SHERBROOKE, QUEBEC, WEDNESDAY, NOVEMBER 27, 1968

Seventy-second year

HERE COME DE BOOZE: A man is seen leaving the Quebec Liquor Board outlet on the corner of King Street

East and St. Francis Street in Sherbrooke yesterday, hurrying along with his arms laden with a box full of liquor. After a five month drought, Sherbrookers stocked up with liquor yesterday as QLB outlets opened. (Record photo: Gerry Lemay)

Crowds flow to liquor stores

MONTREAL (CP) — Crowds flowed steadily through Quebec Liquor Board outlets Tuesday afternoon as doors opened for the first time in five months.

Only a trickle of customers had been on hand when the outlets—closed since 3,000 workers began striking June 26—opened for business Tuesday morning, but by late afternoon crowds were swelling to what one downtown director called a "deluge."

The QLB announced stores across the province would open Tuesday after workers voted Sunday and Monday to end the long and expensive strike by accepting a three-year contract.

The workers, making an average of $81.63 a week before the strike, are estimated to have lost about $5,000,000 in salaries since the walkout began.

Revenue lost by the government since the outlets closed is an estimated $36,000,000.

Under the new contract—retroactive to April 1, 1968, and expiring March 31, 1971—there are increases of $22 a week for store employees and $26 a week for warehouse employees.

As part of the new agreement, reached in principle last Friday after lengthy negotiations kept stumbling over wage demands, workers will also receive a lump sum of $375 to partially compensate for salary losses during the strike.

During the strike, bombs were planted near several liquor outlets and outside the homes of QLB executives, but no one was injured.

Police also seized liquor imported from neighboring provinces and states, as well as $100,000 worth of liquor in a warehouse in the Quebec City suburb of Vanier.

Following the Vanier seizure, eight men were arrested on charges of violating the Quebec Liquor Board Act and a royal commission was established to investigate the illicit sale of liquor during the strike.

The new working agreement guarantees job security to a QLB employee who is laid off due to shortage of work. The employee would be transferred to another government institution such as a school board or a hospital.

Store employees would have their lunch break reduced to one hour from 1½ hours for a 39-hour week.

Warehouse employees would not be asked to work longer than their previous 37½ hours but for an extra two and a half hours a week they would be eligible for an extra raise of 7.6 per cent—bringing their salary increase to 29.2 per cent.

Should the cost of living index raise three points by the expiry date of the contract, salaries would automatically be increased one per cent.

Cold cash chills relations with Britain and Germany

LONDON (CP) — British-West German relations have taken on a sudden chill as the result of a diplomatic foul-up at the height of last week's international monetary crisis.

Just who tripped is not clear, but a clash has developed over German-issued reports that Prime Minister Wilson tried to blackmail West Germany into revaluing the mark.

Wilson is denying it, in undiplomatic language.

The row developed when Germany was under pressure to revalue the mark upwards, supposedly to save French and British currencies. An official German spokesman said in Bonn that Wilson called in the German ambassador here and threatened to withdraw some of Britain's NATO forces from Germany if it was not done.

In the Commons Tuesday night Wilson called the allegation "quite false."

"I very much deplore the leaks—inaccurate leaks—in Bonn about what took place," he said. "I have never known such a thing in four years of communication with over 100 heads of government."

PUT UP ARGUMENT

While Wilson did not say what happened, it develops that he did call in the ambassador and put up a strong argument for German co-operation in maintaining monetary equilibrium by revaluing. He is reported to have pointed to a recent NATO communique stressing need for sharing the financial burdens of the alliance, which seems to have been carried a step further in the German "leaks."

The ambassador, Dr. Herbert Blankenhorn, confirmed Tuesday that he had not been bullied.

However, a certain amount of German rancor was reported to have been generated at Bonn by table-pounding on the part of Roy Jenkins, chancellor of the exchequer, at last week's save-the-franc sessions of Western finance ministers. The Germans took the view that the strong mark was being called on unjustifiably, to bail out improvident neighbors.

It probably will take a round of soothing diplomatic notes to get the ruffled national feathers into place.

Two men hold future of Air Canada

MONTREAL (CP) — Air Canada, anticipating a three-fold expansion by 1978, has placed its future in the hands of a two-man senior management team—Quebec lawyer Yves Pratte and J. R. Baldwin, longtime deputy minister of transport.

In a statement Tuesday, which announced the appointment of Mr. Pratte as chairman and Mr. Baldwin as president, the Air Canada board of directors also hinted that the publicly-owned air line may have to "go public" for expansion funds.

The statement forecast a "doubling and tripling" in the size of operations over the next five to 10 years and resulting "heavy new capital requirements."

It would be necessary "to reconsider a number of basic matters affecting Air Canada's organization and future, ranging from ownership to methods of financing."

Now wholly owned by the CNR, a sister Crown corporation which holds all Air Canada shares on behalf of the federal government, the air line had operating profits the last 14 years.

However, in an effort to remain competitive, Air Canada has placed orders for new aircraft, the cost of which would strain the public purse.

Aircraft now on order—including six British-French Concorde supersonic jets and four of the United States' supersonic Boeing 2707s—will cost more than $1,000,000,000.

REPLACE MCGREGOR

The double-barrelled appointment fills a void created last May when Gordon K. McGregor retired after 20 years as president.

The board said Mr. Pratte, 43, will be responsible as chief executive officer for all aspects of Air Canada operations, but will be mainly concerned with financing, long-range planning and development of policy.

As president, Mr. Baldwin, 56, would be responsible to the chairman and the board "for the management of current operations and for such other duties as are assigned by the chairman."

Mr. Pratte, senior partner in a Quebec City law firm, graduated from Laval University in 1947, served as dean of the university's law faculty from 1962 to 1965, and was special adviser to two former Quebec premiers—the late Daniel Johnson and Jean Lesage.

He was a member of the three-man royal commission on national security which submitted its report to the federal government earlier this month.

Mr. Baldwin, deputy transport minister since 1954, is a Toronto-born Rhodes scholar who entered the external affairs department in 1941 and served on a number of important government committees during the Second World War.

Five years prior to his appointment as deputy minister, he was named chairman of the Air Transport Board.

Calls Quebec MLAs traitors

QUEBEC (CP) — Separatist leader Reggie Charrtrand was ejected from the public gallery of the legislative assembly Tuesday when he rose to shout that Quebec MLAs are "traitors to the nation."

The former boxer, leader of a black-shirted band of militants known as Chevaliers de l'Indépendance—Knights of Independence—rose to ask: "Are you going to pass the law today to protect our English?"

A provincial policeman went into the gallery where Mr. Charrtrand was seated amid several primary school children and led the separatist out as MLAs from both sides of the house shouted: "Get him out."

As he was being led out, Mr.

Chartrand continued shouting: "When are you going to betray the French-Canadian nation?"

Still occupy

Occupations continued today at two Canadian universities while students at a third were to vote on a proposal to call a general strike of students.

Students were conducting sit-ins at McGill University in Montreal and at the University of Ottawa. At Simon Fraser University in Burnaby, B.C., where RCMP Saturday arrested 114 students occupying the administration building, a vote was scheduled for today on the question of strike action.

We have always been betrayed by our elite."

BILL STALLED

Premier Jean-Jacques Bertrand Tuesday was scheduled to introduce legislation to ensure the rights of parents to educate their children in the official language of their choice, but the bill was not introduced.

Mr. Bertrand said later he had not had time to complete it.

In Montreal Monday, 17 nationalist and separatist groups met Mr. Bertrand to ask him not to introduce the bill, which would guarantee the province's English-speaking minority the right to educate their children in English.

The right to education in English is not guaranteed by law.

News in brief

Confers today

ROME (AP) — Premier-designate Mariano Rumor conferred today with members of Italy's last centre-left coalition cabinet. There was general expectation that he would be able to ally his Christian Democrats with the Socialists again and give Italy a majority government for the first time in six months.

With Rumor's designation by President Giuseppe Saragat Tuesday night, the political mood turned suddenly more optimistic than at any time since the Socialists pulled out of the government and let the centre-left collapse after the national election last May.

Reds shadow us

OTTAWA (CP) —The Russians now are shadowing Canadian naval exercises involving only two or three warships, a defence department spokesman says.

Previously, Soviet trawlers and oceanographic ships bristling with electronic equipment did not bother to keep an eye on Canadian naval operations until an exercise comprised about 12 ships.

Sad day

MANNINGTON, W.Va. (AP) — The families of 78 miners trapped for a week in a burning coal mine face a sad U.S. Thanksgiving Day Thursday.

"What have these people got to feast about?" asked Mrs. Robert Friend of Parkersburg, whose brother is among the trapped miners.

Late next month

WASHINGTON (CP) — U.S. officials expect it will be sometime late next month before serious peace talks begin in Paris even though the Saigon government has agreed to end its boycott in return for the right to head bargaining on South Vietnamese internal matters.

Says Liberals try to avoid Nigerian affairs

OTTAWA (CP) — Opposition Leader Stanfield says the government's attitude toward the Nigerian civil war seems to be motivated by a desire to "keep out of this thing," and its policy simply a small bow to public feeling.

Mr. Stanfield said Tuesday during a one-day Commons debate on the Nigerian situation that government measures taken so far have been ineffective in relieving suffering or putting an end to hostilities.

"It would seem to me that the attitude of the government has been one of a desire to keep out of this thing," said the Conservative leader. A stream of criticism in the same vein came from other opposition members.

External Affairs Minister Mitchell Sharp, winding up the special debate, announced an additional $1,600,000 in aid for Nigeria and secessionist Biafra. This brings to $2,660,000 the total amount of aid provided by the Canadian government for victims of the civil war.

