CARRATRACA MINERAL SPRING WATER.

FROM THE CELEBRATED CARRATRACA MINERAL SPRINGS, PLANTAGENET, ONT.

This celebrated Mineral Water has now been known for over half a century, and stands unrivalled in a sanitary point of view, producing effects which are peculiarly its own, and which are not approached by any of the various mineral waters of Canada, or the United States, and has been pronounced by the most eminent physicians the best and most efficient Mineral Water in the world.

As a saline and cooling draught, CARRATRACA cannot be equalled; it is pleasant and palatable to the taste; it cleanses the stomach and bowels of all substances which are accumulated in the system, and creates a good appetite, and as a natural consequence, it invigorates and strengthens the entire system.

The CARRATRACA MINERAL WATER will be found invaluable in cases of Scrofula, disorganized state of digestive organs, nausea and nervousness caused by debauch, costiveness, hemorrhoids or piles, indigestion, dyspepsia, liver complaint, general debility, heartburn, biliousness, loss of appetite, fullness of blood to the head, cancerous and cutaneous affections, headache, acute and chronic rheumatism, diseases of the kidneys, &c.

CARRATRACA WATER is also a sure preventative of those distressing summer disorders—dysentery, inflammation of the bowels, cholera, and summer complaints in children. CARRATRACA WATER, fresh from the springs, in well seasoned oak cases, is for sale by the principal Grocers, Druggists, and Hotels throughout the Dominion. Pamphlets and Show-Cards gratis on application to the Proprietors.

SCOTLAND.

The Earl of Glasgow is erecting, at his own expense, handsome bathing screens at Port Loy, opposite Earlan Craig, Millport, which will prove a great boon to visitors. The place is convenient at all times of the tide.

It is announced that Mr. John Freeland, of Nice, has, in addition to former large donations to the scientific and charitable institutions of his native city (Glasgow), given to the new buildings of the University of Glasgow £3,000, to Anderson's University £5,000, and to the Royal Infirmary £5,000.

A Scotch paper tells the story of a farmer who, after the burial of his wife, drove a hard bargain with a grave-digger, who, bringing his hand down on the shovel, exclaimed:—"Down wi' another shillin' or up she comes."

At Edinburgh a jet of water is seen gushing from an old elm tree on the Mall, near Dr. Moir's statue, the water, which is frothy and tasteless, bubbling through a crack in the bark about five feet from the ground. Various theories are branched to account for this singular freak, one of which is that the tree is hollow, and that the water issues from a spring in the vicinity.

On Monday night the 3rd, meetings of the carpet weavers of Dewsbury and Heckmondwike were held, for the purpose of hearing reports of the delegates with reference to the advance of wages which the carpet weavers of Scotland propose to ask. At the Dewsbury meeting, it was unanimously resolved that the carpet weavers should stand to whatever the executive thought necessary in reference to the attitude of Scotland. At the meeting in Heckmondwike, it was agreed to commence on Saturday to subscribe towards the maintenance of the men on strike, should such a course be determined upon by the men in Scotland.

At a meeting of the Dundee Harbor Trustees held on Monday, the 10th inst., a statement of the harbor revenue for the past year was laid before the meeting. In 1870 the revenue was £33,498 0s 3d, and in 1871, £40,686 7s 10d, being an increase of £7,188 7s 7d. Since October 1870, the dues had been collected at schedule rates only, while for a considerable period before that they were collected at 5 per cent. above schedule rates. It was stated that the revenue this year was the largest that has ever been received at the harbor, the year when the revenue was next highest being 1866, when it was £37,900, and the dues were collected at the rate of 112 1/2 per cent.

A meeting of the tenantry on the Duke of Argyll's estates in Kintyre was held here on Monday, the 10th inst., for the purpose of considering the manner in which they would receive the Marquis of Lorne and the Princess Louise on their visit to Argyllshire in August. After a good deal of conversation on the subject, it was finally arranged that the tenantry in Kintyre should take no part in the demonstration at Inveraray; but on the visit to the seat of the Duke of Argyll, Machrioch House, in Kintyre, which, we believe, is contemplated in the month of September, that they would receive a real Highland welcome. Preparations, we believe, are being made by the owners of the fine Campbelltown steamers, Kintyre and Gael, for the purpose of conveying Volunteers and the Kintyre people to the scene of festivities at Inveraray.

The fine paddle-steamer Carham, belonging to the Dingwall and Skye Railway Company, founded on the entrance to Cair Loch Harbour. She had too much headway, and the engineer, at once backed the steamer, with the result that the steam first struck a vessel and they grounded. It was not till Tuesday morning that the full effects of the accident were discovered, as the steamer was then found to be rapidly filling with water through a hole in the stern, and now lies in deep water. No person on board was injured. The company had put her on the passage the day on which the accident occurred. It is stated she is fully insured. To prevent disappointment to the large number now travelling to Skye, another steamer will be placed on the passage.

A TALE OF THE SEA.

The following has been placed at our disposal by the Master Attendant's Department. "I, the undersigned, Cummis-bin-Mahomed, a native of Lings, do hereby declare that I was a passenger on board the Bugla Mahomud, which vessel sailed from Mangalore on the 28th of April with general cargo, to the Persian Gulf. On or about the 5th of May, at seven a. m., it came to blow very hard, and rose to a typhoon, which lasted about ten days. The naocda, for the safety of the crew, ordered the cargo to be thrown overboard, but this measure did not relieve the bugla, the sea breaking in all directions; the rudder parted, which rendered the vessel entirely unmanageable. The jolly boat was stove in, and the naocda ordered to relieve the vessel, but that measure did not at all alter our position. The crew were completely knocked up; the sea began to break on board in all directions, which caused the vessel to founder, launching 45 of our number to the mercy of the waves; 19 men clung to one of the water tanks, myself, the naocda, and 13 of the crew to the other, and the remainder to the fragments of the wreck that were floating near them. Shortly after this melancholy accident we parted company. Twelve days after this occurrence, three men that were in my company died from starvation. On the day these men died we sighted a steamer, which we signalled by flying our clothes, hailing, and making different signals by our hands. Our distress and position were no doubt observed by the people on board the steamer, as she came nearly within our reach and remained about an hour and a half, but did not think proper to relieve us from a watery grave; although our supplications were repeated and our danger represented, the captain gave a deaf ear to us. This steamer had a straight stem and a red band round her funnel. She went away from us after stopping nearly an hour. We were 18 days in this perilous position. Previous to the steamer coming near us three men died, and after she left us nine died. Three of us were picked up by a cotia somewhere near Goa, and landed at Bombay yesterday evening. We were in the water 35 days from the date that the bugla foundered to the date that we were picked up. The other 19 men that had been hanging on to the second water tank were fortunately picked up by a steamer and safely landed at Aden. This information I have received since my arrival in Bombay.

ENGLAND.

The arrangements for the Colonial Conference, to be held in London next week, are now definitely made.

The inquest on the bodies of the seven men, who lost their lives through the recent boiler explosion at Kidsgrove, has resulted in a verdict of accidental death.

Fighting for "principle"—a Bradford plumber, who refused to pay one penny claimed by a railway company, has been mulcted in costs to the amount of about £3.

Danelly, the laborer who attempted to murder his wife at Leamington by cutting her throat and stabbing her as she lay in bed, has been sentenced to 20 years' penal servitude.

While 20 or 30 boys, belonging to an upper class school, were bathing at Ecclesbourne, near Hastings, several were carried away and one was drowned, the others being rescued by their tutor and a coast-guardsmen.

We hear that the prospects of a good grouse season on the Ruabon, Tower, and Llandegla Hills (shooting moors of Sir W. W. Wynn), are of a most promising nature. The birds are plentiful, large, and very strong on the wing.

The gold medal of the Royal Artillery has been awarded to Lieut. H. W. L. Hime, R.A., for his prize essay on "The Duties and Position of Artillery." Lieut. Hime passed into the corps from the Royal Military Academy in June, 1860, having received his earlier education at Trinity College, Dublin. He is the author of "The Mobility of Field Artillery, Past and Present," and of some other kindred works.

