFA says. "The consequences cannot help but be inimical to good farm planning and to orderly agricultural development in the national interest."

Most farm groups are not agreeable to increased production planning regulation but realize that "the consequences of instability are increasingly intolerable."

PREDICTS HIGHER PRICES

"For consumers, the consequences of instability will be over-all higher, rather than lower, prices—because there is a price that must be paid for risk and uncertainty."

The brief also asks for limits to imported beef to add stability to the domestic industry and for more tariff protection for vegetables and fruits.

The government has announced a slight increase in beef imports for this year and that it has no plans to bring in a beef import law unless the current controls don't work. It also has said that two reports recommending higher protection for horticulture crops will form the basis of the Canadian position in international trade talks.

The CFA also asked for changes in income tax laws to allow farm wives to file separate tax returns for money legitimately earned in work on the family farm.

The federation said it supports improvement of the Prairie rail network now under way. "It is of the first importance that this program be completed as has been projected." The orderly abandonment of unneeded rail lines should continue.

Farm groups still are concerned that agriculture may be sacrificed at the current round of talks under the General Agreement on Tariffs and Trade (GATT), the CFA said.

Unity plates hot items

The mailman no longer makes deliveries to Barker Signs Ltd. It's nothing personal, mind you, it's just that he feels overloaded sacks should be left to someone like Santa Claus.

But even Saint Nick would feel burdened by the volume of mail destined lately for the Cowansville firm. Since last week the company has been averaging 500 letters a day and Barker Signs' president Anthony Barker expects the inundation to continue for some time.

It's all due to an agreement which the company has with the Quebec-Canada movement to manufacture license plates for the Canadian unity organization, depicting a fleur-de-lys sprouting inside a maple leaf.

Quebec-Canada has sent around license plate order forms to its 120,000 members and the request for a plate, along with the $2 fee is sent to Barker Signs.

"We're mailing out plates at a rate of 200-300 per day," said Mr. Barker, "and we are rebating Quebec-Canada."

The profits derived by Quebec-Canada are used to help fund the movement's Canadian unity program.

More than 3,000 orders for plates have poured into the office of the Cowansville company since last Thursday, a volume so large that the firm has been forced to pick up its own mail.

The requests have come from all corners of Quebec. Mr. Barker looks over several columnar sheets containing the return addresses of customers - Lac St. Jean, Montreal and suburbs, Scotstown, Aylmer - a virtual geographic tour of Quebec's regions.

"Here's an order of 12 from Sherbrooke News and there's another one for Havill Paper Co. in Montreal," noted the Barker Signs' president. "They're taking 100, probably for their employees. Bishop's University has a letter asking for a quote on so many plates."

Included in a recent pile of letters was a note from a woman who said she didn't own a car but she wanted to contribute the two bucks anyway and the company forwarded the money to Quebec-Canada.

Such remarks, as much as the overwhelming response from Quebec-Canada members to the license plate offer, are a source of political reassurance to Mr. Barker.

"There's been a lot larger demand for these plates and the plates which depict the Canadian flag or simply the word Canada written on it than the ones with Quebec or the fleur-de-lys," he said.

"The one that supposedly has sold the most is the plate which says 'J'aime ma femme' but I can't see it. The Quebec-Canada one, when sales are finished, will be far in excess of any of the others."

It will, that is, if the beleaguered staff, which now contains a few extra bodies as a result of the onslaught of mail, can keep up with the incredible demand.

Liquor commission opening

Knowlton residents, who've been growing somewhat impatient over the delay in the opening of the town's Quebec Liquor Board outlet, can start making room in the liquor cabinet.

One of the final hurdles, the installation of an alarm system was completed the other day and Hydro and Bell Canada are putting the finishing touches to their work inside the building. Estimates now have the liquor shop opening its doors within the next two weeks.

Some residents have questioned whether the new structure conforms to Town of Brome Lake building regulations, since it resembles a trailer home, which, under laws of that municipality, would be prohibited in the centre of town.

Herbert Popkin, Town of Brome Lake building inspector, said the store is a pre-fabricated module occupying 864 square feet, thereby conforming with building regulations.

It's interesting to note that the provincial government originally wanted to erect the store in the municipal parking lot, directly beside Clairfort, but municipal officials ushered the liquor outlet instead to a spot across the street near the Fina garage.

Presumably, that will remove a good deal of the temptation.

Tanner: To run again?

My sources tell me there was probably a hint of things to come at a recent meeting called in Cowansville to push for the reopening of Main Street. Seems that Fred Tanner, who opposed Rosaire Raymond in the mayoralty race last time around, reserved most of his time on the floor for an attack on the present administration.

While Mr. Tanner has not openly declared himself as a candidate for the November municipal election, it's a good bet we'll see a rematch since no one else is on the horizon.

Brown packs his bags

Though he's decided to make his Nova Scotia retreat a more or less permanent residence, former Brome-Missisquoi MNA Glen Brown will surely be packing a lot of memories of the Townships with him.

But many of the memories are shared by his constituents, particularly before the counties were merged on the electoral map. It was nothing for Glen to spend the better part of his day on Main Street in Knowlton greeting the voters of Brome County.

His departure seems almost like the removal of an institution. It's just as if someone was removing the Historical Society building itself.

Knowlton firm...

Among the nominees for an ACTRA award last Monday night was the Canadian film "The Little Girl Who Lived Down the Lane," filmed largely in and around Knowlton. Hate to say so, but it did not win an award.

Santerre search...

FARNHAM (JM) — Municipal police and firemen are continuing their search for three-and-a-half-year-old Francois Santerre, who disappeared at approximately 2:30 Wednesday afternoon.

Francois and his older brother Stephan were playing behind their parents' house on St. Patrick St., when Stephan left the youngster alone to go to the bathroom. Stephan returned and noticed his brother was missing. He told his parents who notified police.

Police reported they combed the area, which is bounded by a creek flowing into the Yamaska River. They reported the stream was in full flood and added they found a toque which matched the description of the one worn by Francois clinging to a twig adjacent to the stream. The police spokesman said as we went to press that they had not requested assistance from any other forces.

The Yamaska River empties into the St. Lawrence near Nicolet.

Easter bonnets revive spring spirits

Today I am giving serious thought to buying a hat. After all, it is spring!

I remember tenderly the time when I considered myself the very essence of haute couture. I would battle through snow and wind to be the first straw hat in church on the last Sunday of March!

Last summer, prowling through the department stores, I saw hundreds of floppy garden party hats, heaped like colored marshmallows on the counter - pink, blue, and white. They were selling for one dollar and ninety-eight cents each. Beguiled by the very grace of their drooping brims and fragile shapes, I often wanted to buy one, but felt that I would never wear it. This year, alas, I see the same chapeaux with prices starting at twenty-two dollars each!

I remember, too, how momentous was the buying of the Easter bonnet when I in her workroom which overlooked the Saint Francis River as it bubbled and gurgled past.

She would always come the moment she heard her

I have no recollection of anyone else ever being in the store when Mother and I were there. Miss Conway was a true milliner. I don't know if she sold ready-made hats or not. We always had ours made especially for us.

After greetings and a few preliminary remarks, we would get down to business and Mother would explain exactly what she wanted - for us both! Miss Conway would then walk gravely around us, tilting her head from side to side, studying us as though she had never seen us before. This scrutiny completed, she would then turn to pull open great, deep drawers full of hat shapes and a fascinating array of colored ribbons, exotic flowers, feathers, shining ornamental pins, and even some small straw birds!

Mother would sit down on a cushioned bench before a large mirror and the creation would begin. Miss Conway would place a selected shape on her head and then proceed in a most elegant fashion to cut and snip, to add a broad, satin ribbon, a nosegay of blossoms, and voila! It was all pinned in place while they studied and discussed its merits.

This routine might be carried out as many as six or seven times before my stylish and discerning parent would pronounce approval. I am sure that they both enjoyed the whole procedure immensely. Mother would be sure to find out exactly what each of her friends would be wearing that spring. Sometimes a bit of innuendo would spark the descriptions of various tastes. Eyebrows would be raised and smiles were quietly amused.

All this time I would sit quietly on a small, backless bench on the opposite side of the room. I might listen idly to the talk or watch the hat fashioning, but mostly, I posed in the mirror. I would tilt my head gently from side to side. I would smile mysteriously, enigmatically. I was a world famous actress, rich, adored, beautiful beyond belief! I even dared to whisper to my dazzling image when I thought myself unobserved!

A rude awakening would occur when, having finally satisfied Mother, Miss Conway would turn her attention and skills to my small frivolous head. I rarely had anything to say about the outcome. "I think a nice blue, Helen," Mother would say, "one of those crushable straws that we could put in a suitcase."

I always ended up with the exact same model as the year before, the only difference would be the color!

We would go home happy and pleased. We might even stop around the corner at Woodard's for a dish of ice cream.

I would have to wait then impatiently for a week or ten days until Miss Conway would summon us for the final fitting. I was not too interested in seeing my hat, but I thrilled at the thought of one more session before the big mirror!

I would be able to sit again, to pose and pretend, a small aspiring girl dreaming for herself the impossible dream!

was a child. With what anticipation I would walk downtown with my mother each springtime! We always went to Miss Helen Conway for our hats.

Her shop was in the large old building that looks across the street at the courthouse. She was generally in the back of her establishment front door open and close. There was a thin green carpet on the floor of the salon proper, ending abruptly at the workroom door. At that time, shopping for a hat was not merely a business transaction, it was an occasion for a long delightful visit. We would always be there for well over an hour.

Kidney Foundation

Some thirty-five people use the dialysis machines (above) at the CHU twice a week for six hours at a time. The Eastern Townships branch of the Kidney Foundation of Canada launched their 1978 fund raising campaign at the CHU this week. As part of the program, a cyclathon will be held at Jacques Cartier Park on May 13. Plaques were presented to five people - Russel Marois, Rickard Allyn, Dr. Marc Gervais, Ron Bishop, Gaston Cote - for their work with the foundation by chapter president, Monique Coulombe at the Wednesday night meeting.

Magog citizen honored

MAGOG (CG) — Mr. Alphonse Girard has been awarded the Silver Jubilee Medal by the Governor General of Canada for "services rendered in the field of public administration."