Mr. Sharp also said that any proposal for Canadian participation in an international peace-keeping force in Nigeria would receive prompt and careful consideration from the government.

REJECTS DEMANDS

Prime Minister Trudeau rejected opposition demands that Canada involve itself more deeply in efforts to resolve the

By JOHN BEST

Nigerian conflict as well as relieve starvation.

The principle of non-intervention is a "dominant consideration" of countries that have recently gained independence, said Mr. Trudeau.

Any attempt to put the Nigerian conflict on the UN General Assembly agenda "would not only be bitterly resented by the Nigerian government and the member states of the Organization of African Unity, but would also be totally unsuccessful."

Mr. Trudeau said he had assured Maj.-Gen. Yakubu Gowon, the Nigerian head of state, of Canada's continuing support of his government as that of all Nigeria. At the same time Canada wished to see an early conclusion of hostilities on terms permitting Nigerians to live within a federal structure which guarantees the personal and economic security of all persons.

A direct challenge to the government's Nigerian policy was easily defeated late Tuesday night. The vote was 120 to 77 against an amendment to a motion calling on the House to concur in the report of its standing committee on external affairs, which has been studying the Nigerian question.

Eight Creditistes and 20 New Democrats voted with 49 Conservatives against the government. Under the amendment, proposed by R. G. L. Fairweather (PC-Fundy-Royal), Conservative external affairs spokesman, Canada would take the initiative in trying to persuade countries selling arms to either Nigeria or Biafra to cease doing so.

Standing in the 264-seat House: Liberal 155, Conservative 72, NDP 21, Creditiste 14, Independent 1, vacant 1.

Morin visits Ottawa

OTTAWA (CP) — Claude Morin, Quebec deputy minister of intergovernmental affairs, flew to Ottawa Tuesday for a meeting with Marc Lalonde, principal secretary to Prime Minister Trudeau.

Neither would comment on the meeting at which they discussed the problem posed by the calling of an international culture conference of French-speaking countries in Niger next month.

A federal spokesman has said delicate negotiations are proceeding between Ottawa and Quebec on the issue.

In February, Canada suspended relations with Gabon, another French-speaking African state, when it bypassed Ottawa and invited Quebec to an international education conference of French-language countries.

BYPASSED BEFORE

France bypassed Ottawa in the same way in April and invited Quebec, which attended both the Gabon and Paris meetings.

Ottawa maintains that invitations to Canada for international conferences must be made to the federal authority, although it is willing to have provincial representation on Canadian delegations.

The issue has been raised again by Niger's proposal for a meeting of French-language countries on French culture in general, not only education.

Officials have declined to say whether Niger has sent an invitation to Ottawa or Quebec City.

QUEBEC (CP) — Premier Jean-Jacques Bertrand said Tuesday that Quebec province has received an invitation from the small African republic of Niger to attend a December education conference of French-speaking countries.

Asked by reporters whether the invitation came through diplomatic channels of the federal government at Ottawa, the premier said: "No."

Tories score in Nova Scotia

HALIFAX (CP) — The Progressive Conservatives scored victories in two Nova Scotia byelections Tuesday, retaining one seat and picking up another from the Liberals.

The byelections were held less than two weeks after Liberal Opposition Leader Gerald Regan charged that irregularities were involved in land transactions in a government-backed housing project near here.

The Progressive Conservative government held on to Cumberland Centre in one of Tuesday's byelections and took Dartmouth North from the Liberals in the other.

The byelections left the party standing in the 46-seat Nova Scotia legislature as follows: Conservatives 40, Liberals five, vacant one.

The Conservatives won 40 seats in the last provincial election in May, 1967. The Liberals won the other six seats, including Dartmouth North.

Premier G. I. Smith, who succeeded Robert Stanfield in September, 1967, said he was pleased with the results of Tuesday's victories.

Mr. Regan said he was happy with the Liberal gains in the popular vote in Cumberland Centre and disappointed by the small turnout of voters in Dartmouth North.

Raymond Smith of Springhill, the hard-luck Nova Scotia coal town, retained Cumberland Centre for the Conservatives, but his margin of victory was 2,036 votes to 1,483 for Springhill Mayor William Mont, the Liberal candidate.

Stephen Pyke, first elected for the Conservatives in 1953, won Cumberland Centre in the 1967 election with a 2,437-to-1,022 edge over his Liberal opponent.

Special Christmas Story-Strip Set in Space-Age Background

"Why Christmas Almost Wasn't," an enchanting story-strip by Jack Kent designed for our younger readers and tuned especially to the holiday season, will start in your Record next Monday.

The fanciful tale in 20 parts features a modern-day spaceman named Topo, who crash lands on the planet Tweenkle shortly before Christmas. Topo fears he will not receive his Christmas presents because Santa Claus doesn't have his forwarding address.

King Ling of Tweenkle and his subjects don't know what Christmas is, or who Santa is, but are delighted to meet the merry old man when he finds Topo on their planet. However, other problems arise, since Santa will not leave presents unless there is a Christmas tree to leave them under, the enemy, the Woofers, who live on the other side of the planet, try to upset the whole celebration, and Santa and his reindeer almost don't make it to Earth on Christmas Eve.

The suspense in "Why Christmas Almost Wasn't" builds up throughout the 20 chapters and you and your young ones will love the story as it develops.

The comic strip was created by Jack Kent, author, artist, and humor and cartoon contributor to major magazines, from Humpty

Jack Kent

Dumpty to Playboy, including Mad, The Saturday Evening Post, This Week, Parade, The New Yorker and others.

His first children's book, "Just Only John," was published early last summer by Parents' Magazine Press, and two more are "in the works" with other publishers. His comic strip, "King Aroo," was syndicated between 1950 and 1965.

Kent was born in Burlington, Iowa, spent his early years in Chicago, and "was raised and educated from here to there all over the United States," eventually establishing a base in Texas.

"A week after Pearl Harbor I volunteered to end the war," Kent says. "It took me four years, during which I crossed both the Arctic Circle and the Equator, and learned Eskimo, Tagalog and a lot of four-letter words."

He was discharged as a First Lieutenant, Field Artillery.

"In 1954, a gal reporter from the San Antonio Express came to interview me," Kent says, "and we got married and lived happily ever after. Jack, Jr., has been bringing up the rear for the last 13 years, but shows signs of assuming the lead momentarily."

Kent is listed in "Who's Who in America," "Who's Who in American Art" and "Who's Who in the South and Southwest," and is a member of the National Cartoonists Society.

He turns his considerable talent, imagination and experience loose on our special holiday strip, "Why Christmas Almost Wasn't," which you and your children will enjoy. Watch for it beginning Dec. 2 in your Record

Sherbrooke MP returns from UN, explains our policy

Canada's role in the United Nations is that of a well-considered, non-violent nation whose policy of persuasion toward compromise has earned her many positions on conciliatory committees.

In an interview yesterday, Paul Gervais, Liberal MP for Sherbrooke, described his recent two-week stay as an observer with the Canadian delegation at the United Nations.

When asked about the pressing questions under discussion during his visit, Mr. Gervais mentioned the admission of Red China to the Assembly. He said Canada's position on the issue was a compromise solution "Canada abstained during voting on the Chinese issue," he said, "because her position is that Red China should be admitted to the United Nations but not at the expense of Nationalist China."

Here Mr. Gervais referred to the fact that the People's Republic of China or mainland China should be admitted to the UN but that if it is, Nationalist China should not lose her seat in the general assembly.

Asked about his impressions of the UN, Mr. Gervais said what particularly caught his attention was the fact that nobody was talking about Biafra. He said the United Nations was like a game of chess. "I was struck," he said, "by the strategy of different nations, to concede one point knowing another country will concede on a different point."

Things, he said, proceed very, very slowly. He said he remembered when he was a Sherbrooke alderman and it took 10 days for a resolution to be tabled, adopted and made into law. On Parliament Hill, he said, things proceed much slower but in no way are they comparable to the lack of speed in the United Nations.

When asked about the real worth of the United Nations in view of the many pressing world conflicts, Mr. Gervais said, "It's a place to talk and conversation is much better and cheaper than war."

By RICHARD NUTBROWN
(Record Staff Reporter)

He said the UN was not the case of two individuals solving a problem. With 126 member delegations, he said, every participating country has a word in the outcome of the assembly's decisions.

Just as a passing note, he said, it is almost unbelievable to see that of 126 delegations, 91 of these are Afro-Asian.

Other important questions put to the floor of the general assembly during his stay were the examination of the reservation, exclusively for peaceful purposes, of the sea-bed and the ocean floor underlying the high seas beyond the limits of present national jurisdiction; the policies of apartheid of the government of the Republic of South Africa; trade and development; draft declaration on social development and many other diversified subjects.

When asked about the possibility of eliminating the veto powers of the powerful nations such as the United States and Russia, Mr. Gervais said it would be nice to see all member countries with equal powers, but he questioned the assembly's ability to keep countries such as these from opting out if the veto powers were removed.

He said this was another point under consideration — what will happen to Nationalist China's veto powers if the People's Republic of China were admitted to the UN?

Mr. Gervais said there was one very solid and easily seen objective, common to all delegates: the hope for universal peace.

He said there were some profound differences in the views of the delegates but also a very profound unity in general.

Rock Island youth defends self in court, acquitted by Judge on charge of theft

Judge Benoit Turmel rejected a charge of breaking and entering with theft against Gary Heald, 19, of Rock Island, when the accused was tried Monday in Court of Sessions.

The Court rejected the charge because of a lack of proof.

Heald defended himself and did not offer any defence except to ask a few questions of the Crown's witnesses.

Heald was accused of breaking into the residence of Thomas Robinson, of Beebe, October 16, and stealing a revolver and $15 in silver money.