The town and suburbs of Birmingham are about to be supplied with a very efficient and complete system of tramways, superseding almost entirely the omnibus accommodation of the district. The business and plant of the Birmingham Omnibus Company, of which Mr. Busby, of Liverpool, is manager, have been purchased. A limited company has been formed, with a contract of £1,000,000, and contracts have been entered into for the construction of lines in the principal thoroughfares in a circle, the radius of which will extend four miles from the centre of the borough.

We read in the Univers: "On the 30th of April, at Gentilly (near Paris), the National Guards, stationed on the house of the Lazarets, were witnesses of the following facts (by Miracle). One of the Federal citizens, perceiving a statue of the Blessed Virgin, declared that he would break it. Another man opposed it. But the former persisting in his intention took a ladder, ascended it, and struck the statue. He lost his balance, and in falling broke his legs. He died the next night. The spectators appeared to experience a rather strong impression. We have this information from a source perfectly sure. Table.

On Tuesday, July 3rd, the Alms Houses lately built at Hornsey, near London, intended for homes for decayed members of Christian Churches, were opened with the usual ceremonies. The liberality of Mr. John Box, aided by that of other benevolent individuals, have enabled the committee to erect this fine establishment at a cost of £11,000. The persons having apartments have pensions of £10 and £5 a year, coals, and medical attendance in case of sickness. There are 42 full pensioners, and a number of sub-pensioners having apartments and four shillings a month, and they succeed to the pensions as they fall in.

Miss C. Hatch, the governess of an infant school, was charged with unmercifully flogging Richard Goldard, a child of four years old. The little fellow was one mass of bruises and sores. The little sister of the sufferer having proved the infliction of the punishment, Miss Hatch said in defence the child was naughty, and had bitten her finger, when she punished him lightly, and that she had only used a leather strap to him. The defendant having brought witnesses to her character for humanity, the Magistrate, Mr. Paget, said the children of the poor must be protected against such brutality, and sentenced her to fourteen days' hard labor in the house of correction.

A legitimate Irish grievance has been brought before the Parliament and the country. Purely Irish measures have now to be examined into by the committees of the Houses of Lords and Commons, by bringing witnesses from the farthest parts of the Island to England, at an enormous expense to the Government or to those seeking private bills. To remedy this, it is proposed to leave the examinations and recommendations for or against the measure to the Irish judges, and for the Houses of Parliament to act upon these reports. It seems hard that this almost ruinous system should prevail when so ready a way of remedying it by the system proposed should not have been suggested and adopted long ago.

A curious trial for manslaughter took place at Lewes, in Sussex, Mr. C. J. Kilpen, a middle aged gentleman of fortune, was charged with killing a little girl Ellen Spicer, aged ten years. Mr. Kilpen, at the time rather the worse for liquor, was walking along a street called Bank Buildings Hartings, followed by the child. The prisoner was swinging his arms about, and as the child gained upon him he unconsciously struck her, and she fell with her head against a lamp-post, fracturing the skull. The coroner's jury returned a verdict of accidental death, but the magistrates committed Mr. Kilpen for trial for manslaughter. After hearing the case the jury returned a verdict of not guilty. Mr. Sergt. Parry, Mr. K.'s counsel, said he had paid all the funeral expenses, &c., and would present the parents, who are very poor, with £20 if they would accept it.

Since the acquittal of Mr. Edmond Walter Pook, his brother's house in Greenwich has been beset with an infuriated crowd, who have kept the family in great alarm. The prosecutors did everything they could to put off the trial, making affidavit after affidavit, in order to effect their end. The gentry of Greenwich, and the neighborhood feeling that this proceeding was cruel, and that Mr. W. E. Pook, was innocent, have subscribed to bear the family harmless in the heavy expenses they have incurred, and have resolved to indict Superintendent Griffin and Inspector Mulsenny, of the Police, for perjury. Since then the offensive conduct of the mob towards the father of Pook has been so outrageous that several of them have been taken into custody. This is something quite extraordinary for an English mob, who generally make the decision of a jury final in trials.

To News-Dealers.

As we are now prepared to furnish every edition of "THE EVENING STAR" earlier and much more regularly than heretofore, news-dealers will receive special attention.

The dilapidated state of the Medical Hall building calls for immediate attention.

The steam fire-engine was put to several severe tests yesterday; it neither "burst," "collapsed," nor failed to accomplish the tasks set, but gave unqualified satisfaction to all interested.

The cholera has been raging for two years in Russia; it has appeared in the south of France, and at Hull, in England. Accept these facts as warnings to adopt and enforce stringent sanitary measure, and we shew ourselves wise.

The richest yet—the editor of the News yesterday publishing himself as unable "to understand why Councillor Hood was called to order and asked to apologise" for calling the citizens, present at Friday's Council meeting, RUFIANS! We will give our puzzled brother of the quill until Christmas to unravel the mystery, when, if he still "can't see it," we may deign to explain.

IRELAND cannot now complain of being Royal-ly slighted. We read of the Prince of Wales presiding at the banquet of the Agricultural Society at Dublin, where he made a live speech, to which his brother, Prince ARTHUR, responded eloquently. Next we hear of the Princess LOUISE holding conference with the Irish Amnesty Committee; and, to finish the pleasant account of this national re-union, we are told that Prince ARTHUR is soon to be created Duke of Connaught. Perhaps "a Parliament on College Green" may not be far distant.

THE made-to-order paragraphs demonstrating the evil "results of Protection" which periodically appear in the "Free Trade" journals of the States are eagerly seized and reprinted by our bogus breed of Free Traders. Did we desire to give a true example of "how protection works" we have no need to use paragraphs cooked-to-suit. Read this from the Press Association's telegrams of last night:—

"ROME, N.Y., August 1.

The Rome Iron Works, which were burned on the 24th day of April last, have been rebuilt, and they are now turning out railroad iron at the rate of 500 tons per week, giving employment to three hundred men."

It is high time "Our Fisheries" were appreciated as they deserve to be. The miserable manner in which even our chief cities are supplied with this delicious and healthful article of food is little less than disgraceful to a people blessed as we are with inexhaustible stores of the choicest varieties. Are there no enterprising men who will embark in this business and make a fortune by placing bountiful supplies within reach of all classes of society? At present, to all but the rich, fish worth eating is tabooed food.

As an instance of how prolific our salmon fisheries are, the following from this day's Herald is worth noting:— "A party of three which has just returned from the Moies River, has had extraordinary success, as will be seen by the number and weight of the fish taken:—

Table with 2 columns: Name, Weight. Mr. John Brown, Hamilton, in 17 days, killed, 200 3595. Mr. John Ogilvy, Montreal, in 14 days, killed, 87 1523. Mr. Thomas Ogilvy, Scotland, in 6 days, killed, 38 798.

Being an average on the total number of 18 lbs 35 oz. The average individually was, Mr. Brown's catch 18 lbs 6 oz, largest fish 35 lbs. Mr. John Ogilvy's 17 lbs 8 oz, largest 36 lbs. Mr. Thomas Ogilvie's 18 lbs 6 oz, largest fish not given."

The Rev. C. H. SPURGEON has just preached his thousandth printed sermon. These sermons have been translated into every language of Christendom, also into many of the languages of remote heathen tribes. Upwards of twenty million copies have been distributed in England and America. Speaking of the celebrated preacher, the Christian World says—"The day has long gone by when the abuse of Mr. Spurgeon was a standard topic in the organs of cynical worldliness. The manliness, the sincerity, the courage, the probity of his character have been admitted by all parties, and the man who should deny him the possession of astonishing ability would be universally recognized as writing himself down an ass. Mr. Spurgeon has not been faultless. Like Mr. DIBRAHL and the rest of us, he has chronicled in the secret places of his heart words he would recall and which he would cancel. His over-ruled powers have now for several years been giving way. He stated last Sunday that each preaching effort costs him 'at least forty-eight hours' pain.' Mr. Spurgeon is still a young man; considerably under forty. Apart from overwork and excitement, there is, humanly speaking, no reason why he should not be in vigor for at least a score of years. He wants complete and long repose—rest, not for days or weeks, but for many months. . . . Let the body have its own way for one year, and let Mr. Spurgeon try what he can do in boating, cricketing, Alpine climbing, or any other pursuit that will take the strain off the nerves and enable the bodily fibre to recover tone. . . . As to the pecuniary part of the problem, there can, we presume, be no difficulty; but if there were, there are ten thousand, rich and poor, of all denominations, in England, who would think it a privilege to assist Mr. Spurgeon to take a year's rest."