Mr. Girard was born on a farm on Rocher Hill, Eastman in the year 1892 and came to Magog at the age of seventeen. Until recently he has played an important role in all levels of government and from 1920 on, he served as town councillor. From 1928 - 1950 he held the position of secretary-treasurer of the town of Magog. For 32 years he was secretary-treasurer of the Catholic School Commission for Magog. This commission began with two schools and when he retired, there were ten schools.

He retired in 1953 and since then enjoys life immensely, ice fishing during the winter and gardening in the summer at his cottage at Crystal Lake. In 1970 he decided to write the 'History of Magog' which was based on facts, figures, names and incidents gathered from official, municipal, school and church records.

The community extends sincere congratulations to Mr. Alphonse Girard.

Leisure committee meets

The co-ordinating committee on leisure activities for Stanstead, Rock Island, Beebe, Stanstead East, Fitch Bay and Ogden is holding a meeting tonight at 7:30 in the basement of the Catholic Church in Rock Island. Representatives of each of the six municipalities will be introduced and, a secretary, and two members from each of the interest groups (social, cultural, athletic and academic) will be elected.

The formation of this body is the result of several citizens meetings held during the last two months. Minister Charron's proposals in the green paper on leisure were discussed. The inadequacy of local facilities and programs prompted the formation of this co-ordinating committee.

The meeting is open to the public and your support is needed.

DBRSB calls meeting

A special meeting has been called by the District of Bedford Regional School Board to discuss its recent decision to abandon its fleet of school buses.

The meeting, scheduled for Tuesday, April 18, at 8 p.m. in the Heroes' Memorial gymnasium on South Street, will also include a discussion of the school board's electoral procedures.

The special meeting has been called following a request from about 300 ratepayers who are protesting the board's decision on school transportation.

Dali conference planned

In continuation of their Wednesday at the Art Gallery series, the University of Sherbrooke Cultural Centre will present a conference by Luis de Moura Sobral on artist Salvador Dali at 8 p.m., April 19.

Conciliator steps in at Vilas

COWANSVILLE (TS) — A provincial government conciliator met with both management and union representatives Thursday to begin his intervention into the labor impasse at Vilas Industries in Cowansville.

The furniture company requested a conciliator on March 13 when the two sides were unable to agree on the terms of a new contract, due to begin on April 1, 1978.

A statement occurred when workers refused to accept company proposals which included the removal of plant seniority and reduction of the average bonus rate from 40 per cent to 15 per cent.

To date, the two parties have had only three meetings, the last of which lasted approximately 15 minutes.

A company spokesman said the conciliator has not touched the Vilas dossier until now. The government mediator, following his session with the two parties Thursday, will meet separately with both groups and present his recommendations after careful study of the dispute.

Unionized employees of the firm can legally go on strike May 14.

DOGS AT LIBERTY

FRIENDS BECOME ENEMIES
According to the law - your dog becomes a nuisance when it is loose, bites a person, causes damage to lawns, gardens, flowers, shrubs, etc... or also when it barks, howls and disturbs the peace.

CITIZENS AT LIBERTY
Did you know that the owner of a dog that is loose is responsible for all the damages mentioned?
Here are three ways to get rid of wandering dogs:

1. Catch the loose dog and have the S.P.C.A. pick it up (567-8364).
 2. Direct your complaint to the Police giving precise information (breed, colour, size, owner). Following this complaint a summons will be served to the owner.
 3. To prosecute the owner in case of damages, contact Small Claims Court for damages under $400. If the damages are over $400., contact a lawyer.
- TO PROTECT YOUR DOG AND KEEP YOUR NEIGHBOURS HAPPY, there are 2 things to do:
1. Obtain a permit ($10.00) for your dog.

Signs of the times

Last Wednesday, we reprinted a page directly as it appeared in the April issue of the local Parti Quebecois organ. It was a photographic collage of English-language signs outside various local businesses, accompanied by a caption condemning what the writers felt to be a blight on the pride of Sherbrooke francophones.

Why did we run it at all, you ask? We felt it was symptomatic of the type of thinking in certain areas of Quebec society today, and we did it because it was -- and is -- our opinion that the aspects of Bill 101 dealing with signs and bill boards are not being seen for what they are -- indiscriminate, unfair attacks on the rights of the individual, reflecting the narrow anti-business bias of an entire segment of the Quebec population -- a segment which happens to hold the reins of power.

As of September 1, 1981, all public signs, advertising and other publicly-posted announcements must be entirely in French, with the exception of certain ethnic, cultural, sports or other postings. Few other parts of the world insist on these terms, and we can think of several so-called totalitarian states with less stringent regulations.

No consideration is being made of the long history of amicable co-operation between French and English business interests in the Townships. The rules are there, says the Office de la Langue Francaise, and those who disobey are faced with fines and sanctions.

Upon reflection, we probably should have checked with the language policies of the establishments in question, but the childish, sanctimonious tone of the publication in question led us to believe that the best course would be to run it on the editorial page, where it would be read as editorial comment and where it would stand the most chance of exciting reaction, which we expected.

What we did not expect was the truly thunderous counterblast from a score of Townshippers, both French and English, who felt the mere reproduction of the page -- without editorial comment -- was a personal slight, as well as an unwarranted attack on the long and peaceful habit of biculturalism here in the Townships.

On this page is a letter from one such business. Mr. Olson has expressed the points of view of scores of fellow citizens in a manner both concise and reasonably dispassionate, when one considers the subject.

What more can we say, except that we're sorry if our publication of the photographs inconvenienced anyone in any way? It was our aim to create discussion, and to that end, we certainly succeeded.

When one considers the worldwide context in which the narrow strictures of the French Language Charter are being applied, one cannot help but wonder how people with this view of industry ever achieved a rise to power. Can an ad for Champion spark plugs or White Cross shoes carry any political intent? Is a tuneup any different for a French-Canadian than it is for his English counterpart? How many garages, left to their own devices, would bother with 'mise à point'? Does the Sherbrooke News store classify as a propaganda outlet just because it doesn't call itself Messageries Sherbrooke?

The list goes on and on, of products and services and men and women who are trying to make an honest living the way they know best. They don't care who their customers are; dollars speak a universal language.

But one thing is certain. Those aspects of Bill 101 which dictate business practices are a vicious and unwarranted attack on long-established aspects of Townships biculturalism and those nitpickers who get excited about those practices are living in a fairytale world of foolish fantasy. When their house of cards collapses, we all suffer.
Enough said.

Letters

Editor:

We were taken somewhat by surprise by a picture of one of our signs which appeared in your paper on Wednesday, April 5th. The sign in question is painted on the side of our building and has been there for thirty years. We noticed that all the other pictures of signs appearing on the same page, were of the companies' main sign appearing in the front of their establishments. The reason why our main sign in the front of our store was not photographed is because it is entirely in French.

While we realize that the Record did not take these pictures, you did nevertheless publish them, and publication of this type of garbage does nothing to aid the cause of national unity. Furthermore you never bothered to find out, in our case anyway, to what extent we use the French language in our day-to-day operations. Had you done so, you would have found that twenty-one of our twenty-six employees are French Canadians, that all our invoices, letterheads, order pads etc... are bilingual. You would also have found that the name of this company was changed to the French version three years ago, as was our main sign and that we speak to all of our employees in their own language all the time. In fact we feel that there are very few English companies in this area, as involved in the use of the French language in their day to day operations as we are, yet we get the shaft and the publicity, because you never bothered to check the story behind this picture. One would hope that in the future you would be more careful and concerned, before publishing anything sent to you by an organization whose sole aim is the disruption and possible destruction of this province and this country. We are enclosing a photograph of the sign that appears on the front of our building. It is our hope that you will allow us the same opportunity you afforded to the other organizations and publish this picture and this letter.

Yours truly,
R.E. OLSON,

Editor:

I would like to comment on the letter "Communist plot" of April 11. That word "Communist" is a frightening word, at least for me. I have never read the book The Moment of Truth as I am sure it would frighten me even more. R. Selby of B.C. probably thinks that the federalists of Quebec are a bit simple, but if we do not come out with this dreadful statement, it does not necessarily mean it is not in our thoughts. We try to soften the blow by calling this planned conspiracy for the Quebec separation, the nature of an extremely social regime, total-itarianism, even a future monarchy.

One must believe that deep down inside, it is that insecure feeling we have. But again the individual from B.C. writes "of Communist engineered revolutions of the past", must I say we don't live in the past, and that the people of today are much more aware of what is happening. I therefore believe in the intelligence of the Quebec population, and that they will vote against separatism.

McLennan phasing out

Editor:

As you may know, the McLennan Travelling Libraries has been providing public library service since 1901. While this has primarily been a project of McGill University, we have also received some financial support from the Provincial Government since the passing of the Quebec Public Libraries Act in 1960. The government has a long range plan for the development of municipal and regional libraries throughout the Province. Recently a regional library was established for the Eastern Townships - Bibliotheque Centrale des Prets de l'Estrie, and, after very serious consideration it has been decided to transfer the operation of the McLennan Travelling Libraries to this new regional library. While the staff of the McLennan Travelling Libraries regret losing regular contact with the readers, the staff believe that this change will provide for a truly effective and wider service. The transfer will take place slowly over the summer months and we do not anticipate any change in the pattern of service you are presently receiving. Books being held by readers during this period will be treated in the regular manner.

All the necessary administrative changes should be completed by the end of September, and any further developments will be communicated from the Regional Library.

We all send you our best wishes. It has been our privilege and pleasure to serve you.

Yours sincerely,

Editor:

It was my pleasure and privilege to live and teach in the Eastern Townships ten years ago during EXPO '67. Your newspaper was most receptive to a number of activities in which I was and to some extent, still am, involved. I submitted for publication a poem following the slaying of the Reverend Martin Luther King, which you had selected for same, and in the processes of moving, I have mislaid the copy I had kept. Would you be good enough to forward a copy of the poem, published in one of the April, 1968, issues of the Record?

Also, please relay through the letters-to-the-editor column, my warmest regards to my friends, colleagues, legionnaires, and former students from ADS High School, and that I would enjoy receiving correspondence from those who wish to write.

Gasohol scares oil lobby

by Jack Anderson and Les Whitten

WASHINGTON — In a dramatic turnabout, President Carter is now getting serious about alcohol fuels, which could help solve the energy crisis, stabilize farm prices and reduce the outpouring of dollars to the oil potentates.