Mr. Robinson testified that his house was broken into October 16 and said the revolver stolen was a Smith and Wesson .32 calibre model.

He identified the pistol later when he was confronted by Beebe Police Chief Archie Sheldon who had the pistol.

Heald asked one or two questions of Mr. Robinson concerning the owner of the stolen pistol.

The revolver belonged to Mr. Robinson's mother-in-law.

Mr. Heald asked the Court if Mr. Robinson had the right to have the .32 calibre pistol in his home if it did not belong to him.

The next two witnesses, Paul Chamberland, a Rock Island restaurant owner, and Allan Flanders, a Rock Island service station operator, testified for the Crown but did not present any incriminating evidence.

Crown Prosecutor Stanley Steinman's case against the accused was nil at this stage of the trial.

Mr. Steinman asked Mr. Chamberland if the accused had spent more money than usual at the restaurant October 16 or 17.

Mr. Chamberland said he couldn't recall any specific date but said he never noticed that Mr. Heald spent any more money than usual.

Mr. Flanders said he changed one dollar in silver for one paper dollar for the accused the week of October 17 but he wasn't sure about the date.

Mr. Steinman muttered to the Court that the witnesses had given Chief Sheldon different, more detailed versions of the testimony they gave yesterday.

Chief Sheldon said he questioned the accused about the theft.

He explained that the accused showed him where the stolen revolver was, hidden in the grass beside Mr. Heald's apartment house.

He added, however, that Heald did not confess to being the "author of the crime."

After the Chief's testimony, Judge Turmel rejected the charge.

Teachers of English gather for studies

The Eastern Townships Association of Teachers of English, both first and second languages, will hold a workshop today from 4 to 9 p.m. at Bishop's University.

The association's membership is open to all English-language teachers in the Eastern Townships who teach in either English or French schools, colleges or universities.

During the workshop a number of seminars have been organized. The symposium will be divided into three categories: study sessions for primary school teachers, secondary school teachers and second language teachers.

A number of English teachers from Montreal, University of Sherbrooke and Bishop's University will headline the list of guest speakers.

The meeting will mark the first time the association has held a workshop since its conception last spring.

As its main objective the association is hoping to upgrade the teaching of the English language while at the same time treating instructors, who teach English both as a first and second language, the same.

Among those who are scheduled to attend are Dr. Philip Stroud, president of the Quebec Association of English-language teachers, Dr. Roland Sutherland and Douglas Jones of the University of Sherbrooke English Department, Dr. K. Harper and Professor J. Angrave of Bishop's University, English Department.

A panel discussion will be held with secondary school teachers. Sitting in on the panel will be members of the High School Leaving Examination Board: C. Rittenhouse, Mrs. R. Smith and H. Trendas.

Miss S. Keer and S. Smith of Montreal will hold a talk on creative drama. The two are from The Assembly, an experimental drama group.

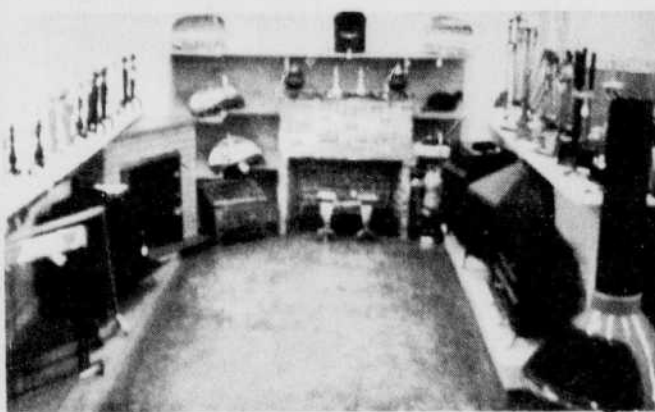

A supper will be held at which time John Cowans, president of the E. T. English-language Teachers Association, will address those in attendance.

In an interview Mr. Cowans said he will attempt to establish the association's purpose of being in his welcoming address.

The association is presently in its formative stages and has a membership of 20. It is hoped that the workshop will help increase the membership to 200 or 250 paid members.

Domtar strikers face injunction violation charges

A Superior Court trial presided over by Mr. Justice William Mitchell continues today to decide whether or not a group of striking East Angus Domtar Pulp and Kraft Paper Ltd. employees violated August 31 a court injunction passed August 29.

The action taken by the company is against the National Union of East Angus Pulp and Paper Workers Inc., The Canadian Federation of Pulp and Paper Workers, The National Federation of East Angus Office Workers Inc. and the Confederation of National Unions and a number of individual strikers named in the charge.

The charges evolved from incidents which occurred Saturday, August 31, when four company foremen entered the Domtar grounds in East Angus to inspect the buildings and machinery.

The company's lawyers, Martin Dion and Pierre Fournier, called 15 witnesses to testify for the company yesterday.

Jean-Marie Girard, 35, superintendent of mechanics at the East Angus Domtar plant, described to the Court what happened the day he and foremen Hercule Dalbec, Roch Aubin and Frank Reed entered the plant.

It was August 31, about 9 a.m. when the four men arrived in a taxi at the plant's front gate.

Mr. Girard said there were about 15 men, strikers, around the gate, but they did not bother the four company men, and he said there were no problems entering the plant grounds.

He said he and the men were to inspect the pumps, the buildings and the condition of the equipment.

Mr. Girard and the three foremen retired to his office where they discussed how to inspect the equipment as fast as possible.

The four men then walked into a department to do their work and as they crossed a bridge over the St. Francis, connecting plant departments, Mr. Girard noticed that 15 strikers, a second group, watched the four men.

By DENNIS FINLAY
(Record Staff Reporter)

He said that some members of this group yelled at them, the four foremen.

While he was in the second building inspecting equipment, Mr. Girard noticed the group increased to 40 strikers.

The 40 men were standing on the bridge in East Angus which is used by the public and is on Route 1.

The public bridge at one point is directly over the bridge the four men walked to reach each plant department.

As the four men walked from one department to another, the 40 men started yelling and swearing and some threw eggs and rocks.

Mr. Girard said he recognized among the strikers Andre Monette, Oscar Fournier, president of the National Union of East Angus Pulp and Paper Workers Inc., Raymond Leblanc and many others.

After this incident, the men finished their inspection and walked to the guardhouse at the main gate where 60 strikers were standing around watching.

Mr. Girard said he tried to telephone for police protection but the lines were cut.

He said he went back to his office to call the police and at last, a police car arrived and the four men walked to the main gate.

The 60 strikers stood shoulder to shoulder, six rows deep, and would not move.

Two of the strikers held up a large sign on which was marked "The rat hole" and on it was drawn a rat and a piece of cheese.

The only avenue of escape for the four foremen was provided by the 60 strikers — they had to practically crawl on hands and knees under the rat hole sign, like rats.

When they left in the police car, the strikers caught up to it and formed a parade to Mr. Girard's house where more eggs and rocks were thrown.

During his testimony, Mr. Girard named many men he said he knew were strikers who were involved in the incidents August 31.

One of the foremen, Hercule Dalbec and Paul Phaneuf, chief of the Domtar security guards, corroborated Mr. Girard's statement.

The first group of witnesses, including representatives of the ET news media, testified that the news of the injunction passed August 29 was publicized.

During the trial yesterday, the 250 strikers sometimes laughed too loudly and during the noon-hour break, they were restless.

They yelled at the company's two lawyers and they cheered for union lawyer, Laurent Dube, who cross-examined the major witnesses yesterday.

City to reconsider narrow street's rate

A group of about 30 residents of McCrete and Wilson Streets met with four representatives of city council last night in the hall of St. Charles Garnier School on Wilson Street to discuss nine items the residents had prepared.

The meeting was scheduled by Mayor Armand Nadeau November 18 when the citizens visited council chambers to demand answers to some questions about paving, waterworks, construction costs and grants.

They were told to prepare a list of questions and the mayor set up the meeting so their questions would be answered.

Representing City Hall last night were North Ward Aldermen Everett Nicol and Gaston Roy, City treasurer Olivier Routhier, and City engineer Frank Mascolo.

The first and perhaps most important question the Wilson Street residents asked last night is why they have to pay $9.17 tax per lineal foot when Wilson Street is paved only 22 feet wide and property owners on McCrete Street, which is 36 feet wide and paved, pay the same rate.

Why, they asked, if their street is not paved as widely as McCrete Street, must they pay the same rate.

The Wilson Street property owners told the city representatives they couldn't afford to pay this rate.

Both Aldermen Nicol and Roy assured the Wilson Street residents they will act as spokesmen for the group at the next council meeting and they will try to have a new reduced rate set for the property owners on Wilson Street.

They said they couldn't promise anything because it was a decision council would have to make but they said they would get in touch with one of the Wilson Street property owners, L. Cormier, to inform the owners what council decides.

The property owners want the rate reduced to about $5.25.

If council will allow a reduction, the Wilson Street property owners will decide whether or not to enlarge Wilson Street to 36 feet.

The maximum rate a property owner can be charged for in Sherbrooke is for 36 feet, even if the street is wider than this, and the rate for 36 feet in the North Ward is presently $9.17.

The spirited citizens also wanted to know how the rate per lineal foot is charged for sewers, waterworks, gravel and permanent public works.

Mr. Routhier replied that it depends on construction costs, material and labor.

The citizens wanted to know if the waterworks service and permanent public works rates are the same for vacant lots as occupied lots.

Yes, the rates are the same.

The question which caused much discussion was why an hourly rate for machinery and labor used by the city to construct waterworks and sewer entries had never been established.

Some proprietors paid $500 and others paid $300.

Mr. Mascolo explained that each job varies according to construction costs.