We have frequently regretted the fact that Great Britain and the Dominion were dependent upon American agencies for the news interchanged. The Ingersoll Chronicle remarks upon this as follows:—"Is it not about time our wealthy city papers made some combined effort to obtain cable news from England independently of the New York Press Association? It is notorious that under the present system the interests of Canada are repeatedly neglected. A rowdy gathering at Hyde Park or a sneer at the colonies in the London Times is sure to be sent us, with Yankee embellishments and exaggerations; but matters of great interest to all Canada are either never alluded to at all, or a garbled or imperfect account is given. Instances of this kind are continually occurring. The Wimbledon Rifle Match may be mentioned as a recent instance. The New York Press Association condescends to tell us that the Canadian team won some prizes, and that is all. Had the Association cared anything for the interests of their patrons in Canada, it would have told us who were the successful competitors and what prizes they won. This is a minor affair, to be sure, but it shows the way the business is managed. The fact is, not the slightest effort is made by the agents of the Association in London to collect news specially of interest to Canada, and what news we do get of that character is generally altogether unreliable. Our big city dailies ought to set to work to remedy this state of affairs."

It is reported that the boiler of the Staten Island ferryboat was tested last June. Whether properly tested or not, the direful affair of Sunday conclusively shows that to the law requiring boilers to be periodically inspected there must be added a clause setting forth how many years a boiler may be lawfully worked. "Testing" seems to be little better than a farce, which generally terminates in a terrible tragedy.

The boiler which dealt out death so lavishly and so horribly last Sunday had been in use for nine years, was patched, and exploded with only twenty-seven pounds of steam on. Yet we are told it had been duly tested and certified by a Government inspector but a few weeks back!

It seems that the corruption of the age is such that even men filling such fearfully responsible situations as that of a boiler inspector can be "bought." We see no other way to account for the fearful event of last Sunday. A very handsome douceur probably procured a favorable report of the rotten boiler of the Westfield, else why should twenty-seven pounds of steam burst that which but a month before was certified to have stood nearly one hundred and fifty?

"Patching" in any branch of trade, except in cases of extreme need, is to be condemned, how much more so when the lives of hundreds are thereby endangered?

"Testing" having been proved by terrible evidence to be a snare and a delusion, there but remains the course we have suggested, viz.: the limiting by law of the number of years a boiler may be worked, and the prohibition of patching.

Terms of imprisonment, with hard labor, not fines, should be the punishment awarded those violating these laws.

CORRESPONDENCE.

A Live Letter.

To the Editor of the STAR:

Sir:— The value of newspapers in a community like our ought to be appreciated by the care they manifest in daily watching over our immediate interests. The most immediate interest of all is that of the pocket. This applies equally to individuals communities states, and nations, and is felt by all in the form of TAXES.

Those newspapers are most deserving of support which make the interest of the taxpayer their main object, and day by day explain and expose the doings of those who in a corporate capacity are charged by individuals to levy and expend the sum necessary for the well being and true interests of society.

The Times of New York, and the Star of Montreal, are at present leading the van of these useful exponents of corporate rascality and corruption, and each in its place, is to be thanked, and cheered for fearless and outspoken exhibition of scandalous doings. Every citizen of Montreal ought to do his utmost to support the STAR in its efforts to check the rising tide of municipal extravagance; and to cheer it in its endeavor, to obtain for us the many reforms we need and call in vain for.

We want, and mean to have, the authority for paying the increased salaries in such a break-neck hurry. We want, and mean to have, the names of those who received such increase, how much and when it was dated from. We want the names of the members of the Corporation who were absent, both on 12th July and also at the late special meeting, and the reason why. We want, and must have, a searching investigation into the whole of the accounts and the mode of procedure in paying out money.

I fully endorse the STAR's call for Mr. Jas. Court to conduct the investigation: I do not concur in the names of the three supervisors, altho' with perfect respect to each one and all. I am sure Sir Hugh Allan has too much to attend to, Mr. Gould and Mr. Berthelet are not suitable (as Mr. Court is) for the requisite talent of supervision, but there can be no doubt, such an examination is absolutely necessary, and if the public will speak out we shall get the right man. As matters stand, both the satisfied and dissatisfied ought to join in a demand for examination. There will be no longer confidence in the Treasurer's office till this is done. I suggest that, in conjunction with Mr. Court, Mr. Wm. Darling, merchant, Mr. Cotte, of the Jacques Cartier Bank, and G. S. Marler, of the Seminary, would give a report and verdict with which every citizen would be satisfied.

The citizens want a Park. They call and clamor for it for years and get none. The Corporation officials call for increased salaries and get them at a single sitting. The fussy Corporation tantals us with a park to be had sometime, at an enormous cost (increasing yearly), at the end and foot of the Mountain, while the beautiful Island of 30 acres, adorned with all that can make a park interesting and valuable, lies at our very door, yet, or City Fathers, can't be made to hear, even by the STAR.

Now about the 'other papers. While these startling abuses are around us, let us take up the papers of this morning, and how much are the citizens aided by their utterance?—Will it be believed? such trifles are not even alluded to!

An unreadable letter of Wm. McDougall's, about the treaty of Washington, and an equally unreadable article—"A new journal at Winnipeg—and the election of a professor at Munich—are the sum and (want of) substance in the Herald.

Municipal rules (not reforms), and Honorary degrees, fill up the offerings of the Gazette—so it has been, and so it will continue.

We certainly require outside, foreign, and other news, but we want first and foremost, our own affairs attended to—discussing, explaining and enforcing. These ought they to have done and not to leave the others undone. More anon with your leave.

August 1st, 1871.

At a regular monthly meeting of the United Protestant Workmen's Benefit Society held last evening, it was resolved to hold a series of social and intellectual monthly meetings during the coming fall and winter. Good talent will be engaged for the whole course of readings, music, vocal and instrumental.

In Mr. Cohen, pawnbroker's window, may be seen a gold snuff box, which bears the following inscription. Presented by His Royal Highness the Duke of Kent, K.G., on the occasion of his marriage to Her Serene Highness the Princess of Leiningen, to the Chevalier de Schindler, May 29th 1817. Mr. Cohen purchased it in San Francisco. Judge Wilson of that city is said to have owned it.

At the Recorder's Court yesterday afternoon, a case for using abusive language was tried before Mr. Sexton, Margaret Ryan, plaintiff and Margaret Finn defendant. The parties concerned are in most respectable positions, and out of consideration for their husbands, their maiden names are given. The action was fully proved; the Recorder read M. Finn a second lecture, and remarked that he fined her but $5 and costs, as the expenses fell upon her husband. A cross action for assault, which, consisted in M. Ryan striking M. Finn with her umbrella while passing along the street, was dismissed.

PRESBYTERY OF MONTREAL.

The Presbytery of Montreal met yesterday in St. Paul's Session Hall. Rev. Robert Campbell Moderator. After prayer and religious exercises, the minutes were read and approved, and commissions of elders presented who are to serve during the year as representatives of the various sessions, in the Presbytery of Montreal and the next Synod of the Presbyterian Church of Canada in connection with the Church of Scotland which were severally sustained.

Rev. Mr. Lockhead, was then appointed Moderator for the current year, and took the chair.

Several reports from missions and other routine work was got through with.

Mr. Robert Lang gave a verbal account of the Lapraire and Longueuil missions and said it was proposed to build a church at Longueuil for the accommodation of the many summer visitors.

The afternoon session was entirely occupied with a discussion on the reception of the appeal of Mr. James Johnston against the decision of the Kirk session of St. Andrew's Church, Montreal.

Mr. J. L. Morris and others held that the appeal had not been made in time, and could not be received now; but after a long debate the motion of Dr. Muir, seconded by Mr. James Croil to receive the appeal was carried by a vote of 13 yeas to 2 nays.

The Presbytery adjourned at half-past five.

DECKER PARK.

We are pleased to see that Mr. Decker has been able to get up a supplementary day's racing, which will, doubtless, afford good amusement to all lovers of sport; the races will take place on Friday, at 2 o'clock; and, in order to place the entertainment within the reach of all, the price of admission has been reduced to 50c.