Previously, Carter had virtually ignored the proven potential of alcohol fuels. His 155-page energy message devoted only a single sentence to alcohol fuels, giving them the official brush-off.

Deputy Energy Secretary John O'Leary dismissed the concept of alcohol fuels as a "myth," even though they had been used to power jet fighters in World War II and to run automobiles as far back as the 1930s.

But government experts slipped around to see us behind the backs of their superiors. They told us that alcohol could provide 72-cents-a-gallon gasoline for American motorists. This would be no more than premium gasoline is expected to cost by the time the alcohol plants are constructed.

The money would also be spent in the United States, thus stimulating prosperity at home instead of enriching the oil sheiks. A blend of alcohol and gasoline, called "gasohol," could compete directly with the conventional product. The new gasohol would also require no engine modifications.

This high octane product could be produced from alcohol derived from timber wastes, corn stalks, coal, garbage, even sewage. Farmbelt senators would like the priority placed on extracting alcohol fuels from surplus farm products.

The strongest opposition has come from the oil industry, whose lobbyists are maneuvering behind the scenes to block the development of alcohol fuels in the United States. The oil companies, of course, want to keep the nation hooked on oil until their wells have been drained.

Putting profits ahead of the national welfare, the oilmen are whispering into congressional ears that alcohol fuels would create technological and economic problems. A Chevron lobbyist made so many inaccurate statements that a Senate aide drafted a point-by-point response and mailed it to the company.

Mobil Oil issued a detailed rebuttal to a report, favorable to alcohol fuels, from the Senate Republican Policy Committee. Mobil not only blasted the report but offered its own patented process for converting alcohol into gasoline. This process would be so costly that it would become no immediate threat to Mobil's petroleum refineries.

From California to Nebraska, oil lobbyists are actively trying to thwart programs to develop alcohol fuels at the local level.

We wrote a series of articles, meanwhile, suggesting that alcohol fuels might be the most readily available solution for the energy crisis. Our stories stirred up strong support from concerned Americans. A blizzard of mail hit our office, including copies of letters to the White House and Congress. The response from the public is beginning to have its effect. Here's what's happening:

Twenty senators wrote a joint letter to both Energy Secretary James Schlesinger and Agriculture Secretary Bob Bergland, urging them to undertake an "immediate and comprehensive effort to tap the potential of our nation's renewable resources."

Sen. Frank Church, D-Idaho, caught the ear of President Carter at the White House. Church explained that, under a bill he was sponsoring, grain alcohol fuel blends could be available at service station pumps by 1981. According to Church, the president was "very interested" in the proposal, but skeptical about the marketplace economics.

Nonetheless, the project is belatedly getting some sudden attention inside the Energy and Agriculture Departments. The White House has set up a special interagency task force to consider the possibilities for introducing alcohol fuels on the American scene.

Energy officials surprised the Senate Appropriations Committee by testifying they were planning "action oriented" alcohol fuel programs "aimed at making things happen." At long last, they conceded that the new fuel process could also reduce our foreign oil dependency, cut down on air pollution and help eliminate our waste problem.

Behind Closed Doors: President Carter would like to hold back his Social Security reforms this year "in light of the more than $30 billion in payroll taxes added by the (Senate-House) conferees." The president told his Cabinet that he "does not believe we should reopen the subject this year and should resist Congress' efforts to do so."

President Carter recently boasted to his Cabinet that his proposed fighter-plane sale to Egypt is picking up support on Capitol Hill. "Both the House and Senate have to disapprove the sale," he reminded the Cabinet, in order to block it.

The president has given his Cabinet stern orders to hold down the budget. He said that he had instructed his budget director, James McIntyre, "to be strict about requests for increases."

Agriculture Secretary Bob Bergland has been taking a hiding from farmers for the Administration's refusal to support their demands. But Bergland reported triumphantly to the president that the Texas farmers, "who threw eggs and grapefruit" at him, "have generated many editorials condemning that kind of conduct."

Replaced as party leader in 1958 by Lesage, Lapalme had remained faithful to the party until his resignation. A year later he disclosed that he quit after a cabinet fight over what he considered the meagre budget allotted to his department.

George Marler, who led a small band of eight Liberals in the national assembly in the late 1940s, was also in Lesage's cabinet before resigning in 1965. He is a bilingual, Montreal-born anglophone who was almost a one-man opposition to the government of Maurice Duplessis when the former Union Nationale premier was at the height of his power.

Marler was federal transport minister from 1954 to 1958.

MONTREAL (CP) — The old guard will be there for the Quebec Liberal leadership convention this weekend at the Quebec City Coliseum—five men who represent an unbroken string of 30 years of Liberal party leadership.

Star attraction among the former leaders will be former premier Robert Bourassa, making his first major public appearance since he was defeated in his own riding in the 1976 provincial election when the Parti Quebecois swept to power.

Also in the limelight as 2,621 delegates vote on Saturday for either Raymond Garneau or Claude Ryan to head the party will be Jean Lesage, 65, leader from 1958 to 1970 and premier from 1960 to 1966. Lesage came out of political retirement last year when he was appointed to

Ryan was disenchanted with Bourassa in 1976 and recommended, as editor of the daily Le Devoir, that Quebecers vote for the PQ. He said recently, however, that the former premier can promote full progress of Quebec in a revived federalism and in a society based on equality of the citizens and the primary priority of personal liberties.

The Liberal Party of Quebec is well situated to win the power that it needs to realize its objectives, so we must not forget that to succeed, we must count on every dynamic element of the party, be they supporters of Mr. Garneau or of Mr. Ryan. So if unity is maintained following the leadership race, a big step will have been taken to assure better days for all Quebecers.

Party unity all-important

Former MNA Vallieres pulls for Ryan

Yvon Vallieres, the former Liberal deputy for Richmond County, has made the following observations on this weekend's leadership fight: Above all common efforts to flatter the delegates, we must notice that even if Mr. Ryan and Mr. Garneau are vying for the same post in the Liberal Party of Quebec, they often have different points of view. We could almost say that two different schools of thought are at odds here, and this is allowing Liberals in every region of Quebec to think over the future of the Liberal party of Quebec.

Even if both candidates often acknowledge the same priorities such as the constitution, economy, unemployment or the referendum, the ways each proposes to arrive at solutions are so different that one can only be led to believe that the two men have a different image of tomorrow's Quebec Society. Mr. Garneau and Mr. Ryan both seem determined to accord major importance to the part played by private enterprise.

Their commitments are not the same even at that level; Mr. Garneau seems to decide unconditionally in favor of private enterprise, while Mr. Ryan, in certain sectors of activity, prefers to see the government keep on playing an important part while curbing the increase of public expenses.

I notice in both candidates a common will to free Quebec of the Parti Quebecois government as soon as possible. I think that both candidates can do it, but if we consider that more than 70 per cent of the population in Quebec wish a revised federalism, I must admit that between the both candidates, Mr. Ryan is the only one who could eliminate the PQ government and consequently the ideas of the separation of Quebec. We don't have to believe that once the referendum of the PQ is beaten and the election won that we can return to a status-quo. If we do, the menace of separation will only be postponed for a few years and the PQ, after its defeat, will be rapidly re-elected with the same idea of independence. Most are opposed to separation, but they also refuse to accept the constitutional status-quo.

That problem solved, we will see revived a political and economic stability in Quebec. Mr. Ryan seems to be the most apt of both candidates in the present situation to assure the maintenance of Quebec in Canada. Even if I respect the qualities in Mr. Garneau, I will support Mr. Ryan, convinced that he can

YVON VALLIERES: He's for Ryan

Editorial From The French Press

Ottawa Le Droit: The federal minister of justice, Ron Basford, has tabled his bill modifying the Criminal Code to allow trials in French and English everywhere in the country. The minister has suggested... that the provinces enforce it gradually as they become able to do so. When we consider this flexibility, and the list of provinces said to be ready to pass legislation of their own (Quebec, Ontario, New Brunswick and Manitoba), as well as the possibility of holding elections before passage of the bill, there is nothing to indicate that francophones from one end of the country to the other can hope to enjoy the exercise of this elementary right soon.

Indeed, we know that the administration of justice belongs to the provinces and that, even under the domain of the eventual legislation, they will remain responsible for the application of its provisions. Now, some will not fail to invoke reservations of a practical order in asking the federal government to postpone the effective date, particularly in the six "distant" provinces.

As for the provinces said to be less ready to act, we are surprised by the absence of Newfoundland... The new presence of Manitoba is more easily explained by the short-circuiting of a constitutional contestation over prior provincial laws in the "Forest case," (so-called) after the Manitoba citizen who is going up through the courts because of a summons in English only. And, since Ottawa has offered to support such action financially, the sudden "good will" of the Lyon government is more understandable.

Ontario? Officially, Attorney General McMurtry was waiting only for federal action in order to make French in courts official through provincial legislation. Shall we see the article of the Judicature Act, which makes "English only" the language of the courts, disappear soon? It bears watching.

And Quebec? Here is proof that one can accept breadth of vision when it is at once traditional and already written in the constitution...

If we were able so rapidly... to pass a bill on the pipeline involving billions of dollars, it would appear difficult to delay unduly the Basford measure which touches on a point of principle. Such Conservative or New Democratic reservations would be frowned upon, particularly in that a refusal coming from the opposition parties would give the government an additional weapon for its electoral ends. Let Broadbent and Clark therefore play it carefully in pressing the government to accelerate passage of the bill... and in four years they will be able to add to their records that they will have done something to promote linguistic equality. For, wherever one turns in the House, power seems to involve more than simple recognition of the most elementary rights.—

Congratulations

DUNKIN - Congratulations are extended to Marguerite and Hermann Ommerli of Dunkin, Que., who were married 45 years ago to the exact day, Saturday, April 15, in Berne, Switzerland. It was also the second marriage for each of them.

Miscellaneous shower

SOUTH STUKELY - A Miscellaneous Shower was held in the Anglican Church Hall on Sunday afternoon, April 2nd in honor of Miss Sally Tibbitts.

Upon arrival, she was welcomed by Mrs. Cheryl Tibbitts and Mrs. Diane Page, who pinned a corsage on her, consisting of measuring spoons, scraper, scouring pad and some flowers. She was escorted to a seat of honor, decorated with overhanging streamers.