The people complained that the charge for the back-hoe digger is much too high.

Bishop's, Macdonald teach teachers

Bishop's University is co-operating with the McGill Centre for Continuing Education in presenting a credit course designed to qualify local teachers for a diploma in special education. This is the second such credit course to be given off-campus in Quebec. The first got under way this fall in Hull. It is the first time two universities have cooperated to provide the resources of space and teaching staff at the service of the community.

The program, called Educating the Individual, deals with the recognition of the problems, and the special training requirements of children with learning disabilities.

Previously, teachers who desired a diploma in this subject were required to follow three summer school sessions at Macdonald College. The course, being given at the Nicol Building has Mrs. Marsha Zimmerman, an educational consultant at the Montreal School for the Deaf, giving lectures which began yesterday.

Professor Howard Stott of the faculty of education, Macdonald College, is coordinator of the program and will lecture at several Saturday sessions. The program calls for two 100-hour winter sessions for teachers under the jurisdiction of the Eastern Township Regional School Board, followed by a final summer school period at Macdonald College.

J. A. Turpin, director of pupil services of the ETRSB is responsible for generating a great deal of interest and enthusiasm among teachers in the Sherbrooke area and a large group is expected to enrol.

Italy has two other leaning towers besides the one at Pisa—the Asinelli and the Garicenda at Bologna.

Mental patients need Christmas remembrance

Probably many of us already are in the midst of our Christmas shopping — or expect to be within the next few days.

In our lists we have included members of our families, friends we wish to remember and perhaps even a number of the less fortunate whose only hope for Christmas cheer is something provided for them by their more fortunate fellow citizens, either directly or through some welfare organization.

But the Canadian Mental Health Association has just issued a reminder that there is one large group who may be neglected at Christmas — the inmates of mental institutions.

Some of the patients will be remembered by their families but for far too many of them there will be no Christmas to celebrate unless some stranger shows an interest.

To meet this situation the Canadian Mental Health Association is appealing to residents of the Province to provide gifts which will be distributed at Christmas.

Your obligation is simple.

Simply send a gift — clothing, cosmetics, books, games, etc. — to the Canadian Mental Health Association, 264 St. Louis Square, Montreal, together with your name and address.

Suitable cards will be attached to the gifts which will be sent to patients in mental hospitals.

Or send a small cash donation and the Association will do the purchasing.

Before accepting a dinner invitation, check to see whether the hostess is an old-fashioned or an old fashion cook.

Unknown opportunities

Tens of thousands of Canadians are working in jobs that did not exist, in industries that were unheard of, making products that were unknown 10, 20 or 30 years ago.

The electronics computer and space fields are prime examples.

There is no reason to believe that tens of thousands will not be working at jobs a few years from now that do not exist today, although no one can predict what they may be.

One possibility is in the field of water supply and pollution control with leaders in this branch of industry advising high school and college guidance counsellors that the best of tomorrow's brains will be needed in the water-supply and pollution-control industries if the economic life of the continent is to survive let alone grow.

The Federal Water Pollution Control Administration of the United States estimates that in that country alone some 111,000 more professionals, technicians and operators will be needed in the next five years in water pollution control alone. And similar opportunities also exist in Canada.

Fortunately many young people today are searching more for personal satisfaction than monetary reward and seem to gravitate toward public service careers.

But fortunately for these young people, there is good pay and chance for advancement in government as well as industry.

Optimists looking for work should apply for jobs in the calendar industry — where they print the product two years in advance.

At least one man talked turkey about stand

OTTAWA OFFBEAT

By RICHARD JACKSON

OTTAWA — So Prime Minister Trudeau says Canada could get out of NATO next year "if we feel like it."

And that whirling dervish of his cabinet, Postmaster General Eric Kierans, that remarkable man with the blazing blue eyes, says he looks forward to the day when Canadians will be known more for helping others through foreign aid than being able to help themselves in case of foreign attack.

Amid all the not-so-delicate hints of the government wistfully wishing to bug out of NATO, and spend on almost anything more willingly than on self-defence, it was reassuring to know that not everybody in the Canadian parliamentary delegation to the Brussels conference of the North Atlantic Alliance talked chicken.

Some, at least one. Conservative MP George Muir of Manitoba's Lisgar constituency, talked turkey.

In Parliament nearly nine years, he is no MP-come-lately, and while he may be a sunflower farmer — yes, that's actually what he is, a seed grower — and no self-appointed instant-expert on defence, he is a man of honor.

And as a man of honor, he has said publicly what Canada's NATO Ambassador Ross Campbell whispered privately — that the Canadian performance at the Brussels conference was nothing less than disgraceful.

ASHAMED

Those who were there make no secret of it that Ambassador Campbell went much further than that — far enough that he told many of them that for the first time in his life, "I am ashamed of being a Canadian."

The MP members of the Canadian delegation — including some of the Liberals — came back home "sick at heart," as one of them put it, over the threatened sacrifice of defence for foreign aid.

Of course talk like that was wildly out of line with the official Canadian government position of downgrading defence and discounting any urgent need to beef up the Alliance even in the shadow of the Soviet occupation of Czechoslovakia.

While External Affairs Minister Mitchell Sharp was rushing frantically around Brussels distributing very carefully-worded denials that Ambassador Campbell had ever made such a "press statement," other government members of the parliamentary delegation were just as frantically maneuvering to keep George Muir from speaking his piece.

But he got to the NATO podium just before the conference closed and let fly.

It was "madness," he cried, for any country to even consider cutting back on its NATO commitment, "let alone withdrawing it altogether."

"No one member of the Alliance," he said, "can do anything to weaken it without opening the door to the danger of rapid collapse of the whole structure."

"If we all were to gradually reduce the strength of NATO by draining off military, naval and air forces in dribs and drabs" — as the government, including Pierre Trudeau and Eric Kierans, has more than hinted could be in the planning works — "the Alliance would soon be left with nothing but token forces that could be as contemptuously brushed aside by the Soviets as were the elements of Czech resistance."

IN THE WIND

Then George Muir, speaking, he emphasized, not for the Canadian government, but as an opposition MP for his prairie constituents, put the finger squarely on the Trudeau administration.

"There is a school of thought in Canada that includes members of the government that we should cut back on the NATO Alliance . . . with the consequent saving of money and commitment."

To do this, he told the NATO parliamentarians, would be to bug out of Canada's tradition of playing a full and honorable part as a free and civilized state in the defence of liberty and freedom of western society.

The government's NATO delegation apparently was listening and very aware that Canada's allies were hearing George Muir's warning too, for at the last minute the reluctant decision was made to cut nothing back — not until next year, anyway.

But at best, it has turned out to be a very dicey decision that Prime Minister Trudeau has cautioned publicly could be completely reversed next year. The idea seems to be to save money, to strip and starve the defence department . . . and for what?

To beef up pensions of retired civil servants some of whom pinch along on as little as $20 monthly? To pump funds into housing, airport expansion, hospital or university grants, or other good works for the government's promised "Just Society?"

For better floor prices for fishermen, farmers or aid for Indians and Eskimos? For anything for Canadians whose taxes pay for it?

For none of those things.

For more foreign aid, say Trudeau and Kierans. For bigger and better handouts to such people, perhaps, as the president of the Congo so he can buy another Cadillac. The poor guy only has 38 of them.

Inverness resident raps past Pearson leadership for debts

Dear Sir:

It was Shakespeare, was it not, who wrote:

"The evil that men do lives after them. The good is oft in terred with their bones?"

It is quite possible that the above words were a true and inspired appraisal of the men of that day, but, in my opinion, had Shakespeare been living here in Canada since 1963, when the Liberal administration of L. B. Pearson assumed office, until the present day, I submit that he would have drawn a heavy red pencil through the lives quoted above, and expressed his opinion of his contemporaries in lines something like these:

"The evil that men do lives with them, and after them. Leaving only debts and dregs to be interred with their bones."

At my request, the editor of one of our daily papers kindly furnished me with the figures showing how much the Dominion of Canada had gone into the red while Mr. Pearson was at the helm. Please read on, and hang onto your chair.

Our net national debt on June 1, 1963, was $13,919,769,972 — on March 1, 1968 — not five years later — our national net debt had mushroomed to $16,757,400,000 — an increase of $2,837,630,028. In addition to this, at election time in June, we were given to understand that we would have a balanced budget this year.

Instead of this, we had another whopping deficit of $675,000,000. These continuing annual deficits are causing much concern, because money must be secured, somewhere to wipe out the unfavorable balances. We presume that this was the aim of the Federal Government in this present campaign to sell bonds—I must admit that their advertising is done in appropriate colors — the whole background of the advertisement is in a sombre funeral hue. However, in this advertisement we read that if these bonds, and their interest coupons, were left untouched, that in some years every $100 invested would become $250 at maturity. It is quite fair to use the same formula to the $3,000,000 (approximate deficit since 1963) and one finds that in the early eighties this sum of three billions would be seven and a half billions. Some skeleton to roll out of a dusty closet at that time!

So much for the debts incurred in that open season for spending. Now let us consider a few of the dregs, or sediment, spawned in the same period.

We remember that the Pearson administration used closure and guillotine methods to deprive us of British origin, of many old and venerated symbols, thereby destroying many of the links connecting this Country and the Motherland.

We remember that the Pearson administration was instrumental in bringing nuclear weapons onto our soil—weapons which are guarded and controlled by the troops of a foreign power. Indeed, in the final analysis, these weapons are under the direct command of the President of the United States.

We remember that the Pearson administration voted themselves an increase of 80 per cent in their seasonal indemnities—a rash of strikes, from coast to coast, followed this move and no wonder.