The first race will be for a purse of $100—$50 to first horse, $30 to second, and $20 to third. The entries are: C. Quintal, b. g., Diavine; C. Racicot, ch. g., Shoo, Fly; D. Gervais, bl. g., Dick.

For the second race for $150 there are three entries: C. B. Baillard, g. m., Snowflake, to carry 138 lbs. to wagon; A. Burrot, b. g., Emperor, 160 lbs. to harness; C. Pardo, b. m., Ella Cole, 150 lbs. to harness.

The races are both mile heats, best 3 in 5. The second race is expected to be particularly interesting, the horses being carefully handicapped in accordance with their respective merits. Pools at the Albion to-morrow night.

YESTERDAY'S PIC-NIC.

We last night recorded the pleasant fact that the annual pic-nic of the St. Patrick's Benevolent Society was a complete success. Later reports only tend to confirm our opinion. The only cause for regret is the fact that some of the people—grown persons as well as youths—so far forgot themselves as to seriously damage the fruit trees.

Over two thousand persons visited the

CENTS FOR SALE at the

"STAR" Office.

ALDERMAN RODDEN has telegraphed to a contemporary that he is in Upper Ottawa attending to "personal affairs, too long neglected for city business." Furthermore, that he will write, answering the "incorrect and unjust attacks" made by said contemporary. Pending Alderman RODDEN's letter, we have the following statements to make, which we do on good authority.

Alderman RODDEN is absent on railway business. He is moving heaven and earth to get a railway built from Ottawa to Vaudreuil, which shall follow the disastrous example of the Grand Trunk Railway, and skirt a natural highway—the Ottawa River. He is working for this railway because it is mapped out to pass through or near to almost valueless land of his at Plantagenet. He would have Montreal give her thousands to this ruinous scheme.

He is desperately opposed to a railway which proposes to traverse the centre of the counties lying between the St. Lawrence and Ottawa, because it would steer clear of his land. This railway is the Montreal, Coteau and Ottawa City Railway, and is the one destined to do wonders for both the country it traverses and the trade of this city.

With Ald. RODDEN is Mr. KEEFER, who is the possessor of bog land in the line of Ald. RODDEN's splendid railway. Messrs. KEEFER and RODDEN are stumping the country together advocating their scheme.

Our contemporary the Witness may be expected to "come out strong" in favor of Ald. Rodden's line, the father-in-law of the junior proprietor owning the Caledonia Springs, which are on the line of the proposed railway.

Our readers will please watch for developments, remembering the RODDEN-KEEFER-CUSHING combination.

ROUND TOWN.

—Something like Summer at last.

—Lay asphalt in the city squares.

—No sign of the new Post Office yet.

—Impenetrable influx of American tourists.

—The Cab Company has been heard from.

—Decidedly rough Macadam that on St. Lamberts Hill; who is that big roller?

—The Detectives have been unsuccessful so far in their efforts to find the man now suspected of murdering Louise Bernard.

—Have you taken your Summer trip? If not, glance at the columns of the STAR; trips by river, road and rail will thereby be suggested.

—We regret to learn that Mr. Falkiner, Mr. Alloway's manager of the Royal Horse Bazaar, Cote street, sustained a bad dislocation of the shoulder whilst riding Claret in his morning exercises.

—A slight fire occurred in one of the back rooms of Mr. F. J. Franklin's house, 158 St. Antoine street, about 4:30 yesterday afternoon; the origin of the fire was accidental; a bed and some furniture was destroyed, damage slight.

—Judge Michael Connelly, Sheriff of the County of New York, more commonly known then as "the big Judge" arrived in town yesterday with his daughter, and is staying at the St. Lawrence Hotel. He leaves for Quebec this evening.

—A number of scholars of the Deaf and Dumb Institute have been on what may be called "a starriff tour" through the Province of Quebec, giving entertainments in nearly all the principal towns and cities. As was to be expected a great many new cases have been discovered and the Institution has now more applicants than it can accommodate. It is to be hoped that the liberality of the public will enable the Institute to remove ere long to more commodious premises.

—The girls of the St. Patrick's Orphan Asylum to the number of about 150 are enjoying a quiet little picnic amongst themselves in Mr. Howley's spacious gardens to-day. The boys are to enjoy a like pleasure to-morrow. Mr. Howley has very kindly consented to allow the children the use of his grounds twice a week—one day for boys, one for girls—during the vacation. The children are extremely well behaved an orderly, and altho' the trees are loaded with fruit they take none but what is given them, and neither tread nor destroy the trees as some "children of larger growth have done at late pic-nics.

AN HONEST WOMAN.

Col. Baldwin, of New Orleans, who has been staying at the Hall for a few days past, was rather astonished yesterday when on calling out "come in," in answer to a knock at the door, a rather nice looking, respectably dressed female entered the room and said she had been several times to find him but he was always out. The Colonel was alone. The Colonel is a modest man. The Colonel looked again at the female. The Colonel blushed. The female, however, quickly relieved his embarrassment by informing him that she was the laundress of the Hotel and that in taking a pair of white pants of his to be washed she had found a $5 greenback which he had carelessly left in one of the pockets, when she returned to him together with two Canadian quarters which were also in the pocket. The Colonel, with true Southern generosity, requested her to keep the money, and thanked her for bringing it to him. The name of the woman is Miss McLellan, and she is head laundress at the St. Lawrence Hall.

THE CANAL HORROR.

On a False Scent.

The evidence which was given yesterday, before the Coroner's jury, by Amanda La Revierre, in which she strongly accused a bargeman named Barreau, of the murder of Louise Bernard, looks very much as if she had purposely made a misstatement of facts for the purpose of misleading. The gist of her evidence went to show that Barreau had made threats against Louise Bernard, on Sunday, 19th ult., showing Amanda a knife which she swore he told her to be used on Louise Bernard; she also swore that Louise Bernard had told her that Barreau had thrown her into the canal last summer, and had sworn to kill her.

A careful investigation of the case by the detectives has, however, disclosed the fact that Barreau has not been on the Canal this Summer at all, and his old employer showed a letter from him dated a few days before the murder, from the States asking him to lend him money enough to get back to Canada with as he was not doing well in the States. It seems pretty evident that Barreau was not here on Sunday, 16th inst., and, therefore, Amanda's story of her conversation with him on that day is pure invention, and her evidence is of little or no value. The old robe of mystery has again rolled over the case, and envelops it in its dead-shroud as completely as ever.

A BOY MURDERER.

(N. Y. Herald 1st)

Deputy Coroner Cushman yesterday, at 55 Watts street, made a post mortem examination on the body of Allen G. Brown, six years of age, whose death it was alleged had been caused by a blow on the head with a heavy stick in the hands of John Dunphy, a youth of fourteen years, whose parents live at 97 Charlton street, during a quarrel between them on Wednesday last. Dr. Cushman, on an opening the head of deceased, found extravasation of blood on the surface of the left hemisphere of the brain and meningitis—the result of violence. The prisoner (Dunphy) is a wayward, reckless boy, who in the past has given his friends much trouble. Coroner Schirmer will make an investigation.

NEW GOODS.—New goods at the West-end Dollar Store, opposite Recollet House, 435 Notre Dame street. The public all exclaim, how can you afford to sell so cheap! Only fifty cents and one dollar for a beautiful Cambric and Alpaca Umbrella, of our own direct importation, from a large wholesale firm in Belgium. Come and examine our large assortment. No trouble to show our goods.

Grand Central Hotel, New York.

It is now nearly one year since this mammoth Hotel was opened to the public.

It commenced its business upon a scale of magnificence unequalled in modern times, with accommodations unsurpassed in any of the cities of the new world.

It made a complete innovation in prices, combining all the elegance and comforts, and ease, of at once the most fashionable and domestic of hotels, at rates that took a quick hold upon the public mind, and which it has sustained throughout the year with unparalleled success.

We record with pleasure the fact, that the patronage it has secured has been worthy its high and increasing reputation, and that its numerous advantages have placed it in the foremost rank of the world's enterprises.

We understand that no efforts will be spared to make it, during the approaching Autumn, the same favorite resort for families and tourists.