Seated beside Sally was her mother, Mrs. Lawrence Tibbitts and her grandmother, Mrs. Myrtle Tibbitts. As she opened her many lovely gifts, they were passed around and admired by the many guests, and were then displayed on a table. Sally voiced her appreciation for the lovely gifts.

The hostesses were Mrs. Cheryl Tibbitts, Mrs. Diane Page and Miss Donna Tibbitts. A social hour was enjoyed, after which a delicious lunch was served buffet style. The shower cakes were made by Mrs. Diane Page and decorated by Mrs. Jane Page, in white with colored pansies and also a miniature bride and groom.

Guests were present from Montreal, Waterloo, Foster, West Bolton, Eastman, Granby and South Stukely.

St. George's ACW

LENNOXVILLE - The regular monthly meeting of St. George's Anglican Church Women was held on April 7 in the Upper Room under the presidency of Miss K. Atto. Twenty members were present. Devotions were conducted by Mrs. C. Burt who read excerpts from "Green Pastures" and the Living Message; also a letter from our prayer partner in N.W.T.

The president reminded members of the ACW Coffee Party being held on May 9 in the Rectory. Invitations will be mailed to out-of-town friends and posters made.

The ACW Biennial will take place at Bishop's May 16 and 17. Some members were asked to assist with billeting, and our group was requested to produce some kind of presentation for the program. The Social Service convener reported a busy month with telephone calls, visits, distribution of clothing and financial assistance. Mrs. V. Reeve introduced Mr. and Mrs. Les Picard, who are in charge of the Huntingville Community Church.

This year we are concerned with pollution, hearing much about improving our polluted river. "Inward pollution" is the speaker's concern, and merits our attention. The seed of sin is inherent in all, and like cleaning up the outward pollution of our river, there are things we can do to fight inward pollution - reading good Christian books, finding a direction, goals and meaning in life, and by seriously meditating on God's word.

After adjournment of the meeting, tea was served by the hostesses, Mrs. Annesley and Miss Taylor.

Social and Personal

The many friends of Mr. Gordon Forgrave, Sawyerville, are sorry to learn he is a patient in the Sherbrooke Hospital where he has had surgery.

Fashions for fall and winter...

PARIS (AP) - Jean-Louis Scherrer's ready-to-wear collection for next fall and winter is strictly luxury, elegance and nearly haute couture. The ladylike atmosphere in his Avenue Montaigne salon was a welcome change.

All week the press and buyers have been pushed and battered at overcrowded theatres and tents, where "gorilla" bouncers seemed intent on biting the hands that feed the fashion industry.

The hurly-burly is sometimes gay, more often distressing. As Kay Kerr, a vice-president of Neiman-Marcus, said: "Horrible. We were nearly trampled a couple of times, and the way they allow smoking in packed rooms, there's danger of a holocaust."

But fashion still prevails. All of Paris is swept away by the new big-shouldered narrow-waisted line.

A good nose knows - but won't tell

NEW YORK (NEA) - You can't tell a good nose by looking at it. It takes years to know, and become, one. And then you've got to work at it the rest of your life so you don't lose it.

Jacqueline Couturier is a top nose. Reared in Grasse in the South of France where jasmine, roses and other flowers are everybody's business, along with perfume, Mrs. Couturier didn't want to be a nose at first.

"I wanted to be a doctor when I was 18," she says. But a young girl didn't go off to Marseilles then to do such things. Better to stay home and become a nose, especially since her father was friends with Jean Carles, "a big, well-known nose," who agreed to train her.

She spent four years in Carles' laboratory and this is how she learned to be a nose, or composer of perfumes.

"The first thing is to recognize and identify all the ingredients in perfume," she says. "There are 1,000 oils of various origins: floral, leaves, roots, wood, seeds and animal." Civet, from the Abyssinian cat, for instance, and ambergris, from the whale. ("We don't kill them to get the oil," she adds quickly. "It's a product that is excreted.")

So you sit or stand there in the lab, facing shelves of little vials, each labeled, each containing a different scent.

and then she began concocting big perfumes for them. But she can't name them because a nose never discloses. Noses are anonymous.

"Perfume composers sell their formulas to fashion designers and companies that take credit for them," she explains. "When Halston signs a perfume, for instance, someone in the perfume company has composed it."

Now that Mrs. Couturier and her husband, Jean, a longtime marketing man in the perfume industry, have their own business, they're taking the credit for her perfume, Coriandre.

"It took eight months to achieve," she says, "because the most difficult thing is to have a round perfume, which means a consistency of scent at the various stages."

In other words, the same predominating "note" from the minute you spray the perfume on your hair or the hem of your dress (never on your skin, she cautions, because its acidity might pollute the perfume's oils) until it disappears hours later.

That's nothing to sneeze at, she says. "Lavender, for instance, evaporates in 40 hours on the blotter, but vanilla will stay for four months. So when you mix ingredients, if you don't have the right balance, you will get the first volatile notes which disappear quickly. Then something else, which will disappear and finally the basic notes that stay."

To get that main melody in Coriandre, which is composed of spicy top notes, floral body notes and woody, bottom notes, she ran tests on the fragrance, every ten minutes, for six hours, for several days. Blotters here, blotters there, sniffing and comparing to see which scents were lost at which stages, etc.

Finally she got what she wanted and, she says laughing, "It's successful, thanks to God." Selling for a neat $50 an ounce, Coriandre satisfies her nose and lots of women's noses all over the world.

So it can be said of Mrs. Couturier that if anyone knows what pleases the nose of man, a good nose knows.

Varnish protects baskets

By Polly Cramer

POLLY'S PROBLEM

DEAR POLLY - How can one preserve baskets? I have several that are quite old and some new ones, too. I wondered if anything could be done to keep them in good shape. - GERTRUDE

DEAR GERTRUDE - Not too long ago I saw some old baskets and wicker trays in an antique shop that had been treated with a coat (or perhaps more than one coat) of clear varnish. These had a high gloss, but dull varnish could be used if one preferred. - POLLY

DEAR POLLY - We had had fish for dinner and the entire house smelled fishy. I was out of air freshener so I put the pan the fish had been cooked in back on the stove (medium heat), added between three and four cups of water and two teaspoons of cinnamon and let it boil until the fish smell was gone. (Polly's note - Did you read that in this column? We have had it and are glad to know it worked well for you.) - MAXINE

Ann Landers says...

Chill the eight-hander

Dear Ann: I'm a 52-year-old divorcee - much too old for this sort of thing. I accepted a job as bookkeeper for the husband of a dear friend who has had some bad financial reverses. I'm working at a fraction of my former salary because I want to help him get on his feet.

Our most important customer is an eight-handed idiot. He comes in at least five times a week, follows me around like a puppy dog and makes obscene remarks and passes left and right. The louse is getting bolder and bolder and I have been trying to make a joke of it - but it's not funny any more. (Never was, actually.) If he wasn't such an important customer, I'd break his face. How can I get him to leave me alone and still be pleasant so we don't lose his business? - Tired Of Running

Dear Tired: If the future of your friend's business depends on the eight-handed idiot, you'd better lock the doors now.

The man didn't give the firm his account because of you and he probably will not take it away if you chill him - which you ought to do immediately. The longer it goes on the worse it will get.

Confused about what's right and what's wrong in today's "new morality"? You're not alone. If you want honest, down-to-earth information on your sex questions, read Ann Landers' new booklet, "High School Sex and How to Deal With It - A Guide for Teens and Their Parents." Send 50 cents in coin plus a long, stamped, self-addressed envelope to Ann Landers, P.O. Box 11995, Chicago, Illinois 60611.

Who says lettuce has to be raw?

Don't think of lettuce solely as something to go into the salad bowl. This versatile green vegetable is also delicious in some very special cooked dishes.

For example, stir-fry lettuce makes an excellent side dish - especially in combination with sesame seeds, scallions, mushrooms and bacon.

Another recipe that will wake up the taste buds is braised lettuce. This recipe actually bakes lettuce in a casserole with onions and carrots, seasoned with parsley and tarragon. Serve with seafood or pork chops.

STIR-FRY LETTUCE

- 4 slices bacon
- 1/4 cup sesame seeds
- 1/4 cup chopped scallions
- 1/4 pound mushrooms, thinly sliced
- 1 medium head lettuce, coarsely shredded
- 1/4 teaspoon salt

In large skillet, fry bacon until lightly browned. Remove and crumble. In same skillet, lightly brown sesame seeds in bacon fat. Add scallions, mushrooms, lettuce and salt. Cook, stirring, until lettuce is crisp-tender. Serve immediately, topped with crumbled cooked bacon. Makes 4 servings.

BRAISED LETTUCE

- 1/4 cup butter or margarine
- 1 large onion, sliced
- 3 carrots, pared and sliced
- 1/4 cup chopped parsley
- 1/2 teaspoon salt
- 1/8 teaspoon pepper
- 1/2 teaspoon dried leaf tarragon
- 1 beef bouillon cube
- 1 cup water
- 4 heads Boston lettuce or 2 heads iceberg lettuce

Melt butter in large flame-proof casserole. Add onion and carrots. Cook until vegetables are tender, about 10 minutes. Add parsley, salt, pepper, tarragon, bouillon cube and water.

Fill a large pot 2/3 full with water, bring to a boil, add the lettuce to the boiling water and boil for 3 to 5 minutes. Drain, cut lettuce in half. Place lettuce cup side down over vegetable mixture in casserole. Cover and bake in 325-degree oven 1 hour. Makes 4 servings.

THE FLOW OF FASHION

The spring/summer '78 wardrobe employs lots of fabric for a look of looseness and softness. A marked Greek and Egyptian influence is easily recognized in the billowy, soft fabrics and tunic styles.

Low necklines and bared wrists literally beg for fine jewelry accents. Sculptured necklaces with flowing lines and geometric shapes, bright bangles, thick cuffs, heavy chains and textured bracelets provide gleaming contrast for rumpled muslins and muted silks.

The collective look is big this season. With the use of generous amounts of cloth, small jewelry pieces get buried - unless they are grouped or stacked. A group of three or four stickpins accents the lapel of the new shapeless jacket. Small stone-set rings are stacked on the finger as are bracelets on the arm.