We remember that the Pearson administration gave a very poor deal to the Old Age Pensioners of this country by demanding a means test before any increase in their cheques would be allowed. We wonder if the members of Parliament submitted themselves to a means test before voting themselves an 80 per cent increase? The same question would apply to the Seaway Workers, the grain handlers and the Postal Employees. If not, why not?

We saw the unification of the armed forces — which was supposed to save the taxpayer money — yet it cost us more, and the services lost many spendid officers — some of these resigning rather than remaining in uniform.

We know that the Pearson administration had the strangest foreign policy ever devised. Mr. Trudeau is busy trying to put the jigsaw puzzle together.

We know that the Pearson administration hung on to office, with the grip of death, when they were voted down in the House on a matter of fiscal policy. Any other leader would have gone to the country to receive a mandate after such a challenge to his party.

We know that the Pearson administration also sponsored Medicare in spite of the financial position of the country. Luckily, most of the provincial premiers could see through the difficulties presented.

Truly, truly, there are debts and dregs aplenty to cause us to shiver, and never forget the years 1963-68. But — what comes now?

WORLD ALMANAC FACTS

Although "lieutenant" is spelled the same way both in England and the United States, one can recall countless British war movies in which the rank is pronounced "lieftenant." This pronunciation, found only in Great Britain and some of its former colonies, is a survival of certain Old English speech patterns and erratic spellings, such as "lieftenant," "lyftenant" and "lieftant." Surprising number

Mail handling is plum for the post office

By way of interest, an editorial from the Daily Packet and Times, J. B. Lamb, editor and publisher, 31 Colborne St. E., Orillia, Ontario, Saturday Nov. 16, 1968.

A great many Canadians, including a surprising number of editors and publishers, appear to have taken at face value the claim of Postmaster General Eric Kierans that newspapers are being subsidised by the post office on all copies delivered by mail. Yet the truth is evident to even the most casual survey of the situation, and the truth should surprise many. For in the case of the vast majority of daily newspapers in this country, whose mail-out readership is confined to a particular region, the charges for their second-class mail handling represents a considerable revenue plum to the local post office, without a single extra expense entailed to offset the bonus. It is only the handful of nationally-circulated publications which get a free ride across the country at the taxpayer's expense.

In Orillia, for example, the Daily Packet and Times is sent out by mail to some 2,800 homes in the region surrounding the city. It makes use only of existing postal facilities and staff, travelling only a few miles on short hauls, and were its rural readers to be serviced by some other means, such as truck drop-offs, the local postal service would not save itself the salary of a single person, the expense of a single dollar. On the contrary, it would simply lose the thousands of dollars in revenue it derives from this newspaper.

The postal service entailed in delivering 90 per cent of Canada's daily newspapers is similarly merely a matter of utilising existing local staff and facilities on short hauls, and it requires no subsidisation from the public purse.

Surely it is absurd that such national publications should pay no more for their costly continental delivery service than a bona fide regional newspaper whose readers live within a few miles of the office of publication. Surely it should be evident that the charges made for regional delivery should be different from, and much less than, those for long-distance distribution. Above all, it must be clearly evident that the daily press is a regional press, providing a true news service to a regional family of readers, willing to pay its fair share for the regional postal services it uses.

Its contribution, and its interests, should not be confused with those of the few specialised publications and throw - aways which take advantage of existing regulations to get national distribution at public expense. Regional rates for regional papers is the obvious answer.

On the other hand, the operation of a handful of business and financial publications, of magazines and trade journals distributed nationally, is heavily subsidised at public expense. A bulky publication printed in Toronto, for example, is mailed out by the ton to points as far away as British Columbia at a ridiculously low rate. In effect, it purchases an air or rail ticket across the continent for a matter of a few pennies. Such publications represent a real drain on the public purse, since they utilise an enormous and complex country-wide transportation service in return for a negligible revenue.

The fugio cent of 1787 was the first coin specifically authorized for issuance in the United States.

CAC wants more frozen poultry inspections

OTTAWA — Consumers' Association of Canada is pressing for closer and more frequent inspections of moisture "pick-up" in frozen poultry.

The Association said today that satisfactory discussions have taken place with the Health of Animals branch, Canada Department of Agriculture, and assurances were given that attempts will be made to increase inspections for this matter.

Complaints have come in from all provinces about excessive amounts of ice in frozen poultry, the consumer organization stated. The problem has concerned CAC for the past five years, but complaints seem to be increasing. Consumers say there is an unwarranted amount of water collected when a turkey or chicken is thawed, and this means the water has been paid for as part of the bird's total price.

The Health of Animals branch, federal Department of Agriculture circular 22A dealing with the subject lists the percentage of permissible increase in weight over weight before washing.

Consumers' Association of Canada feels the percentages listed are detrimental to the interests of consumers.

Introduces Indian fashions

EDMONTON (CP) — The woman who wants a hippiness dress can have one made to order in a new line of Indian-inspired fashions.

All in leather, the fall collection of Ka-na-ta Originals runs from a suede bikini to a floor-length evening gown in soft black moosehide, fringed and slinky and slit to the thigh.

The Ka-na-ta idea—and some of the dress designs—come from David Ward, a former Golden Gloves champion and newly elected Edmonton alderman. The 32-year-old business consultant last March became president of Team Products, a non-profit marketing organization for native handicrafts, and promptly took it into the fashion business.

He says he did it for two reasons: to help crack the enforced isolation of Indian culture and to show a Canadian source of styles to an industry dominated by Paris, London and New York.

His-and-hers bathing suits use a breechclout motif in orange and green; a beige-and-cream deerskin coat and dress has a matching white fur hat. The hides are commercially tanned and designer Ward says the bathing suits are fine in water "as long as you let them dry on you."

IDEAL FOR COURTSHIP — Cutting and sewing are to be done by Indian seamstresses at Edmonton and Calling Lake, 100 miles to the north, but the glowing bead and embroidery decoration is done on reserves by whatever tribe traditionally used the ancient design.

Buyers can choose from tribal patterns or symbolic ones: the thunderbird as sacred bearer of happiness, the butterfly for everlasting life, the cactus flower for courtship.

"If you want to trap a man," said Mr. Ward, "buy one of our courtship dresses and you've got him."

The clothes are not priced for souvenir-seekers. Retail prices range from $75 to $300.

"We expect imitations," he said. "Fine, be my guest. But if you want the original you'll come to us."

Rev. R. W. Peirce officiated. The wedding music was played by Mrs. Alfred Middleton.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride chose a floor-length gown of white lace over taffeta, the bodice featured a round neckline and long sleeves. Her veil of tulle was held in place by a bandeau and she carried a colonial bouquet of red roses.

Mrs. Henry Rolfe, as matron of honor, was in a street-length dress of green lace over taffeta and wore a matching bow in her hair with a short veil. She carried a bouquet of mums.

Christine and Donna Rolfe, the flower girls were alike in white dresses with matching bonnets tied under their chin. They carried nosegays of white carnations.

John Smith, brother of the bride, was best man and the ushers were Arnold and George Smith, also brothers of the bride.

The bride's mother wore a red crepe dress trimmed with white lace, a white hat, and a white carnation corsage.

The groom's mother chose a black and white two-piece dress with toning accessories and a white carnation corsage.

The reception was held at the Legion Memorial Home in Stanstead where a buffet was served by friends of the Smith family. The bride's table was centered with the three-tier wedding cake, made and decorated by Mrs. Ruby Sheldon, in white.

The couple are residing in Magog.

The new look in evening fashion is the floor-length jumper. These jumpers come in wide culotte styles, full-skirt styles, and are sure to attract attention at any evening out.

Has to double mail subscription rate

QUEBEC CITY — Le Soleil, a French-language daily newspaper published here has announced the necessity of doubling its mail subscription rate. A full page drawing of a rural scene features a mailbox in the foreground with a red envelope in it marked "Loi Kierans" or Kieran's Law (Bill C.116). This is in reference to the new postal rates which increase by as much as 400 percent the postage for rural mail subscribers to daily newspapers.

Postmaster general, and sponsor of the new regulations, is Eric Kierans. The added postage costs for Le Soleil's rural subscribers will take effect April 1 when the new mail rates are applied.

ment takes the electrocardiogram and simultaneously transmits it to the receiving machine in the Montreal institute. The transmission by Dataphone allowed the cardiologist at the institute to study the results promptly and phone the final interpretation to the patient's doctor.

The institute plans to extend its service to the whole of the province. More than 60 per cent of the patients treated at the institute come from outside the metropolitan area.

More support

MONTREAL (CP) — Striking McGill University political students Tuesday claimed growing support from other student organizations.

In a statement, McGill's Political Science Association said it had received telegrams of support from L'Union generale des etudiants du Quebec, the Canadian Union of Students and Sir George Williams University's committee for a free university.

The statement also said motions of support on the McGill campus have come from the sociology students' union and the students for a democratic university.

An increase

MONTREAL (CP) — The Royal Bank of Canada reported Tuesday in its annual statement for the year ended Oct. 31 that net profits, after appropriation for losses and provision for income taxes, were $35,324,403.

Threatened

CAP CHAT, Que. (CP) — The development of Quebec's deprived Gaspé Peninsula region is being threatened by a federal-provincial battle for jurisdiction over manpower, lawyer Claude Jourdain said Tuesday.

Mr. Jourdain, chairman of the Eastern Quebec Regional Development Council, said in an interview that the federal-provincial conflict has resulted in a duplication of services "and the people are paying the costs."

"This war between the federal and Quebec governments over manpower must cease."

Need more

JONQUIERE, Que. (CP) — French-Canadians need a better knowledge of English, Paul-Emile Lachance, president of the Quebec Council of Pulp and Paper Producers, said Tuesday.