It continues to present a freshness of appearance, a perfectness of appointments, and an eastern splendor of beauty and elegance, in contrast to most of its rivals, and we predict for it for the coming year a success as to the class and number of its guests, at once mutually gratifying to its enterprising and courteous proprietor, Mr. H. Lyman Powers, and the entire public generally. We are also glad to learn that Mr. Powers has determined to adopt permanently the same low and uniform rates as heretofore, for which he is entitled to a vote of thanks from the travelling public at least.

ANSWERS TO CORRESPONDENTS.

A. C. C., Lancaster.—Did any other prize-fighter than Gully ever sit in Parliament as a member? No, but a prize-fighter named Morrissey now sits as a member of Congress.

G. M.M.—Was the great fire of London, England, in the 16th or 17th centuries? It took place September 2, 1666, therefore in the 17th century.

A. M.—Was the Right Hon. Benj. Disraeli the late Premier of England, the author of the "Curiosities of Literature"? No, his father, Isaac Disraeli, wrote them. Benjamin is the author of many works, novels and poems.

ENQUIRER.—When did the Pope leave Rome in the former revolution for the protection of the King of Naples? In 1848, after the assassination of the Count Rossi, his then Prime Minister, he granted the demands of the people, and then escaped to Mola di Gaeta, returning when France put down the Republic.

LITERARY AND ARTISTIC.

Messrs. Cassell, Petter, and Galpin are now publishing in parts, Dore's celebrated work, the "Illustrated Milton's Paradise Lost."

Mr. Browning's new poem, which is something of a modern adaptation, with original additions, from Euripides, will shortly appear.

The little work 'The Sinner's Friend,' by Mr. Hall of Maidstone, father of the Rev. Newman Hall, has just reached its 113th edition or 1,850,000 copies.

The Premier has conferred a Civil List Pension of £100 a year on Mr. J. R. Planche, in consideration of his contributions to dramatic and antiquarian literature.

The very rare "Collection of Old Ballads," in three vols., 1723-5, is now being reprinted for subscribers, by Mr. John Pearson, with fac-similes of the 45 original plates.

The Rev. A. Elkas, of Leeds, is about to publish a new version of the Proverbs, in the hope that the beauty of the original will be thereby better understood than it can be by the authorised version.

The Gazzetta d'Italia, will shortly publish an Italian version of a Polish novel, "The Emmissary," by John Kraszewski, translated into Italian by Madame Maria Lemartowicz, wife of the poet of that name.

Large additions have been made during the past 12 months to the collection of drawings in the Arundel Society. Herr Kaiser, M. Schultz, and Signor Faterini, have been busily engaged on behalf of the Society.

The numerous and valuable examples of ivories in the South Kensington Museum have been brought together and placed in cases in the galleries at the north ends of the South Courts of that Institution; here they may be studied to great advantage.

The Princess Dora d'Istria, who for some time has been residing in Florence, has published in the Independence Hellenique a new chapter of "Excursions in Italy," which treats of Florence. Many of her former articles on Italy have been translated into almost every European language; the article on "The Gulf of Spezia" was translated into 11 languages.

The execution of the monument to be erected at Turin to the illustrious printer Bodoni, has been entrusted to Signor Gabriele Ambrosio, of Turin. Twelve sculptors took part in the competition. The successful design, according to the description in the Bibliografia Italiana, is distinguished by simplicity and dignity, and the successful treatment of modern costume.

The subjects for the Chancellor's and Sir Roger Newdigate's prizes at Oxford for 1872, are as follows:—For Latin verse, "Puella Aureliensis." For an English essay, "The Effects of Steam Power on the Condition of a Nation." For a Latin essay, "Num in Republica foeminarum jura et Virum exaquare debeat." Newdigate prize, in heroic couplets, "The burning of Paris."

The many copyrights of well-known English authors possessed by Messrs. Moxton, Son, & Co., have passed into the hands of Messrs. Ward, Lock, & Tylor. The new works already announced by the Dover-street House will be proceeded with, and amongst those approaching completion are—Keats's "Endymion," with steel engravings from pictures by Mr. Poynter; and in Moxon's "Popular Poets," Tappan's "Proverbial Philosophy," illustrated. Mr. Arthur Moxon, the son of the late Mr. Moxon, continues his superintendence of the commercial portion of the business; and the literary management will be under the control of Mr. S. O. Beeton.

LITERARY.

DR. NEWMAN AND THE AUTHOR OF ECCE HOMO, INFIDELS.

In an article partaking of the character of a sermon in a contemporary evening journal, Dr. Newman and the author of Ecce Homo are called infidels, along with Renan, the notorious slanderer of the Saviour and declares that "Christianity is a cheat."

Dr. Newman left the Protestant faith, in which he and his relatives were reared, and became a Roman Catholic, and is now a mitred abbot of Cistercian monks in England. When Renan's work came out, Dr. Newman wrote the most able and learned refutations of the book,—indeed the only one that met the author and confuted him chapter by chapter.

At a meeting in Exeter Hall the late Archbishop of Canterbury spoke these words of Dr. Newman, after reading aloud the passage of the work referred to, which so thrilled the audience of more than 5,000, that when his Grace ceased reading every breath was held at the sublimity of the passage quoted.

After a brief pause the Archbishop said: "So sublime a tribute to the Saviour of the world does not exist. It seems like the especial inspiration of the highest wisdom to place the Redeemer before man in a light so holy, so forgiving, so loving, and of a Godhead so humanized, and in a language so simple, and abounding in pathos and eloquence, as to leave all attempts to depict His unfathomable love and mercy immeasurably behind. After reading this most thrilling passage it was with feelings of more than sorrow that I mourned the loss to the Protestant Church of so exalted a Christian champion as he would have been."

ful that he was not a Protestant. Does the writer of the article in our contemporary stigmatize such a man as an infidel because he happens to be a Romanist? With regard to the author of Ecce Homo, in his refutation of Renan, he certainly meets the argument with a freedom which the Saviour's name and actions were not accustomed to; and although we never before, by a professed Christian, had the words, words, and miracles criticized as if they might have been those of man, the writer in our contemporary is the first man in this or any other country whose hardihood ever dared to call the author of Ecce Homo an infidel. With regard to the charges against Dr. Newman, he and his works and character are equally unknown to the author of the article, and the aim, and intention of Ecce Homo are evidently not understood, if ever sought to be so, by an investigation of the works.

PERIODICAL LITERATURE.

"THE YOUNG CRUSADER," a magazine for Catholic youth," Boston, 1201 Washington street.

This is an unpretending but well got up monthly magazine, intended for Roman Catholic youth and Sunday Schools. The tone of the articles and tales is far ahead of the ordinary literature prepared for children. The different writers of the articles have come down to the intellects of their readers in a manner so natural as to bring the narrated incidents before them with all the charms of verisemblance, as though the narration proceeded from one of themselves. Another happy appliance of the stories intended to be moral only is, that all unnecessary religious terms, are as much as possible avoided, and nothing is said or done which does not comport exactly with the station, age, and attributes of the persons depicted. As a matter of course, the doctrinal articles are strictly Roman Catholic. Another feature of this work, which might be usefully imitated by some other writers for youth,—no grammatical phrases and slip-slop Yankee slang pollutes the tales. To our Roman Catholic readers we can safely recommend the magazine as a cheap, well written and entertaining work for their children.

MISCELLANEOUS.

There is a question of giving Marshal McMahon the entire command of the French army, with a view of imprinting a character of greater unity upon a force which will shortly exceed 300,000 men.

George R. Campbell, a young Scotchman, an occupant of the Philadelphia almshouse, recently fell heir to his deceased uncle's estate, worth $150,000, and has gone so Edinburgh to secure the property.

The city of Paris will shortly contract a loan to meet the heavy expenses of reconstructing the public buildings destroyed by the Commune, and to pay the indemnity due to the proprietors, and the considerable arrears outstanding.

A person who professed to be doctor enough to cure all the diseases to which human flesh is heir to, was arrested at Cobden on Friday last. Having duped two Renfrewites to the tune of $10 each, a warrant was issued and he was taken back to Renfrew to stand his trial.

It is reported that a lady named Trimby, who died in Chicago last week, was sent to Rochester for interment. But before she was interred, while the authorities were awaiting some technically, she came to life, burst the lid off the coffin, and telegraphed to Chicago that she would be back on the next train.