Big pieces are back. Long ropes of pearls, amethyst, rock crystal... sculptured neck pieces set with lapis lazuli, ivory, tiger eye... cuff bracelets inlaid with malachite, onyx, coral, jade. Big geometric shapes cover the ear-lobes, lustrous loops dangle from them.

Your American Gem Society jewelry store carries the finest quality jewelry in the very latest styles, as well as the classic designs. We can help you select a basic fine jewelry wardrobe to match the styles you like to wear and to reflect your individual taste.

Hints about Stamps By M.M. Woodman

XI Commonwealth Games
XI^e Jeux du Commonwealth

XI Commonwealth Games
XI^e Jeux du Commonwealth

I know that by this time you have probably seen the new stamps that were issued on March 31, but only recently did I receive the press release from Ottawa.

Here are photos of the two stamps. There will be many of them printed - 43,000,000 of the 14 cent value and 23,000,000, 30 cent. This means that there will be a lot around for some time. I would not suggest putting too many aside. However they do commemorate the eleventh Commonwealth Games, which have not been held in Canada since 1954. These games are being held in Edmonton, Alberta, from August 3 - 12 this year.

It may seem early, but don't forget to get your order in for Canada's First Souvenir Sheet. It will be released in June and will cost only $1.69 at the post office. This one should be worth keeping a few of - if we can go by the one that Great Britain put out only a few weeks ago, which sold out almost before it reached the public. To date I have not had my repeat orders filled.

Once in awhile I'm right. Look at the Tristan da Cunha overprints that came out in February. A few got out at about 50 cent but right away the asking price rose to $50 and now it is even higher. It will probably be $100. by 1980.

Ottawa has also advised that the National Park stamp of $1.00 value will be issued until 1979.

Try to get yourself one of the Canadian Souvenir Sheets cancelled on the day of issue. Why? Simply because it will be a Saturday and most post offices are closed and I have an idea that it will eventually be much harder to get a cancelled one than a mint one. You will likely pay more than the $1.69 but in time it will pay for itself.

Some of course will be cancelled at the CAPEX Show in Toronto. I plan to be there and I'll try to get some cancelled from the show. If anyone else wants one, let me know well in advance and I'll try to pick one up for you.

People are still writing in for those old covers that I offered for a just a stamped self-addressed envelope. I guess many read the Record, as I have heard from people I didn't even know collected stamps. I am so pleased to hear from you all. Don't forget that stamped, self-addressed envelope.

Spain casts her magic spell over visitors

By KAY TAYLOR
In Autumn 1977, Miss Geldard-Brown (of Knowlton Sweater Shop) embarked on another of her trips, the mere names of which hold fairy-tale magic for most. Arriving first in the British Isles, she spent two weeks in Scotland and one week in Yorkshire, with two nights in London. During that time she saw beautiful Loch Lomond and Stirling in the heart of Scotland. She was in Yorkminster on October 15 and there was a visit to Edensor, near Sheffield on October 16.

But the trip that had overtones of the Arabian Nights was her tour of Spain, Portugal and Morocco from October 22 to November 5. A flight from Britain took her to Alacante in Spain. From there the group went on to Elche, well known for its beautiful palm trees. Then came two days in Madrid, the capital city, which is situated 2,180 feet above sea level. Spain rightfully calls it "the nearest thing to Heaven."

They saw the open market with literally mountains of the most succulent fruit and vegetables. On the Prado, a wide promenade, is situated the Royal Picture Gallery containing canvasses by such masters as El Greco, Velasquez and Goya. There were many beautiful fountains and statues, including a monument to Columbus, which is even more impressive when illuminated at night. Retira Park is remembered for the huge monument of Alphonso 12, great-grandfather of the present King Carlos.

There was also a Pyramid Monument donated by Egypt in recognition of the assistance of Spain in building the Assuan Dam. The head post office was a particularly elaborate building they call "Lady of Transport", which was more like a church than a ministry building. There was a side trip to Toledo, famous for its marzipan, due to almonds being so plentiful there and for its swords which are used by the bull fighters and for Hollywood films. Toledo is also famous for its jewellery and Miss G.B. purchased a beautiful pair of earrings. An old walled city, with a bridge crossing over the Tagua, Toledo was founded by the Celts and invaded by both Romans and Arabs. At Avilla they saw one of the best preserved fortifications in the world. The large Military College was founded by Franco.

Then on to Coimbra in Portugal via Salamanca. Spain, famous for its University. Six miles away is the site where Wellington routed Napoleon's army in 1812. They travelled to Coimbra through the Quada Gerra Mountains, passing through a 3-mile tunnel, and stayed outside the city that night.

Next, they visited Lisbon with a side trip to the coast. At Lisbon they passed through an old Moorish fish market - a novel sight and a rather overwhelming odor. Also of interest were the monuments to the explorers (Belem Tower), including Columbus, but particularly Henry the Navigator, who in the 15th century made Portugal the mistress of the seas.

Through the rolling plain Alentejo and rugged Sierra Morena, they arrived at Seville. This stop was most interesting. They visited Maria Luisa Park, where hundreds of pigeons were seen; the 12th century Alcazar Palace, one of the Moorish Royal Palaces; the famous cathedral which is the third largest in the world! They heard the organ there playing Ave Maria and saw St. Columbus' tomb, which is most impressive with knights standing at each corner.

From Seville they went to La Linea and that evening walked to the barricade that prevents anyone going across to Gibraltar. To get to Gibraltar it is necessary to go back to Tangiers and cross from Algeria. The border was closed by Franco. People used to cross the work. To compensate to a degree, he set up factories in the neighborhood to provide employment.

Crossing from Algeria, they reached Tangiers in Morocco, and enjoyed a sight-seeing tour around that city with a side trip to Tetuan which was the capital city of Morocco until 1956. It is very mountainous country, with sheep and Bedouin tribes established in the area. Visiting Casbah, they found all sorts of Moorish articles. Miss Geldard-Brown brought back an exquisite caftan purchased in Tangiers.

At Tetuan a visit was made to the Sultan's Palace and an artist school for orphan children, where they are trained in brass plaster work, and weaving. The goods they make are sold at minimum cost for pocket money.

On return to Algeria, with a drive along Costa de

Miss Geldard-Brown of Knowlton visited the Casa del Greco in Toledo during her tour of Spain.

Sol and a stop at Terramolinias, they reached Granada. At the Court of Lions they found elaborate mosaics and Moorish decorations and at Alhambra Palace were magnificent rose-scented gardens with fountains. Alcazar Fortress was the last stronghold of the Moors; it was there they finally succumbed to Isabella and King Ferdinand, both of whom are buried in the Royal Chapel at Granada. Staying at Murcia overnight, the group then started back next day to Alicante for the return trip.

Other highlights mentioned by Miss G.B. were the enchanting Spanish children in their long dresses. At Tangiers they saw Flamenco dancers, in Madrid they watched typical folk dancing, in Tangiers, rather sensational belly dancing and in Granada, delightful dancing by the cave dwelling gypsies. At Toledo and Tangiers there were buses laden with Arabs, with luggage and chickens piled on top. In Seville, Miss G.B. procured an elegant fan-the upper part depicting colorful dancers, the lower part, in a simulated mother-of-pearl effect. Looking at her souvenirs, one hoped that, with her eye for the unusual, maybe she had an opportunity to secure a few items to delight us later in her little shop?

Fatima, Portugal, is famous for this sanctuary.

A monument to Queen Isabella and Christopher Columbus stands in a square in Granada.

WI meeting

ROCK ISLAND (IH) — The April 6th meeting of Stanstead North Women's Institute was held that afternoon at the home of Mrs. Edgar Hill in Rock Island.

The president, Mrs. Doris Gibson and several members attending joined to repeat the Mary Stewart Collect. The April motto was: Blessed is the house that knows the shade of a tree. The roll call was responded to by several using the name of a vegetable, composed in a rhyme, while some paid the ten cent fine.

Mrs. Gibson thanked everyone who had supported the food sale held in Stanstead South Church Fellowship Hall in conjunction with SWITCH, Women's creativity day. The sale added over $90.00 to the treasury and appreciation was extended to Mrs. Doris Belanger, in charge of the Women's Center in Stanstead for permitting the Branch to have the sale.

The correspondence included a communication from the Q.W.I. President, Mrs. Ina Kilgour, which was read by the secretary, Mrs. Ruth Ashman.

Mrs. Warren Soutiere, convener of Agriculture, read an item from several books published on Consider the weed - the dandelion and others that are edible. The dandelion blooms make excellent wine, prior to blossoming, these are tasty greens, the roots make a delicious vegetable dish, the dandelion is worthy of consideration, said Mrs.

Soutiere. Other natural wild foods are fiddleheads, cowslips and such.

The Citizenship convener, Mrs. E.C. Middleton read a most interesting article on the history of the Mary Stewart Collect written by Mary Stewart in 1904, and now used by Women's Clubs across the continent.

Another interesting subject was by the Home Economics convener, Mrs. Fayne Hovey about cooking metric.

Mrs. Ivy Hatch, public relations, read a letter from Mrs. Louise Robinson, Ayer's Cliff Branch.

There is lead in the colored sections of many weekend papers and this lead is harmful, noted the Health and Welfare convener, Mrs. George Peasley, who read how so through use of the papers in open cooking fires.

Mrs. E.C. Middleton, reporting for the sunshine committee, said she and Mrs. Edgar Hill had purchased and delivered two Easter remembrances to shut-ins.

ASTRO-GRAPH

Bernice Bede Osol

For Saturday, April 15
ASTRO-GRAPH
Bernice Bede Osol

Your Birthday
April 15, 1978

You'll be involved in several undertakings where you'll put all your chips down and play to win this coming year. If you rely on effort, and not luck, you'll do fine.

ARIES (March 21-April 19) You need a slight change of pace now. Try to plan something with your friends for this evening that is mentally stimulating, yet physically active. Find out to whom you're romantically suited by sending for your copy of Astro-Graph Letter, Mail 50 cents for each and a long self-addressed stamped envelope to Astro-Graph, P.O. Box 489, Radio City Station, N.Y. 10019. Be sure to specify your birth sign.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20) Because you want to be left alone to dawdle in your own world today you could be grumpier than usual with your more-active family members.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20) If a social situation gets out of hand today, speak up. Take charge. Your ability to clearly see all sides makes you the natural leader.