Mr. Lachance told a social club in this community 125 miles north of Quebec City the province needs young technical specialists who can speak and write French properly, but who also have a working knowledge of English. "Since we live in a North American, English-speaking society, we cannot afford to neglect learning to write and speak the English language. We must know the English language better."

Mr. Lachance's text was released before delivery.

New man

In danger

MONTREAL (CP) — The Canadian atomic energy industry is in danger of dying unless the market for nuclear power can be bolstered, a Montreal consulting engineer said Tuesday.

Robin F. W. Guard told a symposium on developments in fuel technology that Canada's industries and utilities, already outdistanced in the field of atomic power by the United States, must embark upon a long-term project if they want to compete in the international market.

"We are in a critical situation because the industry is so small it could wither and die unless there is a breakthrough."

Brome Branch Royal Canadian Legion install officers for 1969

BROME — The Brome Branch Royal Canadian Legion was host to a group of Legionnaires from Granby No. 56 Branch recently, when the installation of the new officers for 1969 of both the Ladies Auxiliary and the Senior Branch was carried out by officers from Granby Branch.

The following were installed for the Ladies Auxiliary: President, Mrs. Albert Smith; first vice-president, Mrs. Leonard Westcott; second vice-president, Mrs. Percy Roberts; treasurer, Mrs. Norman Sanborn; secretary, Mrs. Charles Best. Sergeant-at-arms, Mrs. Robert Hastings; members of the executive, Mrs. Agnes Boissel, Mrs. Alexander Galbraith and Mrs. Stephen Morson.

The following were also installed at the same time representing the Senior Branch: President, Mr. Albert Smith; vice-president, Harve Gagne; second vice-president, Tait Hauver; treasurer, Miss M. Geldard; Brown, Sergeant-at-arms, Leo Corcoran and Leonard Westcott; Padres, Rev. Canon T. E. R. Nurse, Rev. George Beech, welfare officer, Philip Martin; secretary, Stephen Morson; honorary presidents, Ross Clarkson and Major General Basil Price; members of the executive, Stanley Smith, Ralph Seaton, Roy Bullard, Ford Doherty, Tom Doucet, W. J. Russell, Earle Falle, Robert Hastings, Phillip Martin, Miss M. Geldard Brown, Mr. John Syberg, Mr. Herve Gagne, installed in absentia were Rev. Father E. Boucher and Rev. Douglas Warren, padres. Regrets of absence was also received from Major General Basil Price.

Following the installation ceremonies, routine business was conducted, Mr. Ford Doherty reported for the Poppy Campaign noting that this was not yet complete, but results to date were very encouraging. Mr. John Syberg noted that next year will be the 40th anniversary of the founding of this branch and that suitable observation of this anniversary will be made and plans for this will be drawn up immediately under the chairmanship of John Syberg.

It was also noted that this will be the third year that this branch has been headed by the man and wife team of Mr. and Mrs. Albert Smith. Membership in the combined Senior Branch and Ladies Auxiliary is nearing the two hundred mark.

The District Commander, Tom Doucet then presented the branch with a very fine Traveling Gavel, suitably inscribed on a stand, and this will be maintained and used by this branch for the next twelve months. This gavel has been in circulation from branch to branch in this district for several years, and will be passed on next year to the installing team for the 1970 officers of this branch.

The president, Albert Smith, thanked all the members for the help and support he has received during his terms of office, and noted that the Branch had a very bright future ahead, and that plans for new additions and a new lounge were on the agenda, now that the mortgage is paid up.

At the conclusion of the meeting a cold buffet lunch was served by the Ladies Auxiliary.

Ladies Aid hold tea and sale

LAKE MEGANTIC — The monthly meeting of the Ladies' Aid of St. Andrew's Presbyterian Church was held recently at the home of Mrs. Charles Morrison. A moment of silence was observed in memory of Mrs. John Duplessis, a former member, who died in October. Money from the sale during the year of second-hand magazines was counted and found to amount to $27.41, from which Christmas gifts will be bought for shut-ins. Mrs. Charles Sangster and Mrs. Charles Morrison agreed to see to these purchases.

It was suggested that no meetings be held during the winter months of January and February. The December meeting will be held in the Church hall and will feature an exchange of gifts.

A social hour was enjoyed at the close of the meeting.

MELBOURNE — The annual Christmas tea of l'Eglise des Cantons de l'Est was held in the church hall Nov. 20, being well patronized and a very successful event. er. The tea tables were served by Mrs. Gerald Fortier, Mrs. David Fortier and Mrs. Gaston Vidal, while the kitchen duties were in charge of Mrs. Lucien Perron, Mrs. Paul Papineau and Mr. and Mrs. Paul Perron.

JACOBY ON BRIDGE

West opened the king of spades and continued with the ace and deuce. East ruffed and the student playing the hand overruled. He led a club to dummy's king and noted that East played the eight of diamonds.

The student thought things over, then proceeded to ruff dummy's last spade. Next he pulled West's last trump and played dummy's ace and jack of diamonds.

East was in with the queen and the student showed his hand to go down one trick.

"Where did you dig up that jump to game?" he asked the Professor, who was sitting North. "I had to work out an end play to be sure to go down only one."

"It was a nice end play," said the Professor. "I am glad to see that you have progressed to the point where you can both work end plays and blame your partner for your mistakes. Apart from the fact that your hand was a trifle too weak for a vulnerable three-club bid, your play fell short of the optimum. You should have made your contract."

"I see that the heart finesse was on but how could I avoid the loss of a diamond?" asked the student.

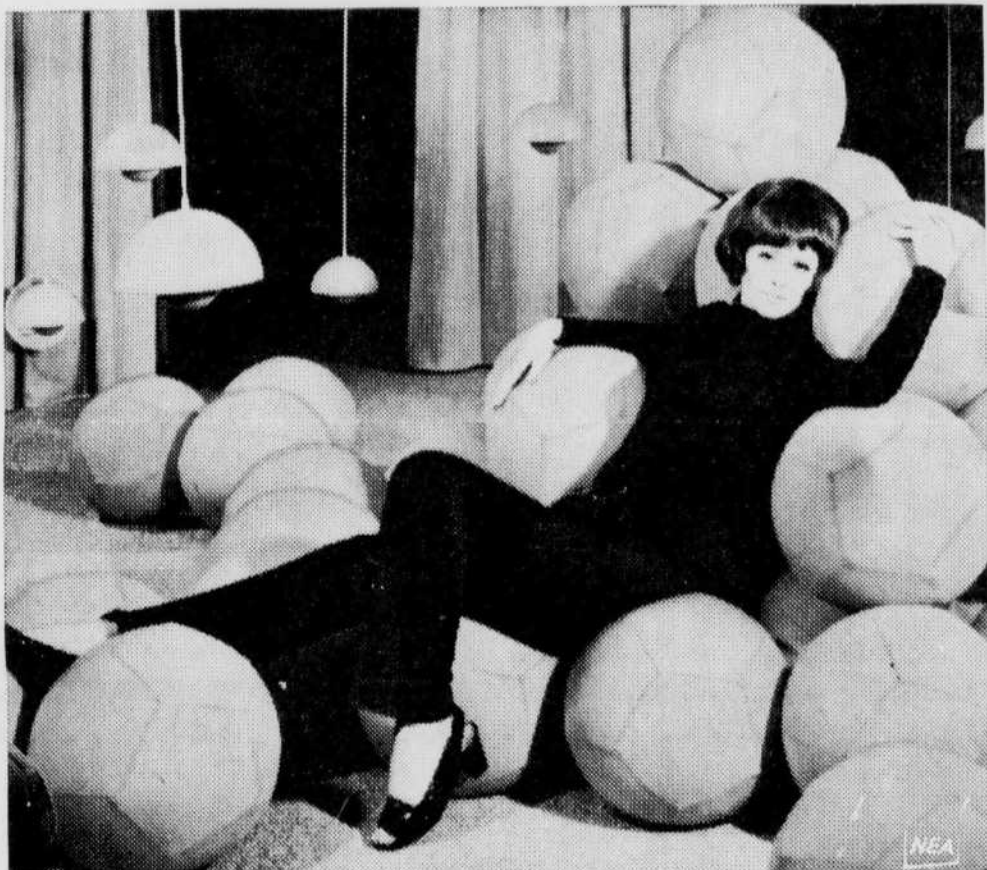

"Easy," said the Professor. "A diamond shift at trick two would have beaten you, but once the third spade was played you had an auto-

"Take the heart finesse. When that wins, cash the ace of diamonds. Then run all your trumps but one. Dummy's last three cards are the spade nine, and the ace and nine of hearts. You hold a trump, a small heart and the 10 of diamonds. Now play your last trump. West has to keep a spade higher than dummy's nine, so he played a heart. You discard dummy's spade. East either makes your diamond 10 a winner."

HAVE A BALL. Using plastic balls in place of armchairs is an idea from West Germany. Although the innovation is too far out for most people, it is hoped a market will be found among the young at heart.

New Tape Systems—Young, Growing Giants

By JIM CROSSLEY
Newspaper Enterprise Assn.

Taking pleasure in being in tune with ultramodern business practices, the salesman switched on his new miniature tape recorder.

He was using five minutes in his car to get down a report while details of his call were fresh.

Later, his outraged secretary slapped on his desk the 25-page typewritten transcript of a day's tape recorder notes.

It was then the salesman discovered something about electronics: The tongue is mightier than the pen; to use the verbal note shortcut, words must be rationed.

There's much to be learned about tape equipment, as those who blunder around the stores before Christmas will find out. Recorders are complex and relatively unfamiliar. A number of new systems are developing, each with a slightly different function. To select the one to fit the individual's needs requires some knowledge in advance.