The following list of the ages of the French ministers is given by the Vigaro—M. Thiers, 74 years; Dufaure, 73; Bartholemy St. Hilaire, 71; De Lacy, 66; Jules Favre, 65; V. Lefranc, 62; General de Cissey, 59; Admiral Pothuan, 57; Jules Simon, 56; Poyner Quertier, 54; Lambrecht, 58. The above ages do not admit many excuses for indirection in the French Administration.

One of the candidates returned for Paris, M. Bonvalet, is the proprietor of a well-known restaurant on the Boulevard du Temple. The Parisians are greatly amused that an eating-house keeper should be elected to the Assembly, and are making merry with the fact that the same man will be called upon to supply the public with dinners and with laws.

A KNOTTY QUESTION.—One of the oddest questions ever submitted to lawyers is now puzzling those of Hartford, Conn. It seems that a man who recently died there left a widow, childless, but expecting shortly to become a mother. By his will, he provided that if the expected child should be a boy two-thirds of the property should go to him and one-third to the widowed mother. If, however, the child proved to be a girl one-third of the estate was to go to her and two-thirds to the mother. The result, of course, was awaited with an interest even greater than that usually bestowed upon such events. The result is—the widow has become the mother of twins—a boy and a girl.

Go to the West-end Dollar Store and see what you can buy for 50 cents and one Dollar you will be surprised, astonished and delighted. Come and see, opposite Recollet House.

THE JOSEPH HALL MACHINE WORKS, OSHAWA, Ontario. ESTABLISHED 1851.

THE JOSEPH HALL MANUFACTURING COMPANY, PROPRIETORS

We desire to call attention to our No. 1 and 2 Buckeye Combined Reaper and Mower with Johnson's Self-Rake, Improved for 1871.

We believe this machine, as we now build it, to be the most perfect Reaper and Mower ever yet offered to the public of Canada. Among its many advantages, we call attention to the following:

IT HAS NO GEARS ON THE DRIVING WHEELS, Enabling it to pass over marshy or sandy ground without clogging up the gearing, thereby rendering it less liable to breakage. It is furnished with four knives, two for mowing and two for reaping, one of which has a sickle edge for cutting ripe, clean grain, and the other a smooth edge for cutting grain in which there is grass or seed clover.

It has malleable guards both on the mower Bar and Reaper Table, with best cast steel Ledger Plates. It is also furnished with our new patent Tilted Table for picking up lodged grain. This is the only really valuable Tilted Table offered on any combined Reaper and Mower. The table can be very easily raised or lowered by the driver in his seat without stopping his team. This is one of the most important improvements effected in any Machine during the past two years.

Any one or all of the Arms of the Reel can be made to act as Rakes at the option of the driver, by a Lever readily operated by his foot. The cutting apparatus is in front of the Machine, and, therefore, whether Reaping or Mowing, the entire work of the Machine is under the eye of the driver while guiding his team. The Table is so constructed as to gather the Grain into a bundle before it leaves the Table, and deposit it in a more compact form than any other Reel Rake.

The Table is attached to the Machine both in front and rear of the Driving Wheel, which enables it to pass over rough ground with much greater ease and less injury to the table. The Grain Wheel Axle is on a line with the axle of the drive wheel, which enables it to turn the corners readily.

The Rakes are driven by Gearing instead of chains, and therefore have a steady, uniform motion making them much less liable to breakage on uneven ground, and more regular in removing the grain. The Gearing is very simple, strong, and durable. The boxes are all lined with BABBIT METAL.

The parts are all numbered, so that the repairs can be ordered by telegraph or otherwise, by simply giving the number of the part wanted. There is no side Draught in either reaping or mowing, and the machine is so perfectly balanced that there is no pressure on the Horses' necks, either when reaping or mowing. All our malleable castings, where they are subject to much strain, have been twice annealed, thereby rendering them both tough and strong. Our Johnson Rake is so constructed as to raise the Cam so far above the Grain Table that the Grain does not interfere with the Machinery of the Rakes or Reels. We make the above Machine in two sizes—

No. One.—Large size for farmers who have a large amount to reap.

No. Two.—Medium size for farmers having more use for a Mower than for a Reaper. With the exception of difference in size, these Machines are similar in every respect.

Our No. 2 Machine supplies a want heretofore unfilled, viz.: A medium between the Junior Mower and large combined machine, both in size and price. We shall distribute our sample machines in March among our agents, that intending purchasers may have an early opportunity of examining their merits, and we guarantee that all Machines shipped this season shall be equal in quality and finish to the samples exhibited by our agents. We invite the public to withhold giving their orders until they have had an opportunity of inspecting our Machines, as we believe they are unsurpassed by any other Machines ever yet offered on this continent. We also offer among our other Machines:

Johnson's Self-Raking Reaper, Improved for 1871, with two knives, smooth and sickle edge, and malleable guards.

Wood's Patent Self-Raking Reaper. Buckeye Reaper No. 1, with Johnson's Self-Rake; Buckeye Reaper No. 2, with Johnson's Self-Rake. Ohio Combined Hand Raking Reaper and Mower. Cayuga Chief Jr., Mower; Buckeye Mower No. 1; Buckeye Mower No. 2; Ball's Ohio Mower No. 1; Ohio, Jr., Mower. Taylor's Sulky Horse-Rake; Farmers' Favorite Grain Drill; Champion Hay Tedder. And our celebrated HALL THRESHING and SEPARATING, greatly improved for 1871, with either Pitt's, Pelton, Planet, Woodbury, or Hall's eight or ten horse-power.

We shall also offer for the Fall trade a new Clover Thresher and Huller, very much superior to any other heretofore introduced.

A NEW AND COMPLETE ILLUSTRATED CATALOGUE OF ALL OUR MACHINES is being published, and will be ready for early distribution, free to all applicants. All our Machines are warranted to give satisfaction, and purchasers will have an opportunity of testing them both in Mowing and Reaping, before they will be required to finally conclude the purchase. For further information, address: F. W. GLEN, President, OSHAWA, ONTARIO.

FOR SALE AND TO LET. HOUSES FOR SALE.—Those two excellent Residences, Nos. 133 & 135 St. Elizabeth street. The Houses contain the modern improvements and are occupied by highly respectable tenants, and cannot fail to prove a good investment. The title is perfect and terms easy. Apply to H. H. GEDDES, Real Estate Agent, 104 St. Francois Xavier street. 173-6

HOUSE TO LET, No 15 Richmond Square, with 11 rooms, including Bath, &c., newly painted and papered, with new brick Kitchen; rent low to a desirable tenant. Apply to THOS. COX, 181 Bonaventure street.

PARLORS AND ROOMS TO LET, with Bath, Water-closets and Gas, in the immediate vicinity of Wholesale and Retail Stores, Hotels, Banks, Court-house, and Post-office, most suitable for gentlemen who prefer taking meals at Hotels or Restaurants. An elderly woman living next door will keep the rooms clean and tidy. Apply at No. 27 St. Gabriel street, near Notre Dame. 178-6

LORNE AVENUE—THE FOSTER PROPERTY.—There yet remains for sale a few more of those handsome substantially built houses, containing all modern improvements, spacious cellars, and kitchen wing in rear. Every facility will be afforded to intending purchasers or their advisers to thoroughly investigate the work. The beauty of the situation is unsurpassed, and is less than one mile from the centre of the city. The lowliness of the price for this class of houses is probably without precedent on this continent, and is consequently within the means of men of a very moderate income. The payment will be allowed to extend over a long term of years, if desired, at the low interest of seven per cent per annum. Title indisputable. Apply to H. H. GEDDES, Real Estate Agent, 104 St. Francois Xavier street. 175-6

TO LEASE FOR A TERM OF YEARS, Water-power and Premises, with Sixty (60) Horsepower Tyler Wheel Buildings and Sheds; also Saw Mill adapted for Custom work.