CANCER (June 21-July 22) Some very large returns can be gained from innovative ideas you may get today. They're not just pipe dreams. Put them to work.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) Help those who are unsure of themselves today. Your voice and fearlessness give them the confidence they need.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) Something could occur today that might annoy you. Bring it out in the open and clear it up quickly, rather than let it smoulder.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 23) A clever associate could help you find ways to accomplish some things that are difficult for you. He won't mind you picking his brains.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 22) You can get all the cooperation you need today to go after an ambitious project. Others will be glad you called on them to help.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23-Dec. 21) A frustrating condition is about to change to where you'll be better able to come to grips with it and reduce it to a manageable size.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) Don't let any more time go by regarding a business situation. If a gamble is needed to get it off the ground, this is the day to take it.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 19) Team effort is called for today, so be sure you're equally as industrious as your counterpart. Muscle, as well as brainwork, is needed.

PISCES (Feb. 20-March 20) You have so many ideas today, you'll be hard put to get them all launched. Even though you have an abundance of energy, better be selective.

For Sunday, April 15

Your Birthday
April 16, 1978

Things that you have invested your time and talent in will begin to pay off for you this coming year. Forego new involvements until you have harvested the seeds you planted.

ARIES (March 21-April 19) Avoid mixing money matters with persons you know on a purely social basis. You'll be disappointed if things unexpectedly fall through. Find out more about yourself by sending for your copy of Astro-Graph Letter, Mail 50 cents for each and a long self-addressed stamped envelope to Astro-Graph, P.O. Box 489, Radio City Station, N.Y. 10019. Be sure to specify your birth sign.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20) Make amends quickly if you allow a careless remark to hurt someone today. It'll be difficult to apologize if you let too much time go by.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20) You have a tendency to make snap decisions, but today they could work to your detriment. Think all things out carefully. Make no sudden moves.

CANCER (June 21-July 22) Better avoid the expensive stores today. You're too easily attracted to that which glitters, and could wind up buying a totally useless item.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) Proceed with caution when tackling problems today. Your first solution won't necessarily be your best idea. You could even make the situation worse.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) Be careful not to use tactics today that others can criticize. There are always those who welcome the opportunity to point out another's flaws.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 23) You'll be tempted to back down at the first sign of resistance today. Be persistent. You'll accomplish your aims.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 22) It may be difficult to satisfy your ambitions today, because of unstable conditions. Don't spin your wheels where the odds are stacked against you.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23-Dec. 21) You'll have small patience and little fondness for those not fully in accord with your ideas today, even though their reasons may be valid.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) Don't be too hasty about discarding something that hasn't produced an instant profit. The rewards are there if you'll only dig a little deeper.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 19) You may attempt an unfamiliar task today. If you're wise enough to stop and ask advice of an expert, you won't get bogged down.

PISCES (Feb. 20-March 20) Confusion boggles your mind today, so don't tackle a task without a helpline. A good coworker will save you both time and money.

out more of what lies ahead for you? Send for your copy of Astro-Graph Letter by mailing 50 cents for each and a long, self-addressed stamped envelope to Astro-Graph, P.O. Box 489, Radio City Station, N.Y. 10019. Be sure to specify your birth sign.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20) Hang in there today. You're the one who is likely to come out the winner in the long run. Don't let initial setbacks discourage you.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20) Good news may come your way today through someone extremely fond of you, one who has always had your best interests at heart.

CANCER (June 21-July 22) Stay on your toes today work and careerwise. Something you've worked hard and long for could finally come through.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) You might start the day off feeling a bit serious-minded, but as you begin to mingle with the crowd their warm gestures, bring to you lightheartedness.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) Someone you have been considerate of in the past may be in the position to return the favor today and will be happy to do so.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 23) Faith can move mountains for you today, so try to associate only with persons who have optimistic attitudes. Don't let a pessimist spoil things.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 22) Sta-and earning conditions are more favorable than usual today, but you must persevere in order to take full advantage.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23-Dec. 21) A solution can be found today to a vexing problem, giving you reason to celebrate this evening.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) Unselfishly giving of your time and energy today as a pleasant and beneficial effect which others reciprocate. All parties will profit.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 19) Burdens of the past should start to become lighter today. Harmony will begin to prevail in two areas where there has been only discord.

PISCES (Feb. 20-March 20) Your past efforts will not go unrewarded. That which is due may be paid off with high dividends today.

In September, this Branch will observe 50 years of custodianship of the Mansur school turned over by the Stanstead County School Commission, with a special program and invited guests from the County Branches.

June 7 will mark the golden anniversary of the founding of Stanstead North Branch and this will be celebrated with a dinner and program.

Mrs. Raymond Curtis invited the May meeting to her home at 1:30 p.m. All were reminded of the County annual meeting in Ayer's Cliff on May 10.

The meeting adjourned. The program, in charge of the Agriculture convener, Mrs. Soutiere, came up with a quiz on birds, animals and plants, which was educational and amusing.

The hostesses Mrs. B.A. Hill, Mrs. Soutiere and Mrs. E. Hill served refreshments. The table was centered with daffodils. Mrs. B.A. Hill poured.

EXPLANATIONS OF MORE DIFFICULT CLUES:

CLUES ACROSS:

- BABBLING not gabbling. BABBLING (defined as "talking idly, irrationally or foolishly") is more to the point. Certainly, at "the average cocktail party," they are not talking incomprehensibly fast, as gabbling would suggest. Dabbling is too vague.
- ADDER not alder. An ADDER (snake) no doubt symbolizing temptation, links very well with the clue words. "crudely drawn," as though back in the days of primitive man. A deer that includes an alder, recognizable as such, would have to be more sophisticated, in which case the tree would be carefully drawn.
- LATTER not letter. The plural, "stamps," is a pointer to the heavier "parcel" (i.e., "the LATTER") since "a letter" ordinarily requires only one "stamp."
- LEARNS not years. If the "young man" is "of independent spirit," he won't just "earn to make money himself," as though he were not going to do anything about his desire, he will "LEARN to make money." Thus, LEARN makes a comprehensive answer, including yearn.
- SPOT not split. A SPOT makes an all-inclusive answer, whether it's a split (defined as "narrow point of land projecting into the water") or whatever, being beside the point.
- NOW not not. Assuming the "dog" to have been disobedient before being sent to the "training school," it's too much to expect "it" to be transformed into an "absolutely obedient" animal, without trace of its former character, making NOW more apt than not.
- CORD not cork. The "boy making a rough-and-ready rod to go fishing with" definitely "needs" some sort of CORD (e.g. rope, wire, etc.), but anything buoyant will do: it doesn't have to be cork.
- BRUISER not cruiser. "The deeds of" the BRUISER makes a straight-forward answer; but rather "the deeds of" the "crew, etc." of the cruiser and not the cruiser itself.
- APPEAL not appear. Mothers are so ready to forgive and "forget" wayward sons' misdeeds; that the odds are the husband will be accustomed to her "appearing to forget" them. "Should" she "APPEAL to him" to do so, it is the probability of something the "inquisitive" type. "It's natural" that his "curiosity" should be "aroused."
- STEAMY not steady. "An employe in a Turkish bath will use the 'STEAM' quality of 'the heat' (i.e., its STEAMINESS) but he himself, will be going in and out of it, making steady hardly apt.
- BETTER not bitter. Since there is nothing in the clue to say that the first "orange" was not bitter, too, BETTER makes a much better comparison.
- GALE not game. GALE is the better answer, as it comes about through natural causes and "luck was not in your favor" to be in its path. You voluntarily choose to play "a game" voluntarily and some types of games are more prone to injuries than others. Consequently, it's not really a matter of "luck" as to whether "you're personally injured" or not.
- ADORN not adorn. That "the socialite women ADORN each others' parties," in their exquisite dresses, is true, but whether they adorn them is questionable. If the "parties are" better than their own, pique is felt; if less good, quite often boredom sets in.
- CRUSHED not brushed. "It's common" indeed "for the sound of some things being CRUSHED (e.g. someone chewing crisp food; a car in a bad accident, etc.) to put certain people on edge." "It's" rather the scratching of objects (e.g. stockings, blackboard) that upsets "people," not the soft sound of brushing.
- LEAVES not leaves. "When" he LEAVES "an uncongenial house" is favored. It's not the very moment "when" the "sensitive person" signs the lease; only after he has lived in it some time.
- RAIN not pain. "To control RAIN" makes a direct answer, but rather to eradicate pain.
- STRIPE not strike. STRIFE (i.e. open conflict) fits the clue phrase. "Of ten, bitter memories linger on." There are so many strikes into which very little personal element enters and thus "bitter" memories long after "would not

Junior Olympic program: A splashing success

LENNOXVILLE — Bishop's University staged its fourth Junior Olympics program last weekend, bringing pupils from five elementary schools and one high school to participate in a swimming clinic.

The 120 students were broken up into three groups, each of which saw two films and then

Story and photos
by Bruce Porter

swam for the remainder of the two-hour sessions.

A promotional film on the Olympic Games and another dealing with competitive swimming strokes were shown to the youngsters before they were divided into two groups for practical sessions in the Sports Centre pool.

Suzanne Fitzgerald, a Champlain Regional College physical education instructor and Michel Pellerin from the Sherbrooke swim team were the instructors, with four others giving assistance.

The teachers worked on competitive strokes - the crawl and backstroke, and the pupils later put them to use in races after they had been taught how to prepare for the start of a race.

Cookshire, Sawyerville and Bury elementary schools made up one group, with swimmers from Sherbrooke and Lennoxville schools and Alexander Galt Regional completing the list of participants.

In addition to the swimming program, Bishop's has hosted clinics on archery, basketball and cross-country skiing. The Junior Olympics program is sponsored by the Royal Bank of Canada in cooperation with the Canadian Olympic Association and the Canadian Inter-collegiate Athletic Union.

Above, Champlain Regional College physical education instructor Suzanne Fitzgerald explains swimming technique to one group of elementary students, while below, Royal Bank of Canada's Lennoxville branch Manager George Galand distributes participation certificates to some of the 120 area school pupils who took part in the Junior Olympics program.