There's more tape unwinding now than ever. Americans seem to insist on a stereo sound track for every leisure moment. Because of compactness, convenience and portability, the tape player—as opposed to the tape recorder—has emerged. It is competing with the radio and record player in providing music at home or outdoors.

In switching into this new fad, the big decision comes at the beginning when playing equipment is selected. Pre-recorded music for players—serving the same use as records for a record player—comes in several forms. You're restricted thereafter by the set you have picked.

Here are the choices:

Cartridge, four-track: Single reel in a container about the size of two packs of cards side by side. Tape unrolls from inside of reel, rewinds on outside. Plays 40 minutes, then repeats.

Cartridge, eight-track: Standard system in autos. Works like four-track but has double capacity, 80 minutes.

Cartridge, two-track: Two-track for small, less-expensive, battery-powered players, appealing chiefly to teen-agers. Twenty minutes, stereo; 40 minutes, mono.

Cassette, standard: Plastic container has two small reels instead of one. Turn over and reinsert to get second half of tape. Plays 120 minutes.

Cassette micro: For teeners' small portables. Four selections on a tape at a cost competitive with 45-r.p.m. records.

Adding bewildering, all these systems are offered by all manufacturers. They are adaptations, for the home, of the auto stereo systems so popular in recent years. Together, they'll account in the most part for $160 million in sales of taped music forecast for this year.

Still in contention are the more familiar, meat-and-potatoes, reel-to-reel outfits from which the recording hobby originally germinated. For these, tape on open reels is threaded by hand past the pickup head to a take-up reel.

For highest quality in sound, a good reel-to-reel is still the best choice. Prices start low but run to rarefied upper altitudes.

Cartridge or cassette players are moderate in price but, largely, settle for less than hi-fi production.

Nothing substitutes for reel-to-reel equipment when taping music yourself, although the spoken word comes through understandably on almost anything. Comparing cartridge and cassette, the latter is easier to use for recording.

This also affects the decision: While the cassette music library is growing, the widest selection of tapes is available in eight-track cartridge form. Then, too, cartridge fidelity is somewhat greater due to the faster speed of the tape.

Tapes as a substitute for letters are running into limitations. It takes up to a half-hour for the recipient to play the 12,000 words on a tape and few humans have the self-control to just blurt out the news, then shut up, leaving the rest of the reel blank.

Even so, tape continues to insinuate itself into everyday life.

To dissipate fog in communications, one auto company is experimenting in its dealer service departments. A recorder catches the detailed discussion of trouble symptoms between customer and service manager for the benefit of the mechanic. He, in turn, records what he found wrong when the work is completed.

Or, how about the California man who recorded the high-decibel barking of his neighbor's three dogs one day and played the tape back on outside loudspeakers at 3 a.m.?

OUR SUPREME-CJRS "SHOPPING SPREE" CONTEST KEEPS GOING ON — HAVE YOU ENTERED?
 See the Supreme handbill. Listen to CJRS 1510 Radio-Sherbrooke for more details.

TWO CHEQUES — Auctioneer Standish receives two cheques, one from Jean Lesage and another from G.

Vaillancourt, for the funds, from Norman Wintle, the Athletic Association vice-president. In the background is Philip McConnell, another of Mr. Standish's staff.

BUSY AT WORK — Mrs. M. Whipple, Mrs. L. Schoolcraft,

Mrs. W. Crook, three of the women who assisted to serve lunches at the Ayer's Cliff benefit auction.

Ayer's Cliff auction went well

AYER'S CLIFF — (Special) — What am I but, do I hear a dollar? — and so it went all day long in the hall on the Ayer's Cliff fair grounds as auctioneer Howard Standish and his five-man staff sold the many, many items, several antiques, but all donations to the Athletic Association of Ayer's Cliff.

It was a huge success for when bookkeeper Louis Gregoire tallied his books there was $1,043.50. The women had a project all their own too, they sold tasty sandwiches, home made doughnuts and coffee and increased the auction figures by another $134.35.

There were also cheques from Georges Vaillancourt, MLA for Stanstead County, from Jean Lesage, member of the opposition at Quebec, plus other cash gifts.

There is a little expense in connection with the auction but it is expected the net proceeds will be over $1,200. The services of Mr. Standish, and his staff and of Mr. Gregoire, the hall, and some of the advertising were all donated.

A scarf was sold which had been sent by Robert Stanfield, ties from Lester B. Pearson and Tommy Douglas, the latter two now out of the Commons. A new chair donated by a firm in Coaticook brought $85, a charcoal picture by Captain Brown. Ayer's Cliff, sold for $6, a complete chamber set. Oliver Dupuis is president of the Association and Norman Wintle, the vice-president, plus a good number of others supporting these two heads.

They extend appreciation to the many people, businesses and publicity people who supported this successful project, especially Mr. Standish and his men for giving a full day's work.

for almost $40, in fact everything "went well" and the money will be spent for skating facilities to replace former facilities destroyed by fire.

Knowlton Community School display completion of work courses

KNOWLTON — The 22nd annual Knowlton Community School closed the season on Nov. 19, with a dazzling display of work completed during the past ten weeks.

Mr. Howard Macdonald, president, welcomed all present, and congratulated all those who had done such a fine job of work in their various departments. Mr. Macdonald paid a special tribute to all the instructors, without whose unfailing interest, support, and contribution, there would be no community school. In his remarks, Mr. Macdonald, also stressed the importance of community school work, the objective, of course, being continuing adult education, fulfilling the needs of the community.

It was not feasible for all the products of the past ten weeks to be on display, as some of the courses are not displayable, however, there was a very fine display of art work, commencing with the beginners courses, depicting first, charcoal, one subject, then on to oil, and sketching with paint brushes in one color, some fine examples of models who sat for twenty-minute periods, and on the more advanced oil and water colors, the entire display was very colorful.

There was also a row of stately looking chairs, all of which has received new seats under the careful administration of Mrs. Pickle.

On another side of the auditorium was a colorful display of rugs and quilts, all completed during the prescribed period. The cooking class and the gardening class did not exhibit but were on hand to talk about their completed courses.

Representatives of each class were then called upon to talk of their work and express the thanks of their conferees to the instructors. Mr. Albert Smith speaking for the gardening class thanked Mr. Howard Hackwell. Miss Margaret Pille thanked Mrs. Peter Darling on behalf of the Tune-Up, Tone-Up Class. Mrs. Beatrice Draper expressed thanks and appreciation of the Art Class to Dr. Planteux.

At the conclusion of these talks, Mr. Tom Doucet, speaking for the nominating committee on behalf of Mr. Jim Brodie who was unavoidably absent, presented the new slate of officers for the year 1969 as follows: President, Mark Pille; vice-president, Jim Beatt; treasurer, John Caron; secretary, Mrs. Lise Call; and the committee to consist of Mrs. Albert Smith, Mrs. Douglas Quinton, Mrs. Alan Webster, Mrs. Frank Johnston-Main, Mr. Alan Lightfoot, Mr. Kenneth Seal and Mr. Tom Doucet. There were no further nominations, and the foregoing slate of officers was duly elected. The business minutes and treasurer's report was also presented.

Stamps' Don Luzzi will be busy man watching Riders

CALGARY (CP) — Ottawa Rough Riders have some fast backs but Don Luzzi isn't going to be watching them in the Grey Cup game at Toronto Saturday.

"If you do you'll find yourself sitting on your backside," said the defensive tackle for Calgary Stampede.

With 13 years of football experience, Luzzi has learned to cope with a variety of offensive manoeuvres.

"A few years ago you could be set in a four or five-man line for three quarters of a ball game. But the game has become so scientific now that if you stay in one defence more than a couple of series they'll pick you apart."

Calgary quarterback Peter Liske is one of the most talented in this regard, Luzzi said.

Luzzi, Canada's most outstanding lineman in 1958, will be moving from side to side in Toronto as the Stampede's continually change defensive styles.

The objective will be to force the opposition to change plays at the line of scrimmage, thus creating possible confusion among backs whose patterns have been switched.

You watch the line motion, Luzzi said, with any movement creating a reflex action.

Ottawa will probably counter with several tricks. For instance, some centres will lift the ball slightly just before the snap. Defensive linemen, accustomed to responding immediately to motion, may be pulled offside.

Then there's the exceptional faking of Rider quarterback Russ Jackson that "can fool the heck out of a defence," said Luzzi, an all-star on eight occasions.

Luzzi said the defensive line often reads an offensive play through the blocking.

"If the block is from my inside, that usually means the play is going to the inside... but there are variations. The offence could leave you guessing with a fake draw, or pull a guard one way and run the play the other way."

The Stampede's have a special play they use to block punts. It worked against Saskatchewan Roughriders in the 25-12 victory that put Calgary into the Grey Cup game for the first time in 19 years last Wednesday night.

One side of the line is overloaded and certain opposing personnel are picked off in a bid to clear a path for a potential blocker.

The play is constructed to handle any situation, say a surprise run or pass.

Rough Riders expect Liske to be passing a lot on Saturday

OTTAWA (CP) — Like everybody else in the country, Ottawa Rough Riders expect quarterback Peter Liske of Calgary Stampede to fill the air with footballs in Saturday's Grey Cup game at Toronto.

"We look for him to stay in his pocket and to be passing 95 per cent of the time," defensive halfback Don Sutherland of the Eastern Football Conference champions told a quarterback club meeting Tuesday.

Liske took off for a few runs in the final game of the Western final against Saskatchewan Roughriders but Sutherland said Liske "isn't built to run the ball."

Sutherland, 31, the former Hamilton Tiger-Cat who came to Riders last year and in 1968 led EFC scorers, said the running ability of Ottawa quarterback Russ Jackson is a big plus for Riders.

"Russ can run like a full-back," he said.