These premises were formerly occupied as a Stove Foundry, and are well adapted for the Foundry Business, having a good Moulding Shop, Mounting Shop, and Pattern Sheds, or they are advantageously situated for an Agricultural Implement Manufactory, or for the manufacture of Sashes and Blinds, in connection with Planing Machines for dressing lumber. The facilities for getting lumber in the rough to these premises cannot be better, as they are situated on the main road, with direct water communication with all the large lumbering districts on the Ottawa and lower districts on the St. Maurice. As nearly all the lumber from these districts pass through the Chambly Canal to the markets of the United States, the lumber could be brought to the door. There is a large and thickly populated surrounding country to supply with building material, which is compelled to draw its supplies from a great distance, at a great expense. Enterprise of this kind cannot but do a thriving and paying business. The property will be leased on liberal terms, the object of the proprietor being to get business started. For further particulars, apply on the premises, or by letter, to WILLET & McPHERSON, Chambly, Q. 54-17

LOVE'S REDEMPTION;

OR
The Baronet's Wife.

CHAPTER V.

A LITTLE VILLAINY.

The position of Mrs. Major Digby in the Clurgess-street establishment gradually became a mere sinecure. She had her own apartments, and she kept to them, beginning to feel that she was best welcome when out of sight.

She faced Sir Henry at table, and did the honors, an arrangement which gratified her, and pleased at least one of the others, as it left Archie and Miriam for vis-a-vis. She received the guests whom the baronet invited for Miriam's sake, and displayed her blue eyes, her blonde ringlets, and her plump shoulders with excellent effect under the chandelabras. Sir Henry sent his valet to her room every quarter, with an envelope containing a cheque and his compliments, and beyond all this, she had little to do and little to think of. Except the wages and her revenge.

Every word spoken by Miriam on that night of their first interview rankled in her mind. The envy of a fading beauty for a fresh, bright-eyed girl is common enough; but the hatred of a fading beauty for a fresh, bright-eyed girl, who has told her that she is fading, is a deep and subtly tigerish feeling that the ordinary run of men can never comprehend.

She hated the baronet, too. He was polite, so polite, but so languidly indifferent with it. Had she been a waxen image he could not have talked more freely in her presence, or been more unconscious of her absence. He looked at her so rarely that she wondered whether, if they met at a stranger's table ten miles out of town, he would recognize her at all.

And she had danced with him, sung to him; made the best of what time had left her of well-cut features, and a pretty pink and white complexion, for him. She wore dainty little boots, and let him catch a glimpse of them, together with ankles that still literally turned many a man's head; but the baronet remained serenely blind to these enticing bits of coquetry, and in all their intercourse his eyes had never given her a second's glance, or his voice changed an inflection in tone.

It was the bitterer to her because she loved him; because she would have given all that the world or womanhood possessed for a few of those tender words or loving kisses that Sir Henry gave so freely to Miriam, even when she was by. It was the bitterer because she knew that her beauty was by no means worn out—that plenty of women ten years her junior had nothing like her grace of figure, her charm of manner, and did not wear so well.

The general, her cynical philosopher, her guide—an evil one he had been—her friend—as such a man could be such a woman's friend—told her that she had managed badly. General Montgomery Alisford Gunter, her husband's patron, and her own chivalric protector, told her that she had neglected a golden opportunity.

Every morning the general took his constitutional in Kensington gardens, and every morning Mrs. Major Digby, driven to the gate in Sir Henry Selton's brougham, joined him there for an hour or two with unflinching regularity. He did the gentleman of the old school, and courted her with irrefragable gallantry, and sometimes they lunched à la carte at Verry's.

There in the dull hours, when, but for them, the velvet suite was empty, and the marble tables bare, they could chat confidentially over what had happened, and what was going on, talk over pates, truffled chicken, and sparkling amber liquid of Moselle in well-trained society murmurs, that baffled even the keen ear of listening waiters, who made little fortunes by picking up small secrets, and keeping them.

"We must do something else," said the general, one morning. He had played short whist at guineas points the night before, and lost more than he could afford.

"I am sick of borrowing Selton's sovereigns, and your seventy-five pounds a quarter do very little for both of us. We will marry that girl if you don't take care."

"Never Montgomery!"

"Bah! They are the talk of the town already. He is as madly in love as a boy of twenty—as that romantic young giant, Ravel."

"If he were twice in love, he could not marry her."

"Why, my Cecilia? He must have some reason for his want of taste in not having made you Lady Selton long ago."

She tapped him with her fan—a compliment even from him was worth having now. "Miriam dare not marry him."

He looked an interrogation.

"Because she is married already. She was the wife of Talbot Grey at sixteen years old, and the mother of his child at seventeen."

"Then why does he not come forward? She is a rich man's protegee. Selton would help them even if Grey were disinherited."

"What if a little bird whispered to Talbot Grey that his sweet child-wife, his innocent village pet, had grown tired of her dismal home, and her dismal aunt, and gone away with a London gentleman, leaving the rest to his imagination?"

The general laughed and rubbed his hands.

"I think Cecilia I admire you more than ever. What was the result of the little bird's whisper?"

"I do not know that he ever heard it; but I do know that she has not heard from him for two years, and that two years ago he exchanged for a regiment going to India."

"He is in India now?"

"Yes."

"Where?"

"Madras."

The old soldier's wicked—for it was a wicked—face grew reflective.

"You know this girl, Cecilia?"

"Mrs. Digby rested her pretty chin on her bent fingers, and nodded with a sinful light in her blue eyes."

"Do you think she would marry Selton if she heard of Talbot Grey's death?"

"Certain! I heard her tell Mr. Ravel so when the idiot made love to her."

"And Selton's yearly income is seven and sixty thousand a year," he said, deliberating. "He would settle the odd seven on her, I have no doubt, if it were suggested in a friendly manner. By me, let us say."

"You are thinking of something, Gunter."

"My dear Cecilia, I am always thinking of something. A man who can't call his soul his own for want of money, must be thinking of something. How do you suppose that I keep my house, my country seat, go to Court, have my little pleasures, and give you the little advances that you had while you wanted it, if I were not always thinking of something?"

"Well then?"

"I am thinking that it is possible to get five out of that seven thousand a year which Sir Henry Selton will allow his wife, Lady Miriam?"

"But how can she marry during Talbot Grey's lifetime?"

"If a thing is stated in a newspaper, Cecilia, it is seen by one half of the world, told to the rest, and believed by all. If that something is contradicted next day, half the world will think that the other half, having had its attention called to the original statement, will read the contradiction for itself."

"I think I see."

"That being true of an English paper, how much more true would it be of a newspaper from Madras? Miriam, seeing an announcement of Talbot Grey's death, would marry Sir Henry Selton. Mrs. Major Digby, my own charming Cecilia, could whisper into Lady Selton's ear that Talbot Grey was not dead, and name her own price for silence."

"Yes; but how if Talbot Grey came home?"

"Mrs. Major Digby would go to him, and explain away; appeal to his sympathy—the memory of his old love—to leave the poor child alone, because she erred in innocence, and saw the notice of his decease. You see, Cecilia, what a power you would have with both."

"With her, at least," she said, bitterly. "It is worth trying, Gunter. I am sick of being so miserably poor; and if we succeed, will you—will you keep the old promise?"

The musical voice faltered now; the blue eyes almost filled with tears.

"When we have five thousand pounds in the bank, my charming Cecilia—five thousand, given to you by Lady Selton—you shall be Mrs. General Gunter."

She gave him her gloved hand on the compact.

"For people begin to talk," she said. "They know, but they do not say it in plain words, and I have suffered much for your sake, Montgomery."

"I thought I had done with wondering," said the cynical old profligate, with a gaze that made her shrink; "and I find I am still in doubt on one point."

"You are not going to say anything cruel, are you?"

"Not I," he laughed. "But will you enlighten me? Which of the two things lasts longest in a woman?"

"What are the two things?"

"Her sentiment and her vanity."

"You ask it with a sneer," she said, with an emotion seldom seen in her. "I answer you truthfully. A woman's sentiment—the love that she gives to her first lover—even if he bring her to sorrow and ruin, as you have me—goes with her to the grave."

"There, my Cecilia," he smiled, with a pretence of regret, "I would have kept that promise long ago, had I been able."

"Yet you wanted me to marry Selton."

"See what a sacrifice it would have been on my part! Have I not been always true to you?"

"I like to think so," she sighed, "or my lot would be hard indeed to bear."

There is a trace of Eden in every woman's soul. Hers was intense and faithful love for the selfish, cynical scoundrel, who had sent her husband to his grave broken-hearted, and almost driven her beyond the pale of society. He had made her his slave—traded on her beauty—and kept her to him by making her cling to the faint hope that, sooner or later, he would give her the shelter of his name.