Sher-Lenn Fifty Plus Club

Following the noon luncheon Bingo was played on the first of March. A visit was made to a local shopping center on the sixth. A dessert supper party was held on Wednesday the eighth. A very lively musical programme was presented prior to the supper hour with Mr. Eddie Custeau and Miss Barbara Custeau, our guest musicians. Mr. Custeau and Barbara were among the many musicians contributing to the outstanding day-long entertainment at our recent Rock-A-Thon, and they have been welcome guests at many of our club activities. Members joined in the singing, and dancing to the toe-tapping music.

A St. Patrick's Day dessert luncheon was held on Wednesday the 15th. The Second Winds under the direction of Lois Ogilvie Blanchette and Mrs. Annie Hunting, accompanist, presented a special St. Patrick's Day concert. Opening with the theme song, 'Memories', many old favourite Irish songs followed — 'Little Bit of Heaven', 'Harrigan', 'My Wild Irish Rose'. Then Mr. Bob Blake introduced Mr. McKetchup and brought a bit of Scotland into an Irish concert! Mr. McKetchup is a very appealing, if brash, puppet who became an instant success. A recitation was given, when Mr. McKetchup decided to allow his friend, Mr. Blake, to proceed. 'Sweet Rosie O'Grady' and 'The Daughter of Rosie O'Grady' were the next selections. 'The Last Rose of Summer', a solo by Lois Ogilvie Blanchette; 'Clancy Lowered the Boom' with very effective arrangements; 'Little Bit of Heaven'; and then the theme song, 'Memories' to close a very gay and pleasurable concert.

Following lunch a Spelling Bee was held. It was most difficult to eliminate the truly remarkably expert spellers in the Sher-Lenn, but finally Miss Alene Morrison was the winner.

Dr. L. Clarke was the guest speaker during the afternoon. Dr. Clarke spoke of his experiences as a doctor in Newfoundland with humor and understanding, relating the lifestyles and the harsh realities of life in parts of this province. Discovering that Dr. Clarke had a vast knowledge of so many famous English poems, the members kept him very busy reciting their favourites, one after another. Unfortunately a doctor has a busy schedule and with regret, we had to save further requests for another visit.

A special St. Patrick's Day raffle was held and Miss Evelyn Davies drew the winning tickets. The lucky winners were Miss Alene Morrison and Mrs. Iris Peasley.

A delicious roast beef dinner was thoroughly enjoyed at Parkside Ranch, Cherry River, on the 21st. Following dinner, slides of the beginnings of Parkside Ranch up to the present time were shown by Mr. Fred Warnholtz. Then a singsong followed, everyone seated around the large, glowing fireplace. It was a happy and relaxing visit to Parkside Ranch, our gracious hosts, Mr. and Mrs. Warnholtz, making us feel very much at home.

On March 22nd, Mr. and Mrs. Kenneth Herring joined us for lunch and then at one o'clock showed their beautiful slides of the British Isles. Mr. and Mrs. Herring have always been most generous in coming down to the club and showing slides of their many trips. The members always look forward to their visits. This afternoon was no exception, and fond memories were invoked for so many with the viewing of scenes of England and Scotland.

Military Whist was played on the 29th. The winning table for this month's game was captained by Mrs. Pearl Desruisseaux and the players were Mrs. Marguerite Husbands and Mr. and Mrs. A.R. Tolhurst. The travelling prize was won by Mrs. Doward Richardson. The artists met each Tuesday and worked on their incomplete works or started new paintings.

The handicraft group met each Monday, busy with the preparations for the spring bazaar. This bazaar will have a special theme, "Special Occasion" Bazaar, and will be held May 13, from 10:30 a.m. to 3:30 p.m. A snack bar will be open all day, with hot soup, sandwiches, desserts, and beverages available. There will be a food table at the Bazaar as well as special displays of Christmas and other annual holidays; there will be tables for candles; the gardener; the bride; the children; the baby; a table of dolls, etc. It is hoped the bazaar will offer many gift selections for all occasions, as well as the many items always found at the Sher-Lenn bazaars.

St. Luke's Church acquires historic articles

By ALICE BUCKLAND
For The Record
WATERLOO — St. Luke's Church in Waterloo has recently acquired furnishings of beauty and historic value. Parishioners have planned and arranged the installing of these articles, which greatly add to the impressiveness of this old church, which was dedicated in 1870. On Sunday, April 9, worshippers were surprised to enter the vestibule of St. Luke's and see a most beautiful three-pannelled stained glass window, which had been placed there to the memory of the Venerable Archdeacon David Lindsay - 1821-1900. On the center panel is depicted 'The Good Shepherd', with a lamb in His arms. The side panels are in rich golden colors harmonizing shades. Certainly a fitting memorial to

Two minutes with the Bible

TWO SIDES OF ONE COIN

"I will very gladly spend and be spent for you; though the more abundantly I love you, the less I am loved" (II Cor. 12:15).

The true man of God will faithfully serve the congregation which the Lord has entrusted to him without thought of reward. Like Paul, he will "gladly spend and be spent" for them even if his toil and sacrifice go unappreciated. Where the congregation is too small to support him fully he will cheerfully engage in enough secular work to supply the deficiency. This is as it should be, for he is serving God in ministering to His people. But there is another side to this coin, for Christian assemblies should appreciate the ministries of their pastors in their behalf. This is especially so where the minister gives himself unstintingly for his flock. It is a sad fact that too many ministers are grossly underpaid. Most of the members of the congregation would not be willing to live on the low economic level on which they keep their pastor living for years on end. He must be willing to sacrifice, but they must not be deprived of any of the luxuries to which they are accustomed. They do not realize how discouraging it can be for the pastor and his family to constantly have to do without, while the better-off members of the congregation hardly notice. This is why the Apostle Paul reproved the niggardly Corinthians and declared: "Even so hath the Lord ordained that they which preach the gospel should live of the gospel" (I Cor. 9:14). And this, too, is why he wrote to the large-hearted Philippians: "I can do all things through Christ which strengtheneth me. Notwithstanding ye have well done, that ye did communicate with my affliction...Not that I desire a gift, but I desire fruit that may abound to your account" (Phil. 4:13-17). Where true, Bible-believing pastors are concerned, let's not be Corinthians; let's be Philippians.

AN OUTLINE:

WI meetings

DUNHAM — On April 5, the regular meeting of the W.I. was held at the home of Mrs. R.S. Selby.

The meeting opened by repeating the Mary Stewart Collect in unison. There were seventeen members present. The motto for April was, "Somewhere there's a willow budding, in a hollow by a river, - and there's a thrush who's building early, with his feathers all a shiver." The roll call - "If you had your choice now, what career would you choose?" The responses showed many defeated hopes and aspirations, also we had some amusing answers.

In the correspondence, several thank-you notes were received, also an appeal for the mentally retarded, which will be discussed at a later meeting. The financial report was given.

The program was agriculture. The preservation of our green spaces, a short discussion took place in regards to planting shrubs or flowers in a public place, this was tabled for the next meeting for the lack of information.

Plans were made to hold a dessert 500 and Bridge card party on May 12, which will be advertised later on.

Reports of committees: Citizenship - Mrs. C. Martin read a short history of our flag, present and past.

Education: Mrs. I. Mc-

Laughlin read a short piece of history concerning Cowansville, or Nelsonville as it was known years ago.

Home Economics: Mrs. Vaughan read an article, "Waste not, Want not" in regards to packaging of foods, namely over packaging in our modern society.

Health and Welfare: Mrs. Perkins read an interesting item by a doctor urging people to have an eye examination yearly, because some symptoms may not appear until too late for effective treatment.

Publicity: Mrs. Clark read an article from the Township Sun, the translated and reproduced Editorial from Ici Quebec.

Sunshine - Mrs. Selby reported having sent out get-well cards, and also sympathy cards.

Mrs. Harvey was unable to attend the meeting, but reported that she had remembered our two girls at the Dixville Home, at Easter.

Mrs. Vaughan offered to make the ditty bags, and Mrs. Clark offered to help her purchase the items for filling them.

Plans for the new program were discussed, roll calls and mottos were handed into the secretary.

There being no further business, the meeting closed by repeating the W.I. Grace.

The new policy of wildlife management is intended to give all Quebecers access to the wild-life and leisure resources of the forest.

When the season opens on April 28, 1978, fishermen will be the first to benefit by the abolition of exclusive fishing and hunting rights.

WHAT CHANGES DOES THIS IMPLY?

- Private clubs will no longer have exclusive hunting and fishing rights.
- Québec citizens will no longer require fishing permits (except for salmon).
- Creation of CEZs — Controlled Exploitation Zones: these areas will be assigned to non-profit associations recognized by the Ministry. In order to have access to the wildlife resources in a CEZs, a citizen must be a card-carrying member of such an association (cost — about $15 per year per family).
- For public lands which are not maintained as parks, reserves, CEZs or territories leased to outfitters: accessible to all without formalities.
- Wildlife protection: increased control and surveillance by a larger staff of biologists, technicians and conservation officers (fishing and game-wardens, etc.).
- WHAT HAS NOT CHANGED
- The regulations respecting hunting and fishing (limited seasons, catch limits, type of arms, zones, etc.) will remain in force and applied by wildlife conservation officers.
- Parks and reserves: open to all. As in the past, phone reservations will be required for a day's fishing or an extended stay.
- Rights of purveyance: the possibility of hunting and fishing trips under contract. Those interested should contact an outfitter, as in the past.
- Private property: the owner of any property, a club on private property, lake-front lots, land serviced by private road, etc., may allow, or refuse, access to that property, as has always been the case.

20-20 hindsight
says McHale erred

It's never polite to second-guess, so call this one merely a bit of healthy skepticism. After all, baseball managers have been known to be wrong before, haven't they?

Not that Expos' manager Dick Williams destroyed every thread of infallibility last Saturday - he just lacked sound reasoning to preserve his impeccable wisdom.

The situation was the two-out, runner-at-second, Mets-trailing-by-a-run-in-the-ninth which faced Montreal reliever Stan Bahnsen, notorious all spring for yielding the long ball. Lefthander Darold Knowles, billed as the ball club's number one short relief man was ready in the bullpen as the Mets sent up aging Ed Kranepool to pinch hit.