Because of a cracked leg bone, Calgary halfback Dave Cranmer isn't expected to play. Sutherland said that would allow Riders to pay special attention to the running of fullback Ted Woods.

He said Rudy Linterman, expected to fill in for the injured Cranmer, doesn't have the moves of Cranmer and is easier to stop because he's at least 25 points lighter.

LOOKS FOR OPEN GAME — Sutherland told the meeting that if the weather is good Saturday, he expects a high-scoring game.

"Both clubs can put a lot of points on the scoreboard."

Season statistics back up that point. Stampede's 16 games were the highest-scoring team in the West, scoring 412 points. Riders, who played two games less, scored 416 points.

Jackson and fullback Bo Scott, who both got banged up in Saturday's EFC final against Toronto Argonauts, will take their regular turns Saturday.

Jackson has a charleyhorse and Scott re-injured an ankle. Riders worked out on the Lansdowne Park field Tuesday and were scheduled for one last home practice today before attending a mid-afternoon pep rally organized by the city.

They leave for Toronto after

Vics claw Tigers 5-3 to move into third place, St. Hyacinthe downs Chicoutimi 6-3

Granby Vics moved into sole possession of third place in the Quebec Provincial Senior Hockey League last night in Victoriaville, downing the Tigers 5-3.

In other QPSHL action last night St. Hyacinthe Gauls moved two points ahead of the pack by defeating Phil Watson's Chicoutimi Saguenéens 6-3 on home ice. St. Hyacinthe now leads the league, six points ahead of second place Chicoutimi.

The loss by Victoriaville last night marked the Tigers fourth in a row, three of which have been at the hands of the Granby Vics. The win by the Vics moved them two points ahead of the Tigers and into third place in the league standings.

Bob Bedard scored again last night for the Vics but this time his goal was tallied into an empty net late in the game. Granby's winning goal was scored by Claude Houde. Houde took a pass deep in Granby's zone and skated through the Tigers' entire team, beating Victoriaville netminder Michel Monneau with a back-hand into the corner.

Prior to Vics' fourth goal, Victoriaville had rallied to score two goals and tie the game 3-3.

Victoriaville's third goal was scored by Pierre Potvin on a penalty shot. He was awarded the penalty shot after being pulled down from behind on a breakaway.

Granby took all the play from Victoriaville in the first period, out-skating last year's Allan Cup champions by a big margin. In the second period Granby had the margin of play but not by as much or as overpowering as the first.

In the third period the Tigers' attack began to move and took a marked advantage in the play.

Yves Larocque opened the scoring in the first period putting the Vics ahead 1-0.

Jacques Michel's goal and Potvin's penalty shot tally in the third period tied the game 3-3. Houde then scored for Granby to give Granby their fourth straight victory.

St. Hyacinthe scored three goals within the space of 2:36 minutes at the beginning of the third period to give the Gauls an impressive 6-3 victory over the Chicoutimi Saguenéens.

Gilles Cartier led the scoring attack with a goal and three assists. Other Gauls' goals were scored by Claude Goulet, Michel Cormier, Real Viens and Gilles Gosselin. Morrisette scored twice for the Sags with the other tally potted by Jean Guy Lapierre.

Claude Cyr, Chicoutimi netminder, was by far the big star of the game, stopping a total of 41 shots. The Gauls' duo of Payette and Labelle were equally as proficient. Labelle replaced Payette at the 8:17 mark of the first period after the veteran goalkeeper complained of stomach pains.

Wings move to Philadelphia to meet Flyers, Habs meet Kings

Gary Bergman must be getting tired of listening to people blame Detroit Red Wings' slow start this season on a weak defence.

The Red Wings are last in the National Hockey League's Eastern Division, four points back of Toronto Maple Leafs and Chicago Black Hawks. And the Red Wing defence, which has allowed 53 goals in 17 games, gets most of the criticism.

But NHL statistics, with the season about one-quarter over, show that Bergman and teammate Kent Douglas are the highest-scoring defencemen in the league except for Bobby Orr of Boston Bruins.

Bergman has four goals and 10 assists while Douglas has no goals and 14 assists. Orr has five goals and 11 assists.

The Red Wings travel to Philadelphia for a game tonight against the Flyers, Montreal Canadiens visit Los Angeles Kings, Toronto is at Pittsburgh Penguins, Boston Bruins play the Blues at St. Louis, Minnesota North Stars welcome Oakland Seals and the Black Hawks play at New York Rangers.

SECOND IN 1967-68

Bergman, 30, finished last season as the league's second-highest goal-scoring defencemen with 13 goals, one behind Mike McMahon of Minnesota. The Red Wings re-argued added 28 assists for a 41-point total.

In his first three seasons with Detroit, Bergman scored 106 points, an average of more than 35 a season.

Elsewhere, thieves broke into the Maple Leafs dressing room at Civic Arena in Pittsburgh and stole a variety of equipment.

Chuckwagons arrive, Grey Cup festivities start, Riders favored

TORONTO (CP) — Two chuckwagons, the first harbinger of what's to come, were unloaded from a Canadian Pacific Railway car at Canadian National Exhibition Stadium Tuesday.

The chuckwagons were shipped from Calgary last week and will play a prominent part in the Grey Cup festivities which get under way in earnest today in preparation for the Canadian Football League final.

Calgary Stampede of the Western Conference and Ottawa

Rough Riders of the Eastern Conference will clash in the Grey Cup game at 1 p.m. EST here Saturday, but most of the hoopla takes place before the game.

The chuckwagons will be horse-drawn through the city's downtown streets, with the Calgarians passing out flapjacks and 10-gallon-hats—a revival of the 1949 final here when the Stampede's last appeared in the Grey Cup.

The festivities start today, with a press reception for the Miss Grey Cup candidates from the nine Canadian Football League clubs. There will be a kickoff parade to city hall with Mayor William Dennison booting the first ball across the square.

The Miss Grey Cup contestants are also scheduled to participate in an East-West curling match and open-air dancing will begin on the city hall square early in the evening.

COULD BE SNOW

Temperatures are expected to remain about the 40-degree mark throughout the week, although long-range forecasters say there is a 50-50 chance of rain or snow during the game.

The field at Canadian National Exhibition Stadium is expected to be bare in spots. Groundkeepers have been working diligently to ensure its firmness for the game, which they claim will be possible if the weather remains dry through the week.

Meanwhile, Ottawa has been established as 5½-point favorites in the early betting and the line is expected to go as high as eight points.

Professional odds-makers say the final odds will probably be about five points in Ottawa's favor, depending on the amount of money bet by western fans.

A sellout crowd of more than 33,000 is expected for the game although the ticket prices have been increased noticeably since the Grey Cup was last held here in 1965.

The most expensive ticket sold for $12 for the 1965 final between Hamilton Tiger-Cats and British Columbia Lions. Those tickets were for seats on the covered side of the stadium. Red seats on the covered side of the stadium are priced at $15 this year.

The 32,655 attending the 1965 game paid a total of $280,000, while this year's gate is expected to gross about $355,000.

The Gumper returns home

MONTREAL (CP) — Netminder Gump Worsley of Montreal Canadiens left the team in Chicago Monday and was to return to Montreal by train after a rough airplane flight to Chicago earlier in the day, a Canadiens' spokesman said Monday night.

The Canadiens were on their way to a game in Los Angeles.

Sam Pollock, vice-president and general manager of the National Hockey League club, said Worsley was to arrive in Montreal late this afternoon.

Worsley probably would meet with the general manager Thursday morning, Pollock said.

"Worsley is a nervous individual," Pollock said. "He's not a good air traveller."

The Canadiens stopped off in Chicago after a rough flight to transfer to another airplane for Los Angeles, where the Canadiens are scheduled to meet the Kings tonight.

"When the team landed in Chicago, he told the coach (Claude Ruel) that his nerves had got the best of him," Pollock said.

Indians down Waterville 5-3 in Dow Independent League

Sherbrooke Indians moved into sole possession of first place in the Dow Independent League standings, downing the Waterville Firemen 5-3 at the Sports Palace last night.

The Indians opened a 2-0 lead in the first period, outshooting the Firemen 13 to seven. Leblanc and Mercier scored the goals for Sherbrooke.

Waterville scored twice in the second frame while the Indians managed to slip one past the Firemen's goaltender, Campbell.

Waterville goals were scored by Lecours and Fautoux while the Indians' marker was tallied by Roy.

In the third period the Indians scored two quick goals at the outset of the frame before Waterville could get untracked.

Sherbrooke's goals were scored by Gilbert and Desruisseaux while the lone Waterville marker was scored by Mills.

Last night's game was somewhat of a let down for the large crowd which attended. A reason for this could possibly be that the Firemen had only nine players dressed for the game.

A crowd of 492 persons amassed at the Sports Palace last night to watch the game. What was missed as far as good hockey was made up by some very good fights.

John Barrow misses EFC All-Star squad first time in 12 years

TORONTO (CP) — For the first time since he joined Hamilton Tiger-Cats 12 years ago, defensive tackle John Barrow has missed selection on the Eastern Football Conference all-star team.

He explained that the pain during the season was so intense at times he could hardly walk and "I really didn't expect to make the team."

"But," he said, "I made it 11 times and I don't think anybody else ever did that. Anyway, it will give someone a record to shoot at."

FUTURE INDEFINITE

Involved in a number of businesses, Barrow, who became a Canadian citizen in 1963, said Tuesday it will depend on how well a couple of planned new ventures are doing by next summer whether he plays another season.

Of the 24 players selected, only nine are back from the 1967 team, led by Jackson who was unanimous choice of the selectors for the third consecutive year. Symons and Washington were the only other unanimous selections, both making the team for the first time.