An honest man would not have lent him a shilling on it, but to her it was priceless.

"It would be a good thing if you could find the child," he suggested. "She does not know where it is. You would have an additional hold upon her then."

"I will try," Miss Bond is a curious creature to deal with; but I will go to her again. When will the advertisement appear?"

"Not for twelve months if we wait to get it managed in a Madras paper; two days hence if we put it in the Times."

"In the Times, then. It will take twelve months to contradict. She will think he has been dead six months, and giving her another six months for her own scruples, she will be Lady Selton while we have still six months to spare."

"Good. That is a useful thought. The Times, and the day after to-morrow; and you had better take a holiday, Cecilia."

"Why had I?"

"To run down to Rylands and look for the child. You are sure to find it."

"And what then?"

"Keep it if you can. With her heart in one hand and her banker's book in the other, you will be certainly her master."

General Montgomery Alisford Gunter, a retired officer and a gentleman, whose friends were in the peerage, and whose club was in Pall-Mall, went down Regent street, with a ninepenny cigar burning fragrantly under his gray moustache, diamond studs glistening on his well thrown-out chest, and his head erect in the pride of martial integrity.

"A noble old veteran," thought the passers-by, and the gray-sprinkled impostor—the disreputable roue—laughed at them in his wicked heart. He knew what they thought of him.

Mrs. Digby glanced at herself in the glass when the general was gone. It is not always vanity that prompts a woman to look at herself, for the human face is as frequently a puzzle as a pleasure to its owner.

"I try to believe him sometimes," she said; "but I think it is too late now, or it will be too late soon. If I were ten years younger, he might think me worth the barren honor of his name."

A looking-glass giving back its reflection by the cold and sober light of morning has none of the illusion of a looking-glass consulted by the lamp-light at night. Mrs. Digby saw the lines deepening in her face, clustering together round her eyes, and she knew that those lines were so many landmarks, taking her farther from the chance of being loved.

She had loved the general intensely and devotedly. He had made her what she was—an adventuress, clinging desperately to the skirts of respectability. She could have been won from him had any one cared to win her. With a man like Sir Henry, to whom she would have given respect as well as affection, she would have forgotten Gunter, and been glad to be a good woman for the remainder of her days. But the general was her last hope; and when she was thrown back upon him, the old sentiment always returned.

It was her most painful thought that the general, having made her what she was, despaired her for it.

Two days later, the obituary column of the Times contained the following:—

"At Madras after a short illness, Lieutenant Talbot Grey, in his twenty-fourth year."

The Times was always at Sir Henry Selton's breakfast-table and Miriam frequently scanned it over. The space allotted to births, marriages, and deaths possesses an interest second only to a breach of promise case for lady readers. Miriam looked, as usual, to see who had entered the world fashionable and the world matrimonial, and glanced carelessly at the brief paragraphs which told who had departed both.

Mrs. Major Digby, at the bottom of the table, watched her while she read. Miriam was smiling at some remark made by Archie on the preceding evening's opera. The smile died away, and she dropped the paper with a shiver.

"Miriam," said Ravel, "what is the matter?"

She had risen, and pallid to her lips, was making blind motions for some one to take her out of the room. Sir Henry, quicker than Archie, caught her in his arms.

"Miriam!" he said, in passionate grief. "Open the window, Archie."

"Over-fatigued," said Mrs. Digby, sympathizingly. "The excitement of these long London seasons is too much for a lady brought up in the country. I have noticed that she has not looked well lately."

Miriam had not fainted, and she would not sit by the window of the breakfast-room. She asked her guardian to take her out—up stairs, or anywhere.

"Let me be quiet," she whispered, "and I shall be better presently."

Sir Henry took her to her own boudoir. The window looked out into a morsel of garden, up the walls of which a straggling growth of suffocated ivy fought for existence, by trying to climb into the open air. Just a breath of air, blown from the park across crowded Piccadilly, found its way to the back of Clurgess Street, and the baronet thought what a stifling atmosphere it was for his village-bred child.

"We must winter at the sea-side, my darling," he said, while the mute face, with eyes full of unfallen tears, rested on his shoulder; "London is killing you."

Miriam shook her head.

"It is not that."

"What, then, dear? Something you read in the paper?"

She assented, with a weary sigh, and he did not question further.

"Let me be quiet here with you," she pleaded, and he was glad to find that in her time of trouble she made him her refuge.

J. CHARLES begs to inform the trade and public that his factory is on an entirely wholesale principle, and that the experience acquired in prominent cities in Europe, as well as on this continent, can offer manufactured articles far superior to those ever before produced in this country.

J. C. particularly wishes attention to how essential a properly conducted jewellery factory is to Canada, especially to those doing business with European houses, i.e., to manufacture goods of equal finish, taste, more durable and much cheaper than those imported, saving freight, duty, &c. The latest styles from Europe by every mail. Artistically finished drawings of the same on application. Designs and country orders will receive immediate attention.

Improved Combination Cloth, Brush, Mop and Broom Holder, (Patented in the U.S. and Canada in 1871.)

SCRUBBING MADE EASY—JUST THE THING WANTED WHEN SERVANTS ARE SCARCE.

This is one of the most useful articles ever brought before the public. With this holder a lady can scrub her floor, or her oil-cloth and windows without soiling her dress, with much less labor, and great saving in time. It holds firmly all the ordinary kinds of brushes, viz.: scrub, window, sweeping, dusting, and whitewash, besides a mop; or, for economy, a bundle of rags for drying; it holds also a broom. Once this article is known, no house-keeper will be without it. Price, only 30c. May be found at all the principal hardware and grocery stores. The trade supplied on liberal terms. All our articles are manufactured in Canada.

(Use the tooth-plate for cloth only, and the hook for brushes.)

Office: 138 St. James street, second floor, next door to the Post-Office, Montreal.

Green Turtle Soup and Steaks at the Terrapin. Private families supplied by the quart or gallon.

Manitoba.

This name sounds so dignified, and of so romantic a character, that it carries with it an air of inviting beauty. The name seems to lend a charm which will no doubt materially assist in the rapid population of that fine country. We have often heard it stated that a Good Name was worth a pint of gold, and carried many favors;—so with the great Shoshonoe Remedy and Pills,—for this Medicine has reaped innumerable laurels for its wonderful curative properties, from clergymen and a host of other respectable members of society. See the Treatise or Hand-Book, to be had gratis from your Druggist.

Important.

To residents and travellers, more especially Summer tourists visiting Montreal, we would say, by all means call at the establishment of Messrs. Carlson Brothers, No. 203 St. James street, and examine their immense stock of Spring Goods just imported, which for style and variety, combined with low prices, we venture to say, has not its equal in Canada. As Merchant Tailors and Importers, this firm is doing a very heavy business; and no wonder—their experience is of long standing, and their well-earned reputation has gained them a high position in the trade. Every garment made by them may be relied on as to cut, material, and workmanship. Patrons may depend on punctuality in execution of orders, and all work guaranteed as represented.

SMITHFIELD. J. C. CHAMBERLAIN, Esq.—This is to certify that about three years ago I became afflicted with Bronchitis, which lasted about eighteen months. I was so afflicted for the want of breath that it was very difficult for me to speak, and in the night time frequently throwing the clothes off and raising in the bed to keep from strangling. I tried three of the most eminent physicians in the County of Northumberland for about a year, without receiving any benefit. In fact, I continued getting worse all the time. At last, I was advised to try the Great Shoshonoe Remedy. I bought a bottle and took it, and when it was about finished I began to feel a little better. I continued to use it until I had taken three bottles, when, to my satisfaction, I found that I was as well as ever I had been previous to my illness, and have been so ever since.

J. C. CHAMBERLAIN, Esq.—Sir,—This is to certify that my wife was very low with Lung Disease. The Doctor had given her up. He said her lungs were tubercled, and medicine could not help her. As a last resort, I purchased a bottle of the Great Shoshonoe Remedy. At the expiration of two days, her symptoms were decidedly better. She continued to improve so rapidly that by the time she had taken one bottle she was able to sit up. By the continuance of the remedy she was perfectly restored to health. You may publish the facts for the relief of those similarly afflicted.