Williams elected to stick with Bahnsen and Kranepool lofted a ball over the right field fence to win the ballgame. "If I bring in Knowles," explained Dick later, "the Mets likely counter with Tom Grieve and he hits the ball just as far as Kranepool."

Perhaps, but his seven home runs and paltry .225 batting average in Texas last year would seem to indicate otherwise. In addition, coming to a new league is more likely to leave Grieve at a disadvantage, facing National League pitching for the first time.

Williams, of course, may have remembered that Kranepool hit a pitiful .174 against Expos' hurling last season. Resorting to percentage baseball and bringing in a south-paw to face him would have further minimized his chances.

But, as the old saying persists, hindsight is 20-20.

The major leagues may not be that far away from seeing the first female umpire. The name to remember is 21-year-old Lisa Bennett, who has registered to attend a Daytona Beach umpires' school next spring.

An attractive blonde, Ms. Bennett says, "They don't let girls play baseball yet, so I want to be an umpire."

Even if she fails to make the big time, look at it this way - she's bound to revolutionize the manufacture of chest protectors.

The first week of the baseball season has shown that umpires are going to crack down on runners attempting to break up the double-play.

On Saturday during the Yankees-Texas game, Rangers shortstop Bert Campaneris was wiped out by a runner hoping to prevent a relay to first base. The second-base umpire immediately signalled an automatic out for what he felt was a deliberate move toward the infielder.

Ty Cobb would probably never have approved of such rule enforcement, but infielders around the league should be counting less bruises in '78.

Among the final cuts of two major league teams were a pair of onetime Expos phenoms. California Angels, after previously touting Bolor Moore as the best newcomer in the early stages of camp, relegated him to the minors while the Phillies did likewise with lefty Dan Warthen.

Some people will follow the Expos anywhere. Not content to get merely a radio description of the game, Cowansville's Eric Derrick has booked a weekend flight to Cincinnati the weekend of May 6. Riverfront Stadium may never be the same.

When the Expos' rookies open their season in the Gulf Coast League, the manager of their Sarasota ball club will be Nick Testa who played in the old Provincial League for Granby Cardinals, among others.

And even Western Canadian fans will be in for a lot of baseball this summer. Though there's no major league franchise out there, three big-league clubs are operating rookie league franchises this summer. They are all located in Alberta - at Medicine Hat, Lethbridge, and Calgary.

You may have thought the Expos were giving Ross Grimsley a bundle when they signed him as a free agent last December for what has been reported to be a sum of $229,000 average annual pay. But the Expos' lefthander actually got only the ninth richest pact of the latest free-agent crop.

Larry Hisle of the Milwaukee Brewers tops the list with an average salary of $525,000. Not bad, considering his wages last year were $47,200.

It may have been an omen of things to come for the Expos on opening day at Shea Stadium when the players and coaches were being introduced. Bullpen coach Ozzie Virgil bounded up the steps of the dugout and promptly tripped head-first in his anxiety to race out onto the field. Needless to say, members of the ballclub were left in stitches.

Upcoming events at the Olympic Stadium during the April 21-26 homestand include thermal bottle on the 23rd, Golden Age Day on the 24th, School Day on the 25th, and Ladies' Day on the 26th.

Flyers down Rockies

Coach Pat Kelly motioned towards the locker room, where his Colorado Rockies removed their uniforms for the final time this National Hockey League season.

"There's no shame in that room there," he said. "Nineteen guys worked their heads off and Philadelphia didn't just push us aside. They had to work for it."

The Flyers worked for their 3-1 triumph over Kelly's charges Thursday night and moved into the Stanley Cup playoff quarter-finals.

"It was a real good series," said Philadelphia centre Bobby Clarke. "We played well and didn't give up many scoring chances, and that helps."

Elsewhere, Don Murdoch's goal at 1:37 of overtime carried New York Rangers past Buffalo Sabres 4-3 and forced a deciding game Saturday night in the teams' best-of-three set.

But two other first-round matchups were also decided. Detroit Red Wings eliminated Atlanta Flames 3-2 on Bill Lochead's goal with 1:34 remaining; and Toronto Maple Leafs ousted Los Angeles Kings 4-0 behind Mike Palmateer's shutout goaltending and a solid performance by centre Darryl Sittler.

FLYERS STINGY
The Flyers gave up just three goals in sweeping the best-of-three series, permitting two in Tuesday night's opening 3-2 overtime victory and one in Thursday night's clincher.

"I didn't think the referee was too great," muttered Kelly, fighting to the very last. "If he has guts enough to look at himself in the mirror tomorrow and say he called a fair hockey game, then I better change my religion."

Referee Wally Harris called only two penalties in the deciding contest, both on the Flyers, both in the opening period.

Philadelphia's Reggie Leach and Colorado's Dennis Owchar traded first-period goals. The game stood at 1-1 until the third period, when the Flyers outshot the Rockies 20-4 and got goals from Don Saleski and Bob Kelly.

Mel Bridgman set up both third-period goals for Philadelphia, which outshot Colorado 44-18 in the opening game and 45-17 on Thursday.

WACKY OVERTIME
Murdoch's goal capped a wacky overtime in which each team had a goal disallowed.

SUGAR KNOCKS 'EM OUT

LARGO, Md. (AP) — Sugar Ray Leonard, inspired by a record Maryland indoor boxing crowd of 15,272 fans, scored a controversial third-round knockout over Bobby Haymon of Cleveland in a scheduled eight-round welterweight bout Thursday night.

The bout went into the books as a technical knockout at the three-minute mark of the third round for Leonard, now unbeaten in 10 pro bouts. The TKO sparked a heated protest from Haymon's handlers, who insisted their fighter had been hit after the bell had sounded to end the round.

A replay on the arena tele-screen indicated Leonard landed a right to Haymon's head simultaneously with the bell as referee Harry Cecchini grabbed the former Olympic champion's shoulder. He unleashed a left that proved to be the finisher.

The punch left Haymon draped over the bottom strand of ropes before his handlers jumped into the ring and dragged him to his corner. The 32-year-old was unable to continue.

But that didn't end the protest. Under Maryland State Athletic Commission rules, if Leonard actually landed his punch before the bell, the referee was compelled to count Haymon out.

"That's what Cecchini should have done," commission secretary Jack Cohen said. "It should have gone in the books as a knockout, but under the circumstances, it has to be a third round TKO because he didn't answer the bell for the fourth round."

Reggie Jackson returns

How sweet it was for Reggie Jackson.

Returning for the first time to the scene of his greatest personal triumph, the New York Yankee slugger delivered on his first at-bat and triggered a shower of candy bars at Yankee Stadium Thursday.

"I didn't want anyone to get hit in the head," said Jackson, "but I knew it was a gesture of appreciation." Hundreds in the crowd of 44,667 who had received the candy bars as an opening day gift pitched them on the field following Jackson's three-run homer in the first inning that got the defending world champions off to a 4-2 victory over Chicago White Sox.

Jackson's home run off Wilbur Wood was the fourth consecutive at the Stadium for the Yankee star, who hit three homers in his final three appearances in last October's sixth-game World Series victory over Los Angeles Dodgers.

The White Sox nicked winner Ron Guidry for both their runs in the second inning on RBI singles by Wayne Nordhagen and Junior Moore.

In other American League games, California Angels edged Minnesota Twins 1-0 in 11 innings and Oakland A's turned back Seattle Mariners 3-1. In limited National League action, Cincinnati Reds nipped San Francisco Giants 7-6 in 13 innings and St. Louis Cardinals stopped Pittsburgh Pirates 6-5.

Reds 7 Giants 6
Rick Auerbach's pinch-hit double with one out in the 13th inning scored Ray Knight from first base, providing Cincinnati with its winning run over San Francisco.

John Curtis and raced home when Auerbach doubled to the left field wall on his first swing of this season.

E.T. MINOR HOCKEY TEAMS EYE FINALS

MONTREAL (BP) — Eastern Townships teams did well in the opening day of the provincial minor hockey tournaments in the Montreal area yesterday.

In juvenile action, the Sherbrooke Eclairiers walked away with an easy 8-0 victory over Richelieu representatives. St. Constant, Peter Smith and Patrick Bilodeau paced the locals with two goals each, while Guy Quirion, Yvan Roy, Daniel Quirion and Mario Guillemette scored once apiece.

The Magog A's also pulled off a shutout in the atom category, winning 5-0 over Baie Comeau. A two-goal performance was turned in by Benoit Dion, with singles going to Martin Cournoyer, Daniel Sieben and Stephane Asselin.

The Windsor Athletics lost their opening match in the midget division but rebounded for a triumph later in the day. Baie Comeau took the win 5-4, with Claude Labbe getting two goals and an assist for Windsor. Pierre Dumas and Luc Bachand got the other goals.

The Athletics replied against Murdochville with a 9-6 victory. Dumas had a pair of goals in the second game, with teammates Mario Desrosiers, Bachand, Luc Therrien, Luc Coderre, Labbe, Alain Grenache and Bruneau Martin getting one goal each.

In total, 74 teams in all five minor hockey categories will be competing until Sunday in the provincials. Close to 1,400 players are involved in the tournament.

Whalers on WHA salvage mission

Ever since the roof fell in, New England Whalers have been trying to salvage their World Hockey Association season.

They resume that task tonight in their first WHA playoff game against Edmonton Oilers.

Also opening tonight is the Birmingham Bulls-Winnipeg Jets series. The Quebec Nordiques-Houston Aeros series opens Sunday.

The Whalers started the season playing winning hockey, and the club seemed immune to the financial woes that have plagued other WHA teams.

But the Hartford Civic Centre's roof collapsed early one morning last winter under weight of ice and snow, leaving the team without a home rink.

They moved to the Springfield Civic Centre and continued to win games, draw fans, and finished the season Tuesday by clinching the WHA's Ben Hatskin award for best goaltending.

"We desperately wanted to win the goaltending award," said Whalers coach Henry Neale after his team's 6-3 win over Indianapolis Racers.

"We couldn't be in any better frame of mind going into the playoffs than we are now."

ROUGH SERIES
In Winnipeg, Jets coach Larry Hillman looks for a rough series with the truculent Bulls.

"We'll have to answer challenges," said Hillman. "We must become involved. Look for us to be more aggressive."

Bobby Hull and Peter Sullivan will be back in
